Diplomats scramble as summit approaches

By BRIAN MURPHY
Associated Press Writer

Ten days away from a U.N. deadline for Iraq to quit Kuwait or risk attack, the United States and Iraq Saturday prepared for high-level talks amid a global diplomatic crusade to avert a Persian Gulf war.

The head of the United Nations planned to meet with President Bush Saturday, while other proposals urge a Mideast peace conference in return for Kuwait's liberation.

The flurry of possible alternatives to war pushed oil prices to below $25 a barrel, the lowest level since shortly after the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

But fear of an Iraqi-inspired global terrorist campaign in the event of war has led more airlines to suspend Middle East service and forced increased security precautions on some North Sea oil rigs.

Bush on Friday welcomed Iraq's acceptance Friday of direct talks as "a useful step," but ruled out any negotiations over the occupation of Kuwait.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III is scheduled to meet with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz in Geneva on Wednesday, less than a week before the U.N.-imposed Jan. 15 deadline for Iraq to withdraw from the emirate or face the threat of war.

"If they totally comply they will not be attacked," Bush promised Friday before boarding a helicopter for the Camp David retreat in Maryland.

The president ruled out the idea of Baker going on from Geneva to Baghdad to see Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Bush planned a national radio address on the gulf situation Saturday from Camp David, where he is scheduled to meet with U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

Bush said he plans to "compare notes" with Perez de Cuellar, who met Friday with Iraqi ambassador, Abdul Amir Al-Anbari. Perez de Cuellar said Friday that "this is not the right moment" for a new peace proposal.

But the U.N. General Assembly president, Guido De Marco, on Friday urged an international Mideast peace conference that would encompass the issues of Palestinians in Israeli-occupied lands.

Marco, who is visiting Palestinian refugee camps, said he believed Israel eventually would reverse its strong opposition to such a meeting.

Saddam has sought to link a gulf settlement to discussions on the Palestinian issue. Bush on Friday reiterated his opposition to such a linkage, but the United States last month voted in favor of a U.N. resolution that included a non-binding endorsement of a Mideast peace conference.

Also Friday, the United States and the other 14 U.N. Security Council members supported a council statement deploring the killings of at least six Palestinian civilians by Israeli security forces last weekend.

In the past, the United States usually vetoed Security Council measures against Israel.

In Luxembourg, French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas proposed the European Community hold immediate talks with Aziz and promise an international conference on Mideast issues once Kuwait was freed. The White House said it would study the French proposal.

The 12-nation EC voted Friday, however, to offer to meet Aziz the

Storm leaves area

Hereford awakened to a most-welcome sight, sunshine, Saturday morning as an ice storm pulled out of the region.

Skies were expected to remain mostly clear for the rest of the weekend. Temperatures in the 40s on Saturday were to cool back into the 30s on Sunday as another, dry, cold front enters the region.

Hereford police reported only one minor accident on Friday, but there were some near-misses. Most major intersections in the city had been sanded and salted by road crews to help avoid accidents.

Outside the city, roads were sanded, but the freezing drizzle kept falling throughout the day and into the night Friday, leaving road crews behind.

There was at least one major accident, near Dawn where two persons were injured in a two-car accident at about 5:30 p.m.

The ice storm, which struck with unexpected vigor, forced Friday's District 1-4A basketball opener with Dumas, here, to be postponed to Monday because of storm. JV tournament games scheduled Friday were postponed to Saturday because of hazardous conditions.

TSBGA meet scheduled here

"Know Your Partner" is the theme for the annual Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association meeting and banquet to be held Jan. 18-19 at the Bull Barn in Hereford.

The close "partnership" between Imperial Holly and regional beet growers helped bring a record crop of more than one million tons in 1990. Imperial Holly officials and growers will discuss the banner crop year and how production can be improved even more during the annual business meeting at 9:30 a.m. Jan. 18 at the Hereford Community Center.

The general public will be invited to join the celebration at the annual banquet Saturday, Jan. 19, beginning at 7 p.m. in the Bull Barn, where Denny Kempner, Imperial Holly board chairman in Sugar Land, will be the keynote speaker and Robert (Bob) Gadberty, noted humorist from Wichita, Kan., will be the principal speaker. Tickets will soon be available.

"Never before has the relationship between growers and our processing partner, Imperial Holly, been as important--or as strong--as it is now," said Bill Cleavinger, TSBGA president. "The meeting and banquet will give all of us an opportunity to get to know our 'partners' even better."

Kempner is expected to address the expansion program at the Hereford Holly plant in which a $12 million ion exclusion facility is being built. The facility, expected to be operational for this year's crop, will enable the plant to extract 10 percent more sugar from beets produced in the region.

"Mr. Kempner is recognized as one of the world's leading voices for the sugar industry," said Cleavinger. "His family has successfully operated Imperial for many years." The company is the oldest existing business in Texas, having been in

State of the State Richards ready to govern

AUSTIN (AP) - Having defeated her Republican rival in November, Ann Richards is preparing to deliver on the campaign promises she made.

But she says she's not yet accustomed to her new title as governor.

"You know, I don't really think of myself in those terms. And the truth of the matter is that I think of this more as a job than a title," the Democrat said recently.

"There's so much work to be done that I've spent all of my time in trying to put the job together and the staff together. Most people call me Ann, anyway."

Gov.-elect Ann Richards is blunt on crime: "If you do the crime, you'll do the time." She's also ready to push hard for ethics reform and a lottery that could bolster the treasury.

It's going to be a big job. The government she takes control over faces a $3.9 billion budget deficit and court orders on public schools and state mental health care.

She promised voters reform of government ethics laws and insurance rates. She called for creation of a state lottery. She pledged to protect the environment.

And she will be filling dozens of vacancies on the boards that oversee state agencies.

When she takes the oath of office on Jan. 15, Richards will become the first woman governor since Miriam "Ma" Ferguson left the office 55 years ago.

Perry prepared for fresh start

AUSTIN (AP) - People are still stunned that Rick Perry's name will follow the title Texas agriculture commissioner.

Perry, a three-term legislator from Haskell, upset Democratic incumbent Jim Hightower, a firebrand populist with a nationally known wit and following.

Looking back at his race, Perry, 40, said that entering the campaign he believed he could win if he raised $1.8 million and the GOP's gubernatorial candidate

Clayton Williams received at least 53 percent of the vote.

Neither happened. Williams lost with 47.1 percent; Perry says he raised $1.2 million.

But Perry did hit the airwaves with television commercials that showed off positive images of him, while Hightower stayed off TV.

Perry's commercials were augmented by a series of attacks that sought to associate Hightower with marijuana through his friendship with entertainer Willie Nelson and poked fun at Hightower for a lawn mower mishap in which the Democrat lost part of his finger.

A "HIGHTOWER" news release was one Perry says he probably shouldn't have issued. But Hightower's mowing accident, he says, was fair game. "He wasn't wounded badly," Perry said.

Lawmakers battle budget woes

AUSTIN (AP) - Lawmakers return to work in January short of cash and time.

Texas, according to state revenue estimates, will fall $3.5 billion to $4.5 billion below what is needed to maintain the current level of governmental services - a level that in some areas already ranks among the lowest in the nation.

"I don't think we could live with it either politically or humanely," Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said, of the $52.4 billion "doomsday" budget proposal.

Under that plan, social and health services to the needy and elderly would be slashed, new prisons would remain vacant, higher education would be cut and public education funding would fall short.

"I'm already getting a lot of squawking over this budget. I think it throws the ship of state into reverse," said Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

Legislators will be trying to allocate spending for the two fiscal years beginning Sept. 1, 1991 while under the scrutiny of courts and the federal government.

In the second round of a legal battle over public schools, the state's financing method has been declared unconstitutional.

Without new revenues, the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation will receive less than needed to comply with court orders.

The state is in a legal struggle with several counties over the logjam of thousands of state prisoners in county jails. A judge has ordered the state to pay counties for their housing costs.

And if social service cuts are enacted, providers, such as nursing homes, will sue, Brooks said.

"The Department of Human Services would be in court. All the rest of us would be in court with them," he said.

But while some talk about the damage of cuts, others talk about the damage of taxes.

(See BUDGET, Page 3A)

School finance still hot topic

AUSTIN (AP) - It took state leaders four special sessions in 1990 to write a school finance reform plan that ended up being ruled unconstitutional by a state judge.

If the Texas Supreme Court upholds that ruling, lawmakers will convene in regular session this week in about the same predicament as a year ago.

But this time, their school funding woes will be compounded by an estimated budget shortfall of at least $3.5 billion and such major distractions as redistricting.

"I think it's the worst of all times to have to deal with that (school finance)," said Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby.

Kirby is worried that lawmakers would devise a cheaper plan than Senate Bill 1, which promised $4 billion in new education money over the next four years.

But poor school districts don't believe the law's promise. They say the school finance system must be changed because it denies some children an education equal to others just because of where they live.

"I have enough faith in the legislative process (to think) they really will not shortchange our kids. At least, I sure hope they don't shortchange our kids," said Rick Gray, attorney for a group of poor schools.

Local Roundup

City will meet Monday

The Hereford city commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at City Hall.

The agenda includes awarding of a fire department computer bid and award of bids for a street sweeper, two pickups and two mowers.

School board meets Tuesday

The Hereford school board will meet at 6 p.m. Tuesday at the school administration building.

The agenda includes professional and student organization and administrative reports; employees of the month; a review of using alternative fuels in school vehicles; the high school gifted and talented program; 1989-90 audit report; the band trip to Austin; policy updates; and personnel.

4-H/FFA boosters to meet

The Hereford 4-H/FFA Booster Club will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Hereford High School ag shop.

All members and other interested persons are urged to attend this important meeting to help make plans for upcoming livestock shows.

Police investigate reports

Hereford police investigated several reports Friday, including the burglary of a business and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle involving a business on East Park. Someone broke into the business and took a pickup from inside, along with a motorcycle, generator, mower and some other items. The vehicle and the stolen items were found later parked in the 1200 block of 14th.

Other reports included theft from two stores; a purse, containing $440, stolen; cassette tapes taken from a house; a window broken out of a residence in the 1000 block of Grand; assault in the 400 block of Long; and civil disturbance in the 900 block of Ave. K.

Hereford firefighters responded to one call Friday.

A Mitterrand envoy, Michel Vauzelle, met Aziz in Baghdad on Friday.

The week ended on the New York Mercantile Exchange with crude oil at $24.90 a barrel, the lowest level since Aug. 3. Crude prices were nearly $28 a barrel during the middle of the week and had topped $40 since the invasion.

WT head calls for area aid

AMARILLO (AP) - West Texas State University's new president says he hopes the school, which is laboring under a $2.2 million debt, can be in the black by the end of the year.

President Barry Thompson, who took office this week, said the debt "will hamper our ability to move forward." But he said there are several ways to reduce the debt, including asking the Legislature for help.

Thompson also said the university will have to do a better job of managing its resources and cash flow. Internal controls have been put in place to monitor resources, he said.

The debt in the university's auxiliary enterprises resulted largely because of overspending in the athletic program over a 15-year period.

A state auditor's report issued in October said West Texas might have dipped into state and federal funds to bolster the school's athletic program, which was losing about $1.2 million yearly.

Thompson predicted the 6,190-student university's enrollment will increase by approximately 3.5 percent a year for the rest of the decade.

"A realistic goal by the end of the decade would be something on the order of 8,200 to 8,500," he said Friday.

After suffering declines, the Canyon university's enrollment has remained fairly stable in recent years before jumping 8.25 percent last fall with its merger into the Texas A&M University System.

Thompson said West Texas will be aggressive in student recruiting statewide, looking downstate to South Texas as well as to Lubbock, Midland and Odessa.

But, he added, "I am not a miracle worker. I cannot walk on water. I have been practicing on Jell-O."

Thompson called on local leaders to help him take the university forward by beefing up programs and raising scholarship and endowment funds.

"We will not be dead in the water," he said. "We need your help."

Cattle Casting Call Babies herded up to make cute commercials

EDITOR'S NOTE - Babies sell. Like pretty girls, they are used to peddle everything from suntan oil to automobile tires in TV commercials. But capturing those few seconds of charm can be a nightmare for the directors and cameramen. Here's a peep behind the scenes at a shooting.

By JOHN BARBOUR

AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - The meter is running, clicking off thousands of dollars an hour in expenses.

Camera crews and lighting technicians dawdle; the stand-ins, the mothers, the baby handler, the attending nurse are transfixed. The advertising man paces. The director's anxious eyes flit from his watch to the non-developing scenario before him.

Center stage is the star. A baby. "They are probably the most difficult commercials I've ever shot," says Mike Rogers, senior vice president to the creative director for D D B-Needham. He handles tire commercials.

Nonetheless, babies are great for the advertising business. No one can say how many commercials babies make, or what percentage of the business infants command, but they sell.

From the time the puppy tried to pull a tyke's bathing suit down in the ads for suntan oil to today's tiny tots with adult voices talking about fast-food restaurants, they are a sure vehicle for merchandising.

John Hicks has a company called Baby Wranglers that casts babies. "Maybe it's just the innocence," he says. "There's a vulnerability and there's an exuberance. I don't want to get too philosophical about it, but I do think we're living in a pretty jaded world and when we see something like that, it attracts you."

It may attract the viewer, but it is a major headache for the adults who do the filming.

"You're helpless," Rogers says. "You go through a lot of nail-biting and hair-pulling because there is absolutely nothing you can do. You can do everything possible to create an environment and cast the right baby. But if that baby isn't feeling well or is a little bit cranky, you're out of luck."

Never mind that there are seven stand-in babies waiting in the wings.

A baby might be cast in the morning and is fine in the morning. But when it comes to shooting the scene, it is afternoon, and maybe that baby is not an afternoon baby.

"You have a baby you want to use, and he'll come to the set that morning with a rash," Rogers frets. "Or at some point in a production schedule, you'll say bring that baby in and you'll find out all of a sudden she has a cut lip because she was playing with a toy."

One commercial for Michelin tires started with a hand-drawn pinup of a big-eared baby in a tire and a line: "So much is riding on your tires." The campaign has been running six years now (much longer than normal), gone through some 40 babies, and still garners awards at the same rate as it did the first year (more than 30 in all).

There's great money in it for the babies too if they hit, get on air, last a while. Otherwise, they make the Screen Actors Guild minimum of about $265 a day, which barely pays for the gas and the wear-and-tear on mother.

If the commercial goes through the cycle, then the baby stands to make $6,000 to $10,000.

There are instances of babies making much more. Kathy Jennings, Hicks' partner, cites the case of a baby who worked maybe five minutes and made $40,000.

Then there was another case of a baby who was chosen to be the spokesbaby for a certain product. The baby was put on a retainer.

"Nobody took into consideration that babies change both physically and temperamentally," Jennings says. "So by the time they went to film a second commercial, not only didn't the baby look the same, the baby wasn't temperamentally suited." They tried a second baby and then dumped the commercial.

But the first baby worked two days and made $60,000.

Hicks is a whirlwind of action during the casting call, what actors call the cattle call, running out of the audition room to give a baby back to mother, running back with another, putting the baby on the mat with a bunch of toys, playing peek-a-boo, making strange noises, blowing bubbles.

He may seem quite mad, but he is carefully assessing this baby, measuring attention span, independence, good humor, energy level. He will see 150 babies a day, cut the lot to some 30. Three will eventually be chosen, the star and two stand-ins.

He meets one mother in the waiting room. She hands the baby over to him and the baby cries. He hands the baby back, says the baby is lovely, but a little nervous today. The mother cries.

"She knows it's over and she wanted another try," Hicks says. "I was trying to be real nice, and you have to try to explain that if I brought the baby into the audition room, I'd only be appeasing them. I know they have unrealistic expectations. They drove a long way and I feel bad for them."

"One of the toughest things we have to do is to hand a baby over to an actor or an actress," Hicks adds. "In an audition, all I have to do is get a baby to perform and they can do some pretty amazing things. But when I have to hand that baby to an actor or an actress, I've lost control and it's unnerving."

SPS ahead of clean air bill challenge

Southwestern Public Service Company will see future electric rates affected by the federal Clean Air Act, but much less so than consumers in other parts of the country because SPS's power plants already are among the cleanest in the nation, said Bill Helton, SPS president and chief executive officer.

SPS has just completed a preliminary analysis of the lengthy act and its effects on customers. Following is information on SPS and the new law:

SPS has established a strong record of being an advocate for a clean environment. The service area is SPS's permanent business home and this environmental tradition is important to the company. SPS is committed to ensuring that its present and future facilities meet or are better than applicable environmental standards.

