Sales tax rebates up

Hereford will receive a sales tax rebate this month of $47,907, up from the $42,434 for the same period in 1988.

The higher rebate pushed the year-to-date total to $603,438, up from the $602,201 received through December 1988.

The state set a record for rebates this year, topping $1 billion for the first time.

"People are spending more money and this means more tax dollars are going back to communities for fire fighting, police protection and safe roads," said State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

The total paid to Texas cities this month was $72 million, up $8 million from last December. The total for the year is $1.04 billion, up 9 percent from last year's $956 million.

Many other area cities showed significant increases.

--Amarillo received $951,653 this month, up from $848,823 last December. For the year, Amarillo has received $12.8 million, up from $12.3 million for 1988;

--Lubbock received $1.08 million, up 2.7 percent, and has received $15.08 million for the year, up $100,000;

--Plainview picked up $151,511, up from $122,639 in December 1988. For the year, Plainview has received $2.1 million, up from $1.7 million in 1988;

--Dimmitt's rebate this month was $21,979, up 54.9 percent. For the year, Dimmitt has received $328,185, a 49.9 percent increase from the $218,978 for 1988.

The December checks reflect taxes collected in October by businesses that file monthly tax returns.

NATO looks toward future

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - NATO ministers, upstaged by plans for a historic visit by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, today wrapped up talks by discussing ways to expand the alliance's future political role.

The foreign ministers, winding up the two-day meeting, welcomed Shevardnadze's plans to meet next week with Manfred Woerner, secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III said the visit would be "very natural in light of the changes that are taking place and continuing to take place."

Baker spoke to reporters Thursday after sketching out his ideas for a broader political role for the alliance. He foresees NATO as a permanent monitor of the reductions being negotiated in conventional, or non-nuclear, arms in Europe and as a mediator of regional conflicts.

Baker's ideas, which were well received, dealt with the expected focus of the meeting: the changing role of NATO in an era of dramatically reduced tensions with the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

But they were pushed into the background by the announcement of the Shevardnadze trip, the first by a Soviet foreign minister to NATO headquarters and the latest in a string of recent unprecedented events in East-West relations.

Belgium's foreign minister, Mark Eyskens, said the visit would be a "beautiful symbol of the growing cooperation between what can no longer be called the two blocs but let's say East and West."

Shevardnadze earlier had made plans to be in Brussels on Monday and Tuesday to sign a new trade and economic cooperation agreement with the 12-nation European Community.

A senior Canadian official suggested Shevardnadze's visit to NATO might amount to a courtesy call.

"I really don't expect it will be a deeply substantive meeting because it's not what the Soviets are looking for," he said on condition of anonymity. "They are not planning to negotiate with NATO."

Baker's effort is aimed at keeping Germany, if it reunites as appears increasingly likely, tightly linked to a Western political and military alliance.

"It finds a positive resonance," said the Canadian official of the Baker speech. "Everybody wants the alliance to be functioning well as a political consultative body."

Roever presented in inspirational message at Hereford High School and Hereford Junior High School on Thursday, then held an open public meeting Thursday night at the HHS auditorium. Roever overcame a terrible accident in the Vietnam War, and told how others can overcome problems.

Archeologists find old fossil in Virginia

WASHINGTON (AP) - Scientists excavating an ancient lake shore in Virginia say a concentration of fossils there dates from a time when the area was a lush tropical forest and creatures resembling armored monsters roamed the Earth.

Hans-Dieter Sues, a Smithsonian Institution paleobiologist, said Thursday that the rich collection of fossil remains are from a variety of animals that lived 225 million years ago and some are of a type never before found.

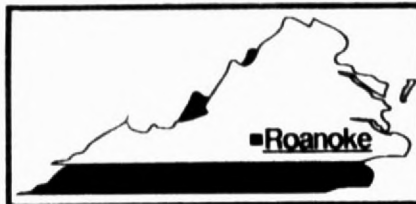

"Many of these are not known because rocks from this particular chunk of time are not found anywhere else in the world," said Sues in an interview. "This is the first time that we've got a really diverse group of land animals from this part of geologic time."

Sues said the largest assembled fossil includes the body, but not the head, of a five-foot-long reptile resembling an armor-plated crocodile.

"This creature had two rows on its back of this very massive bony plate and huge spines sticking out on the side," said Sues. "It's like something from a Japanese monster movie. It is a funny-looking creature and an entirely new type of animal."

Sues said the Triassic period fossils were found in a formation of stone called mudrock about 15 miles southwest of Richmond.

