Herb and the exotics

Llama hobby turns a profit

By CINDY POTTORFF
Staff Writer

Llamas in Hereford? How about a whole herd of them!

For four years, Herb and Elizabeth Vogel have raised llamas. Raising llamas is a hobby for the Vogels, a hobby that is also profitable.

The Vogels started raising llamas in a roundabout way. The Vogels have eight children, four of whom are boys. Their boys showed cattle in 4-H.

"That 4-H program I had my boys in when we lived in town, it sure kept them occupied," said Herb. "Of course, they worked at it and won some awards, too. (Their son, Ricky, won the grand championship at the Houston Livestock Show several years ago. His 'award' included $112,000 from the sale.) If you live in town and you have some boys, it's sure a good project to keep them involved. With all the drugs today, you have to do all you can with the kids to keep them lined out. I don't care if it's sports or what it is, but those kids need something to keep them occupied.

"That's how I ended up getting in the llama business," Herb explained. "It was when they were all through showing and had graduated from school. I had the barns and buildings out here and I told Elizabeth that some day, I was going to buy a few llamas and put out there rather than sell it. Ended up getting attached to them and liking them."

The Vogels are veterans in dealing with livestock. Both Herb and Elizabeth grew up on farms in Iowa. They farmed in Keystone, Iowa, for 20 years before moving to Hereford in 1969. In Iowa, the Vogels raised corn and soybeans and fed cattle.

Cuttin' a deal

Herb Vogel relaxes while on the phone. Vogel stays busy with his cattle business, but is usually wearing his "North Plains Llamas" gimme cap no matter what he's doing.

How did they Vogels go from farming in Iowa to feeding steers (and eventually raising llamas) in Hereford?

"I'd read in a farm magazine how Hereford was bustin' at the seams," Herb said. "The cattle era had come along and all the feedyards were being built. I told Elizabeth one day that I was going to drive down there and look around to see what it was like and maybe make a change.

"I left there (Iowa) on the 17th of January one morning and it was 22 below," said Herb Vogel. "And when I got here the next morning, it was 65 degrees. The wheat was out there grazing...I thought I'd found the land of milk and honey."

"Went back home and we decided to move while we still had our family all together and could bring them along."

That spring, Herb planted his crops in Iowa. In July 1969, the Vogels moved to Hereford. Herb went to work for the Southwest Feedyard and Elizabeth went to work at the Caison House. In October, the Vogels harvested their crop in Iowa and had a farm sale. When the Vogels moved to Hereford, they decided to stay.

After working for the Southwest Feedyard for a year, Herb went to work for the Tri-State Feedyard as assistant manager.

"I was trading cattle on the side," Herb said. "Then (after a year) I went into the order buying business. I was in the order buying business for about 10-12 years.

"I ran and fed cattle while I worked in the yard. While I was in the order buyer business, I had cattle on feed. Of course, 1973 and 1974, the bad years in the cattle business, came along and broke me. So I started over again."

Out in the llama pen

Herb Vogel holds onto one of his llamas in his pens north of Hereford. Vogel and his wife, Elizabeth, have turned their llama hobby into a profitable venture.

Langehennig seeks office

City Commissioner Terry Langehennig has announced his intention to seek re-election to his at-large post on the commission. Langehennig was appointed to serve out a term last year.

Langehennig has lived in Hereford since 1976 and is a partner in the law firm of Cowser, Line and Langehennig. He is a past president of the Hereford Noon Kiwanis Club, is a director at Hereford State Bank, and has served on the boards of the United Way of Deaf Smith County, Hereford Day Care Center, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, and the Hereford Community Concerts Association.

"I am interested in continuing the good history the commission has had in continuing to provide basic services to the citizens of Hereford on a fiscally-sound basis," Langehennig said. "I would like to see a continuation of our water development, and I hope the city will have a more active part in economic development in the future."

"I would like to serve the citizens of our community, and I fell I can do a responsible job of service on the commission."

Meeting scheduled on recycling plans

Practical ways to recycle Hereford's trash are being discussed by concerned individuals who met at the Red Cross office.

Recognizing future problems posed by landfills, the group hopes to see Hereford form a recycling coalition. The coalition would serve as a clearinghouse for recyclable trash and coordinate its delivery to nearby processing facilities.

Companies in Amarillo process aluminum cans and scrap, newspapers, appliances, batteries, brass, bronze, copper, stainless steel, car bodies, cardboard, carpet pads, computer paper, glass, motors, plastics and radiators.

"We would like to see widespread community support for a recycling effort," said Red Cross Director Betty Henson. "In order for us to be successful, it will require personal involvement."

Recycling centers pay for reusable products, usually by the pound. Proceeds from a local effort could go to the Deaf Smith County Red Cross.

The group is also interested in promoting Earth Day, to be observed April 22 worldwide. The goal of Earth Day is to launch a decade of international activity stressing individual action as well as global pollution-cutting policies.

One goal associated with Earth Day is banning chlorofluorocarbons that destroy the ozone layer. Other goals include halting the export of toxic wastes and dangerous pesticides to the Third World; beginning a 20-year transition from fossil fuels to renewable energy sources that do not contribute to global warming; reducing acid rain by 80 percent, and creating a strong international agency with authority to protect the atmosphere and the oceans.

Presently, the Red Cross is recycling aluminum cans and St. Anthony's school is recycling newspapers. The school gets most of the waste from the Hereford Brand and North Plains Printing, along with other donations. The coalition wants to expand recycling efforts through the community.

"In light of what we now know about the longterm expenses of managing landfills, plus their negative effects on the environment, recycling seems the next logical step," Mrs. Henson said. "Hopefully, a coalition could provide individual families with the basic methods to effectively help our environment and our community."

All interested persons are invited to help with the coalition's formation.

A public meeting has been scheduled at 7:30 p.m. on April 5 in the lounge of the Community Center.

The meeting's purpose is to get community input. Practical ways to recycle will be discussed and any new suggestions are welcomed. A representative from Wastewatchers in Lubbock will be featured. Amanda McMeen, a member of the 4-H project "Buried Alive", will present a method demonstration on garbage generation and ways to address the problem.

Local entrepreneurs interested in starting businesses related to recycling are also invited to attend.

Questions and comments are welcomed by Mrs. Henson, who can be reached at the Red Cross office.

Revell, DSGH locking horns on philosophy

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Dr. Tim Revell, who had informed the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of his intentions to leave Hereford by July 15, told The Brand Thursday that he would consider staying here if some changes were made in hospital policies.

Dr. Revell had offered to sell his clinic building to the hospital district at a March 19 board meeting, but asked the news media not to report his intentions of leaving until he notified his patients. In the meantime, friends and supporters have started circulating petitions asking that Dr. Revell remain in Hereford.

"Some of my reasons are personal, some are confidential, and some are related to hospital policies," Revell said when asked the reason for his announcement.

"I explained some of those reasons to the hospital board in executive session," Revell said. "I don't want to hurt the hospital and I don't think that this should be played out in the newspaper."

Gary Moore, hospital administrator, said this week that "too many rumors are floating around that are unfounded and we need to get some facts before the public." He added that neither he nor the board had asked Dr. Revell to leave. "In fact, we have asked him to reconsider his decision."

Moore pointed out that the board and medical staff have been working hard to recruit new doctors. "I don't know why anyone would think that I or the board is trying to get rid of a physician. We have spent many weekends visiting with potential new doctors."

The administrator also pointed out that the loss of Revell would cut down on hospital admissions and leave a void in serving Medicaid patients that could not be filled in the immediate future. "Dr. Revell and I have some basic philosophical differences, but that is not unique--I have some differences with other physicians at times," Moore added.

The controversy arises at a time when four seats will be up for election in May. The terms of Frank Zinser, Margie Ford and Craig Smith expire, and one new director is to be added so that the board has seven members. And Friday it was learned that Dr. Nadir Khuri plans to submit his resignation at the next board meeting. That could result in a member being appointed to the board.

When asked about the petitions being circulated in his behalf, Dr. Revell said there was "a possibility that I might stay, but not without some changes. I've been fighting an uphill struggle and I'm tired of beating my head against the wall."

Revell said it was not that he disliked board members--"I consider them my friends, but maybe we have a difference in philosophy." He added that the board "seems to have the idea that it's just me, but with Dr. Khuri's resignation from the board, I think it sends a message. I don't think that the board has been listening."

Revell said that "the impetus for change should not be based on whether I stay or leave, it should be based on whether the hospital is willing to take care of all patients, or not." The doctor said he understands that the operations of a hospital can't be all paid for with tax funds, "but perhaps some patients would be more willing to pay their bills if they weren't treated so shabbily."

The doctor said some nurses were unhappy here, too. More nurses have left in the last two years than were hired in the last four years, said Revell. "Some still live here and are driving to Amarillo."

Moore said he'd heard some negative comments about the nursing situation and they were untrue. "We have a good, well-trained nursing staff. We are looking for additional nurses, but this does not reflect on the ability of our current staff."

Revell also said he was disappointed in the way new doctors are recruited and introduced to Hereford. "I felt welcome and needed when I came and was introduced to people at a reception. We have two new doctors in town and nobody knows who they are. We're just not working together and it doesn't take a lot of planning."

In the recruitment of doctors, Revell said no notice was given when a prospect visits Hereford. "It's better to get a good candidate every six months than to have 20 who are not checked out and won't stay," he noted.

"Deaf Smith General has the potential to be a great hospital, but we're just not making it," he concluded.

Conkwright publishes book

Jim Conkwright of Hereford has just published a new book that should help cope with days like today. The name of the book is "Taxes, Census Forms and Daylight Savings Time Made Easy!" Conkwright, using the penname of R.U. Keating, explains how you can better cope with time changes, filling out cen us forms, and dealing with taxes. See more in story, Page 2A.

Community Concerts drive underway

Through the association with Columbia Artists Management, the world's largest and most prestigious artists' representation, top professional musical attractions are available to members of the Hereford Community Concert Association.

CCA members have been finalizing plans for several upcoming events with the first being an ice cream social planned for 7 p.m. Monday, April 2, in the ballroom of the Hereford Community Center. The event, which will be held for workers, the board of directors and captains and spouses, will kick-off the renewal campaign, April 2-15.

The CCA membership drive is planned from April 16-28. Those interested in joining the local association may sign-up at campaign headquarters located at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office, 701 N. Main St. The headquarters will be open from 9 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. April 16-20 and April 23-27, and from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m., Saturday, April 28.

Dues are $15 for adults; $7.50 for students through grade 12; and $40 for families. The association stresses that there will be no individual performance tickets sold, one must purchase a membership during the designated time. Attendance at concerts is by membership card only and if a member cannot attend a concert, he may lend his card to another person.

Scheduled to appear during the 1990-91 concert season are the Big Band Jamboree, Tony Sandler, An International Celebration of Song, and Hector Olivera, The Organ of the 21st Century.

The Big Band Jamboree, starring the Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra, is conducted by the renowned trumpeter and bandleader, Lee Castle. The 16-piece orchestra recreates some of this band's greatest music.

