

Reagan Cites Soviets' 'Record of Tyranny'

By TERENCE HUNT

UNITED NATIONS, (AP) — President Reagan, ignoring a Soviet challenge to renounce first use of nuclear weapons, accused Kremlin leaders today of compiling a "record of tyranny" through global aggression and trying to manipulate the peace movement in the West. In a speech at a special U.N. General Assembly session on disarmament, Reagan portrayed the United States as a champion of arms control since World War II and challenged the Soviets to show by "deeds, not words" that they are sincere about curbing the arms race. Reagan accused the Soviets of violating arms control agreements and the 1925 Geneva protocol banning use of chemical weapons. "In the nuclear era, the major powers bear a special responsibility to ease these sources of conflict and refrain from aggression," Reagan said. "That is why we are so deeply concerned by Soviet conduct." Reagan spoke before the same forum where Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko drew heavy applause Tuesday with a declaration from Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev that his country will not use nuclear weapons first in any conflict.

While Reagan did not address that issue in his speech, a senior administration official shrugged off the importance of the Soviet pledge, saying the United States could not base its military planning simply on a declaration from Moscow. In his speech, Reagan cited a U.S. arms control record that began in 1946 with a proposal to turn control of nuclear weapons and atomic energy over to an international authority, and continues with his recent plan for reducing U.S. and Soviet warhead stockpiles. Recalling the words of President Eisenhower, Reagan said, "We are for peace, first, last and always."

While committing the United States to work for real arms control measures, Reagan said, "We need more than mere words, more than empty promises, before we can proceed." "In perhaps his harshest indictment of Soviet behavior yet, Reagan said the Soviet Union since World War II had amassed a "record of tyranny" by dominating Eastern Europe and erecting the Berlin Wall, taking over Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Afghanistan and orchestrating the military crackdown in Poland. "Soviet-sponsored guerrillas and terrorists are at work in Central and South America, in Africa, the Middle East, in the Caribbean and in Europe, violating human rights and unnerving the world with violence," Reagan said. "Communist atrocities in Southeast Asia, Afghanistan and elsewhere continue to shock the free world as refugees escape to tell of their horror."

On nuclear policy, he declared: "The decade of so-called detente witnessed the most massive Soviet buildup of military power in history. ... While we exercised unilateral restraint, they forged ahead and today possess nuclear and conventional forces far in excess of an adequate deterrent capability. "Soviet oppression is not limited to the countries they invade. At the very time the Soviet Union is trying to manipulate the peace movement in the West, it is stifling a budding peace movement at home. In Moscow, banners are scuttled, buttons are snatched and demonstrators are arrested when even a few people dare to speak out about their fears."

Reagan said arms agreements bolster peace only when they are kept. "Otherwise we are building a paper castle that will be blown away by the winds of war," he said. "Let me repeat, we need deeds, not words, to convince us of Soviet sincerity should they choose to join us on this path." Reagan said that for any arms agreement to work, both sides must be able to verify compliance. "Evidence of non-compliance with existing arms control agreements underscores the need to approach negotiations of any new agreements with care," he said.

The president accused the Soviets of violating the Geneva protocol, saying there was conclusive evidence that they have pro-cy today as public outrage over the British victory in the Falkland Islands fueled the clamor for a return to democracy. The 55-year-old army commander spent four hours late Wednesday night closeted with the nation's top generals. Similar meetings took place at the navy and air force headquarters.

Galtieri has not been seen in public since British troops defeated their Argentine counterparts Monday. He canceled a scheduled public appearance Tuesday after about 5,000 Argentines rioted outside the presidential palace. Scrambling to stem the outcry, the government hastily called a meeting of all major civilian political leaders.

But leaders from the five largest parties boycotted the meeting, at which Interior Minister Alfredo Saint Jean promised to ease restrictions on political activity. He set no dates. Raul Alfonsin, a leader in Radical Party, second largest after the Peronists, called for an end to rule by the armed forces, which seized power in a 1976 coup.

"Nobody has the right to use Argentine unity to shore up governments that are tumbling down," he said. An influential group of Argentine businessmen, the National Convocation of Businessmen issued a statement calling for new "personnel to recuperate lost confidence" in the government's economic and political policies.

"A change must come now!" it said. The Argentina Human Rights Assembly criticized the government's handling of the hostile mob that gathered underneath Galtieri's balcony Tuesday night. Club-wielding police, firing tear gas and rubber bullets, charged the demonstrators who responded by burning three vehicles and stoning store windows.

The assembly called the police action "an unthinkable and indiscriminate repression that not only enveloped demonstrators but passersby, reporters and photographers representing national and international media." Assistant Secretary of Interior Col. Bernardo Menendez denied the government was in crisis. He told journalists "the government is stable" and the armed forces are united.

The government Wednesday night provided its first official explanation of what happened in the Falklands. It said the British "partial victory" was due to superior weaponry, including sophisticated new devices that had turned the Falklands into a military proving ground.

Greek Cancer Treatment--Part 2

Hereford Couple Felt Decision Was 'Right'

BY SANDY PANKEY
Staff Writer
(EDITOR'S NOTE: In this second of a two-part feature, Diane Perkins discusses her cancer treatment and of the decision to seek help in Greece. The experiences of Jo Lynn Schilling were discussed in the first feature.)

In recalling their trip to Athens, both James and Diane Perkins are very optimistic about their decision.

Mrs. Perkins, who teaches home-economics at Hereford High School, was diagnosed as having acute leukemia in February. "I felt really run down, I had no energy and I seemed to be very susceptible to illness. I have always been so healthy but around Thanksgiving I developed a cough that lingered and then I caught a cold at Christmas that I couldn't get rid of," remembers Mrs. Perkins.

"I gradually became weaker and weaker. I had had tests run but nothing conclusive was found. Finally, I went back to the doctor Feb. 23. I was alarmed because I would become violently ill if I got out of bed and I was just so very weak."

"They immediately put me in the hospital. I remained there until April 7. Two days after I had been hospitalized, they told me I had acute leukemia," recalled Mrs. Perkins.

"When I was told of my illness, I was alone at the hospital. I didn't show a great deal of emotion but it was still difficult to really comprehend. I found out later the doctors had already suggested a possible diagnosis to my husband.

"I was in a state of shock" remembers Perkins. "It's just something you never really think about until it happens."

Mrs. Perkins suffered from severe anemia and had to be given several blood and platelet transfusions. "I have felt really well since that first transfusion" states the young homemaker.

While hospitalized, Mrs. Perkins received chemotherapy treatments intravenously for one week. Following the treatments, she was placed in total isolation.

"As a result of the chemotherapy treatments, I had no resistance to illnesses. The treatments had destroyed not only the diseased cells but the healthy ones as well. I could have no live plants in my room as these are covered with bacteria and fungus. I could not eat any fresh vegetables or fruits for the same reason. Everything had to be fully cooked. All visitors were required to wear masks, gowns and gloves," states Mrs. Perkins.

"I was fortunate, I had no serious side-effects so often associated with chemotherapy treatments. I did have hair loss however," continued Mrs. Perkins.

"We asked the doctor what her prognosis would be if she continued the chemotherapy periodically," explained Perkins. "He wasn't very encouraging stating that Diane's chances for a two-year survival might be only 20 percent."

Perkins, who teaches chemistry and physics at HHS, said they felt like they would rather choose to take treatments from Dr. Alivizatos because his serum was non-toxic.

"The chemicals in chemotherapy are highly toxic. While it destroys the leukemic cells it also further damages normal marrow cells. The treatment also temporarily stops the production of platelets and granulocytes. Therefore, the problems with bleeding and infections become worse before they become better," says Perkins.

The couple became aware of the treatments through a friend of Diane's parents.

"We did a lot of inquiring before we made the decision to go to Athens," explains Perkins. "I also called the doctor in Mexico who offers laetrile treatments. He explained to us that the results from his treatments would not prove satisfactory with the type of cancer Diane had unless she went into remission. I was impressed by his honesty."

"We have no preconceived notions that Dr. Alivizatos' treatments will work. It's a little premature to say that they will prove successful since we only arrived home May 28," says Perkins.

"Both my wife and I have a very positive attitude about the treatments and we have tried to be objective in the decision we have made," continued Perkins.

"I've read several articles which have been published recently stating the results from his treatments aren't what they claim to be. We have consulted many doctors here and we have visited with patients who have received this serum in Greece. We simply weighed the two, and this decision was right for us," states Perkins.

Mrs. Perkins was given the same instructions that Mrs. Schilling was given. Dr. Alivizatos also requested a phone consultation from the Perkins after a month, followed by a blood sample sent to him after a three month interval and then again at six months.

"We feel like if Diane's condition becomes hopeless then we might try chemotherapy," says Perkins.

"Naturally one wonders what caused their cancer. I have always eaten the right

Full Eclipse of Moon To Be In Early July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will get a chance to view a full eclipse of the moon early next month.

The eclipse will occur on the night of July 5-6 and the moon will be totally in shadow for 106 minutes, a length that officials say will not be matched in this century.

A lunar eclipse occurs when the moon, instead of reflecting sunlight, enters the shadowcast by the Earth. It never becomes totally invisible, however, but instead may seem to turn a reddish-orange color because of the bending of the sun's rays around the Earth.

This color can vary, depending on the cloudiness on Earth.

Officials Prepare For

40,000 One Year

After Drownings

MEXIA, Texas (AP) — Limestone County officials say they will not beef up security although organizers caution some of the 40,000 people expected at the annual Juneteenth picnic will protest the drownings last year of three youths arrested at the celebration.

Sheriff Dennis Walker said Wednesday deputies would guard against another drowning incident by setting up a command post within 200 yards of the celebration so any prisoners would not have to be ferried across the lake.

Three black teen-agers drowned while in custody last year when a boat three law enforcement officers used to ferry the youths to a command post across the lake overturned. The officers, who swam to safety, later were acquitted on misdemeanor charges of negligent homicide.

