STORM CHANCE

•The .14 of an inch of rain we received Tuesday may have just been to whet our appetite for the main course coming up Thursday through Sunday. There's a 20 percent chance for more rain Thursday, and a chance for storms, some severe, this weekend, says the long-range report.

State champions

Zach Walker and Camille Betzen were named state champions at the UIL State Literary Meet on Saturday at Austin. Walker won the persuasive speaking contest, and Betzen won the informative speaking event.

Betzen, Walker win state championships

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Hereford's Zach Walker and Camille Betzen pulled off a unique double at the UIL State Literary Meet last weekend in Austin.

Walker won the state Class 4A championship in persuasive speaking, while Betzen won the state title in informative speaking.

The rare double in extemporaneous speaking was the only double win by any school, in any class, in the state competition, which includes prose, poetry, and two types of debate.

"It was all pretty much unbelievable," said Betzen. "It was all pretty incredible. I wasn't expecting it at all, and I was just so happy about it."

"It was pretty unbelievable," said Walker. "I had to keep looking down at the medal every five seconds just to make sure it was real, that I had really done it. They announced it and I'm surprised I didn't just fall over." The gold medals capped years of work in high school, going to about 15 tournaments a year, and hundreds of hours of preparation time in the classroom and the library.

Walker's speech in the finals, "Is the United States military justified in continuing to occupy portions of Iraq," was a speech in which he could find many justifiable sources on either side of the argument. Still,

Walker didn't feel he had the speech "pegged" when he drew the topic.

"Sometimes you get so much information that you get bogged down in the information," he said. "You have to give just the right amount of information. I didn't know for sure even after I had given the speech." The preliminary round, where two flights of six speakers are pitted to the six finalists, was a little tougher, he felt.

"I didn't know for sure how well I had done, but I felt I should have at least pulled a 'three' and gotten into the finals," Walker said. Walker received a two, and was also happy to learn that he would be joined in the finals by Jeri Ann Parker, who finished fourth overall.

For Betzen, whose job was not to persuade but to inform, the finals topic was tough.

"How will the proposed finance plan fund Texas public schools." That's something not even the state knows for sure, but Betzen was also able to pool many resources to form her speech.

"The topic was okay," Betzen said. "I knew we had information on it, so I was just ready to get in there and do it."

In prelims she had a much tougher topic.

"My topic in prelims was 'Why is our government afraid of North Korea's technological capabilities,'" she said. "To my dismay, I realized when I got back to my desk that we don't have a file on North Korea. I did eventually find some information on it, so that was a big bolt of fear right there. If it weren't for our (high school) library I would have been sunk."

"The library has been very, very supportive of us," Walker said.

Betzen and Walker said they were familiar with some of the speakers they were competing against. In the finals, Walker said he knew three of the competitors, including Parker. "They were enough to make my heart beat faster," he said.

Betzen was a little shaky about how she had done because she didn't get to see any of her competition. She was the last speaker in the round, and later learned from others who had seen all of the speakers that it was "a pretty tough round."

Both Betzen and Walker gave seven minute speeches on each of their topics, and worked without notes of any type. Walker explained that the speakers draw their topic from several presented, then are given up to 30 minutes of preparation time

Value-added products bolster area economy

Area officials and members of the Hereford Area Food Council gather around a table loaded with some of the items made locally from agriculture products. The officials received a first-hand report on the importance of value-added agriculture at the council's quarterly meeting Tuesday at the Hereford Country Club. The luncheon was sponsored by Hereford State Bank.

Board reviews testing results

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The Hereford school board reviewed the California Achievement Test scores of local students at the board's regular monthly meeting Tuesday at the school administration building.

"In some areas we are above the national average, and in some areas we need to improve," said Curriculum Director Alice Lockmiller.

A summary of the scores showed that Hereford students generally were at or below the national median scores in reading, with vocabulary scores lagging behind reading comprehension totals. The best reading scores were posted by this year's sophomores and juniors, with the lowest scores posted by fourth, fifth, eighth and ninth grade students. Most scores in the language area of the test were at or above the national median scores, although fourth graders and freshmen, sophomores and juniors were below the national median in language arts.

In mathematics, all scores were well above the median national percentiles.

The board approved a beginning band proposal for the sixth grade beginning next fall after 144 of this year's fifth graders responded favorably to a pre-enrollment survey.

James MacLasky, director of the HISD instrumental music program, explained to the board that Hereford would be the only district in the Panhandle not offering a sixth grade program next year. The plan calls for students to be shuttled from bluebonnet, West Central and Shirley schools to the high school band hall. MacLasky anticipates the program will have over 600 students next year.

To help handle the load, the board approved the hiring of a new assistant band director, giving the program five full-time instructors next year.

"I believe this is an excellent way to improve our music program," said Superintendent Charles Greenawalt in endorsing the plan.

"It's good for the kids," said board member Sylvia Flores.

The board also canvassed the results of the school board election Saturday. Ron Weishaar and Raymond Schlabs (Districts 1 and 3, respectively) were elected to three-year terms, while Mike Veazey was elected to a one-year term in District 4. There will be a runoff on May 25 between Joe Flood and Steve Wright for the District 5 post.

The board honored Gabby Avina as the paraprofessional employee of the month and Linda Gromowsky as the professional employee of the month, and saluted Sergio Saenz, the Shirley School student who presented the Texas Bluebonnet Award at the Texas Library Association's annual convention in April at Fort Worth.

The board also honored persons named as "Super Parents" by the Classroom Teachers Association. Receiving special certificates from CTA President Catherine Cortez were Rhonda Reeve, a volunteer at Northwest; Donna Brooks, Aikman, Helmi Batterman, high school; Genevieve Cooper, West Central; Mr. and Mrs. Nguyen, junior high; Kathy Christie, Tierra Blanca; and Johnnie Messer, Bluebonnet.

Others honored by the "thank A Parent" program were Sam and Judy Cursinger, Mr. and Mrs. Moncada, Catarino Leon, Mrs. Artho, Jo Ann Mercer, Ramon and Jamie Corona, Peggy Cooper, Fannie De Leon, Deloris McNeely, Donna Gallardo, Terri Faught, Mrs. Nave Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox, Raul Perez;

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Curtis, Sharry Briggs, Zukie Welch, Linda Gromowsky, Sharon Hodges, Rhonda Johnson, Suzzie Smith, Linda ship, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. Andres Acosta, Olivia Denning, Cindy Henson, Esperanza Buentello, Kathy Davison, Kim Dawson, Kerrie Steiert and Sylvia Hernandez.

In the personnel report, the board accepted the resignations of Clara Bartlett and Cindy Engle, Aikman, Ovetta White, Bluebonnet, and Brenda Evans, homebound; and hired Jan Reeve, Aikman, and Kathy Grace, West Central.

Local officials learn value of ag processing

Hereford city, county and chamber of commerce officials got a first-hand look at the area's value-added agricultural processing industry at the quarterly meeting of the Hereford Area Food Council on Tuesday at the Hereford Country Club.

A dozen local companies are members of the group, and have a goal of adding 200 or more jobs this year to Hereford industry. The industries include Caviness Packing, Holly Sugar, Frito-Lay, Ramirez and Sons, Panhandle Milling, Hereford Bi-Products, Merrick Petfoods, MW Carrot, Maxwell Orchards and Arrowhead Mills.

Officials promised to work with the processors in any way to bolster local business.

"Value-added agriculture is a must, and the city wants to work with you any way we can," said Mayor Wes Fisher.

"We want to continue to support you any way we can," said Mayor-elect Tom LeGate. "Anything the city can do, we will."

County Judge Tom Simons said the county was "looking forward to great things. This is where the future lies."

Pat Robbins, president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, said the chamber realized that most growth in local businesses would come from expansion of existing business and industry. "We want you to come to us if there's anything we can do."

Ruth Newsom, president of the chamber's Women's Division, also promised that group's support.

Several officials from Imperial Holly Corporation were on hand for the meeting. Agricultural Manager Dennis Printz of the Holly plant in Hereford said the company has contracted for over 42,000 acres of sugarbeets in the region again this year. Lloyd Neville of Holly's Colorado Springs headquarters said the company was "very interested in Hereford because of the people" and gave an update on the firm's $13 million ion exclusion plant currently being constructed. Neville said the plant will employ 16 new persons and should be on line for a test run in August. The ion exclusion plant should be fully operational in September.

Other updates were provided by: --David Bumgardner of Frito-Lay, who displayed the company's new Tostitos and Sun Chips products. Tostitos use white corn grown in this region, while the Sun Chips use yellow corn and whole wheat. Bumgardner explained that the Hereford corn handling plant provides the corn for 12 Frito-Lay CAPE CANAVERAL - Space shuttle Discovery completed its Star Wars research mission with tire damage and more scorching than usual of the material that fills the gaps between the orbiter's thermal tiles, NASA said.

Lawmakers facelift animal cruelty law

AUSTIN (AP) - The House gutted a bill designed to make it easier to prosecute animal cruelty offenses, and amended it to provide a new defense for farmers and ranchers who may violate the animal cruelty law.

The amendment would "allow Texas farmers and ranchers to intentionally and knowingly transport livestock in a cruel manner. I don't think the people of Texas want that type of activity authorized," said Rep. Elliott Naishat, bill sponsor.

Current law makes it a Class A misdemeanor, punishable by up to a year in jail and a $2,000 fine, to intentionally or knowingly transport or confine an animal in a cruel way.

The amendment by Rep. Layton Black, D-Goldthwaite, would make it a defense to prosecution if the animal was transported or confined by someone to provide animal products for human use or consumption.

