Engine watch

Pilot and model plane enthusiast Gerald Martin monitors the performance of an antique 1948 model plane engine.

Gerald Martin: the plane truth

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

The sound of an airplane engine erupts from the basement. Even on rainy days Gerald Martin has an outlet for his passion for flying. Of course, on inclement days the aircraft he works with are drastically scaled down from the spray planes which he flies almost daily.

The aircraft "hangar" in the basement of Martin's home houses model planes built from vintage plans and powered by antique engines. He placed a recent acquisition on the stand which he uses to test the motors and gently urged the 1948 engine into life.

The tiny engine roared. It sounded like a horror film featuring giant, enraged mosquitoes.

Martin, owner of Hereford Flying and Agricultural Service, is especially proud of this "brand new" engine. The motor was still in its factory box when he found it. The original owner had gotten as far as filling out part of the warranty card and then placed the engine aside. It remained unused for 40 years until Martin gave it new life.

Little planes are just one example of Martin's big interest in aviation. The veteran pilot has become a master of the skies since he first soloed in 1951. This mastery has not gone without its rewards.

Martin's experience in the Confederate Air Force led to his participation as a stunt pilot in various motion pictures. His film flying career began in 1968 when he travelled to Spain to fly replicas of German Messerschmidt 109s and the British Spitfire during the filming of the "Battle of Britain."

The coast of Spain served as a "stand-in" for wartime Britain during many of the flying scenes. The film, with a budget of $9 million, created one of the all time greatest movie flying epics. So many planes were collected for the movie that the production company eventually compiled the 35th largest (at that time) air force in the world.

Martin was also called on to supply the few seconds of flying for opening scenes of the movie "The Hindenburg." The pilot hints that the low level flying needed for that brief scene was both hazardous and exciting.

"It (the scene) lasted a few seconds and took two years off my life," Martin said.

Of all his highly visible "before the camera" flying, Martin believes that his experience with the television series "Baa, Baa, Black Sheep" was the best "as far as airplane flying goes."

While filming for that series, Martin spent 40 hours flying a F-4U Corsair within only a week's time.

Martin's flying has brought him in contact with some famous individuals. He met Robert Conrad, star of "Baa, Baa, Black Sheep," and George C. Scott when that actor was filming for "Hindenburg."

Over the years, Martin has amassed an impressive collection of memorabilia from his aviation career. This includes an autographed copy of "Baa, Baa, Black Sheep" by Pappy Boyington, the book which inspired the television series. The book is autographed by both Boyington and Conrad.

The collection also includes a number of magazines with articles either about or by Martin.

"I even made the cover of True one time," he said.

That cover, and many other published magazine photos, features Martin in the cockpit of a vintage aircraft.

"I've got gobs and gobs and gobs of pictures from over the years," Martin said.

It is just as well that the pilot has maintained something of a pictorial record of his adventures. Flying may be the way many people see the world, but for Martin, it was his reason to see the world. His stay in Spain while filming the "Battle of Britain" is only an example.

As a young man, Martin once flew a small plane all the way to Nicaragua and back again. He made the journey in order to "dust" crops in that Central American country.

"We flew over to Africa one day just to see what it was like," Martin said of an excursion he and some companions made while filming in Spain.

It was a B-17 bomber which was the reason for Martin's visit

Castillo crowned 1989 Fiestas Patrias queen

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Consuelo Castillo was crowned the 1989 Fiestas Patrias queen during special ceremonies Friday night at San Jose Catholic Church in Hereford.

Miss Castillo had been selected as queen of this year's celebration, which commemorates Mexico's declaration of independence from Spain in 1810. She is the 35th queen named since 1954.

She was crowned by Delinda Hernandez, the 1988 Fiestas Patrias queen. Miss Castillo reigned over the annual parade Saturday morning and a variety of events Saturday afternoon and night at the Bull Barn in Hereford.

Friday's events included a special Mass at the church with the Most Rev. Leroy Matthesen, bishop of the Amarillo diocese, officiating. Castillo and Annabel Liscano, the 1989 princess, and their families were honored at the service.

After the Mass, events moved to the parish hall where a crowd estimated at over 450 persons enjoyed a mariachi group, a welcoming address by Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher, and the keynote address by Maria Luisa Mercado, president of the Hispanic Network for Women.

Mercado, a former assistant state attorney general, recounted how she grew up "in town all over West Texas" as she, her family of 10 children and parents performing migrant farm labor.

Mercado explained that she was able to finish her education and go to college, but her efforts to enter law school were stopped for a time because she was a native of Mexico and not a citizen of the United States.

She was eventually able to enter law school and earn her degree, and became a naturalized citizen.

She told the crowd of the importance of education of all types, not just schooling, for the future of Hispanics.

"Education gives you an opportunity to compete with everyone on all levels," Mercado said. However, she fears that unequal financing in Texas schools leads to unequal educational opportunities.

The inequities in Texas public school financing have been the subject of a lawsuit and will be addressed by the Texas Legislature, perhaps in a special session in November.

"Go to the barrio and see the buildings, the lack of educational resources," Mercado said. "Education" (See FIESTA, Page 5A)

Poll shows area residents happy with educators

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Residents in the North Texas-Panhandle-South Plains region of Texas feel their local public schools are doing a good job educating student, and have even more confidence in the ability of teachers at the schools.

Those are among the findings in a poll conducted in late July and early August for the Texas State Teachers Association by Harte-Hanks Communications and Texas A&M University.

Over 1,000 persons were polled statewide, including 316 in the northern area (not including Dallas-Fort Worth). The poll has a margin of error of plus or minus three percent.

Seventy-four percent of the respondents in the northern region say local teachers are doing a very good job in our schools, but also believe teachers are underpaid and over-stressed. Those polled also gave good overall marks to public school systems and said they believe that the quality of education is directly linked to their level of funding.

Persons in rural areas of Texas were even happier with the job being done by school districts and teachers.

In rural areas from all over the state, 80 percent felt that public schools were doing a good job, while 86 percent said teachers were doing from a fair to excellent job, with 62 percent saying the job was good or excellent.

Most respondents, especially in rural and northern areas of the state, felt that teachers should have some say in educational policies made by the district. Respondents in this region also felt that teachers didn't receive the respect they should.

Several questions in the poll addressed changes created in the Texas public schools in the past five years.

In the North Texas results, 36.7 percent said the quality of education had improved, while 13.3 percent said the quality of education had declined. In rural Texas, 42 percent said the quality had improved, and 14 percent said it had declined.

Sixty-two percent of the persons in North Texas said the job of being a teacher was harder because of the changes, while 70 percent in rural areas said it was harder.

A majority of the respondents felt that teacher pay had not improved with the changes, and that the changes had little effect on the quality of teachers entering the profession.

Over three-fourths of the respondents in both North Texas and rural areas of the state felt that teachers were hard working, caring, and well-informed about their subjects.

Over 75 percent also felt that teachers deserved pay raise, and most felt the pay raise should come from a combination of local, state and federal funds.

Respondents were almost evenly split on whether the current system of public school funding is fair, but most felt the public schools are not adequately funded.

Sunday a sad day for Huffaker

BOB AND LIBBY HUFFAKER

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Sunday morning's sermon at the Church of the Nazarene in Hereford could be as sad as any sermon ever preached by the Rev. Bob Huffaker.

It's his last sermon at the church after 13 years of ministry here. He's moving to just outside of Columbus, Ohio.

"When we came here in December 1976 from Little Rock, Ark., we had an average attendance of 60," said the Rev. Huffaker. The church was at 16th and Blackfoot, now the Hereford Day Care Center.

13 years ago, the church had an annual budget of $35,000, and its property and possessions were worth $150,000.

Now, the church has a regular Sunday morning worship service attendance of 450 to 500, an annual budget of more than $500,000 last year and a property value of $2.25 million.

When Huffaker started 13 years ago, he was the staff. Now, there is Jim Haile, family counselor; Elva Olivarez, a full-time Spanish minister; Jeff Love, music director; Bruce Menefee, youth minister; and Carol Haile, the children's minister.

The church also hosts the Nazarene Christian Academy, which has about 150 students in classes from four-year-old Kindergarten through sixth grade. There are many more support groups and other activities sponsored by the church, and a Sunday School that counts over 800 enrolled.

Huffaker gives the credit to God. It seems that God, as he always does, took Huffaker's prayer seriously in 1976.

"I was driving toward Hereford from the east when I saw all of these lights," Huffaker recalled. "I thought Hereford was a huge city. I didn't realize they were the lights from all of the feedyards."

"I prayed 'God, please give me the hearts of the people of Hereford.' He really did, not just through our church but the whole community."

"I've enjoyed being involved in community affairs, the YMCA board, a member of the Kiwanis Club and working with most of the civic clubs here, and working with the other pastors and ministers through the Ministerial Alliance. We have a great bunch of pastors in Hereford. It's unusual to have the rapport we have."

Huffaker said that he had mixed emotions about leaving Hereford, but is looking forward to new challenges at the church in Grove City, Ohio.

"Not just our church members but the whole community has shown so much friendship for us. I think I am going to miss the aggressiveness of the people of Hereford and the values that most of our citizens have. You get some negatives every now and then, but I see Hereford as a tremendous place to live. It's a hard thing, moving away from a tremendous town."

"I'm going to a bigger town, but this is a very loving city with a big spirit and a big heart."

"Sunday morning may be worse than a funeral for me."

Huffaker's last sermon will be at 10 a.m. Sunday at the church. At 6 p.m. Sunday, a reception will be held for the Huffakers at the church.

Report Card on Texas Schools

This "report card" on public schools and teachers is based on information compiled in a recent poll of over 1,000 Texas residents for the Texas State Teachers Association by Texas A&M University and Harte-Hanks Communications. A retail seminar originally scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 28, has been rescheduled for Thursday, Oct. 5, it was announced Friday by Ken McLain, chairman of the C of C retail business committee.

The chamber-sponsored seminar, Personal Selling Dynamics, is open to the public and will begin at 7 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center on Oct. 5. This seminar will be structured for both business

C of C warns local firms of ad 'invoices'

Local businesses should be aware that a "yellow-page" advertising firm is currently mailing what appears to be invoices for ads when, in fact, they are not invoices, it was reported Friday by Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Following several inquiries about the "billing" for ads in a nationwide yellow-page book, the chamber wanted to caution members who received these mailings that they are not obligated.

"We would ask that local merchants be careful not to purchase these or pay the "invoice" without first being sure this is worthwhile to their firm," said Mike Carr, executive vice president of the chamber.

He added that anyone with questions is urged to call the chamber office at 364-3333.

employers and employees, said McLain, and of benefit to professional people or anyone who deals with the public.

Topics to be included in the seminar include:

*How the business of selling is changing and what to do about it.

*How your success depends on your attitudes, motives and values.

*What "communication effectiveness" really is.

*Why most so-called sales training fails and how to overcome it.

*A six-step process that can lead you down the path of success in selling.

The cost of the seminar is $10 a person or $50 for an entire business with more than five employees. For reservations, please call the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce at 364-3333.

YOUR EYES

VIDEO GAMES

Q. Will video games impair a child's vision?
A. If played in moderation, video games may help sharpen your child's vision rather than impair it. The key idea here is moderation. The nature of video games requires quick visual reaction time, eye/hand coordination, and an awareness of side vision as well as direct focusing. these vision tasks stimulate eye movements and improve visual and eye/hand coordination.

It is recommended, however, that the video game player who intends to play for long periods of time take five-minute breaks about every half hour. During these breaks, look away from the video screen at something in the distance. This relaxes the eyes and helps avoid the visual stress that can result from continuous play. Visual stress that goes with staring at a video screen without a break can cause headaches, eye fatigue and even blurred vision. Sometimes stress is a contributing factor in the development of nearsightedness in children.

Gerald Martin displays a stained glass depiction of a F-4U Corsair, a plane he flew for the filming of the television series "Baa, Baa Blacksheep."

to France. A fellow Texan, John Stokes, was interested in buying the B-17. He commissioned Martin to fly the bomber from Paris to another community in France.

"I've got about 20 minutes flying time on a B-17 and about 35 minutes taxiing time," Martin said.

