Weed district election is August 5

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

Deaf Smith County's rural voters will consider yet another tool in man's ongoing battle against weeds in an election slated for Aug. 5. The decision whether or not to form a Deaf Smith County Noxious Weed District will be made during that election.

The city of Hereford is not included in the boundaries of the proposed district, and city residents will not be voting in the election.

If the district is approved by voters, a board will be formed to administer the district. Deaf Smith County Commissioners will appoint the first board members to staggered terms with members to be elected thereafter.

The weed district board would determine the amount to be levied against agricultural land owners for the administration of the district. State law provides for a maximum of six cents per acre, per year. Deaf Smith County has approximately one million agricultural acres which could be subject to this weed district tax.

The tax would be intended for administration of the district, not for actual weed control.

Supporters of the district assert that efforts by individual land owners to control weeds have little long-term effect when adjacent land has weeds which are allowed to grow and make seed. These airborne seeds re-introduce the plants to weed-free areas.

Because of the widespread economic losses caused by weeds in Texas agriculture, the state legislature has provided for the formation of local noxious weed districts.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, pigweed alone costs the nation $801 million each year in agricultural losses. Pigweed is only one of the hundreds of varieties of undesirable weeds which plague agriculture in the county, the nation and the world.

Proponents of the district believe that a weed district will help to alleviate a major economic problem to local agriculture.

"Ideally, people should be responsible for their own (property), but it's not happening. It's a real burden for those who are trying to control weeds," one farmer said during a meeting with county commissioners last May.

In many instances, uncontrolled weeds are not on private property. The weeds that grow in public right-of-ways are an ongoing problem for agricultural weed control.

"We felt that 90 percent of the bindweed in the county was within 100 yards of a right-of-way," said John Herring, secretary of the board of directors for the Swisher County Noxious Weed District.

Swisher County residents approved their weed district two years ago, and the district is still in the early stages of county-wide weed control.

Herring said that a major benefit to the formation of a weed district is enforcement of weed control along public right-of-ways.

"Because we've got the district, we can force the county, state and railroad to do something," Herring said.

J.B. Caraway, who farms near Dawn, feels that the same could be true for Deaf Smith County if a district is formed.

"The right-of-ways are the ones to start with. Let us (the farmers) work from there," Caraway said.

Although the Swisher County Weed District is still in its infancy, Herring indicates that positive results are already apparent.

"I can see some difference. I really can," Herring said.

Randall County Judge Charles Purcell also reports positive results from the noxious weed district there. The Randall County district has been in place for 12 years.

"There's no way you're going to eliminate bindweed, but it does help limit its growth," Judge Purcell said.

Weed control as enforced by a weed district means a substantial cost to a county as weeds are sprayed along county roads.

"It (the cost) is pretty trivial when you look at the weed problem we have," Judge Purcell said.

If the Deaf Smith County weed district is approved, it could mean a substantial investment from the already strained county budget.

An estimated $100 per mile of county road would be needed to control weeds. County Commissioner Austin Rose Jr. estimated that half of the 1,300 miles of county road would need to be treated for weeds. Based on these estimates, a total of $65,000 would be required to implement a comprehensive weed control program along county roads.

"We do that (weed control) now, but not nearly to that great an extent," said County Judge Tom Simons.

Supporters feel that improved income to the area from increased crop production would exceed the expense incurred in wide-spread weed control.

In a bindweed?

J.B. Caraway studies a patch of bindweed which he is currently attempting to eradicate from land he farms near Dawn. Bindweed is a widespread problem across Deaf Smith County, and is a major motivating factor in calling for an election to form a noxious weed district in the county. The election is slated for Aug. 5.

Former resident held for murder License motto flap continues

A man is being held on murder charges in Hockley County Jail in Levelland after he allegedly shot and killed his brother early Monday in Anton.

Billy Wilson, 30, is being held in lieu of $20,000 bond after he was arraigned by District Judge James Walker on charges that he murdered his brother, Bobby Wilson, 29.

The Wilsons had grown up in Hereford, and funeral services for Bobby Wilson are pending with Gililand-Watson Funeral Home of Hereford.

According to reports, Billy Wilson and two other men were going from Lubbock to Anton when the vehicle in which they were riding, belonging to the Wilsons' mother, ran out of fuel. While Billy Wilson started walking to Anton for more fuel, the other two men were reported to have hitched a ride with a man driving a pickup. Those two men allegedly assaulted the pickup driver and abandoned the pickup on railroad tracks alongside U.S. Highway 84, where the pickup was later struck by a train.

Billy and Bobby Wilson went back to their mother's vehicle, refueled it and drove it back to Anton, there, they heard reports about the incident with the pickup, which reportedly angered Bobby Wilson.

Billy Wilson is alleged to have gone into their mother's house and returned with a .22-caliber rifle. He allegedly shot his brother one time in the left side with the rifle.

AUSTIN (AP) - The controversy over printing "The Friendship State" on Texas license plates has grown so hot, even gubernatorial candidates are speaking out on the issue.

Resident urges calls

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor
A plan to put "The Friendship State" on Texas' new license plates has met the wrath of many Texas drivers.

The plan for the new plates was recently approved by the board of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The board, in its original explanation, said the word "Texas," from which Texas is derived, means "friendship."

Two Democrats and a Republican weighed in Tuesday, with two votes against and one call for a public referendum.

"It's wimpy," said Democratic State Treasurer Ann Richards, who

"When I first saw it, I thought, 'Well why would we want to do that?'" Ms. Richards said. "Obviously, it's not an earth-shattering decision. But I think 'The Lone Star State' has served us well."

The new slogan has generated hundreds of phone calls from Texans outraged over the idea, many of whom have suggested replacing the current sloganless plates with those bearing the "Lone Star" nickname.

Opposition was bipartisan. Jack Rains, the former secretary of state who launched his Republican gubernatorial bid Tuesday, said he didn't like the friendship slogan, either.

"I kind of like the Lone Star State," Rains said. "The rest of that stuff looked a little quiche and chablis to me."

Attorney General Jim Mattox, who's raising money for the Democratic gubernatorial primary, had a different idea.

"Let's have all the daily newspapers around the state run ballots that the public can fill out and mail in," he said, adding that the ballots could offer several options for the slogan.

"That way, we wouldn't have to go through an expensive ballot proposition of having the public actually vote on the matter, but the people would have the decision-making in their hands," Mattox said.

Ms. Richards said she agrees with those who say "friendship" is too generic a term for Texas.

House readies Bush B-2 attack Embassy security gets scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Democratic-controlled House is launching a budget-slashing attack against the stealth bomber, saying the radar-evading aircraft is too expensive.

Deep cuts by the House in the stealth program would set up an eventual conflict with the Senate, which voted 98-1 Tuesday to back the $500 million B-2 bomber if it meets flight test and radar-evasion standards.

The Senate amendment trimmed President Bush's $2.1 billion stealth request by a relatively modest $300 million, a reduction already endorsed by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Meanwhile, the House, clearly in a budget-cutting mood, voted Tuesday to reduce by nearly $2 billion Bush's $4.9 billion request for Star Wars.

The House scheduled votes on three alternatives for the future of the stealth program. The first would accept an $800 million cut; made by the House Armed Services Committee.

A second would scrap the program after this year, allowing only the 13 bombers already in production to be completed. That would represent a $40 billion cut in anticipated total spending.

A third amendment, which House Speaker Thomas Foley said will likely prevail, calls on the administration to propose a cheaper program than the Bush administration's $70 billion plan to build 132 stealth bombers. It would limit the number of planes built to two bombers in 1990 and 1991 instead of the eight sought by the administration.

The House also was to consider amendments to eliminate the MX mobile missile and the competing single-warhead Midgetman missile, both of which are supported by the White House.

Rep. John Rowland, R-Conn., said lobbying by the White House, the Air Force and Northrop Corp., manufacturer of the stealth, has diminished chances that the program will be scuttled.

"It's tough when the president weighs in," Rowland said, adding that he is counting on only 130 to 140 votes in the 435-member House on his bill to scrap the stealth.

National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft told senators in a letter Tuesday that cuts in the stealth program could undermine progress in hammering out a strategic arms reduction treaty with Moscow.

Delaying the program "would seriously undermine our capability to negotiate from a position of strength," Scowcroft said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government has ignored its own warnings to improve defenses against spies, the Senate Intelligence Committee says in a report that comes as embassy security undergoes new scrutiny in the Felix S. Bloch espionage case.

In unusually harsh language, the committee said "bureaucratic infighting" has paralyzed the new Security Evaluation Office, established last year under CIA Director William Webster to bolster anti-spy efforts at U.S. embassies around the world.

"It has failed to achieve its objectives," the panel said in an assessment written before last week's public revelation that Bloch, once the No. 2 official at the U.S. Embassy in Vienna, was under investigation for allegedly passing secrets to the Soviet Union. Ranking committee members had been informed of the Bloch case, absent his name, in late June.

While the report deals mainly with technological efforts to thwart spying at U.S. posts abroad, it highlights the State Department's longstanding reputation among intelligence professionals for giving short shrift to security.

The panel noted, for example, that the State Department has failed to create a top-level office for a director of diplomatic security, despite the administration's own recommendation for such a position following a series of studies ending in 1987.

But several former diplomats and counterintelligence officials said in interviews Tuesday that the department has tried to improve anti-spy efforts.

James Nolan, the recently retired head of the department's Office of Foreign Missions and longtime deputy FBI counterintelligence chief, said several FBI experts have been hired by the department.

And George A. Carver, Jr., who was deputy for national intelligence for two CIA directors, said "one of the toughest things to do is have counterintelligence in an open society. I'm not suggesting we become a police state, but I think we do need to review our policies."

Carver supports lie detector tests for foreign service officers, like those given regularly to intelligence officers.

Since the "year of the spy" in 1985, when 12 Americans were arrested for spying, espionage cases have "not abated, either in terms of their number or their seriousness," the Senate committee said.

