Hammond receives probation

Craig Hammond of Hereford pleaded guilty to two counts of indecency with a child on Monday afternoon in 222nd District Court in Hereford, and will serve 10 years probation.

Judge David Wesley Gulley sentenced Hammond to two terms of 10 years in the state penitentiary, probated for 10 years. The terms are to run concurrently unless Hammond violates the terms of the probation, in which the terms would become consecutive, or 20 years.

An unusual stipulation of Hammond's probation is the requirement that he attend special sexual offender's counseling. In addition to counseling, Hammond is to serve at least 200 hours of community service. He will also pay a $1,000 fine.

This was Hammond's first felony offense. The incidents occurred while he was volunteering to work with children in Hereford.

The cases were brought to light several months ago and were investigated by the Hereford Police Department and the Deaf Smith County District Attorney's Office.

District Attorney Roland Saul explained that with the terms of the probation, Hammond will be required to meet the stringent terms of the probation, including the special counseling. If Hammond had received a prison sentence, he would likely have served only about three months in a state penitentiary and would not necessarily have received counseling.

While the exact probation program will be worked out through the adult probation department, Hammond will not only have to report on a monthly basis to a probation officer but will have to abide by terms stipulated by officers and by counselors. It is likely that Hammond will not be allowed to be in any program that involves young people.

Whatever the terms of the probation, Hammond will have to abide closely to them. A breach of the probation agreement could lead to revocation and Hammond would then have to serve 10 years in a state penitentiary.

Authorities said previously that youths who were believed to be involved in the incidents, parents and some of their friends who knew of the incidents had been offered counseling programs.

Arrowhead featured on '60 Minutes'

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

An innovative use of beneficial insects at Arrowhead Mills in Hereford and at other locations in the country that was shot down by the Food and Drug Administration was featured on "60 Minutes" on the CBS Television network on Sunday evening.

A CBS production crew and correspondent Steve Kroft had filmed an interview with Boyd Foster, president of Arrowhead Mills, last June.

Buddy Maedgen, a farmer in Mathis, Texas (near Corpus Christi) had developed the idea of using beneficial insects to control harmful insects present in stored grain.

Maedgen had developed the program about 10 years ago after his family had been poisoned by pesticide use, Kroft said in Sunday's television report. He had used live beneficials in grain stored on his farm and had used beneficials like ladybugs, wasps and other insects to control pests in his fields.

Attempts to reach Maedgen by telephone on Monday evening were not successful.

Arrowhead Mills, which has been operating in Deaf Smith County for almost 40 years and sells its organically-grown goods around the world, heard about Maedgen's innovative use of beneficials in stored grain and decided to try some in a single bin of rye grain.

The five beneficial insects were put in the large grain bin, Bin Number 56, on or about Sept. 25, 1987, according to a letter from Foster to Hereford attorney James Witherspoon. Foster made a copy of the three-page letter available to the Brand on Monday afternoon.

The letter from Foster to Witherspoon explained the beneficials were placed in the bin to see if the insects would work as promised to hold down or eradicate any live insects that were in the grain.

"We introduced live beneficial insects into Bin #56 and several other bins in an experimental effort to prevent and control the possible presence of harmful insects," Foster wrote in the May 12, 1988 letter. "We try to avoid the use of chemical pesticides. Beneficial insects seemed like an alternative worth trying."

It seemed like a good idea not only to Foster but also to the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Texas Department of Agriculture.

The idea did not seem so hot to the Food and Drug Administration.

During a routine visit by a FDA agent on Jan. 12, 1988, Foster mentioned the use of the beneficial insects.

On Feb. 2, two FDA agents took samples of grain from five bins, including Bin No. 56.

"The main purpose of their visit was to gather samples and find out more about the beneficial insect introduction," Foster wrote in the letter to Witherspoon.

On March 23, two TDH inspectors did a general inspection at Arrowhead Mills and asked more questions about the beneficials.

Later that day, a TDH agent served a Notice of Detention on Bin No. 56, which contained "more or less 300 bushels" of rye grain.

On March 29, the TDH served a similar notice on Bin No. 59, which had blue corn, and Bin No. 69, which had popcorn. On May 5, the other two bins were released from detention.

On May 11, 1988, a federal marshal from Dallas served a seizure notice on Bin No. 56. A suit was filed against the grain in Bin No. 56 by the Food and Drug Administration. That suit has since been dropped.

Foster, in his May 12, 1988 letter, said: "We think the FDA has taken us to task not so much because of insects being in Bin No. 56 (few bins of uncleared grain are ever totally void of insects or insect fragments), but because their rule books say that 'no food may be adulterated with a foreign substance.'"

Foster said he was "puzzled as to why the FDA gives approval to the introduction of strong chemicals (pesticides) into stored grain, yet will not allow the introduction of non-grain-eating beneficial insects."

