Searchers losing hope in finding boy

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

The search continues for a Hereford boy who was lost in a flash flood near Roy, N.M. on Sunday, according to the Las Vegas office of the New Mexico State Police.

Caleb Fluhman, 7, was crossing the Canadian River with two other children on Sunday. According to friends of the family, the group had nearly completed the crossing when Caleb went back to get a toy he had dropped.

The three children were reportedly playing "jump the creek," using stepping stones to cross the water. The section of creek where the mishap occurred was crooked, making it difficult to see upstream. Caleb apparently did not see an approaching head rise in the water until it was too late to head for the bank.

The child was caught in a flash flood and washed away near the area where the Mora and Canadian rivers meet. The high water was preceded by a rain of between five and six inches approximately 60 miles upstream.

Caleb's disappearance has triggered a massive search. A large number of law enforcement officials, National Guardsmen and local volunteers were continuing to look for the Hereford boy. Helicopters provided by the New Mexico State Police and the National Guard have aided those searching on foot and from horseback.

Caleb is the son of Richard and Stella Fluhman. The family is originally from the Roy area and were visiting family members over the Memorial Day weekend. Caleb is a student at St. Anthony's Catholic School in Hereford.

Rosary for Caleb will be said at 7 p.m. (MST) today at Holy Family Catholic Church in Roy. Memorial services are scheduled for 11 a.m. (MST) Thursday at the church.

Other survivors include a brother, Christopher, and his great-grandmother, Iris Bauler of Hereford, and several aunts and uncles.

Although there is little hope in finding the boy, officials said that the search will continue at least through Thursday morning.

Temperatures have been in the 90s, but are expected to cool off Thursday to the high 70s. There's also a rain chance.

Wright maintains stronghold

By MARK GODICH
Associated Press Writer

Even if a House Ethics Committee investigation prompts House Speaker Jim Wright to resign his leadership role, the Fort Worth Democrat still would be an unstoppable congressional candidate as far as Republicans are concerned.

"Jim Wright was elected 34 years ago when Texas was a Democratic state," said Steve Hollern, GOP chairman in Wright's home district of Tarrant County. "His influence over the years has continued to grow. He's able to attract some Republican-leaning votes."

In recent years, Wright's home district - once staunchly Democratic - has elected two Republican presidents, a Republican governor and a Republican senator. But Wright never has feared Republican opposition.

Wright was elected to the House in 1954, and in the 15 general elections since 1960 he has run unopposed seven times. In the eight other elections, he won an average 68 percent of the vote.

The last time the Republicans were even close was in 1980, when Fort Worth businessman Jim Bradshaw garnered 39 percent of the vote. But last year, after the ethics probe began, no Republican faced Wright in his re-election bid.

"As a county chairman, my position would be, 'Why would we want to go out and run a candidate if we (only) can jump from 31 to, say, 38 percent?'" Hollern said.

Now with the House Ethics Committee investigation stealing headlines, even Wright's colleagues are indicating the speaker may step down.

Wright is being investigated for 69 violations of House rules. He said Tuesday he would announce this week whether he intends to resign.

But while Texas politicians already are speculating about who could replace Wright, it's unlikely anyone could beat Wright for the 12th Congressional District, Hollern said.

"I think if Jim Wright decides not to stay in Congress ... the whole ball game changes," Hollern said Tuesday. "If he stays there, I don't think we can beat him."

Hollern said that until Wright steps down, Republicans will concentrate on winning other seats.

Bush wants Berlin Wall down

MAINZ, West Germany (AP) - President Bush today challenged the Soviet Union to bury the Cold War by ending the division of Europe, starting by tearing down the Berlin Wall. "Let Europe be whole and free," he declared.

In a major speech clearly aimed at the Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the president said popular demands for democratic reforms are sweeping through the communist world, forcing a re-examination of Cold War fears and security precautions.

"The world has waited long enough," said Bush, who plans to visit Poland and Hungary in July. "The time is right. Let Europe be whole and free."

"The Cold War," he said, "began with the division of Europe. It can only end when Europe is whole."

Triumphant after his debut at the NATO summit in Brussels, Belgium, the president made his comments in a speech prepared for delivery in the Rhine River city of Mainz before an audience in Rheingoldhalle, the main meeting hall here.

It was his first and only major address during a week-long trip to Italy, Belgium, Germany and Britain. After today's speech and a cruise down the Rhine River, Bush headed for London for talks with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

The central theme of the Mainz speech was a call for freedom and democracy for all of Europe.

"In the East, brave men and women are showing us the way," Bush said.

"Look at Poland, where Solidarity and the Catholic Church have won legal status. The forces of freedom are putting the Soviet status quo on the defensive."

"In the West, we have succeeded because we have been faithful to our values and our vision. But, on the other side of the rusting Iron Curtain, their vision failed."

He said that nowhere is the division between East and West more obvious than in Berlin, where Communist authorities erected a wall of concrete and barbed wire in 1961 in an effort to halt the flow of refugees to the West.

"There, a brutal wall cuts neighbor from neighbor and brother from brother," Bush said. "That wall stands as a monument to the failure of communism. It must come down."

He issued that challenge as part of a series of proposals "to heal Europe's tragic division, to help Europe become whole and free."

Bush said Berlin should become a center of commerce and cooperation instead of confrontation.

"Bring glasnost to East Berlin," he declared.

Bush said the West and East should cooperate to foster free elections in Eastern Europe, and he offered Western technical training and other steps to help the East cope with environmental problems that threaten both sides.

Recalling the measures he proposed at the NATO summit for cuts in U.S. and Soviet combat troops in Europe, Bush reiterated his call for the Soviet Union and its allies to open their skies to reciprocal, unarmed aerial surveillance flights to monitor military activities.

He also called for a worldwide ban on chemical weapons.

Summing up, Bush said, "Growing political freedom in the East, a Berlin without barriers, a cleaner environment, a less militarized Europe - each is a noble goal."

"Taken together, they are the foundation of our larger vision, a Europe that is free and at peace with itself," he said.

"Let the Soviets know that our goal is not to undermine their legitimate security interests," the president said. "Our goal is to convince them, step by step, that their definition of security is obsolete, that their deepest fears are unfounded."

Bush said the very concept of a divided Europe was "under siege - not by armies but by the spread of ideas" that began in Mainz, the birthplace of Johannes Gutenberg, inventor of the printing press.

Bush said the power of democracy was "sweeping across Eurasia. This one idea is why the communist world, from Budapest to Beijing, is in ferment."

Bush told leaders of the Eastern bloc they were "unleashing a force they will find difficult to channel or control: the hunger for liberty of oppressed peoples who have tasted freedom."

After a riverboat cruise on the Rhine with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, Bush was to fly to London for a two-night stay and talks with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, as well as lunch at Buckingham Palace with Queen Elizabeth II.

Bush traveled to Bonn for talks with Kohl and President Richard von Weizsacker after the two-day summit in Brussels, Belgium.

An ebullient Bush called the NATO summit "a double hit" because it produced a united Western front on short-range nuclear weapons as well as his call to reduce American and Soviet combat troops in Europe to 275,000 on each side.

At a post-summit news conference, Bush noted that the Soviet Union has a huge superiority in battlefield nuclear missiles.

Josserand reviews first 100 days

By ORVILLE HOWARD

The cattle feeding industry of Texas has come of age-it has reached maturity, it is stable and it is good.

This was the way Bob Josserand rounded out the state's $3 billion cattle feeding industry as he spoke from the offices of the AZTX Cattle Co. headquartered out on Park Avenue in Hereford.

As president of the National Cattlemen's Association headquartered in Denver, Colo., Josserand holds the reins of the largest cattle organization in the world and is a past president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association. But Josserand frequently speaks of this giant industry on a one-to-one basis.

"One person can make a difference in the movement of an industry so each one of us in the cattle business must be on the cutting edge of the issues at hand," said Josserand. "And these issues, as I see them include environmental problems, animal welfare and food safety assurance."

Josserand reviewed his first 100 days as president of NCA as being a time of excitement and positive action in the cattle business: "I have had the privilege of watching the leadership of the nation's cattle industry take a very positive proactive stance on many of the key issues. This, without a doubt, becomes one of the most exciting facets of my first 100 days."

Though Josserand will be spending much of 1989 putting the national organization on target in a positive range, the tall Texan says there's no place in the world as positive as Hereford, Texas. "We are very fortunate to have such great leadership in all phases of industry and business as we have in Hereford."

Josserand and his partner, Milton Rudder, operate a commercial cattle feeding company that has a one-time feeding capacity that has around 170,000 head in three states. But organizational responsibilities that go with the NCA post are not new to Josserand. He is past chairman of the NCA Marketing Committee, a past chairman of the Revenue Development Committee of the Beef Industry Council and a member of the Cattlemen's Beef Board and of the Operating Committee of the Beef Board.

"I like the people in the cattle industry," said Josserand, as he spoke of the vast cattle feeding operations in the Hereford area. "There are a lot of people out there whose word is their bond and their handshake is twice as good as a written contract."

