FREE DELIVERY OF MAIL POSSIBLE IF REQUIRE- MENTS OF UNCLE SAM MET

Hereford's postal receipts have reached an amount which entitles the city to apply for free mail delivery within the corporate limits. It is reported at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon Monday, and an effort is to be made at once to secure this convenience from the postal department. Postmaster J. A. Wear took up the matter officially with the Department as soon as the minimum fixed by postal regulations has been reached, and the Inspector for this district is now ready to look over the situation as soon as all postal regulations are met.

The postal regulations say that before a town can make application for free mail delivery it must have a population of 5,000. Its postal receipts must have reached the $10,000 per annum mark. In addition to this, the sidewalks must be connected, crossings in good condition, for the convenience of the carriers, streets must be named and marked, and houses numbered.

The postal receipts here passed the $10,000 mark some time ago, and Postmaster Wear immediately applied for free delivery consideration. The papers in the case were referred to Inspector Johnson at Amarillo, and last Saturday J. A. Wear made a trip there and talked over the situation with Mr. Johnson. The latter said he was ready to make the inspection whenever the regulations had been complied with, as outlined above. All which put it right up to the city commission and the citizens to get busy and arrange things for the inspection.

Monday Mayor Ireland suggested to the Chamber of Commerce an advisory committee be appointed to confer with the Commission and figure out details of house numbers, etc. The committee will probably be contracted and sold individually by the special committee. President Black pointed A. H. Stren, chairman, S. Rossion and George V. Starnitz as the Chamber of Commerce Committee to assist the City Commission in this matter.

There are probably enough sidewalks here now to pass the inspection, although it may develop that some additions will have to be built in order to hook up existing strings of sidewalks. The real work will consist in the street markers and house numbers.

There does not appear to be any difficulties in the way of securing free mail delivery some time this winter or spring, and every effort will be made by the commission and committee to speed up the preliminary work.

Renfro Building Is Leased By Handley

A monumental deal in leased property was completed this week which affects four business concerns here and means a general moving of all of them.

Ernest B. Handley, local Ford Agent, has leased the entire Renfro building on West Third street, just half a block off Main, from the Renfro Estate, and will move into his new location just as soon as alterations in the building are made, and the present tenants find a place to which to move. The lease is for a term of years.

Besides the Hereford Motor Company (Ford), other business concerns affected are the Renfro Brothers, Hudson and Essex dealers, Beams & Marrs, machinists and auto mechanics, and the Hiway Garage, Kibler & McLaughlin, proprietors.

When interviewed, Wednesday none of these could give any clue as to where they would move. The deal between Mr. Handley and Renfro Brothers was only completed Wednesday forenoon, and they had not had time to make definite plans. At present Hereford is woefully lacking in business, as well as residence buildings, to accommodate the new demands here, and all of the business concerns affected by this move have serious problems ahead of them.

Visiting Pastor Enlivens the Weekly Luncheon With Wit and Humor; Peppy Meeting Is Held

The weekly luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce, held at the City Cafe last Monday, was enlivened by the presence and addresses from the Rev. Leslie Finnell and his co-worker in the Christian revival here, J. Arthur Bryant, singer.

Rev. Mr. Finnell, a young pastor with a big church at Paris, Texas, is a "regular fellow," a humorist, a story teller and a minister who enjoys his religion and his surroundings as he goes along. He had his audience laughing from start to finish and left them in an excellent good humor. Mr. Bryant made a few modest remarks in keeping with the spirit of the occasion.

President Black officially reported the action of the new board in re-electing all old officers, and again called attention to the Advertising and Charity committees of the organization, urging the merchants to use both. Solicitors for advertising schemes, etc., should be referred to A. O. Thompson, chairman of this committee, for examination and recommendation.

Col. H. H. Haines, of Houston, Texas, Republican candidate for Governor, made his first campaign speech after the second primary at Hereford last Friday afternoon. A full-sized audience heard the distinguished visitor outline the aims, hopes and ambitions of his party in this state.

Col. Haines was met here by a representative committee of local Republicans and afforded every courtesy. The candidate has a distinguished war record and is also well known in South and Central Texas as a keen and successful business man.

His talk greatly pleased his followers here and many Democrats, while differing of course, from his political doctrine, applauded the candidate's evident earnestness and sincerity.

TOTAL OF 713 STUDENTS SECOND WEEK BREAKS ALL RECORDS OF PAST

The first of the second week of school broke the record for number enrolled when a total of 713 of this number, 243 were in the high school, 120 in the departmental grades, and 350 in the first five grades, or in Central School. Doubtless a few more have come in since these figures were obtained, and a few more have already dropped out of school, but the total will very likely stay well over 700 for some time and may increase materially.

The School Board found it necessary to add another teacher to relieve the crowded conditions in Central School. After the addition of the teacher was arranged for on last Friday it was discovered that there was an average of thirty-five children to the room in that building. The 350 enrolled in that building were there last week and did not include a few who had already dropped out, nor the few who started the first of this week. The addition of another teacher relieved conditions but still left a higher average enrollment per room than the school has had the past few years. It also required the use of the last satisfactory room in the building and all of the available desks that could be spared from other rooms. In spite of the unexpected numbers and the difficulties encountered as a result the situation has been taken care of in a way that will enable good work to be done in all departments under existing conditions.

Dr. J. W. Hicks and fifteen of his friends celebrated the Doctor's birthday Wednesday night at his residence with a wonderful dinner and stag party. The evening was spent in purely social intercourse, without formality, and was hugely enjoyed by those fortunate enough

Christian Revival Starts Out Like a Winner

The revival at the First Christian church began under very auspicious circumstances last Sunday morning. The auditorium was filled for the morning service and at night some were required to go to the balcony. The evangelist, J. Leslie Finnell, said that he had never held a meeting where such thorough and splendid preparation had been made as Bro. Morgan, the minister of the local church, had made here.

In addition to the services being held each evening at 7:45, three morning services were held the first of the week at which time the evangelist gave a series of sermons on a "World Message." The Monday morning sermon on the World's Greatest Need was the subject of an exceedingly able message. The world is in need of the Christ more than anything else. It needs His love, His teachings, His examples, His sacrificial life, His forgiveness, His redemption, Jesus said, "If I be lifted up, I will draw all men unto me." Only by lifting up the Christ will the world's needs be met. Yet it is impossible to reach the millions of humanity, dying without Christ, unless the churches get together. The greatest progress made by the Church of Christ was made in the three centuries following the death of our Lord when there was one church only. A united church is the only thing that can lift the Christ to His rightful place, where all peoples of all nations may be held, believe in, and follow Him.

J. Arthur Bryant, leader of song, is an evangelistic singer of song, experience and great ability. He leads the big volunteer choir in the singing of good gospel hymns to the delight of all. He is also an excellent soloist.

The First Christian Church of Hereford extends a very cordial invitation to all readers of The Brand to attend the revival.

New Palace Meat Market Opened Thursday

Thursday morning opened the Palace Meat Market in the C. S. Purcell Cash Grocery. Frigidaire equipment throughout has been installed and the two concerns are offering a joint market and grocery service to their patrons. Mr. Sanders will do the buying and slaughtering for the new market, while Mr. Crosthwait will have charge of the market proper.

Washington Woman Inspects Land Here

Mrs. L. P. Hendricks of Washington, D. C., who owns valuable improved farm land just southwest of Hereford, is here this week looking after business interests. Mrs. Hendricks is an old and valued Brand subscriber and renewed the paper while here. She believes in the Panhandle and is a booster for the future of this part of the country.

Mothers Club Installs Mrs. Tynes In Chair

The Mother's Club held its opening meeting at the home of Mrs. Sherman Williams, September 14, with the new president, Mrs. Tynes, in the chair. The new members were welcomed by the president. After a short business session a very interesting program was rendered, "Seeing America in a Flivver."

Roll Call—The most pleasant experience of my vacation. Carlsbad Cave—Mrs. Bell. The Great Lakes—Mrs. Conkright. The Grand Canyon—Mrs. GIBLAND. Yellowstone Park—Mrs. Tynes. The program was very unique and illustrated by pictures. Delicious refreshments were served by Deaf Smith County's Annual Free Fair, 1926 model, opened Thursday morning under most auspicious outlook. The Community Agricultural Booths and the live stock departments appear to be larger and more representative than ever before, while the ladies' division promises to uphold the traditions of the past and to present a varied exhibition of unusual interest. Fourteen splendid Merchants' Booths were ready for inspection. A raft of concessions have been sold and tempted here.

