Four injured in accident

Emergency workers tend to persons injured in a two-vehicle accident on Wednesday afternoon just west of Hereford on U.S. Highway 60. Four persons were taken to Deaf Smith

General Hospital for treatment of injuries suffered when their vehicles, a late-model Suburban that rolled one-half time and an older-model Ford LTD, collided.

176 survive DC-10 crash

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP) - A United DC-10 with 293 people flew 50 miles after parts of the plane fell off, then crashed during an emergency landing and cartwheeled in a ball of fire. Yet many walked away from the flaming wreckage and at least 176 survived.

"I thought I was going to die," said 8-year-old Ben Radtke of Prairie View, Ill., who was carried out of the fractured fuselage by a passenger. The boy, shaking but unhurt, clutched a United Airlines button and a pair of plastic pilot's wings as he spoke.

City Manager Hank Sinda said today 74 were dead and 43 missing from the crash of United Airlines Flight 232. Rescuers found 67 dead at the scene, some scattered on an inactive Sioux Gateway Airport runway, some strapped to their seats and some in a field of corn 4 feet high. Officials said 183 people, of whom seven died, were brought to two hospitals.

The search for bodies resumed today. It could be days before the number of dead is determined, Sinda said.

A flight recorder was recovered, authorities said.

Flight 232, from Denver to Philadelphia via Chicago, carried 11 crew members and 282 passengers, including three infants, said United spokesman Lawrence Nagin.

The Seattle-based cockpit crew survived and were being treated for injuries at a hospital, Nagin said.

He identified them as Capt. A.C. Haynes, a 33-year United veteran; First Officer W.R. Records; and Second Officer D.J. Dvorak.

The 15-year-old jumbo jet experienced "complete hydraulic failure" before Wednesday afternoon's crash, Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Fred Farrar said.

Hydraulic systems provide power steering that allows pilots to manipulate the wing and tail controls of the jumbo jet. Without it, aviation officials say the plane would be uncontrollable.

The tail engine failed, and this may have caused a hydraulic failure, said Bob Raynesford, another FAA spokesman. The plane's three independent hydraulic systems are routed to the tail section.

Nagin said he did not know whether hydraulic problems were a factor.

The crash left a swath of charred runway and strewn bits of people's lives over an area larger than three football fields: two sets of golf clubs, a wallet photo of a brunette in her prom dress, a Reebok tennis shoe, a purple hairdryer, one black high-heeled shoe and a collection of Marilyn Monroe photographs.

Parts of the plane, apparently from the tail piece and engine, were found about 50 miles away.

Four people near Alta, 55 miles east of Sioux City, discovered one piece, 6 or 7 feet high and 6 feet long, in a corn field.

Four miles away, Allen and Phil Jahde found three pieces of the plane scattered in their cornfield. Phil Jahde said one piece was a 6-foot-long metal band, engraved ENG 2.

"It's remarkable to us that he made it that far back with the pieces he's losing," he said.

Nagin could not confirm that parts of the plane had fallen off.

The plane apparently experienced problems earlier Wednesday. Ruth Dinsmore, of Mount Laurel, N.J., said she took the same DC-10 from Philadelphia to Denver in the morning. The plane made the return trip later.

She said the plane began to leave the terminal at Philadelphia International Airport shortly after 10 a.m., when "everything sort of shut off." The plane taxied back to the terminal, where it sat about 15 minutes for repairs.

In Sioux City, officials from the National Transportation Safety Board arrived late Wednesday to begin an investigation.

The plane was flying southwest as it approached the airport, and its wings rocked as it descended until the craft pitched violently to its right, causing the right wing to hit the ground and sending the plane into a cartwheel. The plane nose and fuselage ended upside down.

After the crash, passenger Cliff Marshall of Columbus, Ohio, said people were "sitting there upside down and it began to fill up with smoke."

"Then God opened a hole in the basement and I pushed a little girl out," he said. "I grabbed another, kept pulling them out until they didn't come no more."

Marshall said he thought he helped a half-dozen out. Then he ran. Several others walked away.

Flight attendant Janice Tyrrell Brown, 47, of Schaumburg, Ill., walked off with singed hair and no injuries, according to her mother, Margaret Bourmival of Goffstown, N.H.

Martha Vazquez, 44, of Elida, Ohio, had only minor scrapes, said her husband, Ivan.

She called him Wednesday night, he said he cried.

"I said, 'Somebody up there likes me.'"

Bush plan: Moon, Mars

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush today called for establishing an American base on the moon, followed by a manned flight to Mars, as he presided over a ceremony marking the 20th anniversary of the first moon landing. The moon and Mars initiative would be achieved in the next Century, Bush said.

Bush proposed no firm timetable or price tag for a daring program he said would take the nation "back to the moon, back to the future, and this time back to stay."

"Then a journey into tomorrow," he proposed, "A journey to another planet, a manned mission to Mars."

In a nationally televised ceremony from the steps of the Air and Space Museum, Bush called for establishing Space Station Freedom in the next decade, with the remainder of his program to follow in the decades ahead. The challenge is clear however: Congress is balking at the start-up costs for the $30-billion space station already, and it is the essential first step to the moon and Mars.

"America should never stop seeking distant frontiers," Bush said. "We dream of distant shores we've not yet seen."

Bush was flanked on the outdoor stage by the three men who flew aboard Apollo 11 two decades ago. Each of them urged the nation forward in space.

"We have rested on our Apollo laurels long enough. It's time to get moving again," said one of them, Michael Collins.

"The Apollo program shared a certain nobility of purpose," said Neil Armstrong, who planted his foot on the moon on July 20, 1969. "The spirit of Apollo remains today."

The ceremony included a who's who of the space program dating to the 1960s, including Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin and Collins, the crew aboard Apollo 11 two decades ago. NASA chief Richard Truly, a former shuttle commander, also was on hand.

"Our goal is nothing less than to establish the U.S. as the preeminent space faring nation," Bush said.

Bush recalled the first moon landing two decades ago, saying, "Some called it quixotic, impossible ... but America did it."

He said he watched the moon landing from his red brick house in Washington, sitting with his then 12-year-old son Marvin, who watched in awe. The president then provided a short but riveting description of the event which had millions holding their breath until the announcement, "The Eagle has landed."

A return to the moon and flight to Mars would require congressional approval of billions of dollars. The administration could encounter rough sledding given congressional obstacles already evident in a bid to get $30 billion for current space station plans, which would be basic to any program for Mars exploration.

Congress is expected to approve less than the $13.3 billion Bush is seeking for NASA next year, which is about 1 percent of the $1.16 trillion federal budget for 1990.

Bush's request would have to be more than doubled to pay for a moon-Mars project, NASA officials estimate.

Truly said last week that a moon-Mars project could not be carried out under today's NASA, with its work force of 14,000 down from 36,000 in the heyday of the Apollo program that put 12 Americans on the moon in the late 1960s and the early 1970s.

NASA's contractor force has shrunk to just over 100,000, from 400,000 in the Apollo days.

Bush weighed cost factors and technological problems in looking for a challenge that budget constraints could make impossible to achieve. But he also wanted to declare a substantial goal, aides said.

"He recognizes that the lack of goals has been a hindrance" to space progress since the nation's Apollo missions ended, one senior official said.

The moon-Mars recommendation was strongly backed by Quayle and the National Space Council, sources said.

But congressional leaders raised the financial difficulties of the proposal.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley said Congress is eager to further U.S. scientific advances, "but obviously we also have to consider the problems that we have here at home. We have resources that are not as unlimited as they once were."

"Certainly we are under very great budget restraints," he told reporters.

HISD board considering 7% increase

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The Hereford school board is considering a plan that would raise taxes in the Hereford Independent School District by 7.25 percent, a 4.5 cent raise to 78.5 cents per $100 evaluation.

The extra funds are needed to fund a proposed $14.6 million budget. The 1988-89 budget was $14.49 million, but was cut to $14.13 million before pay raises requested in a bill passed during the just-completed regular session of the state legislature were added to the proposed budget.

During a special meeting on Saturday, the school board considered six different proposals presented by Superintendent Charles Greenawalt. The plans ranged from a $200 pay raise for teachers to a $1,800 salary increase.

"We had included a $1,140 raise for most of our teachers in the contracts that we presented in April," Greenawalt said. "The board has decided to honor those contracts."

Besides the 279 teachers that will receive the $1,140 raise, a few teachers who are at the top of the pay scale and all administrators will receive a $500 pay increase.

Senate Bill 1019, the bill that included the requested increase, called for districts to give a $1,800 raise to teachers.

"At the time that we issued our contracts, we weren't sure what the state was going to do, and $1,140 was the figure being thrown around," Greenawalt said. "We went ahead with our contracts at that figure, then the legislature changed it to $1,800."

"Actually, we're not required to pay anything over the minimum, but we went ahead with the raise that was included in the contracts."

The proposed budget is based on the expected surplus from the 1988-

89 budget, and estimates of state funds and estimated revenue from taxes.

With current state funding levels and tax revenues at the current 74 cent rate, the district would receive $13.49 million, leaving the district with a deficit of about $700,000. However, the district is counting on a $2.7 million carryover from the 1988-89 budget and an additional $137,000 in state funds. With the proposed tax increase, that would give the district $16.5 million, with proposed expenditures, including pay raises, of $14.5 million.

The district would like to have a $2 million surplus in the bank, but with the proposed figures it would have only about $1.94 million in surplus.

The district maintains a surplus in the event of a disaster, to meet insurance deductibles and other needs, and to draw from during "lean" months when the district is not receiving tax or state revenues.

"These figures are based on a 78.5 cent tax rate," Greenawalt said. "The board is considering something lower, but we won't have a final figure until we get all of the numbers from the tax appraisal office and from the state."

The board is also going to have to look at tax increases, and possibly cutting programs, in the next few years.