In a bill authorizing intelligence activities for the two years beginning Oct. 1, the panel has mandated that the FBI be given primary responsibility for investigating spying by anyone associated with the U.S. government.

The move follows criticism of the Naval Investigative Service's initial investigation of reports that Marine security guards at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow let Soviet agents roam the building after hours.

Bloch was suspended with pay and his State Department clearance lifted on June 22, but government sources said he had been tipped earlier by the Soviet KGB spy agency that he was under surveillance.

Congressional intelligence officials, who declined to be identified by name, said Tuesday it is odd that the government has not yet been able to pull together enough information to arrest the diplomat.

Ranking members of the congressional intelligence committees typically are briefed about such cases only when an arrest is likely within hours or days. In the Bloch case, such briefings took place roughly a month ago.

The Senate committee last week cut the Bush administration's request for the Security Evaluation Office from $9 million to $4.5 million "because of lack of cooperation demonstrated by both State Department and the intelligence community." The money will be restored if the organizations can learn to work together, it said.

Trio charged with selling bogus juice

Millions of cases sold to unsuspecting customers

CHICAGO (AP) - A company sold millions of cases of orange juice as 100 percent pure but had substituted beet sugar, waste water and other products in violation of federal law, the government said in an indictment.

The government said those substitutes accounted for 15 percent to 40 percent of the orange juice concentrate sold by the now defunct Bondine's Inc. of Chicago from 1978 to 1985.

The federal indictment announced Tuesday charges two former owners and a top executive of the orange juice company with conspiracy.

The indictment cites 18 instances in which beet sugar, corn sugar, monosodium glutamate, grapefruit solids and other substitutes were used in the orange juice concentrate in violation of the federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, said U.S. Attorney Anton Valukas.

The company increased its annual sales from $5 million to $100 million over the same period, the indictment said. About the same time, concentrated orange juice solid cost $1.29 per pound, compared with 29 cents a pound for beet sugar.

The Food and Drug Administration began its probe of the company in the early 1980s, after a customer suffered a negative reaction to the sugar content in a can of juice, Valukas said.

Between 1983 and 1985, about 7 million cases of products were produced for sale nationwide to more than 150 supermarket chains and wholesalers under 50 different labels. Among the best know labels were Scot Brand, Heritage House and Red Owl.

"There are no allegations that consumers were at risk as a result of the substitutions ... even though they used, at times, the waste water stream from a distillation system," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Pierre Talbert. "Obviously, though, they were able to undersell their competition."

Named in the indictment were Bondine's former owners, Edward Boden Sr. and Edward Boden Jr., both of Chicago; and Roger Walsh Jr., formerly vice president of finance and now a Texas resident. If convicted, all three face a maximum of 57 years in prison and $4.75 million in fines.

Roger Walsh Sr., a former chief executive officer of Bondine's who held a 20 percent share of the company, also was named as an unindicted co-conspirator.

The manufacturing operation, located on the city's West Side, was sold in 1985 to McCain OJ Inc. Talbert said McCain was not connected to the scheme alleged in the indictment.

Kiwanian of the Month

Bill Bankston, left, receives congratulations from Hereford Noon Kiwanis' President Darwin McGill after Bankston was named Kiwanian of the Month at a recent meeting. Bankston was honored for his work in helping distribute flags throughout the city on holidays and other special occasions.

Pilot says he's 'no hero'

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP) - A United Airlines pilot declared "there is no hero" in the fiery DC-10 crash in which survivors outnumbered fatalities, and conceded he learned a new way of flying in the final minutes of Flight 232.

"It was just a group of four people who did their job," said Capt. Al Haynes, in his first public comments since the July 19 crash. "It was an unusual circumstance but we put our best resources and knowledge together and did what we felt was best."

Haynes said the flight crew never doubted the stricken jetliner would make it to Sioux Gateway Airport, where the jetliner crash-landed short of a runway, flipped and broke apart. Of the 296 aboard, 185 people survived.

"We must not forget that 111 people perished in this accident. This crew ... is dedicated to finding the cause of this accident so we can maybe never have it happen again," said Haynes, a 33-year United pilot.

Later, he and his wife, Darlene, flew home to Seattle to applause and hugs from family and neighbors outside their small yellow house a few blocks east of Seattle-Tacoma International Airport.

"It's just great to be home," the 57-year-old pilot told a crowd of reporters outside. "If you can give me a few days, maybe we can all get together and talk about this."

United spokesman Rob Doughty said, however, it might be a month or more before the crew would give any interviews.

At Tuesday's news conference, Haynes said he heard a "very loud report" as the DC-10 flew over northwest Iowa on a flight from Denver to Philadelphia via Chicago. He immediately began shutting down the jetliner's No. 2 tail-mounted engine.

"It was very shortly after this that we realized we had more than just an engine failure," said Haynes. "It was apparent to us that we had lost all of our hydraulic fluid."

When he asked flight engineer Dudley Dvorak "for the procedure for that, he said there isn't one. So we made it up as we went along," Haynes said.

The hydraulic systems allow pilots to set key wing and tail panels that control the DC-10's altitude and direction. Without them, the pilot has little control over the airplane other than his throttles.

Aviation experts have credited Haynes with keeping the craft aloft until he reached the airport, where hundreds of emergency workers were waiting.

Asked about passengers who characterized him as a hero, Haynes said: "I'm not so sure I know how

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I constantly clip recipes and enjoy experimenting with all the new ones. One problem that I come across is recipes that list ingredients by their can size instead of the can weight.

One recipe I would like to try says to use a No. 303 can of peaches. I have no idea what this means! Can you please give a list of some of the different size cans and what the can weight actually is. — Susan Bischoff, Houston, Texas

Sure can!

No. 1 can equals 10 to 12 ounces.
No. 300 can equals 14 to 16 ounces.
No. 1/2 or No. 303 can equals 1 pound, 17 ounces.

No. 2 can equals 1 pound, 4 ounces or 1 pint, 2 fluid ounces.
No. 2 1/2 can equals 1 pound, 12 ounces to 1 pound, 14 ounces.

No. 3 can equals 3 pounds, 3 ounces or 1 quart, 14 ounces.
No. 10 can equals 6 pounds, 2 ounces or 7 pounds, 5 ounces.

This should help you buy the correct amounts you need. Clip it and put it in your cookbook for a handy reference. Bon appetit! — Heloise

LEFTOVER ROAST

Dear Heloise: When I have leftover roast I like to grind it up and make patties, but I could never get the last little bit of meat out of the grinder.

Now the last thing that I grind is a slice of bread. All the meat comes out and I simply wash out the remaining bread. Sure is a time- and frustration-saver for me. — Betty Allen, Atlanta, Ga.

PITTING CHERRIES

Dear Heloise: In pitting cherries, I have found that using the round tip of a potato peeler works very well to lift the pit and still leave the cherry whole. — Mrs. Wendell Abbott, Decatur, Ind.

You're right — it works great! Did you know that you can also use the potato peeler to hull strawberries and even use it to grate cheese?

Versatile item, isn't it? — Heloise

AVOCADO PIT STARTER

Dear Heloise: I, too, have planted avocado pits and in fact have a tree that I grew that reached the height of 12 feet.

I have also always placed them broad side down. However, there is one important thing I want to add. The first shoot must be cut back when it reaches about 6 inches. It should be snipped to 2-3 inches — and to this day this is a hard thing for me to do. If you don't snip it, you will end up with a tall, spindly plant. — Susan Speert, Bellaire, Texas

You are so right! This is a very important step. We must have accidentally left it out. I too hate to attack my plants with the pruning shears, but thanks so much for reminding us and all the future avocado growers. — Heloise

HOT DOGS

Dear Heloise: I love hot dogs and would like to share one of my favorite ways to fix them. I top my hot dog with Cheddar cheese and crisp bacon. It is simply delicious! — R. N., New York, N.Y.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am responding to "My Name Is Legion," who complained bitterly about comments regarding her weight.

Legion, you are 100 percent right. Comments don't help. However, they have only as much power as you are willing to give them.

Comments aren't sending you to the bakery. You are going there all by yourself. And if the fortress of fat you have built around yourself actually worked, you would not need to keep building it up with all those pastries.

How do I know? Firsthand experience.

Five years ago I could have written that letter. I, too, was fed up with the comments. Then the comments stopped. I thought, "Well, they finally got the message—either you can accept me as I am or you can forget me." They forgot me.

Time marched on with only me for company. All 210 pounds worth. I began to realize how fortunate I was that so many people had cared about me when I didn't care about myself. Regardless of how clumsily they expressed it, they really cared. I reacted by being hostile.

Slowly the truth dawned. I was a compulsive eater. I looked in the mirror and saw a woman who didn't think much of herself. I became angry. It doesn't matter how I lost the weight.

Weight loss for me was the result of learning how to live without relying on food to get through the day. I got counseling. I struggled. I grew up and stopped blaming other people for my unhappiness.

As a child, I learned to overeat so I could numb out feelings that arose from situations I had no control over. In those days, food saved my life.

Now I am an adult and I have choices. Life is still difficult, but I wouldn't go back to where I was for all the cheesecake in New York.

So, hang in there, Legion. You are angry. That's a good sign. There is hope.

It's your choice. I'm praying for you.—Been There in L.A.

Caldwell family reunion held recently in Hereford

The family of the late Charley and Kate Caldwell held a reunion recently in the American Legion Hall in Hereford.

Serving as hosts to the 35 relatives present were Gussie Cudd, Sammye Caldwell and Clinton and Squeak Roberson.

The weekend event began Friday,

July 21, with an afternoon spent visiting and playing games. Saturday morning, relatives visited their former home places in Hereford and then met at the Hall for a picnic lunch. Saturday evening, the group ate a barbecue meal cooked by Bobby Owen. After the dinner, Clinton Roberson, who served as emcee, opened the program by singing several comical songs and playing the ukulele.

