

CSF may hit $20,000

The Christmas Stocking Fund delivered the largest number of food assistance packages in the project's history today, thanks to another record-setting year of cash contributions and community food drives.

The total amount of cash contributions to the fund reached $19,549 this morning, and CSF volunteers expected the total to go over the $20,000 mark—far above last year's record of $15,441. The total does not include all the donated food and other items.

CSF volunteers prepared 109 food packages outright and coordinated information with local civic clubs and individuals that meant food assistance to another 50 families.

A well-rounded array of foods and sundries is included in CSF assistance packages. Primary food packages, which go to the most needy, include: 10 lbs. of potatoes, 5 lbs. of onions, 20 lbs. of flour, 5 lbs. of pinto beans, rice and sugar, 2 lbs. of cornmeal, 1 lb. of salt, jelly and peanut butter, 2 lbs. of shortening, 4 to 6 cans of tomato sauce, 6 boxes of vermicelli, and an assortment of canned corn, beans, and various vegetables and fruit.

Paper goods and personal hygiene and laundry items are also provided. They include one bottle each of shampoo, deodorant, aspirin, Pepto Bismol and dishwashing soap, four bars of hand soap, toothpaste and toothbrushes, one gallon of bleach and a large box of laundry detergent, and packages of toilet tissue, Kleenex and paper towels.

Secondary food packages are delivered to remaining CSF applicants once the most urgent needs are met. These boxes may not include all the "goodies" included in the primary packages, but they still contain a good stock of basic groceries that should be welcome by their recipients. Food assistance packages are prepared until stock for well-rounded units is exhausted.

"The community-wide food drives conducted by local businesses and schools have made a tremendous difference in the amount of food help CSF has been able to provide this year," said a CSF spokesman. "Our local school children were especially generous in their canned-food offerings, and all the folks who donated food are to be commended."

Primary food assistance packages benefited 161 adults and 244 children. Secondary food assistance was delivered to a total of 70 adults and 82 children.

CSF coordinated its efforts with the Deaf Smith County Red Cross chapter today. While the CSF was making food, utility and medical voucher deliveries, Red Cross volunteers were delivering toys to needy youngsters.

Betty Henson of the Red Cross reported toys were requested for almost 1,000 youngsters this year, and the local chapter managed to meet every request with a toy of some type, thanks to its extensive toy-repair program performed by volunteers.

Details on clothing, utility and medical assistance from CSF were not complete today, as volunteers were still finishing up the laborious process of completing vouchers. Full details on the sums provided for these forms of assistance will be available at a later date.

TCFA reports good 1989

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer
AMARILLO—High Plains cattle feeders saw the highest prices in history for fed cattle in 1989, brought on by a very tight supply of cattle and good consumer demand.

That was the consensus of Leo Vermedahl of Dalhart, president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association at the group's annual year-end press conference at the TCFA headquarters here Thursday.

"The same factors that kept fed cattle prices in the $70 trading range for much of the year also kept stocker and feeder prices high," Vermedahl said. "So cattle feeders and ranchers shared the profitability brought on by higher prices."

Projecting the market outlook for 1990, Vermedahl said it will be another good year for cattle feeders. "Cattle prices will continue to stay strong and I anticipate we'll see slightly better margins," Vermedahl said.

He also predicted that packer control of inventory will remain a concern to the commercial cattle feeders, pointing out that policies regarding consolidation and integration within the industry "no doubt" will be debated. He said TCFA plans to take an active part in the policy formation process.

"Food safety will continue to be an issue," Vermedahl said. "This means that the TCFA Beef Quality Assurance Program will be even greater than ever before. This program is our industry's best guarantee that the beef we produce is safe and wholesome."

Vermedahl, a veteran cattle feeder and chief executive officer of Seven X Cattle Feeders near Hereford, predicted that TCFA will take an active role in writing the 1990 Farm Bill.

"This coming year, debate on the environment, food safety and animal care may overshadow (farm bill) discussions on more traditional ag issues of the past, such as production controls and other USDA programs."

Consumers will likely see less increase in retail beef prices in 1990, compared with increases in 1989, thanks to overall large supplies of beef, pork and poultry, he added.

Richard McDonald, executive vice president of TCFA, said 1989 had not only been good for Texas cattle feeders but also had been good for TCFA. "One of the things we're extremely proud of this year was the development of the beef quality handbook, something which the cattle feeders can use as a backup to the Beef Quality Assurance Program."

Good year for cattle feeders

Executives of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association gave a glowing report on 1989's activities during an annual year-end news conference at TCFA headquarters in Amarillo on Thursday. Presenting the good news, from left, are Leo Vermedahl, president, Richard McDonald, executive vice president, and Jim Gill, market director.

"We're also out to tell the world that this Panhandle region of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico is the cattle feeding capital of the world," McDonald said.

