Moya, demonstrators protest jailings

Protest Poster

This poster was one of many carried by demonstrators in front of Deaf Smith County Courthouse Thursday afternoon. The small group, under the leadership of Jesus Moya, were protesting the incarceration of an elderly man and his daughter on charges of aggravated assault of an officer.

Pair's bond revoked by bond company

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

A small group of family members and friends joined union organizer Jesus Moya in a demonstration Thursday in front of the Deaf Smith county Jail protesting the Tuesday re-jailing of Manuel Medeles and Lisa Lopez.

Medeles, 78, and his 19-year-old daughter were indicted by a Deaf Smith County Grand Jury for charges of aggravated assault on a police officer. Following their indictment they were released, on $5,000 bail each, by Tina Gonzales, an agent for E-Z Bail Bond in Amarillo.

On Tuesday the couple was returned to Deaf Smith County Jail. According to Moya, director of the International Union of Agricultural Workers, the pair was returned to jail because new charges had been added. Moya also said Medeles' son had paid a $200 fine in payments and that the family thought they had taken care of the matter.

A written press release, which Moya passed out during the demonstration, claims that the elderly man was thrown to the ground and roughed up by police officers as they attempted to handcuff "a defenseless senior citizen" for failing to extinguish a fire in his waste barrel.

The release also says that Lopez was alarmed at the abusive treatment of her father and attempted to intervene on his behalf. Both, according to the release and Moya, are still undergoing care at the Albracht Chiropractic Clinic in Amarillo for treatment of injuries they received as a result of the excessive force used during the arrest.

Moya made verbal reference to a May 5 front page story in the Hereford Brand about the incident. Upon questioning he admitted he had not had time to read the story or to talk with officers involved and said his information came from family members at the scene.

Other witnesses disagree with the description given in the demonstrator's press release.

Those who were present say that firemen responded to a call at the Medeles residence where they found him burning trash, a violation of city ordinance. Since there had been a complaint about the smoke, Fire Marshall Jay Spain requested that Medeles extinguish the flame.

Upon determining Medeles does not speak English, Spain requested a Hispanic officer come to the scene to explain the problem.

Sgt. Sammy Sanchez, a detective with the Hereford Police Department, arrived at the scene. Sanchez said, "I explained in Spanish that he needed to put the fire out, he refused and accused me of being prejudiced."

Sanchez then turned to family members and asked them to encourage the man to cooperate so he would not have to go to jail.

Eyewitnesses then saw Medeles deliver a blow to Sanchez in the right side of his abdomen. After the man hit him Sanchez turned and grabbed his arms and pulled them back to prevent the man from throwing another punch.

Lopez then came from behind Sanchez and attacked him. While shouting obscenities, the pair was restrained. Lopez was wrestled to the ground but witnesses agree that Medeles remained upright throughout the event.

Records in the District Clerk's office revealed that the pair was brought back before 222nd District Judge Wesley Gulley this week because they needed a court-appointed attorney and that the bail bond company had withdrawn from the case.

A letter from Amarillo attorney Selden Hale said that he represents (See MOYA, Page 2)

DOE makes waste reassurance

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

A Department of Energy official told the Waste Deposit Impact Committee and two study groups Thursday that nuclear waste will not be used in any site characterization work in Deaf Smith County unless DOE has a major change in policy.

Gordon Appel, director of DOE's Regulatory Compliance Division, told WDC and the Site Characterization Issues Council that DOE, in its Draft Mission Plan and Environmental Assessment for a possible nuclear waste dump in Deaf Smith County, opposed the use of any spent fuel to test the effects of radioactive wastes in salt beds that underlie the region.

"If the question is 'Will we use radioactive materials during characterization,' the answer is yes," Appel said. He explained that minute amounts of radioactive material, such as Iodine with a half-life of 14 days and with the same radioactivity as a fluorescent light, would be used for logging and tracing work.

However, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission could require DOE to use radwaste with a curie equivalent of up to 10 metric tons of spent fuel if the NRC feels the testing with waste is necessary to adequately test the facility.

"We do not feel it is going to be necessary to use waste during in-situ testing here," Appel said. "There has been salt used in testing before, such as in Kansas. The findings were there was a change in the crystalline make-up of salt, but no real change in permeability from radioactive waste."

"The biggest concern in salt is heat. Heat changes the permeability of salt. That would be our major concern."

Appel explained that a curie is "a measure of decay, not the measure of the damage (radioactive material) can do."

Appel said that if either DOE or NRC feels that using radwaste is necessary during in-situ testing, it would take from 6 to 18 months to receive NRC approval for the action, then could take much longer to actually move the waste to the site.

During the meeting, the Geotechnical and Socioeconomic study groups of the SCIC approved a work plan covering five issues the groups will study in-depth over the next three months.

Waco bull runs wild

WACO, Texas (AP) — Pamplona, Spain, has nothing on Waco.

The central Texas town had its own running of the bulls fraught with just as much excitement as the traditional Spanish event.

Wendell Crunk of Asa was taking his cattle to auction Wednesday when a tire on the trailer blew out, catching hay inside the trailer on fire.

A bull whose tail caught fire escaped from the vehicle when the door was opened and headed straight for the campus of Baylor University.

"Some joggers came along and decided they'd chase the bull," Crunk told the Waco Tribune-Herald. "Then four or five people in vehicles got involved and it really turned into a mess. If they had left the bull alone, there would have been no problem."

For more than an hour, the campus was full of bull as the 550-pound calf was chased back and forth. Several cars and pickups joined the pursuit.

One man, who did some rodeoing in high school, even stood up in the bed of a pickup and tried to rope the bull on the run.

Eventually, the tired animal ran into the backyard of a house and vented its frustrations by ramming a carport and knocking a pole out of whack.

One man in a pickup — red, of course — tried to corner the bull in the backyard. But he beat a retreat after the bull dented his trunk.

Crunk finally tied things up by pulling his trailer to the gate and maneuvering the bull inside.

"When all the fun was over, you know who was responsible for the damage, don't you?" he asked. "Me."

Clements slices state budget

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says state government is on its way to leaner, more efficient operations under the new $38.13 billion state budget, the largest in Texas history.

That total is $167.4 million less than passed by the Legislature after a series of vetoes Clements announced on Thursday.

"As never before, each agency, board and commission must review every expense, must prioritize every program and must ensure to the people of Texas that every dollar spent is done so with maximum efficiency," Clements said.

Among the vetoes were those which the governor said will:

— Eliminate individual aircraft operations by certain state agencies.

— Call on individual universities to allocate money from their own budgets to fund various university systems offices.

— Reduce "administrative and bureaucratic costs" in the Department of Human Services.

— Pare a variety of appropriations from higher education and the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

— Eliminate a so-called "doomsday plan" that would have slashed funding to a variety of state colleges in the legislative districts of House members who challenged the budget had sufficient taxes not been raised.

Most of those representatives were Republicans and conservative Democrats who had insisted more money would be trimmed.

"This measure is nothing but a crude attempt at legislative and political blackmail, unbecoming of our Texas legislative process," Clements said. He also called it "rank intimidation."

Clements also praised the Legislature, which required all 30 days of a special session in addition to its 140-day regular session to finally pass a budget.

"There is no question that much blood, sweat and tears were shed in this effort," he said.

However, the governor said, more savings could be obtained. "For 2½ weeks, I have reviewed this budget ... There are places that can stand additional scrutiny and additional economies."

The budget was approved by lawmakers in on July 21. It was the first time since 1961, when the state sales tax was enacted, that legislators had failed to pass a budget during their 140-day regular session.

This year, lawmakers also approved a $5.7 billion tax hike — the largest in state history — to pay for the budget. Clements signed that into law last month.

Clements said the university systems office vetoes represent "relatively small numbers" in total funds.

