Hormone-free beef is shipped

HOUSTON (AP) - The first shipment of domestic beef to Europe since a January embargo halted trade progress was scheduled to leave a Houston port this morning and arrive in England in about three weeks.

The refrigerated container of Texas hormone-free beef was boarded onto the Nedlloyd Hudson Monday during a news conference in which Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said the shipment could signal an economic boom for the state's beef producers.

"This is the start of a modern day cattle drive that can put millions of extra dollars into the pockets of enterprising Texas ranchers, feedlot operators and meat packers," Hightower said, citing the creation of jobs while satisfying a new European market niche.

European countries banned imports of hormone-treated beef because of health concerns over the growth stimulant. The action cut off a $100 million market to U.S. cattle producers.

The United States claimed Europe was using the hormone issue as a way to restrain trade and retaliated by setting $100 million in higher tariffs on a variety of European products.

Since then, Hightower has tried to export hormone-free beef from Texas. His effort sometimes met resistance from federal trade officials who said Hightower was undermining their negotiations with European countries.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I grew up in a small town in Iowa and have always wanted to be a nurse. My dream became a reality last year. I love what I am doing, but it certainly has made me realize that I have lived a very sheltered life.

For three weeks I have been working in the emergency room. Ann, something very shocking happened last night and I need to know what it's all about.

A man was brought in at 3 a.m. with a heart attack. When I helped to undress him, I was amazed to see that he was wearing lace panties under his shorts. One of the doctors said, "Well, I'll be damned." I asked if he knew the patient and he said, "Yes. He's a prominent lawyer in town, well known and greatly respected."

How could that man have kept his homosexuality such a deep, dark secret? Apparently he has managed to keep his "other life" completely under wraps. Incidentally, the man is married and has four children. Thanks for helping me understand.--Lots to Learn in Dubuque

DEAR DUBUQUE: Males who wear women's undies are generally not homosexual. In the case of the prominent lawyer, he probably has grown up with this fetish and may be perfectly normal in every aspect of his life.

While we are on the subject I will tell you something else. Most homosexuals look, walk, talk and behave in public just like everyone else. The only area in which most homosexuals are "different" is in their sexual orientation.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a problem that I hope you and your experts can help me with. I am a 42-year-old woman with a 20-year-old secret. I shave my face every morning. If I am going out at night I must shave again. If I didn't, I would have a beard as heavy as any man.

This problem became apparent when I was in high school. Kids can be so cruel. I tried depilatories and waxing. Neither was successful, so I began to shave and wear heavy makeup. Then the hair began growing in other places. My arms and legs were covered with long black hair. As if that wasn't bad enough the darn stuff started growing on my stomach. I now shave over three-fourths of my body.

I have four children (three daughters) and none of them has this problem, thank God. Also, no one else in my family suffers from this strange malady--not my grandmothers, my mother, my two sisters or any of my female cousins or aunts. This leads me to believe it is not hereditary.

I've seen dermatologists, but they insist on doing a hormone balance check, which would require time spent in the hospital. This would be impossible for me because my secret would then be revealed.

Could you check with your experts, Ann? I am in desperate need of help. Just sign me--Hopeful in Missouri

DEAR HOPEFUL: I contacted Dr. Robert L. Rosenfield, a professor in the department of pediatric endocrinology at the University of Chicago. He said you are doing yourself a grave disservice by refusing to seek proper help.

You probably have a hormonal imbalance that can be identified without hospitalization. You should go at once to the endocrinology department of any major medical center. There is help for you, but you must seek it. Good luck.

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet "Sex and the Teenager." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada send $4.45).

Hormone-free beef is shipped

HOUSTON (AP) - The first shipment of domestic beef to Europe since a January embargo halted trade progress was scheduled to leave a Houston port this morning and arrive in England in about three weeks.

The refrigerated container of Texas hormone-free beef was boarded onto the Nedlloyd Hudson Monday during a news conference in which Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said the shipment could signal an economic boon for the state's beef producers.

"This is the start of a modern day cattle drive that can put millions of extra dollars into the pockets of enterprising Texas ranchers, feedlot operators and meat packers," Hightower said, citing the creation of jobs while satisfying a new European market niche.

European countries banned imports of hormone-treated beef because of health concerns over the growth stimulant. The action cut off a $100 million market to U.S. cattle producers.

The United States claimed Europe was using the hormone issue as a way to restrain trade and retaliated by setting $100 million in higher tariffs on a variety of European products.

