Chamber endorses city sales tax for development

The Deaf Smith County chamber of Commerce board unanimously voted Tuesday to approve a resolution in support of a one-half percent city sales tax that would be used to fund economic development.

Doug Josserrand, C of C president, said the board "studied the issue in great detail and looked at various alternatives" before voting to support the issue which will be presented to Hereford voters in a May 5 election. "While some directors were reluctant to support any kind of tax increase, it was the feeling of the board that it is important to our community to continue to explore all avenues that would allow us to further the development of Hereford and Deaf Smith County," said Josserrand. "The board also feels that it is very important for all information on the proposition to be thoroughly presented to the residents, so everyone is fully informed and there is not a misunderstanding as to the objectives of the economic development proposal," added Josserrand.

The chamber board resolution stated, in part: "Hereford and Deaf Smith County must be competitive with other communities in the quest to attract new industry and to promote the growth and expansion of existing local businesses and industries; and whereas, the chamber is fully aware that the only way to maintain reasonable taxes is to expand the existing tax base through growth and development and the creation of new jobs; and . . .

"Whereas the Hereford City Commission has unanimously voted to place this question (referred to as Proposition One) on the May 5th ballot to offer citizens and voters the opportunity to assist in the determination of the future of our community, realizing that this would be a fair way to raise economic development funds; now, therefore,

"The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce supports the passage of Proposition One and urges voters to do the same."

The chamber president pointed out that the Texas Legislature made possible the new opportunity to raise funds in this manner, and that many towns throughout the state are taking advantage of this avenue to try to establish a stronger and more effective economic development base.

A "fact sheet" put out by the chamber reports that if the proposition is approved, the city commission shall oversee the use of the funds and is required to appoint a five-member board to direct the economic development corporation. Funds can be used specifically for: a revolving loan fund for small business (existing and new); venture capital fund for business start-ups; incentives for the creation of jobs; issue bonds to pay the cost of a project; acquire, construct and maintain projects within or outside the city; pay for infrastructure when it is directly related to economic development project. There is a limitation of 10 percent of the funds that can be used for promotion.

The one-half percent tax is estimated to generate about $300,000 per year. The tax applies to items now included on the sale tax, and does not put the tax on items like groceries, housing, autos, prescriptions, doctor's visits, gasoline and food.

The chamber report also points out that the proposition would give Hereford the ability to offer more of the same incentives that other cities are offering for expansion of business and the attraction of new industry. It points out that a retail sales tax is more equitable as both residents and non-residents are contributing and this does not add to the property tax burden.

Governor could support $450 million school plan

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements says he could support a $450 million school finance reform measure - $150 million more than his previous limit - if lawmakers can shift that much from elsewhere in the state budget.

"Sure, why not?" Clements said Thursday. "If we can move some money around, I don't have any objection to that at all, because I am convinced that some of the agencies were, in fact, overfunded."

The governor in the past has said his no-new-taxes stand on school finance meant new spending on schools must be held at about $300 million.

A plan to carve $269.5 million from other budget areas has been laid out by Clements. He said that temporarily reducing the state's contribution to the Teacher Retirement System to raise up to $172 million also is an option, despite teachers' opposition.

"It doesn't hurt the retirement system or the benefits in any way, shape or form," Clements said.

In the first week of a second special session school finance reform, the House recessed until Monday, when it will debate a bill to send $450 million more in state money to schools in 1990-91.

Lawmakers are working to meet a May 1 deadline for reform set by the Texas Supreme Court, which found unconstitutional disparities in the funding available to property-rich and poor school districts.

The $13.5 billion-a-year system relies on a combination of local property taxes, state aid and some federal money.

If the House passes a school finance bill, it can be sent to a conference committee to work out differences with a $1.2 billion Senate plan.

Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, met with lawmakers Thursday to try to win votes for the House measure and to work on an alternate plan to be offered if the legislation fails.

Critics of the $450 million bill include members of the Mexican American Legislative Caucus who want the state to spend more money and Republicans who say the bill's price tag is too high.

One key lawmaker said any state tax increase to fund school finance reform likely will be linked to local property tax relief for school districts.

"I personally don't think a tax increase is coming that's not coupled with either direct property tax relief or, at the very least, the mitigation of these spiraling rates" for school districts, said Rep. Ric Williamson, vice chairman of the House's budget-writing Appropriations Committee and a member of its tax-writing Ways and Means Committee.

"I doubt that there are many members of the Legislature that aren't under some pressure to reduce property taxes back home," said Williamson, D-Weatherford.

Playa program should boost area waterfowl

HEREFORD-A locally-based conservation organization helped bring about the first donation of private land under the Playa Lakes Joint Venture, a five-year, $1.3 million program to protect waterfowl habitat in the playa lakes region of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico.

Texas Waterfowlers Association of Hereford, a tax-exempt, non-profit waterfowl conservation organization, joined other representatives of the PLJV in honoring Lubbock attorney William D. Armstrong in special ceremonies near Dimmitt last month.

TWA was represented at the ceremonies by J.D. Gould of Vega, president, and Jim Steiert of Hereford, co-founder and secretary. Steiert also represented TWA as a member on the Playa Lakes Joint Venture steering committee.

