Arrest in progress

Officers from the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office are seen arresting one of two men charged Wednesday with delivery of a controlled substance.

Two face drug charges

Trinidad Murillo and Alex Mendiaz, both of Hereford, were arrested Wednesday afternoon and charged with delivery of a controlled substance (heroin).

The arrests were made as part of an investigation conducted by the 222nd District Attorney's Office, it is learned from District Investigator Vernon Hope. Officials had received a report that a drug sale was expected to take place Wednesday afternoon in a room at Deaf Smith General Hospital. After the alleged sale was completed, officers entered the room where they confiscated two "papers" of heroin. Deaf Smith County deputies followed two suspects as they left the scene of the apparent drug transaction in separate vehicles.

Murillo was pulled over by deputies off U.S. Highway 60, and Mendiaz was stopped near the intersection of Park Ave. and Ave. B. Both men were officially arrested at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine set bond for the suspects at $30,000 each. As of 11 a.m. today, both men remained in custody at the Deaf Smith County Jail.

Combest addresses concerns at meeting

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

U.S. Rep. Larry Combest (R-Lubbock) said this morning that the 1990 Farm Bill may include a provision where farmers are either completely in or completely out of farm programs in the future.

Rep. Combest addressed agriculture and several other topics during a town hall meeting at the Hereford Community Center.

Combest said the plan to have persons either all the way in the farm program or all the way out is only one of the proposals being thrown out around Washington as the House Agriculture Committee, of which Combest is a member, begins considering the 1990 Farm Bill.

If that proposal is a part of the next farm bill, it would mean that anyone who obtains a Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) loan, has Soil Conservation Service work done on their farm, or participates in any other part of the overall farm program would participate in all phases of the program.

"The years of the disaster program are quickly coming to an end," Combest added. "Federal crop insurance in some areas is fine, and in some is not so good. We want to make it as good as possible for everyone." Combest said that more required participation in the program would help make the federal crop insurance program "much more actuarially sound."

Combest said the 1990 Farm Bill will likely address more environmental issues than any previous farm legislation.

"In the 1985 Farm Bill we had conservation compliance, which I was against," Combest said. "In the next bill, we will see use of land, ground water, subsurface water (and chemicals) all addressed."

Combest said the 1990 bill could simply be a fine-tuning of the present bill, which has "generally been a successful program," Combest said. "A lot of what happens with the 1990 Farm Bill depends on what happens during the last part of this year."

The balance of trade (or as Combest put it, the imbalance of trade) was addressed at length by Combest and several members of the audience.

Combest said there were no easy answers to the problem, and pointed to several examples of high-demand consumer goods that are not available from American manufacturers.

Combest said that barriers could be thrown up in some areas, but warned that "retaliation brings retaliation."

"There may be some quick answers, but they might not be the right answers," Combest said.

Bill Cleavinger, president of the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association and the American Sugarbeet Growers Association, complained that America had freely given technology to other countries who are now using that technology to compete against the United States in several areas.

"I think we need to make consumers aware of foreign ownership, in some way," Combest said.

Cleavinger also said that some foreign countries have little or no restriction on the use of agricultural chemicals and are thus able to produce some crops more cheaply than American farmers. Combest said he was pushing for labeling of produce from other countries.

Combest also said there was a push for legislation that would raise Medicare reimbursement rates in rural areas to the same as higher, urban rates.

Combest said that many of the problems facing rural health care are directly attributable to the lower rural Medicare reimbursement, and that changes should be made as soon as possible.

Combest also said he hopes for a complete repeal of the catastrophic health insurance plan that has rankled many senior citizens.

"The folks that voted for that are now looking for cover," Combest said. "We need to repeal it, scrap it, and start back at square one. This was imposed as a surtax on all seniors, but very few will ever be able to use it."

Congressional conversation

Combest legislation would revamp LSC

Warning that Legal Services Corporation (LSC) has become a tool for political activists and special interest groups, U.S. Representative Larry Combest (R-Texas) has introduced legislation to restructure the legal aid organization as a federal agency.

The bill, H.R. 2884, would also curtail any possible political activities disguised as legal assistance and assure the agency concentrates on its original goals of providing legal aid to the needy.

Combest has introduced major restructuring legislation of LSC and has gained wide support in his effort to limit the ability of LSC grantees to involve themselves in such issues as abortion and union activity, a spokesman said. The measure will also require LSC and its various offices to cease the solicitation of clients in individual and class-action lawsuits.

"I find it particularly distressing that taxpayer money is being spent on activities which are wasteful and counter-productive to Congress' original intent of the law," Combest said. LSC was created to provide legal aid to the poor, but the organization has strayed far from its original mandate. Many of its activities in recent years have been directed to the pursuit of social and ideological goals." Combest said several of LSC's grantees have been particularly disruptive to farmers and producers. In recent years, Combest said he has been contacted by numerous individuals who have been targets of frivolous and harassing class-action lawsuits. Combest said too often these LSC Administration to keep detailed accounts of spending, as well as requiring the agency to report non-federal and public funds separate from grant monies received from the government. It also allows defendants to recover legal costs and attorneys' fees if the court action against them is deemed to be unjustified or frivolous.

Back to School

What's new for back to school? What do you need for school supplies? How do you register? When's spring break? All of the important questions you have will be answered in the Brand's "Back to School" special section. The section includes what's new for the 1989-90 school year, how Hereford is on the leading edge of teaching technology, and all of the calendars and supplies for the public schools and most of the private schools. It's all coming your way in this Sunday's Brand.

Woman dies of injuries in fire

A Hereford woman died Wednesday afternoon from burns she received in an incident Wednesday morning south of Easter.

Sherry Powers, 23, of Hereford, died at about 3:20 p.m. Wednesday in Lubbock General Hospital.

The incident occurred about three miles south of Easter just off FM 1055 on property farmed by Ronnie Lance. Lance said he was checking irrigation wells on the farm when he saw smoke coming from an abandoned house and boxcar he was using for storage.

Lance said he rushed to the scene and found the young woman outside the structure. Another person arrived on the scene at almost the same time, and Lance went to call a Dimmitt-based ambulance.

Mrs. Powers was taken to Plains Memorial Hospital in Dimmitt, then was taken by helicopter to Lubbock General. She had suffered third-degree burns over 95 percent of her body.

The structure was consumed by the fire.

The case is being investigated by the Castro County Sheriff's Office, which said there was a vehicle at the scene, and by the State Fire Marshal's Office.

Services for Mrs. Powers are pending.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says every vacation has at least two good days of weather--they day you leave and the day you get back.

Don't try to have it all. Where would you put it?

Most of us would like to get away from it all, provided it's not more than a 10-minute drive back.

Shoes and socks were issued Wednesday as football workouts got underway for Hereford High grid prospects. That's a sure sign that the start of school is just around the corner.

Another indication that school bells will soon be ringing will be the appearance Sunday of special "Back-to-School" pages in The Brand. Don't miss the back-to-school specials offered by local merchants and news articles concerning registration, school calendars and items required for students.

The Hereford Lions Club annual Summer Carnival netted $13,432, it was announced this week by club president Mark Andrews. Proceeds from the project are used by the Lions to fund worthwhile programs in the community.

No one wants to be an empty suit, so you need to get ready for prime time, make sure your stuff is wired and put it into play so you make a slam dunk before the splash.

Time changes everything, including the talk and the colloquialisms we use. We composed the above paragraph from some new terms that are not in common use, according to a newsletter some company sent our way.

If you want to show off your "candle power", you may want to use some of the terms listed in the publication:

Beltway bandit: A Washington consultant or lobbyist.

Buttons: The police.

Candle power: Intelligence.

Clark Kent: Muscular man in a big suit who wears glasses.

To cream: To select the best.

Drop dead condition: A final offer.

Dweeb: A weakling.

Elephant bag: A large briefcase, such as those carried by lawyers.

To front-load: To acquire major benefits or interest early, like most mortgages.

Gearhead: A computer enthusiast.

To get your stuff wired: To be organized.

Golden handshake: Forced retirement.

To grind someone's gears: To annoy him.

Hired gun: A spokesperson brought into an organization temporarily to solve a specific problem--a lobbyist, a specialist.

In the loop: Routinely informed.

Napkin notion: An idea brought up at an extemporaneous meeting, such as a lunch.

To nuke: To cook something in a microwave oven.

To put into play: To activate something--to introduce a new idea.

Ready for prime time: Fully trained, prepared.

Slam dunk: An overwhelming success.

Space cadet: A drug user.

To splash: To terminate something.

To be stoked: To be excited.

To take a hit: To be damaged.