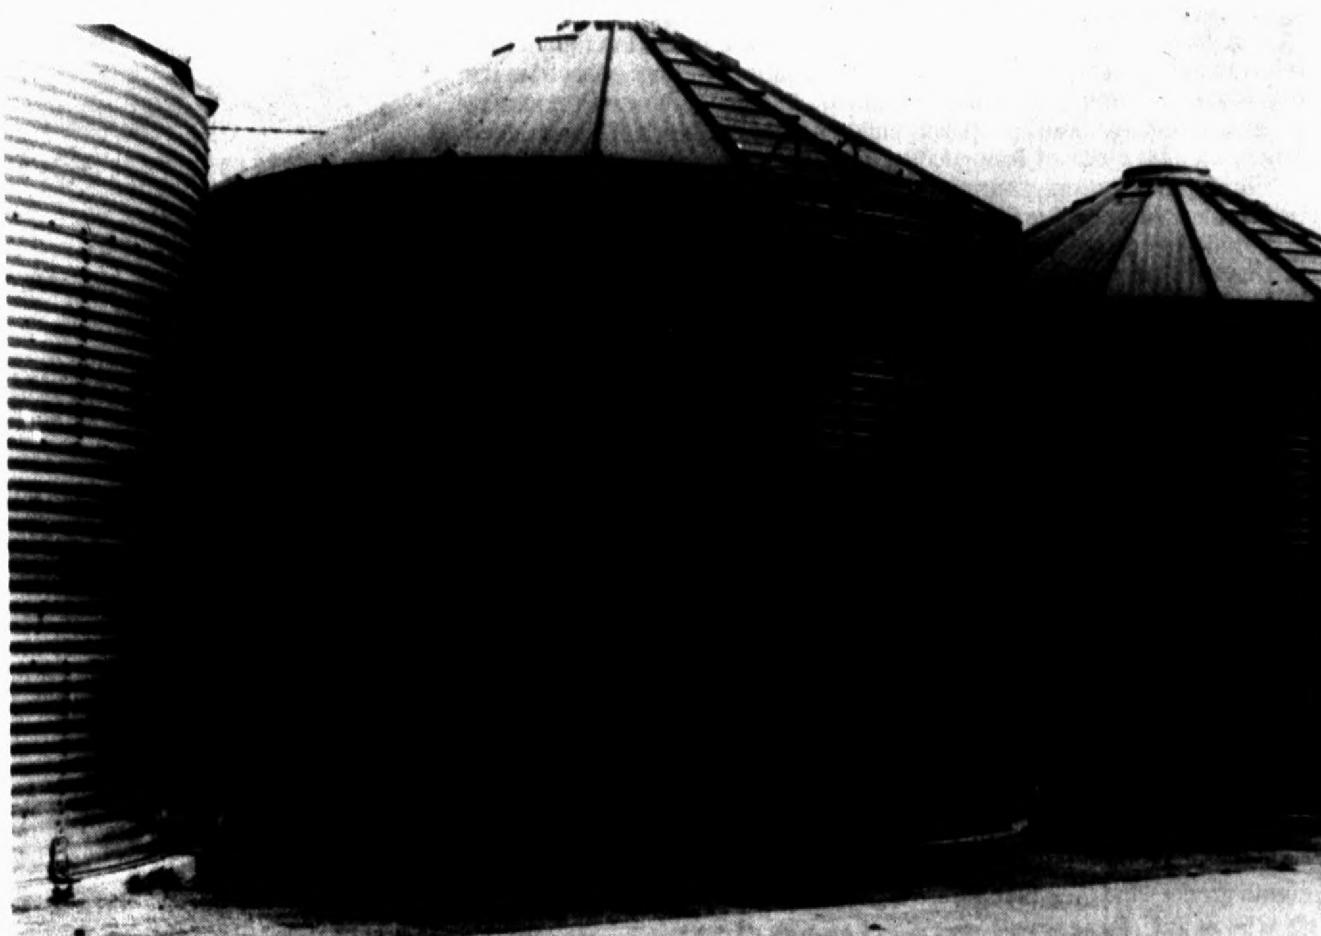

Foster explained that insects and insect fragments are "effectively removed by mechanical cleaning before a grain is made into flour or cereal, but traces of most chemical pesticides remain when used on any food item."

Foster again explained that insects and insect parts, dead or alive, are removed through standard mechanical cleaning methods. Foster said in the letter that "We routinely clean all our grains before doing anything (packaging, milling, flaking, etc.) with them."

"We think the FDA knows this, yet they imply ... that we have the rye up for sale 'as is.' This is not true," Foster wrote.

Foster said that Maedgen's company, BIOFAC, "is desperately (sic) trying to get FDA approval for the use of beneficial insects in stored grain. Because of lack of progress, their efforts have developed into a battle."

Foster said Monday that he feels the FDA will eventually allow the introduction of live beneficial insects into stored grain.

The 'famous' bin

This is Bin No. 56 at Arrowhead Mills, which held "300 bushels, more or less" of rye grain that was detained by the Food and Drug Administration in 1988. The grain was detained because the company was using innovative experimental beneficial bugs to try to hold down the population of insects that could have consumed the grain. The bin, Arrowhead Mills and the man who developed the insect program were featured on CBS Television's "60 Minutes" show on Sunday.

"I think maybe the FDA was taken a little off guard by all of this and didn't know exactly what to do," Foster said. "I think they will approve it before too long."

The story spurred at least some interest around the country. Anna

Christie of San Marino, Calif., a suburb of Los Angeles, called the home of Brand Managing Editor John Brooks on Sunday night to give her support to Arrowhead Mills and to Buddy Maedgen's bugs.

Christie said she had been a longtime Arrowhead Mills customer.

"I plan to call my congressmen and the FDA as soon as they open for business on Monday," Christie said. "I cannot believe they wouldn't allow something like this."

County won't extend freeport tax exemption

By CINDY POTTOROFF
Staff Writer

Deaf Smith County commissioners voted Monday not to extend a freeport tax exemption for goods-in-transit in the county, and received a rare round of applause from most of the persons attending the meeting at the courthouse in Hereford.

The exemption would give a break on inventory taxes for goods that were in the county for less than 175 days that were to be shipped out of state.

According to Fred Fox, chief appraiser for the Deaf Smith County Tax Appraisal District, granting the freeport exemption would lower the county's tax revenues by about $75,152. Fox based his projections upon a survey of businesses in Deaf Smith County which would be affected by the freeport exemption.

Taxes would then have to be raised in order to maintain county operations. Fox estimated that the increased tax burden would fall upon 6,000 homeowners and 900 businesses, which would have an automatic tax increase.

"That's about a cent and a half tax increase," said Commissioner Tom Simons.

"Total tax loss, according to the figures from Mr. Fox here for the total taxing entities...county, state, school, hospital...would be $242,000," said Commissioner John Stribling.

The commissioners also opposed making the freeport exemption permanent because, if the freeport exemption were now granted, it could not be rescinded. However, the county could opt to make the freeport exemption available at any time in the future.

There was some concern that deciding not to make the freeport exemption permanent could have a negative impact upon the recruitment of new businesses to Deaf Smith County.

"Let's suppose we were courting a Holly Sugar today," said Stribling. "And we did not pass the freeport exemption. Where would that let us stand in courting them?"

Marn Tyler said, "These companies that are here now, it's not really hurting them because they're passing the costs of the tax onto the people who buy the goods out of state because that's where it's going to. And if we exempt them away, we're going to be hurting. And you have the option of someone else coming in later, that you can always do something for them if the need arises, if it will benefit us as a county. But if we exempt all these here now that are doing fine, then it's really going to hurt all of us taxpayers."

