In House, Senate legislation

Moratorium, review of dump requested

WASHINGTON (AP) — A dozen senators and more than 40 members of the House are proposing a moratorium on the nation's multibillion-dollar nuclear waste disposal program to allow for reassessment of what one key committee chairman called an "enormous problem" that will not go away.

The virtually identical bills introduced Wednesday in the House and Senate call for the creation of an independent commission to reassess the five-year-old program over the next 18 months.

During that period, the Energy Department would be barred from any "site specific" activities aimed at building a permanent repository or a related interim facility for packaging and cooling spent fuel rods and other high-level nuclear wastes.

Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of the House Interior Committee and the pre-eminent nuclear-regulation policymaker in Congress, said the proposed moratorium and creation of a congressional appointed commission "comes as close to attracting a consensus as anything I have seen on this issue."

"Creating an advisory commission will not solve our waste problem, of course," he said. "At a minimum, we will still need to implement the commission's recommendation or find a solution of our own."

He added he is considering separate legislation calling for the appointment of "a special negotiator who would be charged with finding a state willing to host a repository on reasonable terms, provided the site meets all safety and environmental qualifications."

Udall told his colleagues that despite passage of legislation five years ago, "today ... after billions of dollars of the ratepayers money have been collected and hundreds of millions dollars spent, the program is in ruins and our goal of siting a repository seems further away than ever."

Udall said he was taking up the issue again with "great reluctance."

"But we cannot ignore this problem; it will not go away. If we close down all of the nuclear power plants in the country this afternoon and dismantle all of our nuclear weapons tomorrow, we would still have an enormous nuclear waste problem," he said.

Udall noted that "from Washington State to South Carolina there are close to 100 million gallons of highly radioactive and corrosive liquid wastes stored in metal tanks — some of which have sprung leaks over the last 40 years, contaminating groundwater supplies."

"Another 15,000 metric tons of waste is stored in the form of spent nuclear fuel in over 100 commercial power plants scattered across the country — some near major population centers," he said.

The 1982 law called for a share-the-burden compromise under which one permanent repository would be built in the West and another in the East, where most of the nation's nuclear reactors are located.

But after tabbing Hanford, Wash., Yucca Mountain, Nev., and Deaf

Smith County, Texas, as candidate sites for the first repository, the Energy Department proposed the indefinite postponement of the second, on ground that an Eastern repository may not prove necessary.

Meanwhile, it wants to proceed first with construction, by 1998, of an interim facility — called an MRS, for monitored retrievable storage — at the site of the canceled Clinch River breeder reactor, at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Officials in Washington State, Nevada, Texas and Tennessee have charged that the DOE breached the compromise by pressing for the Western repository and the MRS, but not the Eastern repository. Moreover, they have testified that DOE officials rode roughshod over state and local objections to the sites picked so far, a charge denied by Energy Secretary John S. Herrington.

"The fact is, DOE blew it," said Udall. "At the first sign of public opposition they cast aside the entire second repository program to help a few office seekers. They have handled the screening effort so badly that the public and many of us in Congress have lost all faith in the integrity of the process."

An Energy Department spokesperson, Janie Shaheen, said the department had not yet reviewed the moratorium legislation, but "We continue to believe the 1982 act and our proposed ... amendments continue to be the best basis for solving the nuclear waste problem. We will, of course, continue to cooperate with Congress."

Bull Chip Award

James Witherspoon, right, received a Bull Chip award from Speedy Nieman during this morning's Fun Breakfast. A packed house cheered Witherspoon as he stood to accept the award given for community involvement.

At Fun Breakfast

Witherspoon honored with Bull Chip

A packed house this morning gave a standing ovation for Hereford's Chamber Singers who announced their invitation to participate in the 1988 World Expo. The announcement was made by Mayor Wes Fisher during the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce's Fun Breakfast sponsored by First National Bank of Hereford.

Other highlights of the breakfast included presentation of a Bull Chip Award to James Witherspoon, music and a patriotic history lesson presented by the Chamber Singers and FNB employees, community announcements, a patriotic dress contest, games and presentation of prizes.

Judy Cloud and her 8-year-old son Stephen won $100 in Deaf Smith County Bucks for dressing patriotically. Jack Rogers won a drawing for $50 and Etolite Manning won $25 from the Chamber.

Barbara Finley won $50 worth of pennies from FNB. Bub Sparks, Martha Jones, Debe Graves and Larry Malamen each won packages of fireworks.

Sleeping in cost Roger Albracht and Bill Johnson as they each missed out on $150 prizes because they were not present for the early morning fun.

Bartley Dowell announced the annual King's Manor Barbeque will be held Saturday, July 11, from 5:30 to 9 p.m. Dowell said tickets are now on sale and the funds will be used to supplement care of residents at King's Manor and at Westgate Nursing Home. Cost is $10 a ticket or $25 for a family of four or more.

Susan Barrett reminded the community of the upcoming All Girl's Rodeo, set for July 31 and August 1 and 2 at the Circle A Arena. Extra attractions during the rodeo include a barbeque sponsored by the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and a Saturday night dance by the Clyde Legg Band.

Key Club member Shawn Moore announced that $10,000 has been raised from the sale of a book entitled "Casey Wayne." The book was written by Dorman Smith and tells of his son who died in the early winter of 1986. Proceeds from the book, which sells for $10, go to the Casey Smith Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Representing the YMCA, Jerry Brock spoke briefly about upcoming softball leagues, tennis lessons, a walking club and a trivia game the YMCA will be marketing locally. The game "Trifles" will include questions on local topics as well as those standard to trivia games.

Margaret Perez won a foot stompin' game in which contestants drafted from the audience tied balloons on their feet and then tried to pop each other's bubbles while protecting their own. She took home a fireworks assortment as a trophy for her skill in protecting her feet.

Following a period of antics from regular emcees John Stagner and Charlie Bell, Fisher named Ruth Newsom to head up a committee to direct Hereford's participation in celebrating the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution. Newsom and her committee will be making plans centered around the Sept. 17 celebration.

Fisher stated that the Hereford Chamber Singers have been accepted as one of only a few North American groups selected to perform at the 1988 World Expo in Brisbane, Australia. Brisbane is located in the sub-tropical state of Queensland and will host the Expo. Over 30 nations and 20 international corporations will represent their countries with pavilions at the event. In addition, the best in high school, university, amateur groups and show troupes from throughout the world have been selected to perform during the six month long event.

Hereford Brand publisher Speedy Nieman made the presentation of a Bull Chip Award to Witherspoon who was cited for his leadership, his work in many civic projects and as a booster and builder in the community. A farmboy who grew up in Bellview, N.M., west of Hereford, he earned his law degree at the University of Oklahoma and came to Hereford to start a law practice in 1929. He served as city attorney, district attorney and district judge before resigning from the bench in 1945 to concentrate on his private practice.