Toast: Burned out, finished.

Woofers: A sarcastic person.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Aug. 10, the 222nd day of 1989. There are 143 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Aug. 10, 1846, Congress chartered the "nation's attic," the Smithsonian Institution. It was named in honor of English scientist Joseph Smithson, whose bequest of $500,000 made it possible.

On this date: In 1792, mobs in Paris attacked the palace of Louis XVI.

In 1809, Ecuador struck its first blow for independence from Spain.

In 1821, Missouri became the 24th state.

In 1874, Herbert Clark Hoover, the 31st President of the United States, was born in West Branch, Iowa.

In 1885, Leo Daft opened America's first commercially operated electric streetcar, in Baltimore.

In 1921, Franklin D. Roosevelt was stricken with polio while at his summer home on the Canadian island of Campobello.

In 1945, during World War II, Japan announced its willingness to surrender to the Allies provided the status of Emperor Hirohito remained unchanged.

In 1948, Allen Funt's "Candid Camera" made its television debut on ABC under the title "Candid Microphone," which was also the name of a radio program produced by Funt.

In 1949, the National Military Establishment was renamed the Department of Defense.

In 1969, Leno and Rosemary LaBianca were murdered in their Los Angeles home by members of Charles Manson's cult, one day after actress Sharon Tate and four other people were slain.

In 1975, television personality David Frost announced he had purchased the exclusive rights to interview former President Nixon.

In 1977, postal employee David Berkowitz was arrested in Yonkers, N.Y., accused of being "Son of Sam," the gunman whose year-long series of six murders and seven woundings terrorized New Yorkers.

Ten years ago: In an interview with non-Washington editors and news directors, President Carter repeated his opposition to a separate Palestinian state and reiterated he would not deal with the PLO as long as it refused to accept Israel's right to exist.

Five years ago: The women's 3,000-meter race at the Los Angeles Olympics ended for Mary Decker of the United States when she fell after colliding with South African-born Zola Budd. The race was won by Romanian Maricica Puica.

One year ago: President Reagan signed a measure providing $20,000 payments to Japanese-Americans who were interned during World War II, conceding that "no payment can make up for those lost years."

Today's Birthdays: Actress Rhonda Fleming is 66. Singer Jimmy Dean is 61. Singer Eddie Fisher is 61. Rock musician Ian Anderson is 42. Singer Patti Austin is 41. Actress Rosanna Arquette is 30.

Thought for Today: "There is no adequate defense, except stupidity, against the impact of a new idea." - Percy Williams Bridgeman, American scientist (1882-1961).

Food firms debate new cereal

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - General Mills Inc. says its new cereal is nothing more than a breakfast food that can reduce cholesterol, but Procter & Gamble Co. thinks it should be tested as a drug if it's going to make health claims.

P&G, which sells over-the-counter medicines, wants the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to order General Mills to pull the cereal, Benefit, off the market. It contends cereals should under the same federal testing as drugs before health benefits such as reduced cholesterol can be advertised.

General Mills disagrees. "It's a cereal that's made from grain. It's consumed like a cereal. It's no different from any other cereal that's on the marketplace that contains soluble fiber and has the ability to lower cholesterol," General Mills spokesman Craig Shulstad said Wednesday.

The FDA is reviewing Procter & Gamble's June 8 request and is expected to respond soon, said Chris Lecos, press officer for the agency.

Benefit contains oat bran, rice and psyllium, a grain grown mainly in India. The outer husk of psyllium contains soluble fiber, which General Mills says has been shown to reduce cholesterol.

According to General Mills, which is based in the Minneapolis suburb of Golden Valley, tests conducted in 1987 on men with average and above-average cholesterol levels found that Benefit reduced cholesterol levels an average of 9 percent when 2 ounces were eaten daily as part of a low-fat diet.

Benefit accounted for about two-thirds of the reduction, the company said.

The Benefit package touts the cereal's claims of reducing cholesterol, a fatty substance that can build up in inner artery walls. The deposits can narrow blood vessels, decrease the blood flow and may lead to a heart attack or stroke.

Kellogg Co. made a similar claim in 1984 when it linked consumption of All-Bran, a high-fiber cereal, with reduction of cancer risks.

The FDA could have declared the cereal a drug, forcing Kellogg to undergo lengthy procedures for drug approval. But FDA Commissioner Dr. Frank Young said such action, which could have entailed seizing All-Bran, would have been ridiculous.

Instead, the agency decided to come up with a regulation that would allow health claims on labels - a process that is still under way.

P&G - which also makes toiletries, soap, detergents and other household and food products - claims General Mills is playing by a different set of rules from drug manufacturers in being allowed to make health claims without FDA approval.

Psyllium also is an ingredient in Cincinnati-based Procter & Gamble's Metamucil, a bulk fiber laxative. P&G had asked the FDA to allow the company to make cholesterol-lowering claims for Metamucil, but the agency said more tests were needed, company spokesman Bill Dobson said.

P&G recently submitted the results of additional testing and more tests may be required, Dobson said. An earlier study found that Metamucil reduced total cholesterol about 15 percent, he said.

Dobson said it's unfair for P&G to have to substantiate its cholesterol-lowering claims for Metamucil, while General Mills can make the same claims for a food product without getting FDA approval.

General Mills, which also makes Cheerios and Wheaties cereals, began distributing Benefit in Minneapolis-St. Paul and Milwaukee in late April and early May.

The company has expanded distribution to 28 percent of the country, primarily in the Midwest, but has announced no plans on expanding marketing nationally, Shulstad said.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing about the letter saying it is time to resurrect that old-fashioned, long-discarded custom of staying together for the sake of the children.

My husband was and still is (at the age of 84) an avid golfer. He always said it was important to his business that he spend a great deal of time on the golf course. (He sold insurance.) It was a difficult and lonely life for me and the children. There were many fights and I often exploded and threatened to leave him. The children begged me not to divorce their father so I stuck it out.

Soon we will celebrate our 50th wedding anniversary. These days my husband plays golf only once or twice a week and we now have a lovely life. This is what "staying together for the kids" did for me.--Content in Boston

DEAR CONTENT: Had you written and asked, I would have told you to stay with the golf nut, but I can't give that advice to women who are in abusive and horrible relationships. Read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm sure no one cares what a 20-year-old thinks, but I must express myself about staying together for the sake of the children.

I grew up in a home where there was no respect and no love--just hate, fights and violence. Mom and Dad had been married 25 years and I have no idea why they are still together. It can't be for us kids because none of us is at home.

Our parents battled constantly. It was common to be awakened in the middle of the night by yelling and crashing dishes, lamps or whatever was handy. Dad drank. He was a miserable husband and a terrible father. All of us kids are afraid to show any emotion. We are scared to let anyone get too close. All my relationships with men are either empty and meaningless or destructive.

A day doesn't go by that we don't regret that our parents didn't split up a long time ago. If they really cared about us they would have. We know now that they stayed together because it was the easiest thing to do.--Erie, Pa.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How I wish my parents had asked your advice when I was small. I am in my late 30s. My mother stayed in a nightmarish marriage for us kids, and every one of us has suffered because of it.

All my siblings have had at least three divorces. I had a vasectomy to make sure I wouldn't bring any children into the world. For years I told people I was an orphan. This wasn't a cover-up. It was my secret desire. Living out of a cardboard box in a park would have been better, Ann. Please, don't ever change your advice on this one.--no Address Please

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I came from a dysfunctional family and paid a heavy price. I understand it all now, thanks to therapy.

Both my parents came from homes where there was abuse and alcoholism. I am well aware that this sort of thing is handed down from generation to generation. But I am determined to break the cycle.

Through therapy I have come to terms with this. I am no longer an emotional cripple. I am healthy and whole and know that I will be a good wife and a loving mother.--New Orleans

DEAR NEW ORLEANS: Everyone focused on the problem. You zeroed in on the solution. Bless you.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Older dogs need balanced nutrition, fewer calories

When Dr. Colin Burrows talks about the negative health consequences of being overweight, he typically mentions joint discomfort, tumors, breathing difficulties, and pancreatic problems.

No one is surprised, either, to hear him report that obesity is widespread-affecting up to as many as four out of every ten "older" patients seen in practices across the country.

What is surprising is that Dr. Burrows is a veterinarian, discussing his canine patients. "Obesity is the leading nutritional problem faced by our four-legged friends," Burrows notes. As a professor at University of Florida's College of Veterinary Medicine, he, like other veterinarians from around the country, is concerned for the well-being of pudgy pets.

"We often see older dogs with older, less-active owners. Both are snacking more than they should and don't get enough exercise," Burrow says.

