80th Year, No. 251, Hereford, Tx. Deaf Smith County

Hospital Board Sensitive to Economy

The Deaf Smith General Hospital District is striving to keep taxes from being raised over three percent and may be able to do so since the tax revenues account for only about 11 percent of the yearly budget.

Jim Bullard, hospital administrator, says that entity's board is sensitive to the economy and believes the hospital's financial strength should not rely on raising taxes. The board is in the planning stage for the budget, which will be approved in August for the fiscal year beginning in October.

"We're looking at all alternatives available to make us financially sound without raising taxes," Bullard said, noting that a solution would not necessarily mean cutting the budget or services.

"We will continue our present services at a level which they are right now," Bullard

With a reduced tax base (minus feed lot cattle) the school district and county are facing inevitable tax hikes. The county depends on tax monies for about 43 percent of its budget and the school relies on taxes for about 25 percent of its money.

The other 90 percent of the hospital budget comes from people paying bills. Indigent care costs are budgeted from the tax money at $176,256. Small philanthropic donations are used for special purchases or projects.

The rest of the tax income is split for ambulance service, $31,416; bond retirement, $106,488; and the public health clinic, $22,000.

"Although indigent care may sound like a lot, we anticipate what we call 'dropins' (pregnant women with no doctor or insurance) will run about $100,000," Bullard said.

Roughly about half of the ambulance budget is underwritten by taxes, which Bullard said the board considers a reasonable amount. The clinic includes im-medical care for the very By legislation the hospital district can charge up to 75 munization services an Without a hearing the district can go from its current 8.2 cent rate to 8.9 cents. That would still be below several area hospitals.

Castro County's hospital tax rate is 14 cents, bringing in about $300,000 or 20 percent of its budget. Canyon's Palo Duro Hospital rate is 13.39 cents, netting $325,000. Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo has a rate of about 45 cents.

Bullard said another break is given in Hereford because the daily rate for a hospital stay is about $98. The national average is $152 a day.

By HOWARD BENEDICT AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - The countdown for Sunday's fourth flight of the space shuttle resumed today after a planned 14-hour hold as workers girded for a big weekend of activity culminating with Columbia's blastoff.

During the overnight hold, most members of the launch crew were sent home to rest. A small contingent used the break to pump liquid helium coolant into a top secret Defense Department payload in the shuttle's cargo bay.

Assistant test conductor Bob Webster said the countdown has "been very smooth" since it began Tuesday. "We've been on schedule throughout with only very few minor problems," he said this morning.

Webster reported weather experts were keeping an eye on a storm front which passed through Georgia on Friday and was "hanging over North Florida" today. He said it is expected to move through this area sometime Saturday, leaving good conditions for Sunday's planned 11 a.m. EDT liftoff.

When the countdown resumed at 9 a.m. today, crews at Launch Pad 39A started up the shuttle's guidance system and began servicing the main engines, leading to the fueling of the spaceship early Sunday.

Astronauts Ken Mattingly and Henry Hartsfield planned to fly to Cape Canaveral from Houston late today for final training before liftoff for the seven-day mission which is slated to end on Independence Day with a landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

On Thursday meanwhile a French test pilot and two soviet cosmonauts blasted into orbit inside a Soyuz T-6 spacecraft aiming for a linkup today with the Salyut-7 space station which is carrying two other soviets.

The orbits of the Columbia and the Salyut are not near each other NASA said.

Only once before have as many as seven men been in space at the same time. That was in 1969 when three orbiting Soviet ships flew a formation flight. It also will be only the third time that Americans and Soviets have been in space simultaneously. The last was a U.S. - Soviet mission in 1975 when three astornauts and two cosmonauts docked their spacecraft.

During the 14-hour overnight hold technicians moved through the shuttle's open cargo bay doors to service a top-secret Defense Department payload which includes infrared and ultraviolet senors to be tested as satellite and missile detectors for surveillance future spacecraft.

The workers filled a tank in the infrared telescope with 80 pounds of liquid helium chilled to 436 degrees below zero to cool the optical system.

HARES Ready For Field Day

Members of the Hereford Amateur Radio Emergency Service (HARES) will begin setting up portable equipment at 1 p.m. Saturday as the club participates in Field Day, a nationwide emergency preparedness drill.

The HARES will have their station set up just west of the Sante Fe overpass along Highway 60, across the road east of Caviness Packing. Emergency Coordinator Wayne White is directing the operation.

Field Day, one of the American Radio Relay League's (ARRL) most popular exercises, is held the last weekend in June each year. All amateurs in the United States and Canda are eligible to compete, either as part of a group or on an individual basis.

The object of the drill is for operators to make as many contacts as possible in a 27-hour period, which ends at 4 p.m. Sunday. Only portable equipment is allowed, and emergency or portable power supplies are required as well.

The public is invited to visit the Field Day site to see the exerise in operation. HARES members will be available to answer questions by visitors.

The launch was the second that Soviet authorities televised live in their 20-yearold manned space program. The first was the Apollo-Soyuz mission in 1975, when separately launched U.S. and Soviet space capsules docked in orbit.