In making the presentation, Nieman—former C of C president—noted that Witherspoon had "too many professional honors to list" but that the Bull Chip was for community endeavors. Witherspoon has been active in the organization of a number of local businesses, including the original Hereford Feed Yards and Holly Sugar. He has been a stockholder and director of FNB since 1934.

A booster for Hereford and Deaf Smith County through the years, Witherspoon has been active in the chamber of commerce and has given time, leadership and money to many community projects. "Many local and area clubs and associations have enjoyed the fruits of his membership," said Nieman.

Upcoming chamber events discussed at the breakfast include a Women's Division picnic scheduled Tuesday, July 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Ruth Newsom.

Merchant's Association member Carol Gerk announced a city wide campaign in which mystery shoppers will be visiting local stores, service stations and businesses looking for courteous employees who go the extra mile. Gerk said the mystery shoppers will be on the lookout for good employees during the months of July and August.

Mike Carr, executive director of the C of C, said plans are underway for the annual Town and Country Jubilee scheduled for August 9-15. Carr also welcomed 18 new C of C members who have joined since the last breakfast six weeks ago, and reported eight ribbon cuttings and three ground breakings for new businesses since that time.

Lewis says House will avoid cuts and go for spending bill

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House will avoid major budget cuts and will vote for a $5.7 billion tax package to pay for the spending plan, Speaker Gib Lewis predicts.

The speaker wants the budget debate, which began Tuesday, to end today. Lewis plans to call for the tax vote immediately after the budget vote.

"I think we have a good number of votes to pass it," Lewis said of the plan to raise the sales tax from the current 54 percent to 5 percent and expand it to cover insurance premiums.

The plan also would make the 15 cents per gallon fuels tax permanent, instead of allowing it to revert to 10 cents Sept. 1.

Lewis said the biggest uncertainty is whether the taxes could get the 100 votes needed to put them into immediate effect. A simple majority vote would put them into effect 90 days after passage.

Lewis said he was pleased that Wednesday's efforts by GOP House members to make significant cuts in public education were defeated by large margins. There also were no major cuts in higher education, but debate on that area continued today.

The speaker predicted the full House would approve a spending bill within $20 million of the $38.4 billion plan proposed by the appropriations committee.

"I think the message that the members are giving is that we have a commitment to public education," Lewis said.

The other emerging message was that Lewis was confident he had the votes for the tax plan, which would defy Gov. Bill Clements' veto vow.

Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby meet Wednesday with Clements. Lewis said Clements asked about the tax plan approved by the House Ways and Means Committee, but expressed no opinion.

Hobby said it is a "foregone conclusion a substantial tax bill will become law."

The education spending debate in the House included two efforts to cut funds for early childhood programs. Rep. Sam Johnson, R-Plano, wanted to save $65 million by funding only half-day kindergarten programs. About 600 of the state's 1,100 school districts offer full-day kindergarten.

State funding for full-day kindergarten was approved in 1984, although lawmakers now say they did not realize it was in the bill.

Johnson said full-day programs place "psychological stress on children."

"Sending children to kindergarten before they are ready can harm them," he said. "Children derive psychological and social uplift from being with their parents."

Rep. Talmadge Heflin, R-Houston, called full-day kindergarten "a very costly baby-sitting program in some cases."

June permits near $200,000

Nineteen building permits for June totaled $1,906,741, according to records at Hereford City Hall.

Top dollar projects started during last month began with the addition at La Plata Junior High set at $1,512,987. Dr. Stan Fry's dental offices on West Park was the second largest permit at $150,000. Others were a new residence at 714 Columbia, $98,000; Mariscal's Paint Shop, $40,504; and Webster's Carpet, $40,000.

June's activities bring the year-to-date total to $2,695,236, and in those six months the city issued 79 permits. In 1986, the comparable year-to-date total was $829,550 for 87 permits.

Sheriff's report

Two civil disputes were investigated by Deaf Smith County Sheriff's deputies on Wednesday.

The deputies also arrested a person for public intoxication by inhalant.

Slow day for crime

Local police officers report only six offenses investigated on Wednesday, the lowest number of calls in several weeks. The offenses included injury to a child, disorderly conduct, criminal trespassing, a family disturbance, a suspicious person spotted on the 700 block of Columbia and a burglary on the 300 block of Ave. B.

Six citations were issued and one minor accident was reported.

North's 25-minute interview lays groundwork for new Contra phase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators are building on a scant 25-minute sworn interview with fired White House aide Oliver L. North to lay the groundwork for a new and crucial phase of the Iran-Contra probe.

Their efforts are bolstered by the evidence of scores of previous witnesses and by leads that may be hidden in the thousands of pages of subpoenaed documents and notes surrendered by North on Tuesday.

But North's nationally televised testimony, scheduled to begin next Tuesday in the Senate Caucus Room, could lead to surprises. That is the case because North and his lawyers succeeded in their bid to prevent extensive questioning in the private session, the first time North has broken his seven-month silence about the case.

Screening questions are a device committee lawyers use in advance of public testimony to determine the extent of the information a witness can provide and to shape the strategy for questioning him publicly.

So far, North has avoided extensive screening.

Wearing his olive-green Marine Corps uniform and six rows of decorations, North was almost jaunty Wednesday as he appeared for his scheduled interview.

He gave a thumbs-up sign to one bystander in the heavily guarded basement corridor of the Rayburn House Office Building. He shook the hand of another.

"What do you plan to tell them?" a reporter asked as North approached the small, green-carpeted room.

"The truth," North replied. "Is there anything you'd like to say to us?"

"Have a nice day," he said with a wink and a smile.

On his way out, he tossed a salute at waiting photographers. He said nothing.

North was in the room for about an hour and forty minutes. But committee aides said much of that was consumed by preliminaries, a break for a Senate vote, and the formal granting of limited immunity from prosecution.

He was questioned under oath for just 25 minutes, they said.

The immunity grant compels North's testimony, ending his persistent refusal over the last seven months to answer all Iran-Contra questions by invoking his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination. He can still be prosecuted on evidence obtained independently of his congressional testimony.

North's questioning was limited to a single subject: What does he know of the extent of President Reagan's involvement in or knowledge of the diversion of the proceeds of secret arms sales?

None of his answers were disclosed.

Reagan has said repeatedly he knew nothing of any diversion until shortly before it was disclosed by Attorney General Edwin Meese III on Nov. 25, the same day North was fired.

In another development, intelligence sources said Wednesday that the late CIA Director William Casey awarded one of the spy agency's largest pay bonuses to Alan Fiers, a covert agent said to have helped direct assistance to the Contras while U.S. military aid was banned by Congress.

