

Plants may have n-waste storage through 2025

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's nuclear power plants will have enough sites to store spent nuclear fuel until 2025 even if the government scraps the planned Yucca Mountain repository in Nevada, according to a Nuclear Regulatory Commission task force report.

The commission's Waste Confidence Review Group, in Wednesday's report to commissioners, said a new site could be selected and put into operation by then if necessary.

Robert Bernero, who headed the task force, said finding and opening a new site would take 25 years. Plans call for the Yucca Mountain repository to begin operations in 2003. Initial construction work on shafts aimed at detailed investigation of the Nevada site is scheduled to begin in November.

In 1987, Congress suspended consideration of any site other than Yucca Mountain. Other sites that had been considered were the Hanford nuclear reservation near Richland, Wash., and a site in Deaf Smith County, Texas.

The task force said Yucca Mountain, mandated by the Nuclear Waste Policy Act Amendment of 1987, could prove unsuitable.

The Nevada governor opposes the project; questions have arisen about geological faults and potential volcanic activity at the site; and the NRC staff is concerned that Environmental Protection Agency standards may be unworkable.

Bernero, director of NRC nuclear materials safety and safeguards, said new dry-storage technology means fuel can be stored longer, more safely and more cheaply above ground. As a result, he said, estimates of 30 years of safe on-site storage are conservative.

Plants that once had operating licenses for 40 years may have them extended by as many as 30 years, meaning that fuel may be on site 100 years before finding a final resting place, Bernero said.

The NRC reviews the "Waste Confidence Decision" every five years. The commission will vote on the present report and publish its findings for public comment.

Ozone hole may have big impacts

NEW YORK (AP) - The Antarctic "ozone hole" apparently caused record low ozone levels over southern Australia in 1987, said scientists, who suggested that the hole may raise skin cancer risk in the globe's southern latitudes.

The work is the first detailed study that links the Antarctic hole to observed ozone declines in the Southern Hemisphere's midlatitudes, where many people live, scientists said.

The study concludes that record low ozone levels over southern Australia and New Zealand were caused mainly by the arrival of ozone-poor air from the Antarctic hole.

Southern South America and the southern tip of Africa also may be vulnerable, said study co-author R. Alan Plumb.

A layer of ozone, a form of oxygen, high in the atmosphere shields Earth from ultraviolet rays in sunlight that cause skin cancer. Reductions in ozone let more rays through and can boost skin cancer rates.

The Antarctic ozone hole, which appears for a limited time every year, is an area in which up to 50 percent of ozone disappears.

Plumb said that while he regards the declines observed over Australia and New Zealand as relatively small, they could become more hazardous.

But Margaret Kripke, an immunologist who studies skin cancer, said the increase in ultraviolet rays implied by the ozone observations is "enormous."

Such increases could raise the risk of skin cancer, but it is difficult to say by how much, said Kripke, chairman of the immunology department at M.D. Anderson Cancer Center of the University of Texas.

Protection of the worldwide ozone shield has become a focus of international concern that extends beyond the Antarctic ozone hole. Last year, for example, scientists announced evidence that ozone had declined about 2.3 percent since 1969 over a region that includes most of the United States.

In May, delegates from 81 countries at a U.N. conference pledged to stop producing and using chemicals called chlorofluorocarbons, which destroy ozone, by the year 2000.

The new study was conducted by Plumb of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Paul Newman, of the Universities Space Research Association and a visiting scientist at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.; and researchers from Australia and New Zealand.

It appears today in the British journal Nature.

"It makes a convincing case to me," commented William Mankin of the National Center for Atmospheric Research in Boulder, Colo.

The Antarctic ozone hole was unusual in 1987, the study said. Ozone levels reached record lows in October and November, and the funnel-shaped wind pattern that sustained the hole disintegrated in early December rather than November.

With the disintegration of the wind pattern each year, streams of polar air are ripped away and migrate north, the researchers said.

They concluded that the arrival of such ozone-poor air was the chief factor in producing record low ozone levels over southern Australia and New Zealand in December 1987.

The Melbourne readings averaged about 7 percent below normal for the month, which theoretically could boost the dose of ultraviolet rays at the Earth's surface by 14 percent, Plumb said.

Newman said Australians are typically on the beaches in December, the start of summer in the Southern Hemisphere. As a result, low ozone readings during that month are particularly worrisome.

Dollars, talk may be needed to free hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) - Dealing with Iran remains the best option for winning the release of nine Americans held in Lebanon, but the United States must not rule out talking to the captors or paying ransom, according to a study on terrorism released today.

The Rand Corp. report also contends that Iran continues to overestimate the importance of the hostages to the U.S. government.

"The fate of the ... hostages is a matter of concern ... but it is not a central issue," the study said. "The government is under no immediate pressure from the public to bring the hostages home."

The longest held of the Americans is Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press. Anderson was kidnapped March 16, 1985.

Veteran terrorist researcher Brian Michael Jenkins said in the report, "Terrorism: Policy Issues for the Bush Administration," that hostages provide a group "with a certain amount of prestige."

Iran, the study said, has lost much of its strategic importance to the United States, in part because of improved U.S.-Soviet relations and because world oil production remains high and comparatively cheap.

"To put it bluntly, in a way that no U.S. official can say publicly, Washington can wait" for a more receptive government in Iran, even as "dealing through Iran remains ... our best bet for getting the hostages released," according to the report.

But Jenkins said there are "powerful forces" in Iran who "continue to oppose any kind of rapprochement with the West."

"None of the alternatives look very promising," Jenkins wrote.

"Threatening the captors or Tehran with military retaliation ... has emotional appeal but is not likely to work and might imperil the hostages. Rescue ... is a long shot, especially if we are concerned with getting the hostages out alive."

"That leaves ransom, a distasteful course of action but one which should not be ruled out entirely," Jenkins said, adding that the U.S. no-concession policy that emerged after the Iran-Contra arms scandal "has become dangerously rigid."

"Most nations subscribe to no-concessions policies in theory," he said. "In practice, however, many of them have made deals to obtain the release of their citizens held hostage, although they may deny that the apparent concessions were part of any deal, or argue that these things were done for loftier purposes."

Even Israel, the nation seen to exemplify the hard line, "has on several occasions made concessions to obtain the release of hostages."

Part of the problem, the report said, is that the captors have not been clear or consistent about exactly what they want in return for the release of the hostages.

The Rand Corp., a Santa Monica, Calif.-based private, non-profit organization, sponsors research, often under government contract, on issues affecting national security.

Though the terrorism study was spawned by an earlier project sponsored by the Defense Department, Rand said it paid for the report out of its own funds.

Jacket among door prizes

Susan Barrett and Jan Bradford show off a beautiful handpainted denim jacket that will be among the door prizes to be given away at this year's Hall of Fame All Girl Rodeo August 11-13 at The Barn, northwest of Hereford. The rodeo will also include a fajita cookoff and cowboy poets before the Friday performance. The rodeo and other activities are part of this year's Town and Country Jubilee.

Korean DC-10 crashes in fog-shrouded Libya

ROME (AP) - A Korean Air DC-10 with 199 people aboard crashed in heavy fog three miles short of Tripoli airport in Libya today, hitting two homes and bursting into flames. News reports said at least 35 people were killed on the plane and four on the ground.

The official Libyan news agency JANA said the crash occurred at 7:30 a.m. (1:30 a.m. EDT), about an hour after a Soviet jetliner rerouted to Malta rather than land in the fog.

JANA said there were "almost 100 survivors" but that the death toll was still not known. The news agency said the four people killed on the ground were in one of the two houses the plane struck. It said an undetermined number of injured people were taken to Tripoli hospitals.

Airline officials in Seoul said 35 people on the plane were confirmed dead and that all but 10 of the 199 people aboard were South Koreans. The officials said the crash occurred about three miles short of the airport.

Korean Broadcasting System quoted South Korea's consul in Tripoli, Chang Kyung-soo, as saying the plane attempted to land on its belly, hit the ground and broke into two pieces, catching fire immediately.

The cause of the crash was not immediately known. Last week, a United Air Lines DC-10 crashed in Sioux City, Iowa, killing 111 people, after it lost its tail engine and the hydraulic fluid needed to steer the plane.

Chang told the network that the wreckage of the Korean plane burned for more than two hours.

Italian television showed the tail of the plane sticking up from the rubble of a house. Hundreds of rescue workers were filmed carrying away bodies covered with white sheets.

JANA said the plane also hit cars on a road near the airport, but no automobiles were visible in the television footage, which Libyan TV provided to Italian TV.

Korean television showed a large bulldozer moving debris and charred wreckage spewed over a wide area. One picture showed one of the engines lying in a dirt crater.

Korean Air officials in Seoul said Flight 803 left the South Korean capital Wednesday evening with stops in Bangkok, Thailand, and Jiddah, Saudi Arabia, en route to Tripoli.

