BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) - Survivors inched on their stomaches across a gray blanket of mire to reach trapped neighbors who lived through the blazing ash and wall of mud unleashed by an Andean volcano. Hundreds of bodies were found and officials feared 20,000 may have died.

The volcano ended months of rumbling with a fiery eruption late Wednesday that melted its snow cap.

Simultaneous heavy rains engorged the Lagunilla River before dawn Thursday, turning it into a rushing wall of mud that destroyed at least 85 percent of Armero, a coffee-farming town of 50,000 people 30 miles from the Nevado del Ruiz volcano and 105 miles northwest of Bogota. Another 20,000 people lived in the nearby towns of Santuario, Carmelo and Pindalito, also buried by mud. Red Cross Director Artemo Franco said on Caracol radio, "Rescue workers are talking about 20,000

There was no official count of the number of bodies recovered. But the Caracol broadcast network said 700 bodies had been found as of 2 a.m.

Hundreds of bodies were being taken to a soccer stadium in the village of Guayabal, four miles from Armero, said Associated Press photgrapher Carlos Gonzalez.

Television film showed survivors inching their way across the sea of mud. Many crawled on their stomachs to avoid sinking into the quicksand-like mire. One man dug

The church, the tallest building in town, was leveled by the mud. But the local cemetery, protected by a high cement wall, was untouched, saving residents who huddled there. Other survivors climbed trees and jumped on roofs.

"Armero doesn't exist any more," Red Cross rescue worker Fernando Duque said in an interview from the scene on Todelar Radio.

Many survivors told radio and television reporters that city authorities had assured the inhabitants there was no danger when ash began falling Wednesday after-

The volcano erupted with a deafening roar shortly after 10 p.m., and about three hours later the mud avalanche rushed through the towns.

"They told us there was no danger, no danger. This happened and they told us there was no danger," a woman wrapped in a blanket at a hospital in nearby Mariquita said bit-

Another survivor told the television station TV-Hoy that he made his way to safety after the flood of water and mud tore his house apart.

Then I heard my son screaming, Papa, Papa, come back and save me. The river is taking me away," the sobbing man said. "I saved him, but when I got back all my other children were dead."

Rescue worker Duque said, "Some of the bodies had been under mud for six hours when we dug them out. We weren't even able to tell if they were men or women. They were just a mass of gray."

Reagan asks that competition be on 'playing field'

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, in a pre-summit speech, has proposed Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev join him in easing "suspicions and mistrust" by undertaking the broadest people-to-people exchange between the two superpowers in history.

"If we must compete," Reagan said in a televised address Thursday night, "let it be on the playing fields and not the battlefields.'

He said a new U.S.-Soviet cultural agreement was near completion and suggested it be used to exchange thousands of American and Russian students, teachers, artists and Reagan urged the Soviets to open their newspapers, radio and television to "what Americans have to say," and he proposed new joint space ventures and medical research projects.

"People-to-people contacts," he said, "can build genuine constituencies for peace in both countries."

U.S.-Soviet exchanges are now carried out on a piecemeal basis. Work on a new cultural agreement between the two countries was deferred by President Jimmy Carter after the 1979 Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

"My mission, stated simply, is a mission for peace," Reagan said in a broadcast from the Oval Office, 36 hours before his departure for Geneva and meetings there with Gorbachev next Tuesday and Wednesday.

It will be the first U.S.-Soviet summit meeting in more than six years.

Reagan gave no indication a lastminute agreement could reduce U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons or slow the arms race. "We have gone the extra mile in arms control," he said. "but our offers have not always been Reagan and Gorbachev both have proposed 50 percent reductions in nuclear weapons, but in ways that are sharply in conflict. The Soviets, for instance, want to reduce British and French forces as part of the deal, as well as all U.S. weapons that can reach Soviet territory.

Reagan's plan is centered on globe-girdling bombers, missiles and submarines. He has also rejected Soviet attempts to sidetrack his search for a an anti-missile defense.

"Nuclear arms control is not, of itself, a final answer," Reagan said. Instead, he suggested the focus at the summit should be on reducing suspicions.

"Despite our deep and abiding differences, we can and must prevent our international competition from spilling over into violence," he said. We can find as yet undiscovered avenues where American and Soviet citizens can cooperate, fruitfully, for the benefit of mankind."

Like the "Open Skies" proposed by President Dwight D. Eisenhower at the 1955 U.S.-Soviet summit meeting in Geneva, Reagan called for an "Open World" where communication between the two nations is increased and "we can lessen the distrust between us, reduce the levels of secrecy."

He envisaged thousands of Russian students living with American families, attending summer camp in the United States, learning the language and the culture of this country while Americans did likewise in the Soviet Union.

"Imagine how much good we could accomplish, how the cause of peace would be served, if more individuals and families from our respective countries could come to know each other in a personal way," Reagan said. "Imagine if people in our nation could see the Bolshoi Ballet again, while Soviet citizens could see American plays and hear groups like the Beach Boys. And how about Soviet children watching Sesame Street?"

But he acknowledged that while people-to-people programs could build support for peace in both countries, they alone "will not bridge our differences."

"I don't underestimate the difficulty of the task ahead," Reagan said, noting that eight of his predecessors "sought to achieve a more stable and peaceful relationship with the Soviet Union (and) none fully succeeded."

