

Brock reception slated Saturday

Gene Brock—teacher, preacher, friend of high school youth leaders and the mentally handicapped—will be honored at an "open house" meeting Saturday from 1 to 3 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center.

The occasion for the event is a meeting of the Key Club advisory board of the Texas-Oklahoma District of Kiwanis International, with the session being held here in order to honor Brock. Board members from the two states will be attending. All Kiwanians, Key Club members—present and past—are invited to attend as well as all interested citizens.

GENE BROCK

Brock, vocational adjustment coordinator at Hereford High School, has been faculty advisor for the HHS Key Club for more than 20 years, served on the Satellite Center advisory board for the same length of time, and has served about 13 years as a director of Camp Wigwam (for the mentally handicapped). He is a charter member of the Whiteface Kiwanis Club and now a member of the Noon Kiwanis Club—serving as president and being named Kiwanian of the Year in both clubs. Brock is an ordained minister. He was named Hereford's 1986 Citizen of the Year.

Animal workshop set for Saturday

Local 4-H'ers, parents and leaders planning to exhibit animals in the 1990 Hereford Young Farmers Livestock Show will get to learn about grooming, feeding, management and showing techniques at a clinic and workshop at 9 a.m. Saturday at the Little Bull Barn in Hereford.

All animals will be weighed at 9 a.m. 4-H'ers with barrows and lambs should bring their animals to the Little Bull Barn for weighing; steers should be taken to the Hereford FFA Agricultural Science Project Center for weighing and measuring.

Lamb shearing will begin at 9 a.m. 4-H'ers should bring money to pay for the shearing and bring blankets to protect their lambs from the weather.

A swine showmanship demonstration and clinic will be conducted by Dennis Newton, county Extension agent, at 11 a.m. 4-H members with barrows should bring brushes and other supplies for washing and showing.

A lamb showmanship demonstration and clinic will start at 1 p.m. Jeff Hicks, an Angelo State University student and former Deaf Smith County 4-H member, will conduct the demonstration.

At 2 p.m., Wade Shackelford, the new assistant county Extension agent, will conduct a steer showmanship clinic and workshop.

Because it's an all-day event, a picnic-type meal will be served at noon. Each family is asked to bring enough sandwich materials, chips, dips and drinks for their family.

All 4-H members, parents and leaders are encouraged to attend the clinic, and youngsters who want to learn more about the 4-H livestock project may also attend.

Keating ends silence over Lincoln S&L

WASHINGTON (AP) - Phoenix millionaire Charles H. Keating Jr., the central figure in a $2 billion thrift scandal, says he doesn't know who made a stock decision that cost his savings and loan up to $12 million in potential profits.

Keating, chairman of American Continental Corp., parent company of Lincoln Savings and Loan Association, broke his self-imposed silence Thursday in an attempt to overturn the government's seizure of Lincoln, the costliest ever S&L failure.

In more than an hour of testimony before U.S. District Judge Stanley Sporkin, Keating described how he used the Irvine, Calif., thrift to finance massive residential projects in the Phoenix area. He was scheduled to finish his testimony today.

Keating has had little to say in public since September, when government regulators filed a $1.1 billion fraud and racketeering civil suit charging he operated Lincoln for his own and his family's benefit. A grand jury in Los Angeles is examining possible criminal charges against Keating.

The government seized Lincoln in April, claiming it was operating in an unsafe and unsound manner.

In November, Keating asserted his constitutional protection against self-incrimination and refused to testify before a House committee investigating the failure.

But Keating sought the court action and, in response to the judge's questions, he readily described his disappointment when the seizure of Lincoln blocked the completion of a large residential project west of Phoenix.

"The saddest thing in my life is that we were brought to this pass," he said. Keating also is at the center of a Senate Ethics Committee investigation, examining the actions of five senators who accepted more than $1.3 million in contributions from the financier and later met on his behalf with federal regulators.

In Thursday's hearing, government investigators focused on a stock transaction which denied up to $12 million in profits to a Lincoln subsidiary and instead benefited American Continental, which provided Keating and his family with millions of dollars in salaries and benefits.

The Lincoln subsidiary sold $1 million of Memorex common stock to Phoenix developer E.C. Garcia. The subsidiary retained an option to repurchase the shares for $4.25 million, should their value skyrocket.

Four months later, in late October 1987, American Continental repurchased the stock from Garcia for $2 million and the subsidiary, headed by Keating's son, Charles H. Keating III, waived its option.

Later, in March and April of 1988, American Continental sold the stock for $13.3 million. Because it waived its option, the Lincoln subsidiary didn't get any of the profits, which would have offset taxpayer losses in the S&L's later failure.

The Memorex transaction is one of four deals the government has cited as examples of "unsafe and unsound" practices that justified its takeover of Lincoln.

The elder Keating testified he approved the decision for American Continental to buy back the Memorex stock from Garcia.

Owen is Woman of Year

Bettye Owen was honored for her dedication to the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and her other work throughout the community when she was named 1989 Woman of the Year on Thursday night.

Donna West, last year's award recipient, made the presentation during the Women's Division's annual installation banquet held Thursday evening in the Hereford Community Center.

Owen, who has been a Women's Division member for many years, has chaired the Blood Bank committee which assists with the monthly blood drive by Coffee Memorial Blood Center. Several years ago, she became the chairperson of the Welcome committee which helps host the Miss Hereford courtesy parties each year. Owen has also assisted in numerous social events called for by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, such as the Phil Gramm reception and the Newcomers' Tea.

The Hereford native was born Jan. 6, 1930, to a pioneer family, Cecil "Spec" and Thelma Hodges. She grew up initially in the Palo Duro Community north of Dawn and moved to Hereford where she began attending school in the second grade. She was a graduate of the Hereford High School class of 1948 and a year later she married Bobby Owen on April 17, 1949.

The couple has four daughters, Becky, Barbara, Brenda and Beth, and five grandchildren.