While all the departments were not completed for the opening on Thursday, an army of workers were on the job bright and early, and the scope was an animated and interesting one. The automobile and community booths are on the first floor, in front, live stock exhibits in the barn in the rear, and the ladies and merchants' booths upstairs in the Armory department. Concessions of all kinds are scattered about the grounds in front and on the side of the Pavilion.

The officials of the Fair were disappointed Thursday that the carnival which they had engaged failed to materialize. Special effort has been made to secure a merry-go-round for the kiddies, but up to Thursday had been without result. There are several special attractions, however, on the grounds to lend festive appearance to the affair.

Jake Tiefel, superintendent of construction, finished his work on booths for the business men and agricultural exhibits Wednesday. Col. Ray Barber, superintendent of sales, is ready for the big Jersey sale Saturday. Superintendent Homer Fox reported all merchants' booth space sold. Byron McDonald, poultry manager, was receiving birds bright and early Thursday morning. John McDonald, superintendent of the beef cattle division, received his first entries Tuesday and is predicting an unusually large show this year. Great credit is due Mr. McDonald for hard work performed, as he has not only looked after his own department, but has been general handy man for everybody as well. Ross Fuller said the Boys' Big Club will have about the same showing in point of numbers as last year, and Berry Orr, in charge of dairy cattle, expects three big classes, Jerseys, Holsteins, and Guernseys. The dairy division will be the largest ever shown in Hereford, with possibly seventy-five entries.

Prof. C. W. Humble and his Vocational classes are constructing their booths over the main entrance to the agricultural department. Ladies' department, has worked like a beaver for weeks, and is expecting a large entry list for her various divisions. Company E, Texas National Guards, in whose rooms some of the exhibits are housed, refused to be left out and will have an exhibit of their own. Great interest is being manifested in this unique display.

It is announced that special musical numbers have been arranged for Friday and Saturday afternoon, consisting of vocal and piano solos by Misses Faye Bennett and Francis Guinn. A very much appreciated feature of this year's Fair, as it was in 1925, is the fine exhibit from the West Texas Teachers College at Canyon. The exhibit arrived Thursday, in charge of Professor Moore.

Frank Marrs Shot 35 On Local Golf Course

Frank Marrs, official champion of the Hereford golf club, again proved his class Sunday when he shot a clean 35, one under par. But for two short putts which he missed, he would have established a new record. He was accompanied on the round by J. R. Roden and a visitor. The score card shows: 3-5-4-3-4-4-3-4-35.

J. I. Funderburg has opened a Fruit and Vegetable Stand in the Auction Sales Stand building formerly the R. B. R. Implement location, on Main Street, and is handling a full line of fresh fruits

There Is a Way To Secure Better Fones Here

At a recent meeting of the Chamber of Commerce the question of better telephone service was discussed. A desire for the drop light system of central control was expressed, and after talking the matter over a committee was named to study the problem.

Last week Mayor Ireland went to Amarillo and went over the matter with District Manager Geo. H. Hill. Upon his return he told the Chamber of Commerce Monday of the result of his trip, substantially as follows:

Mr. Hill said that if Hereford wanted a new central board and improved facilities, the same could be acquired if the people here were willing to pay for it. As The Brand understands the proposition, the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company bases its service upon financial returns from each town; that it does not consider Hereford at present entitled to more modern equipment and service, judged from present financial income to the company. But the company is willing to furnish this additional service if a raise in rates sufficient to justify the outlay is allowed.

The Mayor states that Canyon has recently accepted a raise in rates and is now having better service installed.

President Black of the Chamber of Commerce has appointed a committee consisting of Judge L. C. Penry, chairman; G. W. Brunley and Bolo McLean to study the problem and report their recommendations.

Tourist Growth Is Forcing Paved Roads Now

E. W. Harrison, chairman of the Highway Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, accompanied by Secretary Moss and Glenn Snyder, attended the meeting of the Abilene Highway association held at Canadian last Monday. The party drove through in Mr. Snyder's car. They returned Tuesday.

The meeting was thinly attended by Texas delegates and by large numbers of Oklahoma delegates, according to the returning tourists. They are a little pessimistic over the outlook for road co-operation through this section but hope for better times in the near future. The sense of the meeting was that tourists of the future are to follow paved routes, and if this country hopes to hold the increasing stream of vacation seekers, it will be necessary to compete with other routes in terms of hard-surfaced roads.

Friday Is Constitution Day In U. S.

Friday, September 17, is Constitution Day in the United States. It is the anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution, and the Sons of the American Revolution, all over the nation are preparing to fittingly celebrate it. G. A. R. Parker, local member of the organization, calls the attention of The Brand to the occasion.

It is urged by the Sons that every red blooded American read the Constitution Friday, and urge as many of their friends to do so.

What's Doing In West Texas.

Baird—This city is in the midst of a big building boom. Nine new residences are going up in different sections of the city, which will be followed by still others. At present there is only one rent house vacant in the city, which is accounted for by the numbers of people who have come into the city for the school term. There is not a vacant building in the entire business area of the city. Rupert Jackson is having a new brick garage built on the Bankhead Highway, which has recently been completed in the section between Baird and Cisco.

Deal—Arrangements have been completed for the opening of a school at Deal, a new town on the Rock Island Railroad, according to Miss Laura V. Hamner, superintendent of the Potter County Schools. Although the town was started only a few weeks ago, it shows signs of permanency. Deal is located on the slopes of Antelope Peak, in the center of a productive agricultural and grazing country, on the new survey of the Rock Island, thirty-five miles to the north-east of Amarillo.

Amarillo—The Board of City Development, Chamber of Commerce and the West Texas Chamber of Commerce have moved into their new offices to the Municipal Auditorium. Carpenters have been at work on the offices, getting ready for the removal, which was made a few days ago. An added feature of the new suite of offices is the lounging room, where visitors may rest and inspect literature of Amarillo and the Panhandle placed at their disposal. Officials of these organizations have made statements to the effect that they are well pleased with the change, and with the improvements already been made.

Lubbock—Automobile stickers are announcing the "Peddlers' Jubilee," to be held in Lubbock September 18. This will be the fifth annual meeting of traveling salesmen from all over the Southwest who will be the guests of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. A big street parade will be held, and a big baseball game has been scheduled which will fill a part of the program after the Knights of the Grip have registered at the new Hotel Lubbock. Reservations are being made now for the Jubilee.

Stamford—Literature from all towns and cities in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce territory is being sent in to the Agricultural and Industrial exhibit at the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition, being held in Philadelphia, to be distributed among the numerous visitors who call at the booth. This exhibit is being maintained by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and Homer D. Wade, manager of the organization, is urging that every West Texas town take advantage of the opportunity of free advertising in numerous sections of the United States, and in many foreign countries. At the same time, the entire sections will be given a boost.

KEISER STEERS TOP KANSAS CITY MARKET FOR THE YEAR.

Panhandle bred steers again established another record on the Kansas City market Thursday when the top price of the year was reached at $11.00 per hundred by a shipment of twenty-four senior yearling steers from the herd of U. O. Keiser of Canyon. The steers average 1,001 pounds, and were the product of Panhandle Herefords, bred in Randall county and finished for the market largely on Panhandle feeds. No particular effort had been made by Mr. Keiser to establish a record with this shipment. The sale of this bunch of steers at the record price was made against the shipments from some of the noted herds and finishing sections of the Mississippi Valley.

The record of $11.00 is the top on yearlings for this year, not only in Kansas City, but also on the Chicago market, bringing further credit to Panhandle steers. Mr. Keiser states that the steers were the culs from his herd of registered Herefords. He has advocated among the Hereford breeders that the use of registered bulls will improve the beef production of the Southwest, and this is a fine example from his own herd. Word from Kansas City states that this shipment of steers dressed unusually high.

This record was given more publicity by Kansas City newspapers than any shipment of the year. Mr. Keiser has broken several records with his Herefords during the past few years. On August 14th he opened the market at $10.40 with a shipment of steers is firmly convinced that the cattle business is coming back strong, which will mean much to the breeders of the Panhandle and the Southwest. He has a herd of about 1500 cows on his ranches in Randall county, practically all of them registered and pure bred Herefords. He uses only registered and pure bred bulls, and the record of his steers on the market show the full effects of this breeding to the best blood lines.

Two car loads of long yearling steers are being prepared for the American Royal show this fall and are expected to add another record to the Keiser Hereford herd.

Agricultural Conditions in Santa Fe States On September 1st, 1926

This statement is prepared from reports received August 30, from the several states served by Santa Fe system lines. It is intended to give those who make inquiries about the crop situation in a Santa Fe territory information as reliable as it is possible to obtain.

