EDGEWOOD VS. KIRBY

Texas courts have already decided the way Texas schools are funded is unconstitutional. Now the legislature must fix the problems. Quickly.

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

At the Constitutional Convention of 1875, Delegate Henry Cline told other Texas legislators that an educational system must be efficient, and urged the convention to ensure that sufficient funds would be provided to districts most in need.

The delegates hemmed and hawed over this and thousands of other points before they came up with a constitution, the one Texas still uses (with hundreds of amendments) today.

The part on education hasn't changed. It's Article VII, section 1: "A general diffusion of knowledge being essential to the preservation of the liberties and rights of the people, it shall be the duty of the Legislature of the State to establish and make suitable provision for the support and maintenance of an efficient system of public free schools."

The state Supreme Court has ruled the current system is not efficient. The Legislature has until May 1 to make it efficient.

The Supreme Court used 1986 figures to look at school districts. What they found is staggering.

The San Elizario ISD, in far west Texas, has virtually no extracurricular activities. There's no football, no band, no speech or drama.

There are limited course offerings, besides the very basics, at San Elizario: no foreign language, no pre-kindergarten program, no chemistry nor calculus, no physics, no college preparatory courses or honors program. Just the very basic basics: enough to get you through high school, but not enough to get you into some colleges.

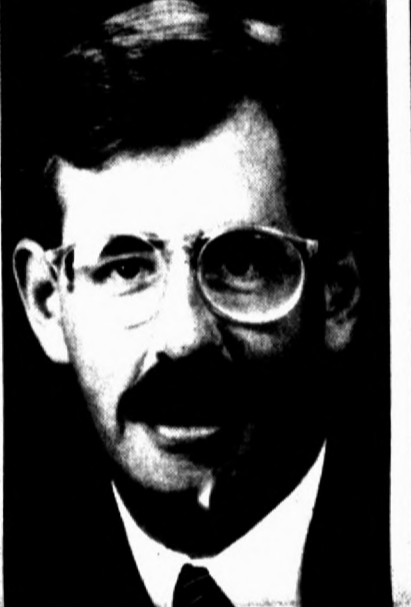

Ironically, many of the poorer districts, those with the least to offer like San Elizario, in the state have the highest tax rates in the state while those with the most to offer have the lowest tax rates in the state.

Many times, they are side-by-side, neighbors like the Joneses who have it all and Smith who have nothing.

Highland Park ISD and Wilmer-Hutchins ISD are both in Dallas County. Highland Park taxed at 47 cents per $1,000 and spent $4,836. Wilmer-Hutchins taxed at $1.05 and spent only $3,182 per student.

In Harris County, the Deer Park ISD taxed at 64.37 cents and spent $4,846 per student. Its neighbor North Forest ISD taxed at $1.05 and spent just $3,182 per student. Tax rates range from nine cents per hundred in the best-case scenario to $1.55 in the worst. In the low-wealth district of Levevets Chapel in east Texas, a person with an $80,000 home pays $1,206 in school taxes each year. In the high-wealth district of Iraan-Sheffield in West Texas, that $80,000 home has just $59 in taxes levied against it.

Mitchell is chamber speaker

Apollo 14 astronaut Dr. Edgar D. Mitchell will be the keynote speaker at the annual Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce banquet at 7 p.m. on March 8 at the Bull Barn.

The chamber's objective and goals for the 1990s will be outlined at the banquet, with brief remarks from past president Rocky Lee, 1990 president Doug Josseland, and recognition of past and present board members.

The banquet will also feature special musical entertainment, and the Hereford Lions Club will name its Citizen of the Year at the banquet.

Dr. Mitchell was born in Hereford on Sept. 17, 1930. He joined the U.S. Navy Flight Training Program in 1953, graduating in 1954 with the Naval Aviation Outstanding Graduate Award.

He flew on Apollo 14 in 1971, with Admiral Alan Shepard and Col. Stuart Roosa, and was the sixth man to walk on the moon.