Organizers said some of the about 40,000 people expected to celebrate the 117th anniversary of emancipation for Texas slaves will be protesters angry about the drownings and acquittal of the deputies.

But Walker said despite the protests, security measures this year will be no different than last year.

"Our number one priority, the reason that we're out there, is to be a deterrent. We patrol largely for visibility," Walker said.

The annual celebration normally draws about 5,000 people, 19th of June Organization chairman Joe Louis Phillips said. But he said the memories of the drownings still haunt the festival and the publicity could swell attendance to 40,000.

Schizophrenics More

Stable If Families

Work Problems Calmly

BOSTON (AP) — Bickering and other stresses of home life can drive schizophrenics into mental hospitals, but the patients are far more stable if their families learn to work out their problems calmly, researchers say.

"The average family is too stressful for most people with schizophrenia," said Dr. Ian R. Falloon. "It tends to make them overexcited and overstimulated, and this produces more symptoms."

In a nine-month experiment, researchers followed the progress of mental patients whose families were taught a reasonable, step-by-step approach to settling their differences.

They found that these people were substantially more likely to respond to ordinary schizophrenia medicine without suffering flareups of their illness.

Schizophrenia is one of the most common forms of mental illness, and affects as many as 30 or 40 percent of mental patients, according to some estimates. Its victims suffer delusions, hallucinations or other disturbances in their thinking. According to the National Institute of Mental Health, about 1 percent of all Americans will have schizophrenia at some time during their lives.

The latest research, directed by Falloon, was conducted at the University of Southern California School of Medicine. It was published in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

Man Arrested For

Rooftop Slayings

Of CBS Employees

NEW YORK (AP) — A man arrested with a bloodstained van has been indicted for the rooftop slayings of three CBS employees and a woman who was cooperating with authorities in a $6 million diamond fraud case.

Donald Nash — also known as Donald J. Bowers — 46, of Keansburg, N.J., was arrested in Frankfort, Ky., a week after the April 12 murders. Nash, who police sources say has been associated with a gang of West Side criminals known as "The Westies," was to be arraigned today on four counts of murder after the indictment was returned Wednesday. If convicted, he faces 25 years to life in prison.

District Attorney Robert Morgenthau said the indictment "does not mean other persons were not involved, and this is a continuing investigation."

Help The Neediest Country First

This president, like most of his recent predecessors, has started traveling the world.

Everywhere, expressing his empathy for poor people—as indeed he should.

Indeed he should. The poor countries of the world do need help.

But let's start with the poorest first.

The only country which is more than a trillion dollars in debt—is ours!

Dorothy Smith of Coffee Creek Road in Edmond, Oklahoma, wrote the other day to remind me that every man, woman and child in the United States is now $30,000 in debt and our Robin Hood Congress is blithely passing that horrendous burden along to our children and theirs...

The world's gimmegimmes demand their "rights" to handouts—what about our "rights"?

One hundred forty other countries want to be called "developing countries" though most of them had a thousand-year head start on us!

They are "backward" countries, and the sooner we start calling things by their right names the better we'll be able to deal with realities.

Backward people in backward countries who used to be grateful for help are now demanding it. Those 140 countries are three-quarters of the world's population, yet all together they produce only one-fifth of the world's production.

America was nourished to world supremacy by a philosophy of enlightened selfishness: "Charity begins at home."

It still should; indeed right now the neediest nation is our own.

Once upon a time we led the world.

From the 1770s to the early 1900s everyone else, everywhere else, eagerly followed our example.

Watching our example of individual liberty and self-government the French threw off the yoke—of rapacious aristocracy; England initiated sweeping democratic reforms; Mexico, Central America, South America— watching our example freed themselves from Spain.

We had not sent them any guns, any butter or any money. But what we had done was to mind our own business so well that we were a lighthouse for the world.

I believe we could be that again.

But our nation, overburdened with debt, suffering strangulation by taxation, exhausting its resources—can be no help to the rest of the world either as a leader or as a crutch.

President Reagan's announced objective in undertaking recent foreign travel was to enhance his image as a "world leader."

That is not the office to which he was elected.

New Israeli Attacks Launched East Of Lebanon's Capital

By The Associated Press

Beirut airport came under heavy shelling today and Israeli armored columns moved against Yasser Arafat's guerrillas east of Lebanon's capital.

The new fighting came amid reliable reports that the Palestine Liberation Organization had offered to discuss with the Lebanese government "a new form of Palestinian presence in Lebanon."

The PLO leadership denied reports it was prepared to lay down its arms, but it engaged in a flurry of secret diplomatic activity involving U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib and Lebanese President Elias Sarkis.

The Tel Aviv command said Palestinian guerrillas bombarded Israeli troops around the airport, damaging three parked airliners. It said Israeli forces east of Beirut also came under a barrage of the rockets and Israeli troops fired back.

But Salim Salam, the managing director of Lebanon's Middle East Airlines, told reporters that Israeli gunboats shelled the airport and "two Boeing-720s belonging to M.E.A. were wrecked and the airline's building sustained several direct hits."

Salam appealed for neutralization of the airport compound, saying further damage would be a "national disaster."

The airport, closed since the Israelis invaded 12 days ago to stamp out the guerrillas, has been in the center of bitter fighting as the Israelis and their Lebanese christian allies close in on Palestinian strongpoints located nearby.

Lebanese state radio said Wednesday the Israelis and their rightist Lebanese Christian allies seized a key Palestinian position near the airport. Israeli sources said the Christians overran PLO-held buildings on the east side of the runway. The PLO said it repelled an Israeli assault there, killed 26 soldiers and wrecked two tanks.

A PLO communique said Israeli armored columns tried to advance today into the leftist stronghold of Aley, 12 miles east of Beirut, behind a massive barrage of artillery and rockets. "Our forces engaged the enemy force in fierce and continuing combat," the communique said.

In a move apparently designed to demonstrate the PLO's authority in west Beirut, where Arafat and his leadership have been trapped by the Israelis since Monday, the guerrillas announced that their military police executed three guerrillas convicted of armed robbery.

The announcement did not indicate when the trials or executions took place. The men presumably were shot by firing squad in west Beirut.

War correspondents in Beirut reported Israeli forces shelled PLO positions in the capital through the night, hitting a munitions dump that set off a barrage of explosions and fires. Lebanese press reports said guerrillas returned the fire with Soviet-made rockets.

Israel's military command said Palestinian guerrillas bombarded Israeli troops around Beirut's international airport, damaging three parked airliners. A communique said Israeli forces east of Beirut also came under a barrage of the rockets and Israeli troops fired back.

Arafat's reported willingness to compromise came after a day of intense diplomatic activity between the Palestinians, Lebanese President Elias Sarkis and U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib, indicating the crippled PLO was seeking a face-saving way to survive Israel's 12-day-old invasion of Lebanon.

Habib was reportedly attempting to negotiate the fate of the PLO in Lebanon, seek an end to the fighting and the withdrawal of Israeli and Syrian troops.

Lebanese sources said Arafat, meeting with Lebanese Prime Minister Shafiq Wazzan on Wednesday, suggested possible guerrilla disarmament in exchange for U.S. recognition, safe conduct from Beirut for PLO commanders and a role for the organization in determining the future status of Palestinians.

Israel radio reported today that Habib had proposed the PLO to lay down its arms and become a political movement, and in return he would seek a relaxation of the Israeli siege of west Beirut. The radio gave no source for its report.

The United States, Israel's strongest ally, has promised it will not negotiate directly with the PLO until the organization formally recognizes the Jewish state's right to exist and accepts U.N.-backed frameworks for peace in the Middle East.

Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, Israel's military chief of staff, was quoted as dismissing reports from Lebanon that the PLO was ready to throw down its weapons in return for U.S. recognition and a role in future peace negotiations.

The Israeli daily Yedioth Ahronoth quoted Eytan as calling the offer as "a last ditch tactic to save the remnants of the terrorists trapped in Beirut."

Announcing Moscow's promise not to use nuclear weapons first, Gromyko challenged Reagan to accept an "equal, precise and clear obligation" on behalf of the United States.

Even before Reagan's address, NATO's top officials rejected Moscow's proposal.

Joseph Luns, NATO secretary-general, said Wednesday, "We must maintain the uncertainty" about whether nuclear weapons would be used. Without it, he said, "most of our deterrent force would go away."

U.S. Gen. Bernard Rogers, NATO's top military officer, said he would recommend use of tactical nuclear weapons "if I found that I could not accomplish my mission" to defeat Warsaw Pact forces with conventional weapons.

State Department spokesman Dean Fischer called the Soviet pledge "unverifiable and unenforceable."

According to one official, a chief purpose of Reagan's address was to sum up U.S. arms control efforts to date.

Most recently, Reagan said in Europe last week he would propose to exchange additional missile launch information with the Soviet Union and improve the Washington-Moscow hotline to reduce the risk of nuclear war through accidental misunderstanding.

EDITOR'S NOTE: In a story written by Donna Rand which appeared in the Thursday, June 10, 1982 issue of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, the director of the Permian Basin Allison Cancer Therapy Center in Midland says a claim by a doctor in Greece of having a cancer-curing serum is unfounded and that the number of patients the Greek physician claims to have cured is exaggerated.

Dr. Eric Svenson said he and other doctors on the South Plains and the West Coast are concerned that persons with cancer are traveling to Athens on a false hope of being cured and that Dr. Heriton Alivizatos is treating patients on a fraudulent basis.

Svenson said research in Washington and California on Alivizatos' former patients indicates a two percent cure rather than a 99 percent rate advertised in a hand-out prepared by Alivizatos.

"There has not been one documented case of a person being cured of cancer by Alivizatos' treatment," he said. Svenson said several hundred persons from the West Coast have been treated in Greece. He said an estimated 3,000 persons from throughout the world had received Alivizatos' serum before 1979, when the Greek medical association suspended the doctor's license to practice in hospitals in Greece. Alivizatos now practices medicine in a clinic in Athens.