The company's modern, coal-fired power plants are among the top 20 percent cleanest in the nation. If all coal-fired plants had sulfur emissions as low as SPS's, the national sulfur-reduction goals found in the new federal Clean Air Act already would be met.

SPS accomplishes these results by utilizing low-sulfur western coal and innovative air-quality-control devices known as baghouses at its coal-fired power plants.

American consumers will pay enormous amounts to fund the act and yet not receive proportionate benefits in terms of a cleaner environment. However, the law does recognize that many western power plants, such as those owned by SPS, operate with low emission rates and treats them accordingly under new standards.

The Clean Air Act has 11 sections or "Titles," ranging from Nonattainment (Title I) to Acid Rain (Title IV) to Job Displacement Provisions (Title XI). Primarily, it is the Acid Rain section that affects SPS customers; it contains two phases.

Phase I begins in 1995 and primarily affects "dirty" power plants. Phase II begins in 2000 and will further restrict emissions at traditionally clean plants, such as those operated by SPS.

The Bush administration estimates the new law will cost from $22 billion to $25 billion a year, while private industry estimates the bill will run somewhere between $30 billion and $50 billion a year. Residents of the SPS service area will pay part of this in the form of higher costs for many types of products, including electricity. Yet this area already enjoys clean air and a healthy environment.

SPS believes its customers and other Americans would have been better served had Congress considered the results of the 1-year, $500 million National Acid Precipitation Assessment Program study on acid rain before passing the act. As a result, much of the Clean Air Act was based on political expediency rather than scientific fact.

However, the anticipated effect of the newly passed Clean Air Act will be less severe on SPS customers than earlier versions of the bill. Through the aggressive efforts of SPS and other electric companies, trade associations, economic-development coalitions and various concerned congressmen, some extreme proposals of earlier versions of the Clean Air Amendments were moderated before final passage of the conference bill.

Significantly improved proposals were ultimately approved for power plants located in the "Clean States." These are mainly western states that contain plants that have operated at much cleaner standards than plants in the East and Midwest. SPS plants are considered among the "clean" plants.

The conference bill added 20 percent more emission allowances for clean plants. This benefit was in recognition of the fact that these clean plants already operate with very low emissions.

Fortunately, the conference bill does not contain an electricity tax that, in effect, would have forced SPS customers to pay a fee to clean up plants in other parts of the country.

SPS estimated that prior versions of the Clean Air Act would have caused customers to pay about seven percent more for electricity. Now the company estimates it will have to raise rates about two percent, or approximately $15 million, in 10 years to pay for additional air-quality-control equipment required for Phase II in the year 2000. This could include the cost of the installation and operation of a "scrubber" on one unit at Tolk Station.

The bill also will require SPS to obtain additional permits under the Permits section (Title V) starting in 1995 and to pay new fees. (Current fees and taxes also will continue in effect.) Estimates are that these new permit-related expenses will increase costs about $300,000 a year. The act instructs the Environmental Protection Agency to write many new regulations,

BUDGET

Gov.-elect Ann Richards campaigned saying a tax increase was not needed. The state will make up the necessary revenue from an improving economy, implementation of a state lottery and changes to the corporate franchise tax, she told voters.

But legislative leaders say that won't fill the bill. More is needed, they say, specifically an overhaul of the way the state taxes its citizens, and changing the budget process so that lawmakers adopt a one-year spending blueprint instead of a two-year plan.

Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, vice-chairman of the Finance Committee, said Texas' tax system basically is unfair.

He said 87 percent of the corporate franchise tax is paid by 10 percent of the businesses, while everyone pays the same sales tax per item purchased regardless of their income.

"How equitable is it when somebody that's drawing workers' compensation benefits that has to buy some blue jeans for their kids to go to school, to pay the same tax as (Gov.) Bill Clements would if he bought some for his grandchildren?" he asked.

RICHARDS

One of the first, and largest, tasks Richards will face is the state budget, projected to total some $52.4 billion over two years.

The Legislative Budget Board predicted that it will take at least $3.9 billion more than the state has coming in to continue the current level of services and keep some promises made to citizens, such as opening new prisons now being built.

Richards said during the campaign that she opposed new taxes.

To balance the budget, she said she would rely on economic growth, closing loopholes in the corporate franchise tax and creating a state lottery that boosters say could be operating by 1992 and eventually generate $750 million a year.

Richards says she thinks a lottery plan will pass the Legislature quickly and be placed before voters in April, since it requires a constitutional amendment.

"If we are successful in passage, as I think we will be, it will mean additional revenues for us in the second year of the (budget) biennium," she said.

Education is a top priority, Richards says. She wants to trim the dropout rate, now 33 percent; raise teachers' salaries, and answer court challenges to the public school finance law through negotiations involving parties in the case, teachers, parents and political leaders.

To expand environmental protection, she has promised an environmental "SWAT" team of lawyers and technical experts, will encourage recycling and supports a plan to protect the Gulf Coast.

But enacting a tax on the ability to pay - an income tax - is political suicide, legislative leaders say.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said an income tax would be more fair, but that his constituency doesn't want it.

"It's not a question of having courage to do something. It's a question of, I'm representing my constituency and my constituency says no. So therefore they'd rather have an unfair system than a fair system," he said.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, has proposed abolishing local school property taxes and switching to a statewide property tax to fund public education.

Lewis said he believes that's the only way to solve the education lawsuit, but added, "It's going to be hard to sell."

Most lawmakers see the $52.4 billion budget plan as a starting point to educate the public about the affects of failing to make substantial changes in state government.

Rep. James Hury, D-Galveston, and chairman of the House tax-writing committee, said, "When you're faced with the truth then you have to react to that truth. It's time we started talking about it and dealing with it."

SCHOOLS

"We hope we can get a permanent solution and get the problem fixed once and for all."

The Supreme Court prompted this summer's reform law in 1989 by unanimously ruling the school finance system unconstitutional. It took Democratic legislative leaders and Republican Gov. Bill Clements months to agree on a plan.

They raised taxes to add $528 million for public schools in 1990-91, calling it the first step toward equity.

But poor school districts argued there was no significant change to the $14 billion-a-year system, which relies on state aid, local property taxes and some federal money.

State District Judge Scott McCown ruled against the law in September, saying it still doesn't give all schools "substantially equal" access to funds for a similar tax effort.

The Austin judge gave lawmakers another year to make changes.

Sen. Carl Parker, Senate Education Committee chairman, said he has little hope the Supreme Court will rule for the law. And he's sorry about that.

"They're not taking into account the nature of this beast over here

PERRY

With the victory behind him, Perry said he is looking forward to leading the Texas Department of Agriculture, which generally promotes the state agricultural industry and deals with regulating pesticides and certifying the accuracy of weights and measures.

Perry was a leader in the Legislature to try and strip Hightower's authority to regulate pesticides - a battle that ended with the agriculture commissioner sharing that responsibility with a state board.

Perry's role in that fight, plus his endorsement by pesticide and chemical companies won him the enmity of environmental groups.

Perry says his administration will "reach out to the legitimate environmental groups," which he says includes the Audubon Society and Sierra Club.

He said his major emphasis will be in developing processing plants for Texas agricultural products, conducting a management audit of the agency and mapping out a long term agricultural plan.

Although described as a rising star in the Republican Party, Perry, a former Democrat, said that in 1994, "If I had to make a guess, I would say that I'm going to be running for agriculture commissioner again."

called the Legislature. They (justices) can mandate 'til they're blue in the face. But they can't legislate, and they can't create new money," said Parker, D-Port Arthur.

Nevertheless, he has filed legislation to change drastically school finance by abolishing most of the local school property tax and substituting a statewide property tax for education. It would require a constitutional amendment to be approved by voters.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said such a tax is the only way to settle the education problem. But he added, "It's going to be a hard thing to sell."

Some poor school districts have proposed countywide taxing districts for schools. And Kirby said it's possible Senate Bill 1 could be altered to meet court objections.

Gray said he's optimistic about the upcoming legislative session, when Democratic Gov.-elect Ann Richards will replace Clements. The Republican governor often was at loggerheads with the Legislature, which is dominated by Democrats.

"It appears that the leadership, from the governor all the way down, is more unified as far as problem-solving than they have been in the past," Gray said. "Hopefully, that'll make a difference."

Wishing you all the best in 1991!

YOUR EYES

VISION TRAINING

When we want to strengthen our arms, legs or shoulders, we perform a series of exercises that, over time, will increase muscle mass and improve the way our bodies work. Vision training utilizes a similar concept to improve and redirect the way a person sees.

Vision training can enable adults or children to see more carefully and with greater clarity. Success in training requires a motivated patient and enough time to do the job. There may be "homework" involved, too.

When is vision training indicated? Typical instances include:

- When eyes have difficulty moving in all directions;
- When both eyes do not see the identical image;
- When the eyes don't look at the same object at the same time;
- When eyes appear to be uncoordinated for extended periods;
- When depth perception is inaccurate.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says he wonders why they call it idle curiosity when it's pretty close to the one thing that's never idle?

"My teenage son is coming along nicely," one frazzled mother said. "In fact, sometimes he almost seems like a member of the family."

I liked America better when movies and tv shows had less four-letter words. I've seen some movies that would have been great family shows, but the producers and writers had to jazz it up with vulgar language and nude scenes.

I'm not alone in my thinking about this, but it seems the younger generation accepts it as the new morality. I ran across a statement made by Charley Reese of King Features that states my case pretty well:

"I know it will come as a shock to most scriptwriters, but the majority of Americans do not use four-letter words at a rate of five to the sentence. One does find, too, in contrast to the world as reflected in movies, people who talk about subjects other than sex and making money." There are millions of people in business who don't cheat their customers or deliberately pollute the environment. Millions of Americans worship in churches and synagogues whose spiritual leaders are not child molesters or money-grubbing charlatans.

"Truth is not only stranger than fiction, but these days is lovelier, healthier, more decent and more inspiring. We can all be thankful that America is not yet the seedy, cynical, vulgar, corrupt country reflected in the movies."

The "right to die" issue has been in the news lately because of the struggle in the Nancy Cruzan case. Ms. Cruzan, 33, died 12 days after a feeding tube that had kept her alive in a vegetative state for eight years was removed at her parents' request.

If ignorance is bliss, then that explains why some folks smile all the time.

Joe Garagiola is not know as one of our literary geniuses, but he has a pretty good book: It's Anybody's Ballgame.

I was re-reading it the other night and saw something that I must have overlooked before. Joe was talking about a saying he had heard or read somewhere. It makes a lot of sense once you think about it:

"If you know me, no explanation is necessary. If you do not know me, you can never really understand."

I read that and I thought about how some people take what someone says and knows exactly what they mean. For others, they have a thousand questions and there is still no light at the end of the tunnel.

Gosh, I can't believe I haven't made my New Year's resolutions yet. Of course I was gone for awhile, so let's make it better late than never resolutions.

--The first one will be to not put anything off anymore. I could have written this column a month ago.

--To work for peace on Earth. That failing, then peace on Saddam Hussein.

--To send in my Publisher's Clearinghouse entries without subscribing to any magazines. I don't have time to read them, and I could use the $30 bucks or so I'll save...

--To buy one of every "stop smoking" program there is. Surely one of them can do the trick without me actually making up my mind that I want to stop smoking.

--To become a better "teacher."

--To become a better listener, not just a hearer.

--To enjoy ice cream as much, but no as often, as I have in the past. If I had to give up either cigarettes or ice cream, goodbye tar and nicotine.

--To continue to say nice things about the nurses at the hospital.

--To deal well, with a smile, people who I don't like but need something.

The publicity surrounding the case generated a 500 percent increase in requests for sample living wills from the Society for the Right to Die, reported a spokesman.

A local reader informs us that persons interested in obtaining a legal form concerning this issue can write to The Society for Right to Die, Inc., 250 W. 57th St., New York, N.Y. She says the first set is free but donations are accepted.

What is a "Redneck"? It's a state of mind and there's a bit of redneck in all of us, according to Jeff Foxworthy, author of a book entitled You Might Be a Redneck If... He says you more likely a redneck if:

- *Your bicycle has a gun rack.
- *You have a rag for a gas cap.
- *You view duct tape as a longterm investment.

Donnis Baggett, state editor of The Dallas Morning News, cleared up the question a little more by adding some other traits of the "Redneck Americanus." You can tell you're redneck if:

*The tires on your pickup are bigger than the tires on your mobile home.

*You pay scalper prices for tickets to a tractor pull.

*Most of your friends are named Bob, Joe or Bill--or a combination thereof: Joe Bob, Billy Joe, Joe Bill, Billy Bob, Bobby Joe, etc.

*Your idea of dressing for dinner is a clean T-shirt and a new gimme cap.

*You consider Hank Williams' birthday a religious holiday.

*Your VCR is programmed to tape Hee Haw.

*Your idea of modern art is a new Silver Bullet poster.

*Your favorite designer is Levi Strauss.

An AP News Analysis

Conservatives uneasy with Bush

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) - On the conservative report card, President Bush's mid-term grades are down. There is unrest on the Republican right and recurring talk of a challenge in the 1992 presidential primary elections.

Senate Republican Leader Robert J. Dole of Kansas says even if the conservatives do run somebody to "make a statement" in the primaries, he doesn't think it would pose a worrisome threat to Bush. "I think he should have satisfied most thinking conservatives," Dole said. Besides, presidents and the party have passed this way before.

Conservatives bristled at Dwight D. Eisenhower's version of modern Republicanism.

They didn't care for many of Richard M. Nixon's domestic programs, and some of them opposed his opening to China. A conservative congressman waged a token challenge on the right in the 1972 primaries.

There was even a touch of disenchantment with some administration decisions when Ronald Reagan was president. Now the only complaint conservative ideologues have with Reagan is that he chose Bush for vice president in 1980 and thus put him on the track to the White House.

"Stay the course" was President Reagan's slogan," said Amy Moritz, president of the National Center for Public Policy Research. "Where's the course?" is fitting for President Bush.

"There almost surely will be a revolt if George Bush and his most senior White House aides continue to repudiate the Reagan legacy as they have done in the past year," wrote Burton Yale Pines, senior vice president of The Heritage Foundation, a conservative think tank and sometime haven for Republicans heading in or out of government.

Dole, interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press" Sunday, said Bush's real problem isn't the conservatives but, rather, the threat of war in the Middle East and the slumping economy at home.

"I think it's make or break time for George Bush," Dole said.

So far, the conservative revolt is largely academic. It is based in the conference rooms and seminars of theorists on the right, not in the political organizations in which such an uprising would have to take shape in order to take hold by 1992.

Bush's political allies say he has the support of most Republican conservatives, despite their wrath at the tax increases in his budget deal. That was the single issue that prompted the sharpest complaints from a panel of seven conservative activists and theorists who graded Bush's first two years in office in a survey issued last week by the Heritage Foundation.

Pines was one of the graders; he marked Bush down to "D" and said the president was in a sophomore slump. "At best he is reactive," Pines wrote. "At worst, he risks being a Herbert Hoover-William Howard Taft one-term president."

Mark Blitz of the Hudson Institute said Bush earned a "C."

"Although the president is not living up to conservatives' wishes, he is still much better than Gov. Dukakis would have been," Blitz said, faint praise that touches one of the dilemmas of a challenge - if it gets anywhere, it can help the Democrats.

The panel gave Vice President Dan Quayle better grades, close to an

Letters to Editor

Dear editor,

As a wife of a serviceman presently serving in Saudi Arabia, I would like to address this to the public.

Now that our American hostages are out of Iraq, let us not forget our "other" Americans in the Middle East. When you run into a family member of a service person, don't tell them there will be war or the bad news you heard today. And please don't compare this with past wars. Instead tell them everything will be okay and you're praying for them as well as their families.

Our troops may not be doing anything to defend our country, but they are Americans representing our country in Saudi (Arabia) and proud of it. Whenever you get a chance, write one of them. They love hearing anything from home. The 25-cent stamp is a small price to pay to lighten their days as they get longer and uncertain.

Tonight when you go to bed, add our troops to your prayers. Miracles have been known to happen by prayer.

Thank you,
Mrs. Abelardo Tijerina

Thank you, CSF!

For those anonymous, caring persons who work with the Christmas Stocking Fund, and those who contribute, the reward comes in knowing that you've helped a needy family have a brighter Christmas holiday. We'd like to share several "thank you" notes which were addressed to the CSF:

Dear CSF: "Both _____ and I want to thank all of the people at CSF and all the people that gave--God bless them, all the ones that helped in any way. Every year we wish that we could give and help people instead of receiving help. We were pretty down until Xmas and we were so pleasantly surprised by you people, and then our children came and brought dinner. We are so lucky and thankful. Again, thank you all and may God bless each and everyone of you."