Based on very preliminary figures, Greenawalt said the board will again have to look at state-requested salary increases for the 1990-91 school year and other needs, and will likely have to consider more tax increases in the three-to-four percent range.

"The board will certainly have the option of looking at programs next January," Greenawalt said. "We will have some recommendations for the board by then. That doesn't mean we are going to cut programs or have to cut programs, but that is one option we may have to consider."

Clements calls third attempt for November

AUSTIN (AP) - The special legislative session to reform the state workers' compensation system ended without reform amid heated bickering and even disagreement over when to consider the issue again.

Gov. Bill Clements said he would call a fall special session, but Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said lawmakers made progress and could complete an overhaul package in a session called within the next few days.

"If a special session is delayed ... that's not consistent with the notion that there's a crisis in workers' comp in Texas," Hobby said when the session ended Wednesday.

But Clements has said he wants to give lawmakers time to hear from their constituents on the subject.

Lawmakers have been arguing since January over the insurance system that compensates workers injured on the job. Prior to that, a legislative committee worked 18 months and spent $450,000 on workers' comp.

The committee's report concluded employer-paid insurance rates are high; benefits to injured workers are low; and Texas has inadequate safety laws.

The House adopted a pro-business stance, saying that restrictions on jury trials in workers' comp disputes would help reduce insurance rates.

The Senate, backed by labor and lawyers who represent injured workers, wanted tougher safety laws. They agreed to changes in jury trial procedures, but were unwilling to go as far as the House.

The standoff lasted through a 140-day regular session and a 30-day special session.

"We have gotten ourselves in the position where (the workers' comp system) is controlled by the trial lawyers," Clements said.

"The governor just doesn't know what he's talking about," said Sen.

Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, co-chairman of the conference committee.

Sen. John Montford said the Senate had given in on major portions of the bill, but Smith refused to concede anything and the House basically turned over all negotiations to him.

"He (Smith) is the most powerful Texan currently in politics,"

Montford, D-Lubbock, said.

Sen. Carl Parker said, "Ninety five percent of what business wanted, they have gotten in this particular package." Parker noted that one of the recommendations of the interim committee was to require that businesses purchase workers' comp insurance. Texas is one of only three states where workers' comp insurance is voluntary.

At the bidding of business, it was dropped from the Senate proposal.

But Smith blamed the Senate. "We've bent more than they have," he said.

He said the House wanted a strong administration system to resolve workers' comp disputes, while the Senate proposal would allow claimants to leverage high settlements through the threat of litigation.

House Speaker Gib Lewis said, "You can point the finger at a lot of people," but he said in the final analysis lawmakers' failure to produce a bill "singled out how complex workers' comp is in Texas."

Clements said the primary quarrel was over "trial de novo," which is the current system of allowing appeals of an agency benefits decision to a jury trial without regard for the previous administrative ruling.

Clements has said he would veto any bill that continues trial de novo.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, July 20, the 201st day of 1989. There are 164 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Twenty years ago, on July 20, 1969, Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin became the first men to walk on the moon, after their lunar module separated from the command module and landed on the lunar surface. In a scene watched on television by an estimated half-billion people, Armstrong stepped onto the moon at 10:56 p.m. EDT and proclaimed, "That's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind."

On this date:

In 1810, Colombia declared its independence from Spain.

In 1861, the Congress of the Confederate States began holding sessions in Richmond, Va.

In 1871, British Columbia became a Canadian province.

In 1881, Sioux Indian leader Sitting Bull, a fugitive since the Battle of the Little Big Horn, surrendered to federal troops.

In 1917, the draft lottery in World War I went into operation.

In 1942, the first detachment of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps - later known as WACs - began basic training at Fort Des Moines, Iowa.

In 1944, an attempt by a group of German officials to assassinate Adolf Hitler failed.

In 1944, President Franklin D. Roosevelt was nominated for an unprecedented fourth term of office at the Democratic convention in Chicago.

In 1951, Jordan's King Abdullah Ibn Hussein was assassinated in Jerusalem.

In 1960, a pair of Polaris missiles were fired from the submerged USS George Washington off Cape Canaveral, Fla., at a target more than 1,100 miles away.

In 1976, America's Viking 1 robot spacecraft made the first successful landing on Mars.

In 1977, a flash flood hit Johnstown, Pa., killing 80 people and causing $350 million worth of damage.

In 1982, bombs planted by the Irish Republican Army exploded in two London parks killing eight British soldiers, along with seven horses belonging to the Queen's Household Cavalry.

Friday will be sunny and warmer with a high of 85. Northeast winds will be 10-15 mph.

This morning's low at KPAN was 65 after a high Wednesday of 86.

Pickens contracts for home in Dallas

UNIVERSITY PARK, Texas (AP) - Amarillo oilman T. Boone Pickens may soon be known as University Park oilman Boone Pickens because he and his wife have contracted to buy a $2.9 million home in this Dallas suburb, real estate agents say.

Agents told The Dallas Morning News Wednesday that Pickens is quietly moving from West Texas to the Dallas area.

In early June it was announced that

Pickens' Mesa Limited Partnership is relocating more than two dozen of its headquarters staff members to office in the Dallas area. It was never mentioned that Pickens would also move.

Mesa is one of Amarillo's largest employers with about 400 people in its administrative office, contributing about $90 million annually to the Panhandle city's economy.

Pickens declined to answer phone calls from the Dallas newspaper about his personal move, but his staffers assumed that the move was widely known.

The Amarillo oilman said recently that he still hasn't decided whether to become a Republican candidate for governor. But with George W. Bush, the president's son, apparently out of the 1990 gubernatorial race, Pickens could be the lone candidate from the Republican bastion of Dallas.

Pickens has lived in Amarillo for 45 years and has been an outspoken leader of the city's business community.

In 1987, he wrote in his autobiography that "moving to Amarillo was probably the best thing that ever happened to me."

There were rumors last year that Pickens and his wife, Bea, were considering a move to Fort Worth. Amarillo community leaders campaigned against the move.

A group of 20 business leaders spent $10,000 for 55 billboards saying: "Boone & Bea, You Love Amarillo, and We Love You!"

The newspaper reported that if the purchase is completed, the Pickenses soon will be living in a four-bedroom, English Tudor-style home near Preston Road. The home has about 16,000 square feet, including a second-floor ballroom and two-story trophy room. Both Pickens and his wife are avid hunters.

Mrs. Pickens, the first woman to serve on the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission, is the only woman to have killed all the African "Big Five" dangerous game in a 21-day safari. The "Big Five" are lion, leopard, Cape buffalo, elephant and rhinoceros.

Are these onions or potatoes?

Statewide political poll documents voter's feelings on candidate ethics

AUSTIN - Do Texas voters think most politicians are corrupt? Or do they believe politicians are being measured by unrealistic standards of conduct?

The Texas Press Association surveyed 1,500 registered voters in the state from June 5 to 24, 1989 to ascertain their voting preferences and voting history. The survey was conducted by Bonner, Incorporated, an Austin-based advertising and marketing firm.

Data from the poll will be used by Texas Press Association members to document the impact of voters in non-urban areas in the 1990 primary and general elections. A non-urban area is considered any Texas city under 50,000 population.

When asked the question, "Do you think most politicians are corrupt or are we measuring politicians by an unrealistic standard of conduct?", 31 percent of the Texans surveyed said they were corrupt and 39 percent said we are measuring them by unrealistic standards.

But when asked if they would vote to re-elect House Speaker Jim Wright to public office, 55.7 percent said no.

Most Texans say the candidate's stand on the issues (55 percent) is the most decisive factor in their voting preferences. Almost one-fourth (23 percent) said ethical standards, while 17 percent said a candidate's experience is the most decisive factor.

In the 1988 Democratic primary, the percentage of turn-out for registered voters in non-urban areas was almost twice as high (32 percent) as in the urban areas of Texas (19 percent). In the general election of 1988, 66 percent of the registered voters in non-urban areas turned out to vote.

Of these experienced voters, 77 percent subscribe to their local newspapers. And, 48 percent subscribe to an out-of-town newspaper as well.

Forty-two percent of these voters say they read their local newspaper from "cover-to-cover." Another 35 percent stated they glance at every page which amounts to a 77 percent readership coverage rate for probable voters.

TV Distraction Factor

Compared to television viewing, newspaper readership is more thorough. Of the voters polled, 42 percent admit to "almost always" doing some other activity, such as eating, cleaning, reading, or "working on a hobby" while the television is on. Another 24 percent say they "sometimes" are engaged in other activities, resulting in a "distraction factor" of 66 percent for television viewers polled.

One reason attributed to high newspaper readership is the demographics of the non-urban voter. This group of Texans is older than the average voter in urban areas. In fact, more than 51 percent of non-urban voters are over the age of 50 and 43.7 percent are between 25 to 50 years of age. The statewide average for people in Texas over the age of 45 is 27 percent.

This non-urban group is more likely to be native Texans as well. Sixty-nine percent say they have lived in Texas all of their lives. This is compared to many urban areas in the state where at least one-half of the population did not live in Texas 15 years ago.

The study showed that older citizens tend to vote more often and they tend to vote more conservatively. The poll documented 57.5 percent who describe themselves as conservative and 32.5 percent describe themselves as moderate.

Even though they tend to be conservative in political philosophy, the non-urban voter remains loyal to voting in the Democratic primary. When asked in which primary they intend to vote in 1990, 64.5 percent identified the Democratic primary and only 35.5 percent intend to vote in the Republican primary. Of the people who are over the age of 50, 74 percent intend to vote in the Democratic primary and 26 percent plan to vote in the Republican primary.

However, the study determined that this doesn't mean they intend to vote Democratic in the general election. Non-urban voters are more likely to split their ticket in 1990, with 64 percent saying they vote for people from both parties in the general elections.

This group of voters believes education (45.1 percent) is the most important statewide issue we face. Even though only 29.6 percent have school age children at home, they heavily support recent educational reforms such as the "no pass-no play" and teacher testing by a majority of 90 percent.