Black said the provision would provide "some sanity and some direction to a lot of confusion that has built up over the years." He said the way farmers handle animals may look reckless to some outside the business.

His amendment also took out Naishat's proposal to allow some animal cruelty offenses to be prosecuted as Class C misdemeanors, punishable by up to a $200 fine.

Fundamentalists' power tested

Third in a series
By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - The insults fly fast and furious - infidels, bigots, narrow-minded know-nothings, liars and thieves.

Those hurling the harsh words aren't wayward children or warring troops, but clergy and laymen grappling for the soul of the 15-million member Southern Baptist Convention.

By all appearances, fundamentalists have had the upper hand for more than a decade. The SBC presidency has been in fundamentalist hands for 12 years and convention boards have been stacked with conservative voices.

"You could never do that if you didn't have a powerful grassroots movement," said conservative leader the Rev. Paige Patterson. "It's asking a lot to believe that a little group of people can hijack a denomination this big."

Patterson, who is president of Criswell College in Dallas and a member of the SBC's Foreign Mission Board, said he and other conservatives were forced to take action to steer the SBC back on the course set forth by the Bible.

Fundamentalists say a liberal drift was putting the faith's future in peril. They point to Northern Baptists, who have lost control of several institutions and splintered into diverse conventions.

"It was just an effort on the part of conservative people to bring our convention ... back to its historical fundamental belief in the word of God," said the Rev. W.A. Criswell, senior pastor of the 28,000-member First Baptist Church of Dallas, the largest church in the SBC. Criswell, who was SBC president in 1969-70, is termed by many the spirit behind the fundamentalist resurgence.

The fundamentalist resurgence can be traced back to a 1978 meeting of 25 Baptist pastors and laypeople called by Patterson and state appeals court Judge Paul Pressler of Houston. They talked about bringing back the convention to what they viewed as its conservative roots.

The takeover relied on using the largely honorific office of the presidency to place fundamentalists on the boards of the convention's agencies and seminaries. Later, Pressler and other conservatives pushed to have fundamentalist trustees put on boards of all Southern Baptist institutions.

Pressler, who is vice chairman of the SBC's executive committee, said the actions would not have been necessary if the moderates had listened to their more conservative brethren. The dispute would not have occurred had the moderates agreed to hire more conservative faculty members for the seminaries, he said.

"I think all we are getting is a fairer situation in the convention and I regret very much they have always excluded conservatives from positions in institutions," Pressler said.

The fundamentalists have had a lock on the SBC presidency since 1978. And, both sides agree the presidency is not likely to be regained by a moderate for the foreseeable future.

"I personally think the war is essentially over," Patterson said, adding that the turmoil will filter down to the state conventions for the next five or six years.

Pressler pointed out donations to SBC continue to increase despite a moderate program to divert some funds. He and other fundamentalists argue even an outright split by moderates would involve fewer than 800 of the SBC's 37,700 churches.

"The only danger that was ever there was if there had not been a conservative resurgence there would have been a major split," Patterson said.

Fundamentalist leaders say moderates are wrong to characterize the battle as political.

"Very few people in our line of work get that worked up about power or money," Patterson said. "The theological difference is the whole ball game."

"I've tried many times to get together with many of them without success," Pressler said, faulting moderates for their attacks on conservatives.

"(The rift) cannot be healed if they continue throwing hand grenades at Southern Baptists," he said. "If they will recognize that the vast majority of Southern Baptists believe the Bible is completely true ... we'll have no trouble whatsoever."

Pressler compared the current split in the Southern Baptist denomination to the Reformation in the Catholic Church in the 1500s, which gave birth to Protestantism.

"The Catholic Church straightened up some things because of the Reformation and brought Christendom to renewed vitality," he said. "We are getting back to the principals that made Christianity vital and vibrant during the Reformation period. This is a course correction that has occurred periodically throughout Christendom."

"There hasn't been a 100-year period since the church began that there hasn't been conflict and confrontation," Patterson said. "It's part and parcel of the Christian faith. This isn't an evil; this is a good thing. Iron shapes iron and confrontation is good."

And, said Pressler: "The greatest days of the Southern Baptist Convention are ahead of it."

NEXT: The moderates.

Dazed pilot lands plane safely

KINGSTON, Okla. (AP) - A dazed pilot managed to get his plane and passenger down safely after a midair collision that killed the pilot of the other plane.

The employer of the pilot killed in Tuesday morning's collision identified the dead man as Lyle Gallaher, 27, of Dallas.

Gallaher had worked as a pilot with Corporate Aviation Services Inc. since April and was on a company flight when the crash occurred, spokesman Ben Latham said.

The two people aboard the twin-engine Cessna 310 were not hurt, said FAA spokesman Bill Anderson in the Fort Worth, Texas, regional office. The Cessna landed at Texoma Airpark.

Jody Cooper, manager of the Catfish Bay Marina Mart, found the Cessna's pilot and passenger waiting at her store to use a telephone to report the collision.

Shuttle returns scorched

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Space shuttle Discovery completed its Star Wars research mission with tire damage and more scorching than usual of the material that fills the gaps between the orbiter's thermal tiles, NASA said.

One of the four main landing gear tires - the outer right one - was shredded when Discovery landed Monday at Kennedy Space Center. Three of the tire's 17 layers were worn through, said NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone.

"It probably looked a lot worse than it was," center director Forrest McCartney said Tuesday.

McCartney said it was too soon to know whether the damage resulted from the way the shuttle landed - the right main gear touched down a second sooner than the left - or from a test in which commander Michael Coats applied extra pressure to the brakes to see how they would react on the concrete landing strip.

Twice as much fiberglass thermal tile filler will have to be replaced than is customary after a flight, Malone said. At least 10 of the approximately 27,000 tiles on the shuttle also will be replaced because of heat damage.

NASA spokesman James Hartsfield explained that the shuttle encountered slightly more heat than usual in its fiery descent to Earth because it entered the atmosphere over the equator, where the air is denser.

Discovery and its crew of seven were diverted to Cape Canaveral because of gusty wind at the usual landing site in California's Mojave Desert.

The shuttle was heavier than usual during descent. It held more than $260 million worth of Pentagon instruments, which boosted the total weight of the orbiter to 211,300 pounds.

"I don't know how they landed it the way it looked," Ms. Cooper said. "They acted like they couldn't believe what had happened. They were very, very nervous and upset."

The Cessna had heavy damage to its tail section and had scratches all over the body. The vertical stabilizer was damaged and the right horizontal stabilizer was missing. A hole 3 inches in diameter was in the nose of the plane.

The Federal Aviation Administration said it would release the names of the Cessna pilot and passenger after its investigation is complete. Their names were not immediately available from other authorities.

The FAA said the wreckage of the other plane, a Mitsubishi MU-2 Turbo Prop, was found shortly before noon in southern Atoka County, about 15 miles northeast of the lake that straddles the Oklahoma-Texas border.

Both planes reportedly were en route to Dallas.

"The pilot of the Cessna said he felt and heard a collision," Anderson said. "He saw two rotating beacons going down."

A spokeswoman in the tower at Tulsa International Airport said the National Safety Transportation Board was reviewing tapes of when the planes left Tulsa.

"We know they both left Tulsa, but we don't have the exact times yet," NTSB spokesman Tom McFall said. "Two pilots flew up there in one airplane and they were coming back in two."

According to the FAA's air registry, the Cessna belonged to Mark O'Connor of Dallas.

Lake Texoma Park Manager J.C. Germany, whose house is north of the runway, said he and his wife heard the plane approaching the airstrip.

"It was extremely low and was making a tremendous noise," Germany said.

The Mitsubishi was owned by Tulsa-based CASI, Latham said.

An identical plane owned by CASI crashed Feb. 22 shortly after takeoff from Tulsa International Airport, killing all three aboard.

"Our planes are inspected on a regular basis, including the one that just left," Latham said. "They are all safety rated. We don't have any plans at this point to put any other planes on the ground."

Among other errands, CASI flies the Federal Reserve Bank overnight routes to deliver checks, Latham said.

Scholarship available to seniors

The Hereford Board of Realtors will be giving two $250 scholarships to graduating seniors.

Interested parties may fill out the local scholarship application form with additional information on academic, leadership, community service and church activities the applicant may be involved in.

Awards will be based on need, leadership, scholarship, extra curricular activities and community involvement.

Those interested should send their application or a brief letter to Juston McBride, Committee Chair Hereford Board of Realtors, 110 N. 25 Mile Ave, Suite C.

Life!

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband drinks beer every day. "Fred" puts away a few bottles after work to unwind, which I don't mind. What worries me is when he drinks too much. At least two evenings a week he finishes a six-pack. One night a week he drinks anywhere from 10 to 18 beers and passes out in front of the TV. He calls it "falling asleep."

Fred isn't abusive. He rarely misses a day's work and he is good with the children. Generally we have a fairly happy home life. His beer drinking is the only thing we fight about.

Fred says he's not hurting anyone because the kids are in bed when he gets to the "tipsy" stage, but I can't stand to be around him when he drinks too much. The conversation gets stupid and boring and his snoring would wake the dead.

