Poetry will spice up Friday events

It was the writer who created the romantic image of the West, but it was the cowboy who lived it. The Cowboy Poetry Roundup, to be held Friday at 5:30 p.m., will wrap the cowboy and the writer into one entertaining package.

The roundup will be held prior to the Friday evening performance of the All Girl Rodeo at The Barn, the arena formerly known as the Cowboy Country Club, northwest of Hereford.

Also planned Friday is a beef

JAKE HOLSTER

fajita cookoff, sponsored by Hereford CattleWomen.

All seven of the poets participating in the roundup have known what it means to live in the saddle. Spectators at the roundup will be treated to presentations in song and verse by these featured poets.

Jake Holster has been a cowboy since he was old enough to sit a horse and a poet since he could write his first sentences. Holster learned how to be a cowboy in the Red River country of North Texas where he was educated in riding, roping and bronc breaking while he was still in elementary school.

The cowboy and poet is also an artist who painted his first oil painting at the age of ten with left over house paint.

In the 1960s Holster and his family moved to the Panhandle where he opened a livestock feed brokerage company. The Amarillo man continues to operate that company today.

Holster refers to himself as a poet, painter and sometimes hay seller.

As a poet, Buck Ramsey has continued to celebrate the western life he loves even after a mishap robbed him of his life as a cowhand.

In an incident which Ramsey describes as "an altercation with a horse bigger than me," the man was left confined to a wheelchair.

Ramsey grew up around cowboys on the Texas High Plains in ranch country north of the Canadian River. Before his accident, he rode in rodeos, broke and trained horses and worked as a rough-stock rider.

JERRY NINE

Jerry Nine so loves poetry that even the short autobiography he provided for publicity is put to rhyme and meter. He grew up on a farm near Slapout in the eastern Oklahoma Panhandle and began his early education in a one-room school house.

After attending college at Oklahoma State University and Northwestern Oklahoma State University in Alva, Okla., Nine returned to farming and ranching. Through it all he has remained a cowboy and poet.

At the close of his autobiography Nine displays an acute sense of humor as he writes:

"On my place I run yearlings--so no bulls should you see.

"But in this book the bull seems to run free."

BUSTER AND SHERYL MCLAURY

The poetry of Buster and Sheryl McLaury presents life on the range from two separate viewpoints. Buster writes from the standpoint of a cowboy, and Sheryl expresses the views of a cowboy's wife.

The McLaury's work with the JA Ranch in Palo Duro Canyon.

MELVIN WHIPPLE

Not many of the pen riders at Sugarland Feed Yards south of town have a published book to their credit. Melvin Whipple is an exception.

Whipple's book, "Echoes of the Past," is a fine example of poetry about cowboys by a cowboy. A review by Mary Kate Tripp, books editor for the Amarillo News-Globe, said:

"Melvin Whipple doesn't know whether his cowboy poetry is bad or good. 'But,' he said, 'it's mostly the truth.'"

Whipple's ability to dig down to the heartfelt truth is illustrated by his poem "The Cowboy." He writes: "When they lay him down there'll be no one to cry.

"The county will stand the expense when he dies.

"Just an 'ol' man that died all alone.

"A cross at his head where there should be a stone.

"There's no one to care he was once a top hand.

"When astride of a horse he was a helluva man."

BETTY SOLT

Betty Solt of Roswell, N.M. will complete the list of poets participating in the Cowboy Poetry Roundup.

Ms. Solt has been around cowboy and poetry all of her life, and has successfully combined the two in her classes at Berrendo Middle School in Roswell.

Solt was one of the leading riders in the country during her growing-up years and was a national champion in the Intercollegiate Rodeo Association.

Schools prepare for visitors

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The Hereford Independent School District is gearing up for an important accreditation visit by representatives of the Texas Education Agency, the Hereford school board learned Tuesday night.

The board reviewed documents compiled by Marc Williamson, HISD assistant superintendent for instruction, that showed what the agency will probably be looking for when the representatives visit in October.

"We have nothing to hide," Williamson told the board. He said that the TEA team will be spending more time on individual campuses than they will in the central office, and will likely interview board members and the general public to get a general feel for how the district is performing.

"We want to be above-board and up front with them," Williamson said, "and we want everyone to be that way."

Williamson said that the only major change teachers will face during the next school year is documentation on their lesson plans of the "essential elements" gleaned from lessons.

The "essential elements" are items that TEA says must be addressed during various activities, whether they are in traditional classroom situations or in other activities.

While the essential elements have been addressed in the past, Hereford teachers have not been required to document what elements are being addressed.

"We are going to keep paperwork to a minimum on this," Williamson said. "We have tried that (paperwork that documents the essential elements) and it doesn't work. We just need to document it in the lesson plans ... We don't want to shoot ourselves in the foot by going overboard."

To help prepare for the TEA visit, representatives from the Region XVI Educational Service Center in Amarillo will hold a mock accreditation visit in September.

The board also accepted bids for bread and milk products and accepted bids for insurance policies for the school. Bids from Lone Star Agency were accepted for property, workers' compensation, bond instruments and uniforms, and school board liability, and Plains Insurance's bid for vehicle insurance was accepted.

The school system, like most other Texas businesses, has seen a dramatic rise in workers' compensation premiums over the past five years. In 1984-85, the premium was $23,353. In 1985-86, the premium went up to $37,952. In 1986-87, it rose to $63,649, and in 1987-88, the total paid was $72,785. The minimum to be paid for the 1989-90 school year, if the loss ratio doesn't exceed 15 percent, will be $83,497, and could be as high as $134,488.

The board also recognized Bera Boyd, media specialist at West Central School, as the employee of the month.

The board will hold a budget and tax rate workshop meeting on Aug. 15 at 6 p.m. If the board decides on a tax increase of more than three percent there would be a hearing on that increase on Aug. 26. The final hearing on the 1989-90 budget is tentatively set for Aug. 31.

After an executive session, the board accepted the resignations of 10 persons, including Judith Schroeder, Deanna Vargas, Ruben Vargas, Jackie Fangman, Katharyn Grace, Jaime Fernandez, Richard Rendon, Virginia Rendon and Louisa Boyce.

Persons hired by the board Tuesday included Mary Nell Israel, Margaret Ann Hamil, Lori Criss and Teela McKee.

Combest visit here underway

Congressman Larry Combest will hold a "town-hall" meeting in Hereford Thursday at 9 a.m. in the banquet room at Hereford Community Center. All interested citizens are invited to attend.

Rep. Combest, U.S. representative for the 19th District, has scheduled two other meetings in Hereford. He will tour Arrowhead Mills this afternoon at 3 p.m. and will have a breakfast meeting with city and county officials Thursday morning at the Caisson House Restaurant.

The visits in Hereford are part of a two-week district work trip for the Republican congressman from Lubbock. He has six town-hall meetings, two news conferences, an agricultural field hearing, meetings with several civic groups and tours of several industries during the 11-day swing through the district.

Among the subjects to be discussed at the news conferences and at town-hall meetings are several major pieces of legislation in Congress--including the savings and loan bill, catastrophic health care and the 1989 agriculture disaster relief legislation.

Rep. Combest was in Muleshoe Tuesday and held a field hearing at the Texas Tech University Health Science Center auditorium in Amarillo this morning. Combest continues his district tour Thursday with stops at Dimmitt and Farwell.

Grandmother keeping track of space shuttle

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

As Hereford residents look to the sky today, somebody may just be looking back. If it weren't for the hundreds of miles between them, the two people might even recognize each other.

One member of the five-man crew currently in orbit above the earth on the space shuttle Columbia is the grandson-in-law of a Hereford woman.

Ada Hollabaugh of Hereford is tracking the current shuttle mission with special interest as her granddaughter's husband, Navy Commander Richard Richards, makes his first space flight. Richards' initial space mission was delayed, as was the entire shuttle program, after the ill-fated flight of the Challenger in 1986. Seven astronauts died during the disastrous launch of that craft.

Cmdr. Richards' wife, Lois Jane, was born in Hereford. She grew up in Amarillo and later attended the University of Oklahoma where she met and married the future astronaut.

