Eyes on the end zone

Hereford quarterback Jason Scott (1) fights through an attempted tackle by Frenship defender Randy Mandrell (26) on a 40-yard touchdown run in the second quarter of the football game Friday at Whiteface Stadium. The score gave Hereford a 13-0 lead. Scott also threw a touchdown pass to Clint Cotten, ran for another touchdown and a two-point conversion run as the Whitefaces won, 35-6. Reading month starts Tuesday

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor
Beginning Tuesday, Hereford residents are encouraged to pick up a good book. Or a newspaper, or magazine, or photo album. Anything you can read, and learn about, together.

November has been designated as "I'd Rather Read Month." Hereford schools and the Deaf Smith County Library have designed activities and materials that can be enjoyed by families together, instead of segregated activities or dependence upon television as a prime entertainment source.

Many teachers will be sending letters home with their students suggesting ways families can enjoy activities including reading.

Teachers will also set aside at least 15 minutes during each school day when everyone in the room, including the teacher, is reading. Students and teachers will also use special "I'd Rather Read" logo will be prominently displayed during the month

Read" bookmarkers, and will decorate grocery sacks to be used by local stores.

Teachers will focus on special days and weeks during the month, including Sandwich Day on Thursday; National Cat Week, observed Nov. 6-12; the general election on Nov. 8; American Education Week, National Geography Week and National Children's Book Week, all observed Nov. 13-19; National Family Week, Nov. 20-26; World Hello Day, Nov. 21; and Thanksgiving, Nov. 24.

During the month, most teachers will designate a day when students will dress as a favorite character in a book or story they have read, and have the students tell something about the character.

Librarians and teachers will also read aloud to students to whet their reading appetites.

Enjoy a good story

The Roy Rector family enjoys a story-together. One of the objectives of "I'd Rather Read Month" is to show families how they can enjoy reading and other activities together.

The "I'd Rather Read" logo will be prominently displayed during the month

Time change coming Sunday

Group bans darts, three-wheelers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawn darts, blamed for at least three deaths and several thousand injuries in recent years, probably will be off the market by Christmas.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission voted Friday to ban the game, and commission officials said the restriction could be in force as early as mid-December.

The commission also approved safety standards for all-terrain vehicles which extend the prohibition on sales of three-wheel versions of those machines.

The ban on lawn darts does not include a recall of the games already in people's homes. That prompted Commissioner Carol Dawson to issue a plea to parents to keep the darts out of the hands of children.

It was the father of a 7-year-old girl, killed by one of the darts two years ago, who led the crusade for the ban.

David Snow of Riverside, Calif., has testified before the commission and Congress and worked steadily since that tragedy to draw attention to the dangers of the large, metal or plastic darts, used in an outdoor game similar to horseshoes.

"The commission today finally did what we should have done a long time ago," said Commissioner Anne Graham. "What limited recreational value lawn darts may have is far outweighed by the number of serious injuries and unnecessary deaths."

The action came as an 11-year-old Tennessee girl lay in a coma after a lawn dart penetrated her brain. Amy Herrin was reported in critical condition at Vanderbilt University Medical Center in Nashville.

New all-terrain vehicles in the future will be four-wheelers.

Over the last decade as many as 6,700 injuries have been reported involving the darts, including 150 to 200 cases in which the dart penetrated someone's skull, the commission was told. At least three deaths have occurred, the agency said.

Friday's vote directed the agency staff to prepare an official notice of the ban by Nov. 4. If the commissioners then approve the legal language, the ban would be published in the Federal Register, taking legal effect 30 days afterwards.

The vote came one year and one week after the agency began looking into the problem. Chairman Terrence M. Scanlon called this extraordinary speed for the the agency, which took nearly five years to issue its last product ban, a 1981 prohibition on the sale of urea formaldehyde foam insulation.

Radio keeps Cuby in game

By ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

His commentator voice is refreshingly void of lulls and forced conversation, and he sometimes battles to sequester himself from his maroon-and-white heritage.

But he makes no apologies. Cuby Kitchens didn't volunteer to be colorman for Hereford's football games because broadcast was his calling. The former basketball and football coach merely knows the game, loves the Herd, and the press box is the warmest seat in the house.

"I like having the ringside seat and just being able to make comments on the air is a lot of fun," said the 60-year-old Kitchens who winced when he revealed his real name: Wiley Hubert "Cuby" is a mutation from his middle name.

"When athletics is your life, you can draw on your experience (when commenting) and I can see where if a person had never played the sport, he couldn't do as good a job."

Controlling the fan in him could be a difficult task, having coached Hereford high school basketball and football and junior high basketball from 1956 until 1983 when he switched the coach's jacket for the administrative suit and tie.

"He seems to have a real knack for radio and can express himself very well," said Simons, who met Kitchens in 1972 when Kitchens was assistant high school football coach and Kitchens' son Keith was on the team. "I think the radio kinda fills a void with him because this is the way he can be involved with the games without sitting on the sidelines."

Kitchens agreed. "It really gives me the feeling that I'd like to be down there on the sidelines—especially when we win. But it goes both ways, too. I'm really glad I'm in the pressbox and not on the sidelines when we lose like at Levelland because I've been there before," said Kitchens as he doodles circles on a yellow legal pad.

The pressures of winning and an aging body were the reasons Kitchens switched from coaching high school basketball and football to heading the junior high boys basketball program.

Kitchens said his first eight years with the basketball team were successful (two of the teams reaching the state playoffs), but the remaining four or five seasons were losing ones.

"It was kinda one of those things where people were hinting that I might want to find another job," Kitchens said. "Besides, coaching high school basketball was heart stopping. You've got people leaning over you and it's just very intense. With junior high, there's a lot less pressure."

Fred Lookingbill, 50, of Summerfield, played basketball under Kitchens his sophomore, junior and senior years in the mid-1950s. Lookingbill said he remembers Kitchens

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm writing this letter in the hope that you can help me. You have access to the best doctors and I am ashamed to talk to anybody I know.

I just had a baby but I don't know who the father is. She looks like me. I had sex with Guy No. 1 on May 7, Guy No. 2 on May 14 and 15 and Guy No. 3 on May 27. I had my last period on May 1.

I never had any problem with my pregnancy and the baby came right on my due date, which was Feb. 7. She is adorable and I can't regret having her, but I would sure like to know who the father is.

My friends tell me I'm entitled to support money but I can't bring a guy into court unless I'm pretty sure I know what I'm talking about. Thanks for your help, Ann.—On Needles and Pins in Texas

DEAR NEEDLES AND PINS: According to one of my top-notch consultants, the average length of pregnancy is 285 days from the date of conception or 280 days from the first day of the last period.

A normal pregnancy can be plus or minus 10 days from the exact due date. That is a 20-day span, which means there's a good bit of leeway.

Any of those guys could have fathered your child, but the one you were with on May 14 and 15 is the most likely candidate.

To establish paternity, a blood test must be given to the baby and the three candidates. If any of these fellows knows about the other two you may have a tough time getting him to agree to be tested.

I hope that you are now well-informed about birth control so that you will not have another unwanted pregnancy. And please, no more bed-hopping.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just returned from a beautiful church wedding and I am so mad I could spit thumbtacks.

I could not hear the vows, the Scriptures, the music or the prayers because a small child was allowed to cry throughout the entire service. It was not the child's fault. The poor thing was probably hungry or wet or maybe he had an earache or the colic, Lord knows. The parents who let the kid ruin the ceremony should be hung up by their thumbs.

Not long ago we attended another wedding where two small children seated next to us with their parents were allowed to run toy trucks back and forth on the pew throughout the entire ceremony.

How can this sort of thing be avoided, Ann? Our own daughter will be getting married in a few years and I don't want this to happen to us.—Des Moines

DEAR DES MOINES: It's a touchy one, but inside the invitation to friends and family with youngsters, you could slip a card with the message: "A nursery attendant will be on hand to entertain children under 6 years of age."

Do you have questions about sex, but nobody you can talk to about them? Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," will give you the answers you need. To receive a copy, send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

We've extended our thanks to the many businesses and industries in the Hereford area over the past few months. It's our way of showing appreciation for the contributions by so many men and women towards making the economic goals of Hereford possible. One industry that must go to the top of this "Special Thanks" list is the Cattle Feeding Industry. Deaf Smith County is known as the largest cattle feeding county in the country and its impact to our past and present — our growth and success is all around us.

Cumulatively, the cattle feeders of this area are the largest employer — not only from actual jobs associated directly with the industry, but also in supportive industries. Our major feed yards are using as much as one million pounds of grain per day which has a tremendous positive effect on our farming industry as well as our trucking industry hauling grain and cattle. And with well over five million cattle fed here in 1987, the impact to the cattle industry itself is more than significant.

We at First National Bank extend our special thanks to all of our cattle feeders and to the support industries who have helped put Hereford and Deaf Smith County on the map once again as a leader and an example of excellence throughout the United States.

Stallings in for reunion

IRVING, Texas (AP) — On the Dallas Cowboys' "reunion weekend" they'll be welcoming former assistant coach Gene Stallings with open arms.

The Cowboys, losers of four games in a row, have ulterior motives behind their glee in greeting Stallings, who spent 14 seasons on Tom Landry's coaching staff.

Stallings, coach of the Phoenix Cardinals, has lost four of his five meetings against Landry, including a 17-14 decision in the second game of the season.

Dallas has won five of its last six games with the Cardinals and holds a 33-18-1 all-time edge.

