Legislature ends session without action

AUSTIN (AP) - After 30 days of talk but no final action, Texas lawmakers adjourned their special session on school finance and judicial election reform with plans to tackle the issues again on Monday.

But House Speaker Gib Lewis said he didn't consider the recent session to be a failure. "Everyone has made their mark and they've made their record ... Now we're down to serious business," he said.

"I don't know of any progress that was made."
--Gov. Bill Clements

However, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals gave the Legislature some more breathing room Wednesday on that issue: It said Texas doesn't have to act on judicial selection until after an appeal in the case has been decided.

Judicial selection remains on next session's agenda, and lawmakers should continue working on the issue, Clements said. Lewis said the pace will pick up next session, and directed committees to start a review of education spending proposals and revenue options - including examining a state lottery.

Appropriations Committee will look at whether money can be reallocated within the budget; and the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee will examine possible sources for new state revenue.

The Ways and Means Committee plans to put together a tax package despite Clements' promise to veto new state taxes for school finance reform. The no-new-taxes level is about $200 million to $300 million, according to the governor.

New phone books coming

The increased desire to upgrade the Texas educational system is the inspiration behind the cover of the 1990 Southwestern Bell Telephone directory. The new directory will be delivered in Hereford starting April 10, said Gary Stevens, area manager-external affairs, of SW Bell.

A very big cleaning job

Ron Matthews of the Hereford office of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation uses a back-pack compressor to clean dirt from cracks on West U.S. Highway 60 in Hereford. Road crews sealed cracks in the roadway on Wednesday.

Mattox, Richards continue feuding

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox challenged Treasurer Ann Richards to meet him in a debate before the April 10 gubernatorial runoff, and Ms. Richards challenged Mattox to release his income tax returns.

Ms. Richards, 56, was first asked about drug use during a televised debate before the March 13 primary. "When she comes out and comes clean with the public, well then I'll let her look at my poor little humble returns," said Mattox.

Time change Sunday
Start catching up on your sleep: you'll lose an hour's sleep on Saturday night-Sunday morning. It's no April Fool's joke! Daylight Savings Time is Sunday. It happens this year earlier than it ever has since the Uniform Time Act of 1967 re-established Daylight Savings Time for most of the country. Be sure you set your clock ahead an hour before retiring Saturday night so you'll be on time for church and other activities on Sunday.

Groups outraged by Othal Brand remarks

AUSTIN (AP) - South Texas rancher Othal Brand may have jeopardized his confirmation to the state pesticide regulatory board after making "insensitive and ill-advised" comments, state officials said.

Rebecca Harrington, director of United Farm Workers in Texas, said Brand's appointment to the board is "scandalous." Brigid Shea, of the environmental lobby Clean Water Action, said having Brand on that panel "almost places the public in jeopardy."

Lithuanians offered amnesty

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) - Moscow today offered amnesty to army deserters in Lithuania after the Baltic republic put off posting border guards and urged its residents not to resist the Soviet army's confiscation of weapons.

Hundreds of Lithuanian soldiers have deserted in recent weeks, some complaining of harassment and others refusing to serve in a "foreign" army after the republic declared independence.

Tass said the enrollment was continuing in the port of Klaipeda and Lithuania's second-biggest city, Kaunas. More than 5,000 people have expressed interest in serving in the brigades, Tass said.

attacks on soldiers since the independence declaration. The Soviet news agency Tass said Col. Gen. Vladislav Achalov reported "a noticeable increase in incidents of provocation against soldiers and armed attacks by groups of young hooligans against both individual soldiers and military sites."

Three persons arrested

Deputy sheriffs arrested three on Wednesday, including a man, 37, on theft of service and theft by check warrants; a man, 39, for theft by check; and a man, 62, on a capias pro fine.

Reports included a $250 VCR stolen in the 500 block of Main; rock thrown through a window in the 200 block of Ave. H, causing $25 damage; oil dumped in a man's back yard in the 300 block of 16th; prowler reported in the 400 block of Douglas; someone knocked on the front and back doors of a house in the 100 block of Ave. D, then took off; and officers closed a church door which had been left open Wednesday night.

Other reports included a boy assaulted at school by another boy. The victim was dismissed from school to recover and the case was turned over to juvenile authorities. Officers are investigating hate mail received by a woman. Officers stood by in the 200 block of Lawton while two friends parted ways and belongings.

Fire fighters responded to a report of smoke at the city water tower near the former Swift plant. It was only a trash fire and was contained.

Hereford police issued 11 citations on Wednesday.

Skies to clear some Friday

Tonight will see rain, fog, drizzle, isolated thunderstorms and the possibility of snow flurries by Friday morning. The low will be 32 with northeast winds 10-20 mph.

Friday will be cloudy and cool with a 20 percent chance of lingering rain, drizzle, snow flurries and fog. The high will be 48, with north winds 10-20 mph.

The extended forecast is calling for fair skies and warming temperatures Saturday through Monday. Highs will range from 55 on Saturday to 65 on Monday, with lows around 35.

This morning's low at KPAN was 37 after a high Wednesday of 65. KPAN had recorded .16 of an inch by 8 a.m. today.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, March 29, the 88th day of 1990. There are 277 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On March 29, 1973, the last U.S. troops left South Vietnam, ending America's direct involvement in the Vietnam War.

On this date:

In 1638, Swedish colonists settled in present-day Delaware.

In 1790, 200 years ago, the 10th president of the United States, John Tyler, was born in Charles City County, Va.

In 1812, the first White House wedding took place as Lucy Payne Washington, sister-in-law of President Madison, married Supreme Court Justice Thomas Todd.

In 1867, the British Parliament passed the North America Act to create the Dominion of Canada, effective July 1.

In 1943, World War II meat, butter and cheese rationing began.

In 1951, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg were convicted of espionage charges. They were executed in June 1953.

In 1971, Army Lt. William L. Calley Jr. was convicted of murdering at least 22 Vietnamese civilians in the My Lai massacre. Calley ended up spending three years under house arrest.

In 1971, a jury in Los Angeles recommended the death penalty for Charles Manson and three female followers for the 1969 Tate-La Bianca murders. The sentences were eventually commuted.

In 1974, eight Ohio National guardsmen were indicted on charges stemming from the shooting deaths of four students at Kent State University. The guardsmen were acquitted the following November.

In 1984, The Wall Street Journal reported columnist R. Foster Winans was being investigated by the Securities and Exchange Commission for leaking inside information. Winans was later convicted of securities fraud.

Ten years ago: During the Iran hostage crisis, the Tehran government announced Ayatollah Khomeini had received a letter from President Carter admitting past U.S. "mistakes," prompting a White House denial that any such message was sent.

Five years ago: The body of Army Maj. Arthur D. Nicholson, who was slain by a Soviet sentry in East Germany on March 24, arrived at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington for burial at Arlington National Cemetery.

Thought for today: "As I see it, in this country (America) - a land of the most persistent idealism and the blandest cynicism - the race is on between the decadence and its vitality." - Alistair Cooke, American journalist and broadcaster (1908-).

Iraq wants to be a nuclear power

LONDON (AP) - The arrest of three people accused of trying to smuggle U.S.-made devices for triggering nuclear weapons to Iraq shows the Arab nation is bent on becoming a nuclear power, a defense expert says.

The three were arrested in Britain Wednesday following an 18-month investigation by U.S. and British authorities in which American companies cooperated.

Iraq's foreign ministry today denied the "British allegations" and promised unspecified reciprocal measures. The official Iraqi News Agency said Britain would be held responsible for any results of its arrests.

The three arrested were to appear in Uxbridge Magistrates Court today on charges of violating the Export of Prohibited Goods Control Act.

Britain's Customs and Excise Department identified the three as Lebanese engineer Toufic Fouad Amyuni, 37; Ali Ashour Dagher, 49, a company director with dual Iraqi and British nationality; and export executive Jeanine Celestine Speckman, 41, a French citizen. All gave addresses in or near London.

British customs officials said 40 devices known as capacitors were seized Wednesday in a freight shed at London's Heathrow airport as they were about to be put on an Iraqi Airways flight to Baghdad.

Customs officials in London, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the capacitors, known as krytrons, are electrical components of the detonation chain of a nuclear bomb.

One defense expert said the case showed that Iraq was determined to become a nuclear power, even at the risk of being caught violating Western bans on the export of strategic high technology.

"If they're trying to smuggle in these highly sophisticated trigger devices, that means they're very serious about making nuclear weapons, and soon," said Professor Paul Wilkinson, a Bradford University terrorism expert.

Military experts said the devices are available only to a handful of major powers and their export is strictly controlled. They recalled two previous smuggling attempts, one involving Israel and the other Pakistan, both believed to have or to be trying to develop nuclear weapons.

News reports said the San Diego area company CSI Technologies Inc. tipped off officials that Iraqi agents tried to buy the devices from the company. CSI officials were not immediately available for comment.

The Massachusetts company EG&G said late Wednesday that it was cooperating with authorities.