Since then, Hightower has tried to export hormone-free beef from Texas. His effort sometimes met resistance from federal trade officials who said Hightower was undermining their negotiations with European countries.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I grew up in a small town in Iowa and have always wanted to be a nurse. My dream became a reality last year. I love what I am doing, but it certainly has made me realize that I have lived a very sheltered life.

For three weeks I have been working in the emergency room. Ann, something very shocking happened last night and I need to know what it's all about.

A man was brought in at 3 a.m. with a heart attack. When I helped to undress him, I was amazed to see that he was wearing lace panties under his shorts. One of the doctors said, "Well, I'll be damned." I asked if he knew the patient and he said, "Yes. He's a prominent lawyer in town, well known and greatly respected."

How could that man have kept his homosexuality such a deep, dark secret? Apparently he has managed to keep his "other life" completely under wraps. Incidentally, the man is married and has four children. Thanks for helping me understand.--Lots to Learn in Dubuque

DEAR DUBUQUE: Males who wear women's undies are generally not homosexual. In the case of the prominent lawyer, he probably has grown up with this fetish and may be perfectly normal in every aspect of his life.

While we are on the subject I will tell you something else. Most homosexuals look, walk, talk and behave in public just like everyone else. The only area in which most homosexuals are "different" is in their sexual orientation.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a problem that I hope you and your experts can help me with. I am a 42-year-old woman with a 20-year-old secret. I shave my face every morning. If I am going out at night I must shave again. If I didn't, I would have a beard as heavy as any man.

This problem became apparent when I was in high school. Kids can be so cruel. I tried depilatories and waxing. Neither was successful, so I began to shave and wear heavy makeup. Then the hair began growing in other places. My arms and legs were covered with long black hair. As if that wasn't bad enough the darn stuff started growing on my stomach. I now shave over three-fourths of my body.

I have four children (three daughters) and none of them has this problem, thank God. Also, no one else in my family suffers from this strange malady--not my grandmothers, my mother, my two sisters or any of my female cousins or aunts. This leads me to believe it is not hereditary.

I've seen dermatologists, but they insist on doing a hormone balance check, which would require time spent in the hospital. This would be impossible for me because my secret would then be revealed.

Could you check with your experts, Ann? I am in desperate need of help. Just sign me--Hopeful in Missouri

DEAR HOPEFUL: I contacted Dr. Robert L. Rosenfield, a professor in the department of pediatric endocrinology at the University of Chicago. He said you are doing yourself a grave disservice by refusing to seek proper help.

You probably have a hormonal imbalance that can be identified without hospitalization. You should go at once to the endocrinology department of any major medical center. There is help for you, but you must seek it. Good luck.

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet "Sex and the Teenager." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada send $4.45).

Rose case sent to federal court

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Pete Rose's first court loss was a big one.

A judge's decision on Monday to keep Rose's lawsuit against Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti in federal court was more than a matter of picking a courtroom. It changed the momentum of Rose's legal fight as baseball officials indicated they want to move against the manager for his gambling.

U.S. District Judge John D. Holschuh has decided that he will hear Rose's lawsuit, contrary to the wishes of the Cincinnati Reds' manager.

Rose wanted a court in his hometown of Cincinnati, and not Giamatti, to determine whether he bet on baseball games. He had won two decisions in state courts that effectively took the matter out of Giamatti's hands.

Holschuh's 47-page ruling on Monday gave baseball its first court victory since Rose sued Giamatti on June 19.

"I'm doing a little better today than I was yesterday and the day before that and the day before that," baseball lawyer Louis Hoynes Jr. said.

Giamatti welcomed his first dose of good news during the court fight with Rose.

"I am gratified by this decision and I look forward to the next steps," Giamatti said.

Baseball officials also took the offensive against Rose, saying Monday they would ask the court for permission to take action against the manager based on his recent reiteration that he has bet on sports other than baseball.

"These are admissions that, if it were any other person, would be subject to actions by baseball," deputy commissioner Francis Vincent Jr. said Monday.

Rose's protection against firing or suspension were extended until Aug. 14 by Holschuh's order Monday. Rose's lawyers are expected to ask the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati to overturn Holschuh's decision to keep the case in federal court.

"We have not yet reviewed Judge Holschuh's extensive opinion," Rose's lawyers said in a statement. "We will do so in the next day or so, and will then decide on our course of action."

Rose has held the upper hand in court since he sued Giamatti. Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge Norbert A. Nadel granted Rose's request for a temporary restraining order June 25 that effectively took the case away from Giamatti.