To CSF: "We were so surprised to receive your gifts. And we want to thank you and let you know we really do appreciate it. We needed the food basket and it all came in handy. We are so thankful for your thinking of us. You will be in our prayers and our hearts. Thank you for everything and may God bless you all!"

Dear Friends & Neighbors: "I can't find words to express my thanks and appreciation to each of you for the generous gift in helping with my expenses. It was truly a big help to me at this time with medical expenses that I have over taken. I am especially grateful to each and all."

"A friend is far better than gold.
It is sweet, I find as I grow old
To prove in you this blessed truth
In which I've held from early youth
And having proved, I still shall hold
A friend is far better than gold."

Teach us in twilight hours to pray
While upon our hearts consolation lay.
Life and health we have to hold
Yet all these shall mar and hold
But a friend is far better than gold.
God bless."

New morality?

By WALTER WILLIAMS
Heritage Foundation Syndicate

PHILADELPHIA--When we get old, we're not supposed to understand everything, but some things defy common sense. Cigarette smoke stinks and, according to official doctrine, a sniff or two can lead to death. Being a smoker is an open invitation to condemnation, insults, moral judgments and possibly banishment. In fact, most any negative treatment of a smoker is acceptable. That's the new morality.

But the new morality also affects to other forms of behavior. What about people who refuse to work, who panhandle, clutter train stations and public bathrooms and make a general nuisance--plain bums and hobos? The new morality says we must not be judgmental about these people, much less condemn their behavior. Instead, we elevate their status by naming them homeless and make them society's mascots. Labeling them homeless excuses them from responsibility for their condition; after all, homeless includes people who have no place to live as a result of hurricane, fire or earthquake.

How about taxpayer-funded "art" depicting men engaged in anal intercourse? What about a statue of Christ immersed in urine? What does the new morality say about that? Clearly, we are not to condemn or make moral judgments. Whoever does, in the eyes of the keepers of America's new morality, is guilty of censorship. Our new definition of censorship is: If people do not wish to be forced to pay for another's free expression, they are guilty of censorship. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., steeped in the old morality, protested the use of coercively obtained taxpayer money for such art. Now he's the target of the keepers of America's new morality. In my book, Jesse would be on ever higher ground if he had come out against taxpayer funding of any art.

What does the new morality say about promiscuity? Can we be judgmental about young women who have chosen to have several babies by different men, without the benefit of marriage? God forbid that we say anything negative about "alternative lifestyles." Bastard and illegitimate are arcane words belonging to the old morality to be purged from today's enlightened speech. Instead of being judgmental, we reward the irresponsible behavior with taxpayer-sponsored food, housing, clothing, and a bit of spending change. And if the woman or girl who has a few more babies and engages in more irresponsible behavior, the new morality commands that we up the reward.

Smoking is not the only health focus of the new morality. Old-fashioned public health policy dictated that people with transmittable diseases be prohibited from working in medical or food-preparation facilities. Venereal diseases, tuberculosis, hepatitis and others were considered public health hazards. The new morality has singled out AIDS as exempt from the common sense public health precautions we apply to other diseases.

The medical profession knows very little about AIDS and they've lied to us. They said it can only be transmitted by sex, blood transfusions and dirty hypodermic needles. Yet a lady in Florida claims she contracted AIDS from her infected dentist who later died.

Wouldn't it be great if condemnation directed against smokers was also directed against forms of behavior far more harmful to society? I mean, would it bother you if we posed signs reading: "No social parasites?"

DRGs greatly effect Medicare recipients

If you are a Medicare beneficiary, or read about rural hospital problems, you've probably heard the term "DRG."

But some Medicare patients may not be aware of how it might affect the health care received in a hospital, reports the Texas Medical Foundation.

"DRG" stands for "diagnosis-related group." It is a system by which the Medicare program pays a hospital the average cost for treating a patient with a particular illness or injury. Under the system, diagnoses are grouped into DRGs based on factors such as the patient's principal diagnosis, complications that may arise, surgery or procedures performed during the hospital stay, and other individual patient information such as age and medical history.

The Medicare program has assigned a standard set payment to each DRG. Thus, the hospital receives the same average fee any time a Medicare patient is treated for a particular diagnosis.

For example, a patient has a gallbladder removed. Medicare may determine that for a person that age, in his/her medical condition, DRG XXX applies. Thus, Medicare pays the hospital $4,000. The patient recovers quickly, has a short stay and incurs expenses of about $2,000. The hospital still receives the DRG amount of $4,000.

But the opposite is also true. The next Medicare beneficiary with the same conditions may develop complications after gallbladder surgery, incurring expenses of about $6,000. The hospital is still reimbursed the DRG amount of $4,000 and may not bill the patient for the balance. (The circumstances and amounts are hypothetical.)

When this system of payment was implemented for the Medicare program in 1984, the federal government recognized the possible incentive for hospitals to reduce services to patients in order to remain cost-efficient. In other words, hospitals may be encouraged to discharge a patient whose treatment is costing more than what the DRG amount pays.

Consequently, some Medicare patients may be hearing statements similar to the following: "Your DRG money has run out...." Medicare won't pay for any more days in the hospital."

To ensure that the DRG payment system doesn't interfere with the quality of care patients receive, the federal government contracted with a peer review organization (PRO) in every state. A PRO is a group of licensed, practicing physicians who review Medicare medical records to ensure that beneficiaries are receiving quality, medically necessary care. The PRO in Texas is the Texas Medical Foundation.

If a Medicare patient is in a hospital and disagrees with its decision to discharge him, it is important for him to know that he may appeal that decision through TMF by requesting an immediate review of his medical record. The patient must first be given a written notice stating the Medicare will no longer pay for the hospital stay, and if he chooses to remain, he will be held financially liable.

The most important aspect of this notice is calling TMF by noon the next working day after receiving such a notice. As long as the patient meets the deadline, TMF may conduct an immediate review and render a decision of whether or not it is medically necessary for him to remain in the hospital.

Regardless of whether the patient is still in the hospital or has been discharged, he has the right to request physician review of his medical records from TMF. Call TMS's tollfree beneficiary hotline (1-800-777-8315) for more information about its review of medical care provided under the Medicare program.

"When Imperial merged with Holly Sugar in 1988, it combined leaders in the cane and beet industry into what is now a Fortune 500 company and the second largest publicly-held sugar company in the nation," Cleavinger pointed out.

Holly research will also highlight the business meeting on Friday. Stan Bischoel, head of the new Holly research operation in Colorado Springs, will discuss the development of the new research program. Also discussing Holly beet research will be Steve Reynolds, head of the seed division in Sheridan, Wyo., and Bob Atwood, head of marketing.

Extensive beet research efforts by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in Amarillo will be discussed by leading TAES researchers.

Among the researchers on the program will be Dr. G.B. Thompson, resident director of the Texas A&M Research Center in Amarillo; Dr. Charlie Rush, TAES plant pathologist, and Dr. Steve Winter, TAES associate professor.

Cleavinger, who is also chairman of the legislative affairs committee of the American Sugarbeet Growers Association, will discuss GATT negotiations and the new farm bill and how they impact area growers. Roger Hill, Holly president, will also be on the program.

Dennis Printz, Hereford Holly ag manager, will review the exceptional crop, which saw yields average 24.7 tons per acre from more than 40,000 acres.

Companies or organizations with an interest in the area sugar industry are invited to display exhibits at the business meeting.

Vegetable meet scheduled Jan. 15

HEREFORD—New varieties of specialty vegetables designed for the High Plains and results of market studies that indicate which vegetables have a profit potential for West Texas are among featured presentations for this year's West Texas Vegetable Conference here Jan. 15.

Other innovative ways of improving the vegetable industry of West Texas also will be spotlighted at the meeting, says Dr. Roland E. Roberts, vegetable specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. He is conference coordinator.

The conference begins at 8:30 a.m. at the Hereford Community Center, 100 Avenue C at Park Avenue. Registration includes lunch.

"Wise vegetable growers evaluate opportunities by measuring the market window for an adapted vegetable before planting any," Roberts said. This means assessing the potential supply, demand and competition at the time the producer will have a crop ready to market, he explained.

The Texas High Plains growing season allows many crops to mature when those crops are waning or not yet ready in other production areas.

Dr. Charles Hall, Extension Service economist and horticulture marketing specialist at College Station, will present results of market window studies that show which vegetables have a profit potential for West Texas.

Work of research scientists in developing the new Texsprout mungbean, new Texas Pinkeye pea and potato varieties for the area will be reported by Dr. Creighton Miller. He is a professor of vegetable breeding with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, College Station.

Spring planted potatoes, a major vegetable crop on the High Plains, never recovered from last June's heat wave, even though growers pampered them with water and nutrients until late summer. Yet in the plots of Dr. Rick Zartman, Texas Tech University associate professor of horticulture, summer planted potatoes grew vigorously and yielded surprisingly well. Zartman will tell of his work with the summer planted crop, production costs of which could end up less than for the crop planted in the spring.

Other speakers will report on use of black plastic mulch which has doubled early yield, increased total yield four-fold and controlled weeds in irrigated cantaloupes; culture management to control diseases and weeds in spinach, and use of one kind of plants to inhibit growth nearby of other kinds of plants, such as careless weed.

Growers also will learn the importance of careful harvesting and handling of pinto beans, and ways to help educate consumers about food safety.

The annual conference is sponsored by the Extension Service, High Plains Vegetable Growers and Shippers Council, Experiment Station, Texas Tech University, Deaf Smith County Extension vegetable program development council and Texas Department of Agriculture.

BABIES

An actor may be able to fool the creative execs, but he can't fool the baby. "The baby can tell by the touch. It's instinctual and the kid will scream. It's the best alarm system for bad acting you'll ever find."

Hicks remembers one commercial involving three babies in costume, one of whom kept falling asleep. Then someone got the bright idea of putting a pair of sunglasses on the dozing child and it actually added to the commercial's charm.

"One of the toughest commercials we did was with a tire covered with a blanket," Rogers says.

They wanted a baby to walk up to the covered tire, stand there a couple of seconds, and then whip off the blanket. And they wanted to shoot it in one take. "When you want a baby to do something, that's what they won't do," Rogers says. "We couldn't get a baby to do it. They'd walk in, take a few steps, then crawl, and crawl right past the tire."

Finally, on one of the last shots of the day, one of the babies did it perfectly.

One commercial will linger in Mike Rogers' memory forever.

The commercial was to feature a baby in a tire and a dog sitting next to him. The dog was to get up, walk offstage and return with a puppy held by the scruff of his neck. The dog would deposit the puppy in the tire next to the baby.

But the crew worried over the safety of the baby. "You can't control the little puppy, and we were all concerned it would bite the baby," Rogers says.

So they put up a partition, which the camera could not see, between the baby and the puppy. The dog dutifully dropped the puppy into its compartment in the tire. Then, Rogers says, the unexpected: "The baby reached over, picked it up and started to bite the puppy."

postponement of Herd games

All Hereford Whiteface and Lady Whiteface basketball games scheduled for Friday were called off because of icy road conditions.

The Lady Whitefaces' District 1-4A opener with Dumas has been rescheduled for 8 p.m. Monday with the Lady Whiteface junior varsity set to play at 6:30 p.m.

Second-round games from the Hereford JV Tournament were all pushed back to Saturday morning with the sophomore portion of the tourney being canceled completely.

The weather forced Dumas to pull out of the tournament, giving Borger a bye into the consolation finals against the winner of the Herd JV-Canyon Randall game. In the championship semifinals, Levelland was scheduled to meet Tulia with Dimmitt playing Canyon High. All second-round games were scheduled to start at 11:30 a.m. with the final round to be played in the afternoon.

No decision had been made concerning the Herd varsity's 8 p.m. Saturday game against Levelland.

Don Nelson wasn't really sure the Golden State Warriors were capable of a comeback against the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Warriors, losers of four straight games and coming off an embarrassing 18-point loss to Sacramento the night before, fell behind by 10 in the first half Friday night, but rallied to rout the Lakers 115-99.

"It is a surprise after last night," Nelson said. "Our start tonight really scared me, but we pulled it together."

Tim Hardaway scored 29 points, Chris Mullin 27 and Mitch Richmond 22 for the Warriors.

The Lakers, coming off a road victory over Portland on Thursday, beat the Warriors 111-109 on Dec. 15 and 115-93 on Nov. 18.

"We learned from our mistakes the last time we played them," Hardaway said. "In the fourth quarter, we were careless with the ball and we did not make the big shots down the stretch."

The Warriors made 10 of 19 shots in the final quarter and committed only one turnover. Los Angeles made seven of 20 shots and turned the ball over four times in the final 12 minutes.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Atlanta 111, Indiana 96; Boston 132, Phoenix 103; Detroit 98, Cleveland 94; Washington 111, Minnesota 100; San Antonio 93, New Jersey 89; Utah 102, Philadelphia 99; and Seattle 112, Miami 86.

Byron Scott scored 22 points and Magic Johnson had 16 points and 13 assists for the Lakers. James Worthy managed only 12 points on 6-for-23 shooting.

"James played a lot of minutes (against Portland) and he just did not have it tonight," Lakers coach Mike Dunleavy said. "You can't expect him to play great every night."

Celtics 132, Suns 103

Boston won its 15th consecutive home game, using a balanced scoring attack to defeat Phoenix, which won its previous four games by an average of 27 points.

Kevin McHale scored 23 points and Larry Bird and Brian Shaw 21 each as the Celtics extended their season record to 25-5, including 16-1 at home.

Spurs 93, Nets 89

San Antonio avoided its first two-game losing streak behind David Robinson's 26 points, 21 rebounds and five blocked shots, three of them during an 11-0 fourth-quarter run that beat New Jersey.

Derrick Coleman had 21 points and 16 rebounds in his return to the Nets' lineup after being sidelined two games with a knee injury.

Pistons 98, Cavaliers 94

Joe Dumars scored seven of his 25 points in the final 27.4 seconds, including a tiebreaking three-point play, as Detroit beat Cleveland for its fifth straight victory.

It was the sixth loss in a row and 12th in the last 13 games for the Cavaliers, 2-13 since losing guard Mark Price to a season-ending knee injury.

Jazz 102, 76ers 99

Jeff Malone scored 31 points and Charles Barkley missed four free throws in the final minute as Utah defeated Philadelphia.

Barkley, who scored 35 points, was at the line with 53 seconds remaining and Utah ahead 96-95, but he missed both shots, and Karl Malone, who scored 24 points, put the Jazz ahead by three with a 15-foot jumper.

Hersey Hawkins scored 27 points for the 76ers, who have lost four straight games, all on the road.

SuperSonics 112, Heat 86

Seattle outscored Miami 36-11 in the fourth quarter and Sedale Threatt scored 30 points on 14-for-18 shooting.

Ahead 76-75 after three quarters, the Sonics outscored the Heat 21-3 in the first 6:24 of the fourth quarter for a 97-78 lead.

Hawks 111, Pacers 96

Atlanta won its fifth consecutive game as Dominique Wilkins scored 36 points, his fourth straight game with more than 30.

The Hawks have won eight straight at home after losing six in a row at the Omni.

Bullets 111,

Timberwolves 100
Ledell Eackles scored 12 of his season-high 22 points in the fourth quarter as Washington broke open a close game against Minnesota.

Tyrone Corbin scored 26 points and Tony Campbell 23 for the Timberwolves, who had won 15 consecutive home games when scoring 100 or more points.

Miami's actions shameful

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - We're told by the heavy thinkers that our society is reflected on the nation's athletic fields.

Victory at all costs is a creed appreciated in the business world.

Rub defeat in your opponent's face with the finality of the slam-dunk. Humiliate the conquerors. Humiliate the humbled. Or so it seems.

After the behavior of the athletes before, during, and after the 55th Cotton Bowl, one hopes the sociologists are wrong when they say we live out our own fantasies when we witness a sporting event.

It was a distasteful experience watching sporting gentlemen in their 20s resort to trash talk and antics you would paddle your 10-year-old for doing.

The taunting, jeering, unsportsmanlike conduct, and penalties turned the game between the University of Miami and the University of Texas into a childish, playground, lunch-hour scum.

If the NCAA wants to poke its nose into something useful, it should review immediately how to control personal conduct in college football games.

