Four inducted into CHOF

Four new members were inducted into the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center at the annual Induction Luncheon held Friday at the Hereford Senior Center.

The luncheon kicked off two days of activities for the CHOF's annual Rhinestone Roundup. The Rhinestone Roundup is the major fundraiser for the Cowgirl Hall of Fame. Friday night's activities included a silent auction, Mexican food buffet, the beginning of the Feedyard Challenge pitting teams representing feedyards in the region in various events, and a dance featuring the Rocking N-B Band from Denver.

Inducted into the hall were Western Heritage honorees Mary Ann "Molly" Goodnight (represented by Julia Murphy of Amarillo, her great-great niece) and famed Western artist Georgia O'Keeffe (represented by Charlotte Paetzold, who is a native of Abiquiu, N.M., and whose family was long-time friends with O'Keeffe), and Cowgirl honorees Nancy Sheppard and Lynn Jonckowski. Jonckowski was represented by Melissa Lundgren of Nashville, Tenn.

Each was welcomed into the hall, whose honorees include each of the honorees. Also performing at the induction luncheon was Joan Wells, a 1989 Cowgirl honoree, with special roping tricks, including a black light roping demonstration.

Also unveiled at the luncheon was a portrait of Jerry Ann Portwood of Graham painted by Celia Meadors of Amarillo.

Fireworks, parade will highlight 4th

A parade, special monument dedication, picnic, entertainment and fireworks are in store for the community on Thursday for the first July 4th celebration in Hereford in almost 20 years.

A volunteer planning committee has mapped out a full day of activities. Originally designed to celebrate the return home of soldiers who served in Operation Desert Storm, the celebration has been expanded to salute all veterans of all branches of the service.

The 10 a.m. parade will begin the day's festivities and is designed to honor all veterans of all wars. Three local residents who served in World War I, several who served in World War II and Korea, and soldiers who served in Operation Desert Storm have been enlisted to ride one of the special floats in the parade. Organizers said they have been unable to procure any veterans of the Vietnam War to ride on one of the floats in the parade.

"We want to give all of our veterans their due, and we want to give our soldiers who served in Vietnam the welcome they deserve but never received," said a parade organizer. Any Vietnam veterans who would like to ride in the parade may call Charlotte Skaggs at 364-4670.

Creative custom-designed ribbons will be given to first, second and third-place winners in all parade categories. Persons wishing to enter the parade may call the Chamber of Commerce office at 364-3333 or HCR Real Estate at 364-4670.

After the parade and until 4 p.m., the Deaf Smith County Museum, 400 Sampson, will be open. The museum has recently opened an exhibit saluting the military.

A private dinner and party for soldiers who served in Operation Desert Storm and their families will be held at 1 p.m. at the Camp Fire Lodge in the park at 15th and Ave. H. At 4 p.m., a public unveiling of a special tribute park in the northwest corner of the park will be held. A monument honoring the soldiers will be unveiled, and soldiers and families of soldiers will plant 72 trees, one for each local soldier that served in Operation Desert Storm.

At 6:30 p.m., a picnic will be held at Veterans Park, with free watermelon served by the volunteer committee. Entertainment will begin at 7:30 p.m., including the Hereford Chamber Singers and other local singers and other talent. Climaxing the entertainment will be Bob Pardo, who was decorated with the Silver Star for his heroic action in Vietnam. Western Pyrotechnics will be staging a 30-minute fireworks spectacular at about 9:30 p.m. at Veterans Park. While the fireworks are free, donations are being accepted to defray the cost of the fireworks show. Persons who would like to make donations may take their donations by the chamber office at Seventh and Main. Checks should be stubbed "fireworks" so the money will be deposited to the proper account.

Organizers are also selling special "Honoring Hereford's Heroes" t-shirts and caps. The t-shirts and caps are available at the chamber office, from volunteers who will be selling the paraphernalia throughout the city, at the chamber office and at the parade and Veterans Park events on July 4th. Proceeds from the sale of caps and t-shirts will be used to pay the costs of fireworks and other expenses incurred for the festivities.

Volunteer organizers are also planning a block-decorating contest for July 4th, with a $100 prize going to the block in the city best decorated for the Fourth of July.

Each block (both sides) entered in the contest sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce must have a majority of homes in the block participating to be eligible for the cash prize. Entry forms are available at the chamber office and must be turned in by 5 p.m. Monday.

Volunteers are also hoping local businesses will decorate for the special day. One business, Cowan Jewelers, is soliciting pictures from all veterans for a special window display they are planning. Veterans may take their photos by the store, 217 N. Main, to be included in the display.

For persons attending events at Veterans Park, parking will be restricted to the east side of the road bisecting the park. The only access to the park will be from the north side; the road entering the park on the south side will be closed because of safety factors involving the huge fireworks show. Area law enforcement officers will be checking cars to ensure that no alcoholic beverages or fireworks are brought into the park for the festivities.

July 4th Schedule

- 10 a.m.--Parade, beginning at Hereford High School, going down Park Ave. and Main St. Noon-4 p.m.--Deaf Smith County Museum open to the public. 4 p.m.--Dedication of park, planting of trees and unveiling of monument, 15th and Ave. H, open to the public. 6:30 p.m.--Picnic begins at Veterans Park. Free watermelon will be furnished by July 4th volunteer organizing committee. Soft drinks will be sold by organizations. 7:30 p.m.--Entertainment including Air Force veteran Bob Pardo, who was honored for his heroic actions over North Vietnam, several local singers and the Hereford Chamber Singers, Veterans Park. 9:30 p.m.--Free fireworks display.

Store clerks nailed in 'sting'

Nine local store clerks have been charged with the sale of alcohol to minors after an under-age woman was used to buy the beer at stores in Deaf Smith County on Wednesday.

The joint project was launched by the Hereford Police Department and Texas Alcohol Beverage Commission after numerous complaints of persons under the age of 21 buying and consuming alcohol, authorities said.

Persons under 21 are prohibited from purchasing, consuming or possessing alcoholic beverages.

A 17-year-old woman was used to attempt to buy beer at 23 stores in Hereford and Deaf Smith County. Authorities said she was able to purchase beer at nine of the stores without being asked her age or for any identification.

The charges have been filed with the District Attorney's office in Hereford.

Brand to close July 4th

The Hereford Brand will be closed July 4th for the holiday.

July 4th is one of five days the Brand does not put out a paper during the year, to allow employees and the independent carriers of the Brand to enjoy the holiday.

Because the holiday falls on Thursday, deadlines for the Friday edition of the Brand will be effected.

Classified advertising for Friday's Brand will be accepted until 9 a.m. Friday at the Brand office, 313 N. Lee.

Persons wishing to submit display advertising or news in the Sunday Brand should submit those items by noon Wednesday to ensure inclusion in the Sunday paper.

City hopes assessment will help park projects

Hereford residents who want the city park system improved can put their money where their mouths are and pay the $1 charge added to their monthly water-sewer bills.

In the purely voluntary program, money generated by the monthly charge will go toward capital improvements in Hereford parks -- and nothing else.

Excluding the John Pitman Golf Course which is city-owned, there are 16 park sites in Hereford, in varying stages of development.

Size of the sites varies widely, also, from a single lot called Cherokee Park to the 120-acre Veterans Memorial Park. In total, there are approximately 300 acres in the parks.

Some parks have playground equipment; most do not have automatic sprinkler watering systems.

Although most sites are exclusively city property, at least one is a joint effort of the city and Hereford Independent School District -- tennis courts located at Hereford High School.

Several park sites are designated now simply by location. For example, a 40-acre site located east of Tierra Blanca School is identified by that name. The park has had no improvements made.

Another, 15th Street Park, also is fairly new. The city has 24 acres there to work on.

City Manager Darwin McGill points out that park sites are in short supply in the west and northwest areas of the city, saying, "most of the parks are east of Highway 385."

In a city budget of some $3.8 million for the year that began May 1, there is a $15,000 line item for park improvement.

Double that amount can be added for park improvements in a year if at least half of the city's water customers elect to pay the $1 per month added to their bills.

A major part of the credit for the interest in park improvements, says McGill, should go to the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce beautification committee.

"The committee has done a good job," he adds, noting that information was gathered from cities of like size about their park programs.

With 5,000 customers on the city's water-sewer system, the fund for capital improvements in parks can grow significantly in a year's time.

"Even if only half continue to pay the $1, the city will be able to work on capital improvements," says McGill.

Residents who do not wish to contribute to the parks program need only to deduct the $1 from the

CRP signup slated

Sign-ups for the Conservation Reserve Program will be taken July 8-19 for 1992 CRP bids.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced that the July period will be the only opportunity for 1992 bids.

Approximately 1.1 million acres will be accepted from a national pool of bids submitted by producers.

Bids for easement practices and on areas needing wellhead protection need only pass a test for reasonableness when compared to cash rental rates for comparable land. They will not compete further for priority ranking.

All other bids, in addition to the reasonableness test, will compete for selection on the basis of environmental benefits obtained per dollar expended by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Ranking of bids will be based on seven factors, including surface water quality, groundwater quality, soil productivity, conservation compliance assistance, tree planting, assistance to state 319 areas and conservation priority areas.

Sign-ups for CRP are taken in the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office, located in Hereford at 317 W. Third.

Producers are encouraged to check in advance of the sign-up period for information on procedures for entering CRP bids.

Morrison develops DSGH plan

Phillis Morrison, Controller and Supervisor of the Admitting Department at Deaf Smith General Hospital, has accepted a position as the Business Director of the Mercy Regional Medical Center in Laredo. At the 388-bed facility, owned by the Sisters of Mercy, Mrs. Morrison will supervise ten middle managers and develop job descriptions, policies and procedures, and training programs for the managers.

"When you do good work, others notice," Gary Moore, DSGH Administrator said. "Phillis has done an outstanding job here, developing new procedures to speed collections. Phillis is a life-long resident of Hereford, and although leaving the area will be difficult for her, this is a wonderful opportunity and we wish her well," he said.

The Laredo hospital is one of 35 hospitals throughout the United States owned and operated by the Sisters of Mercy, headquartered in St. Louis, Missouri.

"One of the accomplishments here at Deaf Smith General that I am most proud of is our improved collections," Mrs. Morrison said. "Our hospital shares a problem common with hospitals across the country; providing health care in a compassionate, caring atmosphere while collecting enough money to keep the hospital fiscally healthy."

"The federal law mandates that hospitals provide service to any patient who presents himself in an emergency, regardless of his ability or willingness to pay. As a hospital, our mission is to serve the people, but we have to collect enough money to keep our doors open, too," she said.

"We've formulated a newly aggressive policy to collect debts from those who can pay, but don't," she said. "In some instances, the taxpayers are footing the bill for people who just don't want to pay. Since Texas has no laws about garnishment of someone's paycheck, our hands are tied in many cases. And it's very difficult to repossess a patient's gallbladder once he goes home!" she said.

The hospital requests payment for any elective surgeries or inservices at the time the service is rendered, Morrison said. "This is either a negotiated flat fee, or an estimate based on about $1200 for same-day surgery," she said. "We do not perform the service on elective services if the patient can't pay or won't make a deposit. This has bothered many people in the community, but, like most hospitals, we feel that if the service is elective, then the patient has a chance to wait until he can make arrangements for payment."

"For all other procedures, such as a general hospital admission or an admission through the emergency room, a deposit and payment schedule are established at the time of admitting, usually with the patient or spouse," Morrison said.