With good crops harvested in places, or to be harvested before winter, autumn brings to the Southwest a feeling of security for the present and for the future. True, there are spots over the vast empire of five states served by the Santa Fe railway where excessive heat has caused trouble, particularly for corn and cotton; but the price of cattle and sheep when it did sent the farmer's profits which many were dependent upon; and market conditions have not been favorable all the time for some of the fruit, vegetable and melon crops; but the farming situation generally can be counted upon as satisfactory. It is believed by conservative producers that when the returns for 1926 are in, it will be found that the total crop for the Southwest will be above the normal average for post-war period.

Cotton.
The eyes of the country are now turned to cotton, as they turned a month ago, and this is a season of the year when writers about crops hesitate to make statements about cotton. The last weeks in August and the first weeks in September usually tell the story. Extremely hot weather apparently has hurt the crop in Texas and Oklahoma, but damage can be overcome largely by favorable weather. Loss on account of insects is reported in the central and western parts of Texas; the western third has not suffered much from this cause.

The total cotton acre of the United States this year is 48,898,000. The acreage in seven states served by the Santa Fe railway is only 56 per cent of the total as follows:

State	Acreage	Per Cent
Alabama	18,948,000	61
Arkansas	5,160,000	75
Mississippi	1,979,000	64
Louisiana	488,000	74
Georgia	168,000	83
Florida	167,000	94
Mexico	132,000	86

Per cent of condition as shown from the government report of August 16. The condition August 30 had not changed very much. The estimated cotton yield in the United States this year is 15,000,000 bales, and for seven Santa Fe cotton states is above, half the total, or 7,500,000 bales.

Fruits, Vegetables, Melons.
California has produced enormous quantities of fruit and vegetables have been canned. Not only in California has it been a good year for the growers of fruit, vegetables and melons, but also in Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Colorado and Louisiana. The area devoted to these crops is about the same as last year, with a small increase in Texas; but the yields apparently are greater, and the quality of the products are much better.

Corn and Other Feed.
Silos proved their worth from the Great Lakes to the Panhandle when the heat waves began whipping the life out of corn. Farmers in various parts of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas lost no time getting into their fields with cutters, saving immense quantities of good feed. More ensilage has been made from corn this season than ever before. The final figures will show a heavy decrease in the corn yield, but the decrease will not be all loss; a large part of it actually will be safe in the silos.

Good yields of grain sorghums have been made all over the Southwest and there is a normal crop of alfalfa, except in Kansas where it is short.

Livestock.
Pastures have held up unusually well in most of the territory described. Dry weather caused damage in Kansas, but early fall rains are bringing the grass out again.

The Texas ranges are in exceptionally good condition. Cattlemen have been disturbed about prices, and the industry has suffered to a considerable extent; but there is nothing like a calamity, such as was experienced at the close of the war. The sheepmen have done fairly well; so have the hog raisers. The year gives promise of being the best since the war for the poultry industry. Indications are that the dairy industry will show a substantial gain.

Winter Wheat.
The winter wheat area to be planted in the United States this fall is estimated at about 45,000,000 acres, an increase of 14 per cent any other years except 1918, 1920, 1921 and 1922.

Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and the Panhandle of Texas where more than half of all the winter wheat of the United States is grown, will increase its wheat acreage from 15 to 20 per cent, if weather conditions are favorable. A large area of prairie land was broken this year in the four states named, and practically all of it will be planted to wheat. Illinois, Missouri, New Mexico and California will plant about a normal acreage. There will be a small increase in Colorado.

More early preparation for wheat has been made in the Southwest than in any previous year in the history of the industry, showing that the new method of beating drouth and pests is winning favor among growers. The late summer moisture supply has been fair, although Kansas needs more rain. The average abandonment of winter wheat throughout the U. S. in 13 years ending 1926 has been 13 per cent. If this average for the 1927 crop holds good, the area coming to harvest in 1927 would be 39,250,000 acres. The average production for 15 years ending 1926 has been 15.7 bushels per acre. If this holds good in 1927 the winter wheat yield would be 617,000,000 bushels for the United States.

The 1926 spring wheat area covered 29,594,000 acres; yield 123 bushels per acre, or 247,000,000 bushels for the United States. Counting an acreage equally as great in 1927, and a per acre yield the same, the spring wheat crop of 1927 would be 574,000,000 bushels. The estimate yield for 1926 is: Winter wheat, 626,000,000 bushels; spring wheat, 218,000,000 bushels; total 839,000,000. The five-year average has been 802,000,000 bushels.

Mills have been grinding 500,000,000 bushels annually; seed need is 85,000,000 bushels; feed, waste, etc., run around 61,000,000 bushels, leaving 168,000,000 for export. In 1925 the export was 148,000,000 bushels; in 1924 it reached 195,000,000 bushels; in 1923 it was 79,000,000 bushels, and in 1922 it was 155,000,000 bushels.

The world crop for 1926 was about normal. Other grains were short in 1926, making a fairly big demand for wheat.

Quite a Lot.
An inquisitive and curious neighbor woman had tried all means to find out how much the woman next door paid.

One day she met the woman's small son; seizing the opportunity by the horns she said:
That certainly is a nice fat you folks live in, Thomas.
Yes, ma'am.
How much does the landlord ask your mother for rent?
He asks quite a lot.
Haven't you any idea how much he asks?
Well, he asked three times last month!

AESOP'S FABLES

The Widow and the Sheep.

A certain poor Widow had one solitary Sheep. At shearing time, wishing to take his fleece, and to avoid expense, she sheared him herself, but used the shears so unskillfully, that with the fleece she sheared the flesh. The Sheep, writhing with pain, said, "Why do you hurt me so, Mistress? What weight can my blood add to the wool? If you want my flesh, there is the butcher, who will kill me in a trice; but if you want my fleece and wool, there is the shearer, who will shear and not hurt me."

The least outlay is not always the greatest gain.

The Girl in the Mirror

By Elizabeth Jordan

"When one is within an hour or two of the next world," she asked suddenly, "why should one tell anybody anything?"

"How long have you been in America?"

"All my life, off and on."

"This at least was reassuring. He glanced he saw a gleam of light. The girl had declared that she was not a spy, nor involved in war propaganda; but it was quite possible, he reasoned, that she was engaged in some little web of politics, of vast importance to her and her group, of very little importance to any one else.

"I suppose," he suggested cheerfully, "that net you've said so much about is a political net?"

"They had been speaking through me in low tones, inaudible at any time. Their nearest fellow workers were two middle-aged women at least thirty feet away. But she started violently under his gaze. She made a quick gesture of caution, and turning half-round, kept the room with a frightened face. Laurie, his cigarette forgotten in his fingers, watched her anxiously, taking in her evident tension, her slowly returning poise, and at last the little breath of relief with which she turned back to him.

"I wish I could tell you all you want to know," she said, "but—can't. That's all there is to it. Please let us change the subject."

His assurance returned.

"You're not a crowned head or an escaped princess or anything of that kind, are you?" he asked politely.

"This time she really laughed a low, low gurgle of laughter, joyous and contagious.

"No."

"Then let's get back to our bank account. We have plenty of time to run over to the Fifth avenue branch of the Corn Exchange bank before the closing hour. What color check book do you prefer?"

"I told you," she declared with sudden seriousness, "that my bank did not include sponging."

For the first time in the somewhat taxing interview her companion's good humor deserted him.

"My dear girl," he said, almost patiently, "don't beat the devil round the bush! You've got to tell me still we can find the right work for you, and that may take some time. You have intelligence enough to see that I'm neither a gay Locharie nor a Don Juan. In your present state of mind you're not fit to decide anything. Make up your mind, once for all, that I'm going to decide for you. It will save us both some trouble."

He stopped. He had discovered that she was not listening to him. He was sitting absolutely still, her head a little turned, her lips were tightly parted, and her eyes, wide and staring, were fixed on some one across the room.

Laurie's eyes followed hers. They focused on a man sitting alone at a little table. It was clear that he had just entered, for a waiter stood by his side, and the newcomer was giving judicious attention to the bill of fare.

He was a harmless-looking person, of medium height and rather more than medium stoutness, carefully dressed in a blue-serge suit. His indifference to dress was further betrayed by the fact that his ready-made four-in-hand tie had slipped the mooring of a white-bone stud, leaving that useful adjunct of the toilet open to the eyes of the world. His face was round, smooth-shaven, and rather pale. He had dark, slightly veiled gray eyes, which blinked near-sightedly at the man. Altogether he was a seemingly worthy person, to whom the casual observer would hardly have given a second glance.

While the two pairs of eyes across the room stared at him, he scanned his order to the waiter. It seemed a brief order, for the brow of the latter clouded as he wrote it down and detachedly strolled off. The newcomer leaned back in his chair, and, as he did so, glanced around the room. His projecting eyes, moving indifferently from table to table, suddenly rested, fixedly, on the girl. They showed interest, but no surprise. He bowed with a half-smile—an odd smile, bland, tolerant, and understanding. Then, disregarding her lack of response, he fixed his eyes on the wall facing him and waited for his luncheon to be served.

