

Attack on Falklands Said Imminent

Argentines On Maximum Alert

Expectations of a British attack on the Falkland Islands grew today as Argentina puts its forces in the islands on "maximum alert" and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher again warned the time for a peaceful solution is "fast running out."

ABC News reported the vanguard of the British war fleet was within shelling distance of the disputed archipelago 250 miles east of Argentina's southern coast. The report said the main British force, including the aircraft carriers Hermes and Invincible, 20 fighter-bombers and some 1,500 marines, was only one day away.

Reports from Buenos Aires to the British media said Argentine naval sources were predicting a British attack at dusk tonight. These reports said 16 Argentine warships were at sea to challenge the British armada.

The Argentine news agency DYN said a fierce winter storm was lashing the Falklands but otherwise Argentine naval sources reported "everything is calm." The sources said coastal patrols had been increased to detect British commando landings, the agency said.

The British Broadcasting Corp. and DYN reported Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. sent a new peace proposal to the Argentine military junta and discussed it with Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez in Washington, but there was no word of the content of the proposals.

The BBC said the generals were "holding Mr. Haig at arm's length," and DYN said they rejected his offer to make another trip to Buenos Aires to discuss the proposals.

Costa Mendez told a meeting of the Organization of American States in Washington Tuesday that Britain would attack the Falklands in 24 to 48 hours. The OAS early today approved a resolution calling on Argentina to withdraw from the Falklands and for Britain to "cease immediately" hostilities. But unlike the earlier U.N. resolution, the OAS statement recognized Argentine sovereignty over the islands that have been a British colony for 149 years.

Military analysts said Britain probably would first establish a beachhead on West Island, where Argentina was said to have only 900 troops, and then confront the estimated 9,000 troops on East Island, which includes the Falklands capital Port Stanley.

But experts said earlier the landing on East Island was not likely for about two weeks, until a backup fleet with 3,000 troop reinforcements reached the area. Until then, the main British military activity is expected to be an air blockade to cut off supplies and reinforcements for the Argentine garrison.

Press Association, the domestic British news agency, published a smuggled letter from a British schoolteacher in Port Stanley who wrote: "Many of the soldiers are teen-agers, and lots have died from exposure—some, too, have blown themselves up... Livestock has been stolen or killed; they're eating the cats and, we suspect, the horses, too."

British Split On Falklands

AP News Analysis
By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — With a British assault on the Falkland Islands appearing imminent, bipartisan support for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's handling of the crisis has cracked. But the "Iron Lady" is still riding high in the opinion polls.

Opposition leader Michael Foot threw his Labor Party's support behind Mrs. Thatcher when Argentina seized the British colony three weeks ago and she dispatched a British fleet to the South Atlantic.

The honeymoon ended Tuesday with an angry clash in the House of Commons.

Foot urged Mrs. Thatcher to desist from military action and turn again to the United Nations. Mrs. Thatcher said that would "achieve nothing."

"What do you want, a war?" shouted senior Laborite spokesman, Eric Heffer.

"Use all your powers of influence with the (Argentine) junta," retorted Mrs. Thatcher.

Underlying the split in the midst of national crisis is the fundamentally pacifist outlook of the socialist Labor Party.

It's one thing to back diplomacy with the threat of force, but another matter when it comes to using that force when a party is pledged to scrap Britain's nuclear weapons unilaterally, ban U.S. cruise missiles from Britain and has a powerful left wing opposed to war at almost any price.

"Michael Foot stands today accused of cowardice in the face of the enemy," declared the right-wing 4 million-circulation Sun newspaper

Wednesday as the conservative press dubbed Foot everything from a "pussyfoot" to "fighting shy."

However, not only the Labor Party is getting worried. David Steel, whose small Liberal Party is in a burgeoning electoral alliance with the new centrist Social Democratic Party, urged Mrs. Thatcher to take the leaders of all parties into her confidence.

Noting she has not spelled out publicly the precise terms of the latest unacceptable peace formula negotiated by U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., Steel said: "We don't know what the government is playing at. It's the escalation of the conflict that worries us. ... We can't draw her some kind of blank check for doing what she wants if she does not consult with the other parties."

Some commentators believe Labor, in refusing to commit itself to the use of force while not ruling it out, is hedging its bets rather than holding a principle.

"Unlike the government ... it has the luxury of being able to back all horses at once," wrote Hugo Young, political editor of the independent Sunday Times. "It is getting ready to take the credit for victory — but also for defeat."

Also behind Foot's split with Mrs. Thatcher is Labor's endemic problem of party unity. The party's left wing, headed by former Energy Secretary Tony Benn, opposed sending the fleet from the start.

"One knows why Mr. Foot is so keen on the New York (United Nations) route," said the liberal Guardian newspaper. "It enables him

Tornado Sirens To Be Tested

The Hereford area tornado warning siren system will be tested beginning at 10 a.m. Thursday, weather permitting. Civil defense coordinator Jay Spain said that the system has been repaired, and is hopefully, "ready to go."

Spain said the entire system will be thoroughly checked, provided that the skies are not cloudy.

He added that the system will be checked at least once a month in the future to make sure no problems have arisen with it.

Reagan Invites O'Neill To Budget 'Summit'

WASHINGTON (AP) — With negotiations to find a compromise on his 1983 spending plan apparently at an impasse, President Reagan has stepped into the controversy by inviting House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill to a budget summit.

Reagan telephoned the Massachusetts Democrat on Tuesday to propose the rare session. The call was placed about an hour after the latest of 13 meetings between White House and congressional negotiators broke up without agreement.

O'Neill — en route to his suburban Maryland home when call was placed — returned it from his house and accepted Reagan's invitation. They agreed to meet at the Capitol in the early afternoon.

Even before the meeting between Reagan and O'Neill was arranged, White House Republicans and congressional Democrats offered different interpretations of how far apart they were.

And O'Neill urged the president to "face up to the fact that the Reagan economic program is not working and needs to be overhauled." The speaker said Reagan should stop searching for "new alibis" and "stop passing the buck."

At the White House, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes disputed the contention that the budget negotiators had all but failed. He said they had made "substantial progress in the weeks and days we have been talking."

Speakes said negotiators had "narrowed the range of differences on most major issues. ... The major difference is taxes — how much and what kind."

But Christopher Matthews, an aide to O'Neill, said,

"Social Security is still in dispute." Another Democrat, speaking anonymously, said, "Nothing has been agreed to."

And Senate Finance Committee Chairman Bob Dole of Kansas, a negotiator, issued a statement saying: "Whether we meet again will be up to the president and the speaker and the decisions that only they can make."

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker also will attend the meeting with Reagan and O'Neill, along with White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, Budget Director David Stockman, House Ma-

Farmers Preparing Facts For Hearing Testimony

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR

Just over a week ago a small group of area dryland wheat farmers collected to confront Federal Crop Insurance Corp. (FCIC) officials on a stressed field near Bootleg Corner.

A week later the group, which is initiating efforts to get some changes made within the FCIC, is preparing testimony to present at a congressional Field Hearing on the subject in Dodge City, Kan., May 22.

According to Eldred Brown, whose field is the one in question, and Texas Wheat Producers Association Executive Assistant Ross Wilson, the group is putting together facts and figures to present at the Dodge City hearing. The group met Tuesday to get a foundation of what they want to say, and will be meeting at least once more before testifying.

"Copies of our testimony will be sent to the National Association of Wheat Growers to aid in preparing testimony for a Senate Ag Committee hearing on crop insurance in Washington on May 29," Wilson said.

Among those at Tuesday morning's meeting were Deaf Smith County Extension Agent Justin McBride, Wheat Board members Leo Witkowski and C.L. Edwards of Panhandle, and Frank Zinser, county director for the association.

Also on hand was Jim Cavin, local agent for the FCIC insurance through Cavin Crop Insurance, Co.

While agreeing that the farmers have a legitimate complaint, Cavin feels that basically the FCIC program is sound.

"It isn't a cure-all for all problems, and it isn't really a substitute for the disaster programs," Cavin said. "We've got a workable program, and I think each farmer should look at it and decide for himself."

FCIC is nothing new and, in fact, has been around since 1939, being established after the Federal Crop Insurance Act was passed in 1938. The act followed a long period of frequent and severe droughts in the 1930's.

But, the Federal Crop Insurance Act of 1980 provides the guidelines by which the program is administered now, and Brown and the rest of the disgruntled farmers feel that changes need to be made.