The accomplished pilot was very aware that he was flying a precious collector's item.

"I made the best landing of my life. I had to," he said.

Despite his many adventures flying vintage aircraft for the Confederate Air Force, individuals and the movies, it is the aerial application of agricultural chemicals which has been Martin's bread and butter. Martin began flying professionally over 30 years ago. At that time, pilots usually flew "dusters" which dropped a dry powder on crops. Over the years, dusting has given way to wet spraying.

"Spraying is much more effective in windy, drier conditions. That's why it caught on," Martin said.

Weather permitting, the veteran sprayer still flies almost daily as he makes applications on area farms.

For decades Martin has been at home in the skies whether flying acrobatic displays for the Confederate Air Force or buzzing grasshoppers in a farmer's field. From all his experiences, it's the airplanes he remembers.

"I've flown a lot of good airplanes, and I've flown a lot of bad ones," he said.

Of all the different models of aircraft he's flown, Martin believes that the most "fun to fly" was a Buecker Jungmeister, a swept-wing bi-plane, which belonged to a friend of his.

"It's been years ago. This guy would let me fly it whenever I wanted," he said.

He remembers fondly the P-40 Wildcat which he flew for 20 years in acrobatic shows conducted by the Confederate Air Force.

Then there's the Martin AM1 with its powerful 28 cylinder engine. That antique plane is extremely rare since only a few were built in competition for a government contract. Another design was chosen over the AM1.

This particular Martin AM1 had not been flown for over 31 years when the Hereford pilot was given his chance. He flew this rare airplane on only four occasions before it came to an untimely end.

"Another fellow flew it and tore it all up," he said.

It was some small comfort that the pilot walked away from the crash.

Martin's talents are not limited to flying. He is also an accomplished guitarist and a singer. Not long back his passion for flying and music combined.

He had been invited to visit a friend of his, Lefty Gardner, while a documentary was being filmed about Gardner, another veteran "duster." Gardner asked Martin to bring his guitar.

While sitting in a pasture and enjoying the companionship of his friends, Martin began to play and sing a song called "Bye, Bye Bi-plane." The production crew recorded the song right in the middle of a cow pasture. The finished documentary began with Martin's music.

"I'm a good guitar picker when I've had a beer or two," Martin said.

Crimestoppers offers rewards

A reward of up to $300 is being offered by Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers for information leading to the arrest and indictment of persons involved in the Crime of the Week.

Hereford police are investigating the burglary of four motor vehicles in the 300 block of Lawton sometime on Sept. 1 or 2. Taken were a set of car keys from one vehicle; three cassette tapes from another vehicle; a pair of prescription glasses and three cassette tapes from a third vehicle; and a Jet Bound 10-band power booster, a Kraco 3-band graphic equalizer, two Pioneer TS 6820 speakers; several cassette tapes; an eel skin cassette tape case; six personalized Renco long sleeve shirts; a buck knife with sheath; and several Matco tools with initials.

If you have information on these crimes, call the Clue Line at 364-CLUE (364-2583). You don't have to identify yourself; you can use a code name or number. If your information leads to the arrest and indictment of persons involved, you could receive a reward of up to $300. Final rewards are determined by the Crimestoppers board of directors.

Mrs. Bush to visit BR Monday

First Lady Barbara Bush will tour Boys Ranch and make an informal talk to the youth during a visit Monday after lunch.

Mrs. Bush is making the visit "because of her interest in troubled youth," said a spokesman. She accepted an invitation extended by Wale Madden Jr., an Amarillo director of the Ranch, to appear during the 50th anniversary of Cal Farley's Boys Ranch.

"We think her presence will provide a lasting impression for our youth," said a Ranch official. Boys Ranch currently is the home for 400 boys, aged 5 to 18 and mostly from broken homes. The Ranch has helped raise 4,000 boys during its 50 years existence. It is located 36 miles northwest of Amarillo.

S&L changes will be subtle

By VIVIAN MARINO
AP Business Writer

The costly thrift-rescue plan, which promises a sweeping restructuring of the U.S. financial system over the next three decades, already has brought subtle changes to the lives of many Americans since its enactment a month ago.

Those high-interest CDs peddled by some desperate thrifts to attract depositors are getting harder to find, and some experts say they eventually could disappear. Real estate auctioneers are maneuvering to grab a piece of what easily will be the biggest distressed property sale in history.

More serious consequences could loom as the number of thrifts decline, lessening competition. Homebuyers could find themselves priced out of the mortgage market, which historically has been the main business of the savings & loan industry.

The quiet changes unfolding so far partly reflect a slow-moving bureaucracy, a relatively stable economy and widespread misunderstanding or apathy about the law and what it means. Many thrift executives say their customers don't realize a new era has begun.

"As wonderful as that may be, Hispanics have the highest dropout rate, the highest percentage in prison and the lowest income level, yet we will be in the majority," Mercado said. "A lot of people will be relying on our work, our resources and our intelligence, but how are we going to do it if we are dropping out and going to prison?"

Vega wears down Herd JV, 23-6

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

"We played hard but they finally wore us down and beat us," is how Hereford Whiteface junior varsity defensive coach Ron Young described Friday's 23-6 loss to the Vega varsity at Whiteface Stadium.

The Longhorns piled up 299 yards of offense for the game, including 245 yards rushing.

"We knew as long as they tried to throw it we had a chance," Young said. "Then they just lined up and started running over us. They just flat wore us down that second half."

"You hate to lose any time," said Stan Carter, the JV's offensive coach. "We told the kids we were in a no-lose situation (playing a varsity team), but it still hurts to lose."

The Herd managed to hold the Longhorns to a 7-0 advantage after one half of play and closed the margin to 7-6 early in the third quarter before the visitors began grinding out the yardage.

Vega got on the board at the end of a 41-yard drive with 4:39 to play in the half. The Longhorns overcame a fourth down at the 33-yard line when quarterback Roger Broman scampered 32 yards to the Herd 1. A pair of sneaks by Broman put the ball into the end zone and Cody Walker's kick gave the 'Horns all they would need.

Hereford closed the gap on their first opportunity in the second half. Broman lost the ball when he stumbled dropping back to pass and the Herd defense pounced on it at the Vega 22.

From there the Whitefaces used the running of Larry Brown and Moses Diaz to move down to the 2. From where Brown scored on the drive's fifth play.

Brown finished as the game's leading rusher with 93 yards on 21 carries and Diaz added 40 yards on eight carries.

"I thought the turning point in the game was when they finally made that mistake and we capitalized," Carter said. "Then they get the kickoff and drive it for about seven minutes into the wind."

during the junior varsity's 23-6 loss to the Vega varsity Friday night at Whiteface Stadium.

Vega's drive, which lasted 6:26, covered 77 yards in 13 plays, all on the ground. Fullback Michael Lopez was the main weapon on the march as he gained 41 yards on seven carries, including a 1-yard dive for the score. Tailback James Luster added 28 yards on four tries.

"That just deflated us," Carter said. "We were fixing to get momentum and to play with them."

The Longhorns took advantage of a Herd turnover to set up their final touchdown of the night. Ty Wood intercepted a pass from Hereford quarterback Chris Blair, who was playing his first game since returning from a hand injury.

"Chris did fine," Carter said. "He handled himself real well and moved us up and down the field."

Broman ran for 23 yards to the 11 to spark the drive and Lopez put the ball on the 1 on the next play. The pair then hooked up for a two-yard scoring toss on the first play of the fourth quarter.

Diaz broke through the line to snuff the extra point kick, leaving Vega with a 20-6 lead.

"Our offense looked pretty sharp," Vega coach Gary Lewis said. "We moved the ball pretty well all night."

"We couldn't stop them on defense, though. That got me worried."

"We had trouble last week on defense and we had trouble tonight."

The Herd threatened to cut the margin on their next possession.

Max Mungia, who started the game at wingback, stepped in at quarterback to engineer a 65-yard drive to the Vega 6. Brown picked up 52 of those yards, including a 28-yard dash to the Longhorn 20.

Facing third and goal from the 9, Mungia watched his only pass of the night be intercepted by Broman in the end zone for a touchback.

Vega proceeded to eat up 6:30 of the final on a drive that reached the Herd 20. After a holding call nullified a touchdown, Walker hit on a 42-yard field goal attempt.

"He hit it solid," Lewis said. "I think it would have been good from 50. He was pretty excited because we don't kick many."

Teaff knows his place in the world

By CATHY HARASTA
The Dallas Morning News

WACO (AP) - When lunch time comes, toned young men work their way through fish and salad at Baylor University's athletic dining hall.

Bears coach Grant Teaff moves among his players like a stable pulse. Though he is neither pal nor peer, he is perfectly in place.

Few in college football have been in place to Teaff's extent. Teaff, Baylor's all-time winningest coach, is in his 18th season at the school.

"I think that some coaches are ideally suited for certain schools, and Grant Teaff and Baylor are an ideal marriage," said Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz, the former Arkansas coach. "Not everybody could coach at Baylor, but Grant Teaff could coach at a lot of places."

Nationally, only Penn State's Joe Paterno and Michigan's Bo Schembechler have been with their programs longer.

He is far and away the dean of the current Southwest Conference head coaches. Jim Wacker, in his seventh season at TCU, comes closest in league tenure.

"I feel a great deal of loyalty to the university," said Teaff, 55, a six-time SWC coach of the year who is 102-87-5 at Baylor. "Baylor University has been very good to me."

Within the SWC, Teaff's anchor role has been important. "As the one who is senior in service, Grant Teaff brings us stability," SWC commissioner Fred Jacoby said. "He has the overall perspective. He also is a great ambassador for the SWC."

Teaff starts each season with a new flock but a tried-and-true technique. He begins by making the freshmen memorize each other's names. It is less important to Teaff that his annual collection of young men become his best friends than that they be taproots of confidence for each other.

"One of the most important things I do with my freshmen is create ways for them to become friends," Teaff says.

Teaff played the game, and played it hard, before taking to the sideline more than 30 years ago. The physiognomy of football is on his face; the legacy of exposure to the Texas elements shows around his eyes in fine seams. His slightly lopsided nose was broken eight times during his playing days in West Texas.

Teaff never was far from football, unlikely though it might have seemed for one who was small and slow - his own words - when he captained teams at Snyder High School, San Angelo College and McMurry College.

When Teaff graduated from Snyder High School in 1951, the prediction in his high school year book was that he would become the head coach at the University of Texas. Teaff laughs and says the forecast ended up being close - missing by just about 100 miles.

It doesn't matter that Grant and Donell Teaff have been married for 32 years; they still make dating a routine part of their lives.

"He always calls and asks me for a date on Thursday nights," says Donell, who was Miss Lubbock and a Texas Tech cheerleader when Grant spotted her during a Red Raiders game in 1956.

"It might be for dinner and a movie, maybe just a quiet dinner at home. We recognized very early that life was going to be busy and life was going to be full. So Thursday nights we set aside for ourselves."

To celebrate his 25 years of head coaching in 1987, Teaff gave his wife a bracelet with 50 diamonds - two for each season. It has been a joint venture, this career. Last season, Donell made her debut as a columnist in Baylor's game programs, writing on subjects such as rule changes.

Always, she has followed the games, at Baylor and before that at Angelo State, where Teaff was head coach; before that at Tech, where he was an assistant; and at McMurry, his alma mater where he coached football and track.

John Scovell, the chairman of the board of Woodbine Development, played quarterback at Tech when Teaff was an assistant there. Scovell says time has not dimmed his memory of the warm welcome players received in the Teaff home. Nor has Scovell forgotten Donell's splendid homemade peach ice cream.

"She is every bit Grant Teaff's equal, and his name is magic in my life," Scovell said. "Texas Tech players played better than their ability, and now Baylor plays better than its ability. Teaff makes you feel a self-worth. From him, you feel good about what you are, who you are, and what you do. And Donell was just always so supportive."

Making a life around sports requires a handle on the subject, and Donell had the right grip.

"I come from West Texas, where sports is big," said Donell, who was hospitalized in August for bacterial pneumonia in both lungs and is recovering at home.