Laurie's attention returned to the girl. She was facing him again, but her eyes looked past him as if he were not there.

"He has found me, even here," she muttered. "Of course he would. He always does."

Laurie looked at her.

"Do you mean," he asked crisply, "that that chap across the room is following you around?"

She looked at him, as if abruptly recalled to the fact of his presence. Her eyes dropped.

"Yes," she muttered dully. "I may escape him for a time, but he always learns where I am. He will catch me when he chooses, and roll me about under his paw a while, and then—perhaps—let me go again."

"That sounds like a certain phase of domestic life," commented Laurie. "Is he by any chance your husband?"

Her eyes held a rising anger.

"He is not," she said. "I am not married."

Laurie dropped his dead cigarette into the ash tray, and rose with a sigh.

"It's all very confusing," he admitted, "and a digression from the main issue. But I'm afraid I shall have to resort to the exertion of reasoning with him."

She started up, but before she could protest or restrain him, he had left her and crossed the room to the stranger's table.

him. He was smiling. The man in blue serge was not. He looked puzzled, though vaguely responsive. A third person, watching the two, might almost have thought the episode the casual reunion of men who frequently lunched together.

Laurie leaned forward in his chair, rested one elbow on the table, and, opening his cigarette case, extended it to the stranger. The latter rejected it with a slight bow.

"Thank you, but not before lunch," he said quietly. His voice and manner were those of an educated man. The quality of his tones was slightly harsh.

Laurie lit a cigarette, blew out the match and looked straight into the stranger's projecting gray eyes. He had acted impulsively. Now that he was here, he was anxious to put the job over concisely and firmly, but, above all, neatly. There must be nothing done that would attract the attention of the few persons in the big room.

"I came over here," he said casually, "to mention to you that you are annoying the lady I am with. I wish to mention, also, that the annoyance must stop."

The glance of the stranger held Laurie observed with interest that the veiled look of the projecting eyes had changed a little. The change did not add to the stranger's charm.

"Before I answer you, tell me one thing," he said formally. "By what right do you act as the lady's protector?"

Laurie hesitated an instant. The question was embarrassing.

"Has she authorized you to act?"

"In a way, but—"

"How long have you known her? How well do you know her?"

Command of the interview was slipping from the younger man. He resolutely resented it.

"Look here," he said firmly, "came to this table to tell you some thing, but I will decide what it is to be. I am not here to answer questions. It is enough for you to know that circumstances have given me the right to protect the lady from annoyance. I want to make it clear to you that I shall exercise that right. Hereafter you are to let her alone. Do you understand? Absolutely alone. You are not to follow her, nor to enter places where she can see you," he recklessly ended.

The stranger looked at him through the light veil which again seemed to have fallen over the projecting eyes.

"I should really like to know," he said, "when and where you met her. I saw you starting off together in the taxi cab, but I am not quite sure whether your first encounter occurred this morning."

"And you won't be," Laurie stood up. "I've warned you," he said curtly. "I don't know how well you understand the laws in this country, but I fancy you know you cannot shadow a lady without getting into trouble."

"She admitted that?" The stranger appeared to experience a tepid glow of emotion. "She must know you better than I thought," he added reflectively. "Doris is not the type to pour her confidence into every new ear," he mused.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 12.—One of the notable additions to the instruction staff of the University of Texas for the coming year is Prof. E. H. C. Oliphant, former head of the English department at Carlton College, Melbourne, Australian. Mr. Oliphant is the author of several books and of numerous scholarly articles with reference to the Elizabethan drama and to musical history and composition. A new book of his, "The Plays of Beaumont and Fletcher," is about to be issued by the Yale University Press. During the past year he has lectured at Yale, Chicago, Princeton, Pennsylvania and other important American universities. He will offer senior and graduate courses in the contemporary European drama and in Elizabethan drama.

Another new member is Dr. Clark H. Slover, who was elected associate professor of English, who holds a bachelor's degree from Whitman College, Oregon, a master's degree from Harvard, and a doctor's degree from Chicago. He has taught in Oregon and in Chicago, but for the past year has been studying in England and Ireland on one of the Guggenheim fellowships. Dr. Slover will offer during the coming session English courses in the field formerly covered by comparative literature. One of these courses is to do with the development of tragedy.

We had a good day last Sunday, 234 at Sunday school, good crowds at church services. Ten were received into membership of the church, three by letter, four by baptism and three by vows. Two others who had formerly been received were baptized. Help us to make next Sunday a still better day.

There will be no evening service on account of the revival services at the First Christian church. Our people are urged to attend the meeting.

Our revival meeting will begin on October 3. Further announcements will be made from time to time.

First Presbyterian Church
JAS. T. ROSS, Pastor.

"Qualifying for Service" will be the subject for the pastor's message on next Sunday morning. Every member of the church should be rendering some useful service for God. It cannot be done, however, unless one qualifies for it. Are you qualified, church member? Come and hear the sermon. It may be of great help to you in your Christian life.

Sunday school, 9:45 a. m. Short congregational meeting following the sermon message for the consideration of important church matters. Sessional meeting following dismissal. Endeavor meetings contingent on plans for young people's work in the revival services now in progress at the First Christian church. No evening preaching services on account of revival at First Christian church and members of this church are urged to hear Rev. Finnell in these services at the evening hour.

Are you reading Brother Haymes' articles on the Sunday school lesson in the Hereford Brand? Read the article this week and be in your Sunday school class next Sunday—you will be a better Christian for having done both.

Women's Missionary Society will meet in the Sunday school room Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. Every woman of the church is urged to be present. An announcement of unusual interest will be made in connection with the preaching service next Sunday morning. Be there and hear it.

A cordial welcome awaits you at the services of this church. Visitors to the community are especially invited. Come and see for yourself.

The Sunday School Lesson.
FOR SEPTEMBER 19, 1926.
BY J. O. HAYMES.

Subject: Obedience to law.
Lesson Text: Leviticus 26:3-5, 14-20.
Golden Text: Lev. 10:9. "Do not drink wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee."

The Purpose of Law.
Many mistake the purpose of law to be to take away personal liberty. Its purpose is not to hamper one in any legitimate pursuit.

Law is rather to facilitate living together. It is to regulate human lives so as to bring the greatest benefit to all members of society. Law, in a word, is to protect society against the vicious and lawless.

Any law that accomplishes that purpose is a good and should be respected and obeyed. Failure to do so will bring evil results upon those who disobey and upon society as a whole.

Any law that does not accomplish that purpose should be repealed through the regular channels, but never nullified through premeditated disobedience.

The Prohibition Law.
There is probably no subject that is more discussed today in public print and in private conversation than our prohibition law—the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act. The people are really interested in the question as to what America is going to do with Prohibition.

And practically every voice we hear from over the sea tells us that our experiment is being very critically watched by the nations of the world. There is no doubt that if we succeed in this venture it will mean the early triumph of society over the accused liquor traffic and the hastening of the realization of many a fond dream—that of a dry world. It is equally certain that if we fail it will set back the cause of temperance and prohibition for at least several decades. We cannot afford to fail.

Can Prohibition Be Enforced?
It is a fundamental principle that is often overlooked that no law has the power to enforce itself. If it is not enforced by society its presence on the statute books becomes no more important than a "scrap of paper." Very few laws were ever perfectly enforced. Every law is enforced in direct proportion to the determination of society that it shall be enforced.

Prohibition enforcement has so far been far from satisfactory to and law-abiding citizen. But that does not prove that it is a bad law. Neither does it mean that it is impossible of enforcement. The law against murder, adultery or any other practice that is detrimental to the welfare of society, is not perfectly enforced. But no one argues that such laws should be repealed. The prohibition law is more difficult to enforce because it outlaws a practice that was formerly legalized. Many who violate this law seem to think they are law-abiding citizens because they abide by what the law formerly was. They defy the law as it now exists because it cuts across their desires and appetites which the law of the past has helped to cultivate. But they are none the less lawless who violate the law as it now is, simply because they do not admit that it is a good law. "The most dangerous type of anarchy is that shallow but plausible setting up of an individual interpretation of personal liberty as against law and order, by well-fed, well-groomed people who pose as cultivated, learned and liberal."

