Hill praises beet growers

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Holly Sugar President Roger Hill praised the efforts of local producers and the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association at the TSBGA's annual meeting Friday at the Hereford Community Center.

A large crowd of growers heard a variety of reports on research from Holly and Extension Service personnel, and learned that farmers must take an active role in the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs (GATT) talks underway in Geneva.

Hill said the Hereford Holly plant, which is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year, has the highest net return of all Holly's plants and is second only to a small refinery in Michigan among all U.S. beet sugar plants.

Referring to the 1988 merger of Holly with Imperial Sugar Co., Hill said Imperial Holly "is now the most well-balanced company in the sugar industry. We produce sugar every month of the year, and sell from 1.1 million to 1.2 million bags of sugar a month."

"The merger was most beneficial for you," Hill said. "You produce 85 percent of the sugar consumed in Texas, and in 1988 the net return here was more than anyone else in the USA except for one very small company in Michigan."

Hill said the 1989 return could be even greater.

Hill compared figures from 1977-79, just before he became one of Holly's top executives, to figures for the last three years at the Hereford plant.

The figures show tremendous progress that has benefited not only Hereford but growers in the region. The most obvious aid Holly gives is in payment to farmers for their crop. In the 1977-79 period, Holly averaged paying $10.65 million a year for the crop. In the 1987-88-89 average, Holly paid an average of $26.52 million a year.

Holly has aggressively expanded its slicing capacity and taken other measures to produce even more sugar here, with the receiving capacity jumping from 18,000 tons a day in the late 70s to about 38,000 tons a day now.

Holly will be able to receive even more beets in the near future with larger facilities at Kress and Nazareth and possible expansion of the Dimmitt station.

Hill also praised the local growers for their research efforts.

"Hereford is the only area we participate in research," Hill said. "We match your nickel a ton to help your research." Hill said the Hereford Holly plant now has five agriculturists, and will soon add a sixth.

"We recognize the need to work one-to-one with growers," Hill said. "It gives you a better crop, and it gives us a better beet to process."

He also praised the work at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Bushland that has worked with Holly and growers to produce better beets.

"Our research is leading us into the future," Hill said.

Steve Reynolds, of Holly's Worland, Wyo., facility, said Holly was now "doubly committed" to research after one set of Holly owners in the early 1980s tried to end company research.

"We are now doubly committed to problems and production in Texas, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and California, where Holly has facilities, and to become more committed in (See SUGAR, Page 2A)

Hard work, high demand got fed cattle price higher

By HOLDEN LEWIS
Associated Press Writer

Whether it's due to low supplies, smart marketing or simply because people enjoy the hearty taste of beef, the price of cattle is stabilizing near an all-time high.

In the first week of this year, cattle prices in the Texas Panhandle rose to a record $80.50 per hundredweight - the price packers pay per 100 pounds of live cattle on the way to the slaughterhouse. Prices had been in the lower to middle 70s most of last year.

Prices have risen sharply since 1986, when cattle sold for an average of $59 per hundredweight as a nationwide glut kept prices down.

But consumers will barely notice the price jump because retailers compete by advertising meat sales and because packers absorb the cost by selling the entire carcass, said Jim Gill, president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association in Amarillo.

Observers such as Gill credit the recent price rise to tight supply nationwide and steady demand over the holidays.

The future holds stable prices for the first quarter, with a brief jump next month, said Steve Kay, publisher of Cattle Buyers Weekly, an independent newsletter based in Petaluma, Calif. The long term probably holds lower prices as ranchers increase the sizes of their herds, Gill said.

Don Graham, president of First National Bank in Hereford, said he expects a slow increase in the size of herds. But he said ranchers aren't seeing a jump in profits because price increases are nearly keeping pace with costs.

The price jump surprised most people in the cattle industry, who assumed that beef demand would drop, as usual, from Thanksgiving to Christmas as Americans ate more ham and turkey.

"Anecdotally, I'd just say from what I've seen is that during the extremely cold weather in December, people wanted that heartiness that they perceive in red meat," said Jack Dibb, executive vice president of AZTX Cattle Co. in Hereford, which owns four cattle feedyards in three states.

The long-term price gain is due to the shrinking of the national herd in the last 15 years, Gill said. Ranchers began losing money around 1975, when the number of U.S. cattle peaked at 135 million head and demand began to fall because of health concerns. Around 1985, when the national herd reached 100 million head, cattle-raiders began to make modest profits again.

The number of cattle has remained at 100 million head, a total Gill says is not enough.

"From the feedyard standpoint, we hope they start building numbers again, because you can't run a cattle feedyard without cattle," he said.

Gill said he expects the size of the national herd to begin increasing soon in another one of the industry's 10-year cycles.

Cattle constitute one of the largest private industries in the Texas Panhandle, with $4.4 billion worth of Texas-fed cattle sold to packers in 1987, according to the TCFA.

Cattle fetch about a $2 per hundredweight premium in the Texas Panhandle over the Midwest because of the huge size of the feedyards, their proximity to packers, the availability of information and marketing savvy, Kay said.

"Those feedyards that are members of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association probably have the best marketing association," he said, adding that feedyard operators constantly get updates of prices and other information, giving them an edge in daily negotiations with packers.

Before going to the packers, about 75 percent of the cattle in the United States spend about 160 days in feedyards, eating grain, standing around in pens and rapidly gaining weight. Cattle usually are sent to the feedyard at about 750 pounds, and are deemed ready for slaughter at 1,050 to 1,150 pounds.

The commercial feedyards in the Panhandle are sprawling, heavily computerized operations that service upwards of 30,000 cattle each. They are competitive with Midwest yards even though they pay more for grain because of higher shipping costs, Gill said.

"A lot of those feedyards in Nebraska and Iowa and Illinois and the rest of the Midwest are almost mom 'n' pop operations, handling as few as 200 cattle," Gill said. "A lot of those places don't even have any scales to weigh the cattle or even the grain."

Packers spend less time and money traveling to just a few huge feedyards in the Panhandle than they do visiting lots of smaller feedyards in the Midwest, so they bid higher prices on larger shipments of cattle, Dibb said.

And during the holidays, Midwest feedyards were short of cattle, while the ones in the Panhandle had plenty - meaning packing houses drove prices to an all-time high to ensure they could buy enough beef to satisfy higher-than-expected demand, Kay said.

Gill said Texas cattlemen hedge their risks better and have enough information to know when to cut their losses and when to stand firm in negotiations with packers.

"The people who market cattle in this area don't do it emotionally," he said. "You work hard, you take the highest bid and you sell the cattle."

Growers rewarded

Charles Schlabs, right, of Hereford, receives a special cap from Eddie Thompson of Holly Sugar. Schlabs and many other area farmers were honored for their production by Holly at the annual Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association meeting in Hereford. Other growers and TSBGA directors were to be honored Saturday night at the annual TSBGA banquet.

School nurses They do it all, from counseling to nit-picking Hereford's four public school nurses have much more to do than typical nursing.

They're counselors, testers, listeners, advisers and more.

June Rudd, Phyllis Cornelius, Pat Sinnacher and Karen Fangman, all registered nurses, attend to the needs of about 4,500 students from four-year-olds to high school seniors.

The nurses are being honored this week during Texas School Nurse Awareness Week, as proclaimed by Gov. Bill Clements.

The nurses stay busy every day of the school year, starting with immunization checks at the beginning of each year. All students must have DPT and polio shots before beginning school, as well as measles, rubella and mumps vaccines.

"This is very time consuming," said Mrs. Sinnacher, who serves Northwest and West Central elementary schools and the morning pre-Kindergarten classes at the Stanton Learning Center.

"After the measles outbreak on college campuses last year we felt very relieved we had done our work. Because of the efforts of school nurses, measles did not become the huge problem it could have been."

Many students have all the proper immunizations before beginning school, but many do not. Students who transfer to the district must show proof of proper immunizations, or face being re-immunized. The nurses work with the Texas Department of Health, which has a weekly shot clinic.

The next big job of the year is vision and hearing testing. All new students and students in odd-numbered grades must be tested within 90 days of the beginning of the year.

The nurses also check for dental cavities, measure heights and weights, and check the children's heads for lice and nits.

Children who "fail" a vision or hearing test are retested within two weeks, then send a letter to the child's parents about the problem. Parents are also told of dental problems.

"We like to think of these as love notes, as they are intended to improve the health of the children," Sinnacher said.

Later in January, all students will be given a tuberculosis test, with the results to be read 48 hours later. Letters are sent to all parents, with follow-up measures on any children who test positive.

For fifth and eighth graders nurses will work with physical education teachers on a scoliosis, or curvature of the spine, screening.

In February, elementary students will be given instruction, toothbrushes, toothpaste and special red dye tablets for National Dental Health Month. The supplies are donated by Colgate and Crest.

During the spring, fifth and sixth grade students are given presentations on personal hygiene and on changes in their body.

Nurses also have a daily "clinic call" where they dispense medication for students. That's on top of "handing out band-aids, checking pink eye, removing splinters, changing clothes, checking hurting ears and whatever else," Sinnacher said. "Personally, I am concerned with the increasing number of emotional problems our both-parents-working society is creating. We work closely with school counselors with these students."

"Frequently we are involved with child abuse problems. We work closely with principals, teachers and the state on this. Documentation is a large part of this problem in order to protect the child."

An apple a day

Phyllis Cornelius, a nurse for the Hereford Independent School District, holds an apple topped by a nurses cap, the symbol for school nurses. School nurses across the state are being honored this week during Texas School Nurses Week.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Jan. 21, the 21st day of 1990. There are 344 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Jan. 21, 1793, King Louis XVI of France was executed by the guillotine.

On this date: In 1861, Jefferson Davis of Mississippi and four other Southerners resigned from the U.S. Senate.

In 1908, New York City enacted an ordinance that made smoking in public by women punishable by a fine of $5 to $25 and up to ten days' imprisonment.

In 1915, the first Kiwanis Club was founded, in Detroit.

In 1924, Russian revolutionary Vladimir Ilyich Lenin died of a stroke at age 54.

In 1950, a federal jury in New York found former State Department official Alger Hiss guilty of perjury.

In 1950, George Orwell, author of "1984," died in London.

In 1954, the first atomic submarine, the USS Nautilus, was launched at Groton, Conn.

In 1976, the supersonic Concorde jet was put into service by Britain and France, with flights from London to Bahrain and from Paris to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

In 1977, President Carter pardoned almost all Vietnam War draft evaders, a move that drew limited praise from pro-amnesty organizations and denunciations from veterans' groups.

In 1979, the Pittsburgh Steelers became the first team to win three Super Bowls as they defeated the Dallas Cowboys in Super Bowl XIII by 35-31.

In 1982, Jack Henry Abbott, a convict-turned-author, was found guilty in New York of first-degree manslaughter in the stabbing death of waiter Richard Adan in 1981.

Ten years ago: In the Iowa Democratic caucuses, President Carter defeated Sen. Edward M. Kennedy by a 2-1 margin. In the Republican caucuses, George Bush scored an upset victory over former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Five years ago: President Reagan took the oath of office for his second term in a public swearing-in that was moved into the U.S. Capitol, because of brutal cold that also forced the cancellation of the inaugural parade.

One year ago: Former Ku Klux Klan leader David Duke led a field of seven candidates in an open primary to advance to a runoff election for a Louisiana state House seat.

Today's Birthdays: Actress Jinx Falkenberg is 71. Actor Paul Scofield is 68. Actor Telly Savalas is 66. Comedian Benny Hill is 65. Golfer Jack Nicklaus is 50. Opera singer Placido Domingo is 49. Singer Mac Davis is 48. Actress Jill Eikenberry is 43. Singer-songwriter Billy Ocean is 40.

Thought for Today: "Miracles are laughed at by a nation that reads 30 million newspapers a day and supports Wall Street." -Finley Peter Dunne, American humorist (1867-1936).

BUSH: the first year

'I'm finishing with a bit of a glow'

WASHINGTON (AP) - George Bush has reason to smile as he enters the second year of his presidency. His standing in the polls is phenomenally high, Manuel Antonio Noriega is in U.S. custody, and communist governments in Eastern Europe are toppling.

"I'm finishing with a bit of a glow," Bush acknowledged at year's end.

But as Bush well knows, presidents before him have enjoyed the glow of favorable circumstances only to suffer the sudden chill of events gone sour.