Iraq's president, Saddam Hussein, is known to harbor ambitions of eclipsing Egypt and Syria as the premier military powers of the Arab world.

House caps supercollider spending at $5 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal spending on the super collider would be capped at $5 billion under legislation sent to the House by a committee divided over questions about the project's rising price tag and the role of foreign participants.

The House Science, Space and Technology Committee approved the bill 32-9 Wednesday after four hours of contentious debate.

The legislation, sponsored by Chairman Robert A. Roe, D-N.J., would cap federal spending $3 billion short of what the Energy Department believes will be necessary to construct the SSC, and hinges construction decisions on proof a key component will work.

Approval of the bill came after the panel defeated attempts by Rep. Sherwood Boehlert, R-N.Y., to bar all construction on the collider until the energy secretary certifies the superconducting magnets - a key component - could be mass produced by industry.

But the legislation says key construction decisions will depend on whether the superconducting magnets will work.

Chairman Robert A. Roe, D-N.J., claimed Boehlert's amendment could result in an 18-month delay costing $1.5 billion to $2 billion and urged his committee to either move ahead, can the program, but "don't let it linger in the swamp."

The panel also turned down a move by Rep. James F. Traficant Jr., D-Ohio, to ban foreign countries from participating if the president finds their trade practices discriminate against U.S. business.

The committee agreed, however, that U.S. taxpayers would finance a maximum of $5 billion to build what would be the world's largest scientific instrument.

Texas has committed another $1 billion, leaving the Energy Department to come up with some $2 billion in contributions from non-federal sources, such as foreign countries or foundations.

Deputy Energy Secretary Henson Moore, however, has said he did not think it was possible to win much more than $1 billion from foreign contributors.

Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn., called the $5 billion cap a "fraud" and a "joke" because it will be U.S. taxpayers - not Texas or foreign governments - that end up picking up the higher costs when the price rises.

"The cap to the SSC is what the debt ceiling is to the United States," Boehlert said.

Ryan gets chilly reception from Senate Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush's nominee for top savings and loan regulator is getting a chilly reception from Democratic senators who question his experience and ethics.

T. Timothy Ryan Jr., 44, a former senior Labor Department official, parried mostly hostile questions from the Senate Banking Committee during a 4-hour confirmation hearing Wednesday.

Now a private attorney specializing in pension and employee benefit law, Ryan has no direct experience in banking or savings and loans.

He told senators complaining about his lack of relevant experience that he was surprised when Treasury Department officials approached him about the job about four weeks ago.

Nevertheless, Ryan replied, "Absolutely," when senators asked if he was fully qualified to direct the Treasury Department's Office of Thrift Supervision, which supervises 2,600 thrift institutions.

Ryan said he was an experienced manager of large organizations, citing his 1981-83 tenure as solicitor of the Labor Department where he managed 600 attorneys working in Washington and 16 field offices.

Despite their misgivings, senators are under intense pressure to confirm Ryan quickly. President Bush nominated him March 22, hoping to blunt a constitutional challenge that has put its S&L bailout program in limbo.

The Energy Department originally estimated the total cost at $4.4 billion, then increased the price to $5.9 billion last year. DOE officials are now suggesting the cost could be closer to $8 billion.

Shays predicted Congress would have to authorize a higher cap later, adding: "Every indication is we're going to have to pay the difference. ... Why are we saying a $5 billion cap - it's a fraud."

Roe had suggested limiting overall spending at $7.5 billion, but the panel rejected that cap.

Some congressmen predicted the super collider's costs could go as high as $10 billion.

Under the bill, the Energy Department would have to certify that prototype magnets can be produced by industry before construction begins, although design activities by the architectural engineers for the on-site facilities could proceed.

The magnet technology would have to be proven again, this time at the site, before the final 80 percent of funding is released, according to Roe's bill.

The bill would allow the construction of up to 8 miles of tunnel and other activities necessary to prove the magnets would work at the site.

Broom might not be a hero next time

DALLAS (AP) - After a grand jury declined to charge him for shooting a man he'd just seen kill a woman, Todd Broom said he would hesitate to draw his gun in the same situation again.

"I was acting on my reaction to what had happened, and I wanted to stop the man from fleeing the scene," Broom said. "But if the same thing happened in the parking lot when I left here, I'd probably think a lot more."

A Dallas County grand jury Wednesday refused to indict Broom in the March 12 shooting death of Eddie Edwards.

"I'm very happy. I'm glad this is behind me and I can go forward now," said Broom, 25.

Broom, who could have faced a

Special genes zap cancer, says Reed

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Cancer cells have been killed in the test tube by sabotaging their genetic machinery, an early step in what could someday become a new form of therapy, a researcher says.

Scientists used a molecule that latched onto a key substance in cancer cells, preventing a crucial gene from relaying its orders to the cells.

The research is among early work in the so-called "anti-sense" strategy that seeks to block the effect of particular genes in cancer cells.

The new results were described Wednesday, at an American Cancer Society science writers seminar, by Dr. John Reed of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

His work was in lymphomas, cancers of the body's lymph tissues that strike more than 40,000 Americans a year. Lymph tissues play an important role in fighting infections.

Reed focused on a gene called BCL2. It is activated for limited periods in some normal cells when the body's disease-fighting immune system gears up.

But at some point very early in the transformation of a normal cell to a lymphoma, the BCL2 gene tends to become overactive, Reed said.

That occurs in about half of lymphomas, as well as maybe 5 percent to 10 percent of leukemias, Reed said. It results from a breaking and defective rejoining of chromosomes, the threadlike structures that carry genes, he said.

The normal function of the BCL2 gene is not known, Reed said. Like other genes, BCL2 relays its orders to the cell by sending a sort of Morse code message in chemical messengers called ribonucleic acids.

Reed's experiment involved invading lymphoma cells with a substance that seeks out and binds this messenger, stopping its function.

That killed lymphoma cells in the test tube, showing that the BCL2 gene plays a key role in lymphoma cell survival, Reed said.

He cautioned that any therapeutic use is many years away and must overcome some significant hurdles. One is that a single dose of the messenger-binding substance would now cost about $100,000, he said.

Future developments might produce a binding substance that clings to abnormal genetic material associated with an overactive BCL2 rather than the messenger, he said.

That could keep therapy from harming normal cells in which BCL2 happened to be switched on, he said.

Another step toward that goal would be developing binding substances that seek out an abnormal form of the BCL2 messenger that frequently appears in lymphoma cells, he said.

Dr. John Laszlo, the cancer society's senior vice president for research, called the work fascinating. Reed's early successes are "very exciting," he said.

Quilt to be given away

The Texas A&M Scholarship Fund project, sponsored by the Golden Spread Aggie Mother's Club, features a handmade quilt. Donations for the quilt, which will be given away in May, may be made to club members. It will be on display at the District 10 meeting of the Federation of Texas A&M University Aggie Mothers Clubs Saturday, March 31, at the E.B. Black House. Scholarship application is open to high school seniors who plan to attend Texas A&M University. Exhibiting the quilt is Terri Johnson, the local club's historian, and Kirsten Abney, a senior at Hereford High School who is applying for the scholarship.

Before naming your baby, consider important tips

Part of the excitement in expecting a baby is the fun of choosing a name for your future offspring.

But is the task as easy as it seems? After all, popular names come and go. Forty years ago John and Mary were the most prevalent choices for newborns. Today, Michael and Jennifer are the trendsetters, and Mary is not even among the top ten.

Factors other than popularity may also occur to you. Family tradition, for instance—should you name your child after a departed relative? Or, are you a proud papa-to-be who yearns for a namesake? Will your child's name have staying power—it is one that will command respect, if not admiration in the years ahead? Life is difficult enough without burdening your child with a moniker that invites ridicule.

Although no one can guarantee that the name will satisfy you and your child for the rest of your life, you may nonetheless wish to consider some suggestions from an expert. Professor Leonard Ashley of Brooklyn College, who is widely regarded as America's leading authority on onomastics (the study of names), has come up with a dozen tips for choosing a good name for your baby. Here are a few of his suggestions:

-Don't be cute when choosing a name. A name like "Paige Turner" that seems darling or clever for a cuddly infant can become an embarrassment and an affliction in later years.

-Avoid names that already have stigmas attached to them, such as Dennis (the Menace), Elmer (Fudd), or Caspar (the Friendly Ghost).

-Be aware that celebrated names may not always turn out to be cause for celebration. Why burden a child with Franklin Roosevelt's, Martin Luther King's, or Janice Joplin's identity?

-If you give your child a name with an unorthodox spelling like

Popcorn was one of the treats enjoyed by the American colonists at their first Thanksgiving dinner. It was offered by Quasagana, brother of the Indian Massasoit.

Thom, Sheri, Diahanc, Bobbye, or Kymber Lee, he/she may have to go through life spelling it for people.

-Consider how the initials of your offspring's full name go together. For example, Arthur S. Sullivan and Donald Usher Davis must have hated their acronyms.