Is there more drunkenness today than in pre-prohibition days? Emphatically, no! The "wets" sought to prove that there was in the recent investigation at Washington. But their estimates of drunkenness then and now are based entirely on different answers to the question as to when a man is drunk. "In the days of the saloon a man was said to be drunk when the team of horses pulled up to the farm gate and the driver was lying dead drunk in the bottom of the wagon; now a man is regarded as drunk when there is sufficient mental disturbance to make it unsafe to drive an automobile on the public highway. Then a man was drunk if he came home and beat up his family and had to be kept in his room a few days till he could sober up; now he is regarded as drunk if there is alcohol smell on his breath. Then he was drunk if he shot up the town; now he is drunk if he becomes a little funny in a crowd. It is quite evident to the unprejudiced observer that if the word drunk carries the same meaning that it did in the days of the saloons there is far less drunkenness now than then."

Who Is to Blame?
But if law observance is falling down, who is responsible for the condition?
The bootlegger, some one says. Correct. We all detest the principles of the man who makes his living or his fortune by defying the law. But that is not the whole answer to our question—far from it.

The bootlegger could never make a cent off of his illegitimate traffic if he did not have patrons. And we have no less respect for the bootlegger than for the man who helps to make his business profitable. But still the question is not fully answered.
Society is confronted with a lawless criminal class and they must be dealt with. There must be officers whose business it is to see that the law is enforced whether men choose to obey it or not. So we say that if the law has been of no effect the officers are to blame. No man has a right to ask the people for an office unless he is going to do his best to fulfill his oath of office and enforce the law.
But suppose the officers do fail? Then it clearly devolves upon the voters to elect men who will not fail.
But officers cannot enforce law without the moral sentiment of society back of them. So the full answer to our query must be that if law observance is falling down it is because the members of society have not yet determined that the law must be enforced.
Reverence for Law.
We Americans need to have a higher respect for law as such. Society would be pandemonium without law. Law is of Divine ordination. Paul says, "The powers that be are ordained of God."
Abraham Lincoln expressed the sentiment of every true patriot: "Let reverence for the law be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap; let it be written in primers, in spelling books and almanacs; let it be preached from the pulpit, proclaimed in legislative halls, and enforced in courts of justice. And, in short, let it become the political religion of the nation."

than patiently to seek a status quo.
The main thing for people to learn there can be no abiding peace that is not founded upon justice.
The prophecy said in ancient times that righteousness and peace shall kiss each other. Until this is done there is no abiding harmony or progress.

Dr. Frank Crane Says
WE MUST LOVE ONE ANOTHER.
The only practical plan under which human beings can expect to live together in peace is the Golden Rule.
We must love one another and do as we would be done by.
This is not an ideal Sunday school precept, but it is a rule that has teeth and claws in it. Unless we obey it we shall suffer. And not one party, but all parties suffer.

War has been demonstrated to be about as disastrous to the victor as to the vanquished. The successful allies in the recent great World War, such as Great Britain, Italy and France, now are almost as bad off as the unsuccessful group, consisting of Germany, Austria and so forth.
War is not only cruel and ineffectual, but it does not pay.
It pays human beings in the long run to co-operate and not to contend. As General Grant said, it is doubtful if any war ever fought about an issue that could not have been better settled in some other way.
The great war makers are egotism, stubbornness, hat and fear. Jesus told us long ago that the only method of getting along together was by love and trust. We have not yet learned that His precept was based upon common sense and was not an impractical command.

Germany at this writing is reverting toward a reactionary government, as is Italy. England is in the throes of labor unrest. The ministry in France is maintaining itself with difficulty. Belgium is upset.
Wherever hate and fear and contention rule there is upheaval and disaster. These things cannot be permanently cured by an increase in force on any side, but only by an increase of charity and the spirit of compromise.
It takes a long while for human beings to learn how to get on with each other. It is much easier to revolt and stand for our rights personal choice. Doris held out her hand. "Good-by," she said gently. "And thank you. I'm really more appreciative than I seem."

CHAPTER VI

Laurie solves a problem. Laurie walked across the square to his own rooms. A sudden gloom had fallen upon him. He saw himself sitting in his study, gazing remotely at his shoes, until it was time to dress for the evening and his formal call on Doris.

girl was, or fancied herself, in the power of an unscrupulous scamp who was using that power for some purpose of his own. If that was it—and this thing, Laurie handsome admitted, really did happen sometimes—it ought to be fairly easy for an athletic chap of twenty-four to put an end to it.

...to forget the other's presence in his interest in this revelation. "Have I made myself quite clear?" Laurie was staring at him with a mingling of resentment and in awe. The other nodded. "You have, my young friend," he said, with sudden seriousness. "And now I, too, will be clear. In return for the warning I will give you another. Keep out of matters that do not concern you." Laurie grinned at him. "You forget that I have made this matter my concern," he said lightly. "I'll remember that." The other man rose. His manner had changed to a sort of impatient weariness. "Get her out of here," he said abruptly. "You are beginning to irritate me, you two. Take her home, and then keep away from her, unless you are looking for trouble." He delivered the last words so clearly and menacingly that the waiter who had appeared with his luncheon heard them and fell back a step. Looking into the veiled eyes, Laurie also felt a sense of recoil. The fellow was positively venomous. There was something serpentlike in the dull but fixed look of those goggling eyes, in the forward thrust of the smooth, brown head. "I've said my say," he retorted. "If I ever catch you around that studio, or in any way annoying the lady, I'll thrash you within an inch of your life; and then I'll turn what's left of you over to the authorities. Understand?" He nodded and stroiled back to Miss Mayo's table. For an instant Laurie stood looking after him, then he dropped into his luncheon. The fellow faced before him. Laurie checked the girl standing ready for the street. "I'm ready for the street," she announced, her gloves buttoned. "I could you!" she said that did he say?" Laurie admonished the waiter. "My friend asked for his luncheon still minutes," he suggested to the waiter who he is." "Yes," she urged. "I couldn't breathe here. Hurry, please. Let us get away!" She was so obviously in earnest that he yielded. He paid the bill, which the waiter had ready, accepted that appreciative servitor's help with his overcoat, and escorted his guest from the room. "But, for heaven's sake, don't call!" he laughed. "Do you want the creature to think we're flying before him?" She flushed and moderated her side by side, and quite deliberately, they left the restaurant, while the stranger watched them with his dull, fixed gaze. He seemed to have recovered his temper, but it was also plain that the little encounter had given him something to think about. When Laurie had his luncheon he ate and with an air of deep absorption, as if working out some problem. "What's his name?" asked as he helped Miss Mayo waiting taxicab. Laurie looked startled. Indeed, his casual questions seemed to be her and put her, in a way, under guard. "Shaw," she answered vaguely. "It spelled P-h-a-w?" Laurie asked the question with polite interest. Then, realizing that in her preoccupation she did not follow this flight of his mysterious spirits, he sobered. "It's a very good name," he conceded. There must be more of it. The rest? "The rest?" calls himself Herbert Ransome. "I made a mental note of me." "I shall call him Bertie," he announced, "to show you unimportant he really is. By the way—a sudden memory struck me—he told me your name—added the name so simply he seemed to be calling her. A faint shadow of her elusive touched her lips. "He is—Doris," Laurie remembered. "In so glad," she murmured. "I ignored the irony in her suppose you have several like our friend Bertie, but wouldn't tell them to me. If I to use them every time I to you, it might check my own. Doris will do very well." "Is it?" "Yes, but I can't breathe. Green Y." SERVICE-UNIT GLENN S. DAVIS

McFarlain Oil Representative Is Optimistic

The McFarlain Oil Company, of Tulsa, is moving big timbers and drilling equipment to their 12,000 acre lease, just south of Hereford in the Hereford-Tulla Highway territory, to putting down a deep well, and expect to spend in within the next thirty days, says Thos. Bird, sales manager, who was here Thursday. Mr. Bird says the company has five drilling rigs in Castro, Swisher, Hale and Deaf Smith counties, and surveys will be made on their various locations in the near future. The text now being made on Woodard lease, three miles south of Tulla, is making splendid wings, according to Mr. Bird, it looks as though pay would be found at less than 1200 feet.

Tech Prospects Said To Be Bright

BOOK, Texas, Sept. 14.—The week of registration at Texas Technological College began a week off, the prospects enrollment the second year of this institution loom greater every year, according to a statement given out by Registrar E. L. Ely today. Although registration does not begin until Monday, September 20, approximately 2000 interested persons made inquiry during the week concerning the work for the fall term, and this number includes the more than 1000 students who live in Lubbock and the surrounding country, nor many of the old students elsewhere who have their work well arranged. It is estimated that the mails bring in an average of twenty-five or thirty calls per day and that an equal number of calls in person to arrange work. It is no doubt in the minds of the administration that this year will reach a high record for attendance in this new institution, and that the department will be crowded to capacity. The most conservative of the officials estimate the enrollment for the fall term at 2000 prospects for 2000 during the year, while others believe the number for the fall term would exceed the above estimate by 200. An estimate of the increase in enrollment can be obtained by observation of the old students return. Where a city was represented by one or two individuals last year, the old students are returning and are invariably bringing with them. This speaks remarkably well for the standing of the Tech among old students, and this year the institution will have an organized student body with which to begin the new year.

