John Smithee of Amarillo, newly-elected State Representative, 86th District, was in Hereford Thursday night for a "town hall" meeting. Mayor Wes Fisher, left, is shown chatting with Smithee, a Republican who will succeed Democrat Bob Simpson next month. Only a handful of people showed up to visit with Smithee, who will represent Randall and Deaf Smith counties.

Texas Cattle Feeders recap year, eye prospects for '85

Texas feedvards marketed more than 5 million fed cattle in 1984, and that record-setting total had to be the number one story of the year for the Texas Cattle Feeders Association, according to Bob Josserand, TCFA president from Hereford.

TCFA executive vice president, and Jim Gill, marketing director, at a press conference Thursday in Amarillo to recap the year and view prospects for 1985.

top objectives for 1985 was to become more involved in legislative activity, and to emphasize the point the TCFA announced the employment of Ross Wilson as a governmental affairs specialist. "For years, the cowboys, ranchers and farmers have taken the attitude toward Washington of 'leave me alone and I won't bother you', but members have told the leadership of TCFA they want to get involved," said Josserand.

In order to increase involvement, Ball said TCFA has hired Wilson as well as a consulting lobbyist in Wasington. In addition, TCFA will continue to bring legislative assistants and congressmen to Amarillo and will step up relationships and activities through the National Cattlemen's Association.

Josserand said many members had been worried the past year about what the Dairy Payment in Cash pro-

Antibiotics also gave cattlemen trouble during 1984, with the Food Josserand said one of the TCFA's and Drug Administration outlawing chloramphenicol for livestock and considering a ban on subtherapeutic use of antibiotics in livestock feed, pointed out Josserand.

"We certainly feel like we will not do anything that would be detrimental to the health, but we feel whatever action is taken should be based on sound scientific data," said Josserand. "At this time, we do not feel that data has been supplied."

Amarillo and Dodge city were added as Chicago Mercantile Exchange delivery points, while Guymon was dropped. Josserand said he thinks this change might not be noticed immediately in Amarillo's economy, but eventually there will be a significant influx of dollars and people into for the new year.

"There was a lot of concern about bunching effect this year, but most feedyard managers say they are keeping well ahead of their marketing schedule," said Gill.

He estimated the first quarter would see cattle trading at $67 to $71 per hundredweight coming out of feedyards. Gill thinks secondquarter prices will remain fairly steady, around $66 or $70, with the traditional slump following in the third quarter to around $62 to $66. An increase in the fourth quarter should see prices at $64 to $68.

He expects the feeder numbers to be down a little because of the strong cow liquidation during the summer due to the drought down south. Gill estimated that a million more cows were liquidated in 1984 than the previous year, leaving the lowest total in 20 years.

Wilson, the new governmental affairs specialist, worked two years in Washington as legislative assistant to Jack Hightower and, before that, he was executive assistant for the Texas Wheat Producers Association.

In addition, Ball announced that Burt Rutherford has been named communications director for TCFA. Rutherford, who will move to Amarillo from Denver, will be responsible for editing the TCFA newsletter and Cattle Feeders An-

OPEC ministers attempt to stop tailspin in oil prices

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - OPEC ministers reconvened today hoping to formally approve an unprecedented plan to monitor each member nation's production and pricing, a last-ditch bid to stop a tailspin in world oil prices.

Twelve of the 13 OPEC nations tentatively agreed to the proposal on Thursday. The 13th member, Nigeria, a major OPEC producer that has suffered from steadily falling prices and strayed from cartel policy as a result, was expected to declare its position today. Nigerian Oil Minister David Tam-West showed up late and missed the meeting Thursday at which the consensus on the enforcement Ecuador's delegation expressed opposition to the plan earlier in the day, but changed its mind after consultation with its government, according to Oil Minister Arturo Hernandez Grisanti of Chances of the plan's success do not hinge on Ecuador, a small producer. But the decision of Nigeria, one of OPEC's biggest producers, will be crucial. OPEC's members are Algeria, Ecuador, Gabon, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Libya, Kuwait, Nigeria, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates and Venezuela.

An analysis of the study indicated that illegal aliens are a big factor in the job market in many communities, but their impact may be more beneficial that has been suggested. The base of low-income workers provided by illegals may well help attract industries to certain cities, and this can both create jobs by making companies more competitive and lower consumer prices, according to the study by Ms. Slater.