Korean Broadcasting System said many of the Koreans aboard were workers for Daewoo Corp. and Donga Construction Co., which have projects in Libya.

Airline officials quoted the plane's captain, Kim Ho-jung, 54, as saying: "The airport was shrouded in a dense fog and visibility was poor when I approached. I lost contact with the control tower for 15 minutes before the crash."

JANA said the airport control tower had told the Korean Air pilot that there was heavy fog and only 800-foot visibility. A Soviet Aeroflot airliner, informed of similar conditions about an hour earlier, decided to land instead in Malta.

House curbs Stealth program

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House vote to curb the stealth bomber program causes problems, says Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, but he expresses relief that lawmakers aren't seeking to kill the program outright.

Meanwhile, the House, in a test of a White House and congressional budget-cutting agreement, prepared for votes today on whether to restore funds for two aircraft eliminated from the budget by the Pentagon: the Marine Corps' V-22 Osprey and the F-14D Tomcat jet fighter.

Following Wednesday's vote on the B-2 bomber, Cheney said the White House hopes a House-Senate conference will remove the roadblocks and permit a fast start for production of the costly radar-evading aircraft.

But Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., of the House Armed Services Committee, says the message of his amendment is that the House wants stealth production suspended while the program is cut back far below the $70 billion total price tag now envisioned. The amendment was added to the $295 billion defense bill on a 257-160 roll call.

"They (the administration) have in effect a year to restructure the program, to prove through tests it's worth buying," Aspin told reporters. "It's the core of the argument. We don't know enough right now to make a decision."

The administration suffered an unwanted budget cut Wednesday when the House approved an amendment to reduce by $502 million the $1.1 billion earmarked for spare MX missiles and for a rail system Bush requested to make the MX a mobile system. The 224-197 vote does not affect the nearly $800 million earmarked for the missiles themselves.

The Aspin amendment would require the Pentagon to meet rigid test and performance standards before additional stealth bombers are purchased. It would limit to two the number of bombers to be purchased over the next two fiscal years.

Cheney told reporters the Aspin amendment "creates problems for the program."

"But at least it lets us get through the House with the program having been approved," he said.

"We'll go to conference, hopefully with a stronger position from the Senate."

"I would hope we would come out of conference with the approval to proceed with an aggressive program," Cheney said.

"Anything that's done by way of delay or stretchout is simply going to raise the cost of the program," he said. "We'll be much better off if we get full speed ahead with the program that we've submitted."

The Senate, voting 98-1 on Tuesday, endorsed President Bush's two-year request for $4.7 billion for stealth production, conditioned on the aircraft meeting flight-test and radar-evasion standards.

The Osprey and the Tomcat were put on the House agenda after lawmakers from Pennsylvania, New York and Texas expressed dismay with their cancellation.

The V-22, a tilt-rotor aircraft that takes off like a helicopter but can fly like a plane, is manufactured by Boeing Helicopter Co., and Bell Helicopter Textron Inc., located in Pennsylvania and Texas.

The Pentagon had planned to spend $25.9 billion on 663 Ospreys, including $1.3 billion in fiscal 1990.

The Tomcat, manufactured by the Grumman Corp. on Long Island also had come under Cheney's ax.

Officials address Texas AFL-CIO Richards, Bullock given warm welcome

AUSTIN (AP) - Gubernatorial candidate Ann Richards asked organized labor to give her a chance, and lieutenant governor candidate Bob Bullock assured union members their leaders would be at his side when the crucial decisions are made on redistricting in 1991.

State Treasurer Richards and state Comptroller Bullock, both Democrats, received a warm reception Wednesday at the Texas AFL-CIO convention.

Ms. Richards, who likely will face Attorney General Jim Mattox in the 1990 primary election, appealed to AFL-CIO delegates to vote independently, not as a group.

"It is time, my friends, for us to unify, not divide this election next year. It is too important for there to be a schism and a division between us," Ms. Richards said.

"I've asked nothing more than you give us a chance in the primary, and that you support us individually, whoever you choose. But do not try a divisive campaign at this juncture, because we need to be ready to go in November 1990," she said.

Union members applauded Ms. Richards' comments for 15 seconds, one of 15 times applause interrupted her 17-minute address.

Mattox, a longtime labor favorite, is scheduled to address the convention Friday.

Bullock told the convention the 1990 elections "will make or break all of us."

He reminded union members that the lieutenant governor will join legislators in 1991, after the federal census, in drawing new Texas district lines for the Legislature and Congress.

If he is elected, Bullock said, "that means that you working men and women will be done right in that redistricting, and that means that organized labor will be done right."

Bullock said Joe Gunn and Jackie St. Clair, candidates at the convention for president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, "will be at my side ... will be in my office when those lines are drawn, make no doubt about it."

Bullock's main opponent in the Democratic primary, state Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, was not on the program for the four-day convention.

But Edwards visited with delegates Tuesday and Wednesday and expected to return today and Friday, campaign manager Dennis Randolph said.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, July 27, the 206th day of 1989. There are 157 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Two hundred years ago, on July 27, 1789, Congress established the Department of Foreign Affairs, the forerunner of the Department of State.

On this date:

In 1861, Union General George B. McClellan was placed in command of the Army of the Potomac.

In 1866, Cyrus W. Field finally succeeded after two failures in laying the first underwater telegraph cable between North America and Europe.

In 1909, Orville Wright tested the Army's first airplane, flying himself and a passenger for one hour and 12 minutes.

In 1953, the Korean War armistice was signed at Panmunjom, ending three years of fighting. It had taken 255 meetings over two years and 17 days to reach the agreement.

In 1960, Vice President Richard M. Nixon was nominated for President at the Republican convention in Chicago.

In 1974, the House Judiciary Committee voted 27-11 to recommend President Richard M. Nixon's impeachment on a charge that he had personally engaged in conduct designed to obstruct justice in the Watergate case.

In 1976, Air Force veteran Ray Brennan became the first person to die of so-called Legionnaire's Disease, following an outbreak at a Philadelphia hotel where an American Legion convention had taken place.

In 1980, on day 267 of the Iranian hostage crisis, the deposed Shah of Iran died at a military hospital outside Cairo, Egypt, at the age of 60.

In 1982, Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi began her first visit to the United States in almost 11 years, arriving at New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport.

Ten years ago: President Jimmy Carter chose former New Orleans Mayor Moon Landrieu to be his secretary of housing and urban development, and Portland, Oregon, Mayor Neil Goldschmidt to be his new secretary of transportation.

Five years ago: Actor James Mason died in Lausanne, Switzerland, at the age of 75.

One year ago: U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar held separate peace talks with the foreign ministers of Iraq and Iran on a ceasefire in the eight-year-old Persian Gulf war.

Today's Birthdays: Former baseball manager Leo Duocher is 83. TV producer Norman Lear is 67. Movie reviewer Vincent Canby is 65. Sportscaster Irv Cross is 50. Singer Bobbie Gentry is 45. Actress Betty Thomas is 41. Skater Peggy Fleming is 41. Singer Maureen McGovern is 40.

Local Roundup

Two are arrested

Two men were arrested by officers of the Hereford Police Department overnight. They were a 38-year-old charged with public intoxication, and a 20-year-old arrested on warrants for no liability insurance and defective equipment on a vehicle.

Incidents investigated by city police included criminal mischief reported in the 400 block of Avenue H; criminal mischief in the 500 block of Avenue G; theft of dogs in the 300 block of Avenue J with the dogs later recovered; harassing phone calls; and charges filed on a suspect for driving while intoxicated.

City police issued seven citations and investigated one minor accident.

Fair weather continues

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a less than 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. The low will be 62, with southeast winds 5-10 mph.

Friday will be fair with a less than 20 percent chance of afternoon thunderstorms. The high will be 85, with south winds 5-15 mph.

This morning's low at KPAN was 62 after a high Wednesday of 83.

Farmers' market open

The first farmers' market of the season is being held today from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the old Price Less parking lot just off the intersection of U.S. Highway 385 and West Park Avenue in Hereford.

A bounty of fresh produce will be offered for sale by local farmers and gardeners. The project is sponsored by the ag committee of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

RUTH VOYLES July 25, 1989

Ruth Voyles, 79, of Hereford, died July 25, 1989.

Services are to be held at 10 a.m. Friday at the Assembly of God Church in Dimmitt with the Rev. Tom Mullins and the Rev. Claude Hendricks officiating.

Graveside services will be held at 4 p.m. Friday in City of Childress Cemetery. Arrangements are by Foskey-Fleming Funeral Home of Dimmitt.

Mrs. Voyles was born in Egger, Ark., and had lived in Dimmitt for 29 years before moving to Hereford in 1988. She was a cook in the Dimmitt schools for 20 years.

Her husband, Jim, died in 1987.

Survivors include three daughters, Billie Simms of Hereford, Shirley Landry of Claude and Dorothy McNeal of Brownwood; a son, Willie D. Voyles of Paint Rock; a brother, Dick Whitten of Bakersfield, Calif.; 13 grandchildren; and 27 great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the Alzheimer's Fund.