Accomplishments Recognized

Betty Henson, executive secretary of the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross (at right) was presented the Tiffany Award for Employee Excellence Thursday. The coveted award was given to her by special guests, Paula Martin and William W. Jean, both of Amarillo.

Henson receives Tiffany award

By SANDY PANKEY Lifestyles Editor

Her job responsibilities are tremendous. At any given moment, she must be prepared to make major decisions concerning the welfare of the people in Deaf Smith County if a major disaster was to occur.

She keeps a cool head and projects her leadership abilities with a sincere, caring personality and a warm smile.

Her name is Betty Henson, executive secretary of the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red

During a special luncheon Thursday, Henson was presented the Tiffany Award for Employee Excellence -the highest recognition that can be given to Red Cross paid staff. This prestigious award is made to promote and recognize a superior job performance.

Making the presentation were Paula Martin, field service manager for Region 3, Territory III, and William W. Jean, field service chairman, both of Amarillo.

When accepting her award. Henson emphasized, "I wish I could give a copy of this certificate to each one of the volunteers, disaster committees, instructors, and board members because without them there would be no local Red Cross chapter.

"The Deaf Smith County chapter has 220 active volunteers and we are ALL responsible for this certificate," she concluded.

Other special guests in attendance at the luncheon were Betty C. Moody and Doris K. Teague, both of Childress, and members of the awards selection committee.

To be eligible for consideration for the Tiffany Award, a nominee must be a full-time career Red Cross employee and have performed at least one year of paid service.

Henson meets that criteria as she has served as executive secretary since 1976. "It's a 24-hour a day job but it is something I love to do. I honestly don't mind receiving a call at 2 a.m. to help someone," she stressed.

"When I get early morning calls, they usually average about two or three a month, they nearly always concern a military person or his family but they may be about a family whose home has burned, etc.," she explained.

"My husband Dale is very supportive of my job. If I have to go to the office in the middle of the night, he goes with me," she added. "He understands. If I need to haul around Red Cross supplies, he lends me his pickup.

"When I was asked to take this position maybe I did it for selfish reasons. I receive a tremendous satisfaction from helping others."

Hensons' nomination, which was made by the DSC Red Cross board of directors, was submitted to the awards selection committee for action. The committee, in turn, reviewed all nominations and chose Henson as qualified for a level one recognition, which is the Manager's Award.

The directors' nomination was endorsed by several local organizations and individuals. "Programs which were begun years ago, have grown to senators, including Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kansas, are seeking support for a sweeping, bipartisan trade bill to strengthen U.S. efforts to curb unfair foreign competition. A "Dear Colleague" letter written on Senate Finance Committee stationery said the bill would offer "realistic responses to the growing problems of foreign unfair trade practices, misalignment of the dollar and protectionism here and abroad."

The legislation, which the sponsors plan to introduce next Wednesday, would limit the president's discretion on certain trade matters, according to an outline provided Thursday by Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa. It would require the president to provide injured industries with the relief, or its near-equivalent, that has been recommended by the U.S. International Trade Commission.

Under the bill, for example, Reagan would have had difficulty rejecting the recommendation of the ITC last summer for a five-year program of import barriers to protect the struggling U.S. shoe industry against low-priced imported shoes.

In order to circumvent the ITC, the president would have to get "fasttrack congressional approval for a remedy less than that recommended by the ITC - including no remedy at all," the outline said.

More testing needed on shuttle

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - A new steering system on the space shuttle should be tested more before the winged spacecraft is permitted to land on the narrow concrete runway at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, a mission commander said.

Henry Hartsfield, commander of the shuttle mission that ended Nov. 6, said he tested a new nose wheel steering system when he guided space shuttle Challenger to a landing on a dry lakebed runway at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

"The nose wheel steering worked very well," he said at a news conference. "I was very pleased with it."

But he added that, "as a test pilot", he would prefer that the system be tested again before committing the space shuttle to a Florida landing.

Space shuttle Columbia is scheduled to make a Florida landing in December. Landings on the concrete runway at Kennedy were halted after a shuttle landing last April resulted in shredded tires and a damaged brake system. Engineers blamed the problems on a steering system that required applying brakes on the mainlanding gear. A nose wheel steering system was developed to solve the problem, but Hartsfield said at a news conference Thursday he wasn't sure the new system was ready.

Governor concerned about Mont Belvieu

AUSTIN (AP) - There may be a chance that oil companies will buy the homes of some families in Mont Belvieu, a refinery town rocked by a recent explosion, Gov. Mark White says.

"I think industry has been very cautious in trying to protect the lives and property of adjoining property owners and citizens. I'm going to be working with them and try to see if there can be a resolution of that," White said Thursday.

On Wednesday, the governor met with city officials to discuss problems related to an underground gas storage site where a recent explosion killed two men.

"I was terribly concerned about the recurrence of fires there in that area, and I'm going to be talking with affected industry leaders there as well as others and try to see if there can be some resolution," White told his weekly news conference.

Mattox gets tough with truckers

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said he intends to get tough with truckers who drive overweight trucks in West Texas.

His crackdown in Central and East Texas has already generated $1.9 million from lawsuit settlements, Mattox said at a Thursday

Most of the 78 lawsuits filed against truckers and shippers last year were for $1 million per violation, however, all but 12 have been settled out of court. Settlements ranged between $30,000 and $50,000,

Before Mattox began suing for damages, truckers faced little more than $100 fines when they were caught hauling overweight loads

"They were just factoring those tickets in the cost of doing business," Mattox said. Some companies accumulated up to 1,000 tickets per year, he said.