As he celebrated the anniversary of his inauguration, Bush sought to benefit from the political capital gained in recent months as he campaigned to win congressional support for a domestic agenda topped by his long-standing call for a cut in capital gains taxes.

With Democrats firmly in control of Congress and in a mood to challenge the president, domestic policy may prove far more troublesome for the president than foreign policy.

Prospects are considered excellent for conclusion of agreements this year on long-range nuclear weapons and on reducing conventional military forces in Europe.

Assessments of Bush's first year in office were predictably glowing from such partisans as White House chief of staff John Sununu who said: "It wasn't an easy year. George Bush just made it seem easy."

But he also earned less partisan praise.

Stuart Eizenstat, the Carter administration's domestic policy adviser, said Bush got off to "a very rocky start" with surprising difficulties in filling key positions, including a losing battle to get John Tower confirmed as defense secretary. But Bush wound up having a successful first year and left himself in a strong position with Congress for 1990, Eizenstat said.

Democrats in Congress were too distracted to make much of any early Bush missteps, as both House Speaker Jim Wright and Majority Leader Tony Coelho resigned last spring under ethical clouds.

"If they hadn't been consuming each other, the Democrats might have treated Bush even worse," said Mitchell Daniels, president of the Hudson Institute and onetime political strategist for Ronald Reagan's White House.

Bush, after vetoing a $1.20 increase in the $3.35 hourly minimum wage, forced Congress instead to swallow the 90-cent increase he favored.

Bush, in this age of "the extended hand," also found compromises with Congress on the deficit and aid to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua. He lost a fight for a lower capital gains tax, despite passage in the House and majority support in the Senate, but vowed to win that battle this year.

Congress hewed closely to the Bush administration plan in fashioning a multibillion-dollar bailout for the savings and loan industry. They also stuck largely with his blueprint for the war on drugs, although the lawmakers raised the ante by $1 billion.

Bush's crime package got mired in the legislative obstacle course, and he has yet to earn his stripes as the self-proclaimed "education president," despite an agreement with governors to develop performance goals for the nation's schools.

Democrats who thought Bush would be forced to raise taxes have been disappointed as he held fast to his "read-my-lips" campaign pledge.

Later this month Bush will send Congress a fiscal 1991 budget certain to meet the Gramm-Rudman deficit target of $64 billion and unlikely to contain the draconian cuts that earned many Reagan budgets a "dead on arrival" stamp on Capitol Hill.

Despite doomsayers' predictions that a recession was just around the corner, the economic expansion has rolled into its eighth year, with inflation in check and unemployment near a 15-year low.

Bush had his share of slip-ups, lost battles and controversies, from the slow-footed response to the oil spill in Alaska to the Tower nomination to the continuing furor over his diplomatic overtures to China after the bloody crackdown in June on student demonstrators.

PRESIDENT BUSH

Three times Bush vetoed legislation over abortion financing, even as some Republicans worried that a hard-line stance against abortion hurt GOP gubernatorial candidates in Virginia and New Jersey.

Bush, accused by Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell of "timidity" in the face of major changes sweeping the Soviet Union and East bloc nations, went to the NATO summit in May with a bold proposal for a troop pullout and convention arms reductions across Europe. Later, he met with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev at the storm-tossed Malta summit.

He visited Poland and Hungary in July and by year's end had signed an aid package of $938 million over three years for the new East Bloc democracies - and draped a Medal of Freedom around the neck of Solidarity's Lech Walesa.

His administration displayed a capacity to learn from mistakes or missed opportunities.

If the administration was slow to fathom the gravity of the damage from the Exxon oil spill in Alaska's Gulf of Valdez, it moved with dispatch when Hurricane Hugo devastated Charleston, S.C., and when an earthquake shattered the San Francisco area.

In Panama, the United States missed an opportunity by not coming to the aid of mutineers who sought to overthrow Noriega in early October. But the Pentagon's Dec. 20 invasion, the largest U.S. military operation since the Vietnam War, was a textbook operation.

Bush provided a show of airpower to help Philippines President Corazon Aquino put down a mutiny and sent special forces to San Salvador when rebels took over a hotel with Americans trapped inside.

He visited 14 countries and the Caribbean island of St. Martin in 1989 and is bound for Cartagena, Colombia, next month in a dramatic gesture of support for Colombian President Virgilio Barco and his battle against drug lords.

SUGAR

other areas," Reynolds said.

Reynolds, a former beet farmer in Worland who now heads Holly's corporate research effort, praised Hill for keeping a research program alive after an ownership change threatened to wipe out research and the entire seed division.

"From 1990-95 we are going to recover from our time of reduced effort," Reynolds said. He said Holly's research will become more global, with Holly signing on with a European company to combine efforts in biotechnology.

In his president's report, Bill Cleavinger of Wildorado said the TSBGA and the American Sugarbeet Growers Association, of which Cleavinger is serving a second term as president, are taking active roles in the GATT talks and in the 1990 Farm Bill, which is to be written this year.

"We are active in making policy instead of reacting to policy," Cleavinger said. "We are taking an active role in GATT. This is very important to the future of our industry, and we are having a very distinct influence on GATT."

"You can influence, shape or kill an idea, but once it's in law you have a hard time dealing with it."

Cleavinger said the sweetener industry, including beet and cane sugar and corn sweeteners, "are closer now than we were in 1985, and that should help us with the farm bill." Cleavinger said, "There's nothing that can't be resolved or won't be resolved between us."

Seventy-five industry representatives, including Cleavinger, met in Washington last week and appointed a smaller committee to work out differences between the three distinct-yet-similar industries. The committee is to report back to the full group in February with a compromise position to submit a unified request to the Congress.

"What comes out in the 1990 Farm Bill will be close to the sugar program as we now know it," Cleavinger said. "We must make it GATT-consistent. Beet growers will have a very large influence in what the decisions will be."

Kraig Gallimore of the Texas Department of Agriculture detailed the history of GATT and implications the current negotiations could have on farmers in a slide presentation.

"The stakes in this debate are higher," Gallimore said. "We better be involved in what's going on with the struggle with GATT and the 1990 Farm Bill."

"We need to dang well pay attention and face the problems head on. The things taking place this year will effect us for the next 10 years. If you wait and shut the gate after the horse is out, it's too damn late."

Gallimore was critical of Trade Representative Carla Hills, who is representing the U.S. in the international negotiations.

"Maybe we need to get people who have graduated from remedial math to negotiate for us," Gallimore said. "It makes no sense to purposely lose money on exports, but that is our position at GATT."

"If you are not interested in a stable food supply you probably like GATT. If you wonder where your supper is going to come from tomorrow you need to worry about GATT and the 1990 Farm Bill."

DALLAS - By the time Frank King came to Dallas as Texas AP bureau chief in the late 1930s, he had covered some of the major world stories, retired newspaper executive Felix McKnight recalls.

PRESIDIO - A peace justice's death from multiple gunshot wounds, initially ruled a suicide, is getting scrutiny these days from West Texas residents who say he died for all the wrong reasons.

LAREDO - The goods manufactured for a counterfeiting scheme that targeted buyers across the Texas-Mexico border were for people running in the fast lane: thousands of pairs of jogging and tennis shoes.

MATAMOROS, Mexico - Tensions in the maquiladora industry here have eased somewhat after a union agreed to postpone a strike deadline that would idle up to 60,000 workers.

LITTLE ROCK, Arkansas - A twin-engine corporate jet flying from Longview, Texas, to Batesville, Arkansas, crashed short of a municipal airport here, killing seven people.

BUSH

Bush proved himself, in Sununu's phrase, "the master of the small gesture," a telephone addict who reached out to world leaders on a regular basis. That knack came in handy in August when a flurry of Bush calls helped persuade terrorists in Lebanon to lift a death threat against American hostage Joseph Cicippio.

Stephen Hess, a Brookings Institution scholar, said Bush had the luck to become president in a year when the Berlin Wall fell and old communist regimes were shaken to their roots.

But it was also America's luck that it had a president so steeped in foreign affairs, he said.

"His skills do fit the time," Hess said. "What we've got is a very cautious man. That's exactly what we needed. When you can't predict what's going to happen in the world with any sense of confidence one week ahead, the wise course is the prudent course."

The Panama invasion also "reminded the rest of the world that they can't take him for granted," said Hess.

Bush's public approval ratings exceed 70 percent in some polls - higher than Reagan ever achieved. His wife, Barbara, proved a big hit with the American public, and Bush attributes some of his own popularity to hers.

With the economy still expanding and a "feast of miracles" unfolding in East Europe, "it's hard to be unpopular," said Daniels.

But the public can be fickle in its love affair with presidents.

While Bush stands high in the ratings now, polling experts say he does not command the intense loyalty from a sizable cadre of supporters that Reagan could always count on.

"He hasn't built intensive support. That may come back to haunt him," said Larry J. Sabato, a political scientist at the University of Virginia.

A SPINE OUT OF BALANCE

If you're feeling out of sorts, with a vague discomfort in your back, your spine may be out of balance.

Your spine serves a vital function in many ways. The spine and nervous system attached to it, in fact, have a direct effect on many of the functions of your body. It's important to keep the spine in proper balance.

The spine is connected to a foundation made up of your pelvis and legs. If this foundation is well-balanced and working normally, it helps to keep your spine in balance, otherwise it can cause pain and discomfort.

For example, if a house's foundation is crooked or unsteady, it will distort the walls. You'll see cracks in the plaster. Doors won't fit properly. Windows may not open. You can repair the cracked plaster and trim the doors and windows to fit again. But how long will these "cover-ups" last?

Your body also needs a good foundation. If your spine is out of balance, seek the treatment you need to put it right again.

Parent-Child Discussions About Drugs

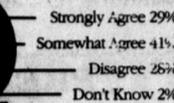

Families Are Talking

Most parents have talked to their children about drugs.

Parents Need Help

Many parents are ill-equipped to talk about drugs.

Pre-teens most receptive to discussion about drugs

If you're a parent, you've probably talked to your children about drugs. And if your child is 10 to 11-years-old, right now may be your last, best chance for educating him or her about drugs before friends begin experimentation, according to the findings of a recent survey of 500 parents and 500 children by the Gallup Organization, Inc. and Waste Management, Inc.

Ninety-seven percent of the parents surveyed said that they had talked with their children about drugs, and both parents and children were virtually unanimous in saying at-home discussions about drugs have a positive impact. The survey also showed that after age 11, children were much more likely to have friends who have experimented with drugs.

At ages 10-11, only 15 percent of children reported knowing friends their age who had tried drugs. By ages 12 and 13, a majority of children (52 percent) knew friends who had, by 14 and 15 it increased to 72 percent, and by 16 and 17, to 89 percent.

At the same time, 10 and 11-year-olds rank parents on a par with schools as the source of most of their information about drugs, while parental influence falls off in later years. Yet 34 percent of 10 and 11-year-olds agreed, at least somewhat, with the statement that "my parents don't have time to talk to me" about drugs. This finding is higher than for any other age group surveyed.

For all these reasons, experts recommend that parents begin talking to children about drugs when they are young.

A new video, "Time To Think," produced by Waste Management, Inc. in cooperation with the Robert Crown Center for Health Education in Hinsdale, Ill., is designed to give fifth and sixth graders the facts about drugs. Easily available, the 22-minute video is offered for free rental through 925 Blockbuster Video stores. It is also available for viewing through 500 Waste Management divisions serving 1,200 communities in North America.

The video can also be used as a much-needed conversation starter for parents. Seventy percent of parents surveyed said that most parents are ill-equipped to talk to their children about drugs.

The Robert Crown Center also offers these tips for parents on talking with their kids about drugs:

-Begin early. Open the lines of communication when children are young, before the subject becomes personal and conversations may become emotionally charged.

-Be "askable." Encourage questions. Don't be afraid to say you don't know an answer. Search for the answers together.

-Look for "teachable" moments.

If a television program refers to drug use, take advantage of the opportunity to start a conversation. Challenge the myths about drugs.

-Assume the best, prepare for the worst. Parents sometimes don't talk about drugs because they are afraid of finding a problem. Early detection can save a life.

The video and survey are just two examples of Waste Management's commitment to helping to solve the nation's drug problem. "Businesses can help by providing resources to improve our drug-education programs," says Waste Management Chairman Dean Buntrock.

Waste Management is the world's largest provider of residential, commercial and industrial waste and environmental services, providing service to more than eight million U.S. households.