The amount of monthly payments and the number of months is usually discussed again at the time of discharge, depending upon the patient's ability to pay. "If a patient has insurance, we require proof of insurance at the time of admitting, and we make sure that any type of verification or pre-certification is done at that time," she said. "Many insurance companies now require that they be called on any non-emergency admission to certify that the admission is really needed. That's their way of trying to cut costs to them and prevent people from misusing their insurance."

"In some ways a hospital is like any other business," Moore noted. "It's important that we get paid a fair amount for the services we render, or we won't stay around long. Some people think that because they pay their taxes, that is all they are required to do. Unfortunately, the taxes pay only a part of the cost of running a hospital. The rest has to come from the patients."

Moore said that payment comes to the hospital in one of five methods: private pay insurance, Medicaid, Medicare, budgeted payments, or cash at the time of service. "We even accept Visa and Mastercard," he laughed.

"The problem for all hospitals is that no one really wants to pay for health care. It's not like when you have the fun of buying a new boat or a new car. Usually a hospital stay is something unexpected and certainly unwanted," he said, "and many people just seem to resent it when they have to pay. Who can afford to pay $1500 or $3000 or even $10,000 on a hospital bill if he doesn't have insurance?"

Mrs. Morrison said that many people in the community blame one racial group for the uncollectible accounts. "That's far from the truth," she said. "We have many, many former patients who pay $5, $10, or $15 a month, but they pay on a regular basis and this is truly all the people can afford. The interesting thing...and the frustrating thing to us...is that we have many people who make $50,000 to $100,000 a year, drive new cars and live in the better parts of town who are either over-extended, or just refuse to pay their hospital bills. You'd be amazed if we published the list of the people in the community who fall into the bad debt category."

Mrs. Morrison said that a new computer system at the hospital has allowed her department to be more efficient in following delinquent accounts. "Year to date we have collected 76% of our gross revenues. That compares with a collection rate of 66.5% in 1985-86, so we have improved."

Mrs. Morrison explained that part of the uncollected amount is contractual adjustments (agreed upon prices) for Blue Cross, Medicare, Medicaid, and Worker's Comp. "Basically the contractual adjustment is simply an agreement between these payors and the hospital to settle their bills for less money," she said.

"Because of these contractual adjustments that all hospitals are subject to, we know we're going to have a certain amount that cannot be collected. On the accounts that can be collected, we're getting good results from our new collection techniques," she said.

The computer allows the hospital to pursue the following protocol:

If payment is not received on schedule, as previously agreed, then a letter is sent demanding payment in full.

A second letter is sent 30 days after, notifying the patient that the total amount is now due and payable in full, or the matter will be turned over to a collection agency.

A third letter follows, fifteen days later, that states that the account has been scheduled to be sent to a collection agency.

And then fifteen days after that, the patient is notified that immediate payment is required or the bill is sent to the collection agency.

"This is standard procedure for collections," Mrs. Morrison said. "We want to give the patients every opportunity to pay. Accounts that have become delinquent may run anywhere from 90 to 120 days before they are turned over to a collection agency."

Mrs. Morrison explained why they don't like to turn accounts over to an agency. "It's very expensive for us; the agency may take as much as 30 to 50% of the total amount collected; so we make every effort to collect the amount owed us before turning the account. We have, however, become very aggressive in our collection policy because bad debt and non-payment of accounts is a significant problem for the hospital."

City plans hearings

A pair of public hearings on zoning changes will open the regular meeting Monday of the Hereford City Commission.

The commission also will hear a recommendation to purchase a pumper for the fire department from W.A. Neel & Associates for $115,713. One of five bids opened on June 13, the company's proposal meets specifications.

And, commissioners will consider authorizing city staff to prepare specifications and bid proposals for curbing in Dameron Park, a project recommended by the beautification committee of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

A public hearing will be conducted on a change in zoning from MF, multi-family, to CB, central business, at 206 Ross, requested by Herschel Black.

A second change listed for the hearing was asked by Marshall Wilson. Property at 220 N. 25 Mile Avenue would be changed from C-3 and C-1, commercial retail, to CB, central business.

Both changes were approved by the planning and zoning commission which met Tuesday.

The city commission also has scheduled a closed-door session to discuss appointments to the building code board of adjustments and appeals and the Hereford Tax Abatement board.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the commission chamber.

Gramm to speak at FBC

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm will present opening remarks for the "I Believe In America" musical to be presented Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the First Baptist Church in Hereford.

The multi-media presentation will include inspiring slides and music, including solos by John Hays, Gina Ruthart, Joy D. Rogers, Homer Phillips, Troy Sublett and Steve Paul. Narration will be by Dr. Ron Copek, pastor.

The patriotic spectacular singing of pride in the United States and its endless opportunity, and the diversity and scope of the 50 states. The music captures the heart of the United States through both classic Americana and new tunes.

"The patriotic music will touch the deepest level of your emotions and inspire a renewed love and pride in our homeland," said Steve Paul, FBC music director.

Other special guests besides Sen. Gramm will be on hand for the musical. An open invitation is extended to the public, and admission is free.

Since a large crowd is expected, there will be a second performance at 8:30 p.m. Sunday only if persons are turned away from the 7:30 p.m. performance.

monthly bill. Initially, 3,800 customers paid the charge.

None of the contributions from the water-sewer bill program will be spent on the city-owned golf course.

The City of Hereford does not employ a parks director. Neither is there an appointive board of citizens to make recommendations.

Park business funnels through the city manager's office. And, residents with specific requests often appear before the City Commission.

As the fund for capital improvements grows, McGill believes, some kind of prioritization process may be necessary, or a long-range plan.

"The only plan we've had was made several years ago by a student," says the city manager. However, the beautification committee has worked in that direction to some extent.

Private donations have financed the North Park improvements dedicated to Desert Storm participants. Dedication of the project is scheduled on July 4.

Besides the tennis courts at HHS, the city also has provided courts at Ireland Park, a three-acre site.

Dameron Park is nine acres of space. One of the focal points there is the city-owned swimming pool.

Except for the tennis courts and pool, much of the park improvement is in playground equipment.

"The city does not run any athletic programs," observes McGill.

Third-largest of park sites -- after 120-acre Veterans Memorial and a 50-acre park at E. 15th and C -- is the unimproved Tierra Blanca site.

The 15th Street Park of 24 acres is located in the far northwest corner of Hereford. North Park is on a 15-acre site and Jaycee Park, 600 S. Main, has seven acres.

City Park, site of the Hereford Community Center, Park and Avenue C, and Ireland Park, 600 Moreman, are each three acres in size.

An acre of land, more or less, is dedicated to parks at each of several sites, including the intersection of Park and Main (Campfire Park); Sixth and Ross (Central Park); U.S. 385 and Fourth (Gregg Park); Park and Avenue B (Mothers Park); and 13th and F (13th Street Park).

Cancer Society sets tasty fundraiser

By DANEE WILSON
Lifestyles Editor

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Cancer Society will be hosting their annual fund raiser, Taste of the Southwest, July 13 at the Hereford Community Center.

Approximately 16-18 restaurants from around the area are expected to bring samples of their very best cuisine.

"Nearly all the restaurants in Hereford are involved in this," said Amy Gililland, project director. "All the restaurants bring tastes of their food. It is really good."

All the food is donated. Cost of the invitation only event is a donation. A silent auction will follow the tasting.

"People and businesses have donated around 25 to 30 items this year," Gililland said. "People are given a bid sheet when they come in and they are invited to walk around the room bidding on the items by writing their bids down. It gets fun when the participants start bidding against each other." The event, which formerly was held in August, was moved to July to avoid conflicts of interest.

"When we had it in August, it was too close to the Town and Country Jubilee," Gililland said. "We want as many people to come as who want to come."

The Deaf Smith County chapter raised $13,261 and $36,684 was returned to the county in different services, educational programs and research. More than 36 percent was returned over the amount the county raised.

Because of the large amounts of research in Texas, the state gets the largest percentage of returns from the American Cancer Society.

If you would like to help out the American Cancer Society and attend Taste of the Southwest, contact Amy Gililland ASAP at 364-3717 and leave a message.

Ask an elderly person their age and they might say: that if it were not for the number, they would swear they were still in their thirties. For people like this, it's the young mind that remains young, only the passing of years tells them their true age. Man is the only animal that tells himself with the passing of time. Our stay on earth is very short, so why not take the time to enjoy the beautiful planet and all the things it offers. Babbling Brooks

Tom Draper can still wear his World War II uniform. Without alterations made in either Tom or the uniform.

If I had just run into Tom at the Ranch House or Hereford State Bank, flipping quarters for Cokes, and he had told me that he could still wear his Army Air Corps uniform, I would have just waved it off as just being Tom.

In case any of you have also waved it off as "hearsay" from Tom, I have seen it in black and white, er, actually olive drab, with my own eyes.

He didn't even turn dark blue from holding his breath.

A couple of weeks ago my significant other and I attended the centennial celebration of the First Baptist Church in Dimmitt

The highlight for me was getting to visit with and hear Dr. Frank Pollard, now the pastor of the First Baptist Church in Jackson, Miss. Bro. Frank, who has gone on to much bigger things since he pastored the Dimmitt church in the mid '60s, delivered the sermon on Sunday morning.

He recited a little poem. As soon as he recited it, I was sure wishing I had written it down. My colleague in Dimmitt, Don Nelson at the Castro County News, did get a copy of it, which I gladly steal and repeat here:

Lord, grant me strength, lest I fall into the clutches of cholesterol. Polyunsaturates? I'll never mutter, For the road to hell is paved with butter.

Cake is cursed, and cream is awful, And Satan is hiding in every waffle.

Lucifer, the lollipop, And Beelzebub, the chocolate drop.

Teach me the evils of hollandaise, And pasta, and globs of mayonnaise.

Fresh fried chicken from the South, Lord, if You love me, shut my mouth!

The annual Rhinestone Roundup has come and gone for another year, and it's been another time for reinforcing what a tremendous asset the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center is for our community.

Something new to worry about

BY JAMES ROBERTS Andrews County News

So you think you have enough to worry about nowadays with the EPA coming with headlines almost daily about the toxicity of food, drink, air, water, soil, and second-hand smoke?

Or you're worried about succumbing to AIDS, cancer, crippling arthritis, Alzheimer's or the like?

Or perhaps it's the nuclear reactor in Cuba, the PLO, the street gangs in Dallas, or the violence spreading across the country.

Cheer up, those are only minor worries compared to the one that will be studied in depth at a seminar in California later this month. Two hundred of the most prestigious scientists in the world are gathering in San Juan Capistrano, Cal., to attend the first International Conference on Near-Earth Asteroids.

Somewhere in space at this moment, hurtling toward Earth at roughly 16 miles a second, is a doomsday rock.

The question of mounting interest to scientists and engineers is exactly when it will approach our planet and whether anything can be done to avoid a catastrophic collision, such as nudging the rock off course with a nuclear blast or two.

Asteroid detection and avoidance was pooh-poohed as laughable paranoia until recently. But the field has grown in size and respectability during the past few years.

The doomsday rock is an asteroid large enough to severely disrupt life on Earth upon impact, lofting pulverized rock and dust that blocks most sunlight. So far, no astronomer has found the killer asteroid, which by definition would be a mile wide or larger, would have an orbit that crossed Earth's and would do so at exactly the wrong moment.

Sometimes we tend to overlook the good and focus on the bad in Hereford. Yes, there's room for improvement, but just think of all the assets we have in Hereford.

The best thing about Hereford, I think, is the people. We have some awfully good people here, and I think sometimes we take each other, and the good things we have, too much for granted.

It's time for the State of Texas to tighten its belt and see where serious cuts can be made.

There is no more money out here for the state to have, period.

