Special session set July 8

A quick look at today's news

Local Stuff

AUSTIN (AP) - Lawmakers were barely out of town before Gov. Ann Richards announced she wants them back at work starting July 8.

The governor said Tuesday that she plans to convene a special session that date to consider government reorganization, write a budget and find ways to pay for it.

Richards said she will order lawmakers to consider spending cuts and agency consolidations before deciding how much to spend on state government for 1992-93 and what new taxes, if any, will be needed.

"It is necessary to make those cuts. It is necessary to pull together this loose ship and make sure that we are wringing every dollar we can out of it," Richards said.

"Then we will open the (agenda) to appropriations, the budget in general," she said. "We may hold back on revenue and taxation until after that (spending) decision is made."

Richards hasn't yet issued the special session proclamation but said it would convene July 8 "unless something happens that I can't foresee now." She made the announcement only 16 hours after the 140-day regular legislative session ended.

The current state budget expires on Aug. 31. Legislative budget experts have forecast a deficit of nearly $5 billion over the next two years if all services were continued at their current levels.

Lawmakers and Richards postponed writing the 1992-93 spending plan to wait on performance audits of all state agency spending and recommendations from a tax study committee headed by former Gov. John Connally.

In addition, the Legislature approved legislation that would "sunset" - or eliminate - all agencies on Dec. 31, 1991.

The government won't actually be shut down by that bill, but the governor said it does give lawmakers an unprecedented opportunity to re-evaluate the need for each of the more than 200 agencies and their programs.

"Something I feel very strongly about ... is a tighter, better organized government," Richards said.

"We have passed legislation that says we're going to reorganize the whole thing and have the authority (to do so) before December. And that is very exciting. I believe that's going to come about," she said.

Once the government reorganization is finished, Richards said, the regular budget work can proceed.

The governor and legislative leaders hailed the accomplishments of their 1991 lawmaking session.

Richards, a former school teacher, gave lawmakers "an A-plus" - and high marks for herself, too.

"All in all for me, it has been a fantastic session," she said. "And I think it's been a good one for the people of Texas."

Both Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Gib Lewis praised the insurance, anti-crime, education and environmental bills that won passage before time ran out on the session Monday.

The three leaders also touted the ethics reform bill, although details remained a bit fuzzy Tuesday about the measure that won passage only five minutes before the session ended at midnight.

"I take a lot of heart in having passed what is really progressive ethics legislation, that we have passed a real beginning on quality education," Richards said.

Republican Party officials weren't as enthusiastic, saying the governor and Democratic-controlled Legislature deserved a report card full of incompletes and failures.

"Gov. Ann Richards supported a statewide property tax, refused to rule out a Texas income tax, lost her push for a lottery, was totally absent on the issue of school finance and had to resort to last-minute threats to win approval of a watered-down ethics bill," said GOP Chairman Fred Meyer.

Prosecution of Col. North impossible

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court's decision to let stand a key lower court ruling in the Iran-Contra case of Oliver L. North puts the former White House aide's three convictions in severe jeopardy, legal experts say.

Prosecutors now face the extremely difficult - perhaps impossible - task of proving that testimony North was compelled to give Congress didn't seep into his criminal trial in federal court, these experts say.

In 1987, North spent a week in televised hearings telling Congress about his efforts to trade arms with Iran for American hostages and use the weapons-sale profits to help the Nicaraguan Contras.

On Tuesday, the Supreme Court let stand an appellate panel's order that the trial judge in North's criminal case must review the testimony to determine if witnesses were influenced by what North told Congress under a limited grant of immunity.

The immunity grant barred prosecutors from using North's testimony as evidence against him.

Blacks protest in Amarillo

AMARILLO (AP) - Black citizens picketed outside the Amarillo Police Department in protest over the fatal shooting of a black man by a white police officer.

Up to 20 demonstrators gathered Tuesday to protest the May 4 shooting death of Foubert Lawrence "Sloan" Harris by police officer Bruce Anderson.

Protester Joe Jiles said Harris could have been the victim of police brutality.

"My concern is that the policeman did not have to shoot the man three times," Jiles said. "The police are not doing the black community right, and we have a long way to go to bring equality and justice. I know there's a lot of prejudice by the police against the black community."

He said the demonstrations would continue until justice is served.

But Police Chief Jerry Neal said racism was not a factor in the shooting.

"What we're seeing is a spillover from the Los Angeles police brutality incident where a handful of officers beat up a black man," Neal said. "I don't think it's fair to stereotype all police, all officers as being like them."

Neal said the Potter-Randall Special Crimes Unit found Harris was intoxicated, resisted arrest and tried to choke Anderson on the night that he was killed during a scuffle. Harris was shot three times, records showed.

Potter County grand jurors reviewed the shooting and declined to indict Anderson.

Another protester, Jo Stein, said she thought police covered up the incident and harassed the victim's family members.

"We picketed the Paramount and Esquire theaters in the '60s and we're back 30 years later picketing for equality," Ms. Stein said.