Texas schools to benefit from oil

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. Senate approval of offshore oil revenue for coastal states will mean millions of dollars for Texas public schools, says Gov. Mark White.

The Senate Thursday approved a plan giving each of seven coastal states 27 percent of the royalties earned through leases of Outer Continental Shelf tracts.

Each state also will get a one-time lump sum payment. White said Texas' check would be for $456 million.

"This is money that belongs to Texas," White said.

The plan now goes to a House-Senate conference committee that is expected to work out minor differences and send it to President Ronald Reagan.

The Senate vote appeared to signal the end of a long battle over the money

"I do not want it to go into the general revenue. I think we should set it aside for some educational purposes," White said.

Money earned through similar royalties always has gone into education funds in Texas. Asked if the money would help stall a state tax hike, he said, "I'm going to stall a tax hike by myself. We don't need any help from the Department of the Interior."

Some lawmakers have said they might have to raise taxes - or possibly institute a state income tax — in coming years.

But White said the state would not need any tax hike in 1987, the next regular legislative session. "Write it this way," he told reporters. "If the revenue stream and current level of oil pricing stays the same there will be no need for any taxes. I can assure you that there will not be a new tax."

Mexico's economy revealed Friday

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government's decision on whether to aim for economic austerity or growth will determine whether inflation runs to 45 percent or 70 percent next year, an American Chamber of Commerce economist said.

Jose Luis Gutierrez Lozano told a business seminar Wednesday the economic picture for 1986 will become clear when President Miguel de la Madrid presents his budget to congress Friday.

One possible policy, outlined recently by Budget and Planning Secretary Carlos Salinas de Gortari, would aim for minimal growth of 0 to 4.0 percent, Gutierrez said. That policy would hold inflation to 45 percent, bring interest rates down from the current high of about 48 percent, and and hold the federal budget deficit to about 6 percent of the Gross Domestic Product, he said.

4,500 pounds of marijuana discovered

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Police stopped a truck that was emitting heavy exhaust on a northern highway and discovered 4,500 pounds of marijuana, presumably bound for the United States, beneath its cargo of bananas, authorities said.

The incident occurred around 11 p.m. Wednesday on the highway connecting the cities of Saltillo and Monterrey, the government newspaper El Nacional reported Thursday.

Federal Highway Police Cmdr. Alfredo Alvarez said officers stopped the truck because its exhaust was blocking other drivers' vision.

The driver, who said he had been paid to haul bananas, was detained along with the marijuana, which had an estimated street value of $500,000, Alvarez said. The bananas were fresh and were donated to local welfare authorities to distribute to needy families, he said.

Amarillo has announced that they will join over 300 runaway shelters throughout the United States in a national promotional effort for "Runaway Go Home," the new music video produced by CBS Records featuring Larry Gatin and The Gatlin Brothers.

As part of this promotional effort, the video, two public service announcements for radio and TV and a video interview with Larry Gatlin have been made available by CBS Records to homeless and runaway youth programs all over the country.

The video was produced by Scene Three, a Nashville based production company, and depicts the plight of four real-life runaways and the problems that they and other runaways face while out "on the streets." It takes an in-depth look at the problems young people who've left home face while trying to survive and to pass along the message that thee are indeed people these runaways can turn to for help...people who care.

"This video is somewhat different than most," explained Kitty Moon, president of Scene Three, "in that rather than using actors to depict the elements of Larry's son, we used real-life runaways."

Lucky for me, I'm still alive, but it came too close to death for me to see other people slide by because of money reasons. I'm a single parent of three with a lot to live for, so what's giving $35 to a doctor if it means a healthier life? I know the pain of having a three- to seven-day appointment wait. In my case, I ended up in the emergency room having to have one kidney removed. Fortunately, I had insurance to cover the bills, but, just the same, it was in the neighborhood of $6,000. Your reader should demand an early appointment, and by all means be fully examined. It may be the "cheapest" $35 she'll ever

DEAR READER: Enough said.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have been diagnosed as having Paget's disease, with serum alkaline phosphatase around 795 units — normal range is 23 to 71. My symptoms are extreme fatigue and weakness, with constant ringing in my ears. What is the cause and prognosis for this disease?
DEAR READER — Paget's disease

refers to two dissimilar ailments: a form of breast disease and a disorder of bone. I assume you are referring to the bone abnormality:

This is a slowly progressing bone disease of unknown cause, characterized by spotty loss of bony areas, followed by redisposition of calcium in an abnormal pattern, resulting in bone deformity. The diagnosis is established by X-ray examinations and blood tests. Patients often complain of bone pain, impaired hearing and kidney stones. Fractures are common. Heart failure and appearance of bone malignancy are rare. Weakness and depression are not necessarily components of the disease.

Although most patients with mild to moderate forms of Paget's disease need no treatment, they should be followed medically at periodic intervals. Severe disease should be evaluated by a specialist in bone metabolism (or ((AN)) endocrinologist) because special medicine, which is still largely experimental, may be tried.

TORONTO, Ontario (AP) — An exhibition of drawings by some of the most celebrated Italian artists of the 16th to 18th centuries is on view at the Art Gallery of Ontario through Jan. 5, Art Gallery of Ontario through Jan. 5, 1986.

"Italian Drawings From the Collection of Duke Roberto Ferretti" travels to the Pierpont Morgan Library in New York City in February 1986 for its only other public showing.