The Miami-Texas game was marred by the professional wrestling-style pregame buildup to the final "dance" session of the Miami players on the 50-yard line after the game.

There were 24 penalties for 270 yards with Miami getting 16 for a Cotton Bowl record 202 yards. Yet officials couldn't control the game with their flags.

A disgusted Jimmy Harper, the veteran head of the officiating crew from the Southeastern Conference, admitted: "We probably could have called more penalties. ... We warned both teams throughout the game, the benches, and the players, too. We told them to cut it out and play football like they were supposed to."

For those who paid $36 for a ticket, they saw more roller derby than football.

Even Miami coach Dennis Erickson admitted, "I'm embarrassed about it. It did get out of hand."

Later he said he wished his players could learn to "play hard with a great deal of emotion without making an idiot of themselves."

Actually, Texas started all the finger pointing and jive talk in a pregame interview.

Make that offensive tackle Stan Thomas who started it.

He said the way Miami players acted at a mixed team barbecue reminded him of convicts.

The Hurricanes saw to it that he paid for that remark and then some.

They were lined up taunting Texas when the Longhorns came on the field to start the game and it never stopped.

Miami got a late hit penalty and an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty on its first possession and still made a first down with first and 40.

The whistles blew and blew but the mayhem carried on to the final gun of Miami's 46-3 rout.

"They talked a lot of noise, but it hurt them with all the penalties they got," Thomas said in justifying his remarks. "I pancaked some of their linemen and it embarrassed them they got penalties."

It was obvious Miami could talk and play a lot better than Texas could, but hasn't the day come when all this showboating has got to stop?

The SEC officiating crew was so tired it didn't even call a delay of game penalty on Miami wide receiver Randal Hill who ran all the way up the tunnel with a touchdown pass he caught.

Hill later bragged how great it was for the Miami "renegade class" to go out a winner.

Maybe the NCAA could take a page from the soccer rule book to handle the "renegades."

The rules would be simple: If you have one personal foul, you get a green card and a penalty. A second personal and you are automatically red-carded to the sideline.

The same would go with unsportsmanlike conduct. A green card and a penalty, then a red card and to the shower stall.

But couldn't the coaches really put a stop to all this showboating and taunting?

For example, Texas coach David McWilliams could have benched Thomas for his remarks as a warning he wouldn't tolerate that kind of behavior in his players.

"I told Stan I'd just as soon he kept his mouth shut before a game, but his being a senior, it didn't matter," McWilliams said.

It might have mattered if Thomas didn't play.

Former Texas coach Darrell Royal left the pressbox and said what he had seen was one of the reasons he retired.

It may be the reason fans turn away from the sport if the NCAA and the coaches don't do something about it.

News from the REEF

Did you ever marvel at the spectacular shapes and vivid colors of the fish and invertebrates shown in the National Geographic and specials on TV? Did you ever want to don flippers and mask, and swim lazily along some tropical reef? The fish are so brightly colored, the corals and anemones so delicate, so beautiful. Do you want a hobby that is both relaxing, decorative and enjoyable?

Not so long ago, Salt Water aquariums were stark, almost sterile tanks except for the hardiest of fish. The deathrate was very high for most fish-keepers, and it was almost more trouble than it was worth. Today, the average aquarist can have a very spectacular live-reef in any room he likes, and enjoy the beauty of both corals and polyps, and a wide variety of colorful and playful fishes, accented by various green plants that are actually algae.

Yes, you can convert a fresh water system to salt water, it takes a bit more equipment, but tanks, lights, heaters, stands and some types of filters may be used in a salt water system. If after all this, you want to see a bit of what you can accomplish with a home salt water reef system, call Judy Sanders at HIGH PLAINS CORAL REEF at 364-2538 and see the several show tanks she has on display. She has the tanks, filters, salt, and all sorts of high-tech equipment. She can supply the equipment and the fish, corals, rock, shrimp, clams, tubeworms and other life that make up a beautifully designed home reef tank in your home.

Von Erichs seek to regain spotlight

By BILL MULLER
Dallas Times Herald

DALLAS (AP) - The ancient Sportatorium - the house the Von Erichs built - squats like a corrugated metal beast at the end of the line on Industrial Boulevard, down past the liquor stores and the cheap motels.

Inside, beneath a wooden ceiling crisscrossed with electrical wires, the large form of Kevin Von Erich fills an office chair. Sitting cross-legged, the professional wrestler muses:

"It's hard to know what to do. I don't have a lawyer or anybody else to counsel me. My dad is gone so I gotta do the only thing I know to do, and that's tell the truth."

Von Erich is preparing to tell the truth to a small crowd at the Sportatorium: The Von Erich era has ended. The Von Erichs - masters of the fiction inside the ring - never have been able to choreograph reality.

KTVT-Channel 11 has canceled their television show; rent has gone up at the Sportatorium as attendance (driven by TV exposure) dwindled. And business troubles have forced the Von Erichs into an unfamiliar arena: court.

Kevin, 33, and brother Kerry Von Erich, 30, are suing their former partner, wrestling promoter Jerry Jarrett of Tennessee, alleging fraud, conspiracy and breach of contract, among other things. Jarrett has denied the allegations and countersued.

In the suit, the Von Erichs maintain Jarrett siphoned off their money for the last two years, leaving them with nothing.

"First, my brother David gets kicked in the stomach and dies, and then Mike and then Kerry's terrible accident and now this," says Kevin. "It really galls me that people can get away with this trickery and deception."

The Von Erichs may be the most unfortunate celebrities in Dallas.

Their fame hit its apex in the early 1980s, when they were touring the world, selling out Reunion Arena and drawing more than 40,000 fans to Texas Stadium. The four Von Erich brothers - Kevin, David, Kerry and Mike - were teen idols, had huge television ratings and were shown on TV in 27 countries.

"All these things that everybody's doing now, they just copied what we did," said Fritz Von Erich, 59, who is known as "The Father of Texas Wrestling." The elder Von Erich, whose real name is Jack Adkisson, started wrestling as a Sportatorium villain in 1954. "The music, the female valets, all that started in Dallas."

Fritz's boys were natural athletes - three were all-star football players at Lake Dallas High School - and he built them into wrestling stars, changing his own image from villain to hero right before they were old enough to join the profession.

The Von Erichs battled the villains for what was right and good. They even brought in tailor-made enemies, The Freebirds, to have someone bad to whip up on.

But in 1984, the downward spiral began. David, 25, died of an intestinal infection while on tour in Japan. Family members guessed that his intestine had been damaged by an errant kick during a match months earlier. A throng of 3,500 attended his funeral.

Then in 1985, the family was rocked when Mike contracted toxic shock syndrome after minor shoulder surgery.

The response to Mike's illness showed the popularity of the Von Erichs.

"The hospital got 300 calls an hour, 24 hours a day, for two consecutive weeks about Mike," said Fritz, who has retired to his 500-acre ranch in East Texas. "They had to put on 30 additional operators just to take the calls."

Mike beat the odds and recovered, but his balance and mind had been affected by a fever that reached 107 degrees.

"You couldn't really carry on a conversation with him," Kevin said. "That 107 degrees ... did something to his brain."

In 1987, Mike committed suicide by drug overdose at the age of 23. He was the third Von Erich son to die. In 1959, Fritz's first born, 7-year-old Jackie, accidentally was electrocuted.

Kerry and Kevin struggled to bounce back from Mike's death and added younger brother Chris, now 20, to shows at the Sportatorium.

But Kerry had smashed his right foot in a motorcycle accident in June 1986. Pins were inserted and the bone fused, and he managed a comeback. Still, his 16-month absence had sounded the death knell for the business.

"When Kerry went down with the motorcycle injury, that really hurt the organization," Fritz said. "Kevin just couldn't do it by himself."

Another blow came when Fritz sold his portion of World Class Championship Wrestling in 1987, removing his business acumen from the equation. Kerry and Kevin formed a partnership with a former wrestler but soon teamed up with Jarrett.

"After Mike died, after 37 years, I totally lost interest," Fritz said. "I don't blame myself for Mike's death, but something left me after that and I wanted out, and I got out."

After signing with Jarrett two years ago, the Von Erich brothers' paychecks shrank from $20,000 per week to $1,200 per month, and they say they eventually lost their homes.

Jarrett, whose son Jeff once wrestled with the Von Erichs, maintains he bailed the Von Erichs out of a jam.

"When we came out here, the Von Erichs were $150,000 in debt and losing money every night. We paid off their debts, and when things got profitable, they wanted me to take 30 percent (instead of 60 percent). I just wouldn't do it."

Jarrett also says the Von Erichs double-crossed him when Kerry, in July, joined the World Wrestling Federation - an organization in New York that features big-name wrestling stars such as Hulk Hogan and Dusty Rhodes. Kevin says Kerry, who wrestles as the "Texas Tornado," had to join WWF to support his wife and two daughters.

As control of the business began to slip from the Von Erichs' grasp, another tidal wave hit. Channel 11, prodded by plummeting ratings and complaints about the show's content, ended a 27-year relationship with the Von Erichs.

"The show had changed in the last couple of years," said Channel 11 program manager Ken Foote, acknowledging that profanity began to be used on the air.

On Nov. 23, Kevin ended the Von Erichs' 36-year stint at the Sportatorium, where wrestling matches have been held for 47 years.

Without its only tenants, the Sportatorium may be finished, but Kevin says he's not.

"We're going to bring our kind of wrestling back," he said a few days later. "I don't want anybody feeling sorry for me. Nobody ever said life was supposed to be perfect."

True to the billing, the last card of matches begins at the Sportatorium. This is down and dirty professional wrestling, with hissing villains, baby-faced good guys and screeching fans.

The ambiance of the Sportatorium comes into play now.

The bad guys stream down one aisle, fielding curses and profane gestures from the fans. They're flanked by their entourages - managers dressed as evil Arabs or foppish cowards, women in short skirts, lackeys.

The good guys come out alone and grab a few kisses from women in the crowd.

As the first match begins, an old man in the front row screams for the referee to watch the villain's manager and partner. They are up to no good, he says, in so many words. The warning goes unheeded. As the referee argues with one bad guy, his partner on the ring apron smashes the good guy with a knee.

The other bad guy falls on the good guy. End of match.

The matches fall into this pattern. Bad guys cheat; their managers cheat; they sometimes win. Good guys use their good looks and talent to overcome; they sometimes win.

The last match is Kevin Von Erich against a huge bald guy named "The Angel of Death." The Angel is massive, but fears Kevin's trademark, the "Iron Claw." Every time Kevin even makes his hand into the shape of a claw, the Angel jumps out of the ring.

Kevin, who wrestles barefoot and probably fears the "Iron Boot" more than anything, finally gets to use the claw, wrapping his huge hand around the Angel's head. End of match.

He then grabs the microphone. The fans brace for a wrestling tirade, but instead Von Erich softly reports that it's his last match at the Sportatorium. He starts out slowly, a little nervous.

"I can't really go into it all," he tells the tearful fans. "I gave it a good fight, I gave it all I had."

As he speaks the familiar lines, his voice builds strength and he hits his stride, recapturing the Von Erich persona, a cocky good guy primed for the fight.

The crowd is cheering now.

"The Von Erichs are down, but the Von Erichs are not out," Kevin bellows, now louder than ever. "We'll be back. Just stick with us and see." This time, it's no act.

Can Cowboys improve on 1990 success?

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - When Philadelphia's Clyde Simmons drove Troy Aikman into the artificial surface of Veteran's Stadium, the Cowboys' storybook season closed.

Jimmy Johnson's players had earned some NFL respect with their good old college try and were a victory away from the playoffs. But Aikman's injured shoulder kept them out.

"Overall, we've got to be happy with the season, not only with the record but with the improvement we made as a team," Johnson said. "We were a ragtag bunch a year ago. We only beat Washington. But this year showed what kind of a team we can be when we get it together."

The Cowboys went from 1-15 in Johnson's first season to 7-9 this year, and almost became the first team to go from one victory to the playoffs in just a season.

With Aikman on the sidelines, journeyman Babe Laufenberg, who has the NFL quarterback record for being cut, couldn't rally the Cowboys in the 17-3 loss to the Eagles, who intercepted four of his passes.

A victory in Atlanta in the last game of the season still could have put the Cowboys in the playoffs against Chicago.

But Laufenberg couldn't handle the blitzing Falcons and the demoralized Cowboys dropped the game 26-7. Their fate was sealed in the last 20 seconds of the regular season as Morten Andersen's field goal beat the Rams and sent New Orleans into the playoffs.

"We had hoped Babe could make the transition quickly, but I guess emotionally we were gone when we lost Troy," Johnson said.

"There is no 'if' about it. If we had Troy we make the playoffs. We go 9-7."

Aikman, who underwent surgery last week for a separated shoulder and bone chips, is not expected to have any lingering effects and should be throwing a football in two months.

Aikman showed the form expected of the 1989 No. 1 draft pick in a four-game winning streak that got the Cowboys into the playoff picture, and he said not being in there in the end hurt more than the shoulder.

"The frustrating thing was that it happened when it did," Aikman said. "I guess I was lucky I didn't get hurt earlier, but you work hard all year to be able to play in the games that get you to the playoff, then this happens."

As it turned out, the Cowboys could have used Steve Walsh, traded earlier in the season to New Orleans for first and third round picks.

"We knew by trading Steve we were trading a player who could win for us but at that time those picks had a lot more value," Johnson said. Johnson, a highly successful coach at the University of Miami, stunned his severest critics who said his college-style approach would never work in the pros.

But under defensive coordinator Dave Wannstedt, the Cowboys were tough to move out of the way.

Dallas was second in the NFL against the pass and 10th overall.

Unfortunately, the offense under David Shula was among the league's worst, finishing 23rd in rushing and 27th in passing. The Cowboys averaged just 15.2 points per game; only Cleveland and New England scored fewer.

One offensive bright spot was Emmitt Smith, who led rookie running backs with 937 yards rushing and 11 touchdowns, just one short of the team record shared by Tony Dorsett and Herschel Walker.

The Cowboys future looks bright going into the April draft. Johnson has hoarded three No. 1 picks, two No. 2s, and three No. 3s. "We've established a foundation now," Johnson said. "In the draft, we have a chance to build on that. I think we're starting to earn some respect."

Oilers head back to Cincy

By JOE KAY
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) - Whether James Brooks or Cody Carlson can repeat will go a long way towards deciding whether the Cincinnati Bengals or the Houston Oilers advance in the NFL playoffs Sunday.

Brooks and Carlson got their teams in position for the first-round game at Riverfront Stadium with career-best performances in the past two weeks.

Brooks rushed for a club-record 201 yards two weeks ago, putting Cincinnati in position to clinch the AFC Central Division title with a 40-20 victory over the Oilers at Riverfront Stadium. It was in the final two minutes of that game that Houston lost quarterback Warren Moon to a dislocated thumb.

Last week, Carlson had the game of his career to get Houston a wild-card berth and a rematch with the Bengals. Filling in for Moon, Carlson threw for a career-high three touchdowns in a 34-14 victory over Pittsburgh.

Brooks and Carlson can expect some new obstacles to repeating Sunday.

The Oilers (9-7) spent the week polishing their tackling. Brooks slipped tackles on runs of 45, 56 and 40 yards that proved the difference in the game. He scored on the 56-yarder, and set up touchdowns with the other two - the longest runs allowed this year by the Oilers.

"Two of his runs equaled 100 yards," defensive tackle Doug Smith said. "And on both of those, we had him stopped for no more than a 5-yard gain."

"Brooks is a great back and I'm not taking anything away from him, but those are long runs he normally wouldn't have had against us."

The missed tackles still irritate the Oilers, who like their reputation as a hard-hitting defense.

"We have a lot of pride, and we were very embarrassed by what he did," defensive lineman Ezra Johnson said. "I think it's safe to say you won't see that guy running through our defense like that again."

Brooks had a lot of help two weeks ago - perfect play switching by Boomer Esiason.

Esiason set up the 56-yard touchdown run when he came to the line and saw the Oilers in a blitz formation. He changed the play to one the Bengals hadn't used in several years, with Brooks lining up beside Esiason to take a quick handoff and sneak through the line.

Brooks shed a tackle at the line and wasn't touched the rest of the way.

"We got in the right situation," Esiason said. "Fortunately for us I was able to read the defense, we had enough time on the clock to get an audible, and JB (Brooks) made a great move."

Esiason went to the same play later in the game, and the Oilers stopped it for no gain. They will have to stop such plays Sunday to advance to a second-round game against the Los Angeles Raiders.