WTSU to offer breast cancer screening

The Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center, High Plains Baptist Hospital Breast Cancer Screening Program and the West Texas State University division of nursing will offer a breast cancer screening clinic Friday, Feb. 2, and Friday, Feb. 9. The clinic will be open from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. at the Virgil Henson Activities Center. Life Services Room 101, on the WTSU campus. Interested individuals will be examined by a registered nurse on a "by appointment only" basis.

The Feb. 2 clinic is reserved primarily for WTSU students, faculty, staff and their families. The Feb. 9 clinic is open to the public.

Each examination will take approximately 30-minutes and consists of a breast exam, self-examination training by a registered nurse and a mammogram. Cost is $50 per person and is covered by many insurance companies including Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Texas.

More than 130,000 American women will be diagnosed with breast cancer this year alone. It is the most common cancer to strike American women, and at the present rate approximately one of every 10 women will develop breast cancer sometime during her life.

"Although there is no cure for breast cancer, early detection can identify the cancer when it is most treatable," Roseann Wells, supervisor of the Harrington Cancer Center Breast Cancer Screening Program, said. "There is an 88 percent survival rate among women diagnosed with breast cancer under 50, and an 84 percent survival rate among women over 50."

According to Wells, women ranging in age from 35-40 should have a baseline mammogram, 40-

50 year old women should have a mammogram every one to two years and women 50 and older should have mammograms yearly.

For more information or to schedule an appointment, call the Harrington Cancer Center at 359-4673 or 1-800-274-HOPE.

STILL STRONG

NEW YORK (AP) - Dispelling the idea that only the newest technology is worth discussing, consider the Voyager spacecraft, notes a computer management information systems publication.

The pictures of Neptune that were seen on the nation's video screens in late summer 1989 were created with 1970s technology and shipped back to earth at a slow data rate from a wide area network spanning 2.8 billion miles, reports MIS Week.

While Voyager has been described as a "rickety old robot explorer," it has exceeded all expectations.

The spacecraft, launched in 1977 with its sister ship, Voyager 1, represented the technology of its time.

Varsity teams split games with Frenship

The Hereford Whitefaces nearly made a clean sweep of four games against the Frenship Tigers on Friday at Whiteface Gymnasium.

Herd teams claimed wins in both junior varsity contests with the boys breezing to a 74-48 decision while the girls pulled out a 39-36 squeaker. The Lady Whiteface varsity added a 48-32 victory to the slate before the Herd fell in the final game of the night, 47-40.

Frenship 47, Herd 40

Hereford fought back from a seven-point deficit to take a 36-35 lead on Russell Backus' three-pointer with 3:11, but the Tigers scored two baskets off turnovers and added a pair of free throws in the next minute to snuff the rally.

Hereford led early as Backus scored seven straight points to put the Herd up 7-2. Frenship responded with a 10-0 run, keyed by six points from Ovido Olivencia, to go ahead before the Whitefaces closed out the opening quarter with a 6-0 spurt to reclaim the lead.

The Tigers posted six quick points from Jason Weese to start the second quarter before the Herd went into a four-corners offense. The move paid off as Hereford outscored the Tigers 6-4 over the rest of the half to close within 22-19.

Frenship added another three points to its lead in the third quarter and led by as much as eight before the Herd began chipping away. Backus, who scored 11 points in the fourth quarter, hit the first of three treys in the period to cut the margin to two and put the Herd in front with his next shot from outside.

"We had some turnovers there at the end that just killed us," Herd coach Jimmy Thomas said. "We played one of our better defensive games and had a chance to win in the last minute, but we couldn't hang on to the ball."

Backus finished with 20 points to lead all scorers. Jason Valterscheid and Leo Brown added six points each while Matt Bromlow and Daniel Garcia had for apiece.

Frenship was led by Weese with 13 points and Chris Boudy with 11. The loss drops the Herd to 6-14 on the season and 2-7 in District 1-4A.

The Lady Whitefaces broke out of a first-half cold streak to take control of the game with a 20-4 advantage in the third quarter.

Hereford opened the game with a 7-2 run in the first four minutes then went the rest of the first quarter without a point while Frenship scored 11 to move ahead.

The Lady Whitefaces came back to tie the score at halftime as Stacy White and Jennifer Bullard each canned a three-pointer and Shantel Cornelius add four points. Hereford held the Lady Tigers to six points, all coming from the free-throw line, in the period.

Hereford kicked it into high gear in the third as Cornelius and Cande Robbins scored eight points each. The Herd scored the first six points of the half and added another eight before Lori Brothers got Frenship's second basket of the period.

"We played great in the second half," Lady Whiteface coach Dickie Faught said. "We got off to a real good start, then they shut us down a little bit and we let them get back into it."

"But part of that was because of them (Frenship)," he added. "They came out and played us tough the whole game."

Cornelius finished with 19 points to lead all scorers while Robbins reached double figures with 14. White added nine with Bullard scoring three, Laynie Souter two and D'Ann Hill one.

The win keeps the Lady Whitefaces in third place in 1-4A with a 7-4 mark while their season record improved to 13-11.

Herd JV 74, Frenship 48

The Herd had no trouble in winning it eighth of the last nine games, upping its record to 11-5 on the year.

Hereford opened up a 14-9 lead at the end of the first quarter as all five starters got into the scoring column early.

The Herd really got rolling in the second period as Richard Sanderson and Andrew Tijerina both scored as many points (six) as the entire Frenship squad while Ben Weatherly and Brady Wilson added points off the bench to give Hereford a 33-15 lead at the half.

Hereford extended its lead in the third quarter with a 21-13 advantage as Blake Buckley, Sanderson and Tijerina combined for 17 points.

The Herd led by as much as 33 points in the fourth quarter before allowing the Tigers 12 points in the last three minutes.

Sanderson finished with 24 points to lead the scoring while Tijerina and Buckley contributed 15 apiece. Weatherly added seven points while Chris Blair had six, Miguel Casas five and Wilson two.

Frenship was led by Chris Matthews with 12 points and Mike Millard with 10.

Lady Whiteface JV 39, Frenship 36

Hereford avenged an earlier two-point loss in which Frenship had a 10-point advantage from the free-throw line by making six free throws in the last three minutes.

Both teams started slowly with the Herd taking a slim 6-4 lead into the second quarter.

Frenship moved into the lead before halftime, outscoring Hereford 12-2 from the floor in the second period, but the Herd tossed in seven charity shots to trail 16-15.

Hereford's defense took over in the third quarter, holding the Tigers to five points, to spark the Herd to a 27-21 lead going into the final eight minutes.

Super Bowl coaches head into game with varied experiences

SEIFERT: Looking for more thrills

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The Pacific Ocean off Pacifica, just south of San Francisco, is anything but pacific.

And that's how it was the day three years ago when George Seifert nearly drowned when his fishing boat capsized. He struggled his way 300 yards to shore through the frigid surf.

A few days later, Seifert and his friends were back on the water and since then, the same thing has almost happened again at least three times.

"You've got to go back because the fishing's too good," Seifert says. "You'd think we'd wise up, but there are some thrills in life you can't overcome. You've got to do it."

The day after the biggest victory of his NFL coaching career, the 30-3 win over the Rams that put his San Francisco 49ers in the Super Bowl, George Seifert looked far more like a professor than Captain Ahab as he faced the press wearing the same patterned blue cardigan and tans and moccasins (without socks) he had worn the week before.

"Lucky sweater?" someone asked him.

"I guess so," he replied with his characteristic smile, then added:

"I'm glad no one asked about my shorts."

Of all the comparisons between Seifert and his predecessor, that comment may say the most. Can anyone imagine Bill Walsh, who frowned on four-letter words and preached decorum as much as football, talking about underwear?

The man who has the 49ers on the verge of their fourth Super Bowl was a protégé of the man who won the first three and has his same professorial looks.

But he is about as different from his predecessor as two men can be who succeed in a demanding and offbeat profession. To put it another way, there may be as much Mike Ditka as Bill Walsh in George Seifert.

If most 49ers regard Seifert as a players' coach, there is steel behind the white hair and affable exterior. Just ask Tim McKyer, one of his best defensive backs, who was suspended for two games after talking back when Seifert asked him to return to the lineup after sitting out with a groin injury.

"He can be intimidating," quarterback Joe Montana says of a man who looks and often talks like vanilla ice cream. "Just ask the defensive guys."

Ask this defensive guy: "Anybody who doesn't think George is tough doesn't know what he's talking about," says safety Ronnie Lott, who played under Seifert when he was the 49ers' defensive backfield coach and defensive coordinator.

"I mean this is a guy who'll make you do it over and over until you get it right. If there were lights out there on the practice field, we'd stay out there at night. If the offensive guys thought they were getting a softy, they were getting a surprise."

Ditka's a bit of a stretch - Seifert never has and never will grab a player on the sidelines and shake him in full view of the Monday Night Football cameras. Seifert will never say "we stink" after a loss, although he hasn't had much practice - just two losses in his first 18 NFL games.

That's a long way from where Seifert, who turned 50 Jan. 22, thought his coaching career was headed a decade ago.

A native of San Francisco, he attended Polytechnic High School next to the 49ers' old home at Kezar Stadium and served as an usher there.

Then he played linebacker and guard at the University of Utah and got his first head coaching job at Utah's Westminster College at age 26. The next year, Westminster dropped football.

Then it was on to Oregon, where he was an assistant on the same staff as the Rams' John Robinson. He got his second head coaching job in 1975 at Cornell, went 3-15 in two years and was fired after influential alumni held back contributions to the athletic department to force his dismissal.

Super Bowl XXIV San Francisco vs. Denver

It was disillusioning. As Seifert says now: "It took me 8 years before I thought I wanted to be a head coach again."

Most of those years were spent with Walsh, first at Stanford, then with the 49ers, always in the background, sometimes seeming painfully shy and withdrawn, except to the players who had to serve under him. Lott says he virtually bullied him into becoming a starter in 1981, when Seifert forced three rookies into starting jobs in the secondary on a team that went on to become the first of three San Francisco Super Bowl winners.

A couple of years later, Seifert was ready to seek a head coaching post and interviewed in 1985 for the Indianapolis job that eventually went to Rod Dowhower.

When Walsh stepped down after the third Super Bowl last season, he strongly recommended that Seifert be named his successor. Owner Edward DeBartolo Jr. balked for a while, looking for a bigger name like Jimmy Johnson, so Walsh reportedly told Seifert to force DeBartolo's hand by looking elsewhere.

And that's where he was - on a plane to interview for the Cleveland job - when his wife called to say the 49ers wanted him to come back.

Seifert is a coach without the ego of most of his colleagues, including Walsh, who rarely ducked away from the tag of "genius."

"With this team, there's plenty of recognition to go around for everybody," Seifert says. "I don't think I have to have it all. I don't think it has to be George Seifert's team. It's the 49ers team."

And, if it beats Denver Sunday, a team for history.

REEVES: He's been thought it all before - seven times

DENVER (AP) - Like a child opening his presents on Christmas morning, like a parent watching his offspring perform onstage, like an inventor seeing his creation work, Dan Reeves was beaming.

The coach of the Denver Broncos had a captive audience as he displayed his seven championship rings. Seven, with another on the way.

"The money you win, if you're married, it's gone very quickly, most of the time before you see it," Reeves said as he set the rings on a table, side-by-side, a tableau of a career of pro football rewards. "The rings are there forever."

"That's what the players want to see. The money doesn't mean anything. They want to see the rings."

So they did. Reeves showed them to the Broncos on Saturday, the day before they beat the Cleveland Browns, 37-21, to advance to the Super Bowl for the third time in four years.

"It was the third time I've seen them," John Elway said with a shrug. "Maybe he got a rise out of the young guys."

If he did, it's exactly what Reeves had in mind.

And it worked, apparently, because the Broncos played their best game of the season in the AFC title game.

Now Reeves is headed back to the Super Bowl for a record eighth time. He might not get the acclaim given Bill Walsh, Joe Gibbs, Chuck Noll and Don Shula, but he belongs in their class. Sure, he hasn't won the big one as a head coach. But the job Reeves did getting the Broncos back to the Super Bowl this season was as masterful as any of the work done by Walsh, Gibbs et al.

"There's no question about it, this was Dan's best year coaching," Broncos owner Pat Bowlen said. "We were 8-8 in 1988, we were being picked to finish third or fourth in our division. We knew we had a lot of improvement to make, and Dan made the necessary moves."