Mrs. Hollabaugh's desire to keep up with her grandson-in-law's space adventure has been somewhat thwarted because of the secret nature of the Columbia's mission. Officials have declared much of the information about the flight classified because of its military nature.

Columbia has deployed a 20,600-pound spy satellite intended to gather photographic and electronic images from the Soviet Union, China, the Middle East and other areas of military interest, and is also deploying a device thought to be connected with the "Star Wars" defense system.

Mission's security relative

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - The Soviets were listening and journalists had reported for weeks on Columbia's payload, so why did military and NASA officials go to the trouble of keeping the launch time and other details secret?

"By being inexact about the launch time, it complicates their ability to track," Lt. Col. Ron Rand, Air Force spokesman, said of the Soviets. "They may or may not listen in, but we're going to do everything we can to keep the payload anonymous."

But scientists who attended Tuesday's launch of the Defense Department's fourth shuttle mission said the military shroud won't stop the Soviets from finding out all about the reconnaissance satellite Columbia and its five astronauts are believed to be launching.

"There's no reason I can think of for the secrecy," said John Pike, a space analyst with the Federation of American Scientists. "In principle, they could run this countdown like they run every countdown - maybe this way it's more fun for them."

The Soviets will shoot pictures of the satellite even before the device begins functioning, said Pike. Soviet cameras attached to a telescope can give a resolution as small as one foot.

"If they launch the satellite this morning, the Soviets will certainly know what it looks like by tonight," he said Tuesday.

NASA lifted its news blackout only briefly, announcing the launch time nine minutes before blastoff and reporting a trouble-free ascent into orbit shortly afterward.

Nevertheless, a Soviet trawler bristling with antennas monitored the launch from less than 50 miles off Cape Canaveral. Reporters - and probably the Soviets - listened in on National Aeronautics and Space Administration's internal communications channel.

Meese associate convicted of racketeering

NEW YORK (AP) - A friend of ex-U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III's said he was guilty only of "being in the wrong place and the wrong time" after his conviction on fraud and racketeering charges in the Wedtech case.

E. Robert Wallach, a San Francisco lawyer, was convicted Tuesday of illegally receiving $425,000 from Wedtech to influence Meese and other government officials in the company's bid for government contracts.

A jury acquitted Wallach, 55, of a second racketeering conspiracy charge stemming from another $100,000 he was accused of taking from the company.

The three-month trial in Manhattan federal court was the sixth to result from the scandal at Wedtech, a defense contractor that closed after allegations of illegal activity were made public.

After the verdict, Wallach said he was a victim of "prosecutorial contortions of the facts" and would appeal.

"I am guilty of nothing but being in the wrong place and the wrong time," he said.

Two co-defendants, one of whom also was linked to Meese, were convicted of racketeering, racketeering conspiracy and fraud.

Meese, who never was charged in the Wedtech scandal, testified that Wallach had never asked him to do anything improper for Wedtech.

Wallach defended Meese, telling reporters: "Nothing that happened here casts a single aspersion on that man."

The former attorney general was en route to West Point, N.Y., Tuesday night to give a speech at the U.S. Military Academy and was unavailable for comment.

Wedtech, once a small machine shop in the Bronx, grew into a $100 million government contractor through a federal program that set aside contracts for minority-controlled companies. Evidence at earlier trials showed that Wedtech continued to get the no-bid contracts through bribe schemes even after it ceased to be a minority-owned company.

The announcement of the verdict was interrupted for about 20 minutes when the mother of one of the defendants, R. Kent London, was overcome with emotion and had trouble breathing. Oxygen was brought to the courtroom for the woman, who lawyers said has had two heart attacks previously.

Wallach also was convicted of one charge of conspiracy to defraud the government and two fraud charges stemming from the payments.

He was acquitted of conspiring with W. Franklyn Chinn and London to defraud Wedtech of $100,000 by covering up the payment to Wallach. Chinn, Meese's former financial adviser, and London, a business associate of Chinn, were convicted of that charge, among others.

Wallach faces up to 45 years in prison. Chinn and London could get up to 40 years on their two racketeering convictions and lesser sentences on the other charges.

All three men also face fines and forfeitures when they are sentenced Oct. 16.

Gas prices go down

Gasoline prices have taken a rather steep drop in the past few days in Hereford with this and several other outlets dropping the price for regular and unleaded gasoline to 99.9 cents per gallon. Gas prices had been well over $1 for several weeks following the incident with the Exxon Valdez tanker in Alaska.

Hundreds pray for Rep. Leland

HOUSTON (AP) - Hundreds of people gathered in a prayer vigil on behalf of U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland and 13 others aboard a plane that disappeared during a trip to an African refugee camp, expressing hopes that the search continuing today will offer news of their safety.

"Tonight we're not here to have a funeral, and we're not here to think pessimistic thoughts," the Rev. William A. Lawson told about 300 people who gathered Tuesday night at central Houston's Wheeler Avenue Baptist Church.

"All of us share the same hope, all of us need the same God to help us, and there is nothing we can do right now except to appeal to one who is greater than our State Department, greater than our military and greater than the White House," Lawson said.

"We have to go to one who can take care of things when they go beyond our resources."

The hastily arranged vigil, inspired by a call from Houston

City Councilman Rodney Ellis after he heard during a trip to Washington that Leland's plane was missing, drew numerous politicians from the local, state and national levels.

A vigil also was held earlier Tuesday in Washington, D.C.

Alice Rains, mother of the 44-year-old Democrat, has repeatedly expressed optimism since Leland's disappearance, but she avoided reporters during the Tuesday night service and wiped away tears.

The congressman's wife, Alison, now several weeks pregnant, did not attend.

"This came about just because people are concerned for his welfare," said Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire, who arrived from an out-of-town trip and went directly to the service.

LOSING WATER

GRAND CANARY, Canary Islands (AP) - Depletion of fresh water is the price islands pay for being popular resorts.

To increase supply, some islands, such as this one, are using desalination to tap the waters around them.

Grand Canary is located in the Atlantic Ocean off the coast of North Africa. While it enjoys abundant rainfall, tourism, the island's life blood, can severely tax the available fresh water supply.

When water demand began to outstrip supply several years ago, the local utility responsible for distributing water had Ionics Inc., of Watertown, Mass., install a desalination plant to purify brackish surface and ground water.

The word "canopy" comes from the Greek word konops meaning "gnat." The story goes the fishermen of ancient Egypt would sleep undisturbed by gnats by sleeping under canopies of fishing nets.

Loyal Baptist Women meet

The general meeting of the Loyal Baptist Women of First Baptist Church met Wednesday morning in Kinsey Parlor for a program and coffee.

Bonnie Sublett, president, conducted the business meeting. She asked for prayers for those with special needs. Ella Oglesby led the prayer. A report on R.A. camp was given and Sublett also mentioned that leadership training would be held Aug. 28-29 at Pleasant Valley Baptist Church in Amarillo.

Mission action director, Costaline Lee, stated that the King's Manor birthday party will be at 6:30 p.m. Thursday. She also discussed the annual project "Cup of Cold Water" at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo Sept. 17-23. Donations were taken for Bibles for Seamen.

The mission study program, "Southern Baptists-Who Are We?" was led by Clovis Seago. She told of the services in First Baptist Church of Charleston, S.C. She was assisted by Marie Stringer, Helen Eades and Frances Crume. Each lady portrayed a member of the congregation of this old church and told what this meant in their lives.

Lillie Stagner presented the calendar of prayer for missionaries.

Opal Roberson and Louise Kinsey were hostesses to members: Crume, Stringer, Leona Sowell, Lolita Vinson, Vernis Parsons, Gladys Miller, Donnie Owen, Thelma Auten, Margaret Young, Leatrus Clark, Etoile Manning, Ella Oglesby, Jennie Terrell, Blanche Moseley, Eades, Lucy Kirksey, Stagner, Ella Caudle, Alice Christman, Sublett, Lee, Seago, Bea Hutson, Grace Covington and Mildred Drake.