I told Fred I thought he was turning into an alcoholic. He said I was crazy. Meanwhile, all that beer can't be helping his ulcers and his high blood pressure. He is only 32 years old. Will you please answer my question: Does my husband have a drinking problem or not? -- His wife in Indiana

DEAR INDIANA: He sure does, but nagging won't help. You can do two things to help your husband. Call his doctor and ask him to read the riot act to Fred when he comes in for his next blood pressure or ulcer checkup. Then look up Al-Anon in the phone book and go to the next meeting. You'll learn a lot from those people. You need guidance and emotional support in order to live with Fred and you'll find it at Al-Anon. Get going and good luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a message for "Old Fogey in My 50s" from Grand Rapids who wrote to you about teen-agers stealing car hood ornaments.

Mister, you wrote, "There was none of this garbage going on when I was a kid." Well, maybe you haven't been around long enough. I was born and raised in Grand Rapids and I remember 1946. That was the year the first postwar automobiles came out. The new Buicks had a nifty-looking ring-shaped hood ornament and it was a common practice among kids of that day to break them off and wear them as bracelets.

The response of the Buick company was to discontinue the ornament. But an equally tempting ornament showed up just a few years later. This time it was attached to the hood by a strong metal cable. Of course, resourceful teenagers discovered a way to cut the cable and the vandalism started all over again.

Mister, I've been to 49 of our 50 states and Grand Rapids is as fine a place to live as any of them. Maybe the teen-agers in that town are wilder than they used to be but they are no worse than teen-agers in other cities. -- in fact, they are probably better. -- Old Fogey in His 60s

DEAR FOGHEY: Stealing hood ornaments is kid stuff compared to what we have now. I wish we could go back to those more innocent days.

The proliferation of drugs, and the easy availability of guns have created a real problem for law enforcement agencies. Teen-age gangs and drive-by shootings are out of control, and I'm sorry to say, I see no relief in sight.

Gem of the Day: A college student wrote to his father. "Dear Dad, I am broke and I have no friends. Please tell me what to do." The father responded: "Make friends at once."

HJH students compete

The Greater Southwest Music Festival was held Saturday, May 4, in Amarillo. Three Hereford Junior High School students received "I" ratings in vocal competition. They included, from left, Candi Pankey, Scott Shaw and Heidi Hafliger. Candi also received an "Outstanding" rating for exceptional performance and Scott received a "I" rating for playing the violin as well as singing. The 68th observance of National Music Week is currently being celebrated. This year's theme is "Music-Is It For Everyone?"

LAE organization recalls 60 years of club memories

Sixty years of club memories and programs were recalled when members of La Afflatus Estudio Club met April 30 in the home of Emily Suggs for a luncheon.

Albert Higgins and Suggs reviewed the many years of L.A.E. club memberships and cited various comical events which occurred.

Special guest, Alice Christman, played several musical selections on the keyboard, a newly acquired hobby.

During the business meeting, members voted to give a $50 donation to the Hereford Senior Citizens Association for its Meals on Wheels program funded by the United Way. Also, it was announced that the club will disband until the beginning of the new club year in September. A new study will be selected by the yearbook committee.

Those present included Lydia Hopson, Etoile Manning, Mary Williamson, Opal Elliston, Marie Harris, Della Stagner, Louise Kinsey, Virginia Beasley, Pet Ott, Suggs, Higgins and Christman.

Speed cleaning tips given

Cleaning your home doesn't have to be time consuming, says Jeff Campbell, a member of The HomeCare Council, the consumer education division of Enforcer Home Care products.

Campbell suggest the follow for speed cleaning:

- * Work around a room once and don't backtrack. Use both hands, and work from top to bottom.
- * Carry your supplies with you in a multi-pocket apron, and put them back into the apron, not on the countertop.
- * Use the dishwasher to clean many household items.
- * Spot clean during the week and you'll save time.

TAN DA KI YA HEREFORD CAMP FIRE GROUP

Camp Fire group takes trip

The Tan Da Ki Ya Hereford Camp Fire Group recently visited Carlsbad Caverns for the weekend. Proceeds for the trip came from the two annual candy sales.

The group recently assisted at a reception honoring the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Crume. Proceeds the members received will be used to finance an additional field trip.

The group enjoys serving the community and helping the Camp Fire Council. Their reward is not only pride from being involved in Camp Fire but also the opportunity to travel and have fun while learning.

Society to meet

The 24th annual meeting of the Deaf Smith County Historical Society will be held at 10:30 a.m. Thursday at 1808 Plains Ave.

Society members will elect board members at the meeting and the board will elect officers from among the directors.

The agenda will include: hearing of annual reports; naming of new board members; election of new board members; and re-election of board members to a continuing term.

The slate of officers to be elected will be named by the nominating committee chaired by Janice Conkwright and members, Dorotha Prowell and Carmen Flood.

Society members are invited to join the board for this meeting. Hostess Janice Conkwright requests your confirmation of attendance by calling 364-0322 or 364-4338.

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. What would prevent my Christmas breads from being damp after they have been stored? I cool them thoroughly before wrapping. S.H., Racine, WI

A. Many quick breads have a moist texture because of the fruit and generous amount of sugar, eggs and oil. You can minimize the wetness by baking bread in the right size pan until it's done. Cooling bread completely before wrapping is important. Frozen breads should remain wrapped while thawing. If they thaw unwrapped, they might become damp.

Q. How do you recommend using a candy thermometer? J.V., McAllen, TX

A. Stand the thermometer straight up clipped onto side of pan, making sure the bulb does not touch the bottom of pan. Read thermometer at eye level. When you are finished, place thermometer in warm water so candy doesn't harden on it.

Q. How do you roast chestnuts? D.M.N., Athens, PA

A. Roast chestnuts in a 425 degree oven. Pierce with a sharp knife so steam can escape. For two dozen chestnuts, place in a casserole with a tight-fitting lid. Add a few drops of oil and toss nuts to coat lightly, add two tablespoons of water and cover. Bake chestnuts about 25 to 30 minutes, until they feel tender when squeezed and peel easily. Chestnuts can also be wrapped in heavy duty aluminum foil and roasted outdoors over coal or over an open fire in a heavy, lidded skillet with a long handle, shaking pan repeatedly until the shells pop open.

Instant photos make your shopping easier

Yes, it's that time again. Magazines, newspapers, TV talk shows and even newscasts are covering what's hot and what's not in upcoming spring and summer fashions.

As you stand in front of your closet and gaze at last year's spring and summer clothes, don't despair. No one can, or should, replace their entire wardrobe each season. With the existing economic forecasts, smart shoppers need a fashionable yet practical outlook. By taking some advice and tips from the experts, you can step into spring fashion with ease and refresh your wardrobe with very little effort.

Those "in the fashion know" agree that color will be an all-important factor this year. "Bright is the way to go," says Mary Jane McCarthy, associate fashion editor for Redbook. "The focus will be on lots of color, reds, pinks, yellows, greens, definitely add color!" If outfits seem lackluster, don't necessarily "re-color" the entire wardrobe, let accessories work for you.

A splash of color with a scarf, for example, can brighten up even the drabest dress. Shoes, available in almost every imaginable hue, can also add that extra something to a dull outfit.

The question is this: How do you go out shopping for items to colorize your wardrobe and not come home to find that your new purchases match nothing in your closet? One great tip from fashion editors and professional shoppers is to take an instant photo of favorite outfits. "If you take Polaroid instant photos of specific outfits along on your shopping trips, you can get a perfect match in a blouse or accessories in an instant," says Bonnie Roseman, a professional shopper who brings her traveling clothing boutique to the homes of such stars as Melanie Griffith, Vanna White and Farrah Fawcett. "Instant photos make shopping easier and consequently a lot more fun."

Most fashion experts add that the word this season is "the dress." The look will be sort, with simple lines, reminiscent of Jackie O. According to Elle Fashion Market Editor, Maria Romano, if nothing else, "women should pick up a perfect little dress" to update and complete their spring wardrobes. "Styles will remain short, with a little retro or '60s feeling," says McCarthy.

As you shop and update your wardrobe, donate your outdated clothes to a charity rather than throwing them away. Not only does it help others, it is often tax deductible. Take instant photos of the clothes you give away in order to assist you in your recordkeeping.

Keep in mind practicality and the current economy, be a smart shopper by creating your own personal look. You can be in style and be an individual as well. Start your own fashion trend!

Plans completed for Pioneer Round-up

Complete plans for the 63rd Pioneer Round-up are taking shape, according to Alice Doyle, president of the sponsoring organization, the Plainview Business and Professional Women's Club. The Round-up will be held Saturday, May 18, and the theme is "Pioneer - The Backbone of America."

The price of the tickets is $5 which covers all activities beginning with the supper at 6 p.m., the program at 8 p.m. and the square dance which follows. A price of $2 will be charged after 8 p.m. without the meal. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the Plainview Business and Professional Women's Club or at the door.

The traditional square dance will conclude the activities and the guest caller will be Jimmy Gouge of Amarillo. Helen Burleson is dance chairman.

Gouge began his square dancing in 1978 and in 1983 attended Panhandle Callers and Teachers Association career training school and began guest calling and teaching lessons for a group at Mesa Petroleum and at Polk Street Methodist Church in 1984. In 1985 and 1988 he was chosen club caller for Saints and Spinners and for Whirley Birds in Amarillo.

Gouge has had bookings in Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, Oklahoma and Kansas. This will be his fifth year to call in Red River, N.M. for a week.

Gouge and his wife Jo, served in nearly every office at the club level, and served in the local association. As a caller he has served as secretary, treasurer, and is currently serving a term as vice-president of the Panhandle Caller and Teacher Association. He is currently serving on the sound committee for the Toptex Association.