STRING OF

STRING OF PEARLS

TONY SANDLER

HECTOR OLIVERA

Featured is Bob Eberly Jr., who continues his father's magnificent musical legacy with a warm baritone voice, a sense of humor and a mastery of lyric interpretation that is unique in his generation. Terry Gibbs is a vibraharp virtuoso and band leader who has written over 300 original compositions and recorded over 35 albums. Fran Jeffries is an international singing sensation of television, film and cabaret. The String of Pearls consists of Perry Hart, Katheryne High and Warren Adams. This ensemble's three-part harmonies and intricate vocal counterpoint bring a fresh and exciting sound to the music of the big band era.

Tony Sandler, accompanied by the Tony Sandler Trio, showcases a repertoire that incorporates songs by such diverse composers as Schubert, Mozart, Kern, Gershwin, Berlin and Brel. Sandler's rich baritone voice, coupled with his charismatic charm and relaxed style, promises to deliver a special experience in entertainment.

Music from Bach to Broadway is performed by Hector Olivera with the organ of the 21st century. This "O-1 Orchestra" is a custom-crafted instrument that Olivera assembled over a three-year period whose tones rival world renowned orchestras, bands and pipe organs. It is the only instrument of its kind in the world and is being brought back to Hereford by popular demand.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Ann Meyer at 578-4486; Helen Rose, 364-1193; Helen Langley, 364-3486; or a board member.

Highlighting the CCA events will be the annual Workers' Appreciation Dinner scheduled Tuesday, April 24.

Local CCA officers for 1990-91

include the following: Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Langley, president; Dr. and Mrs. Duffy McBrayer, vice president; Mrs. Frank Robbins, secretary; Mrs. Austin Rose, treasurer; Mrs. Bill Walden, concert chairman; Mrs. Ted Panciera, correspondent; Mrs. Donald Meyer, membership drive chairman; and Mrs. Trow Mims, publicity chairman.

Serving on the CCA board of directors are Bill and Barbara Allen, Frank and Jeri Bezner, Wesley and Jane Gulley, Virginia Holmes, Kathlee Palmer, Kathryn Ruga, Bill and Norma Walden, the Rev. Edward and Betty Freeman, Donald and Mildred Hicks, Darwin and Connie McGill, Donald and Ann Meyer, Frank and Ruth Robbins, Austin and Helen Rose, Lee and Jo Witten, Courtney and Beverly Brooke, Linda Gilbert, Raymond Jenkins, Trow and Marjorie Mims, Ted and Mary Panciera, Violet Reinauer, Charles and Vera Threewit and Ron and Jan Weishaar.

Because there are always exciting live concerts featured during each concert season, the public is encouraged to take advantage of memberships. All concerts are held in the Hereford High School auditorium.

'Week of the Young Child' proclaimed

Mayor Wes Fisher, seated, signed a proclamation Friday marking the week of April 1-7 as The Week of the Young Child in Hereford. The proclamation honors King's Manor Methodist Home in Hereford for its services for young children, and salutes other child care providers nationwide in marking the week. Pictured standing, from left, are Joyce Lyons, King' Manor president; Lanny Wheeler, director of pastoral care; and Marilyn Bell, child care director.

Local Roundup

Theft being investigated

Hereford police are searching for two suspects in connection with the theft of $3,800 from the Thriftway Supermarket on East Park Ave. in Hereford.

At about 11 a.m. Friday, a woman walked into the store and asked at the office for help finding some shampoo. The person tending the office assisted the woman in finding the shampoo. While the office was vacated, a man is believed to have gone into the office and taken the money, in $10 and $20 bills, from the office.

The man left walking toward the west, while the woman left walking toward the east.

There may be a connection between Friday's theft and others, using similar methods, that have cropped up lately. A person goes into the store to create a diversion, and a companion then takes money from a sac or cash register.

Officers study incidents

Hereford police were involved in several reports on Friday, including $320 worth of food stamps and a purse stolen or very misplaced; a boy, 14, and a girl, 16, were caught shoplifting; a woman reported she was in a woman's apartment and had a gun pointed at her because she would not leave; two children, ages 4 and 7, were picking on each other, and police told the parents to keep the children away from each other; and charges were filed against a 17-year-old for stealing $21 in gas.

Police investigated a three-car accident at the intersection of Ranger and West Park at 3:30 p.m. Friday. Two persons were taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital for treatment of injuries. A driver attempted to make a left-hand turn from Park onto Ranger in her older-model Oldsmobile when she was struck by a late-model Lincoln Town Car. That collision sent the Oldsmobile into a Mercedes-Benz that was waiting at the stop sign for traffic to clear. Damage was moderate to the Town Car and the Oldsmobile, with very light damage to the Mercedes.

City to meet Monday

The Hereford City Commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at City Hall. The agenda includes acceptance of five lots at the corner of 13th and Ave. F that have been donated by N.E. Tyler for public use; consideration of appointment to the Golf Course Advisory Board; appointment of Bonna Duke as the city's record management officer; and preparation of specifications for a new computer for the city because of numerous problems that have cropped up with the current system.

Rape Crisis to hold sale

The Hereford Outreach Office of the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center will hold a benefit garage sale on April 21. Persons who would like to donate goods for the garage sale should contact Dr. David Purdy at 364-4496 or the Hereford Outreach Office at 364-7822. Members of the Hereford Key Club will pick up donated items.

Conkwright's new book is a sure best-seller

While Jim Conkwright probably could write a book that would make taxes, census forms and daylight savings time easier for all of us, and make a ton of money doing it, he didn't.

It's our annual "April Fool's" picture, which means that Jim is now as famous as Rocky Lee, Larry Wartes, Bobby Baker and many others featured in our April Fool's Day pictures.

Jim's pen name, "R.U. Keating," can be better read as "Are You Kidding."

Yes, we are. Don't forget to get your census form in the mail on Monday. We hope you didn't forget to set your clock ahead an hour Saturday night. If you did forget, do it now.

And, Sunday afternoons are great for doing those taxes.

Have a nice day!

Boy Scouts plan show in Amarillo

The Golden Spread Council of the Boy Scouts of America will hold its annual Boy Scout Skill Show April 7 in the Rex Baxter building at Amarillo Tri-State Fairgrounds.

A kickoff parade starts at 11:30 p.m. and opening ceremonies are scheduled from 12:30 to 1 p.m. The Skill Show will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. Tickets are $1 each.

The show provides an opportunity for boys to demonstrate the skills learned from scouting and gives the public an opportunity experience first hand the adventure of scouting. The show is a major fund-raiser for both the Golden Spread Council and the local units.

Buying stocker steers weighing from 275 to 325 pounds and feeding them out is the Vogels' main line of business. The steers usually go to a growing yard for three weeks to deal with health problems, then are put on wheat pasture for the winter. After the cattle put on 225 to 250 pounds on wheat pasture, they are put on grass to gain another 200 to 225 pounds. Then, the cattle go to Hereford Feed Yard, which finances and carries all the expenses on the calves. The fat cattle are sold through the feedyard.

The process takes a year and a half from start to finish, but Vogel says that by buying the cattle light and growing them out, he has a better chance of making a profit. He leases wheat pasture and grass because it's cheaper than buying land.

Vogel buys calves starting around the first of September until the first of the year. "Seems like if you wait until the first of the year, you get people wanting cattle for grass and it gets to where it's up too high.

"Dollars per head...you've got to watch it. That's my secret: keep watching the dollars per head from the start," Vogel said. It is a theme that he never tires of.

The dry climate and relatively high altitude in the Panhandle makes it easier to feed cattle, according to Vogel.

"Up in Iowa, we had to make some shade for that humidity in July and August, that hot and muggy weather," Vogel explained. "The drier air up here...it's like taking the cattle up into the mountains. It improves the health on the cattle because it's easier on the cattle than that humidity. The cattle won't convert as well and suffer more in higher humidity.

"I fed cattle in Iowa. Up there, you haul straw in during the summertime and haul it out the next winter as manure. I think it'd be harder to make a dollar up there. There's a lot more labor involved.

The Panhandle's climate also makes for healthier llamas. Llamas originated in the Andes Mountains in South America and are well-suited to relatively high altitudes.

"High humidity is where South Texas has trouble with the llamas, with heat stress," explained Vogel. "They can't hold the wool. Here, I grow them with the best quality wool. Down there, they shed it and they have to clip them (llamas) to keep them cool. They are a cold-weather and cool-weather animal."

When it comes to understanding what makes one llama better than another, Herb Vogel knows what he's talking about. Two years ago, he showed the Grand Champion male in Nebraska. Last year, he showed the Champion female in Houston. And this year, he had the Reserve Champion female in Fort Worth and Houston.

"I don't want llamas in quantity," said Herb. "I want a real good, classy llama...show quality, registered animals."

He constantly works to upgrade his herd of 17 llamas. In order to get the kind of llama he wants, Vogel pays stud fees to breed some of his females to top quality males. Once a female is bred, he waits 11 months before the young is born. Twins are rare. Llamas live the age of 20 to 22.

Llamas have few defenses, but are known for "spitting". When a llama "spits", it shoots its cud at whoever it is upset.

"They'll spit," Herb explained, "but you've got to provoke them. It's a means of defense."

How can an innocent bystander keep from being spat on? Watch the llama's ears: Watch out when its ears are back! Llamas understand how nasty spitting is...they spit at each other, too.

Besides spitting, llamas sometimes kick. Males have special teeth they use when fighting over females.

In the wild, llamas run in herds. They eat grass and hay.

Domestic llamas are used as pack animals. One adult llama can carry 80 to 90 pounds for 20 miles a day. That's quite a load for an animal that weighs only 350 pounds when mature.

In South America, llamas are also used for milk, meat, and wool. In the United States most llamas are either pets or show animals.

"Elizabeth likes the llamas," Herb said. "She gets so attached to them that she doesn't want to sell them."

It's easy to understand Elizabeth's attachment. The woolly llamas are "cute" and they don't smell bad. Llamas are just adorable—until they spit.

But as much as they enjoy the llamas, llamas are only a hobby for the Vogels. Elizabeth works at Fosch's Floor Covering and Herb runs steers for a living.

Their eight children—Linda, Julie, Cathy, Carol, Larry, Gary, Randy, and Ricky—are grown. They have 11 grandchildren, but Herb and Elizabeth are still going strong. Last year, they built a new house close to the llama pens. "When we started to build this new home," Herb said, "I told my contractors to buy all the materials in Hereford from people with decent prices. If you can afford to buy ahead at decent prices, buy it here. And we used local contractors and were able to buy nearly all the materials here. "We're enjoying Hereford and thought Hereford was a good, hustling town...and it still is. But they've got some problems now, I guess," Herb continued. "...I feel they (the city commission) were very wrong to go out of town and buy that vehicle. They said they have to but they had a right to refuse it (the out of town bid)...They had to cover their own (butts), that's all they had to come back with." After spending 20 years in Hereford, the Vogels plan to stay. They want the community to prosper along with them.

BRANDED Women

By Sandy Stagner

I've been a martyr for years and didn't even know it until last week.