A source said Fiers' bonus, given under an incentive program for meritorious service, totaled about $20,000. That would amount to a one-time pay raise of about 30 percent.

A congressional study released Wednesday said the average bonus for a senior government executive outside the CIA would have been $6,453.

Jobless rate fell in June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment fell to 6.1 percent last month, the lowest rate of the decade, as fewer teen-agers than expected sought summer jobs, the government said today.

Total employment actually fell by 198,000 last month, the Labor Department said, but the losses were more than offset by a seasonally adjusted decline of nearly 500,000 in the labor force.

The drop in the labor force — all those at work or actively seeking a job — was expected following a May gain of 612,000, which the department had said was "probably somewhat exaggerated."

The number of people listed as officially unemployed also fell last month, down 286,000 to 7,260,000, the lowest since March 1980.

And the department said the number of "discouraged workers," those who have given up the search for work in the belief a job cannot be found, dropped 130,000 to 1,000,000 in the period of April through June. That is the lowest that number has been since the onset of the 1981-82 recession.

The number of discouraged workers had reached a high of 1.8 million at the end of 1982.

Over the last 12 months, the overall unemployment rate has dropped a full percentage point, from 7.1 percent to 6.1 percent.

Several economists had predicted a slight gain in the unemployment rate last month following a 6.3 percent jobless rate in April and May. Further drops are predicted later in the year.

The department attributed virtually all of June's 0.2 percent percentage point drop to the relatively low number of teen-agers entering the job market at the end of the school year.

Teen-agers accounted for more than two-thirds of the 484,000 drop in the labor force, and their jobless rate fell almost 2 percentage points to 15.9 percent from 17.7 percent.

Unemployment among black teen-agers dropped a huge 5.7 percentage points, to 33.3 percent.

Combust to hold district meetings

Rep. Larry Combust will be in Brownfield and Lubbock on Friday as a part of a swing through the district this holiday weekend.

At 9 a.m. Friday he will meet with Brownfield citizens at 201 East Hill, the Farm Bureau Building. At 11:15 a.m. he will be at John Knox Village, 1717 Norfolk.

Saturday, July 4, he will be at the Idalou Parade, at 9 a.m.; at Seminole at 4:30 p.m. and in Denver City at 9:30 p.m. in Mustang Stadium.

Severe storms possible tonight

By The Associated Press

Severe thunderstorms were possible through tonight across a vast area of Texas as ample moisture mixed with upper level disturbances, the National Weather Service said.

The thunderstorms were possible in North Texas, Southeast Texas and most of West Texas except extreme West Texas, forecasters said.

Severe thunderstorms, including one that spawned a tornado near Amarillo, were reported in the Panhandle during the night and early today.

At least three tractor-trailer trucks and numerous cars were overturned Wednesday night when a tornado struck a small area east of Amarillo on Interstate 40, officials said.

No serious injuries were reported, but the driver of one truck, whose name was not available, was taken to Northwest Texas Hospital at Amarillo by private vehicle, authorities said. The man was not believed to be seriously injured.

Carson County Sheriff Connie Reed said motorists along Interstate 40 about 22 miles east of Amarillo reported a tornado tore along the highway about 9:30 p.m.

In addition to the vehicles blown off the roadway and overturned, a water tank was torn from its moorings, carried across I-40 and into and over the Conway Restaurant, Reed said.

The restaurant was full of patrons at the time, but the tank and tornadoic winds did not cause any injuries, the sheriff said.

Residents of the Panhandle town of Claude were without electricity for about two hours after winds downed some power lines Wednesday night.

Baseball-size hail was reported in some area of the Panhandle late Wednesday.

A severe thunderstorm watch was issued early today for 19 counties of North Central Texas. Only a few minutes after the watch was issued, the NWS reported that a severe thunderstorm was moving eastward across north central portions of Cooke County.

The severe thunderstorm watch area is along and 70 statute miles east and west of a line from 45 miles north northwest of Enid, Okla., to 15 miles southeast of Fort Worth, including Wichita Falls and the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolplex.

Forecasts called for a chance of thunderstorms through tonight across North Texas, Southeast Texas and most of West Texas except extreme West Texas. Otherwise, it was to be mostly cloudy over North Texas and West Texas and mostly sunny elsewhere through tonight.

Lows tonight will be mostly in the 80s, ranging from the upper 50s in the mountains of Southwest Texas to the lower 80s along the coast and in extreme South Texas.

Highs Friday will be mostly in the 90s with readings in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and Southwest Texas expected to approach or go slightly above the 100-degree mark.

Foot Stompin' Good Time

The owners of these feet had a good time trying to stomp out each other's balloons during this morning's Fun Breakfast, but their feet will pay them back for the abuse. Participants were drafted out of the audience to play the game, one of many crazy activities residents have learned to expect from Fun Breakfast emcees John Stagner and Charlie Bell.

In Texas Attorney General suing teacher retirement system

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas attorney general's office has sued the $17 billion state Teacher Retirement System, alleging that control over some $34 million in assets was wrongfully transferred to a non-profit corporation.

TRS officials responded that the transfer, involving a foreclosed-on Houston office building to a system-controlled unit, was a legal and prudent action that protects the fund.

"We believe this was the safest and most prudent course to take on behalf of the retirement fund, and that it was perfectly legal and appropriate under Texas law," said Edward H. Wicker, chairman of the system's board of trustees. "We would be delighted for the district court to review this arrangement."

Attorney General Jim Mattox said Wednesday he was seeking an injunction, dissolution of the non-profit corporation, restitution to the retirement system and damages.

The TRS is one of the nation's largest investment pools. Mattox said he was concerned that "tens of millions in TRS assets may have been squandered."

The TRS fund, whose investment earnings pay pensions for public school teachers, financed a $34 million mortgage on a Houston building called One Eldridge Place in 1985.

In late 1986, the fund foreclosed on the property after the primary tenant filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws.

The retirement system set up the non-profit corporation to hold the building in trust. Bruce Hineman, TRS executive secretary, said the trust insulates the fund from lawsuits that might arise because of accidents, fire, or other liabilities with the building.

Hineman said creation of such a corporation is an action investors such as banks and insurance companies frequently take to handle such properties.

"The reason it was established in the first place was to insulate the $17 billion in assets that belong to the teachers. The board (of trustees) was acting prudently to protect the interests of the teachers," Hineman said.

"It's still a viable asset, and we still own the building, which we will sell when the economy turns around," he said.

Mattox alleged that the non-profit corporation, called TRST No. 1, was "unlawfully organized and a sham."