The assemblage includes many fossils from a group of animals called cynodonts, the closest reptile ancestors of the mammal. Sues said the fossils include parts for a cynodont about the size of a small dog, and other parts from a mammal-like reptile measuring 5 to 10 inches long.

Sues said fragments of fossils of this type have been found in the northern hemisphere, but never in such a large group. Individual cynodont fossils also have been found in Argentina, Brazil and in southern Africa.

"This is further evidence for the super continent of Pangaea, when all of the continents were one large giant land mass," he said, because fossils from the same species and the same era can be found on continents that now are separated.

PICKENS

Mesa will stop payments

DALLAS (AP) - Mesa Limited Partnership, T. Boone Pickens' energy company and investment vehicle, will stop cash payments to its unitholders next year and sell off some of its natural gas holdings to reduce its $1.5 billion in long-term debt.

Mesa announced Thursday the suspension of cash distributions to unitholders to maintain Mesa's "financial integrity while gas prices remain low."

Analysts had been expecting a reduction, the second time this year the partnership has slashed its distribution, which is similar to a dividend on common stock.

Mesa's units fell in active trading Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange, closing down $1.25 at $7.75.

Since shifting from a corporation to a partnership in 1985, Mesa maintained a 50-cent-per-unit quarterly distribution through the first half of 1989, even though cash flow would not cover the payout.

Instead, Mesa used earnings from Pickens' stock plays to make up the difference. Pickens said Thursday the strategy was a way of "prepaying" unitholders for future natural gas profits.

But in March, Mesa announced third and fourth quarter distributions would be 37.5 cents. Thursday's announcement eliminated the payment altogether "until industry conditions and cash flow improve."

Meanwhile Mesa still holds millions of dollars in stocks in other companies. A filing with the federal Security and Exchange Commission shows Mesa owned $222.5 million worth of stock on Nov. 13, mostly in issues active in takeover speculation.

Bill Ballew, a Mesa financial official, estimated the partnership has about $400 million worth of cash and marketable securities.

To raise money immediately, Mesa also announced Thursday it will package its holdings in the Hugoton natural gas field into a separate royalty trust and sell shares to the public.

Mesa said the sale is expected to raise $300 million, which will be used to pay down debt. Mesa has about $1.5 billion in long-term debt, much of it left from last year's $715 million purchase of natural gas properties from Tenneco Inc.

Twice in the past, Mesa has packaged holdings into trusts, shares of which were distributed to unitholders. This time, however, "we needed the money," Ballew said.

Charles Strain, an analyst with Lovett, Underwood, Newhouse and Webb Inc. in Houston, said Mesa could only justify a payout of 30 cents a year based on current gas prices, "so this makes sense."

"The drop in natural gas prices has clearly been a problem for Mesa, as it has been for the entire industry," Pickens said in a letter to unitholders.

"In 1985, our average gas price was $2.68 per thousand cubic feet; it has declined each year to an average of about $1.65 thousand cubic feet in 1989. If prices had held at $2.68 per thousand cubic feet during the four years 1986-1989, our cash flow would have been $400 million greater."

The current price is about $1.85, and is expected to top $2 in January.

The price should rise to about $2.50 per thousand cubic feet if oil remains in the $20-a-barrel range, Strain said. At that level, he said, Mesa would be profitable.

Most observers expect the price of natural gas to continue rising as demand catches up to supply. The fuel frequently is touted as a domestically available, safe, clean replacement for gasoline.

Pickens, who owns 4.3 million common units, said the distribution policy will be reviewed quarterly. The cut does not affect preference unitholders, who will continue to receive 37.5 cents for six additional quarters.

"I remain a believer in natural gas," wrote Pickens. "About 80 percent of Mesa's reserves are natural gas - we have placed our bet."

East Germans seek more aid

EAST BERLIN (AP) - East Germany, reaching out to the West to solve its economic problems, has made its first contact with the International Monetary Fund to begin the painful process of modernizing its moribund economy.

Also, the East Berlin leadership welcomed wide-ranging economic cooperation with West Germany.

Under hard-line East German leader Erich Honecker, the country often found itself shunned internationally as a nation that fenced in its people and shot would-be escapees.

Since Oct. 18, the massive pro-democracy movement has ousted the old guard leadership, broken the Communists' four-decade monopoly on power and prompted the new leadership to open up to the outside world.

Late Thursday, the official news agency ADN said that East German envoy Peter Dietze met with Helen B. Junz, the International Monetary Fund's special representative for trade matters.

ADN called Thursday's session in Geneva the "first contacts" between the two sides, saying Dietze had expressed interest in the "economic, monetary, political and financial experience" of the IMF.