Neal said police never harassed members of the Harris family. He explained that on one occasion a couple of Special Crimes sergeants went to a residence to issue a subpoena before the grand jury hearing.

"On another occasion, an officer talked to the victim's family and explained to them that I was willing to meet with them," Neal said. "Members told the officer that they didn't feel ready to talk at that time, but they would at a later date."

Bush unveils arms control plan

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) - Two months after vanquishing Iraq in the Gulf War, President Bush is unveiling a long-awaited plan to rid the Middle East of weapons of mass destruction.

Bush, after five days of rest and relaxation at his oceanfront home in Maine, was flying to Colorado Springs, Colo., today to talk defense strategy and arms control in a commencement address at the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Bush will use the service academy as a backdrop for "a new initiative for combating the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, beginning in the Middle East," White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Tuesday.

Bush also will discuss his concept of a new world order and the lessons learned in the Gulf War for the nation's military arsenal, especially the Air Force of the future.

The president, who waxed optimistic Tuesday about the chances for a summit with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, will also talk about the changes in East-West relations, the defense cuts "looming on the horizon and what those mean for refocusing our defense strategy, particularly strategic defense," Fitzwater said.

Administration sources have said his new arms control initiative will include bold moves to curb nuclear, chemical and biological weapons, but only limited efforts to curb the traffic in conventional weapons like those used in the Gulf War.

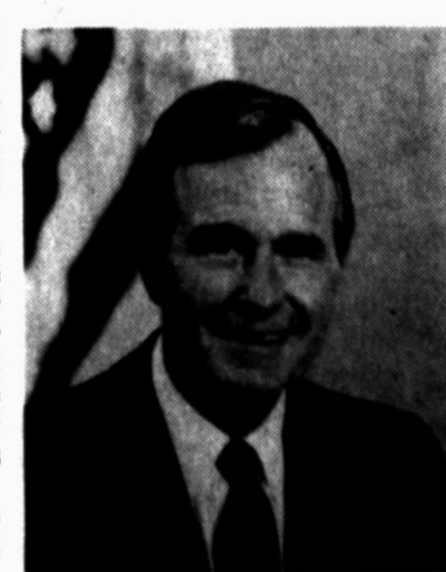

The sources, who spoke only on condition of anonymity, said the initiative includes a ban on further production of weapons-grade nuclear material in the Middle East, with the aim of creating a nuclear-free zone in the region. Israel is widely believed to possess nuclear weapons but does not admit it.

Israel has called for a nuclear-free zone in the region if the Arabs sign a peace treaty with the Jewish state.

The Bush plan also would ban ballistic missiles with ranges in excess of 90 miles, with a halt to further testing and deployment as the first step, the sources said.

It will call upon the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council to devise a blueprint for curbing tanks, planes, missiles, rockets and other conventional weapons.

The Security Council's Big Five - the United States, China, the Soviet Union, Britain and France - are the world's leading sellers of conventional weaponry.

President's plan will rid Middle East of "weapons of destruction." Bush will also discuss his "new world order" in AFA speech.

Bush on Monday slapped restrictions on computer and satellite exports to China because of its role as arms merchant to the Third World.

Bush earlier this month, in a policy switch, offered to destroy the U.S. stockpile of chemical weapons within 10 years if the international community agrees to the Chemical Weapons Convention now being negotiated in Geneva.

Bush also will seek to strengthen the 16-year-old Biological Weapons Convention at an international review conference that opens in September.

Bush told reporters Tuesday that he called Gorbachev a day earlier to assure the Soviet leader "we weren't playing games" on arms control.

"I want to go to Moscow," Bush said.

The two superpowers are still disputing details of the treaty to reduce troops and tanks in Europe that 22 nations signed in November.

Bush said their differences on conventional arms were "very narrow" and they were not far apart on a pact to curb long-range nuclear weapons either.

Dallas, Houston linked by bullet train

AUSTIN (AP) - A French-backed consortium was given a clear track to construct the nation's first "bullet" train, derailing a German-backed competitor's bid for the 200-mph system.

The nine-member Texas High Speed Rail Authority voted unanimously Tuesday to grant Texas TGV a 50-year franchise for the $5.5 billion line, which would link Dallas and Houston before the end of the decade.

The decision was an endorsement of the May 10 recommendation of hearing examiner Larry Montgomery that the franchise be awarded the Texas TGV rather than Texas FasTrac Inc.

The German-led consortium promised an appeal of the authority's decision.

The proposed rail system would link Dallas, Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport by mid-1998, adding Austin and San Antonio in 1999. The rail authority stipulated Tuesday that service also will be required for Waco, in addition to Barnes, Texas TGV is comprised of Paris-based GEC Alsthom, which developed the TGV; Bombardier Inc. of Montreal, which holds the North American licensing rights; Idaho-based engineering and construction company Morrison Knudsen Corp.; and Fort Worth businessman Brad Corbett.

Bombardier Inc. also is involved in a monorail system planned for Bryan-College Station and Fort Worth when economically feasible.