Odds makers make the Cowboys field goal favorites when Dallas and Phoenix meet again Sunday at the reunion weekend game, an annual event that draws many former players and coaches.

"Gene's teams are always aggressive and give you everything they have," Landry said. "Their defense will get after you — it's a trademark of Stallings' teams."

Landry has the upper hand 14-5-1 against Stallings and other former pupils. Chicago's Mike Ditka has a

FULL NIGHT'S WORK

RENSSELAER, Ind. (AP) — Talk about working overtime. Two women's basketball teams really posted some incredible numbers in a game here Feb. 27.

St. Joseph's, the home team, defeated the visitors from Northern Kentucky, 131-130, in five overtimes.

The teams combined for 91 field goals in 192 attempted, 70 free throws made in 112 tries, 138 rebounds, 48 assists, 49 turnovers and 31 steals. Actual playing time was 65 minutes. There also were three 3-pointers.

Monte Irvin, a member of the Hall of Fame, did not reach the big leagues until he was 30. He joined the New York Giants in 1949 after playing for a decade in the Negro League.

3-1 edge against Landry while Denver's Danny Reeves is 1-0 against him.

Dallas is 2-6, off to its worst start in 25 years, while the Cardinals are 4-4 with losses to Washington and Cleveland in the last two games. Four of Dallas' losses have been by a total of only nine points.

"The Cardinals are an excellent offensive team," Landry said. "They have excellent skill people at every position. Their lowest point total was 17 against Washington."

"You have to outscore 'em. It will take at least 28 points for us to win this game. We'll definitely have to be in the high 20s."

The most points the Cowboys have scored this year is 26 against Atlanta.

But Phoenix needs a win even more than the Cowboys, Stallings said.

Phoenix quarterback Neil Lomax suffered a hip contusion in the third period against Cleveland last week and should he not play, veteran Cliff Stoudt will start.

Stallings called Landry earlier in the week "just to see how he is feeling. He's a friend of mine. It makes no difference if we're playing or not. Not only is he a friend but he's a great coach."

Stallings said even though Landry is a friend he isn't about to ease up.

"We need a victory worse than Tom does," Stallings said. "He's been to five Super Bowls. We'd just like to get our fifth victory. We'll be going all out, that's for sure."

Landry has been criticized for the Cowboys' poor start, which included a 24-23 loss to Philadelphia last Sunday.

He said the Cowboys will be playing a spoiler role hereout.

"We have such a tough schedule that 4-4 in the second half of the season will be pretty good for us," Landry said.

YOUR EYES

BE A SMART CONTACT LENS WEARER

A smart contact lens wearer knows when to remove the lenses to avoid eye problems. And it's easy to be smart if you use common sense and recognize the basic symptoms of overwear or irritation.

Of course, you should always remove your lenses when you have worn them for a longer period of time than your optometrist recommends. Should a foreign body enter your eye, remove the lens and do not reinsert it until you are sure the particle is out of your eye and/or off the lens.

Common symptoms associated with overwear or irritation are:

- Eyes tear for no apparent reason.
- Eyes burn or feel generally irritated.
- Vision suddenly appears blurry.
- Excessive blinking.
- Redness

Should any of these symptoms occur, remove your contacts. When they clear up, clean and sterilize your lenses and reinsert them. If symptoms recur, remove lenses immediately and call your optometrist.

Year hasn't been good for A&M, Sherrill

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — This has been a deflating year for Jackie Sherrill.

The high point was a 35-10 victory over Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day.

He's had enough lowlights to qualify for a coal mining permit.

Texas A&M's athletic director and head football coach describes it thusly: "It's been a hard, tough year. It hasn't been that much fun."

The NCAA ruined Jackie's autumn, one in which he fully intended to turn into a fourth consecutive Southwest Conference football championship and Cotton Bowl appearance.

Sherrill believes that the NCAA brought down its probation sword on the Aggies because of him.

"They thought Jackie had too much power," he said. "They think I control the whole school. They went after us for no reason."

The Aggies will be back in business next year without bowl or championship sanctions.

Sherrill now marks the calendar for the start of the 1989 season when the Aggies will be loaded, a legitimate contender for the national title.

"It's time to move to another level," Sherrill says. "We could be good enough to play with anybody."

If A&M does win its first national title since 1939, then look for the Aggies to consider alternatives to being in the Southwest Conference.

Sherrill believes that A&M might have to chart an independent course some day.

"You and I might be gone but I think it will happen because they (A&M) have to do it," Sherrill says. "Everyone will realize what a tremendous amount of money the school can make."

"Even as an independent you could still play conference schools but you could play them at home. You could still play Rice and draw 50,000. We get killed on the money end when we play there."

Sherrill said he has even heard talk of the Southeast Conference expanding to include SWC schools.

"Say you put Arkansas, Texas, and Texas A&M in it and add maybe South Carolina then you could divide the division East and West," Sherrill said. "It could be done and it would be a heckuva league."

Sherrill has always been the revolutionary, going against the grain. He thrives on walking the edge of controversy.

He also believes nobody loves him except his people.

"I'm real comfortable at Texas A&M because I fit in," Sherrill said. "I love this school for its great traditions. They love me because I expanded on the traditions like putting the 12th man on the field on the kickoffs. I've been accepted for what I've done with the students."

Sherrill hasn't missed a midnight yell practice before a home game since he has been at Texas A&M.

"The students think it's great when they see him there," said John Keith, A&M's sports information director. "He wouldn't miss one even if it's 2 a.m. before he gets home."

Losses to Nebraska, Louisiana State and Oklahoma State put Sherrill in a bad mood and even four straight victories over SWC opponents haven't wiped the serious look off his face.

He has pressed his assistant coaches and players hard not to let down because of the probation.

At least Sherrill proved all the experts wrong who predicted the Aggies would take a deep tank dive this year. "We want to win out to set the tone for next year," Sherrill says. "We're serious about winning the rest of the games we play."

That includes a game the Aggies are already calling "The Hurricane Bowl."

Since they can't go to a bowl they are pointing to the Dec. 1 game with Alabama. The Crimson Tide's Bill Curry refused to play the game as originally scheduled in September because of the threat of Hurricane Gilbert.

Alabama became the laughing stock of college football when the hurricane hit Mexico hundreds of miles away from College Station. Sunshine bathed Kyle Field on the day the game was to be played.

The game is a chance for Sherrill, a former Alabama All-American, to show the Crimson Tide fans what kind of coach they need.

It's a way for Sherrill to end the agony of '88 with a smile on his face.

Manley home, without mouth

HOUSTON (AP) — Washington Redskins defensive end Dexter Manley is coming home to Houston to play the Houston Oilers but minus the tough talk that usually is part of his repertoire.

Manley on occasion has threatened to hit his opponents in the face with a baseball bat or feed them to alligators.

But he's talking nothing but compliments about the Houston Oilers, Sunday night's opponent in the Astrodome.

He remains a bit tongue-in-cheek but with buttoned lip.

"It's going to be tough going down to Houston to play the Oilers," Manley said. "We'll need extra people. We'll probably have to have 13 or 14 people on the field."

"I literally mean that because they are a big, physical football team."

The Oilers lost to Cincinnati 44-21 in an AFC Central Division showdown last week while the Redskins beat Green Bay 20-17, extending their winning streak to three games.

"Anytime you play a team like the Oilers, who take pride in being a physical team, one of the most physical teams in the NFL, it's tough," Manley said.

"It's an important game for the Oilers, after losing to Cincinnati last week."

Manley, 29, was suspended the final month of the 1988 season because of drug problems but he wants to put that behind him now.

"Life is a struggle," he said. "People get shot every day just walking. I think the biggest problem is learning to change."

"Right now I feel positive. I'm playing good solid football and I don't worry about what happened in the past. Old news is no news."

Manley is among a growing list of NFL players receiving 30-day suspensions for drug abuse. But he doesn't want to comment on what he considers suitable punishment.

"I think it's an issue when football season is over; the league can bring it up," Manley said. "I'm in no position to speculate what's good and what's not good."

Manley also has changed, at least for this week, his outspoken comments about the opposition. But Oilers tackle Bruce Davis remembers past epithets.

"The one that sticks out in my mind is: 'I'm going to feed Bruce Davis to the alligators,'" Davis said.

While Manley's comments make for delightful reading, they've made Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs cringe at times.

"Dexter gets going sometimes and says some things I wish he wouldn't say," Gibbs said.

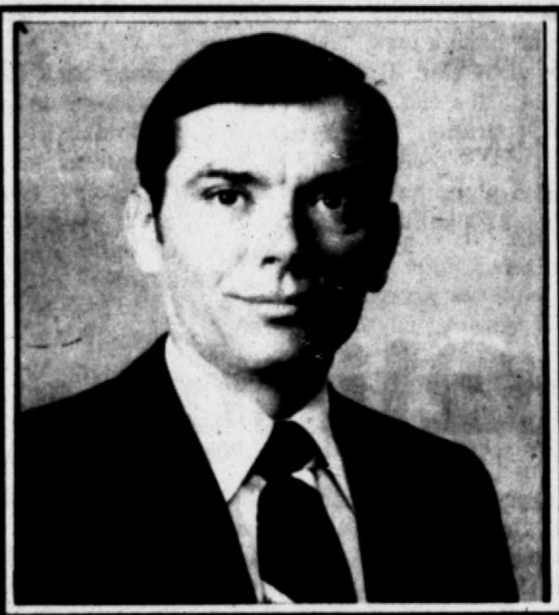

"I don't tell him what to say and I don't put restrictions on him but in the past I think he's said some things that have caused him some grief because people take shots at him in games."