The Friday telecast from the cosmodrome at Baikonur in the south-central Soviet Union showed Chretien arriving at the launch site, blowing a kiss at Soviet and French technicians.

Congress Sends Reagan Second Spending Bill

By JAY PERKINS Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP)

Congress has sent President Reagan a second emergency spending bill, but the White House says it, like the earlier version, is unacceptable.

Only minutes after the Senate completed action on the slimmed-down version of legislation to keep several federal agencies operating through the summer, White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes served notice that this second version also would be vetoed.

That would make two vetoes in two days in this latest battle between Congress and the president. Reagan vetoed the first emergency spending bill Thursday because it containea $3 billion to help lower-and middle-income Americans buy new homes.

Unlike the first veto, there will be no attempt to override this veto. The House - which left Thursday for a two-week recess - has waiting in the wings a fall-back spending bill which, presumably, will be acceptable to the president.

That bill, passed Thursday but held at the desk, can be sent to the Senate next week to complete congressional ac-

The House came surprisingly close to overriding Reagan's veto Thursday, falling only 17 votes short of the necessary two-thirds margin. And once it failed, it quickly moved to putting together the second version.

At one point, it appeared a spending bill shorn of the housing program would be acceptable to the president. But that quickly changed after the Senate completed congressional action on the

Package In Legislature

HOUSTON (AP) - Two blacks and a Hispanic who cast the City Council's only votes against changes in the city's civil service program have promised to kill the package in the Legislature.

"I'm about fed up with the way the Hispanic community is being shortchanged by this administration," Councilman Ben Reyes said Thursday after the proposal passed 10-3.

Reyes and black councilmen Anthony Hall and Ernest McGowen complained that minority groups in the police and fire departments were not consulted when the package was put ogether last weekend.

McGowen said the plan did not address a need for more blacks in higher ranking posts of the departments.

The three said they would fight the olan, which would modify Houston's participation in the state civil service system, when it is submitted to the 1983 Legislature.

Mrs. Whitmire said she discussed the proposal over the telephone with eaders of black and Hispanic groups, but said she negotiated with nonethnic police and fire groups because they approached her.

Police and firefighter groups voted to support the package in three days of balloting this week.

The changes would allow the police chief to appoint his top assistants from candidates who meet certain qualifications, and would provide for promotions to lieutenant and captain based on performance as well as test scores and seniority.

Test scores and seniority have been the only factors considered.

The new package also provides for a grievance procedure.

The plan was put together as a compromise last weekend when a citizens' group began a petition drive for a locally administered system, which the employees' groups opposed.

Coke Cap Speller Denied Contest Prize

PAMPA, Texas (AP) - When Ella Blair spelled "HOMERUN" with letters inside Coca Cola caps, she thought she had the answer to some of her financial problems.

Instead, the contest solution has spelled nothing but frustration for Ms. Blair, an unemployed bakery worker in this Panhandle town.

With her winning caps in hand, Ms. Blair asked Coca Cola for the $2,000 contest prize. But the Lubbock Coca Cola Bottling Co. wouldn't pay because six of the caps came from Amarillo and the Amarillo bottling company wouldn't pay because one of the caps came from Lubbock.

Trappers Discover Medfly In Valley After Seven Months,

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) - Trappers discovered a fertile Mediterranean fruit fly in the agriculturally rich San Joaquin Valley Thursday, the first discovered in seven months.

A medfly infestation last year caused widespread quarantines on California produce although none was found in commercial crops.

Roger Blake, a Medfly Eradication Project spokesman, said the male fly was found in a Loquat tree in a residential Stockton neighborhood.

The find was the first since Nov. 20, 1981, when one of the pests was discovered in San Mateo, to the northwest, and it was the first such find in Stockton, he added.

Special Documentary About Women Coal Miners Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) -Reality-based programs are always looking for oddballs, freaks and carnival characters. But they overlooked some simple women with overpowering dignity who happen to work under mountains of earth.

They missed some REAL PEOPLE.

Tonight PBS tells their story in "We Dig Coal: A Portrait of Three Women." This moving documentary is about three women who fought the system in the courts and underground. They became the first female miners for the Rushton Mining Co. of Osceola, Pa.

And one of them, Marilyn McCusker, became a statistic. She was killed in a cave-in, becoming the first female fatality in an American mine. She loved the work, but was doing it only until her husband, a carpenter, could build their dream house. Before she got the job, she didn't know what coal looked like.

"And I still don't." That's the attitude Mrs. Carson, Mrs. McCusker and Bernice Dombroski fought against. It took three years, to work in a hole in the ground and call it home.

As an economic sign of the times, the younger men were most gung-ho against women miners. And, as a indicator of self-imposed and selfperpetuating shackles, the women of the community felt women miners threatened their notion of femininity.

Says the wife of one miner: 'I like to feel feminine ... and that isn't feminine to me ... to be grubby and dirty and to walk in the slush and mud and guck all day long."

Political Discourse

WASHINGTON (AP) - A sardonic sage observed long ago that the Supreme Court follows the election returns, and the instant political backlash against the John W. Hinckley Jr. verdict shows why he said it. Justice is supposed to be blind to political moods. But when judges or juries make decisions that go sharply against the attitudes of voters, office-holders and candidates, issues are born or escalated.