Her findings, based on data from the Census Bureau and other sources, appear in the January issue of American Demographics

"A common-sense interpretation of the Census data shows that the number of illegals is not as large or as threatening as believed," Ms. Slater wrote.

Many illegal aliens are men in the 15-to-35 age group, which makes them likely to be active in the job market, she reported. But rather than harming Americans they may have a positive impact on local economies, she said.

For example, she cited an Urban

Business barometers indicate slump over

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) government's main economic forecasting gauge jumped 1.3 percent in November, the biggest gain in nine months, as various business barometers offered new evidence that a four-month slowdown is ending, the Commerce Department reported today.

The sharp increase in the Index of Leading Economic Indicators followed a revised 0.5 percent drop in Oc-

Before November, the index had fallen in three of the last five months - something that had not occurred since the recession year of 1981.

The declines had spurred growing concern that a new recession might be imminent. Overall growth, as measured by the gross national product, dipped to an anemic 1.6 percent from July through September - far below rates of 10.1 percent and 7.1 percent turned in during the first and second quarters this year.

However, a variety of economic statistics have pointed to renewed strength last month. Unemployment fell sharply and orders for manufactured durable goods posted their biggest gain in almost four years.

Despite the revival in the domestic economy, the country is still suffering from huge trade deficits.

In a new report today, the Commerce Department said the trade deficit rose to $9.9 billion in November, up 7.6 percent from the October level of $9.2 billion.

The increase stemmed from a 2.7 percent rise in imports and a slight 0.1 percent dip in exports. For the first 11 months of the year, the country has posted a trade deficit of $115.4 billion, virutally guaranteeing that the total deficit will almost double last year's record of $69.4 billion.

The Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators is a compilation of 12 forward-pointing economic measurements.

The increase for November was broad based with nine indicators contributing to the gain.

The biggest boost came from an increase in building permits during November. Other positive factors in order of their influence were a gain in the money supply, an increase in plant and equipment orders, a rise in of this year.

sensitive materials prices, gains in net business formation and the length of the average workweek, a drop in initial claims for unemployment insurance, a rise in stock prices and in new manufacturers orders for consumer goods.

Two indicators which detracted from the gain were a change in the growth of credit and in the time it takes companies to fill orders.

Analysts cautioned about reading too much into the latest increase.

"It would be a mistake to get carried away and say things will really bounve9back next year," Michael Evans, head of Evans Economics, a Washington forecasting firm, said in advance of today's report. "This is just telling us things are returning to normal."

The government reported last week that overall economic growth bounced back somewhat to a rate of 2.8 percent for the final three months

ap-dn-12-28-84 0108cst j312rnPM-Medicaid, Texas Bjt,410 DHR to Seek Medicaid Cost Reductions

AUSTIN (AP) - A "major effort" to cut the cost of health care for the poor and disabled is under way at the Department of Human Resources, an official said.

J. Livingston Kosberg, the chairman of the department's board, said Thursday a special staff unit will propose ways to reduce costs in Medicaid in Texas.

Medicaid was established in 1967 to furnish medical assistance to disadvantaged families with dependent children and disabled whose incomes could not pay for health care.

More than 600,000 Texans at the poverty level are eligible for Medicaid, and two-thirds of the department's $2.3 billion budget goes for health services.

In an effort to reduce costs, human resources commissioner Marlin Johnston has established the Project on Health Care Policy Alternatives and charged it with examining every phase of Medicaid.

"A major effort is required to reduce expenditures," said Kosberg, Houston.

He said the department wants the staff to devise by January 1986 a new system of reimbursement for hospital care.

Johnston said, "Project staff have been directed to give priority attention to strategies to meet increasing Medicaid program costs and propose ways to reduce costs."

Here are some topics, as outlined by Kosberg and Johnston in a written statement, that the staff will review:

— Mandatory surgery in "appropriate outpatient settings."

- Prior authorization for selected services.

Promotion of office-based medical care instead of more costly institutional care. - Health Maintenance Organizations.

- Paying physicians a set amount and charging the physician with managing the entire health care needs of an individual.

- Concentration on prenatal care.

- Reducing the number of hospital days available. Limiting prescriptions and physician visits for which Medicaid will pay.

Buying in volume such goods as eyeglasses and hearing aids, laboratory and such services as X-rays and laboratory tests.