"Through the many years of raising a family, Bettye became actively involved in the local community," explained West. "She taught a Sunday School class for 30 years at First Baptist Church and sang in the church choir for approximately 40 years.

"Bettye is a charter member of the Hereford Chamber Singers and was a part of that organization until a few years ago," West added. "She is also a charter member of La Madre Mia Study Club and has held every office in that club as well as working on numerous projects for the club."

Owen's involvement has not been limited to these organized activities. She is a volunteer for the Tuesday morning shopping expeditions for the King's Manor Methodist Home residents and for many years, and she drove a van to Amarillo several times a week to transport kidney dialysis patients for treatment. Owen has also been instrumental in providing items for the needy in Hereford through her personal efforts.

"Those who know Bettye," West said, "are aware that she takes her responsibilities very seriously, whether to the Women's Division or any other activity she is involved in. There have been many times that her family has had to wait while she took care of her commitments to one of her many community activities."

"Bettye has been dependable, cooperative and committed to performing good works for the community of Hereford, not for personal recognition, but because the job needed to be done. It is with great pleasure that the Women's Division of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce honors our 1989 Woman of the year, Bettye Owen."

Richards: release tax forms

AUSTIN (AP) - State Treasurer Ann Richards, a Democratic gubernatorial hopeful, challenged her primary opponents to do what she did and make public their federal income tax returns for the past eight years.

A spokesman for Mark White said the former governor would disclose his returns, but it was unclear whether State Attorney General Jim Mattox would do the same.

"The attorney general will make the appropriate disclosures at the appropriate time," said Steve Levine, a spokesman for the Mattox campaign. He refused to elaborate.

Randy Thompson, a spokesman for the White campaign, said, "In the past, in election years, Gov. White has made full disclosure, including the release of his income tax return. We will be doing the same thing this year."

The Republican governor's race continued to sizzle with the Clayton Williams' campaign lashing out at Kent Hance.

Hance's campaign had said that a Hance-hired political consultant found that half of the 26 companies that Williams says he founded "have been sold, dissolved or gone into bankruptcy."

But Bill Kenyon, Williams' press secretary said, "Contrary to statements by the Hance campaign, none of Clayton Williams' companies have ever gone bankrupt."

In another development, Hance proposed taking one-quarter of the sales tax in Dallas and Houston that is dedicated to mass transportation and using those funds to repair potholes and build new streets in those cities.

The proposal would require local approval and could provide $85 million annually for road improvements, Hance said.

Mark Sanders, a spokesman for the Hance campaign, said diverting the funds from the local transit systems would have no impact on bus service.

Audit reveals value weakness

AUSTIN (AP) - The State Property Tax Board says an audit's findings of "major weaknesses" in determining property values that are the basis for allocating billions in school funds are exaggerated.

The report released Thursday by the Office of the State Auditor urged the State Property Tax Board enact rules and state lawmakers pass legislation to guarantee the accuracy of property value records.

But the Property Tax Board responded by saying the findings "exaggerate the impact of what they perceive as weaknesses." Many of the auditor's recommendations "do not represent a wise allocation of resources," the board added.

The audit, however, questioned the accuracy of the Property Tax Board's studies which determine each school district's total taxable value. These studies are a key factor in calculating how much each district will receive from the $5 billion Foundation School Program.

The more taxable property value per student, the less the district receives in state aid.

"Our audit revealed major weaknesses in the system used to conduct the annual property value studies, which reduce the reliability of these studies," State Auditor Lawrence F. Alwin said in a letter to the Legislative Audit Committee.

The accuracy of the school district study is dependent on reliable property sales documentation, the audit said, but that data is not available to the Property Tax Board.

The inability to obtain copies of deeds, settlement statements and contracts, "increases the risk of using unreliable information in the annual property value studies," the report said.

In addition, the Property Tax Board's failure to require appraisal districts submit detailed tax rolls also adds to the problem, the report said.

Alwin also said the Property Tax Board should implement professional auditing standards during the performance of the annual property value studies.

In its response to the recommendations, the Property Tax Board said it needs the Legislature to pass a sales disclosure to allow the board to receive more detailed information on property values.

The agency also said it is working on requiring detailed tax roll information and its existing procedures comply with professional auditing standards.

The Property Tax Board also said that in the absence of receiving detailed tax rolls, it needs more funds to hire additional field appraisers.

Noriega under tight security

MIAMI (AP) - Manuel Noriega's tumble from dictator to defendant ended in the tight security of a U.S. courtroom as the once-fiercy Panamanian ruler quietly faced a federal judge.

In a soft voice, a humbled Noriega answered U.S. District Judge William Hoeweler's initial inquiries. But he declined to reply to drug trafficking charges at the brief hearing Thursday, less than a month after saying he would never surrender to the United States.

The judge entered an innocent plea for Noriega, who appeared in court in a Panamanian Defense Force uniform.

Noriega, federal prisoner No. 41586, was being held early today in an undisclosed Miami-area location, his attorneys said.

Defense attorneys say it could be nine months before they can go to trial on charges that Noriega took $4.6 million in bribes from Colombia's Medellin drug cartel to turn his nation into a way station for the cocaine trade.

U.S. Attorney Dexter Lehtinen said he thought the trial would take only two months; defense attorneys said it could go on for six months.

Defense attorney Frank Rubino said Noriega "appeared to be strong. He appeared to be confident. We went over the facts. ... He was extremely confident in assisting us."

If convicted of all charges, Noriega, 51, could be sentenced to 145 years in prison and fined $1.1 million.

Rubino said he planned to file motions to dismiss the case, claiming the charges are politically motivated and questioning the methods used late Wednesday to remove Noriega from the Vatican Embassy in Panama City, where he was sheltered in a room for 10 days under diplomatic protection.

"General Noriega refuses to submit to the jurisdiction of this court ... because he is a political prisoner brought to this country illegally," Rubino told Hoeweler.

Other defense claims will say the U.S. invasion violated Panama's sovereignty and international treaties, and that Noriega is a chief of state and subject to immunity, Rubino said.