Amarillo airshow set May 19

On Sunday, May 19, Amarillo will have its annual Airshow. The show will be held at the Amarillo International Airport. Gates will be open from 9 a.m.-6 p.m. with a special performance by the aerial demonstration team, the Air Force Thunderbirds. The six F-16 Falcon jet fighters begin their show at 3:25 p.m.

A variety of military aircraft will be on display on the flightline throughout the day. Fighter, bomber, and training aircraft will be displayed. In addition, there will be flying demonstrations by the Coors Light Silver Bullet and the Confederate Air Force.

Tickets are available at all Taylor Foodmarts. There will be plenty of food, drink, and parking available. Bring the family and spend the day learning about today's Air Force. For more information about the Amarillo Airshow or Air Force Opportunities, call Air Force Recruiting in Amarillo at (806) 358-3091.

Flag facts presented

The largest United States flag measures about 210 by 411 feet. It is kept in the White House and brought out for display each Flag Day. The great American Flag Fund, a nonprofit corporation, donated it to the White House in 1983.

Never hang the flag upside down unless you mean it as a signal of some serious emergency. That's a recognized distress signal.

Our driest state is Nevada. Its annual rainfall averages 8.8 inches.

Artist to hold show

Amarillo artist, Ben Konis, will hold his 21st Annual Spring Garden Show on Saturday, May 18, at his studio-gallery, 712 W. 17th Avenue, in Amarillo.

For his Saturday show, paintings will be on exhibit in the garden and galeria areas of the artist's studio. Hours are noon until 6 p.m.

Konis paintings have recently been exhibited in Carthage, Mo, Brownsville, and in Acapulco, Mexico. Many of his latest oils and pastels are pastoral landscapes.

The artist holds several painting seminars throughout the year. His current plans include classes in Bandera, Amarillo, Kerrville, Ruidoso, N.M., the Sonoma Wine Valley and Crescent City, Calif., Monroe, La. Maui, Hawaii, and Puerto Vallarta, Mexico. Konis has been extended an invitation by a large oil company to conduct several seminars in Saudi Arabia next spring for its American personnel.

Officers installed recently

The Garden Beautiful Club met Friday at the home of Mary Herring and installed new officers.

Members installed were Jean Dowell, president; Jerry Jackson, first vice-president; Vada Axc, second vice-president; Doris Bryant, third vice-president; Audine Dettman, secretary; Marguerite Cole, treasurer; and Dottie Darden, reporter.

After a luncheon of coffee, tea, and salad plates were served, members opened the business meeting by giving garden tips. President Dowell welcomed members and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Committees appointed for the new year included: program and yearbook, financial projects, membership, special, cheer, historian, and telephone.

Those attending were Axc, Bryant, Ruby Carmichael, Cole, Darden, Dettman, Dowell, Nadine Hill, Jackson, Camelia Jones, Dorothy Noland, Helen Spinks, Bessie Story, Inez Witherspoon, Winnie Wiseman, and Margaret Young.

The next meeting will be held in September.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Mother's Day, May 12, is the fourth largest card-sending occasion in the United States.

More than 150 million cards will be sent this year, according to Hallmark Cards, Inc., and many reflect changes in the American family.

More than half of all American mothers work, and about 35 percent of all children now live in so-called "blended" families - thus many of today's Mother's Day cards are sent to child-care providers and others serving a mothering role, as well as grandmothers, stepmothers, teachers, aunts and friends.

Bride-elect honored

A bridal shower was held April 27 in Temple Baptist Church for Debra Parker, May 17 bride-elect of Shaun Rickman. Welcoming guests with the honoree were, from left, her mother, Donna Parker, and the prospective bridegroom's mother, Martha Rickman.

Debra Parker feted with bridal shower

Debra Parker, May 17 bride-elect of Shaun Rickman, was honored with a bridal shower Saturday, April 27, in Temple Baptist Church.

Greeting guests with the honoree were her mother, Donna Parker, and the prospective bridegroom's mother, Martha Rickman.

Kaye Hansard, Lisa Formby and Peggy Fitzgerald served punch, cookies, fruit, nuts and mints to guests from the refreshment table covered with a red cloth and delicate white lace overlay. The centerpiece was a large arrangement of red carumations, accented with baby's breath and greenery, and placed in a brass container. Table appointments included crystal, and red and black napkins.

A vacuum cleaner was presented to Miss Parker by the hostesses: Denise Andrews, Freda Bridwell, Janet Brigance, Carla Burns, Monta Cochran, Peggy Fitzgerald, Lisa Formby, Kaye Hansard, Billie Hopson, Camelia Jones, Mary Salley, Karen Shore, Mary Lou Shore, Murlene Streun and Mary Ann Warner.

WTSU to step back in time to retrace the Panhandle

The West Texas State University Department of History and Political Science has been awarded a $13,850 grant from the Amarillo Area Foundation to retrace the Panhandle steps of Francisco Vasquez Coronado.

The legendary Spanish explorer began his search for the Seven Cities of Cibola (gold) in 1541 and marched as far north as Kansas and west to the Grand Canyon, but his route through the Texas Panhandle remains a source of disagreement and controversy.

"Researchers agree that Coronado led an expedition through this area," Dr. Duane Guy, head of the Department of History and Political Science, said, "but that's about as far as the agreement goes. The purpose of this study is to locate his trail more precisely and to attempt to eliminate some of the controversy."

The research team, composed of WTSU and Wichita State University faculty, former WTSU faculty and area archaeologists, will depend on documents, archaeological sites, maps and surveys to retrace the four-centuries-old trail. Work on the project will begin this summer, and a final report is scheduled for release in the fall.

For more information, contact Gay at 656-2422.

Early detection can help avert serious pet problems

By knowing the warning signs of some serious health problems, and with regular visits to your veterinarian, you may be able to help your dog or cat live a longer, healthier life.

Cancer, for instance, is common in pet animals, and the rate increases with age. Dogs get cancer at roughly the same rate as humans, while cats get fewer cancers. Cancer amounts for almost half the deaths of pets over 10 years of age. Common signs of cancer in small animals include:

- Abnormal swellings that persist or continue to grow.
- Sores that do not heal.
- Weight loss and loss of appetite.
- Bleeding or discharge from any body opening.
- Offensive odor.
- Difficulty eating or swallowing.
- Persistent lameness or stiffness.

1991 Texas Beef Cook-Off wins with pizza recipe

An easy-to-prepare pizza made with one pound of sirloin steak won the 1991 Texas Beef Cook-Off April 26 at Kerrville, Texas, for Mary Meyers of Mexia.

She created the recipe she calls "Beef Eaters' Pizza" specifically for the Texas Beef Cook-Off. Her goal was to combine flavorful ingredients in a single dish that would appeal to large families. She and her husband, Allen, a 1990 Texas Beef Cook-Off finalist, have four children and 12 grandchildren.

"I wanted to enter a recipe that was easy to prepare, and something the whole family could enjoy," Meyers said. "We like steaks and roasts, but a big family often has to look toward less expensive cuts and make them stretch farther. This recipe does that and gives them plenty of meat."

The recipe calls for marinating the sirloin for one hour. While it is marinating, fresh vegetables are prepared and the ingredients are combined on top of a packaged pizza shell. The cooking time is 10 minutes.

She said a key ingredient that complements the sirloin in her pizza is two ounces of crumbled Rogueford cheese. She borrowed the idea from recipes for more expensive cuts like beef tenderloin that include a side sauce made from Rogueford cheese.

Meyer's first prize dish won her $3,000 and the honor of representing Texas in the National Beef Cook-Off Sept. 22-24 in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Second place and $2,000 in the Texas Beef Cook-Off went to Gina Romero-Jimenez of Austin for her "Marinated Beef with Tomato-Jicama Chutney." The recipe calls for four-ounce marinated filets that are butterfly cut, topped with the tomato-jicama chutney, and served on a bed of red cabbage.

Third place went to Beverly Sebastian of Fort Worth. Her recipe, "Jalapeno-Glazed Beef Sirloin," combines top sirloin with jalapeno jelly, brown sugar, lime juice and spices. Sebastian won $1,000 for her entry.

The 1991 panel of judges, each experienced with past beef cook-offs, rated this year's final 10 entries as the "best group of finalists in years." For copies of Texas' top 10 beef recipes in 1991, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Beef Cookoff Recipes, Texas Beef Industry Council, 8310 Capital of Texas Hwy. N., Ste. 440, Austin, Texas 78731.

The Texas Beef Cook-Off was sponsored by Texas Cattle Women in cooperation with the Texas Beef Industry Council.

- BEEF EATERS' PIZZA
- 1 pound sirloin, cut 1/8" x 2" pieces
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
 - 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
 - 1 tablespoon peanut oil, for searing
 - 2 garlic pods, crushed
 - 1 Roma tomato, thinly sliced
 - 6 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced
 - 2 scallions, thinly sliced
 - 1 small green, red or yellow pepper, seeded and thinly sliced
 - 1/4 cup beef bouillon
 - 3 tablespoons dry Madeira wine
 - 2 ounces creamy Rogueford cheese
 - 4 tablespoons unsalted butter
 - 1 tablespoon fresh parsley, chopped
 - 12" thick pizza shell (can use ready-to-eat shell, like "Baboli")

Combine salt, pepper, vegetable oil and marinate sirloin for one hour. Heat peanut oil in heavy skillet. Brown crushed garlic and remove. Sear meat and vegetables in garlic flavored oil. Remove and reserve. Deglaze skillet with bouillon and madeira, reduce to half and remove from heat. Return meat and vegetables to liquid and combine and allow to soak. Beat Rogueford cheese and butter in small bowl until smooth. Spread half over pizza shell. Spoon meat and vegetable mixture over bottom of pizza and cover with remaining cheese and butter mixture. Bake according to pizza shell instructions. 4 servings.