Mattox also charged that private investment firms were hired to acquire and manage TRS investments, and that the firms "were paid an exorbitant fee of nearly $10 million from public trust funds to manage TRS assets."

He alleged that retirement system officials "stonewalled" when asked by his office about the arrangement.

Hineman and Wicker said the system tried to respond to questions raised by the attorney general's office but wasn't allowed to do so.

"We would like to know why he would not sit down with us and air the concerns in a business-like fashion," Hineman said.

Wicker said he is afraid that "those groundless accusations" from Mattox will jeopardize other real estate investments by the system.

Hineman also disputed the fee figure, and said using outside investment firms was a better way to conduct business on a national scale. He said it would be difficult to hire staff experts at state salaries we could do the work.

"If we're going to be in real estate, the board does not feel that we can establish the large internal staff and pay the salaries that are necessary to get national exposure on projects," he said.

Ann Landers

Alcohol can be deadly

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an 18-year-old honor student, going through college on a scholarship, majoring in psychology with the intention of becoming a teacher for the handicapped. Most people would say I have my act together.

Despite all the intelligence I am supposed to possess, I almost died two weeks ago, the result of an act of stupidity. I overdosed on alcohol.

I was showing off, bragging about how well I could hold my liquor, when an older guy challenged me to a game of chug-a-lug with vodka (usually it's beer). We went up against each other, drink for drink, and since a lot of my pals were rooting for me, I felt I had to win.

The last thing I remember is blacking out. I don't recall leaving the room or walking down the stairs or going outside or collapsing on the sidewalk. All I know is that I woke up in a strange room with tubes sticking out all over me and I was having a terrible time breathing. Four strangers were standing by the bed trying to tie my hands down to keep me from ripping out the tubes.

One of the four strangers told me she was a nurse and I had been in a coma in the intensive-care unit of a hospital for two days. I then recognized my parents. They live eight hours by car from the college and had driven all night when the hospital authorities called to say I had been carried in and was in critical condition. (The shame of putting them through so much hell is something I will have to live with for the rest of my life.)

Thank God, I am young and strong and a fighter. To be considered legally drunk, the blood alcohol content must register .10. The lethal measure is .40. My reading was .54. The doctors said it is nothing short of a miracle that I am alive.

I never thought this could happen to me, and I'll bet thousands of college kids who are reading this are telling themselves the same thing. Take my word for it, it can happen to anybody who drinks one after the other, loses count and goes crazy.

The doctors said the alcohol entered my body so fast that I didn't feel or act drunk until I left that room.

I'm still not totally OK. The nerves in my eyes were damaged, but we don't know how severely yet. My memory and coordination aren't 100 percent and may never be. We have to wait and see. Please print as much of my letter as possible as a warning to their kids who might want to show off. It's a big price to pay for being—The Center of Attention in Benedict Hall (Brockport, N.Y.)

DEAR CENTER: Thanks for the case history. I printed nearly every word of your letter because I believe it could save some lives. Thanks for sharing. I'm happy you lived to tell your story.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm one of those old gaffers you write about who is unable to "rise to the occasion."

I can't speak for others, but I do know that my wife's recidiving has been a major factor in my bedroom failures. I'm not exactly an Adonis, but it might be a good idea if she took a good look at herself with no clothes on in a full-length mirror before she crawled into bed. No name or initials, please just—Not Hacking It in Wisconsin.

DEAR NOT HACKING: Show her this column and say, "Ann Landers printed my letter today."

Enlist her help to make life better for both of you. If she's willing to cooperate, she'll win, too. Good luck.

How to — and how much? Find out with Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy send 50 cents plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0662.

Prolonged overexposure to the sun's rays may lead to skin cancer, and like all other cancers it's important to detect it early. This can be done with a simple self-examination.

"Self-examination for skin cancer is painless, cheap, and gets less time consuming the more often it is done," Dr. Mary Ann Heussner, a health education specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service says. "It's an easy way to catch the disease in its early stages, when it is easier to cure."

According to the American Cancer Society, over 400,000 cases of skin cancer are reported each year. An estimated 7,400 of these cases prove to be fatal. They also reported a 3.4 percent increase per year in the incidence of melanoma, which is the most serious of the skin cancers.

"There are a few different warning signs to look for," the specialist says. "Look for changes in the size or color of moles, and the appearance of any new skin growths or patches of dark pigmentation."

"Though skin cancer is more likely to occur in areas that are most often exposed to the sun, all of the body must be examined," she advises.

Self-examination requires only a full length mirror, a hand-held hair dryer, and a hand-held mirror, in a well-lit room.

Check exposed areas of skin like the hands, legs, forearms and face. Next examine the back and buttocks with mirrors. Examine the scalp with the help of a blow dryer to blow hair out of the way. Don't forget to examine the groin area and the tops and bottoms of the feet.

"If you find anything unusual as a result of your self-examination, check with your physician," emphasizes the specialist.

According to Heussner, skin cancer can be treated in a variety of ways, depending upon the type of cancer. Treatments range from surgery to radiotherapy to tissue destruction by freezing or heating.

She adds, "The survival rate for skin cancer is very high and chances increase with early detection and treatment."

July 4th celebrants urged to be cautious

"We expect a large number of people to lose their lives on Texas highways this 4th of July holiday. The main reasons for highway deaths are excessive speed, alcohol misuse and not wearing your seat belt," according to Major V.J. Cawthon, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety, Lubbock.

As in years past, the DPS will conduct "Operation Motorcade," whereby many uniformed DPS Troopers will be placed on Texas highways, to enhance the enforcement of traffic laws and help the motorist arrive at their appointed destination safely.

This large number of state troopers on duty will help keep the motoring public aware of the dangers that exist while traveling during the 4th of July holidays.

When the occupants of a motor vehicle are wearing their seat belts, the chance of being seriously injured or killed in a traffic accident are greatly reduced. The DPS would especially like to see all passengers and drivers belted in their vehicles at all times.

This safe practice should go hand in hand with voluntary compliance of the speed limits. Unsafe speed is one of the most prominent factors in death on the highway.

"It is important that the Texas motorist be reminded to drive in a prudent manner at all times, more especially when the roads are crowded during holiday periods. We in the Texas Department of Public Safety want each citizen to enjoy the freedom of our National Heritage this 4th of July and live to enjoy many more celebrations by remembering to 'Drive Friendly, the Texas Way', Major Cawthon said.

In summation, keep in mind to slow down a little and live a lot, keep 12 hours between the bottle and the throttle and buckle up at all times. That's the safe way to celebrate the 4th of July, 1987.

NL castoff Reuss wins 3rd with Angels

Rangers beat Mariners

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

If there's life after the National League, Jerry Reuss certainly has found it.