Cavin agrees. "It does have all sorts of little problems," he said. "The wheat program is not as good as the grain sorghum program, and the appraisal

Committee Ready to Okay Key Civil Rights Provisions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee, poised to vote on an extension of the 1965 Voting Rights Act, will almost certainly approve key provisions sought by civil rights groups and opposed by the Reagan administration, sources say.

The sources said Tuesday that Sens. Bob Dole, R-Kan., and Howell Heflin, D-Ala., are prepared to vote for a version of the voting rights measure that is backed by the NAACP, the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights and the American Civil Liberties Union. The sources asked for anonymity.

The committee vote, originally scheduled for Tuesday, was postponed until today.

There are 18 members on the judiciary committee headed by Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and the support of Dole and Heflin, a former member of the Alabama Supreme Court, will give liberals and civil rights groups a safe majority, the sources said.

Without congressional action, certain critical provisions of the 23-year-old voting rights law will expire at the end of August, including one that requires all or parts of 22 states to get advance Justice Department approval of changes in voting laws.

The major issue in the voting rights battle in Congress centers on the kind of evidence needed to demonstrate discrimination against black or other minority voters.

A voting rights bill approved by the House and pushed by Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Charles McC Mathias Jr., D-Md., would allow a judge to find discrimination if the results — or effects — of actions by local officials are discriminatory.

But Thurmond, the Reagan administration and Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, are proposing a 10-year extension of the law that would require civil rights lawyers to prove that local officials intended to discriminate against minority voters.

Civil rights' organizations say the so-called intent test would require them to gather evidence about what was in the minds of state legislators or city council members all the way back to the 19th century and to analyze the motives of many politicians who are now dead.

In a series of Senate judiciary subcommittee hearings earlier this year, Hatch claimed the so-called effects test would lead to a quota system for blacks, Hispanics or Indians on local school boards, city councils or state legislatures.

Soviets 'Winners' In Arms Sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union outpaced the United States in the sale of arms to Third World countries during the four years of the Carter administration, according to a study prepared by the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

The disarmament agency's annual report also said that spending by all countries on military forces totaled nearly $70 billion in 1979, including $24 billion in arms exports.

The report, which focused on arms sale developments over the decade beginning in 1970, said the Soviet Union concluded arms agreements with the Third World in 1980 that more than doubled those of the United States.

But the report did not include arms sales after 1980 when President Reagan took office.

The United States reportedly is prepared to sell a total of more than $24 billion in arms in fiscal 1982, eclipsing a record $15.8 billion in 1975 during the Ford administration.

The Reagan administration's use of arms sales as a major vehicle of foreign policy reverses the Carter administration's policy of attempting to limit and reduce arms transfers.

Eugene Rostow, director of the arms control agency, said in a foreword to the study that the average growth rate in military spending by all coun-

Plane Crash Kills Two In Denton County

ROANOKE, Texas (AP) — A Dallas flight instructor and the new owner of a small, single-engine airplane died when the plane crashed on takeoff, investigators say.

Federal Aviation Administration officials who are investigating the Tuesday afternoon crash speculated that the two men were "going to check the plane out" when it crashed, said Donald Burr, a Department of Public Safety investigator.

Witnesses said the fixed-gear Beechcraft climbed about 200 feet and dived into the ground just off a runway at the Aero Valley Airport in southern Denton county, Burr said.

"They said it went up and came right back down," Burr said.

The DPS identified the two victims, the only two people aboard the plane, as James L. Argubright, 51, of Dallas and Peter Kerckhof, 24, of Denton.

Argubright, a flight instructor, was the pilot, said David Wells, a DPS spokesman in Austin. A witness said Kerckhof "had recently bought an interest in the plane," Burr said.

1,000 Unemployed Race For Jobs To Replace Aliens

More than 1,000 unemployed workers in Los Angeles applied for positions made available by a week-long national crackdown on alleged illegal aliens in desirable jobs, but criticism of the raids surfaced in several areas.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service said its nine-city "Project Jobs" had snared more than 2,000 alleged illegal aliens through Tuesday.

Their average wage was about $4.50 per hour, said spokesman Duke Austin in Washington. The INS said the raids were designed to capture illegal aliens in more desirable jobs than menial labor, making the positions available for American workers.

The Price Pfister Brass Manufacturing Co. plant in the Los Angeles-area community of Pacoima, where 82 suspected illegal aliens were arrested Monday, was deluged with job applicants Tuesday, mostly young blacks and Hispanics, said company President Peter Gold.

Georgian Never Forgot Faithful Guide Dog

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A Georgia man never forgot the German shepherd guide dog named Lottie who served as his eyes for 10 years.

Keith Roark plans to fly here Thursday to take the dog's cremated remains back to Georgia with him.

Lottie, suffering from arthritis and nearly blinded by cataracts, died Monday at the foster home Roark found for her three years ago when he no longer could properly care for her.

"She suffered a stroke. She went very peacefully. She didn't suffer," said Denise Pirtle, whose family cared for Lottie since Roark said an emotional goodbye to the dog on Sept. 12, 1979.

Roark, a 50-year-old activist for the rights of the handicapped at Decatur, Ga., gained national publicity in 1979 by traveling throughout the country screening 800 families who offered to adopt the ailing Lottie.

Mrs. Pirtle said Tuesday that her twin sister found Lottie dead.

"She had trouble with arthritis very, very bad. I noticed her back legs were wobbly Monday and rushed her to the vet. He gave her some cortisone to relieve the pain.

Jury Selection Continues

Memo Says Hinckley Stalked Carter

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutors in the trial of John W. Hinckley Jr. want to introduce evidence that suggests the accused presidential assailant stalked Jimmy Carter before he turned his attention to Ronald Reagan.

The government, in a memorandum filed Tuesday, offered evidence of Hinckley's proximity to Carter on two occasions in 1980 but did not draw any conclusions about the incidents.

Jury selection in the trial was to resume today. The first day of the painstaking process of picking the 12 jurors and six alternates ended with only two prospects, out of a pool of 90, being dismissed by U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker.

Hinckley, who is accused of shooting Reagan, presidential press secretary James Brady and two other law enforcement officers outside the Washington Hilton Hotel 13 months ago, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

The government memo, which outlines the case it intends to make to the jury, said Hinckley appeared in two cities where Carter was campaigning in October 1980 — and in one instance got within six feet of the former president.

The government said it plans to show videotape of Hinckley in Dayton, Ohio on Oct. 2, 1980. The tape "will show Mr. Hinckley in a crowd approximately six feet from President Carter," the memorandum said.

On Oct. 9, 1980 in Nashville, Tenn., Hinckley was arrested on weapons possession charges the same day that Carter was there campaigning.

But by March 29, 1981, when he arrived in Washington on a bus, Hinckley focused on Reagan, the prosecutors indicated in the memorandum. The shootings occurred the next day.

"Evidence will be introduced to show that after the shooting Mr. Hinckley's hotel room at the Park Central was searched and the items recovered include: a newspaper showing the president's schedule ... and various writings including a letter to (actress) Jodie Foster setting forth Mr. Hinckley's plan to shoot President Reagan," the memo said.

Man Convicted In Two Of Seven Murders

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Donald Eugene Harding charged with seven murders in a several states, was convicted of first-degree murder in two of the deaths Tuesday. Prosecutors said they would seek the death penalty.

A Pima County Superior Court jury deliberated for about five hours before declaring that Harding had killed salesman Martin Cannon of Tucson and Cannon's boss, Robert Wise of Mesa.

Harding, 32, was also found guilty of two counts of armed robbery, two counts of kidnapping and the theft of Cannon's car.

He still faces trials for alleged murders in Phoenix, Texas, Arkansas and California.

At one point Tuesday, Parker asked the prospective jurors: "How many have not heard or read anything about the case?"

No one stood in response to the question. Parker smiled and said, "Well, you don't surprise me."

The judge told them that jurors need not be ignorant about a case, but must be able to "lay aside opinions and render a verdict based solely on all the evidence."

The prospective jurors sat behind the blond defendant who is a month away from his 27th birthday. Hinckley stared all day at the defense table, never turning around to face the pool of potential jurors.

The defendant, in a tan suit, cut a lonely figure at the defense table much of the day while his lawyers were busy helping to question jurors at the bench. His only company was three marshals who didn't talk to him.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

We, the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of Hereford, wish to take this opportunity to express our sincere appreciation to the following for help they rendered to make the 1982 session of Panhandle Association a great success.