But last year, Hoeweler ruled the United States has jurisdiction in the case because the State Department never recognized Noriega's political legitimacy.

Rubino said the Panamanian general surrendered following statements that Panama would revoke the diplomatic status of the papal nuncio, and because the embassy was surrounded by angry crowds and U.S. soldiers.

Vatican officials, however, said Noriega left voluntarily. In Washington, a senior Bush administration official said the Vatican planned to order Noriega to leave by noon Thursday.

Rubino said he will likely request a bond hearing within 30 days. The judge ordered Noriega held without bond.

DALLAS - Love Field passengers will see higher ticket prices if the airport is opened to more air traffic, but restricted to one departure route, according to an official with the Federal Aviation Administration.

EL PASO - Gen. Manuel Noriega's surrender is the strongest evidence yet that the war on drugs is being won, drug czar William Bennett said during a whirlwind tour here.

But local officials told Bennett in a meeting late Thursday evening that they are losing the war on the local front because the majority of their resources are concentrated on the national effort.

Bennett was in El Paso to visit anti-drug operations in this Texas-Mexico border city. He was given a quick demonstration of a random vehicle check using a drug-sniffing dog at the international Bridge of the Americas. He was then whisked through the cargo inspection area of the border checkpoint.

"If anything before had cast any doubt on it (the drug war), all doubt should be removed about how serious this government, this administration, is about pressing this war on drugs," said Bennett, the director of the government's drug control policy office.

The U.S. invasion of Panama Dec. 20th ended Noriega's dictatorship. Noriega surrendered to U.S. troops Wednesday night, ending his 10-day stay in the papal nuncio in Panama. He was taken to Miami, where he faces federal drug trafficking charges.

Bennett said the general's ouster "sends a signal that a very powerful person could not withstand serious efforts of the United States."

"This is how you wage a war. It's got a lot of fronts. It's got a lot of pieces, but this is how you get there," Bennett said.

Local officials, however, told Bennett that victories in the war on drugs nationally and internationally are coming at the expense of local success.

Police Chief John Scagno appealed to Bennett to provide El Paso with more assistance for local drug interdiction.

"A lot of our resources are directed toward federal problems because so much (drug smuggling) is coming through here," Scagno said. "...it seems like almost all of our efforts in the way of narcotics interdiction are aimed toward those big loads that may be headed for Chicago or L.A., and we're not doing that much to help El Paso with the street-corner type of dealer."

Scagno said local drug trafficking is flourishing. "We're going to be aiming at that more, but may be aiming at the nation's problem a little less, unless he wants to send us some of that assistance we need in the way of money or whatever and then we'll do both," he said.

Mayor Suzie Azar told Bennett she would like to see $3 billion of the $9 billion allocated for the national anti-drug effort to be given to municipalities, not states, for treatment programs and education projects. She suggested the nation set a standard fee paid to informants because locally informants are "shopping around" between law enforcement agencies for the most money for their information.

Ms. Azar told Bennett of this city's vehicle theft problem which has risen 94 percent in the past two years. A majority of the stolen vehicles are taken to Mexico and never recovered.

"I would associate it with the large drug industry moving here, because our auto theft crime has increased as the organized drug dealers have moved into Mexico," she said. Federal agencies have been unable to help the city with its auto theft problem, however, because their resources are concentrated on drug interdiction, she said.

Bennett took a helicopter tour of El Paso and Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, across the border; visited the El Paso Intelligence Center, a computerized federal center that gathers intelligence on drug operations; and toured Operation Alliance, an El Paso-based organization that coordinates the anti-drug efforts of federal, state and local agencies along the border. That tour was closed to the press.

He also visited the headquarters of Joint Task Force 6, a newly formed military task force that will be part of Defense Secretary Dick Cheney's plan to use the armed forces to stem the flow of drugs.

Bennett said the quick visit of the border operations would help decide where to send federal anti-drug funds.

"We are of the view that these efforts ought to be increased, that Washington ought to be paying more attention to this part of the world ... and that we have to increase our manpower here," Bennett said.

Bill Nowak, U.S. Customs director of inspections and control division for the El Paso district, said that is what law enforcement officials here were hoping to hear.

"I know that he's authorizing all kinds of monies as far as the drug programs go. And we certainly are hoping that by him seeing a border environment, he remembers what we're up against here and when they do allocate money in the future that no one along the border gets shortchanged," Nowak said.

"We've got new ports that are going to be opening up at Zaragosa (Bridge in El Paso) and possibly Santa Theresa (N.M.)."

Voter drive pushing democracy

AUSTIN (AP) - Potent images of people fighting for democracy in other parts of the world highlight television commercials in a voter drive by the Texas secretary of state's office.

"I hope these ads are going to make people think, and say, 'Yeah, we've got what people all over this world are fighting for, and we can at least stand in line'" to vote, Secretary of State George Bayoud said Thursday.

The public service announcements show people dancing on the Berlin Wall, and footage of a lone man in Beijing confronting a line of tanks sent to quell pro-democracy demonstrators.

"This past year, all over the world, people have put their lives on the line for the right to self-government. Come election day, will you be willing to stand in line for it?" ask the advertisements.

The package also contains an ad, to be broadcast in English and Spanish, portraying a young Hispanic man and his grandfather. The younger man says his grandfather didn't vote "back in his homeland," but "here in Texas, he knows our opinion does count."

The commercials were created by GSD&M Advertising of Austin, which developed the state's "Don't Mess With Texas" campaign against highway litter.

GSD&M donated its creative talents. Production costs total about $100,000, to be paid by the state, but Bayoud said he hopes to make up at least part of the money through private fund raising efforts.

The commercials should be airing "any day now," Bayoud said.

John Davis, creative director of the ad agency, said the spots showing pro-democracy demonstrations were a natural outgrowth of world events.

"We felt, and the secretary of state agreed, that it would be crazy to go to a campaign like this without recognizing the changes that are sweeping the world - the pro-democracy changes that we've looked forward to all our lives, and dreamed of, and prayed for," he said.