Texas TGV pledged to construct the rail line with private funds. The consortium's representatives said Tuesday the system would create jobs, revitalize downtown areas, increase tourism and reduce highway congestion.

"It's all-weather, energy efficient, environmentally clean transportation," said Charles Wyly, rail authority chairman. "It's going to be a terrific benefit to all the folks here in Texas."

The train system will "ignite the Texas economy" by creating a new industrial base and pump more than $4 billion into the economy during construction, said former Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, one of the investors in Texas TGV.

In addition to Barnes, Texas TGV is comprised of Paris-based GEC Alsthom, which developed the TGV; Bombardier Inc. of Montreal, which holds the North American licensing rights; Idaho-based engineering and construction company Morrison Knudsen Corp.; and Fort Worth businessman Brad Corbett.

Bombardier Inc. also is involved in a monorail system planned for Bryan-College Station and Fort Worth when economically feasible.

"We will have in Texas by 1998-1999 ... 21st century technology, where the best trains, most cost-efficient, most rapid, will be in place here just like it is in Europe," said William Agee, chairman and chief executive officer of Morrison Knudsen.

Wyly said Texas TGV's financing and promise of quicker service made the difference. FasTrac had promised to add the San Antonio-Dallas leg only by 2008.

"Essentially, it came down to what appeared to be a more aggressive financing plan with the use of substantial amounts of equity, and earlier and also perhaps a superior service plan," Wyly said.

But at Tuesday's hearing, FasTrac faulted the hearing examiner's conclusions and questioned the TGV financing plan. FasTrac's construction proposal was $800 million higher than TGV's.

"FasTrac was penalized for being conservative, when it should have been praised. This is not logical, it's not fair and it will lead Texas ultimately to great disappointment," said Sey Zimmerman, an attorney representing the German group.

Zimmerman also lauded FasTrac's technology and the strength of its shareholders, which include Brown & Root U.S.A. Inc., H.B. Zachry Co., HCB Contractors and Siemens AG.

"To grant the franchise to TGV is like granting it to a giant question mark. You have no idea who you'll be dealing with," he said.

FasTrac proposed using the German ICE - Intercity Express - trains on its line. TGV would utilize French trains, which currently are operating in that country.

Both groups paid $500,000 fees to bid for the project. Together, they have spent more than $14 million on ridership analyses, environmental impact studies and preliminary engineering plans.

Dallas-based Southwest Airlines fought the concept of the high-speed train, claiming that taxpayers ultimately would have to subsidize the line. The airline contended that high speed trains are unneeded, slower than air travel and would pose unfair competition.

Texas law forbids spending state dollars on the project.

Both systems proposed using tax-exempt federal bonds and changes in state law to create an agency to oversee the issuance of those bonds. Wall Street analysts have said that the bond issue required to underwrite the cost of the rail project would be the largest public bond issue in financial history.

"I don't think that this is going to be economically feasible. Ten years from now, I think we'll look back and we'll see that it doesn't work," said C. Robert Heath, attorney for Southwest.

Heath said Southwest would decide whether to appeal the board's decision. The airline also has a pending lawsuit that challenges the composition of the rail board and its proceedings.

Williams' boards key Blazers past Lakers

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Buck Williams is rebounding, James Worthy is limping and the Portland Trail Blazers are still alive in the Western Conference finals.

Williams set the tone for a dominating Portland performance on the boards Tuesday night as the Blazers beat Los Angeles 95-84 to force a Game 6 on Thursday.

"Buck was really intense before the game. He was very quiet, and that's very unusual for Buck," Clyde Drexler said. "So I knew he was going to come out like a maniac."

Williams grabbed 16 rebounds as the Blazers commanded the boards 52-33, including a Portland playoff record 26 offensive rebounds. The Lakers had just nine offensive boards.

Seven of Williams' rebounds came in the third quarter, when the Blazers outscored the Lakers 28-18 to take control of the game.

"Buck was awesome. He was unbelievable," Portland coach Rick Adelman said. "He was everywhere."

The Blazers still trail the best-of-7 series 3-2 and the Lakers can earn their eighth trip to the NBA Finals in the last decade with a victory Thursday in the Forum, where they blew out Portland twice last weekend.

The Trail Blazers had the best road record in the league in the regular season, but they're 1-5 away from home in the playoffs. So will they be able to continue the intensity they displayed Tuesday night in the hostile environment of the Forum?

"A lot of things have been said about this team's mental toughness," Williams said. "The true test is going to be in Game 6."

The Lakers will have to win Thursday without a healthy Worthy, who sprained his left ankle in the first quarter. He tried to play but finally sat down for good with 9:34 to play and finished with 12 points.

"We tried to see if he could go,"

Lakers coach Mike Dunleavy said. "But it was clear he couldn't, so we just tried to get him out of there and hopefully ready for Game 6."

Worthy said he plans to play Thursday, but team physician Stephen Lombardo said the severity of the injury wouldn't be known for 24 hours.

