Hance wants energy hearings held in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) - If the federal government is going to write a national energy policy, it had better listen to Texans, Republican gubernatorial hopeful Kent Hance says.

Hance on Thursday wrote U.S. Energy Secretary James Watkins, urging him to hold an energy hearing in Texas.

"Certainly, no review of our nation's energy picture will be complete unless it includes input from the thousands of independent oil and gas producers and royalty owners in Texas," Hance said in his letter.

Hance, who chairs the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates oil and gas production, testified earlier this month at a DOE hearing in Oklahoma. But he said a Texas hearing is vital as the nation tries to develop an energy plan.

"For decades, these Texans have been the backbone of our nation's oil and gas industry. They deserve a voice in the development of this critical national energy policy. Their keen insight and understanding of the oil and gas industry will prove invaluable to the U.S. Department of Energy and its efforts," Hance wrote.

He also noted that the United States imported 50.4 percent of its crude oil during July. That was the first time in 12 years - and only the fourth time in history - that more than half of U.S. oil came from foreign sources.

"Clearly, our national security and our nation's economic vitality is threatened by such a shocking dependence on foreign oil," Hance said.

Hance this month formally launched his second bid for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, a race he lost to Gov. Bill Clements in 1986. Two other Republicans also have announced: Midland oilman Clayton Williams and former Secretary of State Jack Rains of Houston.

In other political developments Thursday:

Houston lawyer John Odam, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, again criticized rival John Bryant over a campaign contribution.

Odam also called on Bryant, a congressman from Dallas, to debate him and to adopt a campaign code of ethics.

He said Bryant's acceptance of a $50,000 contribution from G. Ray Miller raised questions.

Odam has charged that Bryant accepted the money even though Miller's company, International Telcharge Inc., benefited from legislation supported by the congressman. Bryant's campaign has said Miller had resigned from ITI before the contribution was made.

"Based on Mr. Bryant's apparent willingness to accept $50,000 financial contribution shortly after supporting legislation that directly benefited the contributor, I am disappointed but not surprised that his campaign has refused to adopt a code of ethics," Odam said.

Uribe calls for school finance in next session

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements should recognize the real crisis facing poor school districts and include school finance reform on the agenda for the November special session, a senator from south Texas said.

"Many of our school districts are in effect bankrupt, and in order to continue operating they're taking from Peter to pay Paul," Sen. Hector Uribe said Thursday.

Uribe, whose Rio Grande valley legislative district includes property-poor school districts, said lawmakers should address school finance even if the Texas Supreme Court has not ruled on a lawsuit challenging the current system by the time the session starts Nov. 14.

"It's very clear that the quality of education in different parts of the state is different from other, wealthier parts of the state," Uribe, D-

Brownsville, told reporters during a meeting of the Senate Education Committee.

"From a public policy perspective, it's really very important for the governor to act now and not wait for the Supreme Court," he said.

Clements declined to say whether he would add any issues besides workers' compensation reform to the special session agenda, which he controls.

In the lawsuit brought by poor school districts, State District Judge Harley Clark ruled the current finance system is unconstitutional. But the 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin overturned that decision, and the case has been appealed to the Supreme Court.

Public education in Texas is financed through local property taxes and state funds, along with federal money. Property-poor school districts have said they impose local taxes at a higher rate than wealthy districts, and even then they cannot raise as much.

A law passed this year provided "equity funds" of $200 million in 1989-90 and $250 million in 1990-91. However, poor districts said that amount is not enough to make a real difference.

The Senate Education Committee heard recommendations for improving the school finance system from representatives of poor districts.

Richard Kirkpatrick, superintendent of the Copperas Cove school district and spokesman for districts that have intervened in the lawsuit, said among other items the Legislature's plan should preserve local control.

School districts that impose local property taxes at a certain level should be guaranteed a certain amount of combined state and local funds, within broad limits and subject to accountability standards, Kirkpatrick said.

State Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby, named as a defendant in the lawsuit, told the committee that the Texas Education Agency and the poor districts "are telling you the same thing."

"In many ways, you can set aside the question whether it (the system) is constitutional or not, because everybody unanimously is telling you the system is absolutely not adequate, and not close to being adequate - that it would take a multi-billion dollar level increase infusion of money into the system to really approach the level of what we really need," Kirby said.

Hobby wants to write bill

AUSTIN (AP) - When lawmakers return for a special session on workers' compensation they will find a bill prepared by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Hobby, the presiding officer of the Senate, said Thursday he will craft a workers' comp bill before the special legislative session begins Nov. 14.

"In the next two or three weeks, I'm going to propose a bill that I think addresses 'the problem,'" Hobby said.

Hobby said his legislation will include recommendations from an interim Senate committee, which is studying the insurance system that provides coverage for employees injured at work.

The committee, chaired by Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, began hearing testimony last week and is expected to complete its report by Oct. 1.