"I never really thought in concrete terms about what I wanted in a husband, except that he did need to have an intense interest in sports. A lot of people scoff at love at first sight, but I knew almost immediately that this was it."

During his tenure at Baylor, Teaff has had coaching offers from schools including LSU, Florida State and the University of Southern California. But he names only one theoretical move that he would classify as "intriguing."

That would be the job at Notre Dame, noted for its tradition of academic excellence and deep religious moorings. "But I would never imagine their hiring a Baptist at Notre Dame," Teaff says with a laugh.

Teaff, an early riser who begins staff meetings at 6 a.m. during the football season, says a strength of his season is the low staff turnover. He attributes it to his sensitivity to family life.

"My coaches get to go home and have dinner with their families," Teaff said. "Coaches sometimes spend more time with other people's children than they do with their own."

Tech saves 'lost' weekend for SWC

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

LUBBOCK (AP) - For a week anyway, they were the Raiders of the "Lost Weekend."

It's been a while since the Texas Tech Red Raiders were the talk of the Southwest Conference in something other than derogatory tones. But the Raiders saved the league from humiliation last Saturday with the only victory in a landslide of losses.

The 24-14 upset of 20th-ranked Arizona was Tech's first victory over a Top 20 non-conference foe since 1976. It was certainly a dose of the medicine that coach Spike Dykes' program needs to gain respectability.

Texas Tech has been a high plains orphan of the SWC. The Raiders have pulled off their share of upsets but have never put together a consistent program that produced visits to the Cotton Bowl.

The last time the school played at the Cotton Bowl was back in the 1930s, before it joined the SWC.

"I hope I live long enough to see Tech in the Cotton Bowl some day," said a limo driver on the airport run in Lubbock. "I just hope it doesn't take them to the 21st century."

Recruiting is difficult for Tech, although it has a magnificent campus. Lubbock isn't exactly around the corner from Houston, Austin, or Dallas-Fort Worth, which produce many of the stars of the SWC.

The hard part is getting a recruit to visit. Once around the friendly folks in the Texas Tech athletic department, athletes normally warm to Jones Stadium and its environs.

Certainly a meal at the 50-Yard Line with a pepper steak and a dozen blueberry muffins doesn't hurt any.

Dykes and his staff have a knack for finding kids others overlook, such as running back James Gray, who gained 234 yards rushing in the Arizona game. He wasn't heavily recruited.

Robert Hall, the quarterback for the Dallas Carter High School Class 5A Texas state champions, was a walk-on at Tech.

Dykes scours West Texas for players, although there aren't as many as there were 15 years ago.

He uses his engaging personality to sell Lubbock and Texas Tech. Dykes is a West Texan, born and raised in Lubbock. He sells from the heart and soul. The locals love him.

But can he develop a consistent program, the kind needed to get to the Cotton Bowl?

Several years ago the Red Raiders upset nationally ranked Texas A&M, then were killed 31-0 by Arkansas the next week.

"I can't find anybody who will admit to having played in that game and anybody who says they coached in it," Dykes quipped. "Around here it's dangerous to start thinking we're better than we really are."

When the Raiders stop thinking they're better than they are, they'll be dangerous enough to be in Dallas on New Year's Day.

Cubs slam Reds, widen lead

By The Associated Press

For Chicago Cubs manager Don Zimmer, there's nothing magical about a 5 1/2-game lead with 15 games left.

Shawon Dunston's first career grand slam capped Chicago's five-run sixth inning and the Cubs continued their September surge Friday night with a 7-2 victory over Pittsburgh at Three Rivers Stadium.

"This was a big game, and we've played a lot of big games, but we haven't played the biggest one yet," Zimmer said. "I've said before, I don't know what the magic number is. All I know is we're 5 1/2 games ahead with 15 to play."

Rick Sutcliffe, 15-11, became Chicago's third 15-game winner as the Cubs won their sixth straight and ended Pittsburgh's five-game winning streak.

Sutcliffe improved to 3-1 in five starts against the Pirates this season as the Cubs extended their longest winning streak since a seven-game run from April 7-16.

Elsewhere in the NL it was New York 5, Montreal 0; San Diego 5, San Francisco 3; Houston 4, Cincinnati 1, and Los Angeles 5, Atlanta 0. St. Louis and Philadelphia split a doubleheader, with the Phillies winning the opener 2-0 and the Cardinals the nightcap 7-6.

Sutcliffe allowed nine hits and struck out 10 in eight innings to join Greg Maddux, 17-11, and Mike Bielecki, 16-6, as 15-game winners, the first time since 1970 the Cubs have had three 15-game winners in a season. Mitch Williams got the last three outs.

Chicago pitchers have allowed only nine earned runs in their last 55 innings.

After the Cubs broke a 1-1 tie against reliever Stan Belinda, 0-1, in the sixth on pinch-hitter Luis Salazar's RBI infield single, Dunston hit an 0-1 pitch from Bob Patterson into the left-field seats for his ninth homer of the season - his 10th hit in 15 at-bats.

Mets 5, Expos 0

David Cone allowed seven hits in eight innings and Keith Hernandez hit a two-run homer.

Howard Johnson had a two-run single and Strawberry a sacrifice fly in the Mets' three-run fifth off Dennis Martinez, 15-5.

Phillies 2, Cardinals 0
Cardinals 7, Phillies 6

Jim Lindeman scored the tying run on a passed ball and Mill Thompson drove in the game-winner with an infield single as visiting St. Louis rallied for two runs in the ninth inning to beat Philadelphia for a doubleheader split at Veterans Stadium.

In the opener, Pat Combs pitched a four-hit shutout in his third major-league start as the Phillies won 2-0.

Padres 5, Giants 3

Garry Templeton drove in the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning with a double and Benito Santiago followed with a two-run homer.

Dennis Rasmussen, 9-10, won his fourth game in his last five decisions, allowing six hits in five-plus innings. Bob Knepper, 7-12, lost.

Astros 4, Reds 1

Glenn Davis hit his 33rd homer, tying the second highest one-season home run total by an Astro.

Jimmy Wynn holds the Astros single-season home run record of 37, set in 1967. Wynn also hit 33 in 1969.

Rick Rhoden, 2-6, pitched seven innings and allowed one run on two hits. Larry Andersen pitched one inning, allowing two hits, and Dave Smith pitched a hitless ninth for his 25th save in 29 opportunities.

Rookie Jack Armstrong, 2-2, allowed six hits in 6 2/3 innings.

Dodgers 5, Braves 0

Ramon Martinez, 5-3, pitched a five-hitter and struck out a career-high 12.

Lenny Harris, who drove in three runs, and Eddie Murray each hit two-run homers in a four-run sixth inning off Tommy Greene, 0-1.

Judson avenges loss

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

It took a year, but Converse Judson, the No. 1-ranked team in Texas high school football, finally got even.

The Rockets scored on their first four possessions Friday night while building a 23-0 halftime lead and held on for a 23-6 victory over San Antonio Clark, cementing their ranking and avenging Clark's 14-12 win last fall.

Last year's loss to Clark is Judson's only regular-season defeat in four years.

Judson needed only 26 plays and only 8:33 on the clock to score all its points. Meanwhile, the Rockets defense never allowed Clark inside the Judson 41 in the first half and held the Cougars to a total of eight yards on their last five possessions before intermission.

Texas' four other top-ranked schoolboy football teams also won Friday night. In 4A, Paris hammered Rockwall 47-7; in 3A, Southlake Carroll defeated Graham 36-28; in 2A, Groveton overwhelmed defending state champion Corrigan-Camden 40-6 in a meeting of the No. 1 and No. 2 teams; and in 1A, Munday ran past Holliday 47-17.

Dallas Carter, defending 5A state champ, was upset. The fifth-ranked Cowboys fell to Killen 10-7. Willowridge, ranked seventh in 5A, was toppled, 15-13, by Aldine.

Three of 4A's ranked teams were upset - Wichita Falls Hirschi (4A, No. 5), by Wichita Falls Rider, 10-0; Highland Park (4A, No. 8), by Lake Highlands, 21-14; and Kerrville Tivy (4A, No. 10) by Brownwood, 28-21.

In 3A, the only ranked team to fall was 10th-ranked Navasota, which was the preseason No. 1 pick before losing its season opener.

Corrigan-Camden was the only ranked 2A team to lose.

In 1A, all the ranked teams won except for No. 6 Baird, which lost to Albany, 9-2.

Although Judson had all the points it needed by halftime, Coach D.W. Rutledge was concerned that his team didn't score in the last two quarters.

"You hope there's not a dropoff in intensity the second half; that was the No. 1 thing we talked about at halftime. You've got to stay high. Our intensity level dropped that second half and that's something we've got to work on," Rutledge said.

Clark averted a shutout early in the fourth period after quarterback Matt Beech found wide receiver James Orr at the Rocket 10, and Orr took it to the 1 for a 37-yard gain. That set up Desmond Dents' touchdown run on the next play.

Quarterback Mike Jinks keyed Judson's first two scoring drives with passes to wide-open receivers. The Rockets' initial 72-yard scoring drive saw Jinks hit Luis Silva with a 39-yard pass play to the 5, setting up Vincent Kyle's TD run the next play.

On its next possession Judson scored on a 47-yard pass play from Jinks to fullback Isom Lankford.

Jeff Hunt added a 29-yard field goal, and Judson scored its last touchdown on Jinks' 19-yard option keeper. His 24-yard pass to Lankford set up the last score.

YMCA to sponsor racquetball, football leagues

The Hereford YMCA will sponsor adult leagues in racquetball and men's flag football as part of their fall programs.

The racquetball league will feature singles play only in men's and women's A, B, C and D divisions.

Participants will seven matches plus a double-elimination playoff tournament. Matches will be best-of-two games with each game played to 12 points.

All matches will be played at 7 p.m. Thursdays beginning this week.

Entry fee for the league is $8 for YMCA members and $24 for non-members. Entry deadline is Monday and the league is limited to the first 24 entries.

The men's flag football league will have a seven-game season and playoffs. All games will be played on Sunday afternoons at the Ave. H city park beginning Oct. 1. Four games will be played each week beginning at 1, 2, 3 and 4 p.m.

Entry fee is $7 per player for YMCA members and $21 per player for nonmembers or a $160 sponsor fee. Team registration will continue through Sept. 27 with a limit of eight teams.

Entry fees for each team must be paid in full before the start of the second week of play. Team members must be at least 19 years old and out of high school.

Also, YMCA director Weldon Knabe has announced that the registration deadline for the boys' flag football league has been extended until Thursday.

For more information, contact the Hereford YMCA at 364-6990.

Farm and Ranch

AGRICULTURAL MILESTONES

"Eradication and control of noxious brush on rangelands offer excellent opportunities for improved forage and livestock production in Texas," said Bulletin 721, published in 1950 by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES).

"A large proportion of the state's 93.5 million acres of rangeland is infested with undesirable woody plant species. Reduction in forage from this brush cover means an annual financial loss of many millions of dollars to ranchmen and industries which handle livestock and livestock products."

Not mentioned in this 1950 publication as a reason for controlling unwanted plants on rangeland, but of primary importance today, is prevention of use of water by such plants. Expanding industry and a growing population in Texas are exerting increasing pressures on our limited water supplies.

In 1984, adverse weather forced several major cities, including San Antonio, Austin and Corpus Christi, into water rationing. Rangeland watersheds provide water for most of the state's major metropolitan centers. Such major aquifers as the Trinity, Edwards-Trinity, Edwards, Carrizo-Wilcox and Gulf Coast are recharged by run-off from rangeland. About 60 percent of the surface flow in rivers comes from rangeland watersheds.

BRUSHLAND MANAGEMENT FOR WATER YIELD: PROSPECTS FOR TEXAS, published in May 1987 as TAES Bulletin 1569, concluded: "Reduction of brush and non-economic plants would not only reduce water consumption but might also increase agricultural productivity. This has raised the policy issue of whether brush can be beneficially shifted to other uses, reducing water scarcity and augmenting land productivity."

An earlier study in 1984 by Station scientists painted an optimistic picture. This preliminary estimate of the economic consequences of brush management for water production figured that 40 million acres of moderate and dense Texas brushland could be treated for a one-time cost of $800 million.