Manley has rebounded this season with 25 tackles, including 12 behind the line of scrimmage this season and he leads the team with six sacks.

These Are The Facts About His Record.

JUDGEMENT ?

FACT NO. 1. Joe Brown says there was no explicit pay television in the county jail. Hereford Cablevision verifies that the jail has had pay television for the past year without Cablevision's knowledge. The Service was scrambled only a month ago after a concerned citizen questioned the service.

FACT NO. 2. Joe Brown hires a man for jailer position shortly after the man was an inmate in his own jail.

SUPERVISION ?

FACT NO. 3. The Sheriff's Department assisted in a pornographic raid on a Hereford business. Joe Brown has supervisors and other personnel using county equipment, (the TV and VCR in the Deputy's office) and county time to view explicit pornographic movies. One Deputy states, "It makes me uncomfortable but we do it anyway"

FACT NO. 4. A Deputy took a female prisoner out of jail and kept her out all night. No disciplinary action was taken by the Sheriff and the Deputy is still considered a supervisor.

FACT NO. 5. Joe Brown has had no official supervision for his Deputies after 5:00 p.m. or on weekends and holidays for the past five years except for one month, which was in August of this year.

DISCRIMINATION ?

FACT NO. 6. Joe Brown has made the statement that he will never put a female in one of his patrol vehicles. He now has a Deputy's position open, but has refused to fill the vacancy until after the election. Joe has two qualified Hispanic females seeking that position.

MISAPPROPRIATION ?

FACT NO. 7. Joe Brown was investigated for possible violations and misappropriation of funds, by an employee of the State Comptroller's Office in Austin, Texas. The Investigator stated that there were no receipts for large sums of money used in the big drug operation of a few years ago. An investigator for the Police Department found $1,000.00 of City/County money unaccounted for. According to the Investigator, Joe was asked about the missing money and he replied, "Not to worry about it". After more than a month and several inquiries by the Investigator, the money was returned in cash first and later by check. The Investigator from Austin stated that Joe had to be threatened with legal action before the money was returned, and that the problem with the accounting started when the money reached the Sheriff's office and not before. The Investigator contacted the Attorney General's Office, and was told that the accounting by Joe Brown was totally inadequate and at best irresponsible and improper. The Investigator stated that the opinion from the investigation was that this case had strong cause for misappropriation of funds.

Farm and Ranch Groups want pesticide cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new coalition of farm and environmental groups is calling for reduced spraying of chemical pesticides on crops. "We are drenching our food and drowning the nation in an ever increasing amount of ag chemicals," said John O'Connor, director of the newly launched National Toxics Coalition.

The coalition whose supporters include the American Agriculture Movement and the National Farmers Union is placing special stress on supply management in crop production as a prelude to scaling back pesticide use.

Under a supply management system, limits would be placed on how much each farmer could take to market. Farm prices would go up and offset production losses resulting from cutbacks in pesticide use.

Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, is probably the best known Capitol Hill advocate of a supply management system, which would mark a sharp departure from most current farm programs. The idea was shelved early in this session of Congress but most likely will get another airing after lawmakers return in January.

Environmentalists have been campaigning for 26 years for curbs on the use of pesticides, citing among other things evidence that more than 50 of the basic ingredients in pesticides cause cancer in laboratory animals.

A bare-bones pesticide bill won approval last month but even supporters of the measure say more needs to be done in the next Congress.

Coalition members call the joining of forces by farm and environmental groups in the pesticide battle a major step forward. Not taking part, however, are the American Farm Bureau and most traditional farm groups as well as politically influential producer groups such as the corn, soybean and wheat grower associations.

The coalition issued a 35-page report, which reviewed the problem and called for integrated pest management programs, involving scouting fields to make sure spraying does not take place unnecessarily, reduced spraying and tilling procedures designed to reduce damage from pests.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Public Interest Research Group distributed a report saying congressional candidates received $4 million in campaign contributions from pesticide manufacturers over the last five years.

It said heavy contributions were received by members of the Senate Agriculture Committee and suggested a "strong correlation between chemical company ... contributions to a politician and that politician's vote on regulation of the chemical industry."

Group spokesman Rick Hind said the companies were "applying agricultural techniques to Capitol Hill — they sow campaign contributions and reap legislation that allows them to operate with minimal government oversight."

CRP passes halfway mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says conservation planning to protect highly erodible land from erosion has passed the halfway mark.

Wilson Scaling, chief of the department's Soil Conservation Service, said Monday that plans have been completed for 75.3 million acres, or 53 percent of the estimated 143 million acres of crop land needing plans.

The conservation planning was required by Congress in the 1985 farm law, and Scaling said the agency's goal is to have 65 percent of the plans completed by the end of 1988 and the remainder by the end of 1989, the law's deadline.

"We are right on target, but I urge farmers to act now if they have highly erodible land that needs a conservation plan," he said.

To remain eligible for USDA programs — including crop price supports and other benefits — farmers and ranchers who operate highly erodible crop land must have a conservation plan approved by Dec. 31, 1989. They will have until the end of 1994 to put the plan into operation.

To date, conservation plans have been implemented on 21.7 million acres, or 15 percent.

Spud sales start sizzling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The homey potato has turned glamorous as a U.S. export item and is finding new ways of seducing American consumers, says an Agriculture Department report.

"Powered by the popularity abroad of fast-food chains featuring french fries, American potato exports are sizzling," the department's Economic Research Service said. "At home, frozen use has never been higher, and the microwave oven has given the fresh potato a new lease on life."

By next summer, the agency said, french fries will be available from vending machines in some cities. Ore-Ida Foods Inc., which plans to begin the operation, says the machines will dispense 200 servings of hot, crispy fries in 3½-ounce portions at about 75 cents per serving.

"Potatoes pull in nearly $1 of every $5 received by American vegetable producers," said USDA economist Gary Lucier.

In the last five years, potato farmers grossed between $1.4 billion and $1.9 billion annually. Exports of fresh potatoes have been relatively stable in recent years, with Canada receiving nearly all the shipments. Sales of frozen products, however, have soared to 112,000 metric tons last year from 64,000 tons in 1984, with Japan the biggest market.

Lucier and other economists say in the October issue of Farmlife magazine that the potato industry's future growth will depend greatly on the new "free trade" agreement with Canada and on U.S. access to some foreign markets that have small entry quotas for potatoes.

The agreement with Canada, which is aimed at wiping out most trade barriers between the two countries, was approved by Congress and signed by President Reagan on Sept. 28. It has not yet been cleared by the Canadian Parliament.

Some potato industry people have criticized the pact, claiming it will give Canadian producers an unfair advantage because they receive price and transportation subsidies from the government. Growers in the Northeast are generally opposed because of competing imports of Canadian round, white potatoes. But Western growers are mostly in favor of the agreement since they export russet potatoes to Canada.

The report said South Korea is an example of a fast-growing economy which could support greater imports of U.S. potato products if trade restrictions were eased.

"The tantalizing taste of increased export potential has been offered by the example of Japan, which bought 83 percent of U.S. french fry exports in 1987," the report said. "That represented more than 70 percent of total 1987 frozen vegetable exports to Japan."

Shannon Hamm, another economist, said U.S. per capita use of potatoes, on the average, has been fairly constant since 1970. The big change has been in a shift from fresh to processed potato products.

But since 1978, she said, fresh potato use has stabilized with the baked potato appearing on fast-food menus and the increased use of microwaves in the home. The use of frozen potatoes, which was less than half of fresh in 1970, nearly is equal to the use of fresh potatoes today.

Lucier, noting the shift toward frozen potatoes, said about 80 percent of those are consumed as french fries.

"If the popularity of fast foods continues and a newly perfected fresh fry vending machine finds favor, continued growth in frozen use is likely," he said.

USDA wants crop to fail

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department doesn't usually promote crop failures, but it's making one exception this year.

When farmers go into their local USDA offices these days to apply for drought relief or see about the 1989 wheat program, they'll probably see posters warning about the hazards of growing marijuana.

The USDA says its anti-drug message will be carried into every corner of the nation by the department's sprawling agencies.

"One day or one week will not solve the problem of illegal drug use," Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng said Wednesday. "But participation in this day and in the week's activities can help mobilize the efforts of concerned citizens — in government and out — to solve this distressing problem that faces America."

President Reagan recently proclaimed the week of Oct. 24-30 as National Drug-Free America Week. In Washington, daily programs of entertainment and brief speeches are making the rounds of various government departments.

"We should note that this effort is bipartisan," Lyng said. "Others, like us, are meeting today, or on another day this week, all across the nation. They are assembling in town meetings, in conferences, at rallies, in schools."

Lyng paid tribute to a number of USDA agencies for anti-drug activities, including the Forest Service, which he said last year "eradicated more than 250,000 high-potency marijuana plants grown illegally on national forests, plants that had a street value of nearly $1 billion."

The Forest Service arrested 135 suspects associated with the illegal pot harvest and charged them with felonies, he said.

Another agency, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service is displaying anti-marijuana posters in its 3,000 county offices, he said.

The ASCS handles commodity programs, payments and emergency drought relief for participating farmers. The agency also is using newsletters in its program aimed at illegal marijuana cultivation.