Cowboys corner (Baylor) Bear market

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - The "Baylor Connection" lives on in the Dallas Cowboys' training camp.

Fullback Broderick Sargent, who played on a Baylor University football team that also included current Cowboys Robert Williams and Ron Francis, is listed as the No. 1 fullback going into Sunday's exhibition opener against the San Diego Chargers.

Last season, Williams was one of Dallas' most pleasant surprises in an otherwise dreary, 3-13 year.

"At one point, Sargent had dropped one pass the entire training camp," Cowboys head coach Jimmy Johnson said. "He's had the best stats of anyone as far as catching the ball."

"He's blocked well, caught it well, and he's a power runner. Right now he's the frontrunner."

Sargent, who played high school football at Waxahachie, just 35 miles south of Dallas, took advantage of a mediocre start by incumbent starter Timmy Newsome and second-round draft pick Daryl Johnston.

The coaching staff may have elevated Sargent to the first team as a motivational tool on Newsome and Johnston, but Sargent wants to keep the job.

"I've worked very hard," Sargent said. "I knew they needed help there (at fullback) when I came in. But I was just hoping to make the team. Now, who knows?"

Sargent played for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1986 and 1987, then was cut before last season. He signed with Dallas as a free agent and spent last off-season working on his conditioning.

The Cowboys' two other Baylor products have been friends since they met at a high school track meet.

In college, Williams backed up Francis at running back before Francis went on to become the Southwest Conference defensive player of the year in 1985.

This summer, they're roommates and friendly rivals for the starting job at right cornerback, where Williams currently holds the edge.

"It's just good competition," Williams said. "No hard feelings. We'll keep being friends, no matter what happens. And whoever starts, the other one is going to play a lot on the nickel defense."

Francis, a native of LaMarque, entered training camp last season with a lock on the job but dislocated a shoulder during an intrasquad game. Williams, who is from Galveston, capitalized on his friend's misfortune and started all but two games at right corner last season.

Francis echoes Williams' feelings on their situation.

"We both realize it's a job, and we just happened to be competing for the same spot," Francis said. "There's no animosity. Actually I think it's better to be competing against a friend. We can help each other without worrying."

Williams has taken a roundabout route to his current status. Originally signed by the Washington Redskins in 1986 as a free agent wide receiver, he was released by the Redskins in camp and signed with the Cowboys as a cornerback project in the spring of 1987.

Dallas also released Williams before the 1987 season, and Williams planned on becoming a substitute teacher in the Dallas suburb of Garland. However, the Cowboys re-signed Williams during the players' strike.

Francis arrived in Dallas with considerably more fanfare as the Cowboys' No. 2 pick in the 1987 draft. He became the first Cowboys' rookie in six seasons to open the season as a starter and returned his first NFL interception 18 yards for a touchdown against the New England Patriots.

But Francis' injury and Williams' progress in his transition from offense to defense resulted in Williams' status as the 1988 starter.

"Right now, they're very close," said Cowboys defensive backfield coach Dick Nolan. "And if something happened to Williams, Francis could walk in and play as good as any of them. If something happened to one of the safeties, Francis could play there, too."

Williams has the superior speed. Francis is the more physical player. "Both have great quickness and catch-up speed," Nolan said. "They both can cover. It's good that they're friends. They support each other and depend on each other. That's a good situation to have."

Hogs have new look to show SWC

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - About eight to 10 times a game, Arkansas quarterback Quinn Grovey will hand the ball to the tailback and get out of the way.

It's part of the Razorbacks' new-look offense.

During the Razorbacks' 10-2 Southwest Conference championship season in 1988, Grovey was involved in play after play, making decisions on the option out of the wishbone. This year, Arkansas will be in the multiple I-formation under new offensive coordinator Jack Crowe.

But Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield is quick to point out that the Razorbacks will use fullbacks Barry Foster and JuJu Harshaw inside and Grovey on the corner.

E.D. Jackson, redshirted last year, has emerged as the starter at tailback. He weighed 191 and bench pressed 265 when he arrived a year ago; now he weighs 205 and bench presses 300.

"Everybody is expecting a lot out of him, but he's got his head screwed on correctly," Hatfield said.

Foster, who led Arkansas with 660 yards rushing and 11 touchdowns last year, can play fullback or tailback.

Mix in wide receivers Tim Horton, who catches anything near him, tight end Billy Winston, an All-SWC choice last year, and speedy Derek Russell and Hatfield admits that Arkansas has lots of weapons.

"The most I've ever been around," he said. "They all have the ability to make a big play at any time."

The problem, Hatfield said, is that the defense might give up some big plays. Only three starters return from the defense that played a major role in Arkansas' first Cotton Bowl trip in 13 years.

Arkansas attempted only 180 passes last year - lowest in the league by far - but Hatfield won't commit to any numbers in 1989.

"We have to be more balanced, we just have to be more effective throwing," he said.

Arkansas averaged 389 yards per game last year, but only 142 passing. Grovey was the top-rated passer in the league, completing 62 of 98 with only three interceptions.

"Throwing is all we have done all spring with him," Hatfield said.

For one thing, his arm is stronger. "He's worked hard to be rounded out to be a complete quarterback," Hatfield said. "But he's still not John Elway."

He said he had told Russell that the time had come for him to emerge as a complete receiver. "There is a difference in just being a nice, fast guy," he said. "I told him that when we get that ball close, you're going to catch it. You have a hard time wasting a down when you don't have confidence."

Arkansas was 7-0 in the SWC last year, the first time a team has been unbeaten in the conference since 1983. Texas A&M and Arkansas are the favorites this year. Baylor, Texas and Houston will have a lot to say about the league race, Hatfield said.

"The key areas for us are safety, inside linebacker and the whole field goal group," he said.

Gone is safety Steve Atwater, who signed a $2 million contract as the first-round draft choice of the Denver Broncos. Gone are linebackers Reggie Hall and LaSalle Harper. Also gone is Kendall Trainor, who made 24 field goals in a row. His snapper and holder are also gone.

Oilers' Seale back in doghouse

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) - Eugene Seale must enjoy working himself out of Houston Oilers coach Jerry Glanville's doghouse because that's where Seale has started the last two seasons.

Seale, a popular special teams player starting his third season, evoked Glanville's ire last season for failing to come to the Oilers' Operation Headstart, a voluntary preseason workout program.

Seale made it to Headstart this season but he later showed up for training camp 40 pounds overweight.

"I'm still hustling, I'm still on the team and I'm still contributing,"

Seale said in defense of his 270-plus bulk. "I did come to the off-season program whereas last year I didn't."

Seale brought too much of himself to Operation Headstart this year. Glanville wants Seale to play at 240 pounds this year.

The extra pounds are costing Seale in fines until he reduces, but there have been setbacks.

"We got him on a special diet and we caught him eating in his car," Glanville said. "He just loves food, he loves potato chips."

Seale, a tough performer on the Oilers, "Hit the Beach" special teams, is a former replacement player who came to camp this year expecting to compete for a starting position.

"That was 40 pounds ago," Glanville said. "We all have pluses and minuses. I still hope he brings those pluses, all those good things he did for the football team."

Seale overcame his slow start last season and became one of the most feared members of the special teams.

He led the special teams with 19 tackles and blocked two punts. The Oilers blocked five punts, tying an NFL season record.

Seale was the only member of the special teams to receive two army helmets as rewards for the hardest hit in a winning cause.

Special teams coach Richard Smith came up with the idea because he wanted his players to have the mentality of a military attack group.

Seale earned one of his helmets in a 41-17 victory over Washington when he literally knocked out Redskins return specialist Derrick Shepard on a kickoff return.

Seale is in the final year of his contract and wants to have an outstanding season to use as a bargaining chip.

But first there is the battle of the weight, a subject Seale already is tired of discussing.

"I'm a step slow and everybody wants to say it's the weight," Seale said. "I'm going to say I didn't work out the way I was supposed to in the off-season."

Why? "I deserved something after the season was over, what do you think?" Seale said.

Are you tired of talking about your weight?

"Yeah, can't you tell?"