The commissioner is barred from deciding whether Rose bet on his own team, an offense that carries a lifetime ban. The Reds and Giamatti also are barred from taking any action to remove Rose as manager.

During the hearing before Nadel on a temporary restraining order, Hoynes pointed out that Rose admitted to baseball investigators that he'd placed bets on sports other than baseball—an admission that by itself could bring a suspension. Rose has denied betting on baseball.

In a recent interview with The Washington Post, Rose was quoted as saying of his betting on football games: "Well, I'd guess I'd have to say it's illegal. You're not supposed to do it."

The statements gave the commissioner's office more ammunition.

"Baseball can't have this type of discussion going on," Vincent said. "It calls the game into disrepute. These are admitted violations of federal law, admissions made in a public forum."

If the 6th Circuit upholds Holschuh's decision or declines to intervene, the judge will hold a hearing Aug. 14 on a preliminary injunction. If Holschuh granted that injunction, Rose's protection would be extended. If he denied it, Rose would be subject to a hearing with Giamatti.

Damaged green

An unknown vandal left this mark on the ninth green at Pitman Municipal Golf Course sometime late Friday night. Outgoing head pro Mike Horton said the green should recover in six to eight weeks.

Rafferty hanging on

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - For 14 years they've been poking fun at Tom Rafferty.

Laugh as they might, he's still in the NFL and the merrymakers are elsewhere.

Rafferty, slow and small for a center, endures for the Dallas Cowboys like the star on the team helmet, two of the few things that haven't gone the way of the passenger pigeon at Valley Ranch.

Roger Staubach and Bob Breunig used to plot ways of making sport of Rafferty. The most famous incident occurred one year during the boredom of training camp.

They mixed dog food in a peanut bowl and asked Rafferty over for snacks. Naturally, he ate the dog food with the peanut mix. He was then nicknamed "Ruff, Ruff" by his hilarious teammates.

"I'll pay them back some day for it," said Rafferty whose patience knows no bounds.

Well, "Ruff,Ruff" has been rough for the Cowboys.

He hadn't missed a game in his career until last year when he got a severe thigh bruise. He took over as starting center in 1984 and has been there since. Rafferty played guard until then.

Under new coach Jimmy Johnson, Rafferty is trying to fend off younger players.

"They keep trying to get rid of me and I keep trying to fool 'em," Rafferty said. "I'm not big and strong but I don't make mistakes. I can still play."

Last year Rafferty was tested by new offensive line coach Jim Erkenbeck, noted for testing his players physically.

"Erkenbeck wanted a bunch of 300-pound 20-year-olds playing but I think I showed him you have to have experience at the position I play," Rafferty said. "You don't

Quannah mourns Frost

QUANAH, Texas (AP) - In the center of town, a huge billboard boasts the rodeo achievements of a local man.

But on Sunday the billboard became a symbol of tragedy.

Lane Frost, who rode the backs of bulls to a 1987 world championship, died when a bull called K. Walsh charged and gored him during the 93rd Annual Cheyenne Frontier Days Rodeo in Cheyenne, Wyo. Spectators said he was thrown clear of the bull, but the animal charged him as he walked away.

The news spread to the small oil and farming town of about 3,900 via reporters.

Even though he only recently moved to Quannah, the billboard in Givens Park claims him the community as his home town.

"He's kind of our town idol. We're a small town. We dwell on things like this. We don't have a lot of people who do big things like that," said Quannah Mayor Butch Dickerson.

Nicky O'Neal, past president of the Quannah Riding Club, said Frost was usually out of town attending rodeo competitions. But when he was around he spent time baling hay with his wife's father and brother and helping out with the annual rodeo.

The town's annual rodeo is scheduled for Aug. 10-12.

"He's pretty active around up here and he helped us around the rodeo grounds and all," O'Neal said.

Frost also was well liked in the rodeo community.

John Painter, Mesquite Championship Rodeo spokesman, compared Frost to world champion bull rider Don Gay.

"When I first saw him (Frost), I knew he was going to be a winner. He had many of the same moves (as Gay) and good form," Painter said. "These guys they know you're going to get hurt. It's just a matter of when and how severe."

Longtime rodeo announcer Lynn Phillips of Enid, Okla., said Frost's dream was to be the best world champion.

"What he meant wasn't necessarily that he would be the best bull riding world champion, he meant he wanted to be what a champion should be. He wanted to talk with people as long as they wanted and he wanted to do things like help the press ... He would get in the arena and help you out. World champions don't have to do that, but Lane did."