I awoke the other night around 2 a.m. and realized I hadn't taken some all-cotton shirts out of the dryer. I jumped out of bed hoping that the clothes hadn't wrinkled too badly. I knew I wouldn't be able to go back to sleep, so I spent the remainder of the night starching and ironing. What woman needs over two hours of sleep anyway?

As I was doing my "housewife-ly" chore, it occurred to me that I made a big mistake a few years ago. You know the old cliché, "hindsight is better than foresight."

When John and I married, why hadn't I insisted on a non-financial prenuptial agreement? In fact, why didn't we working mothers and wives come up with this idea a long time ago?

I'm going to turn back the clock to 2 p.m., Oct. 24, 1987. Friends and family are witnessing our wedding ceremony. Doug Manning asks, "Sandy, do you take John to be your lawfully wedded husband?"

At that moment I thrust a prenuptial agreement under John's nose and hand him an ink pen.

"Yes," I answer, "right after he signs this piece of paper and it gets notarized."

This contract would have become valid the minute we tied the knot and would have remained valid until one of us died or until I quit working.

The agreement would have had nothing to do with protecting our vested interests, but it would have everything to do with protecting me from "the housewife-mother burn-out syndrome."

Here are just a few of the demands I should have asked for before I said "I do". John would have had to agree to the following:

-My wife is limited to doing only two loads of laundry a day instead of five.

-The kids and I have to clean out our own pockets before she does laundry (that means we retrieve ink pens, billfolds, lipstick, paper clips and report cards).

-My wife's bills are my bills; my bills are my bills; her paycheck is hers; and my paycheck is hers.

-The kids and I must be perfectly quiet from 2-5 p.m. each Saturday and Sunday to insure that she has uninterrupted naps.

-When my wife is sick, the family must wait on her hand and foot. During this time, I have to take care of the children; handle any crises that may arise, however small; cook the meals; clean the house, etc.

-I must agree to prepare all the meals on the weekends. She will be responsible for cooking at least one meal during the weekdays.

-I must accompany my wife to the grocery store, carry the sacks from the car to the house and put up the groceries as she supervises.

-If my wife has had an exceptionally bad day, I must massage her neck and feet before drawing her a scented bubble bath.

-She is to have access to my checking and savings accounts. I cannot write checks on her personal account.

-I must maintain the yard as well as weeding her vegetable and flower gardens. (She mustn't ruin her manicure.)

-I will either do all the ironing or have someone else do it. The heavy iron could cause a strain on her shoulder.

-I will furnish my wife a color television and a "private" room where no one is allowed in except her.

-The cleaning of the bathrooms will be my responsibility. This duty will be delegated to me at least three times a week.

-Maintenance on her car will be my responsibility.

-I will clean out the refrigerator at least once a week and throw out the green, moldy stuff pushed to the back of the shelves.

-The kids and I will never complain about having to eat leftovers. In fact, we will do so with a smile on our faces.

-She can order all the books and magazines she wants from Publishers Clearing House and I will not utter a sound. I will even pay the $325.97 bill when it arrives and not question her why she ordered editions of Popular Mechanics or How to Live Like a Millionaire on a Pauper's Budget.

-If the children need help with their homework, I'll gladly offer my services even if it's 11 p.m. on a week night.

-I'll give my wife diamond trinkets on every other anniversary.

-Credit cards will remain in her possession at all times.

-I will never complain about her marathon bargain shopping expeditions.

-I will mop the kitchen floor everyday during my lunch hour so my wife doesn't have to.

-I will welcome all the stray cats that my wife brings home. I will even help name the felines and pay the vet bills without complaining.

-I will wait up for our teenager to come home on Friday and Saturday nights so that my wife can get at least eight hours of beauty sleep.

-I will learn to French braid our daughter's hair since her mother has not yet mastered the skill.

-When our 12-year-old has her first boy-girl party, I will allow my wife to leave town that night so she can wallow in depression because her "baby" is growing up.

-I will positively, never purchase anymore all-cotton garments as long as I inhabit this earth.

Gottacha, John! April Fool's. You know I'd never even entertain the thought of a pre-nuptial agreement. (Of course, the fantasy was fun while it lasted.)

Cut your real estate taxes

If you think your property taxes are too high, you're probably right, say real estate experts.

Constant changes in the real estate market mean there are many avenues for costly errors. The system is over-taxed and, as a result, so are many taxpayers.

Nevertheless, 98 percent of American homeowners have never challenged a property tax assessment. Many could save hundreds, or even thousands of dollars on their property taxes, says Robert O'Hara, creator of the Shrink Your Residential Property Tax Bill kit.

O'Hara says tax assessments don't always reflect today's softer real-estate values. Consider challenging your assessment if your home's current appraised value is higher than:

1. The price you paid.
2. Offers from potential buyers.
3. Prices for which comparable homes are selling.
4. The cost of building.
5. What the house's condition would warrant.

Healthy lawn requires killing lawn insects

By June, insect damage can really start to show in lawns. Last year's high temperatures and low rainfall increase the chance of insect damage this year. Stressed, nutrient-poor turf that's trying to compete with excess weeds is also the most vulnerable to insect invasions.

Sod webworms are an exception, preferring to dine on higher quality, vigorously growing grass. These moth larvae harm turf by chewing on the leaves, stems and crowns of the plant. Lawn moths can be seen laying their eggs on lawns, although these adults do not feed on it.

A healthy, well managed lawn can recover from a small sod webworm infestation, but intense feeding by a large population can cause significant damage, especially during dry weather periods.

Other insects commonly found in lawns are grubs and chinch bugs. Grubs are the larvae of insect known in their adult forms as Japanese beetles, May beetles and June bugs. These grubs damage a lawn by feeding on the roots of grass plants. The damage they cause is easiest to spot in spring and fall, when damaged turf can be readily pulled up because roots have been cut by chewing insects.

Chinch bugs injure grass by puncturing the stems and sucking plant juices. As the grass dies, the bugs move on to new grass, thus spreading the damage over a wider area.

Other insects make their homes in lawn grass. Though not damaging to the turf, mosquitoes, fleas, chiggers and ticks can make life very unpleasant for people and pets. In some cases they reduce outdoor living enjoyment; in others, they can create health problems.

Hose-end technology as a way to deliver nutrients and pesticides to lawns has made it possible for homeowners to manage their own yards with professional results, yet little expense or bother. Lawn insecticide, formulated for home use, comes ready to hook up to a garden hose and spray apply.

Select a lawn insecticide that works on a wide variety of the most common insect pests that destroy lawns and annoy or harm animals and people. The best time to apply the lawn insecticide is when the surface feeding insects are active. For grub control, it should be applied when grubs are feeding near the soil surface—late March through May, or July to early September. Insect mortality usually occurs within one to three days of treatment.

False Advertising

The use of smokeless tobacco, including snuff and chewing tobacco, is increasing at an alarming rate in this nation, especially among teens. Tobacco advertising continually promotes products with images of independence, glamour, success, and maturity. The fact is, cancer and other oral conditions related to the use of smokeless tobacco, are dangerous, ugly and can be seriously disfiguring.

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

Remember Ponce de Leon's dream about finding the "fountain of youth"? A lot of people think about it as they get older. Billions of dollars are spent every year in trying to find a substitute for this dream. Magical health foods, diets that take the wrinkles away, "beauty farms", cosmetic surgery and hundreds of other lures are used to tempt those who would like to hold on to their youth forever.

But you don't stand still for anyone. You can't be young forever. But you can be healthy. You don't need magic potions for good health. But you do need a sound mind and body.

Chronic ill health can make people look older than their years.

That's why it's so important to do all you can to keep your body free of disease. One of the causes of disease may be an improper nerve supply to the body's organs and tissues. Because the spinal column is central to the body's nervous system, doctors of chiropractic take great care in examining your spine to see if there are any misalignments that may be causing interference. If you want your money to work for you, instead of against you, then you're a very good candidate for an Individual Retirement Account at the First National Bank of Hereford.

An I.R.A. is a government-approved savings plan that qualifies as a TAX DEDUCTION on 1989 returns. This savings plan is made even better when you consider that all earnings on the account are TAX-FREE until they are withdrawn at retirement.

Taxpayers who don't have an employer-sponsored retirement plan are entitled to a full deduction regardless of income, and deductions applied to the 1989 tax year may be made now, if you haven't already filed your tax return.

Lady Whiteface duo earns all-star status

White tabbed for Golden Spread Classic

Stacy White of the Hereford Lady Whiteface basketball team has been selected to play in the 1990 Golden Spread All-Star Classic, scheduled for Thursday through Saturday at Cal Farley Coliseum in Amarillo.

White, a senior wing for the Lady Whitefaces, will play for the West squad in the tournament, which pits four teams of made up of athletes from around the Texas Panhandle.

"I'm really honored to be part of this," White said of her selection. "This will give me a chance to play with and against the best players in the area. I'm looking forward to it."

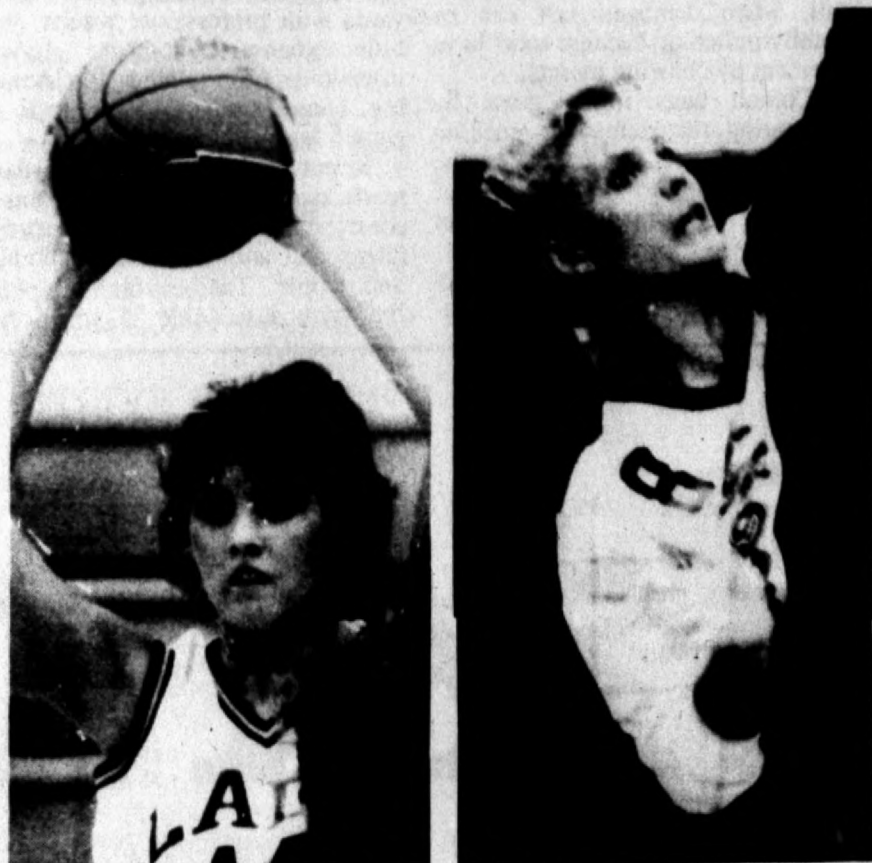

"Everybody has been real supportive of me in this," she added, "especially my parents. They've done a lot to help me get ready."