Also, during the program, Roberson awarded several special gifts to the following people: Pete Caldwell, oldest man present; Eunice Boyer, oldest woman; Kallie Booker, youngest girl; Hunter Harrison, youngest boy; and Diane Roberson, who traveled the farthest.

Other entertainment included the "Old Crow" quartet singing "The Bull Dog on the Bank"; Beverly and Angie Allen presenting comical commercials; and Diane Roberson singing "Give Me Jesus."

Jaunita Mae Booker presented a special memorial to the family.

Betty Owen served as emcee for the win-lose-or-draw game. The reunion closed with a sing-along.

Those in attendance included Pete and Lelia Caldwell, Bobby and Bettye Owen and Cecil and Eunice Boyer, all of Hereford; Barbara and Ryan Etherley, Paris, Texas; Scott, Brenda, Hall and Hunter Harrison, Cleburn; Aaron, Becky, Kyle and Nicole, Lubbock; John and Greg Caldwell, Fort Worth; C.E. Roberson, El Paso; Joe and Gussie Cudd, Carrollton; Dave, Beverley and Angie Allen, Abilene; Diane Roberson, Austin; Sammye Caldwell, Lancaster; Don, Jaunita Mae and Kallie Booker, Henrietta; David, Paula, Matt and Dorsie Caldwell, Carrollton; and Richie and Beth Haschki, Arlington.

DEAR BEEN THERE: Nobody could have written that letter but a person who has been there. Thanks for telling it like it is.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read in your column about the woman who had an affair with a married man and came out of it with nothing while the wife was sitting pretty.

A number of years ago I met a man who was allowed in his wife's bedroom by appointment only. We fell in love and had many happy years together. Of course, I was hoping for marriage, but I was willing to settle for less if I had to, provided the financial benefits were good enough. They were. My lover bought me expensive gifts. He helped pay for my car. He bought me clothes and jewelry. My telephone credit card was in his name. With his cash gifts, I was able to build up a very nice bank account.

The love affair is over but he still phones to see if everything is OK. Maybe someday we will be together. In the meantime, I have beautiful memories and a stack of love letters that I read over and over.

Of course I get lonely at times, but I'd say I got the best of the deal. Sign me — Moncton

DEAR MONCTON: You think so? I'd say he got the best deal. He kept his marriage together, fooled around with you on the side, and now his wife has him, his name, respectability, and you have old letters and lots of memories. Wake up, Toots.

Westway reunion set Sunday

The 30th Annual Westway Reunion is planned for Sunday in the Westway Community Center beginning around 11 a.m.

All former and current residents of the community are urged to attend.

Those planning to participate in the day's activities are asked to bring a basket lunch. Drinks and breads will be furnished.

The first Westway Reunion was held on the wedding anniversary of Leta Kaul and her husband, the late Merlin Kaul, in 1959. Since Mrs. Kaul has served as historian for 30 years, she will be displaying three large community scrapbooks. Also, exhibited will be recent pictures of Westway Community residents and the Westway School flag.

A short program is on the reunion's agenda. Also, special recognition will be given to the oldest and youngest persons in attendance and those who have traveled the longest distance.

An honorary mayor will be named to succeed Oleta Houser, 1988 honoree.

Blood drive today

A blood drive is being held today, Wednesday, from 4-8 p.m. at the Community Center.

"We would like to see as much support as we had during last month's drive when we collected 61 pints," said Carol Kelley, who serves as co-chairman of the event along with Mildred Fuhrmann.

The blood drive is sponsored by the blood drive committee of the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County chamber of Commerce.

Rookie Johnston making impression

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Daryl Johnston rolls into right guard, breaks three tackles, and is finally bulldogged down from behind. Who is this guy wearing No. 38 in the Dallas Cowboys' uniform, Larry Csonka reincarnate? John Wooten, who has recently replaced Gil Brandt as the Cowboys' scouting director, says Johnston just might be another Csonka, the former All-Pro for the Miami Dolphins. Wooten says of his second round draft pick from Syracuse: "He reminds you of Csonka (who also played at Syracuse) because the first or second guy seldom takes him down." Johnston also has impressed with his blocking ability and pass catching in early Cowboys' training camp drills. "He blocks extremely well, in fact, he takes a lot of pride in it," Wooten said. During his career at Syracuse, Johnston once broke eight tackles in making a 19-yard touchdown run against West Virginia. "He just moves you back when he runs," Wooten said. Johnston is the highest Syracuse running back drafted since Csonka was selected by the Miami Dolphins in the first round in 1968. Johnston, who rushed for 645 yards and scored five touchdowns last year for the Orangemen, is expected to take some of the load off running back Herschel Walker. "We didn't just draft him to be a big old fat guard in the backfield," said running back coach Joe Brodsky. "We think he can be an offensive threat." Johnston's pass receiving has caught the eye of coach Jimmy

Johnston. "He has shown outstanding hands and to be honest I didn't know he could catch the ball like he does," Johnston said. "I think ole DJ has a realistic chance at winning a starting job." Veteran Timmy Newsome returns along with Darryl Clack and Todd Fowler. Newsome is a good receiver but somewhat slow on runs and just an average blocker. "We felt fullback was one of the major needs coming in," Cowboys' offensive coordinator David Shula said. "We have some age in there and we need to upgrade that position." Johnston said he knows a lot is being expected of him. "I guess I'm a throwback to fullbacks years ago," he said. "I'm the old style fullback, straight ahead runner, and a blocker. But I also have another weapon because I can catch the ball." Johnston averaged 11.8 yards per catch his senior year when he caught 22 passes for 259 yards. Under Johnston, the Miami Hurricanes made fullback a key part of the offense, using Melvin Bratton and Cleveland Gary in the passing game. "Daryl is a physical, bottom line player," Johnston said. "He might be better than Melvin and Cleveland catching the ball. Whatever, Daryl gets the job done. He's effective and I like what I see." The Cowboys could start the 1989 season with two rookies in the backfield--Troy Aikman at quarterback and Johnston at fullback.

NFL quarterback derby underway

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer
SMITHFIELD, R.I. (AP) - Ah, the life of the pro quarterback. In the limelight. In control of the offense. Insecure. Doug Flutie won six of the nine games he started last year for New England. What did that get him? A demotion to second string with the Patriots. Marc Wilson won 62 percent of the games he started in eight years with the Raiders in Oakland and Los Angeles. His reward? Continual battles for the starting spot. Winning isn't everything. Not if you're a quarterback. Not if you want a steady job. Now Flutie and Wilson are teammates. Flutie is the backup to Tony Eason. Wilson is trying to make the Patriots as a free agent after sitting out last season. For all their accomplishments, questions remain after all these years. Is Flutie tall enough or skillful enough to be a successful starter year after year in the NFL? And could Wilson, who endured constant duels with Jim Plunkett for the starting role, win the big game? "It was never a settled situation and that was always disturbing for me," Wilson said. "When you play with a high-profile team that has a lot of talent, unless you win the Super Bowl they always doubt whether you're a winner or not. We won two Super Bowls while I was there." But he didn't play in them.

Plunkett did. After eight years, Wilson asked the Raiders to release him even though he had just finished perhaps his best season. "I just kind of felt it was time to move on," he said. He tried out last summer with Green Bay but lasted less than two months and was cut before the season. Now, still only 32, the tall, mobile quarterback with a strong arm and impressive statistics is giving football another shot. Probably his last. Flutie's future is more promising. He had a 6-3 record, but Eason took over as the starter for the last two games in 1988 after an arm injury subsided. Until Flutie puts a couple of strong seasons together, questions about whether the 1984 Heisman Trophy winner can succeed in the NFL will linger. "You read it every week in the paper," he said. "Let them write what they want to write and talk about what they want to talk about. I don't care." "They'll say it until the day I retire and then they'll say I told you so, no matter what I do." The college hero who was supposed to be the savior of the USFL when he joined the New Jersey Generals in 1985 seems more content with his status than he was last year, when he was hoping simply to make the Patriots' roster, or the two years before that during his stormy stay with the Chicago Bears.

Now his roster spot seems secure. The media attention has decreased. But its doubtful the little giant from Boston College, whose wild scrambles and last-second heroics thrilled a nation of football fans, ever will be considered just another player. "People in this area still seem to have a real interest in anything that Doug Flutie does," he said. "You want people to be concerned about what happens to you. The day you don't care is the day you're starting to go downhill." Flutie, with his third pro team in five years, is happy to be in his home area but would be happier as a starter. Wilson, with his third pro team in two years, is happy for another chance but would be happier if he made the Patriots. Richard Wood, New England's quarterbacks coach, should know how they feel. First he was a backup to Johnny Unitas. Then he started for the New York Jets for two years but was traded when they drafted Joe Namath. "I never even got a chance to compete for the job," he said. In his seven-year NFL career, Wood was a perennial job-seeker. He played for Baltimore, San Diego, Denver, the Jets, Oakland and Miami. "I went all over. You keep going as long as you can take it," he said. "Nobody said it would be easy."

Oilers sign Munchak, still waiting for Rozier

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers said Tuesday they have agreed to terms with veteran guard Mike Munchak on a three-year contract, reportedly worth nearly $2 million. Munchak, 29, a four-time Pro Bowler, is entering his eighth year with the Oilers. The 6-3, 280-pound lineman was Houston's first-round pick and the eighth pick overall in 1982, and has started in 85 of his 86 games with the team. The contract agreement, which has not yet been signed, came a day after Oilers owner K.S. "Bud" Adams issued an ultimatum regarding contract holdout Mike Rozier, the team's top running back. Adams said Monday that the current contract offer would be withdrawn if Rozier did not accept it and report to training camp by Friday. Rozier, who has played in two Pro Bowls, reportedly has been offered a deal worth $5.45 million and would make him one of the six highest-paid running backs in the NFL with an $850,000 salary for the 1989 season.

Ryan's 14 K's not enough for Texas

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Nolan Ryan's curve ball against the Toronto Blue Jays was so good it was almost uncatchable, Texas Rangers catcher Chad Kreuter said.