BOBBY WILSON July 24, 1989

Bobby Wilson, 29, of Anton, died Monday, July 24, 1989.

Services were to be held at 2 p.m. today in Rose Chapel at Gililand-Watson Funeral Home with the Rev. Robert Griggs officiating. Burial was to follow in West Park Cemetery.

Mr. Wilson was born in Lubbock. He was a bricklayer and a member of the Assembly of God Church.

Survivors include his daughter, Christina Wilson; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Wilson of Anton; three brothers, Billy and Kinny, both of Anton, and Willie Jr. of Lubbock; three sisters, Melody Thomas of Anton, Anna Simpson of Bryan, and Ella Williams of Round Rock.

AUSTIN (AP) - State politicians who come courting labor better have their workers' compensation papers in order, a top Texas labor official said.

Joe Gunn, secretary-treasurer of the Texas AFL-CIO, said Wednesday state office seekers who want labor's endorsement are going to be asked to support labor's efforts in workers' comp at the next special legislative session.

Gunn, who is expected to be elected president of the 220,000 member union Saturday, described the business-backed reforms adopted by the House as a "devastating bill" that would have created the "employer protection agency."

Lawmakers failed to reach a compromise through one regular session and one special session on the insurance system to compensate employees who are injured at work.

Gov. Bill Clements said he will call another special session this fall to break the impasse that pits business against labor and lawyers who represent injured workers.

Although Texas leads the nation in worker-related deaths, Gunn told union delegates at the Texas AFL-CIO annual convention that the House refused Senate proposals on enforcing job safety.

Of the House safety plan, he said, "It's a phony safety. It's a fake safety."

And, he said, the proposed benefit increases were a sham because of a plan to calculate permanent disability benefits on a set schedule instead of loss of wage-earning capacity.

Gunn said when labor is approached by candidates, workers need to say, "It's time for you to give us your endorsement. Vote for the workers to keep their dignity."

"A society that does not pick up its wounded from the battlefield certainly is not worthy of recognition," he said.

And Gunn warned union members to remain vigilant, saying that if labor wins, business and insurance groups will come back in 1991 after redistricting and try to push their workers' comp agenda again.

Israeli plan pursued

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Bush administration will keep trying to persuade the Palestine Liberation Organization to participate - without conditions - in an Israeli election plan now that Yasser Arafat's group has endorsed the concept.

The problem, State Department officials disclosed Wednesday, is that the PLO wants a "guaranteed outcome" that includes the establishment of a Palestinian state.

Even while the PLO position was being outlined in public for the first time, U.S. ambassador Robert Pelletreau Jr. was having another session in Tunisia with Hakam Ballaoui, the PLO representative in the North African country.

Details were not disclosed. A brief State Department announcement said only that "several issues related to the dialogue" were discussed.

The United States and Israel oppose statehood for the 1.4 Palestinian Arabs who Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir is trying to persuade to take part in elections leading to limited self-rule. Without PLO approval the idea is unlikely to go anywhere.

Margaret Tutwiler, the State Department spokeswoman, called the PLO precondition unacceptable. She refused to say whether the U.S.-backed election proposal had been harmed or helped by the PLO's acceptance of the concept with strings attached.

What she and other officials left clear, however, is that the United States will keep talking about the election proposal to the PLO in Tunisia, where the group is headquartered, as the most opportune way to open Mideast negotiations.

Shamir envisions elected Palestinians negotiating with Israel a five-year self-rule arrangement that would be followed by talks also involving Egypt and Jordan on an overall settlement.

Other State Department sources said the PLO also demanded that Israel agree in advance to trade territory for peace.

Helpful tips for traveling with your grandchildren

Traveling with your grandchildren can be a great way to spend time together and develop a greater appreciation for their talents and personalities.

There's no better way to see America than by motorhome or travel trailer with the comfort, convenience and privacy afforded by bringing your accommodations with you.

However, as anyone who as ever traveled for more than 10 miles with children knows, extended trips can try the patience of a saint.

To make your trip an enjoyable holiday, keep in mind these travel tips.

1. Involve the grandchildren in preparing for the trip—deciding where to go, what to do, and in packing and loading the RV.

2. When choosing which attractions to visit, select a variety of things so each person enjoys some things. If a preschooler will be traveling with you, remember that he or she is too young to really enjoy attractions such as museums or curiosity shops, preferring zoos, parks and playgrounds.

3. To answer the often repeated question of "when are we going to get there," have brochures of where you're going and extra roadmaps to show where you are.

4. Have plenty of healthy snacks such as crackers, nuts, fruit juices and cold water on hand.

5. Brush up on all the "travel games" you played with your children—finding state license plates, billboard alphabet, travel bingo, etc. Pack plenty of games, puzzles and coloring books as well. Bring along taped stories and songs, taking turns choosing tapes to play so that everyone, including the driver, can enjoy the diversion. Older children and you will appreciate having a personal radio and cassette player with earphones.

6. Plan for regular stops at rest areas or tourist attractions. Keep the travel schedule light so you have time to relax. Take time to play a little frisbee or throw a softball.

7. A trip can be an excellent time to educate children about money. Give each child a specific amount of money to spend on the trip, and emphasize that they are responsible for safekeeping and choosing how to spend their money.

8. Children old enough to have chores at home can have chores when it's time to set up camp. Even young children can experience the pleasure of being "grown up"—perhaps setting up lawn chairs or assisting older siblings with a task.

9. Remember that kids tire more easily and become cranky when traveling. Complimenting them on positive behavior and allowing a little bending of "home rules" can make the trip more enjoyable for all.

10. When you reach the campsite, reward children's good behavior and cooperative spirit displayed during the day—regardless of how many times they had to be disciplined. Doing so sets the stage for good behavior the next day, and can go a long way in smoothing road-weary family relationships.

These 10 tips will help make your next RV vacation a fun family holiday.

Laura Carmichael

Carmichael honored

The Outstanding College Students of America has announced that Laura R. Carmichael has been selected as a new member because of outstanding merit and accomplishment as an American College student.

Laura is a music-German major at the University of Michigan. Last summer, she spent eight weeks in Salzburg, Austria studying.

She is the daughter of Dr. Bill Carmichael of Arlington and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Carmichael of Hereford.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Rap performer Chuck D. of Public Enemy says rappers are king to some youths because they tell it like it is.

"You gotta understand, Public Enemy and rap music are dispatchers of information," he said Sunday at the Indiana Black Expo festival.

"We're almost like headline news," he said. "Rap music is the invisible TV station that black America never had."

Chuck D. told an Expo audience that the country's social structure keeps blacks and whites apart, and rap music is shocking the white community because rappers have become heroes to some white children.

Organizers of the Expo, though, said one reason for the session was that rap music is causing controversy within the black community.

Prinses Hemphill of the Chicago-based Coast to Coast Concerts said some investors are afraid of rap concerts because violence marred several performances.

can be trusted but it is not always easy to determine which ones they are. In our interactions with people, we must wait until they prove themselves, and even then we must not trust them unreservedly. "Wise distrust and constant watchfulness are the parents of safety." We owe this to ourselves and to those who may be depending upon us.

Everything of value must be looked upon and considered with the greatest degree of watchfulness or it will be lost. Some valuable things are lost anyway. Above all else, wisdom teaches us to be watchful about what we permit to enter our minds and our lives. This must be our first line of individual defense because it is our best help in coping with the living experience.

A price must be paid in order to save the good part of life and being "eternally vigilant" is a big part of this price. "He is most free from danger, who when safe, is on his guard."—P. Syrus.

Being watchful is essential to the full exercise of wisdom and good judgment in personal conduct of life.

Abundant Life

BY BOB WEAR
Be Watchful

The realities of life teach us that there is always good reason for us to be watchful. This is not to say that we should live scared, but it does mean that the world of people in which we live is filled with dangers and pitfalls. We must be on guard constantly, because we will suffer too much loss if we become careless. "The simple believes everything, but the prudent looks where he is going."

We are thankful for the persons who are trustworthy but nothing is more foolish than assuming that everybody can be trusted. There are people who will take what we have; who will harm us; who will lead us astray; and who will deceive us. This is an unpleasant reality that must be accepted, and we must make sure that we outwit these people.

If we could trust everybody, living would be a happier experience and an easier experience, too. Some people

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Getting my young son potty trained was no easy feat. Well, I have finally succeeded — or shall I say he has.

When he went into the bathroom he would enjoy unrolling the toilet paper. He'd get carried away, and by the time I reached him, tissue would be everywhere.

I found a solution to this problem. After I place the roll on the roller, I squeeze it until the inner cardboard roll is bent. This keeps him from unrolling the whole roll. — Deborah Wheeler, Baton Rouge, La.

SERVING SUGGESTION

Dear Heloise: I had a small party and wanted to serve fresh vegetables with different dips. I got out my large terra-cotta bowl, placed some paper towels in it and then covered the bottom with a sheet of aluminum foil.