Gods, baked my own bread. I was raised on a farm where we had fresh grown vegetables and we ate very little junk food," says Mrs. Perkins. "Maybe it is just my body chemistry. Who knows. There has been cancer through in my side of the family. I do know that if I were to start having problems, I would go back to Greece."

"We have heard of so many good reports from patients and their families who have gone to Greece," states Perkins. "One lady whose husband died following treatments for liver cancer, used to pay her bill, but Dr. Alivizatos refused. She insisted, saying she didn't care what he did with it but that it was only fair to pay her bill," says Perkins.

"The approximate cost for the Perkins' trip was $5,000. This included their air fare, hotel accommodations, etc. The cost for the doctor was $1,000 for three and a half weeks.

"Personally, I feel he's definitely not trying to rip people off," states Mrs. Perkins. "We have heard so many successful accounts."

"The owner of the hotel in which we stayed has a brother who lives on one of the Greek islands. Four years ago he was given one month to live after being told he had cancer. He took treatments and is still alive today," explains Mrs. Perkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins stated that patients they came into contact with had a positive outlook. "We shared experiences and we all felt good about being there," says Mrs. Perkins.

"We don't know what the outcome will be but we have a lot of confidence in what we did," says Mrs. Perkins.

Time With Father

Mrs. Kay Hall enjoys spending time with her father, Earl Norman, a Westgate resident who is retired from farming and raising cattle. Kay is also involved with the beef industry as she and her husband own and operate Western Feedyard and she is the chairman of "Beef for Father's Day," an annual promotion sponsored by the CowBelles.

Involvement with the Hereford CowBelles is right down Kay Hall's alley. Since 1978, when her husband, Elmo, purchased Western Feed Yard, the family has been directly involved in the beef industry.

They had lived on a farm near the Walcott Community before moving into Hereford in 1977. The Halls first came to this area in 1952, just after their marriage.

Kay is originally from Lockney and attended West Texas State University. Elmo was raised at Floydada and went to school at North Texas State University.

The feedyard is family-owned and operated. The Hall's daughter, Kerry, keeps the books, while her husband, Jimmy, and her brother, Scott, are cattle managers.

Scott's wife, Lori, as well as the Hall's younger daughter, Rhonda, and her husband, Steve Nieman, are all employed in Hereford, and the Hall's youngest son, Don, is engaged in farming, on the Hall's farm west of Hereford, where they raise cattle and grow crops. The Halls have three grandchildren.

"All of our family lives here in Hereford," says Kay, "so we enjoy getting together for family things. We plan to have Father's Day dinner at Rhonda's house."

Kay is a charter member of the Hereford CowBelles, which were formed ten years ago locally. "We have a direct line to the national headquarters and we receive newsletters periodically to keep abreast of new developments in the industry," explains Kay.

CowBelles often work with the National Cattlefeeders Association and can be active in national affairs because chapters are located all over the country.

"One of the most important things is that we are able to obtain important information about congressional amendments affecting the beef industry and we can help out by writing letters a making phone calls," says Kay.

Another area in which CowBelles work is with the homemakers, stressing the nutritional qualities of beef, she adds. "Probably the best buy for your money, in the present economy, is good, lean ground meat. It can be cooked ahead, it is very versatile, and children usually like it."

MEXICAN MEATBALLS WITH CHILI SAUCE
2 lb. lean ground beef
3 slices fresh white bread
1/4 c. milk
2 t. salt
1/4 t. pepper
1 t. chili powder
1/2 t. oregano
2 eggs, slightly beaten
Soak bread in milk; add beef and remaining ingredients. Shape mixture into 1-1/2 inch meatballs. Place on lightly oiled baking sheet and bake 15 minutes at 400 degrees.

CHILI SAUCE
1/2 c. finely chopped onion garlic salt to taste
1 t. chili powder
1 t. salt
1/4 t. oregano
1/4 t. ground cumin
1 (10-1/2 oz.) can tomato puree
Saute onions until soft, but not brown. Add remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil and simmer 15 minutes. Add 1-1/2 cups water to sauce and return to a boil.

MEXICAN PIZZA
1 1/2 c. Bisquick baking mix
1/2 c. yellow cornmeal
1/2 c. cold water
1 lb. ground beef
1 (4 oz.) can whole green chilies, drained, seeded, and chopped
1 envelope (1 1/4 oz.) taco seasoning mix
3/4 c. water
1 (16 oz) can refried beans
1 1/2 c. shredded cheddar cheese (about 6 oz.)
1 c. shredded lettuce
2 medium tomatoes, chopped
1/2 c. chopped onion
Heat oven to 425 degrees. Mix baking mix, cornmeal and 1/2 cup water until soft dough forms. Roll or pat dough into 12-inch circle on ungreased cookie sheet, forming 1/2 inch rim. Bake 10 minutes.
Cook and stir ground beef until brown; drain. Stir in chilies, seasoning mix, and 3/4 cup water. Heat to boiling, stirring frequently; reduce heat. Simmer uncovered, stirring frequently, until thickened, 5 to 10 minutes.
Spread beans over baked crust; top with beef mixture and sprinkle with cheese. Bake 10 minutes longer. Top with lettuce, tomatoes, and onion. Serve with taco sauce if desired.

Drop browned meatballs into sauce and simmer 25 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Cause And Treatment For Shock Victims

The condition known medically as shock results from a lack of blood circulating in the body.

External or internal bleeding or the loss of body fluids in severe burns can interrupt circulation. Hard blows, crushed bones or muscles, bone fractures, and bullet wounds may cause shock.

Shock is dangerous because its symptoms can go unnoticed by the untrained person, according to the Texas Medical Association. An accident victim may appear only slightly injured but can be suffering from shock. If not treated promptly, it can cause death.

Early signs that may indicate shock include cool, pale, clammy skin; restlessness and anxiety developing into mental cloudiness, listlessness and unconsciousness; and a pulse that is weak but of normal rate.

Late signs include great thirst; rapid, weak pulse; shallow, irregular breathing; and nausea and vomiting.

If you come upon an accident victim, you should first try to control severe bleeding and restore breathing while someone calls a doctor. Next, treat for shock. Here are some tips:
-Keep the person lying down. If neck or back injuries are apparent, keep the victim lying flat. If the person has chest pains or difficulty in breathing, slightly elevate the head and shoulders, but not the legs. For other injuries, elevate the feet and legs 8 to 12 inches.

-Protect the person from chill or dampness, but don't let the victim become overheated.
-Lost fluids must be replaced, but do not try to force liquid into the mouth of an unconscious person. If the person is conscious, give plain water. Never give alcoholic beverages. Start slowly but give the person all the water he or she can drink.
-Anything that lessens pain will help in reducing shock damage.
-Reassurance often works like medicine. Handle your patient calmly and confidently. Above all, do not panic.

Money costs money, and the doctor must pay his rent, his nurses, buy expensive equipment and malpractice insurance—which is out of sight. Don't forget the years of training, internship and residency—would you believe 12 years for some specialties?
True, some physicians are money-hungry, but this is a human condition and no one group has a monopoly on greed. Too often the physician and the dentist are the last to be paid. I believe adding interest to delinquent bills isn't a bad idea.

DEAR ANN LANDERS:I am boiling mad. How much more is the average person supposed to take from the money-hungry, avaricious medical profession?
I just read that the American Medical Association changed its bylaws in December to allow physicians to "add interest or other reasonable charges to delinquent accounts." (I'm taking this right out of the newspaper.)
The doctors in this town live better than anyone else. I thought they were supposed to be humanitarians, not loan sharks. Please give my letter the space it deserves. Sign me—Ashamed of A Once Much-Admired Profession

A couple we know quite well accepted an invitation to a sit-down dinner party at our home. The invitations were sent out three weeks ago. Mrs. X telephoned yesterday to say they were attending THIS one, but in the future she and her husband would not accept any invitation unless they were free to cancel at the last moment.

The reason given for the "conditional acceptance" is as follows: "We don't want our friends to plan our lives. We want to do as we please, whenever we feel like it. We may want to stay at home that night, or we may get an invitation that is more appealing."
My husband and I believe this couple would be hurt if they were excluded from our parties from now on, yet we are not comfortable about waiting 'til the last minute—

ROCKY III, from MGM-United Artists. Written and directed by Sylvester Stallone. Starring Sylvester Stallone, Talia Shire, Burgess Meredith. Rated 'PG' ★ ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO — FILM CRITIC

Welcome, movie fans, to the third installment in the story of Rocky Balboa, the Italian Stallion. That underdog from Philadelphia, that palooka from obscurity who pummeled his way into big-time cinema stardom is back for the final chapter in this successful series of films.

Scoring for this film will be on a 10-round basis, with four stars the highest ranking possible per round.

Round 1: This is the opening, a rehash of what we've seen in "Rocky II." Nothing new, but necessary and thankfully brief. Two stars.

Round 2: The credits haven't even rolled yet and we're presented a montage of Rocky as a champion who has defended his title 10 times. He's also a celebrity who's been on "The Muppet Show" and done ads for American Express. Four stars.

Round 3: Another montage, this time of the villainous boxer Clubber Lang — who's big and mean, hitting others when they're down and inflicting punishment as if he enjoyed it. Two stars.

Round 4: Rocky does a charity benefit, stepping into the ring with a 7-foot wrestler. Two stars.

Round 5: Scenes of Rocky living well. A statue of the champ is unveiled in Philadelphia. He's thinking of retiring, but Clubber Lang, who attends the ceremony, insults Rocky's wife. The fight is set. Three stars.

Round 6: Rocky prepares for the match. Dull. One star.

Round 7: The fight. Rocky goes down, and so does Burgess Meredith. Would you believe he was Jewish? Predictable. One star.

Round 8: Rocky's in the dumps. Apollo Creed wants to train him for the rematch, but Rocky has lost the desire to fight. Three stars.