"Since many of these pet owners are weight-conscious, they know the wisdom of feeding their dogs less. The problem, though," Dr. Burrows explains, "is that we humans feel guilty if we think our pets are hungry. It is very difficult to say 'no' to that expectant face and those big brown eyes."

Dr. Burrows is quick to point out that even his treasured Golden Retriever, aptly nicknamed "Gold," sometimes is overfed. "Like most other pet owners, my own family finds it hard to feed her less," Burrows notes.

"Happily, though, the same food technology that makes it possible for humans to enjoy the same amount of food, with fewer calories, is now being applied to dog foods. I can feed her on a reduced-calorie diet, knowing that she's getting fewer calories and all of the nutrients she needs, and she doesn't feel hungry."

According to Dr. Burrows, reduced-calorie dog foods are designed to help maintain dogs at their ideal weights. "Just as in human dieting, it's important to increase activity," he says.

"Dogs are readily adaptable and, depending on their age and breed, can participate in a wide range of activities. Many people associate exercise with running, but there are a lot of other things a dog can do to stay fit.

"Some dogs like to chase sticks or balls. Older dogs exercise adequately when you walk them but you have to do so regularly. Smaller dogs often get all the exercise they need just running around the house, yard or apartment. Two dogs are better than one in this area, since they can play together."

Have a taste

Cindy and Laura Perrin, daughters of Joe and Pam Perrin, try to entice Hunter Barrett, son of Judy and Rodney Barrett, into tasting an ice cream crepe made by members of the Toujours Amis Study Club. The crepes will be sold during the Jubilee of Arts from noon to 6 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Saturday at the Hereford Community Center. The club will also be selling donuts and sandwiches with proceeds used for various community service projects.

Band Boosters assemble

Members of the Band Boosters met Monday evening for their first meeting of the year.

During the business session, President Judy Baker announced that one of the main goals of the organization this year is to build up the club and back the band with total support.

Various fundraisers were discussed including selling cokes before the Town 'n Country Jubilee Celebration parade. Also, Kelly Ramirez with Face Photography will be taking prints of the Hereford High School band, drill team, etc. and buttons will be sold for $5 and $3 for additional buttons.

The band supper of tacos and cobbler is planned from 5-7 p.m. Sept. 8 at the HHS cafeteria.

All proceeds from the fundraisers will go toward scholarships, camp expenses and other band needs.

President Taft weighed 352 pounds.

The next meeting will be Parents Night Aug. 24. There were 44 parents in attendance at Monday's meeting.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX INCREASE

The (WALCOTT I.S.D.) will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in (1988) by (7.717) percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on (AUG. 17, 1989) at (9:00 P.M., WALCOTT SCHOOL BD. RM.)

FOR the proposal: Dan Hall, Jim Bob Perrin, Jim McGowan, Ted Eicke, Susan Perrin, Kent Jack
AGAINST the proposal:

PRESENT and not voting:

ABSENT: J.W. Meyer

(Names of all members of the governing body, showing how each voted on the proposal to consider the tax increase and, if one or more were absent, indicating the absences.)

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the (effective) tax rate that the unit published on (AUGUST 4, 1989). The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	Last Year	This Year
Average home value	$50,000	$50,000
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	5,000	5,000
Average taxable value	45,000	45,000
Tax rate	.6800	.7300 (proposed)
Tax	$306.00	$328.50 (proposed)

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would (increase) by $ (22.50) or (7.35) percent compared with last year's taxes.

Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would (increase) by $ (.05) per $100 of taxable value or (7.35) percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

Insurance woes affect prep sports

AUSTIN (AP) - Some Texas school districts are responding to rising rates for high school sports insurance by asking players' families to pay for medical protection for football injuries, according to a published report.

The Austin American-Statesman surveyed several school districts in Texas, and reported that some will continue paying for insurance while others plan to shift the cost to the athletes and their families.

Some districts pay for all-sports insurance coverage, others for football only.

In Hereford, the school board on Tuesday agreed to accept a bid from Standard Life and Casualty of Rock Hill, S.C., for a total cost of $16,910, much lower than expected. The company has a few other schools it represents in Texas, and covers all extra-curricular activities, from football games to poetry interpretation.

Bonnie Northcutt, assistant director of the University Interscholastic League, acknowledged the trend of school districts shifting the insurance cost to families.

"We don't know how extensive it is, but we know some school districts are doing it," Ms. Northcutt said.

The Austin Independent School District and some larger Central Texas schools, such as Round Rock and San Marcos, remain committed to picking up supplemental coverage for football players. Austin, however, pays for football insurance only, which is about $34 annually per player.

For those without family insurance - about 30 percent - the district's policy takes care of all medical bills for football injuries.

But the Eanes ISD, which includes Austin Westlake, is considering having students pay for their own insurance, said Superintendent Don Rogers. He said a policy covering all athletes costs $14,000 a year.

In Central Texas, Leander and Burnet no longer will pay football insurance premiums. Jarrell stopped last year, the American-Statesman said, and Marble Falls and Georgetown shifted insurance costs to families several years ago.

Others have adopted a compromise. In Houston, athletes pay $15 and the district $18.55 for supplemental coverage.

At Liberty Hill, also in Central Texas, Athletic Director Charlie Braun said the school will cover all athletes in grades seven through 12, but a $250 deductible policy for each injury will replace last year's all-bills-paid coverage.

Linda Comeaux, director of insurance and risk management for the San Antonio Independent School District, said the district this year will pay a $150,000 premium, up from $100,000 last year, to cover students in all UIL activities.

Mark Owen, a vice president of Dallas-based United Group, which writes athletic insurance, said poorer districts pay for insurance "because they know the parents can't."

"In middle-income districts, there has been a trend across the state to ask athletes to pay for their own insurance," Owen said.

Coaches, athletic directors and parents, as well as Owen, cite the cost of knee operations for high premiums.

Braun said knee surgery on two Liberty Hill athletes cost $13,000 and $10,000, respectively.

Sonya Atkinson of Marble Falls, whose son had arthroscopic knee surgery that cost $5,000, said, "Playing without insurance is like playing Russian roulette."

Ms. Atkinson said parents at Marble Falls must furnish proof of insurance before their sons can play football. Several other school districts require parents to sign notarized waivers confirming coverage.

Calvin Ivey, football coach and athletic director at Jarrell, said last year several athletes who could not afford insurance "worked off the cost by helping with maintenance work around the school."

In a small school such as Jarrell, Ivey said, "we need every player. So we give them the chance to earn the money for insurance."

Ms. Northcutt of the UIL said the league's amateur rule allows only the athlete or athlete's family to pay for insurance, if the school district does not provide it. She said booster clubs or individuals, however, could contribute money to schools to buy insurance for athletes unable to afford it.

One district that plans continued sports insurance coverage is Granger in Class A. "Sports is an equalizing thing," said Russell Poling, coach and athletic director. "It doesn't make any difference how rich or how poor your parents are."

"You wear the same uniforms, you eat the same meals, and you have the same insurance."

What QB controversy?

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Dallas is the city that has never known a quarterback controversy it didn't like.

Remember the Don Meredith-Craig Morton debate, the one that escalated into, "We want Morton... we want Morton" chants sweeping through the Cotton Bowl?

Then there was the Morton and Roger Staubach debate, the one former coach Tom Landry escalated with his quarterback shuttle against the Chicago Bears in 1971.

Then, of course, there was the most famous controversy of all: Danny White vs. Gary Hogeboom. This was a frosty personal relationship that escalated into media polls and Landry, so nervous about announcing Hogeboom as his starter for the 1984 season, telling one and all his starter was "Pozderac," an offensive tackle.

And now, itching to jump into the starting blocks is Troy Aikman vs. Steve Walsh, the tale of two rookie quarterbacks with multimillion-dollar contracts.

For now, however, there is a problem: Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson. He runs everywhere with fire extinguisher in hand, diffusing every flickering ember.

You'd think he was Smokey the Bear.

"I'm the referee, but more than a referee, I'm someone who will guide this along to make sure it stays competitive and make sure it's positive," Johnson told the Dallas Times Herald.

If anything, Johnson would burn the word "controversy," and rename what is to take place over the next few weeks, and possibly longer, as the Cowboys "Quarterback Competition."

"Because competition is what we feel we have here," Johnson said.

Indeed, it is competitive. Aikman, the Cowboys' No. 1 draft pick, is going up against Walsh, Johnson's former University of Miami quarterback, who was the first player taken in the supplemental draft.