I arranged some Swiss chard and kale along the bottom of the bowl so the foil didn't show. Then I neatly arranged radishes, celery, cucumbers, carrots and peppers in it. It was an attractive centerpiece and I received more compliments than I can even remember. — Viane Smith, Des Moines, Iowa

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from "20/20" who, after marrying, learned that her husband was gay. There is another side to the story. May I tell it?

I am 42 years old and gay. I did not choose to be this way. On the contrary, I did everything I could think of to get straight. Who in his right mind would choose a life of ridicule and scorn?

After I returned from Vietnam, I felt tremendous pressure to marry. I figure marriage would "cure" me. I couldn't have been more mistaken. I told "Alice" I was gay before we married. She said she didn't care. She loved me and we would work things out together.

After 10 years of marriage, four sons, a suicide attempt and intensive therapy, we divorced. It was the nastiest divorce of the century. I was accused of every perversion imaginable, including sexual abuse of our sons.

After five more years of therapy, I am doing fairly well. The children are older now and talking. They say I did not abuse them.

Why does "20/20" think her husband married her? I think I know. He hated being gay and thought marriage might straighten him out.

That's my first guess. My second guess is that marriage would allow him to do as he pleased without the label.

I was helped to realize, in therapy, that I have worth and value. I have a good job, I am active in my church and in civic groups. I'm a good citizen. I have been gay all my life. I was not converted to homosexuality. I don't believe conversion is possible—for gays or for straights.

We are the only minority shunned by our own families. Imagine a child growing up with the fear that if Mom and Dad found out, he would be despised and rejected. So you do everything you can to hide what you are. Sometimes this means marriage. For once you have complete acceptance. You've done something right even though you suspect it won't last forever. It's a wonderful feeling—until the roof falls in.

So how does this crazy thing get fixed? Well, it would help if you left us alone. Every time you pressure a gay (male or female) to marry, you involve another innocent person. This is a terrible injustice. In my case, it involved one wife and four children. And for what? My parents' peace of mind? So society would get off my case?

I know what the bible says. Every self-righteous fundamentalist screams it loud and clear. But the Bible also says, "Judge not lest ye be judged." One last thing—90 percent of all child abuse is perpetrated by heterosexuals.

Thank you for listening.—Ben There and Back

DEAR BEEN THERE: You've written a poignant and moving letter. Every bit of it is factually correct, including your figures on child abuse. Thank you for unloading here. I'm sure you have helped others who are fighting the same battle.

Jones hits Thousand Oaks talking

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Jerry Jones has paraphrased a line from Robert Duvall in the movie "Apocalypse Now" to show how much he loves football training camp.

After one devastating air strike, Duvall told his troops: "I love the smell of napalm in the morning."

New Cowboys' owner Jones says he feels at home "every time I smell fresh cut grass in August."

Jones said it was killing him to miss training camp while he wrapped up business in Dallas.

"I couldn't stand it until I got here," Jones said. "I was nervous not being here."

Jones paid some $140 million for the team, which he took over in February, dismissing Tom Landry and installing Jimmy Johnson as coach.

Jones said he's getting tired of being controversial.

"I've got a lot of room to improve to be a part of this," Jones said looking around at the field where the players were practicing.

"This season should be a lot of fun, but we're going to pay a high price if we miss."

Jones made himself readily available for numerous interviews despite his penchant for an occasional malapropism.

"I sometimes am very direct about comments on what we're doing," Jones said. "My enthusiasm is sometimes interpreted as brashness or being offensive."

"I'm motivated and get a step up in my will when I'm criticized. I'm just trying to be as productive as I can to make the Cowboys the best franchise in the NFL."

Johnson later quipped to Jones "Jerry I've never known you to be defensive. You've always been offensive."

Jones said he was glad training camp had arrived to take some of the heat off of him in Dallas.

"I'm working toward my improvement and it's great to be here," he said.

"I know what the players are going through. I know every step (at the University of Arkansas) for me was a physical effort. I was told by the trainer I had the lowest tolerance for pain of any kid who ever played at Arkansas."

Jones recalled the time he and Johnson missed curfew before the 1963 Sugar Bowl.

"We got caught by (assistant) Doug Dickey but he promised not to tell Frank Broyles," Jones recalled.

"Later on I was telling some players about our close call when Frank Broyles came by and I thought we'd had it. Jimmy asked me later 'Jerry, don't you ever shut up?'"

Jones said he was going to be in and out of training camp for the next six weeks.

"I plan to have some plays for Jimmy to run," Jones quipped.

Then he said "I've had some pretty serious moments publicly with the fans and some of the media. The serious side is an effort to make this a lot of fun for our fans. Football is a real serious business when it comes to the dedication and effort involved."

"I'm going to give it everything I've got. Then I'm going to get on my knee, get up and give it everything all over again."

Jones talked with Los Angeles Raiders' owner Al Davis at Wednesday's practice and got a big compliment.

"Jerry is going to be a tremendous asset to the Cowboys and the National Football League," Davis said. "I like him."

Verplank seeks new life at Buick

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) - Suppose they had a golf tournament and nobody came?

Sounds pretty far fetched, you say?

Well, consider this: heading into today's opening round of the Buick Open, the automaker was giving away $1 million in prize money and couldn't get a full field of 156 PGA Tour players to tee it up.

The field at 7,014-yard Warwick Hills, a par-72 course about an hour north of Detroit, consisted of 154 pros and one amateur.

"I guess it proves they don't play just for money, doesn't it?" defending champion Scott Verplank said. "I'm surprised they've got a short field, but I guess it's Buick's bad luck to follow the British Open."

Such bad luck was supposed to have been eliminated when the sponsor increased the purse by $200,000 from last year, assuring the winner a check of $180,000 for four day's work. But it didn't happen.

It has been years since the Buick Open drew such magic names as Arnold Palmer or Jack Nicklaus, but Steve Wright, general chairman of the tournament, didn't feel the sponsor was being snubbed.

"We had 176 committed, which is more than last year," Wright said. "I don't know why individuals had to withdraw. There have been some injuries. There are different situations that arise."

There were 12 alternates listed, which generally is more than enough. But because so many exempt players withdrew at the last moment, many of the alternates had left town or made other commitments.

"Had we known, I have a whole notebook full of names, but people can't change plans at a moment's notice," Wright said.

"It's too bad," Verplank said. "I know 20 guys back home (in Edmond, Okla.) that would love to play here if the PGA would let them. Good players, too; they just don't have a Tour card."

"I think it's the Tour's fault."

In a pro-am Wednesday, Verplank shot 1-under-par 71 and talked afterward about quitting, something that once seemed unthinkable.

"I've thought a lot about doing something else," Verplank said. "It's too hard. I just turned 25 years old. After three years on the Tour, I feel like I'm about 35."

The Buick Open will be Verplank's 20th tournament this year. He has earned $75,286, which ranks him 115th on the money list. His best finish was a tie for sixth in May in the Memorial.

Ironically, he missed the cut in his last tournament, the Western Open, a tournament he won in 1985 while still an amateur. He took a couple of weeks off, then flew to Scotland, but failed to qualify for the British Open.

"I've come to a crossroads where I need to see somebody about my game," Verplank said. "I played perfect at home last week, then came here and hit it all over the place again. I have high expectations. I put so much pressure on myself."

That's the bad news. The good news is that Verplank wasn't playing very well when he came to Warwick Hills Golf and Country Club last year, and look what happened.

"That was a year ago. I'm not that confident right now," Verplank said.

Garrett putt a winner

Cal Garrett rolled in an 18-foot putt on the first hole of a sudden-death putting contest Wednesday to give his team the victory in the Wednesday Scramble that had gone without a winner for six weeks at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

The winning putt was worth $1,342 in golf merchandise, or $335.50 for each player in the foursome. Garrett's putt also made winners out of Don Graham, Truett Hardage and David Arrellano.

Three teams carded a 30 yesterday and qualified for the putting contest to determine a winner. The tourney has been carrying over the prizes when two or more teams tie, and this happened for six straight weeks.

Pro Mike Horton, who will end his tenure here July 31, decreed that a tie this week would be settled on the practice putting green.

Bobby Valdez, Gary Ruckman, Leland Shelton and John Yocum also posted a score of 30 yesterday and took the first putts. They wound up with a deuce when no one hit the hole. Garrett's team was next and his putt fell to put the pressure on team three.

Tech's Thurman faces tall odds in tryout with Cowboys

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Tyrone Thurman has about as much chance of making the Dallas Cowboys as a bug does surviving a collision with the windshield of a tractor trailer.

However, the 5-foot-3, 145-pound Thurman, a free agent from Texas Tech, keeps making great plays in the land of the NFL giants.

"Super flea may just have the best hands we've seen in training camp, better even than Kelvin Martin, but unfortunately his hands aren't very large," said John Wooten, the Cowboys' top scout. "He's a tough little scooter."