Professor Ashley, who develops these ideas at greater length in a comprehensive new book entitled What's in a Name?—Everything You Wanted to Know is also mindful of the problems connected with trendy names, names that are too long, names that may be stale or startling, sexist and unisex names, names that run in families, and the psychology of names. He also has compiled a number of essential lists of girls' and boys' names which distinguish between old and new fashioned names, names which are not over-used, and names to avoid.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Dar Robinson was one of the greatest stunt men of all time, actor Danny Glover told a jury in a lawsuit stemming from Robinson's death when a stunt went wrong in the Arizona desert.

Glover, who saw Robinson work his stunt magic in the film "Lethal Weapon," was called as a witness Wednesday by attorney Jerry Kroll, who represents Robinson's family in a multimillion-dollar suit against Dino De Laurentis Entertainment Group and Productions Ltd.

Kroll maintains that Robinson died because an ambulance was unavailable at the remote desert location where he had a motorcycle accident while filming "Million Dollar Mystery" in 1986.

DEG and Productions Ltd. maintain there was no ambulance on the set because Robinson felt it was "bad luck" and an insult to his stunt abilities to have one around.

But Glover, who referred to Robinson as "one of the greatest stunt men ever," testified that an ambulance and fire engines were present when Robinson executed a dangerous stunt on the set of "Lethal Weapon" earlier in 1986.

Hints for nutritious meals

Healthy eating doesn't need to mean boring eating. The nutritious food choices available to you are practically endless. And there's no need to sacrifice taste and variety for nutrition.

Variety, balance, and moderation are the keys to planning menus. Each day's menu should contain foods from major food groups and go easy on fats, sweets and alcohol—these supply mainly calories and few vitamins and minerals. A healthy diet is moderate in fat, sugar, and sodium.

But moderation doesn't mean giving up all your favorite foods. It's your total diet that counts, and not just one food or meal. Look at your menu as a whole. With a little planning, almost any food can fit into your healthy diet.

You can also create your own

"convenience foods" by preparing them in dishes that can be served. Commercial convenience foods can be a great time saver, but when you choose foods that are "ready to eat" or "ready to heat," you have little control over fat and sodium content. You do have some control over partially prepared foods that require added ingredients like milk or margarine. To make these more healthy, reduce added margarine by half and use skim milk.

And if you do eat something that is high in fat and sodium, make other selections that are low in fat and sodium during the rest of the day. Remember, it's the total diet that counts, not one food or one meal.

And whether you have 10 minutes or several hours to make a meal, you will want to use cooking techniques that make the most of the food's taste

Hints from Heloise

RECYCLING TIP

Dear Heloise: Recycling has always been a problem around our house because of the clutter. Aluminum cans were everywhere.

One day when I was out garage-sale "shopping," I ran across a plastic trash can. I bought it and now the cans have their own recycled trash can.

I placed this outside the garage door and it's handy for the entire household. No more mess! It's easy, clean and handy to toss in the trunk of the car when it's full. —Cindy May, Billings, Mont.

Herd-Lobo game moved to Levelland

Today's Hereford Whiteface baseball game with Levelland scheduled for 4 p.m. at Whiteface Field has been moved to Levelland because of wet field conditions here, according to Athletic Director Don Cumpston.

The game, which is a makeup of Saturday's rainout, will be replaced on the home schedule with the April 28 game with the Lobos, originally slated for Levelland.

Today's game kicks off a busy weekend for Herd athletic teams. The Lady Whiteface golf team is also playing today, making up the first round of District 1-4A play at Lubbock's Elm Grove Country Club.

The pace picks up Friday with the boys' golf team playing the first round of the Amarillo Relays (the A squad will play at Amarillo Country Club, the boys' track team running in the preliminaries of the San Angelo relays, the tennis team playing in the Borger Invitational Tournament and the baseball team scheduled to host Dumas at 4:30 p.m.

Every team will be in competition Saturday with the tennis, boys golf and boys track teams competing in the second day of their respective events while the Lady Whiteface track team runs in the Lubbock Invitational, the girls' golf team plays its second district round at Dumas Country Club and the baseball team hosts Randall at 1 p.m.

The boys' golf team will make up its first district round at Elm Grove on April 6 before playing Round 2 the next day at Levelland Country Club.

Lowball/scramble to start Saturday

Friday is the last day to enter the two-man lowball/scramble planned for Saturday and Sunday at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

Entry fee is $80 per team plus carts and green fees. Head Pro Warner said total costs for entries, carts and green fees will be $69.50 per team each day. He added that Pitman members will be exempt from paying green fees.

Warner said the event will feature up to 10 flights playing a lowball format on Saturday and a scramble on Sunday.

Entries will be flighted on each two-some's low handicap.

Play will start both days with shotgun starts at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Payoffs in each flight, based on full flights, will be $400 per team for first place, $240 per team for second and $160 per team for third.

In other news from Pitman, Warner announced that handicaps will be recorded from April 1-Sept. 30. There will be a $6 charge for the service, which must be paid at the pro shop by April 30.

A&M hires Davis

COLLEGE STATION (AP) - Kermit Davis Jr. thinks he's getting in on the ground floor of something big - a resurgence of Southwest Conference basketball.

Davis was named head basketball coach of the Texas Aggies Wednesday and he's excited about his new team and the SWC.

"Our's is a program that's on the rise in a conference that may be the most exciting conference on the upswing in America," Davis said.

Texas and Arkansas' showdown in the NCAA playoffs could give the league a boost, Davis said.

"That was super for the conference," Davis said. "That exposure is good for the conference. It's going to help recruiting."

Davis replaces interim coach John

Thornton, who finished out the season after Shelby Metcalf was fired in January.

"We wanted a young, aggressive coach that plays an up-tempo offense and aggressive defense," A&M athletic director John David Crow said. "We think we accomplished our goal."

Davis led the Idaho Vandals into the NCAA playoffs the past two years.

He led the Vandals to consecutive 25-6 records in two seasons as head coach. Southwest Mississippi Junior College had records of 17-9 and 22-11 in two seasons under Davis.

"I have a feeling of great expectation," Davis said. "I had a great opportunity at age 28 at Idaho and it took a great opportunity for me to leave Idaho."

Penders to stay

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas basketball coach Tom Penders agreed in principle to a new seven-year contract, ending rumors he would take one of several coaching vacancies.

"This is what I wanted all along," Penders said Wednesday after meeting with UT Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds and President William Cunningham.

The coach, who led the 24-9 Longhorns to the NCAA Midwest Regional finals this year, agreed to a base salary of $105,000 per year and an annuity package. Details of the annuity package were not finalized.

News accounts said Virginia, Florida and North Carolina State were interested in the Texas coach and Penders said he talked with Florida Athletic Director Bill Arnsparger by phone.

But after the meeting Wednesday, Penders said, "I'm not going to talk to anybody anymore. I'm taking DeLoss and the president at their words."

A contract won't be signed until both Texas attorneys and Penders' agent, whom he declined to identify, agree on its proper wording. But both Penders and Dodds said they consider that step a formality.

The agreement gives raises to assistant coaches Jamie Ciampaglio and Eddie Oran and an income supplement to Penders based on winning percentage and his athletes' academic performance, Dodds said.

"We're working on a way to build on a situation that would encourage him to stay for the length of the contract," Dodds said.

The new deal erases the final three years of Penders' first contract, a five-year pact that had a base salary of $92,650. His total financial package, including benefits - shoe contract, radio and television shows, summer camp - was believed to be in the $200,000 to $300,000 range.

Penders is 49-18 in two seasons at Texas after taking Rhode Island to the round of 16 of the NCAA tournament in 1988. Texas also went to the NCAA last year under Penders.

Arkansas reached the Final Four by beating Texas 88-85 on Saturday. The new deal places Penders' base salary just below the $105,317 of UT football coach David McWilliams.

Tarkanian says up-tempo is the way to play

DENVER (AP) - Jerry Tarkanian remembers as if it were yesterday the moment he conceived the fabled running game that is viewed as the offense of tomorrow.

"I think the transition style really is a trend," the UNLV coach said Wednesday during a telephone conference call involving the Final Four coaches. "I don't think you can win big unless you play an up-tempo game. Had Loyola Marymount beaten us, you might see an even bigger trend."

UNLV, beating the nation's highest-scoring team at its own game, outran Loyola 131-101 Sunday in the NCAA West Regional final to advance to the NCAA tournament semifinals. The Rebels (33-5) will take on Georgia Tech (28-6) on Saturday and Arkansas (30-4) goes against Duke (28-8) at Denver's McNichols Arena. The championship game is Monday night.

Those who have competed against Tarkanian the past 16 seasons aren't surprised he was able to run with Loyola, which averaged an NCAA-record 122 points per game this season.

"I've been to 16 tournaments, and this is the most exciting one I've seen," Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins said.

"There are great players everywhere," Duke's Mike Krzyzewski said. "It's amazing how well these kids can play under pressure."

"I honestly believe there are no upsets in the tournament," Richardson said. "Parity is definitely here. If you tossed it all up again, you might have four different teams here."