Frost placed sixth in the National Finals Rodeo last year.

He was runner up for the 1983 Rookie of the Year. He was the 1987 Texas ProRodeo Circuit Champion and 1983 Prairie Circuit champion. He also was a runner up bull rider in the Winston Tour in 1986, and the National Finals Rodeo bull rider average winner in 1986.

His career earnings through 1988 totaled $461,644.

Frost, who graduated from Atoka High School in 1982, started participating in rodeos when he was about 12 years old, said Dodie Wilson, a family friend who lives in Atoka.

She said Frost learned to ride as a youngster while his family lived in Wyoming and Colorado. She said the Frosts, who operate a ranch, moved to Oklahoma about 10 years ago.

"Rodeo's lost someone who had the promise of being a great one and it's tragic," Painter said.

with 'Pokes

want mistakes at center. You want somebody steady in there and that's me."

Rafferty and defensive end Ed Jones are the only two Cowboys who have played in a Super Bowl.

"I think Johnson still knows big Ed and I can compete," Rafferty said. "We wouldn't be out here if they didn't think we could compete. The bottom line is to get the job done not how old you are. We have Super Bowl experience."

Rafferty said he was surprised by a 40-play scrimmage the second day in camp.

"The wake-up call came early,"

Rafferty said. "We're going to have a more aggressive team that's for sure. Johnson also wants us to cut down on mistakes. Mistakes are what killed us last year. Johnson has made the point that a big part of the game is mental. We beat ourselves a lot last year."

Rafferty said it was strange not having Tom Landry as the coach, but added, "We pretty well got over that in three mini-camps. The change wasn't that difficult when we got out here because of the camps."

"I do miss Tom. I keep thinking I'll look up and see him."

Walsh wants old number

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Steve Walsh just signed a $4.1 million contract, but he may have to part with some of it to buy his old college number from punter Mike Saxon.

Dallas Cowboys' coach Jimmy Johnson said Saxon told him that Walsh wanted to wear his Miami Hurricanes' No. 4, during his NFL career.

dinner with a notary before the season begins and we'll decide on a fair price," Saxon said. "I'm not going to give it away for nothing. Not to somebody who just signed a contract for millions of dollars."

Johnson wasn't amused that Saxon intended to charge Walsh for the number.

"That's what happens when kickers run around all day with nothing to do. It gives them time to think up things like this," Johnson said. "Saxon had better worry about Shaun Burdick instead of Steve Walsh."

Oilers' top pick starting all over

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) - He was a four-year starter at Florida, answering the call for 45 consecutive games.

He bench pressed 435 pounds and was the star attraction of the Gators' offensive line that cleared a path for an outstanding running game.

The scouting books said he had a mean streak.

But now David Williams is starting over as the No. 1 draft pick of the Houston Oilers and he's starting at the bottom.

"I made a new rule, he (Williams) can never play if Warren (Moon) plays, at least for a couple of months, because he'll get someone killed," Coach Jerry Glanville said. "It's hard in the offensive line to learn much in two days. He has no clue what we're trying to do."

Those are humbling words for Williams, 6-4, 292 pounds and more accustomed to accolades and awards.

Williams, who signed a four-year, $1.8 million contract Saturday, doesn't flinch at such talk. He expected it.

"If you expect anything else, you're in the wrong place," Williams said. "You have to prove yourself at this level, you have to start all over again."

Glanville wouldn't expect much from Williams or any offensive lineman so early in camp.

"It's that way with all rookie offensive linemen," Glanville said. "Nobody likes a rookie offensive lineman, including themselves. There are just too many errors."

But Williams has been regarded as an outstanding offensive lineman since he was a schoolboy at Lakeland, Fla. and he intends to gain respect at this new level.

"It's tougher up here, you've got to play against great players every play," Williams said. "That's the toughest part, that and learning the plays."

Williams could be excused for not being totally alert for his first workout as a pro.

He signed his contract at 3:30 a.m. Saturday and worked out twice later in the day.

"The first workout was okay because I was still excited about signing," he said. "By the afternoon, I was kind of dragging. At least I came out of it alive and kicking."

Williams is under the tutelage of line coach Kim Helton, who doesn't care where a student is drafted.

"I'm going to wait and see how his production level is because I'm not a potential guy," Helton said. "I know he's a first round pick."

"He's a good player. I saw him on film in college but this is a different league. He's got to come out here and prove he can do the same thing he did in college."