Whatever Aikman gets to do in practice or scrimmages, so does Walsh. One day one takes the first snap, the next day the other takes the first snap. And when it came to listing a depth chart for Sunday's preseason game in San Diego, Johnson sat on the fence, listing "Aikman Walsh" as the first-team quarterback.

"I'm trying to downplay any type of controversy as much as possible," Johnson said. "I want this to be a team thing, and be competitive. And I'm trying to keep it from building into something that is not there. If you're not careful, the media will play it to be a controversy when there is no controversy."

So Johnson has not even hinted which quarterback will start Sunday's exhibition with the San Diego Chargers. Johnson will only say that in all probability the starter will be either Aikman or Walsh. Both quarterbacks plead ignorance on the subject, as do assistant coaches.

But the logical choice would be Aikman, since he has been working in the Cowboys system the longest. Walsh will have been in camp only two weeks come Sunday.

Johnson also continues to say no significance will be attached to starting Sunday. He maintains the time will be split equally. Furthermore, Johnson says, do not attach any significance to whoever starts the Los Angeles Raiders game Aug. 19. The only start that counts, Johnson maintains, is the Houston Oilers game Sept. 2 in Texas Stadium.

That is the final exhibition game, and Johnson says the quarterback who runs out under center for the first snap will be the Cowboys starter Sept. 10 in the season opener against New Orleans.

Austin wants Cowboys

AUSTIN (AP) - Austin has made a sales pitch to the Dallas Cowboys, asking the football team to set up training camp here rather than the squad's current site at Thousand Oaks, Calif., officials said.

Austin Mayor Loe Cooke said Wednesday the Cowboys are entering a new era under new ownership and the city wants to be part of it.

The Cowboys had indicated previously that this year's training camp might be their last in Thousand Oaks. They cited an interest in practicing at their Texas Stadium facilities in Irving, where more Cowboys fans could attend. But Cowboys officials have since hinted they are leaning toward returning to Thousand Oaks next year.

Cooke and others appealed to the Cowboys on a videotape put together by the Austin Chamber of Commerce. The video was sent to the Cowboys last week.

"We're deadly serious," said Cooke. "We want the Cowboys to tell us their needs."

"There is no better place for fans to get to scrimmages," he said.

Mike Parker, a chamber of commerce official and former college football teammate of new Cowboys owner Jerry Jones and Coach Jimmy Johnson, said the move back to Texas would help the team regain fan support that has eroded over the past couple of years.

Parker said he spoke with Johnson Wednesday "and he seemed favorably impressed and intrigued by the idea."

Cowboys officials were not immediately available for comment.

The pitch to the Cowboys is to use the campus of St. Edwards' University, a Catholic college of about 2,300 students in south Austin, for the training camp.

Chip-off decides scramble

Four teams shot a low-ball score of 30 in the Wednesday Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course, so it took a chip-off to determine the winning foursome of Bob Smith, Bill Brown, David Arellano and Brent Self.

To break the tie, each team member took a chip shot at a hole on the putting green, and one team was eliminated on each hole.

The runnerup team consisted of Ken Roberts, Dean Herring, Lois Jones and Mike Standish. Finishing third was the team of John Robinson, Steve Sanders, Max Moss and John Yocum. The team of Robert Aguirre, Hugh Blakey, Art Clark and Abel Castro was eliminated on the first hole.

Winning team members collected $42 in golf merchandise prizes.

Sluman has a shot of inspiration

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
HAWTHORN WOODS, Ill.
(AP) - Jeff Sluman remembers "The Shot" like it happened a day ago.

Actually, it was a year ago and the sand wedge he holed for an eagle-3 on Oak Tree Golf Club's fifth hole inspired him to the PGA Championship.

Sluman opened defense of his title today over the long and testy 7,197-yard, par-72 Kemper Lakes Course, hoping memories of "The Shot" will keep him going despite an injured right shoulder.

"I think about the shot a lot when I'm having a bad day and it gets me going," said Sluman, whose final-round 65 at Edmond, Okla., was one of the best in PGA history.

Sluman could become the first back-to-back PGA winner since Denny Shute in 1936-37 but a nagging shoulder injury and a recent appendectomy weigh against him doing so.

"If I was a gambling man I wouldn't put money on me," said Sluman, who has missed over a month of this season with health problems.

Sluman was paired with Larry Nelson and Arnold Palmer, who has never won the PGA in his illustrious career.

Masters champion Nick Faldo and Curtis Strange, who became the first to win consecutive U.S. Open titles since Ben Hogan in 51, and Australian Greg Norman, a heart-break loser in the British Open, were among the favorites in the PGA.

Mark Calcavecchia, who birdied the last playoff hole to win the British Open at Troon, withdrew because of the birth of a daughter.

Tom Watson, who finished fourth at Troon, is shooting for his first PGA title, which would enable him to join Hogan, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and Gene Sarazen as a winner of each of the game's Big Four tournaments during his career.

The tournament also is the last major before Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino become "Senior" category players as their 50th birthdays approach.

Spain's Seve Ballesteros has been in a protracted slump.

Another undercurrent to the tournament is the end of a two-year competition for the United States Ryder Cup team. Calcavecchia, Strange, Chip Beck, Tom Kite, Paul Azinger and Fred Couples have qualified for the team.

Payne Stewart, Ken Green, Mark O'Meara, Mark McCumber, Steve Pate, Joey Sindelar, Bruce Lietzke, Ben Crenshaw, Scott Hoch and Lanny Wadkins are in a struggle for the remaining spots.

Sluman is too far back in points to qualify. Ironically, the 1989 PGA champion does qualify for the Ryder Cup.

Kemper Lakes is only the third public course in PGA history to host the 71-year-old PGA Tournament.

The others were Tanglewood Golf Club in North Carolina in 1974 and Pebble Beach in 1977.

Kite, the leading money winner on the PGA Tour, predicted scores will be high.

"It's one of the most difficult we'll ever play," Kite said. "There's no let-up holes as far as length goes. The greens are by far the biggest I've seen on tour."

The field of 150 will play for $2.1 million with a first place prize of $200,000.

Is Jerry's ego bigger than Buddy's?

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) - Kenny Jackson has played for Houston coach Jerry Glanville and Philadelphia's Buddy Ryan.

And he has opinions. "Buddy and Jerry, oh man, they are both egotistical, the biggest ... but that's the best thing they have going," Jackson said.

"The way pro football is going, if they can't have the ego, they aren't going to make it."

Ryan left Jackson unprotected for Plan B free agency, and Glanville decided to add Jackson to the Oilers' stable of receivers.

Jackson believes Glanville and Ryan may possess prototype personalities needed to succeed in NFL coaching.

"They are the two guys who can still motivate million dollar athletes," Jackson said. "It's hard to motivate people when they've got x-amount of dollars in the bank, to come out here and act like kids."

But Glanville and Ryan pull it off, Jackson said.

"Look at Jerry, he's still a kid, he really loves what he's doing," Jackson said. "Buddy is the same way."

"They both say what they feel. That's great for the media and it's great for football. They entertain. Without that, it's just up and down the field."

It's hardly necessary to point out that Jackson also says what he feels and he believes Ryan and Glanville both will be longtime successes.

"The more complacent type coach carries that over to his players and on some teams it works but not the majority," Jackson said. "This is a dog-eat-dog world on the football field."

Jackson, hoping to catch on as a backup with the Oilers, can see a big difference in offensive philosophy between the two coaches.

"Buddy would stack up his offense with running backs and carry four or five receivers," Jackson said. "Here, 90 percent of the time they throw the ball. If you lose a receiver here, you lose a valuable part of your offense."

Jackson is amazed at the options receivers have in the Oilers' four-wideout alignment.

"This system is so complex you think you're a quarterback," Jackson said. "Everybody has an option to do something. In most places, you don't have a chance to truly show your talent."

"Most places, they call a play and that's what you do. Other places, maybe one receiver has a choice. Here three receivers had the choice."

Jackson chose to retire in May 1988 rather than try to play football and get his restaurant business off the ground at the same time.

"I went to Buddy and told him I'd be over here (playing football) but my mind wouldn't and I didn't think that was fair to the team," Jackson said.

"I knew I wanted to play football again but I wanted to do it when everything was fine with the restaurant."

Jackson was a first-round pick of the Eagles from Penn State in 1984 and made nine starts his rookie season.

In his last full season in 1987, he started all 12 non-strike games and was the second leading receiver on the team.

When Eagles receiver Mike Quick suffered a broken leg against the Oilers last Oct. 2, Jackson was coaxed out of retirement.

He played in the final seven games of the season, helping mostly on special teams.

