Houston Republican Rob Mosbacher was in Hereford on Tuesday, drumming up support for a state constitutional amendment to limit the terms of state and national officeholders.

The idea was approved by voters in Oklahoma, Colorado and California last year. Those states have initiative and referendum, allowing the electorate to place issues like term limitations on the ballot. In Texas, it would have to be a constitutional amendment, and TFTL would have to get the Texas Legislature to approve the amendment.

That may be hard to do, Mosbacher said, because the legislature would be one of the groups affected by the limitations.

"It will be tough," Mosbacher, who was defeated by Bob Bullock in the race for lieutenant governor in the general election last year, said. But the group is distributing petitions throughout the state and will attempt to get a half-million signatures on the ballot, and will use those names to put pressure on legislators to get the term limitation amendment on the ballot. Mosbacher cited the Articles of

Rep against income tax

State Rep. John Smithee said Tuesday that he solidly supports the position of the House Republican Caucus against a state income tax.

"I am absolutely opposed to a state income tax," said Smithee, R-Amarillo. "It is a tax on productivity, which would stifle growth and opportunity in Texas. More importantly, it is a tax that the people do not want and that the state does not need."

Smithee said that state revenue projections are up 12.4 percent from the last biennium. "We do not have to cut anything to balance our budget without taxes," Smithee said. "We need only limit our increased spending to reasonable levels like every family and business in Texas."

The board also heard reports on several school district programs, purchased two new vehicles and her boy's earring being removed.

Following an executive session, the board voted to renew teacher and principal contracts. The board did accept the retirement resignation of Phil Shook, principal at Tierra Blanca Primary School, and the resignation of Charlotte Walton, a diagnostician.

The abatement for Holly Sugar, excusing taxes on its new $12 million ion exclusion facility being constructed at the plant in Hereford, was approved 2-1, with Dennis Newton voting against the plan and Steve the earring could have caused a abstaining.

The board voted 3-1, with Newton opposed, to grant the abatement to Newlife, which plans to build a senior citizen housing complex northwest of Hereford.

Greenawalt also said Coneway, citing a conflict of interest, problem on the playground, possibly getting caught in playground equipment or children accidentally pulling on the ring, causing harm.

A report on the incident by administrators said they called the child into the office and asked him to remove the earring. After he was unable to remove it, administrators said they helped the child take off the earring. They then took the child to the school nurse, who applied antibiotic to the area.

"If we were white, this wouldn't have happened," Mrs. Contreras said while continuing to claim the earring was yanked from the child's ear. "I wish the teachers wouldn't intimidate kids so they'll quit later on like us... We want our kids to have a better life than we have,"

Contreras failed to make an indefinitely discontinued, effective appointment for a personal hearing with the superintendent, and school officials tried, unsuccessfully, to set up other meetings with Mrs. Contreras over the incident.

Area's top golfers coming for Hereford Invitational

By Jay Peden Sports Editor

Both Hereford's boys' and girls' golf teams tee off this Friday and Saturday in the Hereford Invitational Golf Tournament at Pitman Municipal course in Hereford.

Tournament director Stacey Bixler coming to town for the tournament.

Boys' teams that are scheduled to play include Levelland, which was two strokes from going to the state 4A tournament last year; Canyon, which qualified for regionals in 3A in 1991; and Pampa, which Bixler said is a top contender for this year's district title.

And Hereford has a good chance contend for the tournament this year, Friday, with boys starting on holes 1 to win the tournament, Bixler said. 100, Bixler said. Bixler is also the coach of Hereford's

Sandies hurt Herd in 5th

Hereford's baseball team jumped to an early lead against Amarillo High Tuesday in Amarillo, but gave up 10 runs to the Sandies in the fifth inning to lose 10-4.

Sammy Casarez started on the hill for the Whitefaces. He blanked the Sandies in the first four innings, but it got away from him in the fifth.

"Sammy pitched real well up to that point," Coach T.R. Sartor said, "but (in the fifth) he gave up a lead-

Hereford opened the game with a George Jowell drew a two-out walk, third when the throw down went into

The Herd got another run in the fifth. Tab Hathaway walked and Chad Brummett bunted for a single. Next, Amado Lopez walked and with the bases full, Jowell drew a walk, forcing in Hathaway and making the score 2-0.

After Amarillo's big fifth inning, Sartor also said a costly error Hereford needed eight runs, but they only got two.