Retired from the Navy, he has had a varied career as a scientist, test pilot, naval officer, astronaut, businessman, entrepreneur, author and lecturer. He continues to write, speak and research for a number of new books and acts as a consultant to corporations and foundations.

Some of his honors and awards include the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the USN Distinguished Service Medal, the Distinguished Service Award and the Group Achievement Award (three times, all from NASA). Dr. Mitchell is also the chairman of the advisory board for the Institute for Security and Cooperation in Outer Space.

Tickets are on sale for $12.50 each at the chamber office or from members of the Hereford Hustlers. Special seating can be arranged for companies or firms wishing to purchase a block of tickets for their employees.

The chamber will host its first fund breakfast of the 1990s at 6:30 a.m. Thursday at the Hereford Community Center.

Dr. David Purdy's family dentistry practice will co-sponsor the breakfast, which will feature a variety of fun and games with co-emcees John Stagner and Charlie Bell.

The breakfast will include various announcements about community activities, and the first Bull Chip of the 90's will be awarded at the breakfast.

Persons wishing to attend the breakfast should call the chamber at 364-3333 by 5 p.m. Wednesday. Tickets are $4.50 per person.

The New Governor of Texas

Jim Mattox

One of a periodic series of election profiles

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Jim Mattox is the kind of guy who sees two people scuffling and asks, "Is this a private fight or can anyone join in?"

Mattox, 46, whose gubernatorial campaign theme is "Texas Tough," has earned that image from growing up poor in East Dallas to working the halls of the Legislature and U.S. Capitol as a fiery, reform-minded legislator and congressman.

As attorney general since 1983, the Democrat prides himself on his agency's unprecedented efforts for consumer protection and against unscrupulous nursing home operators, polluters and deadbeat fathers who don't pay child support.

He enjoys being at the center of controversy fighting for the little guy against large odds.

"That's who I am," he said of the "Texas Tough" slogan. "You don't collect child support without being tough. You don't take on the big insurance companies, the big utility companies and the big banks unless you're tough."

Mattox makes no apologies to those who complain of his confrontational style.

"All changes that have taken place in this country or this state have been ones where the leaders have had to get some scars. If a person doesn't have any scars, it means that they haven't led," he said.

His aggressive style has cost him the enmity of many powerful people,

CT scanner helps DSGH

By CINDY POTTOKFF
Staff Writer

Doctors at the Deaf Smith General Hospital got a new diagnostic tool a few months ago that's on the leading edge of new technology.

Instead of relying on x-rays and diagnostic skills alone to find out what's wrong with a patient, they can now use a computerized tomography (CT) scan machine for diagnoses.

Since interpreting CT x-rays is more complicated than interpreting old-fashioned x-rays, radiologists spend more time in Hereford than in the past. The hospital contracts with the High Plains Baptist radiology group to read all of us x-rays. Radiologists now come to Hereford up to five times a week but only came about once a week in the past. Newton to run again

Hereford school board member Dennis Newton announced today he will run for re-election to the board, subject to the May 5 election.

Newton is completing his first term on the Hereford board. He had served two terms on the board at Sunett (now West Texas) before moving to Hereford as the county extension agent.

"I would like the opportunity to continue to serve," Newton said. "I want to continue to work for the best schools we can have for all of our children."

PCS will recertify recipients Thursday

All persons receiving commodities from the Panhandle Community Services commodity distribution will need to re-certify at the next distribution, Thursday at 10 a.m. at the Bull Barn in Hereford.

Persons actually receiving commodities must attend because they will need to sign an application and provide proof of residence and income.

Persons applying should bring a utility bill, driver's license or voter registration card to establish proof of residence, and necessary documents for proof of income.

Doors will remain open until 3:30 p.m. to provide time for everyone. Senior citizens should use the east door and all others should use the west door.