"We're going to make the nation and the world know this is cattle feeding country."

In coining the title of "Cattle Feeding Country," McDonald was relating to the fact that Nebraska has edged ahead of Texas in numbers of cattle on feed as a state. However, the Hereford region still remains as the undisputed leader in commercial cattle feeding.

The chief executive noted that a business information service has been added to the TCFA schedule, which allows members to obtain information from regional cattle suppliers.

"We have spent a lot of time on legislative activities this year in Washington and Austin where we sought additional changes in workers comp in an effort to make Texas more competitive with other states," said McDonald. "We also conducted our fifth annual CEO Conference this past year when we brought in CEOs of allied industries whereby we discussed such important items as the Beef Quality Assurance Program."

McDonald recognized Hereford cattle feeder Bob Josseland, who this past year has served as president of the National Cattlemen's Association, pointing out that Josseland was classed among the top cattle feeders of the nation. He also recognized H.C. "Ladd" Hitch, of Guymon, Okla., as being the Best Cattle Businessman of 1989.

In summary, McDonald noted that TCFA received much positive reaction from the newly-established Century Club and the Feeder 500 Club, which has been an ongoing program for a number of years.

"Larger poultry production and continued large pork supplies will keep beef prices from going much higher," predicted Jim Gill, market director for TCFA. "The average retail beef price in 1990 will likely be around $2.70 per pound, about one percent more than the $2.67 average in 1989. On a percentage basis, the increase for 1990 is less than the five percent rise in retail beef prices consumers saw this year compared with 1988."

"Beef production in 1990 will be near 23 billion pounds, one percent above the 22.8 billion pounds last year. However, pork production will rise one percent in 1990, approaching 16 billion pounds, and poultry production will be about 23.4 billion pounds, seven percent above the 21.9 billion pounds produced last year."

From a cattle feeder's point of view, this year's high live prices will likely continue in 1990. Gill estimates fed cattle prices will range from $76 to $80 in the first quarter of 1990; $71 to $75 in the second quarter; $70 to $74 in the third quarter; and $74 to $78 in the fourth quarter.

These prices will be largely spurred by continued tight supplies of stocker and feeder cattle.

"A slightly lower calf crop in 1989 (40.7 million head compared with 40.8 million in 1988) and an increase in heifer retention will contribute to tighter supplies," Gill said. "Imports of Mexican feeder steers will offset tighter supplies to a degree, but so far no major effect on price has materialized."

Gill said grain supplies for cattle feeders will be better in 1990, thanks to improved weather in 1989.

"This year's corn production is estimated at 7.6 billion bushels, compared with last year's 4.9 billion bushels," Gill said. "Prices to feedyards, FOB the elevator, are expected to average from $4.75 to $4.85 per hundredweight in 1990, compared with about $5 per hundredweight this year."

Romanians oust Ceausescu regime

VIENNA, Austria (AP) - Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu was toppled from power today by an outraged citizenry that turned against his 24 years of oppressive rule, and he was reportedly captured trying to flee the country.

Ceausescu, the last hard-line Soviet bloc leader, was overthrown in a popular revolt that lasted less than a week but claimed the lives of hundreds of anti-government demonstrators killed by security forces.

Hundreds of thousands of people filled the streets of Bucharest and other cities today, and fighting was reported between army units siding with the people and forces loyal to Ceausescu.

The abrupt upheaval in Romania comes at the close of a remarkable year during which the hard-line leaderships of Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Bulgaria were ousted by massive protests and replaced by reformers.

Corneliu Manescu, 73, a former foreign minister, assumed power in Romania today at the head of a "National Salvation Front," Moscow Radio reported.

Manescu, 73, has for many months been under house arrest in an agro-industrial complex in the vicinity of Bucharest, informed sources said.

In March, he and five other senior officials, in a letter made available to news media abroad, sharply criticized the Ceausescu leadership.

Romanian television reported that Ceausescu and his wife, Elena, were captured while trying to flee the country. An earlier report on Romanian television said they had fled the presidential palace and arrived at an airport in the city of Titu about 18 miles outside Bucharest.

Radio broadcasts exhorted the soldiers to stop him from fleeing Titu.

On Romanian television, whose broadcasts took on a chaotic air after demonstrators took over the station, an unidentified general said Ceausescu arrived at Titu military airport outside Bucharest.

The capture was declared "a great victory for the Romanian people," by an unidentified man on Romanian television, which was monitored in Yugoslavia.

Thousands of people were reported to be in the streets of Timisoara, the west Romanian city where troops fired on protesters on Saturday, igniting the week of the nationwide revolt against Ceausescu's autocratic rule.

Troops chase stubborn fighters

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) - U.S. troops today chased stubborn bands of Panamanian fighters through parts of this chaotic capital and had still not captured Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, whose loyalists controlled much of the countryside.