The result was a 4-0 Toronto victory Tuesday night despite a club record 18 strikeouts by Ryan and two Texas relievers.

Ryan's curve ball was breaking so sharply that the Blue Jays twice made it to first after strikeouts -- once on a passed ball and once on a wild pitch.

Kreuter was knocking down pitches all night, and the Blue Jays exploited the situation with four easy stolen bases.

"I did my job. He (Ryan) threw 10 or 12 pitches in the dirt. I blocked all of them. One got away where I couldn't find it," Kreuter said.

"His curve ball was unbelievable. If he wanted to strike out a guy at 0-2 or 1-2, he'd throw the curve in the dirt. It starts out waist high, and it's strike three," Kreuter said.

Toronto scored a run in the first inning even though Ryan didn't allow a hit or a walk. Centerfielder Cecil Espy dropped Junior Felix's pop fly for a two-base error, and Felix later scored on what would have been the third out when Kreuter let a strikeout pitch get away from him.

Ryan, 11-6, struck out 14, one short of his Rangers' club record, in six innings. But Toronto's Dave Stieb, 10-6, and two relievers combined for a 4-hitter that kept Texas at bay.

Duane Ward pitched the final 1 2-3 innings to get his 11th save.

The Blue Jays got two runs off four scattered hits Ryan gave up through six innings, then drove him from the game with Kelly Gruber's leadoff single in the seventh and George Bell's RBI double.

"Nolan always pitches well, and Dave pitched well tonight. Ward did an outstanding job. There was some good pitching on both sides," Toronto manager Cito Gaston said.

With the victory, the Blue Jays moved to within 4 1-2 games of Baltimore in the American League East.

"The bullpen pitched better. We're starting to get key hits, and we're playing better defense. We're just generally more consistent," Gaston added.

Texas manager Bobby Valentine came to Kreuter's defense.

"Ryan's breaking ball and change were really going down. I thought Chad did a yeoman's job. Those were tough pitches," Valentine said.

The Rangers threatened in the bottom of the first, when Scott Fletcher's single and Rafael Palmeiro's double put runners at second and third with one out. But Ruben Sierra's line drive was right at second baseman Nelson Liriano for a double play.

The Rangers got only two more hits the rest of the evening -- a single in the eighth and a single in the ninth, both off Ward.

"Things didn't go right at the beginning, and we turned flat. Everybody but Nolan," Valentine added.

"Seems like we couldn't put the hits together. We got a runner on second and third, and we hit a line drive to second base for the double play. That's two runs if it's either side of him or a little higher," Valentine said.

Asked if he would have thought Toronto could have won a game in which Ryan struck out 14, Gruber said: "Absolutely not. We didn't win it in a pretty way. But anyone you can beat a Nolan Ryan, you take it any way you can."

The victory evened Toronto's record at 50-50.

"We feel we're within catching distance," Blue Jays catcher Ernie Whitt said. "It's nice to be at .500. It's a starting point. To be 4 1-2 games out after playing so poorly is a definite plus."

Los Angeles thrashes Astros, 6-0

HOUSTON (AP) - Tim Belcher had some bad memories of his last appearance on the pitcher's mound at the Astrodome as he took a 2-0 lead into the ninth inning against the Houston Astros.

But the Dodgers scored four runs in the ninth inning to take a 6-0 victory over the Astros Tuesday night.

Belcher had last pitched in Houston on June 4 as the Dodgers held a 6-0 lead late in the game, but fell to a miracle comeback by the Astros, who fashioned a 7-6 victory in 13 innings.

"To tell you the truth, it was darn nice to get those four runs. You don't have to have much of a memory to know what the Astros did to me the last time we were in here," Belcher said.

It was the fourth complete game of the year for Belcher, 7-9, and his fourth career shutout. He struck out nine, walked five and allowed only five hits.

"What really pleases me is that I was able to move the ball around effectively when I had to," said Belcher. "The Astros really missed some good pitches to hit. I had 2-0 counts many times, and they popped the ball up and least three times for crucial outs."

"Tim has been consistent all year. He has had only one or two bad innings," said Dodgers catcher Mike Scioscia. "We just haven't scored runs for him."

Belcher worked his way out of trouble in the third and seventh innings when the Astros loaded the bases.

In the third inning, Belcher struck out Perry Puhl and got Ken Caminiti on a ground ball and in the seventh coaxed a foul pop fly from Bill Doran.

"When he (Belcher) has it going, he is a quality pitcher. He has a great arm and great stuff," said Doran. "Tonight he shut us down when he had to."

The Dodgers took the lead for good in the sixth inning off Astros starter and loser Rick Rhoden, 0-3, on a walk to Kal Daniels, a stolen base by Daniels, an intentional walk to Franklin Stubbs, and consecutive run-scoring singles by Jeff Hamilton and Scioscia.

Rhoden was making his first start for the Astros since going on the disabled list May 4 with a rib injury and allowed two runs on six hits, walking two, and striking out one.

But the outing was still encouraging for Rhoden and the Astros.

"I didn't have much to work with tonight, and they eventually caught up with me," said Rhoden. "My fast ball was not that good, so I had to throw off-speed pitches, but for what I had to work with I did pretty good."

Rhoden's performance was pleasing to manager Art Howe.

"He threw as well as we can expect," said Howe. "The two hits in the sixth inning just found holes in the defense and we had to get him out of there because we were down two runs to a good pitcher in Belcher."

The Dodgers added four insurance runs in the ninth inning off Astros reliever Danny Darwin highlighted by RBI singles by Lenny Harris and Jose Gonzalez and a two-run double by pinch hitter Mickey Hatcher.

Orioles continue slide, lose to Twins

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

One victory short of last year's total, the Baltimore Orioles are playing like it's 1988 again.

The Orioles lost their sixth straight game Tuesday night and saw their American League East lead grow even smaller, falling to the Minnesota Twins 9-3.

"We're hurting ourselves three ways. We're not pitching well, we're not fielding well and we're not hitting well," Manager Frank Robinson said. "We're just not doing anything."

"We're still in first place," losing pitcher Dave Schmidt said. "We had hoped to play .600 ball the second half of the season, but we're playing teams for the second time now. They know we're for real and it's tough. But we have to be tough, too."

In other games, Toronto beat Texas 4-0, California defeated Oakland 4-0, New York stopped Cleveland 5-1, Boston routed Kansas City 10-0, Chicago stopped Seattle 7-6 and Detroit downed Milwaukee 7-2.

The Orioles, the top fielding team in the majors, caused their own problems at the Metrodome. Two errors in the first inning led to two runs, and the Twins broke it open in the fifth with four runs for a 7-1 lead.

Kirby Puckett homered and drove in four runs and Allan Anderson, 10-9, ended his five-game losing streak.

Anderson led the league in earned-run average last season, but had a 7.94 ERA since his last victory on June 25. He gave up three runs on seven hits in 6 1-3 innings. Mark Guthrie, making his major-league debut, and Randy St. Claire finished with three-hit relief.

Angels 4, Athletics 0
Chuck Finley and Greg Minton outdueled Dave Stewart.

Jack Howell, Chili Davis and Dick Schofield hit solo home runs. Finley, 12-6, gave up six hits in 7 2-3 innings. Minton got Terry Steinbach to ground out to end the eighth and then finished his sixth save.

Stewart, 14-6, failed to become the AL's first 15-game winner.

Yankees 5, Indians 1

Andy Hawkins pitched a five-hitter and New York ended a seven-game losing streak.

Steve Sax got four hits and stole three bases and Jesse Barfield and Don Mattingly hit solo home runs off Greg Swindell, 13-3.

Hawkins, 12-9, allowed just an earned run.

Red Sox 10, Royals 0

Wade Boggs got three doubles and a triple, the first four extra-base hit game of his career, and Mike Boddicker extended his scoreless inning streak to 24.

Boggs went 4-for-5 and raised his average to .330. The Red Sox had 16 hits, including a season-high eight for extra bases.

Boddicker, 9-7, scattered nine singles and won his fifth consecutive decision. Charlie Leibrandt, 5-10, allowed six runs in the second inning.

White Sox 7, Mariners 6

Ozzie Guillen scored the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning on a double play.

Guillen opened the eighth with a double against Mike Jackson, 3-5, and took third on Dave Gallagher's bunt single. Guillen scored as the Mariners turned a double play on Steve Lyons' grounder.

Donn Pall, 3-1, was the winner and Bobby Thigpen got his 20th save.

Tigers 7, Brewers 2

Doyle Alexander and Detroit each ended six-game losing streaks by winning at Milwaukee.

Fred Lynn's three-run homer in the first inning helped the Tigers win for just the third time in 19 games.

Alexander, 5-10, gave up one earned run in seven innings.

Don August, 9-9, allowed seven runs in four-plus innings.

Langston, Expos hold Phillies, 2-0

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

National League batters should be relieved to know that Mark Langston doesn't try for strikeouts.

"I'm not concentrating on getting strikeouts, I'm just thinking about getting ahead of hitters and us winning," Langston said after fanning 10 while pitching a five-hitter in leading the Montreal Expos to a 2-0 victory Tuesday night over the Philadelphia Phillies. "If the strikeouts come, that's extra."

They've been coming in bunches lately for the three-time American League strikeout king who has been terrorizing the NL since his acquisition from the Seattle Mariners on May 25. The 28-year-old left-hander, who has fanned 23 in his last two starts, has 102 strikeouts in 94 1-3 innings.

Langston reached double figures in strikeouts for Montreal for the fifth time. He did it once before the Mariners traded him.

Langston, 8-3, is a rarity, a pitcher who actually prefers to work in close games.

"It's not that I don't like the high-scoring games, but in close ones you tend to concentrate more and make more of your pitches count," he said.

Elsewhere, it was San Diego 6, Cincinnati 2; Los Angeles 6, Houston 0; Pittsburgh 4, New York 2; San Francisco 5, Atlanta 4, and Chicago 4, St. Louis 2.