Williams, sweating profusely after Monday's workout, wouldn't have it any other way. "He's (Helton) very straightforward," Williams said. "He tells me the way it is and I appreciate that. If I screw up I want to be told and if I do something good, I want to be told that too."

The Oilers lost 15 players to the Plan B free agency, including several promising offensive linemen.

"I know I'm just starting out but I feel like I can help, fill in for some of those guys," Williams said.

Four players remained out of camp Monday in contract disputes but holdout running back Mike Rozier stopped by practice briefly.

"He was here on his own, just visiting," Oiler general Manager

Mike Holovak said. "We've spoken to his agent the last three or four days but it's hard to say if there's any progress."

"That's up to them. It's there for them to sign if they want. That's what it amounts to."

Oilers owner Bud Adams withdrew a 5-year, $5.4 million offer on Friday's reporting deadline for veterans.

Holovak said a new offer was on the table for Rozier. "It's not any better (than the earlier contract)," Holovak said.

Defensive end William Fuller and cornerback Richard Johnson are unsigned and wide receiver Drew Hill has refused to report to camp until the Oilers agree to renegotiate,

Oil Bowl QB wants degree, not glory

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) - High school football has been in the headlines a lot lately. But the news hasn't been good.

Grade-fixing, game-fixing, drugs, even armed robbery has cast a smoggy cloud over the game.

Need a breath of fresh air? Then meet J.J. Joe.

The kid who figures to be Texas' starting quarterback in next Saturday's Oil Bowl game graduated from Arlington Lamar High School with a grade average of 91.

Although he can also sling a pretty spiral, the level-headed Joe is not necessarily dreaming of wearing a Super Bowl ring. His ambition is to become the first college graduate in his family.

His mom went to college for one year but dropped out to get married. The marriage didn't last much longer than her stay in college. She was divorced and a single parent raising two sons by the time J.J. started elementary school.

J.J.'s brother also dropped out of college to get married.

Young John Eric Joe, whom the other kids nicknamed J.J., knew that if his dream of getting a college diploma were to come true, it would take more than the little money mom could save from her job at the post office.

"I knew if I didn't get a scholarship, I wouldn't be able to go to college. So I thank God, I didn't get hurt," J.J. said.

The only ones to get hurt were opposing secondaries. Joe passed for 2,124 yards and 16 touchdowns last season to lead Arlington Lamar to an 11-3 record and a trip to the Class 5A quarterfinals.

But in Mrs. Joe's house, sports came second to studies.

"Mom always said she didn't care if I played football or if I played soccer, but first, I had to go in and do my homework," J.J. said.

J.J. found time for it all.

So when colleges began handing out football scholarships, Baylor, TCU, Vanderbilt and Tulane all came after him hard.

He was really leaning toward Vanderbilt for a while, but chose Baylor because he liked the "laid-back style" of the coaches. Also, it was close enough to home so mom could come see him play.

Why not TCU? The Fort Worth school was closer.

"I wanted to be close, but not that close," J.J. said with a smile.

J.J. reads the newspaper. He knows the trouble some of his high school football peers are now in.

"Little kids in the neighborhood look up to high school athletes. When I was little, I did the same thing. So a high school athlete has the responsibility not to do something to break a kid's heart."

"We're not as big as Magic Johnson, but in some kids' minds, we're pretty big. We have a responsibility."

J.J. Joe would never allow himself to shirk that responsibility. And neither would his mom.

4-H shooters take titles

The Deaf Smith County 4-H shooting sports team took the senior division team title and five event titles in the eighth annual Deaf Smith County 4-H Invitational Trap Shoot held July 22 at the Hereford Gun Club. The meet attracted 23 shooters from five area counties.

Deaf Smith swept individual competition in all three divisions with Martin Carnahan winning the sub-junior, Cameron Betzen the junior and Audy Sciombato the senior titles, hitting 24 targets to win a shoot-off. Todd Reinart placed third in the junior division for Deaf Smith.

In the two-man team competition, Reinart and Betzen won the junior division while Audy Sciombato teamed with brother Shawn to win the senior division. Carnahan teamed with Chad Thomas for third place in the sub-junior event.

In the high-point team race, Castro County took the sub-junior and junior divisions with Deaf Smith winning the senior.

The Deaf Smith team will participate in the Texas 4-H State Trap Shoot Thursday through Saturday in Waco.