It is happening now in the Hinckley aftermath. It won't make any difference in the case of the man who tried to assassinate President Reagan, crippled White House press secretary James Brady, and wounded a policeman and a Secret Service agent.

He is not guilty by reason of insanity, and that's that.

But it will make a difference in Congress. And it will be a case in point as candidates talk law and order in the 1982 election campaign. That issue has been part of the conservative revival; it ranks high in surveys about the concerns of voters. voters California underscored the issue earlier this month in a referendum follows th' iliction returns," wrote Finley Peter Dunne, homespun dispensing homilies as Mr. Dooley at the turn of the century. The insanity plea that succeeded for Hinckley had not been a central issue in the law and order debate. It is now, but that probably won't last. What will is the fact that a man whose lawyers admitted he did the shooting, in an assassination attempt Americans saw on national television, was found not guilty - for whatever reason. Almost every voter has heard, or read, a horror story about a criminal convicted, sentenced, and released to commit new crimes. Reagan, who refuses comment on the Hinckley verdict, has said he knows of 12 murderers who were released from California penal institutions and subsequently were responsible for 34 more deaths. He didn't explain further, and his aides always declined to identify the people involved.

Revisions in the federal criminal code await Senate action, and that is being expedited in the wake of the Hinckley verdict. One of the measures involved would alter the insanity defense so as to create a presumption of sanity in federal court trials.

Braniff Employees Turn To Lawn Mowing

CARROLLTON, Texas (AP) - Bil and Susan Compton can no longer fly to San Francisco for dinner, and they use their Cadillac to look for work mowing lawns and cleaning dead cockroaches from kitchen cupboards. The former Braniff International ticket agents saw their income drop from $4,000 a month to nothing when the airline shutdown May 12. And they say $600 apiece in unemployment benefits is not enough. So the couple that used to enjoy the good times of flying to San Franciso for crabmeat on Fisherman's Wharf now face hard times with Bil and Susan's Cleaning and Lawn Service.

Compton, 47, worked for Braniff for 261/2 years. Before that, he worked as a flight attendant for the Air Force on VIP flights. "All he knows is writing

Proofing Copy

Sorting the actual printed pages of the Deaf Smith County history book, "The Land And Its People" began Thursday in Project County History office when the material came back from the publishers for proofreading. From left are Sue Coleman, with a handful of pages which record family histories; and Juanita Owen, checking with Troyce Hanna to see that the general history pages correspond to stories in the manuscript which is stacked in front of Mrs. Hanna.

Proofreaders Needed To Help Compile County History

Printed pages of the Deaf Smith County history book were seen for the first time by volunteers who have been working more than a year on Project County History, as first proofs were received from the publishers Thurs-

This event launched the project committee on its final phase of compiling the book making corrections in the proofs and laying out the pages as they will appear in the finished volume.

Troyce Hanna, project chairman, said that any others who wish to help will be welcomed as there is a time limit on this phase of book preparation and so a need for hurrying. Proofreaders will work in teams and may volunteer as teams or as individuals.

The work will all be done at the office, but part of it will be done downstairs in the E.B. Black House, so those who do not wish to climb stairs to the second floor may remain on with this part of the work are the first floor, Mrs. Hanna book orders will still be accepted by the committee. Then the publisher will set the closing date. Only the number of books ordered and paid for in advance will be printed and there will not be a second edition of the history.

Families whose stories will appear in the book are reminded that more than one member will probably want a book, in the future if not now, so that more than one volume should be ordered now, Mrs. Hanna said.

The price is $36.75 for a book to be picked up by the purchaser; $39.50 for a book to be mailed. Orders may be sent to the project office or mailed to Post Office Drawer

Texas Folklife Festival Scheduled In San Antonio

For some it's an introduction to Texas' amazing variety of people and customs. For others it's a living Texas history lesson. For still others, it's pure nostalgia. It's the Texas Folklife Festival, the annual celebration of the state's ethnic diversity and pioneer folkways.

Sponsored by The University of Texas Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio, this year's eleventh annual celebration features 31 different ethnic and cultural groups. More than 6000 craftspeople, musicians, dancers, story-tellers and cooks from all over the state join together for this four-day extravaganza, August 5-8.

In the "Back 40" area of the Festival's 15-acre grounds, visitors become acquainted with early Texans' lifestyles as craftspeople in pioneer dress demonstrate age-old crafts and skills.

Learning functional crafts - from roof thatching to broom making - is an integral part of the Festival experience. The Cisco Civic League makes rush lights by dipping cat tails in tallow. Ross Pantalion of Nacogdoches shows visitors how his mule-powered grist mill grinds corn. Nancy Lou Webster of Elgin makes treeware - kitchen utensils made of wood. Festival participants also demonstrate decorative arts - crafts which added beauty and color to pioneer homes. Visitors can sit in on one of the two quilting bees in progress, learn to crochet with their fingers, or weave a basket of pine needles.