Magic Johnson, who scored 29 points but was only 3-for-14 from the field after making his first five shots, didn't know how much Worthy's injury affected Tuesday's outcome.

"It's a factor offensively for us," Johnson said. "But what they were doing to us on the boards, he couldn't have helped us there. They played volleyball with it most of the time."

Jerome Kersey had 20 points and 9 rebounds. Drexler added 19 points and Terry Porter 17, nine in the third quarter. Williams and Cliff Robinson scored 13 apiece.

In the first half, the Lakers seemed in good shape to win the game and advance to a Finals showdown against the Chicago Bulls. They led by as many as eight points and still were on top 50-47 at halftime.

"Everything was good," Johnson said. "It just fell apart."

The Blazers caught up in an intense third quarter, when there were five ties and three lead changes before Portland took control for good with an 11-4 run to end the quarter.

Five different players scored during the decisive burst.

The Blazers led by seven at the start of the final period and Los Angeles didn't get closer than five the rest of the game.

Adelman went with a switching defense for the first time in the series, changing the matchups several times. Sometimes Kersey guarded Vlade Divac. Williams, an all-NBA defensive team selection the last two years, often was against Worthy. Kevin Duckworth guarded Sam Perkins.

The way the Lakers had been playing, the Blazers had to do something, Adelman said.

The Lakers committed 17 turnovers. Portland outscored Los Angeles 24-15 in points off turnovers and 34-18 in second-chance points.

Bad Boys don't grow up

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

Not all bad boys grow up to be bad men, if only because some bad boys never grow up at all.

In case you missed it, the two-time defending NBA champion Detroit Pistons bowed out of the playoffs Sunday with a performance so petulant it almost had to be seen to be believed. If you missed it, consider yourself one of the lucky ones.

In the morning newspaper, there is a photo of the Detroit's Mark Aguirre walking off the floor near the end of the game alongside Bill Laimbeer and Isiah Thomas, with an arm draped over the shoulder of each. At the top of the frame, Dennis Rodman can be seen standing in front of the bench, applauding.

If all you glimpsed was that picture and the final score, you would think Detroit's little dynasty came to a graceful end. But the picture remains poignant only so long as you don't read the copy below it.

All throughout the Eastern Conference final, the Pistons pushed, shoved, punched, elbowed, tripped and taunted the Bulls. They collected 30 personal fouls, one of them flagrant enough to merit further review by league officials.

"We knew they would come out and do anything to get a win," said

Chicago's Scottie Pippen, who required stitches to close a gash in his chin after being the victim of that flagrant foul. "Whether that meant taking somebody down or somebody out."

But even that wasn't enough. The Pistons also cursed the heavens, bitched and moaned at the officials (good for four technicals), wailed and whimpered and whined to one another. And then, nearly to a man, even before the final buzzer had formally sealed their fate, they filed past the Chicago bench without so much as a goodbye and good luck.

There were a few notable exceptions. Detroit Coach Chuck Daly was diplomatic in his post-game comments and John Salley made a point to seek out Michael Jordan to offer congratulations. Joe Dumars yelled the same as he trotted off the floor, and James Edwards and Tree Rollins wished a few friends on the Chicago side well.

But, noted Bulls coach Phil Jackson, "That's about all. I wasn't surprised."

Very cold stuff. Not simply what the Pistons did, but the fact that the Bulls didn't expect anything else.

Because there was a time when graciousness in defeat or a finely developed sense of fairness revealed on the playing field was considered a sign of both character AND strength.

In the 1896 Games, a French cyclist named Leon Flameng stopped and waited while the bike of his opponent was repaired before resuming the race. In 1912, after decathlon and pentathlon winner Jim Thorpe was stripped of his medals for having earned $25 a week playing minor league baseball several years earlier, the runners-up in both events refused to accept the gold medals. In 1964, eight-time world champion Eugenio Monti of Italy removed an axle bolt from his own two-man sled and gave it to a British pair that went on to win the event.

It is not entirely coincidental that the most memorable of these displays are drawn from Olympic lore, nor that they are drawn from decades long since past.

But the point is not to celebrate amateur sports or some bygone era, because there are enough examples of cheating back then and of exemplary behavior now, even among the ranks of the professionals. The point is that what once earned an athlete the label "sportsman" would earn him the label "chump" today.

High seeds surviving at 1991 French Open

PARIS (AP) - A year ago, the top men's seeds barely had time to unpack before they were bundled out of the French Open. This year, Stefan Edberg and Boris Becker look like they plan to be around a while.

Top-seeded Edberg and No. 2 seed Becker displayed peak form Tuesday in qualifying for the second round. Neither got that far in 1990.

Becker, who crushed first-round rival Jordi Arrese of Spain 6-2, 7-5, 6-2 after four weeks away from tournament play, was scheduled to be back in action against Australian Todd Woodbridge in one of today's feature matches.

Edberg, who has a day off, routed Belgium's Bart Wuyts 6-2, 6-2, 6-3. Like Becker, he suggested that conditions at Roland Garros stadium's clay courts are better suited this year for their type of power game.