The purpose, he said, was to reduce administrative costs "and to get a tighter discipline into that administration, which implies fewer people and more efficiency."

The vetoes included $710,000 annually for University of Texas system administration and $345,000 annually for Texas A&M University system administration.

Bob Davis, Clements' budget director, said those are general revenue funds. The UT and A&M systems receive "considerably more" from the state's Available University Fund, he noted.

More than $2 million was sliced from the University of Houston system administration in 1989, which Davis described as "almost all of their system expenses." The Lamar University system office loses more than $290,000 a year, which Davis called "principally the bulk of their system expenses."

Another veto took $52 million from a program designed to allow the state to subsidize school districts experiencing a loss in property values greater than 8 percent from the previous year. Those generally are districts with greater than average wealth, Clements said, adding that he didn't think it would raise local property taxes.

"We hope that they will address the administrative side of their particular districts," he said.

Davis said he did not know what districts would be affected.

Babbling Brooks

By John Brooks

After attending Tuesday's meeting of the Deaf Smith County Hospital District Board, I learned a little, although not enough to become the "instant expert" I'm supposed to be, about the local hospital's problems.

The big problem at Deaf Smith General Hospital, like it is for every one of us, is money. There is never enough money. We never have all we want, and sometimes we don't have all we need.

At the hospital, things are a little different than they are for the city or county or school, taxing entities we may be a little more familiar with on a day-to-day basis.

For city services, like water, we have no one but the city to turn to, and we pay for having water come out of the shower when we turn it on every morning.

For that service we pay a water bill.

Use county facilities or county roads?

To use that service, we pay a county tax bill, every year.

But, one of the biggest users of the hospital doesn't pay the hospital bill.

That user is Medicare and Medicaid, or, more simply and generally stated, the federal government.

Medicare and Medicaid patients make up about half of the patient load at DSGH, but the government programs don't pay even one-half, or one-fourth, of the bills rung up to care for Medicare patients.

The hospital has no choice about accepting Medicare and Medicaid patients. It's a public hospital.

It also means the hospital has no real choice about losing money on Medicare and Medicaid patients.

The money we're talking is real money—over $1 million dollars, over twice the tax revenue the hospital receives. The hospital can expect to lose from $1,000 to $5,000 per Medicare admission. Sometimes the loss is less, but, more often, the loss is more.

Who does that leave to absorb the cost?

You and me, John and Jane Taxpayer, Deaf Smith County, Texas.

Why should our hospital face the same situation year after year—12 months worth of year, but only about eight months worth of income.

Eight months is about all the time our hospital district tax receipts last. For the past several years, the hospital board has tried to toe the line and not raise taxes.

It's not a new problem, but it is time for a new solution. It is time for us, some of whom are suffering through terrible economic times, to decide whether or not we want a hospital, a hospital that's as available to us as that hot water in the shower every morning.

The hospital, like the water, is there.

Are we willing to pay the bill?

Protest Marchers

A small group of protestors marched in front of Deaf Smith County Courthouse Thursday afternoon. The group chanted

"We want justice now" and bore poster demanding the release of two prisoners being held in Deaf Smith County Jail.

Deluded gunman thought he was an Army general

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) - The gunman who was fatally shot when he charged past guards in the Pentagon had a history of mental illness and "hallucinations about who he was," his mother said.

Dwain Wallace, 30, of Youngstown, was shot once in the back by a guard Wednesday morning and died two hours later at a hospital from a wound to his heart, officials said.

Doris Wallace and her husband, Leroy, said their son was a patient at a Youngstown psychiatric hospital in recent years, and once was under the delusion he was an Army general.

"His doctor told us Dwain was very intelligent, and you wouldn't know he had problems," Mrs. Wallace told reporters outside her home here. "But sometimes he had hallucinations about who he was."

He transferred to a halfway house several months ago and told his parents Monday that he was going to Pittsburgh to seek work. Mrs. Wallace said her son called her long-distance Tuesday night and seemed all right.

Wallace reportedly told Pentagon guards he "wanted to talk to somebody about missiles" before he brandished a handgun and bolted past a checkpoint. He was hit by one of two shots fired by a guard at 8:05 a.m., and died at the National Orthopedic Hospital in Arlington, Va. Officials would not identify the guard who shot Wallace.

The shooting occurred directly beneath the offices of Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, who was having breakfast at the time with Secretary of State George Shultz and Lt. Gen. Colin Powell, deputy to White House National Security Adviser Frank Carlucci, said Col. Marvin Braman, a Pentagon spokesman.

The three heard the shots, but Pentagon officials said there was no evidence Wallace was attempting to reach Weinberger. Wallace's parents said he never served in the military.

His problems began while he was in college when it was discovered he had a "chemical imbalance," his mother said. Before that, she said he was a good student and a "remarkable son."

"He never gave us a minute of trouble until he got 19 years old and we sent him to Dayton University. And that's when he started having mental problems. After that he's been in and out of the hospital," said Mrs. Wallace.

In the fall of 1976, Wallace enrolled in the engineering program at the University of Dayton. He attended through the spring of 1977 and returned for half a summer session in 1979, said school spokesman Tom Bidwell.

Wallace married an exchange student from Nigeria in 1977, according to Montgomery County records in Dayton. Wallace's parents said he was divorced and the father of a girl.

His ex-wife has remarried and lives in New Orleans.

Police in Gretna, La., a New Orleans suburb, said Wallace was arrested in 1980 for storming a Sears Service Center with a handgun and looking for his wife, who worked at the store. He later served two months in jail for aggravated assault.

Fire Ants invade Mass site

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - City health officials were concerned that the battle against fire ants at the mass site of the Sept. 13 visit by Pope John Paul II should have begun in June.

But a state agriculture official said Thursday said that it is not too late to rid the west Bexar County site of the ants, including one non-native species with a sting that can be lethal.

Texas Agriculture Department fire ant specialist Mark Trostle said more than 80 percent of the ants could be wiped out in time for the papal visit.

He visited the 144-acre site to advise Catholic Chancery staffers about how to apply the insecticide Amdro for the greatest effectiveness.

Trostle said he expected about 50 mounds of imported fire ants per acre and said there may be two native Texas species of fire ant in the area.

Dr. Frank J. James, a San Antonio allergist, said the two native Texas species have stings which trigger sickness but do not kill, but the non-native species is more aggressive and has a sting that can be lethal in two to three of every hundred people attacked.

More than 350 pounds of the slow-acting insecticide — worth $1,000 — was donated to the archdiocese by American Cyanamid Co.

Stark saved by heroes and luck

MAYPORT NAVAL STATION, Fla. (AP) - Sailors who had practiced leaving their bunks blindfolded scrambled to save themselves and their ship in an inferno of flame after the USS Stark was hit by two Iraqi missiles in the Persian Gulf, crewmen said.

The ship was saved from an even worse disaster by incredible feats of heroism, the sailors said.

Blackened bulkheads were still visible Thursday, almost two months after the ship was hit and 37 men were killed. Wires hung down in some spots and aluminum patches were visible on holes between the computer center and the captain's quarters.

But on the outside, reporters given a tour saw little evidence of the damage done by the May 17 attack.

"I just heard a loud boom," said Senior Chief Petty Officer Calvin Ellis of Hixon, Tenn. "I knew exactly what it was because I'd been in Vietnam."

Donning an oxygen mask, Ellis worked his way out of his quarters where several sailors had been killed. Only a week before, the men had gone through a drill in which they practiced leaving their berths blindfolded.

The sailors had to avoid debris, live electrical wires and broken water pipes as they made their way to safety.

The first missile, which did not explode, started an intense fire. Most of the men were killed when the second Exocet exploded about 15 seconds later in an enlisted men's sleeping area with 60 triple-decked berthing bunks.

