

Review of DOE will delay EA release

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Department of Energy, which is drawing political fire as it narrows down the list of sites suitable for burying highly radioactive wastes, has asked the National Academy of Sciences to review how it picked the top three choices for the first permanent repository. DOE officials said Wednesday that they hoped the review by the independent research organization of the nation's top scientists would quell criticism that the selection process is seriously flawed. The department last December identified areas in Deaf Smith County in the Texas Panhandle; Yucca Mountain on the edge of Nellis Air Force Base in Nevada; and the government's Hanford nuclear reservation near Richland, Wash., as the three best sites for the first repository to be opened in 1998. Two other locations — one near Richton, Miss., and the other just outside the Canyonlands National Park in Utah — were chosen as backup sites. But DOE officials say further consideration of those sites has been effectively eliminated by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's decision not to challenge the department's choices of the Texas, Nevada and Washington sites.

Ben Rusche, head of the Energy Department's $20 billion radioactive waste program, said the academy review will delay until mid-February the department's final environmental assessments of the top three sites. Under the tight schedule for meeting a congressional mandate to have the first dump operating by 1998, President Reagan will then have two months to approve the three choices and order detailed three-year studies on each.

Those studies, each costing up to $1 billion, will involve extensive mining 2,000 to 3,000 feet deep at each location to assess both geologic and water conditions to assure that no health-threatening amounts of radioactivity can escape for at least 10,000 years.

Based on the studies, whoever is president in 1991 will pick the site most suitable for the first repository.

Rusche said the National Academy's Board on Radioactive Waste Management has found the department's scientific methodology for ranking the sites to be appropriate. The new academy review will focus "on the reasonableness of our application of the methodology ... to add confidence to the process," he said.

Confidence in the process, however, was not apparent during a hearing Wednesday before the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee.

Senators from some of the 17 East Coast and Great Lakes states whose stable granite formations make them possible sites for a second repository argued that their states would not be an appropriate place for such a facility.

Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, questioned the need for a second repository at all, even though Congress restricted the size of the first one to 70,000 metric tons of highly radioactive wastes.

DOE officials have estimated that if no more nuclear plants beyond the 90 now licensed by the NRC are ever completed, the volume of wastes before they shut down will total 140 million tons, requiring a second repository.

Frishman, Devin tell concerns about EPA standards, aquifers

If the Deaf Smith County site is chosen for the permanent nuclear waste repository, aquifers in the Texas Panhandle won't be protected by the new environmental standards, Texas officials complained at a Senate hearing Wednesday.

A report on the senate hearing was released by the Washington bureau of the Amarillo Globe News today. Steve Frishman, director of Texas Nuclear Waste Programs Office, said the EPA standards "appear not to apply to the valuable and limited waters of the Ogallala and Santa Rosa aquifers."

The Nuclear Waste Policy Act calls for the EPA to set standards for the repository which must be built by DOE with approval from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. EPA officials have been working on radiation exposure standards for three years.

Placing a nuclear waste repository "underneath such an important aquifer is the height of insanity," testified Delbert Devin, president of Serious Texans Against Nuclear Dumping. "We don't believe that this work can be accomplished without degradation or contamination of the Ogallala or the Santa Rosa," Devin said.

Purpose of the senate hearing was to review DOE's Mission Plan, a work schedule for completion of the nation's first underground nuclear waste repository. Ben Rusche, director of DOE's Civilian Radioactive Waste Management office, called the Mission Plan "optimistic."

He said the plan is not written in stone. "When we get down the road, we may find reasons why we should change certain plans. If that turns out to be the case, we will change them," said Rusche.

Text of Reagan's Soviet interview to be published fully

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, preparing for the first interview in almost 25 years between an American president and Soviet journalists, was expecting to be grilled about the summit and superpower relations but was confident he would not be tricked by hard-nosed questions, officials said.

In a half-hour session in the Oval Office today, Reagan was to answer questions posed by four Moscow journalists who are experts on the United States and international affairs.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the interview will be published in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, probably on Sunday, 16 days before the opening of Reagan's two-day summit in Geneva with Soviet chief Mikhail Gorbachev.

Alexander Shalnev, the Washington-based correspondent of the Soviet news agency Tass, who helped arrange the interview, said Izvestia would print the full text. Speakes said the Soviets were free to "report it as they wish to report it."

Two White House officials, speaking privately, said they did not expect the Soviet journalists to be too hard on Reagan.

"I think they'll be very respectful. They don't have the tradition of pushing government officials hard," said one official who specializes in foreign policy.

Another official said Reagan had reflected so much on the summit and prepared himself so well that "they're not going to ask him anything he hasn't thought of."

The official said the United States and Soviet Union both want the summit to succeed. "I simply find it impossible to believe that the Soviets would send anyone over here to do anything that might really jeopardize the atmosphere and poison the climate in the run up to the summit," the official said. "I don't think they put any trick plays in there."

The last time a U.S. president was interviewed by a Soviet journalist was on Nov. 25, 1961, when then-President John F. Kennedy was questioned in the living room of his home in Hyannisport, Mass. That session, conducted in the Cold War era, turned into a something of a debate between Kennedy and the journalist over Cuba, nuclear testing, arms control and human rights.

For Reagan, today's interview offered a unique chance to explain his views directly to the Soviet people, in their own publications. White House officials say Soviet citizens probably

House freeze on defense may cause clash with Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to freeze Pentagon spending, placing it on a possible collision course with the Senate over total military outlays and on such controversial items as "Star Wars" research and chemical weapons.

The House gave 359-67 approval Wednesday to a bill that, along with other related measures, appropriates a $292 billion defense budget for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

At about the same time, the Senate Appropriations defense subcommittee gave voice vote approval to its version of the defense budget. The measure, headed for a full committee vote next week and likely floor action later in the year, provides a Pentagon budget of $302 billion.

President Reagan originally sought to increase Pentagon spending from last year's $292 billion level to about $320 billion.

He has reluctantly approved the $302 billion Senate level, which would permit defense spending to rise at the expected inflation rate.

Any differences between the bills voted by the Democratic-controlled House and Republican-run Senate will be resolved later by a conference committee.

Two major differences involve chemical weapons, and "Star Wars," Reagan's antimissile research program known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative.

The House bill appropriates $2.5 billion for SDI research, compared to last year's $1.4 billion, while the Senate subcommittee would spend $2.9 billion. Reagan originally asked for $3.7 billion.

The Senate proposal also provides $163 million for nerve gas weapons, which the United States hasn't built since 1969, while the House bill knocked out all money for chemicals for a fourth straight year.