Children will enjoy making corn husk dolls, elm whistles and kites as their parents learn chair caning, drop spinning and adobe brick making. Visitors are invited to compete in the horseshoe pitching, corn shucking and watermelon seed spitting contests. In all, more than 100 pioneer crafts, skills, games and activities are offered in the open-air classroom of the "Back 40".

The "Back 40" also offers "cooking classes" for visitors interested in methods of pioneer food preparation and preservation. At the smokehouse O.T. Baker of Austin offers passers-by samples of smoked venison, cured jerky and prickly pear apples. Herbologists instruct in the art of cooking with herbs as Barbara Stall of Cuero explains the process of pickling.

A short stroll brings visitors face-to-face with sheep, goats, chickens and a longhorn steer. Children may pet the American Indian mare and her colt and watch bees at work in a glassencased hive. Nearby, visitors watch sheepshearing, gooseplucking and goatmilking domonstrations or climb aboard the horsedrawn wagon for a ride around the grounds. Of the 34 food booths sprinkled throughout the grounds are 27 specializing in ethnic cuisine. Cornish pastie (a British meat pie), boudain (Cajun rice sausage), Filipino kutchinta (steamed rice cakes), and makowiec (Polish poppy seed pastry) are a few of the 145 exotic dishes available. Chili, chicken fried steak, barbeque, yam pie and strawberry shortcake are favorites with visitors hungry for down folk dancers on Stage 5 while a colorful mariachi band serenades the audience at Stage 7. As a visitor walks through the grounds, he is greeted by Scottish bagpipers, bluegrass fiddlers, and Indian tribal dancers.

Tickets for the eleventh Texas Folklife Festival are $5 for adults (4.50 in advance), $1 for children under 13. Children under six get in free. Advanced tickets are available at The Institute of Texan Cultures and will be offered at various San Antonio locations by July 1. For more information write The Institute of Texas Cultures, P.O. Box 1226, San Antonio, Texas, 78294, or call (512) 226-7651.

If breakfast skipping is the trend at your house, stop them in their tracks with non-traditional breakfast foods, suggest the National Live Stock and Meat Board. The day is sure to run a little smoother when you lead in with such favorite foods as hamburgers, meaty tacos, sausage pizza and hot dogs with cheese or chili. Other eye-opening possiblities include corned beef hash, meat balls, ham or meat loaf slices and cooked meat cubes in a sauce served over biscuits, pancakes or

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I

am a 17-year-old high school senior, the only kid left at home. I love my parents very much and am sure they love me. The problem is they don't love each other. The yelling and screaming that goes on every night is tearing me apart. Each keeps telling the other to "get out." I can't count the number of times I've wanted to stand between them and shout, "SHUT UP and behave like adults! I am sick of all the arguing!" The anger and frustration is building up inside me and I feel as if I am going to burst. I keep worrying that they might get a divorce. If that happened, I just couldn't handle it. It would finish me for sure.

Don't suggest that I tell them to see a marriage counselor. They are both too proud and stubborn. I haven't talked to anyone about this because I don't want to be disloyal to my parents by blabbing. This problem is not going to go away. Please help me. - A Boy In Madison, Wis.

DEAR FRIEND: Children are not responsible for what goes on between their parents. Telling them to shut up and behave like adults won't change anything. All it will get you is a klop in the chops from one or both.

Of course it rattles a kid to listen to his parents yell at each other, but your best protection against the anxiety and fright is to get some counseling.

Garden Clinic Slated At Community Center

An Ornamental and Garden Clinic will be held Wednesday, June 30, 1982 in the Hereford Community Center, Ballroom, from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon. This program is being sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Extension Service, Deaf Smith Community Development Committee, Hereford Garden Club, Garden Beautiful Club, and Bud to Blossom Garden Club.

The program is designed to bring information and assistance with landscape and garden problems. An individual diagnostic clinic will be held from 9:00 a.m. - 10:00 a.m. to help you in solving your various problems. Please bring specimens of insects, diseased plants, etc. Following the diagnostic clinic will be a tour from 10:00 to noon which will include the Paula Hamby, vegetable garden; Hereford Garden Center, lawn and flower garden; Mr. and Mrs. B.F. Cain, trees; and the Cowgirl Hall of Fame, landscaping. Specialists on hand for the Diagnostic Clinic and tour will be:

Dr. Carl Patrick, Area Entomologist, T.A.E.S. - insect control in both lawn and gardens.

How Does Your Garden Grow

The backyard garden at the E.B. Black House springs to life during the warmer months as several members of the Deaf Smith County Historical Society volunteer their time to plant, hoe weeds, water, and nourish the plants and flowers in the garden. Shown above is Sue James. Other

Musicians Making A Killing Off Broadway Theatre-Goers

NEW YORK (AP) - The longest running show on Broadway features a cast of no-show jobs and backstage card games. It's called featherbedding and costs theater-goers millions of dollars annually in higher ticket prices.