THE GIRL IN THE MIRROR

of Louise still met his with the challenge they turned on everyone these days—a challenge that definitely forbade either understanding or sympathy.
"The real problem is why you ever come," she spoke lightly, but looked at him with genuine affection. Laurie was one of her favorites, her prime favorite, indeed, next to Bob and Barbara. He smiled at her with tender significance.
"You know why I come."
"I do," she agreed, "perfectly. I know you're quite capable of flirting with me, too, if I'd let you, you absurd boy. Dearie—" for a moment or two she was almost serious—"why don't you fall in love?"
"And this from you?"
"Don't be foolish. You know I like your ties," she interpolated kindly. "But, really, isn't there some one?"
Laurie turned his profile to her, pulled a lock of hair over his brow, clasped his hands between his knees and posed aesthetically.
"Do you know," he sighed, "I begin to think that, just possibly, perhaps, there's a slight chance—that there is!"
"Be serious. Tell me about her."
"Well, she's a girl." He produced this confidence with ponderous solemnity. "She lives across the square from me," he added.
"Things brighten," commented Louise dryly. "Go on."
"She's mysterious. I don't know who she is, or anything about her. But I know that she's in trouble."
"Of course she is! I have never known a mysterious maiden that wasn't," commented the woman of the world. "What's her particular variety of trouble?"
Laurie reflected.
"That's hard to say," he brought out at last. "But it appears to be mixed up with an offensive person in a crumpled blue suit who answers to the name of Herbert Ransome Shaw. Have you ever heard of him?"
Louise wrinkled her fastidious nose.
"Never, I'm happy to say. But he doesn't sound attractive. However, tell me all about them. There seems a good chance that they may get you into trouble."
"That's what she said."
"It's the one gleam of intelligence I see in the situation," commented his candid friend. "Is she pretty?"
"As lovely in her way as you are. Think you could help her any?" wheedled Laurie.

"I doubt it. I'm too selfish to be bothered with girls who are in trouble. I'll tell you who can help her—Sonya Orloff."
"Of course!" Laurie beamed at her. "Wonder why I didn't think of that."
"Probably because it was so obvious. Sonya is in town, as it happens, stopping at the Warwick. She has brought the infant Samuel to New York to have his adenoids cut out. Samuel made a devastating visit here this morning. He's getting as fat as a little pig, and when he walks he puffs like a worn-out automobile going up a steep grade. He came up his stairs on 'low,' and I'm sure they heard him on the avenue. I almost offered him a glass of gasoline. But he is a lamb," she added reflectively. "Oddly enough, Samuel, late of New York's tenements, was another of her favorites."
Laurie was following his own thoughts. Sonya was in town! Then, however complicated his problem, it was already as good as solved.
"My dinner will be up soon," suggested Louise. "Are you dining with me?"
He glanced at his watch, reproachfully shook his head at it, and rose.
"Three hours of me are all you can have this time. But I'll probably drop around about dawn tomorrow."
"Nice boy!" Her hot hand caught his and held it. "Laurie, if—I should send for you suddenly some time—you'd come and—stand by?"
"All the galaxy was wiped from his face. His brilliant black eyes suddenly softened, looked into her naughty blue ones with sudden understanding.
"You bet I will! Any time, anything! You'll remember that? Send for me as if I were Bob. Perhaps you've forgotten it," he added, more lightly, "but I happen to be your younger brother."
For a moment her face twisted. The mask of her arrogance fell from it.
"Bob didn't know," she said. "If he had felt the least suspicion he wouldn't have gone so far, or for so long. I thought I had three or four months—"
Laurie bent and kissed her cheek.
"I'm coming in every day," he said, and abruptly left the room.
In the lower hall he stopped to take in the full realization of what he had discovered. Louise, superb, arrogant, beautiful Louise, was really ill, desperately ill. A feeling of remorse mingled with his sense of shock. He had believed her a sort of nervous hypochondriac. He had so resented her excessive demands on Barbara that it was only since he had seen much of her in this last month that he had been able wholeheartedly to like and admire her.
As he stood silent, he became conscious of another presence—an august, impressive one, familiar in the past but veiled now, as it were, in a mist of human emotion. It was Jepson, the butler. He coughed humbly.
"Excuse me, sir," he faltered.

"But Mrs. Hodgway hain't quite so well lately, sir. 'Ave you hobserved that?"
Laurie nodded. "I noticed it today," he admitted.
"She's losin' strength very fast, sir. Hall of us 'as seen it. Cook says she don't eat nothing. And Susanne and the nurse says it's 'ard 'work to get 'er from the bed to 'er chair—"
Laurie checked these revelations. "Has the doctor been here today?"
"Yessir, two of 'em 'ave been 'ere. Doctor Speyer comes bevery day. This morning 'e brought Doctor Hames again. Hlt's very hup-setting, sir, with 'er brother away and hall."
The man was genuinely anxious. Laurie tried to reassure him.
"She may be better in a day or two," he said, more buoyantly than he felt. "But I'll come in every day. And here's my telephone number.—If anything goes wrong, call me up immediately. Leave a message if I'm not there."
"Yessir. Thank you, sir." Jepson was pathetically grateful and relieved. He had the English servant's characteristic need of sanction and authority.
When Laurie reached his rooms, he called Sonya on the telephone. Like Jepson, he was feeling rather overwhelmed by his responsibilities. It was a relief to hear Sonya's deep, colorful voice.
"Didn't know you were here till just now," he told her. "I'm coming to see you in the morning. I want to talk to you about a lot of things."
"Including Mrs. Ordway?" suggested Sonya.
"Yes. You saw her today. You noticed—"
"Of course. Samuel is to be operated on tomorrow. I'll send him back to Devon house with his mother in a few days, as soon as he can safely travel, and I shall stay right here."
"That's splendid of you!"
"It's what Barbara and Mr. Warren would wish. And Mrs. Ordway, too, I think, though she would never suggest it."
"I'm sure it is."

Dimmitt, Castro County, News

Dimmitt, Texas, Sept. 13.—
 The community singing at Summerfield there was on Sunday morning from an overland trip to Roswell and the mountains. They reported a wonderful trip, even if they did have sixteen punctures and a broken axle. From all accounts they almost destroyed the mountains, but they all came back smiling and ready for another trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Doak enjoyed having Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hunter take Sunday dinner with them.

Mrs. Bob Knox and little son visited with Mrs. Veri Sullivan last Thursday.

Some of the Frio people who attended the singing at Summerfield were Mr. and Mrs. Mobley, Allman, Williams, Sullivan, Knox, Dixon, Mrs. W. B. Green, Miss Nettie Lee Green and Miss Jamison.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Knox enjoyed a visit from Mr. Tom Knox, John Knox and two nieces Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Estes spent the week end on their farm at Frio.

Mrs. Harlin very pleasantly entertained the young people Saturday night in honor of Miss Jamison, the new school teacher. After spending a short time in the house getting acquainted they were ushered out to build a camp fire and then played all kinds of games around the fire. When it had grown late they roasted weinies and toasted marshmallows and also enjoyed cocoa and wafers. A most enjoyable time was had by all. Those who enjoyed the evening in the Harlin home were Misses Nettie Lee Green, Helen Estes, Nannie Fields, Buchanan, Jamison; Messrs. Greer Estes, Elmer Patterson, Bill Knox, Jess Lindsey and Mr. and Mrs. Estes.

Mr. and Mrs. Nobley, Estes and Greer visited in the Harlin home late Saturday afternoon.

Mr. C. E. Tice had the misfortune to lose two nice heifer calves last week.

The Frio people are planning to fix up a booth for the Dimmitt fair and are trying to get a good collection of different things.

Master Bob Estes visited Saturday night and Sunday with J. B. and Harold Harlin.

Little James Doyle Dixon visited with Mother Mosley Saturday morning.

Everybody come to singing and held out. A good crowd was out last Sunday night.

will begin a Nazarene meeting Friday night, September 17th, which will be held in the church at Dimmitt.

Olle Burch and family of Amarillo visited relatives in Dimmitt last Saturday.

Rev. H. K. Monroe of Lubbock was a business visitor in Dimmitt Monday morning.

On account of the singing at Summerfield there was no Sunday school at Frio Sunday. Next Sunday we hope every one will be present and have a good Sunday school again. The whooping cough has about been around so the little tots can come again.