"If they were sleeping, they were unable to escape from their racks," said Boatswain's Mate 3rd Class Jeff Pearson of Palm Beach. "But it wasn't full capacity sleeping because of the watch rotation."

"The second explosion caught a lot of people on their way out," he said. Others fell into the ocean through the missile entrance hole.

Some crewmen escaped to a lounge next to the berthing area in the few seconds between the two missile strikes.

"A surprising number of people made it out of that berthing area in 15 or 20 seconds. You'd been surprised how fast people can run when they are inspired," said Barbour.

The two missiles cut communications between bow and stern and destroyed all the firefighting equipment in the bow. The sailors had to lay lines from the stern to battle the flames, which took two days to put out.

Petty Officer 3rd Class Mark Samples of Charleston, W.Va., received a medal for spending 13 hours in a darkened magazine, spraying water on 36 missiles as a 2,000-degree fire raged only a bulkhead away.

"If the heat had gotten to those missiles, they could have exploded," said Lt. C.S. Barbour, of Durham, N.C., a combat systems officer aboard the Stark. "If the missiles had gone, he would have gone too. ... The steel on the deck was cherry red."

Tankers refueled, ready

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) - Three Kuwaiti tankers awaiting refueling by the United States were refueled overnight and appeared "ready to go" up the Persian Gulf, shipping sources said today.

Also today, Iran announced that it test-fired an anti-ship missile into gulf waters as it wrapped up naval maneuvers code-named "Martyrdom."

And a West German Defense Ministry spokesman said his government may send a naval detachment to the North Atlantic or Mediterranean to free up U.S. ships for Persian Gulf duty.

The Kuwaiti tankers have been moored outside the gulf awaiting the raising of the Stars and Stripes and the go-ahead for the second U.S. Navy-escorted convoy through the waterway.

Shipping sources in the United Arab Emirates said the three vessels were refueled overnight, then moved to a "more isolated" anchorage some 17 miles off the Arabian Sea coastal ports of Khor Fakkan and Fujaira.

Moored nearby, they said, were several of the U.S. warships that will serve as escorts on the tankers' voyage from the anchorage, through the narrow Strait of Hormuz and up the gulf to Kuwait's oil loading terminal.

Already bearing new names, port of registry — Philadelphia — and the funnel insignia of the Chesapeake Shipping Co., their technical new owner, the ships apparently needed only to raise the U.S. flag before they could sail, the sources said.

"The American captains are aboard and it looks like they're ready to go," said one source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The three tankers, the 46,723-ton Gas King and the petroleum products tankers Sea Isle City and Ocean City, of 81,283 and 79,999 tons respectively, are among 11 Kuwaiti tankers to be re-registered under the American flag and sailed with naval escort. Two others were reflagged earlier.

U.S. officials have refused to say when the second operation will begin, but shipping sources have predicted the reflagging could take place today, with the convoy leaving for Kuwait in a few days.

Rear Adm. Harold J. Bernsen, commander of the Navy's Gulf-based Middle East Force, has said only that the next convoy will leave within a month.

An executive based in Kuwait said Thursday the program was proceeding "full speed."

Commercial shippers have rushed to move their vessels through the gulf before the next convoy sets out, shipping sources say.

One shipping executive, speaking Thursday on condition of anonymity, said the number of vessels passing through the Strait of Hormuz in the past 24 hours exceeded the normal average of 20 per day.

Some ship owners have said they are avoiding the U.S. escort convoys for fear of Iranian fire. During the first convoy to Kuwait, in July, the supertanker Bridgeton was damaged by a mine believed planted by Iran.

Another reason for the increase was the anticipated end today of Iran's military exercises in the gulf, which began Tuesday. Few ships braved the Strait of Hormuz early in the exercises, which originally were scheduled to end Thursday but were extended for a day.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, said today that Iranian President Ali Khamenei visited the port of Bandar Abbas, on the Strait of Hormuz, and ordered the test-firing of the shore-based missile.

The missile was not identified, but Iran is reported to have Chinese-made Silkorm anti-ship missiles at the strategic strait.

In Washington, Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Thursday that the United States has improved its ability to prevent Iranian terrorist attacks. He said better intelligence gathering had enabled the United States and its allies to head off "a great many" such attacks, but did not give specifics.

MOYA

Lopez in county court on a matter of resisting arrest but that he does not represent her in the assault matter.

"When I got the information that she had been indicted I attempted to have her come to my office to discuss my representation. She has refused to even come discuss the matter," the letter says.

Gonzales explained that the bail-bond company revoked their bond because Lopez would not cooperate.

"We had them out on a lot of money and we can only do what the client will help us do," she said. "The reason we removed their bond is because they had two attorneys representing them for free and Lisa messed it up for both of them because she refused to cooperate."

"We tried to correspond with them and I offered to interpret anything they didn't understand but once we bailed them out they just forgot about us. They abused their freedom and didn't comply with the rules, so we decided we can use the money we had tied up with their case to help someone who cares and who will help themselves."

Moya said that he was unaware that the bond had been removed and that this was the reason the pair were returned to jail. He then insisted the pair should be released on their own recognizance.

"He is an old man, he owns a home here, where else is he going to go," he said.

Moya believes the only reason Mendez was arrested was because of his association with the union.

"This man has been involved with the farm union for years and he has been very active and loud in our demonstrations. I think this was a form of retaliation against him," Moya said.

Listing a number of anglos in the community, who Moya claims were arrested and released without bail, he said "this is a case of double standards and is part of the ongoing attacks against the Mexican people in this community."

"Mexican Americans get harsh sentences here because the judge (Gulley) himself is a racist. If you are rich and Anglo you have the privileges of justice but if you are poor and hispanic you don't."

"Justice is blind but it sure listens to the jingle of coins."

Gulley said Moya's accusations are absurd untruths.

Assistant District Attorney Richard Burmeister approached the group to respond to a query concerning a remark he made about Medeles being a withered old man.

Burmeister explained he was referring to the physical condition and age of Medeles to which Moya and others responded with accusations of prejudice.

Raising his voice, the tall attorney towered over Moya and said, "Don't you call me prejudiced. I am not. I am married to a Hispanic woman and I have Hispanic children."

Burmeister said that two attorneys had been appointed by the court to represent Medeles and Lopez and that it would be the attorney's responsibility to file for the pair to be released on their own recognizance or for a reduction of the amount of bail.

One protestor at the demonstration, Marcella Mendoza, said he was previously unaware that the officer Medeles hit was hispanic. "It figures," he said, "they just use the Hispanic cops to do the dirty work."

Another observer disagreed, saying that she thinks there should be more Hispanic officers on the Hereford police force because so many of the local Hispanic residents do not speak or understand English.

Missouri farm families have been especially hard hit by our nation's farm crisis. State churches have made a commitment to do something about it. Churches in urban areas sponsor farm families who must move to the cities in search of employment and help those families adjust to urban environments. Church families in college communities also provide housing for students from farm families who cannot afford dormitory housing. By recognizing a problem and committing to do something about it these Missouri churches have responded faithfully to God's call for their lives. Let us keep their mission in our prayers this morning.

After the service a reception will be held in Ward Parlor for Carl Thorell and his family, who will leave next week for Wilmore, Ky., where Thorell will enroll at Asbury Theological Seminary. He will study to prepare for ministry in the United Methodist Church.

The Thorell family has been active in First UMC of Hereford for a number of years. Carl and Linda Thorell have both taught in Sunday School and worked with youth groups. Both have held posts on church commissions and committees. Church officials and members have approved his decision to enter the ministry, and so has a district board.

For the morning worship service, the children's sermon will be given by Dee Anne Trotter. The Sanctuary Choir will sing an anthem under direction of Mark Mayer, music minister. Kim Sims will play a piano solo as the offertory music.