When Wilt Chamberlain scored his NBA record of 100 points against the New York Knicks in 1962, he made 31 points in the last quarter. Chamberlain played for Philadelphia at that time.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

We bought a house and I am slowly getting used to the many aspects of being a homeowner. Since the house was previously owned, there are a few worn places here and there. One of these is the stainless-steel sink in the kitchen. It has scratches in it and really looks dull. Is there any way to remove the scratches and return some of its luster? Any tips would sure be appreciated. — A Faithful Reader, Taylor, Pa.

Stainless-steel sinks do scratch with use. One way to help prevent this is to place a rubber sink mat in the bottom of the sink. This way, when dishes are placed in the sink they rest on the mat and not the metal.

To replace some of the sink's lost luster, get some stainless-steel polish at your local grocery store. There are several brands, and by experimenting you will find the one that works best for you. As this polish wears off, more will have to be applied to keep the sink looking its best.

Stainless-steel will stain. The sooner you treat any stains, the easier they will be to remove. The sink should be regularly cleaned using a mild detergent. Rinse it well and buff dry with a clean, soft cloth. — Heloise

SEASHELL

Dear Heloise: I found that a large, flat seashell makes an ideal soap dish. This is especially handy for me since my bathroom doesn't have any soap dishes mounted on the wall. — Ethel M. Sutton, Ft. Myers Beach, Fla.

Revival begins tonight

Volunteers erected a tent Sunday to house a 12 day revival sponsored by the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship (FGBMF) of Hereford. Opening service will start at 7:30 p.m. today in the tent currently standing at the corner of Park Ave. and U.S. Highway 385.

Services will begin daily at 7:30 p.m. through Saturday, Aug. 12.

Ten ministers from various Hereford Churches will be speaking throughout the revival.

This Hereford tent meeting is one stop on a ten city revival schedule, said John Gonzales. Gonzales is head of the FGBMF's ministry to prisons in New Mexico and Texas. The tent, provided by Gonzales, has been used in the past to house revivals in prisons.

Gonzales also said that FGBMF is looking for volunteers to assist in a tent meeting scheduled for the week before Christmas in the prison at Juarez, Mexico. Anyone interested in assisting can contact Richard Schlabs, president of the Hereford FGBMF.

Donation given

The Elks Lodge (BPOE) donated $250 to the local Camp Fire Council recently. At right is Gary Phipps, president of the Hereford Camp Fire Council, accepting the gift from Elk Richard Hornbeck. The donation will help support local Camp Fire activities.

Hard work all that counts

Plants don't care how old you are. A rose blushes as sweetly for the 80-year-old gardener as for one 50 years young. With age, a tennis serve loses its zing and a golf drive its distance, but your daffodils will dance in the wind as sprightly as ever.

Augusta Carter took to gardening before she was 10, helping her grandmother in the red soil of a Georgia vegetable patch.

"I was the only one of the grandchildren she would let in the garden because I remembered the names of things. I was always asking questions. I wanted to know why things grew the way they did."

Now 81 and ailing, Augusta still finds the garden a main pleasure in life. People in Pound Ridge, a country town 50 miles north of Manhattan, have long thought of Augusta and her lawyer husband, Ray, 82, as "Mr. and Mrs. Garden."

Most every town has elderly couples like them, who, seeking beauty and flavor, have put a lifetime into raising flowers and vegetables with skill and dedication. And many newly retired seniors are looking to the garden to fill the leisure hours.

But Augusta warns that a gardener "has to get grimy and dirty and enjoy what comes out of real work. If you're one of those people who are afraid to get your fingernails soiled or broken and you don't want to put on dirty old jeans and old sneakers and get out and dig, you're not really a gardener."

Ailments keep her from doing as much now. She's "concentrating more and more on flowers and herbs." But, leaning on her stick, Augusta helps out at every event put on by the Garden Club, of which she was once president. She supervises the care of the library grounds.

But mostly she likes to look at her perennials renewing themselves in the spring, like the lavender clematis that has showed 300 blooms.

In his youth in Florida, Ray worked as an attorney for the War Department, but briefly tended a Victory Garden in Mamaroneck, a suburb of New York City. Augusta remembers his vegetables were so good that "he was robbed often; people would come in the middle of the night and take things."

After the war, the Carters moved to a 1737 house on acreage in Pound Ridge, which since has become a National Landmark.

Even as Ray commuted daily by train to his law firm in Manhattan, he became more and more involved in his garden. "I'd get up at 4:30 and get my gardening done then. Otherwise I wouldn't keep abreast of it. There wasn't enough time."