Lady Whiteface coach Dickie Faught said playing in the tournament will give White some needed exposure.

"She'll be playing in front of several college and junior college coaches," he said, "and that will give her a good shot at getting some scholarship offers."

Faught added White's selection could prove beneficial for future Lady Whiteface players.

"Stacy has really worked hard to get this far and I hope the recognition she's getting will inspire some of our younger players to put in the kind of effort she has. And, I think with her playing that some of the other basketball people around the Panhandle will realize that Hereford does have some good players, which will give more of our kids a chance to do this in the future."

Lady Whiteface All-Stars

Stacy White (left) and Cande Robbins will represent the Hereford Lady Whitefaces in all-star competition in basketball and volleyball. White will play for the West team in next week's Golden Spread Basketball Classic at Amarillo's Cal Farley Coliseum while Robbins has been named to the West squad for the Texas Girls Coaches Association All-Star Game slated for July 14 in Arlington.

White helped the Herd to a 15-14 overall mark and a 9-6 record in District 1-4A competition with 316 points for a 10.9 points per game average, second on the team in both categories. She also recorded 72 rebounds, 48 assists and 39 steals. White was the Herd's leading three-point shooter during the season, making 48 long range shots on the year, including a school-record five in one game against Dunbar.

White picked up all-tournament honors at the Amarillo Invitational and capped off her season by being named to the All-District 1-4A team.

Robbins to play in TGCA volleyball tilt

Cande Robbins of the Hereford Lady Whiteface volleyball team has been chosen to play in the 1990 Texas Girls Coaches Association volleyball all-star match July 14 in Arlington.

The contest, along with the girls' basketball all-star game, will be held in conjunction with the TGCA's annual convention. Both events are sponsored by Whataburger.

"This is a super honor for Cande," Lady Whiteface coach Brenda Reeh said. "The all-stars are organized from a very elite group of seniors from throughout the state. Cande will certainly be a fantastic representative for our schools and our community."

Reeh added that Robbins will spend a week before the match practicing with other members of the all-star teams.

Robbins, a hitter for the Herd's 26-6 area playoff team, led the team total attacks with 313 and successful attacks with 168 for a .866 success rate, was third on the squad with 103 kills (.329 percentage) and was second with 101 digs.

Robbins also put in time on the back row, leading the Herd with a .951 serving percentage while racking up 117 points on serve, including 17 aces. She also led the team with 37 service receptions put in play and was second with 163 serves passed to the setter (.747 percentage) out of 218 total service receptions.

Among Robbins' other honors for the year were being named to the TGCA All-State and Academic All-State teams along with a spot on the All-District 1-4A team.

Growing pains hit SWC basketball

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - They are joking now that there are only two sports in the Southwest Conference: regular season basketball and tournament basketball.

With Texas and Arkansas making the NCAA tournament final eight, spring football was a back burner topic around SWC sports circles.

What would D.X. Bible, Homer Norton, and Abe Martin think?

Suddenly the commissioner of the SWC, Fred Jacoby, is facing problems that former commissioners Howard Grubbs and Cliff Speegle wouldn't have dreamed possible. It's giving Jacoby hoopmares.

How about the demands for a full-time supervisor of officials for basketball, for example?

There will be an SWC officiating committee meeting in May to discuss the matter.

Texas coach Tom Penders has criticized part-time supervisor Paul Galvan, who also supervises the Southland Conference when he isn't busy as a principal for a Fort Worth junior high school.

"I don't have anything against Paul," Penders said. "I just think you can't be a big-time basketball league until you have a full-time supervisor of officials. I tried to call him three times and he never got back to me."

Jacoby is doing his homework.

He said that of the 30 automatic qualifiers in the NCAA tournament, only five leagues have full-time officials. They are the Atlantic Coast Conference (which has two Final Four teams), the Southeast Conference, the Big 10, the Big Eight, and a fifth that Jacoby wasn't sure of. The Big 10 and Big Eight just went to a full-time official this last season.

Jacoby said he wants to present the total picture at the May meeting and "if the conference wants to hire one, we'll hire one."

Jacoby wants to make three points about officiating:

- "As long as you've got a winner and a loser you will have officiating problems."
- "You can't remove emotionalism from a coach's evaluation."
- "The officiating problem is just more than an official. It's coaches, players, game administrators; and all have to work with the problem."

He added, "There's no problem hiring somebody. The problem is getting somebody who is qualified who wants to give up a good job."

Jacoby is looking into a solution that would provide a regional pool where officials could be drawn from the Big Eight, SEC, etc. He said one of the problems is familiarity between coaches and officials. In the SWC, the league has a 2-plus-2 rule.

"We try to prevent overexposure between an official and a school," Jacoby said. "We try to see to it that he referees no more than two games at home and two on the road. A team shouldn't see an official four times in a 28-game season."

Jacoby said he doesn't believe SWC officiating is any better or any worse than any other conference.

Speaking of Penders, Jacoby said he will wait until after the Final Four "to have something to say" about Penders' outbursts against SWC officiating during the recent league tournament. The once-reprimanded Penders could be taken out of the coach's box for a game next season.

"Anything we do will have to wait until next season," Jacoby said.

Such are the problems now of administering a "basketball conference."

Grubbs and Speegle never knew what they were going to miss.

Padres should top NL West, if Trader Jack can swing it

By JIM DONAGHY
AP Baseball Writer

If Jack McKeon the manager does as well as Jack McKeon the general manager, the San Diego Padres should be a cinch to win the National League West.

McKeon came away from the winter meetings with the biggest prize of the off-season by acquiring center fielder Joe Carter from the Cleveland Indians for Sandy Alomar Jr., Chris James and Carlos Baerga.

Carter has averaged 31 homers and 108 RBIs over the last four seasons. In 1989, he hit 35 homers and drove in 105 runs. He's an impact player.

"He works at being a complete hitter and he's unselfish," McKeon said.

Trader Jack also signed free agent reliever Craig Lefferts (20 saves for San Francisco) and added 38-year-old Fred Lynn for some outfield insurance.

Yes, it was a good winter for McKeon and you could tell because his cigars were even bigger than usual.

McKeon, the manager, has to make sure the Padres avoid another miserable start.

Cincinnati Reds

The Reds couldn't overcome a season dominated by Pete Rose controversies and lots of injuries, finishing fifth at 75-87.

There's talent on this team - lots of it - and Lou Piniella has the job of putting it together after the sorry Rose era.

Every starter in the Reds lineup was hurt last season except first baseman Todd Benzinger (17 HRs, 76 RBIs). Ironically, Benzinger broke his left hand while taking batting practice during the lockout on March 2.

Shortstop Barry Larkin (.342) missed the second half of the season when he sustained an arm injury during the "skills competition" at the All-Star Game. It was that type of year for the Reds.

Third baseman Chris Sabo, the rookie of the year in 1988, also spent time on the disabled list and slumped to .260 with six homers and 29 RBIs.

Center fielder Eric Davis hit .281 with 34 homers and 101 RBIs despite missing several games with sore feet. The Reds also need a big season from right fielder Paul O'Neill to turn things around.

Injuries also decimated the pitching staff. Danny Jackson went from 23-8 in 1988 to 6-11.

Jackson is coming off shoulder and toe surgery last season. He didn't get to throw off a mound over the winter because of the amount of time he had to spend on negotiations as the team's union representative.

After Jackson in the rotation, the Reds have Jose Rijo, Tom Browning, Rick Mahler and possibly Jack Armstrong, Scott Scudder or Ron Robinson.

San Francisco

The Giants' pitching started to fall apart during the playoffs and World Series and they haven't done much to improve on the mound.

Can 40-year-old Rick Reuschel repeat his 17-8 season? Scott Garrelts came out of the bullpen last year and finished 14-5 as a starter. The other starters from 1989, Mike LaCoss and Don Robison, combined to go 22-21. Mike Krukow, injured most of 1989, has retired.

Manager Roger Craig is counting on a group of young pitchers to find another big winner.

To help the youngsters, the Giants signed free agent catcher Gary Carter. Carter is coming off an injury-plagued season (knees) when he dropped to .183 with only two homers and 15 RBIs.

The Giants also must make up for the loss of reliever Craig Lefferts, who signed with San Diego.

San Francisco has few worries on offense, particularly with the addition of outfielder Kevin Bass. Bass joins Kevin Mitchell (major-league highs of 47 homers and 125 RBIs) and Brett Butler in the outfield.

Los Angeles Dodgers

The Dodgers finished with the best team ERA in the majors last season at 2.95, but had the lowest batting average, .240.

To add some punch, Los Angeles signed free agent outfielder Hubie Brooks (14 HRs, 70 RBIs for Montreal) and traded Mike Marshall and Alejandro Pena to the Mets for Juan Samuel.

The Dodgers toyed with the idea of moving Brooks to third base, but he will remain in the outfield because of the abbreviated spring training. Samuel will be in center, even though the former second baseman has trouble with shallow fly balls.

One of the biggest reasons the Dodgers' offense fell apart last season was the loss of 1988 MVP Kirk Gibson to a hamstring injury. Gibson (.213, 9 HRs, 28 RBIs) had offseason surgery, but may not be ready for opening day.

First baseman Eddie Murray got off to a slow start as he adjusted to NL pitching, but finished with 20 homers and 88 RBIs.

The Dodgers' mealy run-production was a nightmare for the pitchers. Orel Hershiser had a 2.31 ERA but finished 15-15. Tim Lincecum (.282) led the league in shutouts but ended 15-12.

There's more pitching on the way, too.

Ramon Martinez and John Wetteland were impressive last year and are ready to make big contributions. Several teams asked about Martinez over the winter.

Atlanta Braves

Despite giving signs last season they were ready to make a move, the Braves finished last for the third straight year with a 63-97 record.

Reason for optimism comes from a group of young pitchers that includes Tom Glavine (14-8), John Smoltz (12-11), Derek Lilliquist (8-10) and Mike Stanton (seven saves, 1.50 ERA).

To help provide the pitchers some runs, the Braves signed free agent first baseman Nick Esasky. Esasky, who loved hitting in Atlanta while a member of Cincinnati, had 30 homers and 108 RBIs for Boston in 1989. In six seasons with the Reds, Esasky hit .375 with 14 homers and 36 RBIs at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium.

Joining Esasky in the infield are second baseman Jeff Treadway, shortstop Andres Thomas (13 HRs, 57 RBIs) and newcomer Jim Presley at third (12 HRs, 41 RBIs for Seattle). Presley's power production slumped the last two years, but in Atlanta he may come alive. From 1985-87, Presley averaged 26 homers and 93 RBIs.

The Braves hope Lonnie Smith can provide the numbers he had last season in making a comeback. Smith hit .315 with a career-high 21 homers and 79 RBIs.

Dale Murphy got off to a horrendous start last season, but finished strong with 20 homers and 84 RBIs. The Braves need his bat for an entire season to escape the basement.

Houston Astros

The Astros needed to make a trade to come up with a big bat over the winter, but came up empty. In fact, Houston's only .300 hitter, Kevin Bass, left to sign as a free agent with the Giants.