Late Thursday, fighting intensified in Panama City as two U.S. warplanes bombed enemy positions. Flares lighted the nighttime sky, and helicopters flew low over rooftops, shining bright searchlights.

Forty-eight hours into the invasion, U.S. armored personnel carriers rumbled toward the northeastern working-class neighborhood of San Miguelito, site of the Panamanian military garrison of Tinajitas.

Elsewhere in the capital, machine guns rattled and explosions boomed near Cerro Patacon, close to U.S. Army communications installations.

Capital residents said people they believed were Panamanian combatants were fleeing to more secure areas.

Troops loyal to Noriega controlled parts of the country. In David, 230 miles west of Panama City and 30 miles from the border with Costa Rica, residents reached by telephone said Noriega supporters ruled the streets.

Panamanian forces controlled the western border with Costa Rica, permitting only people carrying passports from Latin American countries to enter the country.

In Chitre, 100 miles southwest of Panama City, a Defense Forces officer said the garrison of about 200 men had not been attacked.

"We are with ... (Noriega) until the last bullet. We are ready for the gringos. We are waiting for orders," he said.

An Associated Press photographer saw flares fired Thursday night near Anton, 60 miles southwest of Panama City and a few miles from Panama's Rio Hato military base. Civilians sought refuge in a local school.

Troops from the U.S. 82nd Airborne Division stopped the photographer, Matias Recart, at Anton and refused to let him continue to Panama City.

Residents said Panamanians attacked American positions at Rio Hato late Wednesday, then apparently went into the mountains.

Parilitary "Dignity Battalions" that support Noriega were seen at several points between Anton and David.

"We would need twice as many soldiers if we were to take over every small garrison in this country," a U.S. Army officer said, on condition of anonymity.

"Noriega's capture is important," he said, referring to the need for troops for that purpose.

Spurred by a $1 million bounty offered by President Bush for Noriega's arrest, Panamanians reported sightings of the general throughout the capital.

There were rumors he was holding out at the Tinajitas garrison, and one Israeli television report said the general had been spotted on the resort island of Contadora, 40 miles off the Pacific coast. It said he was preparing to escape to Nicaragua.

There was no word on the whereabouts of most of the members of Noriega's general staff, although a U.S. Army source confirmed that Noriega's brother-in-law, Lt. Col. Aquilino Sieiro, had surrendered.

The U.S. Army announced it had 1,500 prisoners of war, mostly members of the Panamanian Defense Forces.

Bush pledged in Washington that U.S. forces would scour Panama "as long as it takes" to capture the general, who was indicted in the United States in 1988 on charges of trafficking in Colombian cocaine and money laundering.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said in a TV interview that reinforcements sent to aid the troops based in Panama may be able to leave "within a few weeks." Officials previously said they hoped the action could take three days.

Bush said the military operation had created stability in Panama and said "it's been worth" the American lives it cost, while expressing sorrow over the deaths.

Pentagon officials reported 21 Americans killed, 208 wounded and four missing in two days of fighting.

Figures for Panamanian casualties were hard to come by.

Regarding Panamanian casualties, an official in the office of Leonardo Diaz, medical director of the Santo Tomas Hospital, said the hospital had taken in 80 dead and more than 1,000 wounded.

"We have really lost count of the wounded," she said, refusing to give her name. She noted that many of Noriega's troops wear civilian clothes, but said hospital officials believed more than half of the casualties were civilian.

The Dignity Battalions and some of Noriega's elite units, such as the Machos de Monte, wear civilian clothing. "The morgue is now full. We have no place to put the dead," the official said, adding the hospital was running low on medical supplies.

Santo Tomas is the hospital nearest the Defense Forces headquarters, which was bombed and flattened on the first night of the invasion.

Thousands of looters had a field day Thursday, sacking vendors of everything from designer brassieres to gleaming new BMWs despite a curfew ordered by new President Guillermo Endara, sworn in by a Panamanian judge minutes before the invasion began at midnight Tuesday.

U.S. soldiers were too busy with snipers and house-to-house searches to challenge the looters.

announce the ouster of Ceausescu, indicating the army had joined demonstrators.

But reports on radio and television indicated the struggle against Ceausescu, while apparently won in Bucharest, was continuing in the south Transylvanian city of Sibiu, ruled by Ceausescu's son, Nicu, as local Communist party chief. Earlier, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said Nicu had fled.

Radio also broadcast several appeals to the crowds in Bucharest to stop looting and smashing stores and to cease attacks on security forces.

"A massacre is going on in Sibiu," an unidentified general said on Romanian television after it was taken over by some of the hundreds of thousands of joyous anti-government demonstrators said to be dancing and weeping in the streets of Bucharest.