Our thanks to the Hereford Brand and KPAN Radio Station for publicizing the event.

For giving items for a useful "Welcome Bag" our thanks to Park Ave. Florist, First National Bank, Hereford State Bank, Hereford Credit Union, Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, Diet Center, Jerry Shipman Insurance, Hereford Parts & Supply, Plains Insurance, Hereford Frame & Axle, Flowers West, George Warner Seed & Thriftway Grocery.

The out of town visitors expressed their appreciation for the very good treatment they received while in Hereford.

Our special thanks to Mayor Bartley Dowell for proclaiming Sunday, April 25 as Odd Fellow & Rebekah Day in Hereford, and for using his time to come to the opening session to officially welcome our visitors to Hereford.

If we have omitted anyone it is not intentional and we do appreciate all of you.

Hereford is a great place to live or to visit, and we are proud to be Odd Fellows and Rebekahs in Hereford.

Prepares

methods do need to be changed.

Cavin knows the needs and problems of the farmers since he is a farmer himself. He handled 450 insurance units last year, and 261 of those had losses of some kind to file claims on.

According to his figures the grain sorghum program paid out $2.05 in claims for every dollar of premium collected last year, with $972,994 paid out in claims and $415,525 in premiums collected.

Still, according to a publication about FCIC the program "is not uniform throughout the country. The operations are marked by a wide diversity, not only between different areas of the country, but even between adjacent counties."

Apparently FCIC Regional Director Ted Crouch, who was at the meeting at the wheat field a week ago, feels that the farmers have a point. He promised them then that he would be reporting to the meeting at a gathering of FCIC officials this week in Kansas City.

While the FCIC programs have apparently been successful over the past 41 years, there are still problems as has been pointed out.

"The program for dryland wheat is new to Deaf Smith County," Cavin said. "All I'm asking the farmer to do is to take a look at the program on an individual basis and make a decision. Let's give it a chance to work."

Arms

tries in the study was nearly 9 percent a year since 1970.

The report is in fact a fever chart, recording the disintegration of world public order and the consequent spread of anarchy, fear and panic in many parts of the world," Rostow said.

"As a result, the arms industry has become the leading growth industry in the world," he said.

"Large and small countries on every continent have been scouring the world for arms, buying from governments or from private merchants in a desperate and often futile effort to guarantee their security," he added.

But he said that "used judiciously" the Reagan administration's arms transfer policy can help deter aggression, improve the ability of the United States to respond to threats, demonstrate U.S. determination not to allow allies to be militarily disadvantaged and foster regional and internal stability.

The new study said that "despite difficulties of measurement and analysis, it is clear that the Soviet Union has become the principal supplier to the Third World of weapons and weapons related items."

to keep his party, his initiatives and his undoubted passion for peace together."

Many of Mrs. Thatcher's Conservatives consider the United Nations an ineffectual talk show dominated by Third World and Communist nations. Mrs. Thatcher was delighted by the U.N. Security Council resolution April 3 calling on Argentina to withdraw from the Falklands but has since noted tartly the world body can't implement it.

Said Winston Churchill, grandson of the World War II leader and a Conservative member of the House of Commons: "The Soviet Union's veto power at the United Nations has long since ruled out to all intents and purposes the United Nations acting against aggression."

Mrs. Thatcher's rating in opinion polls has risen rapidly since the crisis began, with Conservative support up nearly 10 points to around 40 percent.

So has the number who believe regaining the islands justifies British servicemen getting killed — 58 percent, according to the latest sounding taken by Market Opinion and Research Institute shortly before South Georgia was recaptured. That was up from 37 percent a week before.

But many observers believe that if the bodies start coming home, the public mood could swing from Mrs. Thatcher as sharply as Labor has done.

Saturday Deadline For History Books

Saturday will be the final day for ordering the Deaf Smith County history book before all material is sent to the publisher, prospective buyers are reminded by Troyce Hanna, Project County History chairman.

The project office in the E.B. Black Historical House will be open from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. that day, and orders may be mailed to Postoffice Drawer 2297. Also, the office is open other afternoons through this week, until 5 p.m.

Price of the book is $36.75, including tax, or if it is to be mailed an additional $2.75 is required for packaging and postage. No books will be on sale after publication; orders must be received before the publishers begin work as only the number of volumes ordered will be printed.

Families who will have their stories in the book are reminded by Mrs. Hanna that their members may want more than one volume so each child may have a copy of the history as he goes to a home of his own. The books will increase in value as time passes, experience has shown in other counties where similar histories have been published.

Titled "The Land And Its People," the book will be a handsome hard-backed volume, bound in maroon leatherette with gold cover design depicting products of Deaf Smith County. It will contain about 700 pages printed on high quality slick paper, with numerous maps and photographs to illustrate the stories.

Besides family histories, there will be a general history touching all facets of life through past periods in the area, also a history of each community, of churches, organizations and businesses, and pages paying tribute to residents living and dead.

For convenience to those who still want to order a book an order blank has been provided.

majority Leader James Wright, House Rules Committee Chairman Richard Bolling and others.

House Republican Whip Trent Lott of Mississippi, a negotiator, said the group needed some guidance from Reagan and O'Neill.

"We need some direction from our principals, that's the basic point," Lott said.

"Maybe a little cooling off time by the negotiators would be worthwhile."

On the tax issue, Lott said negotiators "could not talk about those numbers any further. And it was really up to the president and the speaker — two great Irishmen — to sit down and see if they could work out some agreements."

Today In History

Local Residents' Grandson Is Wed

Tamara Davis and Clayton McCullough were married recently in a garden setting at Bartlett Arboretum in Belle Plaine, Kan. Charles Bishop, of Westlink Church of Christ in Wichita, Kan., conducted the ceremony before an arch of greenery, Easter lilies, and white carnations. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ted Davis of Somers, Conn. and Mr. and Mrs. Pat McCullough of Wichita. Both Mr. and Mrs. McCullough (the former Sylvia McCracken) grew up in Hereford. Mr. and Mrs. J.C. McCracken and Ralph McCullough of Hereford, grandparents of the groom, attended the ceremony.

Pat McCullough served his son as best man and groomsmen included the groom's brother, Don McCullough of Wichita; and Mike McCracken of Roswell, N.M. and Jay McCracken of Odessa, cousins of the groom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal pleated silk Victorian gown with cathedral train and fitted bodice of chantilly lace. Her Victorian hat was of net and lace and she carried a bouquet of white and peach roses centered with lilies. Her attendants wore peach pleated Victorian gowns.

A reception followed the ceremony, and later in the evening, the parents of the couple hosted a wedding supper at the Canterbury Inn in Wichita.

After a honeymoon cruise in the Caribbean, the couple is at home in Wichita, where both are employed at Wichita Ford Tractor, Inc.

Other relatives from this area who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. James Killian of Clovis, the groom's aunt; and Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Smith of Odessa and Dr. and Mrs. Bill Forbus of Dumas, cousins of the groom.

Blood collected during the drive helped the Coffee Memorial Blood Center of Amarillo prevent an emergency blood shortage.

An Amarillo man, bleeding internally, needed 140 units of blood to stop the bleeding, said Bobby Thomas, center community relations director.

"Without the blood given at WTSU we would have had to go on TV and radio asking for donors. The patient is alive today because of it," he said.

"Blood is like a parachute. If it's not there when you need it, you'll never need it again," Thomas said.

Chamber Singers To Perform May 9

The Hereford Chamber Singers will host Eugene Butler, noted composer and musical director, for a weekend clinic and concert on Saturday and Sunday, May 8-9.

The concert is open to the public and will begin at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the Hereford High School Auditorium. Tickets are $3, each and are available from members of the Chamber Singers or at the door.

Butler will direct the group in his musical compositions, including an original work for choir and string ensemble composed especially for the Chamber Singers.

The Singers, and other area musical directors, will participate in a clinic with Butler on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 2-4 p.m. at the high school auditorium. A "pig roast" will be held at the Community Center at 6 p.m. Saturday evening at a cost of $5 per person. Advance reservations are necessary.

Len Slesick To Speak

Len Slesick, of KVII T.V.-channel 7, will be guest speaker on Friday at Brown Baggers, which meets at 12 noon at the Church of the Nazarene. Slesick will give a slide show and presentation on tornadoes.