The out-spoken executive leaves no room for doubt on where he stands on any issue, whether it's on a community, state or national level: "I think we're (cattle feeders) producing a damn solid, healthy product for the American consumer and for the world. And I want the message out that every cattleman, not just NCA membership, needs to

Colleagues endorse Bullock, Edwards

AUSTIN (AP) - State Comptroller Bob Bullock says 17 of state Sen. Chet Edwards' 22 Democratic colleagues endorse Bullock for lieutenant governor. Edwards says endorsements of elected officials don't win elections.

Bullock on Tuesday also released a list of 63 of the 91 Democratic House members who favor Bullock for the 1990 Democratic nomination to succeed Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who has said he will not seek re-election.

Edwards, who has not formally announced for lieutenant governor but insists he has "every intention" of doing so, said, "I've never been the insider's choice. I'm not going to be the insider's choice."

Bullock and Edwards both held news conferences Tuesday in what could be a preview of contrasting styles in the race for lieutenant governor.

After the senators had endorsed Bullock, Edwards, D-Duncanville, released a list of 67 "voters and taxpayers" supporting him.

Three senators spoke on Bullock's behalf, three non-legislators for Edwards.

Bullock, who announced 19 months ago for lieutenant governor, said in presenting the Senate endorsements, "This is the greatest day of my life."

"The Legislature is where the action is. I love the Legislature," he said.

Edwards said, "Every vote counts the same, and every person is just as important as any other person."

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said "the state budget is the whole ball game in getting services to people and in serving people and responding to their needs and what they want. And there is no one in state government holding any office that knows more about the state budget process ... and how we can raise revenue" than Bullock.

Ruby Hawk of Austin, who Edwards said is retired, called the senator "a person who isn't afraid to tackle a hard job."

Sens. Eddie Bernice Johnson, D-Dallas, and John Montford, D-Lubbock, also praised Bullock, with

Montford saying Bullock has a "total grasp of the business of state government."

"This is no time to dilly-dally, this is no time to be wishy-washy," Montford said. "We've got a lot of things going for us. Let's don't lose this momentum."

Deralyn Davis of Fort Worth, chairperson emeritus of the Texas

Coalition of Black Democrats, said Edwards is "one of the brightest stars in Texas government."

"Edwards said, 'I can't tell you how many senators ... who said they're afraid if they don't support Bob Bullock and he's elected lieutenant governor, they may find themselves without a district."

Candidates run for attorney general

AUSTIN (AP) - The 1990 race for attorney general lost one candidate but has plenty of others after Land Commissioner Garry Mauro announced he will seek re-election rather than try to change offices.

Mauro had been expected to seek the Democratic nomination to succeed Attorney General Jim Mattox, who is soon expected to announce for governor.

But Tuesday, Mauro said he will seek a third term instead.

"The temptation to run for attorney general was strong," Mauro acknowledged. "After a lot of thought, I've determined that the need to accomplish a higher calling has won over the desire to seek a higher office."

Mauro said the dual interests of family life and the environment prompted him to abandon consideration of the attorney general's race.

His decision still leaves a substantial field of possible candidates for attorney general.

On the Democratic side, the list includes state Rep. Dan Morales of San Antonio, Dallas Congressman John Bryant and Houston lawyer John Odam, who already has announced. Odam served as an aide to former

Gov. Mark White. Republican prospects include state Rep. Patricia Hill of Dallas, Railroad Commission Chairman Kent Hance and San Antonio lawyer Roy Barrera Jr., who carried the GOP standard against Mattox in 1986. Mauro denied reports that he was finding fund-raising difficult for the attorney general's race.

"In every single race I've run from the day I announced for public office, I've outspent every opponent that I've ever had ... When I called around, I heard nothing but encouragement," he said.

Mauro's son, David, played with his father's speech notes, waved to spectators and inspected reporters' tape recorders during his father's announcement. Mauro and his wife are expecting a second child in July.

The Play puts Herd in final eight

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

It was the kind of play that will likely be talked about for a few generations, let alone years.

For a play in a baseball game to take on mythic proportions, to become The Play, it has to come in a game that means something.

Many folks who watched Willie Mays play for the New York-cum-San Francisco Giants say that he made a few catches-and-throws that were more spectacular, but baseball fans (and rock video producers) still talk about The Catch Mays made on a ball hit by Vic Wertz of the Cleveland Indians in the 1954 World Series.

The Play occurred in the eighth inning of the second of a best-two-of-three regional championship series between the Herd and Brown-wood's Lions at Chaparral Stadium in Lubbock. The Herd had come back to tie the game in the top of the seventh, then went ahead, 9-7, in the top of the eighth.

Brownwood was beginning a two-out rally. Pinch runner Bobby Montgomery was off from first at the crack of Mike Smith's bat as a line drive screamed into center field.

Jason Scott, who has played only a handful of games in center field in his career, raced to his right to cut the ball off just before reaching the fence, 400 feet from home plate.

"I never had any doubt I could cut it off," Scott said. "I had already made up my mind that I was going to get it and throw it home. I came to the ball and I was bracing to throw it as I caught it. I knew I had played it right."

Scott gathered in the ball and threw a strike to shortstop Russell Backus, the relay man who had stationed himself in shallow center.

"It was a perfect throw to me," Backus said. "I didn't even have to move my glove. It was absolutely perfect."

"Jared (Victor, Hereford's second baseman) was yelling that the guy (Montgomery) was going. I couldn't believe it, but I just turned and threw it."

Herd catcher Kyle Andrews had been watching the play all the way. As Brownwood coach Mike Howeth was windmilling his arm in the third-base coaching box, Andrews moved about five feet up the third-base line from home plate.

"When I saw Jason go after the ball, I thought the guy might try to score," Andrews said. "Coach Sartor tells us that when you see the ball go past the fielder you go for the extra base. But with Jason's arm, well, he can throw it. There's no limit with his relay."

"Clint Cotten (Hereford's pitcher) came running in from the mound to back me up and he said they were going to try it. Russell caught Jason's throw, then Russell hit me right smack in the middle of the mitt with his throw."

Montgomery hit right smack in the middle of Andrews and went sailing over the top. Andrews threw both hands up in the air in victory. Smith, his frustrations compounded because he was now the losing pitcher in both games, pounded on the Astro turf near second base for about two minutes.

The Herd had won the game with The Play.

Paris High pitcher gets perfect game for dad's b'day

PARIS, Texas (AP) - Paris High School pitcher Derek Lamb wanted to pitch a no-hitter for his father's birthday.

Garland Lamb told his son a two-hitter would be fine. So the younger Lamb went out and pitched a perfect game as the Paris Wildcats beat the McKinney Lions, 10-0, Tuesday in a Class 4A regional schoolboy baseball playoff game.

The game was stopped in the sixth inning because of the 10-run rule when Lamb helped his own cause by singling and scoring the 10th run on a single by Trey Walters.

In addition to pitching the perfect game, Lamb had three hits for the Wildcats.

"I don't think you can express how I feel," Lamb said. "It's a once in a life time thing. It couldn't have happened against a better team. They beat me last year, 6-5."

Only two McKinney batters managed to hit the ball into the outfield. Eight batters struck out and the other eight batters grounded to the infield.

"How long do you coach before you ever have a kid throw a perfect game?" said Paris coach Benton Rainey. "He pitched like he's always pitched. He needs to shake the hand of every infielder and every outfielder. The defense helped preserve this perfect game."

Lamb's perfect game was really bad news for the Lions when you consider that Lamb's season record was 9-4. On Friday night, Jack Ford, Paris' top pitcher will take the mound for the second game of the best-of-three series for the right to advance to the state tournament in Austin. Ford's record is 12-1.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been a fan of yours for years and have yet to see my problem in your column. I know it's not because it doesn't exist. It's just that people in my group are faceless. I'm sure very few of your readers ever give us a thought.

I'm a cleaning woman who works in a bank.

You would not believe the mess that is made by people who come in just to cash a check. It is always worse on the first and 15th days of every month. Some nights when I walk into the bank I feel as if this place is one huge slop bucket. I see cigarettes smashed out on the floor, scribbling on counters and walls, chewing gum stuck all over, apple cores, orange peels, half-full paper cups of coffee, candy bar wrappers and milk shake cartons on the floor.

This bank is not in a slum area. We are in the heart of Long Island! Please print my letter so America can see itself. I'm sure this problem exists in many cities and in buildings other than banks.--Weary and Disgusted

DEAR W. AND D.: Thank you for letting us see how life looks at the other end of the mop. I'll bet that the same people who leave a trail of trash in the bank litter the streets, parks and other public places. For shame!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Isn't it time to resurrect that "old-fashioned" long-discarded custom of staying together for the sake of the children?

For years marriage counselors and mental health professionals have been telling us that this is nonsense, but I am not so sure they are right.

When I look at the children of my siblings and cousins and the classmates of my daughter (half of them are from broken homes) I see so much suffering. And now I read about a new long-term study that showed even the children of "civilized non-messy" divorces suffer long-term problems even into adulthood.

I am one who stayed in a marriage "for the children." My husband was not abusive or alcoholic. We just grew in different directions. Now that our daughters are grown (I am 40), I am happy that I made the decision to stick it out. I don't believe that the turmoil of a divorce and my search for a more compatible mate would have been worth the price my children would have had to pay.