"The balls are quicker. ... The courts are very, very hard, almost like hard courts," Edberg said. "It is good conditions for us who hit the ball hard. I like it."

The big guns in the women's field also served notice they're on track for second-week showdowns. Top seed and defending champion Monica Seles, along with No. 3 seed Gabriela Sabatini, won easily Tuesday, following No. 2 seed Steffi Graf into the second round.

Sabatini and Graf each could dethrone Seles as the No. 1 women's player by winning the French Open.

All but one of the 16 seeded women survived the first round. The victim was No. 8 Zina Garrison, never comfortable on clay, and the victor was a Japanese teen-ager, Naoko Sawamatsu, who turned pro only two months ago.

Seles has lost to both Graf and Sabatini this year, but she brimmed with confidence Tuesday.

"I always play my best tennis here," she said. "I love everything about it."

Seles and Sabatini have today off. Graf was to face Petra Langrova of Czechoslovakia and fourth-seeded Mary Joe Fernandez was matched against Germany's Sabine Hack.

On the men's schedule, Becker was to share the spotlight with two generations of Americans. Fourth-seeded Andre Agassi faced Czechoslovak Petr Korda, while 38-year-old Jimmy Connors had a center court encounter with Haiti's Ronald Agouin.

Only 11 men's seeds remain. Ivan Lendl and Jonas Svensson withdrew before play began, and seeds 15 and 16 - John McEnroe and Brad Gilbert

- lost on Monday. An ankle injury forced No. 14 Karel Novacek to retire in the third set of his match Tuesday against Magnus Gustafsson.

One seed with little past success on clay needed heroics to advance. U.S. Open champion Pete Sampras dropped the first two sets to powerful clay-court specialist Thomas Muster, then came back to win 4-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4. It was the first time Sampras had won a match after dropping the opening two sets, and he did so by overcoming a 4-1 deficit in the last set.

Goran Ivanisevic of Yugoslavia, the No. 8 seed who upset Becker here a year ago, defeated France's Frederic Fontang, but was fined $1,000 for spitting in his rival's direction.

Well-known unseeded players reaching the second round include former titleholder Mats Wilander, a straight-sets winner Tuesday, and former Wimbledon champion Pat Cash.

Edberg and Becker are familiar figures on the slick grass courts of Wimbledon, having met in the finals the last three years. Neither has won the French Open, and Becker has never won any clay-court title.

Volleyball camp set for July

Applications are now being accepted for the annual Lady Whiteface Summer Volleyball Camp to be held July 15-19 at the Hereford Junior High School gymnasium.

The camp will include mass drills; passing, setting, serving, hitting and digging skill development, and offensive and defensive concepts adjusted to each camper's skill level. There will also be team play, tournaments, and a grass tournament which is new to this year's camp.

The fee for the camp is $50 per camper, with the cost also paying for a t-shirt and individual awards. A deposit of $10 per camper must be made by July 1 (checks should be made payable to the Hereford ISD Volleyball Camp), and registration forms are available from Head Coach Brenda Reeh at 364-4648 (junior high) or Assistant Coach Jill Harrison at 364-0617 (high school).

The camp is sponsored by the HISD Community Education Programs.

Twins' Erickson stops Rangers' bats

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer
Texas Rangers manager Bobby Valentine just wants his team to play well, so he isn't bothered a bit now that the club record 14-game winning streak will be discussed in the past tense.

"It's not like we were going to win all the rest of them," Valentine said after the Minnesota Twins beat the Rangers 3-0 Tuesday night.

The hype that had whipped crowds into a frenzy at Arlington Stadium also will die down. Valentine doesn't think that's such a bad thing.

"It's a 162-game season and that was just a fanfare stretch," he said.

But by winning the most games consecutively since Oakland in 1988, the Rangers proved a few things to themselves, if not the rest of the baseball world.

"Now it's over," Ruben Sierra said. "What this shows is that we are capable of doing it but knew we couldn't win them all. Erickson pitched a great game."

Scott Erickson quieted baseball's hottest bats in doing it, pitching eight innings and giving up only seven singles.

Texas entered the game with the major league's top hitting percentage of .294 and the best slugging percentage at .447. The Rangers also had the best on-base percentage of .365.

The Rangers, who had no less than five runs and nine hits in any game during the streak, were trying to become the first team since the 1960 New York Yankees to win 15 in a row.

Erickson (7-2) worked out of trouble in the first, fourth, fifth and seventh innings and didn't allow an extra-base hit among seven. He struck out seven and walked three over eight innings for a career-high seventh straight victory.

Dan Gladden homered off Jose Guzman (0-1) and Kirby Puckett had two RBIs.

Red Sox 6, Yankees 2

Boston's Roger Clemens broke out of a personal slump by giving up one run and three hits in eight innings for his first victory since May 8.

Clemens struck out eight and walked one, allowing only Steve Sax's RBI double in the third inning.

In his previous three starts, Clemens had given up 23 hits and 15 earned runs in 20 innings.