Jackson next appeared in an Oilers uniform.

"I felt with Houston I would not be the center of attention but I'm past that stage of my career anyway," Jackson said.

"I just wanted to be with a team that would use everyone and have a chance to go to the playoffs."

The Oilers' wide receiver corps is set with Drew Hill and Ernest Givins on the outside and Haywood Jeffires and Curtis Duncan on the inside.

Hill currently is a camp holdout, demanding his contract be renegotiated.

"I think they are looking for people to come in if somebody goes down and not lose about 90 percent of their offense," Jackson said.

Oilers look at Scotland

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers and Tampa Bay Buccaneers are working on a deal that would take them to Edinburgh for the first NFL game ever played in Scotland.

The exhibition game, which would be played next year, still must have league approval, said Tommy Smith, the Oilers' executive assistant to the president.

An agreement would make Scotland only the third European country to play host to an NFL game.

London is the site of the annual American Bowl. Last year, Minnesota and Chicago played an exhibition game at Goteborg, Sweden.

Officials for the Oilers and Buccaneers, who meet in an exhibition game in Tampa Stadium Saturday, hope to capitalize on NFL attempts to form a European division of its World League of American Football.

The league's efforts to expand its horizons could lead to increased play in European cities to stimulate interest.

"We're very excited about the possibility of playing a game over there. It's such a beautiful country," Smith said.

The idea for a game in Edinburgh originated with the Buccaneers and owner Hugh Culverhouse, Smith said. Phil Krueger, Tampa Bay's assistant to the president, has been negotiating behind the scenes to bring pro football to Scotland.

"The thing evolved through the Bucs," Smith said. "Our involvement began with a conversation (General Manager) Mike Holovak had with Phil Krueger."

"When Mike mentioned it to me, I called Hugh Culverhouse Jr. and told him if they were going, we'd like to be the other team. Then, Mike and Phil started talking again."

The Oilers have never played a game out of the country. The only time they left the continental United States was in 1961, when they played two exhibition games in Honolulu.

For the first time in the 30-year history of the franchise, the Oilers are playing all their exhibition games on the road this year. Because of the AstroDome expansion, they also will play their first two regular-season games on the road.

NEW YORK (AP) - Cristina Ferrare says she worked so hard during her last pregnancy that she could "hardly wait to go into labor so I could rest."

Ms. Ferrare was working as a host of three television shows while pregnant with her fourth child, her second daughter with entertainment executive Tony Thomopoulos. She had two children with her ex-husband, automaker John DeLorean.

"I could hardly wait to go into labor so I could rest," she said in an interview in the September issue of Good Housekeeping magazine. "A month after the baby arrived, I went back to work and discovered I was simply burnt out."

One of her three shows, "Incredible Sunday," was canceled and she decided to leave the other two, "A.M. Los Angeles" and the "Home Show."

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) - Metropolitan Opera star Jessye Norman and violinist Isaac Stern will pay homage this weekend to Marian Anderson, the black contralto who once was banned from performing in Washington.

Fifty years ago, the Daughters of the American Revolution refused to let Anderson sing at Washington's Constitution Hall and first lady Eleanor Roosevelt resigned from the organization in protest.

Within days, Anderson was invited to sing on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial and her concert attracted a racially mixed audience of 75,000.

Anderson went on to become the first black singer to perform in a leading role at the Metropolitan Opera.

On Saturday, Anderson, 87, will be in the audience as Norman, Stern, conductor Julius Rudel and the Ives Symphony Orchestra perform for her.

Anderson lives in Danbury on a 100-acre farm that she and her late husband, architect Orpheus H. Fisher, bought more than 45 years ago.

DETROIT (AP) - Soul singer Aretha Franklin is offering to sing in a benefit in a last-ditch effort to restore music programs in Motown's public schools.

"They are already working on it," said Franklin's publicist Tuesday.

Superintendent John Porter said Franklin offered to do a benefit to help raise $1.25 million for Detroit's middle and elementary schools' instrumental music programs.

The classes were eliminated in June when the deficit-riddled school board approved $50 million in cuts to balance its budget. School officials earlier set a Monday deadline to raise the money but extended the date until Aug. 21.

A tax increase goes before voters Sept. 12. It would restore music to the schools, Porter said. If approved, any additional money raised would be added to the music curriculum.

NEW YORK (AP) - Chuck D., the leader of the rap group Public Enemy, says the band has reunited after firing one member for his anti-Semitic remarks and is ready to fight the power in an upcoming album.

"After having taken time out for reorganization, Public Enemy is back in action," Chuck D. said in a statement Wednesday. "The show must go on. Brace yourselves for 1990."

The group announced at the end of June that it was taking a break after firing its "minister of information," Professor Griff, for anti-Semitic remarks made in a newspaper interview.

Public Enemy's follow-up to their smash album "It Takes a Nation of Millions to Hold Us Back" will be titled "Fear of a Black Planet." Their current single, "Fight the Power," is on the soundtrack of the Spike Lee film "Do The Right Thing."

"We're still pro-black, pro-black culture and pro-human race. Please direct any further questions to (Guns N' Roses vocalist) Axl Rose," said Chuck D.

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) - Former President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, will have their annual physicals at the Mayo Clinic later this year, said a Reagan spokesman.

Mark Weinberg, however, declined to specify when Reagan, 78, and his 68-year-old wife would arrive at the famed hospital.

HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

If you see the film clips used to advertise this movie, you'll see every funny moment in...

"TURNER & HOOCH": Starring Tom Hanks and Beasley, the junkyard dog. This mildly entertaining summer film is a cross between Lethal Weapon 2 and The Odd Couple. Tom Hanks plays Scott Turner, an obsessively meticulous, small-town police investigator who is unwillingly coupled with Hooch, a mean, drooling, ill-mannered mastiff (for dog lovers - Hooch is actually a French breed called De Bordeaux). It seems that Hooch is the only "witness" to the only murder ever committed in the sleepy seacoast town of Cypress Beach. Turner (Hanks) and Hooch are forced to be together to solve the crime and, in doing so, the mismatched master and mastiff square off for a comic battle of wits.

The heart of the story is the relationship of the hero and his dog - set against a crime story backdrop. This is also the problem with the film; the makers can't seem to decide what the film is all about. Is it a comedy? Yes, there are many, genuinely funny moments. Is it a romance? Barely. Mare Winningham has the token role as Emily, the love interest Cypress Beach veterinarian. Is it a crime story? Sort of. There is a murder at the beginning of the film, but it is quickly set aside for several reels of the animal world's version of The Odd Couple. Then Lethal Weapon 2 takes over for the last reel, creating an interesting, taut, dramatic ending. The total results? A patched-together quality of script with some great comedy and another good performance by Tom Hanks.

The star is Hooch. Oh, he doesn't steal any scenes - Hanks intelligently gives him lots of room to show off. And the dog may not be able to speak, but he has wonderfully hypnotic eyes and loose flapping, expressive skin (you'll have to see the movie to understand). The direction is very poor; there's no rhythm or real character development. And the poor script can also be blamed for Turner & Hooch missing the bullseye. It is, however, impossible not to like Tom Hanks or Hooch; it may even be un-American if you do. So, Turner & Hooch will be a box-office hit. If you are in the mood for mindless entertainment, like dogs and Tom Hanks and want some summer silliness - then see Turner & Hooch. Rated PG. Three Boxes.

RENTAL MOVIES

Tom Hanks is an emerging young actor who is beginning to show depth and range. There are a number of his films available for rent. The better ones, and the only ones that we would recommend, are...

"SPLASH": (1984) Directed by Ron Howard with Daryl Hannah, is an uproariously funny film about a young man (Tom Hanks) who unknowingly falls in love with a mermaid, who's played to perfection by Daryl Hannah. The cast is buoyant (sorry about that pun) and the sight gags add some marvelous bits of comedy. Hanks is fun and you'll enjoy his more "relaxed" performance. Rated PG for profanity and brief nudity. Three Boxes.

"THE MAN WITH ONE RED SHOE": (1985) An American remake of the French comedy, The Tall Blond Man With One Black Shoe which has Hanks cast as a concert violinist pursued by spies. It's all because the assistant to the chief of the CIA (Charles Durning) picked Hanks as a decoy to confuse our power-hungry "enemies". Complicated? Yep, but fun. Hanks is nearly the whole show with Jim Belushi and Carrie Fisher providing some hearty laughs along the way. Rated PG for profanity and violence. Three Boxes.

"NOTHING IN COMMON": (1986) A polished "serio-comedy" that has Hanks as a self-centered advertising whiz kid forced to deal with his increasingly demanding parents, who are divorcing after thirty-four years of marriage.