Some of those moves were painful for Reeves. He revamped his coaching staff, firing defensive coordinator Joel Collier, who held the position for 20 years, and four longtime assistants. He cut popular placekicker Rich Karlis and replaced him with untested David Treadwell. Mike Harden, the leader of the secondary and Denver's most versatile player, also was released at the end of training camp to make room for top draft pick Steve Atwater at free safety.

Wide receiver Steve Watson, another popular veteran, was released. So was tackle Dave Studdard.

"With all the changes we had and the new faces coming in, and coming off a poor season, the way we were competitive was an indication of how a team can go from a bad year to being in the hunt to play in the Super Bowl. It's been a very satisfying year," Reeves said.

Not the whole year, however. At midseason, Reeves wasn't showing off any jewelry. The Broncos were 6-2, headed for a romp in the AFC West, but Reeves was unhappy.

"I've been here nine years and this is the least amount of fun I've ever had," he said. "It should be rewarding to see a young team play the way this one has. But even at 6-2, it's been more negative than ever."

"You win a game and people only want to know why you didn't do this better, why this other thing was bad. When you lose, you expect the tough questions. When you win, you don't expect that...."

"It's not just the press. We'll walk into the dressing room at halftime and I'll be called everything but 'Coach' (by the fans)."

"It's no fun to deal with the negative part all the time. This game has to be fun."

It was Reeves' yearly blowup. The tune has changed completely, of course. How could it not with a team that was in the playoffs with four games to go and had the best record in the conference?

"Dan went out and got quality people to come here," nose tackle Greg Kragen said. "Obviously, Wade Phillips (the new defensive coordinator). And my coach, Earl Leggett, is highly respected."

"We were kind of undisciplined at times last year. Now, we are very disciplined and the coaching has something to do with that."

The Hereford Brand—Sunday, January 21, 1990—Page 7A

Reeves, 45, joined the Broncos in 1981 after a decade as Tom Landry's assistant at Dallas. He served as offensive coordinator for Landry from 1977 - when Dallas beat the Broncos for the NFL title - until Edgar Kaiser, then the Broncos' owner, hired him to replace the popular Red Miller.

Only in the 1982 strike season, when Denver was 2-7, did Reeves lack security. Yet he survived and his record for the 1980s was 89-54-1.

The Broncos are heavy underdogs in New Orleans, but Reeves doesn't mind. He's happy he'll be there.

"You never get tired of it, heavens no," he said. "It's what you work for all year. I'm very honored and I hope this is not the last time."

With his track record, it probably won't be.

VOTE Margaret Perez - T.A.C.

The Tax Assessor Collector's Office in Deaf Smith County processes over 4,000 motor vehicle titles a year. Ninety-nine percent (99%) of those titles go through without a problem. This percentage is excellent, especially when compared to averages statewide. My staff and I have worked hard to make this possible.

At the present time it takes four to six weeks for a title to be issued out of Austin. In 1991 we will have a state-wide computer system installed that will process information overnight and issue titles within two days. Input into the computer will originate at the county level. It is very important that the tax assessor collector be trained and experienced to insure that our county will go through this transition smoothly.

With my training and experience I feel I can lead our county into this new era and keep on top of this new system. I am asking for your vote and support to make this possible.

Local spikers selected for Junior Olympic club

Shantel Cornelius and Brek Binder of Hereford have been selected to play with the Top O' Texas Junior Volleyball Club it was announced Friday.

The pair, both sophomores on the Hereford High School volleyball team, will be part of a nine-member team made up of players from high schools in the Amarillo area. The team, which will be coached by Roy Williams of Amarillo, will compete in tournaments in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Louisiana and Nevada.

Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice President Mike Carr said during the news conference called to announce the selections that they could provide the two with opportunities beyond athletics.

"There are a tremendous amount of things that may come of something like this," he said. "I think it's a great opportunity. We don't know the outcome of what might transpire from their participation in this program."

Cornelius, a two-year starter for the Lady Whiteface teams that made the first two playoff appearances in school history, was named Sophomore of the Year in District 1-4A for the 1989 season. Cornelius led the Herd with 32 stuffs and had a .735 spike percentage and a serving percentage of .842 with 15 aces.

Binder spent the regular season as a starter on the junior varsity and moved up to the varsity for the playoffs.

Chamber of Commerce Sports Committee Chairman James Self presented both players with a certificate commemorating outstanding sports achievement.

"There are many hundreds of girls in the Texas Panhandle participating in volleyball," Self said, "and I think this (selection) makes a very positive statement about the program here in Hereford and it says something about the quality of the young ladies we have."

Both players indicated they were ready to get on with the schedule, which opens Feb. 10 in Norman, Okla.

"It's real exciting," Cornelius said of the selection. "We're getting an opportunity to go to lots of places we might not get to normally."

"I think it will mean a lot for us because we'll get to play a different capacity of players," she added, "and there's a lot to learn from different coaches."

"We'll also learn how to play all positions instead of the one we normally play," Binder said. "I'm learning how to play on the back row instead of just setter or strong-side hitter, and it's helping me a lot."

The Top O' Texas team will compete in the 15-16 age group of the Junior Olympic program. Carr said one advantage to the program was that teams will play 10 to 12 matches each day in the tournaments where a school team is limited to three matches per day.

Carr said funding for the team will come from donations and contributions made to the club. About $800 per team member is needed for the season, he added. "We would ask people to consider this worthwhile tax-deductible program," Carr said. "It is very expensive for entry fees, travel, equipment, uniforms and registration. Each girl in this program is committed to working hard and putting in a lot of extra hours to a sport they love, and to represent our city in a very positive way."

Carr added that any businesses or individuals wishing to support the project can make donations to the Top O' Texas Volleyball Club in care of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 192 Hereford, Texas 79045.

St. Anthony's sets volleyball tournament

St. Anthony's School will hold an adult volleyball tournament Feb. 1-3.

Competition will be held in men's, women's and three co-ed divisions. Entry deadline is Jan. 30.

HERD HOOPS

Frenship opened the period with an 11-2 run to take the lead at 32-29, but Hereford hit three field goals to move back in front before finishing the game from the free-throw line.

Melinda Holmes took high-point honors with 17 points for the Herd. Jennifer Hicks, Brek Binder and Teresa Baker scored six points each while Kyann Lindley and Lori Sanders added two apiece.

Frenship was led by Jennifer Brothers with 12 points and Courtney King with eight.

Hereford basketball teams will resume the district schedule Tuesday when they host Randall for varsity and JV boys and girls games at Whiteface Gymnasium.

Both junior varsity games will begin at 5 p.m., with one of the games being played in the HJH Gymnasium while the Lady Whitefaces will take on the district-leading Lady Raiders, ranked third in the stat in Class 4A, at 6:30 p.m. The Herd will meet the Raiders at 8 p.m.

The Hereford Junior High teams will return to action Monday with 11 games against Borger.

The boys teams will make their last home appearance of the season with the freshman White, eighth-grade Maroon and seventh-grade Maroon will start at 6 p.m., while the freshman Maroon and seventh- and eighth-grade White teams play a 7:15 p.m. The freshman games will be played at Stanton while the seventh- and eighth-grade contests will take place at the HJH Gym.

The girls teams will travel to Borger before closing out the season with two home dates.

Hereford Boxing Club sets Monday meeting

The Hereford Boxing Club will hold membership meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Little Bull Barn.

The club is open to anyone in junior high school or older. Parents of prospective members under 18 must attend the meeting.

There is no membership fee to join the club, but prospective members must pay $20 per year for insurance and identification. This must be paid before participants may have any contact with the club.

Further information will be provided at the meeting.

YOUR EYES

VISION CHANGES

Just as your body changes, so do your eyes. Since you are the only one who can recognize the symptoms that signal change, it's a good idea to be alert to the following possibilities:

- Are you sitting close to the television set?
- Do you get headaches after you read?
- Is an eye beginning to turn in, out, up or down?
- Do you bump into objects on one side of you?
- Is your vision suddenly blurred at either distance or near?
- Are straight lines turning wavy?
- Are you suddenly clumsy and prone to accidents?

While regular routine eye examinations give your optometrist a chance to detect problems and track visual history, an extra eye examination is called for if you have reason to believe that changes are occurring.

Taiwan seen as biggest market for U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The No. 1 export growth market for American farmers over the next few years won't be the Soviet Union, China or even Japan, says the Agriculture Department. It will be Taiwan.

A new study by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service puts Taiwan at top of a 10-nation listing of prime opportunities for U.S. agricultural exports.

The others, in order, are: South Korea, Japan, Hong Kong, Egypt, Pakistan, Iraq, Singapore, the Soviet Union and Turkey. China was a near-miss, coming in 11th.

Mike Dwyer of the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said a number of variable factors were considered in a computer model used to analyze 80 countries as U.S. agricultural customers and project growths over the next three to five years.

Some of the factors were related to trade performance, including growth in imports from the United States going back to 1980. Other "macroeconomic" variables such as debt-and-service ratios, population trends and per capita incomes were considered.

Dwyer, reporting in a forthcoming issue of AgExporter magazine, noted of the 10 top potential markets, nine are developing countries, with Japan the exception.

Also, he said, most of the others are in the Middle East and the Far East, with an emphasis on "newly industrialized countries" of Asia - Taiwan, South Korea and Hong Kong.

Looking at U.S. agricultural exports in the 1986-88 period, Dwyer said Taiwan was the sixth largest market, importing an average of $1.36 billion worth of products annually. South Korea was third at $1.8 billion, while Japan was the biggest at $6.1 billion.

"While these are all quite large, our study suggests there is a lot of room for further growth," he said.

The 12-nation European Economic Community as a bloc is one of the biggest markets for American farmers. For example, in the 1989 fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30, when U.S. farm exports totaled $39.7 billion, the EEC accounted for $6.5 billion, topped only by Japan at $8.2 billion.

But Dwyer said the EEC didn't show great growth potential in the study.

"Despite the weaker dollar, (EEC) nations have been declining markets for the United States in recent years," he said. "It will probably become more difficult to export bulk commodities there because (the region) already has become or is becoming self-sufficient in many of these products."

Some of the best-growth markets, including Iraq, Egypt and Pakistan, show up well because of projected population growth, U.S. food aid, credit and subsidized prices, Dwyer said.

In the ninth-ranked Soviet Union, growth potential based purely on numbers is "very good" over the next few years, he said.

"Add to that the changes taking place in the political environment there, and that market could really expand for the United States," Dwyer said. "The agricultural sector is unable to keep pace with demand, and consumers are dissatisfied with the lack of food on grocery shelves."

Dwyer added the Kremlin is aware of the problems and is interested in restructuring the Soviet food system. The move toward free-market practices "could create opportunities for diversities in Soviet imports."

China, with more than one billion people and its political turmoil, is difficult to gauge but stacks up as a favorable growth market for the United States, he said.

"Prior to 1981, China was a hot import market," Dwyer said. "Then, the realization hit that it couldn't continue to import at the rate it was without incurring massive foreign debt. So China pulled back and imports fell 13 percent a year during 1981-87."

As a result, China's imports of U.S. products dropped an average of 28 percent a year during the 1980-88 period, he said.

"There has been a comeback in U.S. exports (to China) this past year, but the market is considered volatile," Dwyer said.

AGRICULTURAL MILESTONES

In 1957, a group of ranchers and businessmen helped establish the Texas Experimental Ranch on 7,040 acres of the Swenson Land and Cattle Company located between Throckmorton and Seyntour.

The research facility, still in operation today, had as its mission to improve the efficiency of cow-calf operations on native grasslands. Its major emphases today are on grazing management research, animal nutrition and watershed management.

Research conducted on the Texas Experimental Ranch through the years has provided information on the effects of stocking rates, grazing systems, and supplementation on the performance of grazing animals and vegetative cover of range types in the Rolling Plains. Resulting information on stocking rates and supplementation has received widespread use by ranchers throughout West Texas and other comparable areas.

Subsequent research has sought to optimize livestock production while also sustaining the forage resource and wildlife populations. Various grazing systems which enhance livestock production and conserve the resource have been developed and are being utilized by Texas ranchers.

During the early 1970s, the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station established research and extension centers in Chillicothe-Vernon, San Angelo and Uvalde. These centers were designated as range management research centers. Another center at Overton was partially charged with forage production and utilization. Intensive research initiated at these centers continues to generate new technologies and decision-support systems for managers of pasture and rangeland resources.