However, in many instances, cost of brush control exceeds gains of productivity for the landowner. Some say that a large part of future brush control costs, with resultant gains in water yields, will have to be borne by industry and metropolitan areas.

1990 wheat forecast higher

WASHINGTON (AP) - Moisture conditions have improved so much in the nation's bread basket that private analyst John Schnitker says the 1990 wheat harvest could reach a six-year high of 2.5 billion bushels.

That would be up nearly one-fourth from this year's harvest of 2.04 billion bushels and 38 percent from the drought-smitten 1988 production of 1.81 billion bushels.

Schnitker, a veteran agricultural economist and head of his own Washington-based consulting firm, says his optimism is based in part on "massive rains" in Oklahoma and southern Kansas in the past two or three weeks, along with more recent moisture in northern Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Missouri.

These are prime winter wheat areas where 1989 yields were reduced sharply by drought conditions.

"Except for some little locations that may be missed - and there are always some of those - winter wheat in the main belt will be going into the ground in very good condition," Schnitker said in a telephone interview.

Winter wheat is planted in the fall and is harvested the following summer. It comprises about three-fourths of the total U.S. wheat supply. Kansas, Schnitker's native state, is the traditional leader.

The USDA says winter wheat planting is under way now in the central and southern Great Plains, and in Idaho and Montana.

"I would say prospects are good, both for acreage and for (growing) conditions," Schnitker said. "But that was true a year ago, too. We had a fair start a year ago and then it quit raining."

As a result, young wheat plants withered and were not able to gain enough moisture to see them through the winter. Kansas production dropped 35 percent to 209.3 million bushels from 323 million in 1988, based on last month's estimate.

Norton D. Strommen, the USDA's chief meteorologist, said there has been so much rain recently that "it looks like we're going to have a slow, wet harvest through most of the major grain belt this fall." But he added that prospects for 1990 winter wheat have improved greatly.

"There's no question on that," Strommen said. "We're in better shape now, moisture-wise, than we were at any time last fall. We did get some very timely rains to help with planting, germination and establishment of the (winter wheat) crop last fall, but then it turned dry."

Strommen said there has been enough rain in huge areas of the winter wheat region so that "even some of the subsoil moisture levels are starting to increase, and that's very encouraging."

Part of Schnitker's production outlook is based on USDA's decision to ease the land-idling requirement for 1990 to 5 percent of a farmer's base acreage from 10 percent for 1989. That is the amount of land that must be taken from production in order to qualify the farmer for federal price supports and other program benefits.

Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter has been under some pressure, primarily from domestic wheat users, to relax the 1990 wheat program even further to help rebuild diminished U.S. and world stockpiles.

One option being considered is a "contract modification" authorized under farm law which could allow farmers to boost plantings from their normal program acreage. This additional wheat, however, would not qualify for federal price supports, direct payments or be used to compute a producer's acreage "history" for future years.

Schnitker said he thought Yeutter has postponed a decision on further expansion of the 1990 wheat program until after revised production and use figures are announced on Tuesday, Sept. 12. He predicted no changes will be made.

"The world wheat situation is tenuous but not dangerous yet, and next year's prospects are improving," Schnitker said. "So they will leave the rules like they are, I think."

Carl Schwensen, executive vice president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, which does not favor a further expansion for 1990, said he thinks the odds right now favor some kind of "contract modification" but declined to speculate on what the details might be.

One of the underlying fears of the association has been that wheat production can soar in relatively short order and that a significant rise in U.S. inventories will drive down prices again.

According to USDA projections last month, wheat market prices nationally are expected to average $3.85 to $4.25 per bushel in the marketing year that began on June 1, up from $3.72 in 1988-89 and $2.57 in 1987-88.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Last week's sale to the Soviet Union of 50,000 metric tons of surplus butter held by the Agriculture Department averaged less than 74 cents a pound, or a little more than half of what it cost American taxpayers.

The sale, for a total of $80.9 million, involved a price to the Soviets of $1.618 per ton, the department said. At 2,205 pounds per ton, that was about 73.3 cents per pound.

Yeutter announces slight sugar quota hike

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter announced Tuesday a nine-month extension of the current sugar import quota year and an increase of about 860,000 tons in the amount of foreign sugar that can be imported.

Import quotas are used to protect domestic producers from cheaper foreign sugar being dumped on the U.S. market.

The original 1989 quota year began Jan. 1 and was to have ended Dec. 31. The extension lets the quota year run through Sept. 30, 1990.

"This change puts quota shipments for the new 21-month quota period at a somewhat higher level on a 12-month equivalent basis than the previously announced quota of 1,125,255 metric tons," Yeutter said in a statement.

Now, with the extension, the new 1989-90 quota will be 1,986,950 tons, an average of 94,617 tons per month, or a 12-month equivalent of about 1,135,400 tons - an increase of about 1 percent from the old quota.

Yeutter said the change in the quota was "an action independent" of a ruling earlier this year by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade that the U.S. sugar import quotas are in violation of international trading rules.

"We are continuing to look at the options for bringing these quotas into conformity with the GATT, but a decision on how to do this has not been made," he said.

"In the interim, this modification of the import quota and the quota period is necessary to correct for a tightness in our sugar market, particularly during the last quarter of this calendar year," Yeutter said.

Shipping patterns are being adjusted to assure that 135,000 tons of the increase provided by the stretched quota period are allowed to enter the United States during the October-December quarter, he said.

"We will continue to monitor on a day-to-day basis whether additional modifications in the quota are necessary," Yeutter said.

New country-by-country quota allocations were announced today by U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills.

The allocations include a reallocation of Panama's initial quota of 30,537 tons and leave 23,403 tons of the new Panama quota unallocated and "not yet authorized for shipment to the United States," the announcement said.

Panama's remaining 23,403 tons "may subsequently be allocated to other countries, as was done in 1988 and as has just been done for their initial quota allocation of 30,537 metric tons," it said.

Scientists say that the sun will continue shining at its present strength for the next five billion years.

TBSWCD sets vote for area on Oct. 2

The Tierra Blanca Soil & Water Conservation District has posted a notice of election for a district director from Subdivision Five, which generally includes all Deaf Smith County land east of US-385.

Qualified voters (landowners in the subdivision 18 years of age and older) are invited to assemble at the Dawn Community Center at 8 p.m. on Oct. 2 for the election of the director.

Carl Kleuskens is the current director for the subdivision of the conservation district. For further information, voters can call the Soil Conservation Service office in Hereford.

'Greenhouse' could hit hard

DALLAS (AP) - The global warming trend that threatens to melt parts of polar icecaps could also dry up Texas farms, range land and pine forests and inundate Gulf coastal wetlands, state agricultural studies say.

University professors and the Texas Department of Agriculture say their studies reflect the best guesses about what life would be like in the potentially hotter, drier climate of the 21st century as pollution continues.

"The (computer) models all agree that Texas will feel a major impact of the climactic change," Marshall McFarland, a professor of agricultural engineering at Texas A&M University, said.

"The effect on Texas will be warmer temperatures, which people ordinarily won't recognize, but the warmer temperatures will bring drier conditions and greater competition for water resources. That, people will feel."

Scientists point to a persistent drought in South Texas as evidence that the so-called "greenhouse effect" is already affecting the state's climate.

"It may be that we're getting a taste now of what it might be like in the future," according to Robert J. King, director of the Texas Department of Agriculture's Office of Natural Resources.

"I think the time our culture has to respond to the signals we're getting from nature is growing short."

Global warming is blamed largely on burning of fossil fuels, such as oil and coal, which releases pollutants, including carbon dioxide, and alters the atmosphere. The chemical change prevents heat from escaping and raises the surface temperature.

King co-authored a recent report, "Global Warming and the Future of Texas Agriculture." He said experts believe a seven-degree rise in the average worldwide temperature in the next century is possible.

Farming most dangerous profession in US, Texas

COLLEGE STATION -- Farming is America's most dangerous profession, according to statistics released recently.

Agriculture's accidental death rate is five times the national average for all injuries, said Thomas D. Valco, agricultural engineer for safety and mechanization with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Valco said the Texas safety picture parallels the national scene.

"The summer and fall months typically are the worst for farm and ranch fatalities," he said.

A total of 82 fatalities occurred on Texas farms and ranches in 1988, Valco said. Records of fatalities were obtained from death certificates and newspaper clippings.

"Most fatalities took place as a result of farm/ranch activities, but several deaths were a result of recreational activities such as hunting, swimming and horseback riding," he said.

Valco said the highest number of fatalities took place in July, with 13 deaths; while September followed with 12 and October with 11.

The age group between 20 and 29 recorded the highest fatalities with 15 deaths. About 47 percent of these were from gunshot wounds.

Next highest age category was between 60 and 69 years, with 12 deaths recorded. This group was followed by those 70 years or older, with 11 deaths.

"Eight children under age 10 died as a result of farming accidents. Many resulted from youngsters riding on farm tractors that hit a bump causing the child to fall under the equipment. Tractors have only one seat, and extra riders should not be permitted," Valco said.

He said tractors and associated machinery were the cause of 28 of all the recorded fatalities. Forty-eight percent of the machinery accidents was the result of people being run over by the tractors and equipment. Another 40 percent of the fatalities occurred from tractor overturns.

"Simple rollover structures could have prevented most of these deaths," Valco said.

Fatalities involving firearms were the next most frequent killer with 14 deaths. Most happened while hunting, being shot by another hunter or mishandling their firearm.

"Many of these victims lived in urban areas. Ranch owners need to insure that visitors follow safe hunting rules and require them to take firearm safety training," Valco said.

High frequency accident categories also were fires and explosions with seven fatalities, three of which occurred during grass fires.

Other farm vehicles, including pickup trucks and all-terrain vehicles, and highway accidents resulted in seven deaths.

Three deaths occurred from falls; five involved animals, four resulted from drownings, five from being struck by objects, four from electric current, three from lightning and two from exposure and insect bites.

Valco said it is estimated that with every fatality, there are 100 permanently disabling injuries and 1,000 injuries that require hospitalization.

He said that National Farm Safety Week, as well as Farm and Ranch Safety Week in Texas, will be observed Sept. 17 through 23.

"Safety on the farm and ranch is a concern for everyone. By reviewing these statistics and incorporating safety into your farming activities, accidents can be prevented," Valco said.

Holly posts gain

SUGARLAND--Imperial Holly Corporation reported net income of $4,129,000 or 66 cents per share for its first quarter ending June 30, 1989.

Revenues of $176,988,000 were recorded in comparison to revenues of $150 million and a net loss of $882,000 for the same quarter last year.

The increase in pre-tax profitability of $7.7 million over the same period last year reflects increased selling prices for refined sugar and a significantly higher operating rate for Imperial Holly's cane sugar refinery.

The company's beet sugar operations during the quarter in California were hampered by a lower than normal quality sugarbeet crop in several areas due to unfavorable weather conditions. However, present indications of the quality and quantity of the crop to be harvested in California in the fall are encouraging. Preliminary reports on the crop east of the Rockies are also good.

Running stocker calves on wheat pasture?

Now, more than ever, IVOMEC® can build your profits.

(ivermectin)

At this year's beef prices, every pound you put on your calves is worth good money. And with IVOMEC® (ivermectin) you can put on plenty of extra pounds.

Whenever you have cattle on pasture, you're bound to have parasites. And if your calves have been sold and resold before shipping, you can't know what parasites they've picked up. And parasites steal weight.

But one shot of IVOMEC kills 31 different kinds of parasites—more than twice as many as TRAMISOL® and WARBEX® combined.

IVOMEC kills mature and immature worms, so you don't have to use it again in a couple of weeks. And IVOMEC gets external parasites, too. It does it all with just one simple shot under the skin. No wrestling. No Mess. No stress.

So go with your best shot. Get IVOMEC.

Constitution Week set

The Daughters of the American Revolution urges citizens to beware that the week of Sept. 17-23 has been designated as Constitution Week. This special observance marks the 202nd anniversary of the signing of the United States Constitution. Signing the local proclamation is Mayor Wes Fisher being observed by (from left) Wanda Jones, Constitution chairman, and Helen Rose, regent of Los Ciboleros Chapter, NSDAR.