Kosberg said "with health care costs constituting ever larger components of the states' budgets, demands are surfacing to curtail expenditures and to change the incentives operating within the medical market place."

Johnston added that the department "is committed to providing needed health care services to as many recipients as possible. The state's Indigent Health Care Task Force has forcefully stated the need for an expanded Medicaid program.

"With the state's fiscal constraints being quite clear, we will do all that can be done to contain health care costs to assure maximum Medicaid coverage to those in need," Johnston said.

ANGOLA, La. (AP) — An unrepentant Robert Lee Willie was executed Friday in Louisiana's electric chair for the rape and murder of an 18-year-old woman who was attacked as she walked home from a disco. The victim's parents watched him die.

Willie, 26, was pronounced dead at 12:15 a.m. by Dr. Alfred Gould, said C. Paul Phelps, Secretary of the Department of Public Safety and Corrections.

Vernon and Elizabeth Harvey, the stepfather and mother of the slain woman, were among those who witnessed the execution, along with Willie's spiritual adviser, Sister Helen Prejean, an opponent of capital punishment. He winked at the nun as she watched preparations for the electrocution.

"I would just like to say Mr. and Mrs. Harvey that I hope you get some relief from my death," Willie said in a statement 12 minutes before his death. "Killing people is wrong. That's why you've put me to death. It makes no difference whether it's citizens, countries orus. Killing is wrong."

Mexican Political Protestors Block Entrance To International

EAGLE PASS, Texas (AP) - For the second day in a row, Mexican protestors blocked the international bridge between Eagle Pass and its sister Mexican city, Piedras Negras, preventing vehicles from crossing, authorities said. The blockade, which began late Wednesday, forced some American tourists to abandon their vehicles in Mexico or drive several miles out of their way to cross the border, according to James Bazemore, an inspector with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Eagle Pass. Leaders of the Partido Accion Nacional called for the blockade to draw attention to what they claim was voter fraud during the Dec. 2 mayoral election in which a candidate from the established Partido Revolucionario Institucional was declared the winner.

The newly elected mayor is scheduled to be inaugurated Jan. 4. The blockade began about 4 p.m. Wednesday and resulted in a complete shutdown of the bridge to vehicle traffic, Bazemore said Thursday. American tourists were forced to drive to Del Rio about 60 miles away to bring their vehicles back across, Bazemore said.

Members of a wedding party had to walk across the bridge, and during a funeral procession, a casket had to be carried into Mexico on a gurney instead of in a hearse, officials said.

Protestors began blocking entry points to the bridge after the elections, Bazemore said, but never for 24 hours straight.

No protests have occurred on the bridge, Bazemore said. Demonstrators have gathered at intersections and parks leading to

Survey group of clergy okays unmarried sex

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Only 40 percent of a group of Christian and Jewish teachers and counselors surveyed say they believe it is immoral for an unmarried man and woman to have sex and 16 percent did not think adultery is wrong.

G. Sidney Buchanan, a University of Houston law professor who is an expert in constitutional law, also found that nearly half the approximately 500 people who answered his survey believe homosexual relations are not immoral.

The findings, released this week, were based on questionnaires sent to 950 faculty members of religious departments in colleges throughout the United States and counselors chosen statistically at random from the Directory of The American Association of Pastoral Counselors. Fifty-one percent of the questionnaires were returned, Buchanan said.

"Of those who responded, nearly all were clergy in the sense of having a doctor of divinity degree," he said. "Theology was their major area of study."

Buchanan characterized their responses as "moderately liberal but not wild-eyed liberal."

Buchanan, along with one of his students, Mark Johnson, conducted the survey from the fall of 1982 to the spring of 1983. He previously has researched government aid to

Paul Harvey

Team loyalty

I was cheering for Dallas Cowboys the other day when suddenly it occurred to me that the Dallas Cowboys aren't there anymore!

Roger Staubach isn't there anymore; he's selling Rolaids. Harvey Martin and Drew Pearson aren't there anymore; they're network announcers. Billy Joe DuPree and Larry Cole and Pat Donovan and all the good ol' boys who were "The Cowboys" aren't there anymore. There is not one present Cowboy player who was on that team 12 years

So when we, out of loyalty, cheer for this year's Cowboys-for whom, for what are we cheering?

My home base city is Chicago. This year Chicago's Bears have their first division championship in 21 years. Of course the Bears are not "the same team" now as then.