"He (Reuss) used to be a power pitcher," Cleveland Manager Pat Corrales said after a 10-5 loss to Reuss and the California Angels Wednesday night. "Now he's tricking people. That's what happens when you get older."

With the victory, the 38-year-old left-hander who had spent all of his career in the NL kept his record perfect in the American League. He is 3-0 since signing with the Angels on June 19.

"Here, I'm getting a lot of runs and a lot of breaks," said Reuss, who was 0-5 in the National League this year before the Cincinnati Reds released him on June 13.

Elsewhere in the AL Wednesday, it was Milwaukee 13, Detroit 2; Boston 6, Baltimore 2; Chicago 5, Oakland 3; Texas 7, Seattle 3; Kansas City 4, Minnesota 3, and New York Yankees 6, Toronto 1.

Reuss allowed four runs, three of them earned, on seven hits in five innings, walking none and striking out four. DeWayne Buice pitched four scoreless innings for his seventh save.

Devon White singled twice, doubled and homered, scoring four times and driving in three runs for the Angels.

Brewers 13, Tigers 2

Greg Brock, B.J. Surhoff and Mike Felder drove in three runs each and Milwaukee scored eight times in the third inning. Brock had four of the Brewers' 18 hits, including a two-run single that sparked the third-inning rally that also included two-run triples by Surhoff and Felder.

Milwaukee's Bill Wegman, 7-7, pitched an eight-hitter and struck out seven in his third complete game of the season.

Red Sox 6, Orioles 2

Roger Clemens pitched a six-hitter and rookie Todd Benzing hit his first major league home run as Boston finished a sweep of the three-game series.

Clemens, 7-6, allowed only one baserunner, Lee Lacy on a one-out walk in the fourth, before Terry Kennedy broke up the no-hit bid with a two-out single in the fifth. Clemens was one out away from a shutout when he gave up a two-run single to Kennedy in the ninth.

White Sox 5, Athletics 3

Greg Walker's two-run homer in the 10th inning lifted Chicago over Oakland for a sweep of their three-game series.

Harold Baines singled with one out in the 10th and, one out later, Walker hit his 16th home run off reliever Dennis Eckersley.

Jim Winn, 3-4, who had rescued Bob James in a bases-loaded situation in the top of the 10th, was the winner. Jay Howell, 2-2, was the loser.

Rangers 7, Mariners 3

Pete O'Brien and Oddibe McDowell hit home runs for Texas.

Charlie Hough, 9-3, allowed two runs on six hits, walked one and struck out five before leaving with no outs in the seventh in favor of Mitch Williams. Jeff Russell later finished up.

Royals 4, Twins 3

Pinch-hitter Jim Eisenreich doubled to score Buddy Biancalana from first base with one out in the ninth and boost Kansas City over Minnesota. Biancalana was pinch running for Steve Balboni, who had reached on third baseman Gary Gaetti's throwing error.

Yankees 6, Blue Jays 1

Wayne Tolleson's RBI single triggered a five-run rally in the 12th inning as New York beat Toronto to complete a three-game sweep. The victory gave the Yankees a three-game lead over the Blue Jays in the AL East.

Claudell Washington opened the 12th with a single off Toronto reliever Jeff Musselman, 6-2. Mark Salas then laid down a sacrifice bunt, but Washington beat the throw to second by catcher Charlie Moore. Washington moved to third on a sacrifice bunt by Paul Zuvella and scored on Tolleson's single.

Phillies win fifth straight; Reds knock off Astros

By The Associated Press

While Samuel isn't where he wants to be, the Philadelphia Phillies are moving closer to where they think should be.

Samuel hit two homers to drive in four runs Wednesday night and Philadelphia beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 11-4, the Phillies' fifth straight victory.

Since Lee Elia took over as manager of the Phillies two weeks ago, Samuel has been batting leadoff.

"I don't like it much," the second baseman said of his new spot in the batting order. "I'm really more comfortable hitting third."

After hitting two-run homers in the sixth and eighth innings, Samuel has 14 homers and leads the club with 49 runs batted in — one more than Mike Schmidt.

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta beat San Francisco 8-3; Chicago edged Montreal 1-0; Cincinnati defeated Houston 6-4; the New York Mets outlasted St. Louis 9-6; and San Diego blanked Los Angeles 4-0.

The Phillies swept the four-game series with the Pirates at Veterans Stadium and it was their first four-game sweep since 1982 against San Francisco — the first over Pittsburgh since 1977.

After John Felske was fired, Samuel said Elia called him in and said he would lead off.

"Lee felt I could be more aggressive on the bases and help get the team going," Samuel said.

Reds 6, Astros 4

Ron Oester's two-run single capped a four-run sixth inning that carried the Cincinnati to a come-from-behind victory over Houston. The game was prolonged by rain delays of 28 minutes in the fifth inning and two hours, 21 minutes in the seventh.

The victory gave the Reds a sweep of their two-game series and a 2½-game lead over the Astros in the NL West. Houston has lost three straight and is 3-9 against Cincinnati this season, including 1-5 at Riverfront Stadium.

Mets 9, Cardinals 6

Gary Carter hit two homers in a game for the 26th time in his career, rallying New York past St. Louis in the rain.

Carter's leadoff homer and pinch-hitter Len Dykstra's two-run single put the Mets ahead 6-5 in the sixth inning. Carter hit a two-run homer, his 11th of the season, in the seventh.

The start of the game was delayed 75 minutes by rain and a steady shower fell for the first five innings. St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog was ejected by umpire crew chief Doug Harvey for arguing about the field condition at Shea Stadium in the fourth.

Cubs 1, Expos 0

Jerry Mumphrey homered with one out in the ninth inning off Bob Sebra and Greg Maddux pitched a four-hitter as Chicago beat Montreal at Olympic Stadium.

"I give a lot of credit for that to (catcher) Jody (Davis)" Maddux said. "He called a great game."

Mumphrey hit a 3-1 pitch over the right-field fence for his sixth homer of the season. The hit was only the third allowed by Sebra, who struck out a career-high 14 batters. Maddux, 5-7, struck out two and walked one en route to his first career shutout.

Braves 8, Giants 3

Andres Thomas' single drove in two of Atlanta's five runs in the fourth inning and the Braves took advantage of sloppy defense by host San Francisco.

Rick Mahler, 5-8, allowed nine hits but gave up only one walk. Mahler's last victory on June 17 also was against the Giants, at Atlanta.

"I like to pitch here," Mahler said. "It's always cool. The infield is real slow and the wind keeps the ball in."

Padres 4, Dodgers 0

Eric Show pitched a four-hitter to shut out Los Angeles for the second time this season and Kevin Mitchell homered twice for visiting San Diego.