I believe there's a time when the children's needs come first--when it is THEIR turn and not MY turn anymore. How about it, Ann? Maybe you should begin to encourage couples to stay together for the sake of the children again.--Been There in Atlanta

DEAR ATLANTA: Had you written and asked if you should leave your husband simply because you had "grown in different directions" and there were children involved, I would have suggested joint counseling and urged you to keep the family together.

I would not, however, give that same advice to women who describe a hellish existence with an abusive, substance-addicted or unfaithful man. Nor would I advise a woman to stay with a man who sexually abuses his children or brings women into the house when she (the wife) is at work.

In such cases, the children fare a great deal better with one parent who is at peace.

Granted, divorce is so easy to get these days that too many people opt out of marriage without giving it a fair chance. But I would never advise staying together when there is screaming, hitting, cheating, drunkenness, misery, no respect and no peace.

When planing a wedding, who pays for what? Who stands where? "The Ann Landers' Guide for Brides" has all the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

AT&T MultiQuest™ Service

AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc. (AT&T) announces its intent to introduce within Texas on July 14, 1989, AT&T Multi-Quest Service, a new interactive 900-type telephone service. Since February 19, 1989, this innovative service has been available to Texas businesses only on an interstate basis. With AT&T MultiQuest Service, Texas business customers (otherwise known as sponsors) may offer value-added information services to callers originating long distance calls from Texas or elsewhere in the United States over AT&T's public switched network. A Texas caller, accessing the service by dialing the sponsor's 1-900 plus seven-digit number, can obtain recorded and/or live information by communicating with attendants, voice messaging equipment and computer data bases. Flat-rate, time sensitive usage charges will be billed to the caller for the sponsor's service.

AT&T is offering AT&T MultiQuest Service within Texas in response to requests by its business customers for a service that offers intrastate as well as nationwide interactive voice & data transport capability. Potential sponsors include entrepreneurial companies entering into new ventures that are information intensive, local mass announcement sponsors who want statewide as well as national coverage coupled with interactive capability and other information service providers.

The Texas intrastate AT&T MultiQuest Service will be tarified as an "add-on" offering to a sponsor's existing interstate AT&T Multi-Quest Service. The intrastate AT&T Multi-Quest Service costs will be recovered from sponsor usage charges set forth in AT&T's intrastate tariffs. The usage charges billed to the caller are determined by the sponsor as appropriate to the service being offered and are not tarified charges.

For more information about AT&T MultiQuest Service please call your AT&T Account Executive or AT&T's business consultants toll free on 1 (800) 552-0212. They can answer your questions regarding this service and how it can be of benefit to you.

AT&T intends to file a tariff to offer this service with the Public Utility Commission of Texas on June 13, 1989, effective July 14, 1989. Persons who have questions regarding this tariff filing may contact the Public Utility Commission's Public Information Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf, or write to them at 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757.

Intrastate AT&T Multi-Quest Service is projected to generate $1.1 million in the first year of its offering or .1% of AT&T's total gross service revenues in Texas.

Brochure guides shoppers in selecting healthy foods

The American Heart Association, Texas Affiliate, (AHA) and the Texas Beef Council (TBIC) formed a unique partnership in the fall of 1987. The purpose of the partnership was to educate Texans about how to incorporate lean beef into an AHA approved diet. Toward that goal, over 4,500,000 Red Meat brochures, jointly produced by the AHA and the TBIC, were distributed in over 800 supermarkets participating in Food Festival last year.

This partnership is still flourishing today. The AHA and the TBIC have joined forces to inform Texas consumers that cutting down on saturated fat and cholesterol does not mean that beef needs to be cut from a heart-healthy diet. The AHA and the TBIC have produced the "On the Trail of Hidden Fat" brochure, which will guide the shopper through a typical Texas Supermarket and help select heart-healthy foods, including lean beef. "We welcome the opportunity to join with the AHA in providing consumers with a unified voice on nutrition issues," said Anne Anderson, Executive Director of the TBIC. During the last year the TBIC has jointly sponsored cholesterol training programs for physicians and they are working together on developing a cholesterol education program for the general public.

Ranger miscues costly

BALTIMORE (AP) - The Baltimore Orioles have stretched their lead in the American League East to two games, the widest margin any one in the division has enjoyed this season. They're not doing it with mirrors, but with fundamentals.

"Our defense hasn't been beyond my expectations," Manager Frank Robinson said Tuesday after the Orioles defeated Texas, 6-2. "We have talented players, who can play defense, make the routine plays and occasionally the spectacular ones."

It was the failure of the Rangers to make either type of plays that took them out of the game Tuesday. Two outfield throwing errors led to a pair of Oriole runs.

"We don't have to hit them over the head with it," said Robinson. "Our guys are fundamentally sound. They understand what they did tonight was give us a chance to beat them."

The Rangers realized it, too. "We've played lousy these two nights," said Texas third baseman Steve Buechele. "We're just going through one of those spells," said Manager Bobby Valentine.

In addition to the errors, the Rangers also suffered the loss of starting pitcher Jamie Moyer (3-5), who left after straining his shoulder on a pitch to Mickey Tettleton in the fourth. He was scheduled to fly back to Arlington Wednesday for a further examination by the team doctor.

"It's real frustrating, because I was pitching well," said Moyer, who to that point had allowed only one run.

The Orioles added two in that inning when reliever Gary Mielke finished walking Tettleton, and gave up a single to Bob Melvin. Between the walk and the hit, Randy Milligan lined out to left. Jeff Kunkel, making his first start of the season in left, made a throw that shortstopped past first baseman Rafael Palmiero into the Texas dugout, allowing both runners to advance two bases.

The two runs in the fourth gave the Orioles a lead they never lost. Starter Jay Tibbs was unable to get through the fifth inning, however, and was unable to claim his second win. Instead Mark Williamson, the second of three Baltimore relievers, got the win to even his record at 2-2, and Gregg Olson fanned the final two batters to earn his fourth save.

The Oriole bullpen gave Robinson five scoreless innings, allowing only four hits.

"We had good pitching all the way around," Robinson said. "What we needed, what I asked guys to do, they did."

There's nothing spectacular in that, but it's been enough to propel the Orioles to seven wins in their last eight games and three games over .500, the first time they've been there since June 2, 1987.

Giants' Mitchell, Clark power SF past New York

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Ruth and Gehrig. Mays and McCovey. Mantle and Maris. Now, Mitchell and Clark. Kevin Mitchell and Will Clark swung their big bats again Tuesday night, each hitting three-run homers that sent the San Francisco Giants over the New York Mets 10-3 for their fifth straight victory.

Mitchell leads the majors with 15 homers and 47 runs batted in. Clark leads the National League with a .368 average with 10 homers and 42 RBI.

Mitchell had been in a 3-for-24 slump and took pregame batting practice for the first time in nearly a month. Then, the Giants took batting practice against the Mets.

"I felt that my hands were getting slow and my timing was getting off," he said. "But I've got a man in front of me that can carry the world. If I can't do the job, he can."

Mike Krukow improved to 22-7 lifetime against the Mets.

In other games, Montreal rallied past Los Angeles 5-4, San Diego beat Philadelphia 9-3, Houston downed St. Louis 8-4, Chicago got past Atlanta 3-2 and Pittsburgh defeated Cincinnati 2-0.

Ernest Riles also hit a three-run homer for San Francisco.

"We're playing our best when we need to be," Giants manager Roger Craig said. "When you get home runs from your third-, fourth- and fifth-place hitters, it makes it a lot easier for you."

The Giants got 14 hits, seven for extra bases.

Krukow, 4-2, gave up three runs in 5 1-3 innings. David Cone dropped to 3-4 after going 20-3 last season.

Mitchell connected off Cone in the third for a 3-1 lead. Clark homered against Terry Leach for a 7-3 margin in the sixth and Riles homered in the eighth off Roger McDowell.

Expos 5, Dodgers 4

Pinch hitter Mike Aldrete's sacrifice fly capped a four-run rally in the ninth inning and lifted Montreal over Los Angeles.

The Expos, held to three hits for eight innings by Tim Belcher, opened the top of the ninth with singles by Tom Foley, Andres Galarraga and Tim Raines.

Jay Howell, 9-for-9 in previous save chances, was met by Hubie Brooks' run-scoring single. Tim Wallach followed with a sacrifice fly and Mike Fitzgerald's tied it with an RBI single, chasing Howell, 2-3.

Aldrete, batting for Spike Owen, greeted Ray Seearge with a fly ball that scored the go-ahead run.

Joe Hesketh, 4-1, got the victory. Astros 8, Cardinals 4

Ken Caminiti homered and drove in five runs as Houston continued to win away from the Astrodome.

Caminiti hit a two-run homer, a two-run double and an RBI single. He set career highs for hits and RBI.

Danny Darwin, 4-1, got the victory. Scott Terry, 4-4, took the loss.

Caminiti's fourth home run broke a 2-all tie in the seventh. Tom Brunansky hit a two-run homer for St. Louis.

Pirates 2, Reds 0

Doug Drabek shut out Cincinnati for 8 1-3 innings and Randy Kramer finished for his first major-league save as Pittsburgh won at home.