Scores of musicians get paid up to $30,000 a year for a song. These silent melody men, known as "walkers," often appear at the theater only to pick up their paycheck. There are seven at "A Chorus Line," eight at "The Pirates of Penzance" and 16 at "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas." Under union employment quotas, each Broadway theater is rated for a certain ding to its size and general use. On shows calling for fewer than the rated number of players, the extra musicians must nonetheless be hired and paid. The "walkers" issue was brought to center stage recently when the producer of "Whorehouse" complained that musicians' featherbedding was costing her show $10,000 a week. The union says the work rules prevent producers from replacing humans with recorded music or complex synthesizers. Many producers say the regulations are a waste of money.

"Anytime you have a situation where someone gets paid to do nothing, it's unhealthy," said Bernard B. Jacobs, president of the Shubert Organization, and a chief management negotiator. The smash hit "A Chorus Line," on Broadway since 1975, is scored for 19 musicians, including the leader. But the Shubert Theater is rated for 26. Thus seven walkers are paid.

"Pirates of Penzance" has 16 players and eight walkers. "Whorehouse" has more walkers than players - 16 against only nine who actually work.

Max L. Arons, musicians union president, objects when his workers are called walkers. "These are people who are under contract. It's to protect the union so that they don't open the shows with piano players" or with records.

"A union is here to protect its members to see that they don't lose employment and that they get the fair share of what's due them in a show," Arons said.

Technically, all walkers are understudies and some occasionally do substitute. But Stevie Phillips, "Whorehouse's" producer, said that in the almost 4-year run of that hit, "many never showed up."

Without walkers, Miss Phillips said, she "would have lowered the ticket price at least by two bucks." Further, union work rules were "at least half" responsible for driving up ticket prices from an original top of $19.50 in the summer of 1978 to the current $30 price for an orchestra seat, she added. Some of the more recent musical hits, such as "42nd Street" and "Dreamgirls" charge even more - $40 for their best seats.

Miss Phillips went public with her complaints after "Whorehouse" closed March 27 after a run of 1,578 performances. She said the musicians union refused to make concessions to compensate for shrinking audiences.

In late April, Miss Phillips reopened the show, in Boston, then brought it back to New York, but at a smaller theater, rated for only nine musicians.

Miss Phillips, by that time on what she called a "strenuous conscienceraising" crusade, announced she had "no intention of paying the walkers."

But the contract stipulates the number of musicians stays the same even if a show moves to a smaller house. So Arons told Miss Phillips that if she wanted her play she'd have to pay. When "Whorehouse" reopened on Memorial Day weekend Arons was still smiling.

School Offers Students Last Chance

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) - If all public schools were like Lufkin's Alternative School, public education would be a nightmare.

Every student has a different curriculum. There is no corporal punishment. There are no football or basketball teams. There is no band or drill team, and there are no pep rallies. Little effort is made to keep students in class against their will. Students may smoke on campus if their parents say it's all right.

As one student puts it, that's what it's called Alternative: For most of them, it was Alternative or out of school and out of a future.

Some blew their chance. Some of the school's alumni are in prison, others are in Texas Youth Council centers. But many are working, successfully making their own in a world in which they might never have had a chance without the school. For them, Alternative gave them a future.

The school is the brainchild of Superintendent Allan Cannon, who brought the idea for such a school with him from San Antonio. He says it is his responsibility as an educator to provide an education to all children, even those who cannot or will not conform to the usual standards of behavior expected of students.

Alternative opened its doors five years ago in the old St. Cyprian's Episcopal Church annex, but it now sits on a couple of well-weeded acres that surround the 34-year-old Mabel Melear School.

Appearances don't count for much at Alternative. It's what goes on inside the school's six unadorned classrooms and inside the minds of its students that counts.

Al Stoddard, a tall, softspoken 47-year-old former Coston Elementary school teacher, is the principal and one of two teachers for the two dozen or so emotionally disturbed students - EDs, they are called - who are enrolled in grades 7 through 12 at the school each

On paper, the EDs make up only about half of Stoddard's responsibility - he also is principal for a couple of dozen "school-age mothers" and a few students who are temporarily physically incapable of attending classes and who are taught at home - but they make up the overwhelming part of his day-today workload. Stoddard's main official job is to teach basic academic skills to the EDs until they are emotionally and socially prepared to return to regular schools.

But the real job, he says, entails a lot more than that. This year he has been punched twice while breaking up fights. His students pile more verbal abuse on him that a

He says he often feels like a frustrated confessor-friendfather figure-counselorteacher-principal. Teachers don't queue up for a chance to teach there, he says. But he says he hasn't ever seriously considered quitting.

"Somebody's got to work with them," he said, "and I feel like I was called to work here."

"These kids have been losers who need a chance to be around somebody who's not yelling and screaming at them all the time," Stoddard

Of the 24 EDs enrolled at Alternative last spring semester, 17 - about 70 percent - were on probation for a number of crimes. Stoddard says that most of the EDs probably could be arrested for something on any given school day.

Their teachers try to solve the students' emotional and social problems through behavior modification, the method that says behavior can best be changed as rewarding good behavior and denying rewards for bad behavior

The principal says spanking and other ordinary punishment are counterproductive: What purpose is served by spanking a mean and angry 17-year-old delinquent but to make him meaner and angrier?

The most visible example of behavior modification is a classroom chart outlining a point system for good behavior.