"The contacts are expected to be continued," said ADN. However, it did not say whether East Germany plans to seek a membership in the international organization.

A day earlier, Poland said it and the IMF had agreed on a package of economic reforms and credit that is expected to stimulate a flow of Western support for the East European nation.

The IMF, with headquarters in Washington, promotes monetary cooperation, currency stabilization and trade expansion.

In Brussels, the European Economic Community named East Germany as one of the Eastern European countries that could qualify for Western financial aid, if East Berlin seeks to adopt free-market principles.

East Germany has been showing greater interest in developing its foreign trade, as demonstrated by the visit of West German Economics Minister Helmut Haussmann.

Haussmann met with Communist Premier Hans Modrow, and the two sides agreed to set up a joint economic commission and broaden cooperation.

East Germany is seeking to attract more Western capital, while there are numerous signs of change on the diplomatic level as well.

Head of government: Prime Minister Hans Modrow, who took office Nov. 20. He succeeds Egon Krenz, who took office on Oct. 18 and resigned on Dec. 3. Krenz replaced Erich Honecker, who was head of the Communist Party in the country since May 1971 and head of state since October 1976. He was forced to resign on Oct. 18. The country has scheduled elections for next May 8 after a round table decided, on Dec. 7, to call for a new constitution and free elections.

Czechoslovakia

Head of government: Prime Minister Marian Kalva, who took office Dec. 7 and was sworn in on Dec. 10. He succeeds Ladislav Adamec, who took office on Oct. 12, 1988 and resigned Dec. 7. No successor has been chosen to replace the head of state, Gustav Husak, Communist Leader from 1968 to December 1987 and President since May 1975. A new government was formed Dec. 10 with a Communist minority.

Poland

Head of government: Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki, who took office Aug. 19. Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, head of the Communist party, accepts a government with a Communist minority after party beaten in elections. Mazowiecki was a leader of the Solidarity movement and is the first non-Communist Prime Minister since just after World War II.

Hungary

Head of government: Three-member group headed by Rezzo Nyers, in charge since October 1989. The Communist Party had been in power since 1956, but disbanded on Oct. 7 and renamed itself the Socialist Party. Voters rejected the Socialist timetable in a Nov. 26 referendum, forcing them to abandon plans to elect a president of the Republic but retaining full control of the government.

Havel wins more support from Czechs

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) - Opposition leader-playwright Vaclav Havel has gained more support for the presidency, with 40,000 supporters cheering him in the streets and the nation's Roman Catholic primate joining his chorus of backers.

The opposition and Communist leaders planned to resume negotiations toward selecting the new president. Communist hard-liner Gustav Husak resigned Sunday after swearing in the first government here since 1948 not dominated by Communists.

Opposition spokesman Lubos Dobrovsky told a news conference Thursday night that negotiations would resume soon but did not say when.

He said negotiators were exhausted after intense discussions that lasted until late Wednesday and decided to take Thursday night off.

About 40,000 people poured into Wenceslas Square in Prague on Thursday to show their support for Havel. The rally was called by students who were the vanguard of the pro-democracy movement.

Police action on Nov. 17 against peaceful student demonstrators left 143 injured and launched the peaceful revolution that forced the Communists to relinquish their monopoly on power.

"Havel for president!" and "We want Havel!" chanted the crowd Thursday.

Sakharov, 68, dies in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) - Andrei D. Sakharov, a brilliant scientist who built the Soviet hydrogen bomb and then became perhaps the world's most renowned advocate of world peace and human liberty, has died. He was 68.

Sakharov, who went from national hero to reviled exile to popular member of the new Soviet Congress, died alone in his study Thursday night of an apparent heart attack, said his son-in-law, Yefrem Yankelevich.

At the time, the Nobel Peace Prize winner was preparing a speech he was to give to Congress demanding that the Communists' constitutional guarantee on power be revoked, Yankelevich said.

The defiant activist's final words to his family were: "Tomorrow there will be battle," Yankelevich said.

Just hours before he died, he stood on the floor of the Congress of People's Deputies and demanded that opposition delegates form an alternative party to the Communists.

It was the latest call in his final cause: to end seven decades of guaranteed Communist supremacy.

Vitaly I. Vorotnikov, a member of the Presidium of the Congress, opened today's session with an announcement of the death of one of the chamber's best-known deputies. He paid tribute to Sakharov both as a scientist and public figure.

"All that he did was dictated by his sleepless conscience, his deep humanitarian convictions," said Vorotnikov, a member of the ruling Communist Party Politburo and president of the Russian Federation.