The House had narrowly authorized new chemical weapons in separate legislation last summer. But some House Democrats were angered later when restrictions on gas weapons production were dropped in a House-Senate conference committee.

The Senate has voted in favor of chemical weapons in the past and is likely to do so again, said Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, chairman of the subcommittee.

In the House, the only major controversy Wednesday was over the MX, the 10-warhead nuclear missile that has been at the heart of a long-running Capitol Hill fight.

The bill appropriated $1.7 billion to buy a dozen of the weapons. Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., won 211-208 approval to eliminate that money, but the decision was reversed later on a 214-210 vote.

Frank argued that saving the money made sense since Congress already has cut the program in half, reducing Reagan's request for deployment from 100 weapons to just 50.

Westmoreland joins Vietnam vets' march

AUSTIN (AP) — In a reunion of people who had never met, retired Gen. William Westmoreland marched five miles along a Texas highway with veterans who had been under his command in Vietnam.

Rush-hour motorists honked, waved and yelled their support as "The Last Patrol" marched Wednesday on the Interstate 35 frontage road.

Westmoreland, who flew to Austin to join the 20 or so marchers, was in front.

"It's great pride for me to be with them again. I've been with them before on the battlefield," Westmoreland said.

The 300-mile Dallas-San Antonio march is billed as "A Journey to Remember — The Last Patrol," and is aimed at calling attention to Vietnam veterans and to remind the public of those still listed as missing in action.

Tim Holiday of Dallas, a march organizer, told Westmoreland that Vietnam veterans are suffering through a variety of problems. But the retired general said Vietnam veterans, overall, are doing well.

"They actually have less problems, as a group. But there are a number of Vietnam veterans who have problems, as there are veterans that have problems after every war," he said later in an interview.

"The Vietnam veteran is doing very well in society. He's moving to positions of leadership, but there are veterans who need help and the public must understand that," Westmoreland added.

The marchers planned a Capitol rally today.

Westmoreland, carrying the patrol's torch for the final few hundred yards, Wednesday led the marchers to a Veterans of Foreign Wars post where they spent the night.

"Better late than never," he said of the warm reception for the veterans. "What you see here today is typical of what's going on around

Halloween spirits, bad and good, rise for the occasion

By GEORGE KAUGH Associated Press Writer

The meanest spirits this Halloween may be adults taking the fun out of the night for children, says a sociologist afraid that the holiday is being changed for the worse.

An Alabama couple is planning to celebrate their wedding in a coffin-festooned ceremony amid witches and warlocks.

In Wisconsin, a couple who live with a teetotaling ghost will be raising a glass or two to him.

A naturalist in Maryland is trying to convince the easily spooked that bats, those familiar symbols of this scariest of nights, are actually friendly, furry creatures that see well and wouldn't hurt a soul.

And, a dentist has risen to the defense of candy.

Clint Sanders, an associate professor of sociology at the University of Connecticut, says adults have altered Halloween for children and it is now, like Christmas, "dominated by rituals centered around consumer consumption." Many businesses are cashing in on Halloween horror stories by advertising safe alternatives to candy collection. Sanders said, and hospitals are X-raying candy.

Also on the subject of candy, Dr. Heber Simmons Jr., a children's dentist and president-elect of the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry, says parents shouldn't have nightmares about all the candy their children may end up eating.

"We used to think all candy was bad," Simmons said Wednesday in a telephone interview from Jackson, Miss. "Really, that's not at all the truth."

His views were echoed by Dr. Stephen J. Moss, chairman of the Department of Pediatric Dentistry at New York University, who said all types of sugars are found in virtually every food and do not make a difference in cavity-causing potential.

Ecologist Arnold W. Norden with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources came to the defense of a much-maligned hobbogoblin. Bats, included with black cats and ghosts in Halloween folklore, are in more danger from people than the reverse, according to Norden. He said residential and commercial development is threatening their natural habitat.

Bats are actually cute, furry friends of man that live on insects and pollinate fruit trees, he said.

But bats aren't the only creatures of the night used to scare the unwary. In south Louisiana, it's the loup

Three killed in helicopter crash

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A Navy helicopter that crashed on a training mission, killing three crew members, appeared to be making practice dives along with another chopper when it hit a marsh, witnesses said.

Rick Andrews and his wife, Linda, of nearby Port Aransas were on their way home about 2:30 p.m. Wednesday when they saw two helicopters practicing diving maneuvers about one-half mile off Texas Highway 53.

Moments later, Andrews said, his wife yelled, "Oh my God. He crashed!"

Three other Navy crew members were injured in the crash of the UH-1N helicopter on Mustang Island, between Corpus Christi and Port Aransas, a spokesman for the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station said.

Commission begins waste study

AUSTIN (AP) — The first state agencies likely to get a new detailed study of ways to end waste and increase efficiency will be the state prisons, state mental hospitals and the state highway system.

"These are the state agencies most in need of assistance," said Joe Christie, chairman of the Texas Commission on Economy and Efficiency, at its organization meeting Wednesday.

Christie, former state senator and chairman of the State Board of Insurance, made the recommendation.

Final objectives of the commission will not be adopted until its next meeting.

The 15-member commission consists of businessmen, officials and legislators appointed to four-year terms by Gov. Mark White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis.

Killer says he doesn't believe in U.S.

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A former meat cutter scheduled to be executed next month for the stabbing death of an Amarillo woman says he does not believe in the U.S. government and wishes he could leave the country.

"I don't have faith in the system," convicted killer Jay Kelly Pinkerton, 23, said during an interview Wednesday on Death Row.

A state judge last week set a Nov. 26 execution date for Pinkerton, who was convicted in the rape-slaying Sarah Donn Lawrence at her Amarillo home in 1979. Authorities say Pinkerton stabbed the woman as many as 50 times during a burglary of her home.

He came within 26 minutes of execution Aug. 14, when the U.S. Supreme Court issued a stay. But the high court rejected his appeal earlier this month after reviewing the case.

Financial aid discussed for blacks

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. colleges and universities are opening another front in the battle against apartheid besides just selling off South African-related stock holdings: providing scholarships to South African blacks wishing to attend multiracial universities.

That is among the ideas being discussed by leaders of 13 top U.S. universities and five foundations who are exploring ways to form partnerships with non-discriminatory South African universities to provide educational opportunities for that country's blacks.

The group, which includes the presidents of Harvard, Princeton, Yale, Stanford and Brown universities as well as the heads of the Ford Foundation, the Carnegie Corporation and the Rockefeller Foundation, met here on Oct. 16 to hear ideas from leaders of South African universities on how American universities and foundations might help ease the plight of that nation's blacks.