School opened Monday morning with a good enrollment. Several of the parents were present for the morning hours. We are glad the parents are showing their interest in the school and are fixing up the play grounds for the children.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes are moving to Canyon where they will be engaged in running a rooming house. Miss Dott Owen who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Harlin, and Mrs. Jack Roberson left Sunday for her home in Chickasha, Oklahoma.

Mr. Andrews who recently purchased the Stanley place, came Friday with a truck load of tools and farm equipment.

Miss Nellie Lee Green spent Friday and Saturday with Mrs. Harlin and Miss Grace Jamison.

Mr. Gleaves Owen has been helping with the work at the school house.

Mrs. Everett Doak spent Monday with Mrs. J. B. Harlin and they attended the opening of our school.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kincaid and daughters and Mr. Frank Kincaid have returned from Oklahoma where they are being visiting relatives.

Mrs. Gleaves Owen and children visited in the J. B. Harlin home Saturday.

Mrs. Joe Greer spent Tuesday with Mrs. C. Greer in Hereford.

Mr. M. Childers went to Santa Fe, New Mexico, Saturday after his mother who has been spending several weeks with her son at that place.

A few of the farmers have been trying out their binders and are getting them in first class condition to harvest the big crops.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Griffith went to Canyon Sunday to visit Mrs. Griffith's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holmes are moving into the Percy Estes place and will live there until the first of the year.

Wants Sanitary Survey.

New Braunfels is becoming an industrial center, but wants its industries so managed that they may not become a menace to public health. To avoid any such contingency that city is asking for a state sanitary survey. It would have observations made as to waste from industrial establishments reaching adjoining water courses, with a view of controlling stream pollution. It would also study the effect of having general recreation grounds in and around its water sources. In short, New Braunfels welcomes industries and pleasures, but wants them to conform to rules of public health determined from an authoritative source. New Braunfels seems to be doing the sensible thing for the protection of its citizens.

Abandon Free Tourist Camp.

Wellington has tried the free tourist camp and finds it unsanitary. The park will, on that account, be abandoned. A few years ago almost every town established free camps to tempt tourists to stay awhile. Nearly all of these have found that tourists prefer protection and are willing to pay reasonably for it. Conditions around the free camps are seldom conducive to comfort or convenience. Such camps draw so many sliver hoppers that they are undesirable camping spots for the more desirable class of tourists. So, the unsanitary free tourist park is fast giving place to the municipal or privately owned camp where reasonable prices are charged and some degree of comfort and protection is assured.

Touring Other States.

The Hereford Brand says that everybody and the family cat are taking vacations in Colorado, New Mexico, or Yellowstone Park, and the Brand gives names to prove it. The Austin Chamber of Commerce finds that tourist travel from this part of Texas has turned largely to the mountain section of Texas—out beyond Kerrville and around Alpine and Fort Davis. Texans are becoming more and more interested in seeing Texas and they are learning that Texas affords scenery equal to that of the Rocky Mountain states. Another thing that is making West Texas more attractive is that the people out there are not yet depending on the tourist crop for their support and outlays may be taken at about half the cost of the Colorado-Yellowstone variety.

Pharr Votes Paving Bonds.

Pharr doesn't seem to be much of a town when it comes to voting, but in public improvement matters it votes about solidly. Recently there were 29 votes cast on a proposal to issue $125,000 worth of bonds for street paving, with only one vote cast against the bonds. With the bond money 40 blocks of street paving will be done, which the Pharrites say will be more paving in proportion to population than any other Rio Grande Valley town will have. That proves that Pharr's population is progressive.

Too Many Watermelons.

Evidently Texas produced too many watermelons this year, for the market was glutted everywhere and melons have been selling at much less than the cost of production. Better marketing organization would have resulted in some better prices but there were just more melons grown than the people wanted to eat. Parker county, the most famous melon growing county in the state, especially suffered from the low prices. Crops that must be sold as soon as ready for market are hazardous as money crops, although often they are the most profitable crops to be grown. The only lesson that can be drawn from this is the old one, so often repeated that in farming it does not pay to put all the eggs into one basket, which is not much consolation after the eggs are broken.

Election Predictions.

For those who like humor, prediction statements make good reading after the returns are all in. They interest one because of their apparent sincerity, despite the conflicting predictions. One candidate for governor in the first primary assured the public that she at least would be in the run-off, but when the votes were counted she did not have one in five hundred. Another withdrew two days before the election because her health would not allow her to make a campaign. It is difficult for any candidate to feel that he is not certain to win even though it may be evident to every one else. The credulity of the candidate is one of the most surprising things in politics.

Texas School Buildings.

Regardless of the $11.50 per capita for public schools, many Texas schools, beginning this month, will be conducted in better buildings than before. These buildings have nearly all been provided through bond issues voted by the people, and in nearly every case the new buildings combine all the latest improvements known to school architecture. It has gotten so in Texas that communities almost everywhere are ashamed to have their schools conducted in uncomfortable and unsightly shacks.

Also Wants Canning Factory.

Also, in Cherokee county, is making plans to build a canning factory of sufficient capacity to handle the excess vegetable and fruit crops. The tomato crop was largely lost this year because of the overcrowded market and lack of canning facilities. By another year that enterprising community hopes to be able to can any surplus that may be produced above the market demands. Texas is slowly learning that provision must be made for taking care of perishable products and canneries are helping to solve the problem.

Editor Takes Vacation.

Editor John E. Cooke, of the Rockdale Reporter, in what he is always pleased to call "matchless Millam" county, recently took a two-week vacation, which was typical of the vacation of most editors. That is, he wrote more copy and better copy while away from home on vacation than he usually writes when "on the job." The writing habit gets such a strong hold on editors like Cooke that they are not happy anywhere unless they can sit down and express opinions on the things about them. Editor Cooke has opinions, and they must find expression somehow.

Llano Granite Industry.

The granite industry in Llano county has reached such proportions that W. B. Collins is using a page in the Llano News to tell about it. In doing so he is helping both the industry and the News. The best way to help a local industry grow is to boost it constantly, and the paper that does this is certain to boost itself. The newspaper that isn't ready to lend a helping hand in any worthy community enterprise doesn't deserve support, and such papers very seldom receive it.

Press Reflects Community.

There is no better evidence of the prosperity of a place than the improvement of the local paper. This statement was evoked by seeing the Dalhart Texan increased from a six column to a seven column paper. I knew at once that Dalhart is no longer a six column town, and the business announcements in the paper prove it conclusively.

Crops will soon be ripe enough to cut. Won't it seem fine to hear the click-click of the binders and see the old feed shockers.

How was Sunday school last Sunday? Fine, boy, fine. If you don't believe it come and see. Be sure and come next Sunday. Come and see your neighbors, friends and everybody. We have four new members, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd, Miss Beda and Velma Williams. Mr. and Mrs. Lester Galley and children spent Sunday in the home of Roy Botsford.

Mr. Clarence Botts left for Gunter, Texas, Saturday evening for school. He attended the same college that his sister Ruth does. School began last Monday. Askron has twenty-four scholars this year. As the old saying goes, "Not many, but quality makes up for it."

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Kelly and E. D. Ragin came in Tuesday night from Laramie, Wyoming, to visit in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Smith. They are thinking of making Hereford their home.

The Walter London family spent the day with Henry Claid's Sunday.

John Renfro and family spent Sunday with relatives in this neighborhood.

Mr. E. D. Ragin left Monday evening for the oil fields near Amarillo.

Charles Calloway is back at W. T. Smith's working for him before and after school.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrell visited Walter London Sunday evening. They came to Sunday school that evening and then ate supper with the London family.

That Explains It.

Judge—How many times have you been in court?
Only once, your honor.
How long has that been?
About twenty years ago.
Hm. That's not a bad record. And you haven't done any wrong since?
No, sir.
Where have you been?
In jail.

HIGH SCHOOL PAPER TO BE PUBLISHED

Tuesday morning the student body, with the faculty of Hereford High School, met and discussed the high school annual and the high school paper. It was decided that both the paper and the annual could not be published, so after several speeches both for and against the paper, a vote was taken and it was decided to publish only the paper.

SENIOR CLASS ORGANIZES.

Members of the Senior Class of Hereford High School met last Wednesday and elected officers and made some plans for their school and class work this year. The officers elected were: President, John L. Wilson; Vice-President, Pauline Wilson; Secretary and Treasurer, Bettie Carter; Sponsor, Mr. Humble.

The Senior Class is planning some real work for this term and with the support of the other classes and the faculty we can do some real work that will help both the school and the town.

H. H. S. PEP CLUB.

A meeting of the Pep Club of Hereford High School was called Monday at 3:15 for the purpose of organizing a new club for the following year. The following officers were elected for their respective offices:

Yell Leader—Lulu Connell.
President—Norma Powelson.
Vice-President—Pauline Wilson.
Secretary—Pauline Wilson.
Treasurer—Reporter—Nina Crawford.