Round 9: Rocky trains in Apollo's old training ground, a seedy Los Angeles gym. After several false starts, Rocky gets the fire back. Three stars.

Round 10: The second fight with Lang. Who wins? Well, how do you stop a determined Italian Stallion? Four stars.

Judge's Decision: "Rocky III" is predictable, sometimes corny, but has a simplistic appeal that is hard to shake — it's a winner, but not by a KO. ©1982 Computing

By J.T. YURKO

Spools of past films have just about exhausted all the genres. Such films as "The Mark of Zorro," "Young Frankenstein," "Airplane!" and many more turned their satiric eyes on a certain style or trend in films to such an extent that "spoof" films are now almost a genre unto itself.

When Carl Reiner, George Gipe and Steve Martin conspired to do a cinematic send-up of the "film noir" genre of the 1940s, they decided to take the idea one step further. Rather than just spoof the old films, they would intercut to them, incorporating characters and scenes directly into their film.

The result, "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid," has lots of style, an abundance of belly laughs, and preserves a reverence for the old films.

Because of judicious editing, Martin actually picks up the phone and it's answered by Humphrey Bogart. Clever dialogue around the pre-existing footage and the magic of film creates interesting interplay between old and new.

It's a clever gimmick, done with much care and ingenuity by director/co-writer Reiner as well as by the talented editors and scene designers, who had to exactly match the films of 40 years ago. Their talents are considerable — some of the intercutting between old and new is flawless.

There is an original mystery story here, but the bends and twists in the plot are geared to the film clips and not the story itself.

Martin is unlike any other comic working today. He seemed perfectly at home in the 1930s-style "Pennies from Heaven," and is fine as Rigby Reardon, private eye.

Rachel Ward plays his female interest, and she's everything a guy could ever want in a client — smooth and sexy, mysterious and rich. Reiner plays a cross between Eric Von Stroheim and Colonel Klink, and is OK as villains go, but seems more like a refugee from a Mel Brooks spoof. ©1982 Computing

Candy Recruits Questioned By Persecutors

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Some of the 31 children found packed in two motel rooms have been interviewed by prosecutors trying to determine if other charges would be filed against a man who recruited them to sell candy door-to-door.

Bilal Muhammed Ali, 40, of San Antonio, has been charged with indecency with a child for allegedly molesting a 12-year-old girl, who was part of his traveling sales force.

He was being held in lieu of $100,000 bond Wednesday in the El Paso County jail.

Assistant District Attorney Carol Pennock videotaped interviews with some of the San Antonio children Wednesday and planned to finish interviewing 26 of the 31 children today.

"Until we have interviewed them all, it will be difficult to say what, if any, other charges will be filed against him," she said.

Five of the children were those of Ali and his wife, Fatimah. They were released into Mrs. Ali's custody Wednesday afternoon after officials decided there was no reason to hold them.

Harry Kincaid, child placement supervisor for the state Department of Human Resources here, said the family remained in El Paso on Wednesday to see what would become of Ali.

Meanwhile, the other 26 children were to be reunited with their parents in San Antonio this evening, Kincaid said.

He said a bus chartered by the department would leave about 7 p.m.

The children's plight came to the attention of Kincaid's department Monday night when police found some youngsters on the streets and returned them to a central El Paso motel.

There, police found the 31 children, the Ali's and another woman all staying in two motel rooms, Kincaid said.

Child welfare investigators interviewed the children Tuesday and then took them into state custody when Ali was arrested.

Kincaid said the children, who range in age from 9 to 15, had been placed in Ali's care by their parents, who were assured they would be well fed and would earn money for school.

Ali is founder and president of a two-year-old firm called Action Youth Self-Help Inc., which recruits children for the candy sales force.

"We don't have any reason to think the parents knew what was going on," Kincaid said. "They all thought it was on the up and up. Some of the kids come from pretty poor backgrounds and I guess it sounded real good to the parents."

Instead, the children were worked long hours seven days a week, fed irregularly and didn't receive the promised 75 cents for each $2.50 box of candy sold, he said.

"They were told they would receive their money at the end of this thing," he said.

Kincaid said the children, who were in good health, crammed into two vans and left San Antonio nearly two weeks ago. They sold candy in several West Texas cities before coming to El Paso on Monday, he said.

Wednesday, the children kept workers at the Southwestern Community Home busy as they played games and ate sandwiches.

"They've been cooped up together alot and they're pretty wild," said Sue Bates, who works part-time at another children's home.

abundant life

(by) Bob Wear

IT IS POSSIBLE for us to be entirely too particular about some things, but all things should be done well. This is not an effort to justify, or even excuse the perfectionist approach to life; because this approach is unrealistic, and, therefore unacceptable. Nevertheless, there is certainly no justification for the sloppy, poorly done work and service.

THE WORK, whatever it is, should be done well for its own sake; but the benefit realized by the person doing the work is even a more valuable consideration. This is one of the essentials in the fullness and richness of one's life. This is not an unreasonable expectation, but, on the contrary, it is a sensible view. There are two reasons; namely, work that is "well done" is a worthwhile contribution by the worker; and is a helpful contribution to the worker.

"WHATEVER IS WORTH DOING is worth doing well" is a well-established viewpoint. It has, obviously, come into being from the crucible of human experience. The greatest reward for our work is not the financial consideration, but is the personal satisfaction from the realization that we have done our best. Of ours, the monetary consideration is important, and not to be minimized.

MANY SOCIAL and personal ills would disappear, if all of us worked at doing whatever honorable and useful work there is to be done. Regardless of how the work rates on the prestige scale, when we do it well; all of the rewards that contribute to one's well-being will be ours. There is no substitute for this spirit and the accompanying life action.

"WORK EVERY HOUR, paid or unpaid; see only that you work and you cannot escape your reward. Whether your work be fine or coarse, planting corn, or writing epics, so only it be honest work, done to your own approbation, it shall earn a reward to the senses, as well as to the thought. The reward of a thing well done, is to have done it."—Emerson.

EVERYBODY AND EVERYTHING suffers loss from laziness, idleness, and "sloppy" work. All work is worthwhile, when done well. We may not be skillful, but we can always do our best. This constructive action will enable us to be doing better very soon.

REFUSING TO WORK or doing "sloppy" work is a perversion of life and destructive of our well-being.

Creationist Says Prints

Refute Evolution Idea

GLEN ROSE, Texas (AP) — Two fundamentalist Baptist ministers say they will continue excavating through the end of this week alongside dinosaur tracks on the banks of the Paluxy River where they found human-like footprints.

The Rev. Carl E. Baugh, president of International Baptist College in St. Louis, and the Rev. Ronald Jenkins, pastor of the Grace Baptist Temple in Duncanville, said their findings refute scientific theories of evolution.

But the ministers said scientists scoff at their find in the hardened limestone south of Fort Worth.

"Those guys have shut their minds and they would not believe if God knocked on their door," said Jenkins, tanned and spattered with mud from digging.

The excavations were resumed Wednesday at the site near the dinosaur tracks where they say they found prints last March made by giant humans mentioned in the Bible.

The prints were described by the ministers as those of 7- and 8-foot humans who walked the muddy bottoms during the same time as dinosaurs, leaving 16-inch-long indentations that were frozen in time when the 40-day floods swept through the area about 4,800 years ago.

The find was shown to reporters by the ministers, who said the imprints prove that theories of evolution dating back to Darwin are false.

Residents of the area at the excavation Wednesday said the human-like prints have been common knowledge in the area for years. Prints similar to the ones being uncovered have been found along the Paluxy shores at least since Depression days, one spectator at the site said. E.E. McFall, who owns the 500 acres of farmland along the Paluxy being excavated, and his son, J.C. McFall remember digging up several similar prints dozens of years ago.

In years past, J.C. McFall said, his family attempted to sell the elongated tracks and dinosaur tracks to tourists but those that he called human tracks didn't sell too well.

Most scientists say humans and dinosaurs were not contemporaries. Scientists generally believe modern dating techniques prove that dinosaurs roamed the earth at least 100 million years ago, long before humans appeared.

Early humans were much smaller than the animal that made the recently uncovered prints, said Southern Methodist University anthropologist Edward I. Fry. The claims of human footprints in the Glen Rose formation are "trash," Fry said.

The two ministers first uncovered their prints last March. They have permission from McFall for two years of work.

The parrot is the only bird that yawns.

Starr Unemployment Rate Lowest In Texas

RIO GRANDE CITY, Texas (AP) — Detroit, Flint, Kokomo and other northern cities with double-digit unemployment rates move over. Last year 38.3 percent of the work force in Starr County did not have jobs, the worst unemployment rate in Texas.

The jobless picture in Starr County, located in deep south Texas, is not a new phenomenon brought on by budget cuts or industrial layoffs. There is simply no industry here for its 27,000 residents, including a large number of migrant farmworkers.

Most of the county consists of rough, rolling ranch country barely fit for cattle grazing. Along the Rio Grande, large farms hire mostly seasonal workers. Oil production in the northern sections around San Isidro employ few full-time workers.

The problem stems from a combination of the county's border with Mexico and a reluctance to give up an agriculturally based economy.

"The people are changing from not wanting foreign, or rather outside, business to come into the county," said Bruno Trevino, interim head of the Starr County Industrial Foundation which is trying to attract new industry to the area. "That was the attitude for a long, long time."

The dismal unemployment figure ballooned in January to 52.4 percent when only 6,000 of the county's 12,600-member labor pool had jobs, said James Barnes of the Texas Employment Commission's statistical reporting division in Austin.

The jobless rate declined to 28.8 percent in April, including those who have stopped looking for work and those who do not qualify for unemployment benefits, the commission said.

By comparison, unemployment for the entire state stands at 6.4 percent, more than three percentage points below the national average of 9.5 percent.

Per capita income for county residents was $3,493 in 1980, the second lowest in the state. Only Maverick County, further north along the U.S.-Mexican border, was worse, with $3,324.