President Mikhail S. Gorbachev joined the Congress in standing for a moment of silence out of respect for the Congress member.

Dmitri Likhachev, another scholar-deputy, told the chamber, "With Sakharov, a part of our heart has departed from us. We could agree or disagree with him, but he was a man of absolute sincerity and absolute purity, and this led him to achievements in science and his position in public life."

Yankelevich, bleary-eyed when he answered the door at Sakharov's apartment today, said his father-in-law "died last night of what the doctors say was a heart attack. We don't exactly know the cause of death yet."

Yankelevich said Sakharov had left his apartment about 9 p.m. to go downstairs to another apartment in the same building, where he had a study crammed with books and papers from his scientific and political careers.

Sergei Kovalev, a fellow human rights activist in Moscow and friend, said the body was found by Sakharov's wife, Yelena Bonner.

Bonner today sat in a chair next to the body, which was laid out on a bed, said a friend who declined to be identified. A few close friends were admitted to the apartment.

Sakharov had suffered from angina, but during a visit to the United States in December 1988, doctors at Massachusetts General Hospital determined he did not need heart surgery or a pacemaker after cardiovascular tests.

He had aged visibly in recent months, which were busy with international speaking trips and his work as a member of the new, competitively elected Congress.

Sakharov began speaking out for human rights in the 1960s. He harshly criticized his government, and spent nearly seven years in internal exile before he was freed by Gorbachev in 1986.

He became a member of the Soviet Congress and stayed feisty until the end, tilting his lance at Gorbachev's government for not moving fast enough with his reforms.

He told opposition congressmen earlier Thursday that Gorbachev and the Communist Party leadership was "leading the country to catastrophe, prolonging the process of perestroika many years."

A White House statement today hailed Sakharov as a historic figure whose voice "was an important dimension in the contemporary changes under way in Soviet society. Former President Reagan called Sakharov as 'a man of great principle and a true general in the fight for human rights.'"

Human rights activist Natan Sharansky, who spent nine years in Soviet labor camps before immigrating to Israel in 1986, told Israel radio today that Sakharov "had tremendous influence ... among dissidents, among free people in the Soviet Union and who by his own personal example helped change the whole climate in the Soviet Union."

Born May 21, 1921, Sakharov's first became known as a great scientist, inducted into the Academy of Sciences in 1953 at age 32, the youngest-ever member. Like his father, he became a physicist.

In 1948, he joined physicist Igor Tamm in developing the hydrogen bomb and for 20 years lived and worked in secrecy, with privileges that included a good apartment, driver, high salary and government awards. But Sakharov began to worry about the morality of developing weapons of mass destruction.

He had his first brush with top Soviet officials in 1961, when he appealed to Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev to stop nuclear weapons tests. Khrushchev responded that scientists shouldn't meddle in politics. Two years later, the Soviet Union agreed to such limits in a treaty with the United States.

After Sakharov formed the Human Rights Committee in 1970, he became better known as a dissident leader, clashing with four Kremlin leaderships over human rights, foreign policy and the morality of the nuclear weaponry he helped create.

As an emerging dissident, Sakharov appeared to be immune to official sanctions while other prominent dissidents were forced to emigrate or sent to labor camps. But in 1973, Sakharov was warned by authorities that his interviews and statements were used by the foreign press for anti-Soviet slander and that he should be aware of the consequences.

Sakharov continued to speak out, and he and his wife attended the trials of prominent dissidents and lent their names to international appeals for prisoners of conscience in all countries to be freed.

The physicist's tireless campaigns on behalf of disarmament and human rights won him the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize, and he steadfastly argued that without international respect for human rights there could be no guarantee of peace.

He was stripped of his Soviet awards after he criticized the 1979 Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and then-Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev banished him in January 1980 to Gorky, 200 miles east of Moscow.

Sakharov was never charged with any crime or put on trial.

Reporters, foreign visitors and diplomats who knew Sakharov described him as a modest man of patience and humor but determined once his ire was aroused.

He was released in December 1986 and recalled to Moscow by Gorbachev. He swiftly took a leading role in urging the Soviet leader to follow through on Gorbachev's twin policies of perestroika and glasnost.

He was elected to the Congress of People's Deputies this year, completing a remarkable comeback. In June, he told the Soviet Congress he had no regrets. "I am proud of this exile in Gorky like a medal I wear."

NEW YORK (AP) - Author Nicholas Gage says his writing skills were unleashed in a chance encounter with a salty-tongued teacher when he was a struggling, 13-year-old refugee.

Gage writes in the Dec. 17 issue of Parade magazine how as a seventh-grader he met Marjorie Hurd Rabinow in Worcester, Mass.