Luis Rivera drove in three runs and scored twice to help Clemens (7-2). Orioles 5, Indians 2

Baltimore finally got manager Johnny Oates his first victory, beating Cleveland at Memorial Stadium to end a five-game losing streak.

Randy Milligan and Tim Lulett homered for the Orioles, who came into the game having lost 10 of 12 before beating Charles Nagy (1-5).

Roy Smith (1-0) allowed two runs and six hits in 6 2-3 innings.

Brewers 15, Tigers 2

Milwaukee had a season-high five homers among its 15 hits and Dale Sveum had five RBIs.

Sveum had a three-run homer and two RBI singles, Dante Bichette a pair of two-run homers, Gary Sheffield a three-run shot and Paul Molitor a solo homer.

Robin Yount collected his 2,800th hit as the Brewers backed Don August (4-2).

Athletics 8, Blue Jays 4
Jose Canseco hit a three-run homer and Oakland got a career-high four RBIs from Mike Gallego.

Gallego had a two-run homer and a two-run single to back Mike Moore (7-2). He allowed three runs on four hits in six innings, striking out three and walking four.

White Sox 6, Angels 5

Tim Raines had a two-run homer, and his two-out RBI single drove in the winning run in the ninth inning.

Raines' single came after Ozzie Guillen doubled to drive in pinch-hitter Dan Pasqua to tie the game. The hits came off Bryan Harvey (1-1), giving Don Fall (1-0) the victory.

Royals 6, Mariners 5
Kansas City continued its hot play

under new manager Hal McRae, winning its fourth straight.

Tom Gordon (4-2) beat the Mariners for the second time in less than a week. Mike MacFarlane put Kansas City - 4-1 since McRae replaced John Wathan - ahead to stay by hitting his fourth home run to start the second inning. Gordon (4-2) gave up a fifth-inning home run to Ken Griffey Jr.

Ryan to return tonight

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Nolan Ryan's return to the mound will be greeted with more than the usual fanfare, since the Texas Rangers' pitching staff has been hobbled by injury.

With starting pitchers Bobby Witt and Scott Chiamparino on the disabled list, Ryan's return tonight at Arlington Stadium is a bright spot in an otherwise bleak pitching situation.

The 44-year-old spent 15 days on the disabled list because of problems with his right shoulder that arose following his record seventh no-hitter May 1 against the Toronto Blue Jays.

As Ryan came off the DL, Witt took his place on the disabled list because of a suspected torn rotator cuff injury. The Rangers said Tuesday they expect Witt, the team's winningest pitcher last year, will be out at least a month.

Doctors planned to examine Witt today and conduct more tests on his right shoulder.

"I've pitched with pain before, but not like this," Witt said. "I know something's not right. The shoulder, the front side and the back side, was the worst it has ever felt a day after pitching."

Witt, who was 3-3 this season with an earned run average of 4.25, had a 17-10 record last year with a 3.36 ERA.

Chiamparino already was on the DL with elbow tendinitis.

Ryan, who faces the Minnesota Twins tonight, is 3-3 with a 2.94 ERA in seven starts. Before his injury, he led the American League in strikeouts with 63.

Ryan took himself out in the fifth inning of the Texas Rangers' May 13 game against Detroit, despite a 2-0 lead and giving up only one hit. He then traveled California to visit longtime friend and California Angels orthopedic specialist Dr. Lewis Yocum.

He was given a magnetic resonance imaging test, which revealed an irritation in the trapezius muscle and tendinitis in the right shoulder. The problem was not considered serious, but rest was recommended before Ryan threw again.

Despite being red hot for the last two weeks, the Rangers have had suspect pitching (4.12 ERA) from their starting rotation. They haven't gotten a complete game from any starter during the streak, which is the longest in the AL since Oakland won that many in 1988.

The Rangers won a team-record 14 straight games before losing Tuesday night to the Twins, 3-0. The streak took the team from sixth place to first place in the American League West.

The loss may not mark the cooling off of the torrid Ranger bats. But the Rangers will need more support from their starting pitchers to get the balance needed to challenge for a division title.

Better pitching will make the hot-hitting team even better than it is, said reliever Rich "Goose" Gossage.

"What we're seeing here has nothing to do with luck, or with magic, or with the fluke factor," Gossage said. "This is a team with good hitters, and when everybody got hot at once, every pitching staff we've seen for two weeks has been snowballed. Plus, we've had outstanding defense."

Downing a nice surprise

ARLINGTON (AP) - The Texas Rangers' 14-game winning streak, snapped last night against Minnesota, got Brian Downing to thinking about another team that was high on power and low on pitching.

"This team is very similar to the California Angels team I played for in '79," Downing said. "We had never won a division and early in the year we won a lot of games late when they were seemingly lost. And it really carried us through an entire season."

The Rangers for their part are delighted, because Downing, 40, has responded with a .385 average (42-for-109) tops in the majors.