After first baseman Glenn Davis (34 HRs, 89 RBIs) there's a big drop in power. Next in home run production was catcher Craig Biggio with 13.

Usually reliable second baseman Bill Doran had an awful second half, going 23-for-176 (.131) after the All-Star break.

For the Astros to be serious contenders, they need a big year from rookie left fielder Eric Anthony (28 HRs, 79 RBIs at Class AA Columbus in the Southern League).

Mike Scott (20-10) and Jim Deshaies (15-10, 2.91) had solid seasons, but Jim Clancy and Rick Rhoden were big disappointments. The Astros simply never recovered from the loss of Nolan Ryan. Houston's 3.91 ERA was the second highest in the league.

The Astros brought Bill Gullickson home from Japan and hope he remembers how to get major leaguers out.

The bullpen remains strong with Dave Smith (25 saves), Danny Darwin (11-4, 2.36) and Juan Agosto.

 Predicted order: 1) San Diego. 2) Cincinnati. 3) San Francisco. 4) Los Angeles. 5) Atlanta. 6) Houston.

Last season, the Padres had several stretches of bad baseball at the start of the season. They made a rush at the Giants in the final weeks of the season by winning 29 of 39, but fell short by three games.

"When everyone finally got here we had a meeting and I said this was a team that could win if we all did what we're capable of," McKeon said.

Carter joins Tony Gwynn (.336), Jack Clark (26 HRs, 94 RBIs) and Benito Santiago (16 HRs, 62 RBIs) in the Padres' lineup.

Clark should benefit most from having Carter in the lineup as he was walked a major-league high 132 times.

Not everything went right for McKeon during the winter, though. Cy Young Award winner Mark Davis, who saved 44 games, signed as a free agent with Kansas City.

Despite the loss of Davis, the Padres should have enough in the bullpen with Lefferts, Mark Grant and Greg Harris.

Soggy field forces Herd to reschedule

Wet field conditions at Whiteface field forced the postponement of two Hereford Whiteface baseball games slated for Friday and Saturday and caused the Herd's schedule to be reworked for the third time in a week.

Friday's game with Dumas has been reset for 4:30 p.m. Monday with Saturday's contest against Randall being moved to 4 p.m. Thursday.

The Herd will stick to the original schedule for Tuesday, weather permitting, with a 4:30 p.m. game at Frenship.

Moving the Dumas game to Monday has forced the Herd JV to rearrange its schedule also, with the game against the Randall JV originally set for that day being moved to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday. The JV will visit Canyon on Friday 4:30 p.m. game.

The varsity will complete a string of six games in six days by the two teams when they host Estacado at 1 p.m. Saturday.

YOUR EYES

WHEN VISION BLURS

Blurring may indicate a need for corrective lenses - or it may be a sign of eye infection or other illness. Blurring caused by infection should clear up when the infection has been successfully healed.

When central vision appears blurred, while the edges of the page remain clear, there may be a change in the central part of your retina and you should seek immediate professional attention.

In some patients, peripheral or side vision begins to blur while central vision remains normal. In the beginning, your brain adapts to your limited field of clear vision, and you will still read, sew or even follow a golf ball without realizing that your side vision is blurred. But loss of side vision is often the first sign of glaucoma and warrants immediate diagnosis and treatment.

To avoid vision complications, it is wise to have an annual optometric examination and seek treatment at the first indication of blurring.

Farm and Ranch

Livestock, crop prices at record pace

WASHINGTON (AP) - Collectively, livestock and crop prices at the farm are steaming along at a record pace so far this year.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday that prices farmers get for raw products increased 1.3 percent from February to March, raising the overall commodity index 2.7 percent above a year ago.

Overall, the department's "prices received" index matched the record level set in January. The index declined in February, then rose again in March to the January level.

Higher prices for hogs, eggs, cattle and potatoes were mostly responsible for the increase from February, the department said in its preliminary report.

But it said lower prices for tomatoes, milk and wheat partly offset the gains for the other commodities. Most prices are mid-March averages that will be revised next month.

John Buche of USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service said the March index average equaled the January record of 154 percent of a 1977 base used as a standard. The index dropped to 152 percent in February.

"Hog and cattle prices moved up sharply from February, while the all-milk price declined for the second consecutive month," the report said. "Tomatoes declined sharply from February, but continuing short supplies kept prices well above normal for this time of year."

Milk prices had risen to record levels until they tumbled sharply in February, reflecting production increases. The price decline had been predicted by USDA economists.

"Prices of feed grain, food grains and oilseeds were mixed," the report said. "Corn and soybean prices increased slightly, while the wheat price was down. Hay prices showed a moderate increase from February."

The report did not include new figures on farm expenses, which are computed every three months. In January, however, new quarterly figures showed that prices paid by farmers were up 1.1 percent from October, the previous reading, and averaged 2.9 percent more than a year earlier.

Department economists say the net cash income of farmers in 1990 may be in the range of $54 billion to $58 billion, compared with about $53 billion in 1989. The record was $57.2 billion in 1988.

Net cash income is the money nationally that farmers have left from gross cash income during a calendar year after deducting cash expenses. It includes government payments and proceeds from crops grown previously but sold during the year.

Another method taking into account changes in inventories, depreciation and other allowances during a calendar year shows that 1990 net farm income may be in a range of $45 billion to $49 billion, compared with $49 billion last year.

Consumer food prices are forecast by USDA economists to rise 3 percent to 5 percent this year after posting an average gain of 5.7 percent in 1989, the sharpest rise since 1981.

Based on the preliminary figures, the March price index for livestock and poultry was up 2.4 percent from February and averaged 7.5 percent more than a year ago.

Milk prices dropped an additional 60 cents in March to an average of $13.80 per 100 pounds. Even so, the preliminary March price was up $1.10 from March 1989.

Crop prices, overall, rose 0.8 percent from February but were 2.9 percent below the year-earlier level. Fruit prices, led by grapefruit and oranges, were up 7 percent from February and averaged 6.4 percent more than a year ago.

The index for commercial vegetables dropped 4.9 percent from February but still averaged 39 percent more than in March 1989.

"The effect of lower prices for tomatoes was moderated somewhat by higher prices for sweet corn and onions," the report said. "Even though the tomato prices declined from last month, they are still well above normal for this time of year due to short supplies brought on by the December freeze."

In a related report, the department's Economic Research Service said the nation's shoppers will see some record or near-record prices at meat counters this year.

"Increasing poultry supplies may hold retail prices below last summer, giving consumers some relief from rising pork prices," the report said. "Retail beef prices likely will decline from recent record levels."

However, analysts said consumer beef prices "may remain near the high levels of a year earlier during the second and third quarters" of 1990, even though beef production is expected to increase.

And declining pork supplies probably will push up live hog prices and retail pork prices this year.

"Milk and egg prices are expected to go down in 1990 as favorable returns stimulate production," the report said. "Milk output is expanding as producers recover from the forage quality problems of mid-1989."

Yeutter says farmers are losers in big trade pacts

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter says decades of trade negotiations have left farmers out in the cold.

It's time to change that, he says, but it will take "a hefty dose of political courage" on the part of the United States and its trading partners.

"There's no question in my mind that agriculture is the most distortive sector of the world economy, when one evaluates existing trade patterns," Yeutter said Tuesday.

In the case of industrial goods, there has been substantial progress in trade liberalization under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. And there has been a move now under GATT to deal with the international aspects of the financial and service sectors.

"Agriculture has been on the agenda for the past 40 years, and probably nothing has happened," Yeutter said. "We've gone through 40 years of GATT history, through a whole series of multilateral trade rounds, and for all practical purposes we, the members of GATT, have accomplished nothing in the way of agricultural trade liberalization."

The current Uruguay Round of GATT talks is scheduled to conclude at the end of this year.

Yeutter told a meeting of the Food Executives International Congress that the Uruguay Round offers "great potential for liberalization" and that the United States has put its own quotas and trade-distorting policies on the negotiating table.

But Yeutter, as he has many times, stressed that the United States will not "disarm unilaterally" and that "if our trading partners won't march, we're not going to march, either."

Yeutter said all sorts of "schemes" are used to avoid trade liberalization and that agricultural commodities are favorite targets.

"If it exists, it's applied to agriculture," he said. "If there's anything that is distortive, you can bet your bottom dollar it's used by some country somewhere to impede agricultural trade."

These devices, he said, include export subsidies, high internal price supports, quotas and licensing.

Yeutter pointedly used Japan's restrictive import policy on rice as an example. Recently, he said, a U.S. rice industry group participated in a food show in Japan and included samples of American rice. But the Japanese government asked that the samples be withdrawn.

"I wonder about anyone's commitment to trade liberalization when we can't even show a sample of an American food product in Japan," Yeutter said.

The European Economic Community, for years a favorite target of U.S. trade officials, also was cited by Yeutter for boosting internal soybean price supports to more than $18 a bushel. The U.S. price support was $4.53 for 1989 soybeans.

"I told some of them here recently that if you paid me $18 a bushel for soybeans, I'd grow them on the Alps, and I think maybe somebody's going to grow them on the Alps if that continues very much longer," he said. "If you pay farmers enough money, they'll grow anything anywhere."

A fighting fish will even attack its own image in a mirror.

Exotic vegetables hit shopping carts

WASHINGTON (AP) - Bean sprouts and other specialty crops are puny compared with the major commercial vegetables such as tomatoes and sweet corn, but consumers are still adding exotic names to grocery shopping lists.

The Agriculture Department says about 12.5 million hundredweight of specialty vegetables reached U.S. consumers in 1989, a 13 percent increase from 1988. Fresh herbs also have caught shoppers' fancy.

Supplies from domestically grown crops rose 10 percent to 9.3 million hundredweight, while imports increased 24 percent to 3.2 million hundredweight, according to a report by the department's Economic Research Service.

"Imported specialties are often vegetables that are common in foreign countries, such as jicama, which is a widely eaten root crop in Mexico," the report said. "Imports also include crops that a relatively uncommon but which are receiving new promotional efforts."

Fancy lettuces make up most of the specialty category, and those supplies generally increased last year. For example, domestic Romaine lettuce increased 16 percent, while imported shipments were up 76 percent. However, escarole and endive, mostly from Florida, were down.

Domestic shipments of various Oriental vegetables, including daikon and bean sprouts, increased 23 percent in 1989, while imports soared 333 percent, the report said.

Even with the sharp percentage increases the total for specialty vegetables - 12.5 million hundred-weight - was relatively small compared with the 1989 output of fresh market vegetables. Those were estimated at 255 million hundredweight, up 2 percent, not counting potatoes.

Another consumer surge has occurred with fresh herbs used by home cooks and the food service industry.

The 1987 census of agriculture shows "dramatic increases" in U.S. herb production, the report said. Production includes older standby such as garlic, parsley, watercress, dill oil, ginger root and mint oil.

Also, the 1987 figures included production of an "aggregate category" for miscellaneous fresh herbs such as basil, cilantro and rosemary. Those increased to 9.8 million pounds from 2.1 million pounds reported in 1978.