Told to choose a hobby, Gage said he "decided to follow the prettiest girl in my class - the blue-eyed daughter of the local Lutheran minister."

"She led me through the door marked 'Newspaper Club' and into the presence of Miss Hurd, the newspaper adviser and English teacher who would become my mentor and my muse."

Gage wrote an essay for the school paper about his mother, who was killed by Communists during the Greek civil war. Hurd sent it to the Freedoms Foundation in Valley Forge, Pa., where it won a medal.

Gage was a reporter for The New York Times and later recorded his mother's life and death in the book "Eleni," and his father's story in "A Place for Us."

Sunday. All church members are invited to the open house at the parsonage by the Rev. Derrel and Mrs. Evins and Bethany. There will be no evening worship service.

Choir practice is planned at 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 16.

Cans of food are being collected for needy families.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The high school ski retreat is planned Jan. 18-21, 1990. Cost is $100. Deadline to sign-up is Dec. 27. Money needs to be turned in by Jan. 7, 1990.

Before the service of music, representatives of First UMC Sunday School classes will deliver Christmas blessing baskets to shut-ins. Each class has been given the names of several shut-ins, and gifts will be selected for each individual. Class members will bring the gifts to Sunday School on Sunday morning.

The annual candlelight service will be at 6:30 p.m. Sunday. Sermon title for this service is "Thoughtful Gifts." An open house at the Manse will be held after the candlelight service from 7:45-10 p.m.

AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH

The Sunday morning worship will be a celebration of Christmas. The adult choir will perform a musical called "Night of Wonder." The children will sing Christmas songs and puppets will perform. The public is invited to attend the special service at 11 a.m. A nursery will be provided.

On Sunday at 7 p.m., the pastor will continue with a series on Christmas personalities. This week's message will be on the wise men.

The Hereford freshman girls White squad opened the Canyon Junior High Girls Tournament on Thursday, dropping the first game of the tourney to Randall, 52-23.

Randall opened an 18-5 lead at the end of the first quarter, and Hereford was never any closer than 10 points the rest of the way.

Traci Deckard led Hereford with seven points while Brandie Webb and Tonya Castillo added six each and Claudia Ramirez had four.

Randall had three players score in double figures, led by Angie Spruill with 18 points while Leann Rexrode had 16 and Jeannie Powell had 12.

The freshmen, who were split into two seven-member teams for the tournament, will resume play today with the Maroon unit taking on Friona at 6:30 p.m. at the Canyon High School Gymnasium.

In the seventh- and eighth-grade divisions, Hereford will begin play with games at each of the four game times. The seventh Maroon will meet Canyon White at 4 p.m. followed by the eighth White playing Valleyview Blue at 5:15 p.m. The seventh White team will face Valleyview Silver at 6:30 p.m. and the eighth Maroon will close the evening with Valleyview Silver at 7:45 p.m. All four games will be at Canyon Junior High.

Second-round games will be played Saturday morning. The freshman White team will meet the loser of Pampa and Dumas at 9 a.m. while the frosh Maroon will play either Canyon or Clovis at 10:15 a.m. or 12:45 p.m.

The HJH teams will follow similar schedules based on the outcome of today's games.

Lamar regents vote to drop football program

BEAUMONT (AP) - A former player and a former coach made impassioned pleas to save football at Lamar University. Other supporters said the school won't have a complete athletic program without it.

But the school's Board of Regents Thursday voted 5-4 to discontinue Cardinal football, which lost a lot on the field but even more in the treasurer's office.

"This is something that makes me choke up because of what you are contemplating," former Lamar coach and athletic director J.B. Higgins said prior to the vote.

"There are a lot of things we can do if we have time to do them. We haven't had a season ticket campaign since 1974. These are things we need to address before we throw it out with the wash."

Former Cardinal kicker Mike Andrie, his voice choked with emotion, asked the regents to give football another chance.

"Dropping football at Lamar would be a mistake that will cost more than you will lose, don't do it," Andrie said.

The regents decided, however, that the school could no longer afford a football program that has lost $4.3 million over the last decade.

Lamar President Bill Franklin told the regents the football program would lose $503,414 over the next three years.

Without football, he said, the school's athletic program would earn $491,435.

"I cannot identify the source of income that would allow us to continue the program and that's over a three-year period and it gets more dramatic in years four and five," Franklin told the regents.

The school will honor all football scholarships still in force or player can transfer to other colleges and become immediately eligible.

The football has played as an NCAA Division I-AA independent the last three years. The school's other programs complete in the America South Conference and were not affected by Thursday's vote.