After a 140-day regular session and 30-day special session, lawmakers remain at odds over how to reform the workers' comp system, setting the stage for the pre-Thanksgiving session.

Business groups say workers' comp insurance premiums are too high and labor groups say benefits for injured workers are inadequate.

While much of the debate has centered on whether to restrict appeals of claims in the court system, Hobby said one of the major problems is the assigned risk pool, which is for employers unable to buy the insurance in the open market.

The size of the risk pool has tripled since 1983 and is running a deficit of nearly $400 million. Insurance industry critics say small employers with excellent worker safety records are being forced into the pool by insurance carriers not willing to provide coverage.

But the insurance industry has said the growth of the pool shows that state-set rates are inadequate.

Hobby's remarks came before a meeting of the Legislative Budget Board.

During the meeting, the LBB approved funding for implementation of federal nursing home reforms, and transferred $5.2 million to replenish the state's disaster relief fund, which had been depleted by spring storm damage.

The fund was down to about $1 million before requests for assistance to repair damages from Hurricane Chantal started coming in.

The LBB also rejected a proposal that would have broadened a ban against former officials of the Texas Department of Human Services from bidding on contracts with the department. The ban would have extended the contract prohibition to relatives of the former officials.

Hobby and Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, agreed with broadening the prohibition, but said the matter should be decided by the entire Legislature instead of the 10-member LBB, which includes House and Senate leaders.

Herd spikes Wolves in season opener

The Hereford Whiteface volleyball team opened athletic competition for the 1989-90 school year by trouncing the Dalhart Golden Wolves in a pair of matches, 15-2, 15-8 in the first match, and 15-2, 15-1 in the second.

The Herd junior varsity was also successful in their season opener, downing the Dalhart J.V. 15-6, 15-6.

The Herd started the year with Nikki Self placing eight consecutive serves in play, including four aces, to give Hereford a quick 8-0 lead.

Libby Kosub served up another point before Dalhart's Nancy LaVata served for the Wolves' only points.

Chantel Cornelius added two points on her serve and Jill West brought the Herd to game point before Poppy Richardson served for the win.

In Game 2 of the match, West equalled Self's feat of serving for the first eight points of the game. Hereford allowed Dalhart to close within four points at 11-7 before West added three more points on serve to clinch the win.

In the J.V. match the Herd jumped to a 3-0 advantage in the first game and a 4-0 lead in the second before winning both by 15-6 margins. Jill Samuels and Brek Binder were leading servers for the junior varsity.

After the J.V. sweep, the varsity returned to the floor to play again. Coach Brenda Reeh explained that University Interscholastic League rules allow three matches per week before school starts.

The second match was all Maroon as Cande Robbins was credited with eight points on serve and Kosub added a pair of aces.

The first game was called when Dalhart attempted to call a third timeout (teams are allowed two per game) with the score at 14-2. Hereford was awarded a penalty point and, thus, the game for the infraction.

"Overall, I'm very pleased with both our J.V. and varsity," Reeh said. "Each team had a very well-rounded offensive attack. We were setting the ball all over the net and getting good attacks out of each position."

"The J.V. had a good match from the service line as well," she added.

"The varsity looked good in both matches except for a defensive lull in the second game of the first match."

The Herd will spend the weekend at the Lubbock Invitational Tournament, which Reeh said would include all eight teams from District 1-4A.

"We're guaranteed four matches and that's what we need right now," Reeh said. "We need to get in as much game time as possible. There's only so much you can do in practice."

The junior varsity will compete in the Borger J.V. Tournament on Saturday.

Killer spike

Shantel Cornelius, far left, sends the ball past Dalhart's Julie Ray, 23, and Nancy LaVata, 25. Cande Robbins, 8, awaits the return that never came.

Roark team wins HMGA scramble

Three teams shot a low-ball score of 31 in the Hereford Men's Golf Association Member-Guest Scramble Thursday, and the winning team on a scorecard playoff was composed of Shorty Roark, Don Aycock, Bub Sparks and Speedy Nieman.

The team of Lewis McDaniel, Bernie Orel, David Blea and Joe Soliz Jr. also carded a 31, as did the team of Joe Kerr, John Robinson, Mel Charest and Milton Adams.

Members of the winning team earned $24 each in golf merchandise prizes as well as a new HMGA golf cap. A total of 32 players participated in the event.

Free hot dogs and cold drinks followed the tourney, and HMGA President Tom Simons discussed the association's goals. He invited local golfers to join the organization and help promote golf and improvements at the municipal course.

Inconsistency plagues Herd in scrimmage

Inconsistency was the key for the Hereford Whitefaces in their scrimmage with Lubbock Monterey, according to Coach Don Cumpton.

"At times we looked pretty good," Cumpton said. "We'd make two or three first downs in a row and then have some kind of breakdown."

"We didn't score a touchdown but we had our chances to. One time we had the ball on the 5-yard line and fumbled and another time we were on the 18 and fumbled."