Farms producing parsley have increased steadily since 1978 and are located mostly in California, Florida and New Jersey.

The harvested acreage of garlic, which is concentrated in California, declined slightly in 1987 from earlier census tabulations made in 1978 and 1982. However, the number of farms producing garlic increased to 448 from those earlier years.

"The increase in farms, but not acreage, may reflect a surge in the number of small farmers producing garlic for farmers' markets, country fairs and other direct-marketing outlets," the report said.

Rangers hoping 1990 finish matches teams' new profile

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) — The Texas Rangers are a high-profile group with a future Hall of Famer on the mound, a potential Hall of Famer in right field and an owner who is followed by the Secret Service.

Nolan Ryan surpassed 5,000 career strikeouts last season and this season is 11 victories from another milestone — 300 victories.

Ruben Sierra, the Rangers' gifted right fielder, hit .306 last season and led the league with 119 RBIs, moving closer to super star status.

George W. Bush, son of the president, is a general partner of the Rangers and has added to the stability of the franchise.

All that got the Rangers in 1989 was a fourth-place finish in the American League Western Division, arguably the toughest in the major leagues.

But General Manager Tom Grieve, ever the optimist, finds hope in the Rangers' plight.

"It's a good thing we made improvements or we'd be right down at the bottom where we always were before," Grieve said.

For all their improvements, the Rangers' 83 victories didn't move them close to World Series champion Oakland.

"You've just got to deal with the stiff competition, we've got to be better than we were," Grieve said. "Those things go in cycles. There was a time when 88-90 wins got you fourth place in the AL East."

The Rangers have progressed from a laughing stock to a respected organization from their farm system on up.

Texas added premier designated hitter Harold Baines during last season; they signed free agent Gary Pettis to solidify center field; the found a stopper on their own staff in Jeff Russell and Mike Jeffcoat emerged as a consistent starter.

Baines drove in only 16 runs in 172 at bats last year and Grieve expects better production this season.

"Harold Baines has been the best designated hitter in the league over the last five or six years," Grieve said. "He may not have played up to expectations last year but there's no doubt he's a front-line major league hitter."

Pettis, Sierra and Pete Incaviglia give the Rangers an outstanding outfield.

They have Ryan and Charlie Hough in the starting rotation and expect another top year from Russell and Jeffcoat.

Second-year starter Kevin Brown expects another good year and the Rangers are hoping starter Bobby Witt finally gains control of his wildness.

Brown missed the end of the season with a tired arm and Hough finished out strong after suffering a sore shoulder that put him on the injury list.

"Fortunately our injuries weren't serious," Grieve said. "Charlie had a twinge that wasn't serious and we just played it conservatively with Kevin."

Pettis should give the Rangers better defense.

"He gives us one of the best defenses centerfielders in baseball," Grieve said. "Last year, he got on base 38 percent of the time which for a leadoff hitter is better than we've had in awhile."

The Rangers were among the worst defensive teams in the league last year and their catching was filled by committee most of the year.

Geno Petralli and Chad Krutner shared the position last season.

"We're not in that bad shape (at catcher)," Grieve said. "Would you like to have better? Sure, I'd like to have an All-Star catcher but we don't. But what we have is not bad. We're not afraid to start the season with what we've got."

Card of Appreciation

Mr. & Mrs. Max Gonzales and Mr. & Mrs. Arthur Gonzales wish to express their most sincere appreciation to Rev. Joe Bixenman and Rev. Darryl Birkenfeld for their help and cooperation. Likewise, our deepest gratitude to the following ladies for their hard work and accompaniment during our mournful moments: Lupe Moreno, Rita Ramirez, Antonia Diaz, Laura Balderaz, Victoria Mireles, Andrea Urias, Ramona Torres, Dora De Los Santos and Mrs. Dominga Diaz.

Also, thanks to the Knights of Columbus, the employees of the Hereford Day Care Center, and all other groups or individual persons who in some way helped. Your kindness is appreciated. May God bless each and everyone of you in a very special way.

Thank You

We would like to thank all of our friends and neighbors for the prayers, gifts of food, flowers and the many acts of kindness given to our family during the loss of our loved one, Jennifer. We would also like to thank you for your concern during Dick's recent illness. Your thoughtfulness is deeply appreciated.

Geist, Flood vows spoken in Victoria

Andrea Nicole Geist and Ernest Dion "Don" Flood, both of Victoria, Texas, were united in marriage March 17 at St. Mary's Church in Victoria.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Geist of Spicewood, Texas and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Flood of Route 4, Hereford.

The marriage was officiated by Father Joseph Hybner of the church.

The bride's cousin, Cynthia Garces, served as maid of honor and best man was the groom's brother, Nathan Flood of Lubbock.

Guests were escorted by the bride's brother, Bryan Geist of Spicewood; Tim Shriver of El Paso; and the groom's brothers, Justin and Brandon Flood, both of Hereford.

"Processional Trumpet Voluntary" was played by Mrs. Fred Neuman.

Presented in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in a tea-length ivory princess satin dress fashioned with a princess bodice. It was trimmed with imported French alencon lace above the elbow sleeves and the flared pleated skirt.

She carried a bouquet of blue irises, white carnations and a single white orchid.

The maid of honor wore a tea-length navy blue taffeta dress with a gathered skirt and princess bodice. Alencon lace accented the neckline and elbow-length sleeves. She carried blue irises and white carnations.

The reception was held at the Plaza Club in Victoria.

The three-tiered stacked white traditional wedding cake was decorated with blue flowers.

The couple is making their home in Victoria.

The bride received a B.A. degree from the University of Texas in Austin and is currently employed by Edna Independent School District.

The groom, a 1986 graduate of Hereford High School, graduated in 1989 from the University of Texas. He is employed by South Texas Savings Bank of Victoria and is attending the University of Houston Graduate School.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Betzen of Hereford; Mrs. Juan Garces of San Antonio; and Carolyn Gilbert and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Geist, all of Austin.

Deadline nears for applications

The deadline for turning in completed applications for the Berta Ottesen Scholarships is April 10. The scholarships are being offered by the Hereford P.E.O. Chapter FO to graduating Hereford High School senior girls.

Applications may be picked up and returned to the HHS counselor's office or to one of the chapter members. For further information call Dean Bradley at 364-1265 or Helen Langley at 364-3486.

The organization is an international association of women who desire to help further the education of all women. The P.E.O. chapter annually awards a scholarship to a senior girl, basing the selection on moral character, scholastic achievement, financial need and ambition.

Previous scholarship recipients were Monica Grottegut, Josie Fogo, Kathy Matthews, Melissa O'Rand, Sandra Zepeda, Dallas Phillips, Bethany Boyd and Kim Sims.

Avoid Obesity

According to the American Cancer Society, people who are 40 percent or more overweight may increase their risk of cancers of the colon, breast, gallbladder, prostate, and uterus.

Extension News

BY BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent

The Week of the Young Child is an annual celebration to focus public attention on the needs of young children and their families, according to Beverly Harder, county extension agent in Deaf Smith County. Sponsored by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC), the goal of the week is to build public understanding of the importance of early childhood programs in our society and to foster needed public support for such programs. The theme of this year's celebration is "Quality Child Care: Good Beginnings Never End".

Today more than half of all mothers of preschool children and more than two-thirds of all mothers of school-age children are in the labor force. These numbers are expected to continue to grow throughout the next decade. The number of children living in households headed by a single female has also risen, further expanding the number of families relying on alternative child care arrangements. In addition to meeting family needs for child care, high quality early childhood programs have been shown to provide important compensatory/prevention benefits for children deemed "at-risk" for later school failure and to provide enrichment for any child.

The Week of the Young Child celebrates all types of high quality early childhood programs. They have many different names - child care center, learning center, family day care, preschool, nursery school, parent cooperative, kindergarten, primary elementary grades, school-age child care, and more. Regardless of the name, each program provides important educational and nurturing experiences for our youngest citizens, while enabling parents to work or participate in educational or job-training programs. High quality programs provide the warm, learning environment that helps children succeed in school and later life.

Every child deserves a good beginning, but thousands of American children are not receiving the high quality early childhood services they need to provide a sound foundation for later growth and development. An investment in quality child care can help to form the basis for the good beginning that children need to grow and learn effectively. SUPPORT QUALITY CHILD CARE.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

HEATHER HAGAR

Residents' granddaughter to compete

Former Little Miss Hereford, Heather Hagar of Andrews, has been selected as a contestant in the West Texas T.E.E.N. Pageant to be held April 7 at the Midland Hilton Hotel.

The eighth grade student at Andrews Middle School is the daughter of former Hereford residents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hagar of Andrews. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hagar and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sims, all of Hereford.

Miss T.E.E.N. is a national pageant which recognizes and honors young ladies between the ages of 14-18 in the areas of volunteer service, scholastic achievement, speech or talent, appearance, poise and personality.

All contestants must maintain a "B" average in school and are required to contribute at least 12 hours of volunteer work to a charitable organization.

The winner of the pageant in Midland will receive a cash scholarship and other awards in addition to an all-expense paid opportunity to represent West Texas at the state pageant.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) - New "test yourself" computer software lets students use their own course materials to reduce their study time before exams.

With the Studymate software program computer users can create personalized tests on any subject and in formats such as multiple choice, question-response, true-false or fill-in-the-blanks.

The program, developed by Compu-Teach Educational Software, allows students to score their tests automatically, retest incorrect responses, keep records and review materials easily.

Lower cholesterol for life

"What foods can you eat on a low-cholesterol diet?" "Will exercise help condition your heart?" "Can vitamins contribute to a heart-healthy diet?"

The answers to these and other questions are only a toll-free call away. The Your Life Vitamin Hotline, 1-800-533-VITA, is staffed by nutrition professionals offering information on heart-healthy diets. The hotline is available Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Eastern time.

Callers can also get a free booklet, "Lower Cholesterol for Your Life." It has facts on heart-healthy diets, a chart listing how various exercises affect the heart and information on putting together an effective heart-healthy plan. There's even a sample menu. All dietary information conforms to the American Heart Association's guidelines.

As to the questions:

1. "A fiber-rich diet of complex carbohydrates may help lower cholesterol. You should have at least four servings of fruit and vegetables; two or more of bread, cereals, grains or legumes; two servings of lowfat milk or other dairy products; and two-3-ounce servings of lean meat, poultry or fish.

2. Exercising regularly can help condition your heart. The exercise should raise your heart and breathing rate and must be performed at least 15 to 30 minutes without interruption. A moderate exercise program includes three 20-minute workouts a week. Good aerobic exercise includes jogging, walking, bicycling, swimming, rowing and jumping rope.

3. A balanced multiple vitamin and mineral supplement can help ensure you get all the nutrients you need if you're limiting your food intake.

JILL MAHAFFEY, LEE LINE

June wedding planned

Jill Alison Mahaffey and Lee Edward Line, both of Austin, plan to exchange nuptials June 2 at the University Baptist Church in Austin.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Mahaffey of Conroe, Texas and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Line of 310 Sunset Drive.

Miss Mahaffey is a graduate of Conroe High School and attended the University of Texas in Austin. She is currently employed by Boon Chapman of Austin as a Macintosh computer specialist in graphic designs.