If there is a favorite among the finalists, it is UNLV, and Tarkanian's NCAA tournament record is a reason. He is 31-15 in tournament play, trailing only such notables as John Wooden (47), Dean Smith (43) and Denny Crum (32) in victories.

Richardson and Cremins picked UNLV to go all the way.

"I think Tark has a tremendous basketball team," Richardson said. "We got a chance to play them earlier in the year (losing 101-93). They've got a nice front line and good guards, and they've got that wild man, (Moses) Scurry. He scares me."

Cremins came away impressed after UNLV's romp over Loyola Marymount.

"Particularly after the Loyola game, I feel you've got to favor Tark's team," Cremins said. "But there might not be any favorite with how close the games have been."

Krzyzewski seemed to be leaning toward Georgia Tech, although his comments were laced with good-natured ribbing.

"Bobby Cremins said all those nice things about me earlier and then he goes and picks someone else," Krzyzewski said. "I think he should do it. If not, the people of Atlanta should string him up."

Tarkanian diplomatically called it a wide-open Final Four.

"I don't think there's a clear-cut favorite," he said. "If you took a poll after our game with Ball State (a 69-67 victory in the West semifinal), I don't think anyone would have picked us. I think it's about as equal a tournament as you'll find."

But Tarkanian had gone on record earlier as saying, "If we play real well, there isn't a team we can't beat."

"We went to the running game in the 1974-75 season," Tarkanian recalled. "We had lost a big kid who transferred to Hawaii, and we had a 7-footer who decided to sign with the Virginia Squires of the old ABA. That left us without a big man."

"We knew we had to speed the game up. We knew we needed to get a shot off before the defense set up. We got rid of our zone and went with a pressing, trapping defense. We had some success with it, our kids loved it and we stayed with it."

It is not coincidental, in Tarkanian's view, that the tournament's four remaining teams use a variation of his attack.

"All four teams are good transition teams," agreed Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson, "and we all have guys who can shoot the 3. I think it's going to be a high-scoring Final Four. I expect the scores to be at least in the 80s."

And close. The coaches were unanimous in their belief that parity has arrived in college basketball, citing the unprecedented number of close games in the tournament.

"There are good players on about every team in the country," Tarkanian said.

Vandy wins NIT crown

NEW YORK (AP) - The National Invitation Tournament gave up-and-down Vanderbilt a chance to finish the season at the top of a hill.

The Commodores, who beat five NCAA tournament teams but lost seven consecutive Southeastern Conference games in one stretch and finished tied for eighth in the league standings, won the NIT with a 74-72 victory over St. Louis Wednesday night.

"The seven straight losses taught me that basketball has a long season," Coach Eddie Fogler said. "In December, we beat three teams that made the NCAA - Kansas State, Alabama-Birmingham and Virginia - then we lost all our confidence during the conference season. But television has made basketball a tournament-oriented game, and we got a chance to have a good season."

Vanderbilt (21-14), which had never before appeared in the final of a postseason tournament, blew all but two points of a 56-39 advantage with 10:35 remaining.

St. Louis (21-12), losing in the NIT final for the second consecutive year, hit six 3-pointers in the final 10:14, but Coach Rich Grawer said defensive intensity was the key to the comeback.

"Once we got down by 17, we played harder on defense and took out our frustrations on Vanderbilt instead of complaining to the referees," Grawer said. "Vanderbilt frustrated us offensively, bumping us, but not fouling us. That frustration manifested itself with poor defense at the other end."

Anthony Bonner, the nation's leading rebounder with 13.9 per game, said the Billikens waited until it was too late to start playing well.

"It's a shame that we couldn't play with that intensity for 40 minutes," said Bonner, who finished with 19 points and 11 rebounds and averaged 20.4 points and 15 rebounds in the five-game tournament.

Charles Newberry scored 11 of his 18 points in the final 6:08 of the game.

Senior guard Derrick Wilcox, averaging 11.6 points, scored all of his 16 points in the second half for Vanderbilt.

St. Louis got within two points on four occasions in the final minutes, including 71-69 after a 3-point goal by Bonner with 33 seconds left.

Freshman Kevin Anglin hit two free throws with 15 seconds left for a four-point lead, and Wilcox made it 74-69 with a free throw. Jeff Gaona's buzzer-beating 3-pointer for St. Louis made the final margin two points.

Bonner scored only four points in the first half and was only 7-for-20 from the field.

Scott Draud scored 15 points and Morgan Wheat 13 for the Commodores. Draud, who scored 20 points in the semifinals against Penn State, was named tournament MVP.

"I'm surprised I won it," Draud said. "I thought I played well, but not that well."

Wilcox, Anglin and Eric Reid - who didn't have a field goal among them in the first half - scored all of Vanderbilt's points in a 10-2 spurt that started the second half, giving the Commodores a 41-30 lead.

Vanderbilt extended the margin to 56-39 with 10:35 left after a 3-pointer by Wilcox and a basket by Reid.

Jeff Luechtefeld then hit consecutive 3-pointers for the Billikens, sparkling a 23-8 surge that cut the deficit to 64-62 with 3:28 left.

Neither team led by more than five points in the first half, with Vanderbilt holding a 31-28 edge at halftime.

In the third-place game, James Barnes scored 19 points and backup forward Dave Degitz gave Penn State the lead for good with a three-point play in overtime, lifting the Nitany Lions to an 83-81 victory over New Mexico.

Newberry, Bonner, Barnes, Todd Milholland of Vanderbilt and Luc Longley of New Mexico were named to the all-tournament team.

Surprise! Oakland picked to win American League West

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer
Hard to believe the American League West was so bad so recently, isn't it?

Now, in just the time it took Ruben Sierra and Jose Canseco to grow into superstars, the division became the best in baseball.

It's no coincidence, either. Rather, the result of planning, patience and progress - ingredients the AL East hasn't shown too much lately.

Oakland, of course, is the showpiece. And the Athletics will have Rickey Henderson all season.

Two of the biggest free-agent prizes, Mark Davis and Mark Langston went to the AL West, making California and Kansas City even stronger.

Remember how the high-and-mighty AL East used to scoff at the paltry win totals? No more - the Athletics, Royals and Angels all won at least 90 games, more than any of the Torontos, Bostons or New Yorks back East.

Combined, the West teams won 587 games last season, the division's best showing since Oakland dominated the early 1970s. The West made a 22-game improvement against the East last year, and that trend might continue.

The Athletics, meanwhile, should continue to win the West.

Oakland Athletics

They led the majors with 99 victories, and quickly added eight more in October. They're better this season, even with Storm Davis, Dave Parker and Tony Phillips gone.

Why? Because the three free agents they lost can be replaced. And because Oakland can pitch. And, most importantly, because the Athletics have Rickey Henderson and Jose Canseco on the start.

Any doubts about Henderson's all-around talents - and who now will admit to being skeptical? - were answered in the postseason. He's that great, especially at home in Oakland. Only one question this year for the man with the green-glow batting gloves: Will he get the 68 stolen bases he needs to break Lou Brock's all-time record of 938?

Canseco (17 home runs, 57 RBIs in 65 games) predicts he might someday become a 50-50 man. If he's healthy, and he is now, he might be.

Carney Lansford (.336), Mark McGwire (33 HR, 95 RBIs) and Dave Henderson (80 RBIs) provide punch. So can designated hitter Ken Phelps, who has that rare combination of power and a good eye. Phelps, misused at Yankee Stadium, led the league in pinch hits and now will try to duplicate Parker's 97 RBIs.

Kansas City Royals

The Royals bought every free agent available named Davis. Too bad Kansas City can't buy runs when it needs them.

Mark Davis (44 saves, 1.85 ERA in San Diego) joins Bret Saberhagen (23-6, 2.16 ERA) to make the Royals the first team to start the season with both Cy Young winners. Still, is a five-year contract for a reliever worth it?

Storm Davis will miss Oakland's offense, particularly if the Royals again are shut out a major league-leading 18 times. Mark Gubicza (15-11, 3.04 ERA) could have sued for non-support while rookie Tom Gordon (17-9, 3.64 ERA) faded in the stretch. Jeff Montgomery and Steve Farr each had 18 saves; there won't be that many chances for them this year.

OK, the Royals can pitch. But they still don't score. Kansas City's 690 runs ranked 11th in the league and Gerald Perry was the only winter addition.

California Angels

Give the Angels some credit. They knew what they needed to do - trade a pitcher for power - but missed Joe Carter and weren't able to get Dave Winfield or anyone else.

A lot like Kansas City, California has plenty of arms and not enough big bats. The Angels' pitching kept them ahead of Oakland until late August.

Mark Langston (16-14) didn't help Montreal in the stretch, but should fit in well in Anaheim. Bert Blyleven (17-5, 2.73) is strong at 39 and Kirk McCaskill (15-10, 2.93) bounced back. Rookie Chuck Finley (16-9) made the All-Star team and then got hurt; he still has never allowed a home run in the first inning of 50-plus big-league starts. Veteran Mike Witt (9-15, 4.54 ERA) may win again, may not.