Supporting Actor: Denzel Washington, "Glory". Supporting Actress: BRENDA FRITH, "Left Foot". Director: Oliver Stone, "Born On The Fourth Of July". "Driving Miss Daisy" also won the Oscar for adapted screenplay and makeup. The four Oscars were the most for any film in 1989.

Short census count could be very costly

Texas has millions of dollars in federal grants and several new congressional districts riding on the outcome of the 1990 Census and on decisions about how that data will be used over the next decade.

Everyone should have received a census questionnaire in the mail last Friday. The forms should be filled out and mailed back before Sunday.

For persons or addresses who do not return forms, census workers will begin making door-to-door visits next week.

Most persons received the "short form," which basically has seven basic questions. Others received a "long form," which asks more detailed questions.

The forms should be filled out in pencil. A computer will "read" the cards.

Due to an undercount of Texas' population during the 1980 Census, the state lost millions of dollars in federal aid each year throughout the 1980s, according to Bob Bullock, comptroller of public accounts.

But the 1990s could be different, says Bullock. If the new Census is conducted in a way that ensures a good count, and if adjustments are made to correct unavoidable undercounting of some Texas residents, the state could obtain more of its share of federal aid. Texas also could receive a better deal if federal grants tied to Census data were based on current estimates rather than the once-a-decade figures.

"The next Census will help shape Texas' political and financial fortunes for the rest of this century," Bullock said.

In all, better use of Census data could net Texas state and local governments about $600 million more in federal aid over the next 10 years—grant money that could extend programs to build new roads, fund community development projects and help needy Texans with medical care, rent subsidies and other benefits.

But more than money is at stake. An inaccurate 1990 Census tally-

Shots in Amarillo bus terminal related to strike

By The Associated Press

Violence continued in the Greyhound strike as a shot was fired at a bus terminal in Texas and a bus was struck by gunfire in Florida.

Police and a spokeswoman for the strike-plagued company said no one was hurt Monday when a shot was fired at a crowded bus terminal in Amarillo and gunfire struck a bus near Orlando, Fla.

Meanwhile, a California judge ordered striking drivers in the Southwest not to threaten to hurt or kill replacement drivers for the country's only nationwide bus company.

The violent incidents Monday were the latest in a 3 1/2 week walkout by Greyhound drivers.

A bullet destroyed the vehicle's right-hand mirror, but none of the 32 passengers was injured in the incident on Interstate 4 about 30 miles west of Orlando late Monday night, Greyhound spokeswoman Jeanne Ery said.

Ms. Ery said the shot fired at the terminal in Amarillo appeared to have been fired from a passing vehicle.

Workers and passengers initially thought the sound of the shot was a car backfiring, Ms. Ery said. But small holes were found in a window, and police found a 20-gauge shotgun cartridge in the street, authorities said.

Service was not interrupted, Ms. Ery said.

The incidents brought to 28 the number of shootings, including 24 on buses, since the strike against Dallas-based Greyhound began March 2, according to Ms. Ery. No one was hurt in the previous shootings on Greyhound terminals in Tallahassee, Fla., on March 16 and in Chicago on March 2.

Superior Court Judge David Yaffe in Los Angeles issued a preliminary injunction containing the same restrictions in a temporary restraining order March 5.

The injunction against intimidating workers with "fear of bodily harm or death" applies to the southwest region of the bus drivers union, an area extending from Los Angeles to El Paso.

Greyhound alleged that strikers had blocked or damaged buses and harassed replacement workers.

No attorneys appeared for the union's southwest region.

Anthony Lannie, executive vice president and chief negotiator for Greyhound, has scheduled a press conference for today at the National Press Club in Washington.

Nearly 6,300 drivers and 3,000 other Greyhound workers went on strike after negotiators for Greyhound Lines Inc. and the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions failed to reach agreement on wage issues.

The company said drivers earned an average $24,743 last year. The drivers took a 22 percent pay cut three years ago before a leveraged buyout of the company. Greyhound is offering a first-year raise of 6.9 percent.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is a letter of thanks. I owe you a lot. Let me explain.

Five years ago, I became involved with a married woman. She instigated the affair by chasing me shamelessly. After a while I began to enjoy her company, and we had some terrific times together. But deep down I felt guilty about the deal her husband was getting, although he pretended he didn't know what was going on.

The third year into our relationship, I showed her a letter in your column about a woman who went with a married man for 30 years (hoping for marriage, as I had been) and finally realized she had been a fool. A year later, another letter appeared in your column. It was from a woman whose married lover, in his 70s, developed Alzheimer's disease after she had been waiting for him for 40 years. That letter really shook me up, but not quite enough to make the break.

In February of '89, you published a letter from a man who had been kept on the hook for 25 years. I cut that one out and tacked it to my bedroom door. After looking at it for several days, I finally found the guts to say, "No more dates, no more phone calls, no contact of any kind. This back-alley romance is over."

It has been three months since I've seen her. I'm still a little sad, but the pain is gone. I now realize that seeing myself in your column made me do what had to be done, and I'm truly grateful. So thank you, Ann, for helping me to wake up and smell the coffee. -- A Fellow Iowan

DEAR IOWAN: I think you are giving me more credit than I deserve. All I did was print those letters. You were the one who made the connection and decided to do something about it. Letters like yours make my day. Cheers from Chicago!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You must be tired of hearing the bride's family complain about invited guests who seem unable to stir themselves and respond to a lovely invitation. Perhaps my letter will make a dent. I will be specific.

We sent out engraved invitations and enclosed self-addressed, stamped envelopes one month before the event. All the guests had to do was put an "x" in the proper space to let us know if they planned to attend.

A week before the wedding, we spent nearly $50 on long distance calls asking people who had not returned their response cards whether or not they were coming. The caterers required a head count 48 hours before the event. Each dinner cost $36, and 32 people who said they were coming did not show up. We had to pay $1,152 for meals that were not served.

Please tell your readers once more that if they change their mind or if something comes up that makes it impossible to attend, they should take a moment to call the hostess and let her know. We could have given that $1,152 to the newlyweds or treated ourselves to a weekend trip. We are hurt and angry that so many people thought so little of our invitation. -- Minneapolis Parents

DEAR PARENTS: Thanks for spelling it out. Perhaps when folks see the numbers, it will make an impression.