Everyone is invited to come and bring a sack lunch. Iced tea and coffee will be provided and a nursery is available.

Students Can Earn College Credits

Students may earn three hours of college credit and tour Rome and the Holy Lands during a 16-day tour of Biblical lands led by Bob Shepard, head of the Department of Bible at West Texas State University.

Beth Owen Among Nominees

Beth Owen, the daughter, of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Owen, was recognized as a nominee for outstanding freshman woman at the 18th annual Women's Recognition Banquet held recently in Clark Student Center of Midwestern State University, Wichita Falls.

Katy Myer, MSU student government president, was named MSU's woman of the year at the event.

The itinerary includes sightseeing in Rome, Italy; Cairo, Egypt; and Athens, Greece; and the Holy Land, a Mediterranean cruise, along with group seminars and lectures to reinforce what is experienced on the trip.

The group will leave July 10 from Amarillo. The tour costs range from $2,699 and higher, depending on the cruise accommodations selected. The price includes round-trip air fare from New York City, basic cruise accommodations, hotel rooms, sightseeing services, transfers and baggage-handling. A $250 deposit is required.

Participants may sign up for three semester credit hours during the second summer session at WTSU. For tour information and registration forms, contact Shepard at the Church of Christ Student Center on the WTSU campus.

Stretch Wovens Are In

COLLEGE STATION -- "Stretch" wovens are in this season since homesevers need more "activewear" fabrics that perform well under stress, says Alma Fonseca, a clothing specialist.

Stretch is no longer restricted to knits these days. In addition to the basic categories - denim, poplin and gabardines--polyester-rayon linen has been made into stretch, she points out.

Stretch denim, for example, has been most successful in navy, but this spring lighter colors of blue team up with softer, more feminine looks with gathers and flounces, Fonseca announces.

The coming trend, Fonseca foresees, is the increase in the blending of natural fibers with stretch.

Fiber-producing companies predict that in five years stretch will move into a wide variety of outerwear fabrics and will become the "volume fabric," the specialist notes.

These predictions will come true only if consumers are made aware of which fabrics are stretch and the benefits they provide, Fonseca continues.

In terms of cost of stretch fabrics, some price resistance has occurred, the specialist says.

However, fiber-producing companies are working to reduce cost and feel homesevers will be convinced of the value they're getting in stretch fabrics once they try them, she adds.

Club Members Will Do Quilting

It was announced at a recent meeting that members of the Messenger Home Extension Club will do quilting for the public. Anyone interested in these services may call Mrs. S.N. Thweatt at 289-5830 or Kathy Hammock at 289-5853.

The Club held a party Saturday night at their clubhouse to celebrate four birthdays. Guests of honor were Bobby Hammock, Bill Page, Bob Moules, and Stanley Pinkerton. About 24 were present and a Mexican supper was served.

The next meeting will be May 13, with Wanda Page as hostess.

Lapidary Club Has Bean Supper

Members of Deaf Smith County Lapidary Club met Monday evening in the Energas Flame Room for a bean supper.

During the business meeting with president Jack Nunley presiding, members decided to meet at 7 p.m. Thursday at Deaf Smith County Library to set up a display for viewing during the month of May.

They also discussed the upcoming rock shows throughout the area. One exhibit is scheduled May 22-23 in Amarillo and another is planned for May 1-2 in Hobbs, N.M.

Dale Henson won the door prize which was furnished by Betty Rice.

D.C. Allmon was recognized as a visitor by the 36 members present.

The next meeting is planned for May 24 in the Flame Room.

Former Hereford Residents Honored At Alumni Banquet

Members of the West Texas State University Alumni Association have honored a professor of English and a longtime member of the Board of Directors of the association during the annual Phoenix Club Banquet.

Recipient of the $1,000 Faculty Excellence Award is Dr. Pat Sullivan, professor of English who has taught at WTSU since 1959, and the recipient of the Distinguished Alumni Award is Leo Forrest, a 1929 graduate of WTSU.

Scholarships of $200 each will be awarded to 10 students to honor the award recipients, said Kirby Sunderman, executive director of the WTSU Alumni Association.

Sullivan has helped to train hundreds of English teachers in the Texas Panhandle public schools and teaches literature, grammar and linguistics, in addition to directing student teachers who are being certified to teach English.

A graduate of Texas Tech University and the University of Texas at Austin, Sullivan has taught at Amherst, Hereford, Fresno, Calif. and Texas A&M University before coming to WTSU.

He is a member of National Education Association, Texas State Teachers Association, Modern Language Association and has served as president of the Texas Association of Departments of English. He is a Canyon resident.

Recipient of the Faculty Excellence Award, which first was presented in 1966, is selected by a committee based on letters of recommendation from students, former students, faculty and staff members.

Forrest is a resident of Lake Tanglewood. He was hired as teacher, principal and coach at Moore School near Big Spring after one year of college at WTSU. He returned to WTSU in 1927 to complete his education and served as business manager of "The Prairie," the campus newspaper and manager of "Le Mirage," the campus yearbook. He earned a Bachelor of Science degree in history and married Elizabeth Cherry, student from Childress.

Forrest taught for 11 years at schools in Texico and Fort Sumner, N.M., and served as superintendent of schools at Farwell for six years. He earned a Master of Arts degree from the University of New Mexico.

In 1940, he began a second career when he bought a farm southeast of Hereford and grew the first commercial onion crop in Deaf Smith County the following year. In 1945, he became manager of Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative where he worked for 25 years before he retired

St. Thomas Congregation To Complete Building This Year

After 26 years, the Nave and Sanctuary of St. Thomas Episcopal Church will be completed this year. Planning for the completion was begun in January of 1981 when the congregation voted to begin work on the completion. The planning has been accomplished by a Building Committee initially headed by Stan Brock and later by Jack Wilcox who is also the current Senior Warden of St. Thomas.

With the assistance of Sanford Whitaker, a member of St. Christopher's Church in Lubbock and partner in the architectural firm of Whitaker, McQueen, Jones, and Associates of Lubbock, the concept for the completed building was developed and the necessary construction documents prepared. The plans call for about 2500 square feet of new construction, renovation of about 900 square feet of existing building, and installation of a parking area. The architect has advertised for bids and bidding will close at 2 p.m. on May 4. Bids will be opened at that time at St. Thomas, 601 West Park Ave.

St. Thomas was founded in 1948 by then-Bishop of Northwest Texas George Quarterman. Charter members still active in St. Thomas are B.H. (Doc) Kirby, Mrs. Frances Hennen, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Traweek, and William Phipps. In early 1949, a small church-building was moved to Hereford from Spur, Texas and placed on a triangular lot at the intersection of Lee Street and 25-Mile Ave. When 25-Mile Avenue was widened in 1956, it became necessary to move the "Little Brown Church," and it was moved to Brownfield, where it is still in use. The West Park property was purchased and the first phase of the present building was erected in 1956. The classroom wing of the present building was added in 1966. Since 1979, the congregation of St. Thomas has doubled in size and it has become both possible and necessary to complete the Nave and Sanctuary. Over the years, there have been proposals to conceal or to beautify the temporary east wall of the Nave which is clearly marked with weather beaten asphalt sheeting. But the congregation has always chosen to leave the ugliness as a reminder to themselves that there was still work to do. It is not planned to mark the removal of the temporary wall with proper ceremony and celebration by the people of St. Thomas and their friends.

Renovation Underway

Above is a view of the temporary east wall of the Nave, St. Thomas Episcopal Church, which is scheduled for renovation and completion this year. Planning for the completion was begun in January of 1981. The architect's sketch of the completed building is shown below.

Roberson Named New Pastor At Church Of God

Mr. and Mrs. David Roberson have been named the new pastoral family at Hereford Church of God. Roberson is taking his first pastorate after eight years in music ministry and evangelism in North Carolina. He attended East Coast Summer Bible College. Mrs. Roberson is an x-ray technician and was employed at Forsythe Memorial Hospital. Roberson said his main goal is to see the new church grow and see that its spiritual needs are met.

Public Invited

The public is invited to a free presentation entitled "Understanding Stepfamily Relationships" on Monday, May 3, from 7-8:30 p.m. in the Heritage Room of the Deaf Smith County Library.

The presentation will be given by Mike Moon, MSW, Director of the Family Services Center.

"One out of seven children are stepchildren," says Moon. "This means that an estimated 15 million children are now living with a remarried parent."