A large number of migrant farmworkers live in Starr County and cause the seasonal fluctuations in unemployment figures. The jobless rate is highest between October to February when they return home from harvesting in other states.

Trevino came home from teaching college economics to induce industry to come here. He said the work is similar to what he did as a Foreign Service officer assisting economic development in Mexico, South America and Africa.

School districts and other governmental bodies are the largest industries. Jobs there are highly favored and rarely relinquished. The job crunch annually comes down hardest on graduating high school seniors.

"They know it's going to be rough," said Joe Herrera, a vocational counselor at Rio Grande City High School.

"A lot of them will come in and tell me, 'I want to be this or that.' I'll tell them that's fine, but are they willing to relocate? A lot of students don't want to move," he said. "The family ties are very strong."

Out of a class of 350 freshmen, usually 250 will graduate, said high school counselor Herrera. The rest drop out to support families or are unemployed. Forty-five percent of those who graduate go on to either two-year technical schools or four-year colleges. Many must leave South Texas for Houston, Dallas and other cities to find steady work, Herrera said.

More than 90 percent of Starr County residents are of Hispanic descent. Some trace their families back to the 18th century, when Spain parceled out land grants in the area.

Mexico's high unemployment historically has influenced wages and incomes here. Illegal aliens compete for jobs with residents.

"The people from Mexico, they take the jobs and don't care what it pays," complained Gloria Silva of Garciasville. "That makes it hard on us."

Mrs. Silva, a native of Starr County, drove 35 miles to Mission in neighboring Hidalgo County last week to file an unemployment claim. The Texas Employment Commission closed its Rio Grande City office earlier this year in a budget move.

"I had worked in a community action center where older people come to eat. I got laid off," she said.

Many of the people who file unemployment claims from Starr County are legal resident aliens who actually live in Mexico or spend a great deal of time there, said Javier Guerra, who works in the employment office in nearby Mission. If a person qualifies for unemployment by having worked a certain number of weeks, he only needs to show an availability for work, Guerra said.

"They must be able to check their mail at least every three days to check on job possibilities," Guerra said. "But we've found some living in Manzanillo, on the Mexican Pacific coast. If they live too far away we disallow their claim."

The Starr County Industrial Foundation has had little luck attracting industry.

But like other border areas, Starr County's future is tied to Mexico. As long as conditions are worse south of the Rio Grande, the local economy will be affected, Trevino said.

"Some people do not grasp the meaning of economic interdependency on the border," he said.

Lobby May Spend $1 Million To Oust Bentsen

DALLAS (AP) — A national conservative lobby is testing the Texas waters to see if it wants to spend $1 million to unseat Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

The National Conservative Political Action Committee will test TV commercials alleging that Bentsen is "too liberal for Texas," the group's chairman said Wednesday.

John T. "Terry" Dolan, NCPAC chairman, said two of the commercials will air next week in Lubbock. One, showing cheerleaders enthusiastically cheering for Bentsen until being told of some of his votes, was filmed at Texas Stadium in Irving Wednesday, he said.

Dolan said putting on the anti-Bentsen media campaign in Texas' major markets would cost $1 million, all of it to be raised in Texas.

"If we do not feel we're having an impact we won't continue the effort," he said.

A Bentsen campaign spokesman said he doubts the NCPAC effort will get off the ground financially.

Dolan had said NCPAC, which is credited with helping defeat several Senate liberals in 1980, considered unseating Bentsen this year "a low priority."

NCPAC says it has raised $50,000 in Texas so far, enough to pay for the tests and a survey Dolan said has shown Texans misperceive Bentsen's voting record.

Dolan told reporters Tuesday that supporters of Bentsen's Republican opponent, U.S. Rep. Jim Collins, had talked the group into attacking the Democrat and raised enough money to start a campaign.

Dolan disagreed with a Bentsen campaign suggestion that because a NCPAC political consultant was working for Collins, NCPAC would be limited by law to spending $5,000 against Bentsen.

Dolan said Bentsen "is not the most liberal member of the Senate," but has voted with liberals on important votes.

"If we focus that record to the people to the people of Texas, I think we'll be successful in seeing that he's not re-elected," Dolan said.

Dolan said NCPAC considers forced busing, public school prayer and federally funding for abortions key issues to focus on in a campaign against Bentsen.

But Jack DeVore, Bentsen's press secretary, said NCPAC distorts Bentsen's voting record. Bentsen opposes forced busing, supports school prayer and opposes federally funded abortions, DeVore said. Bentsen may have cast votes the other way, but only at times when those issues were unimportant to the bills in question.

A lawyer for the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, a group backing the re-election attempts of Bentsen and other Democrats, has issued a memorandum challenging NCPAC's right to spend an unlimited amount of money in the race.

Arthur Finkelstein, a New York political consultant, is on both NCPAC's and Collins' payroll. Federal election law allows unlimited expenditures on a candidate's behalf only by groups independent of his campaign.

NCPAC lawyers believe the lobby law does not apply, because NCPAC is not using Finkelstein for the anti-Bentsen campaign.

DeVore said Bentsen will not decide whether to file a complaint about NCPAC with the Federal Election Commission until he determines how successful its campaign is.

In 1980, NCPAC targeted Sens. George McGovern of South Dakota, John Culver of Iowa, Birch Bayh of Indiana, Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin and Frank Church of Idaho. All lost.

Fixture needs fixing

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — I have a problem with the part of a light bulb that screws into the fixture. Everytime I try to remove a bulb from a certain fixture, the bulb breaks off at the metal collar. I have taken great care in putting the bulb in correctly — not too tight. I also use the correct wattage. This fixture is not very old. Does anyone know what causes this and how to prevent it? — JUDY

DEAR JUDY — I'm afraid I can't be of much help. I consulted with an electrician who said that probably the only thing you can do is get a new fixture. Probably something is causing the socket of the fixture to overheat, fusing the bulb into the socket. Then when you try to remove it, the bulb breaks off. Another possible cause is that the socket could be slightly defective — too small, perhaps. If this fixture is outside, moisture could be causing the metal collar of the bulb and the interior of the socket to corrode, also making removal difficult. In any case, whichever of these is the problem, there seems to be no real preventative you can use. A new fixture would be the best answer. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Wear your husband's athletic knee pads when working in the yard or garden.

Use strawberry vines, blueberry or other fruit bushes and asparagus to do your landscaping. Also plant fruit and nut trees. You will save money, enjoy fresher food, and have an attractively landscaped yard (which will raise your property value). The trees will also help cool your patio or yard in the hot summer.

To help sweeten the diaper pail, sprinkle one-half cup borax in the bottom before adding the diapers. After you put the diapers in the washer, swirl some water in the emptied pail and pour it into the washer with the diapers. The borax rinsed out of the pail will help sweeten the wash or pre-wash water. This method makes washing diapers much more pleasant.

I use one refrigerator crisper drawer to thaw packages of meat. I line the drawer with a couple of paper towels. This eliminates dripping meat juices in my refrigerator and the meat thaws safely in the cold refrigerator.

Clean your kitchen counter tops with a spray glass cleaner and a paper towel. The glass cleaner also makes your range and refrigerator sparkle! — MARIE

Drugs Not Only Illegal Item Crossing Border

By PAT WIER
The El Paso Times
EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Some people might give their right arms to bring a switchblade knife into the United States from Mexico. And it's only one of two ways they legally can.
The second way is to give their left arm.
Although illicit drugs make the headlines, U.S. Customs officials have to be on the lookout for hundreds of other items border bridge crossers try to sneak into and out of the country.

Some of the items, like drugs, are completely prohibited from importation, others require a duty be paid and others can be brought in only under certain circumstances. Switchblade knives, for example, are barred from coming into the country unless the weapons are taken across the border for use by people with one arm. It's the only type of closeable knife they can operate.

Other Mexican consumer products have much looser restrictions on them. Most of the time, all a purchaser must do is declare to a U.S. Customs official at the border that he is bringing the item through. But customs statistics show that people still attempt to take much across the border undetected.

"They like to play games," said El Paso U.S. Customs chief Manny Najera. "All we have to do is look and we almost always find something."

From October 1981 through February 1982, U.S. Customs agents seized 1,381 restricted or prohibited items after searching automobiles coming across the bridges.
The smuggling game most people like to play, besides drugs and human cargo, is bringing liquor across without declaring it, Najera said. The traveler can save himself about 50 cents a bottle in state taxes by sneaking it past inspection. But if he is caught with undeclared booze, customs can confiscate the bottle and fine the violator the full domestic price of the liquor.
Besides enforcing some 400 laws for 40 U.S. agencies, customs agents also must keep an eye peeled for goods restricted under Mexican law.
A diversity of items ranging from beeswax to pre-Columbian art treasures are either restricted or prohibited from export. Najera said the Mexican government worries about having shortages of many products and limits how much one person can remove to the United States.
"We have a policy of not allowing U.S. citizens to violate Mexican restrictions," Najera said. Which means his bridge watchers have confiscated such unusual caches as jojoba beans used in cosmetics, large jars of mercury and loads of certain strains of pin-to-beans.

Although fruits, trinkets and liquor are cheaper in Mexico, many U.S.-made products are more expensive. Customs anti-smuggling units spend a lot of time during the Christmas season patrolling the river between the ports to catch smugglers trying to take television sets, radios, blenders and electric can openers into Mexico, Najera said.
The United States also restricts what can be taken south of the border. Organized crime has a habit of laundering large amounts of cash through Mexican banks, so new laws stipulate that persons must declare any amount over $5,000 before taking it through, Najera said.
Products made in the United States can be brought in from Mexico, and Najera said smugglers often try to disguise foreign-made parts with U.S. markings. A truckload of what appeared to be U.S. sewing machines was discovered by an alert agent to house German-made motors, Najera said.