Senior High Youth Fellowship of First UMC will go to Ute Lake for water skiing this weekend, leaving the church parking lot at 7 a.m. Saturday and returning Sunday. Junior Highs will have a special program at their regular meeting at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Several men from First UMC will go to Ceta Canyon UM Campground this weekend for the annual Laymen's Retreat sponsored by the Northwest Texas Conference of the UMC. Mark Landrum of Hereford is president of Methodist Men in the Amarillo District. State and national heads of the organization will be on the program at the retreat, Friday through Sunday.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a hard-working, respectable 23-year-old woman from a middle-class family. At the moment I am heartsick because of a vicious lie that has been spread about me.

I underwent minor surgery recently for a tipped uterus. It required one night in the hospital. Someone has circulated the story that I had an abortion. We are strict Catholics, and this lie is ruining my health and hurting my family.

Will you please run once again that wonderful essay about gossip? It needs to be seen by a lot of people. Thank you in advance.—Worcester, Mass.

DEAR W.: Here it is, one of the best essays I have ever published. It is one that should be repeated periodically. Thanks for asking.

NOBODY'S FRIEND
My name is gossip. I have no respect for justice.

I maim without killing. I break hearts and ruin lives.

I am cunning and malicious and gather strength with age.

The more I am quoted the more I am believed.

I flourish at every level of society.

My victims are helpless. They cannot protect themselves against me because I have no name and no face.

To track me down is impossible. The harder you try, the more elusive I become.

I am nobody's friend.

Once I tarnish a reputation, it is never the same.

I topple governments and wreck marriages.

I ruin careers and cause sleepless nights, heartache and indigestion.

I spawn suspicion and generate grief.

I make innocent people cry in their pillows.

Even my name hisses. I am called Gossip. Office gossip. Shop gossip. Party gossip. Telephone gossip. I make headlines and headaches.

Before you repeat a story ask yourself, is it true? Is it fair? Is it necessary? If not—SHUT UP.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I can't stand my mother. Sometimes I think I hate her.

Mom has favorite children and grandchildren. The only thing I can remember about my childhood is the screaming and the pain when she washed my hair. If I yelled, she pulled harder. I always suspected that she put soap in my eyes on purpose.

Now that I am married and have children of my own, she calls me every day. In every conversation she repeats tales about my brothers and sisters. Our family has always been very mixed up. All my brothers have had extramarital affairs that resulted in out-of-wedlock children. My sisters have been married and divorced several times.

My husband says I should quit going over there. Every time I come home I have a stomachache. I have these awful thoughts about her, wishing she would die. Then I feel guilty because, after all, she is my mother.

How do I handle these conflicting feelings? I feel anger and rage along with guilt. I also feel inadequate, as if the trouble is my fault. Please tell me what to do.—Ohio Merry-Go-Round

DEAR OHIO: I urge you to get in touch with a mental health professional trained in family therapy. You've suffered with these conflicting emotions much too long. Get going and good luck.

Heavy traffic expected for Pope's visit to San Antonio

By JOEL WILLIAMS Associated Press Writer

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — A crush of cars and people are expected to clog border roads and bridges as Rio Grande Valley residents and more than 100,000 visitors from Mexico head to San Antonio for Pope John Paul II's Sept. 13 visit.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, the first time that a holy father has traveled to the state of Texas," said the Rev. Larry Kajs of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, who is coordinating papal visit activities in the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Just from this four-county area, Kajs estimates 50,000 people will make the trip.

"From my perspective, the biggest issue will be transportation," he said, including how to find one's way to the outdoor papal Mass site after arriving in San Antonio.

Officials are preparing for a crunch they say will begin a few days before the Sunday Mass to be celebrated by an anticipated crowd of a half-million.

Along with private cars, busloads from various parishes around the state and papal tours promoted by travel agencies, church officials expect more than 100,000 people to travel up from Mexico to see the pontiff.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service is preparing for crowded bridges across the Rio Grande, but does not expect any type of crisis, said Alfonso DeLeon, INS port director for Laredo, which is likely to be the busiest crossing point.

DeLeon believes the crowds won't be much different from the Easter season, when many on holiday from northern Mexico traditionally come to visit Texas.

"We get quite a bit during Holy Week in April," DeLeon said. "That's our busiest time of the year."

An average of 1.5 million crossings are counted at Laredo every month, he said, with about 200,000 more crossing during April.

For the pope's visit, DeLeon said,

"We're making contingency plans in the event we need to bring in more people."

Those plans include authorization to bring in as many as 10 additional people daily on overtime, and a form of "curb service" to avoid traffic backups on international bridges, he said.

"The key to the person coming into the United States is that they have a domicile they have no intention of abandoning," he added.

Proof of employment in Mexico also helps gain entry to the United States, officials said.

Another official with the agency said security at the border will remain as tight as ever.

"We'll still be checking people. We're not going to be indiscriminately letting them in," said Ralph Traslavina, acting assistant director for examinations in the INS' San Antonio district.

He said immigration authorities are aware that with the extra traffic, many aliens may seize the opportunity to enter the country illegally, but he said the INS is prepared.

DeLeon said the agency isn't worried about visitors deciding to stay once they're in the United States.

"We do this every day," he said. "We know how to size them up just by looking at them."

But he advised travelers from Mexico to get their papers in order in advance, to avoid last-minute problems.

Many are expected to travel across the border at El Paso and make the 570-mile trip through West Texas.

Officials at the El Paso diocese estimate that about 2,000 people from parishes in far West Texas will make the pilgrimage, including 500 who have signed up for a church-sponsored tour.

"Several travel agencies in town practically booked themselves months ago for people interested in going to San Antonio," said Javier Colmenero, communications director for the El Paso diocese.

Department of Public Safety spokesman Mike Cox said the DPS will have extra troopers on the road.

"We look for a lot of traffic, obviously, especially on Interstate 35 from both the north and the south," he said.

Judge rules death suit may not proceed

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A bankruptcy judge handed oil heir Cullen Davis another victory in his battle against those seeking civil damages from him in the 1976 shooting at his Fort Worth mansion.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Massie Tillman Thursday turned down plaintiffs in a multimillion-dollar civil suit seeking to proceed with their wrongful death case against Davis.

With his family business empire in shambles, Davis filed for personal bankruptcy in July, automatically halting any pending civil action against him.

But lawyers representing heirs of slain former Texas Christian University basketball player Stan Farr asked Tillman to allow a pending Sept. 14 trial to go ahead. Farr's heirs allege Davis was the masked gunman who shot and killed Farr at the Davis mansion in 1976.

Davis' bankruptcy attorney Eddie Roush Jr. said the trial would cost Davis $200,000 to $300,000, not including attorneys fees. He said Davis, 53, could not afford to hire a defense attorney.

Bryan D. Bruner, an attorney for Farr's relatives, said during a recess that he and Roush had discussed settling the dispute for $300,000. Instead, Bruner chose to seek a ruling from Tillman.

In the same shooting that killed Farr, Mrs. Davis was critically wounded and her 12-year-old daughter, Andrea Wilborn, was killed by an intruder dressed in black and wearing a woman's black wig. Mrs. Davis and another wounded survivor identified Davis as the gunman.

Mrs. Davis and her second husband, Jack Wilborn, 66, the father of the slain girl, filed a wrongful death and personal injury suit against Davis over Andrea's death and sought a combined total of $16.5 million in damages.

That case ended in a mistrial June 22, with eight of the 12 jurors voting in favor of the plaintiffs. Mrs. Davis and Wilborn said later they intended to pursue their suits against Davis, not for money but for justice.

But that action may have been derailed or at least delayed by the defendant's claim of personal bankruptcy.