Cumpton blamed the Herd's problems in part on endless combinations of players and plays in various situations.

"That put our timing a little off," he said. "We were a half-step behind here and a half-step behind there. But we got a chance to see everybody play in a number of situations."

"Our quarterbacks threw the ball real well, but the timing and execution were just a little off," Cumpton said of the offensive attack. "We had kids make some great catches and then turn around and drop one they should have had."

Cumpton lauded the effort of the offensive line, especially in pass protection.

"Our pass blocking was outstanding," he said. "We ran about 140 plays and allowed only two sacks the whole time."

On the defensive side of the ball, Cumpton said early problems were corrected as the scrimmage progressed.

"Defensively we started out a little tentative," he said, "but the longer the scrimmage went the better we got."

"We gave up four touchdowns mostly on big plays. And that is one thing we absolutely cannot allow if we're going to have a good football team."

"There was one pass that we had real good coverage on, but we just misjudged the ball coming in and the kid (from Monterey) caught it and went the distance for the touchdown."

Cumpton noted that after being burned early, the defense began playing much better.

"After that pass they had one possession where they ran something like 14 plays," he said, "and we gave up only one first down. And they had only one long drive for a score the whole scrimmage. So if we can keep from giving up the big play, we'll be in good shape."

Cumpton said scrimmages with the junior varsity and sophomore squads went very well.

"They all looked real good out there," he said. "Of course we had some kids come back after the sophomores played and go with the J.V. and we had some from the J.V. play with the varsity."

"I was really impressed with the sophomores. Last year as freshman they were split into two teams, so this was the first time they had ever played together as one unit. They've improved a thousand percent."

Herd coaches were to grade film of the scrimmage today and begin making roster decisions next week.

"The scrimmage was excellent as far as learning what we need to work on to get where we want to be," Cumpton added. "We took about 160 kids down there and played everyone. But all of the kids gave a good effort, and that was the main thing I was looking for."

Injury report: Senior CB Jim Andrews injured his knee and is to be examined over the weekend. Cumpton said Andrews was not involved in contact on the play.

Senior LB Jason Lueb aggravated a shoulder injury from last year and junior LB Cody Page took a hit in the back. Cumpton said both could have continued but were held out of the rest of the scrimmage.

Pelluer changes agents, puts trade talks on hold

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Holdout quarterback Steve Pelluer's decision to abruptly change agents may have put his impending trade from the Dallas Cowboys to the Atlanta Falcons in jeopardy, according to a published report.

Apparently unsure he wants to play for the Falcons, Pelluer on Thursday split with Joe Courrage and hired Leigh Steinberg, a move the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported was designed to buy the holdout quarterback more time in considering trade options.

Agreement on a contract between Pelluer and the Falcons is the contingency in a trade Dallas and Atlanta have otherwise consummated.

Sources told the Star-Telegram the Cowboys would be compensated with a veteran player as well as a conditional second-round draft choice that could be improved to a first based on Pelluer's performance. The player is believed to be one of two wide receivers - Stacey Bailey or Floyd Dixon - or line-backer Tim Green.

But the Star-Telegram reported today that Pelluer would prefer a trade to the Kansas City Chiefs over the Falcons.

The Cowboys and Falcons had hoped to complete their trade before the weekend. Now the Cowboys are concerned the Falcons will lose interest unless the trade is completed in the next few days.

"It's still there, but it's not going to sit there forever," said John Wooten, Cowboys' director of pro personnel.

But Steinberg, who also represents Cowboys rookie Troy Aikman, said Thursday night he will require time to assess the situation.

"Since I was employed today, it makes sense that I would sit down with Steve and get a sense of his priorities," Steinberg said. "We're aware there's an interest in him."

After getting acquainted with his circumstances, we'll address that."

Taking that tack also might allow Pelluer another weekend of exhibition games to stimulate interest from other teams.

Sources close to Pelluer told the Star-Telegram the quarterback had been considering hiring Steinberg for more than a week.

Courrage denied Pelluer fired him, claiming they agreed to separate.

Courrage, en route to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport for a flight to Atlanta when the split was announced, issued the following statement: "I have withdrawn from the negotiations and representation of Steve Pelluer. I was originally hired by Steve Pelluer to negotiate a new contract with the Dallas Cowboys. After the ownership and management change and the draft occurred, the objective changed to secure a trade and get Steve out of Dallas. The new objective forced me into a delicate position, which caused many obstacles. Nevertheless, the objective to achieve a trade has been accomplished..."

Courrage spent most of Wednesday night at Pelluer's home attempting to convince him to accept an offer from Atlanta of $450,000 in base salary plus an incentive package worth $200,000.

The Cowboys seem to be growing impatient with Pelluer, who first asked for a trade May 14.

"They had a deal with Atlanta, right?" Wooten told the Star-Telegram. "What happened to that deal today? I mean, Pelluer has been hollering and hollering that he wants to get to camp. Well, what happened to the deal they had worked out? Why is Pelluer not accepting that deal?"

Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson said the latest development would not cause him to reconsider his position concerning Pelluer.

"This has no bearing on what we'll do," he said.

Rangers drop A's, 6-2, avoid sweep

ARLINGTON (AP) - Texas Rangers utility man Jeff Kunkel says he saw a different attitude in the dugout and on the field after the team dropped two straight games to the Oakland A's and appeared to be dropping out of the American League West race.

Kunkel made the observation after the Rangers bounced back to take the final game of a crucial three-game series with the A's, 6-2, Thursday night.

"There was a lot of winning attitude and enthusiasm in the dugout tonight," Kunkel, who played center field Thursday night, said. "Not like the last two nights. There was a little doubt that we could beat them. Tonight, confidence was in our favor."

The Rangers had opened the series against the division-leading A's Tuesday night with ace Nolan Ryan on the mound and in need of a series sweep to get back in the race. Ryan suffered from lack of support as the Rangers lost, 2-0.

Rangers manager Bobby Valentine criticized the team's play and said some of the players appeared to be spectators as Ryan became the first pitcher in baseball history to get 5,000 strikeouts.

Sloppy outfield play contributed to a loss in the second game of the series, but it was a different story Thursday night.

"Nolan pitched a gem and lost," Rangers manager Bobby Valentine said. "(Kevin) Brown pitched a good game and lost. We were in all three games."

The A's saw their lead over the second-place California Angels fall to two games after California's 5-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

"Yeah, we watch the scoreboard," said A's manager Tony La

Russa. "But it doesn't impact the way we play the game. My evaluation of the series is that we played our butts off and won two of three."

The Rangers open a three-game series with the Angels tonight. Texas has four games remaining with Oakland and seven with California.

"This club just needs to get hot," said Mike Jeffcoat, 7-5, who allowed two runs and six hits over 6 1-3 innings. "We need to get on a 10- or 12-game streak. We haven't been hot since May. There's no reason why we can't."

Julio Franco went 3-for-3 with an RBI single in a three-run fifth and Jack Daugherty tripled, singled and stole home to key Texas' 11-hit attack and help snap Oakland's five-game winning streak.

Gary Mielke pitched a perfect final 2 2-3 innings for his first major league save after Jeffcoat lowered his ERA to 1.59 over his last four starts.

"Jeffcoat had problems but he kept battling and throwing strikes," Valentine said. "He gives you a little extra effort when you need it. Mielke was outstanding. What a job he did. He had a great sinker and that's all he threw."

Oakland's Carney Lansford went 0-for-4 to snap a 19-game hitting streak. The streak was halted when Lansford grounded into a controversial tag play at third in the seventh.

Mark McGwire hit his eighth career homer in 15 lifetime hits at Arlington Stadium, a two-run shot in the fourth, giving the A's a 2-1 lead.

Dallas native Storm Davis, 14-6, gave up three fifth-inning runs to lose to the Rangers for only the third time in 15 lifetime decisions.

Davis said he was happy that Angels cooled the Royals, who had won nine straight. Oakland opens a weekend series with Kansas City tonight.

"I'm glad Kansas City lost," Davis said. "Maybe that will cool them off with us going in there tomorrow."

Oakland took a 2-1 lead in the fourth when Jose Canseco was hit by a Jeffcoat pitch and McGwire lined a shot into the left-field stands, his 24th of the season and fourth at Arlington Stadium this year.

Center fielder Dave Henderson's three-base fielding error in the second gave the Rangers a 1-0 lead. La Russa said Henderson's sore legs contributed to the error.

"He can make the routine plays but the tough plays he can't get to," La Russa said. "Arlington has a real small outfield and it's grass so I left him out there. But Kansas City is a big park and it's artificial turf so I'll have to give him some rest."

Texas padded its lead to 6-2 in the sixth when Kunkel singled, Daugherty tripled into the right field corner to score Kunkel and Daugherty stole home.

Daugherty was running on an aborted squeeze play and slid in safely when catcher Ron Hassey failed to catch the ball cleanly.

"A couple of things we usually do (defensively) we just didn't get done," Davis said.

Rangers designated hitter Harold Baines left the game in the fourth after aggravating a hamstring injury.

Valentine said Baines will be sidelined through the weekend series with California.

"He won't play for a while," Valentine said. "He can't run at all."

Bucs beat Astros, 3-2, in 14 innings

PITTSBURGH (AP) - The Houston Astros couldn't wait to get out of Pittsburgh. They almost didn't.

The Astros and Pittsburgh Pirates have played more extra-inning games than any other teams in the majors, so it was no surprise that each gave a little extra Thursday night.

But all the Astros finally gave up in a 3-2, 14-inning loss to Pittsburgh was some more ground to the first-place San Francisco Giants in the National League West race. The Pirates gave more warning they're going to ruin some opponents' 1989 seasons as they prepare for 1990.