Herd JV rips Canyon, 14-4, with big inning

The Hereford Whiteface junior varsity baseball team used an 11-run fourth inning Monday to blow open a tight game and take a 14-4 win over Canyon at Whiteface Field in a game called in the fifth inning by the 10-run rule.

The Herd sent 15 batters to the plate in the big inning and at one point had six straight batters reach base and score.

The Herd loaded the bases with the first three batters of the inning, knocking Canyon starter Mark Kleman out of the game. Randy Gaines came on in relief for the Eagles and threw three wild pitches to score Richard Wilbanks, Kyle Hansen and Shama Hernandez.

Walks to Ralph Holguin and Rolando Ramirez set up Tab Hathaway's RBI single with one out and Michael Melendrez took a pitch in the ribs to refill the bases.

Pinch hitter Henry Gallardo singled in two more runs for the Herd and Jamie Galan drew a free pass before the Herd made its second out on the inning.

The Herd then picked up three straight singles from Hernandez, Sammy Casarez and David Russell before Gaines was able to get out of the inning.

Andy Kalka pitched four innings to pick up the win, giving up one run on three hits while striking out five and walking five. Casarez finished up the final inning on the mound, giving up three unearned runs.

For the Eagles, Kleman allowed six runs on four hits in three-and-a-third innings while Gaines let eight runs across the plate in two-thirds of an inning.

The Herd took the early lead in the first when Holguin walked and scored on Vince Castillo's single to left.

The Eagles managed to tie in their next at bat Jeff Prater singled and scored with the aid of two Herd errors.

Hered quickly regained the lead in the bottom of the second when Wilbanks singled and Jason Tatarevich walked. The pair came around when Chris Brummett's fly ball to shallow left was dropped for a two-base error.

The Herd JV raised its record to 3-5 on the year with the win.

The Herd junior varsity will host the Randall JV at 4:30 p.m. Monday for its next game and will travel to Canyon for a rematch with the Eagles on April 6.

Chalk up a couple of ribbies

Henry Gallardo of the Hereford Whiteface JV slaps a single to right to score two runs during Monday's 14-4 win over the Canyon JV at Whiteface Field.

UAB's Bartow first on list of prospective Aggie coaches

HOUSTON (AP) - Alabama-Birmingham coach Gene Bartow is the leading candidate to become the next coach at Texas A&M, The Houston Post reported today.

The newspaper reported that Bartow left Birmingham Monday morning and was believed to have met with Texas A&M Athletic Director John David Crow late Monday afternoon. Bartow's wife, Ruth, told the newspaper that her husband left town Monday, but would not say where he was going.

Bartow had a meeting scheduled today in Birmingham with Dr. Dudley Pewitt, the UAB faculty representative for the Sun Belt Conference.

Bartow could not be reached for comment Monday, but Crow admitted a decision would be announced soon.

"Something could happen Wednesday or Thursday," Crow told the Bryan-College Station Eagle. "But it might not happen until after the Final Four."

Bartow is five years into a 10-year

Cold weather accompanied by freezing rain forced the cancellation of all Hereford Whiteface athletic events scheduled for Saturday.

The Herd baseball team, which was slated to host the Levelland Lobos for a District 1-4A game, were forced to rearrange its schedule along with the rest of the district teams when six of the weekend's eight games were lost to weather.

The Herd golf teams were to play the first district round at Lubbock's Elm Grove Country Club, but that also fell victim to the cold and ice.

District baseball coaches met Sunday in Canyon to work out the details of making up the postponements, with makeup games starting Monday.

The run put Bartow, who started the game on the mound, in position to claim his second win of the season.

Hogs to wear on Duke

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson looks to the late Vince Lombardi, longtime coach of the NFL's Green Bay Packers, for the rationale behind the style of play Richardson calls "40 minutes of hell."

"Our press is not so much to get steals as it is to put wear and tear on the body and mind of our opponents," Richardson said Monday. "That's a stat that doesn't show up on the boxscore. Like Lombardi said, 'Fatigue makes cowards of us all.'"

So Richardson commonly plays at least nine players a game. His bench includes two players averaging double-digit scoring - sophomore center Oliver Miller at 11.4, and junior forward Ron Huery at 10.1. Miller is also grabbing 6.3 rebounds a game.

Richardson's Razorbacks (30-4) will try to wear down the Blue Devils of Duke (28-8) when the two schools meet Thursday at Denver in the first game of the NCAA Final Four. But Richardson, in his fifth year at the Arkansas helm, isn't imagining that his team will be the only one trying to exhaust its opponent.

"Duke puts a lot of pressure on the wings and on your guards," he said. "That will be an important part of the game. Our guards will have to be ready for their pressure. We have to be concerned with their big men."

Lee Mayberry, the sophomore guard for Arkansas who played with a strep throat in Arkansas' 88-85 victory over Texas that sent the Razorbacks to Denver, said he should be fine for Thursday's game, although he still has a bit of a cough.

Mayberry, averaging 14.6 points and 2.9 rebounds, said he's looking forward to playing against Duke's Bobby Hurley. The two were at the Olympic Festival together, along with Arkansas' sophomore forward, Todd Day.

"Bobby Hurley is a good player. He and Todd were on the same team," Mayberry said. "I think he and I could be a pretty good matchup."

Day, Arkansas' top scorer with a 19.3 average, is heartened by his team's play against North Carolina in the semifinals of the Midwest Regional at Dallas. The Razorbacks won 96-73, and he sees similarities between the Tar Heels and Duke.

"Our best game of the year was North Carolina, I think," Day said. "We did what we had to do on offense and defense and we did it against a very good team."

Miller is hoping he'll be underrated by Duke.

Richardson gave his team a clear goal at the start of the season - bettering last year's performance, which saw the Razorbacks knocked out of the NCAA tournament in the second game. But now he says he's not satisfied.

"When I was hired by Arkansas, they said they'd like me to take the program to a different level," he said. "I think they had the Final Four in mind. That's not what I have in mind."

"To me, taking this program to another level means winning a national championship. I'm not happy just getting to the Final Four."