The 67 drawings in the show are mostly preliminary studies for larger, finished works such as oil paintings, pieces of sculpture, frescos and engravings. Most drawings of this sort were rarely intended to be preserved and, as a result, only a small percentage survive.

over her, unless it is an emergency. If I ask my secretary to type something that must go out today, give me the grace to show my appreciation by signing it, especially if she stays late to get it finished.

Help me, dear Lord, to be organized enough to know if the files I am looking for are on my desk or in my office. If I am not sure, give me the courage to say so, instead of insisting that I don't have them and wasting her time looking, only to have them turn up on my desk.

Give me the good sense, Lord, to let my secretary know where I am going when I leave the office during the day so, if an emergency arises, she will know where to find me.

When it's time for an increase in salary (if she's entitled to it) let me have the generosity of spirit to give it to her. I realize it is embarrassing and demeaning for her to ask for something she has earned.

If a boss will take this prayer seriously he, or she, will have a secretary who will be there for him/her no matter what. She will be loyal, dedicated, appreciative and no one will be able to hire her away.-HIS RIGHT ARM MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY

DAUMIER
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A selection of 65 works is on view in "Before Daumier: Lithographs by Charlet, Decamps, and Raffet from the Armand Hammer Collection" at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art through May 18, 1986.
The exhibition comprises lithographs

Nicolas-Toussaint Charlet, Alexandre-Gabriel Decamps, and Auguste-Marie Raffet who served to popularize lithography as a means of artistic expression during the Romantic era before 1830 in France.

The choice of subjects by the three reflects the romantic style before the advent of the more overtly political images by Daumier.

Nature's rages batter crowded regions throughout the world

NEW YORK (AP) - Nature's rages have battered crowded spots around the globe this year, shaking cities until they tumbled, burying villages in mud and washing away islands. Tens of thousands of people have died.

The volcanic eruption that buried four sleeping Colombian towns Thursday was the latest in a string of punishing natural disasters, including the great earthquake that devastated Mexico City in September and a cyclone that pummeled Bangladesh in May.

Fred Cole, acting director of the Office of U.S. Foreign Disaster Assistance in Washington, said the outbursts have kept his office the busiest it has been in years.

"There have not been more declared disasters than is normal. It's just that a few of them have been more severe than is usual," he said Thursday.

"It has caused more activity on the part of our office than probably any year since 1976" when earthquakes struck Guatemala and Italy, he said. The office coordinates the government's disaster relief.

Before the Colombian eruption, the most destructive of nature's tantrums this year was the cyclone that blew into the Bay of Bengal in May.

The storm, packing 100 mph winds and 12-foot waves, stripped low-lying Bangladeshi islands clean of homes, trees and life. Several islands vanished into the gray-green waters.

More than 10,000 people died as the storm churned along the coast. Many residents of the densely populated more natural disasters than usual. India and its neighbors.

South Asian nation live in bamboo and thatch homes on islands that were little more than mounds of dirt, easily overwhelmed by the surging waters.

"Disasters are touching people more and more now because the (world) population has grown," said Martin Perret, an associate in the international services of the American Red Cross. "There is going to be less and less vacant area, when you have a hurricane going through, for example. That is definitely true for Bangladesh."

On the other side of the globe, the natural destruction claimed another crowded spot. On Sept. 19, a 90-second earthquake struck Mexico City, the world's most populous metropolitan area. Buildings tumbled into pancake-like stacks, and water pipes and telephone lines were uprooted.

The quake, which measured 8.1 on the Richter scale, killed 7,000 people by government estimate.

Earthquakes also rattled Chile's spine with unusual intensity. On March 3, a quake measuring 7.4 on the Richter scale struck Santiago, killing 146 people and injuring more than 2,000. Nearly 500,000 people one in four Chileans - were left homeless. A series of temblors later in the year panicked residents.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude.

Robert Schubert, the American Red Cross president, called 1985 "an incredibly destructive year" for the Five hurricanes ripped the North American mainland, only the third time this century so many have done so, according to Schubert. The most severe - hurricanes Juan, Elena, and Gloria - each caused about $1 billion in damage.

Other storms touched down with force. In May, tornadoes slammed through Ohio, Pennsylvania and Ontario, Canada, killing 88 people.

In Puerto Rico, a 30-hour tropical deluge in October triggered a landslide that roared down a steep hillside, obliterating the Mameyes shantytown. About 150 people were killed as the mud ground up and buried the tiny wood and tin shacks.

Wildfires ravaged more than 1 million acres across the western United States in the summer, and floodwaters inundated the South in the fall. Last month, the high water came as far north as the Potomac River, swelling over its banks and creeping up waterfront streets of the nation's capital.

Other natural disasters around the world included a mudslide in Stava, Italy, in July that swallowed all 20 homes and three hotels of the tiny alpine hamlet. More than 200 people were killed when Stava's earthen dam broke.

The worst typhoon to hit the Philippines in 15 years struck last month. killing at least 54 people and leaving The United States also suffered 35,000 homeless. Other storms lashed

Long, stubborn dispute about three words easing in churches

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

Sharp, old differences are mellowing in a dispute about three little words that fueled the split between Western and Eastern Christianity its Protestant offspring. more than 1,000 years ago.

way out anytime soon, considering the slow institutional processes.

But scholarly rethinking about it is moving ahead.

At issue are three words, "And the Son," called the Filioque in Latin, a clause that was inserted unilaterally by Western churches in a basic summary of belief, the Nicene Creed.