Concerteen officers

The 1989-90 Concerteen officers were elected recently. Jeri Renee McConnell, from left, will serve as vice president; Jeri Ann Parker, secretary; and Camille Betzen, at right, president. The Concerteens serve as official hostesses during the Hereford Community Concert Association's concert season. "Broadway Celebration" will kick-off the season Nov. 14.

Kids choose pizza

NEW YORK (AP) - Pizza is the favorite food among kids 6 to 14 years of age, according to a recent poll by the editors of Kid City and 3-2-1 Contact magazines.

Over 25 percent of the more than 12,000 respondents to the magazines' survey selected pizza as their favorite food. Most of those said they thought that pizza was probably bad for them, but they liked it anyway.

The survey showed that kids sometimes have their nutritional facts wrong, as is the case with pizza, which is basically a nutritious food.

Red Cross Update

Over a century ago, volunteers formed the Red Cross to help the wounded and sick during wartime. A red cross on a field of white became the universal emblem of humanitarian concern and action, a symbol that transcends political, social, and ethnic boundaries. Today, this symbol unites millions of people worldwide in a voluntary effort to maintain a safe and adequate blood supply, prepare for disasters, educate the public about health concerns and aid victims of disasters and other crises.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter received its Charter in 1918 and has worked at helping in Deaf Smith County and all over the world since that time. Our Chapter is a United Way Agency and receives the funds to do the work of the Red Cross in our county from the United Way.

The Uniformed Volunteers met Thursday at the Red Cross office. Plans were discussed for the cholesterol screening, Christmas toys program and the Halloween carnival. Those present were Alice Gilleland, Rosemary Davilia, Margaret Gamez, Nell Culpepper, Bert and Mildred Brown, Sally Walker, Ruth King, Audine Detman, and Betty Henson.

The Board of Directors will meet Tuesday at noon at the Red Cross office.

The training session for after hours duty workers in Service to the Military program has been changed to Oct. 18, at 7:30 p.m. at the Red Cross office.

Instructor classes in First Aid and CPR are scheduled for Oct. 14 and 28. Anyone interested is asked to call the Red Cross office for further information.

Curry to give watercolor demonstration

The Amarillo Fine Arts Association, a non-profit artist association, is proud to be able to bring Bill Curry to Amarillo to present a watercolor demonstration.

Curry is a well-known cowboy artist from Tucumcari, N.M. His work decorates many homes, galleries, and private collections across the country. He will be demonstrating watercolor on Sept. 19 at the First National Bank in the Centennial Room. The demonstration will be at 7 p.m. It is open to the public and there is no charge.

This demonstration is the first of a full fall schedule of activities for the A.F.A.A. On Sept. 29, the Best of the Southwest Show Fall Edition, a competition, will be at the First National Bank with a reception on the 29th at 7 p.m. The Amarillo Chamber of Commerce will present its choice for its poster competition at this time. Again the public is welcome and there is no charge.

On Oct. 28 and 29, The Amarillo Fine Arts Association Fall Arts & Craft Show will be held at Western Plaza in Amarillo.

These are some of the ways the Amarillo Fine Arts Association is trying to share the art experience with the people of the area.

Lone Star Ballet season to kick-off

The 1989-90 season of Lone Star Ballet will enchant and delight patrons by bringing four unparalleled exciting shows to the Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium.

David Parsons Company will kick-off the season on Oct. 13 with a refreshing and original presentation by his seven-member troupe. The New York Times has proclaimed the troupe as one of the most innovative and breathtaking companies to emerge in America in many years--Parsons holds captive his audience with whimsy and wit.

For the 19th consecutive year Lone Star Ballet will perform its magical rendition of "The Nutcracker" on Dec. 8-10. LSB's "The Nutcracker with the Amarillo Symphony has become a cherished Christmas tradition in the Panhandle. The Ballet is under the artistic direction of Neil Hess, and James Setapen is musical director/conductor of The Amarillo Symphony. A gift of Mrs. Donald D. Harrington and The Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation to the people of the area, "The Nutcracker is for children of all ages.

The Fort Worth Ballet, under the artistic direction of Paul Mejia, will bring a special Valentine's Day performance that highlights the director's special talents. The Peruvian-born Mejia's choreography is greatly influenced by the legendary George Balanchine, one of the most demanding and prolific ballet choreographers of the 20th century. The performance promises a dazzling evening filled with eloquence and surprises.

Ballet du Nord's "Coppelia" will be the season finale on March 31. The century old ballet, based on E.T.A. Hoffman's short story, presents the poignant tale of a toymaker's love for an inanimate creation. The disciplined and streamlined troupe from France display a unique sense of direction and originality.

Artist support for this season is provided by Mid-America Arts Alliance, Texas Commission on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts.

For more information about any of the season's performances please contact the ticket office at (806) 372-2463 or stop by the Lone Star Ballet office in the Chamber of Commerce Building, 1000 South Polk. Office hours are Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Visa and Mastercard are accepted.

Fashion statement

Mary Edwards, at left, and June Henderson model elegant fashions from Little's. New fall fashions will be shown during the "Texas Trends Benefit Style Show" set for 7:30 p.m. Sept. 26 at the Community Center. Other stores participating include The Pants Cage, Sylvia's, Grandma's Korner Too, ETCetera, Betty's Shoes, All Star Sports Center, Class Act, Gaston's, Originals Unlimited, Yiota's Korner Klostet and Sew & Tell. Tickets are priced at $3 per person and may be purchased from local stores, at the door or from members of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, who are sponsoring the event. Proceeds will go to the Domestic Violence/Rape Crisis Center and the local Lifeline program. During the event, refreshments will be served and door prizes awarded.

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. What do you do to keep a cake from rising higher in the middle than the sides? K.M.S., Monroe, MI

A. Measure carefully. Too much flour or too little liquid contribute to thick, unevenly leavened batter that may rise too high. Use correct pan size because a too-small pan results in deep batter that expands too much and can result in a peaked top.

Q. Does anything need to be substituted for coconut in a muffin recipe? R.C., Elizabethtown, KY

A. Finely chopped nuts can be substituted for coconut, but most recipes would work fine without any substitution.

Q. Can buttermilk be frozen successfully? Mrs. A.G.S., Brooten, MN

A. Yes, store in original carton for three to four months. Buttermilk texture may be affected, but can be smoothed by whirling in blender briefly upon thawing.

Do you have a question? Write Dear Betty Crocker, Box 1113, Dept. Betty, Minneapolis, MN 55440

TIP OF THE WEEK: Chocolate scorches easily. It should never be melted over heat. Melt chocolate using direct heat, double boiler or microwave.

Luncheon-meeting held at Herrings

The Music Study Club, a member of the Texas Federation of Music Clubs, met Monday, Sept. 11 at the home of Mrs. Dean Herring. Luncheon was served by Something Special.

The business meeting was called to order by Mrs. Sid Shaw, president. A letter of resignation from Mrs. Bobby Moore was read. It was accepted with regret.

Mrs. Shaw introduced her guest, Mrs. David Ruland. Mrs. Joe Reinauer Sr., introduced her guest, Mrs. Faye Gillespie of Gruver. She is president of the first district of Texas Federated Music Clubs. She gave a short talk on what the Federation means to her.

It was announced that the fall conference will be Nov. 4 in Gruver. Mrs. Frances Parker directed the club chorus and guests as they sang the hymn of the month, "God, the Omnipotent" and "Climb Every Mountain." They were accompanied by Mrs. Joe Walters at the piano.

Accidental Discovery May End Obesity

WASHINGTON - Obesity may be controlled naturally with a new type of pill, discovered by accident, a research scientist confirmed recently.

In studies, scientists noted an unusual side effect. Patients receiving an ingredient in what is now being called FS-1 all lost weight, while body weight in control groups remained constant.

Scientists say the mechanism behind the weight reduction is not clear, but suggest it is partially due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calorie-rich dietary fats. Although scientists for some time have known of substances with the capability of producing this effect, the dramatic impact on weight reduction was not known until recently.

The director of research and development at National Dietary Research, an organization committed to the investigation and research of nutritional solutions to world-wide health problems, stated, "The mechanism by which FS-1 works to decrease body weight is actually a more complex and sophisticated process called nutri-bonding. When chewed and swallowed immediately before meals, FS-1 releases nutrients with low calorie content into the body, while high-calorie fats are eliminated, thus providing optimum nutrition and a minimum number of calories."

Studies with FS-1 indicate weight loss results clearly superior to products currently available for the treatment of obesity. In a comparative study by NDR, whose research topics have been the subject of articles published in recent medical and nutritional journals, FS-1 was found to be the most effective treatment for obesity and the most acceptable to patients.

The discovery comes as welcome news to thousands of obesity sufferers waiting years for this type of breakthrough. According to a spokesperson at NDR, "FS-1 can be made available to the public immediately, because it is not a drug and contains only natural ingredients recognized as safe. A drug with essentially the same weight loss capabilities might take as long as eight years to be available, due to lengthy delays encountered in the approval process. FS-1 is currently available on a limited basis through physicians and pharmacies. An instruction sheet for proper use and optimum results is provided with each bottle of 100 tablets.

I'm sooooo depressed!
I have a nasty, disgusting habit that I haven't been able to break. Because of this, I have been called a failure, stupid, inconsiderate, and a threat to society.
I'm a failure because I can't stop; I'm stupid because I started again. I'm inconsiderate because I spend my money on something that is harmful, and I'm a threat to society because I help pollute the air for those around me.
Yes, I'm a pathetic human being. I smoke!
I promise I really do want to quit; in fact, I have quit on several occasions but it was always short-lived.
The last time I stopped smoking was for six weeks in January. Actually, I didn't really have a choice. I convalesced at home for over a month following surgery and was told not to drive for that period of time. In other words, unless I could find a cigarette in some of my hiding places at home or could smuggle some into the house, I had no other recourse but to stop.
The moment I was released from the hospital in Amarillo, my husband began lecturing me on the perils of smoking. All you smokers have heard these statements thousands of times. "Sandy, you realize you are slowly killing yourself. Guess I'll have to raise these two adorable children all alone. (Since when does he call the kids adorable?) You'd think you were more intelligent than to smoke. Honey, don't worry, we will work this problem out together!"
Right, I thought. I'll get the screaming memes and he'll play the bloodhound constantly smelling around for any traces of smoke on my breath, body or the house. Sounded really fair to me.
Because I was in no position to argue the point, I relented. Maybe this time I could quit cold turkey. What's the big deal even though the Surgeon General did say that smoking was just as addictive as heroin.

The first couple of weeks went well. I found I didn't miss not smoking. But then again, I was on medication which made me sleep most of the time.

By the third week, I was getting a little cranky. The old cravings were returning with a vengeance and I was no longer on medication. And since I still wasn't able to get out of the house or do much around the house I was bored out of my mind. I had even begun looking forward each day to watching television reruns of "Mister Ed," "Leave It To Beaver" and "Perry Mason." I knew my mind was beginning to snap when I began looking forward to watching "Mister Rogers."

One afternoon, I remembered that I had gotten a prescription filled for that special gum to help you quit smoking. I hunted around the cabinets, found the box and popped a piece in my mouth. Yuck! Ugh! That stuff was worse than my homemade cobbler. After several minutes of chewing, I spat it out. It tasted like chewing tobacco and I hadn't acquired that habit yet.

To get my mind on something else, I started reading a book while munching on a carrot stick. I sucked on that carrot until it got soggy. Oh, well, the kids would be coming home from school in a few minutes and I could concentrate on them.

That fourth week was a real killer. I wasn't beginning to get cranky, I was getting just plain mean. I no longer cared if John knew that I wanted a cigarette. I didn't care who knew. I thought about smoking 20 hours a day and nothing would satisfy me until I had one.

The entire time I was recuperating, John had worked at his office and then came home to cook, clean, do the laundry and play chauffeur. He wasn't in the frame of mind to have to put up with additional problems but I gave him one anyway. When he walked in the door one evening, I grabbed him by the shirt collar and yelled into his face, "Okay, buster, I've played your game long enough. I want a cigarette and I want it NOW. No if, ands or buts. Comprene?" He just patted me on the back and told me to take it easy, I was doing great.