Some of the customs laws regarding importation are a bit outdated, Najera admitted. Travelers from Mexico take a gamble if they try to pack lottery tickets through. Lotteries are considered gambling by the U.S. government and the law was established back in the days when that activity was considered an evil.
Confiscation of the contraband is not as stiff as the anti-smuggling penalties can go if customs considers the transgression serious enough.
"Remember: if you try to smuggle something in, we can not only seize the goods, but the smuggling container as well," Najera said. "That means the vehicle it came over in."
In past years, customs has taken cars, buses, airplanes and trains, he said. The old law also defines beasts as containers, so back when burros commonly crossed the border, they also got confiscated.
But Najera said the United States actually has more liberal importation laws than most countries. The United States is the only country that allows each citizen to bring in $300 worth of goods a month duty-free. But the goods must be strictly for use by the person transporting them and must be "incidental to the trip to Mexico," he said.

"You can't go down there with the explicit purpose of reupholstering your car and not pay a duty on it," Najera said. "And you can't go down there to buy boots for your sister — they have to fit you."
The uninformed traveler may feel resentful at the extent of a customs search, but Najera said his men aren't bound by interior search laws.
"We can look anywhere," he said. "And that includes pockets and purses."

AAUW Pries Into Arms Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I was really afraid to speak out on these things," said Mary Grefe, who is no shrinking violet.
"I felt I may be the only one in Des Moines who felt that way, and I didn't want to be the only one in Des Moines on anything," she said. "I'm not the type of person who throws herself in front of tanks, you know."
What Ms. Grefe, the former president of the 190,000-member American Association of University Women, used to be reluctant to talk about in Des Moines is the arms race.
It was bewildering; she felt she didn't know enough to express an opinion.
This week, Mary Grefe and about 300 women community leaders who feel that women have been excluded from the great debate — over war and peace, defense budgets and arms control — gathered in Washington to talk about how they could get a toehold in one of the government's last male bastions, the national security debate.

Unlike the rest of government, the top echelons of the Defense and State Departments, the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and the staff of the congressional committees that deal in those areas remain a man's world.
A few defense jobs went to women in the Carter Administration, but the old order has reassessed itself.
Under the auspices of the Committee for National Security, formed by former arms negotiator Paul Warnke to promote discussions just such as this one, the women talked about ways to breach the gap, and about what difference it might make. A few broke away long enough to discuss their concern with a reporter.

Ann Cahn, director of the committee, said defense experts who addressed the women were given marching orders in writing: plain English, please; no jargon; skip the acronyms.
The special lingo of throw-weights and megatons frightens women (and men) away from even expressing opinions on national security issues, she said.

Ms. Grefe agreed. Congress hears aplenty from women on "women's issues," education funds or abortion, she said. Now women, aware that arms spending is infringing into areas of their concern and fearful of the consequences of a world armed to the teeth, are willing to become knowledgeable about defense and demanding to be heard.
Eleanor Kesim came here talking about sludge.
She is the mayor of Elkhart, Ind. (where one of her first acts in office was to change the population signs outside of town to read, "41,305 persons" to underscore that men and women are equals in Elkhart).

Braves Blow Away Astros; Expos Rip Cardinals, 8-3

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer
With its spacious outfield and no wind current, the Houston Astrodome is supposed to be a no-man's land for long-ball hitters. But the way the Atlanta Braves have been swinging this year, no park can hold them. Behind three different times in their game with Houston Wednesday night, the Braves kept blasting their way out of jams and finally used the long ball to beat the Astros 5-4 in 10 innings. Chris Chambliss won it for the National League West leaders with a solo home run in the 10th. "We depend on our power hitting, whereas the Astros have been depending on their pitching for years," Chambliss said. "We have the ability to go farther than we have in the past because of our stronger pitching this year and more maturity on our bench." Chambliss' ninth homer of the year, off George Capuzzello, 0-1, was the second Atlanta homer of the game. Claudell Washington hit a solo shot in the eighth to throw the game into a 3-3 tie at that point. "It was the type of pitch I could hit," Chambliss said of his game-winning homer. "It ran in on me, but it was up. I had two strikes, so I had to protect the plate." Houston Manager Bill Virdon says there's no magic to the Braves' success as far as he's concerned. "They're getting the hits when they need them. Their pitchers and relievers are doing the job. That's what it takes—a little from everybody." Atlanta reliever Gene Garber, 5-2, pitched the final two innings for the victory. The Braves fell behind 3-0 after three innings as Terry Puhl hit two homers for the Astros. But Atlanta scored twice in the fifth before Washington homered in the eighth. The Astros went ahead 4-3 in the bottom of the inning on Tony Scott's RBI triple. But Atlanta rallied to tie it again in the ninth on a pinch RBI single by Bob Watson. Elsewhere in the NL, it was Montreal 8, St. Louis 3; Chicago 7, Philadelphia 6 in 11 innings; Los Angeles 6, San Diego 0 and Cincinnati 7, San Francisco 3. Rain postponed the New York-Pittsburgh game. Expos 8, Cardinals 3 Andre Dawson's three-run double capped a five-run uprising in the second inning, powering Montreal over St. Louis. After Montreal took a 1-0 lead in the first on a triple by Tim Lincecum and a run-scoring grounder by Terry Francona, 10 batters went to the plate during the decisive second. In addition to Dawson's double, an assortment of five hits included RBI singles by Warren Cromartie and Francona. Gary Carter's one-out double triggered the Expos' burst off St. Louis left-hander Dave LaPoint, 3-1. Charlie Lea, 5-2, was the winner. "We needed something like this," said Expos Manager Jim Fanning, referring to Montreal's 13-hit attack. "We haven't had a big inning like the one we had tonight for some time." Cubs 7, Phillies 6 Ryne Sandberg's one-out single in the 11th inning drove in the winning run as Chicago beat Philadelphia and handed the Phillies their fifth straight loss. Sandberg's hit came off reliever Warren Brusstar, 2-3, the seventh Philadelphia pitcher, and made a winner of Chicago reliever Dick Tidrow, 2-1, who pitched the 11th. The Phillies had rallied to tie the score 6-6 with a four-run ninth keyed by Gary Matthews' two-run single. The victory was the third straight for the Cubs after a 13-game losing streak. "We've been having our problems lately, but it seems that during the last three games the breaks went our way," Chicago shortstop Larry Bowa said. "That's a sign of a team that's maturing a little bit." Dodgers 6, Padres 0 Bob Welch pitched a three-hitter and Pedro Guerrero belted a home run and knocked in three runs as Los Angeles beat San Diego. It was the second consecutive shutout by the Dodgers, who won 3-0 Tuesday night, and extended the Padres' scoreless string to 22 innings. Welch, 7-4, recorded his third shutout of the season, walking two and striking out six. Only one Padre got as far as second base. Tim Lollar, 6-2, pitched six innings for San Diego, giving up seven hits and four of the Dodger runs in suffering his first loss at home in five decisions. "It seems like everything came together at once in this series," said Baker. "We'll have to remember what we did here and go on playing good, sound baseball. We're back at 500 for what seems like the 10th or 11th time this year." Reds 7, Giants 3 Cesar Cedeno hit two home runs and drove in six runs, powering Cincinnati over San Francisco. Cedeno walked with the bases loaded in the first inning to force in a run, then hit a two-run homer in the third and three-run blast in the fifth, his fifth of the season.

Quality Field Chases U.S. Open Trophy

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—In a breathtaking setting that seems like something lifted right off a painter's canvas, the chase began today for the United States Open golf championship, one of the game's most prestigious titles. The field is loaded with quality candidates for the crown. The professional bettors have made Masters champion Craig Stadler, a three-time winner on the tour this year and the season's top money-maker with earnings of $312,058, the favorite. "It's nice to have people know you have a chance," he said. "I think I have a very good chance. My game's pretty solid. I know the course well and the course compliments my game." There's also plenty of support for Jack Nicklaus, who won the only other Open ever played at Pebble Beach in 1972 and has the added incentive of shooting for a record fifth title in this event. After all, he has conquered this course more frequently than any of his colleagues. Nicklaus was asked why he's had so much success at Pebble Beach, which has taken its toll of quality golfers. "It's because I've shot low scores, I guess," he said. "I like this type of course because it requires thinking as well as golf. It's a course I've had a great deal of success on and I like very much. I'm playing fairly well. I feel like my golf game is in really good shape." If you prefer the hot-hand theory, then your man should be Ray Floyd, who has two victories and a second place finish (in a playoff) in the last three tournaments he's played. "I'm hitting the greens, and I'm putting well," Floyd said. "My confidence is up. Things are going right. Without question, I'm playing the best golf of my life right now." Then, there is Tom Watson, battling the frustration of never having won this event. Watson is the No. 2 all-time money-winner with $2,778,697, trailing only Nicklaus. He has been Player of the Year four times, captured the British Open three times and the Masters twice. But he is still looking for his first U.S. Open. "Yes, I want to win it very badly," said Watson. "But it's not critical. I have a few more years to get under my belt." Watson's best Open finish came in 1980 when he tied for third at Baltusrol with a 276, four strokes behind Nicklaus, who captured his fourth crown that year.

Ohioan been seen in a looser or more buoyant frame of mind. "It's a links type course, like the courses in Britain," he said, referring to the rocks and rills, tricky winds and waves whipping in off the Pacific Ocean and Carmel Bay. "It has subtle bounces and inconsistencies. It requires a lot of thinking and shotmaking management. The course has been set up fairly (no tricks) with greens on which one won't have to scramble. It reduces the number of players who can win. I like that." While the names of Craig Stadler, Tom Watson and Ray Floyd are being bandied about as leading threats for the championship, it's the awesome, lingering shadow of Nicklaus that hovers over the course from the clubhouse to the sea. It's a perfect setting for the game's premier player. Nicklaus has won almost twice as many major titles as anyone in history. He is playing in his favorite course and he has put his game and his mind in what he considers perfect harmony. "I haven't spent the last week beating balls," he said. "I went home. I traveled about 12,000 miles looking over golf courses I'm building—Denver, Phoenix, Salt Lake City, Grand Rapids and Southern California. I didn't worry about the Open. I came here relaxed."