Show, who had lost eight of his 10 decisions since the end of April, struck out two and walked just one.

Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda thought Show looked pretty impressive in both the shutouts, saying, "He looks like Walter Johnson against us."

Mitchell gave the Padres a 2-0 lead when he hit a solo homer off the Dodgers' Rick Honeycutt with two outs in the fourth inning.

Honeycutt, at 2-8, has lost his last seven decisions.

Sartor leads scramble team for local win

A team composed of T.R. Sartor, Sammy Davison, Odell Russ and Gerry Hollinger captured the Wednesday Evening Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course Wednesday with a low ball score of 29.

The nine-hole "Florida" scramble is held each Wednesday during the summer months with the golf pro assigning members in A, B, C, and D handicaps to the teams. Four teams posted a 31 score yesterday. When there is a tie, the prizes carry over to the next week.

Each team member Wednesday received $90 in golf merchandise prizes. The scramble had ended in a tie the week before. Interested players should sign up at the golf shop with pro Mike Horton. The field usually fills up fast, but a number of stand-by players are used as some players do not show.

Local ladies' duo wins in Vega

Pat Goforth and Teresa Albracht were first-place winners in the championship flight of the Oldham Country Club Scramble over the weekend. Martha Jones and Randy Hamilton tied for first place in the second flight.

The Hereford Women's Golf Association playdays continue at Pitman Municipal Golf Course on Tuesdays at 6 p.m. and Thursdays at 10 a.m. All ladies are invited to participate. The association's regular monthly meeting will be held July 21 at 8 p.m. in Hereford Country Club.

Lendl, Connors reach Wimbledon semis; Navratilova, Evert clash

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Ivan Lendl is getting closer to the two things in tennis he craves so much: respect and a Wimbledon championship.

Among those trying to keep him from the latter is Jimmy Connors, almost 35, who has attained both of Lendl's goals and is still going for more.

Lendl, the hungry Czechoslovak, and Connors, the American street-fighter, both advanced to the semifinals of the world's most prestigious grass-court tournament Wednesday.

Lendl, serving and volleying like a seasoned grass-courter, overpowered Henri Leconte of France, 7-6, 6-3, 7-6.

But most of the spotlight was on Connors, without a tournament title for almost three years, who withstood 25 aces from Slobodan Zivojinovic of Yugoslavia before prevailing 7-6, 7-5, 6-3 to reach the semifinals for the 11th time.

Only 24 hours earlier, Connors had rallied from the brink of elimination to beat Mikael Pernfors of Sweden in five sets.

"The reply from the guys in the locker room has been respect and amazement," Connors said.

The women's semifinals were scheduled for Centre Court today at the All England Club. In the first match-up, No. 3 seed Chris Evert and defending champion Martina Navratilova, the top seed, are meeting for the 73rd time.

The old rivals will be followed by the hottest player on the circuit, West Germany's 18-year-old Steffi Graf who is taking a 44-match unbeaten run into her meeting with Pam Shriver, the outsider of the last four.

To reach the semifinals, Navratilova crushed Australia's Diane Balesatrat 6-2, 6-1, while Evert downed Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany, 6-1, 6-3.

Graf beat the other leading teenager of the women's game, Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina, for the eighth consecutive time. As on six of the previous seven occasions, Sabatini won a set but again wound up losing, this time 4-6, 6-1, 6-1.

Shriver, in the semifinals for the first time since 1981, saved a match point against Helena Sukova before winning 4-6, 7-6, 10-8.

In his semifinal on Friday, Connors will play Australia's Pat Cash, aiming for his first Grand Slam title. He beat Mats Wilander, last month's beaten French Open finalist, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4, and has dropped only one set in the tournament.

Lendl takes on Sweden's Stefan Edberg, the No. 4 seed, who was a 4-6, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3 winner over compatriot Anders Jarryd.

Two years ago, Lendl lost here to Leconte in the fourth round and had to play his best to gain revenge against the Frenchman.

The ninth-seeded Leconte matched the world's No. 1 player on serve and at the net. But he had little luck with his passing shots, repeatedly missing the lines by a few inches, and when it came to the key points, Lendl was the master.

"Today I played a player who is No. 1, even on grass," Leconte said.

Connors said he felt no after-effects from his match against Pernfors when he took on the big-serving Zivojinovic.

Connors badly needed to win the opening set to avoid being caught up in another marathon. He won the tiebreaker 7-5 and got stronger and stronger, his famed returns neutralizing the big serves.

Zivojinovic said he hoped Connors, Wimbledon champion in 1974 and 1982, wins again.

"The guy is 35 and he fights like he's 18," Zivojinovic said. "He doesn't play for the money. He just loves tennis. I'm really disappointed to lose. But Jimmy was and still is the best."

Gooden confronted about cocaine use

NEW YORK (AP) — Dwight Gooden, who continually has denied he used drugs during the 1986 season, was confronted about possible cocaine use last July by the players' union, according to a published report.

The New York Daily News reported Thursday that the New York Mets pitcher confirmed he met with officials from the Major League Baseball Players Association last July and discussed the subject. But Gooden denied then and still denies he used cocaine last season, saying he only used the drug before and after the 1986 season, when the Mets won the World Series.

The Mets are convinced Gooden has not told the truth about his drug use, the newspaper said.

"He obviously lied to us," the News quoted an unnamed club official. "We're convinced now that he was on drugs during last season, but he continues to deny it."

"He says he used the stuff before last season and after last season," the club official added. "Could he have just stopped Opening Day? That's hard to believe. He did appear shocked when we told him he tested positive for cocaine during spring training. Maybe that was because he was surprised he was caught."

Gooden underwent cocaine rehabilitation for 28 days at the start of the regular season. He was not suspended by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth because he agreed to undergo the treatment at Smithers Center.

Gooden returned to the Mets on June 5 and has pitched well, going 5-1 with a 2.12 ERA.

Donald Fehr, executive director of the MLBPA, refused comment about whether the union had confronted Gooden last summer.

"Any time we get information that we believe to be credible we will ordinarily contact the player or his agent and render what assistance we can," Fehr said. "But we will never discuss the matter publicly."

Rules slow down Firecracker 400

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Power — or lack of it — is the main subject of conversation this weekend at Daytona International Speedway.

Going into today's pole qualifying for the Firecracker 400 NASCAR stock car race on Saturday, the drivers are searching hard for ways to pick up the power in the wake of major rules changes that have slowed the cars down by about 10 mph.

"It's like riding down the interstate," Sterling Marlin said Wednesday after practicing on the 2.5-mile, high-banked oval. "The car just won't run. It's like going from a Corvette to a four-cylinder car."

Marlin was the fastest qualifier here a year ago at 203.666 mph. But it's very apparent that nobody is going to even approach 200 here this week.