The second most important issue to this group is crime (31 percent) followed by hospital closures (18.3 percent) with taxes being last among key issues (12.3 percent).

Those surveyed intend to flex their political muscle in 1990, with 81 percent saying they will definitely vote in the upcoming elections in Texas.

Now You're Cooking

By GAYE B. REILY
Staff Writer

"If you say you are going to do something, you should do it and see it through to the end."

Such is the philosophy of Sherril Huckins, an energetic mother of three and past PTA president. "Keeping your word is important because your word is what you are."

Huckins, an Amarillo native, currently takes a friend who is suffering from Guillain-Barre Syndrome to daily physical therapy. She says she learned responsibility at an early age. "My mother was sick while I was growing up so I was cooking and folding clothes when I was very young. I essentially skipped my teenage years but I never felt deprived."

Her father owned a wrecker business in Amarillo and Huckins helped him on wrecker calls and manned the phone for emergencies. "At the time, my brother and I were the only set of twins to get hardship licenses at the same time in the state of Texas. I drove the wrecker some but I mainly worked on the business end of it."

Huckins dropped out of high school to care for her ailing mother and enrolled in beauty school. She married Aaron Huckins, a family friend since childhood.

The couple resided in such places as Fort Hood, where he was stationed while serving in the U.S. Army; Dallas; and Oregon before returning to Amarillo.

"We were glad to get back to Amarillo and be near my sick mother, but I wanted to raise my children in a smaller town," she said.

A 'help wanted' ad in the newspaper caught the red-head's eye and the family moved to Hereford six years ago. Her husband, a heavy equipment operator/mechanic, began work with Jake Diel Construction and now works for the Appian Corp.

"I worried that we might be bored in a smaller town, but we have really enjoyed Hereford." The Huckins are the parents of Gabriel, age 12; Amber, 8; and Candice, 7.

The young mother earned her high school equivalency diploma and stays involved in child-oriented activities, having served as a den mother for Cub Scouts, president of Northwest Elementary School's PTA, and teacher's aide. "I love working with children. Helping with Polly Hays' kindergarten class has given me insight into children and their accomplishments."

During her tenure as PTA president, she saw such programs as Adopt-A-School implemented and enabled the school to buy computers and library equipment via PTA fund raisers. She has served as a substitute teacher but finds time for various hobbies, including walking three miles a day.

"I like to create--I'd rather start from scratch and make something new," she said. As a result, she is an accomplished seamstress who likes to sew for her family but hates to mend clothes.

Huckins' favorite arts and crafts include acrylic and toile painting and drawing as well as creating T-shirt designs. "I hope to someday get into oil painting and I enjoy making quilts."

A collector of carousel horses and knick knacks, Huckins also enjoys cooking, although she admits that she is a vegetarian. "I ate meat until I developed an ulcer a few years ago. I discovered that it cleared up when I didn't eat fatty meat, so meatless meals became a habit. My friends still get embarassed when I order a meatless hamburger, though!"

Huckins still cooks meat for her family, who prefers meat and potatoes and tacos. She is well known for her desserts and she likes to cook for a large group.

"I started cooking by watching my mother and grandmother cook. It was always my job to fry potatoes, a chore I grew to hate. "I concentrated more on cooking after I married," she said. "I began experimenting with yeast breads. Aaron had to eat a lot of doughy bread, but he was a good sport about it."

Huckins' persistence paid off and she is now well known for her sweets and breads.

Some of her favorite dessert recipes follow:

DELICIOUS CINNAMON ROLLS

3 1/2 c. all-purpose flour
1 pkg. active dry yeast
1 1/4 c. milk
1/4 c. sugar
1/4 c. margarine
1 tsp. salt
1 egg

In mixing bowl combine 1 1/2 c. of flour and the yeast. Heat milk, sugar, margarine, and salt just until warm (115-120 degrees), stirring constantly until margarine melts.

Add to dry mixture, then add egg. Beat at low speed of electric mixer for 1/2 minute, scraping bowl. Beat three minutes at high speed. By hand, stir in remaining flour to make soft dough and shape into a ball.

Place in lightly greased bowl; turn once to grease surface. Cover; let rise in warm place until double, 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Punch down; turn out on floured surface. Cover; let rest 10 minutes.

On lightly floured surface, roll half of recipe to 16X8" rectangle. Spread margarine onto the dough with a knife. Then sprinkle with sugar, then cinnamon (do not mix sugar and cinnamon).

Roll as for jelly roll, starting with long edge; seal. Cut in 1" slices. Place, cut side down, in greased baking dish. Cover; let rise in warm place until double. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) for 20 minutes.

Remove from pan. Frost with icing, which follows:

Icing

6 tbsp. margarine
1 lb. pkg. confectioner's sugar
1/4 c. milk or light cream
1 tsp. almond flavoring

Mix together and spread on cinnamon rolls.

COCONUT OATMEAL COOKIES

2 c. sifted flour
1 tsp. soda
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1/2 c. butter
1/2 c. shortening
1 c. brown sugar
1 c. granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
2 c. oatmeal
2 c. coconut
nuts and raisins, optional

Sift dry ingredients together. Cream shortening and margarine, gradually add sugar until light and fluffy.

Add unbeaten eggs one at a time. Add to dry ingredients. Then add vanilla, oatmeal, and coconut.

Mix well and drop by teaspoonsful on greased and floured cookie sheet. Bake 10 minutes in 350 degree oven.

SNICKER CAKE

1 pkg. German chocolate cake mix
1 1/3 c. milk
1 stick margarine
1 - 12 oz. pkg. Kraft caramels
3/4 c. chocolate chips
1 c. pecans or walnuts

Grease and flour 9x13" pan. Prepare cake mix according to directions. Pour half of the batter into pan and bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes.

While cake bakes, melt butter, milk, and caramels. Remove cake from oven. Pour caramel mixture over top, add half of chocolate chips and nuts, pour rest of batter over this.

Add remaining chocolate chips and nuts. Bake at 250 degrees for 20 minutes, then 350 degrees for 10 minutes. Cool and serve.

TUTTI-FRUTTI "ICE CREAM"

3 bananas (mashed) juice of 3 oranges
juice of 3 lemons
1 small can of crushed pineapple
1/4 c. cherries
4 c. whole milk
1/4 tsp. salt
4 eggs

2 cups whipping cream or 1 can Eagle Brand milk
2 1/2 c. sugar
a few drops of red food coloring

Beat eggs, then gradually beat in sugar, beating until thick. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. (Makes 1 gallon)

Pour into freezer can. Place can in freezer tub. Fill freezer tub 1/3 full of ice; add remaining ice alternately with layers of rock salt (6 parts ice to 1 part rock salt).

SHERRIL HUCKINS

Turn freezer until there is difficulty in turning. Draw off water. Remove lid; take out dasher. Pack mixture down. Replace lid. Repack in ice and rock salt or place in freezer.

"DUMP CAKE"

2 cans of cherry pie filling (or any kind of pie filling can be used)
2 small cans crushed pineapple, drained

1 pkg. yellow cake mix
1 c. pecans

1 c. coconut
1 1/2 sticks of margarine
Heat oven to 350 degrees.
Grease and flour oblong (13x9x2")

baking pan. Layer the following ingredients in order:

1st layer: pie filling;
2nd layer: pineapple;
3rd layer: cake mix;
4th layer: Mix coconut and pecans, and pour melted margarine over entire mixture.
Bake at 350 degrees for 1 1/2 hours or until brown.

News Digest

World/National

SIoux CITY, Iowa - A DC-10 carrying nearly 300 people flew 50 miles after an engine fell off in a corn field and cartwheeled in a ball of fire while attempting an emergency landing. Officials said at least 166 people survived.

WASHINGTON - President Bush wants a bold new phase in the nation's exploration of space, with a goal of sending Americans to Mars from a manned station on the moon, a senior administration official says.

WARSAW, Poland - Elected to the newly powerful presidency by a single vote in parliament, Communist leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski now faces the daunting challenge of salvaging the economy as new strikes break out.

WASHINGTON - Nineteen cities likely would be given 10 years to fix their ozone pollution problems, while severely polluted Los Angeles, Houston and New York would have two decades, according to a draft of President Bush's clean air bill.

NEW YORK - From the tiniest city council chambers to the meeting rooms of Congress, elected officials around the nation have discovered a threat to the environment in front of their very noses. Coffee cups.

WASHINGTON - The Energy Department faces more criminal probes of its nuclear weapons plants - and mounting public pressure to close them - unless it controls their environmental and safety problems, federal auditors say.

WASHINGTON - The White House and key senators are working on a compromise that would restrict U.S. contacts with officials of the Palestine Liberation Organization directly linked to terrorist attacks on Americans.

WASHINGTON - William Lucas could face more grilling by the Senate Judiciary Committee on his nomination to be the nation's civil rights chief to resolve questions about his fitness for the job.

LOS ANGELES - An Arizona man described as "an obsessive fan" of "My Sister Sam" co-star Rebecca Schaeffer wrote a letter and sought out the actress, finally stalking her before the shooting attack that killed her, police say.

State

AUSTIN - Attorney General Jim Mattox, saying the Public Utility Commission is operating "in very much a schizophrenic-type role," urged the panel's three members to consider resigning.

AUSTIN - The Texas Highway Commission has approved a plan to cut down 54 pine trees along the Camino Real, a historic highway near Bastrop, after a federal agency determined that the project would not harm the Houston Toad, an endangered species.

AUSTIN - Negotiators talked into the night as the special session on workers' compensation ground to an unceremonious conclusion and failed to solve the dilemma.

DALLAS - Survivors of Delta Flight 1141 say they want the airline monetarily punished now that it has accepted responsibility for the 1988 crash at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport that killed 14 people.