Seale enjoys talking more about the possibility of earning a starting spot. He was an inside linebacker in some alignments last season.

But even he can't stop talking about his weight.

"I'm fired up about it but my major concern is to get this weight off," Seale said. "Once I do that, then I can take care of business."

Glanville hopes Seale's love of money is enough to get the weight off.

"He does love money, but he may love potato chips more than money," Glanville said.

Crockett out for year

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Dallas Cowboys rookie linebacker Willis Crockett was lost for the season when he suffered a torn ligament in the left knee during a drill rushing the passer.

Crockett, who played college football at Georgia Tech, reported to camp late after a contract dispute and injured his right knee early in drills. He then sat out a week. His latest injury occurred Monday during his first day back on the practice field, team officials said.

Football League draft, Crockett was scheduled to leave the Cowboys' facility today for Dallas. Dr. Robert Vandemercer is scheduled to operate on the knee Thursday at Mary Shiels Hospital.

Tuesday, after an afternoon workout with the Los Angeles Raiders at their training facility in Oxnard, Calif., head coach Jimmy Johnson said veteran linebacker Garry Cobb's left knee could have some cartilage damage.

He's been missing every other workout. We felt we could rest it, and once we got to one-a-days, he'd be all right. But there could be some cartilage damage there."

Cartilage damage generally is repaired by arthroscopic surgery. The procedure usually sidelines a player for at least 10 days.

Third-year man Ron Burton, a starter on the left side last year, has been hampered by a pulled groin. He sat out Tuesday's practice.

The team's second fifth-round pick in April's regular National

"We're going to have to look at Cobb after practice," Johnson said. "He tried to go today but couldn't."

On June 3, 1932, Lou Gerhig of the Yankees had four homers in one game and just missed a fifth.

Byron Nelson won 18 golf tournaments in 1945, a record for the PGA Tour.

Blue Jays Goose Texas in shutout

TORONTO (AP) - Mauro "Goose" Gozzo figures it will probably take a few more days for his latest performance to really sink in.

"I don't think it's hit me yet," Gozzo said following eight innings of three-hit ball in his major-league debut as the Toronto Blue Jays defeated the Texas Rangers 7-0 Tuesday night.

"I was hoping for a September call-up, but this is more than I could ever hope for," Gozzo said.

Gozzo struck out four and walked three as the Blue Jays won their third in a row to climb above the .500 mark (57-56) for the first time since a 4-3 opening-day victory over the Kansas City Royals.

"I was a little nervous," Gozzo said, "but I looked up in the stands at my dad and he gave me the thumbs up. It relaxed me. Getting an early lead didn't hurt, either."

Fred McGriff supplied the early lead, belting Bobby Witt's 3-1 offering to left for his American League-leading 30th home run of the season, giving the Blue Jays a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the second. "It's satisfying when I hit them the opposite way," said McGriff, a left-handed batter. "When I hit up the middle or to left it means I'm not pulling off the ball. I'm staying with it."

Nelson Liriano, who drove in a career-high four runs on a single and a three-run homer, put the Blue Jays up 2-0 in the bottom of the third.

Mookie Wilson started the inning with a double down the line in right and Liriano cashed him in with a solid single to center. "That's a key hit in that situation," Liriano said. "We're only up by one and it's still early. Getting a big lead helped settle him (Gozzo) down."

Liriano put the game out of reach when he hit his third home run of the season, a three-run shot in the bottom of the fourth. McGriff and Lloyd Moseby were on base via walks when they scored on Liriano's first homer since June 20 in California.

"We finally got some runs to work with," Blue Jays manager Cito Gaston said. "We've been getting outstanding starting pitching to keep us in a lot of games. It's nice to see the bats pick up some of the slack."

Liriano set the tone of the game when he turned in a fine defensive effort to snare Cecil Espy's hard grounder in the top of the first. Liriano ranged far to his right, short-hopped the ball and threw off-balance to nail the speedy Espy for the first out of the game.

"He's (Gozzo) thinking right away he's got good defense behind him. It helped him right from the start," Liriano said.

George Bell capped the scoring with an RBI single to center in the bottom of the seventh, driving in Kelly Gruber from second. Gruber had led off the inning with a double.

Witt was tagged with the loss, allowing six runs on five hits over 4 2-3 innings. He struck out five and walked three in falling to 9-10.

"He didn't pitch that badly. We just didn't give him anything to work with," Rangers manager Bobby Valentine said. "When we did hit the ball, it was usually right at someone."

In other games, Oakland beat Chicago 3-2 in 10 innings, Seattle beat California 6-4 in 10 innings, Baltimore beat Minnesota 6-1, Cleveland beat New York 3-1, Detroit beat Milwaukee 6-3 and Kansas City beat Boston 8-1.

Athletics 3, White Sox 2

Shortstop Ozzie Guillen's 10th-inning error allowed the go-ahead run to score at Comiskey Park.

Don Pall, 4-3, walked Stan Javier, Walt Weiss sacrificed and Mark McGwire hit an infield single to shortstop that snapped an 0-for-21 slump. Guillen's throw bounced into the first-base dugout as Javier scored.

Rick Honeycutt, 2-1, pitched 1 1-3 scoreless innings and Dennis Eckersley got two outs for his 22nd save.

Mariners 6, Angels 4

Jeffrey Leonard hit a three-run homer that tied the score 4-4 in the sixth inning at Anaheim Stadium and hit a go-ahead home run in the 10th.

Leonard hit his 18th home run of the season with one out in the 10th off Greg Minton, 1-3. Darnell Coles followed with his ninth home run of the year.

Jerry Reed, 4-6, pitched one hitless inning and Mike Schooler pitched the 10th for his 22nd save. Orioles 6, Twins 1

Dave Johnson scattered eight hits at Memorial Stadium in his second major-league start. Mike Devereaux drove in three runs for the Orioles with an RBI double in the third and a two-run triple in the seventh.

Johnson, 1-1, struck out three and walked four.

Rick Aguilera lost his second start for the Twins since being acquired from the New York Mets last week in the Frank Viola trade. He gave up three runs, one earned, and five hits in six innings.

Indians 3, Yankees 1

Tom Candiotti, 11-6, allowed two hits in 7 1-3 innings to win his fourth consecutive decision and Cory Snyder hit a two-run homer for the visiting Royals. Doug Jones finished the combined four-hitter for his league-leading 27th save.

Chuck Cary, 2-1, struck out a career-high 10 and allowed eight hits in eight-plus innings.

Tigers 6, Brewers 3

Jeff Robinson, 2-2, won for the first time since April 13 and Mike Heath hit a three-run homer at Tiger Stadium. Robinson, disabled twice this season, was winless in seven starts since beating Minnesota.

Guillermo Hernandez, who came off the disabled list Monday, pitched two innings for his 13th save.

Don August, 9-11, loaded the bases on two walks and a single and Bill Krueger walked pinch-hitter Gary Ward to force in a run and give Detroit a 2-1 lead. Chet Lemon's RBI groundout made it 3-1 and Heath hit his ninth home run.

Royals 8, Red Sox 1

Tom Gordon allowed four hits in seven innings to increase his record to 13-4. He struck out five and walked three before Terry Leach finished with hitless relief.

Tom Bolton, 0-2, gave up four runs and six hits in four-plus innings and walked five for the visiting Red Sox.

After Bolton walked the bases loaded in the first, Frank White's two-run single and Gary Thurman's RBI groundout gave the Royals a 3-0 lead.

Astros blast Pads, gain on Giants

By The Associated Press

A power surge by the Houston Astros is putting a charge into the National League West race.

The Astros hit four homers, each with at least one runner on base, and beat the San Diego Padres 12-3 Tuesday night. The victory, combined with Cincinnati's 10-4 romp at San Francisco, cut the Giants' lead over Houston to one game.

"It's a nice sight, especially with men on base," Houston manager Art Howe said of the Astros' second four-homer game in 10 days. "We made the most of those tonight, that's for sure."