Robinson named NBA player of week

NEW YORK (AP) - David Robinson, who averaged 31.5 points, 13.3 rebounds, 6.0 blocked shots and 3.0 assists per game in leading the San Antonio Spurs to a 4-0 record last week, on Monday was named the NBA Player of the Week.

Robinson, a 7-foot-1 rookie center from Navy, had 34 points, 14 rebounds, eight blocked shots and a career-high seven assists as the Spurs defeated Phoenix 113-103. In that game, Robinson set a rookie scoring record for the Spurs, surpassing the 1,508 points scored by Willie Anderson last year.

Robinson had 39 points, 10 rebounds, seven blocks and four assists in a 128-106 victory over Seattle on Tuesday; 29 points, 19 rebounds and six blocks in a 107-106 win over Portland on Thursday; and 24 points, nine rebounds and three blocks in a 105-98 victory over Detroit.

It was the second time this season that Robinson has won Player of the Week honors.

Vandy, USL in NIT finals

NEW YORK (AP) - Vanderbilt, which found success with its first big-man assignment in the NIT semifinals, faces an even bigger test in the championship game against St. Louis.

The Commodores held Penn State's leading scorer, Ed Fogell, to six shots and eight points Monday night and advanced to Wednesday's NIT final with a 75-62 victory over the Nittany Lions.

In the other semifinal, St. Louis got 24 points and 19 rebounds from 6-foot-8, 225-pound Anthony Bonner in an 80-73 victory over New Mexico.

Lobos coach Dave Bliss sounded a warning for Vanderbilt before the championship game.

"Bonner is the real McCoy," Bliss said. "That's what a basketball player should look like. I told my recruiters to get me one of those. He's a man playing a man's game."

St. Louis, looking for its first NIT championship in 42 years, also got a career-high 19 points from Jeff Luechtefeld, including five 3-pointers. Luechtefeld hit five of 10 from 3-point range, while Vanderbilt (20-14), making its first appearance in the semifinals of a postseason tournament, got a 5-for-9 3-point performance and 20 points from Scott Draud.

Draud got us off to a great start with his 3-pointers," Vanderbilt coach Eddie Fogler said. "Eric Reid and Steve Grant did a great job inside on Fogell. He's hitting 60 percent from the floor, he can pass and handle the ball, but we kept the ball out of Fogell's hands as much as possible."

Draud, who made three 3-pointers in the first six minutes of Vanderbilt's victory over the Nittany Lions, said his early hot streak "threw them out of what they wanted to do. When we shot well from the perimeter, it opened things up inside."

Vanderbilt's reserves outscored Penn State's 29-9, including 13 by Morgan Wheat and 10 by Todd Millholland.

Penn State (24-9), runnerup in the Atlantic 10 Conference, was led by Freddie Barnes with 18 points and James Barnes with 12.

"Vanderbilt made it tough for us on both ends of the court," said Penn State coach Bruce Parkhill, whose team was outshot 54.2 percent to 42.6 percent.

Bonner, the nation's leading rebounder with 13.7 per game, scored eight points in the final six minutes for St. Louis (21-11), which lost to St. John's in last year's championship game.

Luechtefeld, from tiny Okawville, Ill., averaged only 6.5 points for the season but 14.8 in four NIT games. He hit 32.1 percent of his 3-pointers during the season, but has made 13 of 29 (45 percent) during the tournament.

New Mexico (20-13), making a record seventh consecutive appearance in the NIT but its first trip to the semifinals since 1964, was led by Darrell McGee with 23 points, 18 in the second half.

The Lobos shot only 39.2 percent from the field. Other than McGee, who hit nine of 14 shots, the Lobos managed only 20 baskets in 60 attempts.

Luc Longley, the Lobos' 7-2 junior center averaging 18.5 points and 9.5

rebounds, finished with 12 points and 18 rebounds.

The Billikens led only 53-49 with 10 minutes left when Charles Newberry, who scored 15 points, hit consecutive 3-pointers for a 10-point St. Louis advantage.

After a New Mexico basket, Luechtefeld hit his fifth 3-pointer and 7-0 freshman Melvin Robinson scored inside for a 64-51 advantage with 7:35 remaining.

The Lobos got no closer than five the rest of the way.

St. Louis led 31-22 with 6:58 left in the first half, but the Lobos finished the half with a 13-4 run, tying the score 35-35.

Rockets whip Spurs, 113-95

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The Houston Rockets are looking toward next season - the NBA playoffs.

"If we can get in the playoffs, we can wipe our slate clean," Houston guard Sleepy Floyd said. "It will be a new season then."

"We're a game and a half out with 14 games to go. I know there are a lot of teams that respect us, especially the better teams, because for some reason we play them better."

The Rockets played one of the league's better teams Monday night, Midwest Division leader San Antonio, and defeated the Spurs 113-95.

Houston is 8-2 at home against the top six teams in the league. However, the Rockets are only 33-36 overall and 1 1/2 games behind Seattle in the race for the last of the eight playoff spots in the Western Conference.

"We've got to play every game like it's the last game of the year," said Otis Thorpe, who led Houston with 30 points on 13-of-15 shooting. "I just felt that I had to go out and do more tonight."

In other NBA games Monday, it was Charlotte 97, New Jersey 83; Atlanta 113, Denver 102; Cleveland 116, Sacramento 95; Chicago 121, Phoenix 92 and Houston 113, San Antonio 95.

Houston's Akeem Olajuwon had 27 points, 18 rebounds, six blocked shots and four steals against San Antonio rookie center David Robinson, who countered with 24 points and 12 rebounds.

"Akeem is a super competitor and a real gamer," Houston coach Don Chaney said. "He really went out and challenged every shot and didn't make playing David Robinson personal. He just played his normal game."

The Rockets went on an 18-5 scoring run to take a 26-15 lead and had a 12-2 spurt in the second period, leading at the half 63-49.

San Antonio managed to get to 74-64 with 5:04 left in the third quarter, but Houston rallied to lead 86-70 going into the fourth quarter. The closest the Spurs got after that was 96-85 with 5:23 left.

Clippers 101, Timberwolves 96 OT Danny Manning scored six of his 26 points in overtime. Tony Campbell, who led Minnesota with 27 points, missed a potential game-winning 18-foot jumper at the end of regulation, then missed two of four free throws in the final 68 seconds of the extra period.

Charles Smith led the Clippers with 28 points, including the team's final six points in regulation.