In addition to TWA, other participants in the PLJV include Phillips Petroleum Co., U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, Texas Parks & Wildlife Department, Oklahoma Department of Wildlife Conservation, New Mexico Game & Fish Department, Colorado division of Wildlife Federation and Ducks Unlimited.

Armstrong was cited in a sign dedication ceremony on his farm southwest of Dimmitt, where he has donated a 52-acre playa lake in perpetuity to Texas Parks & Wildlife Department.

The waterfowlers group has played an active role in preserving the lake as a habitat for migratory waterfowl in recent years by leasing it as a sanctuary from the farm's operator, sinking several thousand dollars into the undertaking. TWA also helped set the stage for eventual donation of the property to TP&WD by making state waterfowl officials aware of the importance of the playa basin as waterfowl habitat.

The joint venture partners launched their program in January and are working with landowners and other wildlife agencies to implement programs within each of the five states in the playa lakes region.

"Landowners participation is integral to the success of the joint venture because 99 percent of the playa lakes are privately owned," said John Voss, Phillips Petroleum regional manager for exploration and production and a member of the PLJV steering committee.

"Bill Armstrong's donation is so important because it sets a precedent and creates a standard for other landowners to follow. We'll work hand-in-hand with landowners like Mr. Armstrong-without impeding their business-to help waterfowl habitat flourish," said Voss.

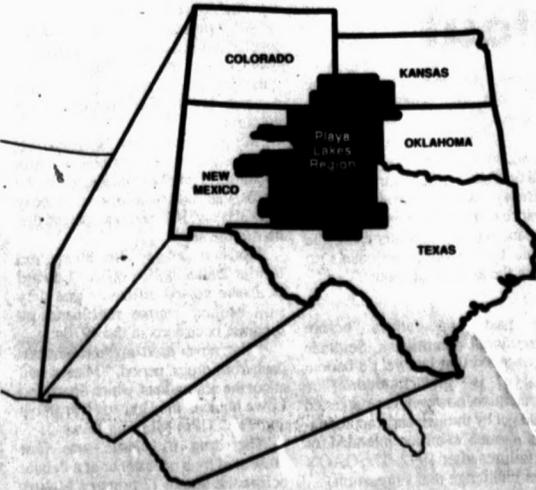

Armstrong is the first landowner to step forward, granting a conservation easement which allows the TP&WS to maintain his entire 640-acre farm as a wildlife habitat. In addition, he has leased the 160-acre area which encompasses his 52-acre playa lake to the TP&WS, which will maintain the area as a waterfowl sanctuary.

Under terms set out in the easement and lease, Armstrong has agreed to limit development and grazing on his land and to maintain a sufficient water level in his playa lake.

"My motivation is stewardship of the land-it needs to be tended to, and I believe you need to put something back into the land," Armstrong said. He characterizes the donation as a gift to the community and to the environment.

What a country this would be if we could just put into practice the things that "any fool knows."

Any fool knows you have to pay your debts. If you live on borrowed money, sooner or later someone else will own you.

Any fool knows that if you keep on putting bad things into your body, sooner or later you'll wear out, break down and die.

Any fool knows that earth's resources are limited, and if we keep wasting them, sooner or later we're going to run out.

Any fool knows if you let a criminal off light the first time, he'll figure crime does pay and he'll commit a worse crime next time. If you punish him hard the first time, he just might take that as incentive to look for honest work.

Any fool knows that productive labor is the basis of wealth in any economy. There's something wrong with a system that allows people to make millions of dollars shuffling paper while others-producing quality goods through sweat and skill, find it hard to make ends meet.

Any fool knows happiness depends on what's inside you, not on what happens to you.

GAO says more money needed for S & L bailout

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congressional auditors warned today that last year's savings and loan bailout plan will fall a staggering $68 billion short and called on the Bush administration to come up with a plan to raise the money.

The General Accounting Office, in its highest-yet estimate, said it will cost the government $325 billion to close or sell failed thrift institutions. That's greater than the annual budget of the Defense Department.

The new projection is up a sharp 26 percent from a $257 billion estimate the GAO offered only five months ago. And it is based on admittedly optimistic assumptions about interest rates, rescue costs and the number of S&L failures. Comptroller General

Charles A. Bowsher, who heads the GAO, told the Senate Banking Committee.

In his prepared testimony, Bowsher called on Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady and Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Chairman L. William Seidman, who is administering the bailout, to "develop proposals to provide the additional funds."

In past appearances before congressional committees, Seidman has conceded that last year's bailout probably is underfunded. The administration, however, has suggested it could get by through early appropriation of about $30 billion intended for S&L failures after 1992. The GAO's figures challenge that suggestion.

Crimestopper Awareness Month

County Judge Tom Simons has proclaimed April as "Crimestopper Awareness Month" in Deaf Smith County. Crimestopper board members and law enforcement officers were on hand this week as Judge Simons (seated) signed the proclamation. Left to right are Fidel Reyna and Mary Cramer with the sheriff's office; David Wagner and Sammy Sanchez of the city police department; Mark Adams, D.A.'s office; Joe Garcia, board treasurer; and Jack Nunley, board chairman.