Line, a graduate of Hereford High School, graduated from the University of Texas with a degree in engineering. He is presently attending the University of Texas majoring in music. He is also studying classical guitar. He is presently employed by the University of Texas Fine Arts Media Services Recording Studio.

Hints from Heloise

Q I am trying to watch my calorie and sugar intake and regularly munch on dried fruits, especially apples and bananas. A friend told me that they are extremely high in calories. I thought most fruit is low in calories. —Doreen Green, Arkadelphia, Ark.

A. Many dried fruits are higher in calories and sugar than fresh fruit, so your friend is right. Most fresh fruit is a better choice when watching calorie and sugar intake, plus they can be a good source of fiber. —Heloise

BREAD BOX

Dear Heloise: I read with interest

an article you printed about a smelly bread box and thought I would share my experience.

When I got my wooden bread box, it had an odor that penetrated the bread. I bought some adhesive-backed plastic in a wood-type print and completely covered the inside with it.

This helped and I can now use the bread box and am not bothered by the pesky odor. — Mrs. Frances McNamee, San Fernando, Calif.

EASY DINNER TIME

Dear Heloise: I am a busy working mother of two boys, and dinnertime was getting later and later because the baby wanted to be held and my older son wanted my attention. So, I found a way to spend time with them and prepare dinner too.

I get an activity — coloring, cutting or pasting — for my older son to do at the kitchen table and I put the baby in a front-pack infant carrier. Now I can talk with my older son and "carry" the little one. We all enjoy each other's company while getting dinner ready at a reasonable time now. — Linda Riemer, Omaha, Neb.

Dear Heloise: Whenever I bake cookies I inevitably burn the bottoms of at least one batch. Then a friend suggested that when this happens, let them cool and grate off the burned bottom of the cookies.

Thank You

Hereford Independent School District's special education department is offering a FREE clinic for children 3, 4, and 5 years old. This clinic is to identify children who may need early classroom experiences because they seem to have problems in —

- HEARING • TALKING • SEEING
- PLAYING LIKE OTHER CHILDREN
- LEARNING ABOUT THEIR WORLD
- USING THEIR HANDS

or who may have a PHYSICAL HANDICAP.

Certified specialists will be working with children at the Stanton Learning Center on April 2, 3, and 4 from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Appointments can be made by calling 364-5941.

A parent or designated adult will need to accompany the child to the screening to provide permission and needed developmental information.

If you need additional information, call Nena Veazey, 364-5941.

Cancer Crusade to include food fight

Nicky Walser is serving as the chairman of the 1990 American Cancer Society Crusade for the Deaf Smith County Unit. The door-to-door residential drive is planned from 2-5 p.m. Sunday, April 29.

During the annual education and fundraising campaign, residents will be given the opportunity to donate to the ACS and to receive information packets.

April has been designated as Cancer Control Month. Prior to the annual crusade campaign, the ACS will be distributing educational messages about nutrition on April 19. The pamphlets, which will include guidelines on how to help reduce cancer risks by eating the proper foods, will be given out that day at Moore's Jack 'n' Jill.

The ACS wants people to choose foods rich in vitamins A and C, low in fat, and high in fiber, as well as cruciferous vegetables.

"Research reports have strongly suggested that certain foods, perhaps through their chemical content or the reactions they create during the digestive process, might affect a person's chances of getting cancer," Walser said. "For example, high-fiber diets are recommended to help avoid colorectal cancer, and vitamin A might reduce the risk of getting cancers of the lung, larynx and esophagus. We also recommend that foods high in fat be avoided to help lower risks for cancers of the breast, prostate and colon."

Amy Gililand, president of the American Cancer Society's Deaf Smith County Unit, is also looking for a good fight. "As many as 35 percent of all cancers, excluding those of the skin, might be attributed to diet," Gililand stated. "By making simple, inexpensive changes in daily habits, many people can reduce their cancer risk. Our message is that how you live may save your life."

According to Walser, the purpose of the community crusade drive April 29 is to inform as many people as possible about cancer prevention, early detection, treatment, research, and education programs. She believes that the Food Fight theme will enrich the crusade.

"In the past, we've stressed the various tests and procedures that detect cancer in its early stages," Walser said. "But this year, we're concentrating on how you can try to avoid cancer while enjoying delicious foods and having fun."

CAROLYN TAYLOR

Taylor to speak April 5

Carolyn Taylor of Spearman will be the guest speaker at the April 5 meeting of the Flame Fellowship at 7 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center.

She has ministered at Women's Aglow meetings and helped form the Flame Fellowship Chapter. She is presently serving as area field representative and has served as vice president of the chapter.

The public is invited to attend.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The sun has a temperature of about 11,000 degrees F. and is more than 864,000 miles in diameter.

It is 109 times the diameter of the earth and 400 times larger around than the moon. Its gravity is 27 times that of ours. If a person could stand on the sun's surface, they would weigh more than two tons. The sun is about 93 million miles from the earth and its light takes just over eight minutes to reach us.

Reduce calories with kiss

Good news for a change: You may be burning more calories every day than you know! You burn calories while you're sleeping (65 calories per hour), writing a letter (100 calories per hour), even while you're making your bed (210 calories per hour) or enjoying a friendly kiss (140 calories per hour).

Speaking of kisses, romance can be a wonderful inducement and aid to weight loss, experts agree. Many people vow to lose weight on Valentine's Day, for instance, to please that special someone and gain a new, more attractive self-image. No boxes of chocolate or other bon-bons for these weight-conscious lovers. Instead, many delight in sharing a slice of Swedish crispbread topped with shrimp, served by candlelight. That romantic treat, delicious to eat any time of year, contains barely 75 calories.

The romantics at Sweden's WASA Crispbread, the whole-grain crispbread, offer some pointers on keeping your relationship low in calories and high in romance. This Swedish Romantic Calorie Chart shows the amount of calories that would be burned off by a variety of romantic activities. Also noted is the equivalent number of slices of WASA Lite Rye crispbread (at 25 calories per slice) that would be burned off by these activities:

* Taking a moonlit stroll hand-in-hand—225 calories per hour or ten slices of crispbread.

* Reading Shakespeare's love sonnets for one hour—90 calories per hour or 4 slices of crispbread.

* Dancing to Frank Sinatra's "My Way"—250 calories per hour or ten slices of crispbread.

* Dirty dancing to Janet Jackson's new album—350 calories per hour or 14 slices of crispbread.

* Watching a romantic Mel Gibson movie on television—80 to 100 calories per hour or about four slices of crispbread (unless Mel takes off his shirt).

* Skinny dip swimming together—300 calories per hour or 12 slices of crispbread.

Sweden's WASA Crispbread is high in fiber, low in fat, sodium and calories and free of any artificial preservatives. It's flexible enough to be served with a candlelit dinner for two or with a picnic while hiking around a romantic lake. With this delicious food, you may not have to say "How do I love thee—let me count the calories!"

CLASS ACT

Sugarland Mall 364-8418

ATLANTA (AP) - When gathering wood for your fireplace, consider hardwoods first.

White oak, black birch, locust, hickory and other hardwoods emit up to 26.8 million BTUs per cord - nearly twice as much as most softwoods, according to Georgia-Pacific Corp.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Of all the screwball, asinine, muddle-headed, half-baked letters I have seen from your correspondents, the one from San Jose advocating the legalization of drugs takes the cake.

Let us consider the ramifications of such a decision.

Drugs would become much cheaper—at least one-fifth the cost. Then five times as many people could and would buy them. We would then have five times as many addicts. This means instead of only 100,000 addicted babies being born to addicted mothers each year, we would have half a million.

After the addicts got their legal fix, they would then go out and steal, mug and murder to get more, for illegal sources. This is what happened when heroin was legalized in Great Britain.

We would immediately need several times the present number of police officers, judges, physicians, psychiatrists, nurses, hospitals, nursing homes, mental institutions, jails and prisons, to round up, corral, store, warehouse, watch over, treat, process, arrest and incarcerate the increasing number of lawbreakers, zombies and dope-heads.

In addition to all this, we would have a monumental problem involving morality and ethics. Can you imagine a civilized government becoming an accomplice in the crime of destroying its own citizens?

The challenge facing us is to decrease the number of addicts, not explode it. -- M.W. in Celina, Ohio

DEAR CELINA: Thank you for your letter. Read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been following with interest your readers' letters on drug legalization. I have concluded that legalization would be a disaster. If we made drugs cheap, legal and readily available, drug use would surely escalate.

Legalization advocates say drug use is a matter of personal choice. But what about the 100,000 babies born each year to crack-addicted mothers? These infants are ravaged by cocaine before birth. What choice do they have?

And what about high school students? According to the National High School Senior Survey, over 60 percent of high school seniors are drinking alcohol at least once a month. This is bad news. But marijuana and cocaine use are not nearly so prevalent. According to the same survey, 18 percent of high school seniors smoke marijuana at least once a month, and less than 4 percent use cocaine. The truth is that the current policies of enforcement and education are working. Consumption of marijuana and cocaine among seniors is roughly half what it was only a few years ago.

If you want to reverse the gains we are making, if you want to see marijuana and cocaine use among high school rise to the level of those now using alcohol, go ahead and legalize drugs. When you legalize something, you are saying it is OK.

American education has enough troubles. Do we want to broaden the availability and legalize the consumption of substances that make our students less attentive, less competent and less energetic? Every survey I have seen indicates that the vast majority of Americans don't want it. --Sincerely, William J. Bennett, director, Office of National Drug Control Policy, Washington, D.C.

Between the Covers

BY JANA MORGAN

Robert Ludlum has written a new book, The Bourne Ultimatum. At a small carnival on the outskirts of Baltimore, two men, each mysteriously summoned by telegram, witness a bizarre killing. The telegrams are signed by Jason Bourne, and the two men are alarmed with what they witness and why, for they share the closely guarded secret of Bourne's true identity. They are the only two men in the world who know that Bourne is really David Webb, professor, husband and father. The men realize that the telegram was not sent by Jason Bourne, but by Bourne's mortal enemy, Carlos, known as the Jackal. The Jackal wants a final confrontation with Bourne. The two men alert Webb that he and his family are in danger.

Webb knows that if he is to survive, he must accept the challenge. He must confront the Jackal, outsmart him and destroy him. In his plan he must assume the terrible identity of Jason Bourne, the deadly alter ego whom Webb created in the jungles of Vietnam many years ago and whom the aging Jackal is determined to destroy. From Maine to Washington, from the Caribbean island of Montserrat to Paris, and finally to Moscow and the Soviet Union, the chase goes on as the Jackal stalks Bourne, while Bourne relentlessly lures the Jackal into his deadly trap.

The Bourne Ultimatum is Ludlum's greatest thriller so far, with mounting suspense as the deadly antagonists circle each other in an ever-narrowing confrontation.

Gerald Seymour, author of An Eye for an Eye, and Harry's Game, has now written another novel just as thrilling.