It read in its original form, approved by a fourth-century ecumenical council, that the Holy Spirit "proceeds from the Father." But a later, separate Western council tacked on

The difference has continued ever since between Eastern Orthodox churches, which don't use the added phrase, and the Western churches which do - Roman Catholicism and Conflict over the matter figured in Some Western theologians indicate the breakup between Roman willingness to drop the controversial Catholicism and Eastern Orthodoxy phrase. That doesn't mean it's on the in 1054 A.D., dividing Christianity into Eastern and Western spheres, a rupture that still continues.

But the steps now are being taken toward dispelling the long fued.

At a recent consultation of representative Eastern and Western theologians in Brookline, Mass., the Westerners indicated readiness to drop insistence on use of the Filio-

Some said they would recommend their churches allow alternative usage without the Filioque as a reconciling step, reports the National Council of Churches whose doctrinal unit sponsored the consultation

"I think it is quite possible that the Roman Catholic Church could accept the alternative," said the Rev. Kilian McDonnell, a Catholic representative of St. John's University in Collegeville, Minn.

However, he said this would't mean renouncing Roman Catholicism's long-time position about the matter, which he defended. Another Catholic participant, Francine Cardman of Weston School of Theology in Cambridge, Mass., said:

"The fact that we have been using the Filioque so long is not in itself any justification for continuing to do

The Rev. Theodore Stylianopoulos of the Holy Cross Greek Orthodox Divinity School in Brookline, Mass., said Eastern Orthodoxy for the most part is not demanding that Western churches "renounce the Filioque in general," but a certain concept of it, namely:

"That the ultimate origins of the Spirit come from the Son as well as the Father."

The Rev. Lloyd Patterson of the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge, Mass., noted that his denomination voted at its convention in September to eliminate the Filiqoue if a 1988 world Anglican conference approves.

The Episcopal Church is one of 28 national branches of the worldwide Anglican Communion.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Stung by this week, it was warned by conrevelations that defense contractors billed taxpayers as much as $350 a day for hotel rooms, the Pentagon is moving to limit the money these companies can be reimbursed for travel.

A new Defense Department regulation, scheduled to be published today in the Federal Register, would limit per diem expenses to the same amount now paid federal workers who travel. That means $75 per day for room and food except for certain high-priced areas of the country.

After the proposed regulation is published, there will be a 30-day period for comment, followed by a brief time to review the suggestions. The regulation thus is likely to take effect early next year.

The move is the latest action by the Pentagon to end what Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger calls "horror stories" about high prices for spare parts and a wide range of overhead costs billed to the Pentagon by contractors.

Congress has also drafted legislation limiting the "allowable costs" which can be charged to the government, but most of those proposals have not yet taken effect.

The per diem limits were first proposed last spring by Navy officials in testimony before the House Energy and Commerce investigations subcommittee, which had been looking into bills submitted by General Dynamics to the Pentagon.

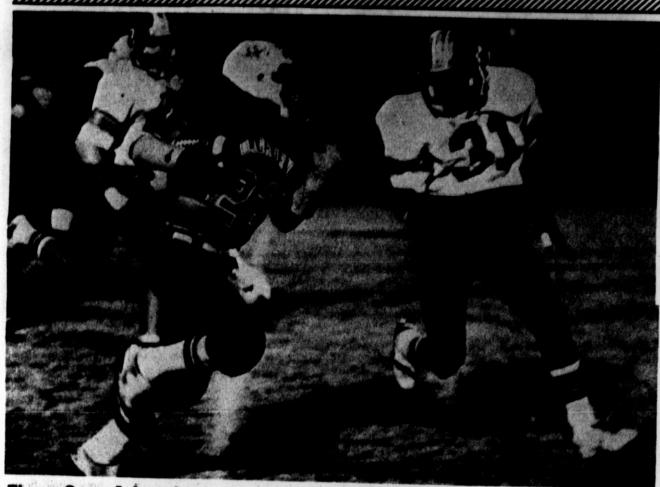

General Dynamics, one of the nation's largest defense contractors, billed the Defense Department for a wide range of items later deemed unallowable, including country club fees for executives, gift cookbooks, and the cost of boarding an executive's dog at a kennel.

Vega edges Sudan, 27-26

An interception of a pass attempt for a two-point conversion saved a victory for the Vega Longhorns Thursday night in a District 2-1A zone playoff football game played in Hereford.

Vega edged the Sudan Hornets 27-26 at Whiteface Stadium to move on to the state class A playoffs.

Vega held a 27-20 lead late in the game before Sudan quarterback Brent Kirkland found receiver Ronald Williams with a 13-yard touchdown pass with 20 seconds left' in the final period.

An extra-point kick to tie the game would have done Sudan no good, since Vega led in tie-breaker statistics. Both teams were equal with 13 first downs and five penetrations each, but Vega had more total yardage than Sudan. 285 to 231.

Sudan's attempt for two points failed, however, as Vega's Lawren Mason intercepted Kirkland's pass attempt.

The victory put Vega's season record at 10-1, and Sudan concluded the season at 8-2.

Ronald Williams scored all four of Sudan's touchdowns, the first one-a 73-yarder-coming in the first period to give Sudan a 6-0 lead.

Sudan failed in its extra-point kick attempt after that first touchdown.

Later in the first quarter, Scott Howard scored for Vega with an 11-yard run, and Tracey Walker kicked the extra point to give Vega a 7-6 lead.