"This game has a lot of integrity, and we owe it to the other teams to prove we're going to play our butts off," Manager Jim Leyland said after the Pirates completed a three-game sweep. "I think the Giants will appreciate it."

Manager Art Howe's Astros had won seven of their first nine games against Pittsburgh, but scored only four runs over 32 innings in this series. Houston, only 11 games out of the lead Tuesday, finished the series four games back.

The Astros managed only three hits off four Pirates pitchers, but didn't lose until Jose Lind's medium-range sacrifice fly scored Gary Redus with one out in the 14th.

"We just didn't have any offense. We were flat," said Howe, whose Astros produced only two hits in the final eight innings. "We got a good pitching performance, but ... we had no offense the whole series."

The Astros, held to two solo homers in the first two games, had only one hit in the first six innings off Pirates starter Doug Drabek, but led 2-1 thanks to costly Pittsburgh errors by third baseman Bobby Bonilla and first baseman Redus. Drabek departed after giving up just two hits in nine innings.

The Pirates tied the score in the sixth when Mike LaValliere barely beat out a force-play grounder, allowing Barry Bonds to score from third. They stranded runners at third in the 12th and 13th innings before Redus doubled to center to start the 14th.

LaValliere's sacrifice bunt moved Redus to third, and Howe elect to let Juan Agosto, 3-5, his fourth pitcher, face the slumping Jose Lind.

Lind had only six hits in his previous 66 at-bats and hadn't gotten the ball out of the infield all night. He lofted a fly ball to medium-range left. After dropping back a couple of steps to make the catch, Kevin Bass' strong throw was too late to nail Redus.

"I didn't think about walking him (Lind)," Howe said. "He doesn't have a lot of pop, so you want to go right after him. You hope he hits it right at somebody and they don't score."

Lind, pointing to the Astros' earlier domination of the Pirates, said, "It was a real good feeling. ... The way Houston always plays us tough, it was great to beat them three in a row."

The Astros, who return home tonight to start a three-game series against St. Louis, "just ran into some real good pitching," Bass said.

The Pirates, whose 19 extra-inning games is the most in the majors, are 16 games under .500 despite winning four in a row. But Redus said there's no reason why they can't spoil the seasons of a few more contenders.

"If nothing else, this (sweep) shows we're going to play the guys in contention real tough," said Redus, whose three hits matched the Astros' entire production. "Just because they're playing the Pirates doesn't mean they're going to get an easy win. "Really, this is all we have to look forward to, because we're out of the race. At least we can have fun being spoilers."

Doug Bair, 2-2, who turned 40 earlier in the week, pitched two scoreless innings for the victory. Astros starter Mark Portugal, 3-0 since being called up from the minors in mid-July, allowed four hits and two runs in seven innings.

The Pirates are 8-11 and Houston is 10-8 in extra innings.

Blyleven halts Angel streak

By The Associated Press
There's nothing like a pitcher who never loses - well, hardly ever - to snap a losing streak.

For the seventh time this season, 38-year-old Bert Blyleven stopped a California losing streak. He did it Thursday night with a four-hitter for his 10th consecutive victory, matching his career high, as the Angels beat Kansas City 5-0. In snapping a three-game losing streak, California halted the Royals' winning streak at nine games.

Blyleven, 14-2, pitched his seventh complete game of the season and is unbeaten since May 20. He walked one and struck out four in his 59th career shutout - fourth this year and seventh against the Royals.

"Last year (10-17 with Minnesota) was such a frustrating year for me that I felt I had something to prove to myself, to my family and to this organization," said Blyleven, who lowered his earned-run average to 2.35.

Blyleven's pitching enabled the Angels to move within two games of first-place Oakland in the American League West when the Athletics lost to Texas 6-2. In the AL East, Toronto closed within 1 1/2 games of Baltimore by trouncing Detroit 11-3 while the Orioles were splitting a doubleheader with the New York Yankees, winning the nightcap 9-2 after dropping the opener 5-1.

In other AL games, it was Cleveland 5, Seattle 2 and Minnesota 6, Chicago 4.

Rookie catcher John Orton, appearing in his second major-league game, went 3-for-3 for his first big-league hits and got his first RBIs with a three-run double in the Angels' four-run fourth inning.

Loser Luis Aquino yielded four runs and seven hits in eight innings and has four losses and a no-decision in his last five starts.

Yankees 5, Orioles 1
Orioles 9, Yankees 2

Larry Sheets hit a two-run homer and Tim Lincecum had a two-run single for Baltimore in the nightcap after New York won the opener behind the six-hit pitching of Chuck Cary and Dave Righetti and Don Mattingly's two RBIs.

Sheets hit his seventh homer following Joe Orsulak's leadoff double in the second inning off Eric Plunk. Plunk yielded four runs and five hits in five innings in his first start of the season. Dave Schmidt, 10-12, who came into the game with a 5.34 ERA, held the Yankees to one run and three hits in five innings.