Glenn Davis had a two-run homer in the first and a three-run shot in the fourth, both off Padres starter Don Schulze, 2-1. Ken Caminiti added a three-run homer and Craig Biggio a two-run shot as Jim Clancy rebounded from last week's disaster against Cincinnati with a seven-hitter.

Davis now has 27 homers, including three in two games, and his five RBIs matched a career high. He has hit four of his five homers against San Diego this season at Jack Murphy Stadium.

"I see the ball good here," Davis said. "I'm not doing anything differently. The ball travels well here. You don't have to hit it well to get it out."

In other NL games, it was Chicago 4, Montreal 2; New York 9, Philadelphia 0; Pittsburgh 7, St. Louis 3, and Los Angeles 10, Atlanta 2.

Clancy, 6-9, snapped a personal five-game losing streak.

In his last start Thursday at Cincinnati, Clancy gave up six hits and a walk while being charged with seven of the 14 runs the Reds scored in the first inning. Cincinnati went on to an 18-2 win.

Reds 10, Giants 4

Cincinnati matched Houston's four-homer total.

Scotti Madison, Eric Davis, Mariano Duncan and Luis Quinones homered in support of Reds starter Tom Browning, 10-10.

Rookie left-hander Russ Swan, 0-2, making his second major-league start, allowed three home runs in 1 2-3 innings, including consecutive homers by Duncan and Quinones as Cincinnati built a 5-0 lead in the second inning.

Cubs 4, Expos 2

Chicago kept sole possession of first place by handing Montreal its sixth consecutive loss and Dennis Martinez his first defeat in 12 decisions since April 21.

Mark Grace broke a 2-2 tie with a seventh-inning homer.

Martinez, 12-2, gave up only four hits, but three of them were homers. Grace hit his 10th while Jerome Walton and Ryne Sandberg also homered for Chicago.

Mike Bielecki, 12-5, won his fourth straight decision, allowing five hits in seven innings, including Mike Fitzgerald's two-run homer.

Mets 9, Phillies 0

New York blanked Philadelphia as David Cone pitched a six-hitter for his first shutout of the season and Darryl Strawberry capped a six-run seventh inning with a three-run homer.

Cone, 9-5, who won his sixth straight decision, struck out five and walked one.

Tim Lincecum's RBI double in the second off loser Bruce Ruffin, 3-6, gave the Mets all the runs they needed.

Pirates 7, Cardinals 3

Bob Walk improved his record to 3-0 against St. Louis this season and helped Pittsburgh break out of a hitting slump with an RBI double and a triple.

Walk, 9-7, allowed seven hits in eight innings and went 2-for-3 at the plate, raising his average to .240.

He took a four-hitter into the eighth, but two singles and a three-run homer by Pedro Guerrero spoiled the shutout bid.

The Pirates chased St. Louis starter Ken Hill with four runs in the fourth inning after Walk made it 1-0 with his double in the second.

Dodgers 10, Braves 2

Los Angeles routed Atlanta with a grand slam by Mike Scioscia, a three-run homer by Franklin Stubbs, two RBI singles by Eddie Murray and Orel Hershiser's seven-hitter.

Hershiser, 14-8, struck out two and walked three in his seventh complete game.

The defeat was the fourth in a row for All-Star right-hander John Smoltz, 11-10, who was tagged for five runs, five hits and four walks in four innings.

Norman tries again for first major win at PGA

HAWTHORN WOODS, III. (AP) - Greg Norman carries a sense of accomplishment, rather than disappointment, into the 71st PGA National Championship.

"I'm very proud of what I did. In the last round of the British Open, I fought my way back into it," Norman said. "Not many guys can fight their way back after being seven shots behind like I did."

"I'm disappointed with the outcome, of course, but I'm proud of what I did," Norman said.

Norman was seven shots off the lead going into the final round of the British Open, but birdied the first six holes on the way to a 64 that forced a playoff with eventual champion Mark Calcavecchia and Wayne Grady.

It is the memory of that 64 that Norman will take into the PGA, the last of the year's Big Four.

"That's the last thing I did," said Norman, who hasn't played since the British Open.

"I've still got all those great things, all those things from the 64, in my system," Norman said Tuesday after a practice round for the event that begins Thursday on the Kemper Lakes Golf Club in the northern suburbs of Chicago.

Norman, who has an unfortunate habit of losing golf's major titles in dramatic fashion, said he was very optimistic about his chances in this one.

"I like the golf course. The golf course sets up well for me," he said. "I'm playing extremely well. I'm putting well. My confidence is good. I feel very relaxed. I'm looking forward to the week."

He said the disappointment of the British Open playoff loss did not compare with some of his earlier frustrations, such as a playoff loss to Fuzzy Zoeller in the 1984 U.S. Open, Larry Mize's playoff pitch-in to win the 1987 Masters, Bob Tway's 72nd hole birdie-from-a-bunker in the 1986 PGA, Norman's last-hole bogey that ended his bid in the 1986 Masters.

"It's unfortunate that I haven't won a few more majors. But it's also fortunate that I have won one," the 1986 British Open champion said.

But doesn't it still rank as one that got away? Isn't it one he should have won? Didn't he say prior to the British Open playoff that fate owes him four majors?

Norman flashed that infectious grin and held up his right hand, the fingers spread wide.

"Now it's five," he said. He'll face essentially the same top-of-the-line field that was assembled at Troon, Scotland, last month, with one major exception.

Calcavecchia pulled out of the 150-man field on Tuesday after wife, Sheryl, gave birth to their first child, a daughter, Britney Jo, in Mesa, Ariz.

ESPN will provide live television coverage of the first two rounds Thursday and Friday and ABC will cover the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Cleavinger pulls reins here on nation's beet industry

High Plains sweetener industry pivots around giant beet processing plant in Hereford

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

How sweet it is!
The quarter-billion-dollar High Plains sweetener industry is pivoted around the giant sugar beet processing plant perched on the west edge of Hereford.

But Bill Cleavinger can tell you that the world of sugar isn't always sweet as he pulls the reins on the nation's largest sugar beet organization.

Now serving in his second term as president of the American Sugarbeet Growers Association, Cleavinger not only shoulders the day-to-day problems of weather tricks and ravenous insects on his homestead but has led a bitter battle between the industry and food processors at the world marketplace.

"Sugar beet production is a great industry for the High Plains and we must do our best to protect it," said Cleavinger, as he related to international moves by some food processors to shoot down the U.S. sugar program. "Major sweetener users would reap hundreds of millions of dollars in profits from a dismantled sugar program. Even a one-cent per pound drop in the price generates more than $22 million in additional profit for Coca-Cola alone."

Speaking from his farm home office out on the northeast edge of Deaf Smith County, Cleavinger leaves out the small-talk when he talks about sugar: "The Texas sugar industry is an annual billion-dollar business and our sugar beet industry here on the High Plains will funnel more than a quarter-billion dollars back into the area. That's how much the Panhandle's economy pot is sweetened every year by the regional sweetener industry."

Cleavinger's courtship with the sugar industry has taken him to every sugar producing country on Earth, touching nearly every continent in his world travels for the industry during the past decade. He's seen the sugar beet fields of Europe, walked through the cane fields of South America and the Far East and sat in on international chats with sugar beet reps from the Eastern Bloc.

"Hundreds of area farmers depend on sugar beets as one of their main crops," said Cleavinger, who farms

475 acres of sugar beets out northeast of Hereford. "Holly employs some 400 people and processes about 800,000 tons of beets a year at its plant in Hereford."

Cleavinger continued with an impressive list of related industries and positive factors of the High Plains sugar beet industry. "Farmers producing sugar beets employ hundreds of additional workers, the American Fructose Corp. sweetener plant at Dimmitt also provides numerous jobs and processes 8 million bushels of corn a year for use as sweetener in soft drinks and other products."

Cleavinger thumbed through a stack of domestic and international sugar facts which revealed what, where and how much in the world sugar industry. "What happens on the world market eventually affects every farmer on the High Plains," said Cleavinger as he headed out to the turnrows of a nearby sugar beet field.