The player roster of every athletic team is a revolving door; the average for aplayer in the NFL is to stay with one team no more than 41/2 So when we cheer for "The Bears," for whom are we cheering?

I hear people insisting, "I've been a Cubs fan all my life" or "I've been a Bears fan all my life."

Some who say they are not Chicagoans; life nowhere near Chicago; yet they profess a lifelong allegiance to a team - the members of which come and go so fast that last season's players are just as likely to playing "against" as "for."

Intrigued by this "loyalty to nobody" I began asking around: "Why?" Here's how it appears:

From the halcyon days of each of us we identify with places that were through a soft, pink glow which flatters each. We remember the funtimes, the good friends, the sunny days in Wrigley Field and the backslapping happy hours after.

And if team allegiances are less valid than in the days of the Yankees and the Bums-identification with any one affords a degree of continuity, a toehold on immortality. Immortality? The Institute of Sports Medicine recently heard from psychiatrist Dr. J.A. Harrington that multiple media coverage has contributed to enhancing the significance of spectator sports to where for many "as a reason for being it has replaced religion."

Arkansas comes close to win in Liberty Bowl Thursday night

By SKIP LATT Associated Press Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - The big play - only a fingertip away for Arkansas - became reality for Auburn and halfback Bo Jackson, whose 40-yard, fourth-quarter touchdown run gave the 16th-ranked Tigers a 21-15 Liberty Bowl victory.

the Auburn secondary - one turned into a 35-yard TD run by cornerback Kevin Porter - Arkansas, 7-4-1, came within a whisker of capping its 1984 season with an upset victory Thursday night at Liberty Bowl Memorial Stadium.

After seeing an early 3-0 lead turn-

Despite four pass interceptions by ed into a 14-3 first-quarter deficit on a 2-yard run by Jackson and Porter's TD return, the Southwest Conference Razorbacks gave Auburn and Coach Pat Dye everything they expected and a little more before becoming the Tigers' ninth victory in 13 starts.

"They did exactly what we thought they'd do, and they did it well," Dye said. "The only thing that beat Arkansas is four turnovers."

The Razorbacks put on a determined rally in the fourth quarter, scoring on a 2-yard run by fullback Marshall Foreman with 11:56 remaining to cut the Southeastern Conference Tigers' lead to 14-9. Then they came within one play of possibly taking home the trophy.

That play, on fourth-and-one from the Tiger 46, saw Arkansas halfback Bobby Joe Edmonds drop a sure touchdown pass from quarterback Brad Taylor in the open at the Tiger

Five plays later, Jackson, who gained 88 yards on 18 carries and was named the game's MVP, slithered through the hands of the Razorback defense at the Arkansas 38 and raced into the end zone with the deciding touchdown. "We went for it all on fourth-andone," said first-year Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield. "We felt the play would be open. If we scored, it would put us ahead and would force them to throw the ball late in the game when they were tired."

Edmonds said it was a case of "being too open."

"It was a lack of concentration. It looked like the pass would be long, then I thought I'd have to dive for it. Then the ball was there and I knew I was in trouble when I felt it go off my hands and into the air," said Edmonds, who set a Liberty Bowl record for pass receptions with 10, covering 68 yards.

After Jackson's scoring run, the Razorbacks got a 25-yard TD pass from Taylor to split end James Shibest with 3:10 remaining, but could not move past their own 45 as the clock ran out on their final possession.

"I told our team they would have to fight and scratch the whole game if they were to beat Arkansas, and that's exactly what they did," Dye wins and losses, I don't know."

Bulls 112, Cavaliers 108 Rookie Michael Jordan matched his season high with 45 points as Chicago held off Cleveland.

The Bulls had a comfortable lead until the final minute when the Cavaliers, who got 30 points from World B. Free, outscored Chicago 8-1 to make the final score close. Celtics 118, Clippers 103

Kevin McHale scored 18 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter, helping Boston break up a close game at Los Angeles.

The Clippers, playing before a sellout crowd for the first time since moving from San Diego during the off-season, trailed only 101-95 midway through the final period. But the Celtics outscored Los Angeles 17-8 the rest of the game to pull away, with McHale scoring 10 straight Boston points in one stretch.

Spurs 141, Trail Blazers 120 San Antonio won its sixth straight home game and handed Portland its eighth loss in its last nine outings as George Gervin scored 31 points.