Today in History Special session to decide funding issue

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Feb. 18, the 49th day of 1990. There are 316 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 18, 1861, Jefferson Davis was sworn in as president of the Confederate States of America in Montgomery, Ala.

On this date:

In 1546, Martin Luther, leader of the Protestant Reformation in Germany, died.

In 1564, the artist Michelangelo died in Rome.

In 1735, the first opera presented in the United States - "Flora, or Hob in the Well" - was performed in Charleston, S.C.

In 1885, Mark Twain's "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" was published in the United States for the first time.

In 1930, the ninth planet of our solar system, Pluto, was discovered.

In 1953, "Bwana Devil," the movie that heralded the "3-D" fad of the 1950's, opened in New York.

In 1960, the VIII Winter Olympic Games were formally opened in Squaw Valley, Calif., by Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

In 1970, the Chicago Seven defendants were found innocent of conspiring to incite riots at the 1968 Democratic convention.

In 1972, the California Supreme Court struck down the state's death penalty.

In 1977, the space shuttle Enterprise, sitting atop a Boeing 747, went on its maiden flight, reaching altitudes of up to 16,000 feet above the Mojave Desert.

In 1984, Italy and the Vatican signed a revised concordat under which Roman Catholicism ceased to be the state religion of Italy.

Ten years ago: Pierre Elliott Trudeau's Liberal Party won a majority of seats in Canada's House of Commons in parliamentary elections.

Five years ago: General William C. Westmoreland and CBS reached an out-of-court settlement in Westmoreland's $120 million libel suit that resulted from a CBS News documentary, "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception."

One year ago: Author Salman Rushdie, under a death sentence from Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini for his book "The Satanic Verses," expressed regret for any distress he caused Muslims.

Today's birthdays: Actor Jack Palance is 70. Game show host Bill Cullen is 70. Cosmopolitan editor Helen Gurley Brown is 68. Actor George Kennedy is 65. Sen. John Warner, R-Va., is 63. Movie director Milos Forman is 58. Singer Yoko Ono is 57. Actress Cybill Shepherd is 40. Singer Juice Newton is 38. Actor John Travolta is 36. Game show hostess Vanna White is 33. Actor Matt Dillon is 26. Actress Molly Ringwald is 22.

Thought for today: "There is, I think, nothing in the world more futile than the attempt to find out how a task should be done when one has not yet decided what the task is." - Alexander Meiklejohn, American educator (1872-1964).

legislation that will pass the House and Senate and satisfy the courts.

"Special session are like closets. They take up the space allotted," said State Sen. Teel Bivins (R-Amarillo), who serves Deaf Smith County and most of the Texas Panhandle. "I have met with various groups in Austin, and there is no consensus around one plan. I think the governor (Bill Clements) is going to have a big role, and of course he could veto anything that comes out. The governor already has a strong role, but in a special session he controls the call, and that makes his role even stronger."

A special task force, appointed by Clements, has developed a finance plan. "We're looking to that task force for direction," Bivins said.

Bivins feels the task force will be "demanding more standards for accountability."

"In 1971 the state put $1.8 billion into public school financing," Bivins said. "Now they are putting $1.5 billion in, and when you adjust those figures for inflation it's still a 300 percent increase."

"Meanwhile, the ACT and SAT scores are going in the other direction. That's a national trend, though, not just in Texas. Anyway, education is getting so expensive that even the average taxpayer wants good schools but wants to know exactly what he or she is getting. That's a legitimate concern."

The task force has developed a plan that will increase state funding by $234 million for the 1990-91 school year, and by $1.6 billion in five years.

The task force plan would increase the basic state allotment per student from $1,470 this year to $1,750 next year. By the 1995-96 school year, the basic allotment would be $2,100.

"We're looking at a whole range of educational issues," Rep. Smithee said. The "whole range," Smithee said, will include doing something about educational reforms mandated by House bill 72 several years ago, re-distribution of funds, and deciding what new revenues are needed.