As Wooten spoke, Thurman streaked between two defenders to catch a perfectly timed pass from Troy Aikman.

"Tyrone reminds you a lot of Gerald McNeil at Cleveland," Wooten said. "He's a great kick returner and he's an excellent receiver. Of course, he's so short it's sometimes hard for the quarterback to find him."

"He probably has a 50-50 shot to make our team because we have to have aggressive kickoff units. If Tyrone doesn't make it here, then I bet the Canadian teams will gobble him up."

Coach Jimmy Johnson isn't as optimistic as Wooten about Thurman's chances.

"It would be difficult for him to hang on," Johnson said. "He's a hard worker and I like his attitude but he has a lot to overcome."

Thurman knows all this.

"I've had the odds stacked

Lloyd Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates made 223 hits as a rookie in 1927 to set a National League record.

against me before," he said. "Realistically I'm going to have to show a lot returning kicks if I'm to make this team."

Special teams' coach Alan Lowery said it's difficult for a small man to play in the NFL.

"The problem that you run into is that an arm tackle can bring you down," Lowery said. "You get hit with one arm and you're down. Thurman's only weapon is to be able to run away from people."

Thurman is quick. He played point guard in basketball at Texas Tech after shattering most of the Southwest Conference's return records.

He made The Associated Press

All-America first team as a kick returner.

Thurman also is strong. He can bench press 280 pounds and has squat-lifted 435.

If Thurman does make the Cowboys he will be the NFL's shortest player at 5-4. McNeil is 5-7.

"It would be special if 'flea' made it," said Wooten. "It would be a great hometown deal. But there's not a lot of room for sentiment in the NFL."

At the end of a recent practice at California Lutheran College, Thurman was mobbed by children wanting his autograph. Some kids stood taller than he did.

Yankee pitching woes prove costly

By The Associated Press
George Steinbrenner and Dallas Green now know what most of baseball realized last winter: the Yankees' pitching stinks.

New York took a 2-0 lead against Cleveland Wednesday night. After falling behind 6-2, the Yankees took a 7-6 lead. Didn't matter. The bullpen got involved and Cleveland won 8-7 for New York's eighth loss in nine games.

"I don't know where the comedy of errors begins and ends," Green said, "but it sure surfaced in that inning. You can't give major-league players that many outs and not expect to get the loss."

After Luis Polonia's two-run homer gave the Yankees a 7-6 lead in the top of the eighth, Lee Gueterman, 2-5, allowed a leadoff single to Jerry Browne in the bottom half.

Felix Fermin bunted and Gueterman's throw sailed 20 feet over first base and rolled down the right-field line as the runners went to second and third. Dion James popped out and Joe Carter was walked to load the bases. Pete O'Brien then popped the ball down the left-field line and Polonia allowed it to drop for a double. O'Brien had three hits and drove in four runs.

"All he has to do is catch the ball," Green said of Polonia. "I expect outfielders who are paid to play to catch the baseball. He didn't play O'Brien's ball right in the fifth, either. It cost us two more runs."

In other games, Oakland beat California 9-5, Minnesota beat

Baltimore 5-4, Chicago beat Seattle 5-3, Kansas City beat Boston 7-4, Texas beat Toronto 11-1 and Milwaukee beat Detroit 3-2.

Doug Jones, 4-5, got the victory despite allowing Polonia's eighth-inning homer.

The Yankees' bullpen is 0-5 since July 15 with an 11.88 earned-run average.

Athletics 9, Angels 5
Matt Young, 1-3, retired one batter for his first victory since July 19, 1987.

With the score tied 5-5, Mark McGwire and Dave Henderson started the eighth with singles off Mike Witt, 5-5. Rich Monteleone struck out Jose Canseco but Ron Hassey's single scored pinch-runner Stan Javier. Tony Phillips walked, loading the bases, and Mike Gallego hit an RBI groundout. Rickey Henderson and Carney Lansford added RBI singles.

Twins 5, Orioles 4

Doug Baker singled in the winning run in the ninth and Kent Hrbek homered twice. Jeff Reardon, 3-2, got his first victory since June 26.

In the ninth, Tim Laudner and Al Newman hit one-out singles off Mark Williamson, 6-3, Randy Bush was walked intentionally and Baker lined a 1-1 pitch to right.

White Sox 5, Mariners 3
Ozzie Guillen stretched his hitting streak to 16 games with a pair of run-scoring singles.

Greg Hibbard, 2-2, allowed three hits and struck out five in 6 2-3 innings and Bobby Thigpen got five outs for his 21st save.

Bill Swift, 6-3, lost his fifth consecutive decision against Chicago since Oct. 3, 1985, giving up six hits and three runs in six innings.

Royals 7, Red Sox 4

Bret Saberhagen, 10-5, won for the seventh time in eight decisions, allowing nine hits and four runs in 6 2-3 innings, walking five and striking out four. Willie Wilson had four hits as visiting Kansas City rallied from 3-0 and 4-1 deficits.

Jeff Montgomery pitched 2 1-3 innings for his fifth save as the Royals stopped a three-game losing streak. Joe Price, 1-5, relieved Boston starter Eric Hetzel in the fifth and Price allowed three hits and two runs.

Rangers 11, Blue Jays 1

Julio Franco drove in three runs to take over the American League lead in RBIs and the Texas got 16 hits.

Rookie Kevin Brown, 9-6, allowed seven hits in eighth innings. Mike Flanagan, 6-7, lost, allowing six runs and eight hits in 4 1-3 innings.

Brewers 3, Tigers 2

Robin Yount hit a two-run homer in the first to extend his hitting streak to 16 games and walked with the bases loaded in the eighth off Edwin Nunez, 1-2, to force in the go-ahead run.

Teddy Higuera, 5-4, allowed three hits in eight innings, walking four and striking out four. Dan Plesac pitched the ninth to earn his 24th save in 29 opportunities.

Cincy skid nears team loss record

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

With the Cincinnati Reds one defeat short of matching a 23-year-old low-water mark, Manager Pete Rose says there's nothing the team can do but keep playing - and hoping.

The Reds lost their 10th consecutive game Wednesday night, a 5-3 defeat by San Diego. The Reds can tie a 1966 mark of futility with a loss to the Padres today.

Is there anything the Reds can do to change their fortunes?

"That's the same question we've asked each other the last seven or eight days," Rose said. "Just keep playing, that's all you can do."

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Houston 6, Los Angeles 2; Philadelphia 4, Montreal 3; Atlanta 5, San Francisco 4; Pittsburgh 3, New York 2, and St.

Louis 2, Chicago 0.

Cincinnati's slump is its worst since an 11-game slide from June 29 to July 9, 1966.

The Reds, beset by injuries, suffered again from a lack of offense. They managed only four hits.

"(John) Franco gets beat on a check swing (by Mike Pagliarulo in the eighth inning) and an infield ground ball," Rose said. "Things are tough. But if you score runs, you overcome things like that."

With the score tied 3-3, Pagliarulo singled Marvell Wynne to third. Luis Salazar followed with an infield hit that proved decisive.

Dennis Rasmussen allowed three hits over 6 1-3 innings before yielding to Mark Grant, 4-1, who pitched 2 2-3 innings. Mark Davis earned his 25th save.

Relief ace Franco, 2-4, lost.

Astros 6, Dodgers 2

Mike Scott used his right arm to become the first 16-game winner in the majors and his bat to drive in two runs. He struck out a season-high 11 batters and had a perfect game through 4 2-3 innings. Jeff Hamilton lined a single to left to end it.

Scott, who allowed four hits and walked one in eight innings, has won 10 of his last 12 decisions.

In the fourth, the Astros snapped a 19-inning scoreless drought against the Dodgers in taking a 3-0 lead against Fernando Valenzuela, 5-10.

Phillies 4, Expos 3

Down to its final strike, Philadelphia ended a six-game losing streak on a two-run single by Randy Ready off bullpen ace Tim Burke.

Bob Demier led off the ninth inning against Zane Smith, 1-13, with a grounder that was booted by third baseman Tim Wallach. Von Hayes followed with a ground-rule double.

Burke, who has 21 saves in 27 opportunities, came on to retire Ricky Jordan on a fly ball before Ready lined a 1-2 pitch to left.

Jeff Parrett, 7-3, earned the victory and Roger McDowell got his 11th save.

Braves 5, Giants 4

Dale Murphy, with just two hits in 30 lifetime at-bats against Scott Garretts, brought the Braves back from a 3-0 deficit in the sixth inning with a three-run homer. He added a tie-breaking sacrifice fly against Steve Bedrosian, 2-5, in a two-run eighth.

Kevin Mitchell, who leads the majors with 88 RBIs, drove in a run as the Giants took a 3-0 lead in the first against Marty Clary.

Pirates 3, Mets 2

John Smiley pitched a three-hitter to beat New York for the sixth time in seven career decisions. He also drove in a run.

Barry Bonds led the Pittsburgh attack with two RBIs.

