Unique growing promotes ecology

Al Daniels of Hereford is trying to help the ecology and help himself with a unique way of growing tomatoes.

Daniels, in his back yard at 126 Juniper, is using old tires and mulch made from old newspapers and grass clippings to grow the tomatoes. In a 20-foot strip, using drip irrigation, he has created six tomato-growing pots.

Daniels cuts the bead off the old tires and turns the tires inside out to create his unique tomato-growing containers. After tomato season, he said, he will till the mulch into the soil to use again in later years.

Help needed for July 4th firework show

One of the highlights of the July 4th celebration in Hereford will be a huge fireworks display--but your help is needed to make it a success.

Organizers of the event are accepting donations for the show, and hope to raise enough money this year to help finance future shows.

Several large donations have already been secured from some local businesses, and the Hereford Lions Club donated $500 to the event last week. Organizers said all donations, no matter how big or small, will be welcomed.

The names of all contributors will be included in the Brand over the next month to help promote donations to the event. Donations may be mailed to the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, Box 192, Hereford 79045, or taken by the chamber office at Seventh and Main. Checks should be made out to the chamber, but be sure and put "Fireworks" on the "for" line.

The huge fireworks display will be virtually the same as that produced in Amarillo. Western Enterprises of Enid, Okla., will produce the show here. Professional operators will be firing the display at the rate of 24 shells per minute, with a gradual progression from smaller shells to larger and more spectacular shells prior to the grand aerial finale. The finale will begin with a salvo of 70 color-changing shells, 300 thunder reports and a large Chrysanthemum breaking high above it all.

Donations for the July 4th fireworks show have been made by: Hereford State Bank, First National Bank, Bar G Feedyard, Champion Feeders, AXT's Cattle Company and the Hereford Lions Club.

Family visits exchange student

By DANEE WILSON
Staff Writer

After a year of absence, exchange student Birgitte Kjaersgaard and her parents were reunited for a joyous graduation event.

Erik and Jett Kjaersgaard were greeted by a great West Texas twister and hail storm as they flew into Amarillo on an Eagle, a flight to be long remembered by the family.

"We had always heard about tornadoes and saw them on television, but we have never seen one in person," the Kjaersgaards, who live in Saudi Arabia, said. "I did not enjoy the flight," said Jett. "We were in the air during the thunderstorm and we kept hitting pockets of air and we would plunge downward. I thought I had seen my last days," she joked.

Birgitte has been in Hereford for a year, staying with Gene and Cynthia Streun on the International Educational Foreign Exchange program.

"We were having second thoughts, of course, about sending her over here," said Erik. "We knew Americans from living in Saudi Arabia. Birgitte went to an American school in Saudi Arabia. She liked the American school. We always thought the Americans were hospitable."

"We have two daughters living in the United States," said Jett. "Birgitte is not scared to try something new. It was her decision to come here. When she gets something in her mind, she is going to do it."

The Kjaersgaard family felt comforted knowing that Birgitte was in a good family with strong values.

"I think she came to the right place," Jett said with a relief knowing her daughter was in a good home. "She is in a nice family, and as parents, that is a real comfort. In Denmark, you're considered an adult at 18. You can go to bars, buy liquor, here you can't. I think that is good."

Being hundreds of miles away from your family can be lonesome, especially during the holidays.

"We really missed her a lot," said Jett. "You can't keep your children forever. She has to experience things for herself."

"She missed us too," said Erik. "It was especially hard at Christmas time. We were supposed to come and visit during February, but the crisis in the gulf prohibited us from coming. I couldn't leave the country during that time."

The Kjaersgaard family didn't feel that were in danger because of the situation in Saudi Arabia.

"When the government advised the families to leave," said Erik, "Jett and (See FAMILY, Page 2A)

Burns adds special touch to pharmacy

By DANEE WILSON
Staff Writer

When couples get married they become partners for life. Some go beyond the realms of homelife and extend the partnership into a joint business. David and Cindy Burns joined together to form a pharmacy-gift shop combination, which they feel is unusual to Hereford.

David has been in the private pharmaceutical business for 10 years. West Park Drug as been located in its present building for five years.

Although they are partners, David and Cindy don't spend much time together at the store.

"Cindy is mainly the purchasing agent," said David. "She doesn't spend a lot of time here. She would rather buy merchandise. She spends time in research looking for unusual gift items. She works really hard at market to find gifts."

Before putting in the gift addition to West Park Drug, Cindy worked in interior design.

"When we had the opportunity to move into the building," said David. "Most all the materials came from Santa Fe, N.M. We wanted the Santa Fe look and feel in the store. The doors were hand made in Santa Fe, the tiles, wood and prints came from there too."

"I enjoy being able to work with my wife. We compliment each other well."

Prior to adding the gift shop, the Burns tried to focus solely on being a full line drug store, but said because of discount chains it didn't go over well.

"In the field of pharmacy, we are seeing more and more government and insurance control, making it necessary to do something else besides, just fill prescriptions."

Insurance and government aren't the only controlling factors in the fall of the private pharmacist. Mail order is hurting as well.

"Mail order is a threat to local pharmacists," David said. "Business

•Burns fears more government control, mail-order business hurting local efforts insurance is offering mail order at a reduced cost. I think mail order is low quality care because the customers don't have the one on one relationship.

"People don't realize what they are giving up. Mail order can't come in on Thanksgiving and holidays to fill prescriptions. With all the things working within the pharmacy, I'm glad we have the gift shop to fall back on."

David and his wife are pleased the support of the people of Hereford.

"Hereford has been real receptive to us and our business and we're thankful of that. I hope to get more people to shop Hereford rather than go out of town."

Spacewalk still being considered for Columbia

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Columbia astronauts took turns riding a bicycle, collected more blood and checked on their collection of creatures as they waited word on whether a spacewalk will be needed to repair a loose seal in the shuttle's cargo bay.

NASA flight director Randy Stone said Friday that officials had not yet decided if the piece of loose weatherstripping could prevent Columbia's payload bay doors from closing properly for the trip home next week.

"Everything I've seen says it's safe to close the doors to return exactly in the configuration that we're in now," Stone said. "(But) there's still more data to be analyzed, and I would be foolish to tell you I know what the answer is until I know the answer."

If tests indicate the seal might pose a problem for landing, astronauts

Tamara Jernigan and James Bagian could perform a spacewalk as early as Sunday to either snip off the loose strip or snap it back in place.

Stone said NASA officials could decide as early as today to order a spacewalk or allow the nine-day biomedical research mission to continue as planned.

The 60-foot-long doors must close and latch properly for the planned June 14 landing or Columbia could be damaged or even burn up during the fiery re-entry into the Earth's atmosphere.

A special team of engineers duplicated the loose seal problem on the Discovery space shuttle Friday night at Cape Canaveral, Fla. They practiced lowering the left door several times almost until it was shut to see what would happen to the seal.

NASA also may order the crew to practice closing Columbia's doors sometime during the flight, Stone said. An astronaut could stay inside Spacelab, the elaborate medical laboratory in the cargo bay, to watch the process through a window in the compartment.

Columbia thundered into orbit Wednesday on a mission dedicated to medical research. Four of the seven astronauts have been poking and prodding one another in a series of experiments designed to better understand what happens to humans when they go in space.

The astronauts have been collecting blood, urine and saliva and monitoring the various systems in the body. They also rode a stationary bike to study how much blood flows from the heart during exercise in space.

Spacelab is about the size of a small bus in the cargo bay and is connected to the crew compartment by a tunnel the astronauts easily float through.

A collection of 29 rats and 2,478 tiny jellyfish that also are aboard Columbia will be studied after the flight. The rodents were reported in good shape Friday.

"Actually, some of them are floating around and having a good time and doing somersaults. They're getting quite used to zero-gravity," said cell biologist Millie Hughes-Fulford.

Scientists noted one surprise Friday after getting results from lung tests. They expected the blood to be uniformly distributed in the astronauts' lungs, but it wasn't in at least two crewmen, said Dr. John West, the experiment's investigator. On Earth, the blood is unevenly distributed because gravity causes it to sink to the bottom of the lungs.

FAMILY

our youngest daughter went back to Denmark. I didn't think we were in danger. We lived 800 miles from the fighting. The schools were still open."

Although the family is glad Birgitte was able to come to the US to study, they are happy she is coming home.

"For selfish reasons we would not like for her to stay," said Erik. "If there were opportunities here for her, I would say why not."

"These are difficult times in Denmark," Jett said. "It is difficult to find work."

"We have traveled around the world, been to a lot of places and tried to open our children's eyes and let them know there are other opportunities outside of Denmark," Erik said. "They know how to get around and behave."

"I think Birgitte is ready to go back to Denmark and think about what is coming next," said Jett.