The Rangers sure can use all of Downing's hits because the pitching has been less than stellar. Texas lost starters Scott Chiamparino and Bobby Witt to injuries in the last three days. Witt's sore shoulder was diagnosed as a torn rotator cuff Tuesday.

"We're doing OK," Downing sighed. "The tough part is we have a lot of our starting pitchers injured and you know you're going to need them somewhere down the road. That kind of put a damper on this winning streak."

But nothing has put a damper on his determination to prove the Angels were wrong in letting him go and that other teams missed their chance by not signing him in spring training.

"I couldn't even get a look. Everybody told me I was a bum and wouldn't give me a chance," Downing said. "It was a very tough offseason and it made me very bitter about a lot of things."

Downing got beamed his first day in a Texas uniform and X-rays showed a broken hand. Undaunted, Downing continued taking batting practice to the amazement of his teammates.

Downing insisted he was ready for the season opener, but Manager Bobby Valentine kept him out for three games. It's been hard to keep him out since.

"I've just been running on adrenalin from the day I signed," Downing said. "If I go 0-for-200 the rest of the way, at least I had two great months that I never would have had again."

"Every game I play, I play like it's my last one because I thought I was never going to get to play one more."

Greene shuts out Expos

By The Associated Press

Tommy Greene wanted most to prove that his no-hitter was more than a fluke. He did.

Five days after pitching a 2-0 no-hitter at Montreal, Greene tossed a three-hitter against the visiting Expos Tuesday as Philadelphia won 12-0. Greene thinks he pitched even better this time.

In his no-hitter, he walked seven. In the rematch with Oil Can Boyd, Greene walked none.

"I thought I pitched a lot better," Greene said. "I had better command of my off-speed pitches and my breaking balls. That made a big difference."

Greene (4-0) only got a chance to break into the rotation because of an injury to Danny Cox. In three starts this season, including six scoreless innings May 1 against San Francisco, Greene has given up five hits and no runs.

Delino DeShields lined a single to center field to lead off the game. DeShields was caught stealing, but Marquis Grissom doubled to center. Greene then struck out Ivan Calderon and got Ron Hassey on an infield out to end the inning.

"In the first inning I was in a little trouble, but I battled out of it," Greene said.

Rookie Darrin Fletcher, who caught Greene's no-hitter, hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning and added an RBI single to pace the Phillies' offense against Boyd (2-6).

Mets 9, Cubs 8

Dave Magadan's run-scoring double in the eighth inning snapped a tie and New York survived another sloppy display to beat Chicago.

Pinch-hitter Tim Lincecum walked with one out in the eighth against reliever Paul Assenmacher (2-2) and stole second to set up Magadan's game-winning hit. New York led 8-5 after six innings, but the Cubs tied it in the seventh on Andre Dawson's two-run homer and Chico Walker's RBI single.

Alejandro Pena (1-0) got the victory and John Franco got the last three outs for his 10th save.

Pirates 9, Cardinals 8
Barry Bonds drove in three runs. Bonds was 2-for-5 with a run-scoring single in the first inning and a two-run triple in the fifth.

Andy Van Slyke also had a two-run triple and Orlando Merced had an RBI double, walked three times and scored twice. Pittsburgh broke open a 4-3 game with five runs in the fifth.

Cardinals starter Jose DeLeon (2-4) gave up six runs in four innings, allowing five hits and walking five. Reliever Stan Belinda (3-2), the third Pirates pitcher, worked two scoreless innings for the victory.

Dodgers 8, Astros 2
Darryl Strawberry hit his first home run in Dodger Stadium this season, a three-run shot in the first inning.

Strawberry's homer, his sixth of the season, came off Xavier Hernandez (0-5) and helped stake Tim Lincecum to a 4-0 lead in the first.

Belcher (5-4) gave up two runs on nine hits in seven innings, with one walk and a season-high nine strikeouts. Tim Crews finished.

Braves 8, Padres 6
Dave Justice broke out of a slump with a two-run, bases-loaded single in the ninth inning.

Justice was in a 1-for-17 slide, and 0-for-10 with runners in scoring position, when he put the Braves ahead 7-6.

Mike Stanton (1-0) pitched one inning for the victory, and Juan Berenguer got three outs for his career-high sixth save.

Giants 6, Reds 2
Trevor Wilson (1-4) gave up two runs in eight innings for his first win of the season and Mike Felder drove in two runs.

The Giants chased Jack Armstrong (4-3) in the sixth, when they scored two runs, including a leadoff homer by Willie McGee, his third.

Guidebook suggested when getting older

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Recovering one's youth may be a universal pursuit, but the reality is that people get older.

In making that reality the basis for "Aging Well," authors Thomas Hager and Lauren Kessler have produced a lifestyle guidebook for anyone over 20.

Yes, over 20.

"We start to age the second we're born," Kessler said. "The aging and dying of cells in our body is constant. A 20-year-old or 30-year-old thinks they're immortal, but in fact, that person is in the process of aging."

Hager and Kessler describe the physiological effects of aging on the body in detail, from bone loss to the shrinking size of the brain.