"One author has compared stepfamily relationships to merging two organizations," he adds.

Moon will focus on myths and misconceptions that people have about stepfamilies and discuss adjustments that people are likely to have to make in these situations.

Longer
Special Session Requested

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' proposed mini-session to repeal the state property tax will run longer if some legislators get their way.

Two House members asked Clements on Tuesday to allow the May 24 special session of the Legislature to consider topics other than tax repeal. Clements predicted Monday the session might last only two days.

Rockdale Rep. Dan Kubiak, candidate for land commissioner, said Tuesday he was asking the governor to let lawmakers vote on a $5 million appropriation to fight fire ants.

"The reason for this request is two-fold," Kubiak said. "The fire ant is causing much more destruction than was originally thought, not only in rural areas but urban as well. Secondly, President Reagan has cut the amount of federal funds for fighting fire ants in Texas from $6 million to $900,000."

Houston Rep. Bill Blythe, a state Senate candidate, asked Clements to open the special session to a proposal that would authorize Clear Lake City separate from Houston.

"The citizens are steadfast in their resolve to be free from the city of Houston, and they have gained substantial support within Houston," Blythe said.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Tuesday that Midland Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson, who has been criticized for sponsoring a state property tax proposal in 1981, had accepted his invitation to sponsor a measure to abolish the tax in the special session.

Snelson is a candidate for land commissioner and could be in a runoff for that job when the Legislature meets in May.

Texas still has a state property tax although it has not been collected since the 1979 Legislature reduced the tax from 10 cents per $100 valuation to .0001 cents.

Midwestern State University sued, contending the tax created by the Texas Constitution could not be eliminated without a statewide vote to change the constitution. The lawsuit is set for June 2.

Clements said approval of a constitutional amendment to wipe out the tax would make the lawsuit moot. The tax was used to fund construction at 17 state colleges outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems.

"Texas needs to get out of the property tax business once and for all," Hobby said. "We can adequately fund college construction without taxing homes, farms, and other real estate."

Hobby's announcement followed a news conference at which land commissioner candidate Garry Mauro said the most important difference between him and Snelson was that Snelson supports a state property tax.

"It's bad business for state government to get into property taxes, period," Mauro said. He said he favored dedicating oil and gas severance taxes from state-owned land to college construction.

In an August special session, the Senate approved Snelson's proposal for a 3-cent state property tax for college construction, but the House rejected the proposal.

Speaker Bill Clayton and Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Salado, will sponsor the tax repeal proposal in the House next month. It would go on the Nov. 2 general election ballot.

Clayton and Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, also are sponsoring a bill to appropriate up to $100 million for construction at the 17 colleges.

Clements told several Texas mayors Tuesday his telephone has been "ringing off the hook" with calls from college administrators.

He said administrators favor abolishing the property tax, but have different opinions about how the state should pay for college construction.

Study Rebutts Opposition To Bilingual Balloting

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Bilingual elections are essential for continued political participation by one in every seven Mexican-American voters in the Southwest, an Hispanic civil rights organization contends.

The Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund said it commissioned the first such study of Mexican-American voters to prove the value of extending the bilingual requirements of the Voting Rights Act.

Joaquin Avila, director of Political Access Programs for the organization, released the study at a news conference Tuesday and said it was aimed at rebutting stands by bilingual election opponents such as Sens. S.I. Hayakawa of California and Orrin Hatch of Utah.

One in every seven — or about 830,000 Hispanic citizens — speak only Spanish and benefit from federally required Spanish ballots and bilingual assistance at the polls, according to a poll of Mexican-American voters in East Los Angeles, San Antonio and Uvalde, Texas.

Avila said critics have termed bilingual elections too expensive and "un-American" and have demanded proof of their value.

"We now have scholarly evidence" of the benefits, he said.

Federally required bilingual elections approved as amendments to the Voting Rights Act in 1975 are scheduled to expire in 1985 unless the Senate approves a bill already passed by the House to extend the provisions until 1992, Avila said.

"Bilingual elections have received the endorsement of President Reagan and Governor (Bill) Clements of Texas. It is our hope that the full Senate will follow the lead taken by the administration and the House on this," he said.

Dr. Robert Brischetto, an assistant professor of sociology at Trinity University here, directed the study entitled "Bilingual Elections at Work in the Southwest." It consisted of interviews of 912 Mexican-Americans who voted in the most recent elections in East Los Angeles, San Antonio and Uvalde.

"Spanish language assistance in the election process is seen among voters surveyed as a sign that Mexican-Americans are welcome and encouraged to vote regardless of their lack of fluency in English," the study said.

One in every three elderly Mexican-Americans interviewed spoke no English, although the ratio dropped to one in 20 for the younger generation, Brischetto said.

"Two thirds of the monolinguals used the bilingual ballot," he said.

Regardless of their fluency, 70 percent of the Mexican-Americans questioned said they would be "less likely to vote" if bilingual assistance was not available, and a full 95 percent said they supported continued bilingual assistance at the polls, Brischetto said.

Dr. John Booth, an associate professor of political science at the University of Texas-San Antonio, said the study showed only one in four elected officials in Bexar County, which contains 47 percent Mexican-American population, were of Mexican origin prior to the 1975 Voting Rights Act amendments.

Booth said a gradual increase in voter registrations and turnouts attributable to bilingual elections had increased the number of Mexican-American officeholders here to "well over one-third, 37 percent."

Opposition To Cutbacks In Federal Aids To Forests Growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opposition is growing among the nation's foresters to President Reagan's plans for major cutbacks in federal aid to state and private forestry.

C.W. Moody, Alabama state forester, says 7 million acres of America's forest land have been cut and not replanted. Such acreage is increasing at a rate of 600,000 acres a year even with the federal reforestation incentives now provided, Moody says, and Reagan's cutbacks could just intensify the problem.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary John Crowell says tax breaks approved by Congress in the last two years should fill some of that gap.

"Private landowners have been given major economic incentives to engage in forest management (in 1980 legislation) which provides for tax credits and depreciation of reforestation costs," Crowell said.

"In addition, the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 reduces income and inheritance taxes which would provide additional incentives for private forest landowners," he said.

"It's too early to tell what impact that is having, but we are optimistic it will accomplish some of the things direct federal payments have in the past."

Although Crowell asked for $76 million to finance cooperative programs for state and private forestry, up from this year's $63.7 million, Reagan recommended only $47.5 million.

Crowell acknowledged that the cutbacks will leave private land-owners the choice of either paying more for seedlings on cut-over acres or not reforesting the land.

Still he says that "$47 million goes a long way toward cooperative assistance."

At the heart of the debate is Reagan's plan to merge the Forestry Incentives Program with the Agricultural Conservation Program and provide only $56 million for both activities in 1983.

This year, private landowners are getting $12.5 million in federal cost-sharing aid for reforestation under the incentives program and $190 million in soil and water conservation cost-sharing help under the conservation program.

Moody says merging the programs will mean an effective end to reforestation incentives. Local committees of farmers and ranchers will be deciding how to use the reduced aid, he says, and they traditionally have been more interested in short-term soil and water conservation projects than in long-term reforestation.

The government is maintaining reforestation efforts on federally-owned lands, primarily in the West, and Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., contends the merger and the anticipated demise of the Forestry Incentives Program is a slap at the southern United States, where 85 percent of the timber land is privately owned.

debate over exactly what the federal government's responsibility toward private property is during times of budget restraint.

"We have tended to go overboard in the past in accepting responsibility for the federal government," Crowell said. "We're trying to reverse that, especially in situations where the private sector has the benefits and can bear the cost."

Block Looking Over Plans To Curb Dairy Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says he still is looking at ways to curb the $2-billion-a-year dairy price support program but will not deliver a plan to Congress until all details are ready.

"I can tell you we are close, but a few details still need to be ironed out before the plan meets with my satisfaction," Block said. "The severity of the current dairy situation demands that we give it our best shot."

"Unless we get this situation turned around, we're going to be spending nearly $6 billion between now and 1985. And with all that spending, we won't be giving the dairy farmer what he really wants

Emergency Funds Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — A request for emergency federal funds to help Northeastern states wipe out the gypsy moth has been rejected by Agriculture Secretary John Block.

Block turned down the request on Tuesday because he said it would set a questionable precedent that would leave the government open to similar costly requests for help with infestations of other plant pests.