The deadline for Texans to register for the March 13 primary elections is Feb. 11. The 1990 voter registration drive will continue to the Nov. 6 general election, when Texans choose a U.S. senator, governor and other state and local officeholders.

Of the estimated 12.4 million eligible Texas voters, about 8.2 million, or 66 percent, are registered.

Low-calorie diets, in wrong hands, a danger

CHICAGO (AP) - Overweight people fighting the battle of the bulge can diet themselves to death in improperly supervised very-low-calorie programs that are used by more than a million Americans, doctors warned today.

Such liquid diets require management by a specially trained physician, and by a behavioral psychologist and dietician, the doctors wrote in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Although the diets are "unquestionably safer" than their liquid-protein predecessors, which were blamed for at least 58 deaths during the 1970s, they still have dangers, said the article's authors.

"The recent and zealous marketing of various formula products to physicians, as well as the public's appetite for such diets, could lead to yet another round of complications and fatalities," wrote the doctors, who are from the University of Pennsylvania, Columbia University and Harvard Medical School.

Very-low-calorie diets provide 400 to 800 calories daily through a high-protein powder. The dieter adds water or milk and drinks the liquid three to five times daily instead of eating food. After 12 to 16 weeks on the regimen, the dieter gradually resumes eating normal food.

Such diets, like the Optifast program used by talk show host Oprah Winfrey in her celebrated 67-pound weight loss, should be avoided by people who need to lose less than 40 pounds or 30 percent of their body weight, said the authors, two of whom are consultants for the maker of Optifast.

People with certain heart problems also shouldn't go on the diets, they said.

Short-term health problems from the diets can include dehydration; an imbalance of electrolytes, the chemicals that carry electrical impulses sparking the heart to pump; inadequate blood pressure after standing or sitting up rapidly, which can cause fainting; and increased uric acid concentrations, which promote gout, the authors said.

Long-term complications could include severe abnormalities in heartbeat - the culprit in the liquid-protein-diet deaths - especially by dieters who lose control and go on eating sprees during "refeeding," the authors said.

Such problems can be headed off early or prevented entirely with proper supervision, the authors said.

In November, Ms. Winfrey announced on her show that she had regained 17 of the 67 pounds she lost a year earlier.

But "she has maintained 75 percent of her weight loss, which we consider to be consistent with an average patient going through the program," said Jim Parsons, a spokesman for Sandoz Nutrition Corp., which markets the Optifast program.

Intensive supervision is a requirement of the program, Parsons said Thursday in a telephone interview from Minneapolis.

Gorbachev focuses on problems

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has put off appointments with foreign visitors for the time being to deal with domestic unrest and a political crisis in Lithuania, Soviet sources said Friday.

"It's right," said one senior Communist Party official when asked about news reports that Gorbachev had postponed planned meetings with Britain's opposition leader and other foreign dignitaries. "We have many problems right now."

The reports sent share prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange into their worst plunge since Oct. 16.

The party official, speaking with the understanding he would not be identified, cited disturbances along the Iranian border and the Lithuanian Communist Party's decision to break away from the ruling national party headed by Gorbachev.

Soviet Azerbaijanis have tried for four days to force open the frontier and reunite with their ethnic brethren in Iran, tearing down guard towers and prompting the KGB to reinforce security along the frontier. A protest organizer said Thursday the demonstrators were in retreat.

Gorbachev met for more than five hours Thursday with Lithuanian party leaders, who said afterward he failed to sway them from their decision to split from the 20 million-member ruling party and pursue local independence.

The policy-making Central Committee of the national party has directed Gorbachev to go to Lithuania to try to mend the split. The trip is expected next week.

Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov would neither confirm nor deny the report that Gorbachev was putting aside foreign questions to concentrate on the domestic situation.

Asked about a report from London that the Soviet Ambassador to Britain, Leonid Zamyatin, had told Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock that Gorbachev was postponing a Jan. 16 meeting with Kinnock and all his contacts with foreign politicians this month, Gerasimov replied: "Has this meeting been planned? Let The Associated Press compose its own commentary. For me this is all clear. Let them comment on that as they wish."

A spokesman for Britain's opposition Labor Party said Zamyatin delivered a personal message from Gorbachev to Kinnock, who had been scheduled to visit Moscow for the talks.

The message said the meeting had to be postponed because "political events in the Soviet Union" required Gorbachev's "personal attention and participation," the Labor spokesman said.

The spokesman, who in accordance with British practice declined to be named, said Gorbachev's message stated that the Soviet leader was "postponing contact with foreign politicians scheduled for January."

The spokesman quoted Kinnock as saying that the Labor Party leader appreciated the situation. Kinnock last visited Moscow in November 1984 for talks with Konstantin Chernenko, who was then Soviet leader.

The news hit the Tokyo Stock Exchange in early afternoon trading, sending the 225-issue Nikkei average into a tailspin. The leading market indicator closed at 38,274.76, down 438.12 points, or 1.1 percent, from the day before.

It was the largest single-day loss on the exchange since a 647-point plunge on Oct. 16.

"To Japan, the worst thing that could happen to the world scenario would be for Gorbachev to drop from sight," said Chris Schreiber, an investment analyst with New Japan Securities.

Gorbachev is regarded in Japan as the key to global stability, he said.

But Gorbachev's efforts to reform Soviet society and politics have created troubles at home.

More than 300 people have died nationwide in ethnic unrest in two years.

The violence involving the Azerbaijanis is the latest in the Soviet Caucasus region, where ethnic Armenians, Georgians and Abkhazians also have been involved in unrest.

The average 18-month-old little girl will be just about twice as tall and five times as heavy at the age of 18.