No one knows better than Matthew Furniss the dangers of espionage in the Middle East. For two decades, he has run the British agents in Iran, spanning the Shah's rule and the Ayatollah Khomeini. The Islamic revolution decimated his network of agents and destroyed many of his closest friends. Charlie Eshrag, the son of one of those friends, has joined the exile community in London. Eshrag nurses a fierce obsession with vengeance against those responsible for the shooting of his father and his sister. That obsession has driven him to hunt down the judges and executors who destroyed his family. Each time he returns from Iran, he gives Furniss the information he has collected.

In a seemingly unrelated incident, a girl dies of a drug overdose. Since she is the daughter of a leading British politician, wheels turn and David Park is assigned to find the supplier of the heroin, no holds barred. Park will let nothing stand between him and the arrest of his target.

At the same time, Furniss is ordered to the Middle East by the British Intelligence to fortify his remaining agents and to stimulate a flow of information. It is a fateful, dangerous journey that breaks all the rules, and its a riveting study of courage and loyalty, and obsession, of three men, trapped by circumstance and their own professional pride, entitled The Running Target.

"To have walked on the moon, that would be nice. But to dance like Fred Astaire, that would be heaven." Tom Shales profiles great stars and artists who have become part of the national character in his book, Legends: Remembering America's Greatest Stars. The book covers everything from the effortless grace of Fred Astaire to the riotous humor of Lucille Ball; from the bombast of Jackie Gleason to the seductive of Natalie Wood; from the self-making charm of Jack Benny to the sexy glamor of Rita Hayworth.

Legends celebrates the way the immortals became part of our own lives, brighten our experience, join in our intimate memories. In another century, they might be gone and half-forgotten, but in the modern age of media, their images remain to delight and inspire. Jimmy Durante can still demolish a piano, Bing Crosby still sings carols at Christmas, and Ingrid Bergman will always have Paris.

Looking back at the stars, personalities and film makers who helped define their time and ours, we see more clearly into our own lives and our own dreams. Legends is a celebration of remembering, a quiet evening at home with friends.

Jesus Christ Superstar, Evita, Cats, The Phantom of the Opera. Andrew Lloyd Webber: His life and Works by Michael Walsh chronicles his hit parade of the West End and Broadway musicals has established him as the foremost theatrical composer of our time. This book discusses his musical accomplishments in depth, analyzing both scores and finished productions of his shows. This book examines Lloyd Webber's personal motivations and professional working methods recounts his brilliant transformation of the "Broadway musical."

For all his success, he's broken theatrical box-office records and his shows have been performed in 20 countries, Andrew Lloyd Webber still strives for respect. From the beginning of his career, his musicals have been labeled everything from "rock operas" to "shlock operas", praised for their melodic extravagance and denounced for their reliance of spectacle and glitz. He discusses his musical accomplishments, with over 130 illustrations including candid photos of rehearsal and performance shots of all the shows by world-renowned theater photographers, and sketches for costume design and sets, providing a rich overview of Lloyd Webber's unique theatrical world.

Other titles of interest: Internationally celebrated beauty and fashion expert Beverly Sassoon moves intimately in the circles of the rich and famous. Now in Fantasies, her first novel, she creates a story seething with sensual intrigues and explosive scandals, set in the private world of the beautiful people.

The Art of Hanna-Barbera by Ted Sennett. Cartoons everyone loves, the Flinstones, Scooby Doo, the Jetsons, Yogi bear and Boo Boo, Tom and Jerry, Quick-draw McGraw, William Hanna and Joseph Barbera have joined talents to create 50 years of animation on television that extends to the farthest corners of the globe. It will rekindle memories and chuckles in a generation of fans.

MR. AND MRS. JOED CUPELL

Reception scheduled for former residents

Former Hereford residents, Mr. and Mrs. JoEd Cupell of Amarillo, will be honored at a reception from 3-5 p.m. Saturday, April 7, in the parlor of Coulter Road Baptist Church in Amarillo. The couple will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.

All friends and relatives are invited to attend. The couple requests no gifts.

The reception will be hosted by the couple's children and spouses: Jerry and JoAnn Stephens of Pampa; and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cupell, Mr. and Mrs. David Cupell and Paul and Nita Farkas, all of Amarillo. The couple has 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Anita Williams and JoEd Cupell exchanged wedding vows April 7, 1940, at First Baptist Church in Clayton, N.M. JoEd Cupell taught school in Pyron, Dalhart, Plemons, Odessa, Hartley, Estelline and Hereford for a total of 36 years. For 13 years, he was superintendent of Hartley and Estelline schools. He also served as municipal judge in Hereford for 10 years, retiring in 1988. The couple holds membership in the Coulter Road Baptist Church in Amarillo.

Accent on Health

To protect the public against incompetent or unscrupulous professionals, the Texas State Board of Examiners of Professional Counselors regulates the licensing of persons offering professional counseling.

The nine-member board is composed of five licensed professional counselors and four representatives of the public. It is appointed by the governor and was established in 1981, according to the board's executive secretary, Don Rettberg at the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

"No one seeking professional help in overcoming personal problems should also be the victim of an unqualified or unethical counselor," Rettberg said.

He said that anyone may legally offer advice and counseling for pay. But the soundness of that advice -- even the safety of the person seeking help -- may be in question unless the counselor has met the minimum qualifications to earn and maintain a license to practice counseling in this state.

The board currently licenses about 7,900 counselors. By law, anyone licensed to practice professional counseling in Texas must:

- * Have essential education and experience (including a graduate degree meeting specific course and training requirements from an accredited university, and two years' supervised counseling experience meeting board standards);

- * Pass a rigid competency examination;

- * Renew his or her license annually, and complete -- every three years -- at least 75 hours of continuing education courses approved by the board; and

- * Risk losing the license if found violating the law or the board's rules or ethics.

"These rules have to be strict, if we are to help simplify the client's selection of a counselor. It also helps to combat fraud," Rettberg said. He explained that persons seeking personal counseling are among the most vulnerable prey of unscrupulous advisors and "crackpot therapists."

"Since Jan. 1, 1989, the board has taken action against five individuals for violations of ethical standards," Rettberg said. He explained that the board revoked the license of one Houston counselor who was convicted of plotting murder.

The board initiated formal action to revoke the license of a San Antonio counselor who was convicted by a court-martial for sexual involvement with a client. In lieu of a formal hearing, the counselor surrendered his license.

Two other former counselors, one from Houston and one from Arlington, were denied the renewal of licenses because of sexual relationships with minor clients. An applicant for licensure from Wichita Falls was also denied a license for an inappropriate relationship with a client.

Unqualified counselors, even with the best intentions, may compound the existing problem of a troubled person, Rettberg explained, while others may actually swindle or take sexual advantage of their clients.

"The Licensed Professional Counselor board clearly assumes its responsibilities, to the public and to the profession, by diligently scrutinizing, licensed counselor qualifications and taking action against those counselors who violate ethical standards," Rettberg added.

Rettberg said that information about licensure and the code of ethics for professional counselors in Texas, or about the board's complaints process is available at the Texas State Board of Examiners of Professional Counselors, 1100 West 49th Street, Austin, Texas 78756-3183. The Board's telephone number is (512) 458-7511.

Memorial scholarship fund set up

In memory of the late Ethel Womble's longtime role in local education, a scholarship fund has been established in her name.

The memorial scholarship, to be awarded annually, will be given to a graduating Hereford High School senior who wishes to enter the education field.

Donations, payable to the Ethel Womble Memorial Scholarship Fund, can be deposited at Amwest Savings or mailed to P.O. Box 95, Hereford, Texas 79045.

NARFE meeting Thursday

Argen Draper, president of local Chapter #1300 of The National Association of Retired Federal Employees, announced members will meet Thursday, April 5, at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center at 1 p.m.

According to Draper, membership will review the proceedings of the District 12 Convention held in March in Amarillo at the Independence Village meeting room.

Also, concerns of the state and federal association will be discussed. There are some vital legislation pending that will affect civilian and military retirees.

The federal retirees, as well as those who will retire soon, are urged to attend the meeting.

Dietary Guidelines

Avoiding obesity and cutting down on total fat intake are just two of the American Cancer Society's dietary guidelines for reducing the risk of cancer. To learn more about these and other guidelines, contact your local American Cancer Society and tell them you want to start Eating Smart.

Clinical facts given

Everybody needs blood pressure. It's what pushes your blood through your arteries, capillaries and veins. Nobody needs high blood pressure. If the push is too great, your heart, brain, kidneys and eyes could suffer.

A normal blood pressure reading is one of 120/80 or lower. One of 140/90 is considered the upper limit of normal. Anything over that can be considered dangerously high blood pressure.

An estimated 35 million Americans have high blood pressure, also known as hypertension. Many don't even know they have it. Everyone over the age of three should have his or her blood pressure checked every year. diagnosis is simple, painless and instant. Physicians have drugs that can treat the condition.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Andrew Dice Clay's ex-wife is seeking $3 million in a palimony suit against the foul-mouthed comedian.

The suit filed Wednesday by divorce attorney Marvin Mitchelson seeks half of Clay's property holdings, which Mitchelson estimated at $6 million.

Kathy Swanson, Clay's former wife, claims their 1986 divorce settlement granting her $18,000 in alimony defrauded her of half the couple's accumulated possessions.

"She was basically supporting him," Mitchelson said of the couple's relationship.

19⁹⁵ HUDSON WATER VALVE
 Introducing the Hudson Valve

A valve specifically designed to control the flow of water in tanks and troughs automatically. Anytime. Anywhere. This high volume, full flowing valve is protected by its own multi-functional bell shaped body of glass reinforced nylon resin. It eliminates malfunctions and costly time and expense in repairs and maintenance. It not only ends flooding, breakdown and water loss, it also does away with breakage of floats, balls and lever arms by livestock. The positive shut-off feature functions in a 5 psi to 150 psi water pressure range. The valve is rustproof, anti siphon and installs in seconds. 448-001 Reg. 22.95

PISTON HAND PUMPS

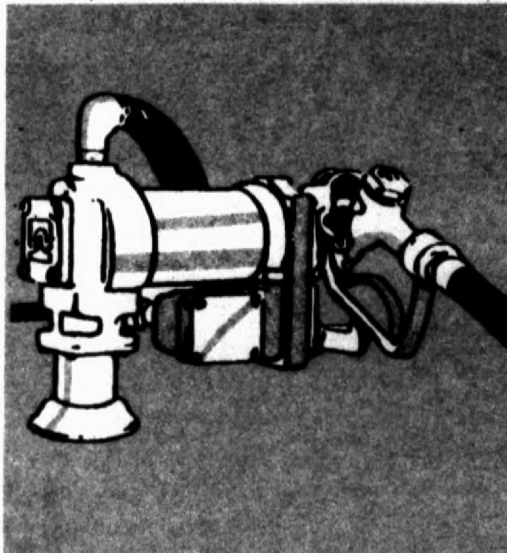

Due to the advanced engineering of the GPI Hand Pump, only one-third more effort is required to pump twice as much fuel. To handle heavier fluids, such as oils, simply moving a pivot pin changes the stroke of the pump to deliver only one quart per stroke. The GPI pump has a stainless steel shaft and stainless steel piston liner, a Teflon piston ring and packing, and a self-lubricating shaft bearing.