Drabek, 3-5, won for the second time after five straight losses. Rick Mahler, 6-5, was the loser.

Bobby Bonilla hit a solo home run in the sixth inning.

Padres 9, Phillies 3

Ed Whitson won his sixth consecutive decision for his 100th career victory as San Diego sent visiting Philadelphia to its seventh straight loss.

The Padres set season highs with 14 hits and nine runs. Bip Roberts scored four times and Jack Clark hit a two-run double for San Diego.

Whitson, 8-2, is off to the best start in his major-league career.

Don Carman, 1-8, took the loss. Cubs 3, Braves 2

Greg Maddux and Mitch Williams held down slumping Atlanta and Mark Grace singled home Chicago's go-ahead run in the fifth inning.

Maddux, 4-5, gave up five hits and two runs in 7 1-3 innings. Williams got his 13th save.

An error by second baseman Jeff Treadway set up Grace's RBI single in the fifth. Pete Smith, 1-7, had his streak of 26 consecutive scoreless innings against the Cubs stopped.

Abbott wins third straight as Angels edge Brewers, 3-2

By RICK WARNER
AP Sports Writer

American League opponents are starting to talk more about Jim Abbott's left arm than this right hand.

Abbott won his third straight start, limiting Milwaukee to two hits over seven innings in California's 3-2 victory Tuesday night. The only hits off the rookie, born with a deformed right hand, were singles by Rob Deer in the first and Charlie O'Brien in the second.

"The only handicap I saw was us trying to hit the son-of-a-gun," Brewers manager Tom Trebelhorn said. "He shut us out. It speaks for itself. We had two hits and both of them were broken bats."

Abbott, 5-3, has a 1.69 earned-run average in his last three outings. But he still must put up with constant questions about his handicap.

"Maybe if I get through the league one time and prove that pitching is the reason I'm here, maybe the questions will stop," he said.

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Seattle 3, New York 2; Baltimore 6, Texas 2; Oakland 4, Boston 2; Cleveland 6, Toronto 2; Detroit 10, Chicago 3, and Minnesota 7, Kansas City 1.

Abbott was replaced by Greg Minton after walking the first two batters in the eighth. Minton gave up a two-run single to Robin Yount, but retired the next three Brewers to end the inning and Bob McLure pitched the ninth for his first save.

Claudell Washington's sixth homer gave the Angels a 1-0 lead in the first off Bryan Clutterbuck, 2-2. Jack Howell's RBI double in the fourth and Johnny Ray's run-scoring single in the seventh made it 3-0.

Mariners 3, Yankees 2

Ken Griffey Jr. hit two home runs and Randy Johnson won his debut with Seattle.

Griffey hit a solo homer in the second and a two-run shot in the sixth off Jimmy Jones, who also made his American League debut.

Johnson, 1-0, was acquired along with pitchers Brian Holman and Greg Harris from Montreal last Thursday for left-hander Mark Langston. The 6-foot-10 Johnson, 0-4 with Montreal in six starts, allowed two runs and six hits in six innings. He struck out six and walked three.

Athletics 4, Red Sox 2

Dave Stewart became the American League's first nine-game winner and Dave Parker homered and drove in three runs for Oakland.

Lance Blankenship had three hits and an RBI for Oakland, while Parker drove in runs with a homer, a sacrifice fly and a double. Boston starter Mike Smithson, 2-4, gave up 10 hits and three runs in 4 2-3 innings.

Boston's Dwight Evans hit his seventh home run in the sixth. Indians 6, Blue Jays 2

Pete O'Brien capped a five-run fifth inning with a two-run homer and John Farrell, 3-5, broke a personal four-game losing streak.

Toronto's Alex Sanchez, 0-1, was the loser in his second major league start. The Blue Jays took a 2-0 lead in the fifth on RBI singles by Ernie Whit and Rob Ducey, but the Indians rallied for five runs in the bottom of the inning.

Twins 7, Royals 1

Wally Backman had three hits and two RBIs and the Twins scored all their runs in the second inning.

Stan Clarke had trouble in his first major league start. He couldn't get anyone out in the second inning and was charged with all seven runs.

Roy Smith, 4-2, gave up eight hits and struck out four.

Tigers 10, White Sox 3

Keith Moreland hit a three-run homer and Lou Whitaker had a two-run shot as the Tigers handed the White Sox their eighth consecutive home defeat.

Frank Tanana, 5-4, allowed six hits and three runs in 6 1-3 innings.

Jeff Bittiger, 0-1, gave up five runs and four hits over five innings.

Jordan key for Chicago

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) - The Detroit Pistons have mixed emotions about turning the NBA Eastern Conference final into a one-man show.

The Pistons and Chicago Bulls meet tonight in Game 5 at The Palace with the best-of-7 series tied 2-2.

That's mainly because one man, either Chicago's Michael Jordan or Detroit's Isiah Thomas, has been dominating while the other has been held in check.

Jordan scored 32 points as Chicago won Game 1 and 46 as the Bulls overcame a 14-point deficit down the stretch to win Game 3. Thomas, who had a total of 14 points in those two games, scored 33 and 27 in the games the Pistons won.

The storyline seems obvious: stop Jordan and you can beat the Bulls. It's a story that irritates some of Jordan's teammates. "We don't wait around to see how Michael Jordan is going to or how we can compliment him," reserve center Dave Corzine said. "Michael Jordan doesn't control the emotions or play of this entire team. He's just one of five players."

Oh, really? Jordan scored 17 of the Bulls final 23 points in Chicago's comeback win in Game 3. He had an ordinary 5-for-15 shooting day and just two field goals in the last 43 minutes of Game 4.

"When he's not going good, I think it does shift the pressure from the defense right back onto them," Detroit guard Vinnie Johnson said. "When you've got a guy like him, a guy quarterbacking the whole game, playing and controlling everything for 46-47 minutes, you do wait for him. You do look to see what he's gonna do." The main difference between Jordan and Thomas is that Jordan thrives on his offensive fireworks displays. Thomas doesn't. Thomas, in fact, conducted a hasty closed-door meeting following Game 2, telling his teammates they had to pick up more of the slack.

"All I know is I don't want to lose," Thomas said after Game 4. "I've been playing this game for a long time - about 26 years - and I know what I have to do. I got my points today. I got to take the ball to the basket."

"But I don't have to score to be effective. In Game 3, I was effective, but I didn't score and we were up by 14 with seven minutes left. The reason we won (Game 4) was our defense, not my scoring."

The Pistons also do better when they can force Chicago's starters into foul trouble. That allows the Detroit bench to take over.

In Game 4, the Pistons bench outscored Chicago's 36-2 and had a 31-8 edge in rebounds while playing 107 minutes, compared with 45 minutes for the Bulls reserves.

"Detroit really made Michael work," Chicago coach Doug Collins said. "Joe Dumars, Vinnie Johnson and Dennis Rodman took turns on him and Michael really had to work on defense guarding Isiah because he has a big game."

Whether the Pistons will be able to keep Jordan in check again tonight is anybody's guess. During the regular season, Detroit held Jordan to an average of 27.7 points per game and the Pistons beat the Bulls all six times they met.

"When the shots aren't falling, I try to spread it around," Jordan said.

Laker break no vacation

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - The Los Angeles Lakers, the first team in history to enter the NBA Finals without a loss, are taking a 100-mile trip to Santa Barbara. But they won't be on vacation.

The Lakers completed their sweep of the Phoenix Suns in the Western Conference finals with a 122-117 victory last Sunday.

Because they swept the Suns and the Eastern Conference finals won't be finished until Friday night at the earliest, the Lakers will have nine days off to wait for the Finals, which begin next Tuesday night.

The Lakers were scheduled to practice today through Friday at Westmont College in Santa Barbara and return to the Los Angeles area

Saturday. Should the Pistons win the Eastern Conference finals, they'll have the homecourt advantage in the Finals and the Lakers will fly to Detroit on Sunday afternoon for the first two games of the best-of-7 series.

Should the Bulls beat the Pistons, the Lakers will have the homecourt advantage and the first two games will be at the Forum.

The Bulls and Pistons are tied 2-2 heading into tonight's fifth game.

"I look at this as a good opportunity for us," Riley said after Tuesday's practice at the Forum. "We had a long layoff in '82 and nine days in '87. I think the players can use it to their advantage. It's a time to prepare, replenish and hone." Riley said the Pistons went into the Eastern Conference finals after a long layoff, and Detroit coach Chuck Daly said, "they weren't as strong in that first game."

Riley said he has planned long practices and possibly a simulated game.

In polishing off the Suns, the Lakers ran their playoff mark to 11-0. They don't seem to have any great preference which team they meet for the title, aside from the fact that they would have the homecourt advantage against Chicago because they had a better regular-season record than the Bulls.

"I would say I'd only prefer Chicago because it gives us the homecourt advantage," Riley said. "It's not as if we feel we can beat them easier. Both teams are tough."

Asked to compare the two, Riley said: "Detroit's got the defense and the matchups. They match up against us maybe better in key positions than anyone in the league."