The general said the army had run out of ammunition in Sibiu to fight what he described as an all-out attack by paramilitary Communist Party units who were "firing at everything."

On Romanian television, Col. Gen. Nicolae Militaru, apologized to the Romanian people for any slaughter in the past few days.

"Children, old people, women, innocent people have died," he said.

On radio, an unidentified general said planes would be sent to Sibiu to try to stop the fighting.

A police officer appeared on Romanian television, monitored in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, and took off his officer's epaulets, saying: "The militia (police) is with the people and will defend the people."

In an earlier television address, well-known actor Sergiu Nicolaescu called for "those Romanian leaders who still cherish the ideals of freedom" to come to the television studio and "together with people" to work out an address to the nation and to elect worthy leaders of the country, Tass said.

The report indicated that, during the night, a struggle occurred between the army, which appeared to be largely on the side of the demonstrators, and the nation's vast security forces, who were more loyal to Ceausescu.

Iran restrictions out

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush is expected to invoke a provision allowing him to lift the ban imposed by Congress several months ago - on grounds of U.S. national interests, according to the officials who spoke Thursday on condition of anonymity.

The United States, which reestablished ties with Iraq in 1984, has been seeking to increase its influence over the government of strongman Saddam Hussein.

The administration is especially eager to expand trade with Hussein, who commands a powerful military force and the world's second largest proven oil reserves.

U.S. oil companies have sharply increased imports from Iraq over the past two years, jumping from a daily average of 83,000 barrels in 1987 to 345,000 barrels a day in 1988, according to Energy Department figures. The year-end figures for 1989 are expected to show about a 40 percent increase over 1988.

Deputy Energy Secretary Henson Moore, in particular, has been eager to improve opportunities in Iraq for U.S. oil and petroleum product companies, aides say.

But other American businesses, eager to profit from an anticipated boom following the end of the eight-year Persian Gulf war last summer, have had their plans thwarted by a lack of financing.

Iraq, emerging from the destructive war with neighboring Iran, has accumulated an estimated $30 billion in debt to governments and banks around the world.

With the world's second largest proven oil reserve, Iraq is considered a good long-term credit risk once it repairs the oil terminals damaged in the war and implements plans to increase its daily output from 2.5 million barrels to 4 million.

Iraq's problem with lenders is compounded by the fact that it won't divulge figures on its debt, citing national security, said Withold Suliminski, chairman of Intercomp Investments Inc., a New York-based merchant bank.

Concern is critical for AIDS patients

NEW YORK (AP) - Successes and failures in the war against AIDS show that concern for patients' rights is essential if health authorities hope to stem the epidemic, the director of the World Health Organization's AIDS program says.

In an interview Thursday, Dr. Jonathan Mann said many of the discriminatory laws put in place during the initial panic earlier in the '80s have been repealed as governments discovered the laws were impeding efforts to fight the disease's spread.

"We made a big discovery during the 1980s that ranks right up there with the discovery of the virus and the modes of spread," Mann said by telephone from Geneva. "And that discovery is that to fight this global epidemic of infectious disease, you must also fight against prejudice and discrimination."

Health officials have been successful in curbing risky sexual behavior among homosexual men in San Francisco and among female prostitutes in Nairobi, Kenya and Peru, among other places, Mann said.

"All of those programs have in common ... the careful attention to developing a supportive social environment that refuses discrimination against infected people," he said.

"We've realized that in order to fight successfully against AIDS, it is vital to protect the rights and dignity of people."

Mann said that more than 35 countries, including the United States, passed laws in the 1980s restricting immigration by people infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) that causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Hance, Mattox file

AUSTIN (AP) - Attorney General Jim Mattox and Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance have shelled out $3,000 apiece to run for governor, while another gubernatorial hopeful, Clayton Williams, said he is donating 10 smoked turkeys to help feed the needy in Houston.

Mattox filed Thursday in the Democratic Party primary, saying he already has more than $3 million to spend on a campaign and a "winning team on the field."

Hance, a former Democratic congressman, filed as a Republican candidate.

Williams, a Midland businessman also running as a Republican, said he would donate turkeys Friday to the Citywide Club of Houston, which he said expects to feed 80,000 of Houston's needy during its annual Christmas dinner on Saturday.

Mattox submitted a $3,000 check for his filing fee at party headquarters, and also released a summary of a recent poll that showed him leading Democratic candidates Ann Richards and Mark White.

One question in the poll asks if the Democratic primary for governor "were held today" and the candidates were Mattox, Ms. Richards and White "for whom would you vote?"

Mattox said he received 30 percent, with 4 percent leaning toward him; Ms. Richards 28 percent, 3 percent leaning, and White 22 percent, 1 percent leaning. Mattox said he increased his margin after "positive and negative" information were presented for each candidate and the same question was asked.