"We have other budgetary concerns, other budgetary restraints, that make this a very difficult decision for us," Assistant Agriculture Secretary John Crowell said.

"In times when we have budgetary restraints, we have to make some priority choices," Crowell said. "The gypsy moth's economic impact is not one that will cause significant losses."

The infestation of gypsy moths, which denude trees by attacking leaves, has spread across 13 million acres of timber land in 15 states, primarily in the Northeast. Crowell said there is no indication that the infestation will stop spreading soon.

He said the federal government is still devoting funds to gypsy moth research.

The request for emergency federal aid, initially made by the state of Pennsylvania, was the first under legislation passed after the California Mediterranean fruit fly infestation. It gave USDA authority to provide funds in extraordinarily extreme situations to control plant pests. That authority had been limited to only animal disease control.

prosperity at the marketplace."

Block's remarks were in a speech Monday night at the annual meeting of the Newspaper Farm Editors of America.

The Agriculture Department is required by law to buy surplus butter, cheese and non-fat dry milk at specified prices to support the price of milk paid to farmers.

As a result of expanding milk production, market prices have sagged, forcing USDA to buy record amounts of those dairy commodities. Some of the products are donated to schools and needy families or to foreign aid programs, but the stockpile grows even faster.

"Right now we have 365 million pounds of butter in government storage," Block said. "We've got 655 million pounds of cheese and 973 million pounds of non-fat dry milk. And those inventories are growing day by day. If we don't stop it now, by 1985 we're going to have the equivalent to 30 billion pounds of milk in storage. We just can't let that happen."

Earlier this month, Block said he would have the administration's proposed dairy legislation ready in about two weeks, and there were indications he might announce it Monday or Tuesday.

Block said that despite bleak economic conditions on the farm, he is optimistic about the recent general decline in the inflation rate, some easing of short-term interest rates and market price improvements for grain, soybeans and livestock.

Earlier in the day, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., told the farm editors that, while there is "no quick fix" for agricultural problems, he is confident the Reagan administration is on the right track.

"We need to get farmers competitive on the basis of free enterprise," said Helms, who is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. Farmers need lower interest rates, and the government should "get off their backs," he said.

Helms said some people in the news media — whom he did not identify — speak of "too much doom and gloom" about the farm economy. "I wonder if they are not trying to talk us into a depression," he said.

Iowa Lead Exporter Of Farm Commodities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iowa was the leading exporter of farm commodities in 1980-81, nudging ahead of Illinois for the first time in recent years, the Agriculture Department says.

Farm exports in the fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30 rose a record level of $43.8 billion. Of that amount, the top 10 states provided about $25.4 billion, or 58 percent, of the total.

In order, the leading farm export states were: Iowa, $3.74 billion; Illinois, $3.62 billion; California, $3.59 billion; Texas, $2.58 billion; Minnesota, $2.34 billion; Kansas, $2.26 billion; Nebraska, $2.11 billion; Indiana, $2.01 billion; Ohio, $1.63 billion, and Missouri, $1.32 billion.

The annual state export rankings are based primarily on a state's production record. Thus, a big corn producer would be a big corn exporter.

For the latest rankings, production figures for 1980 were used — a year when drought bit into yields over much of the country.

"Increased soybean production during 1980 boosted Iowa's export share, while Illinois' share dropped because soybean output declined," the department's Economic Research Service said Monday.

"Both states experienced reduced corn crops, but Illinois' production fell more sharply. Exports from California benefited from increased shipments of fruits, vegetables, rice, poultry, seeds and hay, particularly to Japan and other Asian countries."

The report said that because few states collect or publish information on exports, state shares "were estimated from data sources" such as USDA crop reports and census information.

"A major premise is that each state's share of exports equals its contribution to U.S. farm output," the report said. "While this premise may not always be valid, producers in each state do obtain additional income indirectly from exports through their price-enhancing effect."

Meanwhile, a related article in the same report suggested that exports of U.S. farm commodities may decline this year in actual quantity shipped as well as in dollar value.

During the first five months of the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1, farm exports were valued at about $18.1 billion, down 8 percent from the same period in 1980-81. The export volume was 70.4 million metric tons, down 2 percent.

The report said the drop from year-earlier levels suggests an export forecast issued two months ago "may be too high."

The report said a 26 percent drop in corn exports, along with reduced shipments of rice and some other commodities were largely responsible for the lower quantities. Wheat exports, on the other hand, were up 11 percent from a year earlier.

Lower grain prices also were major factors in the reduced dollar values.

Munchak Top Pick Oilers In Youth Movement

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers have established the foundations for the future with a rookie quarterback possessing Rhodes scholar intelligence and a massive offensive guard who takes a nasty disposition onto the field.

Oiler Coach Ed Biles selected Penn State guard Mike Munchak, 6-6, 268, in the first round of Tuesday's National Football League draft and then chose brainy West Virginia quarterback Oliver Luck in the second round, signaling the start of a youth movement to improve on last year's 7-9 finish.

"We need to get somebody coming along at guard because (starting guard Ed) Fisher is in his 30s," Biles said. "So the age factor had something to do with it."

After picking Munchak, Biles traded disenchanted tight end Mike Barber to Los Angeles in exchange for its second round selection and used the pick to take Luck, who advanced to the regional round in the 1981 Rhodes Scholar competition.

Luck, a top student who has made only one grade below an A in his collegiate career, will join starter Gifford Nielsen and veteran Ken Stabler in battling for playing time at quarterback.

"I think I can play in the NFL but all quarterbacks have to go through an apprenticeship," Luck said. "It's rare to step in and play because there is so much to learn and the offense is so complicated."

Munchak, 6-3, 257, described himself as a quiet, low key person off the field. But something happens when he gets in a game.

"In a game, I get very involved," Munchak said. "If you meet me in Houston, you'd see I'm not that type of guy off the field. But when I get on the field I get very aggressive."

Munchak was among the top rated guards in virtually

Draft Tabs 22 Texans

By The Associated Press

Twenty-two Texas collegians, eight from the Cotton Bowl-champion Texas Longhorns, were picked in Tuesday's rounds of the National Football League draft.

New England had the draft's No. 1 pick and, as expected, chose Texas defensive lineman Kenneth Sims. Later in the first round, Pittsburgh selected yet another Baylor running back, drafting Walter Abercrombie.

Sims, a native of tiny Kosse in Central Texas, impressed pro scouts with his pass-rushing at Texas and joins a team that ranked last in the NFL in quarterback sacks last year. In New England, he will be playing under a coach he played against in college, former Southern Methodist Coach Ron Meyer.

Meyer has said Sims will start at left end. "I think we can do better than 20 sacks in a 16-game season," said the 6-foot-5, 279-pound Sims. "So I hope to add to that aspect of the game and help out on the run."

Walter Abercrombie, who averaged five yards per carry for Baylor last year, joins former Bear running backs Greg Hawthorne and Frank Pollard in Pittsburgh.

In the second round, Texas A&M defensive end Keith Baldwin went to the Cleveland Browns, Texas offensive tackle Terry Tausch was grabbed by the Minnesota Vikings and Texas linebacker Bruce Scholtz was picked by the Seattle Seahawks.

Later, Southwest Texas State defensive back Bobby Watkins was chosen by the Detroit Lions, Texas tight end Lawrence Sampleton went to the Philadelphia Eagles and West Texas State offensive tackle Reggie McElroy was drafted by the New York Jets.

New England took the second of its two third-round picks to draft another Texan, Angelo State linebacker Clayton Weishohn. Later in the round, Oakland picked Baylor defensive back Vann McElroy.

In the fourth round, Chicago selected Baylor running back Dennis Gentry and Cincinnati chose Texas running back Rodney Tate.

In round five, North Texas State defensive end Tony Elliott was picked by New Orleans, Texas center Mike Babb of Texas went to Cleveland, SMU guard Perry Hartnett went to Chicago, Texas defensive backs Vance Bedford and William Graham were chosen by St. Louis and Detroit respectively, Texas-El Paso running back Del Thompson went to Kansas City and Bishop defensive back Dennis DeVaughan was picked by Philadelphia.

In the sixth round, Kansas City chose Texas A&I defensive back Durwood Roquemore, Cleveland selected wide receiver Mike Whitwell of Texas A&M, and the New York Jets picked Houston wide receiver Lonell Phea.

all the published scouting reports and could help the Oilers quickly, but Biles stopped short of predicting a starting assignment next season.