We selected Miss Wiggler as our sponsor. We expect ours to be a very peppy organization and we intend to do our part in winning the games.

The following were present: Ruth Ellison, Pauline Wilson, Faye Spurrier, Norma Powelson, Lucille Jackson, Nina Powelson, Lulu Connell, Grace Brumley, Bettie Carter, Pauline Jackson, Nellie Dunn, Lorena Brumley, Frances Landrum, Aleith Ellison, Ruth Conkwright, Vendell Brooks, Gladys Vance, Lillian Sawyers, Annebell Sawyers, Gladys McMahon, Lois Hill, Virgil Brumley, Maurine Thompson, Lois Baker, Ella Broadwell, Albesa Stephenson, Ruth Millard, Orlena Savage, Virginia Stowall, Ina Mae Hastings and Nina Crawford.

Progressive

Progressive school began last Monday morning, September 8th. We understand that there is not a large enrollment in our school this term, especially in the advanced grades. The teachers this year are Misses Hastings and Nela Brumley.

Some farmers in this community have been cutting some of their row crops for the past several days.

A number of Progressive people attended the singing convention at Summerfield Sunday, when lots of good singing was heard from singers from all over the Plains country. It was decided that our next Deaf Smith county singing convention should be held at the Dawn school house in May, 1937.

Mr. Ivan Monaghan motored to Hale Center last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Copeland of Canyon spent Saturday night in the I. B. Monaghan of this community and attended the singing convention at Summerfield Sunday. We understand that Mrs. Copeland is an aunt of Mr. Monaghan.

There was no Sunday school at Progressive Sunday afternoon as most everybody attended the singing convention at Summerfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hershey were dinner guests in the home of their daughter, Mrs. Arch Conklin, of Hereford, Sunday.

Misses Marguerite Russell and Margaret Richets, who have attended the summer school in Canyon, came home last week.

Good Crops Increase Attendance at U. of T.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 12.—An improvement in crop conditions and prospects in general business conditions throughout the state as compared to last year is expected to cause an increase of enrollment of students at the University of Texas at the coming regular session. An unusual number of inquiries from prospective students has been pouring into the registrar's office during the last few weeks. This fact, together with a betterment of crop and business conditions as compared with last year, is taken as an indication of a larger student body. Improvement in the physical facilities for taking care of students is also regarded as a favorable factor in the matter of increasing the enrollment. The registration days are September 21 and 22. Classes will start Thursday, September 23. The freshman convocation will be held Monday, September 20.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

Is It This Week?

SEPTEMBER 19-25.

If your birthday is this week you are literary, original and social. You are interesting in a mild, unobtrusive way. You are rather touchy, but not offensively so. You are a general favorite and the people like you. You like to make a good appearance and have considerable harmless pride, particularly if you are good looking. You are fond of finery, but are not showy, and have excellent taste. You like music and art, and in these matters you are extremely critical.

You are economical, prudent, conservative and fond of money, but are not parsimonious.

Your most marked characteristic is indecision. You cannot make up your mind in regard to anything without having some one to help you. You are apt to change your opinions often and should, therefore, strive for stability of mind. You are generous and affectionate and will never lack for friends and admirers.

Bulldog-Buffalo Contest on September 25

The West Texas State Teachers College and Clarendon College will meet in football at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo on Saturday, September 25, at 1:30 p. m.

There was a misunderstanding as to the date of the football game which was scheduled to be played at the Tri State Fair between the West Texas Buffaloes and the Clarendon College Bulldogs. The game was originally scheduled for Saturday, September 25, but owing to some error it was reported to be scheduled for the Monday following. The game will be played as first advertised—on Saturday, September 25.

Both the Bulldogs and the Buffaloes are in strenuous training and a real game is anticipated. In the games played in the past the Buffaloes have a slight edge, and it will be the purpose of the Buffaloes to gain one game on them this year. Reports from the Bulldog camp indicate that they have a squad of some thirty players, working hard to become aspirants for the Maroon and White team.

These teams met in Amarillo last year at the Tri-State Fair and the Buffaloes emerged victorious by the small margin of 8 to 6.

Society

Mrs. S. P. Rosson very delightfully entertained the members of the Tuesday Bridge Club and a few friends on Tuesday afternoon. Garden flowers were used to give an added beauty to the receiving rooms, where tables were placed for the players.

At the conclusion of the games, Mrs. Luther Hough, who held high score among the club members, received the club prize and Miss Mabel Gass, who held high score among the guests, received the guest prize.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. P. W. Price, served a delicious salad and ice course.

Annual Luncheon, Music Study Club, Held

The annual luncheon of the Music Study Club was held in the home of Mrs. C. H. Dillihay Tuesday, September 7th. The home was decorated with taste of refinement in orchid and pink asters in silver vases. The hostess, Mrs. Dillihay, with half of the membership, welcomed the remaining members and guests.

After the luncheon Mrs. W. E. Dameron, outgoing president, announced the new president, Mrs. A. O. Thompson, who immediately took charge after making a neat little talk accepting the role of chief executive. Mrs. Thompson pleaded for intensive co-operation and welcomed the new members, Mrs. Gertrude Brotherton and Miss Maurine Beyer.

The afternoon was spent in a business meeting in which the very important subject, the coming Lyceum, was thoroughly discussed and each number reviewed.

The Club is planning a full year's study recommended by the National Music Study Club and is now entering into its second year. The Hereford Entertainment Course committee announced the three Lyceum numbers of which a play, "To the Ladies," will come first, the date being October 25th.

The members enjoyed two excellent vocal selections by Miss Ann Parker, a visitor, Miss Mattie Swisher, of Canyon who is an active member, was here for the luncheon. The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. G. A. F. Parker, Monday afternoon, September 20th, at 2:30.

The Music Study Club is to be congratulated for securing the three Lyceum numbers and for the excellent home lyceum course last winter.

Portales Beat- en; Baseball Is Over For Year

The Hereford baseball team closed its season last Sunday by beating the fast Portales men 5 to 2. This made the season's record twelve games won and eight lost.

For six innings Sunday it looked like the record would be eleven won and nine lost. Both teams had scored in the first inning, but Portales had counted two to the locals one. Black was going good. But in the seventh Jewel Tate started something. He singled through second and then stole second, third and home in rapid succession. With Biggs' error and singles by Curtsinger and Carroll four runs trickled across in this frame and the game was put on ice, as Tate was awfully right in the pinches.

This young man, Tate, by the way, was nearly the whole show. In the second inning he fanned the side. In the ninth, after the first two men up had singled and Carroll had erred, he suddenly put on the brakes and again whiffed three men in a row.

The game was fast and snappy and much enjoyed by the crowd.

The Hereford boys have an excellent season's record, the best in years, and the fans are sorry to see the season's close. The records show that they won games from Bovina, Pampa, Clovis (2), Friona (2), Portales, Dimmitt and Amarillo Refiners (3), and lost to Amarillo, Lubbock Hubbers (2), Lubbock All Stars, Plainview and Canyon (3).

New Real Estate Men Of Wide Experience

The Brand man dropped in Wednesday on the new real estate firm of Murray & Cawthon, who have offices in the rear of the First National Bank, and had quite an interesting visit with them. These gentlemen, old hands in the real estate game, talk most interestingly of their experiences in various parts of the country, and especially of their reasons for finally selecting Hereford as headquarters for their activities. Mr. Cawthon said:

"Our move to Hereford was made after thorough investigation of the Plains country, having sold land in the various sections of the Plains from the Rock Island on the north to Gaines county on the south, and feeling that Deaf Smith and adjoining counties and the City of Hereford would be the next locality to make a substantial growth."

"Our personal observation of the Plains country was that practically every other town and community on the Plains had already seen considerable growth and that this section of the country and community had an opening for the future that could not be found at any other location on the Plains. In moving our families to

Hereford and starting our business here, we hope and expect our part toward making a better town and country and to interest new comers in the farm lands to be found in section of the country; and come with an idea of not so in the present, but to build help build for the future.

"We are sure business with this firm will be highly appreciated and will be handled in a business-like manner and fort to satisfy and serve those whom we deal. Past connections with other work on the Plains cause us to have a number of various sections of Texas Oklahoma who are in the work and bring in the honors from these various sections anyone wanting to sell should free to talk with us about sale of their property and plans of procuring buyers handling sales. Our fifteen years experience the business and our work Plains puts us in a position to know the country and to position to put out reliable information to buyers and the buying and the recommendation work in the past is a criterion the business policy of the firm. Quick Job Service at The Brand."