The telephone poll of 802 registered voters was conducted by the Washington D.C. firm of Donilon & Petts Research Inc. between Dec. 8 and Dec. 13, Mattox said. He said all the voters surveyed have a "strong history" of participating in the Democratic primary and have "firm intentions" of voting in the 1990 primary.

The poll's margin of error was 4 percent, he said.

Hance released results of a poll that asked 600 Republican primary voters who they think is the "most prepared and has the most experience" among four GOP candidates to be governor.

Hance led the poll, according to spokesman Mark Sanders, with 42 percent, followed by Williams, 21 percent; Tom Luck of Dallas, 14 percent; and Jack Rains of Houston, 2 percent. Twenty-one percent were undecided.

The Dec. 4-6 telephone poll was by Tarrance and Associates of Houston, and had a margin of error of 3 percent, Sanders said.

Hance plans to start a statewide campaign tour Tuesday, and will open his television campaign in early January, Sanders said.

Mattox told a news conference he has campaign coordinators in all 254 counties in Texas, but added, "I anticipate that there will probably be a runoff unless we are able in some way to dramatically interest the voters in the campaign."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: One of our area hospitals reprinted this and I believe it deserves a larger audience. I hope you think it's good enough to run in your column. No name, please, just -- Crystal Lake, Ill.

DEAR CRYSTAL: I do, indeed. Here it is with my thanks for passing it on.

WHAT TO SAY TO SOMEONE WHO IS REALLY SICK

"No guidelines for being a good friend can replace you own style," says former cancer patient Georgia Photopolos, "but if you'd like a few simple tips on how to talk to someone who is very sick, here they are."

1. Don't be afraid to ask me what I have, how I'm doing, or what my treatment will be. At worst, I'll say I don't want to discuss it. At best, I'll welcome the chance to talk about my problem.

2. You don't know what to say?

What did we talk about before I became ill? Politics, art, religion, the PTA. I'm still interested. If you're a colleague, lets talk about work. I'd like to keep in touch.

3. Don't try to cheer me up by telling me things could be worse, or I'm lucky my husband or wife hasn't left me, or I could have been hit by a truck. It doesn't help. In fact, forget about cheering me up. What I need most is a compassionate listener with a good ear.

4. Don't assume that you know how I feel. If you really want to know, ask me and I'll tell you.

5. If I look terrible don't say, "You look great." Your lie will hang between us and make me suspicious of everything else you say. It isn't necessary to comment on my looks.

6. Remember, I chose my doctor, and unless I indicate otherwise I'm probably satisfied with him or her. Please don't bring me articles about other doctors, hospials or methods of treatment unless I ask you to.

7. Do bring flowers, books, games -- whatever you think I might enjoy. Best of all, bring yourself. Illness changes so much. Please don't let it change our friendship.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm sure you've received many responses to the letter signed "Getting Depressed in Georgia." She was confused about whether to become a radiologist and "making something of her life," or forget about college and become a flight attendant.

Thank you, Ann, for your answer. Unfortunately, most people seem to think of flight attendants as glorified waiters and waitresses. Many flight attendants are college graduates. I have a degree in computer science. Among our number are law graduates, business graduates and a young man who is studying to become a geneticist. I can think of few jobs that are so demanding. In addition to servicing drinks and lunch or dinner, we do our best to cope with poor pressurization (on older aircraft), dry air, abusive passengers and occasional drunks. It's the toughest job I've ever had, but it's also the most rewarding.

Thanks for your vote of confidence, Ann. We appreciate your support. -- Permanently Jet-lagged and Loving It in Toronto

DEAR PJ. and LOVING IT: Thanks for letting us know what it's like at 30,000 feet. I'd say 99 percent of you folks do a super job. Cheers from planet earth.

Is live passing you by? Want to improve your social skills? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada send $5.05.)

Lighting designer offers Christmas lighting tips

Frank LaGuisa, lighting designer for the national Christmas tree in Washington, D.C., offers the following suggestions for holiday lighting.

Indoors or outdoors the lights of Christmas make magic for you and your loved ones. Here are some practical ways to create Christmas magic in your yard and in your home this season.

Outdoor lighting

-Use an adequate number of bulbs. You can determine the maximum number of miniature bulbs required for your tree by multiplying the tree's width in feet by eight times its height.

If you're using large egg-shaped bulbs with screw-thread bases, determine the maximum number of bulbs needed by multiplying the tree's width in feet by three times its height.

The minimum number of bulbs used should not be less than half of the maximum number determined above.

-Use light-bulb colors in the same family. Blue and green are cool colors. Red, orange, yellow, and white are warm.

Set the tone for your decorations by using either cool or warm colors. -Avoid red, yellow, amber, and pink lamps for floodlighting evergreens. They tend to turn the tree color to muddy brown.