Tim Lincecum's second-inning homer made a loser of Don Carman, 2-11.

Padres 6, Reds 2

Cincinnati's ninth straight defeat matched its longest losing streak in three years.

San Diego's Ed Whitson, 14-6, tied a career-high for victories.

Garry Templeton singled home two runs and Shawn Abner hit a three-run homer as the Padres broke a four-game losing streak.

With the Reds leading 2-0, Roberto Alomar opened the fourth against Tom Browning, 7-10, with a double and scored on Jack Clark's single. Chris James followed with a single and both advanced on Benito Santiago's fly out. Templeton singled to center for a 3-2 lead.

Pirates 4, Mets 2

Bobby Bonilla singled to break a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning as Pittsburgh took advantage of a key walk and an error.

Rick Aguilera, 6-4, relieved to start the eighth and walked Barry Bonds with one out. Jose Lind singled for his second hit in 39 at-bats and Andy Van Slyke flied out.

Bonilla worked the count to 3-2, fouled off a pitch and grounded a single just to the left of diving second baseman Gregg Jefferies.

Doug Drabek, 8-7, won for the third time in four starts.

Cubs 4, Cardinals 2

Winning pitcher Paul Kilgus had an RBI single and collected a victory for the first time since June 6.

The loss snapped a streak of six victories by Joe Magrane, 11-7, who hadn't lost since June 18.

Kilgus, 6-9, pitched six innings, allowed four hits, walked one and struck out two. Mitch Williams, the fifth Chicago pitcher, worked the final two innings to take the league lead with 25 saves.

Giants 5, Braves 4

A grounder that glanced off the glove of losing pitcher Derek Lilliquist helped San Francisco hand Atlanta its sixth straight loss.

Mike LaCoss, 5-6, gave up six hits over seven innings, struck out two and walked two.

Kirt Manwaring opened the fifth inning with a walk off Lilliquist, 5-6, and went to third when a hard grounder by Jose Uribe caused shortstop Andres Thomas to break toward second base before it deflected off the pitcher's glove. The ball went for a single through the spot Thomas had vacated.

Manwaring scored to make it 3-2 as LaCoss bounced into a double play.

Greg Black 10-K slated

JOE D'S NUMBERS

NEW YORK (AP) - Joe DiMaggio posted some interesting other numbers during his record 56-game hitting streak for the Yankees in 1941.

He went to bat 223 times and made 91 hits for a batting average of .408 during those games. He scored 56 runs and drove in 55. Joe connected for 15 home runs with four triples and 16 doubles. He struck out only seven times and walked on 21 occasions. Twice he was hit by a pitched ball.

Only three players in pro basketball history have scored 30,000 or more points. They are Wilt Chamberlain, Julius Erving and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

Garrison builds multifaceted agribusiness

"Good people make good things happen and most of it comes about as a result of a lot of honest hard work"

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

The nation was full of promises when Shirley Garrison returned home from a war-torn Europe in 1948 to find his place in the sun on a cotton farm in Texas.

But this small beginning near Idalou was the foundation for a young man's dream that developed into a multifaceted agribusiness which now reaches to the far corners of the nation's grain belt and a half-dozen foreign countries.

Garrison Seed and Company, Inc., headquartered on the southeast edge of Hereford on U.S. Highway 60, is a testimonial to an old American tradition that success is generally found at the end of a long day's work, the epitome of High Plains agriculture which begins with tiny seed tucked between a couple of turnrows.

"I have always loved to farm ever since I was a young farmer on the South Plains," said Garrison as he recalled earlier times in the Idalou community. "But there have been a number of other things come along that I have enjoyed about as much as farming."

Garrison was speaking of his diversified agribusiness and livestock operations that include grain elevators at Easter and Lazbuddie and the Bar-G Feedyard, where a 60,000-head custom feeding center finishes 150,000 grain-fed cattle a year. And Garrison Seed, which is now in its 23rd year of operation, has three separate seed-handling facilities in Hereford and maintains a regional office in Lubbock.

Though the seed executive has had a life-long love affair with farming, he has maintained extensive investments in stocker and feeder cattle since the High Plains beef boom days of the 1960s. He was one of the charter founders of Southwest Feed Yards northeast of Hereford and at many points in more than two decades of cattle feeding, the Garrison family has fed upwards of 10,000 head a year.

"We've made some money in the cattle feeding business and we've lost some money," said Garrison. "But I've found that the bigger equity one has in the feeding business, the better off you are if something unexpected happens." And such was the case in 1973-74, when the Garrisons survived the biggest cattle feeding market crash in the history of the industry.

"We were very fortunate in having had developed a lot of equity in our cattle and we had good credit," recalled Garrison. "I have tried to maintain the policy in each of my business ventures of putting money back into the business. If you keep skimming without putting anything back, you'll probably wind up with some problems."

Though Garrison consistently speaks of himself as being a farmer, casual conversations reveal his role as a business executive. And a dozen on-lookers showed a deep concern for his fellowman: "Good people make good things happen and most of it comes about as result of a lot of honest hard work...it is sometimes amazing at the results of the work or efforts of just one person."

An example of this dedication may be found at the Hereford Senior Center where Garrison and his brother, Homer, have been among dozens of Hereford-area residents who have built the "senior showcase center" of the nation. Homer was president of the organization four consecutive years and Shirley is now president of the group which has just launched a $500,000 expansion program.

"I think of Hereford as being one of the top, if not the top, agricultural centers of the entire state," said Garrison, as he itemized dozens of agribusiness industries of the Golden Triangle, an area that includes Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer counties. "It seems as though there has always been a progressive attitude here among both the town people and the rural sectors."

In addition to the cattle feeding boom that was spearheaded by a group of Hereford farmers and business leaders back in the early 1960s, Garrison was also among the initial group who brought the sugar industry to the High Plains of Texas and New Mexico. And then one day Shirley Garrison got "hooked" on seed, an agribusiness move that developed into one of the leading seed companies of the Southwest.

Garrison Seed is expected to market about 30 million pounds of seed this year, which in gross sales will tally out between $8 million and $10 million. "The last three years have been real good," said Bill Townsend, general manager and co-owner in the seed company with Garrison. "And we're expecting this year to continue to be good. We have no complaints on our seed sales. They've been good."

On an average year, Townsend said Garrison Seed will market between 12 million and 14 million pounds of forage seed, around 8 million pounds of hybrid grain sorghum and hybrid corn seed, 2 million pounds of native grass seed and about another 5 million pounds of various small grains seed.

"Eighty percent of the hybrid sorghum seed sold in the world are produced on the High Plains from Lubbock to the north edge of the Texas Panhandle," said Townsend.

About 70 percent of Garrison's seedstock is marketed primarily in the Southwest and Midwest farm belts, with about 30 percent going to foreign markets. The foreign markets include Panama, Peru, the Dominican Republic, Mexico and Canada. "We do a small amount of business in the Sudan area of Africa but not much to speak of," said Townsend. "A majority of our exports go out through the Houston ports but some of it is going out through the California ports."

Garrison contracts with about 40 area growers to produce nearly 4,000 acres of hybrid grain sorghum and around 400 acres of hybrid corn. The seed firm also contracts for about 2,000 acres of native grasses and 1,500 acres of additional small grain production. The farmers plant a 3-to-1 ratio of female seed to male seed, or pollinator seed. Townsend pointed out that sorghum and corn plantings must be regimented so that male seed pollinate when female plants are blooming.

"Much of our success in maintaining high quality seed production can be attributed to excellence in farm management, the wind, dry climate and a good supply of irrigation water," Townsend added.

Garrison attributes much of his success in his agribusiness companies to his employees and partners in the various ventures. "It's almost impossible to make a business work without good people around you," said Garrison. "I think I have some of the best people in the world working for me and working with me." And while reminiscing on the progress of his various investments, he frequently mentioned the names of Townsend and Johnny Trotter, who is manager and co-owner of the Bar G Feedyard south of Hereford, one of the largest individual cattle feedyards between Dodge City and Lubbock.

"And there's Ann White down at the seed house. She practically runs the place," Garrison added on a positive note. Mrs. White is office manager of Garrison Seed and manages the day-to-day work load at the front counter. Another key employee of the Garrison office staff is Marlene Bustamante, who is secretary for the Proprietary program.

The foundation of Garrison's success in the agribusiness world dates back to 1948 when he returned home after having served with the U.S. Army in the European Theatre of World War II.

"After returning home, I started farming on the old home-place down near Idalou and farmed there for about three years," recalled Garrison. "Then I followed my brother (Homer) to Castro County in 1951 and farmed in the Hart Community for the next seven years on the old McFarland land."

Farming in Castro County, however, was somewhat removed from the farming routines of Idalou--excellent irrigation water from fence-to-fence, with cotton and grain sorghum being the principal crops.

In 1953, Garrison began buying land of his own in the northern part of Castro County and wound up near the Easter Community. "I bought my first quarter in 1953 and in 1954 I sold that quarter and bought a half section in the Easter Community 11 miles south of Hereford," said Garrison. "You might say that it was at Easter where I first started farming my own operations." This Castro County farm nudged right up to the corner of the Easter Community and was a part of the old Herring Estate that was headquartered in Amarillo at that time.

In earlier times, managers of the Herring Estate ranch country near Flagg would trail their cattle to their land holdings near Easter where the livestock were held for a day or so for a rest-stop before being trailed on to Hereford to the Santa Fe railroad for shipment to market.

At the time of Garrison's land purchase--1954--there no pavement from Easter to Hereford. "Since we were in the Hereford school district, we naturally came to Hereford most all the time for supplies."

Though Garrison owned the Easter farm, he and his family did not move to the Easter Community until 1958. In the meantime Garrison and a couple of partners bought some additional acreage at Easter and in years later Garrison bought out the partners. Garrison, his wife, Mildred, and their three children, Harvey, Sharon and Pam, established a close friendship with folks in Hereford following their move to Easter where the Garrisons made their home until 1981.