The Longhorns then increased their lead to 20-6 by halftime with two

Waiver of NFL TV rules asked in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) - Unless the Na- having to find a friend with a tional Football League waives its rules concerning locally aired football games, Dallas Cowboys fans in the Houston area may not get to watch the Pokes go against the undefeated Chicago Bears Sunday.

According to the NFL's television guidelines, a home game that is not sold out 72 hours before kickoff can be blacked out locally.

But because the Houston Oilers-Pittsburgh Steelers game was a sellout by noon Thursday, it will be shown Sunday on Houston's NBC affiliate station, KPRC, station spokeswoman Laura Wesley said. That leaves Cowboys fans in the area

Puts 9-0 record on line

Penn State plays Notre Dame

By JOHN SHURR Associated Press Writer

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) - It's been just 12 months since Navy torpedoed South Carolina's national title

But for Coach Joe Morrison's Gamecocks, the 1984 upset at the hands of the Middies might as well be however, they are in mourning. light years away. The bowl scouts, team, don't come calling anymore.

Such is life when you're 4-5. Or 5-5. That was where Penn State found itself as season ago after absorbing a 44-7 licking at the hands of bowlbound Notre Dame.

What a difference a year makes. While the Gamecocks seek only revenge Saturday against Navy, Joe Paterno's top-ranked Nittany Lions find themselves in a position identical to that of South Carolina in 1984.

Penn State puts a 9-0 record on the line against Notre Dame with a loss certain to damage its chances for a national title. In other games involving Top Ten teams, No. 2 Nebraska hosts Kansas, Wisconsin is at No. 3 Ohio State, No. 4 Air Force visits No. 16 Brigham Young, No. 5 Iowa is at Purdue, Colorado is at No. 7 Oklahoma, No. 8 Michigan visits Minnesota, No. 9 Arkansas is at Texas A&M and No. 10 Oklahoma State is at Missouri.

In games among the Second Ten, No. 11 Florida hosts Kentucky, No. 12 Georgia hosts No. 14 Auburn, Oregon State is at No. 13 UCLA, Western Carolina is at No. 15 Florida State, No. 17 Baylor hosts Rice, Mississippi

Rockets score 112-107 victory over New Jersey

HOUSTON (AP) - Coach Bill Fitch says the Houston Rockets have won a National Basketball Association game they would have lost a year ago.

"Tonight's game shows that we are maturing because we would have lost this game last year," Fitch said after the Midwest Division leading Rockets held on to defeat the New Jersey Nets 112-107 Thursday night at the Summit.

"It is important for us to win a game like this because we didn't have a good game out of our key players tonight and we still won. We weren't at this stage last year."

Houston, 8-2, won its sixth straight game despite its second leading scorer, Ralph Sampson with a 21.7 average, being held to only 12 points and committing eight turnovers.

"I don't know how many shots I got off but I never got going in the game. There was no use for me being out there," Sampson said. "I got 12 points but I probably had about that many turnovers. I just messed up."

Rodney McCray, who came into the game with a 9.6 scoring average, lead the Rockets's scoring drive along with Akeem Olajuwon with 25 points each.

The Nets trailing 110-107 with 37 seconds left in the game, had a chance to win but they missed three shots from the field including a three-point attempt by Mike O'Koren before Houston took possession with seven seconds left.

is at No. 18 Tennessee, Mississippi State visits No. 19 LSU and Southern Mississippi is at No. 20 Alabama.

All things considered, it's no wonder South Carolina football fans, whose Gamecocks posted their best record ever last season, are dressed in black again this year. This time,

A year ago the Gamecocks were who coveted a 9-0 college football ranked as high as No. 2 as a result of victories over ranked teams such as Florida State, Georgia and Notre Dame. This year they're miles away from the Top 20, and have loses to North Carolina State (3-7) and Pittsburgh (5-4-1).

> In 1984, an Orange Bowl bid was in the offing until Navy hung a shocking 38-21 loss on the Gamecocks. Despite a 10-1 regular-season, they settled for a Gator Bowl invitation.

So, what went wrong this season? "No. 1, when you talk about personnel, you're talking about four out of five on your offensive line being different," said Morrison, the man who began a fashion trend by dressing in black.

"You're talking about the tight end being different. You're talking about the flanker being different. Defensively, we're in much the same area as far as the defensive line, the linebackers and the secondary are concerned.

"Everything takes time."

Gone, among others, are All-Americans Del Wilkes, an offensive guard, and James Seawright, a linebacker.

Then there's the list of players hampered by injuries, which, in recent weeks, has included almost every running back in the lineup.

South Carolina was ranked 17th in preseason, dropped to No. 18 despite pounding The Citadel 56-17, then rose to 15th with a 20-13 triumph over Appalachian State.

Next came Michigan - ranked No. 19 at the time - on national television Sept. 21. Michigan won 34-3, South Carolina's worst defeat in 11 years. Then it was a 35-21 loss to Georgia and a 42-7 thrashing by Pitt-

After rebounding to beat Duke 28-7 and East Carolina 52-10, South Carolina was upset 21-17 by North Carolina State and Florida State followed with a crushing 56-14 rout.

"We've been totally embarrassed the last two weeks and it shouldn't be too hard for us to get ready to play Navy," Morrison said. "We're disappointed with our performance but we Keith Van Horne, the Chicago Bears' offensive tackle, spares no sentiment on Sunday's opponent, the Dallas Cowboys.