Blue or green floodlights, clear and deluxe white mercury lamps, or clear and phosphor-coated metal-halide lamps will enhance the natural colors of the evergreen.

Select an alternative way to place bulbs on the tree. Random placement is common, but you can create a tepee of light strings over the tree or spiral the lights around the tree.

-Create special effects. For example, intersperse strings of miniature lights with regular sets to create an illusion of wind rustling through the boughs.

-Consider using transparent light bulbs instead of color-coated ones. The filaments shining through them leave a netlike effect of more sparkle and glitter than that achieved by coated light bulbs.

Lights must be close together, so overlap two strings and maintain an even spiral. Draping light strings in horizontal loops around the tree will work too; for good design, it is necessary to space the bulbs close together.

Indoor lighting

-Illuminate both indoor trees and evergreens. By using a parabolic aluminized reflector lamp, you can direct the light up or down on such plants as a rubber tree, ficus, or palm from a single direction. To avoid damaging plant leaves, place lamps of 75 watts or higher at least four feet from foliage.

-Top an indoor tree with a special ornament that carries light. -Fasten light strings to a garland from railings, or dress up mirror frames with the colorful swag.

-Line electric candle lights in a row across a mantel or circle them around an evergreen wreath for a table decoration.

Oilers take last shot at Central Penders gets 300th win

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers apparently are ideally equipped to rebound from devastating defeat. Handling success is more difficult. "I don't even think about things being any different," linebacker Johnny Meads said. "You can't make the personality of this team a big deal. You just have to live with it."

The spilt-personality Oilers have lived through losses of 34-0 and 61-7 in the last four games and still can win the AFC Central title if they beat the Cleveland Browns Saturday night.

"We win one, lose one, and it's usually when people think we're going to win that we lose," Meads said. "We've been conditioned that way."

The Oilers pride themselves on having not lost two games in a row since 1987.

They had not won more than two in a row until they had victories over Detroit, Cincinnati and the Los Angeles Raiders this season; all were in the Astrodome.

They responded to that success with a 34-0 loss at Kansas City, came back with victories over Pittsburgh and Tampa Bay before Sunday's franchise record 61-7 loss to Cincinnati.

"We're going to live by what got us here and die by what got us here," quarterback Warren Moon said. "Hopefully, we'll keep living a little longer."

The Oilers have played most heroically this season following their most numbing losses.

They lost in overtime to Buffalo and then dominated Miami; they lost to New England and then came back with a late victory over Chicago and shut out Pittsburgh.

Now they'll go into Saturday's showdown brim-full of confidence.

"Yeah, I honestly feel we're good enough that when we want to turn it on we can," cornerback Steve Brown said. "Everyone understands the importance of this game and we'll play well."

"We aren't supposed to lose games like that (Cincinnati). But the fact is, we are playing for the championship, no matter how bad we got beat."

Houston (9-6) is in a good position to get a wild card playoff berth even if they lose. The odds are longer on the Browns (8-6-1) making it as a wild card if they lose.

"Losing by one point, 50 points or 100 points, it doesn't matter," defensive end Sean Jones said. "A win is a win and a loss is a loss. It doesn't change what we have to do this week."

Cleveland also has shown resiliency in remaining alive for a fifth straight playoff appearance following a four-game span of three losses and a tie.

First year coach Bud Carson has kept the Browns alive with an unusually large array of trick plays, team speed and the NFL's No. 5 ranked defense.

Cleveland beat Minnesota in overtime Sunday on a fake field goal pass by quarterback Mike Pagel to linebacker Van Waiters.

The Browns beat the Oilers 28-17 Oct. 29 with second half trick plays that included a touchdown pass by rookie running back Eric Metcalf and several effective end around plays.

Carson promises more in the Astrodome.

"We always have something new," Carson said. "Gadget plays are a big part of football. They are a little bit bigger part when playing conditions are good."

By The Associated Press

The Texas Longhorns gave coach Tom Penders an early Christmas present, his 300th win as a college basketball coach.

The Longhorns defeated Virginia Military Institute, 98-74, Thursday night. In other non-conference games involving SWC teams, Texas A&M defeated Florida International, 114-90, in the championship game of the Golden Panther Holiday Classic, Rice defeated Prairie View A&M, 73-51, and Montana State defeated Texas Christian, 76-62.

"It's a real nice feeling," said Penders of his 300th win. "I didn't really think about it until someone said something about it before the game." "It makes me feel old," he said. "I just hope I'm around for 300 more wins here at Texas."

Travis Mays scored 17 points to lead the Longhorns to the victory over VMI.

Texas improved to 5-1 this year in front of 6,779 fans, while VMI slipped to 2-4.