Mike Mitchell added 24 points. Mychal Thompson led the Trail Blazers with 22.

Warriors 101, SuperSonics 98 Golden State captured only its second road game in 14 tries this season, winning at Seattle behind the scoring of Purvis Short and Mickey Johnson.

Short scored 23 points and Johnson had eight of his total of 17 during a 12-0 run by the Warriors early in the fourth period. The surge turned a 77-72 Seattle advantage into an 84-77 Golden State margin.

Sonics center Jack Sikma led all scorers with 26 points.

In Gator Bowl tonight

Top 10 teams clash By FRED GOODALL

AP Sports Writer
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) -Oklahoma State has prospered under Rusty Hilger's leadership, but the senior quarterback isn't one to rest on past laurels. "In playing the game of football, you have to have a short memory," says Hilger, who'll lead the ninth-ranked Cowboys against No. 7 South Carolina in the 40th annual Gator Bowl tonight. "We can't expect what's happened in the past to help us...We've got to be mentally and physically prepared."

Hilger, the Cowboys' all-time passing leader, is the first quarterback to guide Oklahoma State to three straight postseason appearances and the Big Eight school has compiled a 19-8 record with him as starter.

A victory over South Carolina would give the 9-2 Cowboys their first 10-victory campaign in history and relieve a bit of the pain lingering from a 24-14 loss to Oklahoma that cost the team the Big Eight championship and an Orange Bowl berth.

South Carolina hopes to end its most successful season ever with the school's first bowl victory.

"We want to make history...win it for the people back home in Columbia," said All-America linebacker James Seawright, leader of the ing its last four.

HOUSTON (AP) - The giddy sensation of being 8-1 and playing for a Cotton Bowl berth after 19 years of obscurity may have been too much too soon for the Texas Christian football team, head Coach Jim Wacker didn't make errors early in the

The Cinderella Horned Frogs, 1-8-2 in 1983, turned back into frogs, warts included, and lost their last two games to Texas and Texas A&M for an 8-3 record and a consolation trip to the Bluebonnet Bowl opposite West

"All of a sudden we were 8-1 and knew we would be in the Bluebonnet Bowl no matter what happened, just about, and we looked around and said 'we can't belieeeve it," Wacker to replace eight starters from last said Thursday.

"We'd already reached all out goals and were so much farther along than we ever thought. We had been hoping for the Chili Bowl or any kind of crazy bowl so maybe we lost a little of the fire in our eyes."

The Horned Frogs, led by Kenneth Davis, the No. 2 rusher in the nation, will try to get that fire back Monday night in the 7 p.m. kickoff in the Astrodome against the Mountaineers, 7-4.

"We're not a great football team by any means," Wacker said. "There's only one way that TCU could win this year and that's if we clawed and scratched and fought like it meant more to us than anything in the world.

Then we can play a pretty decent football game. We played hard in our Year's Eve." The Mountaineers are coming off a three-game losing streak and Coach Don Nehlen is ready to end the season positively.

"The reason we won games is we season," Nehlen said. "At the end of the season we were doing things that were uncharacteristic for us.

"We dropped punts, lined up offsides and everytime we had a holding call it was when we had a 15-yard gain and it killed us."

Nehlen gives his youthful defenders' much credit for helping the Mountaineers earn their fourth straight bowl appearance.

"It's a very young defense that had year," Nehlen said. "We started as an average defensive team, progressed to a solid team after four games and then we tailed off at the end of the year."

West Virginia is among few college teams that can boast at having stopped Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie of Boston College.

The Mountaineers beat Boston College 21-20 for four straight victories over the Eagles, who will meet Houston in the Cotton Bowl.

"We decided if he (Flutie) was going to beat us it would be with a three-step drop back passing game," Nehlen said. "They are a big play offense, but they do it with the pass. TCU is a big play team too but they do it with the run."

But Davis is the big concern now.

NEW YORK (AP) - The alley-oop passes from Spud Webb to Lorenzo Charles are a sight to behold.

Whether 14th-ranked North Carolina State can work the same magic against No. 5 St. John's in Saturday's championship of the 33rd Holiday Festival basketball tournament remains to be seen.

N.C. State gained the final Thursday night in it's first game without 6-foot-11 freshman starater Chris Washburn, who was suspended last Friday after being booked on a second-degree burglary charge.