Before leaving for his train, Ray would pick a flower for his buttonhole, and he became known to fellow commuters as the man who always wore a flower.

For years now the Carters have been going back South in the winter to a house, and another garden, in the Florida Keys and they'll define for you expertly the nuances of southern and northern horticulture.

Ray has also been ailing lately and has cut his outdoor work sharply. But he likes to take you around his Pound Ridge grounds and point out interesting plants, like his off-season Egyptian onions. In the vegetable patch, he shows how yearly mulching with autumn leaves has enriched the soil to a deep, dark brown. His daughter, Quincy, helped put in the tomatoes this year.

Keeping up the family tradition, Quincy has also headed the Garden Club.

Talking with the Carters in their comfortable sitting room, you get a sense of the soul of the garden. Augusta appreciates but doesn't agree with an old saying that people like to garden "because the plants don't talk back."

She thinks plants "have a lot to say without talking," that they'll let you know by sign language if they need more sun or rain or a richer soil. She also says, "It's the care you give a rose that brings out the better rose. Any wisdom she'd pass on?"

"You don't have a garden just for yourself. You have it to share. But you have to be willing to do the work."

Social Security

QUESTION: I'm receiving reduced Social Security retirement benefits. Do I have to apply for Medicare when I reach age 65?

ANSWER: No, it's automatic at age 65 for those already receiving checks.

To get more juice from oranges, let the fruit soak in cold water for a while before squeezing.

QUESTION: I will be 65 years old in a few months but don't plan to stop working at that time. Do I have to file for Medicare at 65?

ANSWER: If you are 65 or older and decide to keep on working, you should sign up for the hospital insurance part of Medicare. You do not have to sign up for medical insurance until you actually retire. Your employer must continue to offer you the same health insurance offered to younger employees. When you do stop working or your employer's health plan ends, you will have a special 7-month enrollment period in which to sign up for Medicare insurance without penalty. Your employer's coverage may not offer similar protection, and it may be to your advantage to have both Medicare and the coverage offered by your employer.

Bride-elect honored

Miss Veronica Lafuente of Lubbock, center, was feted with a bridal shower Saturday morning in the home of Mrs. Sam Kirk. Greeting guests with the honoree were her mother, Mrs. Alfredo Lafuente, right, and Mrs. Lewis McCuistian, mother of the prospective bridegroom. Miss Lafuente will marry Brian Trent McCuistian on Aug. 12.

Bridal shower fetes Veronica Lafuente

Veronica Lafuente of Lubbock, bride-elect of Brian Trent McCuistian of Los Alamos, N.M., was honored Saturday morning with a bridal shower held in the home of Mrs. Sam Kirk, 212 Northwest Drive.

The honoree greeted guests along with her mother, Mrs. Alfredo Lafuente of Friona, and Mrs. Lewis McCuistian, mother of the prospective groom.

Special guests included Deandra Lafuente of Friona and Ercilia Lafuente of Hereford, sister and aunt, respectively, of the honoree.

Refreshments included a hollered-out watermelon filled with fresh fruit, miniature sweet rolls, bacon crisps, breakfast cookies, mini-queche and sausage balls, Southern pecan coffee, and minted spring punch.

Serving refreshments were the bride-elect's sisters, Mary Cardenas and Sonia Lafuente, both of Lubbock.

A white linen cutwork cloth, enhanced by a forest green table skirt, topped the refreshment table. Refreshments were served from crystal dishes, a crystal punch bowl, and a silver coffee service. Floral arrangements were of fresh peach azaleas and ivy placed in a large white basket. Highlighting the basket and melon container of fruit were blossoms of white hibiscus.

Hostesses included Mrs. Kirk, Betty Quillen, Sue Sims, Betty Martin, Jo Ann Ellis, Ruth Fish, Alice Rahlfs, Elaine Rains, Vickie Barrera, Elvira Gonzales, Vondelle Plummer, Ella Marie Veigel, and Lavon Nieman.

The couple has set Aug. 12 as their wedding date.

Sizzling temperatures place demand on water needs

This summer's record-breaking temperatures, which have frequently topped the 100-degree mark, have also increased the water demands of area landscapes. Homeowners are encouraged to pay special attention to the water needs of their grass, shrubs and trees during the remaining dry, hot days of summer.

Below average precipitation during the past nine months has resulted in very little moisture being stored in the soil for plant use during the heavy water use period of mid-summer. Most, if not all, of the stored moisture has been depleted, and the vegetation in your landscape is dependent on you to provide its total water needs.