Lyng said the department's Food and Nutrition Service, which administers school lunch and food stamp programs, is working with the American School Food Service Association to support a "Just Say No" message among school children.

The agency also is working with the association to conduct a poster and essay contest with a drug prevention theme among elementary and secondary schools.

Also, he said, the food agency "encouraged the dairy industry to display 'Just Say No' on the side panels of milk cartons used in the School Lunch Program, a potential for reaching 25 million children in more than 90,000 schools."

TAKE A LOOK AT FEED PRACTICES before making any changes in protein levels to cut feed costs for dairy cattle is the advice of an industry expert. He reminds dairy producers that nutritional requirements for lactating and dry dairy cows have not changed, and feeding requirements for nutrients at the proper stages of lactation and during the dry period are essential. Further, he says, the common practice of overfeeding late lactating and dry animals, and underfeeding early lactating cows is not cost effective. Additional protein is needed by high producing cows during early lactation since cattle don't eat enough to sustain body maintenance and the requirements of milk production. Feeding a well-balanced ration during early lactation will, he says, increase milk production and, therefore, profitability.

Infant Mortality Continues Long Decline

The Texas infant mortality rate dropped to 9.1 per 1,000 live births in 1987, another all-time low, according to figures from the Texas Department of Health's Bureau of Vital Statistics.

The rate is some 4.2 percent less than the previous record low of 9.5 deaths per 1,000 births in 1986. The infant mortality rate is a traditional index of the state's quality of health care.

The number of infant deaths decreased to 2,744, down 5.9 percent from the 1986 total of 2,916. Health officials attribute the continuing decrease to improvements in prenatal care and care during and after delivery.

As recently as 1960, the infant death rate was 37.5. It declined to 30.3 in 1965, to 29.1 in 1966, to 26.1 in 1965, to 21.4 in 1970, to 16.6 in 1975, to 12.1 in 1980 and to 9.8 in 1985.

Last year, 301,827 babies were born to Texas mothers, a decline of 1.7 percent compared to the 307,003 born in 1986. The baby boom of the 1950s produced almost a quarter-million births to Texans in 1967. The number of births dropped to less than 204,000 in 1967 before beginning the upswing which peaked in 1985 at 308,027 babies born to Texas mothers.

The number of births in 1987 produced a birth rate of 17.8 per 1,000 population, down 3.3 percent from the 1986 rate of 18.4

Total deaths of Texans last year were 119,734—a rate of 7.1 per 1,000 population. That was an increase of 1,097 deaths—or 0.9 percent—over 1986 when there were 118,637 deaths. Despite the increase in the number of deaths, the death rate for 1987 is still at the 1986 level of 7.1 per 1,000 population.

Birth and death rates were computed using an estimated population of 16,937,000 as of July 1, 1987. A year earlier, the population was estimated at 16,682,000 by the U.S. Census Bureau.

The difference in births over deaths last year added 182,093 persons to the Texas population.

'The Yarn Spinner' performs for study club

The Hereford Study Club met for their Oct. 20 meeting in the home of Bessie Story with Helen Spinks and Willie Braddy as co-hostesses.

Members were entertained with an evening of poetic renditions from "The Yarn Spinner," George Kemerer. "The Cremation of Sam McGee," "The Shooting of Dan McGraw," and "The Hermit of Sharktooth Shoal" were given in their entirety completely from memory. These are only part of many old tales Kemerer has committed to memory.

Kemerer and his wife, Leta, came to Hereford in 1982 following his retirement after 36 years with the U.S. Postal Service. They came here from Ohio. He memorizes while pedaling on his exercise bike. Their philosophy of "Just keep your suitcases packed because you don't know how soon you may not be able to do it" gives an idea of the zest for life this couple have.

Members present were Mrs. Barbara Allen, Braddy, Doris Bryant, Morgan Cain, Elizabeth Caesar, Cunningham, Mildred Garrison, Nedra Robinson, Gladys Setliff, Gracie Shaw, Spinks, Story, and Inez Witherspoon. The next meeting will be held Nov. 17 at 7:30 p.m.

Confusion eliminated about kids and low-cholesterol diets

Children eat and they grow. So other than starting the baby on solid foods or getting the kids to eat their vegetables, most parents have few concerns.

Now, however, national health organizations and the media are telling parents they should also be concerned about whether their children are eating a "heart-healthy" diet.

Medical research studies of adults have clearly shown that eating a diet high in saturated fats and high in cholesterol directly increases the risk of heart disease. Other factors, especially smoking, high blood pressure, diabetes and a family history of heart disease add to that risk.

Heart-healthy eating, a term coined by the American Heart Association, means reducing total fat intake in the diet to 30 percent of calories, reducing saturated fats to about 10 percent of calories and reducing total dietary cholesterol intake to 300 milligrams a day or less.

Since most people don't count every calorie, let alone know the percentage of calories devoted to each type of fat, this gets translated into a generally low-fat, low-cholesterol diet—and a diet which may not be the best for young children in the family.

Dr. Mary Kinney Sweeten, a Registered Dietitian and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University, said this diet advice has left many parents confused.

"Our county extension home economists are getting many questions from parents who are concerned about fat in their children's diets," she said. "We try to reassure them that a balanced diet is still most appropriate for all ages."

"There is some disagreement among medical authorities as to the exact age when children should start eating a low-saturated fat diet. But they all agree that it shouldn't be before the age of two," said Sweeten.

Medical studies of babies under age two whose parents put them on low-fat diets by giving them skim milk, for example, have been found to suffer from slow growth and failure to thrive.

Since children need fat for normal growth and development, diets that are extremely low in fat are not desirable, according to the specialist.

"Severely restricting the amount of fat or cholesterol children eat would mean less meat, milk and cheese in their meals, which reduces excellent sources of calcium and iron that children need," she said.

Parents can begin to instill heart-healthy eating habits in their children when they are preschoolers, but changes should be moderate. Children can eat what the family eats, as long as they get the nutrients and calories they need for growth and development.

In a family where adults are trying to cut down on total fat and cholesterol, she said that means eating lean meats with external fat trimmed, poultry with fat and skin removed, low-fat milk, cheese and other dairy products, and fewer eggs within a regular balanced diet that includes daily servings of vegetables, fruits and grain products.

Parents can with stick with this lower fat menu while still providing while milk for children under two. For older children, switching to 2 percent milk is acceptable.

"Parents sometimes deny children snacks in the belief they're bad for them. But nutritious snacks are necessary for growing children to keep up their energy levels and can be part of a heart-healthy diet," Sweeten said.

According to the specialist, the following are ways to reduce saturated fat in the family diet, without sacrificing nutrition and adequate snacks for children:

- Keep healthy snacks on hand, such as fresh fruit, peanut butter spread on apple slices, unbuttered popcorn, low-fat yogurt and pudding made with low-fat milk.
- Choose lean cuts of red meat, usually labeled "Select," and trim visible fat. Also prepare chicken without the skin.
- Try low-fat cheeses. Children typically like American cheese and there are lower-fat versions of these available in the supermarkets.
- Keep ice cream for a special treat.

Thank You

The Carey Eatherly Family

To Concerned Voters of Deaf Smith County:

I would like to address Mr. Langgood's political ad in the Sunday, October 16, 1988 edition of The Hereford Brand. Mr. Langgood's political ad attacked our current Sheriff Joe C. Brown Jr., he states "What about his misappropriation of funds?"

Mr. Langgood must surely know that our County Government is a check and balance type system. Our county is audited yearly by an outside firm, and if any problems appear it is then handed over to the District Attorney's Office, then to court for indictment. There has never been this kind of indictment handed down to the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office while Joe Brown has been our Sheriff.

The question of HBO was answered in the Sunday Hereford Brand in the article concerning the race. HBO is not given to the prisoners! Why is this still an issue?

Another question about "... strong lack of supervision of Deputies during PEAK-CRIME HOURS?" was also answered in the same Hereford Brand article. The facts show that there is supervision during these hours.

Next, to address the question "What about the unwritten Policy not to arrest Drunk Drivers?" This question is ludicrous. Any informed citizen can read almost daily in The Hereford Brand, or find official records that illustrate the many arrests of Drunk Drivers by the Sheriff's Office. Mr. Langgood asks a lot of questions, but it appears he has a few questions of his own to answer.

Mr. Langgood

1. Just how would you handle a domestic disturbance involving a man beating his wife? Could you or would you be fair?

2. How would you handle an incidence where an officer is taking items out of the evidence room? Again, could you or would you be fair?

3. As an overseeing officer, how would you handle a situation where an officer is caught asking people to trade a citation for favors? What would the reprimand be or would there be one?

I think the "Public Deserves To Know," as Ted Langgood's ad says, "Who is this man?" The ads thus far have failed to answer these questions of mine.

I have known Sheriff Joe Brown and his family for most of my life. I have had the pleasure of working with Joe Brown in 1981-1982 in the law enforcement field. He is an honest and law-abiding person. I will cast my vote to re-elect Sheriff Joe Brown in the November 8th election. I hope all concerned citizens will take the time to look and investigate the issues and people they are voting for, and vote for the right man, SHERIFF JOE BROWN.

Sincerely,
Vicki Paetzold

Trapdoor by Bernard J. O'Keefe is a work of fiction, but it could be fact. What if the President of the United States learns that our nuclear arms will become inoperable at a certain date, due to an act of sabotage? What options will he have, knowing that within a few days we will be defenseless?