The morning sun seemed to make the fields look a bit greener as the sprawling leaves pumped energy into nature's own storehouse--the giant beet root protected by soft soils until harvest time in the fall. "This is what we're talking about," said Cleavinger, as he gestured across the sugar beet fields. "Of course, we producers enjoy the fruits of our labor but the industry is much more than that."

He backed his words with facts which showed how the High Plains sweetener industry generates millions of dollars in local and state taxes. Money used to support schools and other community services. Millions more are spent at farm equipment dealers, seed and chemical supply companies and for other related goods and services.

Cleavinger estimated that the sugar beet and cane industry alone provides more than 200,000 jobs and annually pumps more than $15 billion into the national economy. More than a half-billion bushels of corn are used in sweetener production each year.

"All of this is made possible by the U.S. sugar program," Cleavinger pointed out, while showing how U.S. farmers must compete with all types of marketing practices in the world sugar market. "This government policy gives farmers with good management practices an opportunity to receive a reasonable price for their products. It also assures consumers of a stable sugar supply at a fair price. And, the program operates without costing taxpayers one dime in farm subsidies. Congress made sure of that when it approved the sugar program in 1981 and again as part of the 1985 Farm Bill.

"There are no costs to the government other than nominal costs of administering the program through the USDA."

Cleavinger summarized some of the obstacles faced by the U.S. sugar beet growers in keeping an equitable position in the world markets, pointing to a legal battle between the industry and the Sweetener Users Association, a group led by major soft drink companies.

"This group is spending millions to denounce the sugar program," said Cleavinger. "The food giants are attempting to buy public opinion through a national media campaign, and unfortunately, this blitz of misinformation is evident in the national press--and even in many of our hometown newspapers--where consumers read and hear false implications that the sugar policy is a rip-off."

The world price, Cleavinger pointed out, currently lower than the 18-cent U.S. price, is for unrefined sugar.

It is extremely volatile, as is the world sugar price varied by only about a half cent per pound in all of 1987, the dump price was highly erratic. It included a 40 percent increase the last two months of that year.

In 1980-81, when there was no U.S. program, the world sugar industry was chaotic, Cleavinger noted. That was when American supplies were unstable and retail prices jumped from 25 cents a pound to more than 55 cents a pound virtually overnight. He pointed out that the European Economic Community (EEC), long known for its highly-subsidized farm programs, has held the world price down by dumping more than 25 million tons of sugar on the world market the past seven years. This forced world prices to remain below the true cost of production of about 16 cents a pound in most sugar producing countries. The EEC cost of production is 25 to 30 cents a pound.

In an effort to get the Texas sugar story out to the consuming public, a team of sugar executives headed by Cleavinger recently visited a number of the largest Texas newspapers which published the positive side of the Texas sugar industries.

"The response was really great," said Cleavinger. "Several of the newspapers in Dallas, Fort Worth, and Houston have already run stories on our interviews and there may be more coming."

On a regional basis, the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association, which is headquartered in Hereford, represents the sugar beet producers who ship to the Hereford sugar processing plant. With Cleavinger as president, the board of directors includes Kenneth Frye of Hereford, Troy Christian of Farwell, Dave M. Thompson of Friona, Dean Wiseman of Dimmitt, Richard Friemel of Canyon, Edward J. Ramackers of Nazareth, Tony Bromman of Vega and Dick D. Fellers and James W. Witherspoon, both of Hereford. Witherspoon is also legal counsel and treasurer of TSBGA.

The High Plains farmers receive about $35 million annually from 37,000 acres of sugar beets produced in seven Texas counties and acreage in Eastern New Mexico, with the leading counties being Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer. Cleavinger estimated that the annual cash flow from the Holly plant in overhead expenses will run between $10 and 12 million a year. "The High Plains sugar beet industry is second only to the cattle industry in Deaf Smith County."

As president of the American Sugarbeet Growers Association headquartered in Washington, D.C., Cleavinger represents a nationwide production of about 1.1 million acres of sugar beets that produce about 25.2 million tons of beets per year. This figures out at an average acreage production of about 21.2 tons per acre. Other sugar beet producing regions of the nation include the Upper Midwest, Red River Valley area of North Dakota-Minnesota, portions of Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Oregon, Nebraska, Colorado and California.

The annual membership meetings of the national group are conducted at various cities across the nation, while summer board meetings are always held in strategic sugar beet growing areas.

"Two years ago we met here in Texas and brought all the national board along with the local board to show the other producers what we were doing here," said Cleavinger. "By going to different growing areas each year, we're able to get a better feel of the over-all production."

The national group has 35 national directors which are based on the number of tons of production from a given area. Approximately a million tons of sugar beets warrants a director. The annual board meeting this coming year will be conducted in Washington, D.C., since the 1985 Farm Bill is up for revamping during the 1990 session of Congress.

"We want to look at some of the Congressmen and we want them to look at us," said Cleavinger, as he spoke on many of the national and international political decisions which will be critical to the sugar beet industry. He pointed out that the first taxes ever levied on a commodity back in the beginning of this country was made on sugar. "Ever since then it has been a political football," Cleavinger said.

"Now, we have this group that would like to have an international marketing system that would supercede or circumvent United States' jurisdiction in writing U.S. farm policies," said Cleavinger. "This group wants to write a worldwide farm policy that would be binding on all countries, including the United States. We have our doubts on whether this international proposal would be to the best interests of the U.S. sugar beet growers."

Since 80 percent of the sugar in the United States is used in industrial food processing, such as cereals and soft drinks, only 20 percent is purchased by American supermarkets. Cleavinger noted that sugar consumption is the fastest form of human energy and that sugar is a carbohydrate and not fat.

The American Sugarbeet Growers Association was organized in 1982 to form an entity that would represent all regions of the nation. A national sugar beet organization was in existence prior to 1982 but it did not represent Texas, California and the Red River Valley of Minnesota.

"The American Sugarbeet Growers Association now represents every major sugar beet growing area of the nation," said Cleavinger. "The last small or regional association this past year asked for membership in American so we're now 100 percent representation of the U.S. sugar beet industry."

Cleavinger said the High Plains

BILL CLEAVINGER

... president of national organization

sugar beet growers have the best marketing advantages of any beet producing region of the nation. "We're sitting right in the middle of the Sun Belt so we have easy access to markets in such towns as Albuquerque, Oklahoma City, El Paso, Dallas, Houston and San Antonio. These cities represent a tremendous market not many miles away."

An average crop will put between $800 and $900 per acre back in the field or to the producer, with average yields on the High Plains running between 21.5 and 22 tons of sugar beets per acre. Most of the area beets contain about 14 percent sugar.

Cleavinger will have traveled more than a quarter-million miles for the sugar industry before his second term with ASGA expires next February. And all of this work for the industry is interwoven into his day-to-day farming and livestock operations, diversified between sugar beets, grain, wheat and cattle.

Born in Amarillo to E.R. "Dutch" and Hazel Cleavinger, Bill was reared among educators. Though there are no statistics to substantiate a record, his father was affiliated with several Texas Panhandle schools.

"My dad had always wanted to farm but when he got out of college it was right in the middle of the Depression (1930s) so he went to teaching school," Cleavinger recalled. "Through the years he put together enough money to make a down payment on a farm so he bought a place out here about the time I went into service."

After four years in the Air Force, Cleavinger returned to the Texas Panhandle in 1954 to blend college work at West Texas State University at Canyon with farming. "After a few years at farming, I got so far in the hole that I couldn't quit," said Cleavinger. "So, I'm still here."

It was the introduction of sugar beets to the High Plains in 1964 that created a split in Cleavinger and his father's farming partnership: "I told him I wanted to raise beets and he said that we should sit back and see how the others were going to come out. But I insisted that if we were going to get in, we needed to get in from the start."

Dutch Cleavinger made his son a proposition to buy the farm and got out of the business. Cleavinger bought his father's interests and began adding to the original farmstead at a point 8 1/2 miles southwest of Wildorado.

Cleavinger's wife, June, is also a native of the Texas Panhandle. A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jennings, she was reared on a dryland farm south of Canyon. Her father was a native of Randall County, born and reared on a farm at the present site of the Camp Don Harrington Boy Scout Camp six miles south of Amarillo.