The top of the seventh started with run in the top of the first. Catcher Chad Brummett walking to first. Matt Bromlow singled, and the runners and his courtesy runner, Chris advanced to third and second base on Brummett stole second and went to a wild pitch. Then with two outs, Jowell drove a ball to deep center center field. He scored on a wild field which brought in both runners.

Members of the Hereford Boxing Club competed in a tournament in Big Spring Saturday. Several of them brought home trophies. And those who didn't will get theirs soon.

"They had 48 fights," said Jamie Ruiz, one of the fighters whose award was postponed, "and only had trophies for about 30."

Bobby Suarez, Thomas Suarez, Javier Buentello, Blas Cantu and Moses Diaz earned first place trophies, while Ruiz, Jamie Suarez, Bernie Aguero and Bennie Rocha earned second-place trophies.

Cantu and Diaz won their bouts in walkovers, meaning that their opponents declined to fight.

Ruiz also won an award called "Best Fighter"--despite having lost his fight.

He said that and Jamie Suarez' loss to a Big Spring fighter could possibly be attributed to fishy officiating benefitting the home-town fighters. And what can the Hereford

Before the 90-minute meeting, a high-level school administration source told The Associated Press that Davis had been asked to resign because of NCAA rules violations.

"It's not good for Davis," the source said. "He will be allowed an opportunity to resign. If not, we'll have to let him go.

Davis emerged from the meeting accompanied by two attorneys and hustled across the street to his offices at G. Rollie White Coliseum.

His lawyers also declined comment.

School spokesman Lane Stephenson said the university's report, which was given to Davis Tuesday, would not be made public before Thursday.

"Out of fairness to him and upon advice of our counsel we deemed it appropriate to adjourn discussion until Thursday at 1 p.m. We have determined not to make the report public until then," Stephenson said, reading from a prepared statement.

Davis and his two lawyers, Harold Stern and Hugh Parnham, met with A&M president William H. Davis, at 31 the fourth youngest coach in NCAA Division I basketball, just finished his first year at A&M where he posted an 8-21 record including a 108-61 loss to fifth-ranked Arkansas last Friday.

Hereford Chamber Singers: musical ambassadors

Community choir hit the stages in 1974, volunteers represent all walks of life

BY ORVILLE HOWARD Special Feature Writer

Forty singers from Hereford have touched the heart-strings of nations, From concert halls of kings to

stood before the greatest in choral renditions of love and the loved, funfest and fantasy. But their favorite audience is an auditorium packed with Texans straight from the heart of Hereford.

'We've performed before a lot of people in a lot of places but you just can't beat the fine folks of Hereford," said Jan Walser of Hereford, who is director of the Hereford chorus group. "We get together every Sunday night after church to enjoy old songs and practice new ones, and it seems that every singing session is a new day." But who in the world are the Hereford Chamber Singers? There's a lot of people in Hereford who don't know, but there's thousands across the continent of Europe who do - Black Sea regions of Romania or the lavish concert halls of London. Make another move half way around the world to the land of kangaroos and koalas where this group of volunteer Hereford ambassadors found Australians to be warm-hearted cousins with a zest for life.

Basically, the Hereford Chamber Singers is a choir of select adult voices of people from all walks of life from the Greater Hereford Community, reaching out to such neighboring towns as Dimmitt or Vega. The voice-count generally hovers around 40, but sometimes this rises to 50 or more and sometimes at the present level of 37.

Though many of the singers are professional musicians, both on stage and in the academic field of instruction, most of the group is composed of people from outside the professional-performer status--doctors, schoolteachers, postal personnel, farmers, cattle feeders, ranchers, secretaries, bookkeepers, accountants industrial workers...and the list almost becomes endless.

"You can just about name any profession or lifestyle and we've had their representatives," said Bill Devers, one of the co-founders of the Chamber Singers. "Ideally, we like to have 10 singers to each part (soprano, alto, tenor and base) but frequently we'll either have a few less than this number or a few more...it's pretty difficult to keep an even count."

When a singing position becomes open, the group conducts auditions for the part, with voice selections made from an "Audition Committee" appointed by the Hereford Chamber Singers. Though the organization had support and help from the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce back in the beginning some 17 years ago, the singing group is in no way connected with the local chamber of commerce.

Devers pointed out that during the organizational sessions of the group, many names were considered, with the final billing being "Hereford Chamber Singers"-- "The word, chamber, means a meeting room or place of assembly, thus the name seemed to be a good selection.