In the opener, New York ended Baltimore's four-game winning streak as Cary gave up five hits in eight innings, including Hulett's fifth-inning homer.

Blue Jays 11, Tigers 3
Mookie Wilson hit three singles, drove in two runs, stole two bases and scored twice while George Bell and Nelson Liriano homered for Toronto.

Mike Flanagan, who missed two starts with an eye injury, yielded two runs and five hits in six innings. Jack Morris, 3-11, was tagged for eight runs and 10 hits in six innings. Indians 5, Mariners 2

Brad Komminsk had two doubles and a triple as Cleveland completed a three-game series sweep.

Steve Davis yielded two runs, one earned, and five hits in five innings for his first major-league win in almost four years and Doug Jones got his league-leading 30th save.

Twins 6, White Sox 4
John Moses reached on a bloop double and scored on Al Newman's groundout to break a seventh-inning tie. Chicago had taken a 4-3 lead in the top of the inning when Scott Fletcher singled, went to second on a wild pitch by reliever Juan Berenguer and scored on Ivan Calderon's

Celery adds crunch without calories

BELLE GLADE, Fla. (AP) - Celery is in the same plant family as carrots and parsley. The characteristic flavor and odor of this family is due to the presence of volatile oils in the stems, leaves and seeds. The plant originated in the Mediterranean.

In ancient writings, celery is mentioned only as a medicinal plant. Celery earned a place in salads in the mid-12th century when it was determined that the strong flavor could be reduced by growing the plants in late summer or early fall, then keeping them into winter.

The earliest record of its cultivation as a food plant was in France in 1623, when it was used primarily as a flavoring herb in broths and soups. Celery-growing as an industry in the United States probably began about 1880. One farm in central Florida grows one of the largest stands of celery in the world: 3,250 acres at Belle Glade near Lake Okechobee.

Production averages about 33,000 celery plants per acre, according to farm manager Richard Treadway. The same farmers, A. Duda & Sons, raise hundreds more acres of spring and fall celery elsewhere in Florida, as well as in California and Texas.

The Duda family, which migrated from Czechoslovakia, began with 4 acres in Florida in 1912. The family had its first successful commercial celery crop in 1926. The firm, with four generations of the family now involved, also raises large acreages of salad vegetables, corn, sugar cane and carrots. A. Duda & Sons has headquarters in Oviedo, Fla.

George Talbot, general manager of the Florida Celery Committee, says celery is rich in vitamins A and C, plus minerals, with only 3 calories for a small inner rib, or petiole. (A stalk is an entire plant.)

Consumers should look for crispness, with the petioles brittle enough to snap easily. Pithy, woody or stringy celery is undesirable. Celery loses moisture rapidly unless stored in high relative humidity. It is often sprinkled with water to maintain crispness.

Celery keeps best when moist and cool. Moisten celery or place it in a hydrator or in a plastic container and store in the refrigerator. Do not freeze.

Crisp, crunchy celery has only 82 calories per full pound. Talbot says celery is a good snack, can make a main dish more flavorfully filling "at a ridiculously low cost in calories."

He offers these tips:

- Pressure cook celery 1 or 2 minutes for immediate use.
- Add diced celery to chicken, lamb and beef stews.
- To pep up canned vegetables, cut celery in diagonal slices, using 1 cup per can of vegetables. Drain liquid from vegetables into a saucepan, add celery, and boil for 5 minutes. Add drained canned vegetables, bring to a boiling point, and serve.

Celery can make an attractive centerpiece for the table. Wash, then drain, keeping leaves intact; use the celery leaves as a garnish.

- Use a stalk or rib of celery to scrape the sides of a blender.

The following recipes show how versatile celery can be:
CRUNCHY CELERY SLAW

- 4 cups thinly sliced celery
- 1/2 cup coarsely shredded carrots
- 1/2 cup raisins
- 1/2 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

1-3rd cup salad oil
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon ground white pepper

2-3rds cup plain yogurt
In a large bowl combine celery with carrots, raisins and walnuts. Set aside. Blend together oil, vinegar, salt and pepper. Stir in yogurt. Pour over celery mixture. Toss lightly. Serve on lettuce leaves, if desired. Yield: 8 servings.

TUNA CELERY HERO
1/2 cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons lemon juice
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper
3 cups thinly sliced celery
Two 6- or 7-ounce cans tuna.

- drained and flaked
- 1/2 cup minced onion
- 1/2 cup roasted peanuts or toasted slivered almonds
- 1/8 cup diced pimiento
- 6 individual hero rolls
- Lettuce leaves
- Sliced tomatoes

In a large bowl, thoroughly combine mayonnaise, lemon juice, salt and black pepper. Add celery, tuna, onion, nuts and pimiento. Toss lightly. Cut rolls in half lengthwise. Arrange lettuce and tomatoes on lower halves. Spoon tuna celery salad over tomatoes. Cover with tops of rolls. Yield: 6 servings.