In Thursday's second game, Maryland beat host Hawaii 70-71 as was to meet Georgia Tech tonight for the championship.

Kevin Holmes scored a careerhigh 23 points and Tyron Corbin added 22 as DePaul extended its homecourt winning streak to 32 games. DePaul, 8-2, raced to a 42-16 lead at halftime, then scored the first eight points of the second half and coasted to victory.

Yankees sign Whitson

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - In his only World Series appearance, San Diego right-hander Ed Whitson lasted a mere two-thirds of an inning against the Detroit Tigers. Now, as a member of the New York Yankees, he wants a rematch.

The Yankees announced Thursday that Whitson, who spent the pas two seasons with the Padres, had signed a free-agent contract, bringing him from the National League to the American League. The five-year deal is worth about $4.5 million, sources say.

"I hope to get a second chance at Detroit one of these days," Whitson said at a news conference, and Yankees Manager Yogi Bera piped in: "He'll get a chance to pitch against them again."

The 29-year-old Whitson, the Yankees No. 1 priority in the freeagent re-entry draft last month, will join a pitching staff that has grown older and a little feeble. But he is on-

"They like to blitz a lot, and they're very good at it," Elway said.

"It's always difficult to throw when the defense gets good pressure onyou. What we have to do is beat the blitz a few times early and maybe they'll back off. I have to know my reads and get the ball off to the right ly part of a total revamping job the Yankees have done this offseason.

First, the Yankees acquired speedy outfielder Rickey Henderson from the Oakland A's, giving up a minor league outfielder and four yound pitchers, including Jay Howell and Jose Rijo.

"Now we're done," Yankees owner George Steinbrenner said. "I'm happy. The players we had to give up for Henderson now have been replaced."

Last season, Phil Niekro led the Yankees staff with 16 victories, but he will be 46 years old in April. Ron Guidry, 34, had his worst major league season, finishing 10-11. Marty Bystrom and John Montefusco have been imjured, and youngsters Jow Cowley and Dennis Rasmussen are unproven.

Even Whitson, a seven-year major leaguer, has yet to prove himself a top-notch starter. Although he was 14-8 for the Padres last year and helped the team to the World Series, his lifetime record is 53-56.

In the playoffs against the Chicago Cubs. Whitson worked eight innings to win Game Three. In the World Series, he pitched only two-thirds of an inning before being knocked out in Game Two, which the Padres went on to win 5-3.

"Playing in the World Series was the greatest thrill in my life, other than making the big leagues." Whitson said. "There's not enough I can say about it. I was making good pitches, but a lot of their hits had seeing eyes. Baseball is a funny game."

The development of a palm ball late in the 1983 season may have helped Whitson turn his career around. He developed the pitch almost by accident, when he cut a finger on his pitching hand on a piece of metal on a soda-pop can.

"I was supposed to pitch the next night. But I couldn't use the breaking ball at all the next night, just the 'fastball," he said. "So I had to use it (the palm ball), and fortunately, for me, it was a gift,"

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D. Stretching

recommend about stretching for us senior citizens? I don't want to get stiff and unable to bend. At present, I simply bend over to touch my toes. Notice I said to touch, since I can't quite touch them any more and I have heard you shouldn't force it. I just bend over as far as is comfortable and then straighten up. I do this at least 10 times. I also swing my arms and, in general, try to move every-thing I've got. I think this helps, but would like to know if you have any better suggestions.

DEAR READER - I'm glad you are interested. A lot of the stiffness that people develop as they get older is caused by not doing things that enable them to stretch throughout the full range of motion. You certainly can maintain your flexibility, which is one of the basic aspects of any good fitness program. Sometimes a person who doesn't stretch his muscles can't turn his head well enough to see cars as he comes onto an expressway. Loss of flexibility can pose some real hazards.

If you are bobbing up and down to touch the toes, that is not the best way to stretch. You have to start by realizing what affects flexibility. It is not the muscle fibers, but the connective tissue that surrounds the muscle fibers and forms tendons between the fibers. The next time you cook beef, look at it carefully. The fibrous material that makes meat tough is what you need to stretch. Long, slow cooking softens those fibers so the meat is tender.

That is a clue for you. Those fibers when they are warm. A lot of the gen, the material gelatin comes from. If you warm up, all of this fibrous tisway to induce flexibility is to do stretching exercises after you have at least warmed up your body. A good hot bath before stretching helps those who are not going to exercise.