While in Hereford the Kjaersgaards family enjoyed visiting the Cowgirl Hall of Fame, Hereford Bi-Products and the Deaf Smith County Museum.

"We didn't really want to tour the area," they said. "We just wanted to see where Birgitte had been staying and meet her friends."

The Kjaersgaards are appreciative of the people of Hereford and their receptiveness to them and Birgitte.

"Everyone here is so friendly and receptive to us," said Erik. "We couldn't have wanted a better family."

Although the Kjaersgaards are glad of the opportunities Birgitte had in the United States, they are glad she is coming home.

"We're very glad she is coming home," said Jett. "We are glad she had this opportunity and we just want Birgitte to be happy."

History of Father's Day

Father's Day hasn't always been with us. It's such a popular holiday now that it seems hard to believe that the first Father's Day was observed just 81 years ago. First celebrated in Spokane, Wash. in June 1910, Father's Day was the bright idea of Mrs. John Bruce Dodd.

Mrs. Dodd was a daughter of the western frontier, left motherless when she was still very young, and raised with five brothers, by a dedicated father and Civil War veteran, who took seriously the advice, "Go west, young man," after his return to civilian life. While still a young mother, Mrs. Dodd, also a devoted and grateful daughter, had the idea of honoring her father.

Working with the Civic leaders of Spokane, the YMCA and the Spokane Ministerial Association, after a year of crusading, she saw the first Father's Day become a reality in June 1910. It was her hope to celebrate the first Father's Day on her father's birthday, which was the first Sunday in June that year. But, the ministers were unable to prepare their special sermons in time, so the date was pushed back to the third Sunday of June 1910. And, so it has remained ever since, and was confirmed by Congress in 1971.

William Jennings Bryan was the first national leader to recognize Father's Day as an event that warranted national support. Later on, Presidents Woodrow Wilson and Calvin Coolidge gave their imprimatur of endorsement to Father's Day. But that was before the founding of the Father's Day Council, and before Father's Day became an organized, national event.

Beginning in 1931, the visionary men and women who campaigned for the national recognition of Father's Day saw a surge of observance spring from grassroots sources. By the late 1930s Father's Day had become a widely celebrated day. Father's Day gained further acceptance and stature in response to World War II and the vast number of dads affected by the mobilization of American society.

By the end of hostilities and during the subsequent recovery period, Father's Day became a beloved national holiday, observed in towns and cities across the land. It took the Federal government another two decades to catch up, but finally Congress took the important enactment of a Joint Resolution to create a national holiday of Father's Day in 1971. President Richard Nixon signed the legislation, and issued the Presidential Father's Day Proclamation authorized by Congress in 1972.

The rest is contemporary history, rewritten every year on the third Sunday of June as we find innovative and dynamic new ways to tell our dads that we love and appreciate them. But, the fact that 95 percent of all our citizens do something positive to mark Father's Day is proof that few events on the calendar rival Father's Day participation. It's a timely feature topic for radio and TV stations and is covered by newspapers.

Father's Day cook-outs abound as dads don their chef hats and aprons to broil hamburgers and grill steaks. Each year, fathers receive billions of dollars worth of gifts.

These scholars are also eligible for other awards given by the USAA.

Arredondo, who attended Hereford High School, was nominated for the National award by Coach Donnie O'Rand.

She will appear in the All-American scholar directory, which is published nationally.

The Academy selects All-American Scholars upon the exclusive recommendations of teachers, coaches, counselors, and other qualified sponsors. Once awarded, the students may be recognized by the USAA for other honors.

THE RIGHT IMPROVEMENTS

Heard about the homeowner who covered his backyard with a tennis court? It saved on the grass cutting, but when he went to sell his home, he had trouble finding a buyer. Seems like most people prefer a lawn, and the folks who are looking for a tennis court expect a bigger piece of property. The fact is, unique "improvements" like tennis courts, indoor gyms and the like, may be fun to have, but they don't pay back the cost when owners sell. The best investments are those home features that almost any buyer would like. Want to get your money back when you sell? The best returns, come from home improvements like a new furnace, exterior painting, remodeled bathroom or kitchen. Creating more living space, like adding a family room and deck, often pays off, as long as it's not a one use room. And don't over improve: keep improvements in line with the value of the house.

Hereford Bull

By Speedy Nieman

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says there's nothing wrong with the economy--people are still buying things they can't afford.

And, thank heavens, we still live in a free country where a man can do as his wife pleases!

A father is a person who forks over several thousand dollars for a wedding and then reads in the paper that he gave her away.

Plans for Hereford's July 4th Celebration are moving ahead at full speed, and the event promises to be a memorable day for local citizens.

Wes Klett, general chairman for the event, told Lions this week that the committee needs two things from citizens: attendance at the events for the day, and contributions to help pay for the huge fireworks display and other expenses involved in the celebration.

Some funds are being raised from the sale of tee shirts and caps with the "Honoring Hereford's Heroes" logo. But, whether you buy a shirt or cap, we urge all citizens to pitch in and help defray expenses for the celebration. There will be free watermelon at the picnic, and the fireworks display should be worth at least a small donation.

Some businesses and organizations have already made donations for the fireworks, but let's make this a community-wide project and all ante up for the big show! The Brand will be publishing the names of all contributors.

High school graduates have received a lot of advice lately about lofty goals and higher ambitions. But Jim Hudson, in The Perryton Herald, has collected some down-to-earth and practical advice given to young 'uns at one time or another:

--Never eat at a place called Mom's.
--Never shoot pool with a man called Jake, and never play cards with a man named Doc.

--Always remember the Golden Rule--those with the gold make the rules!

--If something is too good to be true, it probably is.

--You can always tell if a joint is rough place if they check at the door to see if you are carrying a knife or gun.

--If a man walks up to you and bets that he can make the King of Spades come out of a deck of cards and spit in your ear, don't bet. He's done it before. You can never win playing another man's game.

Emily Pavlicek passed along some clippings about the ethics bill, which was eventually amended to leave out some parts that didn't make sense but still was not strong enough in many areas.

Unfortunately, the bill did not crack down enough on legislators who have their hands out for the lobbyists to fill with cash, perks and no telling what else those who take advantage of the system are getting. The bill also did not do enough to crack down on Speaker Gib Lewis, who has been in more hot water than a bad plumber. There would have been some anti-speaker measures considered, but when it came time to vote on amendments, the speaker's parliamentarian "lost" them.

The anti-speaker measure wasn't much, but it was a little, and hats off to Rep. Dan Kubiak to help prevent Gib Lewis of thinking of changing his first name to God.

Since the Speaker is still the Almighty in the Texas House, things are liable to be bad for Dan, but Dan has fought through crud like this before and will probably come out little worse for wear.

Emily passed along this note: "Rep. John Smithee told Jim that 40 percent of the legislators feel one way about matters and the other 60 percent are in control."

"And Ann Richards gave them an A-plus!"

Has anyone else noticed that Bill Beardall, formerly of TRLA-Hereford infamy, is the lead attorney for the "poor" school districts who have had the old school finance laws thrown out?

The "rich" districts who are likely to be forking over millions of dollars to the state are likely to be calling us for the names we used when Bill was around here.

Whatever happened to the good old days of political patronage?

I was a little shocked Tuesday when I was leafing through Associated Press wire stories on my computer and saw that President Bush had nominated Bob Strauss to be the new ambassador to the Soviet Union.

Back in the olden days, the Republican President would never have even considered appointing the former National Democratic Chairman to dogcatcher, much less an ambassador. And, of course, the same was true when the Democrats (remember those days?) were in the White House.

If you ask some segments of the Democratic Party, though, Bob Strauss might as well be in the GOP. Forty years ago, they would've called him a "Shivercrat" or a "Dixiecrat." Nowadays, he's one of the "Boll Weevils," a Democrat who has eschewed the Ted Kennedy-type Democrats for what most Americans really want (i.e. common sense).

And, of course, there could be some hidden motive in Bush's decision.

It gets one heckuva lot colder in Moscow in the winter than it does in Dallas. Bob may have to get him a fur hat.

Medicare mess

In 1965, health care cost our nation about $41.6 billion--or about $204 per person. Health care consumed a relatively modest 5.9 percent of our nation's gross national product.

Last year, Americans paid more than $606 billion for health care, or about $2,425 for every man, woman and child. That represented more than 11 percent of all the goods and services the nation produced.

Something has got to be done. Otherwise, the consequences will be financially devastating.

By the year 2000, the price tag for health care in this country is projected to be $1.5 trillion--about $5,550 per person. That means health care will consume approximately 15 percent of our gross national product.

Our $2,425 per persons price tag is 38 percent more than Canada pays for care, twice what Japan pays and almost three times what Great Britain pays.