Following Mays in the scoring column was Locksley Collie and Joey Wright with 16. Lance Blanks was also in double figures with 14 points as was Courtney Jeans with 12 and Benford Williams with 11. Mays' total was 11 under his average.

The loss offset a sparkling performance by the Williams twins, Damon and Ramon. Damon hit for 27 points, while Ramon had a season-high 24.

Texas A&M (6-6), which had been shooting less than 43 percent coming into the tournament, hit 53.5 percent against the Panthers, including 61 percent (22 for 36) in the second half.

Freddie Ricks scored 18 points for Texas A&M. Lynn Suber added 13, and Darren Rhea and Ray Little had 10 each.

Trailing 39-38 with 13:13 minutes left, the Owls scored 17 straight points

Montana State trailed 38-29 at the intermission, but Elve and Stephens led the Bobcats' second half charge.

Seattle, Atlanta win on slow night

SEATTLE (AP) - Bernie Bickerstaff challenged Derrick McKey to score more, and the 6-foot-9 forward responded.

He scored 13 of his 22 points in the third quarter, during which the Sonics ran off 14 straight points en route to a 123-102 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers.

In the other NBA game Thursday night, it was Atlanta 117, Miami 115. "I asked McKey to step up and take a stronger position inside," Bickerstaff said. "He reflected the way our whole team went aggressively to the basket."

McKey was motivated by more than his coach's challenge.

In the first meeting between the SuperSonics and Trail Blazers, McKey had only three points and one rebound in a 119-110 Seattle loss.

"I remember that first game well," McKey said. "I just never got into the flow of the game."

He hit nine of 14 shots and had four rebounds in Seattle's eighth straight home victory. He and Dale Ellis dominated during the decisive third quarter as the Sonics outscored the Trail Blazers 35-21.

"It was our running game more than anything I did individually that got me my opportunities," McKey said.

"Nate (McMillan) did a good job of feeding me the basketball and when Dale and Sedale (Threatt) hit from outside, that eliminates the double-team on me."

McMillan scored 10 points and had 14 assists in directing Seattle's offense.

Ellis, who shot just 37 percent during the Sonics' four-game road trip, made 10 of 17 from the field and led the Sonics with 23 points.

"I got some easy baskets because of our defense, and that helped me relax," Ellis said.

Xavier McDaniel returned to the lineup after a one-game suspension for fighting and scored 22 points.

Threatt came off the bench to make nine of 10 shots for his 18 points.

"Everyone is glad to be home," Threatt said. "We play great here. We just need to make the transition to playing well on the road."

Portland coach Rick Adelman said the Sonics established control in the first six minutes, not in the third quarter.

"They set the tempo in the first six minutes with their running game and aggressive defense," Adelman said. "Our transition defense was very poor."

Clyde Drexler, who led the Trail Blazers with 25 points, praised the Sonics' performance.

"They have been struggling lately, but they certainly rose to the occasion against us," Drexler said. "We had that bad third quarter, but they played a great game."

Kevin Duckworth, who had 14 points and 10 rebounds, said Threatt was a major factor.

"Sedale came in and gave them a big lift. He was just unconscious out there."

Hawks 117, Heat 115

Doc Rivers stole the ball from Grant Long and made two foul shots with seven-tenths of a second left, helping Atlanta preserve its victory in Miami.

The Hawks led 115-113 when Long took an inbounds pass with eight seconds remaining and drove for the basket. Rivers slapped the ball loose, recovered it and was fouled. His two free throws offset a basket at the buzzer by Glen Rice.

The Heat trailed 101-80 with 11:01 left before Rice and Rony Seikaly each scored eight points during a 23-3 run.

Moses Malone led Atlanta with 28 points, Rivers scored 24 and Dominique Wilkins had 22. Rice, who played despite a sore throat, had a season-high 27 points. Seikaly had 22 and Sherman Douglas 21 for Miami.

Walsh expects trade

IRVING - Picking him in the supplemental draft has cost the Dallas Cowboys a cool $1 million and the No. 1 pick next year, but rookie quarterback Steve Walsh says he knows how the Cowboys could save some money: trade him before April.

Walsh said he anticipates a trade in the off-season, and his contract calls for the Cowboys to save $300,000 to $400,000 by sending him to another team before the NFL draft next April.

Walsh signed with the Cowboys weeks after the team made Troy Aikman of UCLA the No. 1 pick in the regular NFL draft.

Walsh said he thinks coach Jimmy Johnson is going to "treat me fairly, and that's why I think something's going to happen this off-season. I think he would be treating me unfairly by not doing anything."

The problem for the Cowboys is recapturing their investment, which is probably impossible because Walsh has cost them the No. 1 overall pick in the upcoming draft and nearly $1 million already.

"They're eventually going to have to pull the trigger," Walsh said. "To be honest with you, I don't think they can afford having both of us. They know it's not the best situation for Troy or me. I don't think either one of us feels great that we're both in this situation."