April: Crimestoppers Awareness month

April has been proclaimed Crimestoppers' Awareness Month by County Judge Tom Simons. Crimestopper board members and local law enforcement officers were on hand Wednesday to watch the proclamation being signed.

Crimestoppers is a non-profit, volunteer organization funded by contributions from individuals and business firms. Purpose of the organization is to promote anti-crime activities and to provide a reward fund to aid in the apprehension of felons.

Judge Simons urged Deaf Smith County citizens to "be aware of the worthwhile services provided by the organization and to support the program through participation in its activities and through contributions to help fund the beneficial work of the group." Simons was on the chartering board of directors.

Jack Nunley, chairman of Crimestoppers, reminded citizens that contributions can be mailed to P.O. Box 1307. David Wagner, Hereford Police Department, reported the Crimestopper project had been very successful since its inception in 1982. The reward for anonymous tips on crimes has resulted in 120 arrests, the solution of 127 criminal cases, the recovery of approximately $120,000 in stolen property, and the seizure of some $7,000 in narcotics.

Nunley said the local chapter is connected to Texas Crimestoppers and to Crimestoppers International. There are 18 board members in the local chapter, and law enforcement officers serve as advisory members.

Taking part in the proclamation ceremony were Judge Simons, Nunley, Joe Garcia, treasurer; Wagner and Sammy Sanchez of the police department; Mary Cramer and Fidel Reyna of the sheriff's office, and Mark Adams from the D.A.'s office.

PLAYA---

be substantial, since the donation and the restrictions cut down on income and increase certain expenses," said Armstrong. "However, landowners get a significant tax break for this type of donation, depending upon the appraised value of the land."

The Playa Lakes Region, which comprises 84 contiguous counties connecting the five states, contains approximately 25,000 seasonally wet basins, called playas. These lakes serve as a crossroads for 32 species of ducks, geese and swan during their regular fall and spring migrations through the Central Flyway of the U.S.

As many as 2.8 million ducks, 750,000 geese and 450,000 sandhill cranes winter in the region. On a given day, Texas Parks & Wildlife officials have counted as many as 44,000 geese and almost 65,000 ducks on Armstrong's land alone.

However, surveys by state and federal wildlife agencies verify that duck populations are at all-time low. Armstrong said he had no idea that so many ducks used his land. "I didn't realize the importance of the playas as habitat for waterfowl and wildlife, and I don't think other landowners are aware of the need. They should be informed, just as I was."

Under terms of the joint venture, Phillips Petroleum will donate $125,000 annually through 1994, which will be matched collectively by the five states involved. Ducks Unlimited will match Phillips' cumulative $625,000 cash donation, and will contribute the funds in Phillips' name for waterfowl enhancement in Canada.

"We're particularly pleased to have had a part in preserving the future of a playa important as waterfowl habitat in the High Plains region," said Steiert. "I'm encouraged that representatives of the PLJV are finally beginning to talk about making benefits available to landowners to encourage their provision for wildlife interests."

Funds provided by the joint venture will given environmental agencies in each state and landowners in the playa lakes region resources to keep the habitat property irrigated and conducive to habits of wildlife resources.

"Since its formation in 1982, TWA has championed the cause of providing incentive to the private landowner to make allowances for the wintering waterfowl resource in our region. We felt we were on the right track then, and we're even more convinced now," Steiert said.

Mattox denies drug use

By The Associated Press

Allegations of drug use have been leveled against Attorney General Jim Mattox for the first time in the gubernatorial campaign, with less than a week before the primary runoff election.

Mattox, who has accused his Democratic runoff opponent Ann Richards of smoking marijuana in the 1970s, vigorously denied reports today in Dallas and Houston newspapers that he did the same.

Houston lawyer Jim Sharp and former Dallas police officer Edward H. Lowe signed affidavits that they saw Mattox smoke marijuana on separate occasions in the 1970s.

"I've never used any marijuana or dangerous drugs, period," Mattox said about the accusations, which Sharp and Lowe made in the Houston Chronicle and The Dallas Morning News.

The drug use issue was first presented by a questioner at a debate before the March 13 primary. Mattox and former Gov. Mark White denied ever using illegal drugs, but Ms. Richards, the state treasurer, called the question irrelevant and said answering it would discourage people from seeking treatment for alcoholism and drug abuse.

Ms. Richards, who suffers from alcoholism, later said she has not had an alcoholic drink or a mood-altering chemical since leaving an alcohol recovery program in 1980.

The issue has dominated the Democratic campaign, particularly since the primary vaulted Mattox and Ms. Richards into the April 10 runoff. Mattox has said a former drug user could not effectively lead the state's efforts to end illegal drug use.

Ms. Richards was not accused Mattox of drug use.

Mattox scheduled a news conference in Austin today and an appearance in Dallas. Ms. Richards planned stops in several northeast Texas cities.

Earlier this week, Mattox said he had affidavits signed by people who saw Ms. Richards use drugs in the 1970s. But he has refused to release the documents, citing the confidentiality of the people who made the allegations.