And yet we have more than 35 million working men and women with no health insurance who go to a doctor only when they can't put it off any longer. We have an infant mortality rate higher than Canada, Japan or Great Britain. Our life expectancy is not longer.

The problem isn't the amount of money we invest in health care. Between what the federal government contributes to Medicare and Medicaid, what we pay private insurers, what we pay out of pocket and what cities and counties contribute to local agencies for care of the indigent, we pay a lot more than other nations. We know that.

The problem is our health care delivery system itself. It's entirely too fragmented.

Congress is looking at the problem. It needs to keep at it until we have a comprehensive national health care delivery system.

Anything else would be dereliction of duty.

Editorial opinion around the state

June 1
Amarillo Daily News on U.S. space station:
NASA's visionary plan to build an orbiting outpost in space suffered a major setback recently when a House appropriations subcommittee voted unexpectedly to eliminate $2 billion the Bush administration had requested for the project.

The panel's action places the future of the space station Freedom in jeopardy ...

The central issue surrounding the space station is whether the United States should continue to have a human presence in space.

Critics of the space station contend that manned missions are unnecessary, that robots and probes can perform nearly any task an astronaut can. This same argument was made three decades ago against the Apollo manned missions to the moon ...

The future of human space travel could hinge on whether lawmakers continue to support construction of the Freedom space station. If funding is not restored for 1992, the decline of America's space program is likely to accelerate.

June 1
Dallas Times Herald on parolee crime:
How many more times are we going to have to read accounts of convicted murderers who have served little of their prison time being charged with killing again? Texans know the answer, so does the Legislature: Until laws are passed that lock the revolving doors in our state prisons, every one of us is at risk of confronting a violent criminal who has, as the cliché would have it, gotten away with murder ...

People simply must shake off their feeling of helplessness against the ever-rising tide of crime. It is time to demand change. The status quo will only result in a continuing string of future tragedies.

June 2
Houston Chronicle on the bullet train:

Downtown Houston to downtown Dallas in 90 minutes? Yes, by decade's end, on a speeding bullet train.

High-speed intercity rail service, recently given the green light by the Texas High Speed Rail Authority, stands to put Texas' future on the fast track. Grand in scale, ambitious in vision - this is a project worthy of the support of Texans. But with some words of caution:

-Financing. Texas taxpayers must not be put in the position of directly or indirectly guaranteeing high-speed rail bonds. If for some reason the project does not succeed, taxpayers must not be left holding the bag ...

-Intercontinental Airport service. ... Houston Intercontinental would benefit from being on the rail line no less than Dallas-Fort Worth Airport, which will be served. Local leaders should press to put Intercontinental on the line.

-Federal help. ... We urge the Texas congressional delegation to spare no effort in getting the bond ceiling raised and the grant money committed.

High-speed rail can be Texas' visionary future. But only with a firm grounding in financial reality and proper service to the state's largest city.

June 3
Dallas Morning News on special session:
The real business of the Texas Legislature has been postponed until this summer, when the governor has promised she will summon lawmakers into a special session to write a state budget.

It will be no easy task. Budget writers believe it will require nearly $5 billion more than the state is expected to collect from its current tax system just to maintain current services, fund public education reforms, operate new prisons and meet federally mandated guidelines for Medicaid reimbursements.

Lawmakers must either make dramatic cuts or pass the largest tax bill in Texas history.

Either could cause the political demise of many politicians. The responsible path should include trimming the current-services budget. Big cuts can be made, and overall government efficiency can be improved. That will lower the size of the tax bill.

However, the special session, or sessions, cannot restrict themselves just to spending and taxing. Indeed, just cutting the budget will require sweeping changes in state policies, programs and even the very structure of state government. Moreover, there is unfinished business from the recently concluded 72nd session that need not wait two years to be addressed.

The agenda of the coming session(s) should include tax reform, ... legal reform, ... education, ... congressional redistricting ... and campaign finance reform ...

Is it possible that all this could be done in a 30-day special session, when lawmakers could hardly scratch these issues in a 140-day regular session? No. Each item may require its own session. And other items are sure to arise. But the governor should not shrink from keeping lawmakers in Austin until Christmas Eve if need be, to build not just a new Texas, but a better Texas.

June 3
Fort Worth Star-Telegram on Texas audit:
A massive audit directed by the Comptroller of Public Accounts shows promising signs that Texas, if its leaders are bold enough to take the initiative, can refashion state government to achieve not only more effective and efficient delivery of state services but also savings of $1.6 billion from its $4.7 billion deficit.

The preliminary report of the Texas Performance Review led by Comptroller John Sharp should serve as a comprehensive framework for change in how state government works. Trimming the deficit clearly has the highest immediate political priority, but any quick-fix savings will be fleeting unless government programs - and bureaucratic attitudes - are fundamentally streamlined and rationalized ...

Rather than merely settling for the expedient of across-the-board budget slashing, every possible effort appears to have been made to improve services by identifying and evaluating particular areas within agencies that could be tightened up, refashioned or consolidated.

None of the ideas urged by the audit is new, including more privatization of services where appropriate, finding new ways to deliver services, improving financial and accounting systems and maximizing federal funds. Most of the proposals appear in reports that have gathered dust on agency shelves for years.

The task before the Legislature in its special session in July is to dust off the best of those proposals and provide Texans with the effective, efficient government that they should be getting.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:
By now I am sure you are aware that despite Congress' promises to use the new tax revenue to reduce the federal deficit, they did the exact opposite.

That's right. Congress enacted the second largest tax increase ever and rather than reduce the deficit, they increased spending $111 billion (not including the Gulf War costs) and pushed the FY 1991 deficit to an all-time record $320 billion.

But if your're saying to yourself, "I remember hearing Congressional leaders promise that the new budget would mean a $500 billion spending reduction in the years ahead...How can they say that?"

Let me explain. Only in Congress can you promise a $500 billion savings at the same time you increase actual spending by $111 billion. Here's how it works:

When Congress talks about spending cuts, they are not talking about cutting actual spending, but reducing projected increases. If Congress just reduces the amount of increased spending, they call that a spending cut--even though actual spending is still increasing.

Confused? Let me give you a simplified example. Let's suppose Congress today is spending $1 on a program and they have budgeted to spend $2 on the same program next year. However, if they spend $1.75 next year, they will call that a spending cut of 25 cents--even though they actually increased spending by 75 cents.

When Congress promised to save $500 billion in the years ahead, this was not an actual cut of $500 billion. It was a reduction in their "pie-in-the-sky" budget for the future. Even with their supposed $500 billion cut, actual spending will still skyrocket.

The promise of deficit reduction was nothing more than a myth. Congress just wanted more taxes for spending. And they would promise anything just to get more of our income.

Congress is bankrupting America. Because of Congress' non-stop deficit spending, the interest payments on the national debt exceed a whopping $256 billion annually. These interest payments on the ballooning national debt are already more than all the individual income taxes paid by everyone who lives west of the Mississippi River. We are rapidly approaching the day when we won't be able to make the interest payment on our debt. I'm sure you understand what happens if you can't make the interest payment on your debts.

I urge you to tell the American people the real story--that deficit spending is increasing, not decreasing as Congress promised. And tell them that the deficit represents a very grave threat to our future.

THE VOICE OF BUSINESS

A NEW WORLD ORDER

by Dr. Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Washington -- President Bush has spoken of a New World Order and, though he seems reluctant to describe it precisely, certain aspects of it are evolving with increasing clarity.

The basis of the New World Order is not our military victory over Iraq, but rather our ideological triumph over communism. The Cold War that has defined international relations since World War II is over and the good guys won. Government based upon political and economic repression has proven intellectually bankrupt and materially inept, unable to compete with systems reliant upon political and economic freedom.

Of course, it is always possible the Soviet Union may reassert itself, for without question it still possesses vast military power. But it is unlikely the U.S.S.R. will regain control of Eastern Europe, or again be seen as an equal to the United States. The New World Order espoused by President Bush will be based upon one salient reality -- that for the time being at least, the United States is the world's only superpower.

President Bush seems reluctant to announce that fact, partly because it is unnecessary, and partly because it would surely heighten concern and anxiety. The concept of one nation exercising unrivaled power is sobering because of the potential for abuse. Still, I think most people in the world would agree that if one nation is to possess such power, they would prefer it be us. Because of our open democratic processes and Constitutional separation of powers, the likelihood of the United States becoming a world bully is remote. When we take military action, we do so within the framework of international law to achieve just aims, and then only after exhausting other alternatives.

The primary significance of our impressive triumph over Iraq, beyond the final interment of the Vietnam syndrome, is to send a powerful signal to all ambitious dictators that aggression will not be tolerated. The example of Kuwait in 1990 now supersedes that of Hungary in 1956 or Czechoslovakia in 1968. It is perhaps premature to announce a new era of peace, but the potential exists because we have the power to enforce it.