Lamar finished the 1989 season with a 5-5 record, their first non-losing season since 1979, under Ray Alborn, who compiled a 16-26-2 record in four seasons.

"I had a meeting with the president on Oct. 17 and when I came out of there it didn't take a rocket scientist to figure out it was a moot point," Alborn said.

"I've been here four years and there's never been a season ticket campaign. I went everywhere to tell people about our program."

Alborn interviewed for the head coaching job at New Mexico State in Las Cruces last week and some of his players could follow their coach if he gets the job.

"I'd love to play for Coach Alborn and his staff," freshman quarterback Jason Woods said. "I love the (run-and-shoot) offense. It would be hard for any player to go to another program after playing under Coach Alborn."

After word the football program was jeopardized spread last month, Cardinal Club boosters Charlie Gibbs and Frank Messina headed a season ticket campaign that sold 4,018 season tickets in 30 days.

But regents looked harder at the bleak economic forecast and the lack of attendance in recent years.

The school will make refunds to all season ticket holders.

"Football at Lamar has been represented locally, statewide and across the nation as a losing program," Franklin said. "It's a statement of fact. The change of that reputation has been attempted by several good coaches, but without success."

Regent Ted Moor voted to discontinue the program.

"Winning isn't anything if you don't get warm bodies into cold seats," Moor said. "I say we can dedicated those resources (from football) to building a winning basketball program."

NY not overlooking 'Pokes

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - If this were any other time of the year, Bill Parcells would be talking to the New York Giants about letdowns and how to avoid them.

After tough games with San Francisco, Philadelphia and Denver, a letdown might even be expected against the Dallas Cowboys (1-13).

Forget that this weekend. The Giants (10-4) have a lot a stake heading into Saturday's 12:30 p.m. EST matchup with Dallas at Giants Stadium.

A victory would give New York its first playoff berth since the Super Bowl season of 1986 and keep alive hopes of winning the NFC East title. The Giants are currently tied for the division lead with Philadelphia, and the Eagles have a very tough game this weekend with the New Orleans Saints.

"This situation is pretty descriptive to the team," Parcells said. "We've come too far not to prepare well. We'll be ready to play."

After the Cowboys, the Giants close the regular season on Christmas Eve at home against the Los Angeles Raiders. The Eagles will play the Phoenix Cardinals at home in their final game.

If the Eagles and Giants finish with the same record, the Eagles would win the NFC East title by virtue of beating the Giants in both games this season.

That would likely put the Giants into the wild-card game, for which they would be assured the home-field advantage by winning their final two.

"These next two games are big for us," said fullback Maurice Carthon, whose playing time jumped dramatically last week in a 14-7 victory over Denver. "I don't see any chance of a letdown."

The Giants had little problems with the Cowboys earlier this year in Dallas, winning by a 30-13 margin despite turning the ball over five times.

Parcells is more concerned about some of the Cowboys' later games. He thought they played well and had chances to beat both Miami and the Los Angeles Rams, teams still in the playoff hunt.

"There is more consistency," Parcells said of the Cowboys. "They have stabilized the roster with the same guys playing week to week. There is more consistency on both sides of the ball and (Troy) Aikman is dangerous, I've always said that. He has all the ingredients to become a great quarterback."

Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson was rather blunt about his team's chances against the Giants.

"I do believe we'll be on the short end of the stick," he said. "Of course, we were a different team the first time we played. We had (Herschel) Walker in the backfield and Kelvin Martin at wide receiver."

Walker is now with the Minnesota Vikings and Martin is on injured reserve. In all, Johnson has shifted 19 players through the roster in this, his first year as coach.

"I'd rather sacrifice a win or two to develop this football team," Johnson said. "It was important to upgrade the talent and pick up a few players. All I'm trying to do is get this club to where it's a playoff team. So winning one, two or four games wasn't going to get us in the playoffs."

Landry to be Mara's guest at game

DALLAS (AP) - Former Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry says he doesn't know how he will feel when he attends his first Cowboys game as a former coach.

Landry and his wife, Alicia, will attend Saturday's game against the New York Giants as guests of Giants owner Wellington Mara, a longtime friend.

"I've not thought about how it will feel," Landry said Thursday. "I guess I will have some feelings. But I've not bothered to think about it too much, so I don't really know how I'll feel."

Landry says he has only attended one NFL game since he was replaced by Jimmy Johnson on Feb. 25 and has watched parts of maybe two Cowboys games on television. Landry, who will be in New York on business, says he has been too busy to watch football.

He did attend a Phoenix Cardinals game Nov. 5 when they played the Giants. He was the guest of former Phoenix coach Gene Stallings, a former Landry assistant.