Jim Abbott was one of baseball's bright spots in a dark season, although his stats were just average - break-even 12-12, 3.92 ERA with 5.5 strikeouts per game, compared to the AL average of a 3.88 ERA and 5.7 strikeouts.

Chili Davis (22 HR, 90 RBIs) led the Angels in both power categories.

Minnesota Twins

The Twins slipped back below .500 and might stay there, no matter how great Kirby Puckett plays.

Puckett (.339, 85 RBIs, 45 doubles) became the AL's first right-handed batting champion in a full season since Alex Johnson in 1970. Hometown hero Kent Hrbek (25 HR) got even more popular when he turned down more money from other teams to stay in Minnesota.

This will be the first year to start judging whether the Frank Viola trade was a good one. Rick Aguilera, David West and Kevin Tapani join a rotation where only Allan Anderson (17-10) is established. With Jeff Reardon gone, Juan Berenguer's three saves were the most of anyone left.

Texas Rangers

It's probably time to stop talking about the Rangers as an up-and-coming team with a great future. Which is not to say they still can't win.

Ruben Sierra (.306, 29 HR, league-leading 119 RBI) is the best and the brightest. Many Texas fans felt he deserved the MVP award more than Robin Yount, although the 24-year-old Sierra will get many more chances.

The stable of young pitchers Texas was raising has not developed as well as expected. Kevin Brown (12-9, 3.35) is the best of the bunch and Jeff Russell converted 38 of 44 save opportunities, the best percentage in the AL, and made the All-Star team as a reliever a year after making it as a starter.

The main man remains Nolan Ryan (16-10, 3.20 ERA). At age 42, he moved within 11 victories of No. 300, reached 5,000 career strikeouts and became the first AL pitcher to fan 300 batters in a season since he did it in 1977. The only thing he missed was another no-hitter, coming within a few outs on several occasions, and he held opponents to a .187 batting average, lowest in the majors.

Seattle Mariners

Inevitably, people look at the Mariners and figure things have to get better. Well, that's not so.

Seattle did improve five games in Manager Jim Lefebvre's first year to 73-89. That, though, made it 13 straight losing seasons since expansion.

The biggest changes in the winter came at the homer-haven Kingdome, where the fences were moved back a few feet in left field and pulled in a bit in right.

On the field, Seattle surprisingly outbid several teams for free agent Pete O'Brien (.259, 12 HR), a first baseman with little power. The Mariners got tired of waiting for Jim Presley and traded him to Atlanta and brought back former star reliever Matt Young (1-4 in Oakland).

Scott Bankhead (14-6) was the top winner and Mike Schooler got 33 saves, along with a 1-7 record and 2.81 ERA. Gene Harris, Brian Holman and Randy Johnson, the three pitchers the Mariners got from Montreal for Langston, went a combined 16-23, although they're young and can improve.

Rookie Ken Griffey Jr. (.264, 16 HR, 61 RBI) played well and Harold Reynolds hit .300, although he continued to have unproductive stays on the bases - he stole successfully just 25 out of 43 times.

Chicago White Sox

The White Sox won only 69 games, their fewest since 1976, and without any new blood, their last season at Comiskey Park may not show much improvement.

Melido Perez (11-14, 5.01 ERA) was the top winner. Bobby Thigpen (34 saves) preserved nearly half of Chicago's victories, even with a 3.76 ERA.

The offense got a lot better under hitting coach Walt Hiriak. The White Sox jumped from .244 and 631 runs in 1988 to .271 and 693 runs last season. Carlton Fisk, still catching at 42, led the regulars at .293 and part-timers Ron Kittle, Carlos Martinez and Lance Johnson each hit .300. Ivan Calderon hit 14 of the team's league-low 94 home runs.

Scott Fletcher and Ozzie Guillen provide fine defense up the middle and Eddie Williams plugged a long-time troublspot at third base. Rookie Robin Ventura, an All-America hitter in college, might make his mark this year in his second pro season.

Jordan held to six assists as Bulls win in overtime, 117-113

By The Associated Press

How high can Michael Jordan go? There seems to be no limit to his soaring or his scoring.

The high-flying Jordan reached a rarefied atmosphere Wednesday night with 69 points, the ninth-highest total in NBA history, as the Chicago Bulls beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 117-113 in overtime and clinched a spot in the playoffs.

"This would have to be my greatest game," Jordan said. "When I scored 63 against Boston (in the 1986 playoffs), we lost. It sure feels a lot better when you score a lot of points and win the game."

Elsewhere, it was Philadelphia 122, Boston 104; New Jersey 106, New York 101; Detroit 106, Charlotte 97; the Los Angeles Lakers 106, the Los Angeles Clippers 99; Washington 113, Denver 99; Minnesota 93, Sacramento 88 and Miami 109, Orlando 104.

Jordan made 23 of 37 field-goal attempts and 21 of 23 foul shots. He also had a career-high 18 rebounds, plus six assists and four steals.

"The guy did it over, over, and over again," Cleveland's John Williams said. "He's one in a million, one in a billion. I don't think we'll ever see a player like him again. He's probably the world's greatest athlete."

It was the fourth time Jordan has scored more than 60 points. His previous career high was 63 against Boston in the 1986 playoffs. He scored 61 twice in 1987.

Only two other players have had multiple games of 60 or more points. Wilt Chamberlain did it 32 times and Elgin Baylor three times.

Jordan scored 16 in the first quarter, 15 in the second, 20 in the third, 10 in the fourth and eight in overtime. The Bulls led by 17 points late in the third period.

"In the first quarter I felt it, missing only one shot," he said. "I could feel that I was going to knock my shots in."

Jordan's point total was the second-highest by a guard in NBA history. Denver's David Thompson scored 73 against Detroit in 1978.

Mark Price led the Cavaliers with 31 points, Craig Ehlo added 26 and John Williams 23.

76ers 122, Celtics 104
Charles Barkley scored 22 points, one of four 76ers with 20 or more. Hersey Hawkins and Ron Anderson each had 21 points and Johnny Dawkins 20.

The 76ers took control in the first half, building a 17-point lead. Philadelphia held the Celtics' usual leading scorers, Larry Bird and Kevin McHale, to 15 and nine points, respectively. Robert Parish had 25. Nets 106, Knicks 101

New Jersey shut down Patrick Ewing early, ended his club-record streak of consecutive 20-point games at 28.

Ewing finished with 17 points. New Jersey built a 22-point lead midway through the third quarter and had to hold on as the Knicks twice closed the gap to two points in the final 68 seconds.

Chris Morris led New Jersey with 24 points. Pistons 106, Hornets 97

James Edwards scored 22 points and Vinnie Johnson had 20 as Detroit snapped a three-game losing streak.

Dell Curry and Muggsy Bogues scored 15 points each for Charlotte. The game was never close after Detroit opened a 50-33 lead at halftime.

Lakers 106, Clippers 99

James Worthy scored 11 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter after the Lakers, without the injured Magic Johnson, blew a 23-point lead.

The Lakers built a 55-32 cushion late in the first half but trailed 75-73 after the Clippers' Charles Smith scored 14 of his 29 points in the third quarter.

Bullets 113, Nuggets 99

Bernard King and Jeff Malone each scored 26 points and Darrell Walker had a career-high 16 rebounds to go with 10 points and 13 assists.

The Bullets put together an 18-0 run for a 56-40 halftime lead. Alex English scored 16 for Denver.

Timberwolves 93, Kings 88

Tony Campbell scored 32 points and sparked a late 15-4 rally. Minnesota, which is allowing the second-fewest points per game in the NBA, held the Kings scoreless from 5:41 left to the 40.3-second mark.

Heat 109, Magic 104

Kevin Edwards had 25 points and Sherman Douglas scored 11 of his 18 in the final five minutes. Sidney Green led Orlando with 23 points.

House unwanted by Texas schools

By JOHN WALKER

San Angelo Standard-Times
SAN ANGELO (AP) - There's a possibility that the leading scorer in Texas high school basketball history - like two Texas players of the year before him - will leave the state to continue playing the game he loves.

Troy House of Ingram Tom Moore High - whose 4,159 points are the most ever by a Texas schoolboy and the sixth-highest total in U.S. high school history - has gotten a chilly reception from Texas colleges.

House was named to the Class 2A all-state tournament team after the Warriors won the championship earlier this month. He also earned a spot on the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches Class 2A All-State first team.

And while House's feats are pretty much household knowledge, the lack of recruiting by Texas colleges of House remains a mystery to his parents and coach.

"We're certainly disappointed," said House's mother, June. "As far as we're concerned, the Texas schools just aren't recruiting Texas kids ... and it's a shame that Texas kids have to go away to play college basketball."

Jim Reid, who coached House this past season, also is puzzled that Texas colleges aren't recruiting his player.

"I'm a little disappointed in the way Texas coaches are approaching the situation," Reid said. "I want to be cautious in what I say, because I don't want to jeopardize his chances, but I want to be honest, too.

"Texas kids are being approached more by out of state schools to come play for them than by Texas schools."

Reid said he had picked up a statement attributed to one scout who said House lacked quickness.