Glossary of farm terms is published

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department is putting out a 46-page "Glossary of Food and Agricultural Policy Terms" just in time for farm bill debate and the windup of global trade talks later this year.

Not that it will make for bedside reading or something to entertain the kids. No pictures, cartoons or even a decent pie chart or bar graph.

But if a quick, comprehensible definition is required, the booklet by economists Kathryn L. Lipton and Susan L. Pollack may be just the primer for the beginner headed for the local ASCS office.

Oh, the book defines ASCS - Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service - as "a USDA agency responsible for administering farm price- and income-support programs as well as some conservation and forestry cost-sharing programs, environmental production and emergency programs."

It's where farmers sign up for crop programs. The office that handles their "deficiency payment," which is "a government payment made to farmers who participate in wheat, feed grain, rice or cotton programs."

The word subsidy is omitted.

Some other examples: Aquaculture is "the production of aquatic plants or animals in a controlled environment, such as ponds, raceways, tanks or cages, for all or part of their life cycle."

Nothing about it being fish farming, though.

A farm bill is defined as "the omnibus agricultural legislation that expires every four or five years. The bill usually includes provisions on commodity programs, trade, conservation, agricultural research, food stamps and marketing."

Technically, a farm bill expires when it becomes law or dies in Congress. Farm law may last for four or five years, however. For example, the 1985 farm bill became the 1985 farm law. The 1990 bill will evolve into the 1990 farm law.

Farm? It's "a tract or tracts of land, improvements and other appurtenances available to produce crops or livestock, including fish." Aha! Fish farming.

Administration trade negotiators are pushing for a gradual phase-out of what they prefer to call "trade-distorting" agricultural subsidies but promise that no U.S. farm programs will be scuttled unilaterally in a global drive for free trade. Or free market. There's a difference.

Free trade is the "exchange of goods between countries with no trade barriers or restrictions such as tariffs or import quotas."

A free market, however, is "a system in which the market forces of supply and demand determine prices and allocate available supplies. A free market approach in agriculture would eliminate price and income support programs and barriers to international trade."

The booklet on page 15 defines a farm operator as "a person who operates a farm, either by working or supervising and by making the daily operating decisions. In the case of equal partners, the senior partner is considered the operator."

The booklet never does say what a farmer is.

Copies of the booklet, "A Glossary of Food and Agricultural Policy Terms, 1989," Agricultural Information Bulletin No. 573 are available for $5.50 each from: ERS-NASS, P.O. Box 1608, Rockville, Md. 20849-1608. Or phone 1-800-999-6779 toll free.

HERD HOOPS

Frenship opened the period with an 11-2 run to take the lead at 32-29, but Hereford hit three field goals to move back in front before finishing the game from the free-throw line.

Melinda Holmes took high-point honors with 17 points for the Herd. Jennifer Hicks, Brek Binder and Teresa Baker scored six points each while Kyann Lindley and Lori Sanders added two apiece.

Frenship was led by Jennifer Brothers with 12 points and Courtney King with eight.

Hereford basketball teams will resume the district schedule Tuesday when they host Randall for varsity and JV boys and girls games at Whiteface Gymnasium.

Both junior varsity games will begin at 5 p.m. with one of the games being played in the HJH Gymnasium while the Lady Whitefaces will take on the district-leading Lady Raiders, ranked third in the stat in Class 4A, at 6:30 p.m. The Herd will meet the Raiders at 8 p.m.

The Hereford Junior High teams will return to action Monday with 11 games against Borger.

The boys teams will make their last home appearance of the season with the freshman White, eighth-grade Maroon and seventh-grade Maroon will start at 6 p.m. while the freshman Maroon and seventh- and eighth-grade White teams play a 7:15 p.m. The freshman games will be played at Stanton while the seventh- and eighth-grade contests will take place at the HJH Gym.

The girls teams will travel to Borger before closing out the season with two home dates.

YOUR EYES
VISION CHANGES
Just as your body changes, so do your eyes. Since you are the only one who can recognize the symptoms that signal change, it's a good idea to be alert to the following possibilities:
• Are you sitting too close to the television set?
• Do you get headaches after you read?
• Is an eye beginning to turn in, out, up or down?
• Do you bump into objects on one side of you?
• Is your vision suddenly blurred at either distance or near?
• Are straight lines turning wavy?
• Are you suddenly clumsy and prone to accidents?
While regular routine eye examinations give your optometrist a chance to detect problems and track visual history, an extra eye examination is called for if you have reason to believe that changes are occurring.

Taiwan seen as biggest market for U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The No. 1 export growth market for American farmers over the next few years won't be the Soviet Union, China or even Japan, says the Agriculture Department. It will be Taiwan.

A new study by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service puts Taiwan at top of a 10-nation listing of prime opportunities for U.S. agricultural exports.

The others, in order, are: South Korea, Japan, Hong Kong, Egypt, Pakistan, Iraq, Singapore, the Soviet Union and Turkey. China was a near-miss, coming in 11th.

Mike Dwyer of the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said a number of variable factors were considered in a computer model used to analyze 80 countries as U.S. agricultural customers and project growths over the next three to five years.

Some of the factors were related to trade performance, including growth in imports from the United States going back to 1980. Other "macroeconomic" variables such as debt-and-service ratios, population trends and per capita incomes were considered.

Dwyer, reporting in a forthcoming issue of AgExporter magazine, noted of the 10 top potential markets, nine are developing countries, with Japan the exception.

Also, he said, most of the others are in the Middle East and the Far East, with an emphasis on "newly industrialized countries" of Asia - Taiwan, South Korea and Hong Kong.

Looking at U.S. agricultural exports in the 1986-88 period, Dwyer said Taiwan was the sixth largest market, importing an average of $1.36 billion worth of products annually. South Korea was third at $1.8 billion, while Japan was the biggest at $6.1 billion.

"While these are all quite large, our study suggests there is a lot of room for further growth," he said.

The 12-nation European Economic Community as a bloc is one of the biggest markets for American farmers. For example, in the 1989 fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30, when U.S. farm exports totaled $39.7 billion, the EEC accounted for $6.5 billion, topped only by Japan at $8.2 billion.

But Dwyer said the EEC didn't show great growth potential in the study.

"Despite the weaker dollar, (EEC) nations have been declining markets for the United States in recent years," he said. "It will probably become more difficult to export bulk commodities there because (the region) already has become or is becoming self-sufficient in many of these products."

Some of the best-growth markets, including Iraq, Egypt and Pakistan, show up well because of projected population growth, U.S. food aid, credit and subsidized prices, Dwyer said.

In the ninth-ranked Soviet Union, growth potential based purely on numbers is "very good" over the next few years, he said.

"Add to that the changes taking place in the political environment there, and that market could really expand for the United States," Dwyer said. "The agricultural sector is unable to keep pace with demand, and consumers are dissatisfied with the lack of food on grocery shelves."

Dwyer added the Kremlin is aware of the problems and is interested in restructuring the Soviet food system. The move toward free-market practices "could create opportunities for diversities in Soviet imports."

China, with more than one billion people and its political turmoil, is difficult to gauge but stacks up as a favorable growth market for the United States, he said.

"Prior to 1981, China was a hot import market," Dwyer said. "Then, the realization hit that it couldn't continue to import at the rate it was without incurring massive foreign debt. So China pulled back and imports fell 13 percent a year during 1981-87."

As a result, China's imports of U.S. products dropped an average of 28 percent a year during the 1980-88 period, he said.

"There has been a comeback in U.S. exports (to China) this past year, but the market is considered volatile," Dwyer said.

AGRICULTURAL MILESTONES

In 1957, a group of ranchers and businessmen helped establish the Texas Experimental Ranch on 7,040 acres of the Swenson Land and Cattle Company located between Throckmorton and Seymour.

The research facility, still in operation today, had as its mission to improve the efficiency of cow-calf operations on native grasslands. Its major emphases today are on grazing management research, animal nutrition and watershed management.

Research conducted on the Texas Experimental Ranch through the years has provided information on the effects of stocking rates, grazing systems, and supplementation on the performance of grazing animals and vegetative cover of range types in the Rolling Plains. Resulting information on stocking rates and supplementation has received widespread use by ranchers throughout West Texas and other comparable areas.

Subsequent research has sought to optimize livestock production while also sustaining the forage resource and wildlife populations. Various grazing systems which enhance livestock production and conserve the resource have been developed and are being utilized by Texas ranchers.

During the early 1970s, the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station established research and extension centers in Chillicothe-Vernon, San Angelo and Uvalde. These centers were designated as range management research centers. Another center at Overton was partially charged with forage production and utilization. Intensive research initiated at these centers continues to generate new technologies and decision-support systems for managers of pasture and rangeland resources.

Glossary of farm terms is published

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department is putting out a 46-page "Glossary of Food and Agricultural Policy Terms" just in time for farm bill debate and the windup of global trade talks later this year.

Not that it will make for bedside reading or something to entertain the kids. No pictures, cartoons or even a decent pie chart or bar graph.

But if a quick, comprehensive definition is required, the booklet by economists Kathryn L. Lipton and Susan L. Pollack may be just the primer for the beginner headed for the local ASCS office.

Oh, the book defines ASCS - Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service - as "a USDA agency responsible for administering farm price- and income-support programs as well as some conservation and forestry cost-sharing programs, environmental production and emergency programs."

It's where farmers sign up for crop programs. The office that handles their "deficiency payment," which is "a government payment made to farmers who participate in wheat, feed grain, rice or cotton programs."

The word subsidy is omitted.

Some other examples: Aquaculture is "the production of aquatic plants or animals in a controlled environment, such as ponds, raceways, tanks or cages, for all or part of their life cycle."

Nothing about it being fish farming, though.

A farm bill is defined as "the omnibus agricultural legislation that expires every four or five years. The bill usually includes provisions on commodity programs, trade, conservation, agricultural research, food stamps and marketing."

Technically, a farm bill expires when it becomes law or dies in Congress. Farm law may last for four or five years, however. For example, the 1985 farm bill became the 1985 farm law. The 1990 bill will evolve into the 1990 farm law.

Farm? It's "a tract or tracts of land, improvements and other appurtenances available to produce crops or livestock, including fish." Aha! Fish farming.

Administration trade negotiators are pushing for a gradual phase-out of what they prefer to call "trade-distorting" agricultural subsidies but promise that no U.S. farm programs will be scuttled unilaterally in a global drive for free trade. Or free market. There's a difference.

Free trade is the "exchange of goods between countries with no trade barriers or restrictions such as tariffs or import quotas."

A free market, however, is "a system in which the market forces of supply and demand determine prices and allocate available supplies. A free market approach in agriculture would eliminate price and income support programs and barriers to international trade."

The booklet on page 15 defines a farm operator as "a person who operates a farm, either by working or supervising and by making the daily operating decisions. In the case of equal partners, the senior partner is considered the operator."

The booklet never does say what a farmer is.

Copies of the booklet, "A Glossary of Food and Agricultural Policy Terms, 1989," Agricultural Information Bulletin No. 573 are available for $5.50 each from: ERS-NASS, P.O. Box 1608, Rockville, Md. 20849-1608. Or phone 1-800-999-6779 toll free.

WASHINGTON (AP) - After buying wheat recently, the Soviet Union is adding soybean meal to its U.S. shopping list.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday that private exporters sold 100,000 metric tons of meal to the Soviets for delivery by Sept. 30 under a long-term grain agreement between the two countries.

The current pact began its seventh year on Oct. 1 and will expire on Dec. 31. Negotiations on a new agreement are scheduled to resume March 21-22

Two-Story Foyer Elegantly Appointed LUXURY PLAN BOASTS ENTRANCE FOYER

BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

The impact of a phenomenal entrance foyer sets the stage for this outstanding home plan. It is sized to be impressive, includes an L shape open stairway and it is two stories high with a balcony at the top. The basement stair is shown beneath the second floor stairway.

The formal living and dining rooms extend the full depth of the plan and are positioned to eliminate wear and tear of daily traffic flow. The dining room and breakfast room are approximately the same size and are separated by the well designed octagonal kitchen. A bank of closets and pantry area are included central, and a full bath is shown for the first floor daytime use or private to a bedroom.

The family room is at the rear of the garage, sunken and extends to the sun deck. It includes a fireplace, separate stair to the second floor and a wet bar. Laundry facilities are next to the garage entry in this area.