Smiley, 9-5, pitched five hitless innings before Kevin Elster led off the sixth with his third home run. Mark Carreon hit his major league-leading third pinch-hit homer - his fourth overall - in the eighth.

Cardinals 2, Cubs 0

Vince Coleman had both RBIs and stole three bases, and Jose DeLeon extended his streak of scoreless innings to 19 for St. Louis.

Jose Oquendo's hitting streak, the longest in the majors this season, ended at 23 games. He was 0-for-3, and was left in the on-deck circle in the eighth inning.

Coleman drove in Terry Pendleton both times and stole his 48th, 49th and 50th consecutive bases. Coleman, who leads the majors in steals with 44 this season, has not been thrown out since last year.

Duran gets 'uno mas'

NEW YORK (AP) - It is Roberto Duran and not Thomas Hearns who will get a third fight with Sugar Ray Leonard because Duran is the only man to ever beat Leonard.

Perhaps if Hearns had swayed one more judge and would not have had to settle for a draw with Leonard in their rematch on June 10, he once again would be in the ring with Sugar Ray sometime in November or early December.

"This indeed is a rubber match because Roberto Duran is the only man to beat me in my career," the 33-year-old Leonard said Wednesday during a news conference to announce his fight with the 38-year-old Duran.

Hearns also apparently knocked out his chances of a third fight with Leonard by demanding parity.

Asked about purses, Duran quipped, "Money is only important when you're paying the IRS."

Purses weren't announced, but Leonard is expected to get at least $15 million.

Mike Trainer, Leonard's lawyer, said his man will get a guarantee plus a big percentage deal, while most of Duran's money will come from a guarantee. He did say that after the fight Leonard's career purse money would be about $98 million.

When Duran won the World Boxing Council welterweight title from Leonard via a 15-round unanimous decision at Montreal on June 20, 1980, he got $1 million to $10 million for Leonard. In the rematch at New Orleans, Duran made $7 million, Leonard got $8 million.

It was in the rematch that Duran quit in the eighth round, saying, "No mas."

That phrase definitely is a selling point for the third fight which will be held either in Las Vegas or Atlantic City.

If it is at Caesars Palace, it will be on Nov. 2, if at Trump Plaza in Atlantic City, N.J., it will be on Nov. 30, and if at the new Mirage at Las Vegas, it will be in the first week in December, Trainer said.

"Uno Mas (one more)" read a banner at the news conference at Roseland, the famed dance hall in midtown Manhattan.

"No mas," Duran said, meaning, no more questions about "no mas."

"Every day the press puts in the papers, 'No mas, no mas,'" Duran said through an interpreter. "They are trying to offend me. Now it's fight time."

Leonard holds the WBC 168-pound super middleweight title, while Duran is the WBC's 160-pound middleweight champion after having upset Iran Barkley on a 12-round split decision on Feb. 24.

At this time, Trainer said, the fight would be only for Leonard's title because Lindell Holmes of Detroit, ranked No. 1, is insisting on Duran making a mandatory defense

Paraplegic climber makes historic Yosemite ascent

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) - With the strength of his arms and the power of his will, a paraplegic completed a weeklong ascent of 3,200-foot El Capitan and said his climb proves the disabled can accomplish great feats.

Mark Wellman, accompanied by his friend Mike Corbett, reached the summit at Wednesday afternoon, seven days and four hours after they left the Yosemite Valley floor.

A nationwide television audience saw them at the mountaintop, and later the U.S. Senate passed a resolution commending them for their "extraordinary feat of bravery and stoutheartedness."

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., disabled himself with a partially paralyzed right arm, offered the resolution.

"My whole thing in life is finding another way to do it, whether that be skiing, kayaking or whatever," said Wellman, a 29-year-old park ranger, at a news conference before dozens of reporters, friends and fellow workers.

Wellman said he performed the climb for personal achievement, not for the disabled. But he said he hoped it would prove that people need not be stopped by their physical disabilities.

"Go out and do it!" said Wellman, who wore the same boots he was wearing in 1982 when he fell 50 feet during a climb of 13,700-foot Gables Peak south of Yosemite. He was left paralyzed from the waist down.

He said his next adventure will be cross-country skiing using a dog to pull him while he poles with his arms.

Wellman became the first paraplegic to conquer El Capitan. The vertical trek took an estimated 7,000 pull-ups, each advancing him only six inches. He had trained six months for the ascent, making 35 practice climbs on other sheer rocks and training with weights.

To climb El Capitan, Wellman and Corbett, 35, used modified cave exploration equipment that allowed Wellman to pull himself up the face of the cliff, using a T-bar device and ropes set by Corbett.

Wellman and Corbett toted 200 pounds of food and gear including hammocks that were suspended from hooks placed into the rock as they slept.

As they reached the summit, Corbett carried Wellman on his back to a shady spot under a pine tree. The climbers were greeted by their girlfriends, cheering friends and reporters.

Soon, they were sipping champagne and gulping ice water.

On the summit, set against a backdrop of views that included towering peaks of the Sierra Nevada and Half Dome, they were almost nonchalant.

"We didn't really have any scary moments doing this," said Wellman.

Their biggest problem was the wind, which Wellman said gusted from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. each day, sometimes blowing them 10 feet out from the cliff.

He said the heat was less of a problem, but temperatures occasionally soared to more than 100 degrees on the face of the cliff.

At the peak, he accepted a signed photograph of Yosemite from Corbett, who wrote, "It was an unbelievable experience." Corbett has scaled El Capitan 42 times, more than any other climber.

Wellman rode down from the mountain on a horse, talking with a fellow ranger about everything except the climb.

Mason trying hand at sitcom

LOS ANGELES (AP) - If Jackie Mason can translate his ability to boil things down to their barest basics, he might have a hit show on ABC this fall.

Stars and producers have been sitting in news conferences answering questions from the 100-plus television critics who are meeting here to preview 1989-90 programming.

One TV critic asked Mason whether his "Chicken Soup," with its heavy emphasis on the ethnicity of its star, would play in the Midwest.

"I don't see why I have to answer to you," said Mason, one of the many times he cracked up the audience.

In fact, Mason had flown in from Washington to help promote his new show. Mason won a Tony for his one-man show on Broadway, and now he's hooked up with Marcy Carsey and Tom Werner, executive producers of "The Cosby Show" and "Roseanne" to create a new sitcom.

Mason plays a character very much like himself, an aging Jewish bachelor. He lives with his mother and is conducting a secret affair with a Catholic neighbor, played by Lynn Redgrave, who has several children.

With Mason holding court, the news conference took on aspects of a nightclub performance. Even Redgrave got into the act when she was asked what it was like working with Mason.

"Well, I've worked with a few comedians in my day, and I must say that usually I've understood why they mostly work alone," she said.

Mason, however, is "a rarity," she added. "And when I met him, I realized I was deeply in love with him, and we're planning to run away."

As to the more serious question of whether a mass audience will take to a sitcom about a very Jewish man who performs monologues on his roof, and a very Catholic woman with an Irish brogue, Mason insisted viewers would take to the show.

He noted he has spent a career performing his stand-up act in the Midwest as well as elsewhere, and he found no communication problem.

"It's all pure nonsense in my opinion, because all my life as a comedian, I've been watching gentiles laughing at my humor, and I'm watching Jews tell me, yech, it's a little too Jewish," he said.

Although he performs a monologue at the beginning and end of the show, Mason said he found the sitcom format a much more disciplined structure than he is used to. "I have very limited experience in the field of any kind of precise comedy," he said. "I only did a couple of cockamamie movies that didn't go anywhere."

Nevertheless, ABC is taking a chance that Mason will make the same kind of splash that two other comedians, Bill Cosby and Roseanne Barr, have made in Carsey-Werner productions.

HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

"LICENCE TO KILL": Starring Timothy Dalton has everything you could possibly want in a James Bond film - action, glamour, wit, aristocratic, tuxedoed men and stunning looking women. This movie is everyone's fantasy come to life; no mundane, boring problems - only the big ones like, "Where to park the helicopter while transferring four million dollars to the yacht after changing into evening clothes for a night of champagne and chemin de fer at the casino?"

Licence to Kill is among the best of the Bond movies because of Timothy Dalton, Robert Davi, and stunts that are thrilling, amusing, spectacular, breathtaking, believable, unbelievable and outright, downright entertaining. The story line is simple: James Bond (Timothy Dalton) seeks drug lord and super-villain (wonderfully played by Robert Davi) for revenge. Along the way he is aided by two magnificent looking women in sleek evening clothes (or no clothes at all) and hindered by the requisite meanies. Everyone gets to change clothes, locations, all means of transportation and sides, a lot. Rated PG-13. You'll have a great, great time. Four Boxes.

RENTAL MOVIES

There are 16 Bond movies, all available for rental, (11 from Great Britain, each noted here as GB) and 4 different James Bonds. All of the movies would be, or are, rated PG-13.