"He said he was a step slow ... that's not true," Reid said. "If anything, he's a step faster than most players."

Jay Parker, who has operated the Texas High School Basketball Scouting Report out of the Houston area since 1983, agrees.

"He's got good quickness ... anytime you're the low hurdles champion for your classification in the state of Texas, your speed is OK," Parker said.

House is the defending Class A state champion in both the 110-meter high hurdles and 300-meter intermediate hurdles - winning the 110s in 14.4 seconds and 300s in 37.5 seconds last year.

Parker says House can play college basketball.

"I don't think he's a great player, but I think he can play," Parker said. "He shoots the ball real well off the dribble."

But Parker said it didn't surprise him that House wasn't being recruited by Texas colleges.

"You can't give a white kid away in Texas ... there are only three (white players) under 6-8 in the SWC," Parker said. "It's very hard (for a white kid) to get a college scholarship. Since they (Texas colleges) don't work the state, they haven't seen them play, and they don't know that they can play."

Some out-of-state schools, like Grand Canyon College in Phoenix, are willing to travel 1,000 miles to pursue House. Grand Canyon, making the move from NAIA to NCAA Division II, has offered him a scholarship.

"His first real offer came last night (Thursday) from Grand Canyon," Reid said. "It's a shame a kid as good as Troy may have to go out of state, but that's not unusual ... look at the others."

"Three years ago it was the (Larry) Johnson kid (now) at UNLV and last year it was Shaquille O'Neal to LSU." House's mother said her son would visit Grand Canyon, although he wants to play in Texas.

"I think he was really interested in UTSA (Texas-San Antonio) until (head coach Ken) Burmeister left," Mrs. House said.

She said the early recruiting effort consisted mostly of letters.

"UTSA and North Texas were pretty consistent but there was never really anything definite ... UTSA called and talked with him all the time, but then the coach (Burmeister) left," she said.

So far, Stephen F. Austin is the only school in addition to Grand Canyon to invite House for a visit.

"Well, they asked, but when they called, Troy had gone out to Sul Ross to visit his brother and they never called back," she explained.

House has indicated a preference to remain in Texas.

"I'd like to stay in Texas and I'd like to play for the best school I can," he said.

Reid is frustrated and upset. "I have a great deal of difficulty understanding why more of our Texas people aren't openly pursuing the kid," Reid said. "I'm about half-dread of tip-toeing around these Texas coaches."

"Our kids are doing everything they need to be doing. They're working hard ... they're making the grades ... I'm concerned about the people in charge of these programs - do they want kids who can come in and play ball and graduate and go on to be a meaningful member of society or what?"

But Reid says wants to be careful not to jeopardize any chance House and another of his players, post Josh McCormick, might have of getting a college scholarship.

"I know college coaches have problems, but the signals they send us is they want this and they want that and the kid does it and then doesn't even get a chance to visit a school in his own state," he said.

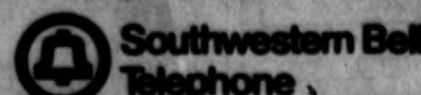

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company hereby gives notice that it has filed an application requesting the PUC to declare Southwestern Bell's intrastate Billing and Collection market subject to significant competition and to authorize the following form of pricing flexibility: detariffing of the rates, terms and conditions of the Billing and Collection services now offered in Section 8 of Southwestern Bell's intrastate Access Service Tariff. Approval of the application as filed would result in all tariff sheets in Section 8 (Billing and Collection) of Southwestern Bell's Intrastate Access Service Tariff being cancelled, and the service thereafter being provided on a contract basis. Through this application, using procedures established by P.U.C. SUBST. R. 23.27, Southwestern Bell seeks to obtain uniformity of rates, rules and regulations for intrastate and interstate Billing and Collection services.

Approval of this application would remove all rates, terms and conditions applicable to billing and collection from Southwestern Bell's Intrastate Access Service Tariff. Intrastate billing and collection service would continue to be subject to PUC regulatory oversight only to the extent that (1) Southwestern Bell would be required to maintain current price lists at the Commission for the service, and (2) the revenues or losses from the service would be subject to the regulatory treatment specified in P.U.C. SUBST. R. 23.27(p). Further, under procedures established by P.U.C. SUBST. R. 23.27, the PUC's General Counsel, the Public Utility Counsel or any affected person could seek a subsequent review of the rates, terms and conditions of this service.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings, or who would like further information, should call or contact the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, (512) 458-0100. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Information Office at (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221, teletypewriter for the deaf.

The PUC has assigned this matter to Docket No. 9224. A prehearing conference will be held on April 19, 1990, at 9:00 a.m. at the Commission's offices at 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard in Austin, Texas. The deadline for filing motions to intervene is April 26, 1990.

Researchers become sleuths

The mystery of consumer food preferences could be solved, but more than 40,000 pieces of evidence have confused the case.

U.S. grocers simply haven't been able to track how consumers spend nearly $300 billion a year among the 40,000 items typically stocked in each food store.

Recent research found the shopper motive: buy at the lowest possible price. But data by the cart-load must be analyzed to understand how a grocery store can accommodate consumer actions.

Hot on the trail are researchers from Texas A&M University and the U.S. Department of Agriculture who scanned the country's grocery checkout counters, trying to put the answer behind bars—product bar codes.

"The store manager should know that if he wants to raise prices, he'll lose money," Dr. Oral Capps, a Texas A&M University agricultural economist, said his study revealed. "If a product is on sale, consumers gobble it up. So if the manager lowers the price, he can increase revenue. And that will benefit consumers in terms of price savings."

Capps and Hal Ricker of the USDA-Agricultural Marketing Service are devising manageable uses for the data after squeezing out reams of grocery store scanner figures in a $250,000 pilot project that began in the late 1980s.

Capps is writing a book, a first of its kind, which will describe for retail outlet executives the use of scanner data to make management decisions.

"Trying to analyze this data is like taking a drink from a fire hydrant," said Capps, expressing the industry's sentiment. "About 60 percent of the stores in the United States have scanners, but only 10-20 percent of the supermarkets do anything with the information."

Scanners at grocery stores first appeared in 1972 mainly as a way to send consumers through checkout stands more quickly by eliminating the manual entry of each item's price. A secondary benefit, grocers quickly realized, could be the volumes of data recorded with each purchase.

But so extensive is the information that few grocery stores have the computer capability or expertise to analyze the data. National Grocers Association spokeswoman Margi Berkowitz said the industry would welcome practical management applications for scanner data.

"We are trying to develop a methodology that can be used by others," Ricker said. "That is why a small, local project was done."

For the pilot study, Capps targeted fresh and convenience beef products sold in a 150-week period at Randall's, an upscale Houston-based supermarket chain.

"Randall's is top-of-the-line. They have done enormous things with computer technology," Berkowitz said. "Certainly if (the study) is useful for Randall's, it's useful for the rest of the industry."

The chain, which averages 2.4 million customers a month, supplied Capps with a weekly mainframe computer tape containing purchase information on 1,600 meat codes, 147 of which are beef products.

Meat products not only are keys to a food store's profit, but are a significant portion of the consumer's market basket. Ground beef purchases best demonstrated the importance of price, Capps noted.

"They sold 27,000 pounds at $1.59 a pound during one week," Capps said. "The next week they sold 46,000 pounds at $1.09. That pattern went on for several weeks."

When the store chopped the ground beef price to 98 cents a pound, it sold 119,399 pounds in one week, he pointed out.

"Consumers are very price responsive on meat," Capps said. "Managers should be worried about that."

In addition to developing models to predict how much of a product will move at a given price, Capps said, scanner data has numerous other possible applications, such as for:

* Inventory control. If a product doesn't sell well in 13 weeks, it is not stocked anymore, Capps noted.

* Determining display location. Based on scanner data, one Washington-area grocer determined that the amount of space devoted to soft drinks could be reduced by 20 percent. "That made room for some of the new products coming out," Ricker said.

* Calculating quantities needed. Most managers know that products will move when put on sale, Capps said, but the scanner data gives a more exact indication of how much. "If the store runs out and has to give a rain check," he said, "the customer may not come back."

Capps believes that grocers eventually will employ computer-literate merchandisers.

"I would suggest that grocery stores develop a market information system and put someone in charge of pulling the data quickly," Capps said. "This is a highly competitive market. If they aren't going to do it, they're going to get beat, because consumers speak with their purchases."

Martha Washington's silver service it is said was the source of silver that went into the first U.S. coins.

Our driest state is Nevada. Its annual rainfall averages 8.8 inches.

Proper hygiene care minimizes infection

Most dogs suffer from internal worms sometime in their lives. Humans can sometimes become infected with these canine worms, too.

"Human infection is not a major problem, but it becomes very important if it happens to you," says Dr. Peter Schantz, a veterinarian and epidemiologist with the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga. "Fortunately, responsible pet ownership, proper hygiene and veterinary care can minimize human infections from dog worms."

The most common parasites in dogs are heartworms, hookworms, whipworms and roundworms. Humans are most at risk from roundworms and hookworms.