Preparation time: 1 hour including marinating
Cooking time: 10 minutes

Reinauer carries hopes of underdog to Austin

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

If everything were supposed to happen in life by some preordained order, there would never be any excitement in life.

The underdog, that favorite of most all Americans, could never be cheered for; the favorite would always win.

Fortunately, things do not always follow the predetermined path.

No one is more grateful than Brenna Reinauer.

You see, Brenna wasn't supposed to be going to Austin this week to play in the state tennis tournament. Even with a couple of upsets, she certainly wouldn't be the regional champion, because it wasn't set up that way.

But Brenna won one for the Gipper, then another and another and another, coming from the unseeded ranks to win the Region 1-4A girls' singles tennis championship two weeks ago in San Angelo.

Thursday, she and Coach Ed Coplen will be going to Austin, where she will play her first-round match at noon Friday in the UIL State Tennis Tournament at Penick Courts at the University of Texas.

"I'm excited about it," said Reinauer on Tuesday. "I try not to think about it, but I'm excited about going down there and we'll see what happens. You just try to keep everything in perspective and have fun."

"I think as far as mental pressure, I think that's probably why she won (the regional title) because she can take the mental pressure and handle it better than some of those others that were down there," said Coach Ed Coplen. "I think that's one of her strengths and will help her at state."

For Reinauer, it's the crowning achievement of four years of competitive tennis. She's been playing tennis for six years, and has been involved in the United States Tennis Association's summer program for four years.

"I've been competitively playing, where I understood the game, for about four years," Reinauer said. "I started playing a lot of tournaments the summer after my eighth grade year, going to a lot of tournaments with Luis (Zavala, former HHS coach). That's when I really understood competition, and I think all those tournaments, everything I've been through, will help me a lot. It's changed a lot for me, gotten a lot more in-depth.

"It's all an accumulation to right now. Every experience builds part of your game. The positives all help build your mental game. Certain shots are going to remind you of certain 'up' things.

Among the worries other tennis players from this part of the state have in Austin are the heat and humidity of Austin, but that won't bother Reinauer. She played last summer in USTA events in Houston.

"Sometimes you'd come off the courts with a wet shirt because you do sweat a lot and it's hot," Reinauer said. "But it's a lot of fun because you do have to work hard."

If Reinauer wins her first round match (It will be at noon Friday, and she won't know who her opponent will be until Thursday afternoon), she'll play again at 4 p.m. Friday. The final round will be at 9 a.m. Saturday.

2 Whitefaces selected to Greenbelt Bowl

Hereford football standouts Oscar Garcia and Ben Weatherly have been selected to play in the annual Greenbelt Bowl all-star football game August 10 at Childress.

Weatherly, an all-District 1-4A offensive tackle for the district champion Whitefaces, has signed a letter of intent with Eastern New Mexico University at Portales. He said Tuesday he feels the game, including a week's worth of practice, will help him prepare for the pre-season workouts at ENMU that begin August 12.

"It'll help me there because I have a week behind me," Weatherly said. "It won't be the same competition that I will have at Eastern, but it should help me a lot."

For Garcia, the district's defensive most valuable player as a linebacker, it's a chance to play in at least one more football game. He hopes to catch the eye of a college football coach and get the opportunity to play more football.

"I just want one more chance to play the game, and maybe I'll get a scholarship offer," Garcia said. "I know I need to put some pounds on; I'm kind of skinny. But I think I can play, and maybe I can prove it over there."

"This is a great game for us," said head football coach Danny Haney. "We've had at least one person playing down there every year since 1986. It's a lot of fun for us to go down and watch these guys play, and it's fun for them, too. They get to meet some people they might not otherwise meet, and they make a big deal out of it for these kids down in Childress."

Umpires' clinic set for Saturday

A clinic for all persons interested in being umpires for Kids Inc. games will be held at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at the Hereford Community Center. Kids Inc. games start May 14.

Jazz falls before Drexler's fury

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - A warning to Portland Trail Blazers opponents: Don't get Clyde Drexler upset.

The Utah Jazz did, and the result was a 117-97 Portland victory Tuesday night in Game 1 of their second-round playoff series. Game 2 is Thursday night in Portland.

Drexler got a knee to the stomach from Karl Malone with 5 minutes left in the third quarter and no foul was called. As Drexler lay on the court in pain, Utah cut the Blazers' lead to 68-66.

The sight silenced the Portland crowd.

"It was quite scary," Williams said. "It was like Bird going down in Boston. You don't want to play the playoffs without Clyde Drexler because he is the heart and soul of this team."

Fortunately for the Blazers, Drexler only had the wind knocked out of him. And he was not pleased.

"It probably woke me up," Drexler said. "It fired up the whole team."

"I just saw that look in his eye that something was going to happen," Portland coach Rick Adelman said. "He was mad."

The inspired Blazers went on a 24-5 run that gave them a 21-point lead, wrapping up their most one-sided victory thus far in the playoffs.

Drexler scored six of Portland's next 10 points after the blow from Malone. Drexler finished with 20 points and a playoff career-high 15 rebounds.

In Tuesday night's other playoff game, Detroit won their Eastern Conference semifinal opener against Boston 86-75.

The Los Angeles Lakers, leading 1-0, play host to Golden State in tonight's only game. The Bulls-76ers series, which Chicago leads 2-0, doesn't resume until Friday night at Philadelphia.

While Drexler was leading Portland to victory, Malone couldn't find the basket. He scored 21 points, but had only four in the second half.

"I'm not going to say they forced me out of my range because I can shoot from anywhere," Malone said.

"It was just one of those nights."

Terry Porter added 19 points and Jerome Kersey had 17 points and 13 rebounds as six Blazers, including all five starters, scored in double figures. Walter Davis scored 12 on 6-for-9 shooting in his first extensive action of the playoffs for Portland.

John Stockton had 23 points and 16 assists for the Jazz. Jeff Malone scored 17.

Pistons 86, Celtics 75

Two-time defending champion Detroit was outshot 39.4 percent to 38.4 percent at Boston, but the Pistons took 15 more shots thanks to a 17-7 rebounding advantage on the offensive boards.

The Celtics took a season-low 71 shots and made a season-low 28 as Detroit held them to their lowest playoff point total since the start of the 24-second shot clock in 1954. They lost to New York 82-75 in 1953.

"If we could get the rebounds," Celtics rookie guard Dee Brown said, "we could get easier shots instead of shooting jumper after jumper after jumper."

Boston played without Larry Bird, hero of their fifth-game victory over Indiana Sunday, because of back spasms and lost center Robert Parish to an ankle injury late in the game. Detroit's Isiah Thomas left the game midway through the final period and was taken to a hospital for X-rays of his right foot.

"We decided when we heard Larry wasn't playing that we shouldn't change our game plan," Detroit's John Salley said, "but we did breathe a sigh of relief."

James Edwards scored 18 points and Joe Dumars 17 for Detroit, while Dennis Rodman had 16 rebounds. The Celtics were led by Reggie Lewis with 20 points.

Detroit led 40-37 at halftime and Boston, the regular-season leader with a 51.2 shooting percentage, made just seven of 20 shots in the third quarter as the Pistons opened a 64-53 lead.

"We want to attack the glass as much as possible and set up our halfcourt offense," Edwards said.

In the fourth quarter, Boston came no closer than 75-68 on a three-point play by Lewis with 5:34 left. Detroit's biggest lead in the period was 82-69.

Pressure too much for Cecchini

ROME (AP) - Playing at home before a partisan crowd can often give an athlete a vital edge. Yet the desire to shine in front of one's own fans can also be a burden.

"I just felt too much responsibility," Italy's Sandra Cecchini said after being upset 6-4, 7-5 by Karine Quentrec of France in her opening-round match at the Italian Open on Tuesday. "I practically gave her the match."

"This morning when I walked out onto the court, I felt good. And then, at a certain point, I just couldn't do anything. I was afraid. I was shaking. I just felt too much pressure."

Second-seeded Gabriela Sabatini didn't seem shaken by the pressure at the Foro Italico during her opening second-round match. The 21-year-old Argentine, who is of Italian descent, blasted past South Africa's Amanda Coetzer 6-2, 6-2 on a damp, chilly third-ranked player and a perennial crowd favorite at Rome. "The people are very supportive and vocal. It's like when I play in Argentina."

"I've always been very comfortable here," said the world's

Baines' 3 homers lead A's past O's

By The Associated Press

Harold Baines homered three times and didn't even get a chance to swing for the record.

That's because Bob Milacki couldn't find the plate Tuesday night in Oakland's 11-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Baines, who hit his first homer of the season last Saturday, homered in his first, third and fourth at-bats and doubled his second time up. It was the third three-homer game of his career.

In the eighth, Milacki walked Baines on four pitches, never coming close to the plate.

Milacki, who walked two others in the eighth, said he wasn't trying to avoid Baines. Rather, he said, he was having control problems.

"It wasn't just him," Milacki said. "I was having trouble getting the ball over the plate to everybody. I didn't want to walk him."

Baines drove in a career-high seven runs and his 14 total bases set an Oakland team record.

In other games, Seattle beat Cleveland 7-6, California beat New York 7-4, Minnesota beat Boston 9-3, Detroit beat Kansas City 5-4, Texas beat Toronto 3-2 and Chicago beat Milwaukee 2-1 in 12 innings.