There are three bedrooms, a bonus room and two full baths upstairs. The master bedroom is shown with a luxury bath and luxury walk-in closet. A central bath services the remaining rooms.

A formal exterior is shown with ornate window and door trim, combined gable and hip roof design and stucco finish.

This is a computer generated plan. The plan is Number 3320. It includes 3,047 plus 314 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write to W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Q. - I have an old bureau which is in pretty good condition except for what appears to be an accumulation of many layers of wax. I don't want to touch it until I am sure of what I am doing. Turpentine has been suggested as a good cleansing agent. Is it?

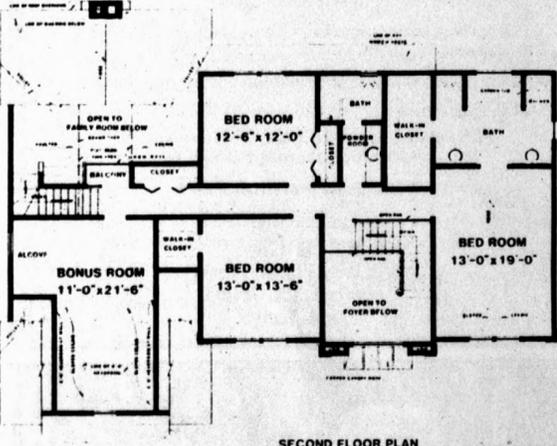

A. - Yes. It will take off the wax and prepare the surface for rewaxing or refinishing or whatever is necessary. You also can buy a commercial wax remover for the purpose.

Between the Covers

BY REBECCA WALLS

New library releases this week include books by Andrew Greeley, Neil Ravin, Joan Wolf, and even Jacques-Yves Cousteau.

Andrew Greeley's All About Women is a collection of 16 short stories with each story being about a woman either as the protagonist or the antagonist of the story. Each woman either creates or is an opportunity of grace for another person or is visited by an offer of grace in the form of another person.

Peggy, recently widowed, is forced into her first office job and it takes the intervention of a loving young woman and vulnerable widower to draw her back into the circle of human warmth. Beautiful Laura finds herself torn between three lovers of three totally different backgrounds. Middle aged Patricia is caught in a web she may not have the power to break, despite her unexpected late-won successes and the love of her family.

"This is a book of surprises as rich, as varied, and as compelling as love itself, brought to life with the skill of a 'master storyteller'."

Mere Mortals by Neil Ravin is a love story that takes place in the internationally famous Whipple Hospital. Brendan O'Brien and Caroline Bates meet for the first time when an intern working the night shift issues an order that Caroline knows will be fatal for the patient involved.

Brendan, a medical resident, was called and advised of the situation. "Your intern is over here trying to kill somebody." "I said 'Anyone I know?'" "A patient", she said. "If he were trying to kill another intern I wouldn't have called."

Their relationship begins with intrigue and respect and continues with a fascination as to why the other is working in this hospital dedicated to cancer and related conditions when each of their talents and backgrounds could have easily placed them in a more appealing environment.

Caroline was raised by her father who was involved in foreign service which resulted in her fluent knowledge of French, Spanish, and Brendan isn't sure how many other languages. Along with the love story, you will be caught up in each of the medical cases that this doctor and nurse team become involved in, in their daily work and even while traveling.

The authentic and vivid medical detail is a vital part of the story of this couple as they strive to raise children, live ordinary lives, and work in a world of extraordinary demands and risks.

Born of the Sun by Joan Wolf recreates the turbulent era that begins eight years following the death of King Arthur. Niniane, princess of the Alts, is only a child during the reign of King Arthur. The time of peace between the Celtic and Saxon nations shatters into a thousand dangerous pieces when the Saxon army brings its bloody charge against the Celts in 555 A.D.

Princess Niniane is captured and taken to Cynric before the King of the dreaded West Saxons. Enhanced by Niniane's courage and beauty, the aging monarch makes her a favored prisoner.

Niniane gives birth the King's illegitimate son Ceawlin who is loved deeply by his father, thus creating a tormented rivalry between Ceawlin and Edwin, the King's legitimate heir.

The jealous Queen skillfully arranges a duel between the half-brothers, in hopes of manipulating Ceawlin, but not all goes as planned.

This "historical fiction at its finest" will be enjoyed by anyone with the slightest intrigue for medieval history.

Training to begin Monday

Rearing good kids, disciplining with love, understanding more about yourself, your child and how to really talk to each other are just a few of the many things parents learn in the Systematic Training for Effective Parenting Classes (STEP).

A new class will start with instruction beginning Monday afternoon at the county extension office at the courthouse. The class will hold 10 sessions scheduled from 1-3 p.m. Parents with elementary age children will be most interested in this session. The charge of $15 will cover the purchase the parents' handbooks.

Those interested in taking the course may enroll at the beginning of the class Monday.

Defensive driving course set

The West Texas State University office of continuing education will sponsor a defensive driving course from 6-10 p.m. Monday, Feb. 12, and Tuesday, Feb. 13, in Old Main, Room 203.

Participants will register at the beginning of the class and will be required to provide a $25 cash payment to the instructor at that time.

New Officers

Abundant Life

Live Your Life BY BOB WEAR

There is a wholesome kind of selfishness which must be maintained and respected, even while we are being sensibly concerned about others. It is right and needful to be concerned about others, but not to the extent of neglecting ourselves. There is a balance composed of the proper concern for oneself, and wise concern for others. There is a degree of interdependence that must be properly regarded, but there is a degree of independence that is essential to effective living.

We must neither ignore others nor become overly conscious of them. If we ignore them, we fail to supply our need for meaningful associations with others; and we fail to help them, when help is justified. If we become overly concerned with others, we will handicap our living by over-loading ourselves with their problems; and will likely become meddlesome in their lives.

As we follow the advice, "Live Your Life", there is another very important matter to consider. We will be comparing ourselves with others, and, in doing this, we must be careful. We are being unfair with ourselves, when we compare ourselves with folk who have greater abilities and better opportunities. Such comparisons with people who have less ability and fewer opportunities, we form a false evaluation of ourselves. If we do this, we are likely to fall short of ever doing our best.

"If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain or bitter; for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself. Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time." -Anon.

Live your life the best you can, and be not overly involved with others and their problems.

HEREFORD MEAT MARKET

New officers named

A business meeting and luncheon was attended by the Hereford CattleWomen Tuesday, Jan. 16, at the Hereford Country Club. During the business session, new officers were named. They include, from left, Karen Keeling, parliamentarian; Judy Barrett, historian; Pat Graham, treasurer; Pam Wagner, secretary; Linda Fitzgerald, second vice president; Cathy Bunch, first vice president; and Lori Hall, president.

Honorary Cowbelle named

A highlight of the Hereford CattleWomen's luncheon Tuesday at the Hereford Country Club, was the announcement that Bob Beville had been selected as the organization's Honorary Cowbelle for 1989.

Beville, who owns and operates Beville Livestock Nutrition Counseling, was honored for his outstanding contribution to the beef industry. During 1989, he assisted in numerous CattleWomen projects.

The business meeting was called to order by President Lori Hall and the invocation was given by Kevin Bunch.

Hall introduced new members: Jackie Murphey, Debra Foxhoven, Marti McElhane and Beverly Davis.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Pam Wagner and Pat Graham read the treasurer's report.

Joan Coupe reported on the beef certificates and explained how the organization uses the interest from sales to go for scholarships. Hereford has the best record for beef certificates sales in Texas. In 1989, local beef certificates sales totaled $72,371. Since December of 1974, local sales have totaled $319,602. It was announced that Charmayne Klett will serve as the state chairman for beef certificates.

Cathy Bunch distributed 1990 yearbooks and explained various programs and committees.

Karen Keeling, outgoing president, gave her yearly report for activities held in 1989.

New officers for 1990 include: Lori Hall, president; Cathy Bunch, first vice president; Linda Fitzgerald, second vice president; Pam Wagner, secretary; Pat Graham, treasurer; Judy Barrett, historian; and Karen Keeling, parliamentarian.

Bunch reported on the Beef Promotion Seminar that she and Hall attended recently in Austin.

Hall reported that Wagner will attend the Texas Beef Cook-Off in Houston Feb. 16. Members discussed providing goodie bags for the contestants.

The Texas Beef Cook-Off, which is sponsored by Texas CattleWomen, will be held in conjunction with the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo. The National Beef Cook-Off, set for Sept. 20-22 in Washington, is sponsored by the American National CattleWomen Inc. in cooperation with the Beef Industry Council of the National Live Stock and Meat Board for the purpose of featuring beef recipes, understanding the various cuts of beef and their proper preparation, and for promoting the beef cattle industry.

Guests present during the luncheon included Kevin Bunch, Steve Lewis, Jim Bob Perrin, Jan B. McElhane, Beverly Davis, Shirley Garrison, Randy Heflin, Desiree Boebs, Scott Hall, Bob Beville, Pricilla Lacy, Christa Beville, Rodney Barrett, Scott Keeling and Don Graham.

Members in attendance were Cathy Bunch, Lisa Lewis, Deborah Foxhoven, Jackie Murphey, Jan Perrin, Marti McElhane, Nance Perrin, Kay Hall, Mary Roark, Nancy Josseland, Joan Coupe, Roberta Caviness, Mildred Garrison, Freda Cordray, Zula Arney, Rene Heflin, Linda Gilbert, Brenda Johnson, Camille Beville, Gerry Taylor, Dee Anne Trotter, Loraine Anthony, Linda Fitzgerald, Judy Barrett, Pam Wagner, Lori Hall, Pat Graham, and Karen Keeling.

landscaping of the area. She mentioned the opera house built on water and people who attended came by bus or boat. Mrs. Brown also made a tour of New Zealand.

President Mary Williamson presided over the meeting with new officers being elected. New officers are Emily Suggs, president; Lydia Hopson, vice-president; Virginia Beasley, secretary-treasurer; Pet Ott, reporter; and Mary Williamson, parliamentarian.

Della Stagner served as co-hostess to Alberta Higgins, Beasley, Opal Elliston, Eloile Manning, Lola Jewell, Louise Kinsey, Bea Hutson, Hopson, Ott, Suggs and Williamson.

The club will meet Feb. 6 in the home of Pet Ott with Bea Hutson serving as co-hostess. Alberta Higgins will give the program.

Extension News

BY BEVERLY HARDER
County
Extension Agent

At one time the worst discipline problems that those who worked with adolescents faced were gum chewing, profanity and graffiti on buildings.

Today we find teens heavily involved with alcohol and drugs, engaging in early sexual activity and dropping out of school. Of all the issues surrounding the adolescent failure syndrome, school-age childbearing and childrearing is one of the most devastating.

Schoolage parenthood affects a great number of people: The baby, the teen parents, the grandparents, and society as a whole.

As the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences recently noted, regardless of one's political philosophy or moral perspective, the basic facts are disturbing: Over one million teenage girls in the United States become pregnant each year, more than 400,000 obtain abortions and almost 470,000 give birth.

The prospects of a healthy and independent life for schoolage parents and their children are significantly reduced. The infants born to teen parents face significant developmental and health risks. Teen mothers are more likely to experience complications during pregnancy and experience poor birth outcomes. Compared to those who delay childbearing, teen parents are more likely to experience limited educational opportunities, chronic unemployment, inadequate income and to become and remain dependent on public assistance.

Teenagers indicate they want more information from parents about sexuality. Talking with teens about sexuality allows parents to communicate their values, provide accurate information, strengthen the teen's skills in resisting peer pressure, dispel the twisted views of sexuality depicted in the media, foster healthy attitudes and encourage mutual honesty and trust.

Thank You

SNEAK THIEF OF SIGHT

NEW YORK (AP) - Even though there are about 300,000 new cases of glaucoma each year - and 95,000 people lose some degree of sight - a recent Gallup survey revealed a majority of adults incorrectly believe that a feeling of pressure in the eyes is experienced during the early stages of the disease.

Results of the survey, sponsored by the National Society to Prevent Blindness, also showed that 54 percent of those polled wrongly believed it is possible to correct eye damage caused by glaucoma.

Program given on Australia

Members of the La Afflatus Estudio Club met recently in the home of Emily Suggs with Clara Brown presenting a program on Australia.

Brown flew to Australia on a 27-hour flight, landing in Cairns. She reported that children receive their schooling by radio, going to the city for tests twice a month. Because of the open country area, elderly residents live in Brisbane.