The Cleavingers have two sons, John and David, with David taking an active part in the Cleavinger farming and operations. The older son, John, is in the cattle business and operates a fleet of livestock trucks. The Cleavingers also have a sizable stocker and yearling operation in which they utilize wheat pasture grazing and grazing of sugar beet tops in conjunction with a spread of native grassland. The headwaters of the Prairie Dog Town Fork of the Red River cuts across the north side of the Cleavinger ranch.

In tracing the family heritage Cleavinger noted that his father at one time held the John Deere dealership in Canyon and later developed a chicken cage-laying operation a short distance northwest of Canyon. Before going into farming in the 1950s his father was in

Business briefs

First National Bank of Sweetwater has purchased certain assets and assumed all the deposits of Texas Bank & Trust Company in Sweetwater from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., it was reported by Abilene Bankshares, Inc.

FNB of Sweetwater is a subsidiary of Abilene Bankshares, which has other subsidiary banks in Hereford, Eastland and Abilene.

Texas Bank & Trust was declared insolvent by the State Banking Commissioner on July 27, 1989 and FDIC was named receiver.

The assumed deposits of Texas Bank & Trust total approximately $30 million and result in FNB of Sweetwater having total deposits of approximately $95 million. Assets purchased include a limited amount of loans, the investment securities and trust assets.

The acquired assets and deposits will be consolidated into FNB of Sweetwater with continuing operations conducted from that bank.

Abilene Bankshares reported consolidated assets totaling $642 million and capitalization of $62 million at June 30, 1989. Hereford State Bank is one of its subsidiaries.

ST. LOUIS--Edward D. Jones & Co. joined an elite group when it announced its one millionth customer during festivities recently in St. Louis.

Honored on July 24-26 were Herman and David Wesse, both of Chicago, as well as the Wesses' investment representative, Jim Regnier of Evanston, Ill. The Wesses became Jones' one millionth customer June 23 when they opened a joint account and purchased 100 shares of Hershey Co. stock.

Besides Jones, only five financial-services firms serve one million investors or more. However, Jones is the only firm in the financial-services industry that serves individual investors exclusively.

"Individuals, not institutions, own 58 percent percent of the common stock in this country and annually account for $2 trillion of investment capital, providing a financial base for the entire U.S. economy," said Jones' Managing Principal John Bachmann.

Founded in 1871, Edward D. Jones & Co. is one of the largest brokerage firms in the country. Ike Stevens is the Jones representative in Hereford.

the school teaching profession for more than 20 years, having been superintendent at schools at Texline, Vega, and Stinett, and taught at White Deer, Silverton and Texas Tech and an official athletic timer at West Texas State University.

The initial land purchase by the Cleavingers took in 560 acres. Cleavinger now owns more than 2,000 acres with total operations taking in about 4,500 acres, plus some New Mexico grassland. Most of his farm land is under irrigation. A 1949 graduate of Canyon High School, Cleavinger said his class will have its 40th reunion Aug. 21 at his family farmstead.

In summarizing the High Plains sugar beet industry, Cleavinger said this was one industry that would be missing from the Hereford area today if it had not been for James W. Witherspoon and the late Henry Sears and Lee Benefield.

"The entire industry told these men that it couldn't be done, then they went out and did it," said Cleavinger, in recalling how these three men spearheaded a move that bought a $27 million sugar beet processing plant to Hereford and 27,000 acres of beets. This acreage has since increased to 37,000 acres.

"These men first had to go to Washington to get the law changed to get acreage quota for a sugar factory and when they finally got that done they had to go out and promote the factory. I happen to know personally that these men spent lots and lots of their own time and money to bring this great industry to the High Plains.

There's no way that we'll ever be able to repay them or give them enough credit for bringing the sugar beet industry to the Panhandle."

Cleavinger emphasized that there is no such thing as a "sure crop" in Texas Panhandle farming, but perhaps sugar beets truly may be the sweetest row in the field.

The Guild of Professional Toastmasters holds an election every year to determine the most boring speaker.

"My advice to any person going into farming would be not to get too deep in debt and leave plenty of room for mistakes."

CURLY HAIR

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) - The findings of researchers here may help to explain why the hair of children experiencing puberty sometimes turns from straight to curly.

The kind of hair you have, whether straight or curly, thin or thick, depends on your hair follicles. The curvier the follicle, the curlier the hair. At puberty, hormone changes may trigger the follicle to lengthen and curve. The result is curly hair.

Unusual economic plan breathes new life into one-stoplight town

ROBY, Texas (AP) - Worn by long hours and weary of watching the town shrink, Bill Brzezinski threw in the towel on his Silver Spur Cafe 18 months ago, selling off the only restaurant in this dusty west Texas hamlet.

Like the hardware store, the gas station, the grocery and so many others in so many towns in so many parts of rural America, the Silver Spur soon failed, and Brzezinski figured Roby wasn't far behind.

But today, an unusual economic development plan has begun to breathe new life into this one-stoplight town. A new retirement center has opened, and because of aggressive promotion, coveys of quail hunters now flock to Fisher County.

Even the Silver Spur is going to shine again. Brzezinski is renovating the cafe and bringing it back from the dead this fall, convinced that the hungry hunters who come from 26 states for the four-month season will help the town of 814, and its only restaurant, survive.

"Our attitude has changed," he said. "This is what has inspired me to do it again."

What's happening in Fisher County is held up across remote areas as an innovative approach to saving dying towns. Yet even here, after a handful of small successes, the future remains mostly bleak, and experts say the situation underscores just how difficult it is to revitalize rural America.

"We have slowed the departure rate but, honestly, we haven't stopped it or reversed it," said David Morris, chairman of the county's economic development commission. "All this is for naught unless we find the key to repopulating rural America."

Three years ago, Fisher County's leaders declared a crisis: If they didn't do something, the county would die. Typical of small rural towns across the country, the population had already declined 44 percent over 10 years to just 5,000. Storefronts were boarded up. People, especially the young, moved to the cities.

"We were kind of desperate - no doubt about it," said Richard Spencer, the county agriculture extension agent who brought together the local leaders.

They rounded up state and national experts on economic development and sought their advice.

They created the Fisher County Economic Development Commission, and they made one key decision: Go for all the little projects they could think of, not one big project.

"Everyone thinks that General Motors is going to come drop a factory in here or the B-2 (stealth bomber) program will drop in here. That doesn't happen, and that's the common mistake rural people make," said Morris, a specialist on developing Third World nations who retired to run a motel here.

The result has become a creative, if unconventional, model for rural economic development.

"They have less money and resources to work with, and yet after 10 years of decline, now they've got new money coming in," said David Guarino of the Texas Department of Agriculture, which has provided a grant for the quail hunting effort. "If they can do it, you can do it all over."

The commission has set out to revive this depressed cattle, cotton and oil area by promoting it as a retirement spot, drawing tourists and finding ways to keep citizens from leaving.

Two commission members bought an abandoned nursing home and helped find new owners who have refurbished it. It's now the county's only retirement center - even though 60 percent of the population is over age 55.

Realizing Fisher County had Texas' largest quail population, the commission formed a quail-hunting cooperative, which in its first year brought in 140 hunters and an estimated $100,000 of new spending.

"One hundred thousand dollars is an attention-getter in this town," said Billy Don Atkinson, a Roby-based federal agriculture official who helps run the co-op.

And in Fisher County, they'll try anything.

The commission is hoping to build a memorial garden for slain police officers and turn an abandoned electric train depot into a museum to draw tourists. They're trying to raise money and serve the large poverty-level population with a food bank and used-clothing store. They've helped open a recreational vehicle park.

The group even formed the National Domino Association and played host to a first-ever national tournament.

Not all of the ideas are working. The domino idea, while fun, hasn't produced much money and will probably be cut back. The law enforcement monument has drawn a 15-acre land donation, but has only $400 in the bank.

"Time is short; doom is just around the corner," said the Rev. Alvin Petty, the leader of the commission's tourism task force. "We've only got three or four more years to achieve a great deal because we're losing 8 percent of our population a year."