Steelmaker to acquire Texas oil and gas

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United States Steel Corp. plans to step farther beyond its steelmaking roots and deeper into the oil patch with a $3.6 billion stock swap to acquire Texas Oil & Gas Corp.

In announcing the agreement Wednesday, U.S. Steel Chairman David M. Roderick also said he was keeping an open mind about changing the name of the nation's leading steelmaker to reflect the changes at his company.

Steel now accounts for only 34 percent of overall revenue, and that percentage will shrink if Texas Oil & Gas is acquired.

"We don't think we're backing away from steel," Roderick said. "This was a stock transaction. It took away no cash from our steel operations."

Debate swells over whale

RIO VISTA, Calif. (AP) — Humphrey, the 45-ton-whale whose exploits in the Sacramento River have hit the headlines for a week, may really be a Wanda, and she may be pregnant and in the river looking for a place to give birth, says a state emergency official.

Bev Passerello, spokeswoman for the state Office of Emergency Services, suggested Wednesday that Humphrey may be a female looking for comforting warm water to deliver an offspring.

She points out that female whales normally migrate to the warm coastal waters off Baja California and the Hawaiian islands to give birth.

Astronauts launch satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger's astronauts interrupted their lab work today to launch a small experimental satellite to test a system for tracking Soviet missile-firing submarines under the Arctic ice pack.

The 150-pound payload sprang out of a canister mounted outside the Spacelab workshop where crew members were riding on a one-man sled in a medical test and conducting basic research in metals processing, biology, life sciences and navigation. Spacelab is in the cargo bay.

Woman opens fire in shopping mall

SPRINGFIELD, Pa. (AP) — A 25-year-old woman accused of killing two people and wounding eight others in a shooting rampage through a crowded shopping mall urged a judge to "kill me on the spot" during arraignment on murder charges.

Police said Sylvia Seegrist, wearing military fatigues and carrying a .22-caliber semiautomatic rifle, drove up to the main entrance of the crowded Springfield Mall on Wednesday, got out and opened fire on passersby.

She then entered the mall, walking quickly and firing from the hip at random until a 24-year-old college student, thinking it was a prank, walked directly into her line of fire, wrested the gun from her and held her until guards arrived, police said.

The rampage killed a 2-year-old boy and a 64-year-old man, police said. Among the wounded were a 9-year-old girl, a 10-year-old boy, two teen-agers and a 67-year-old man who was in critical condition with gunshot wounds to the head and abdomen, a 27-year-old woman in serious condition, and a 50-year-old woman in fair condition.

Crisp or drear, November arrives

WASHINGTON (AP) — Enjoyed by some for crisp autumn weather, disliked by others who find it chilly and drear, November's transition from fall to winter is getting under way.

Winter won't be official until December, of course, but the frosts are at hand in many areas in November, the color of leaves is fading from the trees and bitter winds begin to arrive from the north.

Although the year's eleventh month arrives Friday, the name November is based on the Latin word for nine; since it was the ninth month for Romans, who celebrated the New Year in March.

The approach of winter very well could have become known as the month Tiber, with the Roman Senate offering to rename it after Tiberius, as they had renamed July and August after Julius and Augustus before him.

But Tiberius rejected the idea, so severe weather still sweeps across America in November.

Even though winter isn't here yet, in Medieval times, St. Clement's Day, Nov. 23, was considered the start of winter. And perhaps they were correct.

Early in the month, the tradition of Indian summer intervenes, but by the end of November, much of the nation sees winterlike storms bounding across the countryside as the speed of weather increases with cold air.

Both America and Europe have a tradition of a warm spell at this time of year.

Called Indian Summer in the United States, one tradition is that it is any period of unusual warmth following the first frost of the year. Others insist that specific dates in early November apply.

Since this warm period often occurs around All Saints Day, Nov. 1, it is known as All Saints Rest in Scandinavia, where the cold weather often gets an early start.

More commonly in France and England, however, it is associated with St. Martin's Day on Nov. 11, and is known as St. Martin's Summer.

According to folklore, on a cold November morning, Martin, Bishop of Tours, gave half his cloak to a shivering beggar.

Seeing this, God set the sun to shining warmly until the bishop could find a new cloak, and then ordained a spell of mild weather at the same time every year in commemoration of the event.

This weather association also has led to a variety of attempts to predict the coming weather based on conditions on St. Martin's Day, or Martinmas, as is also done on some other days of the year.

Even with this tradition, the month has a reputation for severe weather.

Perhaps it is best summarized, at least from the viewpoint of those favoring fair weather, by a verse from T. Hood, quoted in the book "Weather Lore" by Richard Inwards.

No warmth, no cheerfulness, no healthful ease,

No comfortable feel in any member,

No shade, no shine, no butterflies, no bees,

No fruits, no flowers, no leaves, no birds — No-venber.

For Sarpalius' Amarillo office

Hinkle appointed as assistant

AMARILLO — Sen. Bill Sarpalius today announced the appointment of Robert Hinkle as his executive administrative assistant. Hinkle, 28, began his duties Oct. 14, and will be based in the senator's district office in Amarillo.

"We're extremely lucky to have someone with Robert's skills in the district office," said Sarpalius, D-Canyon. "He's an extremely bright and talented individual and his service will be invaluable to the 31st Senatorial District."

Sarpalius said Hinkle's primary responsibilities will include overall management of the district office, handling of constituent inquiries and problems and operation of the Sarpalius Mobile office, which travels throughout the district seeking constituent input about government affairs.

Hinkle said he is looking forward to the challenges associated with the position.

"Since I moved to Amarillo, I have developed a tremendous respect for the people of the High Plains," he said. "I very much look forward to serving them and stand ready to help in any way I can."

Hinkle comes to the Senate office from KVII-TV, Channel 7 in Amarillo, where he had been working since 1981. During his four years at the station, Hinkle served as a reporter, assignments editor and political editor.

His other work experience includes a stint at KXII-TV in Sherman, where he served as a reporter and anchor of the station's 6 p.m. and 10 p.m. news programs. He also worked at a radio station in Denison as a news and public affairs announcer as well as a play-by-play announcer for high school football games.

Hinkle was graduated from East Texas State University in Commerce with a bachelor of science degree in radio-television and business marketing. He and his wife Robyn, an advertising executive, live in Amarillo. They have a son, Scott, who is eight weeks old.

MARCH

the country. There's been a tremendous turnaround in the attitude of the Vietnam veteran toward himself and the attitude of the American public toward the Vietnam veteran."