HUNTSVILLE - Harvey Earvin, who faces execution next week for an east Texas slaying 13 years ago, says he is not optimistic Gov. Bill Clements or a judge will grant him a reprieve.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, July 20, the 201st day of 1989. There are 164 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Twenty years ago, on July 20, 1969, Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin became the first men to walk on the moon, after their lunar module separated from the command module and landed on the lunar surface. In a scene watched on television by an estimated half-billion people, Armstrong stepped onto the moon at 10:56 p.m. EDT and proclaimed, "That's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind."

On this date:

In 1810, Colombia declared its independence from Spain.
In 1861, the Congress of the Confederate States began holding sessions in Richmond, Va.

In 1871, British Columbia became a Canadian province.
In 1881, Sioux Indian leader Sitting Bull, a fugitive since the Battle of the Little Big Horn, surrendered to federal troops.

In 1917, the draft lottery in World War I went into operation.
In 1942, the first detachment of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps - later known as WACs - began basic training at Fort Des Moines, Iowa.

In 1944, an attempt by a group of German officials to assassinate Adolf Hitler failed.

In 1944, President Franklin D. Roosevelt was nominated for an unprecedented fourth term of office at the Democratic convention in Chicago.

In 1951, Jordan's King Abdullah Ibn Hussein was assassinated in Jerusalem.

In 1960, a pair of Polaris missiles were fired from the submerged USS George Washington off Cape Canaveral, Fla., at a target more than 1,100 miles away.

In 1976, America's Viking 1 robot spacecraft made the first successful landing on Mars.

In 1977, a flash flood hit Johnstown, Pa., killing 80 people and causing $350 million worth of damage.

In 1982, bombs planted by the Irish Republican Army exploded in two London parks killing eight British soldiers, along with seven horses belonging to the Queen's Household Cavalry.

Pickens contracts for home in Dallas

UNIVERSITY PARK, Texas (AP) - Amarillo oilman T. Boone Pickens may soon be known as University Park oilman Boone Pickens because he and his wife have contracted to buy a $2.9 million home in this Dallas suburb, real estate agents say.

Agents told The Dallas Morning News Wednesday that Pickens is quietly moving from West Texas to the Dallas area.

In early June it was announced that

Pickens' Mesa Limited Partnership is relocating more than two dozen of its headquarters staff members to office in the Dallas area. It was never mentioned that Pickens would also move.

Mesa is one of Amarillo's largest employers with about 400 people in its administrative office, contributing about $90 million annually to the Panhandle city's economy.

Pickens declined to answer phone calls from the Dallas newspaper about his personal move, but his staffers assumed that the move was widely known.

The Amarillo oilman said recently that he still hasn't decided whether to become a Republican candidate for governor. But with George W. Bush, the president's son, apparently out of the 1990 gubernatorial race, Pickens could be the lone candidate from the Republican bastion of Dallas.

Pickens has lived in Amarillo for 45 years and has been an outspoken leader of the city's business community.

In 1987, he wrote in his autobiography that "moving to Amarillo was probably the best thing that ever happened to me."

There were rumors last year that Pickens and his wife, Bea, were considering a move to Fort Worth. Amarillo community leaders campaigned against the move.

A group of 20 business leaders spent $10,000 for 55 billboards saying: "Boone & Bea, You Love Amarillo, and We Love You!"

The newspaper reported that if the purchase is completed, the Pickenses soon will be living in a four-bedroom, English Tudor-style home near Preston Road. The home has about 16,000 square feet, including a second-floor ballroom and two-story trophy room. Both Pickens and his wife are avid hunters.

Mrs. Pickens, the first woman to serve on the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission, is the only woman to have killed all the African "Big Five" dangerous game in a 21-day safari. The "Big Five" are lion, leopard, Cape buffalo, elephant and rhinoceros.

Are these onions or potatoes?

Statewide political poll documents voter's feelings on candidate ethics

AUSTIN-Do Texas voters think most politicians are corrupt? Or do they believe politicians are being measured by unrealistic standards of conduct?

The Texas Press Association surveyed 1,500 registered voters in the state from June 5 to 24, 1989 to ascertain their voting preferences and voting history. The survey was conducted by Bonner, Incorporated, an Austin-based advertising and marketing firm.

Data from the poll will be used by Texas Press Association members to document the impact of voters in non-urban areas in the 1990 primary and general elections. A non-urban area is considered any Texas city under 50,000 population.

When asked the question, "Do you think most politicians are corrupt or are we measuring politicians by an unrealistic standard of conduct?", 31 percent of the Texans surveyed said they were corrupt and 39 percent said we are measuring them by unrealistic standards.

But when asked if they would vote to re-elect House Speaker Jim Wright to public office, 55.7 percent said no.

Most Texans say the candidate's stand on the issues (55 percent) is the most decisive factor in their voting preferences. Almost one-fourth (23 percent) said ethical standards, while 17 percent said a candidate's experience is the most decisive factor.

In the 1988 Democratic primary, the percentage of turn-out for registered voters in non-urban areas was almost twice as high (32 percent) as in the urban areas of Texas (19 percent). In the general election of 1988, 66 percent of the registered voters in non-urban areas turned out to vote.

Of these experienced voters, 77 percent subscribe to their local newspapers. And, 48 percent subscribe to an out-of-town newspaper as well.

Forty-two percent of these voters say they read their local newspaper from "cover-to-cover." Another 35 percent stated they glance at every page which amounts to a 77-percent readership coverage rate for probable voters.

TV Distraction Factor

Compared to television viewing, newspaper readership is more thorough. Of the voters polled, 42 percent admit to "almost always" doing some other activity, such as eating, cleaning, reading, or "working on a hobby" while the television is on. Another 24 percent say they "sometimes" are engaged in other activities, resulting in a "distraction factor" of 66 percent for television viewers polled.

One reason attributed to high newspaper readership is the demographics of the non-urban voter. This group of Texans is older than the average voter in urban areas. In fact, more than 51 percent of non-urban voters are over the age of 50 and 43.7 percent are between 25 to 50 years of age. The statewide average for people in Texas over the age of 45 is 27 percent.

This non-urban group is more likely to be native Texans as well. Sixty-nine percent say they have lived in Texas all of their lives. This is compared to many urban areas in the state where at least one-half of the population did not live in Texas 15 years ago.

The study showed that older citizens tend to vote more often and they tend to vote more conservatively. The poll documented 57.5 percent who describe themselves as conservative and 32.5 percent describe themselves as moderate.

Even though they tend to be conservative in political philosophy, the non-urban voter remains loyal to voting in the Democratic primary. When asked in which primary they intend to vote in 1990, 64.5 percent identified the Democratic primary and only 35.5 percent intend to vote in the Republican primary. Of the people who are over the age of 50, 74 percent intend to vote in the Democratic primary and 26 percent plan to vote in the Republican primary.

However, the study determined that this doesn't mean they intend to vote Democratic in the general election. Non-urban voters are more likely to split their ticket in 1990, with 64 percent saying they vote for people from both parties in the general elections.

This group of voters believes education (45.1 percent) is the most important statewide issue we face. Even though only 29.6 percent have school age children at home, they heavily support recent educational reforms such as the "no pass-no play" and teacher testing by a majority of 90 percent.

The second most important issue to this group is crime (31 percent) followed by hospital closures (18.3 percent) with taxes being last among key issues (12.3 percent).

DELICIOUS CINNAMON ROLLS

3 1/2 c. all-purpose flour
1 pkg. active dry yeast
1 1/4 c. milk
1/4 c. sugar
1/4 c. margarine
1 tsp. salt

In mixing bowl combine 1 1/2 c. of flour and the yeast. Heat milk, sugar, margarine, and salt just until warm (115-120 degrees), stirring constantly until margarine melts.

Add to dry mixture, then add egg. Beat at low speed of electric mixer for 1/2 minute, scraping bowl. Beat three minutes at high speed. By hand, stir in remaining flour to make soft dough and shape into a ball.

Place in lightly greased bowl; turn once to grease surface. Cover; let rise in warm place until double, 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Punch down; turn out on floured surface. Cover; let rest 10 minutes.

On lightly floured surface, roll half of recipe to 16X8" rectangle. Spread margarine onto the dough with a knife. Then sprinkle with sugar, then cinnamon (do not mix sugar and cinnamon).

Roll as for jelly roll, starting with long edge; seal. Cut in 1" slices. Place, cut side down, in greased baking dish. Cover; let rise in warm place until double. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) for 20 minutes.

Remove from pan. Frost with icing, which follows:

Icing

6 tbsp. margarine
1 lb. pkg. confectioner's sugar
1/4 c. milk or light cream
1 tsp. almond flavoring

Mix together and spread on cinnamon rolls.

COCONUT OATMEAL COOKIES

2 c. sifted flour
1 tsp. soda
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1/2 c. butter
1/2 c. shortening
1 c. brown sugar
1 c. granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
2 c. oatmeal
2 c. coconut
nuts and raisins, optional

Sift dry ingredients together. Cream shortening and margarine, gradually add sugar until light and fluffy.

Add unbeaten eggs one at a time. Add to dry ingredients. Then add vanilla, oatmeal, and coconut.

Mix well and drop by teaspoonsful on greased and floured cookie sheet. Bake 10 minutes in 350 degree oven.

SNICKER CAKE

1 pkg. German chocolate cake mix
1/3 c. milk
1 stick margarine
1 - 12 oz. pkg. Kraft caramels
3/4 c. chocolate chips
1 c. pecans or walnuts

Grease and flour 9x13" pan. Prepare cake mix according to directions. Pour half of the batter into pan and bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes.

While cake bakes, melt butter, milk, and caramels. Remove cake from oven. Pour caramel mixture over top, add half of chocolate chips and nuts, pour rest of batter over this.

Add remaining chocolate chips and nuts. Bake at 250 degrees for 20 minutes, then 350 degrees for 10 minutes. Cool and serve.