"In 1981, I decided to sort of retire from farming and put my efforts in different directions," said Garrison. "You see, the land that I bought didn't have any irrigation at the time, so through the years I gradually put the entire place under irrigation." Garrison eventually became owner of the entire section plus another 1/2 of an adjoining section. But before Garrison retired from the turnrows, he had developed seven irrigated wells on his Castro County farm.

About the same year that Holly Sugar Corp. came in with a sugar processing plant at Hereford, Garrison began raising grain sorghum seed along with his other farm production of sugar beets, wheat, corn & cotton. "My first seed crop was contract production for other companies," said Garrison, recalling his initial work in seed production. "I grew some seed for other companies and then teamed up with Art Stoy in the present operation and bought the company in 1966."

Along with Stoy, Garrison brought in his son, Harvey, as a partner and in January 1967, he incorporated Garrison Seed and Company. That beginning in 1966 was in a leased building near the present headquarters with one portable seed cleaner mounted on a trailer.

By this time Garrison had also entered in a family farming operation with his brother, Homer, and brother-in-law Sherman Nelson, at points north of Friona where another 1,280 acres were put under Garrison management. The Garrisons also developed some additional farm acreage south of Friona in the Hub Community, so by the time the seed business began to blossom, Garrison was touching irrigated turnrows at three separate points in the productive irrigation district of the Golden Triangle: Easter, Friona and Hub.

"We started out in the seed business in a pretty simple way, handling mostly sorghum sudan and grain sorghums, small grains and wheat," said Garrison. "We started out handling cotton seed but we soon found out that we weren't really in the cotton country so we got out of the cottonseed business and started concentrating more on the grain sorghum seed business."

In 1968, Garrison added 10 metal bins to the initial warehouse that measured only about 50 by 100 feet. By 1978, the Garrison Seed firm had 40 metal grain bins, with this count now expanded to 89 at the company headquarters out on U.S. 60. In addition to the string of 3,000-bushel bins, Garrison has four additional Quonsetts on the south side of the U.S. 60-Santa Fe thoroughfare, 3 grass seed barns west on Garrison Highway, all totaling approximately 86,000 square feet of flat storage and working space, and three modern seed cleaners that can handle 60,000 pounds of seed per hour. The string of bins also includes some 10,000-bushel units and a couple 30,000-bushel units.

In 1978, Garrison purchased his son's interest in the seed business and in 1987 Stoy sold his interest in Garrison Seed to Townsend, who had been with Garrison since 1971. Townsend had been assistant manager prior to the purchase of Stoy's share, and at that time he took over as general manager, with Garrison continuing as president of the seed corporation.

In the livestock division of the Garrison enterprises, stocker and feeder cattle have been the primary interests, dating back to the 1960s, with Garrison being one of the original stockholders of Southwest Feed Yards, when it was built in 1969.

"Back in those days you had to wait for an open if you wanted to feed some cattle around Hereford," said Garrison.

"At one time or another, I guess I fed cattle in most of the feedyards around Hereford. I registered the Bar-G Brand here in Deaf Smith County when I started feeding cattle back in the 1960s."

Garrison and his son, Harvey, were in the cow-calf business in the 1970s, but after four or five years of calf production, they went back to the stocker and feeder end of the cattle business. When possible, Garrison likes to bring in three- and four-weights on summer pasture, pasture them on wheat through the winter and go to the feedlots in the fall and spring for finishing.

Garrison pointed out that at the Bar-G Feedyards most of the cattle are customer-owned cattle. "We still feed cattle but most of our operations at the Bar-G is geared to customer cattle," Garrison and Johnny Trotter, who had farmed and managed wheat pasture cattle for the Garrison family for several years in the early 1980s, turned an empty feedyard into an active operation, and in 1983 Garrison and partners took over another empty feedyard 8 miles southwest of Hereford and called it the Bar-G Feedyard.

"The place was really run down and koster weeds were higher than the fence when we bought it," said Garrison. "And the first thing we did was to completely rebuild the mill. To tell the truth, I really wondered at the time if we'd ever fill it up. Now, we've expanded to 60,000 head and it stays filled to the brim most of the time."

Trotter came in as general manager and co-owner of Bar-G and spearheaded a vast facilitating job on the old feedlot. Garrison estimated that they spent six months and more than $1 million in putting a new mill on the original frame. "Anything that needed fixing, Johnny (Trotter) fixed it, whether it was in the mill or a far-side feed trough," said

Affidavits as evidence? Don't count on them!

Dear Commissioner Nabers: I recently lost a case before the Appeal Tribunal, apparently because I submitted sworn affidavits instead of bringing the witnesses in person. I run a small business and cannot afford to close up just to haul everyone down to one of these hearings. Why won't the TEC accept affidavits?

—J.G.
Borger, Texas

Dear J.G.: The TEC DOES accept affidavits, BUT, if you will look on the next notice of hearing that you receive, you will see that special effort is made to advise parties of the fact that affidavits are inferior to firsthand testimony when it comes to weighing the evidence.

It is very common in unemployment hearings that the evidence is in dispute. When this happens, the referee must apply some criteria to judge the weight, credibility, or validity of the conflicting evidence so that he or she can arrive at a decision. It is simply an unavoidable fact that the claimant will always have firsthand testimony concerning the work separation because it is the claimant who has been separated. An employer must counter firsthand claimant testimony with firsthand witness testimony of its own. If an employer relies on hearsay evidence - and affidavits are a form of hearsay - then the employer will be at a disadvantage when the time comes to assign weight to the evidence.

Presenting firsthand testimony does not always mean you must shut down your business to attend a hearing. In preparing for a hearing you should first clarify in your own mind what your allegations are and then ask yourself whose testimony is most critical to proving these allegations. Who saw? Who heard? If you ask yourself these two basic questions regarding each allegation you intend to make, you may find that there is really only one witness who can provide the necessary firsthand testimony. On the other hand, there may be several firsthand witnesses and you may have to choose whether to bring more than one depending upon the circumstances of the case and your own business necessities.

Dear Commissioner Nabers, I recently read in both your column and newsletter about the chargeback protection afforded employers if an employee becomes unemployed because of a medically verified illness. Does this protection extend to reimbursing employers such as school districts or non-profit corporations?

—F.L.
Garland, Texas

Dear F.L.: No. There is no protection for the reimbursing employer who separates an employee because of medical reasons, even if that employee quits upon the advice of a doctor.

Esler new chairman of SPS; Helton is promoted

The Southwestern Public Service Company Board of Directors today elected Chief Executive Officer W.R. Esler to the additional post of chairman of the board, replacing Bert Ballengee, who is retiring at the end of this month.

The board also elected Chief Operating Officer Bill D. Helton to the additional post of president, formerly held by Esler.

Elected vice presidents were John McAfee, who had been group manager of corporate services, and David Wilks, who had been chief engineer.

Esler began his career with SPS in 1948 as an electrical engineer. As vice president of engineering and construction from 1976 to 1983, he played a key role in the company's successful plant-construction program of the mid 1970s and early 1980s, during which SPS brought on line five large coal-fueled generating units at costs that were approximately half the national average.

Esler was elected executive vice president in 1983, and president and chief operating officer in 1985. He was elected president and chief executive officer in January this year. He has been a member of the board of directors since 1986.

Esler is a registered professional engineer and earned his bachelor's degree in electrical engineering at the University of Texas. He is active in leadership positions in several civic and professional organizations.

Helton began his career with SPS in 1964 as a distribution design engineer and developed a broad background in many aspects of the company's operations. He has held positions in design engineering, industrial services, consumer services, industrial development and financial services. He was elected financial vice president in 1983, vice president of corporate services in 1986 and executive vice president in 1987. He was elected to the additional post of chief operating officer in April this year.

Helton is a registered professional engineer and earned his bachelor's degree in electrical engineering from Texas Tech University. He, too, holds leadership positions in a variety of civic and professional organizations.

McAfee will serve as vice president of corporate services, directing the company's internal and external communications, communication production, office buildings and records, and purchasing.

McAfee began his career in 1973 as an electrical engineer. His background includes being a division operating engineer in New Mexico. In 1985, he started up the company's strategic planning department as its first manager. He was named group manager of general engineering in 1986 and group manager of corporate services in 1987.

McAfee is a registered professional engineer and holds a bachelor's and master's degree in electrical engineering from New Mexico State University. He is active in civic and professional organizations.

Wilks will serve as vice president of engineering and operations, assuming the duties of Senior Vice President of Engineering and Operations W.T. Seitz, who will retire at the end of this month.

Wilks began his career in 1977 as a design engineer in SPS's generation plant design department. He was named manager of strategic planning in 1986, executive assistant to the president in 1987 and group manager of general engineering later that year. He was named chief engineer in 1988.

Wilks is a registered professional engineer and holds a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from Texas A&M University and a master's degree in administration and financial management from George Washington University. He, too, is active in civic and professional organizations.

The SPS Board of Directors also declared a regular quarterly dividend of 55 cents per share on common stock and regular quarterly dividends on all series of preferred stocks.

The dividend on common stock is payable Sept. 1, 1989, to holders of record at the close of business Aug. 15, 1989. Dividends on preferred stocks are payable Nov. 1, 1989, to holders of record at the close of business Oct. 20, 1989.

SPS is a regional electric utility that primarily provides electric service to a population of about 1 million people in a 52,000-square-mile area of the South Plains and Panhandle of Texas, eastern and southeastern New Mexico, the Oklahoma Panhandle and southwestern Kansas. Corporate headquarters is in Amarillo.

HUSTLE

Garrison, who ranks the Bar-G among his top assets. On an average year, the Bar-G will siphon about 150,000 stockers from the Southwest range markets for finishing into grain-fed beefs. Though Garrison had sold his interests in Southwest Feedyards, he was still feeding cattle there while he and Trotter were rebuilding the feeding unit that later became Bar-G.

At one time, Garrison headed a farming operation called Garrison Brothers and Nelson Farms and in 1982 he bought out his brother and brother-in-law.