"Whatever the reason, Brooks just kicked our butts," defensive end Sean Jones said. "We definitely know there are some things we have to correct."

The Oilers corrected a few things in their victory over Pittsburgh, and present the Bengals (9-7) with a more balanced offensive threat. Houston shuffled its offensive line to help its erratic running game against Pittsburgh.

The moves worked - Houston rushed for 195 yards. That took a lot of pressure off Carlson, who completed 22 of 29 passes for 247 yards against one of the top-rated defenses in the NFL.

The last time the teams met, the Bengals worried more about Moon's deep passes. Now they have to contend with the running threat, too.

"They were creating holes against Pittsburgh," Bengals defensive coordinator Dick LeBeau said. "They could move the ball either way, in the air or on the ground. If they can do both, you're in for a long day."

Those who predicted a long day for Carlson in the Oilers' run-and-shoot offense came away surprised. He ran it nearly flawlessly.

"They didn't look any different to me against Pittsburgh," LeBeau said. "Warren Moon couldn't have done any better. The difference is that Moon has done it week in, week out."

The Bengals want to make Carlson a one-week sensation by changing defenses frequently to make it harder for him to find an open receiver. Unlike Pittsburgh, which played primarily a zone defense, the Bengals have used bump-and-run coverage successfully against the Oilers.

"Pittsburgh was sitting back in a zone," coach Sam Wyche said. "I think that the strategy must have been. They've got a young quarterback. He's going to force the ball in there, we'll pick him off."

Wyche closed the Bengals' practices to the media this week. Carlson thinks he knows what was going on.

"Cincinnati is great at throwing in a lot of gimmicks," Carlson said. "We knew what to expect from Pittsburgh, but Cincinnati does a lot of things to try to confuse you. I expect a lot of that."

New year begins for Women's Division

Betty Taylor, a past president of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce Women's Division, received the 1990 Woman of the Year Award Thursday night at the organization's annual installation banquet held at the Hereford Community Center.

Bettye Owen, last year's recipient of the award, made the presentation when Women's Division members and guests met for the dinner, catered by Something Special, and the business meeting.

Donna West, 1988 Woman of the Year, installed new officers and board members using a cruise ship theme. As she installed the women, she presented each with an appropriate hat pertaining to their office. Following the installation ceremony, members and guests were given leis to wear.

Ruth Newsom, new president of the Women's Division, was installed along with Kyla McDowell, president-elect; Debra Perry, vice president; Jackie Murphey, secretary-treasurer; and Nell Rhoton and Ronda Clark, directors. Marilyn Culpepper, outgoing president, will remain on the board.

Outgoing directors were Judy Barrett, Newsom and West.

Culpepper related her experiences with the Women's Division. "My emotions are varied as my year as your president comes to an end. I feel honored that you chose me to serve as president and I am proud of the accomplishments made this year," she said.

Culpepper reviewed 1990 as a good year but felt there is still a lot to be done in the community. "The Hereford Brand has had ads referring to what a community is, and that, we the people, are the community. We could have skyscrapers, elaborate furnishings, impressive school buildings with expensive equipment, beautiful homes, latest technical hospitals, and the list goes on, but until you add the people, you only have bricks, mortar, steel and quietness. People is what puts life into the community," she said. "People make things happen."

"My charge to the new president, directors and each member is to emphasize the people aspect in all projects this year. Ask yourself each time an activity is planned, how is this going to benefit the people of this community?"

"It is time to look to the present and plan for the future. I'm excited about this year and know that our new president, Ruth Newsom, will do everything she can to make this an exciting and prosperous year for Women's Division and Deaf Smith County."

As head of the close to 125-member organization, the largest women's group in Hereford, Newsom will take on the responsibility of coordinating the 18 standing committees and meet with the Chamber of Commerce board of directors once a month in addition to presiding at the Women's Division board meetings and quarterly membership meetings.

Newsom emphasized, "We want to get everyone as involved as possible and I hope to keep the public informed as to what the purpose of each committee is and how it will benefit Deaf Smith County."

Newsom has served as chairperson for the finance/budget committee of the Women's Division and has worked on the Blood Bank and Newcomers committees. She holds memberships in the Bay View Study Club, the Deaf Smith County Genealogical Society, National Daughters of the American Revolution, and is on the board of directors of the Circle of Friends of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center.

Culpepper gave special recognition to former Woman of the Year honorees. Past recipients of the award have been Irene McKinster, 1971; Katherine Kester, 1972; Violet Reinauer, 1973; Wynell Robinson, 1974; Lavon Nieman, 1975; Inez Albright, 1976; Sherry Hoover, 1977; Susie McGee, 1978; Virginia Adams, 1979; Georgia Sparks, 1980; Leatrus Clark, 1981; Carrell Ann Simmons, 1982; Margaret Formby, 1983; Mary Herring, 1984; Lajean Henry, 1985; Helen Langley, 1986; Betty Drake, 1987; Donna West, 1988; and Bettye Owen, 1989.

All women interested in joining the Women's Division, which meets quarterly, are asked to contact a member or call the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, 364-3333.

Women's Division Woman of the Year

Betty Taylor, surrounded by her family, was presented a silver engraved tray and a bouquet of roses when she was named the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division 1990 Woman of the Year. The annual installation banquet was held Thursday evening at the Hereford Community Center.

To lead Women's Division

Ruth Newsom was installed as the new Women's Division president during the organization's annual installation banquet held Thursday evening at the Hereford Community Center. Donna West served as installing officer using a cruise ship theme as she presented Newsom with a captain's hat. The Women's Division meets quarterly and all women are invited to join by contacting a member or by calling the Chamber of Commerce office at 364-3333.

Medicare questions, answers

Q. What is a Medicare "participating" physician or supplier?

A. One who agrees to accept the amount approved by Medicare as full payment for services and supplies for all Medicare beneficiaries.

Q. May a participating physician or supplier bill beneficiaries for more than the amount paid by Medicare?

A. A beneficiary must first pay a $100 deductible for the year, then Medicare pays 80 percent of the amount approved for the service. The patient is billed for the remaining 20 percent.

Q. Does Medicare pay for long-term care in a nursing home?

A. No. But Medicare can help pay for acute care and rehabilitation services in a skilled nursing facility certified by Medicare. Even in such a facility, Medicare will not pay if the services are mainly personal care such as help in walking, getting in and out of bed, eating, dressing, bathing and taking medicine.

Q. Three years ago I chose to take Medicare Part A only. Can I now also get Part B?

A. You may still enroll in Part B but the monthly premium will be higher, unless you continued to work beyond age 65 and were covered by an employer's health plan at the time you were first eligible for Medicare. In that case, you can get Part B on the same terms as you would have three years ago.

Q. Where can I learn about insurance to supplement Medicare?

A. The Social Security office or state insurance department can provide you with a copy of the Guide to Health Insurance for People with Medicare. Developed by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners and the Health Care Financing Administration of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, it explains what Medicare pays and does not pay, discusses private health insurance and offers tips on shopping for such "Medigap" insurance.

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) - At the request of Soviet television officials, the Christian Broadcasting Network is providing 27 regional networks there with a 30-minute special on the meaning of Christmas. Michael Little, a CBN vice president, said Soviet officials asked for the special on the historical, biblical aspect of Christ's birth "to explain to their Soviet audience what Christmas is all about."

The host of the show will be CBN's founder and president, Pat Robertson.

He said that the Soviet networks also will broadcast another CBN special, "Don't Ask Me, Ask God," in January and that a CBN animated Bible series, "Superbook," currently airs weekly in the Soviet Union.

SARAH RUTH FISH

Fish receives degree

Sarah Ruth Fish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Fish of Hereford, received a bachelor of science degree in speech pathology from Texas Christian University on Dec. 21, 1990.

Baccalaureate commencement services were held at Daniel-Meyer Coliseum on the Ft. Worth campus with Chancellor William E. Tucker presiding.

Dean Robert Garwell of the College of Fine Arts and Communication presented the diplomas.

Fish has accepted a position as speech therapist in the Odessa school system beginning Jan. 3.

Worsted, a smooth, shiny strong wool yarn, comes from Wrotham, a town in England where the yarn was first made.

Holiday tea held recently

The Pioneer Study Club recently held their annual holiday tea in the home of Mrs. Ted Panciera.

Each member brought goodies for the tea table and 37 gift packets were made for shut-in friends.

For the Texas Heritage program, Willie Wimberly reviewed "The Edge of Time", a reissue of one of Loula Grace Erdman's novels which tells a story of the early day settlers of the Panhandle.

In a brief business meeting, Rosemary Thomas read a message from the state Federation president, Dorothy Boutwell.

A letter was read from Amarillo Veterans Hospital in appreciation of over $800 in gifts donated for Christmas including cards, stamps, clothing, and cosmetics.

Oleta Hoffman served as co-hostess to Mary Jane Burrus, Jeanie Caison, Nell Culpepper, Maria Escamilla, Catherine Gripp, Billee Johnson, Gladys Miller, Hoffman, Panciera, Fern Sigle, Thomas, and Wimberly.

The ancient Egyptians cultivated the wild watermelon. Pictures of the fruit have been found in the older of the pyramids.

Family histories researched

Two local genealogists, members of the Deaf Smith County Genealogical Society, display family histories they have researched, written and published. Nell Norvell, at left, shows The Rape Family Tree she published in 1983, and Mildred Sheffy displays her book, Scherffeg To Sheffy 1788-1988. Both books are in the Genealogy Room in Deaf Smith County Library.

Monthly genealogy workshops scheduled

Members of the Deaf Smith County Genealogy Society will sponsor monthly workshops to be held throughout the year. The first is planned from 7:30-9 p.m. Monday, Jan. 21, in the Deaf Smith County Library Heritage Room. The workshops will be conducted by Mrs. Sylvia Murray, an accredited genealogist of Amarillo.

Murray has taught genealogy for 17 years on the college level. If of those at Amarillo College. She is director of LDS libraries in Amarillo, Borger and Tucumcari, N.M.; writes genealogy columns for area papers; and conducts workshops and seminars throughout the Texas Panhandle. She is very knowledgeable and well-known as a problem solver with a great sense of humor, making her both instructional and entertaining.

"How to Research in the Carolinas" will be the topic of the January workshop. The public is invited to come and bring their Carolina research problems.

To help defray the cost of handouts and Murray's expenses, a $2 donation is suggested.

Tips on choosing a dress shoe with comfort

In the course of just one single day, the average foot will hit the ground approximately 8,000 times-supporting three times a person's body weight.

It's no wonder that millions of Americans are donning athletic shoes for their work day commute. But for those looking for a stylish, yet comfortable, alternative to sneakers with business clothes, comfort footwear or "healthy shoes" might be the answer.

"With the advent of sneaker technology and high-performance comfort, men and women are now demanding comfortable, healthier dress shoes for the workplace," said Dr. Mayde Ledensfeld, New York City podiatrist and a member of the Rockport Walking Institute's Podiatric Medical Advisory board.

"Standing and walking all day in improper footwear is not only uncomfortable, it's unhealthy and can lead to a variety of medical problems. I think it's a step in the right direction that footwear manufacturers are answering the demand for foot wear that doesn't sacrifice comfort for style."

Selecting the right type of comfort footwear can be confusing, though, as shoppers are bombarded with a myriad of shoes all touting various high-tech comfort features.

- *Polyurethane outsole to absorb shock and add durability.
- *Shock-absorbing padding in heel area to cushion heel strike
- *Roomy toe box to avoid a tight fit
- *Breathable leather upper for cool comfort

BRANDED Women

By Sandy Stagner

I don't know what the general consensus is, but I'm very glad Christmas is over. I had the holiday spirit for over two months, starting in October, and by Christmas Day, I was tired of it all. So, down came the tree, the decorations were put in the attic and the Christmas tree needles were picked up one by one out of the carpet.

Now I'm faced with starting a new year. I wonder if 1991 will be better than '90 was? When I related my pessimistic mood to my husband, he replied, "Oh, good grief. This past year wasn't that bad. To make my point, get a piece of paper and write down all the negative and positive points of 1990."

"You're on," I said. After penning last year's events, I'm more depressed than ever. Here's a copy of my list:

NEGATIVE ASPECTS OF 1990

1. Six months before my son graduated from high school, he announced that since he was a senior he should be treated as an adult. This "small" argument continued until the day of graduation. He then announced he was a college freshman and should get to do what he wanted. (Oh, the headaches of raising children!)

2. I experienced months of depression after he went to college. My baby was gone from the nest.

3. I finally adjusted to Tim being away from home and he begins showing up at the front door toting 17 loads of laundry every other weekend. I know I enjoy washing and ironing until 4:30 a.m.

4. I had to have three root canals during the summer. Was this a sign of things to come? Yeah, it was.

5. Two months later I was in the hospital having surgery.

6. I spent six weeks at home recovering. I got bored out of my mind and my husband got tired of doing the grocery shopping, the laundry, the cooking, the cleaning, etc.

7. I turned 41. That's practically 50. And that's equal to one-half of a century old.

8. One morning I awoke to find that I now had nine deep wrinkles around my eyes and realized nothing short of a facelift was going to alleviate the problem. The old egg white facial no longer works.

9. My daughter turned 13. Oh, gosh, now I had two teenage children to contend with. Is there no justice in the world?

10. I developed a skin rash in October and still have it. Three doctors still don't know what it is or what is causing it. I've learned to live with pouring bottles of Calamine lotion on my body day after day.

11. I decided to wear contact lenses instead of glasses thinking it would make me look younger. Guess what? I can't see with them. My doctor says it has something to do with getting older. That's just what I didn't need to hear!!!

12. I think what's got me really depressed is the fact that I'm now having to take daily doses of hormones. Doesn't that mean I'm definitely on the path to old age?

After reading my list over, I handed it to my husband hoping I had made my point. He only laughed. "Sandy," he said, "okay, so your negative list is a bit longer than your positive one. Big deal. You have to learn to adjust to life. Embrace it. Make the most of it. Take it from me, if you change your attitude, life will be wonderful and you will look forward to each new, marvelous, exciting day!" I stared at him incredulously. After giving it considerable thought, however, perhaps my husband was right. I'd change my lousy attitude and that in turn should make 1991 much better.

On New Year's Eve, which is normally celebrated by me going to bed by 10 p.m., John and I decided to toast in 1991 with close friends. As the four of us were sitting in front of a roaring fire and sipping our champagne, I realized just how lucky I was and that the new year would be a good one.

With this thought in mind Wednesday morning, I looked forward to going to work and facing the new day. Seconds after I had stepped out of the car, I slipped on a patch of ice and went down hard hitting the back of my head. While still sprawled out on the ice in a very un ladylike position, I examined by body, noting a large goose-shaped egg on my head, a scraped hand and very bruised derriere and ego.

So much said for a positive outlook. It was an omen of things to come. I'm taking no more chances. The heck with "embracing life." I'll just learn to get through it the best way I can.

POSITIVE ASPECTS OF 1990

Let me think on this for two or three years. Okay.....

1. I learned to eat without using salt on my food. (I know it's a little thing but it sure helped lower my cholesterol level.)

2. Got on the exercise bike twice.

3. Walked around the backyard seven times during the year to emphasize that I was at least trying to exercise.

4. Only brought home one stray cat.

5. Learned to be a good sport when playing Friday night cards with the girls. (At least, I don't toss the entire deck of cards in the air when I'm losing! Just half of 'em!)

6. I finally quit griping at my husband about his snoring. Now, I just get my bedroll and go sleep on the couch.

7. Finally, I adjusted to my son going off to college for the first time.

Coupe attends seminar

Joan Coupe, owner of Hereford Travel Center, recently returned from a sales seminar aboard the Mississippi Queen Steamboat which departed from New Orleans, La.

During her three-night steamboat trip, Coupe had the opportunity of visiting Nottoway Plantation -- the largest plantation home in the South, as well as experiencing a "Cajun Heritage Tour" to French Settlement, La., where the steamboat passengers were entertained with Cajun music and stories, sampled authentic Cajun food, including alligator meat, and viewed Cajun crafts.

MRS. MARK EDWARD SCHNIEDERJAN
...nee Melissa Faye Frerich

Frerich, Schniederjan vows exchanged Saturday in Vega

Melissa Faye Frerich of Hereford and Mark Edward Schniederjan of Dalhart were united in marriage Saturday evening in Immaculate Conception Catholic Church in Vega. Officiating was Father Ken Keller of Amarillo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Frerich of Route 1, Hereford, and is the granddaughter of Caroline Brorman and George Frerich, both of Hereford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schniederjan of Dalhart.