The march began in Dallas Oct. 19. It is scheduled to end in San Antonio Nov. 7. About 20 marchers are participating, but other Vietnam veterans — such as Westmoreland — join for portions of the walk.

As he stopped to re-bandage his feet, marcher Gregory Smith of Dallas said he joined the Last Patrol to keep America from forgetting Vietnam veterans like himself.

"We'll all just die out and it will fade away. Somebody's got to care," said Smith, 37, a business systems analyst.

He said he was glad Westmoreland joined the march.

"He's got a heavy burden to carry. We've got our own. He did what he thought he had to do," said Smith.

Of the Texans who served in Vietnam, 3,244 were killed and 161 still are listed as missing.

Westmoreland said there is "circumstantial evidence" indicating there are American prisoners of war still in Southeast Asia.

"It's reasonable to assume that there are some," he said.

And he told several marchers, "Every soldier goes through hell in war. You fellows had it doubled-edged. You had it at home, too."

will be surprised by the Reagan interview, if for no other reason because it is so unusual in a country with a state-run press.

Speakes described the interview as "a unique and historic opportunity for the president to communicate directly with the people of the Soviet Union. We hope it is a sign of a new and more open information policy on the part of the Soviet Union."

The four journalists were Gennady Shishkin of Tass, Stanislav Kondrashov of Izvestia, Genrikh Borovik of the news service Novosti and Vsevolod Ovchinnikov of the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda. Shalnev was attending as a guest.

In another summit-related development:

Speakes said Reagan will address a joint session of Congress at 9 p.m. EST on Nov. 21, immediately upon his return from Geneva. On his way back to Washington, Reagan will stop off for two hours in Brussels to report to allied leaders at NATO headquarters on the summit.

Uniform licensing needed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Three years ago I was having problems in my life because of unhealthy attitudes about sex. (I was molested by an uncle when I was a child.) After I lost my virginity at 17 I couldn't seem to relate to men in a wholesome way. To be frank, sex made me physically ill. I decided to seek professional help.

The psychologist I went to was recommended by a woman at work. (He was her cousin.) After the fourth session "Ernie" (he asked me to call him that) started to talk to me about HIS problems. His wife didn't understand him. He was considered divorce. He asked me what I thought about the situation, I was flattered that this professional person would value my opinion.

On the fifth visit "Ernie" said we needed each other. I needed him to make love to me so I could see what a mutually satisfying relationship was like, and he needed me to help him feel a sense of personal worth. I agreed because I had so much faith in him. After all, he was going to help me get well and if I could help him, why not?

We had sexual intercourse in his office every Tuesday and Friday for six months. (I was charged $60 a visit and he asked me to pay in cash.) But I was getting worse instead of better. I began to feel guilty and ashamed. It began to draw on me that most of the 50 minutes was spent taking off my clothes, having sex and putting my clothes back on. I finally decided to confide in my family doctor.

He hit the roof—said the psychologist's conduct was not only highly unethical but unconscionable and that I should report him to the American Psychological Association. I did just that and they took action. "Ernie" was informed (after a lot of testifying under oath by me) that he could no longer practice in this state.

I immediately went into therapy with a female psychologist and made a great deal of progress in a short period of time. Three months later I heard from Ernie's cousin who had sent me to him (she was furious with the guy) that he had set up practice in a nearby state and was doing well.

How can the APA allow a man who has disgraced the profession to open up another office and treat patients? Help me understand.—BOILING IN THE MIDWEST

DEAR MIDWEST: Unfortunately, licensing practices vary according to state. In all states, however, it is possible for a discredited psychologist, or anyone else for that matter, to call him or herself a "counselor," an "educator" or a "behavioral therapist" and treat patients. This, of course, provides great protection for unscrupulous therapists and precious little for the victim. What is needed of course, is uniform licensing practices in ALL states.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read in your column that Albert Einstein, when asked by a friend for his telephone number, said, "I'll have to go look it up in the directory. I never both to memorize information I can find elsewhere."

The reasons are clear. When Einstein was at home he had no need for the information since he would not be trying to call himself. When he was NOT at home he still would have no reason to remember the number as he knew he would be unable to answer the phone, even if he did call. Get it?—PETE IN ARK

DEAR ARK: The professor would have loved your letter. He had an off-beat sense of humor—like yours.

Is pot a drug? Can LSD, PCP, cocaine and pills open new worlds for you? Stop guessing. Get the facts in Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2.00, plus a long, self-addressed stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Dimmitt librarian presents program

"Texas Music" was the program presented by Brick Autry, librarian at Dimmitt, when members of Valeda Study Club met Monday evening in the home of Norma Walden.

Autry said that the first Texas music came from the Indians who lived here and he played two Indian flutes he had brought.

He explained that later the Spaniards came to Texas and brought with them their own type of music known as ZyMel which was a simple type of music. Anglo-Saxon music was heard in the hymns that was sung in the churches.

Mexican songs found their place in Texas history and fiddle music came with the Scottish and Irish. Cowboy songs were sung though written mostly by easterners.

As opera houses were built, "rag time" was born and barber shop quartets entertained the people. Down through the years, music has played an important roll in Texas history and today wherever you find a group of people gathered, you will generally find some kind of Texas music being played.

Marcella Bradly presided over the business meeting and Frances Crume was in charge of the program.

Refreshments of pumpkin cake, finger sandwiches, fruit and pecans and Texas punch were served to Bradly, Juanita Brownd, Francis Crume, Betty Gilbert, Marjorie Lassiter, Norma Martin, Joyce Ritter, Suzane Stevens, Walden, Patricia Weldon and Margaret Zinser.

Great pyramid

The Great Pyramid of Khufu (Cheops) was built around 2550 B.C. Its base has an area of 13 acres or seven average city blocks. Napoleon figured that the 6 million tons of material used to build the pyramid would be enough to build a 10-foot wall around all of France. Cut into standard-sized bricks and laid end-to-end, the Great Pyramid would reach from the Earth to the moon.

AQUAVIT

Although aquavit is never labeled "vodka" it is essentially the same spirit. It is made from grain or potatoes and purified until neutral. Aquavit is popular in Denmark. It is traditionally served ice cold in small glasses as an accompaniment to delicious Danish smorgasbord. It is often chased with a pale gold beer. Another way to enjoy this spirit is with strong black coffee. In Scandinavian countries, a silver coin is placed at the bottom of the cup. Coffee is poured until the coin is no longer visible. Aquavit is then added until the coin again appears. It makes a warming finish to any meal. Of course, retrieve the coin before inbibing.