In the U.S., there are an estimated 10,000 human cases of roundworm infection per year. Of these, more than 700 result in vision impairment, according to Dr. Schantz.

Although numbers don't indicate the disease is epidemic, it is widespread. Each year since 1978 between 2,000 and 3,500 human blood samples from across the nation were sent to the Centers for Disease Control to confirm worm infection. One-quarter to one-third tested positive for roundworm antibodies. Many other cases are not reported.

Virtually all puppies are born with roundworms. These intestinal parasites cause a potbelly and recurrent diarrhea in the puppy. Puppies should be treated with medication to remove the worms, Dr. Schantz says. Dogs can become reinfected later, so they should be treated regularly to control the worms.

Hookworms cause bloody diarrhea in infected dogs. Veterinarians can prescribe medication that prevents both roundworm and hookworm infections.

Roundworms and hookworms deposit eggs in the dog's intestines, and these eggs are then passed in the dog's feces. Humans can contract roundworm infection by inadvertently touching their mouths with hands contaminated by eggs left in soil. Children who are inclined to eat dirt (a condition known as "pica") are at higher risk of infection. "Some studies show that up to one-third of soil samples from parks contain roundworm eggs," Dr. Schantz says.

Humans get hookworm infections from skin contact with larvae in sand or soil.

Humans infected with dog worms usually don't show symptoms, but in some cases, serious damage results. Roundworm eggs hatch in the small intestine and the larvae migrate throughout the body, sometimes damaging organs such as the lungs, brain and eyes. "They've been found in nearly every human tissue and organ system," Dr. Schantz says.

When roundworm larvae enter the organs, the disease is called visceral larva migrans (VLM). VLM syndrome is characterized by fever and elevated white blood cell counts. If lungs are infected, symptoms also include wheezing, coughing and congestion. Ocular larva migrans (OLM) is the most serious manifestation of the disease. OLM occurs when a larva penetrates the eye. In nearly all cases, OLM causes some degree of sight loss, sometimes blindness.

Hookworm larvae migrate in the skin, causing painful skin eruptions. In massive infections, the larvae penetrate into deeper tissues, possibly including the eyes.

"We're not discouraging dog ownership. Dogs make wonderful companions with many social and health-related benefits to humans," Dr. Schantz. "But we're encouraging responsible dog ownership because we can reduce this problem by doing so."

Steps to minimize human infection include:

- Practice responsible dog ownership. Owners should not allow their pets to foul playground, parks or public places where children play. And owners should always clean up after their dogs. The roundworm egg in feces must incubate in the soil for several weeks before they become infective. Removing feces can prevent incubation.

- Practice proper hygiene. Handwashing before eating can help prevent roundworm infections. And, Dr. Schantz says, children should not play around kennels or puppy litter areas.

- Consult your veterinarian. Dr. Schantz stresses that owners should eliminate worms from their dogs by consulting a veterinarian for the appropriate treatment.

"An adult female roundworm can produce 200,000 eggs daily," notes Dr. Schantz. "Since worm burdens can range from one to several hundred, an infected dog can contaminate the environment with millions of eggs."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After several years of a miserable marriage, my wife and I were divorced. "Denise" had turned into an arrogant, greedy, deceitful shrew with no redeeming features. At the end of our marriage, she was bitter, self-pitying mess. Her main goal in life was to turn our children against me, and with the help of a slippery lawyer, she did a pretty good job of it.

After a few years, Denise remarried. I was thrilled that she no longer had my name. It used to bother the daylight out of me the way she went around town pretending that she was still my wife.

My euphoria was short-lived, however. Her marriage lasted less than a year. In a matter of weeks, I learned that Denise had dropped the name of her second husband and taken mine back. I was burned up about this and let her know it. She was her usual nasty self and told me where to go.

My name is very important to me. I value and treasure it. I did not complain when Denise kept my name after we were divorced. I figured that since our children had that name it made sense for her to have it too. But after a SECOND divorce? This seems terribly unfair, if not illegal. Please let me know what you think about this. - Bill from Boulder

DEAR BILL: What I think isn't important. It's what the law says that counts.

I consulted with a Chicago attorney, and this is what he said: "The law permits a person to assume and use any name he or she chooses, provided it is not used for improper purposes, such as evading creditors. Your correspondent's complaint of 'unfairness' is not, according to the law, sufficient basis for objecting to his ex-wife's use of his name."

So, there you have it, Bill. It looks as if you are going to have to live with this annoyance.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Five years ago, my son was born with a birthmark, sometimes called a port wine stain, on one side of his face. I now know that there can be more to a port wine stain than just the stain. It is called Sturge-Weber syndrome.

Sturge-Weber syndrome occurs in children whose stain is in the eyelid area. Sometimes there are seizures and glaucoma. Both can be managed with proper medication. The great news is that the stains can now be treated successfully with laser therapy.

Please get the word out about a foundation that will tell your readers where these laser are located. Major centers are at NYC Medical Center in New York City, Duke University Medical Center in Durham, N.C., UCLA School of Medicine in Los Angeles, Thomas Jefferson University Hospital in Philadelphia, Northwestern University in Chicago, Boston University Medical Center and Massachusetts General Hospital, both in Boston.

Those who want to know about the availability of laser treatment closer to their homes should write to the Sturge-Weber Foundation, P.O. Box 460931, Aurora, Colo. 80046. There is no charge. -- Concerned Mother in Edmond, Okla.

DEAR CONCERNED: I have checked out the Sturge-Weber Foundation, and they will be happy to send the information to anyone who sends a long, business-size, self-addressed, stamped envelope. I have seen their literature and am sure it will be helpful. Thanks for letting us know.

Gem of the Day: You can't have everything. Where would you put it?

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) - He doesn't wear a badge, but Mayor Sonny Bono figures he has enough moral authority to chase down speeding motorists.

Straddling his black Harley-Davidson last weekend, his honor spotted a motorcyclist rocket through an intersection on Palm Canyon Drive, the main thoroughfare in the desert resort 100 miles east of Los Angeles.

"I chased him down," Bono said Tuesday. "He said something about not being able to read my shirt, and I told him, 'You'd better learn to read real fast unless you want to spend the night in jail.'"

Indoor plants absorb many airborne toxins

Did you know that your office building, if constructed with man-made materials as most are, harbors approximately 300 contaminants--which you breathe in every day. The list includes benzene, formaldehyde, and trichloroethylene (TCE).

Where do these poisonous chemicals come from? Many seemingly harmless materials or items found in the household or workplace emit toxins in the form of gases. Some sources include latex paints, solvents, rugs, and upholstery. As to the effect on human health, reports show that disorders may range from headaches, respiratory irritation, and fatigue, to nausea and dizziness.

Contributing to this situation are today's energy-efficient structures that lock in polluted air, creating the problem known as "sick building syndrome." But current research is uncovering what appears to be an effective, inexpensive solution, says the American Association of Nurserymen. Much of the work in this area is being conducted by William C. Wolverton senior research scientist and consultant for Wolverton Environmental Services in Picayune, Mississippi and former National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientist.

As director of NASA's environmental and research department at the John C. Stennis Space Center in Bay Saint Louis, Mississippi, Wolverton conducted research proving that common houseplants filter contaminants from indoor air. Wolverton's study of the air-filtering properties of plants began in 1974 with research into using plants to produce water and oxygen for astronauts on long trips.

In recent experiments cosponsored by NASA and the Foliage for Clean Air Council, he tested the ability of 14 different plants to remove chemical toxins from the air. Science News reports the Wolverton placed each plant for 24 hours in a sealed area containing tainted air. The rate of pollution varied from as much as 30 parts per million (ppm) to what Wolverton said could be found in a house, below 1 ppm.

While Wolverton found that all the plants cleaned the air, he noted that some were better at filtering certain pollutants than others, which meant that a wide variety of plants must be used to effectively fight all the indoor pollutants. For example, tests revealed that English ivy filtered 90 percent of benzene, but only 11 percent of trichloroethylene (TCE). Potted mums took care of the TCE, filtering 41 percent of it, along with 61 percent of the formaldehyde, and 53 percent of the benzene. Like the ivy, Ficus removed a small amount of TCE, but did much better at ridding the air of formaldehyde.

According to the study data, plants with low-light requirements scavenged 20 percent of pollutants through their leaves. Clean up of the remaining 80 percent was the work of roots and soil microbes that feed on pollutants, demonstrating the importance of keeping rocks and low-hanging leaves from shielding the soil.

Further studies associated with the NASA/FCAC research added to conclusions advocating extensive use of different low-light houseplants. They focused on the air-purifying combination of roots and their microorganisms with an activated carbon filter, which absorbs and stores airborne pollutants until the roots use them as food.

Experts interested in future trends say the NASA report's conclusions will be significant for environmentalists, architects, and community planners seeking insights and answers regarding ways to improve air quality in the home and workplace. If Wolverton's ideas catch on, expect to see more offices, stores, malls, and houses designed with plant placement in mind, which will affect window size and location, the lighting system, and number of lights. Of course those designs will also include location of carbon filters containing fans.