The church altar was decorated with two large arrangements of red and ivory carnations and a candelabrum holding red tapers and accented with greenery and a large red bow. Red satin bows adorned the pews.

The bride's sister, Kristi Batenhorst of Umbarger, served as matron of honor and the groom's brother, James Schniederjan of Dalhart, was best man.

Bridesmaids included Jami Joyce and Cindy Meiwes, both of Amarillo, MaShawn Gilter of Vega and Brandy Richardson of Lubbock.

Groomsmen were the groom's brothers, Jerry Schniederjan of Bushland and Larry Schniederjan and Gary Schniederjan, both of Dalhart; and the groom's brother-in-law, Joe Rohrbach.

Guests were escorted by Shannon Williams of Amarillo, Larry Reynolds of Dalhart and Brian Hale of Arlington.

The bride's nieces, Stefanie and Rachael Batenhorst, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Batenhorst of Umbarger, were flower girls. Ring bearer was the bride's brother, Jonathan Frerich.

Candles were lit by Mark and Brad Wieck, both of Dalhart.

Carolyn Slutz of Vega accompanied Beth Rohrbach and Brian Wood, both of Lubbock, as they sang "Vows Go Unbroken", "Wedding Song", "Wedding Prayer", "Battle Hymn of Love" and "Only a Shadow."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a candlelight regal satin gown fashioned with a scalloped Sabrina neckline, Edwardian sleeves and a fitted bodice encrusted with pearls and jewels crowned with clusters of jeweled flowers and molded medallions. The gown plunged to a low back which was centered with a designer bow. The princess-styled waistline was adorned with pearl swirls and the full flowing skirt featured Venice lace medallions. The Queens Court cathedral-length train was accented with European lace cutouts and studded with pearls, jewels and sunburst medallions with sprays of pearls.

The double pouf veil was attached to a crown of silk ivory roses with simulated pearls.

The bride carried a cascading arrangement of red and ivory silk roses and baby's breath with ivory ribbon streamers.

Her jewelry consisted of her grandmother's wedding ring and pearl earrings that her mother had worn when she married.

In keeping with bridal tradition, the bride wore her grandmother's wedding ring as something old; her dress, something new; her mother's earrings, something borrowed; and a wedding garter, something blue. She also placed a birthdate penny in her shoe.

Bridal attendants wore red taffeta dresses fashioned with dropped waistlines accented with angled bows. The dresses also featured deep V-shape backs, hi-low hemlines and three-quarter-length sleeves. Each carried a single ivory rose.

The flower girls wore red teal-length taffeta dresses with long sleeves, and bows and ruffles which accented the backs. In their hair, they wore ivory colored wreaths.

Becky Sutton of Amarillo invited guests to register at the reception held in the parish hall.

Cake was served by the bride's cousin, Kim Hersley of Lubbock; Tawnya Shropshire of New Deal; and the bride's sister-in-law, Lonna Frerich of Vega. Punch and coffee were poured by Joy Mueller of Olton.

Other members of the houseparty were Elaine Brorman of Adrian; Dolores Brorman, Dorothy Brorman and Arline Rohrbach, all of Vega; and Pat Meiwes of Hereford.

The three-tiered bride's ivory cake was garnished with red and ivory roses and featured a fountain which was encircled by eight small hexagon shaped cakes. The cake top was miniature bride and groom figurines standing under a crystal heart.

The groom's chocolate cake was shaped like a house similar to the one the bridal couple will be living in and was placed amid a scene which featured a barn, tractor, farm animals and wheat fields.

The groom's table was covered with a red underlay and lace cloth and was appointed with a silver coffee server. The bride's table was covered with an ivory underlay and a lace cloth and was centered with the bride's bouquet. Punch was served from the bride's table.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe, Nev. They will make their home in Hartley.

The bride, a 1989 graduate of Vega High School, attended South Plains College in Levelland and was employed by Morgan-McAfee Insurance Co. in Lubbock.

The groom, a 1986 graduate of Hartley High School, attended Amarillo College. He is now engaged in farming near Hartley.

Marriage announced

Saleh Igal and Janie Boneta were united in marriage in Las Vegas, Nev. on Dec. 12, 1990. Saleh is the son of former Hereford residents Bill and Beth Igal, now of Lewisville.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Luis Boneta of McAllen. She is a graduate of McAllen High School and Southwest Texas State University. She is a partner in Design Studios, a clothing design firm.

The groom is employed as a computer consultant at B.R. B. Blackmar and Associates. He graduated from Hereford High School in 1982, and from the University of Texas in Austin School of Engineering in 1985.

Children of Spain fill their shoes with grain or carrots to feed the horses of the Three Wise Men. Gifts are exchanged on January 6 in honor of the arrival of these Magi.

Organizing creates a new kitchen

Adding accessory items to your existing kitchen cabinets is an easy and economical way to get a "new" kitchen. Better use of existing space eliminates countertop clutter and gives you more room than you thought possible.

What's the best way to get organized and save space in your kitchen? Here are some helpful tips from the experts.

- To eliminate countertop clutter, install a convenient microwave shelf under your wall cabinets.
- Keep your kitchen rubbish out of sight with a handy pull-out or wing-out waste basket.
- By displaying your fine collectibles behind glass doors, you can add a distinctive accent to your kitchen.
- Also reducing countertop clutter is an appliance center/garage. You can add an optional organizer to store cookbooks and recipes.
- To keep vegetables fresh, try durable polyurethane vegetable bins.

MRS. WILLIAM J. RUCKMAN
...nee Jeri Renae McConnell

McConnell, Ruckman nuptials exchanged

Wesley United Methodist Church was the site of the marriage of Jeri Renae McConnell of Hereford and William J. Ruckman, who is stationed at Beale Air Force Base, Calif. The early evening wedding ceremony Dec. 31 was officiated by Pastor Derrel Evins.

The bride is the daughter of Jerry and Janice McConnell of Route 3, Hereford, and the bridegroom is the son of Alvin and Nancy Ruckman of 205 W. Sixth St.

The church was decorated with white poinsettias and spiral brass candelabra accented with greenery and baby's breath. The unity candle was trimmed with greenery and baby's breath and pews were marked by cream bows, greenery and baby's breath.

Vaavia June Rudd served as maid of honor and best man was Derrell Page.

Brooke Renee Weishaar was bridesmaid and groomsmen were Gary Ruckman, the groom's brother.

Guests were escorted by the bride's brothers, Steve and Shawn McConnell.

Jessica Marie Weishaar and Barrett Wayne Weishaar, children of Ron and Jan Weishaar, served as flower girl and ring bearer, respectively. Candles were lit by Holly Michelle Weishaar and the groom's nephew, Christopher Ruckman.

Jill West, accompanied by Marilyn Bell on the piano, vocalized "If" and "The Lord's Prayer." "Unchained Melody" was presented by West, who played the flute, and Vaavia Rudd, violinist.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length cream satin Victorian styled gown made by her mother. It was fashioned with puffed sleeves which gathered at cuffs and a deep V-shape back neckline. The back of the basque waistline was accented with a designer's bow and the hand-crocheted lace bodice was accented with pearls.

The bride's mother also designed the elbow-length bridal illusion veil which was attached to a large satin bow.

She carried a cascading arrangement of roses and baby's breath accented with greenery.

The maid of honor was attired in a floor-length gown designed with a black velvet bodice and an emerald taffeta skirt. Matching floor-length emerald taffeta gowns were worn by the bridesmaids, flower girl and candle lighters. Each gown was accented with a bow at the V-shape backed bodice. Bridal attendants carried long stemmed white roses.

Dawn Debord invited guests to register at the reception held in the church parlor.

The bride's sister-in-law, Linda McConnell, served cake and the groom's sister-in-law, Pam Ruckman, poured punch and coffee. Tessa Baker, daughter of Susan Baker, distributed rice bags.

The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with cascading roses, carnations and baby's breath and was placed on the refreshment table covered with a hand-crocheted cream cloth over a green underlay.

The couple lives at Beale Air Force Base, Calif.

The bride is a 1990 graduate of Hereford High School and the groom graduated from HHS in 1988. He is a first class senior airman in the United States Air Force.

Out of town wedding guests included the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Clark of Burns, Kan. and E.E. McConnell of Cedar Point, Kan.

Skin care concerns gain popularity among teens

As recently as ten years ago, skin care was a concern primarily for women over the age of 30. But today, with the advent of preventive skin care, an increasing number of teenagers are taking care of their skin before any damage is done. Regular cleansing, moisturizing and sun protection have finally crossed the generation gap.

Fourteen-year-old tennis prodigy Jennifer Capriati is typical of millions of teenagers in her concern with skin care. "I thought skin care was something for older women until I noticed how rough and dry my own skin looked after a day practicing my serves outside," says Jennifer.

Jennifer, like many teens, is particularly concerned with minimizing the skin flare-ups that are common during adolescence. "For many of my young patients, the single most important criterion of any skin care routine is that it neither aggravate an existing acne problem, nor bring on breakouts where there were none before," says Dr. Ellen Gendler, dermatologist and clinical professor at New York University Medical Center.

Although an effective teen skin care routine may vary slightly depending on the frequency and severity of breakouts, experts agree on the basics:

- * Wash your skin twice a day--morning and evening. It is especially important to remember to remove your makeup, no matter how minimal, every evening.

- * Look for a mild cleanser that removes grime and makeup without stripping the skin of necessary oils. New on the market are foaming face washes designed to provide the rich lathering of soap without its drying effects.

- * Limit the use of exfoliants or scrubs to twice a month. The can be irritating, particularly to acne-prone skin.

- * If you have oily skin, consider following cleansing with a mild, low alcohol toner. However, be aware that if you are currently using an acne medication, either prescription or over-the-counter, a toner can aggravate your skin condition.

- * If you have dry skin, consider finishing your skin care routine with a light, easily absorbed moisturizer that leaves skin soft and smooth. Look for a greaseless moisturizer that is non-comedogenic, which ensures that it won't clog pores.

As with adults, sensible skin care for teens includes sun protection. "Although most people are aware of the danger of prolonged exposure to the sun, few realize that the greatest damage comes from exposure before the age of 20," says Dr. Gendler. "That's why a sun block is particularly important at a young age...and not only before spending a day at the beach. Unprotected exposure to the sun at any time--whether exercising outdoors or simply walking down a city street--can eventually damage skin."

Experts recommend that teenagers apply a sun block with an SPF of 15 before hitting the beaches in summer or ski slopes in winter. To minimize the effects of indirect exposure to the sun on a daily basis, a growing number of young people are turning to moisturizers which also offer protection against skin-damaging UV rays that are present all day, all year.

Wellness, fitness trend for the '90s

Wellness-it is quickly becoming the concept of the '90s. As we reflect on past decades of nutrition and exercise crazes, we now realize that it takes a lot more than a focus on one particular activity to keep us healthy and happy.

Wellness is a well-rounded lifestyle, incorporating many different factors and aspects to achieve a physical and psychological state of "being the best you can be."

Wellness can be likened to a wheel-the wheel of life. When the wheel is supported by strong, evenly-balanced spokes, it rolls along smoothly, as it was meant to.

The "hub" or center of the wellness wheel is your health. With a strong, healthy body, you can accomplish almost anything. In turn, the "spokes" or activities that support overall wellness reinforce lifelong good health. These "spokes" are unique for every individual.

One of the primary keys to a healthy life is a well-rounded exercise program.

Exercise physiologists are seeing a trend that is moving away from a singular type of exercise; there is an increased interest in total body fitness-combining several kinds of exercise to build muscle strength, condition the cardiovascular system, and provide advantages the entire body can benefit from.

In addition, by alternating exercise activities, you can avoid the boredom that frequently accompanies dedication to one particular sport. An exercise program which combines activities such as walking, tennis, aerobics and running can not only provide enjoyment, but allows the entire body to benefit from the workout of all muscles.

In most cases, all you really need as far as equipment goes, is comfortable, protective clothing and a good pair of shoes. Comfortable well-fitting, shock-blocking shoes are probably your most important piece of exercise gear.

Women, especially, should make sure their athletic shoes have been designed specifically for a woman's foot and are not simply men's shoes scaled down in size.

It is important to get "sport-specific" shoes; in other words, don't use your running shoes for walking, and don't get out on the tennis court with your aerobic shoes on. Each type of shoe offers unique and special protection for its particular sport (special lateral or side-to-side support in tennis shoes, for example).

Along with exercise, you must remember to include good nutrition, stress reduction exercises, plenty of rest and time for yourself. And remember, moderation is the key-don't try to overdo it...the important thing is that you are doing it!

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 20-year-old college sophomore who lives in a co-ed dorm with 300 other students. Last year, I met a really neat guy from another school at a party. I made the mistake of sleeping with him on the first date. I thought he liked me a lot and would ask me out again. I was wrong. I'm sure he considered me a pushover.

I wish I could chalk this up to experience and forget it, but I can't. He gave me genital warts.

Ann, I'd never even heard of genital warts but now I've become an expert. It's one of the most common sexually transmitted diseases around. Too bad it doesn't make the headlines like AIDS, though it is highly contagious. You can use a condom and still get genital warts. Once you have the virus, it is in your system for years. Without treatment these warts can cause cellular changes that could progress to cervical cancer. If you're pregnant, you can pass the virus on to your unborn child.

Ann, I'm scared to death. I can't concentrate on school. I'd give anything to be healthy again. My folks are supportive and I'm thankful for that.

And what about the guy I was with? He's out there, still scoring. I don't care what happens to him, which is not very nice, but I feel sorry for the girl he will probably charm the pants off of this weekend.

Please tell your readers that this disease is serious stuff. It can be deadly. No sex is worth the price I'm paying. -- Hurling Alone

N.C. 27709. ASHA is forming a national HPV resource center and can tell you what treatment is available and whom to contact in your area. Thank you for writing. I wish you the best of luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell your younger readers that I am NOT their "Mom" and my husband is NOT their "Pop." We have lived a few years longer than they have, but we aren't their parents. If they want to speak to either of us and they don't know our names, they may address me a "Ma'am," "Lady" or "Mrs." and they can call my husband, "Sir," "Mister" or even "Hey, you."

This Mom and Pop stuff isn't indigenous to one particular part of the country, nor has it anything to do with old age. It began when we were in our 40s. We get it on both coasts and places in between. Kids use the salutations to address adults of all ages.

If you print this, Ann, you are sure to get a rousing cheer from the over-40 crowd. Sign me --Taking Umbarge in Grand Forks, N.D.

DEAR T.U. in N.D.: While that familiar salutation may suggest a lack of propriety, there's an element of harmlessness that should not be overlooked. I'm not condoning it but just pointing out that these kids wouldn't call you Mom or your husband Pop if they disliked you. Is alcohol ruining your life or the life of a loved one? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" can turn things around. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a

Extension News

BY BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent

Recent tax rate hikes in various parts of the state serve as a timely reminder of how important it is for Texas homeowners to know about and obtain any tax exemptions available to them.

Exemptions at varying levels are available in most areas. Tax exemptions affect the value at which property is appraised, which subsequently determines the amount of tax paid. Appraisals are performed by local appraisal district offices. Applications for exemptions are obtained and submitted through these offices.

It is possible for property to be appraised by more than one appraisal district; in that case, an application must be filed with each district. Applications for tax exemptions must meet strict deadlines.

Some of the specific exemptions for which many homeowners qualify are noted below:

-Homestead exemption-If a taxpayer owns a homestead, used as a principal residence, on Jan. 1, that residence qualifies for a homestead exemption of $5,000 reduction in appraisal for school tax purposes. Some areas may offer additional exemptions for county taxes.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - After a decade in retreat from the silver screen, Richard Harris campaigned for the part of stubborn Irish farmer Bull McCabe in the upcoming movie "The Field."

Invited to discuss a lesser role in the film, Harris showed up with a beard to look like the McCabe character, dressed in costume and spoke with the proper accent. It worked. He got the lead role in the film by director Jim Sheridan, who made "My Left Foot."

-Exemption for age 65 or older-For homeowners age 65 or over on Jan. 1, a residence homestead qualifies for at least one additional exemption. Homesteads for persons age 65 or over qualify for a $10,000 reduction of appraisal for school tax purposes, in addition to the $5,000 homestead exemption mentioned above. Some areas may offer other exemption programs. Tax ceilings, which "freeze" the amount of school taxes paid, or tax deferral alternatives may also be available to persons 65 and up.

-Exemptions for disabled homeowners-If a homeowner meets the definition of a disabled person under state law on Jan. 1, the residence of that person qualifies for at least one additional homeowner exemption. Some areas may offer other optional exemption programs for disabled homeowners. Special exemptions may be available for disabled veterans.