On Thursday, The Houston Post quoted a woman it didn't identify as saying she had seen Ms. Richards in a restroom with other women who appeared to be smoking marijuana at an Austin convention in 1979.

"When I walked in (Ms. Richards) put her hand behind her and held it. The girl on the end, who I did not know, had a roach or a joint that had been smoked down in her hand," the woman told The Post.

The Dallas Morning News, in today's edition, said the same woman confirmed her allegation in a polygraph examination paid for by the paper.

Sharp said Mattox and he shared a marijuana cigarette in 1974 while in a car after the Democratic state convention in Austin. "The seating arrangement was such that he and I were passing it between us," Sharp said.

"I've never been in a car where there has ever been any marijuana smoked," Mattox said. "By me or anybody else, period."

The following workshops will be presented: "In Tune With Teens" by Dr. Diana Rudolph, psychologist, Northwest Texas Hospital; "Critical Education Issues of the 90s" by Dr. Mike King, Canyon ISD, and Dixie Surratt, Texas PTA second vice president; and "Legislation We Can Live With", Roy Harris, District 8 legislative chairman.

The luncheon will feature Diane Pierce, Texas PTA regional vice president. She will be speaking on "The Kaleidoscope of Our Changing PTA", relating the many ways PTA is changing to meet the needs of a changing family structure in American society. It is also true, however, that PTA stays steadfast in its commitment to the welfare of children.

Anyone interested in PTA and attending the conference is cordially invited. More information can be obtained by calling the District President Betty Womble at 806-733-2118.

Coke party set Monday

The Miss Hereford Pageant committee members will be getting acquainted with potential entrants of the pageant at a coke party scheduled for Monday, April 9, at the Hereford State Bank at 7:30 p.m.

The pageant is open to girls ages 16-21. Potential entrants should bring their mother with them to the meeting. Information about the pageant and rules will be discussed.

The Senate Watergate Committee began its hearings in 1973.

Anger for what has happened to the family,
Shame that others will know,
Guilt that it is their fault,
Hopelessness of not knowing where to turn for help,
Frustration when nothing seems to work,

Sadness for the loss of innocence,
Hope that perhaps this is a nightmare,

Horror when they discover that he's been stealing to support his habit,

Loneliness when they think no one else feels these emotions,

Panic when the police come to their home looking for the child.

They ask themselves: When did he change? Where were we? What was missing in his life that made him turn to drugs? Why didn't we recognize the changes in him? Where were the teachers who saw him every day? Aren't they trained to recognize the symptoms? Why did we let him get so far away from us? Where were the parents of his friends? If they knew, why didn't they tell us? Where were his brothers and sisters? Why didn't they see? When we suspected, why didn't we talk about it?

We know now that the problem won't go away on its own. But we also know that after:

thousands of hours of therapy, thousands of hours of punishment, thousands of dollars spent,
thousands of miles driven, thousands of angry words and thousands of tears, none of it helped.

Why?
Could it have been we didn't say we loved him a thousand times or didn't hug him a thousand times?

We did and do love him. He knows that--doesn't he? -- Sherry Goeller

Granted, some parents are not as attentive or caring as they could be, but many do their darndest, and their kids still get into trouble. Don't they have enough pain without adding the burden of undeserved guilt? Please, have mercy.

Bike-a-thon set May 12

Deaf Smith County will be joining the country in participating in the Tenth Annual Spring Community Campaigns in support of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Cystic fibrosis, an inherited disorder of the respiratory and digestive systems, affects thousands of children and young adults throughout America. In Texas alone, there are over 500 known victims; CF patients rarely live past their 20s.

Hereford has planned a bike-a-thon May 12 in Veteran's Park. The Criminal District Attorney's Office staff will be organizing the event.

"In Texas we have dedicated volunteers, renowned scientists and 75 treatment centers," said Roland Saul. "What we don't have is enough money. This is why the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is appealing for support to expand research and care programs through this fund raising effort, the Hereford CF Bike-a-Thon."

"We know the people of Deaf Smith County will be at the event to show their support and to help these very special kids," said Roland.

Errors plague Herd in 18-8 loss to Randall

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces committed 10 errors in two innings Thursday to allow the Randall Raiders to score 15 unearned runs and take an 18-8 win at Whiteface Field.

The game, which was hit with a cold front that sent the temperature plunging 20 degrees as winds gusted at up to 35 miles an hour, was called after five innings by the 10-run rule.

The Herd held a 5-1 lead after three innings, but seven errors in the fourth opened the gate for the Raiders, who sent nine unearned runs across the plate off losing pitcher Jason Walterscheid.

Walterscheid, who retired the first six batters he faced in relief of starter Joe Anima, had been in position to take his first win before the Herd defense deteriorated as fast as the weather. The lanky righthander was charged with nine runs on one hit with three walks and five strikeouts in two-and-two-thirds innings.

Jon Tipps went the distance for the Raiders, who picked up their second consecutive win in District 1-4A play. Tipps gave up eight runs on five single, three of which were infield hits, while walking five and striking out 10 for his first win of the year.