Not only are we the world's pre-dominant military power, but we need to keep in mind also that we are still the world's dominant economic power. Our economy is the world's largest, our workers are the world's most productive, and our entrepreneurs are the world's most creative and daring.

All of which augurs well for our future into the 21st century, and that of the world. The world can rely upon the United States not to abuse its power, but rather to use it positively to promote our values of political and economic freedom. They are universal values that can only enhance the quality of life for people of every nation and culture.

Grijalva wins flight in Roswell tourney

Sabino Grijalva of Hereford won his age group in the Roswell Junior Open golf tournament played Wednesday and Thursday in Roswell, N.M.

Grijalva took the 12-13 division with a two-day total of 167, three strokes ahead of second-place Scott Lieberwirth of Clovis.

Grijalva shot a 78 the first day at Roswell's Spring River Golf Course, and followed with a 89 on a more difficult course at New Mexico Military Institute.

His father, Jesse Grijalva, said Sabino has placed in the Roswell tournament four times, winning his age group three times.

"It's a good place for the kids to play," the elder Grijalva said. "It's a real nice little tournament."

Hereford girls place at TSHSRA finals

Hereford's Regina Lewis placed in four events Thursday night at the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association finals in Amarillo, and Jennifer Smith, also of Hereford, placed in three events.

Lewis was third in both the barrels (17.864 seconds) and goat-tying (13.245). She was also fifth in breakaway roping in 4.489 seconds and eighth in the poles in 23.360.

Smith was third in the poles with a time of 21.919 seconds. She was fifth in barrels (18.044) and sixth in breakaway roping (4.909).

The four girls' events had only two different leaders: Shan Til Hext of Canadian and Shawna Davidson of Flodada. Hext led the barrels (17.708) and poles (21.724), while Davidson led the goat-tying (11.644) and the breakaway roping (3.822).

Friday's results were not available at press time, and the finals were to held Saturday.

Pirates' defense shuts out Padres

By The Associated Press
The defense never rests for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Catcher Don Slaught threw out two runners, hooked up with center fielder Andy Van Slyke on a play that cut down the potential tying run, and Van Slyke made a game-saving catch in the ninth inning as Pittsburgh beat the San Diego Padres 1-0 on Friday night.

Doug Drabek (4-7) and three relievers were touched for 13 hits, one short of the major-league record for most hits allowed in a shutout.

In other National League games, it was Philadelphia 5, Cincinnati 4; Montreal 11, Atlanta 2; San Francisco 5, St. Louis 2; New York 6, Houston 3 and Los Angeles 3, Chicago 2.

Mets 6, Astros 3
The Mets, shut out on five hits for 8 1-3 innings by Jim Deshaies, struck for six runs in the ninth to overcome a 2-0 deficit at the Astrodome.

Kevin McReynolds' RBI double off Curt Schilling (2-4) ended the shutout, and the Mets converted four subsequent walks, a wild pitch, an infield grounder and one single into a 6-2 lead.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - Yes, even Michael Jordan can have bad spells. It's just that his usually don't last long.

He snapped out of one Friday night in time to assume his customary hero's role as the Chicago Bulls grabbed a 2-1 lead in the NBA Finals with a 104-96 overtime victory in the Los Angeles Lakers' building.

"I didn't think we played that well," Jordan said. "When we were able to take the game into overtime, that gave us some new life and the opportunity to steal one."

It went into overtime because Jordan, who had made just eight of his previous 24 shots, hit a 14-foot jumper with 3.4 seconds left to tie the game 92-92. Then he went 2-for-3 and made both his free throws in the extra period.

"It came down to Michael hitting a tough shot" to force overtime, Los Angeles coach Mike Dunleavy said.

The next two games in the best-of-7 series also are in Los Angeles, on Sunday and Wednesday nights.

"I'm not down," Magic Johnson said. "If we didn't play a hard, aggressive game (Friday) night, I would be."

rebounds, an assist and a steal.

The Bulls' deeper bench helped erase a 69-56 deficit with 4:19 left in the third quarter. Their younger legs enabled them to outlast the Lakers by scoring the last eight points after the score was tied 96-96. Los Angeles tied an NBA Finals record with just four points in overtime.

The Lakers had made 39 of 70 shots in the first four quarters but only 1 of 9 in overtime when Chicago was 5-for-8.

Los Angeles built its 69-56 lead with an 18-2 run. But with the score 72-60, Chicago's 14-2 spurt tied the game at 74-74.

Valenzuela loses

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

A crowd of 49,977 came to Anaheim Stadium to see if Valenzuela could rekindle "Fernandomania."

Just 35 miles from Dodger Stadium, where all the commotion began 10 years ago with the first of his 29 shutouts, Valenzuela was involved in another one Friday night. This time, he was on the wrong end, losing 5-0 to the Detroit Tigers in his American League debut with the California Angels.

But the 30-year-old left-hander, released by Los Angeles during spring training, remained optimistic about his future following his return to the major leagues.

"I know I can do better and I hope. I can do better next time," he said after allowing five runs on nine hits in five innings. "All my pitches worked fine."

But he was no mystery to the Tigers, who had two homers. Still, the crowd cheered when Valenzuela departed.

"The fans still give me a lot of support, and that way I can feel more comfortable," he said. "I felt confident all the way."

"The first time in this league is really hard, and the Tigers have a good lineup."

Elsewhere, it was New York 5,

Texas 4; Baltimore 6, Toronto 4; Minnesota 2, Cleveland 0; Chicago 2, Kansas City 0; Boston 3, Oakland 1, and Seattle 2, Milwaukee 1.

Yankees 5, Rangers 4

Don Mattingly's run-scoring single with two out in the ninth inning gave surging New York the victory.

With two outs, left fielder Juan Gonzalez misplayed Steve Sax' liner into a double. Mattingly followed with a single to right off reliever John Barfield (2-1) to make a winner of reliever John Habyan (3-1), who pitched two innings.

YOUR EYES THROWAWAY LENSES

Just a few years ago, the very idea of lenses that you'd wear once and throw away seemed positively far-fetched. How has the reality caught up with the fantasy?

Quite well. The basic advantage of the throwaway lenses is that each pair is fresh and sterile when you insert it in your eyes. There is no need for cleaning and disinfecting the lenses and, very important, long-term bacteriological deposits never get a chance to build up on the lenses, thus reducing the chance of infection. The new lenses fit well, and the prescription is easily duplicated with each new pack.

The disposable contact lenses can usually be worn continually for a week before they are thrown away. Where wearers had trouble with the new lenses at first, it usually happened because they tried to stretch the wearing period to two or three weeks.

Important: disposable contact lenses must be professionally prescribed and fitted, and regular re-examinations are recommended.

Two Todds adjusting to life in minors

By DWAIN PRICE
Dallas Times Herald
DALLAS (AP) - A year after becoming first-round choices in the 1990 major league free agent amateur draft, pitchers Todd Van Poppel and Todd Ritchie have settled into learning the finer points about their profession.

They realize their won-loss records probably won't be as sparkling as they were when they were blowing batters away in high school and that their teams will lose more than those they played on in high school - Van Poppel at Arlington Martin and Ritchie at Duncanville.

But the most important thing Van Poppel and Ritchie realize is that they made the right decision when they signed pro contracts out of high school. A year on the pro circuit - far away from fraternities, final exams and spring break - has convinced the two Todds of such.

Now, instead of cramming for tests, they are adjusting to pitching to better hitters, playing with older teammates, paying monthly bills, buying groceries and doing laundry.

Both graduated from high school a year ago.

Van Poppel is pitching for Oakland's Class AA affiliate in Huntsville, Ala. Ritchie is pitching for Minnesota's Class A team in Kenosha, Wis.

Coming out of high school, Van Poppel signed a college letter of intent with the University of Texas. He was adamant about going there, playing in the College World Series and in the 1992 Olympics. Ritchie signed with Mississippi State.

Neither has regretted changing his mind.

"I haven't looked back at all," said Van Poppel, who signed a 3-year, $1.2 million guaranteed contract, one of the biggest ever given to an amateur draftee. "I'm having so much fun. I love my decision."

The toughest part, he said, was "I had to force myself to do what's right to achieve my No. 1 goal, and that's to make the major leagues. So, probably the hardest thing for me was to give up those dreams of playing in the College World Series and playing in the Olympics."

Van Poppel, projected the best player in the draft by many major league scouts, lasted until the 14th pick due to his insistence he would go to the University of Texas.

For Ritchie, chosen No. 12, the decision to bypass college was easier. He knew he would turn pro if the money was right.