CELERY SUKIYAKI

- 1 1/2 pounds flank steak
- 3 tablespoons salad oil
- 3 cups celery, sliced diagonally
- 2 small onions, sliced and separated into rings
- 1 beef bouillon cube
- 3/4 cup boiling water
- 1 cup water chestnuts, sliced
- 5 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 1/2 teaspoons ground ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper

Cut steak into thin diagonal slices. (For easier slicing, partially freeze first.) In large skillet, heat 2 tablespoons oil. Add steak strips, a few at a time, and brown on both sides. Remove and set aside. Add celery and onion to skillet. Saute for 3 minutes in 1 tablespoon oil. Dissolve bouillon cube in water. Add to skillet along with water chestnuts, soy sauce, ginger and black pepper. Stir well. Add browned steak; spoon juice over steak. Cover and simmer for 10 minutes or until steak and vegetables are fork tender. Serve over rice. Serves 6.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 63-year-old male and I just joined the YMCA after an eight-year layoff. When I run one lap on the indoor track my chest hurts, so I quit. There are 22 laps per mile. If I keep running every day or so, 22 laps a day, will my wind come back so I can run a mile easily? Or is it myocardial ischemia?

DEAR READER: It is not possible to know what is causing your chest pain without a lot more information, beginning with what kind of chest pain you have, its location, duration and how long it lasts. BUT, no one who has chest pain from exercise should continue exercising without seeing a doctor first.

It is almost certain that you do have some degree of coronary artery disease since you are 63 years old and a man. In our society, the disease is so common that you could hardly escape. The question is whether it is severe enough to limit your exercise capacity. If you have sufficient blockage of your coronary arteries, you cannot increase the blood flow to your heart muscle when your heart has to work harder because of exercise. That limits how much work your heart can do. That in turn limits how much oxygen can be pumped to your body and may be the factor that limits how much exercise you can do.

There have really been rather few heart attacks from exercise, considering how many people are exercising these days. However, individuals with significant coronary artery disease can have an attack caused by exercise. Most of the individuals who do have heart attacks from exercise are men, often because they continue to exercise beyond their capacity.

To avoid this problem, older men in particular should have a good evaluation of their heart, which may include an exercise test, before engaging in strenuous exercise. To help you understand the risk better, I am sending you Special Report 54, Exercise-Induced Heart Attacks. Others who want this report can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/54, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

The right way to begin an exercise program with the least risk is to start walking, not running. You gradually build up slowly enough to avoid chest pain or excessive fatigue. It takes longer to do it right, but it is safer and just as effective. I would rather hear that you increased your walking until you can walk 4 miles easily before you started a running program.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Prices Effective Thursday, August 24, 1989.

Motorists should know state law

What's yellow and black and has 144 feet? A loaded school bus.

Summer vacation is almost over and children across the state will be returning to school, many aboard big yellow and black school buses. One of the most common sights on roadways during the school year, these buses can carry from 71 to 83 seated students on any given trip each day.

"Yet as common as they are, every year there seems to be an unfortunate rash of accidents caused by drivers who fail to follow safe driving practices for a stopped school bus," stated Major Vernon Cawthon, Regional Commander for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

State law requires drivers on the same roadway as a school bus that is stopped to load or unload children, to also stop until the bus driver has turned off the flashing red light. This rule applies unless the vehicle is separated from the bus by a divided highway with a median strip.

The first few weeks of school are the most dangerous, according to Major Cawthon. "This time of year presents safety problems for both the school children and the driver," he explained. "Many youngsters are attending school for the first time and others might be going to a different school, where they are unfamiliar with local traffic conditions. One problem seems to be that during the summer recess, some drivers have gotten out of the habit of being alert for both school zones and school buses."

Public Safety officials are asking Texas drivers to begin thinking now about the safety of school children, as the beginning of a new school year starts up. By observing the speed limits in school zones, being alert for increased pedestrian traffic and watching for school bus activity, motorists can make this a safe school year for all.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Five years ago we learned that my wife had multiple sclerosis. She managed well until recently. She is becoming severely incapacitated, and I know she is depressed. Someone told me that you printed a wonderful letter a few years ago from a man whose wife had M.S. Will you print it again? I needed help.—St. Petersburg

DEAR ST. PETERSBURG: That letter appeared in 1966. It would mean little without the original letters so I am printing both.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For 25 years I have been married to a woman who has multiple sclerosis. If I held an 8-to-5 job I could have a fairly easy life, but I would need to hire a companion for my wife. Instead, I have arranged to be close by and yet not a handmaiden to her. I own and operate a summer camp for boys. In the winter I run a ski lodge.

I'm an active, fun-loving 47. I enjoy mountain climbing, skiing, horseback riding, camping and fishing. I'm becoming frustrated because of what I'm missing. I'd give anything to put my arms around a woman and feel the response of her arms around me. I want to walk into a dining room with a woman at my side. I want to dance and swim and hike with a woman who shares my love of nature. I ache for the companionship of a female who can do something with me besides sit.