Tipps helped himself at the plate with a three-for-four performance that included three RBI. Right fielder Chad Stewart also drove in three runs as seven Randall starters scored at least twice.

Randall took a 1-0 lead in its first at bat when designated hitter Paul Griffin led off the game with a single and advanced to third on Tipps' single. Chad Stewart drove the run in with a sacrifice fly to right that sent the Herd's Jim Andrews circling all over as he battled the wind.

The Herd threatened in their half of the inning, loading the bases on a walk to second baseman Cody Page, a single by catcher George Jowell and another walk to shortstop Max Mungia. But Tipps got Andrews looking on a full count for his third K of the inning.

Anima, who had worked out of trouble in the first, retired his first batter in the second before issuing three free passes on 13 pitches, prompting Coach T.R. Sartor to summon Walterscheid, who put out the fire with a strikeout and a ground ball to first. Anima finished with one run on a hit with three walks in an inning-and-a-third.

Hereford took the lead in the second when DH Jim Anima led off with a single and first baseman Brett Confer worked a full-count walk. A passed ball put runners at second and third and Anima scored on center fielder Matt Bromlow's ground out to second. Confer then crossed the plate on the first of four wild pitches by Tipps.

The Herd upped the margin to four runs in the third as Mungia reached on a single after Page and Jowell went down swinging to open the inning. Andrews followed with a base on balls and Mungia came in when Jim Anima reached on shortstop Robbie Burd's throwing error.

Andrews and Anima scored on consecutive pitches when Randall catcher Danny Barrett committed his second passed ball and Tipps uncorked another wild pitch.

About that time was when the weather, and the game, went to pieces for the Herd.

After a one-out walk to Burd, third baseman Tab Hathaway committed two errors on the same play when he booted Barrett's grounder and then threw the ball away to allow the runners an extra base. Mungia then misplayed a grounder from Griffin, scoring Burd, and courtesy runner Mark McMasters crossed on a double steal when Page dropped Jowell's off-target peg at second.

Tipps singled with two out, the only hit of the inning, to plate Griffin and Chad Stewart reached on Confer's error. Cory Musick walked to load the bases and Clint Stewart brought another run in with a grounder that Hathaway dropped for his third error of the inning.

Trey Burleson, who had led off the inning by striking out on three pitches, lifted a pop up towards second that was blown 40 feet back towards first. Page had the ball pop out of his glove for another error as two more runs came across. A walk and another error by Page let in two more to put Randall up 10-5 before Walterscheid could record his third strikeout to escape the inning.

The Herd got back into the game momentarily with three runs in the bottom of the fourth. Bromlow led off by beating out an infield single. Chad Brummett walked and the pair advanced on a wild pitch. Jowell then rolled a grounder to second, but Mark Elder's throw was off line and Jowell evaded the swipe tag of first baseman Clint Stewart as Bromlow crossed the plate.

Brummett scored on Mungia's ground out to short with brother Chris Brummett, running for Jowell, came in on Andrews' single.

The Herd had the tying runs in scoring position with Andrews at third and Jim Anima at second, but Confer flied out to right to end the rally.

Randall put the game away with seven runs in the fifth off Andy Kalka, who started the inning in place of the

Bundled up batter

Jim Andrews of the Hereford Whitefaces faces a blue norther and Randall Raider pitcher Jon Tipps during Thursday's 18-8 loss at Whiteface Field. The Herd will host league-leading Estacado at 2 p.m. Saturday as the first half of District 1-4A play comes to a close.

shell-shocked Walterscheid. Elder started with a double, the only extra-base hit of the game, and scored on Tipps' third single.

Kalka was victimized by errors and lucky bounces on three of the next four batters. Page threw Chad Stewart's double play ball past Mungia and Musick beat out a bunt down the third base line to load the bases. Burleson then bounced one by the mound on a checked swing that went for an infield hit and an RBI.

Burd walked to force in a run and Barrett lined a shot to left that Chad Brummett lost to the wind for an error.

Kalka walked another run across and was replaced by Sammy Casarez, who let in the three runners he inherited on a hit batter and a single before getting the final out.

The loss leaves the Herd tied with Randall for seventh in the district at 2-5. Hereford drops to 3-11 overall while the Raiders move to 3-8.

The Herd will take the field for the fourth time in a week Saturday when the district-leading Estacado Matadors visit Whiteface Field for a 2 p.m. game.

Herd golfers try second shot at 1-4A first round

The Hereford Whiteface golf team finally gets to play its first District 1-4A round today, weather permitting, after a two-week delay.

The Herd will open district competition at 1:30 p.m. today at Elm Grove Country Club in Lubbock in a round originally scheduled for March 24.

The linksters will turn right around Saturday with 1-4A's second round at Levelland Country Club.

Coach Stacey Bixler said playing the two rounds back-to-back will make it more difficult to make lineup changes for Saturday, but that some adjustments will probably be made.

"We'll just have to use Friday as our qualifying for Saturday," Bixler said. "If somebody on the B team shoots well Friday while somebody on the A team has trouble, we'll make some adjustments."