The state legislature, during the upcoming special session on the budget, will consider a 6 percent personal income tax and a 6.5 percent corporate income tax, among other revenue plans.

I contend there is no 6 percent or 6.5 percent out there for the state to have.

I don't know how things are at your house, but with everyone else going up willy-nilly on prices while my income is static, I don't have 6 percent to give to our state government. Why can't the state learn to do what the rest of us have done: stop spending!

We have already been through enough "tax" raises (rarely, it seems, are they actually called "tax" raises anymore). We have had three major raises since 1985 for our state coffers. Our sales tax levy the second-highest in the country. The increase in state fees has ascended to dizzying heights.

Are state services any better than they were 10 years ago? And if any are better, are we getting our money's worth?

The state needs to learn some lessons from small businesses, starting with belt tightening

There are many plans out there, including those devised by State Comptroller John Sharp, to streamline state government. Like any other large corporation, there's room for our state government, for every state agency, to lop off some fat. Every expense should be viewed: Is it necessary? Is it needed? Is it really helping the residents of Texas? Can we do it any better?

Before we go setting new income taxes or rearranging taxes and fees already in place, let's get the ship of state in order.

Experts, extrapolating from craters observed on the moon and from a partial survey of earth-crossing asteroids, calculate that a "big one" slams into the planet once every 300,000 to 1 million years.

That means there is between one chance in 6,000 to one chance in 20,000 of a cataclysmic impact in the next 50 years.

"Eventually it will hit and be catastrophic," said Dr. Tom Gehrels, a professor of lunar and planetary science at the University of Arizona who heads a team that searches the sky for killer asteroids.

Last year Congress called for a series of detailed studies after a half-mile-wide asteroid crossed Earth's path at an uncomfortably close distance in 1989.

"The Earth had been at that point only six hours earlier," a House report noted. "Had it struck the Earth it would have caused a disaster unprecedented in human history. The energy released would have been equivalent to more than 1,000 megaton bombs."

If such an asteroid hit, agriculture would virtually end and civilization would wither and die—just as some people believe the dinosaurs and many other forms of life were wiped out by a massive object from space 65 million years ago.

The chairman of the California conference, D.r Clark R. Chapman, says: "The Earth is bound to be hit. It's unlikely that a really large asteroid will hit in our lifetime, but it's not beyond the pale."

"The risk of death is higher per person that a jet airplane crash," he noted. The risk of death for an American over a 50-year period is 1 in 100 from an auto accident, 1 in 300 for homicide, 1 in 2,000 from firearms, 1 in 5,000 for electrocution, 1 in 6,000 from an asteroid impact, and 1 in 20,000 from an airplane crash.

With those comforting odds, you might want to continue to pay your utility bill—at least for another month!

Dear Editor

The week of June 17-20, D.A.R.E. Summer Camps were held at Hereford Junior High School. Approximately thirty-seven students in grades seven through ten attended the camp. This is the first time the Junior High School D.A.R.E. curriculum was taught in Hereford. The students were great and they enjoyed the two day camps. D.A.R.E. Officer Terry Brown, Captain Pat Michael and Chief Don Brush were instrumental in setting up this camp for Hereford youth and I commend them for their dedication to keeping our youth DRUG FREE.

The Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.) program is a partnership between the parents, the police department and the schools. Parents are an integral part of the program and the curriculum requires a meeting with parents to share with them about the education given to the students and how to detect drug use. This meeting was held on Thursday night and then on Friday a graduation ceremony and party for the students and parents was conducted for the students who completed the two-day camp and recognition for essays and responsibility was given to the students. Two D.A.R.E. jackets were awarded to the two outstanding students for the camps. Those winners were Albino Garcia, Jr. and Richard Sierra Jr.

I would like to thank the local grocers who donated food for the Drug Free Graduation Party and the newly formed Police Department Women's Auxiliary for setting up at the city pool for the party. We also thank the City Council and the Hereford Police Department for providing the D.A.R.E. program in our schools in Hereford. I believe that we will see the results of the program for many generations to come. The philosophy of D.A.R.E. is to help students make a decision to stay drug free. To reduce the demand for drugs will reduce the availability of them and will reduce their presence in our city and our schools.

Parents, if you have had a student complete the D.A.R.E. program, either in the sixth grade or in the summer camp, please express your thanks to the Hereford Police Department and the City Commissioners. Let's help our students to be DRUG FREE by providing the D.A.R.E. program in our schools!

Sincerely, Marylin Leasure Director of Student Services Drug Free Schools and

GOP tackling health issue

An AP News Analysis By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent WASHINGTON (AP) - Back home, people are talking about the high price of health insurance, and congressional Republicans don't want the issue to go to the Democrats by default.

So they're putting together their own plan to overhaul health care, rather than waiting for the White House.

Sen. Alan Simpson of Wyoming, the deputy Republican leader, says the administration will have to present a health care program, too.

That may be months away. It's under study, with no announced deadline. President Bush has proposed legislation to control medical malpractice costs, but no broader reform.

And the subject keeps coming up when members of Congress talk with constituents. "In my town meetings, it's been the issue of cost, premium cost," said Simpson. "I don't know how volatile it is."

The political volatility of the health care issue may be headed upward. The visibility certainly is.

Senate Democratic leaders are pushing a plan to guarantee health insurance to all Americans, through their employers or through the government.

Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., is trying to build a presidential campaign around it. He said he'll decide later this summer whether to seek the Democratic presidential nomination.

When the nation's governors hold their annual conference in Seattle beginning Aug. 17, health care reform will top the agenda.

The American Medical Association heard a Republican warning that unless doctors act to make health care more affordable and available, they will face public demand that the government take it over.

For all of that, there is no real likelihood that basic changes in the health care and insurance system will be enacted this year or next. The cure is a matter of dispute, the government is divided and the president isn't pushing.

In those circumstances, Republicans need to get their own terms onto the table for debate, for bargaining—and to show the voters that they're trying to fashion answers, too.

Sen. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island is taking the Republican lead on health care as sponsor of the coming Senate GOP proposal. But he said it is widely recognized that nothing will happen on health care legislation before next year, if then.

It is going to take artful balancing to get any health care overhaul past the powerful and competing interests involved - the doctors and hospitals who provide care, the businesses and employees who pay for it, and the health insurance industry through which much of it is financed.

There are 34 million to 37 million Americans without health insurance, and 60 million others with coverage inadequate to protect them against soaring costs.

"We're going to have to do something complete, more complete than we've ever done," Sen. Simpson said.

And there's no federal money available for the purpose. The government health insurance envisioned under the Democratic plan would cost $6 billion; the sponsors said they'd decide later how to raise the money.

There also are proposals in Congress and from liberal interest groups to take more drastic action. Instead of a combination of employer and federal health insurance, those activists want a government-run health care system.

Dr. Louis W. Sullivan, the secretary of health and human services, told the American Medical Association that without self-reform the country could end up with just that.

Sullivan said unless doctors themselves curb costs and act to make care more broadly available to those in need, "we could find ourselves with a critical mass of our citizens demanding a total government takeover of health care."

Whatever the formula, the outlook in Washington is that reform will take time.

The governors are demanding crisis action, to cope with health costs that are claiming sharply increasing shares of their state budgets.

According to the National Governors' Association, state costs for the Medicaid program for the needy have been increasing by 25 percent this year, with newly effective federal mandates adding $2 billion to their expenses.

U.S. Chamber's Voice of Business

Frustrations with Japanese

by Dr. Richard L. Leshner, President U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON — It is no great secret that Japan engages in predatory trade practices — aggressively exporting to foreign markets while actively discouraging imports into its own market.

Japan has the lowest ratio of manufactured imports to Gross Domestic Product of any industrial nation — under 3 percent. It actively restricts imports of many agricultural products, especially rice. Further, a disproportionate share of Japan's imports from abroad are from foreign-based Japanese firms. The result is a huge trade surplus which, though it has declined somewhat in recent years, continues to foster international friction.

The question is what, if anything, should be done about it. Years of intense negotiations between the U.S. and Japan have produced scant improvement. Indeed, veterans of this seemingly endless ordeal contend the two sides are talking past each other. The U.S. speaks about free trade; the Japanese reply with offers to make specific concessions affecting particular products. The notion of simply permitting foreigners to enjoy full access to their domestic market, like the U.S. does, apparently does not register in Tokyo.

But despite our frustration, we need to remember that our trade relationship with Japan is not nearly as one-sided as it sometimes seems. The tide of high-quality, low-cost manufactured exports from Japan has enhanced the quality of life for Americans, helped reduce our inflation and stimulated our own industry to become more efficient and productive. Also, much of the excess capital earned by Japanese exports comes back to the U.S., helping stimulate productivity and keep interest rates down.

We hear much comment about how the Japanese seize upon U.S. innovations and exploit them to their own advantage. For example, though VCR technology was conceived in the United States, no U.S. firms today make VCRs. But we also have exploited Japanese innovations to improve our steel and auto manufacturing plants.

In any event, the Japanese suffer far more from their predatory trade practices than we do. Denied full access to foreign goods and services, Japanese consumers pay much more and have fewer options than American consumers. Though Japan is one of the world's richest nations, its people live scarcely better than many citizens of the Third World.

The Japanese gradually are beginning to realize they are only cheating themselves with their short-sighted approach to trade. We only can hope this awakening will lead to more enlightened trade policies before growing resentment among Japan's trading partners provokes an outbreak of protectionism.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your recent column in the Louisville Courier-Journal really touched my heart. A Rockford, Ill., mother wrote about indifferent fathers who miss out on much of their children's lives. That letter made me think of four boys whose fathers made this same mistake.

One lad was abandoned by his family because he had a "curse" on him, or so they thought. The child was born with a defective heart. The second boy was, his family said, a "bad seed," unmanageable. The truth was, his father was too wrapped up in his business to pay attention to the youngster and his mother couldn't handle him. The third boy was kicked out of the house because his family decided he was incorrigible, a troublemaker and a bad influence on the other children. The fourth boy needed a male role model so he wouldn't grow up to be a sissy, according to his young mother. His father didn't want the responsibility and took off.

What happened to these four children? They were all taken in by an unmarried man who raised them as if they were his own flesh and blood. He nursed them through illness, helped them with their homework, got them through school and was mother and father to these four wonderful boys. He laughed with them, cried with them, coached them in sports and had a wonderful time seeing to it that they grew up to be honorable, decent, productive, responsible men.

They call me "Dad" and their seven children call me "Grandpa." Raising them gave me a thrilling life, as well as a productive one. The fathers of these terrific young men will never know what they missed, but I will, because I didn't miss any of it.

Sincerely yours -- Father J.A. Sack Jr.

DEAR FATHER SACK: Thank you for a beautiful letter. How wonderful to know that the time, energy and love invested in those four young men is paying such handsome dividends. Bless you for writing. Please read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My son is nearly 5 now and he is the best thing that ever happened to me, except maybe meeting his mother. I spend almost all my spare time with this little man and we have a relationship that grows stronger every day.

I feel sorry for the men who think working an extra day a week or running off with their buddies is more important than raising their children to be loving, compassionate human beings. When my little guy says, "Daddy, you are my very best friend," it is the highest compliment I will ever receive. -- A Happy Man in Oregon

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was stuck by your question, "When are the men out there going to wake up to the importance of being a part of their children's lives?"

Although I agree with you 100 percent, you left out something. How about being a part of their wife's life? She should come first. The best gift a father can give his children is to love and respect their mothers. This gives them the security they need to develop self-esteem and be good parents themselves.