TUTTI-FRUITI "ICE CREAM"

3 bananas (mashed)
juice of 3 oranges
juice of 3 lemons
1 small can of crushed pineapple
1/4 c. cherries
4 c. whole milk
1/4 tsp. salt
4 eggs
2 cups whipping cream or 1 can Eagle Brand milk
2 1/2 c. sugar
a few drops of red food coloring

Beat eggs, then gradually beat in sugar, beating until thick. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. (Makes 1 gallon)

Pour into freezer can. Place can in freezer tub. Fill freezer tub 1/3 full of ice; add remaining ice alternately with layers of rock salt (6 parts ice to 1 part rock salt).

SHERRI HUCKINS

Turn freezer until there is difficulty in turning. Draw off water. Remove lid; take out dasher. Pack mixture down. Replace lid. Repack in ice and rock salt or place in freezer.

"DUMP CAKE"

2 cans of cherry pie filling (or any kind of pie filling can be used)
2 small cans crushed pineapple, drained
1 pkg. yellow cake mix
1 c. pecans

1 c. coconut
1 1/2 sticks of margarine
Heat oven to 350 degrees.
Grease and flour oblong (13x9x2")

baking pan. Layer the following ingredients in order:

1st layer: pie filling;
2nd layer: pineapple;
3rd layer: cake mix;
4th layer: Mix coconut and pecans, and pour melted margarine over entire mixture.
Bake at 350 degrees for 1 1/2 hours or until brown.

Amarillo teams eliminate Hereford

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

The Amarillo National League All-Stars took a pair of must wins, including a rematch with the Hereford All-Stars, to advance from the losers' bracket to the final round of the West Texas Sectional Bronco Tournament.

Amarillo National eliminated Bovina 13-8 while Amarillo American sent Hereford into the losers' bracket with a 19-0 pasting in a game that was called in the fifth inning on the 10-run rule.

Amarillo National then avenged their 13-7 first-round loss to Hereford with an 11-6 decision.

Amarillo American and Amarillo National will meet at 6 p.m. today for the championship. If Amarillo National wins that game, a second will follow at 8 p.m.

Amarillo American 19, Hereford 0

Amarillo American continued its roll through the tournament bracket as pitchers Clay Aderholt and Darrell Barron allowed a total of two hits and recorded 11 strikeouts over five innings. Michael Cleavinger hit two home runs and had eight RBI with Aderholt and Gabe Sager adding one homer each.

Hereford never threatened in the game, having runners as far as third base only twice.

Aderholt struck out the side in order to start the game while the Americans greeted Hereford starter Ronald Torres with four straight hits, including Cleavinger's first homer, for a 3-0 lead.

After that, it was a matter of keeping track of how many blue-clads crossed the plate. Amarillo added five runs in the second with a pair of two-run shots from Aderholt and Sager. In the third, they sent 11 men to the plate with eight coming all the way around.

Amarillo American ended the scoring in the fourth on Cleavinger's three-run blast off relief pitcher Jaime Ramirez.

Amarillo National 13, Bovina 8

Amarillo National had little trouble with Bovina, running up a five run lead off starting pitcher Beto Gomez in a game played on the Babe Ruth field.

Amarillo National starting pitcher Mike Potts had some difficulty throwing off the fiberglass mound set up in front of the Babe Ruth hill, not being able to get any traction with his cleated shoes. After walking two of the first four batters to load the bases at the start of the game, Potts changed to a pair of sneakers and easily retired the side.

Potts gave up one unearned run on one hit during three innings. Lance McClaren laced a single to left field which Brian Kennedy mis-played for a two-base error. McClaren scored on a ground out by Andy Espinoza.

The Nationals broke the game open in the fourth and fifth innings, scoring four runs in each. Kennedy reached on an error to open the fourth and came around when Brian Cantrell's fly ball got by two outfielders to the fence for a home run. Two more runs came in on Jarod Dunivan's bases-loaded double.

Amarillo added three more runs on another bases-loaded double in the fifth, this one by Ryan Roy, to up the lead to 12-4.

Bovina came back from the brink of being run ruled with three runs off relief pitcher Drew Daniel. Gomez singled, Kevin Mitchell drew a walk and Danny Saiz added another single to score Gomez. Mitchell and Saiz scored on two ground outs to shortstop.

Amarillo National 11, Hereford 6

Hereford fell behind early in the losers' bracket final as starter Gregg Kalka gave up seven runs, all unearned, in the first inning. Hereford made things worse by dropping the third out twice as runs crossed the plate.

National starting pitcher held the locals to three runs during his three innings of work.

The Hereford stars ran themselves out of an inning in the fourth with the score at 8-3. Ronald Torres led off with a fly ball to left, which Kurt Walken dropped and booted half-way across the outfield. Center fielder Brian Kennedy chased the ball down in time to nail Torres trying for second base. Tanner Murphey then doubled but was thrown out trying to steal third.

Hereford mounted a comeback in the seventh when Michael Marquez singled, Marc Haney looped a double down the right field line and Sonny Perez walked to fill the bases. Marquez scored on a sacrifice fly by Torres and Haney and Perez came around when Zac Rose let a grounder roll through his legs.

But it was a case of too much too little, too late and with two outs Kalka grounded weakly to the mound to end the game.

Lone ranger

Hereford's Ray Aliniz, left, heads back to second base after a pitch in Hereford's 19-0 loss to Amarillo American as American shortstop Darrell Barron awaits a possible pick-off throw. Aliniz later stole third, but was left stranded.

Troon course has long, short of it

TROON, Scotland (AP) - When it comes to the British Open, this sandy hamlet on Scotland's west coast has the long and the short of it.

Both the longest and the shortest holes at any Open venue are among the 7,067 yards which the world's top 156 golfers face beginning today for the oldest title in the sport.

For big hitters, there is No. 6, a 577-yard par-5 monster known to locals as Turnberry, after another Open course just down the beach.

For short-range gunners, there is the famed No. 8, a hole so compact it has been named the Postage Stamp. And no mail-order course will help the golfer who runs into trouble on this 126-yard devil of a par-3.

Less than 100 yards separate the pin at the sixth from the tee at the eighth, and in between lies the fairly mundane 402-yard No. 7, a par-4 with a dogleg, a hole where hopes of glory have vanished the five previous times the Open has been played here.

The sixth edition of the Open at Troon was due to tee off in unusually balmy conditions. And the course itself played short through early week practice sessions, thanks to sparse rough and rock-hard fairways that added anywhere from 50 to 120 yards to well-placed drives.

The greens were different, too. Usually lush enough to make all but the worst approach shot stick, they are so unyielding that placement will be extremely delicate.

"A lot depends on where the pins are," said Greg Norman, the 1986 British Open champion from Australia. "If the pins are at the back, it would be a sucker to hit it on the flag. With most greens out there, if you land on the down slope, you are going to finish 40 yards away from the flag. ... The ball is being taken away from the hole."

Norman, one of the pre-tournament favorites, is a big hitter, and he should love the sixth hole.

It starts about 50 yards off the beach and has a slight dogleg to the right as it runs closer to the sea.

Only the biggest hitters off the elevated tee can expect to reach the green in two, even with conditions such as those prevailing this week, and bunkers crowd the fairway on both sides about 200 yards out to catch anything short or off line.

More sand guards the approach and the left side of the green, which is sheltered by hillocks, a deceptively peaceful finish to a hole that has swallowed championship hopes.

In 1982, for instance, American Bobby Clampett was leading the Open by five strokes after two rounds and explaining to anyone who would listen how he was building the perfect golf swing. Then came Round 3 and disaster.

At the sixth, the perfect swing found two bunkers and Clampett took a triple-bogey 8. He finished the round still in first, but his lead was down to a stroke and he sank to a 10th-place tie on the final day.

Herman Tissies may have preferred sinking in the nearby Firth of Clyde to being at the eighth hole at Troon during the Open of 1950.

Tissies, a German amateur, one-potted the hole. Unfortunately, he needed 14 shots to get to that point, hitting his tee shot into one of the bunkers that front the green and wedging into the other two before finally reaching the putting surface. Tissies took five shots to escape one bunker and could be excused if he never licked a stamp again.

The eighth generally is ranked alongside the Road Hole at St. Andrews as the most famous on British Open courses, and it has been the scene of greatness as well as despair.

In 1973, Gene Sarazen, then 71, and David J. Russell each sank holes in one at No. 8, which was built by levelling off a hill for the tee and flattening a sand dune for the green. Depending upon the wind, golfers will use anything from a 4-iron to a wedge off the tee.

These two holes, along with the 481-yard, par-5 11th, known as the Railway, help give a special flavor to Troon. Tom Weiskopf, who won here in 1973, said it was probably the toughest of the current Open courses.

"Troon is very special to me," Weiskopf said. "The philosophy of these courses is for the most part the philosophy of the game. You are rewarded for good play."

Rose to skip HOF game

CINCINNATI (AP) - Pete Rose doesn't want publicity of his court fight with major league baseball to overshadow one of Johnny Bench's grandest moments.

Rose has received permission from Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott to stay behind Monday when his team plays the Boston Red Sox in the annual Hall of Fame exhibition game at Cooperstown.

Bench, a teammate of Rose on Cincinnati's "Big Red Machine" of the 1970s, and former Boston star Carl Yastrzemski will be inducted into the hall this weekend. Rose said Wednesday night that he doesn't want to have the media focus on him at the festivities, where he'd probably encounter Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti.

"Their careers have been great. I don't want to distract from anything like that," Rose said. "I know this would be the first time that Commissioner Giamatti and myself would be in the same area that people know about, and I didn't even want to take the chance that the (media) circus would continue. So that's why I won't be in Cooperstown next Monday."

Rose will return to Cincinnati from Montreal after his team concludes a four-game series on Sunday. The ballclub will then rejoin him in Cincinnati to open a three-game series against San Diego on Tuesday.