Jackie Gleason, as Hank's father, gives a subtle, touching portrayal. The best part is how well Hanks succeeds at making the difficult shift from zany humor to pathos. Rated PG for profanity and suggested sex. Four Boxes.

"EVERY TIME WE SAY GOODBYE": (1987)...."we cry a little". Yes, it's a predictable story (with a change-of-pace role for Hanks as an American World War II pilot in Jerusalem) about two star-crossed lovers battling religious prejudice, culture clashes and every Romeo and Juliet cliché known to man. Hanks brings a certain well-rounded realism to this dramatic part by injecting the seriousness with humor. Rated PG for mild profanity, brief nudity and a mature theme. Three Boxes.

"BIG": (1988) Directed by Penny Marshall. The endearing fantasy enlivened by the deft performance of Tom Hanks and an almost brilliant script.

Hanks is the "big person" embodiment of young David Moscow, who wishes for a creaky amusement-park fortune-telling machine to make him "big". Hanks gives an outstanding performance (Academy Award) as the 13-year old in a 35-year old body; ably assisted by a spunky Elizabeth Perkins who plays an associate at the (where else?) children's toy company where Hanks has landed a job. The scene where Hanks and his boss (Robert Loggia) dance to "Chopsticks" on a huge keyboard is a classic. Rated PG for mild sexual scenes. Four Boxes.

NOTE: "PUNCHLINE" is omitted on purpose. This is Sally Field's film and not a good showcase film for Tom Hanks.

'Cookie,' 'Parenthood' among newest movies

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

"Cookie"
"A Mafia comedy" may seem as contradictory as "a Mick Jagger lullaby" or "a Pee-wee Herman tragedy."

Yet several filmmakers have tried to combine laughter and mayhem, mostly with dismal results ("The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight"). Only John Huston succeeded with the sublimely black comedy, "Prizzi's Honor."

"Cookie" is not in the same league, but it is still an enjoyable romp through the New York underworld. Credit is due to an inventive script by Nora Ephron and Alice Arlen and major-league acting.

Peter Falk is Dino Capisco, a mobster coming to the end of a 13-year rap in Sing Sing. He is visited, much against her will, by his daughter, Cookie (Emily Lloyd), a foul-mouthed teen-ager whose style is early Cyndi Lauper. She reviles him for having neglected to marry her mother, Dianne Wiest. He'd liked to, but he is irrevocably bound to his wife, Brenda Vaccaro.

After leaving the slammer, Falk tries to re-establish himself in his trade but gets a brushoff from his former partner, Michael V. Gazzo.

But Falk has done a lot of calculating in his down time at Sing Sing and devises a scheme to outwit his murder-prone former associates while he struggles to win over his scornful daughter. The plan is almost too complex to understand, but it all ends amazingly well.

In less talented hands, "Cookie" could easily have crumbled. But Susan Seidelman ("Desperately Seeking Susan") is accomplished at this kind of urban action-comedy.

"Cookie" is one of the Lorimar films which Warner Bros. acquired following their merger. Laurence Ark was the producer. The rating is R, mostly for language and some violence. Running time: 95 minutes.

"Parenthood"
Ron Howard's most prominent works as a director - "Splash," "Cocoon," "Willow" - have delved into the fantasy world of mermaids, rejuvenation and medieval magic. With "Parenthood," he returns to his roots: the family sitcom.

The Buckman family of "Parenthood" is far removed from "The Andy Griffith Show" and "Happy Days," dealing with such issues as teen pregnancy, abandoned wives, compulsive gambling, overzealous parents and maladjusted 8-year-olds.

Sound like heavy stuff? It isn't. Most of "Parenthood" is consistently funny, and some is hilarious. The credit is due to Ron Howard's deft touch and a large, accomplished cast headed by Steve Martin.

Martin is the hyper father who is striving to give his young son the love and attention Martin never knew with his own father (Jason Robards). Mary Steenburgen is Martin's patient wife.

Rick Moranis plays a father who jams his 3-year-old with classics and karate in a misguided attempt to convert her into a genius. His wife, Harley Kozak, goes along with his campaign despite her doubts.

By far the most interesting family is Dianne Wiest's. She is a divorcee with a silent son (Leaf Phoenix) who is hiding his own attempts to understand sex, and an uncontrollable daughter (Martha Plimpton) who vanishes with a budding delinquent (Keanu Reeves).

Grandpa Robards, a sour type who insults his wife and children, has his own parenting problem: prodigal son Tom Hulce, who is $36,000 in debt to gamblers who threaten to kill him.

Miraculously all crises are solved in the last few minutes. This kind of movie necessitates a happy ending; you only wish it hadn't been quite so saccharine.

Howard's favorite writing team, Lowell Ganz and Babaloo Mandel, performed expertly in keeping the plot threads from unraveling. Lowell Ganz produced the Universal Pictures release, which is rated PG-13 for language and adult situations. Running time: 124 minutes.

ABC retools comedy for fall

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Television critics meeting here to preview the new fall programs had already suffered the indignities of one stand-up comedian who didn't exhibit much reverence for the process, Jackie Mason.

Then it was Richard Lewis' turn. Lewis and the new co-executive producer of the ABC sitcom "Anything But Love," Peter Noah, were discussing changes in the show, which premiered midseason last season and got a pick-up for the fall.

One critic asked how many scripts were in hand. Half a dozen, Noah replied. "So actually," countered the critic, "what you've been telling us up to this point is that you're going to go in a very vague sort of a different direction - but you have a definite direction in those scripts that do exist?"

"Well," Noah stammered, "I don't remember saying it was going to be vague."

"Like Watergate up here all of a sudden," Lewis chimed in. As DENVER (AP) - Berke Breathed, whose pen illustrated the comic strip "Bloom County," plans to go a little overboard as a contributing editor at Boating magazine.

John Owens, editor in chief of Boating, said Tuesday that Breathed, an avid boater who has homes in Evergreen and Florida, will write a monthly humor column.

Breathed, who owns four boats, said his column, titled "Overboard," will reflect his consuming interest in the sport.

"Boating looks at equipment in the way I want to look at equipment - what's coming out, and why we silly boaters think that a new-style helm station is exciting," Breathed said.

The last "Bloom County" comic strip appeared in papers last weekend. Breathed, who won a Pulitzer Prize for cartooning in 1987, plans to begin work on a new strip called "Outland" that will begin Sept. 3. "Outland" features a black ghetto child who was a "Bloom County" regular.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - CBS is firmly behind the "The Pat Sajak Show" as the late-night talkfest struggles against reigning king Johnny Carson and his "Tonight Show," the show's producer said.

Noah continued to try to answer the question, Lewis put his hand over the microphone and whispered in his ear.

"Well, I'm not trying to hide anything," Noah said. "I'd just rather not, if it's OK..."

"Bzzz, bzzz, bzzz," whispered Lewis.

"On advice of my counsel," said Noah, "I've been told that - No, I'd rather not."

Noah did reveal, however, many of the changes in the show, which did well in the ratings last season in a cushy spot behind the hit "Roseanne" but won little praise from these same television critics.

Lewis, whose angst-ridden stand-up routine was toned down for his role as magazine writer Marty Gold in "Anything But Love," appeared to be doing basically his own material in the show, which was, not surprisingly, very funny. But there were problems getting much comedy mileage out of the other main character, played by Jamie Lee Curtis.

In the upcoming season, Curtis' character, Hannah Miller, gets a change of scene that will hopefully lend itself to more laughs. She gets a promotion - from researcher to writer, moves out of her father's house and in with a female roommate, and she and Marty get a new boss.

The tough-talking throwback editor of last season will be replaced with a new, female editor.

New York performance artist Ann Magnuson has been cast in the role.

Missionaries to Kenya to speak at Nazarene Church

The Rev. and Mrs. Harmon Schmelzenbach, who are missionaries for the Church of the Nazarene in Kenya, will speak at 6 p.m. Sunday at the Nazarene Church. The public is invited to attend.

Harmon Schmelzenbach is a third generation missionary of the Church of the Nazarene in Africa. His grandfather, Harmon, started the work of the church in Swaziland shortly after the turn of the century and is buried there. His father, Dr. Elmer Schmelzenbach, was born in Africa and served there as a missionary from 1936 until his recent retirement.