"There was no question that if they gave me enough money I would go ahead and get my pro career started now," said Ritchie, who signed for $252,000 bonus. "I definitely made the right decision."

Ritchie and Van Poppel always will be linked. In high school, they battled for the media spotlight, which Van Poppel usually won. He was last year's Gatorade national high school player of the year.

But when they finally pitched against each other, in last year's Class 5A state semifinals, Duncanville won a thriller, 1-0. Ritchie then hit a dramatic two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh in the state finals as Duncanville won the 5A state title.

Ritchie and Van Poppel even did a card show together last winter in Midlothian.

It appears it will be three years before either makes it to the major leagues.

Bert Bradley, the Huntsville pitching coach, said of Van Poppel: "He's starting to pitch with a little bit more confidence. At the start of the season, he was a little uptight with all of the pressures from the media."

"But he's starting to acclimate himself as to what his role is. He's got the fastball and the curveball, and he's developing the change up."

"Sure, it was an adjustment for him, but he's starting to get used to it pretty good. He likes to fish, and this is a great place for that, because there are a lot of lakes in Alabama."

Van Poppel's dad, Hank, said: "After a year later, there isn't any doubt in my mind that Todd made the right decision, based on the fact that economically it was sound. I look back on it now, and it was a fun period."

"But there was a lot of pressure on mom and dad more so than on Todd. The thing we struggled with is realizing that this is not a social event, and that we were making career decisions for a young man that was 18, and that we had to give him advice without telling him what to do."

Van Poppel is 2-4 with 49 strikeouts in 48 1/3 innings and an earned run average of 2.98.

Ritchie's father, Ben, was in a similar situation. But he knew where Todd's heart was.

"We've asked him a time or two if he's tired of it, or if he doesn't like it, but he says he likes it just fine," Ben Ritchie said. "That's why I think this is probably the best thing for him, because if he would have decided to go to college I'm not sure he would have been completely satisfied with that."

Ritchie is 3-3 with 49 strikeouts in 50 innings with Kenosha. Last summer, when his team won the Appalachian League championship, Ritchie was 5-2 with 49 strikeouts in 65 innings an ERA of 1.94.

"It's hard to believe he's a year out of high school with the command of his pitches he has and the poise he has," said Rick Anderson, the Kenosha pitching coach. "He's an outstanding person and a great athlete, and the whole organization is excited about him."

"He was well schooled in high school, because he had good mechanics when he came to us. Plus, he's an easy kid to work with."

"When he gets beat or gets hit around, he wants to learn what he's doing wrong to be a better pitcher."

Like Van Poppel, Ritchie, too, likes to fish in his spare time. He also plans to marry his high school sweetheart, Michelle Place, on Dec. 28.

"I think Todd's where he belongs," Ben Ritchie said. "Playing pro baseball is what he wanted to do, so I think that's the important thing."

Texas deserves more golf majors

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Texans will get a chance this July to show they deserve more major golf championships.

Not since Orville Moody won the 1969 U.S. Open at Champions Golf Club in Houston has a major professional golf title been decided in the Lone Star State.

There has been a Nabisco Championship and Tournament Players Championship in Texas but these aren't "majors," championships although the PGA would probably differ.

The prestigious U.S. Women's Open comes to Colonial Country Club July 11-14.

Fifty years ago Colonial hosted the men's U.S. Open with Craig Wood beating out Ben Hogan, Denny Shute and Johnny Bulla to win the title.

That tournament marked the first time the Open was held south of the Mason-Dixon line.

Texas, considering it has produced great player like Hogan, Byron Nelson, Ralph Guildahl, Ben Crenshaw, Tom Kite, etc., has been remarkably shortchanged when it comes to getting major tournaments.

The PGA title was last decided in Texas in 1968 when Julius Boros defeated Arnold Palmer by a stroke at Pecan Valley in San Antonio. Texas hasn't been given much consideration in almost two decades for either the Open or PGA.

Oh, the state might have been considered, but the same old excuses ring forth. Hot, it gets too dad-blamed hot, for a major championship after June.

The only U.S. Open held in Texas other than at Colonial and the Champions was in 1952 at Northwood Club in Dallas, won by Julius Boros.

The only other PGA championships were in 1963 at Dallas Athletic Club (won by Jack Nicklaus) and in 1927 at Cedar Crest Golf Club in Dallas (won by Walter Hagen). Cedar Crest is now municipal golf course as is Pecan Valley.

No U.S. Women's Open has ever been held in Texas, the home of Babe Zaharias, Kathy Whitworth, Betsy Rawls, Sandra Palmer and other great players.

Shame to all the executive directors of the PGA and the USGA for shunning Texas down through the years. For example, the U.S. Women's Open has been held in Oklahoma twice and so has the PGA title.

It's cooler in Oklahoma than Texas?

The USGA is excited about coming to Colonial.

"It's just great to come to a course with as much tradition as Colonial," said Judy Bell, who is charged by the USGA with setting up the course. "I believe the USGA needs to play more traditional courses like Colonial. Being in Texas for the first time will be great. We're not worried about the weather. It will be hot but it's been hot other places we've played."

Colonial and the USGA are betting on big attendance, hoping Texans will take their vacations to see the women professionals in action. Colonial officials opened a booth to sell tickets and put out information during the recent PGA Tour stop.

"We're trying to get the word out," said club president H. Wallace Schmuck. "We hope the event will catch on. There could be history in the making. We've gone full circle now, hosting both the men's and women's opens in 50 years."

Betsy King will try to win a record third consecutive title, something never accomplished even by such greats as Zaharias and Mickey Wright.

Wright won the 1958 and 1959

Opens but lost to Rawls in 1960. The next year Wright came right back to win again.

Officials will be watching closely to see how Colonial does in July. It's no secret that Colonial would like to host a men's U.S. Open again.

If Texans want to start getting their share of major championships, they have a chance to show it at Colonial by watching King in her historic quest of a three-peat.

Carroll comes to Texas to work magic on track

By TIM PRICE

San Antonio Express-News
SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Mention the name Jerry Carroll to people in the horse racing industry and the response will contain such words as "promoter," "innovator," "marketeer" and "big spender."

Bring up Carroll's name to horseplayers and many remember that lucky fellow who collected a $265,000 Pick Six ticket with Pete Rose.

Carroll, 46, made a name for himself by turning a rickety old racetrack in Northern Kentucky into one of the industry's great success stories.

Now, Carroll wouldn't mind if San Antonians get to know him as a man who helped make big-league horse racing a reality in South Texas.

Carroll, principal owner of Turfway Park racetrack in a Kentucky suburb of Cincinnati, is the largest investor in the proposed Class 1 racetrack at the Retama Polo Center in northeast Bexar County.

Plans call for a $55-million, 10,000-seat facility. If the Texas Racing Commission grants the group a license later this year, Retama Park could be open in late 1993.

That might seem like a long time, but those who know Carroll say it will be worth the wait.

"I've known Jerry since he got involved with Turfway," said Tony Chamblin, executive vice president of the Lexington, Ky.-based Association of Racing Commissioners International. "He's been willing to come into a racetrack and spend money, which a lot of track operators aren't willing to do."

Carroll caught the racing industry's eye when he emerged from Nashville, Tenn., and bought decrepit Latonia Race Track. Carroll was widely known in the commercial real estate business, but was a rookie in racetrack management.

"As I walked up each story of that building, I kept seeing Latonia," Carroll said. "I got enamored with going to Latonia, but not by seeing the complete non-existence of management there. They were just milking the racetrack."

After rebuffing several of Carroll's inquiries, the owners (Delaware North) finally gave in and sold. Turfway was born, and things started happening.

The first year of operation under Carroll, Turfway saw its best attendance in 12 years. Wagering averaged $760,975 each day, the best ever at the racetrack. Wagering has increased at Turfway each meeting.

But some have wondered whether it was Carroll or the new simulcasting tool of intertrack wagering (ITW) that was to credit for the turnaround.

"The track was going in the right direction before ITW," Chamblin said. "He was on the right track with the money he spent and his marketing approach before ITW."

Now there is talk in the industry that Carroll is overextending his checkbook by coming to San Antonio. Talk also persists about Carroll's possible sale of Turfway. Carroll said he might sell Turfway, but he shrugs off suggestions of financial doom.

"I'm good for the money," he said. While Carroll has drawn attention for improving the fortunes at Turfway, he opened eyes when he improved his fortune early in 1989. That's when he shared a $265,000 Pick Six ticket with baseball great Pete Rose. They cashed it at Carroll's own racetrack. Legal in other states, it's a no-no in Texas.

"That was totally legal," Carroll said. "But this is what's happened in the late '80s and '90s: we deal more in perception than reality. That's scary."