Mike Moore (5-0) joined Roger Clemens and Chuck Finley as baseball's only five-game winners. He gave up three runs in seven innings. Ben McDonald (1-2) was the loser.

Mariners 7, Indians 6

Edgar Martinez hit a three-run double off Doug Jones with one out in the ninth inning and Pete O'Brien followed with the game-winning homer at the Kingdome as Seattle won its fourth straight.

With Cleveland leading 6-2, Henry Cotto, Harold Reynolds and Ken Griffey Jr. singled off Jesse Orosco. Jones (0-3) relieved and struck out Jay Buhner before Martinez doubled to make it 6-5.

Mike Jackson (2-2), the third Seattle pitcher, threw one inning for the victory.

Angels 7, Yankees 4

Dave Winfield hit his first home run against the Yankees and Gary Gaetti, Wally Joyner and Lance Parrish also homered as California sent visiting New York to its eighth loss in nine games.

Chuck Finley (5-1) allowed four hits in eight-plus innings and struck out eight. Bryan Harvey struck out the side in the ninth for his seventh save.

Andy Hawkins (0-2) was the loser. Twins 9, Red Sox 3

Scott Erickson stretched his scoreless streak to 30 innings before tiring in the ninth and pinch-hitter Shane Mack hit a three-run homer at Fenway Park.

Erickson (4-2) pitched eight scoreless innings, then allowed a three-run homer in the ninth to Tom Brunansky. Erickson struck out five and walked two.

Greg Harris (1-3) gave up three runs and five hits in 4 1-3 innings. Tigers 5, Royals 4

Bill Gullickson won his fourth consecutive decision as Detroit rallied from a four-run deficit and sent visiting Kansas City to its ninth loss in 10 games.

Gullickson (4-0) allowed four runs and seven hits in seven innings. Paul Gibson pitched two innings of perfect relief for his second save.

Kirk Gibson, playing in Detroit for the first time since 1987, went 0-for-4 for Kansas City. Kevin Appier (1-5) struck out seven in relief of Mike Boddicker.

Rangers 3, Blue Jays 2

Brian Downing had three singles as visiting Texas took a 3-0 lead and held on for its seventh victory in eight games against the Blue Jays.

Kenny Rogers (1-3) allowed two runs and eight hits in five innings. Jeff Russell, the fourth Rangers' pitcher, got four outs for his sixth save.

Jimmy Key (4-2) lost his second consecutive decision, allowing three runs and eight hits in five innings. White Sox 2, Brewers 1

Sammy Sosa led off the 12th inning with a home run off Mark Lee (0-1), who relieved to start the 10th at Comiskey Park.

Bobby Thigpen (1-0) pitched 1 1-3 innings for the victory. He relieved Don Pall with two outs in the 11th and runners on second and third, then struck out Greg Vaughn.

Strawberry's HR in New York highlights NL's unusual night

By The Associated Press

The National League was full of surprises.

Of course, the biggest one came when Darryl Strawberry busted out of a 1-for-23 slump and hit a home run at Shea Stadium in his first game against the New York Mets since signing a five-year, $20.25 million contract with Los Angeles.

San Francisco's battered pitching staff gave up only three runs in 15 innings, but the Giants lost 3-2 to Montreal as sluggers Will Clark, Kevin Mitchell and Matt Williams went 2-for-15 combined.

But the biggest shocker of them all came in Atlanta, where little Rafael Belliard had five RBIs in the Braves' 9-2 victory over St. Louis.

"I never thought about the cycle," said Belliard, who had a single, double and triple. "Everybody has to have a good day, and tonight was my good night."

It was also a very good night for Darryl. Strawberry's return to New York was, well, dramatic to say the least.

Strawberry shut up the fans who booed him for eight seasons and thrilled those that cheered him, hitting a two-run homer in his return Tuesday night. But he grounded out to end the game with the tying run at third base as New York held on to beat Los Angeles 6-5.

After scoring two runs in the ninth off reliever John Franco, the Dodgers had runners on first and third when Strawberry hit a slow grounder to rookie third baseman Chris Donnels for the final out.

Elsewhere in the NL it was Pittsburgh 7, Cincinnati 2; Chicago 4, Houston 3; and San Diego 4, Philadelphia 2.

Braves 9, Cardinals 2

Belliard, who had never driven in more than three runs in a game, broke a 2-2 tie against Bryn Smith (3-1) with his double in the fourth inning and capped a five-run fifth with his bases-loaded triple. He also singled in the second.

Steve Avery (3-1) gave up two runs and seven hits in eight innings for the victory. Jeff Parrett got the last three outs.

Expos 3, Giants 2

Marquis Grissom hit a home run with one out in the 15th inning to lift Montreal over visiting San Francisco, sending the Giants to their seventh loss in eight games.

Grissom's fourth homer of the season came off Trevor Wilson (0-3), the fifth San Francisco pitcher. Scott Ruskin (1-0) worked two innings for the victory.

Cubs 4, Astros 3

Bob Scanlan gave up one run over seven innings in his major league debut and George Bell hit a three-run homer off Xavier Hernandez (0-2) in the first inning as Chicago beat Houston at the Astrodome.

Scanlan, called up from the Cubs' Iowa farm club April 30 when Mike Harkey was injured, benefited from Bell's second homer in as many nights at the Astrodome.

Ryan's hurting, so Blue Jays beware

TORONTO (AP) - Nolan Ryan will have at least one factor on his side when he takes the mound tonight seeking to become the first pitcher to throw back-to-back no-hitters since 1938 - he's hurting again.

For Ryan, who pitched his seventh no-hitter a week ago in Arlington Stadium against Toronto, pain has proven to be the right ingredient for success.

"My back has been bothering me but things are getting better and if I don't have another setback I should be ready," Ryan said Tuesday.

Ryan also is hampered with a crack in the scar tissue on his right middle finger.

The 44-year-old had a multiplicity of ailments last Wednesday before he threw the first no-hitter for the Texas Rangers in Arlington Stadium history. His back, head, achilles heel and middle finger hurt. Then he threw the most dominating of his record seven no-hitters.

Also, it should be noted Ryan's sixth no-hitter came in Oakland when his back was throbbing.

Ryan said that feeling bad may have worked to his advantage against the Blue Jays.

"When things aren't right I guess it causes you to be more focused," Ryan said.

Lefties a different breed, but they survive

By TRACY RINGOLSBY
The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS (AP) - Jerry Don Gleaton came out of the University of Texas in June 1979, the Texas Rangers' No. 1 draft pick. He made his major league debut that September. The quick trip to the big leagues has been followed by a slow odyssey of survival.

Gleaton didn't spend a full season in the big leagues for the first time until 1990 - his 12th year in pro ball.

With a career that has taken him from the Rangers to Seattle to the Chicago White Sox to Kansas City and now Detroit, Gleaton is testimony to the mystique of the left-hander.

"At times I wonder if it's going to be my last chance, but I've always felt if you are a left-hander, someone is going to want you," said Gleaton. "Last year, I went from being on the verge of being out of baseball to being traded to Detroit and having the year of my life."

Traded to Detroit in a minor league deal - which kept him from being released by Kansas City - Gleaton became the 1990 left-handed savior of the Tigers bullpen. He had 13 saves, a 2.94 ERA and appeared in 57 games.

Left-handers don't overpower hitters. They aren't high on a team's winter shopping list. And they don't stay anywhere long enough to buy a house. But left-handers have a magical ability to survive.

It's a combination of the rarity of their species, and the adaptability of the individual, which allows them to keep pushing past disappointments, adapting to new environments.

"Everything is made for right-handers," said Gleaton. "Look at golf courses. Look at top-line athletic equipment. When you start school, if you write with your left hand, your arm hangs off the desk. It's a right-handed world. If you are left-handed and want to be part of it, you learn to adjust."

So when it comes to bounding from organization to organization, meeting new teammates, learning new roles, "It's no problem," said Gleaton. "We've been fitting in and adapting all our lives."

Ken Brett pitched for a record 10 big-league teams. He's left-handed.

This year Dave LaPoint, with Philadelphia, and Doif Schatzeder, with Kansas City, both wore the uniform of their ninth major-league team. They are left-handed.

"Left-handers seem to get more mileage at the later part of their careers because they usually have a good track record at getting left-handed hitters out," said New York Mets pitching coach Mel Stottlemyre. "It's probably more a numbers game than anything else. There seems to be more of a need for left-left situations than right-right. Right-handed hitters are more accustomed to seeing right-handed pitchers from little league on up because there are more right-handed people."

That's where perseverance comes in. A lefty might not make it with his original organization, but if he goes through the demands of moving and making an impression on somebody else, there's a chance for him to survive. There were 54 left-handed reliever on rosters or the disabled list opening day. Only 10 of them (18.5 percent) have spent their entire career with the same organization. Of the 645 other players on rosters, 253

(39.2 percent) were with their original organizations.

"Left-handers are different with a capital 'D,'" said Texas pitching coach Tom House, a left-hander who pitched for three teams in eight seasons. "It is a left-hander's game.... If a left-hander can throw strikes, he can win, even with marginal stuff. Hitting is perceptual skill and I think hitters have a harder time perceiving left-handers. A ball thrown by a left-hander may not move that much, but it is perceived as moving differently."

"I was a perfect example. How many 5-foot-9 right-handers who never threw the ball above 82 miles per hour pitch more than six years in the big leagues?" House said. "And left-handers fit in chemistry-wise. They have had to adapt since day one. It's a right-handers' world from scissors to desks to appliances. So the left-handers adaptive skills are a notch more functional."