Rose has tied Giamatti's hands in deciding whether the manager bet on his own team, an offense that carries a possible lifetime ban from the game. Rose is protected by court order from suspension or firing while his case drags on in court.

U.S. District Judge John D. Holschuh in Columbus, Ohio, scheduled arguments for late this afternoon on whether he should move Rose's case to federal court or send it back to the state court system. There's no indication when he may rule.

Lawyers for Rose want the case sent back to Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge Norbert A. Nadel, who already has ruled that Giamatti prejudged that Rose is guilty.

Baseball's lawyers want the case moved to federal court, where the broad powers of the commissioner have been upheld in previous cases.

Bench has said he didn't want his induction marred by the Rose controversy. In an interview this week with the Cincinnati Enquirer, Bench said of the Rose controversy: "So they can do whatever they want, but don't mess around with my weekend."

"I've got too much respect (for the inductees). It's unfortunate that the publicity has overshadowed some of those fellows so far this year," Rose said. "But I might add, I didn't ask for the publicity."

Carter paces Tribe with homers

By The Associated Press

Joe Carter is the new hottest hitter in baseball. He wants to overtake the old one.

"Maybe I can catch Kevin Mitchell now," Carter said Wednesday night after the fourth three-homer game of his career helped the Cleveland Indians over the Minnesota Twins 10-1.

"I'll need about five more nights like that," joked Carter, who with 19 homers is still 13 shy of Mitchell's major league-leading total.

Carter tied Lou Gehrig's American League record for three-homer games and drove in six runs. He homered twice on Tuesday and has five home runs in his last six at-bats.

"I thought he was going to be player of the week in one night," the Twins' Al Newman said.

Carter hit two-run homers in the first and third innings off Allan Anderson, 9-9. After walking in the fifth, he hit an eighth-inning solo homer off German Gonzalez, and added a sacrifice fly in the ninth.

He tied a major-league record in becoming the 15th player to hit five home runs in two games. He set a Cleveland record, topping the four by Rocky Colavito and Willie Kirkland.

Carter credited teammate Pete O'Brien, who has urged Carter to be patient and to keep his back foot firmly planted in the batter's box.

"I got away from that the first game of the series and was jumping at the ball," he said of his 0-for-4 night. "I took some extra batting practice Tuesday and got back to employing the theories."

In other games, Chicago beat New York 11-5, Milwaukee beat Kansas City 7-1, Boston beat Texas 4-0 and Seattle beat Baltimore 7-0. Oakland's game at Detroit was rained out.

John Farrell, 5-9, pitched a two-hitter for his first victory since June 26. He struck out five and walked two in his third complete game, allowing two hits to Jim Dwyer.

White Sox 11, Yankees 5
Ivan Calderon's double snapped a 5-5 tie in the seventh and Carlton Fisk hit his 329th home run, a three-run drive in the eighth. Chicago won its sixth straight overall and its eighth straight in Comiskey Park.

The second game of the scheduled doubleheader was called after four innings with no score. It will be made up only if it affects the pennant race.

Chicago, on its longest winning streak since the final week of the 1987 season, got 14 hits off Clay Parker, Lee Guetterman and Dale Mohoric.

Guetterman, 2-3, walked Harold Baines to open the seventh with the score tied at 5. Calderon doubled to right-center field on the next pitch and scored on Darryl Boston's single.

Brewers 7, Royals 1
Chris Bosio, 10-6, pitched a five-hitter and struck out eight. Milwaukee got 17 hits in snapping a six-game losing streak, its longest since April 1988.

Robin Yount stretched his hitting streak to 10 games and set a Brewers record with his 17th consecutive stolen base, one of five steals by Milwaukee.

Jim Gantner and Greg Brock had three hits each and Gantner stole home on the front end of a delayed double steal.

Charlie Leibrandt, 5-9, gave up nine hits and four runs in 4 2-3 innings. He has won only twice in 12 starts since May 12.

Red Sox 4, Rangers 0
Mike Boddicker won his fourth straight start, combining with Rob Murphy on a five-hitter in the 93-degree heat at Arlington Stadium.

Boddicker, 8-7, allowed three hits, struck out two and walked two in 6 1-3 innings before Murphy finished for his fifth save, striking out five.

Charlie Hough, 5-11, allowed singles to five of the first seven batters he faced.

Mariners 7, Orioles 0
Greg Briley hit two solo home runs and Scott Bradley had a three-run homer in Memorial Stadium as Seattle snapped Baltimore's five-game winning streak.

Brian Holman, 4-2 since being acquired from Montreal in the Mark Langston deal, gave up seven hits in seven innings and struck out six. Brian Holton, 4-6, allowed five runs and six hits in two innings.

Braves tame beasts from East

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer

No one expects the Atlanta Braves to make much of an impact in the National League West this year. The National League East, however, is another story.

The last-place Braves, no longer a factor in their own divisional race, have been giving the top teams in the NL East as much as they can handle these days.

That included Wednesday night's 3-2, 12-inning victory over Montreal, giving the Braves two victories in their three-game series with the NL East leaders. Earlier, the Braves won two of four games from the New York Mets, another NL East contender.

"We understand that we can't take any team for granted," said Expos pitcher Bryn Smith, the loser in Wednesday night's game in Montreal. "We knew we had a big job on our hands going up against (John) Smoltz. But maybe it's a blessing in disguise, telling us that it's time to bear down."

Coupled with Chicago's 4-0 win over Los Angeles, the Expos saw their first-place lead shaved to 2 1/2 games over the Cubs. The third-place Mets, 8-2 winners over Houston, moved within three games of the Expos.

In other NL games, it was San Francisco 7, St. Louis 5; Philadelphia 9, Cincinnati 4, and San Diego 9, Pittsburgh 1.

Tommy Gregg had the Braves' game-winning hit, an RBI single in the 12th. Gregg singled up the middle to drive in Oddibe McDowell, who also figured in a first-inning run.

Expos reliever Joey Hesketh, 5-3, came in to get the first two Atlanta batters in the 12th and then gave up a walk to McDowell, who promptly stole second to set the stage for Gregg.

Mark Eichhorn, 3-2, picked up the win, with Joe Boever collecting his 17th save.

Dale Murphy, suffering through one of his worst seasons, had a solo homer for the Braves, his seventh.

Cubs 4, Dodgers 0
Mike Bielecki pitched a three-hitter and Damon Berryhill capped a three-run first inning with a suicide squeeze bunt as Chicago beat Los Angeles. Bielecki, 9-5, struck out six and walked one.

The Cubs batted around in the first inning against Mike Morgan, 6-10, scoring three runs on an RBI single by Ryne Sandberg, a scoring groundout by Mark Grace and Berryhill's bunt to the right of the mound.

Mets 8, Astros 2
David Cone pitched a four-hitter for his fourth straight victory and Darryl Strawberry hit his 20th home run to lead New York.

Cone, 7-5, struck out eight without a walk in pitching his fourth complete game in 19 starts.

Jim Clancy, 5-7, has lost three consecutive decisions.

Giants 7, Cardinals 5

Greg Litton hit a pinch-hit, three-run homer and Candy Maldonado drove in three runs as San Francisco extended its winning streak to five games.

Jeff Brantley, 6-0, got the victory after relieving starter Trevor Wilson in the fifth inning.

The Giants, whose 34-15 home record is the best in the NL, chased Scott Terry, 7-8, in the fifth inning when they scored five runs.

Phillies 9, Reds 4
Ricky Jordan had a career-high five hits and led a four-homer barrage off Tom Browning.

Jordan and Randy Ready hit two-run homers off Browning, 7-9, and Dickie Thon and Von Hayes had solo homers for the Phillies.

Dennis Cook, 4-3, snapped a personal three-game losing streak by scattering five hits in his second complete game in eight starts.

Padres 9, Pirates 1
Ed Whitson became the NL's second 13-game winner and third in the major leagues.

Whitson, 13-6, was given all the runs he needed when the Padres built a 6-0 lead off Pirates starter Doug Drabek, 7-7, through the first six innings.

The big blows were a two-run homer in the fifth by Luis Salazar and a bases-loaded triple by Benito Santiago in the sixth. Chris James later finished the scoring with a three-run homer in the seventh.

Scramble tied - again

The Wednesday Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course ended in a tie again yesterday with two teams recording a score of 29.

The merchandise prizes have carried over for five weeks because of ties, but there will be a winner next week. Since it will be the last week for Pro Mike Horton, any ties will result in a putting contest between the low teams. The golf prizes amounted to $280 per player yesterday.

Posting 29 scores yesterday were the team of Mark Black, Trent Bowling, Jesse Hernandez and Rose Marie Robinson, and the team of Charles McDowell, Jerry Killings-worth, Edward Garcia and Jack Chapman.

The scramble is open to any interested golfer, but there is already a waiting list for next week's play.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the young woman engaged to "a wonderful guy" who smokes a joint or two a day should serve as a warning to all people involved with a substance abuser.

I pray that the good job her fiance has does not involve heavy machinery or industrial chemicals. He could be endangering his life and the lives of his co-workers. And unless he grows, harvests and processes the pot he smokes, he is inhaling, in addition to marijuana, all of the unknown materials used to cut and hype the product by those who sell it.

If he is 28 and has been a user for many years, chances are that the marijuana may have affected his brain, his sperm count and his genetic makeup. If the young woman wants to have children, she must prepare herself for the possibility of birth defect and mental retardation.

He claims he is getting "pleasure and relaxation." She will have neither of these if she marries a man who will not acknowledge that he has a problem.

Her first step should be a call to Narcotics Anonymous at once. I wish her well...Gone Through It Twice in Akron

DEAR AKRON: I'm glad you recommended Narcotics Anonymous. This is an excellent self-help organization based on the 12-step recovery program of A.A. It offers support and guidance not only to addicts but their family and friends.