Fifty points are given for completing assignments; 20 for not talking back, arguing, fighting or cursing; 10 for staying in the classroom; 10 for bringing paper and pencil to class; and 10 for being on time. Students may earn a maximum 100 points a day.

Those who earn 350 points 31/2 days of exemplary behavior - get a free class period, in which they may do anything they like as long as they don't disturb their classmates.

Stoddard says smoking is tolerated because not to tolerate it would only complicate the school's mission. The students will smoke anyway, he says, so why complicate an already complicated problem?

The EDs are taught only basic courses in reading, writing, math, history, science and so on. There are no vocational or accelerated like adults. programs common at other schools. Stoddard said Alternative's goals are more modest: to help students get mainstream. The principal estimates the 'success rate" at Alternative is about 25 percent, that about a quarter of those who return to normal schools never return. The remainder either return to Alternative after getting into trouble or drop out of school altogether.

back into the educational

Students seem grateful for the opportunity the school gives them. Four, ranging in age from 15 to 18, were interviewed under the condition their names not be used.

The first, a 15-year-old boy referred to the school by his probation officer, said he waged / "guerrilla warfare" with Junior High East Principal Billy Bowman. He said he used to get licks six periods a day, but says the punishment "just made me want to do it more."

The young man, who is planning to work on an offshore oil rig when he turns 18, said he was put on probation after violating an order that he not enter the East campus.

"Most of us that's over here have problems in regular school and that's why we're here," he said. He said that next year he will go to Lufkin High School. He thinks he can handle regular school now. He said

Alternative is different from other schools beause its students are expected to act

"Why do you think they call it Alternative?" he asked. "This is the alternative. If you mess up here, you're Another student, who had self-inflicted burns on his upper left arm, said he likes Alternative because the school day is shorter than in high school. The day lasts from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and students bring in their own lunches because their is no cafeteria.

"It's better than high school because you get to leave early," said the graduate," he said.

16-year-old, who was expelled from Lufkin High School for fighting and is on probation for public drunkenness.

The third student interviewed went through 12 years of school without any significant problems until the last couple of weeks before graduation. He got in a fight and fought with a stick, grounds for immediate expulsion at Lufkin High.

"You do have someplace to go when you get kicked out of school instead of sitting at home. I'm glad they found something for me so I could

Rogers Admits Buying Cocaine

By The Associated Press

George Rogers, the National Football League's leading rusher in 1981, reportedly is one of more than a dozen present and former members of the New Orleans Saints who have told federal investigators they bought cocaine from a former Saints running back or a convicted drug dealer.

Rogers spent more than $10,000 last season to buy cocaine, the New Orleans Times-Picayune, the States Item said Thursday in a copyright story. The newspaper quoted sources as saying Rogers told a federal grand jury he paid for cocaine with personal checks on several occasions.

The story identified the sources only as being familiar with the federal inquiry into cocaine use by Saints players. The newspaper quoted its sources as saying Rogers was one of more than a dozen present and former members of the Saints who have told investigators they bought cocaine from either Mike Strachan, a former New Orleans running back who has been indicted by a federal grand jury on cocainedistribution charges, or Joselyn Bruno, who was convicted of conspiring to sell the

The trial for Strachan, who faces a seven-count indictment involving cocaine dealing and conspiracy to sell cocaine, is to begin next Thurs-

NFL officials declined to comment on the article, but said they are cooperating "with the authorities connected with the grand jury."

In another development, columnist Jack Anderson said on ABC's "Good Morning America" Thursday that undercover federal narcotics agents have secretly infiltrated a narcotics ring operating inside the NFL.

He gave no other details except to say that a federal investigation is now focused on the Saints, and that an "official, confidential" list of suspects contains the names of Rogers, ex-Saints player San Diego Chargers; Saints quarterback David Wilson and Strachan.

Rogers, who was named winner of the 1980 Heisman Trophy at South Carolina as college football's top player, became the NFL Rookie-ofthe-Year in 1981 after rushing for 1,674 yards.

He could not be reached for comment by the newspaper. Ed Holler, a business adviser and friend of Rogers', who was contacted in Columbia, S.C., told the newspaper he discussed the matter with Rogers and Rogers would have no comment.

Holler also told The Associated Press that neither he nor Rogers would comment on the matter.

Garvey Skyrockets Into Dodger Blue Yonder

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

Back on May 18, Steve Garvey was hitting a modest .238 with two home runs, and the strikeouts were coming faster than the runs batted in.

Now, with 10 homers seven in his past 19 games and a recuperating average of .256, the Los Angeles Dodgers' first baseman has seen his game skyrocket into the wild "Dodger Blue" yonder.

"It feels very good now," Garvey says. "Obviously the first month and a half was a struggle for me. Now I'm driving in some runs, which I have to do to contribute."

Garvey homered, and he and Ken Landreux each drove in a pair of runs Thursday night to back Jerry Reuss to his ninth victory in 14 decisions, a 5-3 triumph at Atlanta. The defending World Series champions are now in third place in the National League West after winning 10 of their past 13 games, moving within 51/2 games of division-leading Atlanta.