"I hate the Cowboys," he said. "They always think they're better than other people."

This year, it is Van Horne and the Bears who have been better than other people. If Chicago, 10-0, can beat the Cowboys at Texas Stadium on Sunday, the Bears would clinch the National Football Conference Central title, the earliest clinching

All of which sets the stage for a rumble that promises to be one of the highlights of the 1965 National Football League season. Brokers report that tickets that normally sell for $19 are going for up to $250. Demand is second only to last summer's crush for tickets to Bruce Springsteen con-

"I spent 13 of the best years of my life in Dallas." says Ditka. "I know how tough it can be. There are no players on this team who have ever beaten Dallas."

chip on our shoulders." linebacker Otis Wilson said. "The last time we played them, it was like all they wanted to do was fight. We'll see what happens this time."

The Cowboys have spent a lot of time talking about Perry, the 302-pound defensive tackle who has run for one touchdown and caught a pass for another. But they haven't losmuch sleep over him.

"All we have to do is hit Perry hard and he'll go down," White said. "We're a lot more worried about Walter Payton than we are about a refrigerator.'

In other games Sunday, Buffalo is at Cleveland, Tampa Bay visits the New York Jets, the Los Angeles Rams visit Atlanta, Miami is at Indianapolis, New Orleans meets Green Bay at Milwaukee, Pittsburgh is at Houston, Philadelphia is at St. Louis, San Diego is at Denver, Minnesota is at Detroit, New England is at Seattle, Cincinnati calls on the Los Angeles Raiders, and Kansas City is at San Francisco.

The New York Giants visit Washington Monday night.

New England, tied for the American Football Conference East lead at 7-3 with the Jets, is trying something new to combat the problems it will face in the Seattle Kingdome. All week long, the Patriots have been working out at Sullivan Stadium with a tape recording of screaming fans pouring from the loudspeakers.

Getting used to noise is a key to playing the Seahawks, who are 6-4 and tied for second in the AFC West with the Raiders, a game behind Denver.

"We had the loudspeaker on full blast so nobody could hear anything and that's basically what it sounds like out there," quarterback Steve Grogan said.

Grogan will be working against a Seattle team that hasn't allowed a touchdown in two straight wins. Moreover, in its last three games. the Seattle defense has score three touchdowns and the special teams returned a blocked field goal for a fourth score - the kind of big plays that last year boosted Seattle to a 12-4 record.

Seattle Coach Chuck Knox knows what the Patriots are up against.

"We've gone in and played in stadiums in Denver and the closed end (of the Orange Bowl) in Miami where the crowd noise has been awesome," he said. "We've gone on silent count or no count. You can't take a crowd out of a football game." New England Coach Raymond Berry has an idea about that. "My favorite plan is to score early and often and shut them out so the crowd doesn't holler. That's what I'd really like to do. But it's pretty hard to guarantee that."

Abortion regulation rules proposed

AUSTIN (AP) - Proposed rules that will control operation of Texas abortion clinics will be the subject of public hearings, the Texas Department of Health says.

The rules result from a law passed by the 1985 Legislature giving the department authority to regulate and gather information on abortions.

The State Board of Health is expected to consider the rules at its Saturday meeting but they will not become final until after a public comment period plus formal public hearings.

The process is expected to take at least three months, according to Dr. Juanita Carrell of the health department's bureau of licensing and cerby the state will be mostly confidential, the state law allows the release of patient information to medical personnel, appropriate state agencies, or county and district courts.

Patient information also may be released for statistical studies so long as no person, patient or facility may be identified, the law states.

Under the proposed regulations, facilities performing abortions would be required to report the following information on each patient obtaining an abortion: Year of birth, race, marital status, state and county of residence, type of abortion, date of the abortion, the date of the patient's last menstrual cycle (if known), the number of living children, number of other abortions, date of abortion, whether the patient survived and whether the facility performing the abortion was licens-

Failure to provide this information to the state each year could cause an abortion clinic to lose its operating

Ms. Carrell saiad the state has Although the information gathered identified fewer than 60 doctors' offices and clinics that perform abortions in Texas. Clinics and doctors who derive 51 percent of their practice from abortions must be licensed under the proposed rules. The annual license fee will be $1,000 per facility, which is expected to generate the $60,000 annual cost of implementing the new reporting requirements.

whose parents live on a West Texas ranch says a recommendation to consider placing a low-level nuclear dump near that ranch appears to be part of a "political trade-off" by the University of Texas.

Tom Cowden, testifying before the board of the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority, said the proposed Culberson County site emerged from nowhere after being excluded from a study that listed the top 107 potential disposal sites.

At the same time, Cowden said, four potential Hudspeth County sites ranked among the top five by a study commissioned by the authority were dropped, which was part of the trade-

The Culberson County site and the four in Hudspeth County are owned by UT, which has the authority to refuse to sell any of its land for a nuclear waste dump. The board on Thursday chose two said Covington.

> The contract for that study will go to UT, and Cowden complained that university employees, "being under the direction and supervision of the chairman of the board of regents. will not hesitate to locate a site that suits the chairman, whatever his criteria may be."

Cowden said the board was "treading on really, really dangerous ground" legally in offering UT a contract to proceed with the site study since UT land was involved. He suggested there is a conflict of

In other public testimony, Jerry Covington of Midland, who owns a ranch near the other Culberson County site, told the low-level agency if there is any leakage into his water system, "we are dead."