Cavaliers 116, Kings 95 Chuck Brown scored nine of his 15 points in a 3 1/2-minute stretch of the fourth quarter.

With Cleveland ahead 87-82, Brown led a 13-4 Cavaliers spurt. John Williams scored the other four points during the rally to put Cleveland ahead 100-86 with 4:44 left, and the Cavaliers were never threatened after that.

Brad Daugherty led Cleveland with 26 points, while Rodney McCray paced the Kings with 27 points.

Hawks 113, Nuggets 102 Dominique Wilkins had 36 points and Moses Malone 25 points and 18 rebounds.

The Hawks never trailed after John Battie hit a 16-footer from the left side with one minute left in the third quarter, erasing a 76-75 deficit.

Joe Barry Carroll led Denver with 18 points.

Hornets 97, Nets 83 Armon Gilliam scored 13 straight points in a 16-1 Charlotte run early in the second period.

Gilliam finished with 28 points and 11 rebounds. Purvis Short led New Jersey with 23 points.

Bulls 121, Suns 92 Michael Jordan, playing only the first three periods, scored 28 points and Scottie Pippen added 27.

Tom Chambers led the Suns with 20 points.

Exhibition games start

By JIM DONAGHY
AP Baseball Writer

It didn't take long for the players - and the fans - to get back to talking baseball.

For most of the winter, the talk was about lockouts, arbitration eligibility and minimum salaries. On Monday, it was time to play ball after a long delay because of the 32-day lockout while the players and owners negotiated a new contract.

"I couldn't sleep last night, I wanted to get here so bad," San Francisco manager Roger Craig said. "This sure beats doing everything else we were doing."

After the Giants' exhibition opener with Cleveland, Craig's contract was extended through the 1992 season.

"I'm 60, but as long as I feel healthy and enjoy what I am doing, I'll keep going," Craig said. "It was fun just to be back managing again today."

Not everyone was smiling, though.

"It was a flat-rat, dull piece of junk," Milwaukee manager Tom Trebelhorn said after watching his Brewers lose 7-0 to the Seattle Mariners at Tempe, Ariz. "It surely wasn't worth waiting 30 days for. We fulfilled our obligation to be here. That's all you can say about that game."

Athletics 6, Cubs 5

At Phoenix, pinch-hitter Steve Howard bounced a two-run single to center with two out and the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth inning as defending World Series champion Oakland beat Chicago.

Russell hoping to pick up where he left off in '89

PORTRAIT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP)
After back-to-back fizzles in 1987 and 1988, Texas Rangers pitcher Mike Jeffcoat is hoping to put together back-to-back sizzles.

Jeffcoat fizzled in his first two cursory look-sees with the Texas Rangers and was shipped back to the minor leagues. But last season Jeffcoat burst into the starting rotation in late May and refused to leave.

He finished the season with a 9-6 record 3.58 ERA as a starter.

Now he begins 1990 with the unaccustomed security of having a starting assignment.

"It's a different feeling starting out this year but I'm not approaching it any different from any other spring," Jeffcoat said. "I've got to perform to stay where I am."

"I won't be looking over my shoulder to see what the other guys are doing. I'm just going to put in a quality effort every chance I get."

Jeffcoat got his chance when Jamie Moyer sat out three months with a shoulder injury.

It was just a matter of manager Bobby Valentine giving Jeffcoat a longer look than the two previous years, Jeffcoat said.

"The past two years I'd come up and not done a good job but I still believed in myself," Jeffcoat said. "I just kept telling myself and the coaches to give me five or six starts and then evaluate me."

"Fortunately, it worked out. I kept getting starts and my confidence started to improve."

Jeffcoat is in a rotation that includes fastball specialists Nolan Ryan and Bobby Witt, knuckleballer Charlie Hough and Kevin Brown, who tied a rookie record with 12 victories last season.

Jeffcoat doesn't pretend he's got the natural talent of some of the other starters.

"I'm what's called, if they want to use the nice term, a 'crafty lefthander,'" Jeffcoat said. "I'm not a player that's blessed with a lot of talent."

"I'm somebody who has to change speeds and be able to consistently throw strikes in different locations. I have to control the inside of the plate to get batters out on the outside of the plate."

Jeffcoat pitched two shutouts last season in consecutive home starts against California and Cleveland, leading the team in that category.

He allowed 2.29 walks per nine innings, the best ratio on the staff and a valued statistic since the Rangers led the major leagues in walks.

"He finally got an opportunity and the manager stuck with him," Rangers general manager Tom Grieve said. Now the starting job is Jeffcoat's to lose.

"He deserves to go to spring training with the job," Grieve said. "He'll have to pitch well to keep it but that's the case with everyone."

Lamar wants Haskins

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - Don Haskins, the only Texas head basketball coach ever to win the NCAA Tournament, has talked to Lamar University about their vacant head coaching job, an El Paso newspaper reported.

Haskins, who has coached at Texas-El Paso for 29 years, did not return telephone calls, the El Paso Times reported today.

Lamar Chancellor George

McLaughlin said Haskins, who discussed the opening with Lamar officials on Sunday, is among the leading candidates for the job.

"We're very high on Don Haskins. Yes, I have spoken to him," McLaughlin told the newspaper.

Lamar fired Tony Branch earlier this month after the Cardinals went 7-21, the school's worst season ever. Lamar is an NCAA Division I school and a member of the American South Conference. It is located in Beaumont. Television station KJAC in Port Arthur said Haskins was frustrated with UTEP's athletic department administration.

Chronic laryngitis forced Haskins, 59, to miss most of last season. Assistant Norm Ellenberger ran the team for the final three months and led the Miners to the NCAA tournament with a Western Athletic Conference tournament championship. The Miners finished the season 28-1.

ATTORNEY FOR THE ESTATE

A new project aimed at helping children who are at home alone after school is being implemented by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the American Home Economics Association (AHEA).

Project Home Safe is designed to help parents of latchkey children find alternative solutions to self care, said Dr. Sarah Anderson, family life specialist with the Extension Service.

This national outreach project includes research, training, material development and starting or strengthening of community school-age child care programs throughout the United States.

Volunteers are trained to work with coalitions of community leaders to assess local needs, identify available resources and develop a plan to solve community problems of children in self care at local levels, Anderson said.