After putting much of the family farm into the CRP program in 1987, Shirley and wife Mildred gave the land to his children and grandchildren.

During his early years of farming, Garrison did it all in those cabless days of harvesting--wheat in the summer, milo in the fall and cotton stripping that sometimes edged into the frosty days of winter.

"One day the doctor told me I had to get off the tractors and combines and stay off if I wanted to live," recalled Garrison. "I thought it was the end of the world but it turned out to be the best thing that ever happened to me. You can dream a lot of dreams out there on the tractors but about all you can do about it is turn around and go back to the other end of the field. But once I was off that tractor, I had time to actually put some of the dreams together."

At one point in time, the Garrison family was farming around 2,000 acres of irrigated land and about 3,000 acres of dryland production. "That may have been quite a few acres back in those days, but my son (Harvey) surpassed me with a farming operation of around 6,000 acres a few years ago around Dumas," said Garrison. His son and family have lived in Dumas since 1969 where he has maintained farming and livestock operations in Moore County. Harvey's son, Kerry, is the third generation of the Garrisons to graduate from Texas Tech at Lubbock. The Harvey Garrisons also have a daughter, Jana, whose husband is now doing work at Texas Tech for a doctor's degree in medicine. Jana was also a student at Tech.

Shirley Garrison graduated from Texas Tech in 1940, Harvey Garrison graduated from the same university in 1964 and Kerry graduated in 1987.

In 1975, a group of farmers, including Garrison, took over operations of the Easter Elevators, a grain handling complex that has about 1.8 million bushels of storage. Then, in 1981, Garrison bought out the other stockholders and became sole owner of the Easter grain unit. He recently purchased an 800,000-bushel grain elevator at Lazbuddie which will be ready for receiving the fall harvest of corn.

A son of Harvey and Sarah Garrison, Shirley was born in Detroit, Tx., a small farming community located near Clarksville in North Texas. The Garrisons moved to the Seagraves community in 1924 and Garrison attended his first term of school in the small community of Tokio near Brownfield.

"My daddy was trying to make it in dryland cotton, first at Seagraves and then at Tokio, and believe me, that's the hard way to do it," said Garrison. "We farmed with horses until 1937."

The Garrisons moved to Lubbock County in 1928 where they farmed in the old Liberty Community. Another move to the Idalou community put Garrison in the Becton School where he graduated in 1936 in a class of 13, the last high school graduating class of Becton. Garrison vividly recalled the duststorms of the 1930s and the tough years of the Great Depression.

After graduating at Becton, Garrison enrolled at Texas Tech in the fall of 1936. "I never really knew where the money came from to get enrolled at Tech," said Garrison. "But my parents' main concern was to see that our children got an education. It didn't take much to get in school in those days, maybe $25 or $30, but that was a lot of money for a dryland cotton farmer in 1936." Through four years of college at Tech, Garrison also worked at any "honest job that paid money."

After receiving a degree in ag education in 1940, Garrison returned that fall to work toward his master's, but he stumbled onto a job at Wilson's Poultry and Egg Co. in Lubbock that paid $20 a week so he went to work instead of going to graduate school. Later, in 1941, he got a job teaching vocational agriculture at a small school by the name of Union near Brownfield and he established the first vo-ag educational high school department at the Union School. In 1943, Garrison became assistant county Extension agent of Lamb County, a position he was holding when called into service in 1944.

He and Mildred Welch first met in church in 1939 when he was a senior at Tech and they were married in 1941 when he got the job teaching school. After World War II ended in 1945, Garrison was discharged in Frankfurt, Germany, in the summer of 1946, and for two years he worked in the U.S. Military in a post-war program of food distribution and agricultural rehabilitation of Europe. Mrs. Garrison joined her husband for a year during his work in the U.S. food and agricultural program.

In recalling his return to the states in April 1948, Garrison revealed his love for the soil. "I got home on a Saturday, we celebrated on Sunday and I was in the field Monday morning." His father, at this time, had already retired from farming and had moved into town in Lubbock.

While reminiscing on those early years in farming, Garrison told how he worked the farm by day and taught school at night. Since he held a degree from Texas Tech in agriculture, he was selected to teach vo-ag night schools for returning war veterans, a vocation he held at various places for the next eight years.

Garrison gave a lot of credit to a lot of people for his success in life, but the Number One on the long list is his wife, Mildred. "My wife has stood by me through it all and a lot of times when things looked pretty dismal she was always there to give me a good word. I couldn't have made it without her."

Another person he accredited with the progress of Garrison Seed was Art Stoy, the former manager and co-owner who developed much of the firm's grass seed business. "Art (Stoy) really expanded our grass seed business, especially during 1981 when we harvested a big acreage of blue gramma and other grasses," said Garrison. That harvest triggered the need for additional seed handling facilities, thus, the old Jorde potato warehouse was purchased. Located about a mile west of Hereford on the Harrison Highway, the Jorde unit is still being used as Garrison's grass seed warehouse and processing center.

Garrison has his own set of rules when it comes to running a business: put a big end of profits back into the business, maintain quality ahead of quantity and follow the Golden Rule when it comes to customer service. He also believes the key operational managers should have a piece of the action. "It is just human nature that if you own something, you're going to do just a little bit better job." And when it comes to hiring new employees, Garrison puts honesty out in front of ability or skills. "Check their honesty first then their ability."

Most of his employees at Garrison Seed have been around for a long time and he speaks of many by their first names--warehouse foreman John Bunch, agronomist Bob Duffy, international marketing manager Eric Wright, and Key Crawford, a versatile employee who can handle any job in the business. Others are Raul Cruz, Andy Pena and Santos Gozales. Approximately 100 people pick up a paycheck every month at the Garrison's enterprises.

Though the decade of the 1980s will go down on record as being a real "bear" in agribusiness, Garrison remains highly optimistic about the future of the agricultural industries around Hereford.

"We have a lot going for us here in Hereford and the surrounding communities," said Garrison. "We have a number of crops that demand a bonus above the general marketing price, such as seed, food corn and a number of vegetable lines."

"And of course we have some of the finest water on earth. I think you'll see irrigation going here for a long, long time to come...and I think you'll see Hereford prospering and doing well for a long, long time to come."

AMARILLO (AP) - Visualize Aoudad sheep canvassing a canyon's crest. Underground, prairie dogs and other burrowing animals winding their way through a subterranean traffic system.

At ground level, black bear cubs splash in a pond. Children mimic the stride of a giraffe and parents catch their breath at shaded Paw Prints Plaza.

That's the kind of natural setting Amarillo zoo-goers would have if city commissioners opt to implement a $3 million plan for revamping Storyland Zoo, said Mike Rice, a representative of ZooPlan Inc.

ZooPlan was hired by the city to visualize a future for the zoo, which Parks and Recreation Director Strick Watkins says needs an overhaul.

Residents had complained about the prisonlike display of animals, a practice Rice said has been replaced by showcasing animals in replicas of their natural settings.

ZooPlan's idea - presented Monday to commissioners and parks officials - would expand the Thompson Park zoo to encompass about 30 acres boasting three types of habitats: the prairie, the woodlands and the canyon, Rice said.

The theme of the zoo emphasizes animals that are found or could thrive in this region, which Rice said are rarities in most urban zoos.

However, some more exotic animals that have established their presence on Texas game ranches and reserves will be part of an exhibit, labeled "Exotics," Rice said.

Animals would be housed on a rotating basis, and the freshness of the exhibits would offer local zoo-goers a reason to visit the zoo more than once a season, he said.

Zoo-goers entering the proposed park would soon find themselves in Paw Prints Plaza, a sort of Grauman's Chinese Theatre sidewalk for the animal kingdom, where paw prints would be cast in the walkway. Rice said prints would be cast to show not only the animals' physical characteristics, but also the strides of the animals.

Plans for the plaza include an indoor/outdoor educational center for programs, which can also double as a petting zoo area; a patio diner; restrooms; a playground; and a gift shop.

Rice estimated that sales - at the gift shop, restaurant, etc. - would bring about $112,500.

The rest of the zoo radiates from Paw Prints Plaza, with trails taking zoo-goers into the habitats and back to the plaza rest area.

Some features of the zoo proposal include:

- Pronghorn herds and groups of mule deer and bison roaming the prairie area;
- Aoudad sheep, coyotes, cougars, and other beasts in the canyon;
- A netted aviary full of trees for game birds and waterfowl;
- An underground cutaway that will offer a worm's eye view of burrowing animals; and
- A marsh area with a blind for bird observation, on the bank of a lake already in Thompson Park.

The proposal could be implemented in two phases, with a first expenditure of about $1 million that includes construction of both the woodlands and the prairie, Rice said.

The second phase would be sculpting the canyon from infill dirt already on site, at a cost of about $2 million, Rice said. The infill came from other city dredging projects, he said.

Rice said the zoo's operating budget - now between $105,000 and $110,000 per year - would not be substantially increased by the first phase. His first phase operating budget projection is about $140,000.

Both phases would require a combined operating budget of about $250,000, depending on how much work is done by city employees and how much is performed by volunteers, he said.

Zoo planners are recommending the city charge admission to the zoo, and suggest the rate of $2 for adults, $1 for children, with the inclusion of "free days," special event rates, and other promotions.

The admission scale would provide about $200,000 in revenue, based on an attendance of 150,000. Storyland Zoo now averages more than 200,000 in attendance.

After the presentation, commissioners said they were impressed with the proposal, but a few expressed reservations about the city's ability to fund the project.

Commissioner John McKissack said he would have to weigh the project against other needs and against the price of raising the city's bonded indebtedness to accomplish the refurbishment.

Mayor Keith Adams and Commissioner Dianne Bosch suggested the possibility of seeking private funding to help with the renovations.

Choose "right" desserts

Choosing the right dessert to complement a meal is just as important as planning and preparing the courses that precede it.

Food is so seasonal (you probably wouldn't prepare beef stew during the summer) that the time of year is sure to affect the desserts chosen to accompany your meals.