Keith Comstock signed his first professional contract in 1976. He had pitched in the California, Oakland, Detroit, Minnesota, San Francisco, San Diego and Seattle organizations.

He even spent two years in Japan. This spring was the first time in a decade he had gone to camp with the same team two years in a row. Last year was the first time in his 15-year career he spent a full year in the big leagues.

He compiled a 2.89 ERA for the Mariners in 60 games in 1990. Just the same, he was sent back to AAA Calgary for the final week of spring training. At the age of 35, he keeps plugging away.

"You have to keep the attitude that everything is going to be OK," said Comstock. "If you let negative thoughts creep in, you are done. The biggest thing thought is you have to be able to roll with the punches and not take anything personal. It helps if you have your pride stripped from you. Then you accept what happens without doubting yourself."

But for all the uniqueness, and opportunity that may exist, left-handers do face the same bottom line as everybody else - the need for success.

"Being left-handed, you get more opportunity to prove you can still do the job, but you will still have to get people out," Schatzeder said. "If you are a middle reliever, left-handed or right-handed, you are always on the bubble. The stopper is going to get another chance, maybe even moved into middle relief to get things straightened out. But if a middle reliever struggles, when it is time to make the move you're the one who is going to get moved."

And it has been that way for many years. Ron Perranowski, now the Los Angeles pitching coach, was a left-handed reliever who spent 13 years in the big leagues, pitching in three World Series with Los Angeles and two AL play-offs for Minnesota. He knows being left-handed was his claim to fame.

"I remember one time playing golf at an exclusive country club," said Perranowski. "I hit a drive up against a tree. One of the businessmen I was playing with said, 'The only reason you can hit that ball is because you're left-handed. You're lucky.' He wasn't kidding. If I had been born right-handed (and not enjoyed his big league success), the only way I would have gotten on that course would have been as a caddy."

Jerry Don Gleaton knows the feeling.

Father negotiates for Cowboy LB

CINCINNATI (AP) - Dixon Edwards, the Dallas Cowboys' second-round draft pick this year, says he wasn't surprised his father was able to negotiate his five-year contract, reportedly worth $2.2

million. After all, Edwards says, his father has had plenty of experience as a salesman.

"He's always been there for me," the son said. "You talk about being a businessman. He buys and sells (education) all day long."

The elder Edwards, the director of vocational education at Cincinnati's Aiken High School, negotiated the contract himself, after consulting a lawyer. He figured he saved his son, a former Aiken player, at least the expense of hiring an agent.

"Agents are pretty expensive," the elder Edwards said. "I won't make a mistake equal to the cost of an agent."

"If you talk to about 20 agents, you get a pretty good idea what's going on. Plus, they give you material to read. The data's all out there," the father said.

"We're very happy," said the son, a Michigan State linebacker who was the 37th player selected in the NFL draft.

The younger Edwards said he had no problem with being signed to a contract that was two years longer than a typical second-rounder's agreement.

"Five years doesn't bother me. That's how long I was at Michigan State," he said.

The 6-foot-1 linebacker attracted the attention of NFL scouts with his speed, 4.5 seconds in the 40-yard dash. He signed with the Cowboys at about 3 a.m. on the day after the draft.

"There seems to be some perception that we were had by Dallas," the father said, referring to news reports suggesting that the Cowboys pressured the Edwards family to quickly accept an offer.

"That's just not true," the elder Edwards said. "We were watching on TV, heard them pick him (his son) and then the phone rang. The people in Dallas were great, very hospitable."

Shortly after Edwards was picked, the family left for Dallas. The talks began at about 2 a.m. and Cowboys owner Jerry Jones made an appearance, the elder Edwards said.

The son, who started playing football when he was 7, received a signing bonus reported to be $350,000.

Walker had accident, not suicide attempt

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Minnesota Vikings running back Herschel Walker says a favorite song made him sit in his car in a closed garage, causing him to suffer carbon monoxide poisoning.

The former Dallas Cowboys player was taken by ambulance to Irving Community Hospital about 3 a.m. Sunday after his wife, Cindy, found him unconscious in the garage of their home, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

"He was treated in the emergency room about 3 a.m., and released at about 6 a.m.," hospital spokeswoman Sharon Peters said Tuesday. "It is not a serious thing at all."

Walker said he had started his car in the closed garage and was preparing to leave when he paused to hear a favorite song on his cassette deck.

A tiring weekend of travel may have contributed to his falling asleep, Walker said, adding that he also has been under stress because his grandparents are sick.

Walker's grandfather recently suffered a stroke and his grandmother has Alzheimer's disease.

"I think I fell asleep, but to be honest, I don't know how long I was out of it," Walker said. "It's just been one negative thing after another."

Walker said he has been asked if the incident was an attempt to take his own life. "People will make something out of nothing," he said. "But suicide? It wasn't anything like that."

He added, "This isn't really about anything. It was just a good tape."

Walker, a restricted free agent, is involved in contract negotiations with the Vikings. Tuesday he disputed reports that he is asking for $2.25 million to play in 1991.

"We have not put any demands on the table," said Walker, who added that he wants to finish his career in Minnesota. "I honestly think this is a team that can win a Super Bowl if we iron out our wrinkles. Once that's done, I don't think anyone can play with us."

Deshaies having bad start

HOUSTON (AP) - Jim Deshaies planned on having some big innings this season but nothing like this.

Deshaies, the second highest paid Houston player at $1.3 million per year, is off to the worst start of his major league career with an 0-4 record and 8.89 earned-run average.

His last two defeats were dealt by the Chicago Cubs, including a 4-3 loss Monday night aided by George Bell's 2-run home run.

With Mike Scott sidelined with a shoulder injury, Deshaies was expected to provide early season stability for the Astros' youthful pitching rotation.

Instead, newcomers Pete Harnisch and Jimmy Jones have been more effective. Jones has a 3-1 record in five starts and Harnisch is 1-1 with a 1.07 ERA, which leads the National League. "The fact that the other pitchers are pitching well makes it a little easier," Deshaies said. "If everyone was getting their brains beat out like me, it would really be tough."

Deshaies has no injuries and says he feels good. He just can't get anyone out.

"We're trying to find the secret to get things turned around for him," manager Art Howe said. "These guys (Chicago) have beaten him two times and they're a good hitting team. Maybe he needs a different menu."

"There's just something out of whack and we've got to get it straightened out but I'm going to stick with him," Howe said. "We need him in the rotation."

In 26.1 innings over six starts this season, Deshaies has allowed 38 hits and 26 earned runs. He's walked 16 and struck out 11.

"I need to go back and break everything down," Deshaies said. "I was moving my fastball in and out and got out of the first inning and I thought everything would be fine."

Even the spacious Astrodome has turned against him.

"My plan was to throw fastballs and let the ballpark do its job," he said. The Cubs still rocked Deshaies for four runs and six hits in 3-1 innings.

The culprit in Deshaies' repertoire is an ailing change-up, which sets up his fastball.

"I have no command of it (change-up) at all," Deshaies said. "But I've got to keep throwing the change because I have to get my confidence back in that pitch."

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE

Energas Company hereby gives notice of its intent to implement new gas rates, service charges and security deposit policies for domestic, public authority, commercial, small industrial and large air conditioning type customer classes in and around the cities and towns listed below, effective May 24, 1991. It is anticipated that the new rates and charges will increase the revenues of the company by approximately seven percent and therefore constitutes a "major change."

A Statement of Intent to change the rates was filed with the Texas Railroad Commission and each incorporated city on or about April 19, 1991, and is available for inspection at the company's Lubbock office, 5110 80th Street, Lubbock, Texas 79408. A copy is also available for inspection at your local Energas office.

Commit to get fit

Did you know:
 * Exercise perform significantly better on measures of reasoning, working memory, reaction time and vocabulary than non-exercisers?
 * Regular exercise helps raise the percentage of beneficial cholesterol levels while lowering harmful cholesterol levels?
 * Regular exercise increases blood flow to the skin, helps protect it from the sun, and keeps it healthy?
 * Physically fit men are 53 percent less at risk of premature death and physically fit women are 98 percent less at risk than sedentary men and women?
 * Regular exercise reduces the risks of endometriosis -- a cause of infertility -- by 50 percent.
 * Improve circulation from regular exercise typically increases I.Q. in older people?

Many Americans who'd like to bring the benefits of regular exercise into their lives are getting involved in "Commit To Get Fit," a program created by IRSA, the Association of Quality Clubs. Held annually in May, it coincides with the President's Council National Physical Fitness and Sports Month and the Governors' Council Employee Health and Fitness Day.

Senator Teel Bivins Reports

AUSTIN - Texans traditionally have frowned on gambling, but the state does it every two years — and sometimes it loses big. Let me explain. Each biennium the state Comptroller puts his pencil to the paper and comes up with the amount of money he thinks the state will generate over the next two years from such things as taxes, federal funds, fees and oil production. The Legislature uses these revenue projections to write its two-year budget.

It's in dealing with oil revenues where the state takes a gamble. To come up with his revenue estimates, the Comptroller must look into his crystal ball and forecast oil prices over the next two years. When Texas uses, say, $17.50 a barrel as a basis for spending, the state is placing a bet on future oil prices. The state wins the bet if prices rise above the estimate, but it loses if prices fall below.

A lot of money is involved here. Because of its oil severance tax, Texas has a 4.6% interest in every barrel of oil produced in the state. Plus, the Permanent University Fund and the Permanent School Fund combined have oil royalty income that total more than 6 million barrels a year.