In addition to special invitational appearances, the Hereford Chamber Singers presents three concerts a year on a regular basis--spring, fall and during Christmas week. And the 1991 spring concert theme will be...you guessed it...patriotic all the way sometime in May.

When the Hereford Chamber Singers were formally organized on Oct. 29, 1974, they hit the stages singing--a dozen or more stages in a year. But their big backers were the Hereford Chamber Singers have people of Hereford who called on their own talent for communitywide entertainment.

During that first year, the group performed before such groups as the local Lions Club, King's Manor Founders Day annual banquet, the New Teachers' Annual Banquet and the annual Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Banquet.

And these voices from Hereford quickly echoed across the land. Within weeks, invitations were coming from throughout the Southwest. The Amarillo Chamber of Commerce called on the Hereford singers to perform for its "Odyssey 2000" -- a gathering of civic leaders from throughout the entire Panhandle region. In July of 1975, only nine months following its inception, the group performed for the Texas Choral Directors Association convention. And while en route to that engagement, it thrilled visitors and employees in the State Capitol Building in Austin with its patriotic music performed in the rotunda. While visiting at the State Capital, the Chamber Singers also performed before the Austin Lions

Mrs. (Ken) Walser pointed out that the interviews conducted for this story were at the same table where Hereford Chamber Singers were organized 17 years ago--in the Walser family kitchen at 103 Beach.

"We'd had a number of informal sessions at the various churches around town, but it was right here at this kitchen table where it all actually got started," said Mrs. Walser. "If I can recall correctly, however, I believe the first talk session was at the Temple Baptist Church.

The seven co-founders of the Hereford Chamber Singers included Bobby Boyd, Bill Devers, Jane Gulley, Sylvia Holman, Duffy McBrayer, Douglas Morris and Jan Walser. Devers was appointed director at that time and remained at the head of the choir until recently, when ded the boton over to Mrs. Walser

Bera Boyd, wife of co-founder Bobby Boyd, noted that the first organizational ideas of Hereford Chamber Singer originated in the local churches where much professional-quality talent was being exhibited in choirs and special renditions of soloists, duets and quartettes. One suggestion led to a second on the concept of forming a community choir--verse-by-verse, so as to speak, the voices were blended into a unified choir which represented nearly every church in Hereford--and a barber shop quartet or two.

And some came bringing great talent in instrumental music while others brought only their voices...and occasionally, there came an accomplished singer without a single note in hand. As example, Bobby Boyd, whose peers say he's among the best tenors around cannot read or play from written sheet music--"I can hear music but I cannot read music.'

During the 1976 bicentennial celebrations, the Hereford group enhanced many community gatherings as well as shared community concert of "Americana" music which celebrated our nation's heritage. In the summer of 1976, a portion of the group joined the West Texas State University Chorale for a concert tour of England. And while there, the Hereford members visited their sister city of Hereford, England.

The entire ensemble traveled through the Iron Curtain country of Romania on a two-week tour, sponsored by dozen or more towns during that first Friendship Ambassadors in the summer of 1977. The Hereford Chamber Singers performed in the very shadows of bayonets and helmets as they traveled from cities to villages around Bucharest and through the Carpathian Alps, Translvania and on to the Black Sea. Here, while performing among country folks of the villages, they frequently shared their humble courtyard "stages" with chickens and animals of the barnyard. But they just kept on singing and delivering Texas friendship in the form of song.

Though the Russian rules of those days behind the Iron Curtain forbid gospel songs, the Hereford group slipped a bit of Christianity into this Communist Bloc in the form of Negro Spirituals straight out of the Deep South--Texas ingenuity on the courtyards of Romania. And the country folks loved this rhythm and rhyme of the South--heart-felt singing in any language.

"The Romanian people responded warmly to the Hereford group, not only to the music, but to their personal contact with the singers," said Mrs.

"Our guide in Romania was named Savin Budescu whom we called Ted," said Devers. "So, we made him an honorary sheriff of Hereford. We gave him a badge from our Sheriff at that time (Travis McPherson). Ted was very loving and humorous and had a tremendous sense of humor."

While in Romania, the Hereford ambassadors exchanged lapel buttons which read, "To Romania with Love." After attending the Olympic Games for the Deaf at Bucharest, the Hereford group then performed at Leresti, a small village in the Translvanian Alps, where their audience was composed of country peasants.