"That's a lot of pressure to put on him to say he's going to start," Biles said. "Very rarely to offensive linemen do that. There's a lot to learn."

Munchak will be competing for playing time with Fisher, John Schuhmacher, the other starter, and former starter George Reihner, who is coming back from a one-year retirement.

Michigan's Stan Edwards, 6-0, 208, a running back with a reputation as an outstanding blocker, was the Oiler's selectio in the third round and wide receiver Steve Bryant, 6-2, 185, of Purdue, was taken in the fourth round.

Biles selected Tennessee State defensive tackle Malcolm Taylor, 6-6, 250 in the fifth round but projects and AP first team Little-All-American as a defensive end.

Gary Allen, 5-10, 175, of the University of Hawaii, came to the Oilers in the sixth round. Allen was the leading receiver with seven catches for 195 yards in the 1982 Hula Bowl all-star game.

Cowboys Opt For No-Names

DALLAS (AP) — They watched every move he made in the All-Star games. They sent him through every agility drill possible. It was like the Dallas Cowboys were trying to find a reason not to draft Rod Hill.

What they saw finally made Coach Tom Landry decide to draw to an inside straight if the speedy defensive back from Kentucky State was still available in Tuesday's National Football League draft.

He was there as the 25th pick of the first round and Landry gambled.

"We're very impressed with him as an athlete," said Landry.

What dazzled the Cowboys the most was Hill's blazing speed and lateral agility, prime requisites for an NFL defensive.

Plus a big bonus: Hill was the top punt returner in the nation two years ago. He returned one punt 87 yards for a touchdown.

The 5-11, 183-pound Hill was sidelined three games with an ankle injury last season, but has fully recovered.

"If we wanted to be sure we were right we would have chosen somebody else. There were other more solid picks," said Landry. "We were impressed with his movement during a tryout camp we had down here."

Landry said Hill had 4.6 speed in the 40 "which means he can fly. We have a very fast player. You see a lot of 4.4s or 4.5s which are really 4.6s because the players aren't timed right."

Landry said the only question mark was Hill's tackling ability.

"He's not as aggressive as we would like but he was playing safety and backpedaling with the snap," said Landry. "Also, when you get a film from a small school you are lucky if they locate the player."

Hill, who missed a flight to Dallas Tuesday night, was expected today for a press conference.

The Cowboys, who will be missing the retired linebacker D.D. Lewis and strong safety Charlie Waters, went heavily for defensive help.

They picked Yale linebacker Jeff Rohrer in the second round; followed with Wyoming linebacker Jim Eliopoulos in the third round; and took defensive backs Brian Carpenter of Michigan and Monty Hunter of Salem College in the fourth round.

League teams were looking for that Brian Sipe, that Don Nottingham, that Tyrone McGriff, that low-round or last-round pick who somehow manages to buck the odds by making it — making it big — when those higher picks with more promise falter.

Sipe, the quarterback of the Cleveland Browns, was a 17th-round pick. Nottingham, the human bowling-ball running back with Baltimore and Miami, was a next-to-last selection. And McGriff, a rookie who broke into the starting offensive line of the Pittsburgh's defending Super Bowl champions in 1980, was the last pick in the draft that year.

It doesn't happen often, but it happens. And with six rounds remaining in this year's draft, a lot more players remained to be sifted and selected. It took 10 hours, 54 minutes to go through the first six rounds. By the time the third round had arrived, the team representatives were looking at each other and asking, "Who?" or "How do you spell it?"

The big names were long gone, particularly this year, one which most scouts called one of the thinnest drafts in recent memory. Some called it a one-man draft, Sims being that one. The University of Texas defensive tackle was No. 1, taken Tuesday by the New England to open the first of the 12 rounds. The 6-foot-6, 265-pounder strode into the spotlight at draft headquarters — and probably into a million-dollar contract, compliments of Patriots owner Billy Sullivan, who knows the value of a buck.

"I was a No. 1 pick 22 years ago 'cause I was foolish enough to spend $250,000 on an AFL team," Sullivan joked, referring to what it cost him to start the American Football League's Boston franchise.

Jones also is close to $1 million richer. The "franchise" quarterback for nine years in Baltimore was fed up with playing for the Colts (a 2-14 season in 1981 didn't help) and said the only way he would sign another contract with them was if they then traded him.

Tuesday, they dealt him to Los Angeles for the Rams' first-round and second-round picks. Jones' reaction startled some people at a news conference in Los Angeles with a joyous yell, "Yee-Hi-I-I."

The contract Jones signed with Baltimore (to be paid by the Rams) calls for $320,000 the first year, $330,000 the second and $340,000 the third, plus performance clauses which will likely push it past $1 million.

And after picking linebacker Johnie Cooks of Mississippi State with their own choice (No. 2 overall), the Colts used the Rams' No. 5 in the opening round to replace Jones with Ohio State quarterback Art Schlichter. The second-round pick acquired from the Rams produced punter Rohn Stark from Florida State.

Padres Clip Mets, Overtake Braves in NL West

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

It was a moment to savor for the San Diego Padres. "It's like somebody who hasn't eaten in a long time and then somebody gives him a steak," said Eric Show. Show was the winning pitcher Tuesday night on a momentous occasion for the long-suffering Padres. An 8-5 victory over the New York Mets vaulted them past Atlanta and into first place in the National League West.

It not only was a club-record 11th-straight victory for the surprising Padres, but marked the latest into any season of their history that they had been on top.

"I think everybody's starting to realize it's about time to take the Padres seriously," said Show.

Padre Manager Dick Williams relishes San Diego's fast start, of course, but is keeping his euphoria on hold.

"It's nice to be in first place now, but it would be nicer in October," Williams said. "I just hope we keep playing this way."

Luis Salazar tripled in a pair of runs and Sixto Lezcano doubled in two more for the Padres.

Kurt Bevacqua, pinch-hitting for starter John Curtis in the San Diego fourth, singled in the go-ahead run to snap a 5-5 tie. Salazar reached second to open the inning off reliever Jesse Orosco, 0-3, when second baseman Bob Bailor misplayed his pop fly for an error. Bevacqua delivered his single one out later.

Show, 3-0, took over for Curtis, who had given up eight hits and five runs, and worked the final five innings to gain the victory.

The triumph moved the Padres, now 12-4, into first place by percentage points over the Atlanta Braves, who lost their fifth straight game, 10-4 to Pittsburgh. The Padres' streak broke their 10-game winning string of 1978.

In other NL action, the Houston Astros beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-0; the Cincinnati Reds topped the Chicago Cubs 6-3; the Los Angeles Dodgers downed the Philadelphia Phillies 3-0 and the Montreal Expos edged the San Francisco Giants 3-2.

Pirates 10, Braves 4

Tony Pena belted a grand slam home run, Jason Thompson hit two homers, and Tom Griffin and Kent Tekulve combined on a five-hitter as Pittsburgh beat Atlanta.

The Braves continued to spin after opening the season with a record-setting 13-game winning streak.

Griffin, 1-1, was relieved by Tekulve in the ninth after giving up a two-run homer to Bob Horner with no outs. Bob Walk, 2-2, was the loser.

"I was just looking for a ball I could hit hard," said Pena after hitting his slam off reliever Jose Alvarez in the fifth inning. "I don't consider myself a home run hitter. I just want to hit line drives. I haven't hit many, but I knew that one was gone when I hit it."

Astros 3, Cardinals 0

Ray Knight, Phil Garner and Jose Cruz each knocked in a run and Vern Ruhle allowed only four hits in 7-3 innings to lead Houston over St. Louis. The loss was the Cardinals' third in a row following a winning streak of 12 games.

Ruhle, 1-2, was lifted after giving up Lonnie Smith's double in the eighth inning and was relieved by Joe Sambito, who gained his fourth save. Steve Mura, 2-1, was the loser.

Jackson Roundtripper Defeats Yankees, 3-1

By DAVID EINSTEIN AP Sports Writer

It was a situation tailor made for Reggie Jackson — fraught with tension, adulation, and irony.

There he stood, the man who WAS the New York Yankees for five years until George Steinbrenner let him get away. He hadn't had an extra base hit in his first month as a California Angel. It was as if he had saved it up for one swing.

It came on Ron Guidry's first pitch of the seventh inning.

"I'm very happy and pleased. It's like a load off my shoulders. I'll never forget that one," Jackson said after his monumental home run off the upper deck facade at Yankee Stadium highlighted a 3-1 Angel victory Tuesday night.