Commission officials say they now know that their small-scale endeavors are simply setting the stage for necessary larger development. "We have prepared the table, but we haven't gotten to the meat and potatoes," Morris said.

And help will have to come from Washington, he believes, in the form of a modern Homestead Act that would once again encourage people to return to rural areas.

"Until we get that kind of public policy, the rest of this is Mickey Mouse. If they don't put that structure in place, all of rural America will be blowing in the wind."

EDITOR'S NOTE - Scott McCartney is the AP Southwest regional reporter, based in Dallas.

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) - No sooner had Michael J. Fox finished playing a son on the last episode of the sitcom "Family Ties" than he became a father in real life.

"The last two months have been just wild," he told US magazine on the set of "Back to the Future, Part II" after the May 30 birth of Sam Michael Fox.

After Fox completes work on Brian DePalma's Vietnam drama, "Casualties of War," and several other projects, he'll take a break with his son and his wife, actress Tracy Pollan, at their 100-acre property in South Woodstock, Vt.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Milton Berle and Red Buttons led mourners during an often humorous memorial service for Jim Backus, who died last month.

"We thank the good Lord for sending Jim Backus to us," Berle told about 30 people who gathered for the Directors Guild of America service Wednesday.

The comedian added: "When Jim was born, there was a star in the East - me."

Backus, the voice of the myopic Mr. Magoo cartoon character and star of the old "Gilligan's Island" TV series, died July 3 after a lengthy bout with pneumonia. He was 76.

Buttons called Backus a "quiet, simple, unassuming craftsman," adding: "He wore the mantle of celebrity with charm and grace."

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Pianist Van Cliburn finally is getting a platinum record for his album that became the first classical LP to sell a million.

RCA records Wednesday presented Cliburn with the award for his 1958 recording of Tchaikovsky's "Piano Concerto No. 1" with conductor Kiril Kondrashin and the RCA Symphony.

According to the Guinness Book of World Records, Cliburn's album passed 2 million in sales in 1967 and 2.5 million copies in 1970; sales reached 1 million by 1961.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have plantar fasciitis and have tried everything. Orthotics help a lot but have not alleviated the pain entirely. I am on Naprosyn, 375 mg three times a day, and it helps, but it bothers my stomach. I have tried staying off my feet as much as possible, but I am a nurse so I need to be mobile. I am 62 years old, weigh 176 pounds and am 5 feet 4 inches.

DEAR READER: Plantar fasciitis is an inflammation of the thick sheet of connective tissue (fascia) along the bottom of the foot. There may be tears in the fascia. The cause of the inflammation is not clear. Being overweight doesn't help, but it involves more than that. It can progress to result in degeneration of the sheet of fascia and to form heel spurs. While the pain may be in front of the heel, it can be anywhere from the ball of the foot to the heel.

Arch supports along with cushioning from orthotics does help. Soak your feet for 15 to 20 minutes each day before going to work and when you can. If the pain continues, you should see an orthopedic surgeon or a podiatrist who manages runner's problems. Injections of cortisone into the area of inflammation is advocated by some. To prevent progression, you may need to curtail your activities and rest your feet.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Become one of the first in our community to own a copy of this magnificent atlas.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have plantar fasciitis and have tried everything. Orthotics help a lot but have not alleviated the pain entirely. I am on Naprosyn, 375 mg three times a day, and it helps, but it bothers my stomach. I have tried staying off my feet as much as possible, but I am a nurse so I need to be mobile. I am 62 years old, weigh 176 pounds and am 5 feet 4 inches.

DEAR READER: Plantar fasciitis is an inflammation of the thick sheet of connective tissue (fascia) along the bottom of the foot. There may be tears in the fascia. The cause of the inflammation is not clear. Being overweight doesn't help, but it involves more than that. It can progress to result in degeneration of the sheet of fascia and to form heel spurs. While the pain may be in front of the heel, it can be anywhere from the ball of the foot to the heel.

Arch supports along with cushioning from orthotics does help. Soak your feet for 15 to 20 minutes each day before going to work and when you can. If the pain continues, you should see an orthopedic surgeon or a podiatrist who manages runner's problems. Injections of cortisone into the area of inflammation is advocated by some. To prevent progression, you may need to curtail your activities and rest your feet.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

This year's Jubilee of Arts chairman is Bobbie Wilson. She is being assisted by members of the Hereford Fine Arts Association.

Simple cultural practices reduce chemical controls

Home gardeners can cut down on pesticide use with a few simple changes in cultural practices that take advantage of natural controls.

"You don't have to know all the available alternatives for controlling pests without chemical pesticides," said Tom Longbrake, a horticulturalist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

One of the easiest ways to start is by selecting disease-resistant varieties for planting. When seeding direct, always use good quality, certified seed.

Other methods of control involve altering cultural practices. For example, maintaining slightly acid soil (around pH 6.5) is not only good for the vegetables, but provides a good environment for earthworms and microorganisms that help the soil.

Fertilizer that is supplemented with organic matter or compost helps assure that all trace elements are present.

"Adding organic matter feeds the soil, not just the plants," Longbrake said. "A good soil environment for all plant roots results in healthier flowers and vegetables."

Crop rotation is another natural pest control measure. If you plant related crops on the same site only once every three or four years, pest populations have trouble getting a foothold.

Water management is another cultural practice that can help control pests and disease. Plant on raised beds with furrows in between to provide good surface drainage when more than an inch of rain falls.

Placing mulch around the base of the plants will not only help conserve water, but will cut down on soil splash that can put disease in contact with the crop. However, mulches also can harbor insects when more than one inch thick.

"By watering in the morning so plants have time to dry before the cool evening, gardeners can cut down on the chance of disease," Longbrake said. "Drip irrigation prevents foliage from getting wet at all, and drip uses less water than traditional sprinkler or furrow irrigation methods," he said.

If plants do become infected or diseased, remove all damaged or affected material before the problem spreads and dispose of severely diseased plants before they contaminate the whole crop, Longbrake said. Finally, take advantage of the biological control already in the garden by learning to identify helpful insects and encouraging their growth.

"One of the best ways to learn natural control practices is to play close attention to what is going on in the garden and spot problems early," the horticulturalist said.

COMPUTER BUYING

TEANECK, N.J. (AP) - Millions of Americans say they know nothing about personal computers but research indicates many want to own one.

Computers are in a fifth of all American households now, an 11 percent rise in the last five years, says Shcp Altshuler, president of Software City.

Altshuler offers these tips for first-time computer buyers:

First, decide what you want the computer to do, now and in the future. Then order computer equipment with enough power and memory for your longtime needs. Don't be afraid to ask questions.

"Computers and software are complicated," says Altshuler. "Good dealers expect and invite technical questions."

Abundant Life

BY BOB WEAR
 A Little Extra

There are many good things to be done, things which will contribute to the well-being of the doer and to the common good. We are being told that some essential services are lagging today just because people refuse to do them.

It is true that some of these services have been downgraded; for some there is little or no financial remuneration. Often times there will be no expression of appreciation. Nevertheless, for the best of living, we must be doing our best to do the things that will help us and our fellowmen. This means that we will often be doing "a little extra", a little more than we are being paid to do, a little more than we had planned to do.

"Getting by", as a life concept is unworkable. Of course, in many instances, it seems to work, however, with this attitude, we lose so much that we cannot afford to get by without. We lose the quality of performance that is essential to the good life. We lose the essential pride of work well done. We lose our self-respect. In fact, we undermine the total life structure.

All is not lost. There are still people who will do a little extra, work a little longer, and go an extra mile. How refreshing! These are the real quality human beings. They are responsible for most of the worthwhile accomplishments in all areas of human endeavor. They are trustworthy, and provide the framework which supports our social structure. This is the spirit that we must never lose. "The greatest asset of any nation is the spirit of its people, and the greatest danger is the breakdown of that spirit--the will to win and the courage to work." Cortelyou. Work is not a curse, but one of life's greatest blessings.

A little extra by everybody who cares will make a mighty big difference on the right side of life.