I wonder how many men on their deathbeds say, "I wish I had spent more time at work?" I can assure you that a far greater number say, "I wish

I had spent more time with my family." -- A Chicago Woman

DEAR READERS: The mail on this subject has been heartening. I see real evidence that today's fathers are taking more of an interest in their children. Bravo! This bodes well for the coming generation.

Tyson gets unanimous, undisputed decision

LAS VEGAS (AP) - For six rounds, it looked like Mike Tyson and Donovan "Razor" Ruddock were stuck in some sort of a strange time warp in the same desert ring where they first met little more than three months ago.

Just as he had in their first fight, Tyson knocked Ruddock down twice in the early rounds. Just as he had done on March 18, Ruddock had rocked Tyson with some brutal left hands.

This time, however, the fight didn't end in controversy in the seventh round. This time it went 12 rounds.

And this time, Ruddock had no complaints.

"I think I should have put out a little more," Ruddock conceded after dropping a unanimous decision Friday night to the former heavyweight champion.

Ruddock took Tyson the distance in a foul-plagued fight between the heavyweight division's top two contenders in a fight that in most part was a bad repeat of Tyson's earlier win.

Once again, Tyson landed the more effective punches and landed them more often. Once again, Ruddock hurt Tyson but was never able to put him down.

But just as he did before, Ruddock landed some heavy punches of his own that shook Tyson and at times stopped him dead in his tracks.

"God, he hits hard," Tyson said. "I know he was punching harder this fight than in the first fight."

Tyson, despite losing three points on the ringside scorecards for hitting after the bell and hitting low, managed to take a relatively easy decision.

He bloodied Ruddock's mouth but couldn't follow through on a pre-fight knockdown. Tyson was warned by referee Mills Lane for low blows. As the two fighters prepared to resume fighting, Tyson launched an overhand right that put Ruddock to one knee.

In the fourth round, Ruddock was down again, this time on the seat of his trunks after Tyson countered a missed uppercut with a right 35 seconds into the round. Again, Ruddock got right back up and again promise to knock the Canadian out before 15,880 people.

Tyson won by six points on two scorecards and four on the third, but it was an unimpressive performance by a fighter who had scored 36 knockouts in his previous 41 fights.

he easily survived the round.

Ruddock, who fought mainly with his left hand in the first fight, once again looked to load up with the left hook and only sporadically heeded the pleas of his corner to use both hands and try and box Tyson.

Both fighters spent the entire bout looking to land the big punch, but in the process spent much of their time waiting on the other fighter to punch first or being tied up in clinches.

Fight punch statistics showed Ruddock landing only 19 jabs the entire fight and Tyson only 23. Tyson landed 206 of his 449 punches while Ruddock threw 246 and landed 124.

Ruddock failed to show at a post-fight press conference, and trainer Slim Robinson said he went to the home he was staying at to rest.

Tyson, who ran his record to 41-1, was penalized twice for hitting below the belt in the ninth and 10th rounds and once in the fourth round for hitting after the bell. Ruddock also lost a point after the eighth round when he hit Tyson late.

Ruddock, 25-3-1, showed some effects of the 10 extra pounds he carried at 238 when in the final round he was unable to mount any effective attack the first two minutes.

Both fighters earned $5 million, with Tyson reportedly promised more in a cut from the pay-per-view revenues.

The win apparently cleared the way for Tyson to make a Nov. 8 date against undisputed heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield, but promoter Don King said Holyfield's promoter, Dan Duva, will have to bend to some of Tyson's terms before that fight can be signed.

Tyson, meanwhile, raised the possibility of Tyson-Ruddock III. "I can tell we're going to fight again," Tyson said.

Royals rout slumping Athletics

By The Associated Press

There's no end in sight to the slump of the Oakland Athletics.

The three-time American League champions were routed by Kansas City 11-0 Friday night. The A's have lost seven of eight and 11 of 14.

"It's been longer than I care to remember when I managed a team having so much trouble," Oakland manager Tony La Russa said. "The only time I find it tough to handle is when we're not giving our best, and that hasn't happened ninety-nine percent of the time."

Danny Tartabull and Kirk Gibson each hit two-run homers and Luis Aquino pitched a five-hitter to win for the first time in nearly a year. Kansas City stopped a six-game losing streak.

Aquino (1-1) made his fourth start of the season and won for the first time since July 14, 1990. He pitched his third big league shutout, struck out a career-high seven and walked one.

Bob Welch (7-5) was tagged for nine runs and nine hits in three innings, his shortest outing since July 28.

In other games, California beat Texas 10-8, Detroit beat Cleveland 7-1, Chicago beat Minnesota 4-2, Boston beat Baltimore 9-3, Seattle beat Toronto 3-1 and Milwaukee beat New York 5-2.

Angels 10, Rangers 8

Wally Joyner had four hits and drove in five runs, and Dave Parker hit a tie-breaking home run in the seventh.

California led 8-3 before visiting Texas rallied in the seventh on a two-run homer by Ruben Sierra and a three-run homer by rookie Dean Palmer.

Parker homered in the bottom of the inning off Kenny Rogers (4-7). Joyner, who hit an RBI double in the first and a three-run homer in the fourth, hit an RBI single in the eighth off Mike Jeffcoat.

Mark Eichhorn (2-1) pitched two-thirds of an inning and Bryan Harvey got six outs for his 20th save.

Larkin's 3 HR's convince Deshaies

By The Associated Press

Jim Deshaies feels Barry Larkin is the best player in baseball. Larkin did his best to prove him right.

The Cincinnati shortstop homered in each of his first three at-bats on Friday night - all off Deshaies - and finished with six RBIs to lead the Reds to an 8-5 victory over the Astros. Larkin had the first two-homer game of his career on Thursday and tied a major league record with five in two games.

Deshaies (2-7) wrote down Larkin's name in a newspaper's All-Star poll before the game as the best player in baseball.

"I sealed my fate," Deshaies said. "I voted him the best player in the game. I asked for it. I decided I need to prove it, I guess. He beat me. He was a one-man show."

Larkin hit a pair of two-run homers and a solo homer in his first three at-bats and drove in a run by hitting into a force play in the sixth for a career-high six RBIs.

He can't explain the five-homer outburst, which gave him a career-high 14 and tied him with Paul O'Neill for the team lead.

Larkin opened the scoring by pulling a 2-1 pitch over the left-field wall in the first for a 2-0 lead and lined an opposite-field homer on a full count in the third for a 4-3 lead.

After Houston tied it in the fourth on Rafael Ramirez's solo homer, Larkin put the Reds ahead by lining an 0-1 pitch to right field in the bottom of the fifth.

Eric Davis, activated from the disabled list on Thursday, followed Larkin's third homer with a solo shot to make it 6-4.

Tom Browning (10-4) won despite allowing five runs in 5 1-3 innings. Rob Dibble got the last five outs for his 21st save in as many opportunities.

In other NL action, it was St. Louis 14, Chicago 6; Atlanta 3, Los Angeles 2 in the opener of a doubleheader and Los Angeles 8, Atlanta 2 in the nightcap; San Diego 5, San Francisco 3; Philadelphia 6, New York 2; and Pittsburgh 6, Montreal 1.

Hoop camp awards given

Awards were handed out Friday for the best players at the 1991 Lady Whiteface Basketball Camp.

Coach Dickie Faught, director of the camp, announced that the offensive most valuable player was Lori McDonald, and the defensive MVP was Leslie Tataravich.

In addition, awards were given to the three best offensive and defensive players. On offense it was McDonald, Misty Meyer and Beth Weatherly, and on defense it was Tataravich, Jessica Evers and Mindi Davis.

The most improved award, based on improvement from last year to this year, was Jill Laing.

The camp also held several contests, with winners in senior and junior divisions. The senior free throw championship went to Evers, while Kristin Cole won the junior division.

The hot shot contest--where girls shot from different spots on the floor--were Tataravich for the seniors and Heather Basford for the juniors.

Only one three-point shot champion was crowned, and she was Mindi Davis.

The camp had 68 girls participate and Faught called it a big success.

"I thought this was the best camp we've had in three years," he said. "The skill level was the highest it's been, and there was lots of enthusiasm."

Detmer healed, ready to defend Heisman

By CLIFFORD BROYLES
San Antonio Express-News
SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Brigham Young quarterback Ty Detmer has spent his off-season taking bows. Now it is nearing time for an encore.

All eyes will be on the former Southwest High School standout this fall as the first Heisman Trophy winner since Oklahoma's Billy Sims 12 years ago to return for another college season.

Only one person, Ohio State running back Archie Griffin, has won the prestigious award as college player of the year twice.

"I'm looking forward to it," said Detmer, who will enter his senior season needing 426 yards to become college football's all-time passing yardage leader. "I'm looking forward to helping my young team be as good as it can be.

"I didn't go out and try to win the Heisman last year and I'm not going to try to win this year either. If it happens, that's fine."

The Ty that binds BYU passed for an NCAA record 5,188 yards last season and set 42 NCAA records, 36 of them set by former Brigham Young quarterbacks.

But whether he's trying for it or not, the spotlight will be glued to the slender slinger from South Texas, who is healthy again after having both shoulders separated in the Sea World Holiday Bowl against Texas A&M in December.

"It's like there was nothing ever wrong with it," said Detmer, who had surgery on his throwing (right) shoulder in January. "I've put on 10-15 pounds (he's 6-foot, 185) since last year. I've spent a lot of time lifting weights and just trying to get stronger."

Detmer, 23, knows winning the Heisman will be harder the second time around. He will be a marked man and needs a good start to refresh the memories of voters.

That will not be easy considering the Cougars open the season with a disorderly row: Florida State in the Disneyland Pigskin Classic, UCLA and Penn State. All will be on the road.

But Detmer said the tradition of BYU quarterbacks casts a pretty long shadow itself.

"There is a lot of pressure just being a BYU quarterback, the expectations are so high," he said. "I'm not worried about the Heisman. I just want to do the best I can do."

With BYU losing badly in its final two games after the Heisman vote was in, Detmer is not necessarily the favorite to repeat. Most eyes are being cast toward Houston's David Klingler.

"Considering what happened in our final games I can understand why," he said. "But I'd say there were probably eight or ten guys who started out ahead of me last year. If we go out and win some games early, we can get some of that back."

Detmer said one of the highlights of last season was being able to brighten the final days of his grandfather, Hubert Detmer, Sr., who died of cancer here March 12.

"It (Ty's success) was important to Hubert," Doris Detmer said at the time of her husband's death. "It gave him some thing to be here for. It kept him going."

"I'm just glad he was able to see it happen," Ty said. "We talked about once a week during the season and he was coherent. He knew what was going on."

Detmer spent a lot of time in tuxedos during a tumultuous off-season when everyone wanted a piece of him.

"I wore a tuxedo twice in my life before this year," said Detmer, recently honored at the Victor Awards in Las Vegas as the top college player.

He found his picture on a football trading card last month that could have cost him his final year of eligibility. The card, worth nine cents at printing, is selling for $30 in Provo.

Pro Set, a Dallas-based firm, included a card of Detmer in its 1991 NFL set. The company annually prints a card of the previous Heisman winner, although in the past that player has gone into the pros.

BYU publicist Raffi Zobell said the university reported the incident to the NCAA when it was discovered and Detmer has been cleared to continue his college career. Detmer's picture in a profit-making venture could have been a violation of NCAA rules, but neither he nor BYU was aware of the card until it came out.

Detmer said a friend in Provo has given him one of the cards.

Zobell, who coordinates Detmer's appearance and interview schedule, said Detmer "has remained the same old Ty" through all the hubbub.