If your telephone director doesn't show a listing for a local chapter, contact national headquarters and they will send you informative literature and refer you to the closest source of help. The address is: Narcotics Anonymous, World Service Office, P.O. Box 9999, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The Navy V-12 Program of World War II was a terrific officer training program and included both sailors and Marines. It was conducted on 131 campuses across the country. A while back you graciously used your column to notify Peace Corps volunteers of a proposed reunion. Will you do the same for us?

We are planning the first nationwide reunion of V-12s and would appreciate it if you could run a notice in your column. We have been able to track only about 15,000 of them and there are probably at least 90,000 still alive. The V-12 Program attracted a great many future United States leaders: Howard Baker, Pierre Salinger, Congressman Henry J. Hyde, columnists Carl T. Rowan and Tom Wicker, Melvin Laird, Jack Lemmon and Johnny Carson, as well as three Nobel laureates.

The V-12 Program included 125,000 sailors and Marines. The first V-12 reunion is planned for Sept. 28-Oct. 1, 1989, at the Grand Hyatt Hotel in Washington, D.C. For more information, V-12s should write: Navy V-12 National Colloquium, P.O. Box 12728, Arlington, Va. 22209-8728. Thanks very much.-J.G.S., Kankakee, Ill.

DEAR KANK: That V-12 Program was a godsend to thousands of young people who otherwise would never have been able to go to college. I'm delighted to help in the roundup.

Please let me know how many turn up for the reunion in Washington. It's sure to be a thrilling experience.

Is that Ann Landers column you clipped years ago yellow with age? HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

Car crashes and house crashes - it's all part of the fun of... "LETHAL WEAPON 2": Starring Mel Gibson and Danny Glover. This funny, predictable, overdone, overblown, excessive movie is very much like a very long, Grade A TV cops and robbers sitcom and, therefore, perfect for mindless summer entertainment. The plot is a "sort of plot" about a villainous drug syndicate; male bonding and good (i.e., the end justifies the means) winning out. And at all costs, if you count all the wrecked cars, wrecked helicopters, wrecked houses and wrecked lives. Lethal Weapon 2 is much better than Lethal Weapon, with more "thrill-a-minute" scenes. But it is the humor, the wit, the clever lines, the tongue-in-cheek dialogue, the "don't take any of this seriously, we're just little boys playing" attitudes of the players, the scriptwriter and the director that give the sequel its winning edge. (What is distracting and disturbing is the political brainwashing that is subliminally injected into the humor. Rewriting history, especially history's perspective, is dangerous to everyone's freedoms.) Joe Pesci is absolutely hilarious as an embezzling accountant turned Federal witness. He steals every one of his scenes - Mel Gibson and Danny Glover just don't have a chance (or the skills) against Pesci's superior timing, skilled body language and excellent phrase turning. He adds the real comedy, and most of the laughs, to this comic/action/thriller. Rated R for sex and nudity. See it - it's fun; but don't eat Chinese when you do; you won't remember the movie three hours later either. Three Boxes.

RENTAL MOVIES

For fans of the "thrill-a-minute" or "wreck-a-car-a-minute" action thriller... "BULLITT": (1968) Starring Steve McQueen and Jacqueline Bisset. This movie set the standard for car chases and has seldom been bettered; the final car chase scene is an absolute classic. But Bullitt has more than the car chase to recommend it...not the least being Steve McQueen's aggressive performance as a tough, modern-day police detective involved in the middle of Mafia dealings and political interventions. Bullitt is a believable, thrilling, thinking man's action adventure. The photography is superior also; great use is made of the wonderful San Francisco locations. Not rated - would be a PG-13. Four Boxes.

"THE FRENCH CONNECTION": (1971) Starring Gene Hackman and Roy Scheider as unorthodox New York narcotics cops investigating the flow of heroin coming into New York City from France. The script (based on real people and true events) is tight, with excellently layered construction that takes you inside of the investigation and lets you see how it works - warts and all. The audience is not a voyeur in this film but part of the action. So much so that most of the time you will be holding your breath as the story builds toward a climactic chase that (as in Bullitt) is one of the best in movie history. The movie won five Oscars including Best Picture, Actor (Hackman) and Director. Rated R. Four Boxes.

"FRENCH CONNECTION II": (1975) Yes, Virginia, they did sequels way back then. It stars original cast members Gene Hackman and Fernando Rey sans Roy Scheider. While it does not have the punch of the original movie, it is still an exciting story. Gene Hackman continues as Popeye Doyle on the trail of the elusive kingpin of the French narcotics syndicate - this time in Europe (France). It is still basically a chase drama and a pretty good one. Rated R. Three Boxes.

"DIRTY HARRY": (1971) Starring Clint Eastwood. This is the film that started the modern-day trend of the maverick, misunderstood cop who wants to get rid of the bad guys - only the bureaucracy won't let him. This original Dirty Harry movie is still the best of the screen adventures of the unorthodox detective. Outfoxed by a maniacal killer, "Dirty Harry" Callahan finally decides to deal out justice in his own inimitable and controversial fashion. Dirty Harry has an outstanding "edge-of-your-seat" climax. Rated R. Four Boxes. And for a lighter touch...

MOVIE NOTES

"PETER PAN": (1953) Newly released for the big screen. See it; take you children and share the beauty and joy of the spirit of Peter Pan. The film is just as potent in stirring the hearts and imaginations today as it was on its initial release. There are not enough boxes to rate this tale of imperishable youth that charted a course that followed "the second star to the right and straight on till morning."

Underwood welcomes change of pace

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Until NBC's "L.A. Law" came along, Blair Underwood wondered if he was destined to play gang leaders the rest of his career. "I was 22 years old and that's all I was playing," Underwood says. "I was a street kid on the soap opera 'One Life to Live,' a parolee in the prime-time series 'Downtown.' "Then I was cast as attorney Jonathan Rollins in 'L.A. Law.' Young, arrogant, Harvard-educated and black. It's funny. Now all people see me as a man in a suit and tie." Underwood's character was first conceived as an entertainment lawyer, but that idea was dropped. "The closest he's gotten to that is defending a ventriloquist," he says. "The ventriloquist had trouble communicating with people and talked through his dummy. He had attacked a policeman because the cop had attacked his dummy, which is an extension of himself. The judge let him go. "I've been doing a lot of courtroom work this year. My character hasn't had a personal life until the last four episodes. They brought in a love interest, Renee Jones, who's a law clerk at the firm. She's new and going through a divorce. The way we ended the season is that we've decided to become friends and take it slowly."

Lawyer Rollins has also taken a few lumps during the past season. "It was a blow to Jonathan's ego when the law firm sent in Jimmy Smits to help out in a case," he says. "He'd gotten in over his head. Jimmy told him to calm down. The jury was looking at him like he was a monster. He'd been bullying witnesses and losing sight of the case and his client's interests."

"The case involved a woman suing a company because the boss pressured employees to go rock climbing. Her husband had fallen off and was killed. Jonathan was able to turn himself around and apologize for getting sidetracked. He ended up winning the case."

Underwood, finishing his second year as the cocky lawyer, is currently playing civil rights worker James Chaney, who with Mickey Schwerner and Andrew Goodman was murdered near Philadelphia, Miss., in 1964. The movie, "Murder in Mississippi," tells of the events leading up to the killings by white supremacists. The aftermath is told in the theatrical movie "Mississippi Burning." Underwood was born in Tacoma, Wash., but grew up mostly in Virginia. His father was an Army officer, so his early years were also spent in Colorado, Michigan, Kansas and West Germany. He received his degree in theater arts from Carnegie Mellon University.

Underwood has set up his own production company to create projects for himself. His brother, Frank Underwood Jr., a writer, is putting some of the movies together.

"You have to create your own screenplays, to play the kind of parts you want to play," he says. "We're working on a Western in which I would play a cowboy. We're also developing a major epic about Hannibal, the Carthaginian who brought the elephants over the Alps to attack Rome."

Underwood calls "L.A. Law" a great comfort zone because it allows him to say no to projects he doesn't really want to do. He doesn't have to take them to make a living.

"It was different three years ago," he says. "You never know how your career's going to take off. But it's a good feeling to be able to say no to things."

"There are very few shows that tap into reality involving blacks like 'L.A.

Florida isn't 'Margaritaville'

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) - In travel brochures and the songs of Jimmy ("Margaritaville") Buffett, Florida is a palm-fringed haven from the rat race where ordinary troubles dissolve under a blazing sun. But many newcomers are still hunting for paradise among the impersonal sprawl of shopping plazas and traffic-clogged thoroughfares.

"I came here with stars in my eyes," says Francis Greene, a 28-year-old construction equipment salesman who relocated from Philadelphia in September. "I ended up with an ulcer in my stomach."

In a state of transplants - 780 a day by census estimates - Greene is one of the many rejections, say psychological experts and counselors.

Recently, more attention is being paid to the malaise that can beset Florida newcomers.

Experts say working families are confronted by demoralizing commutes, uninviting condominium complexes and the anxiety of random violence in a state where cash-and-carry gun purchases are still possible.

Retirees, they say, can face isolation and boredom. Others simply drop out. "I call it the Florida Syndrome," says Dr. Dean J. Rotondo, director of the neurological laboratory at Fair

Oaks Hospital in Delray Beach, about 45 miles north of Miami. "It's the reality of Florida versus the fantasy."

Rotondo believes the funk is particularly strong in the 60-mile urban strip between Miami and West Palm Beach, where a nearly two-fold population boom in the past 20 years has overburdened roads and sent developers to the fringe of the Everglades in search of land.

Stress-related ailments, such as depression and chronic anxiety, are the most common manifestations of Florida Syndrome, says Rotondo, a native of New York City.

"I, like many people, came here thinking that if I had a problem I would just go to the beach," he says. "Well, you can only go to the beach so much. When people come down here and find all the problems they left behind - and sometimes they are worse - what's left is a lot of disillusionment and irritability."