An Amarillo jury acquitted Davis of capital murder in 1977 but the criminal verdict had no legal bearing on the civil suits filed in connection with the shootings.

Senator Bill Sarpalius

Budget, tax bill unacceptable

AUSTIN — Texas legislators, as you all by now are aware, concluded their special 30-day budget session by approving a record $38.3 billion budget and $5.7 billion tax bill.

We voted against both the budget and the tax bill, and our reasons were many. The budget, while not as bad as some might imagine, still contained too much waste and too many examples of inequitable fund distribution, and the tax bill simply was written a little too hastily with not quite enough regard for the impact it might have on the state's economy.

The purpose of what follows, though, is purely informational. It is intended neither to support nor deride the budget and tax bills but merely to let you know what is in them. No matter how much we in the Panhandle-South Plains area may oppose the budget and tax bills, they will have profound impact on our lives during the next two years. It would do us all well to know a little more about their contents.

Despite the fact that the budget for the coming biennium is the largest in Texas history, it represents only a 4 percent increase from the budget that served the state during the last two years. Texas' population, by contrast, is estimated to increase by 4.2 percent during the next two years, and inflation is projected at a combined 9.2 percent over the same period.

Funding for three agencies — the Good Neighbor Commission, the Governor's Commission on Physical Fitness and the Texas Sesquicentennial Commission — was eliminated in the budget, and three more economic development agencies' budgets were combined at a lower total into the newly created Texas Department of Commerce. In addition, the Texas Amusement Machine Commission was abolished and its duties transferred to the Comptroller of Public Accounts. Twenty-five major state agencies saw their budgets cut, among them the Department of Highways and Public Transportation, the Department of Public Safety, the Texas Water Commission, the Texas Railroad Commission and the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Obviously, those cuts were more than offset by funding increases in other areas. Education received a lion's share of the additional expenditures, with $393 million in increases going to higher education and $352.3 million in increases going to public education.

In our area, however, the results were a little mixed. West Texas State University enjoyed a $4.3 million increase in general revenue funding over the previous biennium, but the Texas Tech Health Center saw its funding cut slightly. Among our junior colleges, Clarendon College and South Plains College enjoyed funding increases while Amarillo College and Frank Phillips College experienced declines in revenue. The combined total for the four indicated a funding decrease of about $600,000.

School districts in our part of Texas also received a mixed bag from the state. While most undoubtedly will receive additional funding, there are early indications a few will receive less money from the state.

Major funding increases also were doled out to the Department of Human Services, the Department of Corrections and the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation. Much of the DHS increase was made so the department could keep pace with the increasing number of people seeking its services.

Our prison system and MHRM received combined additional funding of more than $100 million because both are under federal court orders to upgrade their conditions and services.

The tax bill, meanwhile, raises the $5.7 billion necessary to pay for the budget by increasing a variety of taxes and imposing a series of new taxes as well.

Most prominent is the increase, effective Oct. 1, of the sales tax rate from the current 5.25 percent to 6 percent. The sales tax base is expanded to include more than 30 new items, including automotive repairs, custom software, janitorial services, pest control services, landscaping and private club memberships.

KILLING TUMORS

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Radioactive antibodies may help combat cancer, according to University of Rochester researchers.

The technique directs cancer-killing doses of radiation at specific areas of tumors. Cancer researchers discovered the technique of using antibodies — natural agents that fight off infection and other diseases — to target cancer cells as the result of a study of how very small pockets of cancer multiply in the body.

By using radioactive antibodies, the researchers say they can reach tiny "microregions" of cancer tumors.

Animators worm way into hearts

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — After eight years of 18-hour days in a cramped studio behind a Dairy Queen, Jerry Reynolds and Russ Harris have built a small empire from a bunch of worms.

They're Mirthworms, stars of a critically acclaimed series of half-hour, family oriented cartoons being seen worldwide.

"A Merry Mirthworm Christmas" and "A Mirthworm Masquerade" have been seen on television stations in several major markets in 14 other countries. The cartoons have been released on pay-TV and recently on videocassette.

Two more animated specials are in the works — and in demand.

"At a time when the Japanese are flooding the market with cheaply made animation ... and a lot of American animation is too violent, it's really refreshing to see such high-quality animation that also has an uplifting moral message," says Vincent Petrillo, director of ancillary sales for Family Home Entertainment of Newbury Park, Calif. The company has acquired the cartoons for both foreign and domestic home-video distribution.

Harris believes part of the Mirthworms' appeal may be attributable to their creators' Midwestern upbringing.

"There's such a glut of that he-man, high-tech robot stuff that a good story with interesting characters and a little message, like 'follow your own heart,' or 'goodness always prevails,' really is refreshing," said Harris, 33, who does most of the technical work.

Peggy Charren, president of the Massachusetts-based Action for Children's Television, agrees.

"There's so much cheap and cheesy stuff out on television and video that's designed just to sell a toy, that's it's wonderful to see something that's done well," says Mrs. Charren. "And when it's terrific for kids, adults are going to enjoy it too."

In its first week on the home video market, "A Mirthworm Masquerade" was No. 13 on Billboard Magazine's chart of Top Kid Video Sales. The inventory sold out in two weeks and it fell off the chart.

"The neat thing is we don't write for kids. We write to entertain ourselves," says Reynolds, of Bloomington. "We're really looking for the family audience — something everybody can sit down and watch. The best kind of cartoons were the ones — like Bullwinkle — that operated on a number of levels."

Reynolds and Harris met in the late 1970s while working at WTTV in Indianapolis. After making a few home movies, they decided to open a business.

"Animation seemed like the logical choice since it was something affordable for two people who had no capital at all," said Reynolds, who does all the animation, music and many of the voices for the Mirthworms.

They opened Perennial Pictures Film Corp. in August 1979 with $4,000 ($3,500 of which they spent on a camera stand), no financial backing, and a lot of negative feedback.

"People were saying we wouldn't last a week," said Reynolds, 35.

They started working on "A Mirthworm Christmas" in 1982 with no outside funding, continuing to produce commercials and public-service announcements to keep them alive. When the special was finished two years and 18,000 cels (individual drawings on transparent sheets) later, they still had no prospects of a television sale.

But after Showtime pay-TV agreed to buy the show for its Christmas 1984 season, the Nickelodeon cable-TV service followed, as did a Los Angeles network and the BBC.

BE AWARE BEFORE BUYING

NEW YORK (AP) — Take precautions to prevent your dream house from turning into a nightmare.

Attorney Armond Budish writes in Family Circle magazine that "you are always better off knowing any problems that exist before you buy a house."

Budish offers these tips to help avoid unwelcome surprises:

— State in your purchase offer that you may hire a professional inspector to look over the property after the seller accepts and might terminate the offer if flaws are found.

— Add a clause requiring the seller to list all repairs over $100 made to the property in the past five years. This should alert you to potential problems and to warranties for previous repair work, which should be signed over to you.

AIDS spread greater than authorities first believed

MARLIN, Texas (AP) — Self-employed insurance salesman Jimmy Etheridge was not known in the mostly white business community of this town, despite having moved here 18 months ago.

It was in the predominantly minority section where he passed out lavish gifts to poor boys and their families.

And it was there, officials say, that Etheridge left a deadly legacy.

Authorities found the names of 14 more children Thursday in a computer kept by Etheridge, who police fear may have infected as many as 54 youngsters with the AIDS virus.

Etheridge was found shot to death June 30. An autopsy showed he had the AIDS virus, and a check of the home computer yielded the names and addresses of children, along with details about sexual relations he had with them.

A 16-year-old boy who had been living with him signed a statement saying he shot Etheridge accidentally, said District Attorney Thomas Sehon, who said the criminal investigation in the case is over.

"We cannot prove beyond a reasonable doubt that he (16-year-old) or anyone else committed murder," Sehon said.