In the 10 years since its publication, the book has brought thousands of Christians to an enriched spiritual life through a fresh look at the 12 classic disciplines. One reviewer commented about the book, "The best modern book on Christian spirituality. No other book apart from the Bible has been so helpful to me in the nurturing of my inward journey of prayer and spiritual growth." The class will be taught by Rev. Cory. Everyone is invited.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Young people of First UMC will sponsor a Bowl-A-Thon at 4 p.m. Sunday to raise funds for their annual ski trip which is scheduled for mid-February. Each youth will seek pledges from individual sponsors who will make a gift for each pin knocked down.

NEW YORK (AP) - The weight of office off his shoulders, Ed Koch now simply wants to take off weight.

Just four days out of City Hall, the porky former mayor presented himself Thursday as the new pitchman for a weight-loss powder, unabashedly touting its reputed benefits and his own overstuffed profile.

"I know I'm fat," he said. "I can tell you how I know I'm fat. I see myself in the mirror, naked. Horrible."

Koch's fatness is not news to New Yorkers, whom the mayor entertained with a series of celebrated and unsuccessful diets during his 12 years in power. Standing 6-foot-1, he gained 44 pounds in office, to 244 now.

Cash is the new ingredient in his effort to drop 30 or 40 pounds. Free from the strictures of government ethics, Koch, 65, has agreed to have his Ultra Slim-Fast weight-loss program documented in television and print ads.

"Obviously I'm promoting this and I will be paid, there's no question about that," he told reporters. "There's nothing wrong with that. We live in a capitalist society."

Herd sophs top Texas crushes Raiders Caprock, 63-51

The Hereford Whiteface sophomores on Thursday finally got to play their first game since Dec. 8 and outscored the Caprock sophs 38-19 over the second half to pick up a 63-51 win in a game played at Amarillo High.

Caprock jumped on top early, taking an 18-10 lead at the end of the first quarter behind Tony Goodman's six points. John McBride and Sean Smith both scored four points for the Herd during the first eight minutes.

Hereford shaved a point of the margin in the second period as six different players combined for 15 Herd points.

Things started going Hereford's way as the second half got underway. Smith and Mark Kreigshauser scored six each as the Herd took a three-point lead after three periods, 44-41.

Hereford popped for another 19 points in the final quarter as Kreig-shauser pumped in nine of his own.

For the game, Kreigshauser led all scorers with 19 points while Smith had 18 for the Herd. McBride finished with seven points for Hereford with Kevin Kelso adding six, Mikel Walsler five, Clay Wallace four and Keith Sinnacher and Robert Kubacak two apiece.

Pat Sena led the Longhorns with 10 points while Goodman finished with eight.

Hereford will have two teams playing tonight when the Lady Whiteface varsity and JV squads travel to Clovis, N.M. to face the Lady Wildcats. The junior varsity game is slated for 6 p.m. MST while the varsity will get underway at 7:30 p.m. MST.

The Herd varsity and JV teams have an open date today before resuming District 1-4A action Monday against Estacado.

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas Coach Tom Penders says the Longhorns rebounding allowed them to use their fast break in a record-breaking Southwest Conference basketball victory over Texas Tech.

Senior guard Travis Mays scored 28 points and pulled down nine rebounds as Texas whipped Texas Tech, 109-71, Thursday night.

The 38-point margin of victory by the Longhorns, now 8-2 on the season and 2-0 in conference, is the largest in the 51-year old history of the series.

Texas' point total is also the most ever scored against a Red Raider team.

"We did a great job on the backboards and that keyed our breaks," said Penders, whose team won the battle for rebounds, 60-44. "We tried to speed up the game with our defense to get the break going. We did a great job with our game plan and made the game our kind of game."

Texas continued to press the Red Raiders at a time in the second half when they held a 40-point lead, but that didn't seem to bother Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers.

"That's their game," said Myers, who is 0-3 against counterpart Penders. "It doesn't bother me. Whatever another coach wants to do, that doesn't bother me."

"We started out okay, then we started playing a broken-type game," Myers added. "Those guards are terrific. They can go to the basketball and put you out of position in so many ways."

Mays, the SWC's leading scorer with a 26.3 average, connected on 6-of-11 shots from three-point range and had 18 points at halftime.

Lance Blanks scored 25 points for Texas and Joey Wright added 18.

Cleveland Phelps paced the Red Raiders in their conference opener, equalling a season-high 22 points.

Will Flemons, the conference's leading rebounder, pulled down his average of 10 boards and added 13 points off the bench. Texas Tech falls to 5-5 and 0-2.

Winn Shepard's baseline move with 27 seconds left in the half made it 56-35.

AFC teams well-matched

Steelers have Reeves worried

DENVER (AP) - Quarterback Bubba Brister talks warmly of the job Pittsburgh Steeler coach Chuck Noll has done this season, a performance that hasn't gone unnoticed by Denver coach Dan Reeves.

After 51-0 and 41-10 losses to open the season, when others might have used the occasion to rip their teams, Noll chose the steady course.

"We had Minnesota for our third game, and I really thought it might get worse before it got better, because Minnesota is such a good team," Brister recalls.

"But Chuck was the same coach. He didn't blast anybody. He didn't embarrass anybody. He didn't say we weren't any good and that we couldn't win any more games, like some coaches in this league have done. He was pretty level-headed. He just said we need to get here earlier, stay a little later and work a little harder."

"He said we could be a championship-caliber team, but we were going to have to work harder and be sure that we execute properly."

Taking his advice to heart, and with the maturation of several young players and the emotional leadership of Brister, the Steelers managed to eke out a playoff spot despite that dreadful beginning. They won five of their last six games to finish at 9-7, then beat Houston 26-23 in the wild-card playoff game last week.

Pittsburgh tangles with the Broncos (11-5) here Sunday.

Denver whipped the Steelers 34-7 midway through the season, but no one in Denver is taking the Steelers lightly.

For one thing, the Broncos, after clinching the AFC West title in Week

12 of the season, lost three of their last four games - gathering hardly the sort of momentum a team wants heading into the playoffs. For another, Reeves and many of his players remember a 1984 Pittsburgh-Denver playoff game here in which the heavily favored and slightly overconfident Broncos lost 24-17.