"The people who investigate racetrack owners in Texas (Department of Public Safety) could not believe the cleanliness of my record."

Racetrack owners also can't race their horses at their own track in Texas, but can in other states. Carroll said such rules are akin to owning a restaurant but not being allowed to eat the food.

"When you act like there's a lot of deception and mistrust, then you create it in the public," Carroll said.

"Jerry was unknown at that time on the national level and even on the statewide level in Kentucky," said David Vance, general manager at Oklahoma City's Remington Park racetrack. "But he's established a reputation as a doer. He enjoys being on the cutting edge."

Some people laughed when Carroll pumped about $20 million into Latonia, a place where the toteboard was in such disrepair that it had to be propped up with 2-by-4s. Carroll said an inspection of the Latonia clubhouse even yielded dead pigeons.

"When I originally talked to people about coming to work there with me, there was the glamour of coming to Kentucky," Carroll said. "Then there was the non-glamour of looking at old Latonia."

Carroll changed everything about Latonia, including the name, which became Turfway Park. The track was named the most improved horse racetrack in North America by the parimutuel industry in 1988.

The news carried all the way to San Antonio, where Joe Straus Jr. was putting together a group to build a racetrack after parimutuel gambling was approved in 1987.

"We read about his racetrack and saw what he transformed it into," Straus said. "The next thing we heard, he was traveling around the country looking at racetrack possibilities."

Straus wanted Carroll on his team, and wooed him away from a group that was seeking to build a track in Dallas.

"I told him before he settled on Dallas he better take a look at what we were doing in San Antonio," Straus said. "Sure enough, he fell in love with this place."

By all appearances, expenses didn't come into play when Carroll took over Latonia in 1986. Carroll was willing to unfold his wallet before he came to the racetrack.

He became the largest developer of commercial real estate buildings in Tennessee. His passions for erecting office buildings and watching the horses made him take the Latonia plunge.

As he watched an office building rise next to the racetrack, he started thinking about the possibilities.

"Jerry's a promoter, a big believer in marketing," Chamblin said. "It's refreshing to see someone with that approach. He doesn't wait for change. He sparks it."

Last year, Carroll hired Steve Ford, son of former president Gerald Ford, to assist with advertising at Turfway. The young, blond Ford is the centerpiece of Turfway's television commercials. By all accounts, it's been another successful facet of Carroll's marketing plan.

"One of the things that is appealing about Jerry is his enthusiasm," Vance said.

"He's so upbeat, you could interpret it as naive. I'm familiar with San Antonio. And if I know the Strauses and Jerry Carroll, they'll do it right down there. Jerry's always delivered."

Carroll would tell San Antonio to bet on it.

ROAD TO DERBY

HIALEAH, FLA. (AP) - The Flamingo Stakes, a race exclusively for three-year-olds run in the early part of the year at Hialeah Park, is often a signpost leading to the Kentucky Derby in May.

Nine Flamingo winners have gone to success in the Derby at Churchill Downs. In addition, four other horses who ran in the Flamingo but did not win captured first money in the Derby.

The last horse to double in the Flamingo and the Derby was Spectacular Bid in 1979.

MRS. GERARD URBANCZYK
...nee Kamille Martin

Martin, Urbanczyk vows spoken Friday

Kristen Kamille Martin and Chris Gerard Urbanczyk, both of Hereford, were united in marriage Friday evening in St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

The ceremony was officiated by Monsignor Orville R. Blum of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Danny and Betty Martin and granddaughter of Mrs. Louise Ferguson and J.F. and Dorothy Martin. The bridegroom is the son of Tony and Loretta Urbanczyk.

The church altar was decorated with paired brass tree candelabra intertwined with English ivy. Twin ached candelabra embellished with garden flowers stood on the outer perimeters. The inner altar area was flanked by a matching spiral candelabra dressed in garden array of French ribbons, white lilac, blush roses and sweet myrtle.

Kimberly Martin of Houston served her sister as maid of honor and best man was the groom's brother, Kevin Urbanczyk of Hereford.

Bridesmaids were Amy Coneway of Hereford, Tricia Maupin of Amarillo, the groom's sister, Lori Urbanczyk, and the bride's cousin, D'Ann Hill, both of Hereford.

Serving as groomsmen were Matt Schilling of Hereford, Ricky Vogel of Lubbock, Jeff Hicks of San Angelo, and the bride's brother, Todd Martin of Lubbock.

Ushers were the groom's brothers, Mark Urbanczyk, Brian Urbanczyk, and Greg Urbanczyk, and the bride's brother, Tim Martin of Norcross, Ga.

Flower girls were Kaeli and Kesli Urbanczyk, daughters of Mark and Kathy Urbanczyk.

Jan Walscr of Hereford accompanied Donna Sheppard of Perryton as she vocalized "The Greatest Of These Is Love," "Mother At Your Feet," "Lord's Prayer," "Kanon" and "Trumpet Voluntary."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional white satin gown fashioned with a molded bodice with tapered bib front panel and a modified Sabrina neckline with beaded alencon lace. The long satin sleeves were accented with alencon lace and beaded bridal point cuffs. The front of the skirt was embellished with large diamond shape beaded alencon lace appliques and featured a wide border of scalloped beaded alencon lace edge hemline.

The double layer finger tip veil featured a floral halo of beaded schiffli lace motif, sequin flowers, plouls loops. The back pouf was sprinkled with bridal pearls.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white orchids centered around a trio of white casablanca lilies and blush roses. The bouquet was accented by white stephanotis, and white French ribbon with tiny seed pearls.

Bridal attendants were attired in emerald green taffeta off-the-shoulder dresses. The dresses were fashioned with a princess dropped waist. Each carried bouquets consisting of white lace, casablanca lilies, blush roses and ribbon.

Flower girls wore matching emerald green ankle length taffeta dresses and carried white flowered petals in matching silk covered baskets accented with bows, lace, and seed pearls.

The bride's cousin, Jessica Hill, invited guests to register at the reception held at the Hereford Country Club.

Cake was served by Lori Reinauer of Denton, Kristina Kerr and Misty Stokes, both of Lubbock. Punch and coffee were poured by Jeanette Tice of Hereford, Stacy Bromlow and Leslie Conkwright, both of Austin.

The main refreshment table was covered with a white cloth and decorated with an arrangement of fresh flowers and crystal candle holder with votive candles.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Cloudcroft and Ruidoso, N.M., the bride wore a casual two-piece navy sarong style skirt with matching top.

The couple will reside in Hereford. The bride, a graduate of Hereford High School, is currently attending West Texas State University.

The groom is a graduate of Hereford High School. He attended Texas Tech University and West Texas State. He is presently engaged in farming north of Hereford.

Wedding information must be submitted by 5 p.m. Monday to be included in the next Sunday Brand. Wedding information forms, as well as those for engagements and showers, are available at the news office, 313 N. Lee.

Extension News

BY BEVERLY HARDER
Summer is about to burst on the scene all over America and a profusion of flowers will certainly follow. One way to enjoy the bounty of flowers all year long is to preserve them.

Several calls and requests have prompted this column. You can dry flowers for year-round bouquets by using borax as a preservative. Here are directions for preserving flowers using borax.

Two different mixtures (by weight) are recommended: 2 parts Borax, 1 part dry white sand, or 1 part Borax, 2 part corn meal.

Cut flowers which are free of moisture. The stem may be left attached or removed below base of calyx (green leafy, cup-like area above stem.) Sprinkle some borax mixture into empty box (shoe box is ideal) and place flower and leaves on mixture. Gently cover flower with additional mixture being careful not to crush or distort petals. For roses and carnations sprinkle mixture directly into blossom before placing in box. When completely covered, there should be no air around flower.

For easy removal, use 2 flowers per box depending on flower size. Seal box with tape and store at room temperature in a dry place for seven to 10 days. (Experimentation will perhaps shorten this time.) Remove by slowly pouring mixture from box until flower appears and can be secured with two fingers. Pour off remaining mixture and remove flower. Clean off any clinging materials with soft artist's brush. Petals which have broken off may be glued back. Mixture may be reused.

Preserved flowers may be fitted with florist wire stems or original stems and leaves which were air dried.

There is also a method of drying flowers in the microwave oven. The directions are extensive. If you would like a copy please call the County Extension Office at 364-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank you, thank you for your wonderful response to that man who was concerned because he isn't well-endowed. He signed himself "Shortchanged." You told him, "Less can be more." What a fabulous response.

A locker room-type pecking order based on "endowments" can play havoc with a male's self-esteem and be downright dehumanizing. Those feelings of inferiority, unfortunately, can last a lifetime.

Your sensible and reassuring comments made a lot of males feel better about themselves. Thanks from all of us. --Salem, Ore.