This will be the first of two NASCAR events this season for which the rules have been altered in an effort to slow the cars down.

The other will be on July 26 at Alabama International Motor Speedway, where Bobby Allison, running at about 205 mph, tore out 50 feet of catch-fencing and nearly flew into a packed grandstand during the Winston 500 on May 3.

That prompted the stock car sanctioning body to mandate smaller carburetors for the remaining races this season at Daytona and the Talladega, Ala., track, where 200 mph laps have become commonplace.

The move appears to have worked just the way NASCAR had hoped.

Last July, Marlin was just one of 12 drivers to qualify for the Firecracker at more than 200 mph.

Wednesday's unofficial fast laps were just over 195, and the pole-winner today is expected to run no faster than 196 or 197.

Allison, talking about the rule changes, which also include placing glass in the right-side windows, said, "It looks like it took about 10 miles an hour out of our effort."

Davey Allison, Bobby's son and the winner of two races already in his rookie season, said the window glass has been the biggest change for him.

"It's weird," he said. "I can't hear anything, the car is so quiet ... when someone comes by you, you think their motor is shut off."

As for the smaller carburetor, which slows the flow of gasoline, thereby cutting back on horsepower, the younger Allison said, "The car felt like it didn't have any horsepower."

A Venezuelan DC-9 airliner crashed at Maracaibo in 1969, killing 83 persons aboard the plane and 67 on the ground.

Ways with Wine
by David Hutchins

FORTIFIED WINE
Port is the typical fortified wine. The object is to make it as sweet as possible. This is done by starting the fermentation in the usual way, with very ripe grapes capable of continuing to ferment until there is at least fifteen percent alcohol. Then, suddenly, at the halfway point, the fermenting grapes are emptied out of the tank into a barrel which is a quarter full with brandy. The alcohol level is immediately raised to a point where the yeast cells can do no more. Half the sugar from the grapes remains in the wine. Hence, the fortified wine is very strong and very sweet at the same time.

THE STORE carries a terrific selection of French wines or fine wines from New York and California, so chances are we have your favorite. If you need assistance in your selection please don't hesitate to ask. That's what we are here for. Come by and see us at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802. Open: Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12. Have a safe and fun filled Fourth of July weekend. Please don't drink and drive!

Sherry, another fortified wine, ferments to the end and is then blended for sweetness.

Educators offer classes for anxiety

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Mathematics anxiety may have its roots in elementary school, according to a Texas A&M University educator.

Clarence Dockweiler, professor of educational curriculum and instruction at Texas A&M, described as an example of the ailment someone who goes into a frenzy when faced with balancing a checkbook without a calculator.

He recently completed a systematic review of mathematics anxiety and found that it exists in all ages of students, in both sexes and in all ethnic and racial backgrounds.

"Children develop a fear of mathematics because they are constantly being tested in it. The teaching is centered around test performance and the result is a very piecemeal understanding of mathematics concepts and they can't put the pieces together," Dockweiler said Wednesday.

To attack that anxiety, Dockweiler directs a four-week summer clinic for students in grades 3-9 who have poor mathematics backgrounds. He and his graduate students diagnose the students' math understanding and difficulty on a one-on-one basis.

"In essence, we find out why the student is math-anxious then we work on experiences to help him understand math concepts and create a positive environment of succeeding in math to alleviate the anxety," he said. "The difficulties they have are usually correctable."

He added that math learning is most critical in grades 1-3 when students are developing an understanding of its concepts. After that, knowledge is accumulated and new rules and concepts are added.

Dockweiler has found that parents and even teachers perpetuate anxiety in children.

"Adults may feel they didn't do well in math and they pass those feelings along to their children or students. Some parents have an expectation that their child will do poorly in math so it becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy," he said.

Because of that, parents of the students in the program are included in discussions to make them aware of their own anxiety and how to help their children overcome it.

A clear finding in Dockweiler's research is that females avoid mathematics courses, but he said he feels that may be gradually changing. More and more counselors are encouraging females to study math and explore math-related careers.

Water

Water helps body functions in many ways. It dissolves and transports nutrients throughout the body, aiding the process of digestion, absorption, circulation, and excretion. Water also helps regulate body temperature. We get water from all foods.

California

California got its name from the Spanish conquistadors. It was the name of an imaginary island, an earthly paradise, in "Las Serges de Esplandian," a Spanish romance. The present state of California was called Alta (Upper) California, as compared to Baja (Lower) California, which is in Mexico.

DR. GOTT Treatment has complications

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband has alpha-1 antitrypsin deficiency. He has taken prednisone for two years and has developed severe bone degeneration and constant fractures. He's on oxygen day and night and is in constant pain. Is there any help for him?

DEAR READER — Each normal human being has, as standard genetic equipment, substances that inhibit certain body chemicals which break down or degrade protein. That is, our systems contain mechanisms to digest proteins in our tissues and fluids; these mechanisms are balanced by natural chemicals that prevent protein degradation. One such chemical is alpha-1-antitrypsin, which probably is produced in the liver. Because in patients with inadequate alpha-1-antitrypsin, the levels return to normal after liver transplantation.

Certain individuals inherit a deficiency in antitrypsin. This means that some forms of protein breakdown can occur because neutralization is lacking.

For reasons that are not clear, patients with alpha-1-antitrypsin deficiency have an increased susceptibility to emphysema. The deficiency tends to cause hepatitis in affected infants. However, the major problem in middle-aged patients is the progressive loss of filmy air sacs in the lungs, resulting in difficulty breathing.

There is no specific treatment for antitrypsin deficiency. Therapy is directed toward retarding the development of emphysema. This includes drugs to reduce bronchial constriction, special breathing exercises, aggressive use of antibiotics for lung infection and the use of oxygen to make breathing more comfortable.

Sometimes cortisone (prednisone) is helpful in treating the emphysema of antitrypsin deficiency. However, as you have discovered, this is a two-edged sword. Cortisone itself produces many unwanted side effects, including bone fragility that can result in painful fractures, because fragile and brittle bones tend to crack readily.

Your husband really has two problems: the antitrypsin deficiency and the cortisone effects. His deficiency is permanent and can be helped by using the methods I outlined above. The complications of cortisone are more troublesome. He will continue to experience bone problems as long as he is on the drug. The use of calcium-fluoride supplements may help his bone brittleness, as may an alteration in dosage — for example, if he were to take the cortisone on alternate days, rather than daily. I believe that he has to weigh the risk/benefit ratio of treatment. Perhaps his doctor might choose to stop the cortisone, in view of the bone problems, and substitute other medicines.