"I don't think Chuck has changed a whole lot," Reeves said. "They have probably as sound an offense as when they won those Super Bowls, although they don't have as much experience or talent. They're patient on defense and make you earn what you get."

"When you play a Noll team, you know they're going to be as fundamentally sound and as physical as any team you're going to play."

"I can't give them enough credit. The way they started the season and came back to make the playoffs ... They started out so poorly."

The Steelers offense finished the regular season ranked 28th - dead last - in the NFL, averaging just 250 yards per game. The defense was slightly more respectable, ranking 19th with a 347-yard-per-game yield. The Steelers were outscored by the opposition 326-265.

But Pittsburgh has found a way to win, with a solid defense and improved running game - and few turnovers.

After eight turnovers in the opener, the Steelers did a complete reversal, finishing at plus-11 and tying Denver for the lead in the AFC.

The Broncos built their record in similar fashion, rallying behind a defense that ranked near the top of the NFL most of the season and the running of rookie Bobby Humphrey, who finished with 1,151 yards.

Denver's offense ranked 15th in the league at 318 yards per game, and the defense was third, yielding just 275 per outing.

Kosar learns to play with pain

CLEVELAND (AP) - Bernie Kosar learned last year that an NFL quarterback frequently has to play with pain. It's a lesson that seems to be paying off now.

Kosar, who missed most of the first half of the 1988 season because of a sprained right elbow, bruised the same elbow on Nov. 12 during a victory at Seattle and he admits that his arm hasn't been the same since.

The injury began a string of 20 straight quarters without a touchdown pass, but Kosar pulled himself together in time to lead Cleveland to victories in its last two games, clinching his fourth AFC Central Division title in five years.

The elbow, he says, probably won't heal until he can rest it completely after the season, although having last week off and practicing in warm weather in Dallas this week was a help.

"The elbow's been about the same the last couple weeks," Kosar said as the Browns prepared for Saturday's playoff game against Buffalo. "I think the main thing with it is, I'm more accustomed now to the way it's feeling ... and the week off did help."

The injury, and the offensive slump that followed it, opened Kosar's eyes to the fickle nature of even his most devoted fans. A native of Boardman, about 60 miles from Cleveland Stadium, he had been revered by fans since the Browns made an elaborate trade with Buffalo in 1985 to earn the right to select him in a supplemental draft.

When the Browns scored a total of 37 points over four games in November and December, however, Kosar found himself being booed loudly, and fans began chanting for reserve Mike Pagel to replace him. In a television station's poll, Kosar was favored over Pagel by only a 51 percent to 49 percent margin.

"I block out the fans during a game, whether you're home or away, because you can't get too caught up in that kind of situation," Kosar said. "You've got enough to concentrate on on the field."

Though Coach Bud Carson's support of Kosar ebbed - Carson waited until game day before naming Kosar as his starter one week - owner Art Modell said he never lost faith in his $15 million quarterback.

"I think for a while there he was hurting more than he would let anybody believe," Modell said. "I think he's a great quarterback, a born leader, and given the right supporting cast, he can continue to win for this team for years to come. I have not lessened my appraisal of Bernie Kosar one bit."

Pagel mostly kept quiet during the controversy, and though there was reportedly some private grumbling in the locker room, the situation never escalated the way the bickering among Buffalo's offensive players did.

Charlotte drops another on road

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

After Charlotte Hornets coach Dick Harter landed his army on another foreign shore, he discovered some of the wrong soldiers were in the trenches with him.

"Two or three guys disappeared when the war was on the line," Harter said after Charlotte remained the NBA's only winless road warriors with 100-98 defeat Thursday night against the Minnesota Timberwolves.

"Our two big guys didn't play effectively in the second half," Harter said of Arnon Gilliam and J.R. Reid. "We went to them, but they didn't shoot it in and they didn't rebound."

Gilliam scored 26 points, but only nine in the final 20 minutes and had just five rebounds. Reid had 14 points and 15 rebounds, but missed four of seven free throws and committed some costly turnovers.

Each also was whistled for a technical foul in the fourth period as the Hornets squandered a chance to end a road losing streak that is now 0-11.

"That's what we've got to find out - who we can count on down the stretch," Harter said.

Elsewhere, it was Denver 112, Sacramento 98; New York 100, Atlanta 95; Phoenix 119, Dallas 102, and Golden State 119, Miami 117.

Tyrone Corbin scored with four seconds left, after Scott Roth had 16 fourth-quarter points for the Timberwolves.

After trailing by as many as 17 points in the third quarter, Minnesota mounted a comeback by outscoring Charlotte 11-5 to start the fourth. Roth, who came off the bench, followed with 11 of Minnesota's next 13 points, including two free throws with 1:57 to go for a 94-93 lead.

Despite baskets by Corbin, who finished with 20 points, and Sidney Lowe, Charlotte fought back behind Dell Curry's outside shooting. Two baskets by Curry, including a 3-pointer with 22 seconds remaining, tied the score at 98 before Corbin hit the game-winning jumper. Tyrone Bogues' last-second shot fell short.

Tony Campbell led Minnesota with 25 points.

Roth scored all his points in the fourth quarter.

"I was just waiting to get back in. I played angry and it paid off," Roth said.

Nuggets 112, Kings 98
"Basically, I wanted this to be a swan song but it turned into a swan dive," departing interim coach Jerry Reynolds said after Sacramento lost for the 11th time in 12 games.

Dick Motta, who led Washington to the NBA crown in 1978, takes over Saturday. Reynolds moves to the front office.

Reynolds got a standing ovation from a sellout crowd at Arco Arena, but Denver's Walter Davis spoiled the occasion with 27 points.

Wayman Tisdale led Sacramento with 29 points.

Knicks 100, Hawks 95

After missing three games with a sprained knee ligament, Charles Oakley gave New York more than it expected, in time and performance.

"It was a tribute to the man's competitiveness that he played so well for so long," Knicks coach Stu Jackson said.