I was doomed to being a prisoner in my own home for at least another couple of weeks. I prayed for the moment I could go back to work so that I could light up. It was going to be great.

My long-awaited day came. I was excited to return to work, not only because I was thrilled to break the monotony of staying home but because I could buy a pack of cigs on my way to the office.

When the moment of truth came, I just couldn't bring myself to stop at the convenience store. Instead, I drove passed it and felt a tremendous amount of satisfaction that I hadn't given in to my habit.

I stalked into the office feeling pretty proud of myself and then I spied someone lighting a cigarette. I almost jerked it out of their mouth but I refrained.

I stuck it out another couple of days and then gradually began bumming off of people and retreating to the office bathroom or out in the alley to enjoy a few moments of pleasurable smoking. Within the week, I had the full-fledged habit again.

Well, it's late and I just thought I'd feel better if I talked about my problem. Actually, I feel worse. I just lit another

Annual celebration scheduled

The third annual "We, the Survivors" Celebration is scheduled for Saturday Oct. 7 from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Harrington Cancer Center.

Sponsored by the Harrington Cancer Center and the American Cancer Society with support from the Meadows Foundation, the Celebration includes all who have been touched by the cancer experience. Cancer survivors, spouses, families, friends and health care providers are encouraged to participate in the workshops, survivorship fair and Homecoming.

This year's workshops will feature sex counselor Gerald Rogers who will discuss "Rediscovery of Intimacy" and attorney Barbara Hoffman from Princeton, N.J., a cancer survivor herself, who will explore with survivors how to deal with employment and insurance concerns.

Other workshops will be led by John Durkin of Mesa Limited Partnership who will present "Wellness: A balance Approach," and Joan Hodge, R.N., who will cover "The Importance of Laughter" as an aid to quality survivorship.

Each workshop will be offered twice during the morning, once from 9:30-10:30 a.m. again from 10:35-11:35 a.m., so those attending the Celebration will be able to choose two of the four workshops.

A Survivorship Fair will be going on during the Celebration with booths on wellness, nutrition, cancer control, sexuality and supportive care services. The American Cancer Society will have an information table as well as the Harrington Cancer Center's support group, The Circle of Friends who will have their Christmas cards for sale.

Another feature of the Celebration and Fair will be an in-depth photo essay display by Scott Hyde of a day in the life of cancer survivor, Ruthie McCallie.

The Celebration will conclude with the traditional Homecoming Chapel at 11:45 a.m.

Anyone interested in attending the third annual "We, the Survivors" Celebration can call (806) 359-HOPE, ext. 238 for information or to make reservations.

THE BABY BLUES
ORADELL, N.J. (AP) - Three of every four new mothers suffer from post partum depression - ranging from simple blues to severe psychosis.

Just why isn't sure, says RN magazine. Doctors now say prenatal classes are vital to assess how a woman feels about her pregnancy and how she may react after birth.

Coping with mild depression can involve persuading new mothers to join a peer support group to better express their feelings. When symptoms are more obvious, a doctor may recommend outpatient care, psychiatric counseling and even hospitalization.

Knit One - Sweater, Too!

No wardrobe is complete without sweaters, and this season, in addition to traditional wool and cotton classics, retailers are offering sweaters of silk blends, rayon, acrylic, and wool blends. Care of these delicate knits - especially those with decorative trim - requires special attention.

Purchase Wisely
Examine your knit carefully before buying. A soft feel is created by loosely knit fibers which have a tendency to ball up or mat with wear, particularly around the cuffs and neckline areas that receive greatest abrasion.

Proper Care
If the care label recommends at-home washing, read and follow the instructions carefully. When the care label reads dryclean only, take your sweater to a professional IFI drycleaner. Point out any spots or stains which may require special treatment. Especially "invisible" stains - those caused by soft drinks, other liquids, and foodstuffs - that will oxidize and appear later.

When you take your sweater to a professional IFI drycleaner, expect the following:

- No noticeable shrinkage or distortion.
- Luxury and loose knits will be boxed or placed over the bar of a protected hanger. Separate pieces will be folded over separate hangers.

NO MAGIC KEY
BY BOB WEAR

Facts and truth may not be always easy to accept, but it is unwise to ignore them. There are wise and unwise ways, right ways and wrong ways, to accept and face up to things as they are. One of the first things to do is to realize that there is 'no magic key'. We can change that which is real or bring about everything we desire.

The world of fantasy may have some appeal and fantasies may serve some purpose momentarily. This includes daydreaming which is helpful in some situations. However, if prolonged it may become confused with reality. Daydreaming is "a pleasant reverie of wish fulfillment", but there is no real fulfillment. There is 'no magic key' we can turn to make these dreams come true. Too much daydreaming causes disorientation and may prevent effective living in the world of reality.

Reality is not easy to escape. There is no true escape; but by the misuse of drugs, over-working the imagination, different ways of self-deception, dishonesty and in other ways some people keep looking for the magic key--there is 'no magic key'.

Religion is misused by many people as the magic key. Some let their children die by refusing medical assistance; others die from bites of poisonous snakes; others pretend that special things are happening to them. All kinds of claims are made which are completely contrary to reality. As one result of this practice, there is an enormous amount of skepticism and disillusionment. This is not a criticism of religion, but of the misuse and abuse of religion.

The challenges of life issue from realities are by diligence in learning all we can, continuing adjustments, trial and error, honest open-mindedness, and day-to-day perseverance. We can do reasonably well in coping with the challenges of reality, but there is 'no magic key'.

Preparing for feast

A stuffed potato feast and dance is planned Saturday, Sept. 23. The Autumn Fling is open to the public and is being sponsored by St. Anthony's Women's Organization and the Knights of Columbus. The dinner is planned from 6-8 p.m. that day at St. Anthony's School cafeteria which will also be the site of a bake sale. The dance, set from 8:30 p.m. to midnight at the KC Hall, will feature the "Digital Jams". Proceeds from the events will go toward community and parish projects. Price of admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children 10 years of age and under. Preparing for the dinner are, from left, Loretta Urbanczyk, Father Richard Scully, Brian Urbanczyk and Pattie Urbanczyk. The menu will consist of baked potatoes, assorted toppings, salad, peach cobbler, cake, iced tea and coffee. For more information call Duane Artho at 364-5653; Thomas Kemp, 364-7620; or Reta Reinart, 276-5691.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I could not let another day go by without writing to tell you that your knowledge about the way homosexuals think and feel is zero minus 10. Since you obviously know very little about the subject, I hope you will permit me to enlighten you.

Your statement that most homosexuals would be straight if they had the chance, because of the way society views them, was incredibly dumb. Following that same line of logic, do you honestly believe that all Jews wish they were Gentiles, that all Catholics wish they were Protestants, that all blacks wish they were white and that all women wish they were men?

In case you're wondering, I am straight and happy, but I know several homosexuals who enjoy their lifestyle and wouldn't be anything else.

You blew it this time, Ann. -- J.M. Milwaukee

DEAR J.M.: Ten thousand readers can't be wrong. Read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are ill-informed, rock-headed or brain-dead. My sexual attraction to males is a part of me that feels normal, natural and exciting. Where do you get off speaking for us?

It's high time heterosexuals got off their high horse and realized that they are not the end all and be all of human sexuality. I am happy with what I am and I don't need your sympathy, your tolerance or your patronizing attitude. Sign me --Gay and Happy in Vancouver

From New York: Thank you for the good you have done in promoting understanding and acceptance of lesbians and gays in your column. I must take exception, however, to your recent statement that most gays would be straight if they had the choice.

We don't want to change, Ann, we want SOCIETY to change and accept us as we are. --S.T.

Augusta, Ga.: Your column about straights and gays made me write my first letter to Ann Landers: to all those Bible-thumping screwballs who keep quoting Corinthians to prove that we are "an abomination" I would like to say this: God made us as surely as he made you, and God doesn't make junk. --L.B.R.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was deeply disappointed by the response you gave to the woman who wrote to say she had just lost a brother to cancer and was infuriated to see promiscuous and reckless homosexuals with AIDS being treated like "national heroes" on TV. (She was referring to the broad television coverage of the AIDS quilt project.)

Instead of telling the writer that you "understood her feelings" you should have told her that anyone who attempts to call attention to a horrible, life-threatening illness should be admired, not vilified.

You might also have told her that the vast majority of the over one million people in this country who are infected with the HIV virus had never heard of the disease AIDS at the time they were infected. In fact, they were as innocent as the writer's brother who contracted cancer.

Finally, you might have suggested to your reader that she channel some of that energy she is wasting on anger over a disease-awareness project like AIDS quilt into useful work at a cancer hospice in memory of her brother.--Mark R., Boca Raton

DEAR MARK: Well said. Thank you.

PEOPLE LIKE BARGAINS
NEW YORK (AP) - Most Americans no longer pay full price when shopping.

A recent survey of adult shoppers shows only 39 percent pay full price, while 41 percent wait for a sale and 16 percent shop for discounted merchandise.

The poll, conducted by Warwick Advertising and Adweek's Marketing Week, shows that most consumers realize sales will come in most product categories and delay their purchases accordingly.

Single people, however, shop for what they want when they want it and are more inclined to pay full price.

President Janice Betzen read a thank you note from Pam and Holly King.

The program was given by Marrie Leverett on the United States. Refreshments were served by Camille Beville.

Members present were Betzen, Beville, Noel Hutson, Kathie Kerr, Ruby Lee, Leverett, Guy Macloskey, Dee Ann Mathews and Jaime Neeper.

The improvement in central government operations in Latin America has been sustained for at least three years in nine countries, says the Inter-American Development Bank. The governments of Colombia, Chile, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Jamaica, Nicaragua, Paraguay and Uruguay have been successful in lowering their deficits consistently since 1984. In most nations, cutbacks in capital expenditures have been the main policy instrument used in adjusting the overall deficit.

Abundant Life

NO MAGIC KEY BY BOB WEAR

Facts and truth may not be always easy to accept, but it is unwise to ignore them. There are wise and unwise ways, right ways and wrong ways, to accept and face up to things as they are. One of the first things to do is to realize that there is 'no magic key'. We can change that which is real or bring about everything we desire.

The world of fantasy may have some appeal and fantasies may serve some purpose momentarily. This includes daydreaming which is helpful in some situations. However, if prolonged it may become confused with reality. Daydreaming is "a pleasant reverie of wish fulfillment", but there is no real fulfillment. There is 'no magic key' we can turn to make these dreams come true. Too much daydreaming causes disorientation and may prevent effective living in the world of reality.

Reality is not easy to escape. There is no true escape; but by the misuse of drugs, over-working the imagination, different ways of self-deception, dishonesty and in other ways some people keep looking for the magic key--there is 'no magic key'.

Religion is misused by many people as the magic key. Some let their children die by refusing medical assistance; others die from bites of poisonous snakes; others pretend that special things are happening to them. All kinds of claims are made which are completely contrary to reality. As one result of this practice, there is an enormous amount of skepticism and disillusionment. This is not a criticism of religion, but of the misuse and abuse of religion.

The challenges of life issue from realities are by diligence in learning all we can, continuing adjustments, trial and error, honest open-mindedness, and day-to-day perseverance. We can do reasonably well in coping with the challenges of reality, but there is 'no magic key'.

Leverett presents program

Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met at the home of Kathie Kerr on Sept. 7 with nine members present.

President Janice Betzen read a thank you note from Pam and Holly King.

The program was given by Marrie Leverett on the United States. Refreshments were served by Camille Beville.

Members present were Betzen, Beville, Noel Hutson, Kathie Kerr, Ruby Lee, Leverett, Guy Macloskey, Dee Ann Mathews and Jaime Neeper.

The improvement in central government operations in Latin America has been sustained for at least three years in nine countries, says the Inter-American Development Bank. The governments of Colombia, Chile, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Jamaica, Nicaragua, Paraguay and Uruguay have been successful in lowering their deficits consistently since 1984. In most nations, cutbacks in capital expenditures have been the main policy instrument used in adjusting the overall deficit.