In 1985, the Legislature adopted a budget based on crude-oil prices of $25 a barrel. In early 1986, this same oil sold for $11 a barrel, leaving the state

$3.5 billion short of funds with which to pay its bills for the biennium.

As long as Texas relies so much on oil revenue, there always will be the chance the state will lose its bet. The state clearly needs a way to hedge its bets. I'm sponsoring legislation to do just that.

Specifically, I support creating a pilot project that would allow the state to use crude-oil futures and options on crude-oil futures to protect the state from precipitous drops in oil prices. Currently, the law does not allow Texas to hedge with futures and options, and this has been to the state's detriment.

While the pilot project would allow the state to use crude-oil futures contracts to hedge against price fluctuations, it's options on crude-oil futures contracts that really provide the most attractive risk-management tool.

Hedging with a futures contract would allow the state to lock in a set price in the future for its anticipated oil severance tax revenues. If the price of crude oil goes down after that point with a corresponding drop in crude-oil severance tax revenues, the state would be protected from the price decline. However, if the price goes up, the state would be locked into the price it accepted when it sold the futures contract as a hedge.

Options on futures contracts allow the state far more flexibility. Using an option on a crude-oil futures contract, the state would be able to lock in a price for its crude-oil severance tax revenues below which we could not fall, and at the same time leave the opportunity for upside potential open.

For example, the state could purchase the right to be short December crude oil at $20. When December rolls around, if the price has fallen to $10, the state could exercise its option and thus be protected from the price decline. On the other hand, if the price of crude oil has increased to $30, the state would simply allow the option to expire and participate in the higher price.

Purchasing a put option on a crude-oil futures contract is much like buying homeowners' insurance for your home. You hope each year that the homeowners' insurance will expire unused. But should a tragedy occur, the homeowner is protected. Like insurance, the cost to purchase an option on a crude-oil futures contract is called a premium.

US troops see-saw in Iraq

DOHUK, Iraq (AP) - Allied troops today awaited the go-ahead to move into this provincial capital, in what would be a major expansion of the allied military effort in northern Iraq. In southern Iraq, by contrast, the last U.S. troops pulled out.

U.S. officials in Turkey, meanwhile, said an American warplane came under anti-aircraft artillery fire while flying over northern Iraq, but it was not hit. Tuesday night's anti-aircraft fire was the first direct attack on a U.S. aircraft since allied troops crossed into Iraq last month to aid Kurdish refugees.

Thousands of those refugees boarded trucks, buses and farm wagons to head home today, leaving behind spartan border camps and the graves of many who did not survive the ordeal of their trek into the mountains.

The Kurds' migration back to northern Iraq was an apparent indication that the U.S.-led occupation of the area is reassuring the refugees, who fled after Iraqi troops in March crushed their rebellion following the Persian Gulf War.

The fate of 5,000 refugees displaced by the failed uprising in southern Iraq is still uncertain. A U.N. fact-finding team was in Kuwait to try to determine their needs.

Caring for the refugees in the south was one of the principal tasks of U.S. troops after the war's end. In today's pullout, elements of the 3rd Armored Division crossed over into northern Kuwait as the last of the American forces withdrew.

At Incirlik air base in southern Turkey, a U.S. spokesman said it was not immediately clear who shot at the A-6 Navy bomber over northern Iraq.

The pilot reported he came under fire about 20 miles northwest of Mosul and another time about six miles west of Dohuk, the spokesman said.

The plane was not damaged and the pilot was not injured, according to a statement from Incirlik, headquarters of the allied relief operation for the Kurdish refugees.

U.S. aircraft continued today to fly over Dohuk, 25 miles south of the Turkish border. Allied troops on Sunday reached the outskirts of Dohuk but had not yet moved into the city. Military officials were waiting for a decision from their superiors.

Allied commanders have acknowledged that if their mission of getting the Kurds home is to succeed, they must expand the security zone to include Dohuk.

Iraqi troops appeared to be setting up machine guns and sandbags about two miles from U.S. units near the city, but U.S. military officials have reported no problems with the Iraqis.

At least 335,000 Iraqis, most of them Kurds, escaped to the border between Turkey and Iraq, where they faced disease, starvation and cold. An estimated 1.5 million Kurds fled to the Iranian border area to the east, where efforts to return them to Iraq have moved slower.

U.N. special envoy Steffan De Mistura told The Associated Press on Tuesday that more than 4,000 refugees a day are being trucked down the mountain from an open-air waiting area about 30 miles northeast of Zakhō.

Smith formally charged in attack

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) - As part of the nation's most prominent family, William Kennedy Smith was one of its most inconspicuous members.

That changed Easter weekend when a 29-year-old woman accused Smith of raping her at the Kennedy estate. She had accompanied him home for drinks after meeting him, his uncle Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and a cousin at a nightclub.

Smith, a 30-year-old medical student at Georgetown University in Washington, has denied any wrongdoing. But police said Tuesday they believed the woman's account and were recommending Smith be charged with rape.

The Smiths, though powerful within the Democratic dynasty, were publicly the least recognized. While the children of President Kennedy, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and Edward Kennedy grew up in the spotlight, the four Smith kids were spared scrutiny.

Even the children of Patricia Kennedy Lawford and Peter Lawford, and Eunice Kennedy Shriver and Sargent Shriver, attracted more attention because of their fathers' connections with movies and politics.

David Horowitz, co-author of "The Kennedys: An American Drama," said that in the late '70s and early '80s, Smith was not one of the "Hyannisport Terrors," as those of the 28 Kennedy cousins who frolicked and partied at bars and clubs on Cape Cod, Mass., were known.

"I was fortunate that I was born a Smith," Smith said in 1980. "My cousins, who are my best friends, have had an enormous pressure that I have escaped. But I've had the benefits of being a Kennedy."

Smith's mother is Jean Kennedy Smith, the youngest of Rose and Joseph P. Kennedy's five daughters.

He grew up in New York City, where his father, Stephen, managed the family's fortunes - and misfortunes. The elder Smith was regarded as the "fixer" in the family. He died last summer.

William Smith attended the elite and rigorous Collegiate School in Manhattan, where his cousin John Kennedy Jr. also was a student. Smith transferred to the Salisbury School in Connecticut and graduated in 1978.

"I never knew he was a Kennedy until graduation when his uncle Ted showed up," said former classmate Scott Aitken, 30. "I just remember him being real quiet and not into sports."

Mark Mirkin, 32, a West Palm Beach lawyer who was Smith's roommate at Duke University in Durham, N.C., remembered him as confident but unassuming.

"He's very into the family," Mirkin said. "Once I had some friends up who were sort of conservative and they made a little fun of the Kennedys and Willie snapped right back at them."

Smith is close to Sen. Kennedy. "After what he's gone through publicly and privately, I'm in a state of awe for the man," Smith said in 1980.

Smith took a semester off from college to work for his uncle's 1980 presidential campaign, saying then it was "the best thing I've done in my life."

Smith graduated from Duke in 1983 with a degree in history, then briefly worked at a Wall Street brokerage firm. He left to travel across China, the Soviet Union and Europe.

Smith entered medical school in 1987. For the past four years, he has lived quietly in a Georgetown carriage house, according to his landlady and school friends.

William Chafe, a former professor of Smith's at Duke, was skeptical of the rape accusation.

"The alleged incident is completely inconsistent with what I knew of him," Chafe said. "He was someone who I think really wanted to devote his life to helping people."

Bush begins hyperthyroid tests

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush, saying "I feel good," flew to the hospital this morning for the first test on his overactive thyroid gland, which doctors now blame for the irregular heartbeat he suffered last weekend.

Bush's doctors said he underwent a background scan at Bethesda Naval Hospital, then swallowed a diagnostic dose of radioactive iodine before leaving the hospital.

Dr. Burton Lee, the president's physician, said Bush will return Thursday for another scan that will allow doctors a closer look at his thyroid problem.

It takes a day for the iodine "cocktail" to sink in, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

The procedure took only a few minutes, and Bush returned immediately to the White House, barely 45 minutes after his Marine One helicopter whisked him off to the medical appointment.

Bush was still dressed casually in a green shirt and blue jacket when he returned. Striding towards the Oval Office, Bush playfully pulled down his shirt collar and exposed his throat when reporters asked what had been done.

"He was very happy" to get the news Tuesday that the thyroid and not heart problems were suspected as the cause of his atrial fibrillation, Lee said. "He doesn't like the (heart) monitors."

Fitzwater said, "It's a radioactive iodine test where he drinks the milkshake.... Then it has to have time to be absorbed into the glands, so the tests will come later."

Lee and other physicians working on the president's case said Tuesday the thyroid problem is easily treatable.

The tests will help the doctors determine what treatment to follow. The alternatives range from drugs to surgery.

"It will take us at least a week to make sure we have all the tests we need," Lee said.

to delve into research material they take with them to the preparation room. They must develop an introduction, the body of the speech and the closing statements, and memorize their speech.

They could use a note card in UIL competition, but choose to memorize. "It's more impressive when you spout off stuff without a note card," Walker said.

HHS speech coach Lana Hall said the UIL videotaped Betzen's speech, and will use the speech as a training tool for other young speakers in the future. "It's a classroom tape to show this is what extemp is supposed to be," Mrs. Hall said. "It's an example for students across the state, and they'll see Camille Betzen, Hereford High School, first place."

Hall said the two state championships and Parker's fourth place finish capped a successful year for the speech department. The team went to 11 tournaments this year and placed in the top five in team competition in nine of the tournaments despite having one of the smaller squads competing.