Oakley played 36 minutes and sparked an 18-5 run in the fourth quarter.

Oakley scored 15 points and grabbed 12 rebounds. Gerald Wilkins topped the Knicks with 23 points.

"At the start of the game, I was rushing everything," Oakley said. "When I got back to the bench, I just told myself to calm down."

Dominique Wilkins scored 24 points for Atlanta.

Suns 119, Mavericks 102
Phoenix, led by Tom Chambers with 35 points, shot 75 percent in the second period to climb above .500 for the first time since Nov. 18.

Rolando Blackman, who led Dallas with 23 points, had a three-point play and a jumper to give the Mavericks a 27-23 lead 1:08 into the period. But Chambers hit a hook and a layup during a 14-0 run that ended with 6:55 remaining in the half.

Chambers scored 11 points in the second quarter as Phoenix made 12 of 16 shots.

Warriors 119, Heat 117
Chris Mullin and Mitch Richmond scored 27 points apiece as Golden State extended Miami's losing streak to eight games.

Mullin and Richmond combined for Golden State's 21 points during a 7(-minute stretch of the fourth quarter that gave the Warriors a 115-111 lead with 21 seconds remaining.

Rony Seikaly scored 24 points and Billy Thompson had a career-high 17 rebounds for the Heat. Miami kept the game close on 3-point baskets by Rory Sparrow, who finished with 21 points, and Glen Rice, who had 16.

Sherrard may be active for 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - His teammates jokingly call Mike Sherrard "Jesse James" for "stealing" the San Francisco 49ers' money without playing. On Saturday, the long-sidelined wide receiver apparently will get a chance to be the good guy for a change.

Coach George Seifert said he expected to activate Sherrard today as the 49ers add a wild card to their offensive aces in what's likely to be a high-scoring NFC playoff game against the Minnesota Vikings in Candlestick Park.

"I think maybe I can surprise them. They don't have any film on me," said Sherrard, the Dallas Cowboys' 1986 first-round draft pick who has been idled for three years by a twice-broken right leg.

If the 49ers win, they'll be the first defending Super Bowl champion in six years to make it back to a conference title game. They'll also be a victory closer to becoming the first repeat champion since the Pittsburgh Steelers a decade ago.

"We want to get to the Super Bowl," 49ers center Jesse Sapolu said. "We are a team that is within three weeks of making history. It's very important to them, and even more important to us."

That last point is more than arguable in Minnesota, where the Vikings have had Super Bowl expectations piled high on them ever since trading a chunk of their future for running back Herschel Walker. They haven't been in the Super Bowl since the last of their four unsuccessful appearances 13 years ago.

Vikings coach Jerry Burns makes no bones about his team's strategy in the third straight January matchup with the 49ers in Candlestick. Anthony Carter was the star two years ago with a playoff-record 227 receiving yards in a 36-24 Minnesota victory. Carter's 49ers counterpart, Jerry Rice, caught three touchdown passes in San Francisco's 34-9 runaway last year.

"I think the philosophy of both teams is to come out with both guns blazing and just see what happens," Burns said. "We're not stupid. We try to get the ball to Anthony Carter."

Sherrard would love to be the third straight wide receiver to steal the show. It will be the first playoff game of his career, although, he said Thursday, "I'd be excited even if it was a preseason game."

The 26-year-old Serrard, born in Oakland and raised in Chico, has been listed as physically unable to perform since returning to the Bay area last March 30 when the 49ers signed him to a $200,000 contract as an unprotected free agent.

His leg is "96 to 97 percent" healed, but he became a candidate for the team's fourth wide receiver spot only because Terry Greer is yet to recover from a Nov. 12 knee injury.

Rams may have Giants' number

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - After beating the New York Giants by scores of 45-31 and 31-10 in their last two meetings, it might be easy to assume that the Los Angeles Rams have the Giants' number.

Hey, it's a logical assumption. When two meet twice in two years and one team beats the other badly both times, it follows that the winning team must be better.

The problem with pro football is that most coaches and players refuse to accept that kind of logic. To them, what happened recently means little, if anything.

And that's just the attitude the Giants (12-4) and Rams (12-5) are taking into their NFC semifinal on Sunday at 12:30 p.m. EST at Giants Stadium.

"I don't think past games mean much in this league," Rams coach John Robinson said. "I think you catch teams at certain times of the year. I just don't think it means much. They are an opponent we respect a great deal."

The Rams have shown little respect for the Giants on the field. A year ago here, Jim Everett threw five touchdown passes, each to a different receiver, as the Rams handed the Giants one of their most embarrassing defeats of the season.

Everett was just as effective this year in a 31-10 victory at Los Angeles, which featured 14 quick points at the end of the first half for a 24-3 lead. For the game, he hit 23 of 33 passes for 295 yards, including one string of 18 consecutive completions. The Rams defense also limited New York to six yards rushing.

Everett said that game meant a lot more to the Rams because they were riding a four-game losing streak and in danger of seeing their season nosedive early. At the time, New York had but one loss and was alone in first place in the NFC East.

"I just remember the facts of the situation after losing four straight," Everett said. "We felt if we lost two more we were pretty much through. I think it was one of those things (the Giants mistakes) that doesn't happen much. They are a very sound group and we possibly got lucky on a few of those plays."

Giants comeback Mark Collins said much of the Rams' success was not luck. "They are a good team," he said. "But it's not like they really drove the ball on us or picked us apart. We contributed by turning some of their receivers loose. We created a lot of problems for ourselves and they took advantage of our mistakes."

Why does baby food come in glass jars?

Many mothers have asked themselves why the people who make baby food use glass jars. Glass is heavy, it can break, and every once in a while you hear of people finding glass fragments in products packed in glass.

With all these disadvantages, why is glass still being used for a product as sensitive as baby food? The answer relates to safety, nutritional value, economy, convenience and cost, plus a new concern, environmental protection.