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - that aside from protecting the passed House Resolution 1925 to promote immigration to the United States.

Fifty-two years later, on March 17, 1924, the U.S. Border Patrol was organized to control the influx of immigrants invited to the United States by the 1872 law. Between those years, the country opened its arms to 25 million immigrants. What happened in immigration law enforcement after 1924 is well-documented in The Border Patrol Museum and Memorial Library, which was opened

Mesa. The museum was proposed by the Fraternal Order of Retired Border Patrol Officers to "keep up the esprit de corps," said Sue Turner, coordinator of the museum and widow of Border Patrol Agent Bill Turner. The federation will pay for the museum through fund-

"Most people have a mistaken image of the Border Patrol because of the nature of their work and because they usually keep a low profile," Turner said. "But the majority are hard-working, dedicated and compassionate people trying to enforce the law, often under impossible Turner said people forget primary responsibilty continues to be enforcing immigration laws and catching aliens in the country illegally. This is why H.R. 1925, the oldest document in the museum, also is one of the most important, Turner said. Shortly after the Border Patrol's creation, agents patrolled, on horseback, most of the 2,000-mile border with Mexico and the nearly 3,000-mile Canadian border, as well as the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, she said. Automobiles were not used until 1928, and then only in areas where there were roads. Horses were used until the advent of the helicopter after the Korean War.

Agents often would be out in the field from three to five days at a time, maybe longer, depending on weather or how long it took to track an alien or fugitive, Turner said. Patrol duty in the Southwest normally meant days out in the desert alone. The museum reproduces that environment with sad-

Being a Border Patrol agent was dangerous during the early years, said John Sanchez, president of the Border Patrol Foundation and a retired agent. Those were the Prohibition years, when rum-runners, not too pleased at being caught with full loads, would start shooting.

"Now it's the coyotes professional illegal-alien smugglers - and the drug runners who make it difficult and hazardous," Sanchez said. The coyotes are the worst because they extort from illegal alien what little money he might have, and they do not hesitate to use violence against the Border Patrol when caught, Sanchez

30,000 expected to view first balloon race events

McALLEN, Texas (AP) will invade the skies around this South Texas city this weekend in what local officials hope will be a yearly balloon race that will attract tourists and rival an event in New Mexico.

The Rio Grande Valley Balloonfest, scheduled Friday through Saturday, is sponsored by the chamber of commerce, which hopes that 30,000 will see the races and participate in activities during the three-day event.

'Surely by the third year this should be the largest balloon event in Texas, with expectations that Albuquerque, N.M., started off with 13 balloons ... and they're flying somewhere between 450-500 balloons now," chamber president Arnold Arrowood said of the New Mexico event that began in 1973.

But organizers of the race, which Arrowood said will offer a $26,500 cash purse, are keeping a watchful eye on Mother Nature.

Winds in the Rio Grande Valley are usually brisk, but

The balloon event will include an international flight from Reynosa, Mexico, into the United States. American and Mexican dignitaries will be flown across the international boundary of the Rio Grande.

Also, on Friday morning balloons will ascend from area school and a principal will be hoisted into the basket and taken for a ride, Ms. Maddux said.

Iverson MacKenzie, director of operations for the National Balloon Racing Association, said a balloon race is not equivalent to passing a finish line.

NOT GUILTY, YOUR HONOR!

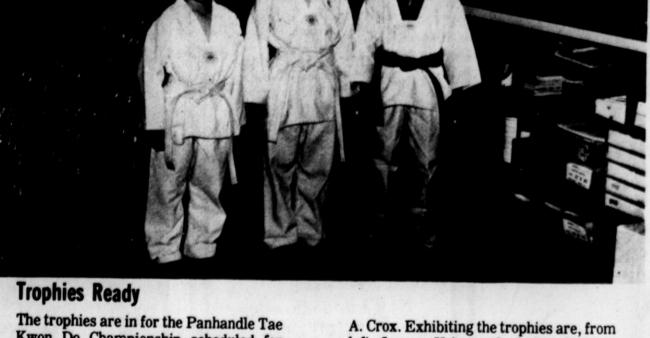

Festus returned to Caesarea and the following day opened Paul's trial. On Paul's arrival in court the Jews from Jerusalem gathered around, hurling many serious accusations which they couldn't prove. Paul denied the charges: "I am not guilty," he said. "I have not opposed the Jewish laws or desecrated the Temple or rebelled against the Roman government."

Then Festus, anxious to please the Jews, asked him, "Are you willing to go to Jerusalem and stand trial before me?"

But Paul replied, "No! I demand my privilege of a hearing before the Emperor himself. You know very well I am not guilty. If I have done something worthy of death, I don't refuse to die! But if I am innocent, neither you nor anyone else has a right to turn me over to these men to kill me. I appeal to Caesar." Festus conferred with his advisors and then replied, "Very well! You have appealed to Caesar, and to Caesar you shall go!"

A few days later King Agrippa arrived with Bernice for a visit with Festus. During their stay of several days Festus discussed Paul's case with the king. "There is a prisoner here," he told him, "whose case was left for me by Felix. When I was in Jerusalem, the chief priests and other Jewish leaders gave me their side of the story and asked me to have him killed. Of course I quickly pointed out to them that Roman law does not convict a man before he is tried. He was given an opportunity to defend himself face to face with his accusers." Acts 25:6-16