"Chicago has enthusiasm, a sense of destiny and Michael Jordan."

Although two of Magic Johnson's closest friends, Isiah Thomas and Mark Aguirre, play for the Pistons, Johnson earlier said he'd like a series against Jordan and the Bulls.

But Johnson later backed off that preference, saying, "It doesn't matter who we play, as long as we're there."

Steroid probe irks S. Car.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) - The University of South Carolina is seeking to quash a subpoena requesting information gathered in a continuing internal probe into the use and distribution of steroids within the athletic department.

Sports Illustrated plans to do likewise - once the magazine is served with the subpoena that's been given to its local attorney in Columbia.

Attorney John Hardaway of Columbia requested that the subpoenas be issued on behalf of his client, John L. Carter of Bethesda, Md. Carter and four former South Carolina football coaches were indicted April 19 following a grand jury probe into the alleged use and distribution of steroids at the university and across the state.

The issue of the subpoenas is expected to be argued at a hearing Thursday, when other matters in the case also are expected to be taken up. The subpoena seeks notes and other material gathered by Sports Illustrated for its article on alleged steroid use by University of South Carolina football players, court records obtained Tuesday show.

But Sports Illustrated attorney Judy

Bass said the magazine had not been served with the subpoena and reiterated that the magazine intended to fight any effort to obtain its notes or other materials.

Carter is charged with distributing steroids to four former South Carolina football players, including Tommy Chaikin. It was a story co-written by Chaikin in the Oct. 24 issue of Sports Illustrated that prompted the grand jury probe.

In the article, Chaikin, who played for South Carolina from 1983 to 1987, said he and other players used steroids and about half the 1986 team used the muscle-building drugs.

The trials for Carter and the four ex-coaches - Tom Gadd, Jim Washburn, Keith Kephart and Tom Kurucz - are scheduled to begin June 19. In the Sports Illustrated subpoena, Hardaway is seeking "any and all notes, rough drafts, interviews, memorandums, statements, tape recordings, videotapes or other documents or items relating to any article entitled, 'The Nightmare of Steroids.'"

Bass said she had not seen the subpoena. "We have not been served," she said in a telephone interview from her New York office. "Nobody has shown up here."

Hardaway said he had given a copy of the subpoena to Columbia lawyer William Pope, who is the magazine's local attorney, and had also mailed a copy to Bass. He said he also was trying to have the subpoena served at the magazine's New York office, but was not sure exactly when that would occur.

Hardaway also is seeking documents, interviews and other material gathered by the university in its internal investigation, which is continuing.

But the school countered with a motion filed Friday to quash the subpoena. The motion says the subpoena would probably "chill the witness interview process and otherwise impair the reasonable effectiveness of this inquiry."

Hardaway disputed that. "I don't know what the status of the investigation is," he said. "But I don't see how revealing anything to me would possibly hurt it."

Social Security

DO YOU HAVE A QUESTION CONCERNING SOCIAL SECURITY? ADDRESS IT TO JIM TALBOT, SOCIAL SECURITY OFFICE, SUITE 16, 3601 W. 15th, AMARILLO, TX. 79102. YOU WILL RECEIVE AN ANSWER IN THIS COLUMN OR BY MAIL.

QUESTION: My doctor recently told me that my lung condition will soon require oxygen to help me breathe. Will Medicare help pay for the oxygen?

ANSWER: Yes. Oxygen equipment is considered durable medical equipment and is covered by Medicare if it is prescribed by your doctor for use in your home. New rules were implemented beginning January 1, 1989 concerning whether durable medical equipment must be rented or purchased. If the equipment costs more than $150, it generally must be rented. Equipment less than $150 can be either purchased or rented. Your Medicare carrier can tell you more about this provision.

QUESTION: How does Medicare arrive at the amounts they determine to be the approved charges?

ANSWER: The charge approved by the carrier will be either: the customary charge (the charge most frequently made by the doctor or supplier for each item or service); the prevailing charge (based on all the customary charges in the locality for each type of service); or the actual charge, whichever is the lowest.

QUESTION: On a recent visit to my dentist, he discovered that gum disease may make necessary the extraction of two of my teeth. Will Medicare pay for this procedure?

ANSWER: Medicare generally does not pay for tooth extractions. It pays only for dental care involving surgery of the jaw or related structures, the setting of fractures of the jaw or facial bones, or services that would be covered when provided by a doctor. If the tooth extractions will require a hospital stay, Medicare can cover the stay, even if the dental procedure itself is not covered by Medicare. Your Medicare carrier can provide you with additional details.

QUESTION: I am a 65-year-old widow who recently became entitled to SSI benefits in addition to my Social Security widow's benefit. Now I am eligible for Medicaid as well as Medicare. If I apply to Medicare or Medicaid?

ANSWER: Your hospital will submit your claims directly to Medicare--you cannot submit claims for their services. If you qualify for both programs, Medicaid can pick up where Medicare leaves off. For instance, Medicaid can pay the deductible as well as those parts of medical expenses not covered by Medicare but which are included in your State's Medicaid program. In some States, Medicaid will pay the Medicare beneficiary's medical insurance premium.

QUESTION: I will be getting married in July. When should I contact Social Security about changing my name in their records?

ANSWER: Changing your name in Social Security records from your maiden name to your married name will require proof of your marriage, which most likely will be your marriage certificate. As soon as possible after you return from your wedding trip, contact a Social Security office and bring with you your original marriage certificate and apply for a new Social Security card.

Care tips on evergreens, "shady" plants presented

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Last summer's heat and drought may have damaged your evergreen plants - and if the winter was rugged in your area, this could have been intensified, since evergreens continue to lose moisture through the year.

Even yews - one of the most popular evergreens in home landscapes and one with few past problems - have had inner needles turn brown or growing tips die back. Ray Rothenberger, a horticulturist at the University of Missouri Extension Service, said that last fall, a mix of brown outer shoots with green inner needles was evident, and in some cases, entire branches (and occasionally entire plants) have died.

Yews suffer when soils are extremely wet or dry for long periods. Such conditions kill roots. Rothenberger said the extent of damage showing on the tops would depend on root damage.

He advises: "If damage is not too great, selective pruning to remove dead or dying branches is the first step to recovery. Water thoroughly. Unless there are extensive fall rains, all evergreens can benefit from watering just before soil freezes.

"Many evergreens have relatively shallow root systems, especially where the native soil is heavy clay. Unless there is plenty of soil moisture, the shallow roots are unable to absorb water as fast as it is lost through the needles, and needle browning and drop result. Evergreens in shade or protected from prevailing winter winds are less subject to this type of damage since their water loss is reduced."

Spruces also may show drought damage. Excess needle drop indicates a need for help, Rothenberger said. If damage is slight, natural or added water is important. Careful watering this summer, when conditions are hot and dry, will be critical.

"Do not water trees such as spruce and pine only close to the trunk," he advises. "Wet the entire area beneath the tree and beyond the entire branch spread."

Pines tend to lose internal needles naturally in October, but excess loss of needles all the way to the ends of branches indicates damage. If the entire tree turns brown, it is too late for help.

Rothenberger says that while heat and drought can be blamed for much evergreen damage, normal pest problems should not be ruled out entirely.

Growing in Shade

Don't despair if your garden doesn't get sunlight all day. Some flowers and vegetables will produce in areas that get partial light.

Try ferns, mosses and wood violets where there is little penetration of sunlight.

Plants that tolerate considerable shade include tuberous and wax begonias, coleus and impatiens. These will do quite well in the shade of mature trees or on the north side of a wall or fence.

Plant salvia, an annual, fibrous begonias, nicotiana (flowering tobacco) and impatiens in partial or dappled shade. Also, spring-flowering bulbs - tulips, daffodils, crocus and grape hyacinths - do well near trees because they flower before the trees are fully leafed.

Leafy vegetables such as lettuce, spinach and other greens, and root crops, including carrots, beets, turnips and radishes, have the best chance in shaded gardens. Crops that do poorly in shade are those that produce fruits or seed pods, such as beans, squash, peppers, eggplant and tomatoes.

Harder welcomed as guest

Deaf Smith County extension agent, Beverly Harder, was welcomed as a special guest when members of Cultural Extension Homemakers Club met Friday in the Golden K Room of the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

During the club's final meeting of the season, President Byrdie Fellers voiced the prayer and Perry Keyes gave a reading entitled "Sermons We See."

It was announced that Jewell Hargrave had been elected first alternate delegate to the state meeting planned in September. Also, it was decided that Ruth Gandy will serve as hostess at the first fall meeting.

Others attending included Tillie Scott, Fannie Townsend, Naomi Hare, Vernis Parsons, Edith Hunter, Jewel Rogers, Gandy and Hargrave.

BOSTON (AP) - Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney was honored at the John F. Kennedy Library and given a bronze bust of the slain president, a gift the Kennedy family reserves for world leaders.

Speaking at the library Wednesday, Mulroney described his youthful affection for a fellow Irish Catholic politician as "vicarious ambition." He said JFK had moved him personally and inspired his career.