Walsh signed a $4.1 million contract; Aikman is making more than $11 million over five years.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram Thursday quoted unidentified sources as saying the team has opened preliminary trade discussions involving Walsh with the Minnesota Vikings, New England Patriots and San Francisco 49ers.

NEW YORK (AP) — Judith Jamison, a former dancer in the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater, will succeed Ailey as the company's artistic director.

Miss Jamison said Wednesday that earlier this year, Ailey told her he wanted her to succeed him. "He said, 'You're going in another direction now...'"

Ailey, who founded the company 31 years ago, died Dec. 1.

Miss Jamison joined the company in 1965, leaving 15 years later to be one of the stars of "Duke Ellington's Sophisticated Ladies" on Broadway.

Last year, she started the Jamison Project, for which she choreographs and dances. The Jamison Project will continue through June and some dancers and some dance works will enter the Ailey company.

The future of the Ailey company, Miss Jamison said, "will reflect his vision and mine. They're not one and the same." She said changes will be "a creative process we will be working on the entire time I'm here."

Have a healthy holiday Hints from Heloise

If you're like most Americans, the holiday season will bring you more than joy and good cheer. The average American gains seven to 14 pounds between Thanksgiving and New Year's.

Cooking celebrity Ruth Fremes suggests that cooking with filtered water instead of fats can keep off those holiday pounds while still titillating the palate.

"It is important to cook with filtered water to insure the clarity of flavor. I use a top-of-the-line home water treatment system because my tap water contains chemicals and hard minerals that can tarnish the delicate flavors of vegetables, fish and other fresh ingredients," says Fremes.

"Filtered water also gives me 'quality insurance.' With the mounting concern over tap water, I don't want to lose sleep over the water I drink and use for food preparation."

SAUTING
Holiday dressing tip: When you saute onions for your holiday dressing, try using water instead of butter or oil, which has approximately 100 calories a tablespoon. Use a tiny bit of water, just enough to minimally cover the bottom of a large heavy pan, put your onions in and turn the heat up.

When the water begins to boil, cover tightly with a lid and lower the heat to medium for 10 to 15 minutes, and you get sweet-tasting, sauted onions. You can also do this with garlic.

If you are making a sauce that requires a glaze, remove the onions when they are ready. Then take a teaspoon of arrowroot powder and dissolve with a teaspoon of water and stir until thickened. Add spices, herbs and juices to flavor the sauce.

WOKKING
A quick, colorful and healthy party idea: Try a wok dish for your next holiday party and save everyone a few unwanted calories while dazzling them with your tasty cooking. In a wok, the food is cooked by the heat of the large surface area, not the heat of fat. So, you can use filtered water or make a stock with filtered water and chicken or vegetable bouillon, heat your wok until a spray of water pops, add ingredients and quickly stir fry.

SOUPS
Give your family and friends a cup of holiday warmth: What is more cheery than a steamy cup of soup? Many of us use fats to thicken a soup base. Instead, try boiling potatoes and pureeing them with a little water. Add other vegetables, bouillon and spices for additional flavor. This makes a wonderful, thick base.

Cooking with water instead of butter or oil is a great way to lower the calories, cholesterol and fats in your diet. If you would like more information and recipes using water, write for a free booklet by Fremes called The Food Lover's Guide: New Ways to Cook Fresher With Water. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Shalkee Corporation, 444 Market T321, San Francisco, CA 94111.

Healthy holidays!

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Every New Year I would make resolutions, such as to lose weight or plant a garden or start my Christmas projects earlier, but by the day after New Year's Day I'd forgotten them. Now I have a system to make the resolutions into actual plans for the coming year.

When I've decided what my resolutions are, I plan a definite time that I want to accomplish them. If it's a diet, I decide when I want to start. If I'm going to plant a garden, I decide what date I want to start preparing for it, when I want to plant and so on.

The most important step is that I write all this on my new calendar, putting each item on the appropriate date. Then when that date comes around, I'm reminded of what I intended to do. My whole family has been using this system for the last couple of years and we've accomplished a lot of projects that might otherwise have never been started. — Joyce Blair, Minneapolis, Minn.

DECORATION LIST
Dear Heloise: Each year I buy Christmas cards, wrapping paper, decorations and such during the after-Christmas sales. I save a lot of money but by the next Christmas I've often forgotten exactly what I bought. I would have to drag everything out of storage to check it before I bought more. Then I came up with a better idea.

I make a list of all the things I have on hand as I pack them away, including the new purchases. I also note anything that I need to replace that I haven't gotten. I attach the list to the November page of the new calendar and when it's time to start Christmas preparations, I have a handy reminder of what to shop for. — Lee L. Boston, Mass.