Baby foods are made the same way that our great grandmothers canned peas, fruits and tomatoes. Vegetables and dinners are sterilized in jars and then cooked at a very high temperature in a big pressure cooker to kill dangerous bacteria.

Fruits and juices are preserved by pasteurization, which also involved heating at a high temperature just long enough to kill dangerous bacteria. The sealed jar protects the food and keeps it safe. Baby foods contain no chemical preservatives.

POP-TOP SAFETY

Glass is ideal for guaranteeing the safety of food. Glass is a rigid material and can easily hold the vacuum created when the baby food is pasteurized or sterilized. The vacuum seal tells us if the food in the jar is safe or spoiled. The "pop-top" works because the jar is under vacuum.

The glass container has a nutritional benefit. Air and oxygen cannot get through glass, so food in a glass container is protected from the effects of air and oxygen on the vitamins and flavor in foods.

The shelf-life of foods in glass containers is phenomenal. Even after two or three years, the color, flavor and most importantly, the nutritional content of foods packed in glass are retained. Food loses flavor and vitamins faster in plastic.

A fourth issue is convenience. The glass baby food jar has a convenience feature that has become very popular lately. It can be microwaved safely! Just follow the instructions of the label. Glass also is transparent. It is nice to see the food inside the jar—what color it is and what type of texture it has.

ENVIRONMENTAL FACTORS

Glass can be recycled. Used jars and bottles can be made into clean new bottles and jars. This helps to conserve energy and is part of the solution to the country's solid waste disposal problem. Plastic jars are not as easily recyclable as glass, and more and more states and cities in the United States have actually banned plastic containers because of waste disposal issue.

Baby foods have been packaged in glass jars ever since 1931. The importance of the glass jar is the ideal baby food container is clear when you consider that other manufacturers moved from little metal cans to glass jars around 1950.

Many other containers have been looked at over the years but the glass jar is still the best by far for protecting the foods fed to the newest member of the family.

THE PRICE IS RIGHT

Glass jars are very economical—and much more economical than plastic jars. A plastic jar of the same dimensions as the average baby food jar costs two to three times as much in non-clear plastic and as much as four times as much in clear plastic as it does in glass.

Even at these higher costs, the plastic jar does not give the same food safety as a glass jar for products like dinner and vegetables, because plastics cannot withstand the heat needed to sterilize the food.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have read that my bad habit of going to bed with my stomach full will sabotage any of my dieting hopes. I have also read that it is the total calories taken in during a 24-hour period, and not when a person eats, that determines weight. And I've read that food consumed at supper and during the evening is not ready to be used as energy by the body until the following mid-morning. Please comment.

DEAR READER: The fact that your stomach is full—regardless of when—is the real problem. Some studies suggest that exercise after eating will increase the body's ability to eliminate calories, but that is disputed. A calorie is a unit of energy, and the amount of energy you consume, related to the amount of energy your body uses, determines your body-fat stores.

Your body uses energy all 24 hours, including during sleep. As soon as the food you have consumed is digested, and the nutrients absorbed into the circulation, it will be available for the body's needs. Or if it is excess energy, it will be stored as body fat. The following mid-morning idea is completely false.

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo (AP) - Gabonese President Omar Bongo, offering cash and an assortment of traditional gifts, married the daughter of the president of the neighboring Congo.

State radio said the marriage of Bongo and Edith Sassou Nguesso, a 27-year-old doctor, took place in a family ceremony in Oyo, the home village of President Denis Sassou Nguesso about 250 miles north of Brazzaville.

Bongo, 54, who has three children from a previous marriage, offered about $170 to the families of his new wife's father and mother, along with two pieces of fabric, a headscarf, a men's suit, a pair of women's shoes, a shovel and a hoe.

In August, when rumors of the marriage began to circulate, Bongo refused to confirm or deny them. "People should stop concerning themselves with something that's none of their business," said Bongo, who has been president of Gabon, a country of 1.5 million on Africa's West Coast, since 1967.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 26 years old and have been married for five years. I have two wonderful children and a beautiful home.

I quit my job when I had my first baby because it was too hard to work and care for the child. My husband (I'll call him Steve) makes a good living as a salesman. He travels during the week, and on weekends he sometimes stays out of town because he says it's cheaper than flying home Friday and out again on Monday. Also he says he enjoys visiting with "old friends."

This weekend stuff has been happening three weekends out of four, which means he is home only two or three days out of the month. Steve drinks Scotch and smokes pot regularly. This runs about $100 a week. Last year he bought a bike for $300. Meanwhile, I buy clothes at garage sales and secondhand shops. No matter how hard I try, I can't seem to make ends meet.

Steve says he can buy anything he wants because he's the one who is busting his butt to earn a living while I'm setting home on mine "doing nothing."

Last weekend I went to my parents and told them I am considering divorce. They said I couldn't expect any help from them, because they told me not to marry Steve and I wouldn't listen. They also say divorce would be very hard on the children and I owe it to them to keep our family together.

I don't want to do anything to hurt my kids, Ann, but I'm not sure that living a miserable and unhappy life is good for them either. I'm really confused. Can you give me some advice? -- Confused in Illinois

DEAR ILLINOIS: Your marriage sounds like a dog's breakfast. Your husband needs to grow up and behave like a married man instead of a self-indulgent little boy. And you come in for part of the blame for allowing him to get away with such outrageously immature behavior.

You need joint counseling. Go to the clergyman who performed the wedding ceremony and ask for guidance. Or ask your family physician to recommend a counselor. Between the booze and the pot and the prolonged absences from home, you don't have much of a husband, and your children don't have much of a father. If he won't go for counseling, go alone. I wish you luck, dear woman. You need it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back you printed a poem about gum-chewing. I've enclosed a copy. Please print it again. I have a new job, and the woman next to me is driving me batty. I'm not a violent person, but I'm getting close to the edge. -- San Francisco

DEAR S.F.: I share your sentiments completely and am delighted to trot out the poem for a rerun. (P.S. Mr. Wrigley is not going to like this.)

Bucolic Bliss
 The gum-chewing student