Speaking of his busy schedule, Landry said, "I just didn't anticipate what was going to happen. It seems like I've always got something to do."

The Giants can clinch at least a wild-card spot in the playoffs by defeating the Cowboys.

He's going to be in a ticklish situation Saturday because he is the guest of Mara and watching a team he played for playing against a team he formerly coached, but Landry has no doubts about his loyalty.

"I know New York has got to win the game, but then I will not root against the Cowboys," he said.

Robinson leads Spurs past Houston

By The Associated Press

Rookie David Robinson and the San Antonio Spurs won their first confrontation with veteran Alkeem Olajuwon and the Houston Rockets.

Robinson won on points 19-15 but Olajuwon dominated the boards 16-9. The Spurs won the game 104-100.

"You have to give credit where credit is due," said Olajuwon, who made only five of 17 shots. "He was very aggressive and very, very quick. He's one of the most physical centers I have faced this year."

"He was really tough. I don't know what I'll do different next time I play him. I know I'll have to shoot better."

In other NBA games Thursday, it was Chicago 124, Orlando 113; Indiana 102, New Jersey 78 and Washington 105, Charlotte 101.

While the Robinson-Olajuwon battle drew most of the attention, Terry Cummings and Willie Anderson provided most of the heroics.

Cummings scored 26 points and Anderson sparked a fourth-quarter burst with 10 of his 19 points. San Antonio outscored Houston 19-9 in the final 7:24.

The Spurs trailed 91-85 with 7:40 left but scored six straight points to tie the game. Olajuwon's basket with 5:18 left gave Houston its last lead, 93-91. The Spurs took control of the game with an 11-2 run over the next five minutes, including seven points by Anderson.

"My objective is to go in there and take control of the boards," Robinson said. "Tonight Alkeem did that. We're both going to come up with points, so that doesn't matter. I wanted to go in there and grab rebounds. I didn't do a good job of that."

Houston coach Don Chaney said the giant centers "were tight and both were conscious of each other. Next time we play them you'll see a better performance from Alkeem. I guarantee it."

Bulls 124, Magic 113

Michael Jordan scored 26 of his 38 points in the first half as Chicago jumped to an early lead. Jordan, the NBA's leading scorer with a 32.5 average, played only 25 minutes, the fewest he has played this season.

Scottie Pippen added 20 points and eight steals for the Bulls. Reggie Theus led Orlando with 19 points.

After Orlando scored the game's first basket, the Bulls scored 11 straight points. Orlando trailed 41-35 when Jordan took control, scoring 15 points, including two 3-point baskets, as the Bulls led 66-52 lead at halftime. He added 12 points in the third period. Pacers 102, Nets 78

Rik Smits scored 13 of his 30 points as the Indiana Pacers built a 25-9 lead after one period on the way to their 10th victory in 12 games. Smits, who also had 15 rebounds, scored nine points as the Pacers started the game with a 17-3 run. The Nets missed 17 of their first 18 shots and committed eight turnovers in the first quarter.

Reggie Miller scored 17 points for the Pacers and Chuck Person added 15. Sam Bowie and Dennis Hopson led the Nets with 15 apiece.

Bullets 105, Hornets 101
Mark Alarie sank an 18-foot jumper with 15 seconds left to snap a 101-101 tie and Washington handed Charlotte its ninth consecutive setback, tying the club record. Ledell Eackles led Washington with 21 points, seven during a key third-quarter run.

The Hornets, whose losing streak matches the longest in the NBA this season, failed to shoot 50 percent for the 14th straight game, making just 39 of 92 shots for 42.4 percent. Rex Chapman had 23 points and Robert Reid, in his first game since being resigned, added 20.

Dauids to face Goliaths

By RICK WARNER
AP Football Writer

What would happen if some of the best major college football players in the country played a game against a team of small college stars?

The question will be answered Jan. 15 in the King All-America Classic, a new all-star game at San Jose, Calif., that will match a team of NCAA Division I-A stars against a squad made up of players from smaller NCAA and NAIA schools.

"It's David vs. Goliath," said Dave Smith, the former NFL receiver who founded the game. "We're giving kids who didn't get a lot of publicity in college a chance to prove themselves in front of a lot of pro scouts."

Smith, who was a small college standout at Waynesburg College and Indiana University of Pennsylvania, said he came up with the idea for the King Classic while watching Joe Montana pass to Jerry Rice in the 1989 Super Bowl.