In 1960, Harmon and Beverly Schmelzenbach were sent to Africa as missionaries. Their assignments have been in various areas of Africa and they have been in charge of a number of districts and the evangelistic expansion of new work. Following their furlough in 1976, they were asked to enter Namibia and organize a pioneer district. In 1984, Rev. and Mrs. Schmelzenbach were asked to

Suicide among elderly an increasing problem

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - The day after his wife died, an 83-year-old man sat in his dining room, surrounded by relatives, crying. "Why did she have to leave me?" Then he went into his bedroom, got his gun, and killed himself.

A former hard-driving insurance executive in his 60s, unable to adjust to the slower pace of retirement and depressed because of the loss of identity he derived from his work, took a job pumping gas six months after settling in a retirement community. Three months later, he committed suicide.

An 82-year-old man with the debilitating and ultimately fatal amyotrophic lateral sclerosis - Lou Gehrig's disease - was becoming increasingly helpless. Not wishing to burden his wife, he slashed his wrists and bled to death.

The cases are typical of what experts say is a growing phenomenon.

Dr. Marv Miller, a San Diego gerontologist, wrote in 1979 that the elderly "are deadly serious about killing themselves." The problem is worse today, said Miller, author of "Suicide After Sixty. The Final Alternative."

"In some societies older people are venerated and respected, but not in this one. ... Once people are out of the work force and no longer contributing to the productivity of society in an economic sense, society no longer has any use for them," he said. "This is a shame because after the Depression this country was built back by the people who are now the elderly."

In 1986, the most recent figures available, the nation's suicide rate was 12.8 per 100,000 people. For those 65 and over, the rate was 21.6 per 100,000; within that group, the breakdown was 19.7 for ages 65-74; 25.2 for those 75-84; and 20.8 for those 85 and older.

"The figures are appalling," said Dr. Robert N. Butler, author of the 1976 Pulitzer Prize-winning book "Why Survive? Being Old in America."

Cuts in social programs and changing attitudes, especially about suicide, may be partly to blame for the 25 percent rise in late-life suicide since 1981, said Dr. Nancy J. Osgood, a Medical College of Virginia gerontologist.

The problem is worse among men, particularly white men.

"Many men feel that when they are no longer working they have no value. They have merged their work with their identity, which precipitates an identity crisis upon retirement," Miller said.

Today's elderly women, on the other hand, "were wife and mother, and maintain their same roles throughout life," he said. They also can ask for help without it being interpreted as a sign of weakness.

While shooting is the primary method among all suicides, the elderly sometimes employ more covert techniques such as starvation, refusal to take medication and overdosing on prescribed medicines. Such covert suicide, combined with the stigma attached to taking one's life, leads to under-reporting of the number of elderly

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: Please tell me if there is any medical or surgical procedure to restore the vagina back to its original smaller and tighter size. Is there any type of diaphragm that could be inserted to make it tighter?

I am 49 years old and have been married for 25 years. I have given birth with no complications and had a complete hysterectomy at age 34. I have not had any bladder problems.

DEAR READER: Your question relates to a condition that is so common that it is almost universal in women who have given birth to children. It is often ignored or hushed, but it is important to both partners.

The outlet of the vagina is usually rather tight in a woman who has never had any children. It is tight because of the muscles surrounding the opening. These muscles are laced across the bottom of the bony pelvis, somewhat like the bottom of a basket.

When birth occurs, the baby must pass through this opening. To do so, the opening must stretch to many times its previous size. This can result in tearing. That is why many doctors advocate an incision across these muscles, called an episiotomy - the idea being that a controlled incision is far better than an uncontrolled tear. After delivery, the incision is sutured back in place.

With each birth, the muscles and supporting structures become stretched that much more. The first birth is usually the most difficult because of the tight muscles, and with each successive birth, the delivery is easier and easier because there is little resistance to the passing of the baby.

These stretched and sometimes torn muscles that provide the floor of the pelvic outlet can be repaired by surgery. It is a mechanical problem and the solution is also mechanical. Along with the stretching and sometimes tearing, muscles and tendons that support the uterus, the bladder and the rectum can be involved, causing a hernia of the bladder, urethra or rectum into the vagina. Even the vagina can turn inside out. These too can be repaired surgically.

For more details I am sending you Special Report 56, Hysterectomy, Cystocele and Rectocele. Others who want this report can send $1 to THE HEALTH LETTER/56, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

There isn't anything you can insert that will replace the benefits you could get from surgery.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I read your column from the woman whose vagina turned wrong side out. My bladder ruptured out my vagina and my colon herniated into my vagina. My normal functions were threatening to cut off. I had had a hysterectomy and two unsuccessful bladder tuck-up jobs.

My gynecologist sent me to a specialist who performed a seven-hour operation on my 69th birthday.

Even though I have a net of webbing inside to hold my bladder, colon and vagina in place forever, I am doing great. I was back doing light housework in six weeks. I hope my story will be encouraging to other women with this problem. It's almost a miracle.

DEAR READER: I included your letter in the column because I think it will be encouraging to many readers as you intended. Thank you for sharing your story with them.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I would like to know more about a hiatal hernia. Some tell me they don't get larger and some say they do. Would it seem to make your mouth taste different at times? How can you tell if it is getting larger, and are they very common? What should I eat and do and not do? Where is this hernia located? I have my bed raised 8 inches at the head.

The deepest fresh-water lake in the world is Lake Baikal: 5,712 feet.

DEAR READER: The hernia is of a portion of the stomach sliding through the hole in the diaphragm between your lungs and abdominal cavity. It is normal to have the hole there, but it may enlarge enough to allow the hernia to occur. The hole may be stretched when there is increased pressure inside the abdominal cavity, which may permit more of the stomach to slide through. The hernia is not always present, but a portion of the stomach may slide through the hole, particularly when you are lying down, or all of the stomach may be inside the abdominal cavity where it belongs.

It certainly isn't rare. Some authorities say that over 50 percent of people over 50 have such an intermittent or sliding hernia. It is quite common during pregnancy because of the increased pressure inside the abdominal cavity.

There may be an associated regurgitation of the acid stomach contents into the lower esophagus causing heartburn. Other people have this leakage even if they do not have a hiatal hernia. The backward leakage could give you an unpleasant taste in your mouth, particularly if it contains bile.

The size of the hernia may vary in relation to the pressure inside the abdominal cavity. That is why reducing fat that is deposited inside the abdomen helps eliminate the hernia and why the hernia may not persist after a pregnancy is over.

I have outlined the many things you can do to prevent the backward leakage of the stomach contents into the lower esophagus in Special Report 93, Heartburn, Esophageal Spasm, Hiatal Hernia, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/93, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Barbecue survey taken

PALATINE, Ill. (AP) - Cholesterol content is the number one concern of those who barbecue, according to a recent survey of what's cooking for the summer 1989.

Sodium, calories and sugar follow in order of importance, according to a nationwide poll commissioned by Weber-Stephen Products Co. of Palatine, Ill., manufacturer of charcoal and gas grills.

Chicken and fish are among the most popular foods for the grill. Nine out of 10 barbecue chicken on the grill; five out of 10 grill fish.

Outdoor grilling is seen as more healthful than indoor cooking by 65 percent of those polled. This may be attributed to the fact that fats drip away from foods being grilled, while flavor gets seared in.

"Barbecue trends reveal telling information about today's lifestyles," says Jennifer Davidoff, Weber's director of marketing. "Barbecuing is a great way to enjoy family and friends, and a great way to entertain. So you can bet that when something like nutrition shows up as a concern to the barbecue population, it has affected the country's style of living."

According to the survey, 93 percent of the barbecue population (that's 53 percent of total U.S. households) barbecues at least once a week.

Why is the backyard barbecue so popular? Those who responded to the survey said: barbecued food tastes good (99 percent); barbecuing is an informal and relaxed activity (95 percent); barbecuing is a good way to entertain (95 percent); barbecuing is a relaxing way to cook (93 percent).

Men account for about two-thirds of the barbecue chefs.

"It would appear that men are eager to demonstrate their culinary skills when barbecuing, and probably feel more comfortable doing so on the grill than in the kitchen," Davidoff says.

Also noted by the survey: More than half of the people who barbecue are 35 years old or over. The average age is 41.

Gas barbecue owners grill 36 percent more often than charcoal grill owners.

Nearly 100 percent of the people surveyed said they barbecue at some time during an average week in the summer; seven out of ten people barbecue on most ordinary weekends.

Quick follow-up for oven spill: sprinkle with salt immediately. When oven is cool, brush off; burned food and wipe with damp sponge.

Wear it right!
Shoulder belts should be snug. Don't allow more than 1 inch of slack. Never wear the belt behind your back or under your arm. The correct position is over the shoulder, snug across the chest, and low on the lap.