When we caught up with Detmer last weekend he was headed for Fort Collins, Colo., to speak to a Mormon church group. He is in demand to speak regularly to civic, church and youth groups.

Detmer, who was baptized a Methodist, joined the Mormon church and became engaged to his college sweetheart, Kim Herbert, in January. Detmer will don a tuxedo once more for his wedding July 2 in Salt Lake City.

Conveniently, Ty and Kim will end their honeymoon July 19-20 at the Western Athletic Conference summer press gathering on the Hawaiian island of Maui.

Detmer said his contact with the Mormon faith at the predominantly Mormon BYU campus prompted him to join the church of his bride-to-be.

"It was not as big a deal as people made it out to be," he said. "I've been close enough to it to know that it fits what I want. It's a Christian religion."

Although pro football is an option Detmer plans to look at, he has no regrets at not testing the NFL marketplace after his junior year.

"It never crossed my mind," he said.

Detmer said he has received letters from agents seeking to represent him, although in violation of NCAA rules.

"Usually the first place those go is the trash can," he said. "I don't want to get involved with that."

Detmer has learned to live with his fame, which can be a grind with endless media requests (he had five interviews the day before leaving for Fort Collins) and fan adoration.

"It goes with the territory," he said. "It can be a grind but I know that is part of being in the situation I'm in."

Detmer also knows that if it gets too hot he can always find solitude with Kim hunting or fishing in the nearby Wasatch Mountains.

Brothers succeed in Arena league

By DARRYL RICHARDS
The Dallas Morning News
BEDFORD, Texas (AP) - Just six months ago, Arena Football was the last thing on Jeff Jenkins' mind.

Overweight by 25 pounds and lacking the motivation, Jenkins figured his football career was over at age 25.

Then Jenkins' brother, Alfred, a struggling quarterback, asked to help him prepare for a series of tryouts for the World League of American Football. As the Jenkinsons played catch and started lifting weights, Jeff became hungry to play again.

"We trained hard in Los Angeles," Jeff Jenkins said. "My brother, (current Texan) Gerald Bradley and I worked hard on pass routes and our conditioning. I knew football was in my heart. I just needed that push."

Since making the team, Jeff Jenkins has given the Texans an unexpected lift this season. Playing wide receiver/defensive back after a two-year layoff from the game, Jenkins has become their biggest defensive threat. He has a team-leading 25 tackles and three interceptions. Jenkins is tied for second in the AFL in tackles with Ray Puryear. Tampa running backlinebacker Lynn Bradford is first with 27. Jenkins is second in interceptions behind Denver's Alvin Williams, who has four.

Jeff Jenkins is enjoying the best of both worlds. His brother, Alfred, is the Texans' starting quarterback. The two have connected for seven receptions for 53 yards and a touchdown. Jeff Jenkins will have a chance to improve his statistics Saturday when the Texans (2-2) play Columbus (0-4) at Reunion Arena. Surprisingly, Jeff, a former wide receiver at Utah and in the Canadian Football League, is having more success on defense than in offense.

"When we went after Alfred, his father spent more time telling me about Jeff," Texans coach Drew Pearson said. "I started to think the whole family wanted to come down for a tryout. But Jeff has taken advantage of his opportunity. He has great athletic ability. He may be our best prospect to go to the next level because of that."

Jeff Jenkins has recaptured the feeling he had as a successful player. Jenkins, 5-11 and 180 pounds, found encouragement in being one of the final cuts by the Minnesota Vikings before joining the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the CFL for one year (1988).

He also thought about what was waiting for him at home in Lynwood, Calif. Jenkins has a six-month-old daughter Dioanna. He is also a freshman football coach at Lynwood High School, where he teaches inner-city youth the rudiments of the game.

"The kids always asked me why I didn't play," Jenkins said. "I couldn't just quit. I couldn't look them in the eye and give up hope when I always tell them they should always have hope."

Football and a strong parental influence kept both Jenkins away from the trappings of their environment. Living in the inner-city of Los Angeles, the incentives of joining a gang or trying to make money quickly were constants. Teenagers with bankrolls in their pockets drove luxury cars like BMWs and wore designer suits.

The temptation was always there to get involved in a gang or drug trafficking to make money. But Jeff Jenkins said playing sports and the gang members themselves kept the Jenkinsons away from that lifestyle.

To this day, many of Jeff Jenkins' best friends are gang members. Their status ranges from alive but wanted, incarcerated, to dead. But whenever Jenkins goes back to Lynwood he spends time with his friends because of the strength of their relationships. "They treat me with respect," Jenkins said. "The gangs wouldn't let me in when I was younger because I was an athlete and they knew I could do better. Right now, I'm doing what I have to do and they are doing what they feel they have to do."

Jenkins knows that to move to a higher level of professional football he must keep a positive attitude. When he was in Winnipeg, Jenkins said he talked back too much to coaches and did not fit in with the team. Jenkins said he ruffled the feathers of management because he wore earrings and tried to be too cool.

His attitude now is to be as professional as possible and keep his mouth shut.

"I'm doing a better job keeping myself in line," Jenkins said. "Plus, Jeff is here, so he keeps me in line, too."

Chaney knows pressure is on

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - Don Chaney knows how the game is played.

He led the Houston Rockets to a franchise-record 52 victories last season and he was named the NBA coach of the year, but Chaney doesn't expect to be elevated to genius status when the 1991-92 season begins.

"K.C. Jones won championship after championship and they still second-guessed him, so you'll always be subjected to second-guessing," Chaney said. "What it does is temporarily ease some of the tension.

"But next year they'll expect us to win 58 games and win the championship. The pressure is always there and you have to deal with it."

It's the way the game is played.

Chaney also knew the rules when he came to the Rockets in 1988 after leading the Los Angeles Clippers to a 12-70 record. Owner Charlie Thomas was second-guessed for his selection and Chaney knew he had to prove himself.

Chaney didn't earn his coaching credentials in the eyes of many fans until last season when Hakeem Olajuwon suffered an eye injury and was lost for 25 games.

Instead of folding, the Rockets blossomed under Chaney's direction and posted a 15-10 record in Olajuwon's absence. The Rockets had a 14-1 record in March that ranks as one of the top 15 monthly performances in NBA history.

Although the Rockets fizzled in the first round of the playoffs for the second straight year against the Los Angeles Lakers, Chaney went into the off-season knowing he'd done a good job.

"I'm extremely pleased that I got the award, I thought it was fantastic," Chaney said. "It doesn't take away from the fact that every year it's going to be a higher hill to climb and a tougher battle."

Chaney, always a disciple of strong defense, stressed it even more. He revamped the Rockets offense from a post-up offense featuring Olajuwon to a pick-and-roll that got the entire team involved.

Chaney kept the team together during Olajuwon's absence and blended his star center into the pick-and-roll when he returned. His handling of the mid-season crisis made Chaney the runaway winner for the coaching honor.

"The longer you're in the league the more you learn," Chaney said. "At the end of every year you feel you've gained and learned something. I'm very pleased with the way our team played and responded."

Don't expect Chaney to relax, now that the NBA draft is past, and sit around the house shining his trophy.

For a man whose coaching still has been described as gentle, Chaney is constantly on the move.

"I haven't relaxed in about 20 years and that's the truth," Chaney said.

"I have nervous energy and I have to continue to be on the go. I can't sit around the house to kick my legs up and watch TV."

For a man whose coaching still has been described as gentle, Chaney is constantly on the move.

"The only time I do that is when all the basketball business is taken care of," Chaney said. "Then I'm able to get into other sports or hobbies. But I have to stay busy."

Chaney plans some sky diving and may buy a cutting horse before the season begins.

Sierra glad to escape Puerto Rico ghettos

By KURT IVERSON
Dallas Times Herald

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Orlando Gomez says he remembers the public housing project in Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico, where he found Ruben Sierra and signed him for the Rangers.

"If you don't know your way around when you go in there," Gomez says, "you might never come out."

Sierra knows the feeling - even with eight years of professional baseball and millions of dollars separating him from the environment of his youth.

Major-league money put Sierra in the driver's seat of a flashy white Ferrari and put him and his mother in nice new homes in Puerto Rico.

Yet sometime when the Rangers return from an 11-game road trip, older brother Carlos will join Sierra in Arlington like a time traveler from Ruben's past.

Carlos, 31, helped raise Ruben from age 4 when their father died in a car accident. He was the family's first baseball prodigy, and he was a hero to Ruben, six years younger. He helped guard Ruben from the mean streets to keep him on the fields of Puerto Rico's Roberto Clemente Sports City, pointed to the big leagues.

But Carlos has yet to visit Arlington Stadium to watch his brother play. He has not ridden in the Ferrari. He has not helped his 3-month-old nephew, Ruben Jr.

For the past five years, Carlos has been in a Puerto Rican prison on drug-related charges.

"He's good now," Sierra says. "Everything is good with him."

Ruben smiles at the thought of his brother's pending freedom.

"I can't wait to see him. He won't be going back because I'll be watching out for him."

Sierra says it's the least he can do.

Carlos was like a father to him before Gomez and the Rangers' scouting department came along when Ruben was 17. A little fathering by the younger brother could bring the family full circle and mark the final departure from the projects.

Without the tight attitude, Sierra said he, too, could have wound up in a prison. Drugs were prevalent in Sierra's neighborhood. Carlos, Sierra says, could be standing in his Rangers shoes.

"He was better than me - more power. He always hit. His arm - like a cannon. Only one place he wasn't strong," Sierra said, pointing to his head.

Sierra found the strength and keeps it. Don't underestimate the difficulty of that, Gomez said.

"Ruben grew up in a situation where he had to look to his back all the time," Gomez said. "His father died early and that makes it very tough. He grew up in a place where drugs and prostitution were all around. I think that has made it very hard for Ruben to trust people. He still is growing away from that in a lot of ways. He is still maturing."

Even with the major-league uniform and the $2.625 million salary, Sierra dreams.

He dreams of a four-year, $20 million deal that his agent Chuck Beery could begin discussing with Rangers management at the All-Star break. Those figures would put him in the top range of baseball's elite money-makers.

That symbol does not escape Sierra. To fulfill his goal and be recognized as the best, he has to earn the most, he said. The principle seems as important as anything he could buy with a $2.375 million raise per year.

"You think they want me around that long?" Sierra said, smiling.

In a way, he is serious, Gomez said.

"Ruben needs to feel wanted, and the multiyear deal is something that would mean a lot to him. I would show him he is wanted. He considers Texas his home, and I don't think he ever wants to play for another team."

Still, Sierra has not bought a house in Texas as have many of his teammates.

"He's just waiting," Gomez said. "He's waiting for the right time. Again, he doesn't trust people very easy."

While his plans in Texas remain in blueprint form, Sierra is building on his idea of Puerto Rican paradise.

Ruben Jr. will only see the ghetto squalor from a distance, Sierra vows. His dream is filled with animals, because he had none coming up.

"You try to keep a gallo (rooster) where I lived, and it was gone the next morning," Sierra said. "Somebody would just take it."

So Sierra has nearly 500 gallos that he trains for legal cockfights along with friend and fellow major-leaguer Ivan Calderon. A friend trains the birds while the summer season keeps them away from the island. The fighters run and spar just like prize fighters. During the winter, hundreds of people gather in a local coliseum to challenge each other to matches where bets are placed.

There's only one problem, Sierra said. He and Calderon stick out in the crowd. Other trainers know the two have money, so they usually have more competition than they want.

Racing horses does not interest Sierra. But raising them is a different story, Sierra said he was fascinated by the regal prance of horses he saw in his childhood. Now he has five of his own that are boarded on a nearby ranch in Puerto Rico.