The Store welcomes you to stop in and see us at 400 N. 25 mile, 364-7802. Open: Mon-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sunday only beer and wine is available from 12-12

In Sweden, Finland and Norway aquavit is sometimes called vodka.

Plainsmen have 1-7 season record

Whitefaces face scrappy Monterey Friday

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Winners of their last three District 3-5A football games, the Hereford Whitefaces go on the road Friday to play a team with a 1-5 district record and a 1-7 season record—Lubbock Monterey.

Kickoff for Friday's contest is 8 p.m. at Lowrey Field in Lubbock. The Whiteface varsity, 4-2 in the district and 4-4 overall, has some momentum going toward a goal of finishing the season at 6-2 in the district. Hereford is, however, eliminated from the playoff chase since it has lost to both of the teams that are undefeated in the district with 6-0 records—Palo Duro and Amarillo High. Palo Duro and Amarillo High battle it out for the district title

Saturday afternoon.

The Whitefaces are coming off a 34-14 victory over Plainview, which put Hereford alone in third place in the district.

"Our assistant coaches did a great job in preparing the players for the Plainview game," said HHS head Coach Jerry Taylor.

"Defensively, we have improved the last two weeks. Pat Rodriguez and Mark Scott are playing better at defensive ends.

"Adam Olivarez and Casey Smith had a good night in the defensive line along with Patrick Phibbs in the secondary. Patrick made two good open-field tackles on kickoffs," Taylor continues.

Offensively, the inside running game is improved. Allen Dudding gained 109 yards, mostly in the middle.

"The passing game was fair, but we threw three interceptions. They appear to be enjoying themselves more," Taylor adds.

About this week's encounter with the Monterey Plainsmen, Taylor declares, "The last two years, against Monterey, have been difficult from an offensive standpoint.

"We need to move the ball this year. We must contain their quarterback on the sprint out.

"I feel sure Monterey will be scrappy. We must work diligently at our preparation this week in practice."

Monterey has limited the Herd to fewer than 200 yards offense the last two seasons, but Hereford scored victories in close games both times.

Last year, Hereford trailed Monterey 3-0 at halftime. The game-winning touchdown for the Whitefaces was scored when Freddie Gamboa intercepted a Monterey pass and returned it 33 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter.

Hereford held on for a 7-3 victory. Hereford had 192 yards total offense, and Monterey had 190 yards offense.

The offensive statistics were not so even two years ago when Hereford scored a 13-7 victory over Monterey.

Monterey had 229 yards total offense compared to 163 yards for Hereford. Hereford led 7-0 in the first quarter and also at halftime.

Monterey tied up the 1983 contest, 7-7, in the third quarter, but Hereford scored a fourth quarter touchdown to win the game.

"If we just continue to improve the last two weeks of the season, and play like I feel we can, we can end the season in good fashion," Coach Taylor said.

"We made a drastic improvement since the first of the season. For some reason, we've quit fumbling the football.

"In the Amarillo High game, we moved the ball well, but fumbled away the football. If we could have eliminated the fumbles early in the season, we could have had a much better football season," Taylor adds. Whiteface quarterback Stefan Hacker continues to lead the district in passing. Hacker has completed 65 of 120 passes for 916 yards and four touchdowns, with 10 passes intercepted by opponents.

Hacker, who had 143 yards rushing this season, has 1,059 yards total offense for an average of 132.4 yards per game.

Wide receiver Bobby Baker is still in second place in the district with 22 catches for 405 yards and four touchdowns.

The Whitefaces have two other players who have caught nine passes each, Doug Watts and Mark Artho. Marcus Brown has caught eight passes, and Casey Daniel and Jimmy Hazzard each have caught seven passes.

Allen Dudding leads Hereford in rushing with 502 yards in 112 carries, and Mark Artho is second with 293 yards in 66 carries. Marcus Brown has rushed 45 times for 230 yards.

Scoring statistics for Hereford show Artho with six touchdowns, Marcus Brown with five touchdowns, and Baker, Hacker and Dudding each with four touchdowns.

Hereford is averaging 294 yards total offense per game, and is allowing 291 yards per game by opposing offenses.

The Monterey defense is ranked last in District 3-5A, allowing more than 350 yards per game. The Plainsmen average 224 yards per game on offense, seventh in the district.

Monterey quarterback Troy Jones has passed 72 times this year, completing 31 of them for 528 yards. He had thrown four touchdowns passes and two interceptions. Case Wallace leads Monterey in pass receptions with 17 for 271 yards and two touchdowns.

Hereford enters Friday's game ranked 86th in the state in the Harris Rating System rankings, with 166 power points.

The Whitefaces' win last week moved them up from 117th in the rankings.

Monterey is 213th in the Harris rankings with 114 rating points, down from 209th last week.

The Harris Rating System picks Hereford to defeat Monterey by 13 points.

Headed To Regional Meet

REASONS ALERT
NEW YORK (AP) — Linebacker Gary Reasons, now in his second year with the New York Giants, won respect from the NFL teams he faced in 1984 with his heads-up play. Reasons showed the proverbial "nose for the ball" and was always in the thick of the action.

Gary was just one of the many players to make it in the NFL, after playing for a small college. He played his college football at Northwestern State in Louisiana, where he made the 1st team, All Louisiana, and the second team in the Associated Press Division 1-AA.

ENMU Greyhounds go against Howard Payne

Eastern New Mexico University, which lost its debut in the Lone Star Conference 51-38 to East Texas State last week, goes against another team with an 0-1 conference record on Saturday—Howard Payne University.

Howard Payne will try to continue its dominance of the Greyhounds. The Yellow Jackets lead the all-time series against ENMU, 7-0-1.

Last year, in a game played in Brownwood, Howard Payne defeated Eastern New Mexico 20-13.

Howard Payne and Eastern New Mexico have played three common opponents. Howard Payne tied two of those teams, both of which defeated ENMU.

The Yellow Jackets tied East Central Oklahoma 17-17 and tied Southwestern Oklahoma 7-7. The Greyhounds lost to East Central Oklahoma 25-2 and lost to Southwestern Oklahoma 25-14.

The other common opponent has been Texas Lutheran, which beat ENMU 27-24 in overtime. Howard Payne University scored a 26-8 victory over Texas Lutheran.

Howard Payne is 2-2-2 for the season, and ENMU is 2-4. Howard Payne's other defeats have been 30-0 to Abilene Christian last week, and to Central Oklahoma 10-3.

ENMU trailed East Texas State 22-16 at halftime last week, after holding a 14-3 lead over East Texas earlier in the game in the 51-38 loss.