Then came the towns of Basov, Dracula's Castle that was built in 1377 by the infamous count, Tirgu Mures, Piatra Neamt, Olimp, Gelati on the Danube River and Mangalia, a small town on the very southern tip of Romania. Thus, 10 days in Romania put a lot of warm Hereford Hospitality into the very heart of a mighty Cold

In the following years, regular local concerts were scheduled by the group, along with regional invitations that included a state convention of county Extension agents in Lubbock in 1980. to the 1980 elections, the Chamber Gov. Bill Clements, former Gov. John Connally, U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, former Gov. Mark White and State Scn. Bill Sarpalius.

Sigma Phi held in Hereford in the fall of 1980 hosted the Chamber Singers. And the District Convention of the National Campers and Hikers Association provided a place for the group to spread its goodwill through music in the summer of 1981 in

The Chamber Singers stayed at home during the 1982 seasons, hosting composer Eugene Butler in a special workshop-concert featuring his works. This noted artist was commissioned to compose an original work for the Hereford Chamber Singers which he entitled "Love Song." The Hereford group premiered this work under Butler's direction. It has since been published and distributed to choral groups throughout the country.

Even though the Hereford Chamber Singers practice only once a week and is composed solely of volunteers, the 1983 Johnny Mann-sponsored Great American Choral Festival found it competing against college choirs which rehearse daily. Here, the Festival judges gave the Hereford Chamber Singers "Excellent" and "Outstanding" ratings in the 1983 reviews. This turned out to be the only competition ever entered by the group.

In the summer of 1985, the Texas board members. Choral Directors Association again invited the Hereford Chamber Singers to perform for its convention in San to give the premier performance of a work entitled "Three Songs of Nature" by noted composer Lloyd Pfautch, who particular trilogy. Using choral numbers which entailed choreography on the risers by the entire choir and featuring a well-received barbershop quartet from the group brought many accolades from the choral directors across the state of Texas.

The M.S. Doss Foundation of Seminole, longtime supporters and promoters of the arts, invited the Hereford choir to perform a concert in the Seminole Community Chapel during the fall of 1985. Also hosting the group were members of the Seminole Music Club.

The Texas Sesquicentennial provided many opportunities for the group to entertain with its special collection of music from Texas and the Southwest. The Sesquicentennial wagon Train festivities in Hereford, a special "Hereford Night" prior to the "TEXAS" production in the Palo Duro Canyon Amphitheatre, a featured "Texas Sesquicentennial Concert", the Memorial Day Funfest activities in Thompson Park in Amarillo, a multithe Hereford Country Club and the Singers entertained gatherings which burial of a sesquicentennial timeincluded such political dignitaries as capsule on the Deaf Smith County Courthouse Square were occasions where the group shared its music with a host of thousands.

All of their scheduled performances on this international tour were billed for the World Expo 88, with a few unscheduled appearances before local civic groups and churches in Brisbane.

With Mrs. Walser as director and Dee Anne (Johnny) Trotter as accompanist, the present board of directors of the Hereford Chamber Singers include Gene Streun, chairman; Mrs. Walser, vice chairman; Gay Maclaskey, secretary; Joe Flood, treasurer; Avie Lewis and Terri Souter,

In recalling the beginning of the Hereford Chamber Singers, Devers said he had become very much aware of the Antonio which celebrated its 35th fine singing talent in Hereford since anniversary. The group was honored his arrival to the town in 1966--"So, in that fall of 1974, I called Jan (Mrs. Walser) and told her that if we were going to organize into a community directed the Hereford group for this choir, we needed to get it on ... you know, either put up or shut up. Jan began calling a number of singers that very day to arrange a meeting here in Texas. He later graduated from her home. I think there were 75 names Southwest Medical School in Dallas on that first list of names."

Devers is minister of the Congregational Church of Friona and also manages "Sunshine Acres"--a home for the homeless. Mrs. Walser teaches choir at both, Hereford High School and Hereford Junior High.

Devers has a fairly active trackrecord in music in the Greater Hereford area, coming here in 1966 straight out of West Texas State University in Canyon as the first chorale director of La Plata Junior High and later served as music director for the First Baptist Church, First Methodist Church, First Christian Church in Hereford and in Canyon and choir director of Hereford High and Junior High for a number of years. Devers was in the Hereford School System for 14 years. He was named "Citizen of the Year" for 1987.

Mrs. Walser also has a degree in During the political campaigns prior state gathering of sugar beet growers, music from West Texas State University.