The Lady Whiteface golf team takes a break from district competition this week to play in the Amarillo Relays. The A team will play at Ross Rogers Golf Course while the B Team tees up at Amarillo Public GC.

The Herd linksters return to 1-4A play with the third round Thursday at Borger. The girls will play at Phillips Country Club while the boys hit at Huber GC.

The final round for both boys and girls will be played April 13 at Hereford's Pitman Municipal GC.

Unknown, naturally, holds first-round lead at Augusta

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) - Jack Nicklaus wasn't surprised. Neither was Larry Mize.

In fact, what happened on the first day of the 54th Masters has become rather common - longshots leading, legends lagging.

It isn't unusual to have so many Masters rookies setting the pace, three among the top four, including the leader, Mike Donald. It also isn't unusual for the legends to be back on top come Sunday.

Donald shot an 8-under-par 64 on Thursday, tying the record for a first-year player set by Lloyd Mangrum in 1940.

"To repeat that would be 16 under," Donald said. "I'm not really looking for another 64, but there isn't any reason I can't shoot another good score."

He had a 2-shot lead over another rookie, John Huston. First-timer Bill Britton, who had an eagle-2 on the 14th, occupied fourth place with a 68.

Peter Jacobsen was the greybeard at the top, shooting a 67 to start his seventh Masters.

It took Donald nine seasons on the PGA Tour to qualify for the Masters, winning the Anheuser Busch Classic last year.

"All I can say is, this is the round of my life," Donald said.

He put together six birdies during one seven-hole stretch, chipped in from 40 feet for a birdie on No. 9 and had 10 one-putts.

While the rookies frolicked in the bright sunshine and swirling winds of Augusta, some of the favorites really struggled.

Australian Greg Norman shot 78, saying he simply lost his concentration.

Lee Trevino, who in the past has said the course isn't suited to his game, matched Norman's total.

British Open champion Mark Calcavecchia, leader on the money list this season, and two-time Masters winner Seve Ballesteros of Spain were 10 shots off the pace at 74.

Norman, Ballesteros and Calcavecchia generally were considered the favorites this week.

Nicklaus and 1984 champion Ben Crenshaw each shot 72 and rookie Robert Gamez, the only two-time Tour winner this year, shot 73.

Tom Kite, who has finished in the top 10 here 10 times, had a 75.

There were four former champions lodged in a seven-way tie for fifth place at 70.

The group included 1985 champion Bernhard Langer of West Germany, Mize, 1976 winner Raymond Floyd and 1969 champion George Archer.

The list at 70 also included Curtis Strange, the 1988 and 1989 U.S. Open winner who blew a late lead in the 1985 Masters.

Defending champion Nick Faldo of England and 1989 PGA winner Payne Stewart were among eight players tied at 71.

"I didn't reward myself for all the good shots I hit," Faldo said, complaining of three-putting from six feet above the hole on No. 16.

The international field of 85 faced a second-round cut today to the low 44 scorers and ties, and any other players within 10 shots of the lead.

After Thursday's ideal weather, there was a 60 percent chance of thundershowers today.

Donald said he had difficulty sleeping the night before the first round and expected to have problems again.

LA, Pistons battle for best NBA mark

By The Associated Press

The last two seasons, the Los Angeles Lakers and Detroit Pistons battled for the NBA championship. Now they're battling for the league's best record.

The defending champion Lakers beat Sacramento 110-103 Thursday night to maintain a 1 1/2-game lead over the Pistons, who kept pace with a 104-99 win over Atlanta.

The Lakers and Pistons both appear headed for division titles, but they can't afford to coast because the team with the best overall record will have the homecourt advantage if they meet again in the NBA finals.

Magic Johnson and Orlando Woolridge each scored 21 points as the Lakers extended their Forum winning streak over the Kings to 41.

Mark Aguirre scored 25 points and Isiah Thomas hit four free throws in the final 31 seconds as the Pistons broke a four-game road losing streak.

"This was a game we desperately needed," Detroit coach Chuck Daly said. "I told our guys not to panic, and we were fortunate to get the win."

The Hawks outscored the Pistons 13-2 to take an 84-81 lead with 8:29 left, but Detroit came back and went ahead for good, 96-95, on two free throws by Dennis Rodman.

"Detroit is a great team," Atlanta coach Mike Fratello said. "We came back to get the lead and they never lost their composure. They hit some big shots, especially when we were trading off baskets for a while."

In other games, Chicago beat Orlando 111-104 and Seattle downed Utah 101-91.

Bulls 111, Magic 104
Michael Jordan scored 16 of his 38 points in the fourth quarter as the Bulls won their sixth straight.

The victory was Chicago's 12th in 14 games. Orlando has lost seven in a row and 23 of its last 25.

"It was difficult to get motivated for Orlando," Jordan said. "It was just one of those scrappy games. But we scraped some things together and got a win."

Orlando tied it at 95 on Jeff Turner's layup with 4:49 remaining, but the Bulls took the lead for good on Bill Cartwright's three-point play 10 seconds later.

Otis Smith led Orlando with 21 points. Sidney Green added 20 and Scott Skiles 19.