Loose, Buoyant Nicklaus Ready

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Golf is a golden crown of jewels for the "Golden Bear." Jack Nicklaus, and he never loses his insatiable appetite for more. "Sure, I want to win it," the world's all-time major title collector replied to an unnecessary question after completing preparations for the 82nd U.S. Open championship, which began today. "Not just because it would be my fifth Open, not because it would be my 20th major or my 70th U.S. tournament victory. "I'd like to win because I'm an American and it's the championship of my country. It's the biggest and hardest to win. More than that, it's at Pebble Beach." This picturesque seaside course is a favorite birdie hunting preserve for the 42-year-old fairway king who won his second National Amateur crown here in 1961 and followed with three Crosby events and the 1972 U.S. Open as a pro. "Why do you have so much success at Pebble Beach?" Nicklaus was asked at his Wednesday news conference. "Because I shoot low scores," he replied tartly. Some writers interpreted his attitude as touching on arrogance but closer associates saw it instead as a Nicklaus brimming with confidence. Rarely has the blond

$800,000 Arena Rent Flap Hampering Sale of Nuggets

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—A misunderstanding over sports arena rent that could total $800,000 has left a San Antonio businessman's plans to buy the Denver Nuggets basketball team in limbo. B.J. "Red" McCombs said Wednesday that chances he will buy the NBA franchise are only "50-50" because of the dispute over a lease agreement for McNichols Sports Arena. McCombs said the disagreement could mean a $700,000 to $800,000 difference in rent the team would have to pay to the city. That, McCombs said, is a "deal-killer."

reached $4 million in ticket sales. But he said the city thought that after that total was reached the first time, the higher rent would always apply, even before the $4 million mark was reached in a particular season. McCombs said members of his and the mayor's staffs would meet Friday to try to iron out an agreement. McCombs and Scheer did not disclose details of the reported $10 million purchase proposal announced Tuesday.

but Scheer said the deal probably would be closed within a couple of weeks, probably by the first of July. The NBA Board of Governors is scheduled to meet in Coronado, Calif., next week, and Scheer said he does expect no trouble in getting formal approval for the sale. McCombs, part owner of the NBA's San Antonio Spurs, plans to sell his share of the Spurs to win NBA approval as the Denver franchise owner. He said he plans to keep Scheer on as general manager and Doug Moe as head coach of the Nuggets. Dybek said the rent dispute McCombs was concerned about was among "six or seven things we are talking about."

"They are aware that this (the rent issue) is negotiable as well," he said. "We have been discussing various parts of our agreement over the telephone and the time has come where we have to sit down face to face. There are many areas of give and take."

Tyler Resigns NTSU Post To 'Go Fish With Sons'

DENTON, Texas (AP)—Bob Tyler decided suddenly that he needed a break from coaching football at North Texas State University, and he needed some time to go fishing with his sons. Tyler resigned Wednesday from his dual role as athletic director and head football coach. He's not sure what he will do, but it won't be coaching NTSU's Mean Green team. "I did not resign because of our extreme budget problems or because I didn't think the football program could be successful," Tyler said. "I did so because I needed a break and wanted to be around my three sons." Tyler was the third coach financially strapped NTSU has had in three years. NTSU President Alfred Hurley said a search committee would be formed Thursday to begin the search for a new coach and a new athletic director. NTSU cut $800,000 from its athletic budget this year without eliminating any sports. "I do not want my resigning to signify that I have lost faith in North Texas State," Tyler said. "They are slowly working their way out."

proved and successful this fall. "I must also recognize the efforts of the students, faculty, alumni and townspeople." In 1968, Tyler joined the staff of Johnny Vaught at the University of Mississippi. He spent the 1971 season as an offensive line coach at Alabama under Bear Bryant. SOCCER MADRID (AP)—Algeria, making its World Cup debut, upset two-time champion West Germany 2-1 in Gijon in final round play of the World Cup soccer tournament. Honduras—also playing in the World Cup finals for the first time—held host nation Spain to a 1-1 draw in Valencia. In other action, England downed France 3-1 in the opening Group 4 game in Bilbao.

McCombs said that in his conversation "the mayor was very positive that this could be resolved." "In the event the city's interpretation would stay the same, that would be a major roadblock and the deal probably would not be made," McCombs said. "My opinion is that there is a 50-50 chance it (the purchase) can be done." McCombs, who announced Tuesday he had signed a letter to intent to buy the Nuggets, said he thought there was an oral agreement that the rent would go up each year only after the franchise because the school year was winding down. "I'd like to coach football again but I will think about my future later...I'd be open to coming back in either the colleges or the pros," Tyler said. "I have no plans other than to say in Denton for awhile and go fishing with my three sons," said. Tyler served as head football coach during the 1981 season and directed the Eagles to a 2-9 record. He joined the Mean Green after serving as a scout for the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League the two previous seasons. Before joining the Cowboys, Tyler headed the football program at Mississippi State University for six seasons. His overall mark for seven years as a head coach was 23-53-1 after 18 victories and a tie at Mississippi State had to be declared forfeits. Tyler issued a short resignation statement, saying: "I have submitted my resignation as athletic director and head coach at North Texas State University. I want to express my appreciation to the football players who have worked so hard toward building a winning program. I certainly think the team can be much im-

AL Roundup Players Sweat It Out

By TOM CANAVAN
Associated Press Writer

People tend to worry for different reasons. Minnesota's Frank Viola starting sweating the moment he heard his parents were coming to watch him pitch. Kent Hrbek started worrying in the ninth inning when he realized the Twins were winning.

Viola recorded his first major league victory Wednesday night and Hrbek scored the Twins' first run and added a two-run double as Minnesota downed the Kansas City

Royals 5-2 for only its third victory in 26 games.

Ironically, Viola, 1-0, has started two of those three victories, but he was a little apprehensive before the Kansas City game. You see, his parents, Frank Sr. and Helen, were present and that hasn't been a good omen for the 22-year-old left-hander from New York.

"The last two times my parents saw me pitch in (Class AAA) Toledo, I only lasted 31-3 innings," said Viola. "I was beginning to think they might be a jinx."

The Violas stopped in Kansas City, while driving their son's car from Toledo, where he spent most of the spring, to Minnesota.

Viola, who gave up a seventh-inning home run to Hal McRae, said his control helped him.

"The first time against them, I kept falling behind the batters and letting them wait on my pitch," Viola said. "My control was better this time. They weren't sitting back waiting for my pitch."

Ron Davis pitched the final two innings for Minnesota, allowing the Royals' second run on a double by McRae.

"I started thinking 'What the heck is going to go wrong now,'" said Hrbek after McRae's double. "That's the way our whole team has been thinking this season, I guess. It's no fun losing, but there's no place to go, but up," he said.

In other American League action, New York downed Boston 4-1 in a game shortened to six innings by rain, California ripped Toronto 7-1, Chicago edged Oakland 7-6 in 10 innings and Seattle defeated Texas 7-2. The Detroit-Cleveland game was rained out and the Baltimore-Milwaukee was called after the ninth inning with the score tied 2-2. The game will be replayed in its entirety.

Tom Burnansky slugged a two-run homer in the eighth inning to give the Twins some breathing room.

White Sox 7, A's 6

Greg Luzinski, who earlier hit a long homer, singled home Ron LeFlore from second base in the 10th inning of a game marred by the ejection of two players, Chicago Manager Tony La Russa and a coach.

Salome Barojas, 4-1, was the winner despite balking in the tying run in the ninth inning.

Chicago coach Charley Lau was ejected from the game for contesting the balk call. La Russa was ejected during Oakland's five-run fourth inning, and Bill Almon was ousted in the ninth inning.

Dave Lopes, the A's second baseman, was ejected in the sixth.

Steve Kemp's had a two-run homer for Chicago in the eighth, while Cliff Johnson's solo shot ignited the A's big fourth inning.

Mariners 7, Rangers 2

Manny Castillo stroked a bases-loaded, two-run double in Seattle's three-run second inning and Julio Cruz slammed a three-run homer as 43-year-old pitcher Gaylord Perry picked up the 302nd career victory.

Perry, 5-5, gave up six hits in 71-3 innings of work. He walked one and struck out three, raising his career strikeout total to 3,399. Bill Caudill pitched the final 12-3 innings for his ninth save.

Jim Sundberg hit his fourth homer of the season for the Rangers' first run and Texas scored again in the eighth when Bill Stein slapped a pinch-hit single.

Angels 7, Blue Jays 1

Bob Boone knocked in two runs with a single and Don Baylor added a two-run homer to back Steve Renko's six-hitter as California posted a 7-1 victory over Toronto, snapping an eight-game losing streak at home.

WT Grid Camp Begins June 27

The annual West Texas State Football camp has been scheduled for June 27-July 2, it was announced this week by Don Davis, head football coach at WTSU.

The camp is for boys 4th through 9th grade who will not be participating in high school varsity football in the fall. Applications are now being taken for the camp, a non-contact course designed to introduce boys to the basic techniques and fundamentals of football.

The camp staff is manned by the assistant coaches at West Texas State. Besides on-field instruction, each camper will participate in the Buff Olympics and can use the activity center and swimming pool on the WTSU campus.

Cost is $155, for regular campers and $95 for day campers. Boys will stay in the W.T. dorms and eat at the college cafeteria. Day campers will sleep at home.

Forms for the camp are being distributed in the area. For more information, write: W.T. Football Camp, Box 912, W.T. Station, Canyon, Tx. 79016.

Malone Satisfied With Award, Wants Contract

By JACK STEVENSON AP Sports Writer

CORONADO, Calif. (AP)—Moses Malone believes he truly has won the right to be considered the Most Valuable Player in the National Basketball Association. He also believes he's worth a multi-million dollar contract.

Still, he says he wants to play with others who want to win as badly as he does.

Malone, 27, the six-foot, 10-inch center, who has played for the Houston Rockets six years, was a free agent on Wednesday when he received the MVP for the second time.