Stretch as far as you can without be damaging to the kidneys. being uncomfortable. Overdoing it My advice is use aspirin o desired degree, hold that stretch until ask your doctor.

DEAR DR. LAMB - What do you you have counted to 30. This helps to cause a permanent stretch.

Those quick bobbing stretches merely exercise your elastic fibers and will not lead to a permanent increase in flexibility.

When should you stretch, before or after exercise? The answer is both. That also applies to doing manual labor. If you are just going for a walk, the level of exercise is not so vigorous as to require an extensive stretching program first. However, the end of the walk, when your body is warmed up, is a very good time to stretch all of your muscles.

If you are going to play tennis, you first need to do some warm-up exercises and to stretch thoroughly. Then stretch again after the match.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have read that aspirin or acetominophen can cause kidney problems. Then I heard on TV that kidney problems occur only when a combination of aspirin and acetominophen is used. Can plain Tylenol or plain aspirin cause these problems? Exactly kidney problems can occur? since I have headaches and sinus trouble, I have always taken Tylenol when needed, and now I'm

DEAR READER - The first wellpublicized warning was that if you took aspirin chronically, as many arthritics do, you would damage your kidneys to the point of needing kidney dialysis or a kidney transplant. After the initial furor subsided, the problem was studied in more detail and a less frightening opinion has emerged. The National Institutes of Health sponsored a panel to review the data, and contain fibers that stretch easily its published opinion is that you don't need to worry about plain medicines, material is made mostly from colla- such as either aspirin or acetominophen (Tylenol). However, if either of these is combined with other medisue stretches easily. If it is cool, it is cines, such as caffeine, codeine or a hardened and tough and will not host of medicines, continued use of stretch easily. This is why the best such combinations could damage your kidneys. The panel recommended that such combination medicines be removed from the market. Questions have also been raised about whether Advil and Nuprin, recently The next point is to stretch slowly. made available to the public, might

Storyteller's life one with many firsts

HOUSTON (AP) - Ah, the stories this man can tell!

When Eldorous L. Dayton reaches into his marvelous memory and pulls out some obscure tidbit, allowing a glimpse of the treasures collected there over 77 years as author, scholar, historian, newspaperman, broadcast pioneer and chess champion, one is overwhelmed by his awesome learning.

If only it could be compressed into pill form and swallowed as a daily dose of knowledge!

It might begin at the breakfast table over coffee and toast when someone asks a direct question.

"Ah, but first I must tell you about ...," Dayton begins, and proceeds to wind his way through Pacific islands, Canadian lumber camps, American Revolution battlefields, the streets of ancient Rome, the wooded grounds where repory and swordsmanship of Lord Byron, "who thought Keats too rural," by the way. After he has recited a dozen verses by half as many poets and explained the meter of French ballads, Dayton has forgotten what question he set out to answer.

That life has been full of "firsts"

the first to use the phrase "Give 'Em Hell, Harry,' with his book of the same title. He stirred up a big ruckus with "Walter Reuther - The Autocrat at the Bargaining Table" in the 1950s; "The Secret Life of Adolf Hitler," his novel adopted from his Emmy-nominated television documentary, became a best

His documentary work for WPIX-TV resulted in another Emmy nomination for "The Russian Revolution," but Dayton says his best and most original documentary script was that which first introduced Eva Peron to America. The script that Dayton thinks was of greatest service to his country, however, was "Castro, Communism and Cuba," Dayton says, one of the first broadcasts "to put the finger on the bearded one as a Red." That revelation was made party instead of a funeral. Dayton himself was a newspaperman of no small reputation. He began his journalism career while still in high school, writing for the Boston Times and the Newark News. One of the first major stories he covered was the death of President Harding in 1923.

Despite his love of journalism, Dayton pursued a law degree at Rutgers. He was to serve his clerkship in the dean's office, but the dean

After serving as a clerk for a regiment that was spread thin all the way from Manila across the Pacific Islands to Nicaragua, where "we were still trying to catch the bandit Sandino," Dayton says, he went to work for the Macy chain of newspapers.

"There never was a like the Lindbergh kidnapping," Dayton says, adding that he was right in the thick of it. In fact, he can cite evidence to back his theory that the plot was hatched in New Rochelle, N.Y., where he was headquartered.