Debra Coca, chief Falls County juvenile probation officer, said Thursday officials had found two or three more lists in Etheridge's computer with 14 new names, mostly from Louisiana.

But of the total 54 children, addresses from Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, California, Colorado, Arkansas and Mexico were found, she said. At least 10 of the children are from this little community southeast of Waco.

"We are still in the process of pulling names out of the computer," she said, adding she has no idea how many more names might be found.

Six children have been tested for AIDS so far, and only one test result is back, said Ms. Coca, declining to say whether it was positive or negative.

Parents who have been notified, she said, expressed "shock, bewilderment and a lack of understanding about how this could happen."

Many said, "He seemed to be such a nice person."

She said many of the children are too young to understand the implications of the situation.

Etheridge moved here a year and a half ago from Louisiana. Not many in the business community knew him.

"If you go to the south end of town, he was very well known," said Ms. Coca.

She said he was a familiar figure to many Hispanic and black families, whom he gave gifts including televisions and motorcycles.

Ms. Coca said the district attorney's office was sending letters out to families of the 54 children whose names turned up, plus all of Etheridge's insurance customers, mainly minorities.

"I don't know how many people that will be," Sehon said. "It's probably impossible to notify every single person who said hello to him or shook his hand."

Most of the children involved are Hispanic or black and were between 13 and 16 years old at the time of the contact with Etheridge, although some were as young as 7, Ms. Coca said.

The earliest computer record of contact was 1976, she said.

At Etheridge's home, police found a footlocker containing about 50 snapshots of young males, about 20 hard-core pornographic magazines depicting male homosexuality and about 15 pornographic videocassettes.

On one of the walls was a picture of the 275-pound Etheridge being hugged by a Hispanic boy.

DR. GOTT

Preparing for a hospital stay

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Are there any books or publications dealing specifically with hospital stays? Can you recommend a few for patients, their friends and families?

DEAR READER — Most patients do not need books about hospitals because their doctors act as patient advocates and can take care of the many questions that hospitalized patients have. Your family doctor should be your most valuable resource in dealing with the unpleasantness of hospitalization.

However, some people prefer to have written material to which they can refer. In my new book, "No House Calls" (Poseidon Press), I address some of the problems that stem from being a patient (or visitor) in a hospital. You may find my comments helpful.

Another useful book is "Take This Book to the Hospital With You," by Charles Inlander and Ed Weiner (Roda Press). This paperback is a sort of survival manual for hospitalized patients.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am a nervous person and my doctor prescribed Valium. I tried it once and it was very helpful. Now several doctors tell me that I should take Thorazine instead, because the Valium is not good for me. The Thorazine does not work as well. What is so bad about the Valium that doctors would prefer a less effective tranquilizer?

DEAR READER — Valium (diazepam) is a minor tranquilizer that has been widely prescribed as an antidote to anxiety and tension. Some experts believe that Valium is prescribed too often for symptoms of stress. The drug is habit-forming, and many people have come to rely on it, as on alcohol, for its calming effects.

In my opinion, nervousness is not an appropriate reason for a doctor to recommend (and patients to take) Valium. This medicine is indicated only for the short-term control of anxiety disorders. Nervousness is a common adult affliction, and I believe that it is better treated by non-drug methods, such as counseling and stress reduction.

Thorazine (chlorpromazine) is not less effective than Valium and, in fact, may be more dangerous. It is a major tranquilizer, and the manufacturer recommends that it be administered, if at all, in small quantities for no longer than 12 weeks. It is useful therapy for the management of serious psychiatric disorders (major emotional instability). Thorazine has several notable side effects. One of the most important is tardive dyskinesia, a permanent neurological impairment that causes uncontrollable twitching and tic-like repetitive movements. Do not take Thorazine unless you do so under strict medical supervision.

Your interests will be best served by avoiding medicine altogether for minor emotional upsets. However, if your doctor insists that you take drugs, make sure that you understand exactly why, the side effects of the medicine, and whether a non-drug approach would be preferable.

To help you understand these medicines I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, CONSUMER TIPS ON MEDICINES. I'm also sending you a free copy of my Health Report on MENTAL ILLNESS, which discusses non-drug approaches to emotional problems. Other readers who want either of these reports should send $1 for each Health Report ordered with their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title of each newsletter you request.

Brewers pluck Orioles, 11-8

Defending champion

Jesse Sturgeon of San Antonio will return to defend his championship for the fifth consecutive year Saturday in the Greg Black Memorial 10-K in Hereford. Jesse, the son of Sam and Celia Sturgeon of Hereford, holds the course record of 33:01. The 10-K and two-mile will begin at the Hereford YMCA at 8 a.m. Registration begins at 7 a.m.

The Milwaukee Brewers are in the midst of another streak, but this time they're picking on the Baltimore Orioles instead of the entire American League.

By defeating Baltimore 11-8 Thursday, the Brewers ran their record against the Orioles to 9-0. But they still have a way to go to match their season-opening 13-game winning streak and a subsequent 12-game losing streak.

"I can recall a long period of time when the Orioles had our number, but times change and teams change," Paul Molitor said after stretching his hitting streak to 20 games with two hits and two RBI.

Although the fourth-place Brewers have been out of the pennant race for a while, they are still within range, 8½ games out in the AL East, especially if the leaders keep stumbling.

Thursday night, third-place Detroit trounced division-leading New York 12-5 and last-place Cleveland flattened runner-up Toronto 14-5. In the AL West, the lead changed hands for the second night in a row when Minnesota defeated Oakland 9-4 and vaulted back over the Athletics into first place by one game. California is 1½ out after losing to Seattle 15-4.

Robin Yount hit a two-run triple to cap a five-run fourth inning, and B.J. Surhoff drove in three runs to pace Milwaukee to its fourth consecutive victory.

Fred Lynn's three-run homer powered the Orioles to a 6-3 lead. But in the bottom of the fourth, Milwaukee's Steve Kiefer doubled and scored on Surhoff's second RBI single, knocking out Baltimore starter Mike Flanagan. Mike Griffin gave up a two-out RBI triple to Dale Sveum to cut the lead to 6-5 and Molitor extended the second-longest hitting in the majors this season with a run-scoring single.

Mike Felder beat out an infield hit before Yount tripled, giving the Brewers an 8-6 lead. Yount has 13 game-winning RBI, best in the league. Jay Aldrich won his first major-league game after replacing starter Bill Wegman in the fourth. He allowed three hits in 2 2-3 scoreless innings. Cal Ripken also homered for Baltimore.

Tigers 12, Yankees 5

Darrell Evans' two-run double keyed Detroit's four-run first inning and Frank Tanana held New York to one run and five hits through seven.

The Tigers also had a six-run third, including Bill Madlock's two-run double and Kirk Gibson's two-run single, during which they chased Ron Guidry.

Guidry walked Lou Whitaker and Kirk Gibson in the first inning. Whitaker scored on a single by Alan Trammell and Gibson and Trammell scored on Evans' two-out double. Chet Lemon doubled Evans home for a 4-0 lead.

Larry Herndon doubled in the Detroit third, advanced on a single by Evans and scored on a single by Lemon to make it 5-1. Steve Trout relieved Guidry and walked Mike Heath to load the bases, threw a wild pitch that allowed Evans to score and then walked Jim Walewander. Heath hit a two-run homer in the sixth for a 12-1 lead.

Indians 14, Blue Jays 5

Pinch hitter Casey Parsons hit a grand slam and Cory Snyder and Jay Bell also homered in Cleveland's 16-hit attack. Parsons' homer, his first this season and only the second of his career, came on the second pitch from reliever Mark Eichhorn in the sixth inning and gave the Indians their third four-run inning of the game.