A visit was made to the memorial building. Brown found the Australia residents to have a grateful attitude toward the United States for helping in the war effort. She spoke of the different animals and landscaping of the area. She mentioned the opera house built on water and people who attended came by bus or boat. Mrs. Brown also made a tour of New Zealand.

President Mary Williamson presided over the meeting with new officers being elected. New officers are Emily Suggs, president; Lydia Hopson, vice-president; Virginia Beasley, secretary-treasurer; Pet Ott, reporter; and Mary Williamson, parliamentarian.

Della Stagner served as co-hostess to Alberta Higgins, Beasley, Opal Elliston, Eloile Manning, Lola Jewell, Louise Kinsey, Bea Hutson, Hopson, Ott, Suggs and Williamson.

The club will meet Feb. 6 in the home of Pet Ott with Bea Hutson serving as co-hostess. Alberta Higgins will give the program.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross has a new child mannikin. The mannikin was donated to the Chapter by the Elks Lodge and will be used by every first aid, CPR and water safety class held this year.

The child size mannikin cost $570 and is the only mannikin of this type that the chapter has. Resusci Junior realistically represents a five-year-old child. It will be helpful in teaching child CPR, in-water resuscitation and rescue.

A contest is underway to name the child mannikin and suggestions can be made by calling the Red Cross office. The Elks Lodge donation will help to save the lives of children and make teaching the lifesaving skills easier.

CPR and First Aid Instructor class will begin soon. Please call the Red Cross office if you would like to become an instructor.

Water safety instructors updates will begin in February. WSI's will receive notice when those classes will be held. There are many changes in advanced lifesaving classes beginning this year. The class for persons working as lifeguards is called lifeguarding. The class is more detailed and requires First Aid and CPR classes to become certified.

Thank You

Special and sincere thanks to the attending Doctors, especially Dr. Nadir Khuri.

Also, our appreciation and gratitude to the Hospital Nursing Staff, I.C.U. Personnel, Health Care Nurses, Dieticians, and all Hospital Employees.

Card of Thanks

To our multitude of friends, simply saying "thank you" seems so inadequate for the many, many ways you have poured out your hearts in love, to us, at the time of the loss of our loved one, Herman Cherry. We can never express how grateful we are to everyone for each act of kindness shown to us. Our special thanks to Bro. Larry Cothrin, Avenue Baptist Church, Dr. Duffy McBrayer and the Hereford E.M.S. We miss him more than words can say, but God is truly using you, his people, to make our loss easier to bear. We love you & appreciate you.

In Christian love,

MR. AND MRS. JOHNNY BELTRAN IV

Kwilinski, Beltran vows spoken Dec. 22

Michelle Kwilinski and Johnny Beltran IV, both of Amarillo, exchanged wedding vows Dec. 22, 1989, in the Knights of Columbus Hall in Hereford.

The marriage was officiated by Dr. Ron Cook, pastor of First Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Judy Layton of Clovis, N.M. and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Beltran III of Hereford.

Joni Angela Beltran served as maid of honor and best man was the groom's father.

Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Jennifer Dawn Beltran, and the groom's cousin, Mickey Gomez. They also lit candles during the ceremony.

Groomsmen included the groom's uncle, Walter Beltran; the groom's cousin, Richard Beltran; and Gilbert Ramirez.

Rachel Garcia, daughter of Lita Garcia, was flower girl and ring bearer was J.J. Beltran, son of Johnny and Peggy Beltran.

Rudy and Deanna Ramirez sang "Just the Two Of Us" and "Here We Are."

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Alton Ward, the bride was attired in an ivory satin gown featuring a sweetheart neckline, embellished with lace, sequins and pearls, and a fitted bodice. The long lace and satin sleeves were designed with full poufs at the shoulders and were marked by large satin bows decorated with lace and delicate seed pearls. The full skirt, also adorned with lace, sequins and

"Stuffee" a success

Donna Brockman, director of the Deaf Smith County Historical Museum, reports that "Stuffee", a doll used to educate children on how the human body functions, was a big success.

Over 750 adults and children viewed "Stuffee" during his five-day visit. Volunteers from the board of directors helped present the program and greeted guests. Scheduled in February will be the changing of fashions and in April, luncheons are planned at the E.B. Black House.

The public is invited to visit the museum from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank everyone that attended the funeral of Tony Vallejo, and for sending flowers, cards and food. Especially for the ladies of the church that helped in the kitchen with the food. God bless everyone of them.

DEAR READERS: I took the position recently that a dog should be locked up when repair people and guests are expected no matter how gentle and sweet the dog may be. I learned that dog owners are deeply divided on this subject and that a large percentage of the reading public knows a great deal more about dogs than I do. Read on:

FROM BALTIMORE: Why don't you consult one of your experts when you get stuck? It is obvious that you don't know much about dogs. I would be willing to bet you've never had one. -- Baltimore

DEAR BALT: You're half right. I don't know much about dogs, but I did have two dogs, a boxer named Lady Presto and a Mexican Chihuahua that weighed three pounds. We called him Big Shot.

MANHATTAN: Don't back off on your advice to keep dogs locked up. It cost me and my family a fortune to learn this lesson. Last year a man came in to check the electrical wiring and "Tiny," our 80-pound German shepherd, took a couple of chunks out of his leg and arm. We got sued from hell to breakfast. Since then we check out all repair persons thoroughly before we let them in the house. Tiny stays in the basement.

LONG BEACH, CALIF.: I work for the telephone company. If a customer refused to secure her dog I leave. This is not my idea; it's the policy of the phone company. If the woman who wrote insists on letting a hostile dog run loose in her house she may never get her phones fixed.

LINCOLN, NEB.: You're wrong, Ann. Dogs should not be locked up when strangers come into the house. I had a repairman come fix the dishwasher and my Rottweiler growled at him the entire time. This was unusual behavior as he is normally very friendly. Three months later that same repairman was arrested and is now doing two to six years for sexually assaulting a child.

CHICAGO: My husband traveled a lot and we lived out in the country but he never worried about me when I was alone because our brindle boxer was in charge. No one was allowed out of a car (much less in the house) until I said, "OK. It's a friend." Why have a dog if you're going to keep it locked up?

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.: My two Labrador retrievers are so gentle that if a robber talked kindly to them they would lead him to the family silver. I have rental property that must be shown from time to time, I keep the dogs at my side. (If the people knew what sissies those dogs are, they'd be shocked.)

SOMERVILLE, N.J.: One dark and rainy day a salesman appeared at the door totally drenched. I was startled to see that he had opened the locked storm door and put one foot inside. When he started to rattle off a canned speech that made no sense, I became frightened. At that moment my black lab appeared out of nowhere and was at my side, baring his teeth and barking like crazy. The man took off like a bat out of hell.

TURNER, ORE.: A smooth-talking vacuum cleaner salesman conned his way into my daughter's living room a few months ago. He stayed and stayed and talked and talked, refusing to take no for an answer. No way could she get rid of the pest. Finally, "Pepper," her poodle, sensed the problem. He walked over to the man, lifted his leg and filled the man's shoe. The salesman immediately packed up his goods and left. (Squish squish.) No words were spoken but the guy knew he had overstayed his welcome.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling): Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada send $4.45.)

Military Muster

Specialist Jeri Curtis Shire has been awarded the Army Achievement Medal for distinguished service while serving as secretary for the Command Sergeant Major and the Lieutenant Colonel (Commanding) of the 32d Signal Battalion in Hoechst-Frankfurt, West Germany. Shire received the medal during a ceremony conducted by Lt. Col.

Joseph R. Lindhorst. Shire was managing editor of The Hereford Brand 1986-87. She is married to Allen Shire, son of Al and Martha Shire, formerly of Hereford.

Shire joined the Army in 1987 and trained for microwave satellite systems repair. She was assigned to the 32d Signal Battalion electronic maintenance shop in August 1988, and was moved to the battalion command section in March 1989. She recently has been attached to 22d Signal Brigade's Public Affairs Office, also in Hoechst.

Our driest state is Nevada. Its annual rainfall averages 8.8 inches.

Card of Appreciation.

The Garcia, Vallejo & Tijerina families would like to give thanks to all who gave donations, help and support. Thank you for your consideration and for your prayers.

Recital set Jan. 26 at WTSU

Faculty members in the West Texas State University music department will perform solo and in ensemble at the sixth annual Faculty Grand Recital. The hour-long concert begins at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 26, in the Northern Recital Hall on the WTSU campus. The recital is free and open to the public.

Concert selections include Mozart's Andante-Allegro from "Quartet in C" performed by the Harrington String Quartet and the Harburg-Arlen arrangement of "Over the Rainbow" performed on stage by the Faculty Jazz Quartet.

Ensemble performances will be given by Robert Krause, oboe; Tina Carpenter, bassoon; Janet Rittenberry, oboe; Rowie Durden, clarinet; Bill Evans, piano; David Murray, double bass; Mary Helen Demus, piano; Elizabeth Brandenburg, soprano, and Robert Hansen, tenor.

Joseph Cox, trombone; Fred Johnson, guitar; Don Lefevre, saxophone; Douglas Storey, clarinet; Stanley Potter, piano; and James Gardner, organ, may be heard in solo performances.

In addition to their teaching responsibilities at WTSU, many of the faculty members are principal musicians in the Amarillo Symphony Orchestra.

According to concert organizer Dr. Joseph Cox, the recital annually attracts approximately 500 patrons and includes a "potpourri of music" that appeals to all ages and musical interests.

The recital, the culminating event for the department's Career Day, will be followed by a reception in the Northern Hall Atrium.

HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

VIDEO RENTAL MOVIES

According to a 1989 Electronic Industries Association survey and Gallop Poll: 64% of U.S. households have VCRs; 13% have 2 VCRs, and 8% have 3 or more VCRs. Also, in 1989, video revenue exceeded film revenue for the first time. And, according to a further study in 1989 by the Wall Street Journal, Americans rank their five most rewarding entertainment options for the money as: 1. Eating out in a "nice" restaurant. 2. Watching a video at home. 3. Reading paperbacks. 4. Seeing live sports events. 5. Going to the movies. Since watching movies at home is a uniquely American phenomenon, it is fitting this week to salute a uniquely American film director, Vincente Minnelli. The late Vincente Minnelli (2nd husband to Judy Garland and Liza's father) earned his reputation as a superb stylist primarily as a director of the old MGM musicals. The best of the Minnelli films (musicals, comedies and dramas) available on video are:

MEET ME IN ST. LOUIS: (1944) Cast: Judy Garland and Margaret O'Brien. This movie was made at MGM during the heyday of their musicals; it's a nostalgic slice of Americana about a family planning a trip to the 1903 World's Fair. The Garland songs, The Boy Next Door, Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas, and The Trolley Song, remain fresh today. Would be rated G.

Four Boxes

ZIEGFELD FOLLIES: (1946) Cast: Fred Astaire, Lucille Ball, Judy Garland, Lena Horne, Red Skelton, Cyd Charisse, Gene Kelly and Esther Williams. The famous Ziegfeld name is used by MGM only to provide some unified method of showcasing some of its 40's big-name roster of stars. One of the highlights is the now-famous Red Skelton comedy sketch, Guzler's Gin. Would be a G.

Three Boxes

THE PIRATE: (1948) Cast: Judy Garland and Gene Kelly. Foot stompin' Cole Porter score about a clown-pirate-acrobat having a good time. This film features the outstanding, exhilarating Kelly dance sequence, Be A Clown. This musical is just a shade short of fantastic. Would be rated G.

Three Boxes

MADAME BOVERY: (1949/Black and White) Cast: Jennifer Jones, James Mason and Louis Jourdan. Excellent adaptation of the famed Gustave Flaubert novel about a 19th Century scandalous love affair. The heroine (Jennifer Jones) sacrifices husband and security for love and meets a horrible end. While the film is dated and slow moving, it is worth seeing for the celebrated ball sequence. This scene is considered to be one of Minelli's greatest set pieces. Would be rated PG-13.

Three Boxes

FATHER OF THE BRIDE: (1950/Black & White & Computer Color) Cast: Elizabeth Taylor and Spencer Tracy. Elizabeth is getting married but father Tracy has all the aggravation. Witty script and excellent performance by Tracy. Would be rated G.

Three Boxes

AN AMERICAN IN PARIS: (1951) Cast: Gene Kelly and Leslie Caron. A Kelly classic. Everyone knows this musical about an ex-GI who stays in Paris to become an artist. The Oscar-winning film is a heady mixture of light entertainment and the music of George Gershwin. Would be rated G.