SuperSonics 101, Jazz 91
Reserves Dana Barros and Sedale Threatt combined for 36 points and led a late 10-0 run that broke the game open.

The Jazz cut a 13-point deficit to 82-81 on two free throws by John Stockton with 5:05 left, but the Sonics then put the game out of reach with their 10-0 surge. Threatt hit a jumper as the shot clock expired to give Seattle an 92-82 lead with 2:14 left.

Threatt finished with 19 points, while Barros added 17 for the Sonics. The Jazz, who lead the league in field-goal percentage at 51 percent, shot only 40 percent against Seattle.

"It's a gimmick-type defense, but Seattle plays it about as well as anybody," said Stockton, who had 23 points and 12 assists.

Stockton became the first player in NBA history to get more than 1,000 assists in three straight seasons.

Utah's Karl Malone had 26 points and 17 rebounds.

Today's pharmacist provides vital health information

While consumers are becoming better educated about health issues, most don't realize that one of the best sources for up-to-date information on drugs and health concerns can be found right in their own neighborhood—behind the pharmacy counter.

The pharmacist is an important link between the patient and the medical community. The drug store of yesteryear—with its resident pharmacist mixing specialized concoctions, and kids perched at the soda fountain counter—has virtually disappeared, but the responsibilities of today's pharmacist are more vital than ever.

The rapid development of new medications and the prevalence of over-the-counter (OTC) products require well-informed professionals who are able to monitor the dizzying array of new products and to communicate essential information to their customers.

"I keep detailed records on my computer to monitor what drugs my customers are taking," says Frank Daniel, Pharm. D. from Orange County, Calif. "With medical practices becoming more specialized, it's not uncommon for customers to bring a handful of prescriptions from different physicians—perhaps one from a gynecologist, another from a dermatologist, and a third from an internist. It's my job to ensure that these drugs interact safely when taken at the same time."

Thomas Gossell, Ph.D., a pharmacology professor at Ohio Northern University's College of Pharmacy, says that consumers should rely on their pharmacist for details about their prescribed medications, such as particular side effects.

"Often, the side effects are not what might typically be expected," explains Gossell. A common example of this is the sun sensitivity reaction induced by many categories of drugs, including diuretics, oral contraceptives and antibiotics like tetracycline. Ortho Pharmaceutical's Retin-A can also make the skin more susceptible to sun damage. Frequently the pharmacist can recommend ways to minimize potential side effects.

"When I dispense a drug that is known to induce sun sensitivity in patients, it's my responsibility to educate patients about the risk and to recommend that they use an effective sunscreen while on the medication," explains Daniel. Like other contemporary pharmacists, Daniel believes that his role in health education extends beyond specific medication information.

"I also take this kind of opportunity to emphasize the importance of sun protection and to help my customers differentiate between the many products available. I generally recommend a sunscreen called Photoplex. It's kept behind the pharmacist's counter so that pharmacists can educate consumers about this sunscreen's unique, therapeutic benefits," says Daniel.

"Most other products on the market primarily guard against UVB. People think that a high sun protection factor (SPF) offers all the protection they need, but actually SPF is mainly a measure of UVB protection. We are also exposed to dangers UVA rays," explains Daniel.

Researchers say that UVA rays are more abundant than UVB rays, they are present year-round, throughout the day, and penetrate deeper into the skin than UVB. In addition, UVA rays may contribute to the cancer-causing effects of UVB rays and can damage the deep layers of the skin to produce wrinkles, sagging, a leathery appearance and broken blood vessels. UVA rays also can induce many sun sensitivity reactions.

"A nice layer of zinc oxide provides ample broad-spectrum protection, but it's cosmetic/unacceptable to most people. Photoplex offers broad-spectrum UVB and UVA protection and is a non-greasy, cosmetically appealing alternative that is suitable for everyday use," says Daniel.

"In an increasingly complex medication market, 'Knowing the details about topics like sun protection and accurately disseminating information is more important than ever,'" remarks Gossell.

Detect breast cancer early with regular screenings

One in 10 women will develop breast cancer at some time, but early detection can improve the chance for cure. During Cancer Control Month (April), Texas Medical Association urges women to give themselves a breast self-examination every month, preferably after each menstrual cycle.

As a part of the cancer detection regime, look for changes such as a lump, thickening, swelling, dimpling or distortion. The nipple also should be carefully examined for discharge, scaliness or retraction.

If any of these changes are noticed, immediately schedule an examination with your physician. Most breast lumps are not cancer, but only a physician can make a diagnosis.

Beginning at age 40, women should get a mammogram, a breast X-ray using a low-level radiation, which can reveal cancers too small to be felt even by the most experienced examiner. After the initial baseline mammogram, women should continue them every one or two years based on their physicians' judgement. Breast cancer risk increases at age 50, making a yearly mammogram important for women 50 and older.

"Early detection of breast cancer means that the cure rate is over 90 percent," says TMA member Victor G. Vogel, M.D., M.H.S., assistant professor of medicine and epidemiology at The University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center.