In Texas, the ongoing project will involve various counties in training, planning and implementation phases. Training sessions are scheduled for Mount Pleasant, March 21-22; McAllen, April 18-19; Lubbock, May 22-23; Nacogdoches, June 19-20; and San Antonio, Aug. 7-8. Anyone interested in participating can contact the county Extension office in that area.

Positive results have been reported from areas that received training last year, Anderson said.

Randall County, for example, has established an after school program licensed by the Texas Department of Human Services. The program has a staff that consists of a director, teachers and aids. Parents pay $15 a week for the first child and $10 a week for each additional child. Scholarships have been established to aid parents who are unable to afford the full amount. Gray and Dallam counties have similar programs.

In other counties, Extension agents and volunteers have conducted programs on aspects of home safety for youth and adult audiences and have developed lesson plans and educational materials for kids and parents.

Recent census data indicate that about 2.1 million children, or eight percent of the U.S. children between the ages of five and 13, spend some time in self-care, Anderson said.

Some child development professionals, however, estimate this number to be three or four times larger; many latchkey situations are not reported because parents fear the consequences to child neglect laws in some states.

"People are worried about the safety, health and welfare of school-age children at home alone," she said. "While children in self-care are not a product of the 1980s, the magnitude of the problem is."

A 1987 Louis Harris national survey of teachers and parents found that teachers identify leaving children alone after school as the number one cause of trouble in public education, Anderson said.

"In this survey parents agreed with teachers," she said. "They're worried about leaving their children alone and are willing to enroll them in after-school programs, even if there's a cost."

Youth programs have been established in many states to help solve local problems, she said. Such innovative community projects include:

* A hot line that allows children to talk out their fears with grandparent surrogates;

* Check-in services provided by family day home care providers that require children to call and let them know they have arrived home safely;

* Supervised after school-adventures, craft or hobby clubs organized by parents; and * After-school child care programs initiated by County Extension home economists, 4-H clubs, local school districts or concerned community members.

Many local programs are successful, but not publicized, Anderson said. The AHEA headquarters has a resource center and hot line for parents and other concerned adults. They can call the toll-free hot line, 1-800-252-SAFE, to obtain information about the latchkey issues and school-age child care programs in their area.

In communities that offer no alternative to latchkey arrangements, training for children in self-care will be provided by Project Home Safe volunteers, Anderson said. In addition, Project Home Safe volunteers will work to create awareness of the needs and problems of young children who care for themselves.

"A major goal is to provide individuals with safety skills to use on their own," she said. "A good quality safe place for children is the ultimate goal."

Abundant Life

BY BOB WEAR
Let The Light In

We can keep the light out of our lives in a number of ways. We easily understand how we can keep the light of the physical world out of our lives.

The sun may be shining, the birds singing, the beautiful flowers blooming, and the day be bright and cheery; but if we hide in the house with the shades drawn, we separate ourselves from the light.

We received a letter from a person who had shut out all the physical light, and isolated herself in the darkness. For her, it was a kind of symbolism. She was filled with shame and regrets and was under the heavy burden of remorse and depression. She was hiding or trying to hide.

There is light for us, for all of us; for our spiritual and inner house. It is all around us and we either permit it to enter into our lives or we, one way or another, refuse to let it in.

"Science and art may invent modes of illuminating our places of abode, but these are all poor and worthless compared with the light that the sun pours freely, impartially over the eastern and western sky, and so the common lights of reason and conscience and love are of more worth and dignity than the rare endowments which may belong to a privilege few." -Channing.

Let us open our lives to the things which are true, honorable, just, pure, lovable and lovely, the things of good report and things worthy of praise and live in the light and warmth in which are souls and our lives will prosper.

Let the light in to illuminate the golden moment of opportunity and to help us see the good that is within our reach.

- WASHINGTON (AP) - Joy Baker, wife of former Senate Republican leader Howard Baker, will undergo lung surgery Wednesday, says a family spokesman.

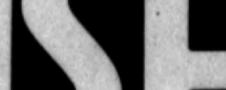

Mrs. Baker was admitted Monday to St. Marys Hospital in Rochester, Minn., said spokesman Tom Griscom. The hospital is affiliated with the Mayo Clinic.

Mrs. Baker underwent surgery for lung cancer in 1982. Griscom said he did not think she had experienced a recurrence of the disease, but that Baker wanted to wait until after the surgery to provide further details.

Hobbs receives honor

Deana Hobbs, a sophomore student at South Plains College in Levelland, was judged "Best Dressed Texan" during the recent Encounters With Fashion Show.

Contestants for the event, sponsored by the fashion merchandising students, were judged on clothes, grooming and personality. Hobbs was nominated by the P.E. Majors Club.

Deana, daughter of Roy and Trudy Hobbs of Hereford, graduated from Hereford High School in 1988. She was also Miss Hereford 1988.

SUVA, Fiji (AP) - O. Stillman Rockefeller, scion of one of the world's richest families, was bitten by a shark while swimming at an exclusive island resort once owned by Malcolm Forbes.

Rockefeller, 30, was injured Saturday in waist-deep water off Laucala Island, according to The Fiji Times newspaper. He said he felt his right leg being pulled and looked down to see cuts caused apparently by two bites.

He said he swam to shore and crawled to his bungalow, where he telephoned for help. At dawn Sunday, he was taken by the Forbes' private plane to a hospital in Lautoka, Fiji's second-largest city, and later flew to the United States.

Rockefeller is the grandson of James S. Rockefeller, who was a chairman of the City Bank of New York, which became Citibank.

Biological control successful

The American Association of Nurserymen reminds us that for many years, man has employed the natural enemies of pests, in efforts to reduce weed and insect destruction to environment and agriculture.

In 1889, the USDA introduced biological pest control to this country. In an attempt to save California citrus groves from a rampaging pest called "cottony cushion scale," the agency brought in Australian Vedalia beetles, which belong to the ladybird beetle family. The newcomers put a stop to the citrus pest and are still used, one hundred years later, to keep it in check. And despite the enormous growth in citrus production through the years, the beetle continues to do an excellent job of keeping groves pest-free.