"DR. NO": (GB, 1962) Sean Connery as the super-agent combating a fiend, out to control the world. Wildly flamboyant, this film still possesses the novelty values that made the series so popular. Three Boxes.

"FROM RUSSIA WITH LOVE": (GB, 1964) High-class, diverting hokum, perhaps the best of the Connery series. Suave, indestructible Agent 007 is on a tricky mission and he executes more narrow escapes than you can count. Four Boxes.

"GOLDFINGER": (GB, 1964) A good film with Connery in fine form. More than enough gimmickry and gadgetry to satisfy fans and a memorable foe with plans to relieve Fort Knox of its gold. Three Boxes.

"THUNDERBALL": (GB, 1965) The ominous enemy organization, SPECTRE, is out to destroy the city of Miami, if not paid a ransom of 100 million pounds sterling; super-hero Bond (Sean Connery) is not about to let all those tourists down; exciting. Three Boxes.

"YOU ONLY LIVE TWICE": (GB, 1967) A drawn-out adventure set in Japan. Bond (Sean Connery) must stop the evil SPECTRE from starting a war. Two Boxes.

"ON HER MAJESTY'S SECRET SERVICE": (GB, 1969) George Lazenby is a disappointing Bond who stops the bad guy's plans to conquer the world using a virus. A few exciting scenes. Two Boxes.

"DIAMONDS ARE FOREVER": (GB, 1971) A fair adventure with Bond (Sean Connery) dashing around Las Vegas, Los Angeles, Palm Springs and Reno, attempting to stop yet another evil quarry willing and eager to rule the world. Two Boxes.

"LIVE AND LET DIE": (GB, 1973) Agent 007 (Roger Moore) trying to unearth a large heroin operation in the Caribbean. Flashy photography, exotic locales, and an ample serving of sexy ladies keep things popping along at a nice clip. Three Boxes.

"THE MAN WITH THE GOLDEN GUN": (GB, 1974) Bond (Roger Moore) chases after a solar energy capsule confiscated by a globe-hopping hit man. Pretty average fare for Bond. Two Boxes.

"THE SPY WHO LOVED ME": (GB, 1977) Bond lovers may rank this with their all-time favorites because of the superb production values. 007 (Roger Moore) teams up with a gorgeous Russian agent to stop an insane shipping tycoon from destroying the world. Four Boxes.

"MOONRAKER": (GB, 1979) Luscious CIA agent, Holly Goodhead, and Bond (Roger Moore) must stop a madman from destroying the human race and starting over with his own eugenic breed. The free-fall fight for a single parachute and the laser-gun battle aboard a space station are fantastic. Three Boxes.

"FOR YOUR EYES ONLY": (1981) This one is right on target; Agent 007 (Roger Moore) must find a nuclear submarine activating device that has been lost in a sea crash. Roger Moore has never been cooler, crisper, or better. Four Boxes.

"NEVER SAY NEVER AGAIN": (1983) An acceptable update of Thunderball with Sean Connery as Bond. Once again, the super-agent must thwart the plans of evil SPECTRE after they steal two nuclear warheads. Connery is great as an aging Bond, the script does not measure up. Two Boxes.

"OCTOPUSSY": (1983) Bond (Roger Moore) foils a subversive communist plot to launch a nuclear strike against the American military in West Germany. Octopussy overflows with witty dialogue, and cartoon gadgetry that make it a fast-moving and spirited "popcorn" movie. Three Boxes.

"A VIEW TO A KILL": (1985) Agent 007 (Roger Moore) fights a psychopathic industrialist who wants to corner the microchip market by sinking part of California. One of the more protracted Bonds, but there is a smashing climax atop the Golden Gate Bridge. Two Boxes.

"THE LIVING DAYLIGHTS": (GB, 1987) A much-harder hitting Bond film, this thrilling yarn involves a KGB defector who's a double agent. Bond (Timothy Dalton) is a darker 007 who thrives on danger. Three Boxes.

Reporter details Camarena murder

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Three years ago investigative reporter Elaine Shannon took a leave from her job, withdrew her savings and set out to nail down the story of high-level corruption behind the murder of U.S.

drug agent Enrique Camarena in Mexico.

It was more than just a whodunit for Shannon. She found that the political immorality spread by the drug barons was pervasive in Mexico and there was a massive cover-up.

She also found that the Reagan White House and State Department were reluctant to see the murder investigation pursued because it was disruptive of American foreign policy. Some courageous officials, however, resisted pressure and pushed the investigation.

Camarena, an agent of the Drug Enforcement Administration, was abducted on Feb. 7, 1985, in Guadalajara, Mexico. He was tortured and murdered by the drug lords he was trying to bring to justice.

Shannon tells the whole dirty story in her book "Desperados," which has been made into a six-hour NBC miniseries called "Drug Wars: The Camarena Story."

The three-part series, to be shown this fall, stars Steven Bauer as Camarena, Elizabeth Pena as his wife, Mika, and Craig T. Nelson and Treat Williams as drug agents. Michael Mann ("Miami Vice") was executive producer.

"I traveled in Mexico and the Southwest, particularly California, and talked to everybody I could find who knew about the murder," said Shannon on a visit to Los Angeles. Shannon, who is expecting her first child next month, is married to Dan Morgan of the Washington Post. She spent 10 years covering the Department of Justice for Newsweek, which she left after beginning the book. She currently works for Time in Washington.

"This is really about American policy. We have agents all over the world."

Maximum legal speed for cars, motorcycles, commercial buses and light trucks in rural zones of Interstate designated highways.

Still the maximum legal speed permitted in most highway zones. ...it's to your safety advantage. A courteous reminder from the DPS Troopers.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: Two years ago I quit smoking, ending a two-pack-a-day habit. I was absolutely determined not to gain weight so I took up Jane Fonda aerobics, 45 to 75 minutes, four days a week. I joined Weight Watchers, rode a stationary bike 30 minutes four days a week, began running six miles four days a week and joined a summer aerobics class. No one could have tried harder than I did. In 14 weeks I gained 20 pounds. I called my doctor, the American Heart Association, American Lung Association and the Cancer Society. No one could tell me why I gained, when it would stop or how to lose this weight. I was literally in tears as I'm miserable being fat.

I began smoking again, hoping to lose the weight I gained an additional 10 pounds during the next two years. I'm 5 feet 6 inches, and was 46 years old and weighed 147 pounds before quitting smoking two years ago. Quitting smoking did something to my body. I am also on Provera and Provera. Perhaps the drugs have caused me to gain weight. I have never felt like less of a woman in all my life as I do now with this additional 30 pounds on my body.

DEAR READER: Some people do gain weight when they quit smoking. But a third have no change in weight and a third lose weight. There are basic reasons why a thin person who smokes gains weight when he stops. Most of the reasons are related to nicotine being a cellular poison. Most people can prevent this by following some of the measures you tried. That leads me to question whether your weight gain was really because you quit smoking. Since you continued to gain after resuming smoking, it is even more unlikely.

Your story is actually a good example of how the body will achieve the weight it is designed to have at different ages despite the efforts you may make with diet and exercise. That explains why most people who go on diets and lose weight regain all they have lost and usually more in time. I suspect you would have gained the same amount of weight if you had never stopped smoking at all.

You were the right age to have the middle-aged spread. And that can occur even if you have enough hormones. It may be influenced by your female hormone level, but keep in mind that some women go through the menopause and never gain weight. Most people who gain weight in the 40s and 50s do so because the brain is programmed for them to gain weight at that age, just as a young girl gains feminine fat pads when she reaches puberty.

You need a clear understanding of what controls your body weight at different stages of your life. It is unhealthy to starve yourself to try to look like you did when you were 25 after you are past 40. That is an adult version of anorexia nervosa with starvation most often seen in the young teen-age female.

I have discussed the many complex factors involved in what really controls a person's body weight in my new book, "The Weighting Game: The Truth About Weight Control." Readers who want information on getting this book can write to THE HEALTH LETTER, Dept. B, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Unless a person has a medical problem, the truth is that by following a sensible, well-balanced diet with only reasonable calorie control and being physically active, the body will adjust to the weight it should be. Attempts to weigh more or less through other measures are usually unhealthy.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have osteoarthritis which affects my lower back, hips and knees. I am 65 years old and was told that taking Provera and Premarin will help to strengthen the bones and slow down the deterioration caused by osteoarthritis.

I eat a lot of vegetables, fish, chicken and some meat, very little cheese or eggs. After a year of taking Provera and Premarin my triglycerides went from 68 to 237. I was also taking cod liver oil. I stopped all eggs and cheese and take two glasses of skim milk a day. And I stopped the cod liver oil. My triglycerides dropped to 156, but my cholesterol rose from 185 to 191 which I'm not happy about. Is this from the hormones I'm taking?