June Malik is a software designer who has developed the secret code controlling the operation of our nuclear weapons. She is manipulated by the president of Lebanon to plant computer "viruses" in their secret access mechanisms. To show that they are not bluffing, th PLO steals a nuclear warhead.

On the day of their ultimatum, they will use it to demonstrate that our nuclear arms are now ineffective. Israel's enemies threaten to tip off the Soviets that we have become a toothless tiger unless we agree to force the Israelis to abandon the West McBain's Ladies is the latest novel about the 87th precinct by Ed McBain. The collected works about the 87th precinct is the longest and most varied police series even ranging from the publication of Cop Hater in 1956 to Trick's in 1987.

While depicting the humor, excitement, and the daily grind of police work in this mythical city Isola, McBain has paid no less attention to the women who figure prominently in the lives of his policemen and in the boiling life of the precinct itself. Now McBain has gathered these ladies together in a labor of love that traces their growth and development from the inception of the series to the present time.

For those who've wondered how, when, why, and where; for those who want to meet fascinating and very real women, for those who already know and love these women here are McBain's Ladies.

Bitter Blood by Jerry Bledsoe is a shockingly true account of bizarre intrigue and brutal murder in a proud old Southern family network.

A feisty millionaire widow and her beautiful daughter are murdered gangland style in their big house in Louisville, Ky. Months later, another widow and her prominent son and daughter-in-law are also slain one night in Winston-Salem., The mystified police first suspect a professional killer, then turn their focus to family.

The Sharps. The Newsoms. The Lynches. Three well-to-do families, all linked by an aristocratic young mother, Susie Sharp Newsom Lynch. Could this former child princess and one time fraternity sweetheart, the daughter, granddaughter, ex-sister and ex-daughter-in-law, be involved in these barbarous murders? And what about her close and obsessive first cousin, Fritz Klenner, who dreams of succeeding this nationally known and successful doctor father?

In this tightly wound and unrelenting tale, events build to a horrifying dramatic and shattering conclusion that leaves the remaining family members and the citizens of two states devastated.

New members welcomed

The theme of "Uplifting Your Laughter" was observed at Veleda Study Club's October meeting in Suzanne Stevens' home.

Roll call was answered by "a funny thing happened on the way to club." Stevens directed the members in a series of Pictionary Games.

During the business meeting conducted by Norma Walden, president, Della Hutchins and Bettie Dickson were accepted as new members.

The next meeting will be in Ruth Fish's home with Beverly Harder giving a program on Healthy Holiday Fare.

Refreshments of chocolate cake, cady and orange Halloween punch were served to Marcella Brady, Betty Gilbert, Marjorie Lasiter, Joyce Ritter, Stevens, Walden, Margaret Zinser and Deann Sessions.

Teel Bivins is the Strong, New Conservative Leader We Need in the Texas Senate

His values are our values. He's not a politician; Teel Bivins is a cattleman and a fourth-generation Panhandle native. If elected, he'd be one of only two members in the entire State Senate who makes his living in agriculture.

He'll fight against a State Income Tax and oppose liberal legislators who've forgotten how to operate within a budget. He'll bring our beliefs in home and family, hard work, honesty and integrity to the Texas Senate, along with his fresh, new ideas about good jobs, better schools and safe communities.

Teel has won the support of Democrats, Independents and Republicans alike because of his positive message and his conservative stand on issues like taxes, spending, education and crime.

On Tuesday, November 8, vote for the kind of leadership we deserve. Vote Teel Bivins for the Texas Senate.

Church leader uses quilting example

Like putting together the pieces of a quilt, it's time to take what's good from the old and the new in rural America and blend it into something beautiful and useful, a church leader said here today.

"This is the time to mend what is wrong in rural America," said Gary Farley with the Southern Baptist Convention, Atlanta, Ga. Farley spoke at the 43rd Annual Town and Country Church Conference at Texas A&M University conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Speaking on "Similarities Between Quilts and Our Lives," Farley described numerous quilt patterns and then said that rural America cannot adhere to any one pattern in its mending process. Instead, a mixture, or sampler, is the type of quilt pattern that is needed, he said.

"Many quilt patterns are appropriate for our mending of rural America, but I think we need a sampler, one fashioned for a king-sized waterbed," Farley said. "In that way it will be large and cover something vital to our well-being."

Farley described a number of quilt patterns and how they relate to rural America.

"A crazy quilt is one that take its own shape; I think such an approach to helping rural America is harmful."

"The flying geese pattern is one that might work because it shows flexibility. But we must use it with care.

"Jacob's ladder advocates care and caution and, trust in God. Certainly we can use some of that pattern."

"The Lone Star pattern shows individual initiative and leadership, which are important. But this pattern might serve us better if it were a broken star depicting community rather than individual leadership."

"A wedding band pattern signifies a new marriage of rural and urban America."

"A drunkard's path pattern reminds us of the mistakes of the 1970s when we became 'drunk' on efficiency and progress."

"The log cabin depicts a sense of community endeavor and independence and is a pattern that calls for a cooperative spirit."

"Then there is the rising star pattern which symbolizes that each day holds promise, the pineapple which is a New England pattern depicting a welcoming or homecoming, and the kaleidoscope pattern which shows diversification of functions."

"The fabric of rural America has been torn in recent years, and it is our challenge to take some of the scraps of that fabric and put them together in a pattern that is useful and beautiful," Farley said. "We can salvage what's good in values, technology, people, organization and the environment to make our quilt one that will help bring rural America back together again."

Purpose of the annual conference is to help rural and small town ministers and laity better cope with problems in their communities and congregations, said Dr. Dave Ruesink, sociologist with the Extension Service and conference chairman.

Contemporary art to be exhibited

Pictorial and Narrative Fibers, an exhibition of contemporary artists' use of the fiber medium, will be on view at the Amarillo Art Center from Nov. 5-Dec. 4.

Created by Tom Lundberg, associate professor of Fiber Art at Colorado State University, the exhibition is being circulated under the auspices of the Longview Arts Council.

People have always expressed themselves through the fiber arts. Isolated tribes and vast empires alike have developed textiles in response to the demands of climate and social order. As fabrics are invited and refined to meet various needs, people expand their abilities to communicate with each other about those needs. Universal symbols as well as secret codes have been worked into special cloths, giving form and texture to people's ideas about themselves and their surroundings. Flags focus the minds of citizens, altar hangings instruct to hearts of believers, ribbons honor the deeds of heroes.

The 23 artists in Pictorial and Narrative Fibers extend the traditions of expressive fibers. Using the inherent properties of fabric—pattern, texture, color, and structure—these artists reveal their visions of the world and their attitudes about life. They recognize and draw upon the medium's natural associations with civilization, identity and time.

Any artist working with fiber inherits some of the pace and physical activity of prehistory. By controlling the placement, tension and interaction of fiber elements, people have been able to make changes in how they feel and how they perceive each other. Now that almost all fabrics are mechanically mass-produced, truly meaningful textiles exist in the lives of fewer and fewer people. Using ancient methods, however updated, the artists in this exhibition demonstrate the medium's capacity to depict the need and preoccupations of a society. By exploring textile conventions and traditions, these artists actively convey their own experience in the late twentieth century.

Artists whose work is featured in the exhibition include Renie Breskin Adams, Cynthia Carbone, Mary

ELECTORAL COLLEGE
SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — "Electoral college" was created in the English language in 1691.

Originally it meant a body of princes (electors) who elected the emperor of Germany, according to "Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary." In the American democratic system, the electoral college is made up of people elected from each state to cast the electoral votes of that state for the positions of president and vice president.

School-a-thon winners

Students at St. Anthony's School participated in a School-a-thon Sept. 30 and raised $8,126.95 to purchase computers for the school. Youngsters collected pledges and ran laps to earn the money. Recognized as top money earners were, from left, Tori Walker, Kathryn Fry, Greg Kalka, John McWhorter, Paige Robbins, Jessica Weishaar, and Emily Fry. Weishaar and Kalka were top fund raisers, earning $380 and $270, respectively. Jeremy Urbanczyk, not pictured, was also a top money earner.

At St. Thomas Episcopal Church

Rose Ann Smith to serve as first 'permanent deacon'

Rose Ann Smith, a member of St. Thomas Episcopal Church, will soon bring to her church a new service. Following her ordination as deacon Nov. 6, she will become the local congregation's first "permanent deacon."

The role of the deacon in the Episcopal Church is to model servant ministry for the congregation and to encourage the involvement in the servant ministry in the world, both individually and corporately of all the members of the parish as a part of their fulfillment of their baptismal covenant. Deacons symbolize the church's sacrificial service.

Smith says, "several years ago I read about the role of deacons in my church and it appealed to me. About three and a half years ago Earl Brookhart, fellow Episcopalian, suggested that I follow this road. Finally, with the feeling still being there, I asked my pastor, Father Charles Threewit, about my becoming a deacon." This was to become a lifetime commitment to her church.

Soon, classes were offered in Amarillo (rather than as formerly only being offered in Lubbock.) This was another sign to Smith that she should pursue her ambition. Thus began a rigorous schedule of two and a half years of study, retreats, self-examination and investigation by the bishop and other officials within the Diocese of Northwest Texas.

of the Gospel and as a servant in liturgy and in charity. The deacon is ordained to serve the Lord, the church and the world, wherever the deacon is called and authorized.