Preparing for feast

A stuffed potato feast and dance is planned Saturday, Sept. 23. The Autumn Fling is open to the public and is being sponsored by St. Anthony's Women's Organization and the Knights of Columbus. The dinner is planned from 6-8 p.m. that day at St. Anthony's School cafeteria which will also be the site of a bake sale. The dance, set from 8:30 p.m. to midnight at the KC Hall, will feature the "Digital Jams". Proceeds from the events will go toward community and parish projects. Price of admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children 10 years of age and under. Preparing for the dinner are, from left, Loretta Urbanczyk, Father Richard Scully, Brian Urbanczyk and Pattie Urbanczyk. The menu will consist of baked potatoes, assorted toppings, salad, peach cobbler, cake, iced tea and coffee. For more information call Duane Artho at 364-5653; Thomas Kemp, 364-7620; or Reta Reinart, 276-5691.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I could not let another day go by without writing to tell you that your knowledge about the way homosexuals think and feel is zero minus 10. Since you obviously know very little about the subject, I hope you will permit me to enlighten you.

Your statement that most homosexuals would be straight if they had the chance, because of the way society views them, was incredibly dumb. Following that same line of logic, do you honestly believe that all Jews wish they were Gentiles, that all Catholics wish they were Protestants, that all blacks wish they were white and that all women wish they were men?

In case you're wondering, I am straight and happy, but I know several homosexuals who enjoy their lifestyle and wouldn't be anything else.

You blew it this time, Ann. -- J.M. Milwaukee

DEAR J.M.: Ten thousand readers can't be wrong. Read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are ill-informed, rock-headed or brain-dead. My sexual attraction to males is a part of me that feels normal, natural and exciting. Where do you get off speaking for us?

It's high time heterosexuals got off their high horse and realized that they are not the end all and be all of human sexuality. I am happy with what I am and I don't need your sympathy, your tolerance or your patronizing attitude. Sign me --Gay and Happy in Vancouver

From New York: Thank you for the good you have done in promoting understanding and acceptance of lesbians and gays in your column. I must take exception, however, to your recent statement that most gays would be straight if they had the choice.

We don't want to change, Ann, we want SOCIETY to change and accept us as we are. --S.T.

Augusta, Ga.: Your column about straights and gays made me write my first letter to Ann Landers: to all those Bible-thumping screwballs who keep quoting Corinthians to prove that we are "an abomination" I would like to say this: God made us as surely as he made you, and God doesn't make junk. --L.B.R.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was deeply disappointed by the response you gave to the woman who wrote to say she had just lost a brother to cancer and was infuriated to see promiscuous and reckless homosexuals with AIDS being treated like "national heroes" on TV. (She was referring to the broad television coverage of the AIDS quilt project.)

Instead of telling the writer that you "understood her feelings" you should have told her that anyone who attempts to call attention to a horrible, life-threatening illness should be admired, not vilified.

You might also have told her that the vast majority of the over one million people in this country who are infected with the HIV virus had never heard of the disease AIDS at the time they were infected. In fact, they were as innocent as the writer's brother who contracted cancer.

Finally, you might have suggested to your reader that she channel some of that energy she is wasting on anger over a disease-awareness project like AIDS quilt into useful work at a cancer hospice in memory of her brother.--Mark R., Boca Raton

DEAR MARK: Well said. Thank you.

PEOPLE LIKE BARGAINS

NEW YORK (AP) - Most Americans no longer pay full price when shopping.

A recent survey of adult shoppers shows only 39 percent pay full price, while 41 percent wait for a sale and 16 percent shop for discounted merchandise.

The poll, conducted by Warwick Advertising and Adweek's Marketing Week, shows that most consumers realize sales will come in most product categories and delay their purchases accordingly.

Single people, however, shop for what they want when they want it and are more inclined to pay full price.

Officers named for Lone Star Study Club

New club officers were announced when members of Lone Star Study Club met for a business meeting and luncheon Tuesday in the Lamar Room of King's Manor Methodist Home.

Serving as president will be Wilma Goettsch; vice president, Birdine Huff; secretary, Bobbie Metcalf; recording secretary, Mildred Furhmann; treasurer, Margie Thomas; parliamentarian, Lucille Naylor; and reporter, Grace Tinnin.

New yearbooks were distributed and discussed and as the program members told of their summer activities.

The Rev. Lanny Wheeler, chaplain at King's Manor, was recognized as a special guest. He voiced the prayer and also presented a brief talk about the Manor.

Onieta Davidson and Bibby Morgan served as hostesses to 15 members present.

The next meeting was planned at 2:30 p.m. Oct. 10 in the home of Mildred Furhmann.

Take precautions to avoid accidental poisoning

Child-resistant caps on medicine bottles are a good safeguard but not a cure-all for keeping children from accidental poisoning, says the Texas Medical Association.

The term "child-resistant" does not mean a bottle is child-proof. Given enough time to play with a bottle cap, a child might be able to take it off and poison themselves by ingesting the contents.

Children younger than five--particularly two- and three-year olds--are most vulnerable to accidental poisoning. At this age, children are crawling, climbing, and putting everything into their mouths.

Book fair begins

The public is invited to "The Great American Book Fair" scheduled this week at Northwest School. Proceeds will be used to purchase school computers.

The fair will be open from 2:50-3:30 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and from 5-7 p.m. Tuesday. Dee Anne Trotter is serving as this year's PTA president.

NEW YORK (AP) - Middle ear infections are the most frequent diagnoses recorded for children who visit physicians for illness, according to a volunteer group formed to educate the public about the illness.

The Otitis Media Advisory Council says inner ear infections, or otitis media, account for 30 million doctor visits per year at an annual cost of about $2 billion for diagnosis and treatment with antibiotics.

The infection is caused by bacteria or viruses that travel from the nose or throat up the eustachian tube into the middle ear.

Because its eyeball is fixed, the whale must move its huge body to shift its line of sight.

Because children this young cannot distinguish between a bottle of pills and a bottle of candy. They also lack the reasoning and memory capability to understand that one spoonful of flavored medication is safe, but a larger amount can be dangerous.

Some highly toxic products--those containing iron or camphor--may be sold in bottles without child-resistant caps. A handful of iron tablets, the kind taken by pregnant or menstruating women, or a couple teaspoons of Campho-Phenique, for example, are enough to kill a three- or four-year-old.

Many poisonings occur because of haste and carelessness. Failing to screw the cap on properly or leaving the bottle open while getting a glass of water can prove fatal.

To help prevent accidental poisoning, the Texas Medical Association recommends parents take the following precautions.

-Store all medicines out of reach of children, preferably in a cabinet six to seven feet from the floor or in a locked cabinet. Don't leave vitamins and other dietary supplements on the table or kitchen counter.

-Pour any medicines no longer needed down the drain. Because children can get into trash containers, rinse the medicine bottle out with water before discarding it.

-Avoid leaving children alone in the bathroom, kitchen, or other areas where medicines are kept.

-When using a medicine, carefully think through each part of the process--replacing the cap, taking precautions if the phone rings, and storing the bottle.

The Texas Medical Association is a professional organization of more than 29,000 physician and medical student members. It is based in Austin and has 116 component medical societies around the state. The Association represents 80 percent of the state's physicians, and its goal is to improve the health of Texans through the professional and personal development of members.

Leon named best speaker

"The Col.Said Oops" was the topic that gave Larry Leon best program speaker at the Thursday morning meeting of the Hereford Toastmasters.

Joe Don Cummings voiced the invocation and Joe Weaver presided over the business meeting.

Rocky Lee, wordmaster introduced "denigrate" as the word. Clark Andrews served as grammarian while Milton Adams was table topic master.

Rocky Lee was toastmaster and Lynn Cook, timer.

Larry Leon spoke on "Cultural Shock" and Bruce Hernandez was evaluator.

Lee was cited as best table topic speaker and best evaluator was Hernandez.

Guests were Rachel Hernandez, Margaret Perez and Gary Slocum.

ATLANTA (AP) - At one time, restless sleepers may have chosen a bed made of sassafras instead of drinking warm milk to induce slumber. Wood from sassafras trees once was believed to repel spirits that disturb sleep, according to Georgia-Pacific Corp., a forest product company.

Couple to wed

Former Hereford resident, Karen June Latham of Amarillo, and John Milton Fox, also of Amarillo, plan to exchange wedding vows Nov. 4 in San Jacinto Baptist Church of Amarillo.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Proctor and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Latham, all of Amarillo. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Fox of Amarillo.

Miss Latham is employed by the Texas American Bridge Bank. Fox attended TSTI and is currently employed by Amarillo Gear Co.

Woman's Health

MIDLIFE MOTHERS
By George W. Morley, M.D.,
President, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

If you are among the many thousands of American women having babies after 35, you may be wondering about the problems of mid-life motherhood. The good news is that the chances for a safe pregnancy and a healthy baby are higher than you may think. And, if you are generally fit and trim, your pregnancy can be as normal as if you were 20.

The advantages to delayed motherhood are many. You are probably more financially and emotionally secure. You have had time to finish your education and to develop a career. Chances are your marriage has stabilized, and you will feel mature enough to handle the responsibilities of child rearing.

But pregnancy may pose some slight risks too. For instance, if you are over 40, your baby is more likely to have birth defects like Down syndrome.

As an older mother, you may be more prone to certain medical conditions, such as high blood pressure, kidney trouble, and diabetes. Pregnancy puts an added strain on your body, so you run a higher risk of miscarriage, complications during pregnancy or labor, and premature labor. Also, because your fertility gradually decreases as you age, you may have problems getting pregnant.

To help ensure a problem free pregnancy, consult with your doctor before you become pregnant to make sure your diet is sound and that any medical condition you may have is under control. Then, good, regular prenatal care from the beginning should reduce the risk of any potential problems. Also, you should quit smoking, abstain from alcohol, take only prescribed medications, and follow a balanced diet.

Your doctor will probably recommend some testing, such as amniocentesis, which involves removal of some of the amniotic fluid surrounding the fetus. The doctor may also suggest a newer test, chorionic villus sampling, which involves removal of some tissue that later forms the placenta. Both tests are used to detect some genetic birth defects-particularly for couples with a family medical history of genetic disorders. Your doctor may also want to give you an ultrasound exam which by sound wave pictures can tell you the age, position, and general well being of the fetus.

Having a baby is one of life's greatest pleasures--don't let age keep you from having this experience.

Planning a wedding?

Engagements should be announced at least SIX WEEKS BEFORE the wedding date to ensure publication. Couples submitting engagement announcements after the deadline must choose to have either the engagement or the wedding photo published. The engagement announcement must include the date of the wedding.

Wedding and anniversary information should be submitted to The Brand the Monday before the next Sunday publication date. Wedding information submitted eight days or later after the wedding date will be shortened.

Black and white photos are preferred for engagements, weddings, and anniversaries but color photos may be used if suitable for reproduction. Lifestyles reporters do not take photos for engagements, weddings, anniversaries, or showers.

Shower forms are available at The Brand, as are engagement and wedding forms. This information will not be taken by phone.

St. Thomas women meet

The Women of St. Thomas Episcopal Church held their first meeting of the fall season Saturday. A devotional was given by President Jerre Clarke who read from "Day By Day" publication.

Treasurer's report was given by Vera Threewit. A letter from St. Jude's Ranch in Boulder, Nev. was read. A yearly donation to this charity is made which furnishes a home for abused children. A United Thank offering will be held Oct. 8. The Women's Annual Conference will meet in Amarillo Sept. 15-17. There will be a Women's Spirituality Retreat in Amarillo Oct. 6-8, subject will be "Jesus the stranger and Jesus the friend."

Next meeting will be held Oct. 14 at the church.

Public invited to view film

The public is invited to view the film, "The Strong-Willed Child" by Dr. James Dobson, at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Antonian Room of St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

There is no charge. The church is beginning a monthly showing of films from Dr. Dobson's "Focus on the Family" series. They will be shown in the Antonian Room. Dates will be announced later.

Here's the answer

Q. - Just had a wooden deck put in. Can I apply stain at once?
 A. - Yes, but for best results you should let the exposed wood weather a bit. Allow 4 to 5 weeks for regular wood, 8 to 12 weeks for pressure-treated lumber. Weathering allows the pores to open so the stain can penetrate deep.