DEAR SALEM: It was good of you to write. So did many others. And would you believe I heard from more women than men? Read on:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was married to a bonafide stud for eight years. He was extremely proud of his "endowments" and considered himself a real prize. This man couldn't stop reminding me that I was very lucky to have him. Meanwhile our sex life was hell. I dreaded going to bed at night and he was always after me.

Things went from bad to worse and finally we were divorced. Then I met "Andy," who was wonderful kind, considerate and thoughtful. I was relieved to discover that he was modestly endowed. This man is marvelously satisfying in every way and I have never been happier. --New Orleans

FROM CLEVELAND: "Short-changed in Wyoming" needs to know that being well-endowed has absolutely nothing to do with love and loving. I've been with several men, both before and between marriages, and I can attest to the fact that the most generously endowed were the worst lovers and the least endowed were the best. Almost without exception the big guys thought that all they had to do was be there because they were "God's gift" to females. These men were invariably the most self-centered, egotistical and, I might add, the least satisfying.

ELGIN, ILL.: It seems that "Shortchanged" is mostly short on confidence. I, too, am somewhat undersized but no woman ever complained or ran from my bedroom laughing. Most women are too preoccupied with their own inadequacies the first time around. Chastity is in style again, thanks to AIDS, so no longer will there be the broad sampling which created a climate for all sorts of comparisons. This is a big plus both men and women who can now assess one another's compatibility in a much more rational manner.

SEATTLE: I have been sexually involved with at least 20 men. Please, Ann, tell your readers that size doesn't mean a thing if you really care about the man you're with.

What matters is gentleness, generosity, consideration and just plain decency. Without exception, the men who had the most modest equipment were the most satisfying. I married one of them.

SALT LAKE CITY: Your recent column in the Salt Lake Tribune had the heading: "Underendowed Males Can Be the Best Lovers." Let me state from personal experience as an overendowed male, we can be the worst lovers.

I don't wish to appear immodest but I have had more than my share of female lovers and almost without exception, they complained that sex was uncomfortable and downright painful. If a surgical procedure for penile reduction were possible, I would be a willing candidate. As you said in your column, Ann, less is more.

KNOWLEDGE BEFORE CHANGE

There is a commitment to beauty when you have your hair colored, even if it's just subtle highlighting, there are a number of things to take into consideration before making the plunge. For instance, depending on how different the shade is from what you had before, your make-up selection should be changed. Also, if you're a new blonde, you should be especially attentive to things you never worried about previously, such as chlorine in pool water. Did you know that chlorine can turn your hair green? Or, if you have red tones included in your hair coloring, you must take care to cover up with a hat or scarf when in the sun. Looking your best takes some time, but knowing the tips and tricks will get the most with the least amount of time. We are here to answer your questions. Our students at LaPlata Beauty School are dedicated to the profession of cosmetology. The student that styles your hair is well qualified and supervised at all times.

American Legion Auxiliary meeting held recently

Hereford Unit 192 of the American Legion Auxiliary met in regular session with president Clara Trowbridge presiding. Members of Hereford Post 192 were welcomed, as was Michael F. Carr, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce.

The opening ritual was observed. Argen Draper, program chairman, introduced guest speaker Gary Stevens, area supervisor for Southwestern Bell Telephone, he spoke about 911.

The group recessed in order for separate business meetings to be conducted. When the group reconvened, reports were heard.

Cheer chairman Viola Wagner reported sending eight birthday and one get-well card during May. Also, 17 residents of King's Manor enjoyed a bingo party hosted by Wagner, Trowbridge, Pet Ott and Lester Wagner. The next bingo party is set for 3 p.m. June 13.

Poppy chairman Bea Cargo reported a very successful Poppy Day on May 22. Contributions amounted to $735--two-thirds of which will be used locally for veterans and their families as needs arise and at the Amarillo VA Medical Center. She thanked all those who helped: Irene Berger, June Koelzer, Bernice Layman, Troyce Hanna, Nellie Faye Gilicland, Viola Wagner, Ruth King, Artie Frost, Pet Ott, Mildred LaFever, Lou Ann LaFever, Betty Jo Carlson, Emilie Pavlicek, Willie Vinton and Clara Trowbridge.

Scholarship chairman Argen Draper recommended the scholarship eligibility be changed to include children of veterans in the Viet Nam, Grenada, Lebanon and Panama Conflicts. The recommendation was accepted.

The group voted to participate in the July 4 parade with a decorated car.

The nominating committee presented a slate of officers for 1991-92, and they were elected. They are: Clara Trowbridge, president; Betty Jo Carlson, first vice-president; Ruth King, second vice-president; Troyce Hanna, secretary-treasurer; Margie Daniel, chaplain; Lou Ann LaFever, historian-reporter; and Pet Ott and Argen Draper, members at large. The officers will be installed Aug. 6.

Yearbook chairman Ruth King called attention to the July 2 meeting. It will be an ice cream social, and delegates to Girls State and Boys State and their families will be guests. There will be no business meeting, as the delegates will give their reports.

Finally, members were invited to the 50th wedding anniversary celebration of Dr. and Mrs. M.C. Adams, to be held June 15 at Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

After the close of business meetings, Bernice Layman and Bea Cargo served refreshments.

Officers elected at meeting

Officers were elected during the recent meeting of the Deaf Smith General Hospital Auxiliary.

New officers are Anna Stindt, president; Quintina Waits, vice president; Mary Williamson, secretary; and Baxter London, treasurer.

Auxiliary members volunteer their time at the hospital operating the gift shop and doing various other things. Some of their chores are to make coffee for the surgical waiting room, and to deliver mail and the Hereford Brand to patients. They also make stuffed toys for the young patients and give baby books to all the new mothers. In the past year 54 stuffed toys and 301 baby books were given. A total of 4059 hours were volunteered this past year.

The Auxiliary holds several bake sales every year and uses the proceeds to purchase recliners for the hospital rooms. Three new recliners were purchased recently.

The next meeting will be Sept. 9. Members attending were Mary Jane Burris, Grace Covington, Nell Culpepper, Alice Koenig, Stindt, Bonnie Sublett, Williamson, and Waits.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Goal Power

It was hot and muggy that summer afternoon in Missouri. A cloud bank was building in the west, and rain was almost certain. I was a member of a fourman hay crew responsible for picking up and stacking about 600 square bales of newly cut alfalfa hay. From the looks of the weather, some of those bales were going to get wet.

We had just finished stacking the third load in the barn when the owner of the hay approached our truck. "Boys," he said, "if you can get all of my hay in the barn before it rains tonight, I'll buy each of you the biggest burger and shake in town." The four of us exchanged a "let's do it" look and told the farmer we would try.

Where our steps had dragged before, we now strode with renewed energy. Those heavy bales became lighter. We stacked them two tiers higher on the truck. We wanted to save precious travel time to and from the field.

When the rain came--and it did come--the valuable hay corp was in the barn. We were on our way to town to enjoy a late supper, courtesy of a smart and smiling farmer. I rode to town standing up on the back of that flatbed hay truck. I can still remember the sting of that cool rain as it washed away the dirt and sweat. It felt good. I also remember that free Lot-a-Burger and shake. They tasted great.

Take the Challenge

What had happened? What had turned our group of four tired youngsters into a hay-moving machine? Basically, the same thing that happens every day somewhere in America. A challenge is made, a goal is set and an incentive is given.

It happens on the football field. The team that is down 14-0 at the half comes tearing out in the third quarter and puts 21 unanswered points on the scoreboard.

It happens on main street when a struggling merchant discovers how to turn a business around. It happens in the classroom when a failing student suddenly becomes interested and blows the top out of the grading curve.

Everyone reacts to a challenge. Some may respond negatively, but most react positively. For any challenge to be successful, there must be a clearly defined, reachable and measurable goal. Finally, there must be adequate reward or incentive.

In the example I used earlier, the challenge became the goal--to get the hay in the barn before it rained. The goal was measurable and the incentive was free food.

The Power Process

Hundreds of successful people tout the power of setting goals. Yet, the whole process remains a mystery to many people. They never learn to use goals and motivation to get what they want. Best-selling author and master motivator, Zig Ziglar, stresses the importance of the goal-setting process. In his book, See You at the Top, Ziglar says that a man or woman without a goal is like a ship without a rudder. He implies that they will simply drift aimlessly and may end up at a destination not of their choosing.

I believe there are four keys to making the goal-setting process work for you. First, you must begin. Set a new goal for yourself today. I dare you to accept the challenge. Second, make your goal specific and achievable. Put it in writing, such as "I want to lose 20 pounds by August 1, 1991." Third, make certain your goal is measurable. Weigh yourself now and chart your progress. Finally, make sure the incentive is adequate. Promise yourself a reward when you reach your goal.