Man Caught With Classified Information

Claims information regularly published

Neighbors today were surprised to learn Melvin Kline, a seemingly quiet, well-mannered man was making extra money with classified information. When questioned earlier this morning, Kline professed surprise that everyone wasn't using the classified section to earn extra income and get rid of unwanted items.

"It's common," he said. Recent studies tend to bear Kline out. Consumer Data Service reported that over 85% of the public read the newspaper and over 80% of those read the classifieds. Kline claimed widespread use was being made of the classified information. "But you have to act quickly," he remarked.

"If I have something to sell, I can be in the paper by tomorrow. I do that a lot now," he confessed. "With classified, whether I'm buying or selling, I can reach a large market instantly. And it's easy...just pick up the phone."

When asked if price mattered at all, Kline stated he was in possession of Consumer Data Service documents that indicated newspaper readership increases as income increases. "The more money they make, the more they read the paper," he said, "and I can prove it."

Asked for a last comment, Kline replied "No matter what you're looking for, a new job, a great car, merchandise, or even a home, take a long look at the classified section."

Local confesses he profited from classified information in newspaper

"Sure, I've made some money from classified information, but so can anyone who reads the paper."

The information's all there." Response Analysis Corp. studies indicate the public does exactly that, with 98% preferring the newspaper over radio and 68% preferring the newspaper instead of TV.

Kline was last seen in the company of an unidentified man carrying two outboard motors.

WTSU receives grant

West Texas State University has received a grant from the American Enterprise Forum for Economic Understanding to conduct a special program which will deal with the government and the economy. The six-hour, graduate level program is designed mainly for social studies teachers. It will be offered during the first summer term of 1989, with registration on June 5. Two courses will be offered, Problems in American National Government at noon, and Comparative Political and Social Systems at 2:15 p.m. Dr. Roy Thoman, director of the program, said the courses will give students an opportunity to learn about interaction between government and the private sector in a professional seminar atmosphere, and said the program may have career ladder benefits.

Senator Teel Bivins Reports

AUSTIN - It was the high point of my legislative career to date. It happened while the Senate was meeting as a Committee of the Whole considering the issue of workers' compensation insurance reform. But let me start at the beginning. The Texas workers' compensation insurance system is in the ditch and in desperate need of major reform. The House of Representatives addressed the issue in House Bill 1 which was voted out of the House in February. There has been strong division of opinion within the Senate on how to best reform the system. Lt. Governor Hobby referred the matter to a Committee of the Whole Senate and then created a subcommittee chaired by Senator Bob Glasgow. Senator Glasgow along with Representative Richard Smith co-chaired the Joint House/Senate Interim Study Committee on Workers' Compensation Reform. The seven member subcommittee voted out the reform bill known as the Glasgow bill by the narrow margin of 4 to 3. It soon became apparent that Senator Glasgow's bill would not be able to garner the necessary 21 votes to pass the Senate. This group over the course of 4 or 5 days negotiated a new bill that was far more favorable to labor and the interests of trial lawyers. Senator Ted Lyon emerged as the principal proponent of the new bill. Lt. Governor Hobby signed on as one of the bill's coauthors. His principal motivation was to get a bill out of the Senate. By lending his name to the bill its passage was virtually assured. Now back to the Committee of the Whole. Senator Ted Lyon laid out the new Senate bill and a series of some 34 amendments to the bill that the bill's authors favored. Those of us that favored the more moderate Glasgow bill voted against many of the amendments. Typically, however, the vote ran to 18 to 12 in favor of adopting the amendments. Losing vote after vote made for a long afternoon. Amendment Number 28 struck from the bill a provision which would have allowed small businesses to purchase workers' compensation insurance policies with a

Many of you are already working in the yard trying to decide what to do with the problem areas. We may have the solution to your problems. Q&A: Hundreds of Can-Dos Answers to a Gardener's Toughest Questions by the editors of Organic Gardening Magazine and Rodale's Landscape Problem Solver: A Plant-by-Plant Guide by Jeff and Liz Ball will answer questions pertaining to the height a lawn should be mowed, what is causing the tree leaves to turn yellow, pests or lack of nutrition and even what plants are suited for different soil types and degrees of sunlight. You are also given ideas on what kinds of plants grow well together and how they might be arranged. I'm sure after following some of the suggestions given in these books the "Beauty, Spot" award will soon be yours.

For the wood worker that wants to add a little something extra to their yards and gardens we have Outdoor Furniture by Nick Engler. There are several pieces in this book I would love to have. The author of Dreams are not Enough, Jacqueline Briskin has a new one entitled The Naked Heart. When a family caught in war-torn France at the time of Nazi occupation is arrested and taken for interrogation, the father soon realizes that someone who knows him well and who has a grudge has informed half-truths to the SS. At the time of the brutal interrogation the daughter promises "For as long as I live, Father, the betrayer's family will suffer." Gilberta, subjected to unspeakable brutality, witnesses the death of her parents by torture. All that sustains her is a passion to fulfill the oath she made to her father. This need for vengeance pursues her through the decades, leaving a wake of tragedy. This is an electrifying tale of love and revenge with characters that will not be forgotten soon.

Garden of Lies was written by the year's most exciting new novelist, Eileen Goudge. This mesmerizing debut features Sylvie Rosenthal with a dark secret. On a July night in 1943 Sylvie Rosenthal gives birth to a dark-haired baby girl she knows is not her husband's. When a fire rages through the hospital that night Sylvie claims a newborn blonde baby of a dead woman as her own, leaving her own child to be raised by strangers. Rose, Sylvie's real daughter, grows up in Brooklyn in genteel poverty tending a hateful grandmother. Tutored by the brilliant Max Griffin, Rose becomes a successful lawyer. Rachel, raised as Sylvie's daughter in an elegant, wealthy home, dedicates her life to medicine. Scarred by a disastrous romance, Rachel volunteers to serve in Vietnam and there falls in love with a wounded soldier. Then the deception of the past threatens to destroy Rachel. In search for help Rachel employs the successful lawyer Rose Aantini to assist her in finding the truth of her past. The full story explodes in a searing courtroom drama where the dark secret is revealed at last. This new novelist is one you may want to watch for.

In Trophy For Eagles by Walter Boyne the exciting and romantic story of the pioneering men and women who devoted and sacrificed their lives to conquer the sky. Among these daring men and women are: Frank Bandfield, a boy wonder who possesses a unique combination of flying and engineering skills and an idealism that often gets him into trouble; Bruno Hafner, a German WWI ace who is a dangerous and unscrupulous flyer and business man with a killer instinct; Charles Lingbergh, Howard Hughes and Amelia Earhart. These sworn enemies will fight it out in the sky and on the ground, setting records for distance, speed and human endurance. From the first race to cross the Atlantic this saga of the air competitions, dog-fights, test flights, love and passion catches the exhilaration and the fear of flying. The reader will find this historical novel "rich in drama, accurate in facts, realistic in detail, and very entertaining to read."

Nylons woven into fabric of women's lives

NEW YORK (AP) - Macy's New York and Hanes Hosiery recently celebrated an anniversary that is only a footnote in history - except where fashion and industry are concerned. It was 50 years ago that Macy's began selling nylon stockings to the New York woman. It didn't take long for them to become woven into the fabric of women's lives across America. Until 1939, there was nothing but wool; cotton's stronger sister lisle, and silk, finer but easier to run. In 1935 DuPont invented a synthetic called "no run," later nylon. Word spread of its incredible properties of stretch, durability and transparency, and American women were pre-sold.

Nylon stockings were exhibited at 1939 World's Fairs in New York and San Francisco and went on sale to the masses in May. According to DuPont, the cost was $1.15 a pair, compared with 65 cents for silk. Stocks of the most-wanted sizes sold out in less than a week.

By the time Japan attacked Pearl Harbor, nylon was well on its way to breaking the Japanese silk industry monopoly on hosiery fibers. When the United States went to war, it took its nylon with it - for parachutes, tents and other military uses - leaving women to cope with thick baggy rayon stockings or bare legs.

When the war ended in 1945, it took several months for production to gear up to meet even a fraction of the demand. As small supplies trickled into the stores, thousands of women lined up in the hope of getting even one pair.

By 1948, supply was meeting demand, and only a decade after its introduction, nylon accounted for 85 percent of all hosiery produced in the United States. Early stockings were seamed because they were knit flat, but advanced technology allowed nylon to be knitted in a tube - today a knitting machine can turn out a stocking tube every 45 seconds. The tube, of course, led to seamless stockings, and by 1960 full-fashion hosiery was on its way out.

Miniskirts presented new challenges for the industry in the 1960s. They were met not only with colors, patterns and textures but with what was meant to be another novelty: pantyhose. The novelty has yet to wear off. Pantyhose command at least a 70 percent share of the market with more than 120 million dozen pair annually. Now, a generation that has known nothing but pantyhose - and occasionally knee highs - is getting a kick out of "high highs," a new name for an old product.

High highs, of course, are sheerer and fit better than their forerunner, thanks to Lycra spandex, and they can be worn with or without the garters, garter belts or girdles that the '60s women were so eager to shed.

No one knows what will be next. But by the time you read this sentence 176 pairs of pantyhose will have been sold.