"It struck me that you had this quarterback from Notre Dame throwing to a receiver from a little school (Mississippi Valley State) that nobody ever heard of," Smith said. "That made me think about putting players like that on different sides in an all-star game."

The game will be played on the national holiday marking the birth of Martin Luther King Jr. Part of the proceeds will go to the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Nonviolent Social Change in Atlanta.

Among those scheduled to play for the major college team are center Michael Tanks of Florida State, an Outland Trophy finalist, and Mike Pringle of Fullerton State, the nation's leading all-purpose rusher. Other prominent players on the roster are defensive backs Harlon Barnett of Michigan State and Adrian Jones of Missouri, wide receiver Mike Bellamy of Illinois, fullback Leroy Holt of Southern California and punter Shawn McCarthy of Purdue.

The small college team includes pro prospects such as wide receiver Fred Barnett of Arkansas State, tight end James Carroll of Western New Mexico, linebacker Darrell Jordan of Northern Arizona, kicker Tracy Bennett of Mesa State and Orlando

"Cheeseburger" Adams, a 6-foot-1, 300-pound defensive lineman from Jacksonville State.

"Something tells me Orlando is going to find the nearest McDonald's," said Dave Thomas, a pro scout who recruited players for the game.

Although there are five other all-star games competing for top players, Thomas said he didn't have any problem filling out the rosters for the King Classic.

"Most of our kids weren't invited to the other games," he said. "But there are plenty of good players to go around. You'll see a lot of our guys in the NFL next season."

Officials from the Senior Bowl and the Blue-Gray Classic said they weren't worried about competition from the King Classic. The Blue-Gray game will be played Christmas Day in Montgomery, Ala. The Senior Bowl will be played in Mobile, Ala., five days after the King Classic.

"This is our 41st year and we're still going strong," said Eric Tillman, executive director of the Senior Bowl. Jim Fyffe, a spokesman for the Blue-Gray Classic, said the game will continue to thrive because "cream always rises to the top."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You said in a recent column, "A man who is cheap during courtship is not likely to loosen up after marriage. Usually they get worse."

Generally you are right, Ann, but not this time. Here's my story:

When "Solly" and I were dating, his idea of going out to dinner was getting a couple of hot dogs and eating them in the car. After we married he loved to eat at home because "I was such a fantastic cook." Being young and foolish I let him get away with it.

After a few years of marriage, when we could afford it, I decided to buy some nice things for the house. Whenever I brought home a picture or a pretty lamp Solly would say, "What did you need that for?" He made me feel guilty every time I spent an extra dollar on something that wasn't absolutely necessary.

The cure came the day I took down all the pictures, put away the knickknacks, boxed up everything except the bare essentials, packed up the throw pillows and put the plants in the basement. I removed the curtains and draperies and left only the window shades. The place looked like an abandoned warehouse. There was nothing around to suggest that people lived there.

When Solly came home he began to panic. He thought I was leaving him. I explained that I was staying, but if he wanted to live in a (ital) house (unital) I would leave everything the way it was. If he would like to live in a (ital) home (unital), I would put everything back. From that night on his attitude changed. He has never complained about anything I've bought since. -- E.G., Wisconsin

DEAR WISCONSIN: Thanks for a wonderful story. I can't argue with success, but do you think perhaps Solly suddenly loosened up because he thought you were leaving him? Ah, Love -- your magic spell is everywhere.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know that a person can donate his or her organs to an organ bank, but I am 75 years old and don't think I have much to offer.

I've spent more than $5,000 on gold caps for my teeth and figure there must be at least $500 worth of gold there. Rather than waste it, can the teeth be removed after my death and donated to a worthy cause? Please check it out. Others must be wondering about this, too. -- J.J.C., Upland, Calif.

DEAR UP: My dental consultant (who asked not to be identified) said the gold is probably worth about $500 if it is top quality and in good condition. If you try to sell it, however, you would get about half that amount.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This came in the mail. I don't know who wrote it but I believe it's worthy of your column. Please print it. -- Scranton, Pa.

DEAR SCRANTON: I did print it, several years ago, but I'm happy to do so again.

THAT'S NOT MY JOB
This is a story about four people named Everybody, Somebody, Anybody and Nobody. There was an important job to be done and Everybody was sure that Somebody would do it. Anybody could have done it, but Nobody did it. Somebody got angry about that, because it was Everybody's job. Everybody thought Anybody could do it, but Nobody realized that Everybody wouldn't do it.

In a kitchen emergency, you can substitute a tablespoon of flour for a teaspoon and a half of cornstarch. In a 70-year lifetime, the average person eats 880 chickens, 12 sheep, 770 pounds of fish and 35 turkeys.