Bera Boyd, one of the key organizers and leaders of the group since its beginning, pointed out that there are no salaried personnel or positions in the volunteer choir--"No To climax 1986, the choir one is paid a dime and there never has been any position that called for a salary...everyone in Hereford Chamber Singers is in reality a volunteer "Scrooge," and featured one of its ambassador for the community of members as the infamous Ebenezer Hereford. > Bobby Boyd, who also sings first tenor in barbershop quartette, noted that it was singing that first brought him to Hereford--"We had been over here on a singing trip when Earnest Langley took it on himself to show us the town of Hereford. Dr. Trow Mims, a long-time Hereford surgeon, has musical background that dates back to his younger years at Palistine, Tx., where his family had something of a family orchestra, with his specialty being the clarinet and saxophone. The only voice training for Mims had been in church choirs. He also played in dance bands and symphony orchestras and performed in collegiate bands before graduating from the University of Texas. He later graduated from and came to Hereford in 1952. Dr. Mims was singing in the First Methodist Church choir when he was among the first to be invited to join the New Chamber Singers back in the

"This is a wonderful organization," said Dr. Mims, in relating to the close friendship of the singing group. "This truly has been one of the joys of my

In showing the dedication of Dr. Mims to the Hereford Chamber Singers, Mrs. Boyd pointed out that on one occasion the Hereford surgeon drove straight through to Hereford from San Antonio without a rest-stop so as to be on time for a 7 p.m. performance of the Chamber Singers--"You don't find them any better than Dr. Mims." Dr. Mims is past-chairman of the board of directors of the Hereford Singers and was named Hereford's "Citizen of the Year" in 1978. One of his favorite past-times is playing the "Big Band" sounds of the 1940s and 1950s on his saxophone

A native of Shamrock, Mrs. Walser graduated from West Texas State University in 1970 and the same year came to Hereford as an elementary music teacher. She is an accomplished pianist and also played in the college marching band at WTSU.

The roster of accomplished musicians and singers who have been part of the Hereford Chamber Singers goes on and on...to other churches and to other towns. Linda Gilbert, an alto singer for the group is pianist and organist for the St. Thomas Episcopal Church, and when she's not playing or singing, the musician is running a high-tech office for the AZTX Cattle Co. headquartered in Hereford.

There are three dozen additional stories to be told at Hereford Chamber Singers who sometimes blend a bit country/western with classical....popular, Broadway or Negro Spiritual. But never forget the oldtime gospel songs--those were the ones where most of the Hereford singers scrambled their first

But when the sun goes down next Sunday-just about the time that twilight fades into darkness--listen closely, because the Hereford Chamber Singers will be singing--raising their voices to the good things of life.

Today's trip marks the first foreign policy travel of the president since he visited South America in early December. However, with the war over, he is expected to be on the road frequently. The White House said planning already is under way for a trip to the Middle East, including

The accord also sets up a framework to deal with other air pollution problems in the future, such as airborne toxins and ground-level ozone pollution.

Helpful hints offered to protect your dog's health

Worms are a threat to your dog's health. Not only do they cause damage to internal organs, they can weaken your pet and leave it open to other infections. They also can pose a human health threat because some worms common to dogs can be transmitted to people. That's why it is so important to have your dog checked regularly by your veterinarian. He or she can tell if your dog has worms by examining a stool sample for eggs under a microscope.

The most common worms found in dogs are large roundworms (ascarids) and hookworms. Dogs usually pick up worms by taking in fecal matter containing eggs shed by other dogs. It is estimated that 75 percent of the dogs in the United States have roundworms. Although adult dogs often develop resistance to roundworms, they can still carry infective. The main danger dogs face from hookworms is severe blood loss. Both types of worms can be fatal to young puppies.

Puppies can be infected with roundworms while they're still in the womb. Even if they are worm-free cents-per-member contribution. at birth, puppies can get roundworms and hookworms as they nurse. A nursing mother can keep passing worms on to her puppies for as long as she produces milk. Once a puppy is infected, it only takes two weeks for the hookworms it is carrying to start laying eggs and infecting the environment. That's why veterinarians recommend deworming puppies at two, four, six, eight and ten weeks of age. If a bitch has already had one infected litter, it is even more important to treat subsequent litters. Of course, it's easy to say that dogs must be dewormed regularly. The trick is getting the dog to swallow the dewormer. Now there is a new product available from your veterinarian that makes deworming your dog as simple as giving him a the immature larvae, which are treat. Have your dog examined by a veterinarian regularly. Even dogs that appear healthy--especially new puppies--can be suffering from

Patriotic program set Thursday

Pat Confer and Janie Young, teachers at Nazarene Christian Academy, have combined history and music classes to produce a one hour patriotic program to be presented to the community at 6 p.m. Thursday at the school located at 1410 La Plata Honored guests will be families of Desert Storm troops.