Hints from Heloise

BATTLE BUGS
Dear Readers: My latest pamphlet, Heloise Battles Bugs, can help free your summer from those flying and crawling pests that invade your house and yard and even your pets. For a copy, send $2 and a stamped (45 cents), self-addressed, legal-sized envelope to Heloise/Bugs, P.O. Box 19765, Irvine, CA 92713. — Heloise
DUSTER BRUSH
Dear Heloise: When dusting I find an animal-hair pastry brush handy. I use it to get the dust from the inside corners of picture frames, on my dining-room chandelier to remove dust from the light globes and brass chain and fixtures, all lamp bulbs, the glass globes that support the lamp shades, bric-a-brack, cloth lamp shades and the pleated tops of draperies.

Although I have several pastry brushes, my dusting one is set aside for just that purpose. — Trudy Suderow, Ft. Myers, Fla.
GIFT IDEA
Dear Heloise: From time to time I see gift ideas in your column for that person who seems to have it all. My mother is one of those people, but the gift I gave her was a welcome one. I purchased a memory telephone. Important and family numbers can be kept in, which I did before I gave it to her. This way my mother needed to push only one number to dial friends, family and emergency numbers. This would be helpful for any older family member, especially in an emergency. — H.B. El Paso, Texas

I love the special dial feature. The only problem is I don't know the actual phone number of some friends, just the code! — Heloise

Mitchell gets back on track in rout

By The Associated Press

Kevin Mitchell, a sleeping Giant since the All-Star game, is showing signs of waking up.

Mitchell, with only three homers in a month, broke loose with a pair of two-run homers and drove in his 100th run earlier than any player in this decade as the San Francisco Giants routed the Cincinnati Reds 10-1 Wednesday.

Mitchell, who leads the majors with 36 home runs and 100 RBIs, has knocked in six runs in the last two games.

It was Mitchell's fifth two-homer game of the season and gave him 100 RBIs quicker than any major leaguer since California's Don Baylor reached that plateau on Aug. 8, 1979.

"When I came back from our last road trip, I took home some film to see what I was doing wrong," Mitchell said. "I was getting jammed a lot and I wasn't hitting the ball hard."

Don Robinson, 11-7, also homered for the Giants and pitched a five-hitter.

In other NL games, it was New York 6, Philadelphia 0; Chicago 3, Montreal 0; St. Louis 5, Pittsburgh 2; San Diego 2, Houston 1, and Atlanta 6, Los Angeles 3.

Matt Williams hit the fourth homer of the game for the Giants.

Mitchell homered off Rick Mahler, 9-11, in a four-run first inning that also included run-scoring singles by Will Clark and Terry Kennedy.

Mitchell's second homer, on a broken bat, was against Norm Charlton in a three-run sixth and was followed by Williams' fifth of the season.

Clark's run-scoring triple in the second inning made it 5-0.

Robinson's two-run homer came in the third off Mike Roesler, who was making his major-league debut.

The only Reds run came on a homer by Eric Davis in the fourth inning.

Cubs 3, Expos 0

Rick Sutcliffe pitched a one-hitter for seven innings and Ryne Sandberg hit his third homer in three games.

Sutcliffe, 12-9, retired 10 straight batters after giving up an infield single to Andres Galaraga in the fourth. He was replaced by Mitch Williams after giving up a leadoff walk to Spike Owen in the eighth, and Williams went on to earn his 29th save.

Sandberg's two-run homer in the third came off loser Bryn Smith, 9-6.

Padres 2, Astros 1

San Diego beat Houston with its first ninth-inning rally of the season, capped by Benito Santiago's sacrifice fly.

Mark Portugal shut out the Padres on six hits for eight innings before he was relieved at the start of the ninth by Juan Agosto, who gave up a leadoff single to Tony Gwynn.

Dave Smith, 1-3, who had blown only two of 24 previous save opportunities, then walked Jack Clark before Chris James sacrificed.

An intentional walk to Carmelo Martinez loaded the bases before Smith walked Bip Roberts on four pitches. Santiago's fly ball to left ended the game, making a winner of reliever Mark Davis, 3-3.

Mets 6, Phillies 0

New York shut out Philadelphia for the second straight day on Bob Ojeda's seven-hitter, while Gary Carter increased his hit total for the season by 36 percent with his first four-hit game since Sept. 23, 1987.

Carter, who had 11 hits this season going into the game, doubled twice and singled twice to raise his average from .116 to .152. Darryl Strawberry homered for the second consecutive game, a two-run drive that capped a five-run fifth.

Ojeda, 8-9, won his third consecutive decision.

Dennis Cook, 5-5, gave up eight hits and six runs in 5 2-3 innings.

Cardinals 5, Pirates 2

Joe Magrane, 14-7, held Pittsburgh to six hits and hit his third career homer.

With the score tied 1-1, Jose

Oquendo walked to start the second inning against Doug Drabek, 9-9, and moved to third on a single by Tom Brunansky. After Tony Pena grounded into a double play, scoring Oquendo, Magrane hit Drabek's first pitch into the left field seats.

Braves 6, Dodgers 3

Dale Murphy drove in five runs with a pair of homers and Pete Smith recorded his first victory since June 17.

Murphy hit a three-run homer off John Wetteland, 3-4, in the first inning.

The second homer came off reliever Tim Crews in the eighth.

Smith, 3-11, allowed two runs and five hits in five-plus innings.

Jeff Hamilton hit two solo homers for the Dodgers.

Angels win, retake AL West lead

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The California Angels see a change in Kirk McCaskill and he saw it, too. So for now, they lead the see-saw American League West.

McCaskill pitched seven strong innings Wednesday night as the Angels beat the Seattle Mariners 4-1.

McCaskill, slowed by injuries, won a total of two games after July in the 1987 and 1988 seasons. But he has already won twice this month, both against the Mariners.

"I'd gotten so frustrated by the whole process. It's pretty obvious when my arm feels good, and when it doesn't," McCaskill said. "I'm feeling pretty good now."

The Angels moved ahead of Oakland, which lost to Chicago 3-2 in 11 innings.

In other games, Minnesota trounced Baltimore 7-0, Texas got past Toronto 4-3, Cleveland beat New York 7-4, Boston defeated Kansas City 6-2 and Milwaukee downed Detroit 6-1.

White Sox 3, Athletics 2

Carlton Fisk singled home the winning run in the bottom of the 11th inning.

Jose Canseco, who did not start for the second straight day because of a strained quadriceps muscle, opened the Oakland ninth with a pinch-hit double. Ron Hassey singled home pinch runner Stan Javier to tie it.

With one out in the 11th, singles by Scott Fletcher and Ivan Calderon put runners at second and third. On a 3-0 count, Fisk singled off Jim Corsi, 0-2. Tom McCarthy, 1-1, got the victory.

Twins 7, Orioles 0

Allan Anderson, 13-9, scattered five singles in his first shutout since last Sept. 27.

Kent Hrbek hit a three-run double in the first inning against Mark Thurmond, 2-4. Brian Harper homered and doubled.

Rangers 4, Blue Jays 3

Harold Baines and Fred Manrique, each obtained in a recent trade with the White Sox, made contributions as Texas ended a four-game losing streak.

Baines hit his 15th home run of the season and his second for the Rangers. Manrique had a pair of RBI singles? Charlie Hough, 7-11, allowed three runs on five hits in six-plus innings. Jeff Russell worked the ninth for his 24th save.

Dave Stieb, making his first start since coming within one out of a perfect game against New York, fell to 11-7.

Red Sox 6, Royals 2

Mike Boddicker won his fifth straight decision.

Danny Heep hit a two-run homer and Nick Esasky got three hits for the Red Sox. George Brett and Kurt Stillwell homered for Kansas City.

Boddicker, 10-8, won for the sixth time in seven decisions. Luis Aquino, 6-6, took the loss.

Indians 7, Yankees 4

Brook Jacoby's two-run double put Cleveland ahead in the fifth inning and Joe Carter followed with his 22nd home run.

Rod Nichols, 3-1, won his third consecutive start. Steve Olin pitched two-hit relief for 3 1-3 innings.

Andy Hawkins, 13-11, gave up six runs and eight hits in 4 1-3 innings.

Brewers 6, Tigers 1

Mike Felder's first home run since 1987 broke an eighth-inning tie.

Felder's homer off Jack Morris, 2-9, put the Brewers ahead 2-1 and they scored four times in the ninth.

Jerry Reuss made his second start for Milwaukee since being acquired in a trade July 31

Chuck Crim, 8-5, relieved Reuss and went 1 2-3 innings for the victory. Dan Plesac got four outs for his 27th save.