You and your husband should meet with the doctor for an in-depth discussion of available options. A pulmonary specialist might be able to provide additional information that would help the three of you decide what to do and how to handle future problems and complications.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Recently I had an emergency operation for a femoral hernia. What causes it, and can it happen again?

DEAR READER — Femoral hernia is a condition in which a loop of bowel squeezes into an opening in the groin where the femoral artery passes from the abdominal cavity into the leg. The portion of bowel often becomes compressed or kinked, leading to strangulation, a particularly serious medical emergency.

If the strangulation is not relieved, intestinal obstruction can occur. This can be fatal if the compressed segment of bowel becomes gangrenous and perforates, flooding the abdominal cavity with infected fecal contents.

No one knows the cause of femoral hernia. There probably is a congenital weakness that allows the bowel to slip out of place. If the hernia was successfully repaired, you have no worries about a repeat attack unless you develop a hernia on the other side, which was not repaired.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am female, 28, and have a full dark beard and mustache. My doctor has me on Spirinolactone, but it has not helped in a year. Would electrolysis be a better solution?

DEAR READER — Electrolysis might be a better solution, but I think that your best approach would be an examination by an endocrinologist, a specialist in hormone imbalances. Some women note increasing facial hair as they age. However, in your case, the problem could be due to a glandular imbalance, the so-called virilization syndrome in women who have tumors or diseases of the adrenal glands.

You need a thorough examination, as well as blood and urine tests, to discover a treatable and curable cause for your problem.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm 13 and swallow my gum. Will this hurt me? DEAR READER — The material in gum that makes it chewy is indigestible. Once in your stomach, it has to pass through your entire intestine and come out the other end. Occasional gum swallowing is probably harmless. Nonetheless, repeated swallowing could cause a buildup in the bowel that cannot be expelled. I suggest that you stop swallowing gum and dispose of it more thoughtfully and appropriately (especially where someone will not step on it).

DEAR DR. GOTT — Some of my friends have begun an exercise program that includes running in place in a sauna. They claim it is the ultimate aerobic workout. This practice seems rather alarming to me. Could you comment?

DEAR READER — People dream up the darndest ways to take up free time. I always thought that saunas were for relaxation after a workout. Many saunas get very hot, and I'd worry that your friends might be overdoing it in the heat, become too dehydrated and suffer cardiovascular collapse. This is called heatstroke among athletes and it can be a serious condition, leading to heart irregularity or standstill.

Jogging in a sauna may be the "ultimate aerobic workout," but I would advise your friends to knock it off, exercise in a temperate environment and then wind down in the sauna.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is clenching your teeth a sign of trouble?

DEAR READER — Sometimes. Teeth clenching is a sign of tension. We all experience tension, but if we take out stress on our teeth, especially at night when sleeping, bite problems and headaches can result.

SAN PABLO UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

San Pablo United Methodist Church chose officials for the coming year, with Yolando Tarango as chairman of the administrative board, at a recent Charge Conference of the congregation. Felipe Gonzales was elected chairman of the board of trustees.

Liza Martinez was elected church secretary and Gloria Gonzales treasurer. Emilio Romero Jr. will be chairman of finance and will also head the pastor-parish relations committee. Tino and Mica Martinez are chairmen of the worship committee. Lorenzo and Rosa Contreras of evangelism, Sylvia Guerrero of family ministries.

Hilda Cavazos will be president of United Methodist Women and Emilio Romero Sr. of United Methodist Men.

Rev. Daniel Reyna is pastor of the church. Dr. Clifford Trotter, Amarillo District superintendent, was here to conduct the charge conference.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

July 19 has been set as the date for the annual Pig Roast for the congregation of First United Methodist Church, and that day will also be observed this year as Western Day. The pig roast has been a featured event in the church each summer for several years. Bill Walden has donated the meat and supervised its preparation by men of the church. Families contribute salads, vegetables and desserts to complete the meal, which will be served in the evening in fellowship hall.

Western attire will be the proper dress for the morning worship service, at 10:55 a.m. Rev. Steve McElroy, pastor, will preach in old-fashioned camp meeting style, and music will be in the same theme. The public is invited for this special service.

A group of Junior High UMC Youth Fellowship members, with Robin Roth, youth director in First UMC, will attend One Way Junior High Camp at Ceta Canyon next week.

Cecelia Albracht, Taylor Brooks, Jill Ruland, Cheryl Thorell and Wendy Warrick will go this youth camp.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

A poster promotion party and supper is planned at 5 p.m. Sunday, July 12, for vacation Bible School. Following worship services there will be a swimming party from 7:30-9 p.m. at Green Acres.

On Saturday, July 11, the church will have its church-wide volleyball tournament. If your Sunday school class team would like to participate contact the church office.

FIRST CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

There will be no morning worship service Sunday. Instead, the public is invited to attend the "Freedom Celebration" beginning at 10 a.m. at the Whiteface Stadium. Bring a quilt, lawn chairs, and a picnic lunch. There will be special music provided.

Back in 400 B.C., a flying wooden pigeon made by Archytas of Tarentum became the talk of the Old World.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Fisher

Plastic container is a cleaning aid

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is a timesaver when cleaning. Use a small plastic dishpan, or better yet, a plastic container with a handle and compartments, for holding the things that end up on the toilet tank in small bathrooms. If you do need to clean or look in the tank, all can be removed with one quick motion. These pans are timesavers also in the laundry room, in the kitchen, or under the sink. — MARGARET

DEAR MARGARET — The same idea can be used to make dusting easier and faster on dresser tops, beauty tables, and other surfaces that traditionally hold a collection of small objects. Your helpful Pointer earns you the Pointer of the Week award, a copy of my book, "Polly's Pointers: 1081 Helpful Hints for Making Everything Last Longer." Others who would like this book may order it for $6.50. Make check payable to POLLY'S POINTERS and send to POLLY'S POINTERS, P.O. Box 93863, Cleveland, OH 44101-5863. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When staining or painting, a cotton-tipped swab works well in corners where a brush or staining rag won't reach. A swab also works well to use as a touch-up brush for small paint jobs, eliminating the need to clean a brush afterwards. — PAT

DEAR POLLY — To help save money in the winter, I buy inexpensive warm-up suits for my growing 2-year-old to sleep in. By adding one or two suits to his wardrobe, I can alternate them and also let him wear one during the day to play in. They are just as comfortable as pajamas. — DAWN

DEAR POLLY — I read a letter in your column about washing silk flowers. This suggestion could be a bad one for your readers. The flowers that are washable are really made out of polyester. They should be classified as "silk-like." On the market today are flowers made out of real silk. The real silk flowers are beautiful and expensive, but are not washable. You can clean them by shaking them in a bag of rock salt or dust with a brush. — C.T. FLOWER DESIGNER