This first exercise in biological control quickly developed into a widely used standard and today is receiving more attention than ever before. Similar efforts have significantly reduced the populations of many insect pests and weeds. Research into new pathogens and predators continues overseas in four USDA laboratories.

Other successes include: reduced use of insecticides on growing eggplants in New Jersey, due to the tiny parasitic wasp of the Colorado Potato Beetle; the combined forces of seven-spotted ladybird beetles and our native ladybird beetles have reinforced the ongoing battle against aphids on ornamental plants; European weevils that appear highly capable of controlling Maryland's Musk Thistle weed; and, the arrival of foreign predators and pathogens to at least partially control the gypsy moth.

Since the 1889, the immigration of more than 600 species of pests necessitated the practice of importing their natural enemies. Scientists have successfully located many of these enemies; currently over 220 species are serving, at least in part, to protect U.S. agriculture and plant material.

To learn more about this approach to pest and weed management, talk to the professionals at your local retail nursery/garden center.

Easter Pageant, "The Third Day"

Pageant set April 13-15

The San Jon United Methodist Church at San Jon, N.M. will be sponsoring the second annual presentation of an original pageant, "The Third Day", on April 13, the night of Good Friday, at 7 p.m. (M.D.T.) and April 15, Easter Sunday, at 5:30 a.m. (M.D.T.)

Both performances will begin with singing performed by various members of the community. The main purpose of the pageant is to glorify Christ and acknowledge His miraculous resurrection on the third day.

Holy Land, and the costuming of the cast will help the audience feel they are present in Jerusalem as these events take place. (In case of inclement weather, the pageant will be moved to the San Jon High School gymnasium.)

Both presentations will begin with singing performed by various members of the community. The main purpose of the pageant is to glorify Christ and acknowledge His miraculous resurrection on the third day.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: If your purse or wallet were stolen or lost, would you know what's in it? How many credit cards? Who would you call?

Before that happens, make a list of all of your credit cards and leave it in a secured place at home. Include each account number, name used on the card, expiration date and the phone number of the main office in case you need to notify them.

Write down your automated teller machine card number, personal identification number and the telephone number of the bank.

Carry only one or two major credit cards at a time. How many do you really use?

Kahlich inducted into Texas Alpha Kappa

Tricia Kahlich, a Tarleton State University student from Hereford, was one of 52 inducted this spring into the Texas Alpha Kappa Chapter of Alpha Chi, the national honorary scholastic society.

A 1988 graduate of Hereford High School, Tricia is majoring in general business at the university. She is the daughter of William and Marilyn Kahlich.

Membership in Alpha Chi is limited to approximately the upper 10 percent, academically of the junior and senior class and to be eligible a student must have at least a 3.62 grade point average.

The objectives of Alpha Chi are to promote and to recognize superior scholarship and those elements of character that make for effective service. The society, founded in 1922, has more than 218 chapters in 44 states and represents the highest academic honor on any member campus. The Texas Alpha Kappa Chapter at Tarleton was established in the fall of 1968.

Chapter sponsors, Dr. Robert C. Fain, Dr. Jim Kirby, Dr. Ruby Barker, and Mrs. Veleda Boyd, conducted the induction ceremonies which were held on the TSU campus. Alpha Chi officers for the 1989-90 school year are Laurie Hareson, president; Mark Morvant, vice president; Brian Barker, secretary; and Tracy Totten, treasurer.

Alzheimer's news available

The Alzheimer's Support Group has established a library shelf at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center. The shelf includes helpful information for families, especially the caregivers. There are videos, leaflets and books.

One book, titled "36 Hour Day", gives information to anyone who takes care of the Alzheimer's disease patient at home, perhaps the most difficult assignment anyone might undertake.

These books may be checked out at the library shelf at the center.

Names will be listed when checking out and deleted when returning the books. Other information will be available for keeping personal references.

The material has been written and printed by the foremost United States authorities on Alzheimer's and have been furnished for public use:

A packet giving information on the history of the disease, some of the symptoms and guidelines in caring for the patient, are included.

The necessity for caring for the caregiver is often overlooked. This will help the caregiver as well as the families concern for the care of the caregiver.

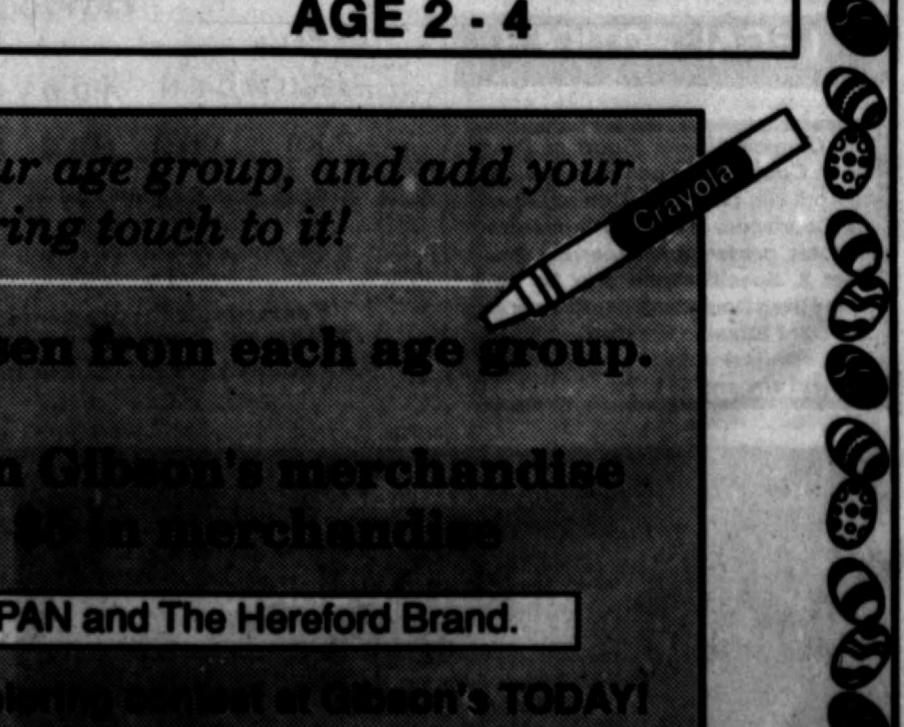

If interested in obtaining a packet, call 276-5263 at 6 p.m.