"When I won it the first time (1978-79) some thought it was a joke," Malone said. "I win it a second time and I won't be a joke. So I've won it two years and feel I have established myself as the MVP of the league."

His three-year contract with Houston, at a reported $1.1 million per year, has run its course. He leans toward staying there if the money and terms are right, but added, "I think Houston should have signed me last summer or four or five months ago."

Four days before the recent playoffs ended, he was offered a multi-year contract, reportedly for $1.7 million annually.

He turned it down but indicated he hoped Houston would increase its offer before he actually goes on the free-agent market.

Asked if he worried about any public reaction to wanting so much money on a five-to-seven-year contract, Malone answered, "Gerry Cooney got $10 million for fighting one bout and he wasn't even the champion. I won't be a fool and turn it down."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the champion Los Angeles Lakers, who had won the MVP honor six times previously, placed only 10th for this past season.

"My main concern is winning," said Malone who admitted there were only four or five teams in the NBA able to financially meet his conditions. He said he would let his representatives do the negotiating and that they had already talked to some other teams.

"I've got until September to decide, but in two or three weeks, my mind could be clear on the offers," he continued.

He was asked if the New Jersey Nets were one of the teams under consideration and hedged by saying, "New Jersey is really a good team. I wouldn't mind playing with them."

What makes it tougher for Malone, who went into pro basketball directly out of high school, was the sale this week of the Rockets by Gavin Maloof to Charles Thomas.

He says he never has met Thomas, a Houston bank president and millionaire. "But anyone that owns a team, he is a great guy."

Buck Williams of the Nets was voted the Rookie of the Year, beating out Kelly Tripucka of Detroit. Gene Shue of the Washington Bullets was named Coach of the Year and Bob Ferry, general manager of the Bullets, the Executive of the Year in various polls announced by the NBA.

The Comeback Player of the Year award went to Gus Williams of Seattle who stayed out of action a season ago because of a contract dispute.

Malone drew 40 first-place votes and 507 points in the voting by a panel of 69 media members — three from each NBA franchise city.

Larry Bird of Boston had 20 top votes and 406 points. Following in order the top ten were Julius Erving of Philadelphia, 203 points; Robert Parrish of Boston, 131; Gus Williams, 115; George Gervin of San Antonio, 110; Sidney Moncrief of Milwaukee, 101; Magic Johnson of Los Angeles, 67; Jack Sikma of Seattle, 33, and Abdul-Jabbar, 31.

Shue, who won coaching honors in 1969 in a previous stint with the Bullets when the franchise was in Baltimore, became only the second man to win the honor two times. Bill Fitch, 1976 with Cleveland and 1980 with Boston, is the other.

DENVER (AP) — Former Denver Broncos football Coach Robert "Red" Miller was named head coach and general manager of the United States Football League's Denver franchise, which will be nicknamed the Denver Gold.

Olympia Award Set By Southland Corp.

DALLAS (AP) — The Olympia Award, a reproduction of a two-handled Greek vase presented to winners of amateur athletic contests in the fifth century B.C., will be given to outstanding United States amateur athletes beginning this year, it was announced Wednesday by the Southland Corporation of Dallas.

Southland said 144 of these awards will be given each year on a monthly basis to athletes mostly in such sports such as archery, cycling, etc.

The organization said it in no way meant to be competitive with such awards as The Sullivan Award which goes to the top athletes.

"We want to recognize the amateur athletes in the minor sports...in the many grass roots Olympic sports that receive less attention and acclaim than the major sports," said Bill Scott, chairman of the Southland Olympic Planning Committee.

The final selection process will be administered by a panel which includes former Sullivan Award winners Bob Mathias, Rafer Johnson and Eric Heiden and Sheila Young-Ochowicz, Olympic speed skating champion, and Cathy Rigby, former women's gymnastics champion.

Sorry, Lubbock. We don't have a room in the house.

Just suites.

That's all Granada Royale Hometels® has ever had. Big, beautiful suites. For every guest in the house.

And our new Lubbock Homotel® has 161 of them.

Every suite opens on to a stunning courtyard, designed in the architectural style and garden-like setting of a Mediterranean villa. Not like the old hallway-lobby layout you find in hotels.

Every suite includes a separate bedroom with king or 2 double beds. Every bedroom has a phone, color TV and untypical furniture such as an armoire and double dressers.

Every suite also has a separate living room with sofa that makes into a queen size bed for extra guests and children. And there's a second TV, a second phone, room for cocktails, a meeting, a quiet evening at "home."

Every suite also has a dining table, chairs, a bar, a kitchen with refrigerator, range with oven, pots, pans, dishes, tableware.

But the Homotel® concept doesn't stop with suites.

Every evening the manager holds a 2-hour cocktail party for all registered guests. There's no charge whatsoever.

Every morning our guests also receive breakfast without charge. That means eggs cooked to order. Bacon or sausages, pancakes, cereal, coffee, juice, fresh fruit—whatever they want.

As you can see, this is not the way they do it in hotels. But it is the way we do it in a Homotel®.

And to make it easier to sample this comfort and ambience, we are offering an introductory rate of just $59 per night single occupancy. And only $10 more per extra occupant. Children under 12 stay free.

At these prices, Lubbock's new Granada Royale Homotel® comes uncomfortably close to the hotels and motels of Lubbock. But otherwise, it's miles apart.

POLLY'S POINTERS
Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY - I have a large soapstone cross on the wall in my bedroom that is turning very yellow. It is around one hundred years old and I would appreciate any Pointers on how to whiten it. - MRS. L.E.
DEAR MRS. L.E. - I think the safest and most effective method for removing the yellow would be to apply an all-over poultice of a non-abrasive material. Mix a thick, fairly dry paste of cornstarch, a little dry laundry detergent and water. Spread this paste over the surface of the cross, let dry thoroughly for several hours, then gently remove the poultice with a damp cloth. When all traces of the poultice have been completely wiped off, dry the stone with a clean cloth. You must make the poultice fairly dry since soapstone, like marble and alabaster, is soft and porous and should not be allowed to get very wet. While this method should be perfectly safe, you should test it on a small patch on the back of the cross before using it on the entire piece. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - I have two methods for removing gum from clothing. The first is to rub the gummy spot with full strength dishwashing detergent. This usually gets it all off. If that doesn't work, harden the gum with an ice cube, then pull the hardened gum off. Then treat the spot with dishwashing detergent, as above. - MRS. K.S.
DEAR POLLY - I clean my plastic gallon milk jugs by putting a string of old beads and a drop of liquid detergent in them, then filling with warm water and shaking. You can also clean bottles and vases this way. - MRS. H.D.
DEAR POLLY - Here is a neat pointer. We have a wet/dry shop vacuum. The dirt goes into a large canister and must then be dumped out. The other day, my husband tried putting one of those plastic grocery bags into it. He found it fits nicely. Now the dirt will go directly into the bag, keeping the vacuum cleaner clean inside. - THELMA

DEAR POLLY - Use sweet pickle relish in place of pickles in your favorite recipes. This saves time (cutting up the pickles) and the flavor is delicious. - Catherine
DEAR POLLY - I had a potato ricer that I bought in 1968 or 1969. The handle and the band around the cup were painted red. Then the paint started peeling (falling into the potatoes). I took a chip of the paint to be analyzed. I was horrified to find out that the paint contained lead. Readers, beware of old painted kitchen articles! - CAROL
DEAR CAROL - I think you bring us an important warning. If anyone has old kitchen implements on which the paint is flaking off, they might be wise to either have the paint analyzed or discard the pieces. This is particularly important with imported items, including pottery that might be finished with glazes containing lead.

Inspector Questioned In Shooting

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Investigations were under way today by federal and local authorities into the shooting death of a Mexican who was killed after a federal tick inspector discovered him allegedly smuggling a horse into Mexico.

The inspector told the Hidalgo County sheriff's department that his gun discharged accidentally Tuesday afternoon when he lost his footing on the banks of the Rio Grande, according to chief investigator Erasmo Bravo.

Ruben Marquez Guardiola of Reynosa, Mexico, was shot once in the head and died instantly, Bravo said.

The inspector general's office of the U.S. Agriculture Department also sent agents to investigate the incident. The tick inspectors are USDA employees who patrol the Rio Grande on horseback to keep out livestock bearing dangerous fever ticks.

They won the authority this spring to carry firearms after testifying before congressional committees that they needed protection against drug smugglers and other criminals they encounter along the river.

Raymond Smith, tick force district supervisor, said the shooting was the first since the agents were granted permission to carry weapons. Tick riders have said privately that they have always carried guns on patrol.

No charges were filed in the incident. Bravo said the case will be turned over to the district attorney after the investigation by local authorities is complete for possible presentation to the grand jury.

Hernaro Molina Gonzalez of Reynosa, who witnessed the shooting, had purchased the horse and was seen driving toward the river by the federal agents, Bravo said.

When the agents caught up with Molina, he had already unloaded the horse but took the inspectors to the spot along the river two miles east of Hidalgo where Marquez was leading the animal, the investigator said.

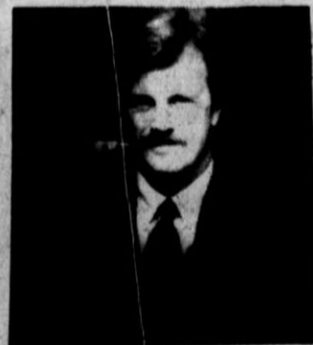

"Marquez was trying to cross the river with the horse," Bravo said. "He left the horse and started walking toward the inspector, who was walking backward. He (the inspector) said he thinks he lost his step, he had the gun out and it went off."

Bravo would not release the name of the inspector involved because he said he feared for the inspector's safety.

"There were several people on the other side waiting for him (Marquez) and they were yelling that they were going to kill the inspector," the investigator said. "If we release the name, they might be looking for him over here."

Smith said he has ordered the riders to patrol in pairs following the shooting in case of possible reprisals.