Risk factors for breast cancer include a family history of breast cancer, reproductive factors such as first child born after age 30, no children, and obesity. Other factors implicated are high-fat diet, alcohol consumption, and use of hormones. If you have questions about these factors, consult your physician.

Mammography may need to begin earlier if you have some risk factors.

If cancer is diagnosed, the physician may conduct further tests to select the best treatment, whether it be mastectomy, surgical removal of the breast; radiation therapy; chemotherapy; or a combination of these. TMA urges patients to follow their doctors' advice and avoid any cancer treatments not scientifically proven.

If a mastectomy is done, breast reconstruction is possible as a result of new techniques, with satisfying cosmetic results. "The biggest incentive for having a regular mammogram performed is that early detection is the key to identifying a small breast cancer, in which most treatment regimes preserve the breast and do not necessarily result in a mastectomy," says Dr. Vogel.

The Texas Medical Association is a professional organization of more than 29,000 physician and medical student members.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 59-year-old male and have been on a program to minimize my chances of having a heart attack. I follow a good diet that is low in fat and try to avoid saturated fat and cholesterol. Also, I walk and run about three miles four times a week. My neighbor who is the same age doesn't like to exercise and he informs me that heart attacks are caused by blood clots and exercise may strengthen my heart, but it won't prevent blood clots from forming and causing an attack. He even said that if I run after a clot has been formed, I am likely to have a heart attack. What do you think about this?

DEAR READER: Part of this comments are true and others are wrong. It is quite true that heart attacks are usually caused by a clot forming in one of the coronary arteries. That is the final event that causes a heart attack in perhaps as many as 85 percent of attacks. That is why aspirin in small doses taken every other day may cut the risk of having a heart attack. The clot forms over the area where fatty-cholesterol deposits have previously formed.

But he is wrong about exercise not preventing clots. It can, and that may be one of the big factors in how exercise decreases a person's risk of a heart attack. Exercise stimulates your body to produce more of a substance called TPA (tissue plasminogen activator) that dissolves clots. As little as five minutes of vigorous exercise may increase your TPA level for 90 minutes.

At the last Scientific Sessions of the American Heart Association, doctors from the Seattle Veterans Administration Medical Center reported the results of a regular exercise program on the levels of TPA. A good regular exercise program increased the levels of TPA by nearly 30 percent. So your exercise program may be doing some of the same things accomplished by taking aspirin.

I have included this report in my review of some of the highlights of the last meeting of the American Heart Association, which I am sending you. Others who want this discussion can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/35-02, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Keep up your program and maybe you can convince your neighbor to gradually start a fitness program too. DEAR DR. LAMB: About 4 a.m. every day I wake up and my hands are sound asleep, just numb. It is only in the hands. I have to walk around two or three minutes before I can get any feeling back. Sometimes I go back to sleep and in an hour they are asleep again.

I am a 61-year-old man, exercise a lot and am in great shape. I walk and play golf three to four times a week, walk two to three miles every morning and lift weights two to three times a week. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER: Because the carpal tunnel syndrome has been popularized, most of my readers will think that is the problem — and it may be. That happens when there is compression of the nerves to the hand. But you can have compression of the arteries and nerves to the hand from any location beginning with the neck to the hand. It could be from the prominent muscle development you may have from lifting weights. It may be an extra rib — cervical rib. And the position of your hands may be a factor. Try to keep your hands down by your side and avoid sleeping with your hands up over your head without lying on your arm. Otherwise you may need an examination to pinpoint the location of compression.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am 30 years old and have had three children. I am not overweight. I have had two vein stripping operations in both legs. I also had injections and still have bulging veins in both legs. Is there anything I can do to get rid of these ugly things? I wear support hose all the time except in the summer months. I have purple scars all over my legs. What can I do that may help get rid of those scars? My vein strippings were both done after having children. Is there an exercise or vitamin of some type that will get rid of these bulging veins?

DEAR READER: No, there are no vitamins that will correct this condition. And exercises will not help either. The problem is a mechanical one caused by excessive dilatation of the superficial veins in the legs. As the veins dilate, the flap valves in the leg veins fail to meet. That allows blood to pool in the legs when you are standing which causes the veins to stretch even more.

The flap valves open as the blood flows up the veins to return to your heart. They flap together to close the veins to prevent blood from flowing back into the legs and feet.

Injections are one of the classical treatments for these external veins. The injected material inflames the vein walls and they scar together, actually obliterating the vein. For this to work, you need to have proper pressure over the veins after the injections. If things don't work right, the valves are damaged even more and the condition is worse. Often a combination of stripping, to surgically pull out the dilated veins, and injections for small communicating veins is helpful.

I can't be sure what degree of discoloration you have, but you may have old iron deposits from blood leaking out into the skin area, which might be difficult to do much about.

You do need to take measures to protect your veins as much as possible, which may mean wearing pressure stockings that provide much more support. Often ordinary support hose is not enough to provide sufficient external pressure to avoid dilating the veins.

I have discussed the question of pressure stockings and other measures in the prevention and treatment of varicose veins in Special Report 96, Help for Varicose Veins and Venous Insufficiency, which I'm sending you. Others who want this report can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/96, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.