Greyhound freshman quarterback Tommy Gonzales will be out of the lineup two or three weeks with a bruised nerve in his arm. Tight end Scott Eccles is listed as probably after missing several games with a knee injury.

A defensive back, Joe Mullen, is expected to return to the ENMU lineup after missing the East Texas State game with a sprained ankle.

The tie game that was played between Howard Payne and ENMU was a scoreless game in 1980. Howard Payne beat Eastern New Mexico 38-13 in 1954, 33-0 in 1955, 22-0 in 1956, 20-3 in 1977, 19-14 in 1978 and 33-15 in 1979.

Jim Rice, Tony Armas and Dwight Evans all had 100 or more runs-batted-in for the Boston Red Sox in 1984. The last major-league team to have three outfielders do that was the 1929 Chicago Cubs.

Buffaloes aim to rebound from Tulsa defeat

WTSU plays at Drake Saturday afternoon

The West Texas State University Buffaloes will try to rebound from a 44-17 loss to Tulsa when they play at Drake University Saturday.

Kickoff for Saturday's contest is set for 1 p.m. at Drake Stadium in Des Moines, Iowa.

West Texas State enters this week's game with a 2-1-1 record in the Missouri Valley Conference and a 4-3-1 overall record.

Drake is 1-3 in the conference after losing to Illinois State 10-3 last week. Drake has a season record of 4-5.

WTSU and Drake have played three common opponents this season, all conference foes, including Illinois State. West Texas State tied Illinois State 29-29.

The other common opponents have been Indiana State and Wichita State. WTSU defeated Wichita State 33-21 and edged Indiana State 29-27.

Drake has lost to both of those schools this year—24-21 to Wichita State and 17-10 to Indiana State.

Drake's victories this year have been 24-9 over Northern Iowa, 31-6 over Southern Illinois, 20-17 over Iowa State, and 21-10 over UT-Arlington. Drake's other losses were 31-24 to S.W. Missouri State and 58-0 to Iowa.

Drake leads the all-time series against West Texas State, 10-7. Last year, the Bulldogs beat the Buffaloes 25-22 at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium in Canyon for their fifth straight win over WTSU.

Drake has won seven of eight home contests against West Texas State.

About last week's loss to Tulsa, WTSU Coach Bill Kelly said, "Tulsa has a very good offense, and they're a Division I team. None of our units played well, offensively or defensively."

"They are a team that has better athletes than we do. We had to play our very best and we didn't. Give Tulsa credit, they did everything well," Kelly continues.

"I don't know why we didn't play our best. Maybe we came too far too quick; maybe we weren't ready for a game of this caliber. But I know this, we did not respond to the challenge like we should have."

"Our season's not over. If we can win our last two games, we'll finish 6-3-1, which would be a pretty good season for a team that hasn't won in a while."

WTSU school records that were broken in the Tulsa game were pass completions in a season and passes caught in one season.

Tod Mayfield, who remains in first place in the nation in Division I-AA passing, broke Victor McGee's school record of 230 pass completions in one season and has 239 for the year. McGee's record had been set in 1982.

Stan Carraway broke the school record for passes caught in one season. Carraway has 60 receptions this season, breaking the old school record of 58 set by Dave Szymakowski in 1966.

Carraway is fourth in Division I-AA with an average of 7.5 catches per game, second in reception yardage with 895 and second in catches.

Mayfield is also first in I-AA statistics with 29.9 completions per game.

CHANGEUP TOUGH
HOUSTON (AP) — Hal Newhouser, a scout for the Houston Astros, says the hardest pitch for a young hurler to learn is the changeup. Newhouser, then pitching for Detroit, won back to back MVP Awards in the 1940s.

"The reason it's a hard pitch to learn is the high amount of coordination between the body and the arm," he said. "The pitch has to look like a fast ball to the hitter if it is going to succeed in throwing him off stride. A lot of good pitchers never really learn to throw an effective changeup."

TWO TALENTS
ATLANTA (AP) — Jennifer Leachman is one of the top players on the Georgia Tech women's basketball team but she excels in another sport, as well.

Leachman is a world class water-skiier and has been ranked No. 1 in the world in the slalom event by World Water Skiing Magazine. She competes in the spring and summer after basketball ends in the women's open division of the sport.

Homemakers Extension Council meet Monday

Members of the Extension Homemakers Council met for their regular monthly meeting Monday in the Deaf Smith County Library Heritage Room.

Council and club members held a covered dish luncheon preceding the meeting. The three delegates to the state meeting made their reports. They included Mary Carter, Johnnie Messer and Mary Lou Spinhirne.

Seven clubs were represented at the council meeting including Bipus, Cultural, Dawn, Draper, Ford, North Hereford, Westway and Wyche. Cultural and North Hereford Clubs had a perfect attendance.

Vice-chairman, Johnnie Messer, welcomed visitors, Virginia Sumner, Edith Hunter, Argen Draper, Virgie Duncan and Toni Vaughn.

Grace Covington of Westway Club read "An Outstretched Hand" by Robert McKuen as the opening exercise.

County extension agent, Louise Walker, gave the 4-H report. She reported that recruitment night was successful.

The 4-H Achievement Banquet was attended by approximately 150 people and three 4-H'ers were named as GoldStar winners. They included Jodie McElhaney, Jeff Hicks and Brandie Matthews.

Walker also said that 4-H projects this month have been based on food nutrition.

The 4-H Food Show will be held Nov. 16 in the First Church of the Nazarene. Each group will select a country that settled in Texas and study the native foods then prepare dishes from native recipes. The show will be open to the public after 11:30 a.m.

The District Food Show will be held in Dumas Dec. 7. The winner of the Nov. 16 meeting will enter the event.

Members were reminded of the home security seminar which was held this afternoon in the Heritage Room. Guests speakers were Linda Thibodeaux, extension housing specialist and Butch Glenn of the Hereford Police Department.

It was also announced that Maria Stark will present a program entitled "Yuletide Yummies" at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Nov. 26 in the Energas Flame Room.

A nominating committee was elected. They were Jewell Hargrave, Lottie Wertenberger and Mary Carter. A slate of officer nominees will be reported to the council at the November meeting.

Grace Covington announced Nov. 9 as the closing date to reserve tables for the Westway Bazaar scheduled Dec. 7 at the Community Center.

Lottie Wertenberger explained the rules for the Deaf Smith County Sesquicentennial Quilt Block Contest and also the Panhandle Sesquicentennial Quilt Block Contest. She explained how these blocks will be used and urged everyone to prepare one.

Following the council meeting, Mary Carter, TEHA chairman, gave a report. She said the District I contribution to Pennies for Friendship was $92. Of this amount, Deaf Smith Homemakers contributed $26. The Pennies for Friendship will go to Girlstown.