Crazy about nylons

American women, deprived of nylon stockings during World War II, engulfed department stores once they were re-stocked. In San Francisco, this young woman couldn't wait to get home to put on her new stockings. (Courtesy of DuPont)

HUSTLE HEREFORD

AZTX chief has been full cycle in industry

stand up and carry his part of the load...generally, it is the people on the cutting edge who really get into associations and make them work."

NCA work is demanding--59 out of the first 100 days but Josserrand has a disciplined gait that can cover many miles...maybe a half million or more before 1990. He relies heavily on an efficient staff, from software processors on Park Avenue to penriders of the feedyards.

Josserrand has handled the full cycle of the cattle industry, from the corrals of a Central Kansas farm to head honcho of NCA and at one time was head of one of the largest agricultural conglomerates ever put together in the Southwest. But despite his roles as a national livestock leader, the 57-year-old Josserrand never hesitates to credit much of AZTK's success to his partner, Milton Rudder, who is also known nationwide for his expertise in the cattle feeding business.

Though Josserrand's agrigusiness career began on a low profile of county extension agent and small-town banker, he moved with the biggest as the cattle feeding industry mushroomed across the Southwest during the late 1960s.

For a time in the 1970s, he ran the show on yearling and cow-calf operations that involved more than a million acres of rangeland from Nevada to Mississippi, backstopped with cattle feeding operations in four states.

"All I do now is feed cattle," said Josserrand, as he spoke in a low-key voice. "In fact, I have no hobbies--all I do is run AZTX Cattle Co.--cattle feeding has been good to me, I understand the problems and appreciate the good points."

Josserrand was born in Pratt, Kan., on June 24, 1931, to Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Josserrand. His father being a farmer and cattle order buyer, young Josserrand was taught the fundamentals of the Livestock business early in life, and by the time he had finished elementary and high schools at Pratt, where he played tackle on the football team, Josserrand had his own herd of cattle by the time he graduated from high school.

"I was born about the beginning of the duststorms, but I really don't remember too much about them," he said while recalling days of his youth at Pratt. "We always ran cattle along with the farming and order buying."

After graduating from high school in 1949, Josserrand enrolled at Colorado A&M at Fort Collins, and graduated from there in 1953 with a degree in animal science. He was a member of the livestock and wool judging teams while at Fort Collins, and judged in stock shows at Denver, Fort Worth, Kansas City, and Chicago.

After graduating from Colorado, A&M, Josserrand joined the U.S. Air Force just at the peak of the Korean Conflict, and while stationed on the West Coast, he met Nancy Peterson of Loveland, Colo. They were married the following year.

"I went into service immediately after college and met my wife in Oakland, Calif.," said Josserrand. "I went to school for four years within 20 miles of where she lived and then met her in California."

"The reason I wound up in California was that I was in the Air Force and they did not know what to do with someone who did not want to fly and had an animal science degree," said Josserrand with a grin. "So, to make a security officer out of me, they sent me to Parks Air Force Base in California for training. A bunch of the people I went out there with ended up in Korea, but I stayed in the states."

He was mustered out of the Air Force in 1956 at Tucson, Ariz. "I wanted to stay in Arizona and my wife wanted to come back to Colorado," Josserrand said. "Jobs weren't all that plentiful at that time, so I ended up as assistant county agent of Baca County Colorado at Springfield."

The Josserrands spent 18 months at Springfield and in 1957 moved to Julesburg, Colo., as an extension agent of Sedgwick County in the Northeast corner of the state. He held this post until going to work for a feedyard owned by Gib Smyth near Julesburg.

"I think I spent three years with Gib," said Josserrand. "He fed a lot of lightweights and heiferettes. Then I went to work for the First National Bank of Julesburg as a loan officer...I guess I was there three or four years."

Josserrand pointed out that work in the bank was good training for his future career in the cattle feeding business... "I was making strictly agricultural loans, so it really helped me."

Josserrand moved back to Kansas in 1967 and became general manager of the Haskell Land Co., which was located about half way between Satanta and Garden City.

"Haskell had this big chunk of undeveloped land out there, and they wanted it developed for irrigation farming," said Josserrand. "They also wanted a cattle operation built to utilize the roughage and pasture."

"I ended up in developing almost all the land into irrigation--they had one quarter of irrigated land when I moved there, and when I left, we had about 4,000 acres under irrigation."

He also built three feedyards for the Haskell Land Co., for a total capacity of about 15,000 head. The farming operation was spread out in three separate chunks of land, with a feed yard built on each tract.

"At that point in time, we were using pretty much straight Hereford and Angus cattle in the feed yards," Josserrand said as he told how they later shifted to the Okies.

While in Kansas, Josserrand was one of the leaders who formed the Kansas Cattle Feeders Council which became a part of the Kansas Livestock Association and now a dominant part of the KLA.

Josserrand left the Haskell Cattle Co. in 1971 when he moved to Hereford to take over as regional manager of W.R. Grace's Farr Better Feeds operations which included the state of Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

It was during this time that the Texas cattle feeding industry spawned into one of the "Big Three" as investors and bountified cattlemen became linked in "cattle clubs" across the Southwest.

He stayed with Farr for 18 months, and then went to work as president of Prochemco Cattle Co., a division of Prochemco, Inc., an agricultural-petroleum conglomerate headquartered in Amarillo.

Prochemco had been formed earlier by a group of investors, headed at that time by Paul Engler of Hereford who had merged the Hereford Feed Yard with an oil company of Borger, Tx. When Engler later sold his interest in the company, Josserrand said, the firm hired Scott Spangler to run the oil production and hired Josserrand to run the cattle end of the business.

Prochemco owned Hereford Feed Yard, Heaton Feed Yard near Pampa, the old Sooner Beef Co. near Guymon, Okla., and Mid-America Feed Yard near Bruning, Neb., with the firm having about 150,000 head feeding capacity. Josserrand's official title was vice president of Prochemco and president of Prochemco Cattle Co.

"Engler, Spangler and Jim Witherspoon of Hereford were the three who actually hired me," said Josserrand, as he recounted the shift of ownership of Prochemco during the early 1970s. "In addition to the feedyards, they also had a ranch in Mississippi, north of New Orleans about 80 miles, that ran about 5,000 yearlings and about 1,700 mother cows."

Prochemco also had a 150,000 acre ranch in Montana which was in the process of being sold about the time he joined the firm.

"The ranch managers and feedyard managers reported directly to me on the individual operations," said Josserrand, as he told how they kept control of 150 employees in the various divisions. "I had two other men, one who went out and hustled customers and one handled the buying of feeder cattle, futures and such."

"A funny thing that happened was that I had gone to work for them (Prochemco) in August of 1973 just as the crash (beef prices) was getting ready to come about, and we had all those feed yards full of fund cattle, investor cattle and company-owned cattle--none were hedged--and when that thing (crash) was all over, I had four feed yards damn near empty."

He said they had filled their pens with company-owned cattle and investor cattle during the early 1970s and "had mostly ignored the farmer-rancher feeders."

"I ended up in late 1974 with four empty feedyards, and had to start again," he said. "The investors ran for cover, and at that time, I wondered why I ever left the bank and a safe company like W.B. Grace because I really didn't know if we were going to survive...I questioned my judgment pretty heavily."

Josserrand said, in looking back on progress of the firm, there was some humor involved--"They made a decision in 1972 to get out of the oil business pretty much and stay in the cattle end...it was just exactly the wrong decision to make...In 1973 and 1974 the cattle business went to hell and right after that the oil started picking up."

As the cattle company became larger, Josserrand told of the merger between Arizona, Colorado Land Co., (AZL) and Prochemco: "at the time we took over operations of AZL we had Texas Beef (near Sunray) plus Hughes & Ganz, out at Chandler, Ariz."

"We had been leasing the Sooner Beef Yard so we let that lease go, and now we had Hughes & Ganz, Texas Beef, Hereford, Heaton, and Mid-America...this was around 1979."

Josserrand remained as president of the Prochemco Cattle Co. up until the firm merged with AZL in 1979--Prochemco was over-the-counter trading stock and AZL was on the American Stock Exchange, so the two firms merged under the name of AZL.

"After we began to recover from the years of 1973 and 1974, we said never again would we put all our eggs in one basket," said Josserrand.

Josserrand said he hasn't forgotten the lean years of the late 1970s. Occupancy levels were terrible... "when we would get up to 60 percent full we really thought we had accomplished something."

He pointed out how many feedyards went out of business or changed ownership during the 1970s, and told how during this time there came a great shift in feeding rations--moving heavily toward corn, alfalfa and cotton by-products.

Through the 1970s, Josserrand traveled extensively throughout the nation promoting beef through the Beef Industry Council as a director for the National Live Stock and Meat Board. He was also a member of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association headquartered in Fort Worth.

After the 1979 merger, Josserrand became a vice president of AZL on Jan. 1, 1980, and president of AZL Cattle Co., with headquarters remaining in the old Rule Building at 3rd and Polk in downtown Amarillo. During this ensuing time, the conglomerate sold Heaton Feed Yard and Texas Beef Feed yard and purchased Farwell Feed Yards.