DEAR READER: You may have confused the type of arthritis you have. Osteoarthritis is a degeneration of the cartilage at the ends of the bones of the joints and is often called "wear and tear" arthritis. It affects the weight-bearing joints, which include the spine, the hips and the knees. This is the most common form of arthritis, and almost everyone—male or female—has some of these changes if he or she lives long enough. This form of arthritis is not benefited by taking estrogen and progestins such as Premarin and Provera.

But osteoporosis, which is dissolving of the bone structure, and involves some of the same joints, is accelerated with the menopause. Estrogen replacement is important in preventing or arresting this form of bone degeneration. Of course you could have both.

Your present level of triglycerides (blood fats) is normal and your cholesterol level is great. The difference between 185 and 191 is a normal fluctuation or within the range of the accuracy of the laboratory methods. Stop worrying about that.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Last year our family went skiing in Colorado and we all got sick. Our 6-month-old son got severely sick at the end of our stay. We returned to Minnesota and were still sick. We had to take our son to the emergency room.

After speaking with the Department of Health in Colorado, we probably had giardiasis from drinking water. This is most common in the spring when the snow melts and runs down the mountains. If the well is too shallow, the parasites get in. We never thought this could happen in the United States.

The Department of Health said that when you are in the mountains you really must watch where you stop and drink water. We had to take medicines to kill the parasites. I'm sure a lot of people who go to the mountains are not aware of this.

DEAR READER: Thank you for pointing out this problem for others. Giardiasis is not a rare disease in the United States. Some of those pristine streams in the Rocky Mountains may contain hidden parasites that cause the disease. No matter how clear and pretty the water is, you should not drink it at any time of the year.

Tart, tasty citrus desserts refreshing to palate

Not all desserts are sweet; in fact, some of the most delectable are tart, flavored with the essences of citrus fruits to refresh the palate. Citrus desserts are the ideal finale to a multi-course meal, because they cleanse rather than cloy, and they are equally excellent after lighter fare, as well.

Their bright colors and enticing fragrances add appeal to winter and early spring meals. However, because the main ingredients are available virtually year-round, citrus desserts can be made whenever inspiration strikes.

We all know the traditional favorites—lemon meringue Pie, piled high with peaks of fluffy egg white, and Key Lime Pie, the Florida specialty made with the small yellowish limes peculiar to the region, plus easy-to-put-together fruit salads featuring a myriad of citrus treats.

Besides these, there's a wide range of other citrus desserts—from the downhome to the downright exotic—which can add variety to daily fare, and make a real splash on special evenings. Below are a handful of recipes for citrus-based desserts and sweets which have appeared in recent cookbooks.

The first two, for Orange Squares and lemon cheese Cookies, are excerpted from The Wellesley Cookie Exchange Cookbook (Firestone Books/Simon & Schuster), by Susan Mahnke Peery, the food editor of Yankee Magazine. The recipe for Orange Squares was donated by Nancy Burr, who got it from Dora Ferguson, a caterer in Quincy, Massachusetts. The recipe for Lemon Cheese Cookies was provided by Laurel Gabel.

Another all-American recipe is the one for Meyer Lemon Cake, which is reproduced from Chez Panisse Cooking (random House), by (Paul Bertoli with Alice Waters, the most recent entry in the series of cookbooks based on the fare served at the renowned Berkeley, California, restaurant. While the recipe calls specifically for Meyer lemons, if these are unavailable, regular lemons can be substituted.

On a more exotic note, the recipe culled from Paula Wolfert's World of Food (Harper & Row) takes its inspiration from the fare of the mediterranean region, which is Wolfert's culinary stomping ground. Fresh Orange Slices with Moroccan Spices, which, as Wolfert explains, was inspired by a recipe by Jean-Louis Palladin, combines sweet, tart and spicy in a novel fashion.

ORANGE SQUARES

1 whole seedless orange, unpeeled
1 cup raisins
1/3 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon baking soda
3/4 cup sour cream or plain yogurt
1 3/4 cups flour
Pinch of salt

Cut oranges into quarters and grind with raisins, preferably using a heavy iron meat grinder with a coarse blade. (A food processor will also do the job, but be sure not to grind the fruit to mush.) Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs. Add orange mixture and blend well. Dissolve the baking soda in the sour cream or yogurt and add to orange mixture. Add flour and salt, and stir by hand until well mixed. Spread in a greased jelly-roll pan. Bake at 350 degrees F for 20 to 30 minutes. Cool. Dust with confectioners' sugar, or make an orange-flavored confectioners' sugar icing by combining 1 1/2 cups confectioners' sugar, 2 tablespoons soft butter, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, and enough orange juice to thin frosting to spreading consistency. MAKES 36 TO 40.

NOTE: 3/4 cup milk soured with 1 teaspoon vinegar or lemon juice may be substituted for the sour cream. In that case, increase butter to 1/2 cup.

LEMON CHEESE COOKIES

1 cup butter, softened
6 ounces cream cheese
1/4 cup confectioners' sugar
2 1/4 cups flour
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Confectioners' sugar
Filling

1 pound (3 cups) cottage cheese
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup flour
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind

In a large bowl, combine butter, cream cheese, confectioners' sugar, flour, grated lemon rind, and lemon juice. Blend with a mixer until dough forms. Chill, covered, for 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, in a large saucepan, combine filling ingredients and blend well. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thick. Remove from heat. Divide chilled dough into 4 parts. Roll each part to a 9" square, and cut into 3" squares. Place 1 tablespoon of filling in the center of each square. Fold in half diagonally to make triangles, and press edges to seal. Place on greased cookie sheets, and bake at 350 degrees F for 22 to 25 minutes. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar when cool. Makes 36 triangles.

MEYER LEMON CAKE

One 9-inch cake
8 tablespoons unsalted butter
4 large eggs, separated
1 1/4 cups sugar

2/3 cup buttermilk
1/3 cup Meyer lemon juice
1 tablespoon Meyer lemon zest
2 cups cake flour
1 1/4 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt

For The Glaze

1/3 cup Meyer lemon juice
1 2/3 cups confectioner's sugar
Preheat the oven to 325 degrees F. Melt the butter in a saucepan, cool and set aside. In a mixing bowl, beat together the egg yolks with 1 cup of the sugar until thick and light in color, about 2 to 3 minutes. Beat in the buttermilk, Meyer lemon juice, and zest. Sift together the cake flour, baking powder, and the salt. Beat the egg whites until they hold soft peaks. Then add the remaining 1/4 cup of sugar and continue beating until stiff peaks form. Alternately, fold one half of the flour mixture into the egg yolk mixture, followed by one half of the egg whites. Fold carefully so as not to deflate the batter. Repeat with the remaining flour and egg whites. Take about 1 cup of the batter and stir it into the melted butter. Gently fold the butter into the cake batter. Pour into a buttered and floured 9-inch cake pan or Bundt pan and bake for about 50 to 60 minutes.

While the cake is baking, make the glaze: Combine the 1/3 cup Meyer lemon juice and the confectioner's sugar in a saucepan. Heat until the sugar is dissolved. Set aside until the cake is done.

When the cake is finished, cool for 5 minutes in the pan. Turn the cake out of the pan and invert onto a cooling rack. With a long toothpick or skewer, poke the top of the cake to make many small holes. Slowly spoon the warm glaze over the cake. Allow the glaze to sink into the cake before adding more. Poke more holes if necessary. Use all of the glaze. Cool the cake completely and serve with creme Chantilly, if desired.

FRESH ORANGE SLICES WITH MOROCCAN SPICES

Serves 6
10 juicy seedless oranges
2 tablespoons orangeflower water
8 tablespoons granulated sugar
2 limes
1 lemon
6 sprigs fresh mint
1/2 pound pitted dates
Pinches of ras el hanout
Confectioners' sugar

1. Pare the oranges until free of all membrane and separate them into segments. Squeeze the juice from the parings of the oranges over the sections to keep them juicy. Put them into a serving bowl. Add the orange-flower water and a tablespoon of the sugar and refrigerate the oranges for an hour or longer.

2. Meanwhile, using a vegetable peeler, remove the zest from the limes and lemon. Cut it into very thin strips. Blanch the strips in boiling water for 1 minute, drain and run them under cold water. Place the remaining sugar and 1 cup of water in a small saucepan. Heat, stirring, until the sugar dissolves. Continue to boil 1/2 minute, then add the zest. Lower the heat, stir once, and simmer very slowly until the zest is very soft, about 5 minutes. The syrup must not caramelize. Spread the strips over an oiled cookie rack to dry. Use a fork to separate any tangled strips.

3. Just before serving, shred the mint leaves and chop the dates. Scatter mint, dates and pinches of ras el hanout over the oranges. Decorate with candied zest and a dusting of confectioners' sugar.

Ras el Hanout

3/4 teaspoon freshly ground nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 teaspoon freshly ground white pepper
1 3/4 teaspoons ground cinnamon
2 teaspoons ground cardamom
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper

Combine all ingredients in a spice mill and grind them until fine. Press through a sieve. Bottle the mixture tightly to preserve the freshness.