Around the rest of the league, Philadelphia clobbered St. Louis 10-2, New York downed Montreal 3-1, San Diego edged Cincinnati 7-6 in 13 innings, and San Francisco got by Houston 4-3 in 10 innings.

"We wanted to get out front early and take the advantage, and that's just what we did," said Landreaux, who drilled an RBI single in the first inning, then drove in a run with a single in the Dodgers' tworun fifth. Garvey homered in the fourth and rapped an RBI double in the seventh.

Reuss lost his shutout bid in the eighth when Claudell Washington doubled and Glenn Hubbard singled him home. Bob Watson's RBI double in the ninth, followed by a single by Jerry Royster, chased Reuss, and reliever Steve Howe allowed an RBI single to Washington before shutting down the Braves for his fifth save. In the seventh inning, the Dodgers lost the services of Derrel Thomas for at least six weeks when, while running for Pedro Guerrero, Thomas broke his left ankle in a collision with third-base coach Danny Ozark. Phillies 10, Cards 2

Gary Matthews slugged a disputed home run and Ivan DeJesus contributed three RBI, including a homer, to pace Steve Carlton and the Philadelphia Phillies over St. Louis.

Carlton, 9-7 and winner of nine of his past 12 decisions, pitched a three-hitter, struck out six and walked three.

After Pete Rose doubled in the third inning, Matthews hit a long drive that appeared to have gone out of the park foul down the left-field line. Third base umpire Bill Davidson called the ball fair, resulting in a heated argument and a 3-0 Phillies lead.

DeJesus' homer was his first of the year.

Mets 3, Expos 1

Bob Bailor sparked the Mets' three-run sixth inning with a bloop single that scored Mookie Wilson, and Charlie Puleo combined with Mike Scott to check Montreal on eight hits, snapping the Expos' six-game winning streak. The Mets, meanwhile, ended a three-game losing string and salvaged the final game of the four-game set with the Expos.

Puleo scattered seven hits over 81-3 innings, giving way after yielding a leadoff homer in the ninth to Gary Carter and a pair of walks.

The Mets scored their other runs on a line single by Mike Jorgensen and Ron Hodges' bunt single.

Padres 7, Reds 6

Tim Flannery hit a sacrifice fly in the top of the 13th inning that boosted San Diego over the Reds, who committed five errors. An error by shortstop Ron Oester contributed to the Padres' winning run.

Luis Salazar led off the game with a double off Bob Shirley. With Flannery at bat, Reds catcher Alex Trevino fired a pickoff throw to second that had Salazar caught off base. But Oester dropped the ball, allowing Salazar to advance to third and setting the stage for Flannery.

San Diego blew a 6-0 lead when Cincinnati scored five runs in the sixth and tied the score 6-6 with a run after two were out in the ninth. Oester singled, was sacrificed to second and scored the tying run on Dan Driessen's single.

Giants 4, Astros 3 Jack Clark slugged his 13th home run of the season in the of 10th, leading Giants and rookie left-hander Atlee Hammaker victory over Houston. The homer was Clark's fourth hit of the game and came with one out off Joe Niekro. Hammaker scattered seven hits, striking out five and walking just one. He took a five-hitter into the eighth inning, when the Astros tied the score 3-3 on a single by Tony Scott, a stolen base and Terry Puhl's RBI single

Tigers Loose; Steinbrenner Downplays Injuries

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner have finally ended their silence.

The Tigers got home runs from Larry Herndon, Kirk Gibson and Lou Whitaker and snapped a 10-game losing streak by defeating the Baltimore Orioles 7-1 Thursday night. "We were in a dry spell, but back into the race, but deep you have to give the other teams credit," said Alan Trammell, who had two RBI singles. "We were running into teams that were playing hot baseball. We let everyone down we knew it wasn't going to be a one-or two-team race. This division is too good for that and it will be a four- or five-team race."

There was no sign of life, however, from the Yankees'

SPORTS

the Cleveland Indians. Instead, their volatile owner provided most of the offense by ripping into his slumping sixth-piace ballclub in a postgame news conference and promised to chew them out face-to-face today.

"From now on, there will be no more excuses," Steinbrenner said, barely one week after he calmly blamed a run of injuries for the club's poor start. It was the Yankees' 14th setback in their last 21 games and dropped the defending American League champs 10 games behind first-place Boston in the East Division with a 31-34 record, one game from the

"That stuff about injuries is over," Steinbrenner added. "Maybe we're laying back like last year in the World punchless bats in a 5-2 loss to Series, saying to ourselves that 'we'll get 'em tomorrow.' Well, we didn't get 'em tomorrow. Maybe that attitude still permeates here." In the only other AL games, the California Angels whacked the Kansas City Royals 7-2 and the Texas Rangers edged the Oakland A's 2-1.

Detroit's three homers were more than enough as Jerry Ujdur and Dave Tobik held Baltimore to eight hits and an unearned run.