Think Safety

This little pumpkin is all wrapped up in cords. Charlotte Clark, coordinator of the pumpkin contest at Deaf Smith General Hospital, says things like that happen when safety isn't first. The hospital held its fifth annual pumpkin decorating contest Friday with safety being the theme.

Insects have blood and hearts that pump the blood through their bodies. The blood is usually green, yellow or colorless. The heart is a tube-like organ extending the full length of the body.

Officers re-elected by rock club members

The Deaf Smith County Lapidary Club met Monday at the Energas Flame Room with President Thama Pearson presiding over the business meeting.

The month long display of polished rocks at the library was commented on by members. Roy Martin reported that a request from the Senior Citizens to display the rocks had been made. The club members decided to send three cases to the Center after the display was removed from the library. Joe Williams and Roy Martin were appointed to take charge of that project.

The present slate of officers was re-elected to serve during the coming year. Pearson announced that chairmen and committee members would remain the same.

Jake King won the door prize furnished by Cecil Lady.

Hosts for the meeting were the Dale Hensons, Clarence Botts and Mona Gee.

The next meeting will be Nov. 25. There were 31 members present. The meeting was adjourned with members to meet at the library to dismantle the display.

Birdsong presents program

Jon Birdsong presented a program when members of Hereford Art Guild met Tuesday at the Community Center for a guest day tea.

Birdsong, who was introduced by Lottie Wertenberger, showed a transparent watercolor tree scene explaining each step.

Finger sandwiches, cake, cookies and punch were served to 10 members and nine guests by hostesses, Leola Cook, Annie DeLozier, Hilda Havens, and Wertenberger.

In 1974, the unmanned Mariner 10 spacecraft — on its way to the planet Mercury — sent back the first pictures of the planet Venus taken from space.

AIR ALERT

NASHVILLE (AP) — The modern auto tire warns the driver if it's running out of air. For the first time in 140 years since machinemaker August Schrader invented the tire device that keeps auto tires inflated, something new has been added to the original air control concept. A low tire pressure indicator, called Red Alert, was developed by the Schrader Automotive Group of Scovill Inc. that not only controls air pressure in a tire but also gives the driver visual proof if the tire has enough air in it.

OH THOSE ACHING FEET

ATLANTA (AP) — Some forms of arthritis can cause foot pain and deformity, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

If you have problems due to arthritis, it says, you should make sure your shoes provide good ankle and arch support as well as a comfortable fit. If your feet are tender, look for a pair of shoes with soft soles — such as rubber or crepe — or put inserts of rubber or foam into hard-soled shoes.

Metatarsal bars added to the soles of hard-soled shoes can help relieve pressure on the balls of the feet. A good pair of running shoes will also give good support and provide cushioning.

Meet Your Neighbor

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

"When a new man comes to town, he can either go with the flow or bring a new broom," laughed Hal Moore, new owner of Sonic Drive In. Hal and his wife Christie worked at the same steak house in Silver City, N.M. where they first met.

Since then, they have added a son named James Michael who was born in 1982.

Christie likes horses, swimming, aerobics (which can be addicting, she laughed) and old movies.

"We both enjoy scuba diving," said Christie. She learned to scuba dive from professionals that were scuba diving in the Sea of Cortez where her parents reside.

Hal learned scuba diving while in the military and he plans to teach James as soon as he is old enough.

Other sports the family enjoys includes hiking. "Hal's a hiker and a half," giggled Christie.

James and Hal have been known to walk over 12 miles before James says "Dad, carry me..."

"I'm a serious climber," said Hal. "I don't use ropes, pinions and such-I just use my feet and my hands."

"I've taught my son how to rock hop; he knows how to go down a steep embankment and he knows you have to have a couple of sticks to get up the embankment," Hal said proudly.

James carries his own walking stick around. "For the first year that James started hiking, we had quite a scare," admitted Christie.

The couple had a Great White Pearene dog that weighed 180-200 pounds. James had raised the dog, appropriately named Bear, since he was a pup and the dog acted as a body guard.

"That's the only reason we let James go hiking in the first place," said the mother.

Every chance James could get, he and Bear would take off in the backyard, but the backyard at the Moores was very different than backyards around here.

The Moores backyard was the Gila wilderness, a huge forest; no cars; no motorized vehicles, just horseback or foot to enter. The Gila is one of the last known wildernesses of it's kind.

Christie's cousin had come out to ride her horse and she asked if James would like to go.

The cousin, James, and Bear took off about 9 a.m. to go riding in the Gila.

The cousin came riding in around 4 p.m. and Christie had asked where James was.

"I don't know," said the cousin, "he didn't want to go with me and he stayed at the house."

All panic broke loose as the mother and now the father began to worry.

"What had happened," explained Christie, "James had decided he didn't want to go with my cousin and Bear and J-Bird (James) had been tracking her around all day! So naturally, panic had went through all of us that day."

Hal and Christie took off looking for James and they had been gone for about 15 minutes when they found the dog guiding him home.

"The dog had nosed the boy home," recalled Hal, somewhat astonished, "and the first words that came out of James' mouth were 'Dad, I'm tired and hungry.'"

"It took Mom a couple of days to get over it," laughed Christie. "I couldn't have been more happy, myself," grinned the proud father.

The Moores moved to Hereford Sept. 21 and Christies first impression was "Where's the mountains?"

Hal was so busy with the new business he hadn't noticed the town yet.

After being introduced to Mike Carr of Chamber of Commerce, Hal began to plan different ways in which he, as a business owner, could be more help to his community.

"I've got a new program for Senior Citizens," said Hal, "we're going to issue a card enabling them to receive a 15 percent discount on their orders."

"And I'd like nothing more to have the high school kids to come back and I'm also going to start a happy hour," said Hal.

As new owner of Sonic Drive-In, Hal has put up new menu housings featuring an updated variety of foods. "We've added a better tasting taco using my own personal recipe," said Hal.

Sonic now has a new ice cream machine with a wide selection of ice cream treats from parfaits to banana splits. "We now give out free ice cream cones to the kids," said Hal.

Hal also explained that he has changed some of the food stock that used to be served at Sonic.

Before, the management used a multi-grade weiner for it's hotdogs, but this was changed since Hal came to town.

The hotdogs have been changed to Oscar Mayer premium hotdogs, both regular and large, and a new hotdog machine has been purchased.

"I also use a premium beef patty and it doesn't go on the grill until ordered," said Hal.

"We are striving to maintain a five minute take-out on all orders."