"We did as complete a survey as is humanly possible of the medical literature, meaning what was published in medical journals in the last 20 years and the scientific papers that came out of conferences," Kessler said.

It took the couple a year to gather, read and evaluate the research. The manuscript was reviewed by a team of doctors.

There are many fad books on the market full of "quack stuff, strange diets, miracle foods," Kessler said. "The whole focus of those books is that you should fight aging, that someday we'll find a miracle cure for this aging."

Hager and Kessler suggest aging might not be so bad. In fact, many conditions thought to be the normal trappings of old age can be traced to environment and lifestyle: inactivity and bad habits.

"Do you say, 'Lots of wrinkles and lines and bags are a natural part of aging?' Another way of looking at it is, 'What percentage of the aging of skin has to do with overexposure to the sun?'" Kessler said. "That's not aging. That's damage that we cause ourselves."

The book describes the normal effects of aging: Your hair becomes drier and gray, your skin wrinkles and loses pigment, your hearing becomes less acute, your spine compresses, your immune system doesn't fight as well, your brain mass shrinks.

But there's no reason for your joints to stiffen or hurt unless you have arthritis or are inactive. And heart disease is caused not solely by age, but rather by a combination of poor diet and inactivity and is promoted by habits such as smoking.

"I would hope to empower people with the book, to make them understand that much of the aging process is within their power to control," Kessler said.

Basically, if you live well, you'll age well. If you have healthy habits, you'll have a better chance of staying healthy as you grow older.

It's plain good sense you've heard before: Stop smoking, don't abuse alcohol, stay out of the sun, turn the volume down on your stereo, brush and floss your teeth daily, stay on a proper diet, and get plenty of rest and exercise.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It's wed noodle time. I can't believe you said that waitress deserved a good tip for "excellent" service. Why in the world should "Glen Cove, N.Y." leave any kind of tip to a waitress who was hitting on her dinner companion? Would you advise a man to tip a waiter who was making a play for his girlfriend? Your correspondent got shortchanged. -- Terry from Royal Oak, Mich.

DEAR TERRY: You aren't the only one who thought my response to that letter was a turkey. Read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Serving a dinner in a nice restaurant means more than just bringing the food out of the kitchen and placing it in front of the patron. That waitress ignored "Glen" and fawned over her escort. Of course the waitress had no way of knowing that the woman was picking up the tab. But that's not the point. The service Glen got was lousy while the waitress was extremely attentive to her gentleman friend. You don't reward that kind of nonsense with a 20 percent tip. I would have left a dime. -- Marion, Grosse Point Farms, Mich.

DEAR MARION: I could fill the page with complaints I received about my advice on that one. To all who wrote, I would like to say, you are right. My reply was dumb and I am ashamed of myself.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You performed a great service to your readers when you printed the letter from the mother of "Elyse," the lying drug addict who conned everybody she knew. Listen to this:

"Elyse," or her exact clone, showed up at our door last October. She was a total stranger, rather pretty, had a pleasing personality and was extremely articulate and beautifully dressed. The woman said she was visiting in Montreal, staying with her grandmother who lived down the street in the next block of apartments. She said her home was actually in Toronto. The woman told us that her sister was being held at the police station because she had received a traffic ticket for not wearing a seat belt. The police would not let her out of jail, according to "Sis," until she came up with the bond money.

The woman said her sister had phoned and asked her to bring down $517 as soon as possible. So she went immediately to the automatic bank teller and got $500, which was the limit. Since her grandmother was not at home and none of the immediate neighbors were in, she had come to the next block of apartment buildings to see if she could borrow $17.

We were completely sucked in and gave her the money. She thanked us profusely and promised to return the $17 the following day. Of course, we have not set eyes on the woman since.

That experience taught us a lesson. Pass it along, Ann. I'm sure we weren't the first people she conned, and we won't be the last. -- Josie in Montreal

DEAR MONTREAL: Stories like yours make me sad because an experience such as the one you described will understandably sour you on being kind to strangers and in the future you will probably refuse someone who is honorable and decent. If possible, the best thing to do is check out a story before giving anyone money.

DEAR ANN: Mom says you are a twin. Do you and your sister have the same fingerprints? -- V.P., Eastlake, Ohio

DEAR V.P.: No two human beings have exactly the same fingerprints -- not even twins.

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet "Sex and the Teen-Ager." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.45.)

Hints from Heloise

BED-MAKING

Dear Heloise: If you are sleeping single in a double bed, as the song goes, tuck in the side that you do not occupy.

This makes it much easier to make in the morning if you're not one of those restless sleepers who roll from side to side. -- Jeanette Dee, Dallas, Texas

This is a great idea for a child's bed or one that is against a wall. -- Heloise

SOUND OFF

Dear Heloise: Each day on my way to and from work, I notice at least one vehicle with a blinking turn signal that remains on for several miles.

This drives me crazy because I never know what that driver intends to do. Personally, when a turn signal in my car is on, the clicking drives me crazy. -- A.R., Oklahoma City, Okla.