Is it possible to share such pleasures with another woman without becoming emotionally involved? I doubt it. What's the alternative? What about others who are married to crippled mates? Can you give us some realistic advice?—Signature Withheld on Request

DEAR FRIEND: It would be easy to respond with pious platitudes but your frankness and honesty deserve better.

Frequently, when I lack the knowledge or experience to advise a reader I call on an expert. The expert

I have called on today is a Chicago colleague. His answer tells you more about him than I could. Here it is:

DEAR MR.---Ann Landers has asked me to answer your letter. I do not have Ann's wisdom, but I do have intimate knowledge of your problem since I have lived with it for 19 years.

There is no universal solution because the needs and the temperament of individuals differ. A solution that makes sense to me may be unacceptable to you.

You say many normal activities are denied you because of your wife's affliction. I hope you have not magnified the importance of these activities merely because you feel you are being cheated. Some men have wives who can dance all night, but they have unhappy marriages.

Your wife's disability is tragic, but it would be infinitely more tragic if you allow it to embitter you. Try to think of her misfortune as your opportunity for personal fulfillment. How many people feel truly needed? Well, you are.

If you are frustrated and restless, I suggest you keep it to yourself. Remember your wife is missing some things, too. I also suggest that you steer clear of "companionable" relationships with other women. Such relationships are difficult to control.

The first step in your adjustment is to forget the alternatives. Take your wife with you wherever you can, even in a wheelchair. Keep her hopes alive. Encourage her to exercise and do whatever she can to feel useful. I work with my wife every evening in therapy sessions. She has given me some real lessons in courage.

We all admire maturity, selflessness and compassion, but no one is born with these qualities. Circumstances have given you a rare opportunity to acquire them. As Ann Landers says, "It's not what happens to us, but how we take it that counts."—Anonymous, Please.

Food testing program monitors residues

Is our food supply safe? Contrary to some of the alarms sounded recently, Food and Drug Administration (FDA) testing shows that it is.

"Most consumers are confused about pesticide residues in both the domestic and imported food supply," said Dr. Mary Kinney Sweeten, nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The FDA samples individual lots of both imported and domestically grown foods and analyzes them for pesticide residues.

When residue levels are in violation of Environmental Protection Agency standards, domestic foods face sanctions such as seizure or injunction. Import foods may be detained at the port of entry.

To improve its system of testing and to watch for possible problems from certain foods or areas, the FDA works with state authorities on cooperative sampling plans and information exchanges, said Sweeten.

"The FDA is supporting a system to compile and summarize data on foods analyzed by states for pesticides and industrial chemicals known as 'food-contam,'" she said.

Other approaches the FDA takes to food safety is the Total Diet Study, also known as the Market Basket Study. For this program, FDA personnel purchase foods from local supermarkets just as a shopper would.

This quarterly study uses composite samples of foods collected in three cities in a particular region. The groceries are then prepared as the consumer might, and then tested for residues.

For example, apples would be made into an apple pie and then the pie is tested, the extension specialist said.

The primary purpose of the total Diet Study is to compare dietary intake information on pesticides with the acceptable daily intakes (ADIs) established by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations.

"The comparisons show that the dietary intakes of pesticide residues are consistently below established ADIs, in most cases by a wide margin," Sweeten said. "For almost all pesticides, the dietary intake is less than one percent of the ADI."

NEW YORK (AP)—When Jay Leno isn't behind the "Tonight Show" desk, chances are he's in an airport, airliner or hotel.

Leno substitutes for Johnny Carson 77 times a year on the NBC talk show and does about 250 one-night shows a year around the country.

"To go somewhere and stand onstage for an hour and talk is not hard work," Leno said in the September issue of Cosmopolitan. "Plus, your stand-up does begin to atrophy if you don't do it a lot. If you start playing only in selected places, pretty soon you lose touch."

Hints from Heloise

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Dear Heloise: My daughter and her husband were expecting their first child a few months ago and as the date of the delivery drew near, the phone rang every day. Friends and neighbors wanted to know how she was doing. Most often the questions were, "Are you still there?" or "Any signs yet?"

They had a clever idea and told their neighbors to watch the mailbox each day. The day she left to have her baby, her husband put a big white bow on it. When he returned later that night, he replaced it with a large blue bow to let everyone know they had a baby boy. — Laura Stein, Auburn, N.Y.

HOMEMADE COASTERS

Dear Heloise: You don't have to buy expensive glass coasters. Lids from peanut-butter jars work fine.

I made a bunch and they look great! All I did was buy some felt material to match the colors in my home and cut circles of it to fit inside the lids. I didn't glue them in because when they get wet I remove them and let them dry.

Having small children, we go through jars of peanut butter constantly, so I never run out of lids. Making coasters can be a nice project for children to give to their moms. — Stephanie Cook, Roanoke, Va.