Hints from Heloise

TOOTHPASTE STAIN

Dear Heloise: I sometimes get toothpaste on my clothes when brushing my teeth in the mornings. It won't come off with a wet washcloth and the only way I can solve this problem is to change blouses.

How can I remove this stain without having to change clothes? — Mrs. Susan Heduch, St. Louis, Mo.

Place a cloth underneath the fabric, then work with the damp cloth on top to remove the toothpaste. Do not use this method on silk or other delicate fabrics because the rubbing action will break the fibers. Use a hair dryer to blow it dry.

Prevention hints are my favorites. If you must brush your teeth after getting dressed or during the day, put a hand towel over the front of your blouse to protect it from the toothpaste. — Heloise

BUTTON HELPER

Dear Heloise: When the buttons on sweaters or blouses start to loosen up, use matching embroidery floss. Use the 6-inch strands and the color will match exactly. — Dotty Decker, Silver Springs, Fla.

CHILD TIPS

Dear Heloise: I noticed my 2-year-old daughter had trouble telling the front from the back of her panties and would often put her panties on backward (not too comfortable).

I solved this problem by putting a small mark with a permanent marker on the inside elastic in front of each pair. Problem solved! — Gloria Campbell, Lake Forest, Ill.

Send a money or time saving hint to Heloise, P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, TX 78279. Or fax it to my new number, 512-HELLOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

Thousands participate in free skin cancer screenings

More than 11,000 Texans participated in free skin cancer screenings sponsored statewide in May by the American Cancer Society and the Texas Dermatological Society as part of the 1989 Texas Skin Cancer/Melanoma Project, the organizations announced.

The screening effort was the largest of its kind ever conducted in the state, with local dermatologists in 30 cities and 54 locations contributing their time and expertise to detect melanomas, other skin cancers and precancerous conditions.

Although figures are still incomplete, reports from participating sites indicate 11,127 men and women participated in the screening program. Early reports show 59 cases of melanoma, a serious form of skin cancer that can be lethal, were detected.

"We're very pleased by the tremendous response to this screening program," said William M. Ramsdell, M.D., Austin, chairman of the 1989 Texas Skin Cancer/Melanoma Project. "We hope the screenings, in conjunction with our ongoing educational and awareness campaigns, will help alert Texas to steps they can take to detect skin cancer and treat it early and effectively. Our long-term goal, of course, is prevention."

According to preliminary reports, 1,095 screening participants were referred to physicians for additional follow-up, including 754 for suspected cases of basal cell carcinoma, the most common skin cancer, and 117 for squamous cell carcinoma, another skin cancer. The locations attracting the most screening participants were Dallas (3,449), Houston (1,918), Lubbock (1,119), Fort Worth (862), Austin (536) and San Antonio (509).

In addition to the free screenings held statewide May 20, the project includes an ongoing communications and educational campaign throughout the summer.

Public and professional education outreach programs, sponsored by local American Cancer Society units and enlisting the cooperation of the Texas State Association of Occupational Health Nurses, as well as other groups, will continue during the next few months, Ramsdell said. A communications campaign centered on the theme "Don't Get Burned" also will receive additional summer exposure.

Billboards, print ads, and television public service announcements developed for the American Cancer Society as a public service by The Phillips Agency of Fort Worth are included in the campaign to promote awareness of skin cancer prevention, risk factors, early detection and warning signals. Materials carry messages like: "Skin Cancer Can Make A Mountain Out of a Molehill," "Working on a Killer Tan?," "Red Necks Can Be Hazardous to Your Health" and "What the Sun Can Do to Your Child is Enough to Make You See Red."

"The goal of this project is to increase public awareness about skin cancer prevention and, as a result, motivate individuals to change their behavior in the interest of skin cancer prevention," Ramsdell said. "This is critically important in 'Sunbelt' states like Texas, where exposure to the sun is frequent and long-term," he added.

"Some 500,000 new cases of skin cancer will be diagnosed in the United States this year, and a fair share of those will be diagnosed in Texas," he said. "That incidence has been increasing at the rate of three to five percent each year."

"Most alarming, though, is the increased incidence of malignant melanoma," Ramsdell said. "Cases of malignant melanoma, a serious form of cancer, have increased 1,000 percent since the 1930s." The American Cancer Society estimates skin cancer will kill 8,200 Americans this year, 6,000 of those deaths attributable to malignant melanoma.

According to the American Cancer Society and the Texas Dermatological Society, the increasing incidence of cancer could be altered if individuals follow a few simple guidelines for reducing their risk of skin cancer. For example, Texans should:

-Use a sunscreen with a sun protection factor (SPF) of at least 15 during all outdoor activities, and avoid sunburn altogether.

-Avoid direct exposure to the sun between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., by staying inside or by wearing a hat and protective clothing.

-Avoid tanning salons altogether because they provide intense exposure to harmful ultraviolet rays.

Public knowledge is an important factor in the prevention and in the early detection of skin cancer, Ramsdell said.

"Individuals can do a lot to decrease their own risk of ever developing skin cancer," he said. "And, like many other forms of cancer, should a skin cancer develop, it is more easily treated and highly curable if it is found and examined by a doctor at an early stage of its development."

"It is critically important for Texans to know that the consequences of a skin cancer can be quite serious, especially if the cancer is a melanoma, the deadliest form of skin cancer," Ramsdell said.

More than 100 businesses throughout the state have requested American Cancer Society skin cancer materials through members of the Texas State Association of Occupational Health Nurses. The American Cancer Society also is adapting curriculum materials promoting skin cancer prevention for school children. These materials will be derived from the "Slip, Slop, Slap" campaign originally used in Australia. In addition, the Society has developed a Skin Cancer Program training manual to use in teaching health professionals how to conduct educational programs for the public.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: Please help answer a question that has prompted many arguments. When is drinking alcohol a problem? My husband is 35 and in good health, but he consumes six to eight beers daily during the week and more on weekends. He feels because his "tolerance is high" and he doesn't "feel" affected, there is no problem. I strongly disagree. Please shed some light on the short- and long-term effects.

DEAR READER: The use of alcohol is our most widespread drug problem. While many people enjoy the feeling when they have a drink, that feeling is a drug effect. Actually, alcohol is a nervous system depressant, much like an anesthetic. The temporary effects are much like the temporary effects of an anesthetic, which in sufficient quantity can result in loss of consciousness.

The long-term effects are devastating, including causing shrinking of the brain and early senility. Alcohol has a toxic effect on the peripheral nerves, the skeletal muscles and the heart muscle. Most people know about liver damage, but they are not aware of the total effects of alcohol on the body, including the digestive system and even the sexual system. Alcohol decreases active testosterone in men and inhibits the formation of testosterone.

Alcohol often disturbs a person's quality sleep, which is one reason a person may feel bad the next day after the night before.

Drinking as much alcohol as you say your husband does is enough to cause high blood pressure. Even regular use of modest amounts of alcohol significantly increases the risk of having a hemorrhage in the brain causing a stroke. Heavy drinkers are five times as likely to have a hemorrhage stroke as non-drinkers.

Your husband has a problem both in terms of daily drinking and in the amount. I'm sending you Special Report 84, Understanding Alcohol and Its Effects, which you should have him read so he will appreciate how serious his problem is. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/84, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Contact one of the local organizations that deal with alcohol abuse to see what you can accomplish locally, which may include Alcoholics Anonymous, for help in persuading your husband to kick his drug habit.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband and I—ages 77 and 84 respectively—are careful not to have too much bed rest, although I have had rheumatoid arthritis for 10 years and need to lie down for an hour each morning and afternoon when possible. One thing puzzles us, your reference to "compression of the back of the thighs." No one seems to be able to explain this and we are afraid we might be doing it without realizing it. Can you explain further?

DEAR READER: When you are seated, you are sitting on your buttocks and thighs. The seat of the chair commonly reaches about halfway to the bend of the knees. In some chairs, the seat is such that the front edge of the seat presses on the back of the thighs. That happens when the front edge is turned up and the seat is higher than it should be for you.

The ideal seat is tilted so the front edge is lower than the back edge and the whole seat is low enough that when your feet are resting on the floor the back of the thighs do not press on the front edge of the seat.

Pressure with the edge of the seat compresses the deep veins in the thighs. That can prevent the blood in the veins from flowing up toward the heart and may cause a clot in the veins. As these comments suggest, chairs should be built to the individual's size. One chair does not fit all.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Abundant Life

BY BOB WEAR
We Reap As We Sow

Much of what we read and hear indicates that people long for the good fruits of right thinking and right behavior in their personal lives and in the national life, too. There is, however, a strange incongruity in much of obvious personal and social behavior. There is a common desire to be happy, stable people, but, according to what we hear and read, much of human action goes into endeavors which produce unhappiness and instability. It is inevitable, sowing bad seed produces a bad harvest.

Ignoring the basic law of "sowing and reaping" can be our undoing. We may try to cheat, but there is no way to get by with this. We may ignore the law, but it works just the same. It may be that some prefer to call this the law of "cause and effect." If this is one's choice, the cause is the sowing and the effect is the reaping. The more we permit ourselves to be aware of this law, the greater our respect is for it, the better we will be able to manage our personal life.

One of the difficulties we may have with the law of "sowing and reaping" is in the fact that the "reaping" does not always immediately follow the "sowing". Therefore, we must be wise enough to let our actions, including our words, for the present, which is the sowing time, be the best they can be. Somewhere along the way, the harvest will begin to appear, and it is going to be pleasing or displeasing, according to the sowing we have done.

A choice must be made. We can assume that the law will not work and go about our living experience with this view. It may even seem that we are getting by, but the facts of life say otherwise. If we, in a wholesome way, recognize the truth of the law and do the best we can to work with it, we will soon know that we have made the wise choice.

Our personal success, as a human being, will be determined by how well we have cooperated with the law of "sowing and reaping."