The goal-setting process is a great way to unlock your potential. Start today and give yourself some goal power.

Don Taylor is the director of West Texas State University's Panhandle Small Business Development Center.

Cleaning up tips suggested

NEW YORK (AP) - If you plan to be a do-it-yourself painter this spring or summer, be kind to the environment when you clean up.

Ted Friedmann, president of the Environmental Coatings Council, offers these suggestions:

- Buy only as much as you will need, in addition to a small amount to save for touching up scuffs and scrapes. An accurate measurement of the area to be painted, with allowances for doors and windows, will help your paint dealer determine your needs.
- Store carefully. Keep unused paint in a dry place away from extreme heat or cold and away from open flames such as pilot lights for heaters. Lids should be tightly sealed. Keep out of reach of children and pets.
- If you have large unused portions in the original container with a legible label, give them to community organizations such as theater groups, day-care centers, churches and senior centers.
- Unopened cans of stock shades generally can be returned to paint dealers for refunds within a reasonable time of purchase.
- Know the type of paint you have - either alkyd, or oil-based, or latex, which is water soluble. When disposing of latex paint cans, small amounts of left-over paint may be dried out by leaving the lid open. Alkyd paint requires special disposal. Since it is flammable, never pour down sewers, household drains or onto the ground. Store with a tightly sealed lid for special collection days by your sanitation department.

Clean-up materials can be recycled, also. Allow turpentine, paint thinners and solvents to sit in a closed container until paint residue settles to the bottom. Pour off clear liquid and reuse. Remaining particles can be dried out completely by adding an absorbent such as cat litter before disposal.

The Ombu Tree of Argentina is one of the hardest trees. The tree's wood is so moist that it will rarely burn and so spongy that it usually cannot be cut down.

Between the Covers

BY REBECCA WALLS

The summer reading club, Camp Wanna-Read, officially begins Monday, so parents: it is time to bring the children ages 4 and older into the library and get them registered. More than 300 children have registered so far. Everyone is invited to participate.

The new book list this week contains some very exciting titles, such as Thunder of Erebus, by Payne Harrison. Set in the cold, remote and untouched world of Antarctica the story takes place some time in the near future.

An American and Soviet geological expedition is drilling below the Ross Ice Shelf in the shadow of volcanic Mount Erebus. The venture represents the warming relationship between the U.S. and the new "Soviet Confederation."

An astounding discovery is made by the expedition that quickly leads to a confrontation between the two reluctant superpowers, which results in a desperate struggle to claim the prize under the ice. Control of this new discovery will give the winner the ultimate weapon and a new energy source that will guarantee global dominance in the oil-starved world of the twenty-first century.

Thunder of Erebus delivers the largest naval battles since World War II, a heart-stopping duel between submarines deep in the icy ocean and electrifying air battles. From the author of Storming Intrepid.

China Boy, by Gus Lee, contains a multitude of characters that are both diverse and unforgettable. Kai Ting would have been the coddled only son of an aristocratic Shanghai family in another time and place, but in 1950 San Francisco, Kai's father must struggle to earn a living as an honest official in a troubled bank.

After Kai's lovely, superstitious mother dies, his father remarries. The stepmother is a beautiful, strict Philadelphia society woman whose mission is to erase every vestige of Chinese culture from the household.

Uncle Shim, a Mandarin scholar is determined to mold Kai's mind and character in the old traditions.

Toussaint La Rue, a tough, fatherless street-fighter befriends Kai, while Big Willie Mack, an oversized bully, tries to use Kai as a human punching bag. Tony "the Tiger" Barraza, Bruce Punsalong and Mr. Lewis, instructors in the YMCA boxing program, teach 7-year-old Kai how to survive. You will find that Gus Lee has the rare ability to make his pages vibrate with life.

At the Texas Library Association Meeting in April, I had the privilege of hearing J. California Cooper present parts of her book Family. Believe me when I say she is an extraordinary and magical storyteller.

Set in the years just before and after the Civil War, Family tells the story of an African-American family whose emotional and spiritual center is a willful, resourceful and gentle young woman born into slavery. Clara narrates a tale of life lived in the shacks behind the big house, where degradation is constant, stability unknown and the normal bonds of family seemingly impossible to maintain.

A combination of hype, humor, anger, patience, imagination and ingenuity always endures and finally prevails. This book is a hauntingly beautiful testament to the dignity of the human spirit and to the inexorable bonds of kinship that join us one to another.

Bones is the fifth novel by Joyce Thompson, and is the story of Freddy Bascomb, a single mother whose precariously workable life is totally changed by the brutal and mysterious murder of her alcoholic father. Now someone, for some reason, wants to do her, and her children, harm.

Freddy would rather leave her past behind, but only by confronting the past demons of her father can she heal herself and keep her children safe from the stranger who threatens them. Bones is a story so scary it triggers the adrenaline as well as touches your heart.

Other titles of interest are: One-Eyed Kings, by William S. Cohen; Margaret in Hollywood, by Dacey O'Brien; Some Soul to Keep, by J. California Cooper; Gifts that Taste Good; and Southern Living's 1990 Annual Recipes.

Hot new fashions in swimwear revealed

PARIS (AP) - Ever since the skin-revealing bikini was invented 44 years ago by French engineer Louis Reard, this country has had a reputation for producing and sporting the world's sexiest swimwear.

Along with Rio de Janeiro, the French Riviera is still the place where it's practically de rigueur to discard your top and go "monokini," or throw the whole thing away for the several nudist beaches offshore or around Saint Tropez.

But fortunately for those with less than perfect show-off figures, France is offering some superb and even modest new choices in swimwear and beach cover-ups for next summer.

And beachwear fairs are becoming so popular here nowadays that manufacturers from the United States, Australia and Germany are joining in.

Trends upcoming for the 90s are often dictated by the fabrics. Those wonderful stretch lycra satins (with a bow to aerobics salons) help turn the old tank suit into a slick, chic and even sexy article.

Colors often blaze as neon-hot, according to manufacturers from both Miami, Florida and the Riviera. A firm called Ritchie from Florida attracted all eyes in Nice with their presentation of shocking pink or lavender stretch suits with coquettish lacy ruffles around the hip-high-cut derrieres.

"They're great fun to wear," said American model Janice Magarian, from Miami.

"I'm offering both hot colors and navy and white," said Anne-Marie Ceci, president of Riviera-based Bip-Bip, whose sportswear sells well all over Europe. With a white flower at the bosom, one of her more modest navy numbers has an aura of Chanel, without being any kind of copy.

Two More Bedrooms Upstairs

PRIVATE MASTER SUITE LOCATED ON MAIN LEVEL

BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

This one-and-a-half story home features spacious rooms and a private master suite. From the foyer, wide doorways invite visitors into the dining room or the gallery. The gallery provides convenient access to the master suite, vaulted activity room with fireplace, and country kitchen. Extra design details make this kitchen something special. A central island provides a convenient snack bar and additional cabinets. Modern appliances, a pantry, and handy built-in desk cut down on the time-consuming tasks required to run a household. Immediately adjacent to the kitchen are two storage closets, a half bath, laundry room, and double garage.

The master suite is exclusively situated on one end of the main floor. The bedroom features a tray ceiling, access to a private sun deck and twin walk-in closets. Attention to details such as separate vanities, private toilet area, whirlpool tub, separate shower, and vaulted ceiling make the master bath a place of quiet retreat.

Upstairs, the home has two additional bedrooms, a bath, and attic storage room. Sloped ceilings and dormers in each bedroom create a comfortable and inviting environment. One bedroom has a walk-in closet.

This home is built on a basement foundation. The stairway is conveniently situated between the great room and the kitchen.

The stucco exterior is embellished with a combination of trimmed multi-lite and arched windows, decorative corner quoins, double window dormers, and combined hip and gable roof design with multiple roof breaks. The home also has a recessed front stoop and side-entry garage.

This is a computer generated plan. The plan is Number 2747. It includes 2,782 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information, write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Home improvement questions answered

Q. - Our house sweats inside when it's cold outside. The windows steam up terribly on winter days. Water runs down the sill to the walls and all the way to the baseboard. The house is framed with R-30 insulation in the attic. Other homes in the area have the same problem. They were all built in 1954. I know storm windows would help but they're expensive. Do you have a cheaper solution?

A. - We've run into excessive humidity in the house for years now, and it appears yours is a classic case. To cut down on humidity, an exhaust fan in the bathroom and kitchen venting damp air to the outside is a must.

Although storm windows may appear as an unwanted expense to you now, stack their cost against the value they should save their cost in fuel bills in a few years. Condensation is caused by warm of your house. This makes them appear relatively inexpensive and moist air coming in contact with the cold glass in your windows.