Cleveland starter Scott Bailes gave up three runs on five hits in five innings. Loser Jim Clancy retired only one of the six batters he faced in Cleveland's four-run first inning.

Twins 9, Athletics 4

Home runs by Kent Hrbek and Tim Laudner plus Kirby Puckett's three-run double helped Frank Viola win for the 10th time in his last 12 decisions although he walked six in seven innings. Loser Dave Stewart walked five and allowed seven runs — five earned — and four hits in 3 1-3 innings as his personal seven-game winning streak was snapped.

Hrbek hit his 25th home run leading off the Twins' third for a 3-1 lead and they increased it to 7-1 in the fourth, with Puckett's three-run double chasing Stewart. Oakland got solo homers from Mike Gallego and Steve Henderson.

Mariners 15, Angels 4

Mike Moore won at home for the first time this season, breaking a personal six-game losing streak, and Jim Presley and Alvin Davis hit two-run homers. Moore, who hadn't won since June 22, scattered 11 hits. Loser Willie Fraser allowed four runs in 2-3 innings.

Hearns ready to face field

NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas Hearns wants to become middleweight champion, and he would like to fight Marvelous Marvin Hagler, Sugar Ray Leonard or heavyweight champion Mike Tyson.

"He believes that if Tyson hasn't been beaten in (the next) 15 months he has the style to beat him," manager-train Emanuel Steward said Thursday in a telephone interview from Detroit.

"I said, 'Are you kidding?' But he said he could get up to 195-200 pounds. He does have the frame to do it."

A Hearns-Tyson fight seems to be just wishful thinking, and a Hearns-Leonard fight isn't likely either since Leonard retired after beating Hagler for the World Boxing Council middleweight title. But a second Hearns-Hagler fight could happen.

The 6-foot-1 Hearns has surrendered the WBC light heavyweight title in order to pursue the vacant WBC middleweight title against Juan Domingo Roldan of Argentina on Oct. 29 at the Las Vegas Hilton, Steward said.

Although the Hearns-Roldan match was announced some time ago, the WBC announced Wednesday at Mexico City that the bout wouldn't be sanctioned unless Hearns relinquished the light heavyweight title within 48 hours.

"Tommy has definitely given up the light heavyweight title," Steward said. "We already assumed it was known. The only thing he's interested in is going for that fourth title."

Other fighters have won three championships, but no one has won four.

Hearns, a former World Boxing Association welterweight and former WBC super-welterweight champion, won the WBC light heavyweight title by stopping Dennis Andries.

Now's the time to change your oil.

Until now, the highest rating a diesel engine oil could earn was something the American Petroleum Institute called CD.

Today, that's changed because your engines have changed. These days they're more powerful. Run hotter. Demand a higher standard from their oils.

And now they've got it. On paper it's called API CE.

On the road, it means better performance, fewer deposits, less consumption, and lower wear on your high-stress engine.

Makes you wish someone had formulated this kind of oil long ago.

Someone did.

EXXON'S XD-3 Extra™ and XD-3™, 15W-40 grades, have exceeded the new CE designation for more than a year. In fact, your fleet may already be running on one of them.

If so, you're miles ahead.

If not, it's definitely time for an oil change.

Meets or exceeds the performance requirements of Cummins NTC-400, Mack T-6, Mack T-7, Caterpillar TO-2, Allison C-3, Detroit Diesel, MIL-L-2104D and MIL-L-46152B.

Also Highly recommended for all Tractors, Pick-ups, and Automobiles. Price $2.95 @ Gallon in 55 Gallon Drums. No Drum Deposit. One Gallon Jugs also available.

Tudor teaches Phillies lesson, 5-2

After three months on the disabled list, John Tudor is starting to feel comfortable on the mound again. He may want to avoid a seat in the dugout, though.

Tudor pitched four-hit ball over 5 2-3 innings Thursday night for his first victory since April 17 as the St. Louis Cardinals beat Philadelphia, 5-2.

Tudor, 3-1, suffered a broken bone in his right knee April 19 in a freak dugout collision with New York Mets' catcher Barry Lyons. Lyons was trying to make a play on a foul ball when he charged into the Cardinals' dugout and slammed into Tudor, sitting on the bench.

He came off the disabled list July 30, pitched two games in the minors, and on Aug. 1 went four innings against Pittsburgh.

"I don't know if my knee is 100 percent, but it's good enough to play on," Tudor said.

Tudor struck out four and walked none. Bill Dawley pitched one inning, Ricky Horton 1 2-3, and Todd Worrell got the final two outs for his 23rd save. Willie McGee and Terry Pendleton drove in two runs each to help snap a two-game losing streak and extend the Phillies' losing streak to six. The victory kept the first-place Cardinals 4 1/2 games in front of the New York Mets in the National League East.

Elsewhere in the NL, New York edged Chicago 7-6, San Diego beat Atlanta 7-4, and Montreal defeated Pittsburgh 6-3.

Tudor, who went 21-8 in 1985 to help St. Louis win the pennant, relies on pinpoint control and changing speeds to win. "My location was good," Tudor said. "I hit the inside and outside corners. I got a lot of outs on the change-up. The key to my success was my control."

Mets 7, Cubs 6
Kevin McReynolds scored Lee Mazzilli with a bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth inning and Howard Johnson had his bat confiscated again as host New York won its sixth straight game.

Mazzilli led off the ninth inning with a walk off reliever Lee Smith and moved to second on Tim Teufel's sacrifice. The Cubs intentionally walked Keith Hernandez and Darryl Strawberry's infield hit off the leg of Smith loaded the bases. With the infield and outfield playing in, McReynolds hit a long fly to left that fell in for a hit and scored Mazzilli with one out.

Strawberry hit two homers, his 28th and 27th, for the Mets and Andre Dawson hit his 33rd and 34th for the Cubs.

Johnson hit his 27th home run in the second inning and for the second time in a week the Mets' third baseman had his bat confiscated by the umpires. Last Thursday in St. Louis, the Cardinals asked for Johnson's bat to be checked after he homered.

"To me, this is silly," Johnson said. "If they're trying to catch me they are wasting their time."

Expos 6, Pirates 3
Tim Wallach tied the score with a single and Andres Galarraga's run-scoring fielder's choice put visiting Montreal ahead, as the Expos rallied in the eighth inning to beat Pittsburgh.

With Pittsburgh leading 3-2, reliever Jim Gott walked Tim Raines to start the eighth and Raines stole second. Mitch Webster was credited with a single when shortstop Al Pedrique's shoe caught in the turf and he was unable to make a throw, allowing Raines to take third. One out later, Wallach singled to center to score Raines and send Webster to third. Webster scored the go-ahead run when Galarraga just beat second baseman Johnny Ray's relay throw to first on an attempted double play, allowing Webster to score.

Padres 7, Braves 4
Benito Santiago snapped a ninth-inning tie with a two-out infield single and Garry Templeton added a two-run single, leading San Diego past host Atlanta.

With the score tied 4-4, Shane Mack led off the ninth and reached on third baseman Ken Oberkell's error. Mack moved to second on a single by Tony Gwynn, his fourth hit of the game and 21st in 39 at-bats against Atlanta this season. After a sacrifice moved the runners up, Chris Brown grounded to third and the runners held. Santiago followed with a hit to deep short off reliever Gene Garber, 8-8, scoring Mack, and Templeton followed with a single to score two more runs.

Dale Murphy hit his 30th home run for the Braves, the sixth time in his career he has hit 30 or more.

Howe ready for Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — For the first time in more than two years, relief pitcher Steve Howe may take the mound tonight in a major league uniform.

Texas Rangers General Manager Tom Grieve said Howe will be in uniform for the Rangers in Baltimore for a game against the Orioles.

The Rangers, without the approval of Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, gave the pitcher another shot at the major leagues Thursday.