"What my goal is in this town, is not for me to worry about my competition but for my competition to worry about me."

"We do welcome phone orders," said Hal as an afterthought.

Under new management, the Moores are now holding staff meetings to boost the enthusiasm of the workers and to reorganize the abilities that Hereford's Sonic is capable of.

"We're very happy to be here and we're here to stay," said Hal with a grin.

Hereford's Sonic is planning a 1986 Community Involvement Program that will be revealed at the turn of the year.

"It's one thing to make a dollar," said Hal, "it's a whole different thing to watch a community grow!"

New owners of Sonic Drive-In, Hal and Christie Moore would like to invite the public to come and see their hobgoblins on Halloween and receive a free trick-or-treat bag and ice cream cone.

Hal and Christie Moore and three-year-old son, James Michael

Collector hunts signs of the times

SPEEGLEVILLE, Texas (AP) — Garland Nolan has his money tied up in Grapette pop, Dutch Boy Paints, Tube Rose Snuff, Dr. Wells ("the cooler doctor"), Yankee Girl Chewing Tobacco, Goody five-cent root beer and Ramons Brownie Pills.

Oh, and don't forget the big guys, like Texaco, Mobil and Texas Power & Light. However, Nolan doesn't invest in the actual products, many of which are now defunct: it's the signs advertising the products that catch his eye.

"It's awful hard for me to save money, but I can save signs," said the 37-year-old collector who has amassed more than 300 signs in the last three years. The walls of Nolan's business, the Great American Fan Co. Inc., on Texas

Highway 6 west just past Speegleville, are covered with the cream of his crop. More signs are stuck back in the crannies of the warehouse or decorate his home, behind the shop. Nolan claims to have the largest collection of antique signs in the state, and says his closest competitor probably is a chain of San Francisco Steak Houses.

He is convinced the signs attract customers. "If you can put so much merchandise in here that a person doesn't feel like he can see it all at one time, he'll come back and look again."

He often leaves the lights of the shop on at night and returns in the morning to find smudges on his freshly cleaned windows, left by passers-by who pulled off the highway during the night to peer in at the brightly colored signs.

"People talk more about the signs than anything else — I talk signs every day," he said.

But don't try to buy just one or two signs from him; for Nolan, it's all or nothing — and all 400 could cost up to $17,000.

"I'm really not trying to sell them, I like 'em," he said. "If I took these down, it would hurt the business. It would have to be a tremendous amount of money to make me do it."

He's turned down $500 for his favorite — Reddy Kilowatt, a bright red, porcelain man with a lightning bolt for a body, a large light bulb for a head, and tiny light bulb for a nose.

"He brings in more attention than anything else," Nolan said. "I believe I can look from now on and never find another Reddy Kilowatt. The only ones left are at the utility companies — and they won't sell them."

The man who offered him $500 for Reddy had sued Texas Power & Light and won. He wanted Reddy Kilowatt's finger to point to his blown-up TP&L settlement check as it hung on the wall, Nolan said.

Nolan also has two huge flying horses, once symbols of Mobil Oil, which he hopes someday to hang so they face each other.

Nolan scours Central Texas, and beyond, in search of old signs. "You can still find them every day in antique shops and junk stores," he said, although he says collectible signs are getting harder to find.

"I'll leave work to go chase a sign in the middle of the day if I have somebody here working for me," he said.

And he finds signs in the most unlikely places, such as the dusty Velvet Pipe Tobacco sign he found plugging a hole in the floor to keep rats out of a store just outside Gatesville.

What makes a sign a collectible? For Nolan, the sign must be at least 10 years old. "In the last 10 years, they've really cheapened the signs," he said. And if the product is no longer made, that automatically increases the value, he said.

The best signs were made of porcelain, which lasts "indefinitely" unless signs were shot at or hit with a hammer, he said.

"I go for color more than anything," he said, although a sign with an odd saying has been known to win his heart, such as the one that says, "There's Only One Lee's Lice Killer — Best for Chicken and Hogs."

His oldest is for 10-cent Belmore Turkish cigarettes, which he estimates dates back to about 1900.

He has more "sodywater" signs than any other kind, and more Texaco signs than any other brand. Tobacco and cigar signs are the hardest to find, he says.

Seven-Up is probably the hardest soft drink sign to find, he said, while Coca-Cola is the easiest.

PRISON BARS COULDN'T HOLD THEM

The apostles were meeting regularly at the Temple in the area known as Solomon's Hall, and they did many remarkable miracles among the people. The other believers didn't dare join them, though, but all had the highest regard for them.

And more and more believers were added to the Lord, crowds both of men and women. Sick people were brought out into the streets on beds and mats so that at least Peter's shadow would fall across some of them as he went by! And crowds came in from the Jerusalem suburbs, bringing their sick folk and those possessed by demons; and every one of them was healed.

The High Priest and his relatives and friends among the Sadducees reacted with violent jealousy and arrested the apostles, and put them in the public jail.

But an angel of the Lord came at night, opened the gates of the jail and brought them out. Then he told them, "Go over to the Temple and preach about this Life!"

They arrived at the Temple about daybreak, and immediately began preaching! Later that morning the High Priest and his courtiers arrived at the Temple, and, convening the Jewish Council and the entire Senate, they sent for the apostles to be brought for trial.

Director a little miffed at answer

PECOS, Texas (AP) — A cult trivia game's question involving rodeo is no trivial matter to residents of this West Texas city, whose greatest claim to fame is the world's oldest rodeo.

The object of their ire is the "orange" query found on card 415 in the Genus II edition of the popular Trivial Pursuit game.

"What rough-and-tumble western sport was first formalized in Prescott, Ariz.?" reads the question, which game authors answer on the reverse side as "rodeo."

"The first practice of rodeo as we know it today — that is, cowboy events contested for money — happened about a block and a half from our courthouse on July 4, 1883," said John Wojtkun, director of the Pecos Department of Tourism and Development.

"You might say that I'm more than mildly miffed," Wojtkun told the Odessa American.

"If Prescott has any claim at all, it's for the longest-running rodeo," he said Tuesday. "Their has been running continuously, while ours had a break."

And while the Pecos Rodeo celebrated its centennial year in 1983, the Prescott rodeo centennial is scheduled for 1988, he pointed out.

The Pecos residents are prepared to support their claims against the game's New York manufacturer, Selchow and Righter Inc., according to a letter to the company from a Pecos attorney.

Reeves County Attorney Scott Johnson, in his letter sent Tuesday, cites three encyclopedia references — including one from the respected "Encyclopedia Britannica" — to convince the company of Pecos' claim.