The merger also added more than a million acres of rangeland--250,000 acres in the San Luis Valley and Pueblo-Colorado Springs areas of Colorado, three ranches in Arizona and one in Nevada which had between 350,000 and 400,000 acres. He said it took about 40 people to run the Nevada operation. The Arizona ranches included a 50,000-acre cow-calf operation near Winslow, and two desert ranches near Phoenix. At this point, the cattle company was running mother cows on every ranch, but this was later changed to yearling operations.

"We never showed any profit in the cows," said Josserrand. "After I took over we started selling ranches--sold the Nevada ranch off first, then the one near Pueblo, then the three Arizona ranches."

On Jan. 1, 1983, AZL was sold to a firm called TOSCO, an oil and gas refining company, headquartered in Los Angeles. By this time, AZL holdings also included such investments as Farmhand Machinery, Murry-Carver Cotton Gin Equipment, Angel Fire resort in New Mexico and International Energy Development Corp.

Josserrand said that after TOSCO purchased the vast conglomerates, the West Coast firm set about selling off the "high risk" segments of AZL. These included feedyards, ranch land, farm machinery, cotton ginning machinery and the Angel Fire Resort.

In April, 1983, Josserrand and partners bought AZL Cattle Co., which by this time included four feedyards, for $7.5 million. The feedyards included Hereford, Hughes & Ganz, Farwell and Mid-America. He named the new firm AZTX Cattle Co. and moved the headquarters to Hereford in Aug. 1983. "The day we bought AZL Cattle Co., we turned around and sold Mid-America Feedyard to the man who was running it," said Josserrand.

AZTX Cattle Co. now includes cattle feeding operations at Hereford, Farwell, Rocky Ford, Colo., and Queen Creek, Ariz. With Josserrand as president and Rudder as vice president, the widespread feeding units are operated under residential managers at each point, with monthly reports funneled into the Hereford headquarters.

The Josserrands have four children. Joan (Mrs. Kim Poarch) lives in Amarillo, Doug is a loan officer for the First National Bank of Hereford, John is with Northwest Financial in Amarillo and Barry is an officer of BancCentral in Amarillo.

Though Rudder hasn't moved in as many industry promotions as Josserrand, he has been an executive of the cattle business for more than a quarter century. Born and reared in Pine Bluff, Ariz., Rudder attended the University of Arkansas and wound up serving with the U.S. Air Force in Saudi Arabia in the early 1950s. Upon returning home from war, Rudder went to work for Armour & Co. in management training and served 13 years in cattle buying.

Rudder moved to Lubbock in 1965 as a cattle buyer with Supreme Beef. In 1967 he joined the old Easley Feedyards out west of Hereford, a custom feeding unit which later became known as the Pitman-Easley Feedyards and now a part of the Barrett-Crofoot custom feeding operations of the Hereford area. Rudder joined Friona Industries in 1977 and in 1983, teamed up with Josserrand and three others on the AZL acquisition--"And now it's just Bob and I in the business."

"Bob has to travel a lot in the beef promotional work but he's the type of guy who sits down and lays out long-range working plans for us to work toward," said Rudder. "Our company is integrated with some real fine people trained in the different areas of our business (financing, accounting, etc.) so it isn't quite as complicated or difficult to operate during Bob's many absences as it may seem from the outside."

Rudder and his wife, Betty, have four children. The eldest daughter, Lisa, lives at Bennett, Colo., Katie, a flight attendant for Delta, lives in Kansas City, David lives in Durango, Colo., and Carol is a sophomore at Texas A&M.

"I wouldn't live anywhere else," said Rudder, in reviewing the Hereford community. "I lived in a lot of cities when Armour moved me around--Chicago, Oklahoma City, Houston, Kansas City--but I've never lived anywhere that would compare to Hereford. When I arrived in Hereford, I found a home."

Milton Rudder

"We're only about an hour away from the best airport in the world and have an airport of our own that will handle about anything but the big commercials," Rudder said. "Hereford is a little different than most of the smaller cities in that it attracts a lot of young people. These related businesses to the huge agricultural industry of Hereford have attracted the younger set which every town needs to keep a built-in growth factor going. The young people have contributed greatly to the growth of the Hereford community."

Josserrand and Rudder believe Hereford will continue to be a pillar in the nation's beef industry, showing where America's Beef Belt is directly entwined with commodity production... "Hereford is sort of the Number One place to be."

Conway Oil is new Exxon distributor in Hereford

Conway Oil Company President Jim Conway, Chevron and Exxon distributor in Tucumcari and Clovis, N.M., has expanded his operation to Hereford with the purchase of the R.L. Blakely Exxon distributorship.

Ed Lacey of Hereford will be general manager.

"We would not be here unless we made a commitment to Exxon regarding upgrading our retail Exxon Branded facilities," Lacey said. "This will benefit both us and our community. It's not an overnight project, we plan to do it right."

Exxon has gone through some tough public relation times recently, Lacey said, but Conway Oil is an independent distributor committed to delivering gasoline, diesel, and lubricants to our customers with the best service possible. "Our customer base is very important to us from the independent dealers that fly the Exxon sign to the farm, industrial, and commercial customers we service," Lacey said.

"I was proud to tell Conway about the positive spirit of the people in Hereford, you walk into a business and everyone greets you with smiles 'Good morning, Good afternoon.'"

Lacey said Conway is not timid about spending money. "You can see that in his plans for the $2.6 million Auto/Truck McStop, the first in the Southwest, in conjunction with the local McDonalds in Tucumcari, with construction to begin August 1, 1989, Casey said, "Conway just completed a $50,000 investment in a card lock fueling facility in Clovis."

"I plan to be the next in line for the dollars to come to Hereford."

Conway is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame with degrees in Accounting and Finance and resides with his wife Kay Belle in Albuquerque, but spends most of his time in Hereford, Clovis, and Tucumcari with the Exxon and Chevron operations.

Lacey and his wife Priscilla reside in Hereford and are graduates of the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga, with degrees in Business Administration and Education. Priscilla has been teaching the Special Education students at Shirley school since last August. Their oldest daughter, Ann, is arriving in Hereford next Wednesday, after her freshman year at Bowling Green State University-Ohio. "I believe when she arrives," Lacey said, and adds the summer with her mother, she's going to school closer to home, probably Texas Tech. "Lori is graduating this year from Hereford High. School and plans to attend Texas Tech next year. Lori played on the golf team

It takes two . . . The Chamber & You

BY ROCKY LEE
PRESIDENT, DEAF SMITH COUNTY C OF C

Dr. Herb True points out the importance of team effort in a story about the famous Clydesdale horses: "One Clydesdale can pull 8,000 pounds. Two horses together can pull 18,000 pounds, but they resent working as a team. Trainers say that if they have a week to train the horses to work together as a team, they can pull 25,000 pounds."

This simple story illustrates a significant point about teamwork. We all have seen people who pull their share of the load, but for various reasons don't offer their efforts willingly to a team. It is easy to see why teamwork is essential for success in sports.

No better example exists than the championship Hereford baseball team. Congratulations to them! They believe in themselves, never give up, and they work together as a team.

We often fail to realize that teamwork is just as important in all areas of our lives. All of us are proud of the area where we live. This is the No. 1 agricultural county in the state. This is the "Town Without a Toothache." The many things we have come about because of people who worked together in a spirit of teamwork. Our churches, our schools, our businesses, our industries, etc., are not here by accident. They are the best and they are here because of teamwork.

Your Chamber of Commerce (not the Chamber of Commerce) is a group of dedicated citizens trying to make this area we live in even better. Many are involved in this effort. Many are not. Are you? Please go by the Chamber office and acquaint yourself with what the Chamber is doing.

During the first part of this year, the various committees have been very busy. Many community projects and functions have been initiated. The Health & Safety committee, chaired by Sharon Pennington, held a get-acquainted and appreciation reception for our fine medical personnel. The Sports committee, chaired by James Self, helped sponsor the All-Sports Banquet. This was a huge success with about 1,000 in attendance as our high school athletes were honored.

The Industrial committee, chaired by Bud Eades, continues to contact outside industrial prospects, work with businesses in the county with expansion ideas, and build a data base of information for inquiring industries. The Agri-business committee, chaired by Lewis Block, is putting into place the popular Farmer's Market. This was a well-received project last year.

The Retail Merchants' committee, chaired by Ken McLain, sponsored a very successful business seminar. More than 100 people attended. The committee has another seminar planned soon. This group is also working with the city on plans for beautifying our city. These plans include weed control, removal of unsightly and hazardous buildings and renovation of others. The Human Relations committee, with Larry Malamen as the Chamber liaison, has made several preliminary plans for strengthening and improving race relations in our community. The Hustlers, chaired by Speedy Nieman, are visiting the different businesses in Hereford and Deaf Smith County to express the Chamber's support and appreciation of companies who've helped the community grow and prosper. They are also welcoming new businesses with ribbon-cutting ceremonies.

Many good things are happening in our community. Have you seen the parks on Hiway 385 that the Kiwanians have put in? There is a sense of community spirit building in Hereford and Deaf Smith County. The Chamber of Commerce offers each of us a chance to join the team.

This is our town. This is our county. It is our Chamber of Commerce. If you are not already a member of the team, won't you join?