Steinbrenner, the New York owner who had dumped Manager Bob Lemon on Sunday in the latest episode of Yankee upheaval, kept a low profile as he watched Gene Michael's debut in his second turn as manager go down the drain.

But the New York fans were anything but quiet. They chanted Jackson's name as they had done many times in the past when he wore pinstripes. And they added a new, obscene chant directed at Steinbrenner.

Jackson admitted the fans moved him. "They gave me a lift, a great feeling of appreciation," he said. "There were signs saying, 'Thanks for the memories.' When you're down, you need to be lifted."

Jackson also had a single and scored in the fifth inning of the game, which was called after seven innings when a steady rain turned to a downpour. Rookie Angel Moreno, who held the Yankees to four singles, got the win for the Western Division-leading Angels.

In other American League action, Boston and Detroit remained tied for first place in the East as the Red Sox downed Kansas City 7-5 while the Tigers stopped Minnesota 5-2, Chicago blasted Milwaukee 11-2, Toronto topped Texas 8-4 and Seattle beat Cleveland 7-4 in 11 innings. Oakland was rained out at Baltimore.

Red Sox 7, Royals 5

Aging Carl Yastrzemski, saying he's "in a good groove and just trying to keep it going," drilled a two-run single in the second inning and set up a tie-breaking run with another hit in the fifth as the Red Sox won their eighth game in a row.

Yaz, closing in on his 43rd birthday, leads Boston with 15 runs-batted-in and five homers while hitting at a .349 clip in the first 18 games.

Reliever Bob Stanley bailed out Boston starter Dennis Eckersley with two men on and none out in the fifth inning, worked out of the jam and stopped K.C. on two hits the rest of the way.

Tigers 5, Twins 2

Jack Morris weathered a bad cold as he shut down the Twins on six hits and ran his record to 4-1 as Detroit won for the ninth time in 10 games.

The Tigers, who boast the same 12-6 record as Boston, jumped to an early lead on Lou Whitaker's two-run single in the second inning and made it 3-0 on Lance Parrish's home run to lead off the fourth. Randy Johnson homered for the Twins, who lost for the ninth time in the last 11 games.

White Sox 11, Brewers 2

Back in 1974, Ron LeFlore made his major league debut against Jim Slaton and struck out three times. Tuesday night the Chicago center fielder had the last laugh — albeit a little late — when he cracked grand slam homer off Slaton to highlight a seven-run second inning for the White Sox.

"There was super location on the pitch," LeFlore conceded. "It was an inside fastball, and I got out and got it. That pitch has given me difficulty most of my career."

Breed the Best; Hope for the Best

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Secretariat and Spectacular Bid munch Kentucky blue grass in adjoining paddocks at the famed Clairborne Farm here, separated by a double fence. Occasionally, they pause and stare at each other over the barrier but if there is a snarl of jealousy it isn't noticeable.

Although separated by six years as Kentucky Derby winners, these two retired kings of the turf share a romance with a glamorous mare friend with a glamorous name — Chris Evert, named for the world women's tennis champion.

Secretariat produced a colt by the mare shortly after both of them had dominated thoroughbred racing honors in 1973 — the former as the first Triple Crown winner in 25 years, Chris Evert as the champion of the fillies.

Now the mare is expectant again — this time with an offspring from Spectacular Bid. The foal is slated to drop on May 10, adding another prince or princess to a growing list of equine royalty.

The magnificent Secretariat apparently isn't all that upset. He has a new and more famous mate — Genuine Risk, the second filly in the 108 years of the famous Louisville race to capture the Kentucky Derby.

The prospect has horsemen intrigued.

There is an old saw around breeding farms that you "breed the best to the best and hope for the best," and matchups such as Secretariat-Genuine Risk and Spectacular Bid-Chris Evert challenge the ultimate in blood lines.

But Secretariat and Genuine Risk are having their problems.

"The first mating didn't take and so we have had to bring Genuine Risk back for another try," says John Sosby, veteran general manager of Seth Hancock's breeding farm — a sprawling spread of 3,192 acres in the heart of this blue grass country with 44 barns and 653 stalls where 46 racing champions have been foaled and raised.

"We are expecting the result of the second mating shortly. Meanwhile, Genuine Risk has gone back to her home in Virginia."

It is in settings such as this that starts the long, costly and hazardous road leading to horsefodder's greatest day in the sun, the Kentucky Derby, which will be run Saturday at Louisville's Churchill Downs.

Exact records reveal that it all began with 34,497 hopefuls foaled in the winter and early spring of 1979. The list was reduced to 388 finally nominated for the event and then, after a fierce season of campaigning and injuries — such as Timely Writer's stomach ache and Hostage's shattered ankle bone — to a maximum of 24 and a likelihood of 16 who will be on the track for the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home."

home the first Houston run in the first inning, Garner had an RBI double in the seventh and Cruz hit a home run in the ninth off reliever Joaquin Andujar.

"They're not slumping," said Ruhle of the Cardinals. "Tonight I'd have to say I had some exceptional pitches. I could have gotten hit if I'd made some bad ones."
Reds 6, Cubs 3

Johnny Bench hit his first home run of the year and Cesar Cedeno drove in three runs to lead Cincinnati past Chicago. Bench's two-run homer in the fifth inning erased a 2-1 Chicago lead and Cedeno doubled home two of his runs in a three-run seventh that locked up the game for the Reds.

Bruce Berenyi, 4-1, gained the victory with relief help from Jim Kern, who posted his first save for the Reds with four innings of work. Dan Larson, 0-2, absorbed the loss.

"We got something today that we haven't been getting: RBI production," Cincinnati Manager John McNamara said.

Ann Landers Finally Able To Kick Habit

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For the sake of those who are risking their lives daily with throat and lung cancer, please publish this letter. I want to have the widest possible distribution. As a nurse, I have seen dozens of dying patients who smoked until their last hours, unable to give up the habit that was killing them. I am a 30-year smoker who has tried dozens of times to stop. Each time I lost the battle due to the fact that nicotine is a drug on which I am dependent. My last attempt (because of throat symptoms) was also doomed. The withdrawal symptoms were too severe. Desperate after a few days, I tried swallowing a pinch of tobacco with a glass of water before grabbing the first and fatal cigarette. IT WORKS! It relieved the withdrawal pangs enough to allow me to give up cigarettes in a fairly comfortable manner. I am now into my third week without smoking and have no fear of starting again. This, to me, is a miracle! I have tried lobeline, hypnosis and will power, all without success. Please, Ann, help me share this incredible godsend with anyone who is in the same miserable spot I was in three weeks ago.—Praying For Pint Lungs Soon

DEAR PRAYING: Over 70 million people read your letter. Nothing would please me more than to hear from thousands, saying they tried your technique and kicked the habit. Meanwhile, it might be useful for those who are toying with the notion of quitting to know that 130,000 Americans will die this year because they smoke. According to Surgeon General Everett C. Koop, smoking is the principal avoidable cause of death in the United States. The most reliable surveys say that 50 percent of the people who try to quit smoking SUCCEED. I hope you are among the successful half. Please write again in 60 days. I'd like a progress report.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been divorced for three years. My wife has custody of our son, who is now 10. I have visiting privileges. We live in a small town, so everybody knows everybody else's business. My ex has gone out with some pretty crummy characters, and we have had many arguments over this. I know I can't do anything about the company she keeps, but I hate to have our son around guys of such low character. Also, a 10-year-old knows plenty these days. When he sees his mother entertaining different men who stay overnight, it's bound to make an impact.

I have asked her to please bring the boy to my place when she plans on shacking up with one of those horse's rear ends. She refuses. I also think it's important for the boy to go to church with me (she never goes), but my wife has said no for the past month because I insulted one of her male visitors on the phone.

What can I do, Ann?—Minn. Migraine
DEAR M.M.: Your wife is violating the custody agreement. See your lawyer. Judges are taking a better look at the "fittest" parent of late. Often it is the father. Good luck.

CONFIDENTIAL to Need Help with Mr. Stay-at-Home: One of the signs of maturity is the ability to enjoy NOT going. It takes a lot of growing up to reach this point.

The nation's first national park — Yellowstone — was established in 1872 by Congress as "a pleasuring ground." Long described by western explorers, belief in its geysers and hot springs was not verified until 1870.