In part, the ordination service instructs the candidates as follows, "In the name of Jesus Christ, you are to serve all people, particularly the poor, the weak, the sick and the lonely. As a deacon in the church, you are to study the holy scriptures, to seek nourishment from them, and to model your life upon them. You are to make Christ and his redemptive love known, by your work and example, to those among whom you live, and work, and worship. You are to interpret to the church the needs, concerns and hopes of the world."

Along with Betty Smith of Amarillo and Greg Sinclair of Abilene, Rose Ann Smith will receive the sacrament of ordination Sunday, Nov. 6, at St. Paul's on the Plains Episcopal Church in Lubbock. Bishop Sam B. Hulsey will officiate at the ceremony which will concur with the annual diocesan convention of the Diocese of Northwest Texas.

Beginning at 4 p.m. that day, a reception will be held at St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Hereford, honoring Mrs. Smith's ordination and new position. The women of the church, hostesses for the event, extend an invitation to all their friends to join them in celebration.

Mrs. Smith will serve directly under Bishop Hulsey, and will be assigned to the local church. A deacon serves three primary areas: liturgical (assisting the pastor during the liturgies), pastoral (serving the Church's own people) and social (serving those outside the Church and society at large.)

During the liturgies the deacon serves as the "bearer of good news," reading the Gospels, exhorting announcements, calling the people to worship and serving as minister of the wine for the Eucharistic service. Outside the services, the deacon serves as Minister of the reserved sacrament, taking the Eucharist out into the world, serving those in need. A deacon serves the church parttime without any monetary compensation.

Mrs. Smith presently has two cherished possessions, her Book of Common Prayer (used extensively in the Episcopal Church) and the new cassock alb, a present to her from her husband, Bill. She will wear this vestment for the first time at her ordination, along with a dalmatic (distinctive vestment of the deacon) and a stole.

Mrs. Smith, who is a nurse, says her special gift of service is to those in nursing homes who have no families or who suffer from diseases such as Alzheimer's and others who feel isolated. She feels drawn to persons who are dying; she has an ease when she's with these people and their families.

She goes on to say that she feels one of the best ways to get close to a patient is to feed them. "You get to know them better," she adds. She regularly spends part of her weekend time at the local nursing homes doing just that.

Mrs. Smith has worked and taught nursing for many years in Hereford and now commutes to St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo, where she is nurse clinician in the extended care and renal care unit. Serving as assistant to the director she is teacher-instructor of the patients and the staff members.

The Smiths' two sons, Michael Fraser, a student at the University of Texas in Austin, and William Thomas (Bill) Fraser, also of Austin, along with his wife Lee Ann (Umsted) and their two children, Shelby and Bric, plan to attend the ordination ceremonies. Another son, Jon Sidney Fraser, of San Francisco, Calif., will be unable to be present, as will Mrs. Smith's father William McAtee of Susanville, Calif. However, her mother, Rose McAtee of Albuquerque, N.M., her sister, Evelyn Irene Castellano of Chicago, Ill., and her aunt, Mary Barrack, also of Albuquerque, will attend the ordination ceremonies in Lubbock and the reception later that day here in Hereford.

STRAIGHT TALK

By Gerald McCathern

Last week, I discussed the adverse effects of imports on U.S. industry and U.S. jobs, and how those losses related to a loss of taxes to the U.S. treasury.

We should also be vitally concerned about the loss of tax-paying businesses and tax-paying jobs as a result of failing energy and agricultural policies.

Because the U.S. has allowed energy policy to be dictated by the O.P.E.C. nations, our oil and gas industry has been devastated during recent years. No only have thousands of independent oil and gas producers been forced into bankruptcy, but related service and supply companies and financial institutions have also failed by the hundreds of thousands. These failures have resulted in the loss of five million productive, tax-paying jobs. The Texas Railroad Commission has calculated that for every rig that has been stacked, over 200 jobs have been affected.

Likewise, failing agricultural policies during the past eight years have resulted in hundreds of thousands of farm failures, taking with them hundreds of thousands of service and supply companies and the productive, tax-paying related jobs no longer needed by this giant industry.

It is easy to see that the huge budget deficits of the past few years and the increasing problem of balancing the budget is a direct result of the loss of tax-paying industries and tax-paying jobs in the energy and agricultural sectors.

Certainly we have waste, excess spending, graft and corruption in our federal government and we must demand honesty and efficiency—but we must also demand that these failing economic policies be reversed. We must implement trade and tax policies which will encourage industry to move back to the U.S. from foreign countries; implement a tariff on imported oil which will remove the O.P.E.C. stranglehold on our domestic oil industry; and implement agricultural policies which will balance supply with demand and return a profit to our nation's farmers at the market-place.

Such changes in policies will recreate millions of tax-paying jobs for American workers, relieve some of the tax-burden on those who have been forced to carry more than their fair share of the tax load, and have ample funds to balance the budget.

Again I say, we don't need more taxes—we need more tax payers!

PH. For by McCathern for Congress Committee

The diaconate studies include close scrutiny of both the Old and New Testaments of the Bible (their contents and historical backgrounds), church history (general church history and history of the English and American Anglican Church), theology (the church's teachings as set forth in the creeds and catechism), studies in contemporary society (exploration of classical Christian ethics), liturgies (ancient and modern traditions) and the theory and practice of ministry.

Throughout her studies, Smith says she "never for one minute doubted having a call. It's a wonderful thing to feel that closeness to God." Smith's husband, Bill, has been her supportive agent throughout this time of study and self-examination. "Bill's the real minister in our family," she says proudly. She went on to say he goes about his serving quietly in an un-prescribed way. "Bill and I always seem to be involved with the needy," she reflects. Bill Smith has worked for Holly Sugar Corp. in Hereford for 24 years.

Deacons personify and symbolize the servant character of the whole church, functioning as representative of the people, as a messenger

Church Women United to convene

Church Women United will convene in the chapel of First Christian Church at 3 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 8, for the World Community Day Celebration. The theme is "every Woman's Ministry."

The featured speaker is Mrs. Russell Pogue, a native of Hereford and daughter of Jack Roberson. Imogene Pogue spent her formative years in Hereford. She and her husband organized Temple Baptist Church and are currently residing in Valley Mills, Texas. Recently they returned from Africa where they serve as missionaries.

The public is invited to hear her message. A nursery will be provided.

Accent on Health

Parents should follow a few, simple precautions to ensure this year's this year's trick-or-treaters have a safe and fun-packed Halloween.

"Many adults remember Halloween as the one night in the year when they roamed free, joyfully filling paper sacks with homemade cookies and other treats," said Forrest Burnham, Chief of the Product Safety Program of the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

But Burnham said that because of a growing number of accidents and crimes each year involving children, Halloween has changed. Parents now need to be involved in their children's activities on this festive night.

"These days, supervised parties at home or school are the safest way for children to enjoy Halloween," Burnham said. He warned that if children go trick-or-treating, parents should take the following precautions:

- Teach children not to eat any treats before bringing them home for examination by an adult. Remember, many hospitals offer free X-raying of treats.

- When buying a costume, look for the label stating it is fire-resistant. Costumes should be brightly colored, and dark colored ones should have fluorescent or reflective tape on them.

- For clear vision, use make-up, instead of masks.

- Instruct children not to enter the home of anyone they do not know, and to stop only at homes with outside lighting.

- An adult should accompany small children, and carry a flashlight, both to show the way and to make the children more visible to motorists.

- Keep children out of the street, and never let them run between parked cars. The most frequent serious injuries are to children struck by vehicles.

Burnham suggests that homeowners who welcome trick-or-treaters should turn on a porch light, and be certain the lawn is cleared of any object a trick-or-treater might trip over. They also should restrain their pets, to prevent them from harming or following the youngsters. In addition, jack-o-lanterns and candles should be kept away from doorsteps, to prevent igniting a costume.

Residents' daughter marries in Kansas

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Dean Ens are at home in Wichita, Kan. following their marriage Sept. 24 in the First Mennonite Brethren Church in Wichita. The wedding was officiated by the Rev. Roland Reimer.

The bride, the former Tammy Marie Connally, is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Terry V. Connally of 227 Aspen and the bridegroom is the son of Dan E. Ens of Garden City, Kan.

LaDonna Kay Meyers served as matron of honor and best man was Alvin D. Ens. Guests were escorted by Ed Deines, Keith Connally, Dick Becker and Dale Hershberger.

Trina Reynolds of Dalhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Reynolds, served as flower girl and candles were lit by Dale Hershberger and Keith Connally.

Wendell Funk sang "Song of Ruth", "The Lord's Prayer", "With This Ring" and "Wedding Benediction" accompanied by pianist, Kimberly J. Ens, and organist, Debbie Beesley.

The bride's father gave the couple communion during the ceremony and he also presented his daughter in marriage. She chose to wear the traditional white satin wedding gown which was covered with an embroidery design and white beads. The dress featured a cathedral-length train consisting of numerous satin flounces.

Her bridal illusion veil was attached to the back of a hat accented with embroidery and white beads. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, peach-colored roses and dusty blue baby's breath.

Pat Young invited guests to sign the registry book at the reception in the church. Cake and punch and coffee were served by members of the church wedding committee. The white cake was decorated with peach trim and peach roses.

The couple took a wedding trip to Lake of Ozarks in Missouri.

The bride, a 1979 graduate of Olton High School in Olton, is a 1983 graduate of Mid-America Nazarene College in Olathe, Kan. She is a personal loans secretary at First National Bank in Wichita, Kan.