FATHER'S LITTLE DIVIDEND: (1951/Black & White & Computer Color) Cast: Elizabeth Taylor and Spencer Tracy. This is a cute and enjoyable sequel to Father Of The Bride. This time Tracy is becoming a grandfather and it doesn't make him happy. Would be rated G.

Three Boxes

THE BAD AND THE BEAUTIFUL: (1952/Black & White) Cast: Lana Turner, Kirk Douglas and Gloria Grahame. A dynamite story of a Hollywood producer and his turbulent relations with a studio actress. Excellent performances by all. The film won five Oscars including Supporting Actress (Grahame) and Screenplay. Would be rated PG-13.

Four Boxes

THE BAND WAGON: (1953) Cast: Fred Astaire and Cyd Charisse. One of Minnelli's best grand-scale musicals. Astaire is a Hollywood has-been who tries his luck on stage. Hit songs include: That's Entertainment and Dancing In The Dark. Would be rated G.

Four Boxes

BRIGADOON: (1954) Cast: Gene Kelly and Cyd Charisse. Americans discover a magical Scottish village that comes alive only once every hundred years. Lovely and charming musical with a terrific score. Would be rated G.

Three Boxes

GIGI: (1959) Cast: Leslie Caron and Maurice Chevalier. This is the story of a young girl, Colette, (Leslie Caron) who "comes of age" in France in the early 1900s. Paris never looked better and Chevalier has never been more charming and debonair. Splendid score. The film won nine Academy Awards including: Best Picture, Director, Writing (Alan Jay Lerner), Cinematography, Costumes (Cecil Beaton), Song (GiGi) and Scoring (Andre Previn). Would be rated PG.

Selleck praised for 'An Innocent Man'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

Framed by two crooked narcs and sentenced to six years in prison, Jimmy Rainwood enters the vicious world of California's Oroville State Prison. He is preyed upon by the hardened cons, especially Jingles, who threatens to make Rainwood the gang's "pet."

Veteran convict Virgil Cane advises Jimmy that the only way to avoid degradation and probable death is to kill Jingles. A moral man, Jimmy battles his conscience: Should he kill or allow himself to be destroyed? He kills.

The moral dilemma is not fully addressed in "An Innocent Man." His prison experience and the harassment of the two cops on his release turn Jimmy into a creature of revenge. And revenge is what sells movie tickets these days.

Despite the skirting of issues, "An Innocent Man" succeeds as an action melodrama. Peter Yates, who practically invented the car-chase genre with "Bullit," is an expert of hard-edged action. He has the advantage of a first-rate cast, headed by the reliable Tom Selleck.

After year of movies on road, actress eager to star in TV series

LOS ANGELES (AP) - After a year of making movies on the road, actress Pamela Reed was eager to star in her first television series.

In NBC's "Grand," she plays Janice Pasetti, a mother with a young daughter who is deserted by her husband.

"I hadn't been able to spend much time with my husband," says Reed, who married director Sandy Smolan three years ago after working with him on "Rachel River."

"I started looking into television. I was interested in the half-hour comedy format. Then 'Grand' came along and I was intrigued by the character. I liked the idea that she was funny but also serious. I like it that she has contact with everyone in the cast and is not confined to just one area."

In the series, Pasetti is forced to find work as a housekeeper because she has no skills. She works for Harris Weldon, (John Randolph), the 70-year-old patriarch of Grand, Pa. He owns the piano factory, which is losing out to foreign keyboard imports.

The show, from the Carsey-Werner Co.'s hit factory, has taken up residence behind "Cheers" on Thursday night displacing "Dear John." Two other Carsey-Werner shows, "The Cosby Show" and "A Different World," precede it. The production company also makes ABC's "Roseanne."

Reed has been busy in movies roles, including such films as "The Right Stuff," "Young Doctors in Love," "Eyewitness" and "Melvin and Howard." Upcoming feature films are "Cadillac Man" with Robin Williams and "Chattahoochie" with Gary Oldman and Dennis Hopper.

She has starred in several TV movies and was Ernest Hemingway's last wife, Mary, in the miniseries "Hemingway." She has appeared extensively on Broadway and off-Broadway.

Last year she won an ACE Award for cable-TV productions as a result of her role as the campaign manager in "Tanner 88" for Home Box Office. She also appears in the Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation "Caroline" coming up on CBS.

"When I talked to the 'Grand' producers I found out TV shows have a hiatus of four months," she says. "That's important to me because I can do a film. Deciding to do it took me a long, long time. You have to be prepared to commit for five years, whether the show goes for five minutes or five years."

"Then I got together with Michael McKean and the creator Michael Leeson, who also wrote the movie 'The War of the Roses.' We worked on scenes and it reminded me of working in the theater. It made me want to do it. You don't come in at 6 a.m. and work on one scene all morning like you do on a film. You come in in old clothes and work on the text. It's really about text, and for an actor that's heaven."

Reed was also pleased that Peter Hunt, who runs the Williamstown

Theater in Massachusetts, is the director.

Janice Pasetti is a woman who got married right out of high school and thought it would last forever. She'd been married seven or eight years when her husband went out for cigarettes and never came back. She's unskilled and her resourcefulness is challenged to make a living.

"Her relationship with her teenage daughter is telling because children ask questions adults have to answer," Reed says. "Questions you may not ask yourself. She's a person who cleans other people's houses. People my own age. She has to keep it a business relationship."

Reed was born in Tacoma, Wash., but at the age of 11 her family moved to Maryland when her father became an executive of the International Laborers Union. At 18, she returned to attend Washington State University.

She's lived in New York for the past 14 years.

"Caroline," due on CBS later this season, stars Stephanie Zimbalist in the title role. Reed and George Grizzard play the parents of two children who are surprised when Caroline, a daughter from his first marriage thought to be dead, turns up. The 1952 period piece, filmed in Georgia, also stars Patricia Neal and Dorothy McGuire.

In several films Reed has played real people. She was Trudy Cooper, the wife of Astronaut Gordon Cooper, in "The Right Stuff." In "Melvin and Howard" she was Bonnie Dummar, whose husband Melvin Dummar contended Howard Hughes left part of his fortune to Dummar.

"We were shooting 'Melvin and Howard' in Utah when Jonathan Demme, the director, said Bonnie Dummar was outside," Reed says. "I said, 'I'm Bonnie Dummar. After I finish this picture, then she can be Bonnie Dummar again.'"

'Steel Magnolias' boasts all-star cast

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

"Steel Magnolias" deserves applause if only for the enterprise of producer Ray Stark in assembling the biggest all-star cast since "The Towering Inferno." The film can be admired for other reasons. It is that rare achievement: a comedy and tear-jerker that works.

The secret is in the lead characters, all six of them beautifully written and superbly played. The movie adds new meaning to the term "ensemble cast."

Robert Harling's play, "Steel Magnolias," which takes place in a small-town beauty salon, has been a hit across the nation. His movie script allows the women to escape the rinsing sinks and hair dryers. We see their homes and husbands and partake in the rituals of a Southern hamlet.

The salon remains the focus of the story. That's where Dolly Parton presides, applying her folk wisdom to her customers' troubles. She is assisted by Darryl Hannah, a mysterious newcomer who becomes a born-again Christian.

The patrons of Dolly's place include: Sally Field, a strong-willed wife and mother; Julia Roberts, her lovely, headstrong daughter; Shirley MacLaine, the town's battle-ax; and Olympia Dukakis, the wise and witty widow of the mayor.

Fields' family is the center focus of the story. She is ever-protective of her daughter, knowing the girl's physical limitations. The daughter wants to partake of life, and she chooses to marry and then bear a child, despite the peril to her health. Her plight occupies much of the conversation at Dolly's place.

"Steel Magnolias" is shamelessly sentimental, but the heart-tugging is leavened by acerbic wit, especially from Dukakis and MacLaine.

MacLaine never ceases to amaze. After her performance as the aging Madame Sousatzka in the film of the same name, she goes all-out as the frowzy, acid-tongued Ouse. Dukakis has the best lines as the elegant Clairee, and she delivers them with a skill reminiscent of the late Thelma Ritter. Roberts, who was impressive in "Mystic Pizza," shows extraordinary range as the brave Shelby.

Expectably, the men fare less well, but Tom Skerritt and Sam Shepard are effective in husband roles.

The Tri-Star film is rated PG, perhaps for adult content. Running time: 118 minutes. About the title: Steel magnolias is reportedly the term for "strong, proud ladies who have sustained the community through hard times."

Watching aquarium reduces stress, high blood pressure

Relaxation and relief from stressful situations go hand-in-hand with good health and fitness. This is why your doctor's or dentist's office may have an aquarium.

Now, two doctors at the University of Pennsylvania have proved what many doctors and dentists have known for years: Watching tropical fish in a home aquarium not only is relaxing and a good way to relieve stress, but actually reduces high blood pressure.

Drs. Aaron H. Katcher and Alan M. Beck published the results of their study, entitled "New Perspectives on Our Lives With Common Animals," in the University of Pennsylvania Press.

Not only is a home aquarium enjoyable, entertaining and a good hobby for any family member, it is also a proven benefit to your health.

Owning a home aquarium obviously has many positive benefits. Throughout the U.S., 10 million aquariums are being enjoyed in homes, offices, restaurants and hotels. Undoubtedly you have seen at least one and may have wondered, "How do I or my youngsters (kids love tropical fish and easily get involved in the simple maintenance) get started?"

First, you will want to locate a good dealer in your area. If you have a friend who has an aquarium, ask for a reference; otherwise, the phone book lists most tropical fish retailers.

During your visit to a tropical fish store, you will want to get some idea of aquarium sizes and of the equipment you will need, and look over the selection of the fish so that you can choose the ones you will want to keep.

It is advisable to purchase a book that provides complete instructions on setting up and maintaining an aquarium.

One of the basic rules to follow, however, is to buy the largest aquarium possible since, the greater the water environment, the less change of water problems.

When determining where to put your new aquarium, several factors should be considered. You will not want to put it in direct sunlight since this will cause algae to grow on the glass and plastic accessories. You will also not want to put it on your best carpeting since, during water changes, it is possible for some water to splash on the floor, and you will be sure to want to put it on a firm stand since water is heavy.

After you have decided on the aquarium, your first accessory will be a tightly fitting canopy cover equipped with a fluorescent fixture. Fluorescent fixtures throw off a cool light and will not cause fluctuations in the water temperature.

While on the subject of water temperature, tropical fish require an environment maintained at around 75 degree F. You therefore will need a good heater and an aquarium thermometer. A recent development in this technology is the liquid crystal digital thermometer, which affixes to the outside of the aquarium yet measures most accurately the water temperature.

You will also need a quality filter. Your dealer can give you proper advice since there are several types of filters and your needs will vary with the size of your aquarium. If you are going to keep a lot of fish, you will also want a separate air pump to add oxygen to the water.

Decorating an aquarium is great fun. There are multi-colored gravels, highly decorative backgrounds and hundreds of ornaments, as well as plastic plants so real in reproduction it's almost impossible to distinguish them from live plants.

Most good retailers will have a complete assortment and your selection should be based on the size of your aquarium and the amount of money you decide to spend.

Once you have set up your aquarium, you should add a chlorine neutralizer to the water and add only a few fish initially. These few fish will help develop the proper biological conditions necessary to maintain a fully stocked aquarium. After three to four weeks, assuming everything is functioning properly, you can then go ahead and add the rest of your fish.

Aquarium maintenance is a lot simpler than people think. Every two weeks, a partial water change (not greater than 20 percent) by siphoning the water from the bottom of the aquarium is all that is required. A device called the HydroClean allows an efficient siphoning by separating the debris in the gravel and removing it with the water from the aquarium. On a monthly basis, your filter will require minimal maintenance. That's all there is.

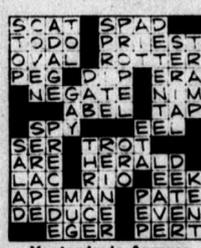

Following this simple routine, changes of fish disease or any other aquarium problems are remote. In fact, one of the biggest problems people have is spending too much time maintaining their aquarium. On daily basis, of course, fish should be fed and a good quality flake food will provide a complete diet for almost all fish.

The city of Quebec was founded in 1608 by Samuel de Champlain.