Questions pressing on olive oil

Olive oil is relatively new to many Americans, although it has been a Mediterranean cooking staple for centuries. Here are answers to questions American consumers often ask about olive oil.

Q: Can you tell by the color of an olive oil what the taste will be?

A: More intensely colored oils tend to have a stronger, more olive-like flavor, but that rule is not totally reliable. Some oils are blends of several varieties. Location, soil and year-to-year changes in growing conditions also affect color and flavor.

Q: What does "extra virgin" mean?

A: This describes the highest quality oil with best flavor, color and aroma. It is produced in smaller quantities than other grades and is priced the highest. The next grade is called simply "virgin."

Q: What do "first pressing" and "cold pressing" mean?

Classifieds.

They're just for you, everyday,
in the Hereford Brand.

Call Janey Allmon today at 364-2030 and get a classified to work for you.

A: These terms were used in the past when less powerful equipment made it necessary to press the olives more than once. Today, most oil is produced with only one pressing without heat and these terms are meaningless.

Q: What is "pure" olive oil?

A: Oil that does not meet the standard for virgin olive oil is refined to remove impurities, then blended with virgin and/or extra-virgin oil. This blend is 100 percent olive oil and is labeled "pure."

Q: Are there health benefits to using olive oil?

A: Olive oil contains a high level of monounsaturated fatty acids. Researchers think these fatty acids help reduce blood cholesterol by lowering the level of harmful LDL cholesterol. To use olive oil healthfully, substitute it for other types of fat; don't add it to the amount you presently use.

Q: What is the best way to store olive oil? How long will it keep?

A: It's best to buy no more than a year's supply of olive oil at a time. Store it in an airtight container, away from light in a cool cupboard. Or, refrigerate if you like. The cloudiness that results from chilling is not harmful; just let the oil come to room temperature before using.

Q: How can I tell which kind of oil to use?

A: Some of the flavor and aroma of extra-virgin and virgin oil are lost at high cooking temperatures. For long or high-heat cooking or frying, using pure olive oil makes the most sense. To get the most flavor from extra-virgin oil, add it in the final stage of cooking. In general, a mild, light-flavored oil is best with delicately flavored dishes such as fish. Hearty red meat or tomato-based dishes need a more full-flavored oil. You may prefer to buy small amounts of two oils rather than a large container of just one.

Q: How many fewer calories does light olive oil have than regular olive oil?

A: In this case, "light" refers only to flavor; light olive oil is the mildest tasting olive oil. It contains the same number of calories as any oil: 125 per tablespoon.

Don't store silver for several hours after washing or polishing. Dampness can cause black spots.

Don't use rubber gloves when polishing silver and don't store silver with rubber bands. Rubber darkens silver.

Social Security

Congress has added an important new protection to Social Security law. You are now entitled to have missing earnings added to your Social Security earnings record if your employer did not report all of your earnings even if you did not act to correct your record on time.

The usual time limit for correcting your earnings record is three years, three months and 15 days after the end of a year. (For example, earnings for calendar year 1986 can be corrected through April 15, 1990).

There are limited exceptions which permit correction after the time limit has passed. For instance, if you were able to prove you worked and paid Social Security taxes for an employer who made absolutely no report of your wages, the Social Security Administration has been able to correct your earnings record. However, if an employer reported less wages than you actually were paid, once the time limit had passed, there was nothing you could do to get full credit for those unreported earnings.

Thanks to a new change in law, an incomplete earnings record now can be corrected if you can provide acceptable evidence that your employer paid you more wages during a year than the employer had reported to the Social Security Administration for that year.

Evidence can include your own federal income tax records, including W-2 statements of earnings, pay envelopes or pay slips, employer records, and signed statements by employers.

Every worker should verify his or her earnings records for accuracy and completeness at least once every three years so that mistakes can be promptly corrected. With the new Personal Earnings and Benefits Estimate Statement (PEBS), Social Security has made it easier than ever to check your record. Just call 1-800-234-5772 and request a PEBS application. When it's received, complete and mail the application and, usually within a month, you will receive a year-by-year record of your Social Security earnings after 1950. Earnings before 1951, if any, will be shown as a lump sum.

If your own earnings records disagree with your official Social Security earnings record, contact your local Social Security office as soon as possible and ask for help in getting your earnings record corrected.

For more information about Social Security and Medicare, write the National Committee, 2000 K. Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

Sullivan seeking success at IIA Open

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) - Mike Sullivan hopes to jog his golf memory in the $1 million Independent Insurance Agent Open.

Sullivan came out of the pack to win his second career tournament in the 1989 event over the par 72, 7,042-yard Woodlands Country Club's TPC course.

But he quickly forgot how to win again.

"Anytime something can remind you of something good in your past, it's good for you," Sullivan said. "I'm sure when I play this course, I'll be reminded of some of the shots I hit and some of the putts I made."

The Woodlands' TPC course has been good to Sullivan, who set the course record with a 9-under par 63 in 1986.

"After I won the tournament, I played more than I usually do and ran myself into the ground," Sullivan said. "I developed some bad habits and got lackadaisical about the basics. I never got it back."

Sullivan must defend his title against a contingent of top European players including Seve Ballesteros, defending Masters champion Nick Faldo and Ian Woosnam.

Former University of Houston golfer Fred Couples, the No. 4 money winner on the tour, and two other local favorites, Ben Crenshaw and host pro John Mahaffey, are entered.

The tournament was scheduled to begin on schedule despite rain that washed out Wednesday's pro-am event.

Sullivan, who shot an 8-under par 280 to win the 1989 Independent Insurance Agent Open, will learn about defending titles this week.

His only other PGA Tour victory was the 1980 Southern Open. Sullivan won $144,000 for his Houston title and finished the year No. 47 on the money list with $273,963.

Ballesteros expects a better week of golf than he experienced at last week's Nestle Invitational.

Ballesteros boycotted The Players Championships two weeks ago in protest of the PGA Tour's requirement of playing in 15 PGA events to qualify for tour membership.

He went to The Nestle Invitational last week in Orlando, Fla. to begin tuning up for the Masters April 2-8 but he didn't get a full week's work.

He left Florida however, having missed the cut after taking a nine and eight on two horrendous holes. Ballesteros won the Masters in 1980 and 1983 and finished second in 1985 and 1987.

"I really want to do well this week and pick up my confidence for next week," Ballesteros said. "I certainly didn't play very well last week."

"I took a nine and that was the second highest score of my career," Ballesteros said he had an 11 in the 1974 Spanish Open.

"I was sick the week before (Nestle tournament) and I wasn't feeling too strong last week," Ballesteros said. "This week I'm feeling much better."

Despite missing the cut a week ago, Ballesteros said he played well over the final 11 holes.

"After I made the bogey on six, from there through 18 I played three under par," he said. "But it was difficult when you are so far behind and so far from making the cut to get too encouraged to play well."

Ballesteros expects to play better this week because he feels better. "When I play good any green is good for me usually," he said. "When I play bad nothing is good. I just want to play good whatever the condition of the course."

Ballesteros tied for third in the 1989 Independent Insurance Agent Open and had a chance to win until a double bogey took him out of it in the final round.

Faldo finished in a tie for 42nd with a three over par 72-hole total at The Woodlands last year prior to his Masters victory.

Ballesteros, fifth in the 1989 Masters, says defending titles is difficult.

"I've never been a very good defending champion," he said. "It's difficult. People think because you won the previous year, you're supposed to win the following year."

"You have to face so many other activities for the week, the press and this and that. There's so much more pressure."

Robert Gamez, whose 176-yard eagle on the 72nd hole won last week's Nestle Invitational, skipped this week's event.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company intends to file an application with the Texas Public Utility Commission to introduce new optional services - Call Control Options. The initial service areas will be Laredo, McAllen and Austin. Expansion into other service areas will be based on availability. Customers in other areas will be notified when these services become available.

Call Control Options include six new services - Call Blocker, Call Cue, Call Return, Priority Call, Call Trace and Selective Call Forwarding. The features will be available to single-line residence and business customers.

Call Blocker - enables the customer to block incoming calls from a maximum of three specified telephone numbers and/or to block the last incoming call.

Call Cue - enables the customer to automatically redial the last outgoing telephone number dialed. If the recalled number is busy, equipment will monitor the line for a maximum of 30 minutes and will let the customer know when the call can go through.

Call Return - enables the customer to automatically redial the telephone number of the most recent incoming call. If the number is busy, Call Return will continue to dial the number for up to 30 minutes, or until it completes the call.

Priority Call - provides the customer with a distinctive alerting signal, ring or Call Waiting Tone (if the customer has subscribed to Call Waiting), when the customer is called from a maximum of three preselected telephone numbers.

Call Trace - enables the customer to initiate a trace of the last incoming call received. The number, date and time will be recorded by Southwestern Bell Telephone so that the call's origin can be identified.

Selective Call Forwarding - enables the customer to forward incoming calls from specified telephone numbers (maximum of three) to another telephone number.