There were only four before this spring.

"We had the first colt," Sierra said. "That was fun."

Fatherhood has been good to Sierra, who seems to cherish the role of the experienced guardian whether he's doing it for a colt, Ruben Jr., young teammate Juan Gonzalez or Carlos Sierra.

Sierra already has big plans for Ruben Jr. His environment will be different, but Sierra said that doesn't matter.

"Do you think he'll be a great ballplayer? I don't know," Sierra said. "Then he thought for a moment and smiled: 'It's in the blood.'"

Youngster from Midland identifies with Dravecky

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Midland Reporter Telegram

MIDLAND, Texas - Feelings of disappointment and concern spread over 11-year-old Franklin Fuller last week when he heard the bad news. Once again, he would not get to see his friend.

Franklin had been hopeful one time before, last year, when unwelcome circumstances prevented him from finally getting to see the man he had looked up to for so long.

Saturday it was the same story.

Last year, a recurrence of cancer kept Dave Dravecky away from an appearance in Midland. Last week, Dravecky, the former San Diego Padres and San Francisco Giants pitcher, had his left arm and shoulder amputated because of the disease.

But Franklin wasn't disappointed so much for himself. It was more a feeling for Dravecky. Concern that cancer continues to make life uncomfortable for Dravecky.

"He's my friend," Franklin said of Dravecky. "I have a big poster of him on my wall and a baseball card with his autograph."

Franklin was one of about 500 people who showed up to sign a giant get well card for Dravecky, the former big leaguer who had been scheduled to speak at the Survivor's Day Celebration sponsored by Midland's Memorial Hospital and Medical Center.

To make sure that Dravecky doesn't miss his sentiments, Franklin signed the card twice just to be on the safe side.

Kelly Fuller, Franklin's mom, said her son has developed a special bond with Dravecky. When he found out Dravecky wouldn't be coming to Midland, Franklin had it all figured out.

"He wanted to find out where he was so he could call him," Mrs. Fuller said. "When he found out he was in New York, he wanted to know if we could go see him. Franklin would love to meet him. Hopefully one day he can."

Franklin identifies with Dravecky, which accounts for their special bond. Since he was 8 years old, Franklin has battled T-Cell Acute Lymphoblastic Leukemia. He has been through chemotherapy, radiation and bone marrow spinal taps. His treatments ended last November and he is in remission, but the disease forces him to wear a ball cap to cover the effects of the radiation.

Through all he's endured, Franklin has developed the same unending spirit as his friend. The two of them are alike, his mother says.

"They won't give their dreams up"

Golf tourney set in Amarillo

A golf tournament benefitting the Amarillo Senior Citizens Association will be held July 27 at Ross Rogers Golf Course in Amarillo. The tournament is in memory of W.W. "Windy" Nicklaus.

Tee times for the four-man Florida scramble are available from 7 a.m.-2 p.m.

A Ford Taurus will be given to the first golfer who aces No. 4 on the west course, and a golf bag and a full set of clubs will be awarded for the first ace on any other hole. Other prizes will be given for the longest drive and closest-to-the-pin, and gift certificates will be given to the top three finishers in each flight.

The entry fee is a $25. For more information call the association at 374-5500 during business hours or call Verlin Martin at 352-5036 after 5 p.m. and on weekends.

When Ted Williams batted .406 for the Red Sox in 1941 he made six hits in eight times at bat in a double-header on the last day of the season.

because they have cancer," Mrs. Fuller said of her son and Dravecky. "And this (the cancer) brings us all together and closer. Because we're going through the same thing together."

Crystal Carruthers is a baseball fan, too. She is 7 years old and she, too, hoped for the chance of meeting Dravecky. "Happy wishes" is how she signed the get well card.

Crystal is a leukemia survivor after having first contracted the disease when she was four. Like Franklin, she went through the rigors of three years of radiation. Her mother, Lori Carruthers, echoed Mrs. Fuller's feelings of the spirit of the young.

"Children are an inspiration because they fight so hard," Mrs. Carruthers said. "I compare him (Dravecky) to the kids. No matter what, kids tend to plod on forward. When we have setbacks we can only go forward. He's setting an example of bravery and courage for adults as well as children."

Franklin will head to Dallas in July for a bone marrow harvest. "In case the cancer comes back," Franklin said, "they can match (the bone marrow) easier."

Packed away in his suitcase or maybe in his back pocket, you can bet Franklin Fuller will have with him a very special autographed baseball card. Just a reminder of a friend he one day hopes to meet.

Seniors enjoy a relaxing dip in the pool

Members of the Hereford Senior Citizens take a dip in the pool after participating in the water exercise class. The spa area was added to the center almost one year ago. Those wishing to schedule a time for use of the spa can contact the Hereford Senior Center.

Spa offers relaxing pleasure

By DANEE' WILSON
Lifestyles Editor

Hereford Senior Citizens offers a fun, relaxing way to tone and loosen muscles, while improving endurance, strength and mental well being.

The spa area at Hereford Senior Citizens Center allows the seniors to come in, relax and enjoy the soothing waters.

"People who use the spa really enjoy it," said Margie Daniels, Hereford Senior Citizens director. "They are on their own personal fitness program and it is good mental therapy as well."

Regina Walterscheid teaches exercise classes in the large pool. According to Daniels, everyone is receptive to the classes and more have been added to meet needs.

"Several have requested use of the pool after hours," Daniels said. "Three evenings a week, Regina will be staying to teach a 5:15 p.m. class for the working ladies."

After doing pool exercises, the participants relax in the spa for about 5 to 10 minutes, according to need.

"The pool, spa and exercises help with circulation and mobility," Daniels said. "We regulate the temperatures of the water for those with high blood pressure."

"We had a woman who had been taking pain pills for cramps in her legs. She started using the pool and exercising everyday and has not taken a pain pill for five months. She says the exercises have made her more agile."

"Several men do the exercises because of their knees. One man said his work interfered with coming to exercise and his knee started bothering him again because he quit exercising. He said he is changing his work schedule to come exercise."

In addition to the spa area, the center is adding two healthmaster exercise machines.

"Dr. Gerald Glasscock donated a healthmaster machine and we are buying another one," Daniels said. "The machines will be here next week. It is not a bicycle. It exercises different areas of the body according to strength. We're really excited about it."

"We got two machines because we felt two would be a lot more fun. It is easier to exercise with someone than by yourself. Now they'll be able to work out with someone and have someone to visit with."

Those seniors wishing to take advantage of the healthy water of the spa or of the new healthmaster machine can reserve a time by contacting the senior center.

Holiday Food Safety

Don't let food poisoning ruin the Fourth of July holiday festivities. Safe food handling is important any time, but especially when outdoors in the summer heat on picnics and cookouts and when feeding large groups.

Bacteria that cause food poisoning grow most rapidly at warm temperatures. It can be spread with dirty hands, utensils, wraps and anything else that touches food.

To keep July 4 foods safe, follow these tips:

- * Always keep perishable foods cold or hot. The dangerous zone is 40 degrees Fahrenheit to 140 degrees F. foods should not be left in this temperature range longer than necessary during preparation, cooking or serving. Any leftovers should be chilled right away. For picnics, an ice chest is a necessity for perishable foods like meats, poultry, eggs, sandwich spreads, salads, milk and milk products.

- * If purchasing foods from take-out, fast-food places or supermarket delicatessens, take precautions. When you purchase these foods, either eat them immediately or keep them cooled below 40 degrees F. Never leave them in a hot car.

- * For cookouts, cleanliness and sanitation are especially important. When barbecuing, don't use the same plates or utensils for cooking meat that carried raw meat, unless you've washed them first. Away from home, moist hand wipes can help keep hands clean. Clean paper towels are one solution to the problem of dirty cloth towels harboring bacteria.

- * For buffets or potluck dinners, wait as long as possible to prepare foods before serving, or prepare ahead of time and refrigerate until just before eating. Although it looks great to leave the food spread out on the picnic table, it's better to be safe by eating immediately and then storing leftovers promptly. In hot summer temperatures, it's best not to leave perishable foods out for more than one hour.

Because most food poisoning bacteria are odorless, colorless and tasteless, common sense is your best protection against foodborne illness.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in an elegant designer's gown. The satin and organza sabrina neckline was adorned with hanging strands of pearls. The butterfly sleeves were trimmed with multi-tiered rows of organza ruffles topped by candlelight satin roses. The fitted basque bodice was encrusted with pearls, clusters of jeweled appliques, and molded medallions. Swirls of pearls fell from the waistline. The skirt featured lace appliques, satin roses and crystallized hand beaded designs on the organza overlay. The back of the gown was trimmed with scalloped lace and centered with a large satin bow. The Queen's court cathedral train featured a full crystal organza skirt hemmed with a deep ruffled border and adorned with a waterfall cascade of organza ruffles.

The crystal organza fingertip veil fell from a ruffled headpiece adorned with jeweled roses, molded medallions, and pearl sprays. The headpiece was encrusted in seed pearls.

The bride's seven layer ivory buttercream cake featured scalloped ruffles and shells in an elegant design. Three tiers were separated by crystal-like pillars as the center focal point and were set over a fountain flowing with lavender water. A fresh floral theme consisting of sterling silver roses, pixies, baby's breath and greenery encircled the base of the fountain. Crystal like staircases branched off to each side to join two satellite cakes.

The groom's table featured a garden basket of lavender paladiums, assorted fresh flowers, blooming plants and a silver coffee service. The two-tiered cocoa fudge cake was decorated in a unique basket weave design with chocolate roses cascading down one side.

More than 200 guests were served finger foods from a buffet decorated with candelabra. The buffet consisted of fruit, cheese trays, marinated vegetable trays, five layer dip trays and a variety of finger sandwiches.

Q. I have several good rags that I use to wax my cars. Is there a way to clean them, removing the old acrylic car wax? — Harvey S., Houston, Texas

A. Acrylic car wax is easy to remove from rags. Just mix together 1 cup of ammonia, ¼ cup of powdered laundry detergent (that does not contain bleach) and ½ gallon of cool water.

Let the rags soak in this solution for 30 minutes. Then wring them out, toss in the washing machine and wash using detergent and the hottest water possible.

The rags will be clean and free of acrylic car wax. — Heloise

ICE-CREAM CRYSTALS

Dear Heloise: I place clear plastic wrap directly on the surface of ice cream before returning the open container to the freezer.

It keeps the ice crystals from forming and the ice cream tasting like "new"! — Krista McCart, Pfafftown, N.C.

Dear Heloise: Why do clothing manufacturers put an elastic waist on dresses or skirts and then provide a regular belt? It would be so much more sensible to have a stretch belt also. — E.H., Flagler Beach, Fla.

Wednesday the battery and fixtures for the lighting of the Hereford National Bank by electricity was received and that evening Cashier Clinkinbeard installed the new plant. By request of a number of old friends and failure upon my part to secure someone else, I will preach next Sunday at 11 a.m. This will likely be my last sermon here, so I will be glad to have all attend. My theme will be "What do you get out of Christianity." F.T. Denson

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Freedom To Compete

In his book, How to Win Friends and Influence People, Dale Carnegie illustrates the value of competition with a story about Charles Schwab. Schwab was the first president of U.S. Steel and earned a million dollars per year in the 1920s.

Schwab had a mill manager who simply could not get the mill to make quota. The manager had coaxed, cussed and threatened, but the crews just wouldn't produce.

One day, Schwab visited the mill to discuss the problem with the manager. Near the end of the dayshift, Schwab asked for a piece of chalk and turned to the nearest worker. "How many heats did your shift make today?" Schwab asked. "Six" was the reply. Without a word, Schwab chalked a huge figure "6" on the floor and walked away.