-Exemptions for solar or wind-powered energy devices-If a homeowner uses solar or wind power to produce or distribute energy, the residence may qualify for additional tax exemptions. These exemptions must be reapplied for on an annual basis.

Local appraisal districts can answer questions about property values, exemptions, the exemption application process, productivity valuation, and protests to the appraisal review board. County tax offices can provide specific information concerning tax rates and tax bills. The State Property Tax Board in Austin (1-800-252-9121) can provide a number of publications about the Texas tax system and answers tax-related questions.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

DEAR ALONE: I can understand your bitterness but your attitude is almost as destructive as the genital warts. This doesn't have to ruin your life. HPV (human papilloma virus), the virus that causes genital warts, is both treatable and manageable.

I hope you are seeing a competent gynecologist. Treatment may not eradicate the pesky things but you'll feel a lot better. Please educate yourself. For more information, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope (45 cents postage) to the American Social Health Association, P.O. Box 13827-W, Research Triangle Park,

Appearance increases home value

Surprising to many American homeowners is how much a little care on the outside of a home can mean in beauty and ultimately in saleability. Simply put, when you beautify the exterior of your home, you're protecting what's probably your most important investment.

Increasingly, when looking to the exterior of the home, homeowners consider vinyl and aluminum sidings, which, as part of their appeal, have the ability to protect while they beautify.

Among the advantages of these accessory products are:

- * An end to the need for painting.
- * An appealing color selection.
- * They won't rot, peel, flake or blister like painted wood.

HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

THE GODFATHER PART III: Starring Al Pacino, Diane Keaton and Andy Garcia. Director Francis Ford Coppola completes his motion picture trilogy of the legendary Corleone family in a brilliant, beautiful film that is the equal of his exceptionally fine Godfather, Parts I (1972) and II (1974). "Electrifying Andy Garcia is mesmerizing as the master manipulator/successor to Mafia don, Michael Corleone. His performance begs for Godfather, Part IV." The entire cast (many continuing roles from I and II), with the noted exception of Sofia Coppola, delivers the goods in wonderfully-turned, ensemble roles. Sofia Coppola, daughter of the director, is graceless, has no wit or charm, and detracts from what is an almost perfect film.

The themes for Part III are the same: power, succession, revenge, redemption, and love. Since the film opened Christmas Day in 1,800 theaters nationwide, it is doubtful that most of you do not know of its greatness - this column agrees. Rated R for excessive violence.

JANUARY NEW VIDEO RELEASES

January 17: MO' BETTER BLUES: (1990) Starring Denzel Washington and Spike Lee. Producer/writer-director-actor Spike Lee has made an entertaining, energetic movie that does have flaws and some poor production qualities, but is worth seeing. Mo' Better Blues is a poignant tale with gritty performances and a can't-miss jazz score. Trumpeter Bleek Gilliam (Denzel Washington) is obsessed with his music. He also cannot choose between his two girlfriends, Indigo (Joie Lee, Spike's real-life sister) and Clarke (Cyda Williams). His manager/childhood buddy, Giant (Spike Lee) adds to Bleeks' problems and his gambling debts. Denzel Washington is an excellent actor and, for the most part, carries the film. Spike Lee is a talented filmmaker still looking for his voice. His controversial Do The Right Thing was his first step toward what may become a fine career. Mo' Better Blues may not be the next real step forward, but it is a good try. Rated R for language.

Three Boxes

January 23: THE FRESHMAN: (1990) Starring Marlon Brando and Matthew Broderick. Can you imagine a PG comedy with Marlon Brando? If you missed this delightful satire on Mafia life the first time around, definitely rent it for the big laughs it delivers.

The script centers around Clark (Matthew Broderick) who, after only an hour in New York City, is conned out of his luggage and bankroll - not exactly the ideal start for a fresh-faced kid from Vermont about to begin college. So, he goes to work part-time for a prominent New York importer (Marlon Brando). The mix-ups over who is who, why is why and how is how, seed the laughs. But the film belongs to Brando (in his first starring role in ten years). His Godfather-like performance, within the framework of the comedy, is superb. Rated PG.

Three Boxes

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Win war from aging

Our ability to think and solve problems need not diminish with age and sharpening our minds may very well depend upon our general outlook on life and the quality of the social interaction we nurture, according to relevant research data reinforcing the importance of living in a healthy environment.

Dr. Marian Diamond has spent the past three decades researching the brain and is convinced that a "healthy, active environment" produces the mental stimulation necessary to invigorate our minds.

While the bulk of Dr. Diamond's research is with rats, she has shown that environmental enhancements like "toys," social colonies, and larger quarters produce rats that actually increased the thickness of their cerebral cortex (the outer layers of the brain dealing with cognitive thinking).

"Most interestingly, we can show that the cortex in our 900-day-old rats (equivalent to 90-year-old people) can still increase if the rats live in a stimulating, enriching environment."

The rats in Dr. Diamond's study were divided into three distinctive environmental groups. The "enriched" were allotted a square meter of space for a colony of 12; the standard were housed three to a one-foot-square cage; and "impoverished" lived alone in a very small cage. Only the "enriched" colony was allowed "toys," which included "ladders, swings, wheels—anything they couldn't eat," Dr. Diamond said.

By studying the rats from a very early age, through middle age, and into old age, Dr. Diamond was able to determine through "maze testing" that those which lived in the enriched environment maintained their ability to solve problems. They also developed a thicker cerebral cortex than did those which lived in either a standard or impoverished environment.

Expanding further on her results, Dr. Diamond said the rats living in the enriched environment had larger nerve cell bodies and more branches as well as more glial cells—cells which provide metabolic and structural support for the nerve cells.

Asked to compare the "enriched" environment in which the laboratory rats lived with a comparable human environment, Dr. Diamond responded, "A healthy diet, a healthy environment (social interaction), and a positive attitude."

Asked if she would offer advice to those concerned about their perceived diminished mental capabilities, she offered, "Keep your brain active." And then she volunteered a bit of advice from her aged aunt, quoting, "The brain has a choice between the negative and the positive, and who needs the former?"

The ever-active and effervescent Dr. Diamond is the director of the Lawrence Hall of Science, University of California, Berkeley. She says that her own children and the retired groups with whom she speaks have benefitted from the results of her research. She's created her own enriched environment and we can do the same.

Between the Covers

BY REBECCA WALLS

The new year is well underway and I hope it will continue to see each of you using your library.

At the top of our new book list this week you will find The Man Who Changed the World: The Lives of Mikhail S. Gorbachev by Gail Sheehy. Mikhail S. Gorbachev stands as one of the giants among the great visionary statesmen of our century. He is a daring risk-taker who still remains under the romantic thrall of communism, a bestower of democracy who takes the powers of a dictator into his own hands, a diplomat recognized throughout the West, yet belittled at home. Gail Sheehy's brilliant biography is the human story of the inner struggle that is the culmination of the series of lives Gorbachev has led throughout his career. Through interviews with childhood playmates, his university circle, Party members who knew him as a provincial boss and close observations of Gorbachev himself, Sheehy follows Gorbachev's evolution from a disciple to a reformer; from a reformer to a revolutionary; and from a revolutionary to a quasi-democratic head of state. Gorbachev's new style of leadership for a postnuclear age won him the Nobel Peace Prize. Will Gorbachev be capable of sustaining the revolution he has set in motion, as the accumulated inertia and corruption of seven decades threatens to overwhelm him? That drama is the greatest of our time.

If I Ever Get Back to Georgia, I'm Gonna Nail My Feet to the Ground is the latest creation of Lewis Grizzard. Grizzard got his first newspaper job for the Newman (Georgia) Times-Herald. Lewis also happened to be the star pitcher on the same team. From that position, Lewis moves on to college where he quickly ascends to the position of sports editor on the paper that changed his life. At the Athens (Georgia) Daily News, Grizzard learned how to prepare a front-page headline and layout for the unexpected such as the return of Jesus Christ. Lewis also learned how to cover stories about chickens getting stuck in trees, small-town sheriffs and speed traps and how to write about a catfish with false teeth. From Athens he is on to Atlanta and then on to Chicago as sports editor of the Chicago Sun-Times. In Chicago, it was a time of lawsuits, freezing cold blizzards, and of learning a lot about life, liberty and the pursuit of his own happiness.

Heart Myths, by Bruce D. Charash, M.D., discusses the common fallacies about prevention, diagnosis and treatment of heart disease. The largest killer in the United States, heart disease is responsible for more than one death every minute. Among the many myths Dr. Charash explores are: Lowering cholesterol levels which make you live longer; exercise makes your heart stronger; bypass surgery prevents heart attacks; people suffering from high blood pressure should always avoid salt; and heart attacks occur only during moments of stress. Dr. Charash identifies the major myths surrounding heart disease and its various manifestations, explains what the latest scientific studies have shown and clears up the common misconceptions about our heart and what makes it tick. Heart Myths, written in "easy-to-understand" language, provides a medically sound, reassuring and frequently surprising discussion of the real facts behind its causes and prevention.

Vital Signs by Robin Cook is another top-notch suspense thriller that will grip the reader from the first page. Marissa Blumenthal is back with a superb professional reputation and a flourishing pediatrics practice. Marissa is married to Robert, the man of her dreams, an entrepreneur involved in health care. Marissa has everything but the child she desperately desires. When a little medical sleuthing points to a suspicious origin of infertility, Marissa boldly challenges the law. Marissa's life is mysteriously threatened, but she will not stop and soon finds herself drawn into the dark vortex of baby-making business.

Grief seminar scheduled

The Fellowship of Believers will sponsor a grief seminar led by Doug Manning entitled "Don't Take My Grief Away From Me."

The public is invited to attend the four-session seminar scheduled from 9-10 a.m. Jan. 6, Jan. 13, Jan. 20 and Jan. 27 at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, 427 Ranger Drive. No reservations are needed.

Each session will dismiss in time for the participants to attend their own church.

For further information concerning the seminar, call In-Sight Books at 364-7862.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Oscar-winner Burt Lancaster is showing some signs of improvement after a stroke in November left him partially paralyzed, his agent said.

"He's doing as well as can be expected. He's responding to the therapy and is in good spirits," Ben Benjamin said Thursday.

The 77-year-old actor suffered a stroke Nov. 30 and is under care at an undisclosed hospital near his Los Angeles home.

Medicare patients face more fraudulent claims

Older Americans are the first line of defense against unscrupulous health care providers who are milking Medicare of $10 billion annually. By allowing these abuses to go unchallenged, Medicare's 33 million beneficiaries will pay about $300 each in wasted premiums this year.

An article on Medicare abuse in Modern Maturity Magazine recommends that beneficiaries follow these steps to combat fraud:

- * Understand the charges. Go over the charges with a friend or relative. If still unclear, call your health care provider.

- * Ask for a claims review. The carrier handling Medicare claims is responsible for spotting abuse and fraud. Your carrier's name, address and statewide toll-free number are on the Explanation of Medicare Benefits form and on the back of the Medicare Handbook.

- * Report fraud. If you suspect fraud, call 1-800-368-5779, the toll-free hotline of the Office of the Inspector General of the Department of Health and Human Services.

Physicians are not the only ones who should be challenged. Robin Talbert, an analyst with the American Association of Retired Persons' Office of Consumer Affairs, says consumers can play an important role in ensuring that tens of millions of Medicare dollars are not siphoned off each year by dishonest medical equipment suppliers.

She warns consumers to be wary when considering:

- * Seat-lift chairs
- * Transcutaneous electric nerve stimulators (TENS)
- * Bed and wheelchair cushions
- * Skin-care equipment
- * Three-wheel powered carts

To be safe, beneficiaries should:

- * Check with their doctor before agreeing to purchase medical equipment.
- * Refuse to accept "free" equipment. Suppliers can use a beneficiary's Social Security number, get their own doctors to authorize need and collect from Medicare.
- * Beware of any sales pitch that implies the product will not cost you anything because Medicare will pay for it. You may be left holding the bag.

Survey reveals headaches attack more men

Are headaches "sexist"? Yes, at least according to a recent nationwide survey conducted by the National Headache Foundation and Wyeth-Ayerst Laboratories. This survey of 3,000 headache sufferers revealed that headaches attack men more than women. In fact, 70 percent of the males surveyed appear to get headaches three times as frequently as females.

But all is not gloom and doom for men. While males suffer from headaches more frequently, females hold on longer to their pain. According to the survey, 50 percent of the women reported their headaches lasted several days. In comparison, 53 percent of the men surveyed said their headaches only spanned several hours.

The findings of the survey revealed, the older you get, the more headache-prone you become. Consider that 40 percent of the respondents in the 65-plus age group endure headaches at least once a day, twice the rate of those in the younger age group.

Of the 65-plus headache sufferers, 61 percent rely on some type of medication. On the other hand, the younger set seems to take their pain with a stiff upper lip. Only 35 percent of individuals under 35 years of age seek medication.

"While the consequences of headaches differ with sex and age, the fact remains that headaches affect almost everyone," says Dr. Seymour Diamond, executive director of the National Headache Foundation and head of his own headache clinic, the largest in America. "Headaches are one of the most common complaints today, with more than $400 million spent on over-the-counter pain relievers."

To soothe their aching heads, most of the respondents reach out for aspirin. It's non-prescription drug of choice for 35 percent of the survey participants, followed by acetaminophen (27 percent) and ibuprofen (21 percent).

When it comes to more serious and frequent headaches, such as migraine, 91 percent of the sufferers rely on prescription medications. The beta blocker propranolol was cited among the top-20 percent take it. Dr. Diamond explains, "Inderal LA, the long-acting form of propranolol, is the only medication that can be taken long-term to prevent migraine attacks. Easy to use, this medication only has to be taken once a day and can greatly improve the quality of life for countless numbers of sufferers."

In their quest for improving the quality of their lives, many headache sufferers try different pain-relieving practices in addition to taking medication. The survey uncovered that 40 percent practice relaxation techniques such as biofeedback; 13 percent apply an ice pack to their heads, and three percent take hot baths or showers.

Another way of dealing with a debilitating headache is talking about it.

When sufferers express their pain, they opt for dramatic descriptions. Most frequently used words are "throbbing" (52 percent); excruciating" (49 percent); and "pounding" (34 percent). Others find their headaches "penetrating" (26 percent); "torturing" (20 percent); "gnawing" (14 percent); and "drilling" (nine percent).

After coping with the pain caused by a headache, what does a sufferer do when it passes? Thirty-three percent reported they are just happy to be rid of the pain and resume their normal activities, while 27 percent simply rest. Nine percent of those surveyed react more emotionally and said they "celebrate" and "jump for joy." Could the passing of a headache add to the wasteline? Perhaps, when you consider that seven percent responded they "have a good meal" to enjoy the temporary demise of a headache.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Classified advertising rates are based on 14 cents a word for first insertion ($2.80 minimum), and 10 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy charge, straight word ads.

| TIMES           | RATE | MIN   |
|-----------------|------|-------|
| 1 day per word  | .15  | 3.00  |
| 2 days per word | .26  | 5.20  |
| 3 days per word | .37  | 7.40  |
| 4 days per word | .48  | 9.60  |
| 5 days per word | .59  | 11.80 |

If you run ads in five consecutive issues with NO changes, you get the same ad in the Reach 4 More free. The regular charge for that ad would be $4.00.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid word lines—those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing; all capital letters. Rates are $4.15 per column inch; $3.45 an inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS

Ad rates for legal notices are same as for classified display.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it. This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing--county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Upstairs Bedrooms May Be Finished Later

MAGNIFICENT MASTER BEDROOM SUITE

FEATURE HOMES

BY W. D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

This plan can suffice for the growing family on the main floor alone. Two bedrooms upstairs may be finished now or later since two other rooms shown for the first floor may be ample for your present family. The foyer will lead to the dining room, guest bedroom, or the great room. A U-shape kitchen is central and a breakfast area is adjacent.

There are two full baths and one half bath shown for the first floor. The laundry room is designed to also include freezer space.

There is an upper and lower deck and a screen porch, these being accessible from the great room, breakfast area or the master bedroom.