Howe, suspended in the past from both the major and minor leagues for cocaine use, was acquired from the Rangers' Oklahoma City farm club.

"We feel comfortable we're doing the right thing," Rangers President Mike Stone said at a news conference a day after he and the American League team's owner, Eddie Chiles, flew to New York to discuss Howe's situation with Ueberroth.

"We didn't ask for (Ueberroth's) endorsement," Chiles said. "We discussed generalities — what effect it would have on baseball, on the Rangers and on the commissioner."

"We didn't go up there to please anybody, we went up there on our business," he said. "We believe this decision is legal, ethical, moral and sound."

But Chiles said the team had not consulted legal counsel on the decision. And none of the Rangers officials at the Arlington Stadium press conference would speculate on what Ueberroth's reaction would be.

At first, the commissioner's office said it was working on a statement. Later, spokesman Rich Levin said Ueberroth would have nothing to say on the matter Thursday.

After the Rangers signed Howe last month, they sent him to their Class AAA team at Oklahoma City and said they hoped to use him as a starter, even though all his major league action had been as a reliever.

However, Manager Bobby Valentine said Thursday that Howe, the National League rookie of the year when he broke in with the Los Angeles Dodgers, will be a reliever for the Rangers.

"He'll be the first left-hander we'll call in," Valentine said. "We had a pretty good bullpen before — now it's even better."

Howe said, "It's taken me a long time to get back — it's been a long hard battle. All I can say is thank God for the Texas Rangers. I'm ready to drop the controversy. I'm ready to play baseball."

The decision to purchase Howe's contract from Oklahoma City was made in a morning meeting that included Chiles, Stone, Grieve and Valentine.

Grieve said the Rangers didn't need permission to call Howe up.

"It's entirely in the Rangers' hands," Grieve said. "Steve Howe has done everything and more off the field and on the field to prove he's a good baseball player and a first-class citizen."

Jim Small, a spokesman for the commissioner's office, said Wednesday there was no current suspension or restrictions prohibiting Howe from playing for Texas.

Howe played for the Dodgers until 1983 when he was fined $54,000 and suspended through the 1984 season by then-commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Howe was placed on the National League restricted list in June 1985 and then signed with the Minnesota Twins in August of that year. The Twins later released him, also for drug-related reasons.

He had a 25-27 record and 56 saves in the majors.

Howe began the 1986 season with the San Jose Bees, an independent team in the Class A California League, but tested positive for drugs and was suspended.

Howe was suspended by the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, which governs the minor leagues, in 1986, but the drug-related suspension was lifted last month and he joined the Oklahoma City 89ers.

He also agreed to participate in a drug-rehabilitation after-care program with the 89ers.

Howe, 2-2 with a 3.48 earned-run average for the 89ers, was tested for drugs at least four times after going to Oklahoma City, his agent, John Lence, said.

"The Rangers have tested him at least two times a week and sometimes three or four times a week. Every test has been negative of any chemical substance. That includes cocaine, amphetamines, uppers, downers and even alcohol. His pitching performances (show it is) obvious he is physically and mentally ready," Lence said from his home in Kalispell, Mont.

To make room on their roster, the Rangers sent pitcher Mike Loynd to Oklahoma City.

Baseball going batty over cork

NEW YORK (AP) — When the umpires took Howard Johnson's bat out of the game for the second time in a week, New York Mets Manager Davey Johnson tried invoking Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's new edict just a little early.

Ueberroth said Thursday that baseball has found "indications" that some players are using illegal bats.

"The time has come to inspect the bats in addition to the baseballs," the commissioner said in a written statement. "Our office and the league offices have received indications that bats have been tampered with and there is no room for that kind of conduct in our game."

Under the policy, which goes into effect today, the manager of each club can ask the crew chief of the umpiring crew to impound one bat from the opposing team during a game.

If a player's bat is found to be illegal, the player and his manager will be punished by their league president. The punishment could include fines and suspensions.

Batters are sometimes accused of inserting cork or metal into a bat in order to increase their power and bat speed.

Johnson hit his 27th home run of the season in the second inning of the New York Mets' 7-6 victory over Chicago on Thursday night, and his bat confiscated by the umpires. Last Thursday in St. Louis, the Cardinals asked for his bat to be checked after he homered.

At the time St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said: "He looks like Babe Ruth up there and I know he ain't that good."

Prior to this year, the Mets' third baseman's career high was 12 homers in 1984 for Detroit.

"To me, this is silly," Howard Johnson said. "If they're trying to catch me they are wasting their time."

Crew chief John Kibler inspected Johnson's bat after it was given to him by home-plate umpire Charlie Williams. Kibler ordered it taken to the umpires' dressing room and Johnson did not use the bat in his next plate appearance.

"Kibler said they were giving it to the National League office to be X-rayed. If it's all right, which it is, I'll get it back tomorrow (Friday)," Johnson said.

Cubs Manager Gene Michael claimed he had nothing to do with the confiscation.

"That came from the league to the umpire," he said. "I heard that they're going to do some random checking, and I think we need some more of that. This stuff has been going on for a long time."

When Chicago slugger Andre Dawson batted in the fourth, Davey Johnson asked for the bat to be checked but Williams refused. Dawson then hit a home run, his second of the game.

"The rule states if an umpire sees anything wrong with the bat, or suspects anything wrong, he can take it out of the game," Davey Johnson said. "There's another directive, any bat can be taken out of the game. He (the umpire) doesn't have to think it's suspicious, you can just take it out of the game."

"I asked him (Williams) does anything look suspicious and he said no. I said I want to check some of their bats."

"I said I want one of Dawson's bats checked out. He (Williams) said no and I said I was playing the game under protest."

If he wants, Davey Johnson can ask for Dawson's — or any other player's — bat to be checked tonight and the crew chief will have to do it.

"I don't think Dawson corks his bat or anything like that," Davey Johnson said. "I just thought that if my guy has his favorite bat taken away without reason, then I want one of their guys to lose his favorite bat, too. To me, the umpires showed preferential treatment."

Umpires also recently confiscated the bat of Los Angeles Dodgers outfielder Pedro Guerrero. After sawing off the end of the bat, the umpires ruled that it was legal.

Seven entering Football HOF

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — History has proven Chuck Noll's intuition was correct in 1969 when he selected a little-known North Texas State defensive tackle named Joe Greene in the National Football League draft.

On Saturday, Noll will present Green as an inductee into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Greene, the first major building block in Noll's construction of the Steelers' NFL dynasty during the 1970s, will join six other greats being inducted at the Hall's 25th annual induction ceremony Saturday.

After the ceremony, the NFL pre-season kicks off with the Kansas City Chiefs meeting the San Francisco 49ers in the AFC-NFC Hall of Fame Game.

Greene, now an assistant coach on Noll's staff at Pittsburgh, was the NFL Defensive Player of the Year in 1972 and 1974. He made the Pro Bowl 10 times during his 13-year career with the Steelers.

The Steelers won the Super Bowl four times during Greene's career and were the last team to repeat, winning in 1979-80.

Greene retired after the 1981 season, and in so doing said he would like "to be remembered for maybe setting a standard for others to achieve."

Noll has said the 6-foot-4, 280-pound Greene combined great physical tools with an outstanding attitude.

One thing Greene didn't like was his nickname — "Mean Joe," which he tried to dispel in a nationally televised commercial.

In a commercial in his career,

Greene was shown trudging wearily to the locker room when a young boy offered him a soft drink. Greene scowled at him, but then drank the beverage and gave the boy his game jersey.

Other new members of the Hall of Fame are quarterback Len Dawson, wide receiver Don Maynard, running backs Larry Csonka and John Henry Johnson, center Jim Langer and guard Gene Upshaw.

The new enshrinees bring the total in the Hall of Fame to 140.