When the nightshift came in, they saw the "6" on the floor and asked what it meant. "The big boss was here today," the dayshift answered. "He asked us how many heats we made, and he chalked it down to the floor."

The next mornin' Schwab walked through the mill again. The nightshift had rubbed out the "6" and replaced it with an even larger "7". When the dayshift reported for work a little later, they saw the "7" on the floor. The day crew decided to show the nightshift a thing or two. They pitched in with enthusiasm and, when they went home that afternoon, left behind an enormous, swaggering "10."

Within weeks, this mill that had been lagging way behind in production became one of the most productive in the company. How did it happen? Charles Schwab explained it like this: "The way to get things done is to stimulate competition. I do not mean in a sordid, money-getting way, but in the desire to excel."

The Desire to Excel

Competition brings out the best in business, products and people. Henry Ford II said, "Competition is the keen cutting edge of business, always shaving at costs."

Today, America enjoys one of the highest standards of living in the world. Even our poor are wealthy by comparison. One of the reasons we have achieved greatness is our desire to excel. To prove our worth, to express ourselves, to win at the game of life -- that is our motivation. It is not the competition itself that drives us; it is the desire to excel and prove our importance.

I find it highly interesting that the American who taught the Japanese how to compete frequently damns competition.

W. Edwards Deming, the American management guru, recently said in an interview with the Wall Street Journal that competition is bad. Deming stated that all Americans think about is competition.

I'm sorry, Mr. Deming, but I don't agree. Everyday I work with businessmen and women who care about their customers and their employees. They are in competition but not focused on the competition. They are focused on their desire to excel, improve and be successful. And, they are succeeding. Celebrate the Freedom

This week, we will once again celebrate our independence. On July 4th, let us pause and remember that of our independence is the freedom to compete.

We have the freedom to compete for profit, customers and our slice of the pie. We do not have to agree with each other to enjoy our freedom. Adlai Stevenson said, "Freedom rings where opinions clash." Former president Kennedy said, "The cost of freedom is always high, but Americans have always paid it." Albert Camus said, "Freedom is nothing else but a chance to be better."

I pray that America will continue to thrive through competition and the free enterprise system. Celebrate your freedom this week. Let us come together to thank God for our country and for the right to excel and better ourselves.

Don Taylor is the director of West Texas State University's Panhandle Small Business Development Center.

Economists face two different worlds

Reaction to latest report of good times ahead: 'Show Me'

NEW YORK (AP) - From the ordinary person's point of view, a basic defect of economic forecasters is their tendency to ignore the present and deal with future, as if that were the real world.

To the forecasters, the more meaningful world is not the early summer, now being observed by most people, but the fall. At that time, they say, the economy will again be moving forward.

As a consequence, the ordinary folks now mired in recession are assured almost every day that things are getting better. The popular forecast, the consensus, is that recovery is upon us.

Meanwhile, those ordinary folks cannot help but wonder how their painful plight is so easily ignored, and how the very dismal economic statistics that document that plight are treated as if they were part of the past.

What statistics? There are about 8.5 million unemployed, not to mention those on reduced hours, those involuntarily working part time rather than full time, and those who have been dropped from the work force because they tired of looking.

There is evidence of rising household debt, such as the high delinquency rates on installment loans and home mortgages. There's a University of Michigan survey that found 14 percent of households admitted being delinquent in 1990.

There's evidence of higher taxes, an erosion of personal income, inflation in health insurance policies, low savings rates, a decline of interest income, high personal bankruptcies, curtailed corporate dividends and more.

As the forecasters expropriate reality and talk about the future, there is a tendency to ignore and even deny the credit crunch in some areas, a collapsed multifamily housing market, low corporate profits, a high rate of initial jobless claims, a sharp decline in machine tool orders.

Low levels of economic activity, as in retail sales, are lightly dismissed by forecasters, who append to them an upward arrow, meaning the direction is more important than the level. It goes on in dozens of categories.

For the ordinary person, however, now is very real. Moreover, they have reason to question the ability of forecasters, especially when forecasters lean on each other for security in the so-called consensus outlook.

People choose not to forget, for example, that the consensus a year ago at this time was that recession would be avoided. Even after ordinary people knew a recession had begun, it was denied by many forecasters.

Some might even remember that Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, assured Congress last year that the United States would avoid recession because, he said, business inventories were under control.

They might recall when the recession was officially recognized and no longer could be denied except at great risk to reputations, that many forecasters declared it would be short, shallow and over by spring.

It explains why so many people today have a "show me" attitude toward the latest consensus forecast, which is that the recession is over - for their intents and purposes, anyway.

Too many people are looking at a different set of figures, current ones, and they cannot ignore those figures. They have jobs to keep and bills to pay, and they're too busy with that hard job to make plans based on easy forecasts.

Chinese premier Hua Guofeng formally told Parliament in 1980 he was resigning his government post in favor of economist Chao Ziyang. The five most popular sports activities for American adults are swimming, fishing, bicycling, bowling and running.

Balcony Overlooks Activity Room and Kitchen

PRIVATE MASTER SUITE LOCATED ON MAIN LEVEL

© BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

This two story European style home features spacious rooms and a private master suite. From the foyer, wide doorways invite visitors into the dining room or the gallery, and an open rail stairway leads either upstairs to the bedrooms or downstairs to the basement. The gallery provides convenient access to the master suite, vaulted activity room with fireplace, and country kitchen.

Extra design details make this kitchen something special. A central island provides a convenient snack bar and additional cabinets. Modern appliances, a pantry, and handy built-in desk cut down on the time-consuming tasks required to run a household. Immediately adjacent to the kitchen are two storage closets, a half bath, laundry room, and double garage.

The master suite is exclusively situated on one end of the main floor. The bedroom features access to a private sun deck, tray ceiling and twin walk-in closets. Attention to details such as separate vanities, private toilet area, whirlpool tub, separate shower, and vaulted ceiling make the master bath a place of quiet retreat.

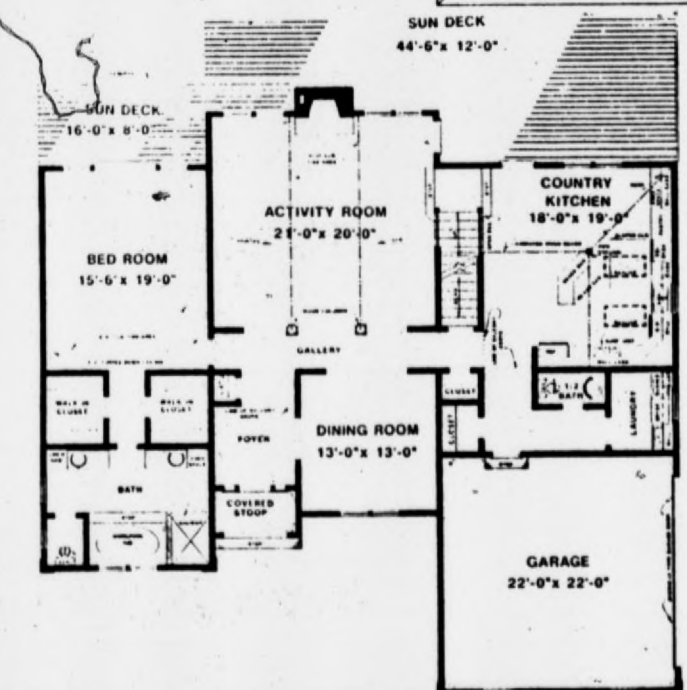

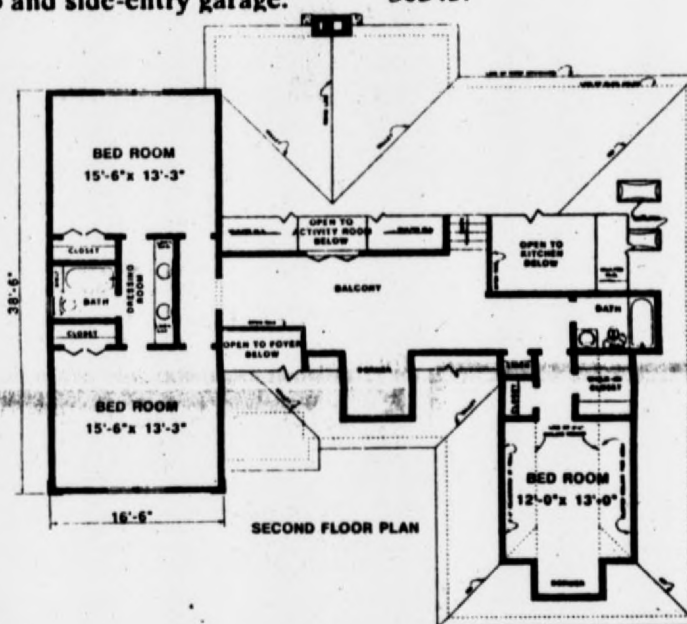

Upstairs, the home has three additional bedrooms, two of which feature dual access to a double vanity. The third bedroom has a private bath. The balcony, which overlooks the activity room and the kitchen, is large enough to set up a conversation area and includes a cozy dormer nook.

This home is built on a basement foundation. The stairway is conveniently situated between the activity room and kitchen.

The stucco exterior is embellished with a combination of trimmed multi-lite and arched windows, decorative corner quoins, double window dormers, and combined hip and gable roof design with multiple roof breaks. The home also has a recessed front stoop and side-entry garage.

This is a computer generated plan. The plan is Number 3324. It includes 3,373 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information, write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

'American Masters' returns to PBS

Actress Helen Hayes (seen here in costume for Vanessa, Her Love) is paid tribute in the latest installment of Public Television's critically acclaimed series American Masters. After more than 80 years as an actress, Hayes is eulogized by her peers and inheritors, Monday.

By Steven Alan McGaw

In a medium that thrives on superlatives ("this astounding miniseries," "a legendary performer," etc.), Public Television's acclaimed American Masters series has striven to be different. In five seasons, the show's consistently well-executed episodes have focused on artists, performers, thinkers and institutions responsible for legitimate, lasting contributions to the nation's heritage.

Far from tabloid-style sensationalism or awards-show frenzy, American Masters has tried to offer calm, insightful appraisals of a given subject's importance, influence and place in the larger cultural context. That effort continues as the prestigious, award-winning series enters its sixth season, Monday, July 1, on most PBS stations.

The season opener of American Masters focuses on actress Helen Hayes. Long ago christened "The First Lady of the American Theater," Hayes' remarkable career has spanned more than 80 years and included work on stage and in films, radio and television. In that time, Hayes has won two Oscars, had a theater renamed in her honor and received ceaseless praise for her artistry and professionalism. Many of her peers and inheritors appear in the program, citing her body of work and well-known integrity.

Narrated by Jason Robards, the tribute features the observations of friends and colleagues like James Stewart, Colleen Dewhurst, Eli Wallach and Angela Lansbury. Producers conducted an in-depth interview with Hayes herself, and segments from that conversation are combined with historic clips from some of the actress' greatest performances. (Sadly, no film or photographic record exists of a number of Hayes' stage appearances; she made her Broadway debut in 1909.)

Despite several personal tragedies (including the deaths of her husband, playwright Charles MacArthur, and their young daughter, who was a victim of polio), Hayes established a matchless resume, both on Broadway and in Hollywood, for stage triumphs like The Front Page, Victoria Regina and Mary Chase's hilarious Mrs. McThing and work in films such as A Farewell to Arms, My Son John, Anastasia and Airport.