The groom, a 1975 graduate of Garden City Senior High School in Garden City, Kan., attended vocational classes in Wichita for two years studying heating and air conditioning. He is employed by Superior Supply in Wichita.

Out-of-town guests represented Dinuba, Calif., Reedley, Calif., Woodland Park, Colo., Beavercreek, Ore., Corwith, Iowa, Olathe, Kan., and Garden City, Kan.

Roomy Garage Attic Offers Potential for Expansion

BOLD ROOF DETAIL ADDS DRAMA TO A MODERN INTERIOR

© By W. D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

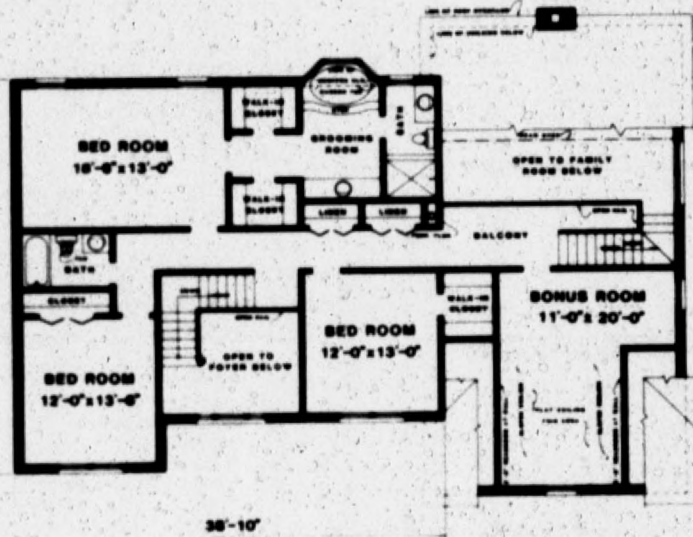

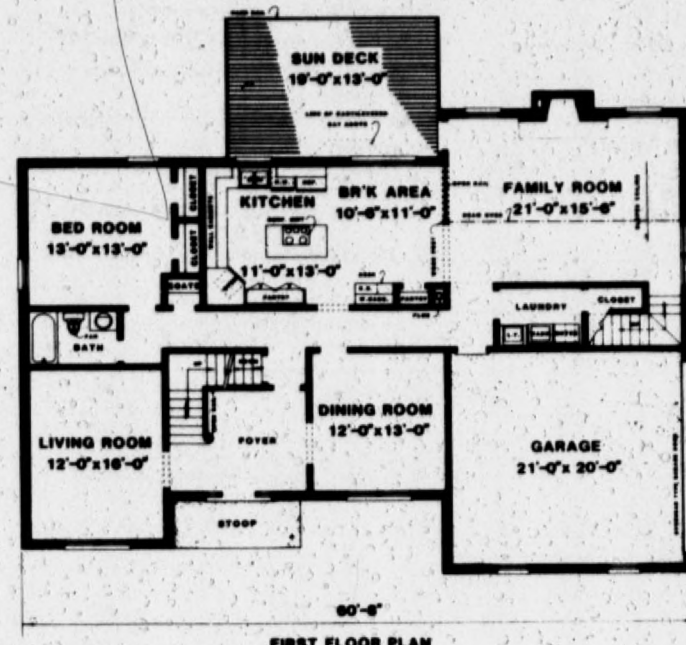

A wide foyer encompasses L-shape stair to second floor and stair to basement is located beneath same for greater space utilization. The isolated formal living room prevents daily traffic abuse. A dining room of a comfortable size is semi-isolated but convenient to modern kitchen. The kitchen includes an abundance of cabinets and counter top space along with two pantries, desk area, and an island surface unit. The adjacent breakfast area is situated for view to either the sun deck or family room. Access to the sun deck is nestled in the offset corner of the great family room. The family room is shown with a fireplace, second floor stair and a vaulted ceiling which expands the view to an open balcony on the second floor. The laundry is shown in a separate room with plenty of space for appliances and an extra storage closet. Garage access is nearby.

There are four bedrooms and a bonus room. One bedroom is on the first floor and is convenient to the full tub bath. The remaining bedrooms are upstairs, the master suite extending the full width of the main body of the house. The master bedroom is depicted with Mr. & Mrs. walk-in closets and the bath is shown with separate garden tub, shower and vanity areas. A central bath services the two remaining bedrooms and bonus room. The upper foyer is open with clear view to the main entrance.

The traditional exterior is built of brick and includes those special touches that distinguish the design. This is a computer plan. Some changes may be made from the plan stored in the CADD memory at less cost to you. Direct inquiries about CADD plan changes to the address below.

The plan is number 3406. It includes 3,175 square feet of heated space with the bonus room over garage adding another 292 square feet. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Book tells how Victorians really lived

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

With interest in Victorian furnishings growing, along comes an exhibit and book to tell us how late 19th century parlors were actually furnished.

"Culture and Comfort: People, Parlors and Upholstery, 1850-1930" is on exhibit at the Strong Museum in Rochester, N.Y., through Jan. 16. A companion book with the same title by curator Katherine C. Grier covers the same ground in more detail.

A real Victorian would recognize some but not all aspects of our versions of Victorian decor, says Grier. "They'd understand our layered window treatments, multiple patterns and colors, but our deep sofas and easy chairs would be far too casual for them. They would think our surfaces are too bare."

The Victorians covered almost every square inch of their rooms with fabric, including fireplace mantels and shelves.

"Coffee or cocktail tables which are a 20th century development would be a complete mystery," says

Grier. While the coffee table didn't exist, a tea table would have been part of a Victorian room. Every parlor had a center table which usually held a lamp and was covered with a cloth.

"The table served a symbolic purpose. Families would place on it a photo album or a Bible or a prized collectible as a cue to their character or interests," she said. Quite a few households had a piano or, by the 1870s, a parlor organ which was less expensive.

While telephones appeared in the 1880s, in urban places, they were not common until well into the 20th century and they would have been in a hallway, not a parlor. Ashtrays would not have been in a parlor, either, since people didn't smoke there.

As she researched the past, Grier discovered that some of the media used today to inform consumers about decorating existed during the 19th century.

"Of course there was no radio or television but there were women's magazines and decorating publications, especially by the 1870s. People also took their cues from parlors in commercial establishments and hotels. By the 1890s, the model room in a furniture store was a huge selling point," said Grier.

The Graves Furniture Store in Rochester, for example, advertised that it had a on display a furnished, eight-room model house as well as a more modest five-room flat.

"Consumer credit for furniture was in place by the 1880s, so people could buy whole rooms on the installment plan. By the mid-19th century, makers were building furniture on speculation, but the decade for the development of inexpensive attractive mass-produced furniture was the 1870s."

During the 1890s, there was an even greater proliferation of factories making inexpensive furniture for the middle and lower middle classes, Grier added.

Prices varied widely depending on the amount of care taken and cost of materials. In the Strong Museum exhibit is an example of a divan with an adjustable arm that sold for between $6 and $10.

Even though mass-produced furnishings were available, homemakers were encouraged to exercise personal taste.

"The art needlework craze of the 1880s and women embroidering and painting on fabric and applique and macrame were popular," she said. Americans made over old ladder-back chairs into upholstered easy chairs well into the 20th century. In magazines of the period, they found many articles that told how to fashion homemade upholstered furniture by recycling other materials.

There were directions for constructing sofa and chair frames of hardwood and also for reupholstering used furniture. How to make lambrequins (which are flat valances) for mantels, tablecloths, window and door drapery and cut down draperies and bedspreads to make curtains were also popular subjects.

In the January 1859 issue of Godey's Lady Book, there were instructions for making upholstered furniture from a barrel. The article advised sawing out parts of a flour barrel, installing webbing and then laying on this structure a layer of coarse bagging, stuffing it with bran and covering the whole with chintz-covered cushions.

Although by the end of the 19th century, mass-produced fabric and furniture made such economies unnecessary for much of the middle class, authors of decorating advice books were still emphasizing do-it-yourself projects as a thrifty way to obtain attractive furnishings.

As part of the museum exhibit, Grier said, "We followed instructions found in a book called 'Our Homes: How To Beautify Them' published in 1887. We bought a rocking chair, painted it, made cushions and decorated it with big bows, as they suggested. We painted and upholstered a milk stool, made a box lounge, stuffed it with hay and covered it with a floral chintz." The museum staff also made door curtains of a cut-up blue blanket and a lambrequin out of felt.

New mortgages available

Real estate has changed so much in the past five years that some experts are encouraging homeowners to examine new kinds of mortgages.

"Homeowners often wonder about retiring a mortgage before the standard 20 to 30 years," said Dr. Jack P. Friedman, Laguarda Professor of Real Estate for the Real Estate Center at Texas A&M University. "Those who want to pay off a home loan more quickly have new options."

Mortgage instruments are now available that automatically accelerate mortgage amortization. These include the 15-year mortgage, the bi-weekly mortgage and the growing equity mortgage (GEM.)

"The 15-year mortgage requires a much higher payment than the 30-year loan but still may be within an average homeowner's reach," said Friedman. "Besides its appealing quick payoff, the lower interest rate offered by many lenders increases its attractiveness."

The monthly principal and interest payment on a 15-year mortgage is greater than a 30-year mortgage with the same rate. The additional payment goes toward the homeowner's equity; none is interest. Another benefit is the 15-year mortgage typically carries a half-percent lower interest rate.