"We really didn't get too down on ourselves," Gibson insisted. "We were joking and kidding about it before the game. We've been battling every night. We can't panic. We have about 100 games to play and we're still close. We'll have our opportunities." The triumph moved the Tigers back into second place in the AL East, two percentage points ahead of

Milwaukee and five games

Herndon's 14th homer triggered a three-run uprising in the second inning off Scott McGregor, who also was the victim when the Minnesota Twins snapped a 14-game losing streak earlier this month.

"It's much better to go into a series against a team that's due to cool off, not when they're losing," said Orioles Manager Earl Weaver. "You know they're bound to come

It didn't, however, escape tribute to court royalty.

Queen Billie Jean (Mrs. Larry W. King) was back, and, while well away from her familiar Center Court, fans pushed, shoved and strained for the sight of the lady playing her 100th singles match - a record - in this ancient event.

Billie Jean, looking fresh and young for her 38 years, was jubilant after scoring a 6-3, 6-2 victory over 18-yearold Claudia Pasquale of Switzerland and receiving on the front steps of the clubhouse a commemorative plate from the All-England

"I didn't mind playing on Court 14," she said happily, referring to one of the remotest courts in the vast green complex. "I was just happy to be in the draw."

Wearing bright red slacks and a white shirt, she seemed delighted to be sitting on the dais again in the press interview room.

In her 21 years at Wimbledon, she has compiled an unmatched total of 20 titles, and 213 victories against only 35 defeats in singles, doubles and mixed doubles.

"I played my first match ever on the center court," she said. "My opponent was Yola Ramirez of Mexico. We got started late because of rain and the match was called at a set apiece. "The next day, I lost the third set."

Billie Jean said there was a sense of history about playing at Wimbledon.

"When I was younger I would follow the great players such as Lew Hoad, Ken Rosewall and Pancho Gonzales and dreamed of some day playing on the Center Court," she added.

"I dreamed of all the players who had been able to bow to the King or Queen in the Royal Box. And I felt for sorry for the great players such as Rosewall and Gonzales who never got that opportunity."

Billie Jean was reminded that the beleaguered John McEnroe earlier in the week had said he hoped some day the game would be more enjoyable and easier for him. "I can understand that," Billie Jean said.

"It hasn't all been fun for me. At times, very hectic. But when you know you're going to be No.1, you must always remember it also is fleeting. You just have to take it in stride."

So said the lady from outside Court 14.

POLLY'S POINTERS Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — I'm having refrigerator problems. First of all, I'd like to know at what temperature should I keep both the freezer and refrigerator section? Also, I've found both the freezer and refrigerator section? Also, I've found that sometimes the food in the top shelves of the refrigerator door starts to freeze, even though the freezer itself won't keep my ice cream solid. Is there any way to avoid this? There's only one temperature control for the whole unit; the freezer and refrigerator sections do not have separate controls. — KELLY V. — Ideally, the freezer should be kept at a temperature of 0 degrees Fahrenheit or colder. This will safely preserve and keep solidly frozen both store-bought frozen foods and home-frozen products. However, for short-term storage of a package of peas, a frozen dinner or next Tuesday's pork chops, slightly warmer temperatures are acceptable, so long as everything is solidly frozen. The refrigerator temperature should be kept at approximately 38 to 40 degrees. 38 to 40 degrees.

As for your other problem, I've too had this experience with a refrigerator that had the freezer unit as part of the refrigerator, rather than completely separated. I found that the problem got worse as frost and ice built up on the problem got worse as frost and ice built up on the problem. freezer. Because the freezer was working less efficiently, I had to keep the thermostat turned colder to keep food frozen. However, this colder temperature was too cold for non-frozen refrigerated foods.

The simple answer: Defrost that freezer frequently and keep it clear of icy build-up. If the problem seems particularly severe, there may be nothing for it but to have a repairman in to check the operation of the unit. Also be sure the gasket on the door is giving you a tight seal to avoid losing precious (and electrically expensive) cold air. A light lubrication with a little petroleum jelly will keep the gasket from drying and cracking. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY - I am forever baking cookies for my grandson and after a while the rounded teaspoon measurement gets a bit tedious. I found that a melon ball scoop was perfect for gathering the cookie dough. I place the scooped dough on a baking sheet, cut a small square of wax paper, place it on the cookie and use a small juice glass to flatten it. If the dough tends to stick to the melon scoop, I put the cookie dough in the freezer or dip the scoop in sugar. — BARBARA

DEAR POLLY - Here's an almost calorie-free gelatin dessert recipe. Mix one envelope unsweetened powdered soft-drink mix with two envelopes unflavored gelatin. Dissolve in four cups warm water and sweeten to taste with artificial sweetener. Chill until firm. This is as good as the calorie-laden gelatin desserts. — ALTA

THROUGH THE EYES OF FAITH WE SEE LIFE MORE CLEARLY

our eyes are your windows of the world you live in, through which you are able to observe your surroundings, recognize your fellow beings, perform your everyday tasks and follow the pathway of your life. They enable you to concentrate on a single object or person, or scan every detail of the panorama within your field of vision. You can develop your powers of observation so as to enjoy the natural beauty of God's creation whenever you step out of doors, and you can also quickly identify a situation that should be remedied or a person in need of your help. At the Church of your choice you will learn to see all the good things of this world through the eyes of faith.