Besides having the profound admiration and affection of audiences and peers alike, Hayes has been honored countless times, including a prestigious Kennedy Center citation. Through it all, the star has remained modest, saying simply, "I just wanted to do the very best I could."

Stephen King turns to TV-series writing

Employed at a secret military installation, Keith Szarabajka faces weird developments in The Golden Years, Stephen King's first work written for TV. The series premieres later this month on CBS.

Will Szarabajka be a household name?

By Amy Schmidt

While Keith Szarabajka's name (pronounced Sara-BIKE-uh) may not ring a mental bell, Stephen King's surely does. The former Equalizer actor (Szarabajka played Mickey, Edward Woodward's right-hand man) is set to star in King's The Golden Years, the first series horror-novelist King has written solely for TV. The seven-episode chiller, filmed in North Carolina, is scheduled to debut Sunday, July 14, on CBS.

In The Golden Years, Szarabajka plays an elderly janitor who cleans up at a top-secret military facility, until he gets into a real mess wrought by a chemical explosion.

What follows is a dramatic transformation that CBS has asked we not give away. Suffice it to say that Szarabajka spends six hours a day in makeup.

"There are no monsters in this thing," however, says the Chicago-bred actor. "The monsters are monsters from the id. They are more just personality manifestations."

Co-starring with Szarabajka are Francis Sternhagen, who plays Norm's mom on Cheers and Felicity Huffman, who replaced Madonna in the Broadway play Speed the Plow. ("And it was a welcome replacement," he says.)

King, himself, is to make an appearance in the show's fifth episode. Word has it he is, indeed, a competent actor.

The Golden Years is not the only July TV premiere for Szarabajka. On Friday, July 5, he stars in the off-Broadway play Hyde in Hollywood on PBS' American Playhouse anthology series. Set in the golden age of Hollywood, the production features Szarabajka as a ruthless gossip columnist reminiscent of Walter Winchell in his broadcasting heyday.

And of Szarabajka's tough-to-read name? No one in show business with any decency has ever dared ask him to change it. "It's Polish and means 'grey fairy tale.' It's kind of fitting for The Golden Years, don't you think?" he remarks proudly.

SOAP TALK

Jill's custody fight for Phillip's son is hypocritical

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I've been watching The Young and the Restless since it first aired. The one thing that bothers me most is how sickening Jill has become since this court case with Nina started.

Jill is going on and on about Nina not being fit to raise Jill's grandson — the same Jill who put her own son in boarding school because she was chasing after every rich man around! Jill's mother was the one who helped raise him until he was sent off to school. Now Jill wants to raise her grandson because it's all she has left of her son, Phillip.

Do the writers think Katherine, or we viewers, have forgotten? And why is John Abbott still putting up with her? Thanks for listening. —Mildred Stout, Lynchburg, Mo.

Dear Reader: As you already know, Jill got what was coming to her when Nina was exonerated.

As for John, wouldn't it be great if he and Leanna got together? That would really set Jill's hair on end!

Dear Candace: Days of Our Lives is getting worse all the time. I can't stand Jack and Jennifer and Maggie and Neil. I wish Shane and Kimberly would get back together.

I never used to want to miss a day of the show, but now I don't ever feel like I've missed anything if I do miss it. I don't like what they are doing with Kayla and Shane. They are definitely going to have to improve from where they are now if I'm going to continue watching the show. —Thanks from a fan in Conroe, Texas

Dear Reader: I, for one, am excited about the storyline of Shane and Kayla and Kimberly and Lawrence. It has certainly made things more lively on the show. It will be interesting to see where it all leads. In a recent interview, Charles Shaughnessy told me that he would like to see Shane and Kayla have an affair, but in the end Shane would go back to Kimberly.

Air power dominates the cable scene

By Dan Rice

Desert Storm, the mother of all media events, is back in a four-part retrospective beginning Sunday, June 30, on A&E. America's Secret War, The Air Assault, The Ground Assault, and Strategy and Tactics provide one more look at big-budget combat footage.

If you find yourself hungry for more air power, you'll want to catch the Showtime debut of Firebirds Saturday, July 6. Nicolas Cage, Sean Young and Tommy Lee Jones star in this tribute to the Apache attack helicopter.

For those who prefer fierce competition with the peaceful silence of spinning wheels, ESPN will offer the Tour de France in three taped highlights shows starting Wednesday, July 3. Root for American Greg LeMond as he defends his title in the world's most prestigious bicycle race.

Still out in the woods, the producers of Twin Peaks explore the joys of summer camp with Salute Your Shorts, a new comedy series on Nickelodeon. There will be three sneak peeks on Thursday, July 4, so get those s'mores ready.

The sensitive subject of rape victimization is the focus of HBO's America Undercover: Rape: Cries From the Heartland. Debuting Tuesday, July 2, this graphic documentary tells the brutal stories of seven survivors of this crime of violence, which occurs every five minutes in this country and is on the upswing.

Comics come alive in 'Dick Tracy'

By Sherry Jones
 Chester Gould's comic-strip hero Dick Tracy comes to Showtime and The Movie Channel in July, and with him comes a band of mobsters with nothing but the worst in mind. Warren Beatty, returning to the Hollywood mainstream after years of a self-imposed hiatus, takes on the title role in Touchstone Pictures' Dick Tracy.

But unlike the comic strip, where Tracy got to take on one terror at a time, the detective's got his hands full here as an all-star cast of mobsters conspires to make his life miserable. Al Pacino plays Big Boy Caprice, the crime boss who was jailed by Tracy on his first case, so when he shows up in town, it is apparent that he is out for revenge. William Forsythe plays Flat-top Jones, who is imported from Cookson Hills to get rid of Tracy once and for all. Dustin Hoffman is Mumbles, the singer-turned-con man-turned-murderer.

When Tracy's not dodging Big Boy's henchmen, he's busy fending off saloon singer Breathless Mahoney (Madonna), who tries to steal him away from his beloved Tess Truheart (Glenn Headly).

As if all of this weren't enough, a mysterious new phantom called The Blank makes an appearance. With Oscar-winning makeup and wonderful show tunes by Stephen Sondheim, Dick Tracy is bound to cause excitement for everyone.

'Robin Hood' riding high

NEW YORK (AP) - The wedding's off, and now Julia Roberts' Hollywood honeymoon is over, too.

Kevin Costner, meanwhile, is riding high.

Miss Roberts' new movie, "Dying Young," did just that. Considered within the industry one of the summer movie season's likely hits, "Dying Young" was killed in its debut by Costner in "Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves."

"Robin Hood" was the nation's most popular movie for the second week in a row, Exhibitor Relations Co. reported Monday. With $57.5 million in the bank to date, the adventure film stands out as the season's first real smash.

"Dying Young," on the other hand, opened in fourth place with thin ticket sales of $9.7 million and probably won't be around for long.

The maudlin story of a leukemia patient (Campbell Scott) and his nurse-lover (Miss Roberts) was savaged by the critics and is getting lousy word of mouth.

Executives at 20th Century Fox, the film's maker, did not immediately return calls Monday for comment on the film's lackluster performance.

Miss Roberts is Hollywood's highest-paid actress, earning a reported $7 million a movie. Before "Dying Young" made its sluggish premiere, she was thought to be one of the industry's most bankable stars. The "Pretty Woman" star was to have wed actor Kiefer Sutherland on June 14, but the wedding was canceled at the last minute.

"Robin Hood" got lousy reviews, too, yet audiences are leaving theaters enthralled and telling friends to go see it, its producers say.

"I think it's really an audience participation movie," said John Watson, who co-wrote and produced "Robin Hood." "We're getting a lot of cheering, booing of the villain and a lot of laughter."

Reviewers generally blasted the movie, saying Costner's performance was wooden and the film's modern-day sensibilities were out of place.

"Critics are not really seeing the movie for its full value," Watson said. "They perceive somehow that Errol Flynn should be reincarnated in the 1990s. We didn't set out to make an updated Errol Flynn. We set out to make a truly unusual Robin Hood - a reluctant hero."

"Robin Hood" is attracting a generous share of female moviegoers. Women tend to shun action-adventure movies.

"Kevin Costner has primarily female appeal and we took great pains to play up the romantic aspects of this movie," said Rob Friedman, president of worldwide publicity and marketing for Warner Bros.

"Everybody's loving the film," Friedman said. "Everybody but the critics."

"Robin Hood" appears to have staying power. Its gate for last weekend was down just 29 percent from its premiere weekend. Last summer, "Total Recall" slipped 41 percent in its second weekend, "Die Hard 2" fell 33 percent and "Days of Thunder" 31 percent.

Still, "Robin Hood" may not be atop the box office charts for long. In fact, it may not last beyond the weekend.

"Oh, I'm pretty sure 'The Naked Gun 2 1/2' will be No. 1," Watson said.

PRICING POLICY: Not all items in this publication are on sale. Prices marked "Only" refer to our everyday low prices. REFERENCE RETAIL: An item's Reference Retail price is your guide to its regular selling price at department stores and similar retailers. It is not our present or former selling price. You may want to make an exact comparison of retailer prices before you buy. Our Reference Retail price is either the suggested retail price recommended by the manufacturer in this publication's distribution areas or our own determination of full retail price based on customary retailer markups for similar merchandise. LOW PRICE GUARANTEE: If you find a lower price within 30 days on an identical item, just bring us the proof and we'll match the price! And if we advertise it for less within 30 days, we'll refund the difference. The BEST Low Price Guarantee cannot apply to clearance prices, manufacturer's releases, going-out-of-business sales, floor samples, one-of-a-kind items or limited quantities, nor can it apply if the item is available only through Mail Order or if the local retailer does not have the merchandise on the premises and available for sale at the advertised price. We will match the competitor's advertised price for up to 30 days after you purchase an item from BEST. Simply bring us your receipt. Because quality and workmanship vary so greatly in jewelry, no two items are ever truly identical and our standard guarantee cannot apply. JEWELRY SATISFACTION GUARANTEE: After you buy your jewelry from us, take up to 90 days to consider your purchase. If you're not completely satisfied, just return the item to us and we'll offer you an exchange or refund. WARRANTY INFORMATION: Our own limited and full warranties, as well as all manufacturers' warranties for products we sell for $15 or more, are available in our showrooms or by writing: Best Products Co., Inc., P.O. Box 26303, Richmond, VA 23269, ATTN: Warranty Department. RAIN CHECKS: If ever a temporary shortage of any advertised item occurs, we will offer you a RAIN CHECK assuring you the advertised price on re-supply, unless the advertised price is marked "Limited Quantity," "Clearance" or "Special Purchase." Rain checks may not be available on merchandise that is seasonal in nature. IN ORDER TO ASSURE THE FAIR DISTRIBUTION OF MERCHANDISE, WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITY PURCHASES PER CUSTOMER. Please see address area for showrooms which may not carry all the merchandise in this publication. SYMBOL KEYS: *Cannot be shipped parcel post or UPS. Must be shipped by truck. ♦Assembly required. †Batteries required. ©Not available through Mail Order. ○Cannot be shipped to Alaska, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Virgin Islands or APO/FPO addresses.
BEST, BEST and BEST PRODUCTS are registered service marks of the Virginia Corporation, Best Products Co., Inc., trading as Best Products Co., Inc., a Virginia Corporation in North Carolina, Minnesota and Florida. Any typographical, photographic, clerical or other discrepancy is subject to correction in pricing and description.

If you find a lower price we'll match it!

Bring in proof if our competitor has a lower price on the identical model and we'll match it. Or if we advertise it for less within 30 days we'll refund the difference. See back cover for complete details.