If the South Plains area does not receive some large general rains in the next few weeks, plant water stress during the late summer and fall will reduce the amount of food the plants are able to store in their roots for next year's growth. Fruit-bearing trees will normally set only a small amount of fruit in the spring following an extended water stress period in late summer and fall. Also, above average amounts of winter kill of grass, shrubs and trees generally follow periods of drought.

The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 suggests that homeowners give the vegetation in their landscapes a heavy irrigation, then monitor the landscapes carefully throughout the remainder of the summer, applying water as needed to keep valuable plants in good health. However, if everyone follows this advice, some city water distribution systems may not be adequate to maintain a dependable water reserve for fire fighting. Therefore, you should check with your city's public utilities department to determine if an increase in water use would create a health or safety hazard. Please follow their advice if they suggest restricting your water use to an increase of only a small percent.

If moisture is available, most lawn grasses will use from 0.15 to 0.25 of an inch of water per day during the remainder of the summer, and trees will use more. The soil holds from two to three inches of moisture per foot. Grass roots extend down three or more feet. Shrub and tree roots extend down and out several feet from the trunks and therefore are capable of extracting water and plant nutrients from a large volume of soil. Water stored in four feet of soil for plant use should be compared to building a large cash reserve in your checking account at the bank. The moisture will be there when the plant needs it.

The Water District offers the following tips to assist homeowners with effective lawn watering during extreme mid-summer temperatures:

-The lawn should be watered when the turf begins to show signs of water stress. If the leaves roll up in the late afternoon or footprints remain in the grass after someone has walked upon it, the lawn is water-stressing and should be watered within 24 hours. Other water-stress symptoms include a grayish-green color to the turf and wilting.

-One to two inches of water applied to lawns each week wets the soil to a depth of three to six inches. After you have finished irrigating your lawn, the depth you have wet the soil can easily be determined by pushing a metal rod or wooden dowel into the soil until resistance is met. You should check several locations in your yard to make sure that you obtained an even distribution of the water and that the rod or dowel was not stopped by a buried rock at the first location checked.

-Sprinklers which throw large water droplets are preferable to those that produce a fine spray mist because the larger droplets of water are less susceptible to wind drift and evaporation. Sprinklers should be placed to avoid watering sidewalks, driveways and streets.

-The soil surrounding trees and shrubs should be watered to a depth of about 12 inches. A soaker hose, bubbler, or drip irrigation system slowly applies water on either side of the tree's outer branch spread, or drip line. A slow, deep irrigation helps prevent evaporation and runoff. Also, it lessens the chances that trees will develop the shallow root systems that can break up driveways and sidewalks.

-Less frequent mowings, leaving the grass about one to three inches tall, will help lawns tolerate hot, dry weather.

Abundant Life

THE IMPORTANCE OF TIME
By Bob Wear

Of the blessings available to us, time may be the most important of all.

Time is relentless in its movement, and its passage waits for no one. We know this, but it is not always easy for us to adjust our thinking and our living to harmonize with it.

We find it difficult to make the most of the time, because it is so easy for us to just let it go by. We talk about using time, about the value of time, about killing time, about wasting time, about trying to find something to do to let the time pass away or help it pass away.

Most of us seem to have some difficulty in considering time as it deserves to be considered. It is valuable, it is important to us, it is limited, and moves along rapidly. Time can be converted into all kinds of things, good things and evil things; and this is a daily choice that all of us must make. Some people may make better use of time than others, but all of us can make good use of it. We can use time to improve ourselves, to increase our useful knowledge, to improve our working skills, to help others, to improve our living conditions, and to serve our God-given purpose for being.

The difference between a satisfactory life and one that is not, is very much the difference in the way we handle our time. This realization has prompted some to say, "It isn't how long we live that counts, but how well we live." Obviously, how well we live is determined by how well we use our time.

There are two activities that will reduce the usefulness of the present time. One of these is 'thinking about and regretting the past', and the other is 'being anxiously concerned about the future.' The present time is too important to throw away on the past or waste on anxiety about the future.

The importance of time is fully realized in the fact that whatever we are doing with our time is what we are doing with our life.

Young receives grant

Dr. Scott M. Young, formerly of Dallas, was the recipient of a training grant conferred upon him by the National Institute of Health.

The son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Scott of Hereford, Young is married to the former Karen Scott.

He will be working under the auspices of the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA), investigating the immunology of Cyclosporin on a special human cell line. The findings will then be applied to the field of kidney transplantation.