In the middle of the summer heat, when the "lightness" of foods is emphasized, a refreshing departure from conventional concoctions would probably be welcomed by everyone at your dinner table.

When you yearn for something cold and ice cream seems too heavy, or if you are allergic to milk and dairy products, a granita is the perfect alternative. Plus, it isn't necessary to have an ice cream maker to create this frosty treat—just your freezer is all you need!

Granita, "granite" in French, is the original "ice cream," made of fruit juice or syrup flavored with coffee or liqueur, sugar and water. It is not to be confused with sherbet, which contains milk products. And, unlike sorbet, granita does not contain any Italian meringue.

This rough, flavorful ice is believed to have been made by the Chinese as early as the eighth century A.D. However, it was popularized by Tortoni in Paris in the 19th century.

It should be served in sundae dishes or a glass bowl, either between courses as a palate-refresher or as a light dessert. It works especially well when served with Italian coffee and after-dinner liquor.

The possibilities are endless when it comes to experimenting with a wide range of flavors and different savory combinations. The first recipe offered below is a basic one, it leaves room for many delectable variations.

Whichever elegant, light, frosty version you choose, it is sure to be the perfect finish to a summer dinner.

GRANITA GRANITE

Make a light syrup with fruit juice (such as lemon, orange, tangerine, passion fruit, or mango) or very strong coffee. Cool the syrup, then pour it into an ice tray and freeze for 3-4 hours without stirring. The granita will then have a granular texture.

GRANITA DI LIMONE

2 1/2 cups fresh lemon juice (from about 12 lemons)
1 1/2 cups superfine sugar
1/4 cup orange or tangerine liqueur
Frozen seedless grapes, for garnish

1. Combine the lemon juice and sugar in a large bowl and stir until the sugar is completely dissolved. Add 3 3/4 cups of cold water and the liqueur; stir to combine.

2. Pour the mixture into a shallow nonreactive pan and freeze for five hours, stirring every hour to break up the ice crystals that have formed. Pack the mixture into a decorative mold and freeze again.

3. To serve, unmold the granita onto a large platter. Garnish with the frozen grapes. Serves 12.

GRANITA DI ESPRESSO

1 1/2 cups finely ground espresso coffee
4 1/2 cups boiling water
3/4 cup plus 2 teaspoons superfine sugar
1/4 cup coffee liqueur
3/4 cup heavy cream
1 tablespoon Cognac or brandy
Strips of lemon zest, for garnish

1. Brew the coffee using all the boiling water.

2. Combine the hot coffee with 3/4 cup of the sugar and the coffee liqueur. Stir until the sugar is dissolved. Let cool.

3. Pour into a shallow nonreactive pan and freeze for about 5 hours, stirring every hour to break up any large ice crystals that have formed. Pack into a decorative 6-cup mold and freeze again.

4. Before serving, whip the cream until it forms soft peaks. Add the remaining 2 teaspoons sugar and the Cognac; whip for 30 seconds more. Unmold the granita onto a large platter. Mound or pipe the whipped cream around it and garnish with strips of lemon zest. Serves 12.

Social Security

Q. I wrap parsnips in aluminum foil and bake them. Can I freeze parsnips in the same wrap? Do they freeze well? Mrs. H.F.M., Morrisville, VT

A. Parsnips will keep frozen for a year. For best results, take them from the aluminum foil and place them in freezer containers or bags allowing extra space for them to expand during freezing.

Q. I care for elderly people in their homes and find many old cans and jars of spices. Do spices become unsafe or lose their flavor after a long period of time? L.D., Lewiston, IL

A. Most spices don't become unsafe, but ground spices lose their flavor after two years and whole spices after four years. Red pepper is an exception. It will keep one year at room temperature or two years refrigerated and is subject to infestation when storage is longer than the recommended times.

Q. I make iced tea by brewing it with sugar and cooling to room temperature before refrigerating. Then, it becomes cloudy. What can I do to avoid this? Mrs. M.H., Johnston, PA

A. Make clear tea by placing tea and cold water in a glass container; cover and refrigerate for 24 hours. Or, use boiling water and don't steep longer than 3 to 5 minutes. Cool to room temperature and pour over ice cubes.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A Democratic politician has urged James Garner to run for governor, saying he shares a trait with another actor who once held the job.

"Everybody knows him," state Sen. Herschel Rosenthal said, adding that his approach to Garner was rebuked.

"He said, 'I'm making $6 million a year, what do I need that for?' or words to the effect," Rosenthal said Monday.

Garner's publicist, Pat Kingsley, confirmed the actor turned down the informal proposal. "He doesn't feel politics is the right field for him," she said.

Garner, once dubbed the "last real man" in America by People magazine, has been active in environmental causes.

Rosenthal said he approached Garner because the 61-year-old actor is widely recognized thanks to his TV series "Maverick" and "The Rockford Files" and movies like "Murphy's Romance," which earned him an Academy Award nomination.

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) - Former Attorney General Edwin Meese said the Reagan administration's arms sales to Iran were a good idea, but he wouldn't necessarily recommend such action.

The nation's former top law enforcement officer spoke Monday to about 150 students at a special Stanford University summer program on government and speech, one that he attended about 40 years ago.

Meese, 58, said he had barely supported the decision to sell arms to Iran, but added that, "in retrospect, the idea was a good one. I think the way it was put together was imperfect."

He said later: "I would not recommend it be done, but it was one of those high-risk things that you have to do sometimes."

Amanda Walzer, 16, said Meese appeared "easygoing and passive. He was almost the complete opposite of what I expected."

Preserve taste of fruits

NEW YORK (AP) - Take advantage of summer fruits by filling your shelves with jams and jellies. Serve up tasty preserves. Use fruit curds for topping ice cream.

Blackberry and apple curd makes a delicious change from traditional lemon curd. The addition of butter and eggs means the curd will only last for about a month, so only make as much as you can eat in that time. Keep in a cool place. Refrigerate after opening. Delicious on toast and buns.

BLACKBERRY AND APPLE CURD

- 12 ounces blackberries
- 1 cooking apple, peeled, cored and sliced
- Juice of 1 lemon
- 1/2 cup butter
- 2 cups sugar
- 4 eggs, beaten

Sterilize mason jars and lids and keep hot until needed.

Place the blackberries and sliced apple in a large pan and cook slowly until soft. Sieve.

Return the pulp to the pan with the lemon juice, butter and sugar. Simmer gently until the sugar dissolves. Add the beaten eggs and keep on lowest heat until the curd coats the back of a wooden spoon. Do not simmer or boil at this stage.

Spoon mixture into the hot jars. Cover, cool and refrigerate. Should last for 1 month.

MICROWAVE PEACH JAM

- 2 cups peaches, peeled, pitted and sliced
- 1/2 Red Delicious apple, peeled and cored
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- Pinch grated lemon peel

Sterilize a half-pint mason jar and lid and keep hot until needed.

Place 1 cup of the peaches and the 1/2 apple in the bowl of a food processor. Process to a coarse puree.

Put the puree, remaining 1 cup peaches, sugar, lemon juice and peel in an 8-cup glass bowl. Microwave uncovered on high (100 percent) for about 8 minutes. Cool to room temperature, transfer to the hot jar, cover and refrigerate. This should keep for several weeks.

PLUM CONSERVE

- 3 pounds plums
- 2 oranges, minced
- 6 cups sugar
- 1 pound raisins

Sterilize mason jars and lids and keep hot until needed.

Wash the plums, slice in half and remove the stones.

In a large saucepan place the plums and minced oranges and gently heat and soften. Add the sugar and raisins and continue to cook gently, stirring occasionally, until very thick (this will probably take 1 1/2 hours).

Spoon into the hot jars, cover and cool.

Woman's Health

Mammography was recently in the news because of Mrs. Reagan's breast cancer. It was reported that the first lady's cancer was suspected during a routine mammogram and then successfully treated. Mrs. Reagan's story is a good example of why women should have this important procedure.

A mammogram is a simple X-ray of the breast, using low doses of radiation, that pick up growths of tumors--benign or cancerous before they can be felt. Mammograms also can give additional information about lumps that can be physically detected.

This procedure is done in a variety of places, such as hospitals, outpatient clinics, or a doctor's office. Your doctor can probably give you a list of places that do mammography.

The test is simple. You will be asked not to wear any deodorants or powders because they can interfere with the X-ray. After undressing from the waist up, you will sit or stand in front of the X-ray machine and two smooth, plastic plates will be placed firmly around one of your breasts, flattening it so the greatest amount of breast area possible will be exposed to the X-ray.

The plates will be moved to get another angle of the breast. The procedure is then repeated for the other breast. Some women may experience discomfort from the pressure on and positioning of the breast.

Every woman should have a mammogram done, but when and how often depends on several things. The American college of Obstetricians and Gynecologists recommends that women between the ages of 35 and 50 have a "baseline" mammogram with which later X-rays can be compared, to spot changes. After age 50, mammograms should be done on a regular basis.

Unfortunately, any woman can develop breast cancer. Overall, the risk of the disease increases with age, starting about age 35. There are women who have a higher risk than others, including those who have had breast cancer previously, or have a sister or mother with the disease. Women who have not had any children, or who have symptoms such as unexplained lumps or thickening of the skin in the breast or armpit, puckering or dimpling of the breast skin, and discharge or bleeding from the nipple are also at higher risk.

Mammography is a low-risk, simple, but informative test. You owe it to yourself to have one.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) - Officials are dead set against an encore performance by the Grateful Dead because of drug use by the rock group's faithful fans, the Deadheads.

Drug use at a July 15 concert strained Hamilton County's law enforcement capabilities, said county Commissioner Steven C. Dillinger, who attended the show.

"We were held almost helpless because we were outmanned," he said, adding that there would have been a "tremendous economic impact" on the county if hundreds of drug users had been arrested, jailed and tried. There were only 14 arrests.

"I would ask they not be invited back," Dillinger said Monday at a hearing to review operations at the 3-month-old outdoor music center.