Q. - Our old coffee table has never been finished. I want to apply lacquer to the top - the kind that comes in a spray can. Since coffee and other hot beverages will be used on the table, will the lacquer withstand the heat?
 A. - Yes, but only to a degree. The best way to keep the top from getting, damaged is to put some kind of coaster under a container of beverage whether it be hot or cold.

full sized dining room is shown centrally, this dining room adequately sized for a large number of guests. The kitchen is shown with an adjoining breakfast room, direct sun deck access, island surface unit and exceptional cabinet and pantry space. The full sized laundry room is centrally located on the first floor, as well as half bath for daytime and guest usage.

The luxury master bedroom suite is convenient to the compartmented master bath. This bath includes separate vanities, closets, shower stall, tub area and commode area.

There are two full bedrooms upstairs, suitable for guest and/or older children. A compartment bath services both bedrooms but a private vanity area is shown for each bedroom.

The stucco exterior finish is enhanced by the gable roof design, arched window, bay window and corner quoins for extra trim.

This is a computer generated plan.

The plan is Number 2257. It includes 2,291 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write to W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Don't rush house buying

By READER'S DIGEST
For AP Newsfeatures

Buying a house is probably the most expensive purchase you'll ever make, so don't rush into it.

There are many things to consider and the whole procedure can be stressful. In the process, it's easy to overlook the obvious. Here are some tips to keep in mind when looking for a house.

What to Consider

- Check local newspapers to get an idea of what is available. Visit brokers; they can tell you which homes are on the market and provide up-to-date information about local mortgage lending activity. But keep in mind brokers are paid by the sellers and have their interests in mind first. For example, a broker might downplay a house's faults.

- Shop for your house in a stable or improving neighborhood. Make certain you feel comfortable with the people, prices, and lifestyle of the area. Establish that it is free of industrial odors, flooding, noisy traffic and other annoyances. Be wary if many neighborhood houses are for sale or rent. In a new development, find out if the sidewalks, sewers and street lights have been paid for or will be assessed later. Ask owners about the builder's willingness to fix problems.

- Don't buy a house that is bigger or more expensive than those around it; resale could be difficult. It may be better to buy a slightly rundown house in a higher-price area and fix it up.

When You Find A House

- Check the asking price of a house against the prices of similar houses in the same area. Consider getting an appraisal to guide you in making an offer.

- Have an engineer inspect the house to determine its soundness and the adequacy of its heating, plumbing, wiring and insulation. Get a written report and an estimate of what it will cost to correct problems. The seller might reduce the asking price or offer to share expenses.

In addition:
- Check water pressure and the fit of doors and windows.
- Make sure the gutter down spouts lead water away from the house.

- Look in the basement after a rain for signs of water seepage.
- Find out what is under the carpeting.

- Unless the home owner can present recent certification that the house is free of termites and other pests, have a professional check it.

Besides a house's price and physical condition, you should also consider how close it is to public transportation, shopping, recreation centers, schools, churches, hospitals and fire and police departments. Even if you do not need all these facilities their availability may affect the value of the house. Also, find out about zoning restrictions, tax rates and the most recent

The Process of Buying

Whether or not you use a broker, hire a lawyer or an escrow company experienced in real estate in your area. For a fee of no more than 1 percent of the price of the house, a lawyer or escrow company will draw up the purchase agreement, arrange for a title search, execute the closing and record the deed of sale.

Don't sign a "binder" to purchase the house without advice from your lawyer. The "earnest money" you put up secures your right to purchase the real estate at the agreed-upon terms for a limited amount of time. Be sure the agreement says your money will be returned to you if the deal does not go through.

The contract for sale, which usually entails a down payment, is drawn up by the seller's lawyer but should be reviewed by your lawyer. The contract should be made conditional on your being able to obtain mortgage financing.

What's new on the market?

--- THE PRODUCT - A transparent tape for tough projects.

Manufacturer's claim - That this tape is durable, water resistant and virtually invisible ... that it easily conforms to almost any surface ... that it can be used for mending torn pages and sealing envelopes ... that it will handle vinyl and plastic jobs outside the house, such as a child's pool or beach balls ... that it is good for book spines and board games ... that it will come in handy when moving, especially for sealing boxes ... that its uses include weathersealing window cracks, gaps and other openings ... and that it is available in a new dispenser which cuts the tape when the cover is closed with a downward motion.

--- THE PRODUCT - A steam wallpaper stripper.

Manufacturer's claim - That it is faster and easier than the wet-and-scrape method and far less costly than renting a steamer for every project ... that it uses directed-steam to loosen wallpaper adhesive ... that the steamer is held against the wallpaper for 10 to 15 seconds to loosen the adhesive ... that the product is lightweight and easy to control ... that a special design allows the operator to work in any position, from narrow spots in the bathroom or kitchen to ceilings and other out-of-the-way places ... and that it has a durable, easy-to-clean plastic housing.

--- THE PRODUCT - A primer coating to control bleeding from certain woods.

Manufacturer's claim - That this product is fortified with polyurethane to prevent the passage of wood stains into the final coat ...

that it will not mask the texture of the wood's natural grain ... that it is highly resistant to blistering and peeling ... that it contains a special fungicide to make the dry film resistant to mildew ... that it is environmentally safe and conforms to all government specifications ... and that it is also recommended as the first coat under all custom colors using light and medium light bases.

--- THE PRODUCT - A tape measure with a digital display and memory.

Manufacturer's claim - That, even if you are on a ladder, precise measurements can be saved, with the product's digital memory storing them until they can be written down ... that the 16-foot tape, besides the digital conveniences, has all standard features including a 3/4-inch metal blade, 16-inch markings, an automatic lock and a power retract ... that it is made of durable plastic ... and that it operates for up to a year on two standard triple-A batteries.

--- THE PRODUCT - A water filter that requires no installation.

Manufacturer's claim - That it can be mounted on a cabinet, countertop or wall ... that it removes lead and other contaminants from drinking water ... that it requires no electricity to use ... that it has clean simple lines that blend with any kitchen or bath decor ... that the conventional aerator is replaced with a special diverter-aerator ... that tubes from the aerator carry the water to and from a pre-filter for maximum filtration of rust and sediment in the water ... and that the water goes through two other filters that reduce organic chemicals, lead and other heavy metals.

--- (The tape is manufactured by the 3M Stationery Division, 3M Center, St. Paul, MN 55144; the wallpaper stripper by Black and Decker, U.S. Power Tools Group, Box 798 Hunt Valley, MD 21030; the primer coating by United Gilsonite Laboratories, P.O. Box 70, Scranton, PA 18501; the digital tape measure by Homestar International, 4473 Willow Road, Pleasanton, CA 94566; and the water filter by Omniliter Corp., 2500 165th St., Hammond, IN 46320.)

EARTHQUAKE RESEARCH

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) - The National Center for Earthquake Engineering Research here was established in 1986 at the State University of New York at Buffalo.

It's the first such national center sponsored by the National Science Foundation and involves more than 80 researchers at institutions throughout the U.S. and the world.

Funded by a five-year, $25-million grant, the center is part of the National Earthquake Hazards Reduction Program established by Congress in 1977.

Shop For Roofing Contractor

A contractor is the person who turns your remodeling plans into reality. Choose a good one and the results should be satisfactory. Choose a bad one and you may be left with little more than a sad memory.

If you look in the "Yellow Pages" under "Contractors General," you may face pages full of names from which to choose without the slightest indication of who's any better than another. It's better to start with specialists.

Suppose you're looking for someone to reroof your home, for example. The Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association suggests you start by phoning the National Roofing Contractors Association at 1-800-USA-ROOF for a list of member contractors. Or contact your local roofer's association for recommendations or your local Better Business Bureau. You might also ask neighbors or friends for the name of the roofer if they've recently had their homes reroofed and are satisfied with the results.

Make sure all contenders have established places of business and that they have liability insurance. It's also a good idea to obtain more than one written estimate for comparison, but don't base your decision on price alone. Make sure all candidates are bidding on the same materials, plans and quality of workmanship.

Before signing the contract, be sure it specifies the work to be done, materials to be used, completion dates, warranties and guarantees of the contractor and manufacturer, removal of waste, final price and the method of payment.

Financing. Down Payments. Price negotiations. Inspections. All obstacles that could block you from buying a home. But one move could get you right through that red tape. A call to an experienced real estate agent. An expert agent can coach you smoothly through the entire home buying process. From using the sophisticated multiple listing service to find the home that fits your needs and your budget. To tackling financing options. Setting up and monitoring inspections. Negotiating price. And even maneuvering you through closing. So when you need a skilled teammate, get someone who really knows the housing field--a real estate agent. Read The Hereford Brand for more information about qualified agents. Every day, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And on Sundays the housing section examines the latest market trends and home buying opportunities. Getting the right coaching now could mean the difference between confusion and closing.

HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

Not a lot of really good new movies are being released this week for the big screen - but have heart. After finishing the biggest grossing summer in their history, over $2 billion, Hollywood is gearing up for a blockbuster fall and a Christmas season that will knock our socks off. So, this momentary pause gives us a chance to take a longer look at the video rental market. Perhaps a look at the currently popular video movies, what's coming up, and a recap of some of the better videos previously reviewed here will help guide you.

1989 TOP VIDEO RENTALS

This columnist's favorite (video rental) movie? Casablanca. (I can lip-sync the dialogue). Would I ever see the colorized version? Never.

propaganda piece has taken on the aura of a myth. The film is full of superb performances by everyone - stars, supporting cast and minor characters. Everything is right in the WW2 story of war-torn Casablanca with elusive nightclub owner Rick (Bogart) finding old flame (Bergman) and her husband, underground leader Henreid, among the skeletons in his closet. Rains is absolutely marvelous as the dapper Police Chief, and nobody sings As Time Goes By like Dooley Wilson.

The film garnered three Oscars including Best Picture, Best Director (Michael Curtiz) and Best Screenplay (Julius & Philip Epstein and Howard Koch). Rated G.

ONE MILLION BOXES

Finally, don't overlook... "THE BIG EASY": (1987) Starring Dennis Quaid and Ellen Barkin. Everything is easy in the Big Easy (a.k.a. New Orleans) for slick and only slightly sleazy Police Lieutenant Remy McSwain (Quaid). That is, until Anne Osbourne (Barkin), an upright and uptight Assistant District Attorney, comes along.

The Big Easy is a wild, southern-style variation on the old-fashioned cop films of the Thirties and Forties. Rated PG-13. Profanity. Nudity. Sex. Violence. Three Boxes

★ JOBS ★ U.S. POSTAL SERVICE

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT...AMARILLO, HEREFORD, AND ALL AREA POST OFFICES HAVE JUST RECEIVED AUTHORIZATION TO ACCEPT APPLI-CATIONS FOR THE CLERK-CARRIER EXAM IN OCTOBER.

A recent issue of Newsweek magazine noted that the average Postal worker earns $27,000 in salary and benefits. Men and women, regardless of age or experience are eligible to apply. Courses to help you prepare for the above exams will be offered by Postal Exam Workshops. Instructors Doug Alencastro and Bill Harold are considered by many to be the most qualified on how to gain employment with the Postal Service. These exams do not test general knowledge. Proper preparation is the key to getting hired, because people are hired for these positions based on their exam scores. The easy-to-learn techniques taught in these courses were designed by Mr. Harold, who is a former Postal employee, the author of three postal exam guides, and has repeatedly scored 100% on Postal tests.

3 HOUR WORKSHOP: SCORE 95-100%

GUARANTEE: The time-saving and accuracy-increasing methods taught in this course are so powerful that we will enter into a written agreement.
*You will score 95% or higher or your money will be refunded.
*If you do not receive a job application/interview within 90 days of your score, your money will be refunded.

WORKSHOP TUITION is $35 and includes the guaranteed workshop, workbook, interview hints, study guide with 33 complete take-home exams, follow-up consultation privileges with free information phone number, home study program kit, personal notification of future application dates, and more...WANT TO RELOCATE? Use after the Postal Alert Bulletin giving you postal exam dates nationwide. You are invited to bring your tape recorder to record the workshop for personal review.