The bi-weekly mortgage is designed for homeowners who are paid every two weeks. This gives them 26 pay periods a year. A mortgage loan is offered with payments that are half of a monthly loan payment.

A $100,000 loan at 10 percent interest would have monthly payments of $877.57 so a bi-weekly requires $438.79 every two weeks. Because the $438.79 is paid 26 times a year, the total paid in a year is $877.57 more than for a monthly payment mortgage of the same rate and principal. The additional payment reduces the principal, allowing loan retirement in about 21 years instead of 30.

The first year's payment on a GEM is the same as a fixed-rate, fixed-payment mortgage. GEMs are structured for increased principal and interest payments by 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, or 6 percent per year.

Given a 10 percent face interest rate, a GEM with a 1 percent annual increase is retired in less than 22 years, a 2 percent GEM takes 18½ years and a 3 percent GEM about 16 and one-sixth years. The higher the face interest rate or the rate of payment increase, the quicker the payoff. GEMs have diminished in availability with declining interest rates, while 15-year and bi-weekly mortgages have increased.

Friedman notes that early mortgage retirement has both advantages and disadvantages. Considerations include inflation expectations and retirement security, illiquidity, foregone opportunities, refinancing at lower interest rates, reduced attractiveness of a loan assumption in a sale and income tax effects.

"Each household differs," he said, "and the decision to pay off the mortgage rapidly depends on financial and personal circumstances."

On the House

AP Newsfeatures

Most of you have been told many times about the necessity of preparing the surfaces properly before beginning to paint a room. Such preparation involves filling holes and cracks, cleaning off dirt and grime, scraping peeling paint, dulling glossy areas and, if necessary, sealing.

But a professional painter does something else even before he prepares the surfaces. He prepares the room. He protects areas that should not be painted or, more accurately, splattered.

Furnishings that can't be protected should be removed from the room. When this is impractical, as with furniture that can't be moved easily, dropcloths are necessary. Nothing should be exposed, even the tiniest bit. Any opening that will allow dust also will allow paint and other particles to come in contact with the furnishings.

Light fixtures should be covered with plastic bags and loose ends sealed. See to it the family does not turn on lights that are covered. Hardware on the walls should be removed if possible, because uninterrupted surfaces are easy to paint, whether you are using a roller or brush or both. Items that can't be removed, such as thermostats, should be protected. Incidentally, you may find a sandwich bag fits right over a thermostat.

Large stationary wall features, such as radiators and kitchen cabinets, once were covered with newspapers that had been pieced together and then attached to the surface. A simpler, neater way is to use masking film rolls that cover large sections of a wall quickly.

Fold them down to protect an area up to 6 feet high. This non-porous material repels most liquids.

Names In The News

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Whoopi Goldberg wants to end her two-year marriage to Dutch cinematographer David Claessen, citing irreconcilable differences.

Details of the divorce petition Miss Goldberg filed Tuesday weren't disclosed by her spokeswoman, Lee Solters.

Claessen, 29, and Miss Goldberg, 38, met during the filming of a documentary on the homeless.

The couple have no children. Solters said Wednesday that they "have been separated for some time" and that Miss Goldberg has been living with cameraman Eddie Gold.

Miss Goldberg, who won an Oscar nomination for her performance in Steven Spielberg's "The Color Purple," stars in Warner Bros.' forthcoming movie "Clara's Heart." She will soon be seen on the TV series "Star Trek: The Next Generation."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The photographer whose car and camera were damaged by Cher's boyfriend, 24-year-old Rob Camilletti, says Camilletti is getting off the hook.

"I think he should have been charged with assault with a deadly weapon. No, I'm not pleased with these charges," Peter Brandt, a photographer for the entertainment tabloid Star, said Wednesday.

Camilletti was charged Wednesday with reckless driving and malicious mischief. The misdemeanor offenses are less serious than the felony charge of assault with a deadly weapon for which Camilletti was booked after the June 27 confrontation. Camilletti was released on $2,000 bail.

Camilletti had said he lost control of Cher's black Ferrari while swerving to avoid photographers outside the home he shares with the Oscar-winning actress. He said he hit Brandt's car and their smashed his camera and telephone.

Brandt accused Camilletti of trying to kill him, and sued the couple for unspecified damages.

Reckless driving carries up to 90 days in jail and a $1,000 fine; the two counts of malicious mischief could bring up to 18 months in jail and a $6,000 fine.

WINTER SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Sheelah Ryan, winner of Florida's record $55.1 million Lotto jackpot last month, passed up the chance to claim another prize her extraordinary luck brought her: a blender she won at a raffle.

Her name was drawn for a door prize at an open house held for a new office of Prudential Bowles Realty, where she used to work, said owner Wil Bowles.

By the time her name was drawn Friday, Ms. Ryan had left and another name was selected for the prize.

"I don't think missing it will worry her," said Bowles.

Her former boss also disclosed that Ms. Ryan has bought a $260,000 house through the real estate firm she quit after winning the nation's largest lottery prize.

Bowles said Ms. Ryan paid cash for the house, the location of which he would not disclose.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan has been named to receive the 1988 Humanitarian Award from the Simon Wiesenthal Center, and his wife, Nancy, will receive the center's first Museum of Tolerance award, the center said.

Nearly 2,000 guests, including Barbara Walters, Arnold Schwarzenegger and Ben Kingsley, are on the invitation list for the Oct. 30 awards presentation.

The ceremony will take place during a gala to celebrate the 80th birthday of Wiesenthal, the Nazi hunter who lives in Austria, said center spokeswoman Lydia C. Triantopoulos.

The Los Angeles-based center selected Reagan as its 1988 recipient in recognition of his efforts to prevent nuclear war, his staunch support of Israel and his efforts on behalf of Soviet refuseniks, said a statement released Wednesday.

The center studies the Holocaust and serves as an information-collection center in the hunt for escaped Nazis.

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — A desert mansion under construction for TV producer-turned-businessman Merv Griffin was heavily damaged by fire, authorities said.

Tuesday's blaze caused about $1 million in damage to the $1.75 million home, fire officials said. Its cause was not determined.

The house, more than 100 miles east of Los Angeles near Palm Springs, was 80 percent complete, "and a little more than half of it was destroyed," said Riverside County Fire Capt. Brenda Seabert.

Griffin, who has numerous homes, is in the process of building another one atop a mountain in Beverly Hills. In between house building, he is attempting to buy the Resorts International hotel-casino in Atlantic City, N.J., from New York developer Donald Trump.

Griffin, 63, taped his last "Merv Griffin Show" in September 1986, ending 24 years as a television talk show host. Later, he created such TV shows as "Wheel of Fortune" before selling his TV production company to the Coca-Cola Co. Fortune magazine has estimated his worth at $300 million.

Abundant Life

ALL WORK APPRECIATED
By Bob Wear

Much of the work essential to our general well-being does not have a place in the upper ten or twenty occupations and professions. I have no desire to change this, and know no way to change it; however, it is important to all of us to learn to appreciate all essential work. Let us just be conscious of the fact that without the doing of many of the lesser jobs, the prestigious professions and occupations would become ineffective. Of course, this is not an effort to depreciate special skills, requiring special preparation, or a word against the extra pay. Nevertheless, there is a great need for all of us to appreciate all essential work.

The classifying of people according to the work they do has been proven to be a big mistake. This means that too many false notions have developed concerning standards of human behavior and human value. In the artificial and sophisticated atmosphere of unbalanced, and sometimes unreal and superficial standards of evaluation, we are losing much of the strength and cohesiveness that our social order needs and could have. There is often conflict, envy, and other erosive influences where there could be mutuality of appreciation and genuine brotherhood.

We live in a highly competitive society, and great emphasis is placed upon rising in the world. I have no quarrel with this, but life would be better for all of us if we gave credit where credit is due. "People should be given credit for work well done, and not have so much emphasis placed upon rising in the world." — Anon.

All work that is considered honorable work should be fully appreciated. Failure to do so causes a distortion leading to discouragement, to a feeling of being a failure, and, unfortunately, to much of the conflict in our society.

We must remember how very inter-dependent we are in the world of work, essential work. A greater appreciation, extended in all directions, for all work that is being done well, will be a source of encouragement, of strength, and of human dignity that will bless our land.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Why is it that one cannot put pineapple in gelatin? Every time I add it the gelatin, it doesn't set. It stays watery and I end up throwing it away.

This information would sure be helpful to me. Thanks! — Betty Lou, Franklin, Ariz.

Fresh-frozen and raw pineapple contain an enzyme that interferes with the gelatin's molding action. So don't add pineapple to gelatin because it just won't mold!

Kiwi fruit also contains an enzyme that doesn't allow for gelatin to properly set. So save yourself the trouble, try other fruit like bananas, apples or even fruit cocktail. — Heloise

CHICKEN SOUP

Dear Heloise: I like to make a lot of homemade chicken soup during the winter months. Aggravated with the time-consuming skimming process, I started pouring the broth through a colander lined with a simple paper coffee filter.

This results in a perfectly clear chicken broth with little or no fat. I was surprised to see how much fat comes off of the broth, even after spooning off most of it before straining. — S. Payne, Annapolis, Va.

Dear Heloise: A Sunday ritual at my house is making pancakes for my family. I try to make different flavors and variations as much as possible.

To spice pancakes up a little, I simply add some maple syrup to the batter. This gives them extra flavor and is one of my family's favorites. Thanks for letting me pass this on. — Georgia Smith, New York, N.Y.