Perhaps Dayton's biggest asset in getting scoops from New Rochelle's city hall was a janitor named Mike, who showed him how to listen in on secret meetings by opening the furnace flue in the basement.

Although Dayton covered the Levine kidnapping, the Mary Coyle murder and the Fish Cannibal murders as a stringer for the New York Daily News, he did not leave the Macy chain to join the News staff until 1942. By then he had written his first novel, "Darwin be Damned," and background material for the 'Gang Busters' radio show.

One of Dayton's jobs at the News was to transcribe war dispatches that came over cable from MacArthur's and Eisenhower's headquarters. The paper also served radio stations via Teletype, and Dayton became assistant director of that operation. He wrote 13 chapters on style for the text, "Radio News Writing."

The phenomenon of television was creating opportunities never before imagined for enterprising news people. Dayton pioneered uncharted territory by working up the first news formats for WPIX-TV, a station owned by the News. And, of course, he wrote his renowned WPIX documentaries and scripted other programs.

"Usually, I don't have to do too much research," Dayton says. "Not only do I read a lot, but I never forget anything I read."

Man fills yard with collection

AP) - Down in the valley of Rabbit Center, a colorful accumulation of bits and pieces of discarded material have been made into a windblown menagerie of delight by Alva

Alva freely shares the joy he finds in making windmills with those that stop to admire his collection.

Alva and his wife, Bonnie, live in a modest frame home with a wide expanse of green pasture spread out all around. Although they live right on the highway, there is a feel of country in the air.

Alva was born March 7, 1902, in Three Way. At the age of 82, Hope stands up straight and walks proud, even if he does have a slight limp caused by a leg broken 18 years ago. He confesses to a fear of being unable to care for himself if he concedes to living in a rest home. Staying active was the best bet for a long life, he said. Alva has lived at his present residence for 45 years, and has lived in this county all his life.

But 18 years ago he found himself in a position where he couldn't do as he once had. "I was in a cast for a year, and wheeled myself around in a wheechair," he said. After Alva was out of his cast and able to get around better he rode his paint horse for exercise - at age 64. "I'd ride my horse and that would loosen up my muscles and joints where I could walk better," he said. "But then I had to sell her when I pulled my kidney." The people of the commuity helped Alva out in his time of need.

"I'd go down to the mailbox and every day there would be some money left in it," he said. "People were really good to me."

Alva's first attempt was a simple wooden windmill that faces the wind, made only of an inch-long stick of wood with a small wooden rudder and blade, but a year later it still works.

That small windmill is also crowning top on two "bucketwindmills" that are the most popular of the collection, according to Alva.

He counted his windmills the other day and said he was surprised to find he had a total of 262 of various sizes and origins.

Alva uses what material is brought to him by friends and neighbors to formulate his creations.

The variety of his material is amazing: plastic fivegallon buckets, large plastic dairy buckets, plastic soft drink bottle (liter and 16 oz. size), toiler bowl cleaner bottles and gas treatment bottles, among other things. For the blade of his windmills he uses anything from fan blades to car radiator fans to plastic coke bottles and metal fans. The plastic soft-drink bottles and metal cans are cut in strips down to the base and pushed out flat to make a fan.

To make a bucket catch the wind he cuts rectangular squares in its side, leaving one side of the rectangle attached to the bucket to pull out and catch the wind.

Alva's regular bucket supplier is his neighbor, Mrs.

Meadows. "Mrs. Meadows is the main one that brings me the material to make my windmills with," he said. "She has brought me over 600 buckets. I keep track of what she contributes. I keep track of what she contributes.

"Mrs. Meadows isn't the only one that brings me stuff, paraphernalia, he said. After Alva has a windmill constructed, he decorates it with his own form of art. He paints designs on them or rivets on trinkets. "I give most of my windmills away if it's local people that drop by," he said. "But to outsiders I charge a small fee - just enough to cover the cost of the paint, nails or other material I have to buy." Several children live behind Alva in a trailer park, and he attracts the children with the fascination they'd have with a new toy. Some of the children help Alva with his windmills or sweep off the carpet where his lawn chairs sit, while of his house and shout greetings as they whizz by. One of Alva's most enthusiastic helpers is 13-yearold Heidee Fry, he said. Heidee helps Hope put the windmills together and paint them after school, when she gets her homework done, and