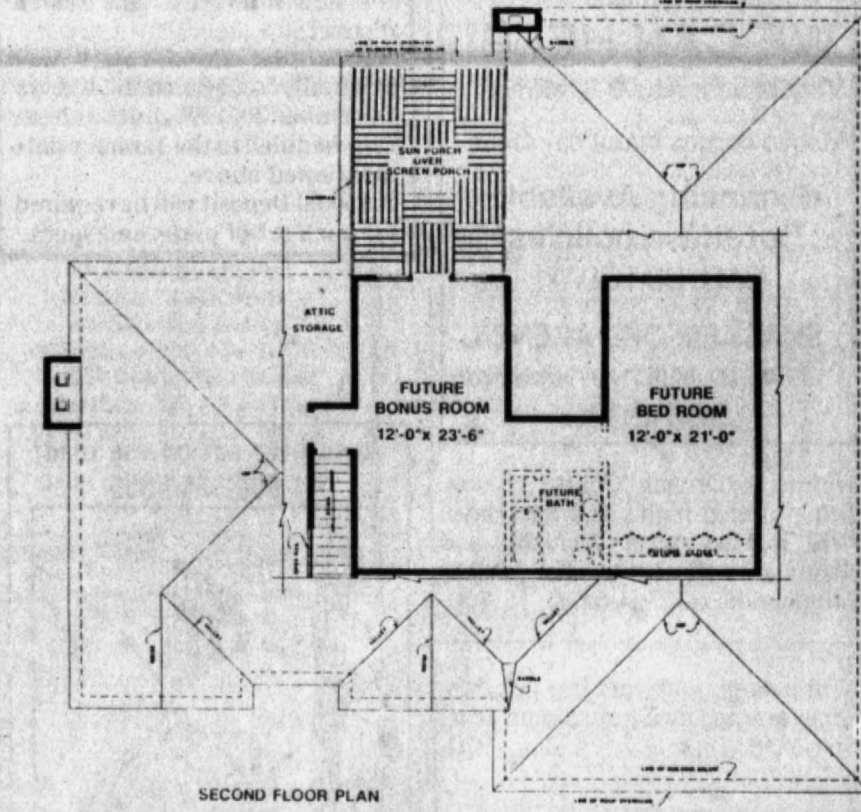

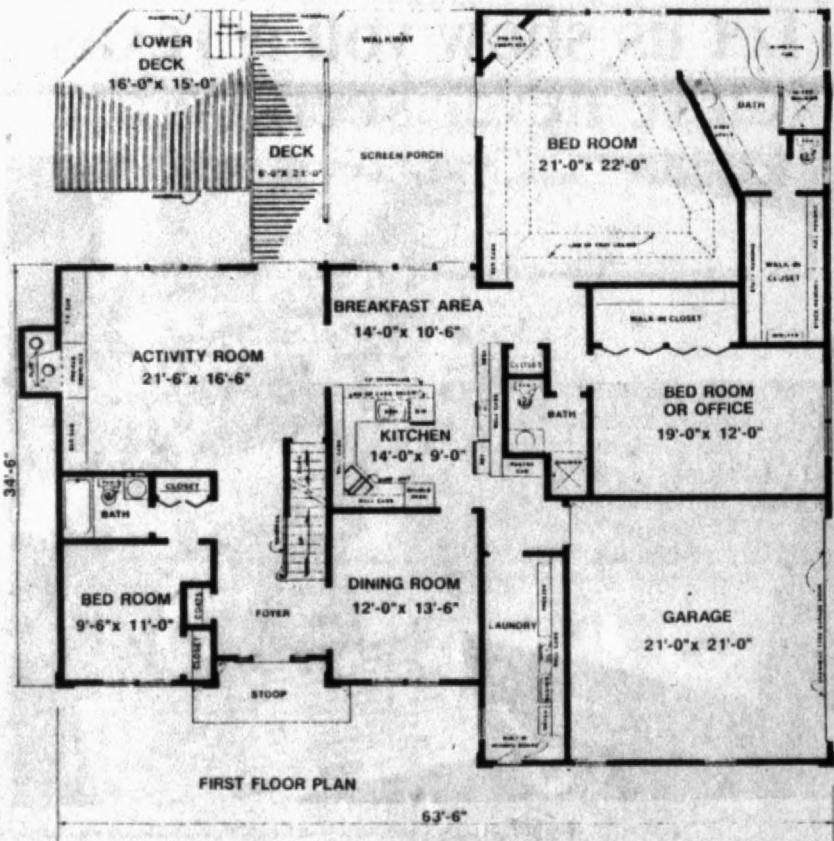

The unusual arrangement of the master bedroom suite is most desirable. Also featured here are a tray ceiling, fireplace, private bath with circular tub, separate shower, separate commode area and an enormous walk-in closet.

Should you so desire, you may finish two large bedrooms within the steep hip roof, these bedrooms serviced by a central full bath.

The traditional exterior is enhanced by hip and gable roof design, Palladian windows, corner quoins and stucco finish.

The plan is Number 3222. It is a computer generated plan and includes 3,255 square feet of heated area and more rooms may be finished in the basement. All W. D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are designed to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write W. D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Q. I am building several outdoor projects with pressure-treated wood. I've been told that the wood should be stained. I was under the impression that pressure-treated wood would last in its natural state for years - just the way it comes from the lumber dealer.

A. Outdoor or pressure-treated lumber is treated with chemicals to resist decay and insect attack. This procedure permits the consumer and forest industry to make use of inferior grades of lumber, rather than increasing the demand for redwood, cedar or cypress. But, unlike species of timber which are naturally decay and insect resistant, these lesser species have more pronounced grain, and are more prone to splinter and crack than redwood or cedar. So, even though the wood is treated, it is best to apply a stain - or at least a water repellent - as soon as your project is dry enough to take stain.

The first tip for working with pressure-treated lumber is to let it dry before using it. Other woods such as redwood and cedar are dry when you buy them. But lumber that has been treated has been injected with massive amounts of chemicals and water. For wood that will be in ground contact, these liquids penetrate the wood completely.

If possible, hand pick your own wood at the lumber dealer. Select lumber that looks straight and true, and is lighter and drier to the touch. These pieces have less water content and will be ready to use sooner. For very heavy lumber, understand that the extra weight you feel is fluid weight and will evaporate out in time. Stack wet lumber on a flat surface such as a driveway or patio, use spacers between boards to let air circulate, and check the wood for weight and by touch for moisture.

'Wings' flying high for Bernard

Attractive Crystal Bernard plays feisty Helen Chappel, an aspiring cellist who runs the lunch counter at Nantucket Airport on Wings. She co-stars with Tim Daly and Steven Weber, who play two at-odds brothers who run a commuter airline. The NBC comedy moves from Fridays to Thursdays, deposing defunct Grand.

Comedy moves to Thursday hot spot

By Amy Schmidt

Upon arriving in Los Angeles, Hollywood hopeful Crystal Bernard, then 17 years old, decided she had better make some contacts. "Actually, I picked up the phone and the first person I called was the president of NBC. He didn't call me back," says Bernard laughing.

Don't feel sorry for Bernard, though. The svelte blonde is the hot star of NBC's comedy Wings. Bernard plays Helen Chappel, the formerly fat waitress who works behind Nantucket airport's lunch counter. Co-starring with Bernard are Timothy Daly of Diner fame and Steven Weber of In the Line of Duty: A Cop for the Killing. The two play at-odds brothers who run a fledgling commuter airline service on the Massachusetts island.

Wings, which had been airing Friday nights, will now move to powerhouse Thursday, deposing defunct Grand. It should see good ratings in its 9:30 EST time slot, sandwiched between The Cosby Show and L.A. Law. NBC has cleverly been promoting Wings with short commercial clips of the show's stars gliding about seductively in a spoof of Calvin Klein's Obsession ads.

Also this season, the now pretty Helen will begin dating both brothers. "It's such a blast doing scenes with Tim (Daly)," confessed Bernard. "There's something about him.... Have you ever seen him do screen kisses?" she asked earnestly. "Tim's fantastic. He's just like one of those passionate — not yucky, but passionate — kissers."

And don't believe for a second good-looking Bernard has ever been heavy like her character was. In fact, her second Hollywood phone call was to the Nina Blanchard modeling agency. Rejected for being too short, Bernard talked Blanchard into signing her anyway. The next day she went to a commercial audition and got the job. The day after finishing the commercial, Garry Marshall cast her in a guest-starring role on Happy Days, and in the film Young Doctors in Love. Bernard's been working ever since, and prior to Wings she did a five-year stint on the syndicated series It's a Living.

"Fortunately I was either lucky enough or stupid enough to get work immediately. It wasn't until later I found out that only 1 percent of all actors and actresses work — 1 percent!" exclaimed Bernard. "And then I got scared!"

In what little spare time she has, Bernard says she likes to write and record music and go to the movies. "I love to go to the movies on Saturday afternoons, and then go and eat ribs — BBQ ribs," said the bubbly Houston native.

ABC's 'Dillinger' strives for accuracy

Mark Harmon plays title role
By Amy Schmidt

On the evening of July 22, 1934, John Dillinger went to the movies. He was 31 years old. He had been Public Enemy No. 1 for exactly one month. With his girlfriend, Polly, and her landlady, Anna — radiant in her red dress — he went to see Clark Gable in a gangster movie called Manhattan Melodrama at the Biograph Theatre in Chicago.

On Sunday, Jan. 6, ABC continues the Dillinger film legacy with the premiere of Dillinger, starring Mark Harmon and screendom's heir apparent Sherilyn Fenn. The first made-for-TV movie on the subject, the film is a David L. Wolper production, produced by his son Mark and directed by M.C. Hammer's music video director, Rupert Wainwright.

Such is the clout of Wolper Productions that ABC asked them what kind of movie they had always wanted to do. (Wolper's long history of credits includes the beginning and ending ceremonies of the Olympics, Roots and North and South.) Dillinger was their answer.

Why would anyone want to re-make a movie that has been done twice before? The first Dillinger was made in 1945 and starred Lawrence Tierney. (Film buffs will spot Tierney making a cameo appearance in this film.) The second starred Warren Oates in 1973.

Mark Wolper explained that what his company sought to do was create a film that was as historically correct as possible. He believes his Dillinger is the most accurate of the three. For example, contrary to popular belief, Polly Hamilton, Dillinger's girlfriend, was not "the woman in red" who fingered him for the FBI that fateful night. The handmaiden of history was a woman named Anna Sage, a disreputable immigrant who set up Dillinger in a deal to avoid deportation. (Hamilton is played by Patricia Arquette and Sage by Lucy Childs for the ABC movie.)

ABC's Dillinger was filmed in well-preserved areas of Milwaukee, Wis., resembling Chicago. © TV Listing Inc.

STAR NOTES

Clare Wren's character enlivens 'Young Riders'

By Candace Havens

Everywhere you look these days, the western genre is in full swing. ABC's popular series The Young Riders is one example.

The show centers around a group of young men who deliver mail along a rugged 2,000-mile route as Pony Express riders in the 1860s.

This season a new house mother for The Young Riders was introduced, Rachel Dunn (Clare Wren). "My character is a wily woman," commented Wren in a recent interview. "They brought her (Rachel) in, I think, because they are starting to develop the sexuality of all the characters on the show. She is not just a mother to the guys. She's close enough in age that she is sort of a contemporary. There is this wonderful tension, yet she is very maternal," the actress said.

"The role is a lot more fun because nothing is wrong for the character. She has been through so much. She can go in any direction and she will be OK."

Living in the 1990s is examined on Real Life With Jane Pauley, airing Sunday on NBC.

Anthony Geary to return to 'General Hospital'

By Candace Havens

One of daytime drama's most popular characters is returning to General Hospital. Anthony Geary, the Emmy Award-winning actor who made daytime history as part of the Luke and Laura team, is returning to the show.

Gloria Monty, who has just returned to the program as executive producer, said, "Tony and I have remained friends since we first worked together. I am delighted he is rejoining the show. However, he will not return in the character of Luke Spencer; that would be going back to the past, while I am definitely interested in General Hospital's moving forward. By mid-February, I will have a number of Valentine's week surprises in store for our viewers."

GH was the No. 1 serial in daytime when Monty introduced two new characters Luke (Geary) and Laura (Genie Francis). The romance between these two young lovers captivated the nation.

Newsweek magazine even devoted a 1981 cover to GH, calling it "TV's hottest show." The show has since fallen in the ratings, and once again ABC is hoping Monty can pull it out of the doldrums.

Geary has been busy since leaving the show, having guest-starred on several popular series and television movies. He also worked quite a bit in the theater.

Dear Candace: I would like to let you and Days of Our Lives know that I hope Patsy Pease comes back to the show. If they don't watch out, only Dr. and Alice Horton will be left!

I think the show needs to finish some of the loose ends and have some happy times for awhile. I hope Patch comes back also. —A reader in Statton, Neb.

Dear Reader: By now you know your wish for Pease to return has come true. I agree with you about asking the writers to give the characters some good times.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, TX 76102-0748.

Dirk Benedict discovered acting on a college buddy's dare

By Polly Vonctes

Q: What can you tell me about an actor named Dirk Benedict? How old is he? I am a real big fan. Please answer, don't let me down! —Jo Burkhart, Marble Falls, Texas

A: Dirk Benedict was born in White Sulphur Springs, Mont., on March 1, 1944. There was nothing in his hometown to turn a young man's fancy toward Hollywood or Broadway. Instead, his time was filled with hunting, fishing, skiing and high school athletics. He discovered acting when, on a dare from a fellow Whitman College freshman, he tried out for the lead in the school's production of Show Boat. After graduating with a liberal arts degree, he enrolled at the John Fernald

Dirk Benedict

Academy of Dramatic Arts in Rochester, Mich., for a two-year training program. He later moved to New York where he appeared in several plays on Broadway and with a touring company. His first movie was Georgia, Georgia, filmed in Sweden. He starred in SSSSSSSS and in W with Twiggy. He made his television debut as a guest lead on Hawaii Five-O. Benedict was quickly acknowledged by the television industry as one of its most promising newcomers. His television series include Battlestar Galactica, Chopper One and The A-Team. He makes his home in the San Fernando Valley area of Los Angeles. A licensed pilot, he spends his leisure time flying.

Q: How do you find out about how to join a fan club? The one I'm interested in is Larry Hagman's of Dallas. —Ginger Jeusen, Miltonvale, Kan.

A: You can learn all about the various fan clubs by writing to: National Association of Fan Clubs, 2730 Baltimore Ave., Pueblo, CO 81003. The association has more than 1,500 listings of your favorite stars.

Q: I have tried everywhere to locate some information on an actor named Anthony Denison who starred as Ray Luca on Crime Story. I would like to know how old he is, what state he lives in, and what other acting jobs (movies) I could see him in. Also, what has happened to him since Crime Story? Please print this. I have tried on my own — libraries, video stores, etc. —John Scheets, Salem, Ohio

A: Anthony Denison was born in the Bronx, N.Y., Sept. 20, 1953. He is a college graduate, having supported himself through college by running his own construction company. Upon graduation, he set out to define his role in life. He worked as a chauffeur, theater manager, newspaper editor and promoter of chess and backgammon tournaments. He became involved in performing with the Community Experimental Repertory Theatre, a professional touring company in New York State, while selling life insurance for a living. After 10 years of working regional theaters and daytime television, his rise to stardom happened almost overnight. Forty-eight hours after his first audition, he was on a flight bound for L.A. and his role in Crime Story. His TV credits include featured roles in the daytime dramas The Edge of Night, One Life to Live, Ryan's Hope and As the World Turns. He continues appearing in live theater and made-for-television movies. His new dramatic series, Under Cover, will be previewed this Monday on ABC. The series will premiere on Saturday, Jan. 12. He and his wife, actress Jennifer Evans, make their home in New York City.

NBC has extended full-season pick-up orders for two new comedy series, Fresh Prince of Bel Air, the highest-rated new situation comedy series of the season and the No. 1 show among teens, and Carol & Company, a show that has continued to win its time period against regularly scheduled programming.

Barbara DeAngelis, a new half-hour daytime talk series hosted by the counseling therapist, author and TV and radio personality, will premiere on Monday, Jan. 14, on CBS.

Bart is the world's largest living movie star. Thirteen years old and weighing 1,500 pounds, he's worth more than most humans. His movie, The Bear, earned over $200 million.

Wendy Kilbourne (Midnight Caller) and actor James Read recently announced the birth of their son, Jackson Tavish Read, born Nov. 21 at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles.

David Hartman is planning a TV talk-show comeback. The show, to be called Realities With David Hartman, will be syndicated and is scheduled to begin airing next September. Hartman reportedly will be paid a minimum of $1.25 million a year.

ITC is pulling the plug on the syndicated Tic Tac Dough game show. Its final telecast will be March 8. This is the second game show to be killed off this season. The Quiz Kids Challenge was cancelled recently.