The program consists of songs, recitations and skits to demonstrate the courage, faith and struggles of the pilgrims, George Washington's troops, the pioneers, the war veterans and present day troops. Everyone attending is encouraged to bring flags or yellow ribbons to wave during the performance.

Presentations of patriotic songs have been presented at USA week at Sugarland Mall and the Golden K Kiwanis. The students will also be performing for the Golden Plains Care Center.

Abandoned homes could become a fixture in fine communities, unless Congress takes action now.

Ann Landers

this is the world's greatest love story or I am the world's biggest fool. You decide.

Thirty years ago I gave birth to a daughter. "Harvey" didn't marry me because he couldn't afford it, and his family didn't think I was the right one for him. I had my daughter alone and paid the hospital bill. I have always worked at minimum wage jobs because I was only 17 when my child was born and I had no education beyond high school.

Meanwhile, I stayed in the shadows and watched the father of my daughter date and marry the "right" girl. In the past 30 years this is what has happened:

1. I raised my daughter by myself. 2. Harvey had two daughters. His wife never worked outside the home although they always had full-time household help.

3. My daughter is beautiful, talented and well-liked by people of all ages.

Harvey's daughters are unmotivated and unattractive, and they have been in a lot of trouble. 5. My daughter was prom queen in a made-over dress I got from Goodwill. 6. His daughters went to the prom in designer gowns and later that night one of the girls was arrested for drunk driving.

7. Harvey's daughters went to expensive schools, dropped out -- or were kicked out -- and are doing nothing. My daughter went to a state college on a scholarship, graduated with high honors and has a wonderful career as a registered nurse.

Ann, this man has never given me dime, yet he claims that he has always loved me and our child. We secretly for the past 30 years, and he such despicable behavior.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Either is the only man I have ever been with. You may find this hard to believe, but I love him dearly and it hurts when see the way his family lives while I struggle to barely make ends meet.

I am 47 now and I don't know what to do. Harvey swears he loves only me and it's his fault that our lives turned out like this. My daughter doesn't know that Harvey is her father, and he is pressing me to tell her. He says he will never leave his family because they can't take care of themselves. Please advise me. I don't know what to do. -- Little Rock, Ark.

DEAR ROCK: Do I have this right? You had a baby out of wedlock. The father married someone else and had two daughters. You continued to see him secretly and never went with another man.

Your daughter had done beautifully, but his two daughters can't seem to get it together. You've been hiding in the shadows for 30 years, and "Mr. Wonderful" has never given you a dime, although he had provided a very nice lifestyle for his family.

Now this yellow-bellied, lilylivered, gutless wonder (pardon me, I got carried away) wants you to tell his daughter that he is the father.

By all means tell her (if you don't, he will, one of these days). Then, tell HIM that you want a nice big check for back child support, plus a permanent place on his "payroll."

This is definitely not "the world's greatest love story," but you may will qualify as the world's biggest sap for letting this man use you so shamefulhave continued to see each other ly and allowing him to get away with

Gregory had tumbled to the ground from his swingset and injured his tooth. Although relieved the tooth had not been knocked out, Gregory's mother was concerned that it might have been chipped or cracked.

But fueled by research and a recently developed bonding technique, tremendous strides have been made in the treatment of traumatic injuries to the mouth and teeth. That's good news to parents and to the American Dental Association, which marked the 42nd anniversary of National Children's Dental Health Month in February.
In the bonding technique, a weak acid solution is applied to the tooth, creating a rough surface. Then a dentist applies, or bonds, composite material to the tooth surface, which is more beneficial to the healing process.

In certain instances, bonding is not recommended. Poorly aligned (maloccluded) teeth, for example, require orthodontic treatment.

The prognosis for a knocked out tooth to be replanted is very good. But the longer the tooth is out of the mouth, the more difficult it is to replant. If the tooth is dirty, rinse it gently in water, don't scrub it. Have an adult gently insert and hold the tooth in it socket.