"What we are seeing is a rural vs. urban battle," Smithee said. "You have suburbs of Dallas and Houston where they have big industry and business. They have such a tax base and so many dollars available that they have a much lower tax rate than amarillo or Hereford or most areas in the Panhandle."

"Rural areas don't have that tax base, and we are literally getting taxed to death up here. If we redistribute all of the money you would basically cut out the metropolitan cities, but they have over half of the votes and they are not going to be willing to give up their money. It is going to be a difficult thing, politically, to do."

The Texas Supreme Court found...

-Texas school districts spent from $2,112 to $19,333 per student, violating the state constitution's requirement that an 'efficient' system of public schools be created so as to provide for 'general diffusion of knowledge.'

-The state's richest district has over $14 million of property wealth per student, while the poorest has approximately $20,000, a disparity of 700 to 1.

-The state's current system of a complex Foundation School program, using a formula to distribute more money to poorer districts, still does not meet their basic needs because of the need for more local dollars to fully fund all programs.

-The state legislature 'has primary responsibility to decide how best to achieve an efficient system' to meet the constitutional mandate set forth in the 1875 Constitutional Convention.

"I don't think Dallas and Houston are going to give up their money unless rural areas give up their agricultural exemptions."

Smithee stressed he is not in favor of a state income tax, which would raise funds rapidly. He said other revenue measures could include an additional one cent sales tax, higher fees for already-taxed professional services, and increasing taxes on liquor and cigarettes.

"If we increase those taxes, we could do away with ad valorem taxes," Smithee said. "That money would then be equally distributed throughout the state on a per-capita basis. It has some merit, and it sure would benefit homeowners."

Hereford Superintendent Charles Greenawalt said the legislature is very likely going to set a "minimum tax rate" that could range anywhere from 66 cents to as much as $1.11, if one of four plans he's seen ends up in the final bill.

"You will have to have at least the minimum tax rate if you want state money," Greenawalt said. "I don't see any way they can do what they need to do without a tax increase, state or local."

"I hope they do something for the long range, not just for this year or for two or three years. They need to look at something with a lottery or an income tax. I don't see how they can finance their needs without some kind of state tax increase."

"Last time, they said there were no new state taxes, and they were right. The last time they required local tax increases."

Bivins also wants a long-range answer to funding woes.

"I would like to see a legislature that in fact changes the system we use to finance schools, and not just the funding," Bivins said. "Since 1971 there have been nine bills that attempted to bridge the gap between rich districts and poor district. All they did was close the gap for two to four years, then the gap was wider than it was before. They've just thrown dollars at it in the past...and didn't get at the way the whole system works."

"We just need to come up with something that is going to be fair into the future. If we just throw dollars at it, things may be fixed for now, but it won't be fixed for the future until we come up with a new way to spend and finance."

Greenawalt said there could be some "side effects," like a longer school year, the disposal of the career ladder system that rewards some teachers, with funds instead used to give all teachers a raise, year-round use of facilities, and incentives for districts to consolidate.

"I hope one thing that comes out is no more mandates without funding," Greenawalt said.

Smithee said he wants some "reform of the reforms" of four years ago, when House Bill 72 instituted many changes in the ways Texas schools did business.

"We want a return to site-based management, to give control of our schools back to the local districts," Smithee said. "We also want to give parents some choice on which school their children attend (in multi-school districts). There are some other measures that will save some money, and then we can talk about redistributing funds."

Consolidation has been a topic almost every time school financing has come up. This time, consolidation may come up again, but with a twist.

"I get the feeling there's not much support for forced consolidation," Smithee said. "However, we might see some financial incentives for district that consolidate. It would save the state some money, and we could pass those savings on to districts that consolidate, but we don't want forced consolidation."

"If we were to force a district like Walcott to merge, that would pretty much destroy their community."

"One thing that is very actively proposed is to change the tax bases within a county. In Deaf Smith County's case, you would merge the Walcott and Hereford districts' tax bases and divide the money on a per capita basis. That would take some money from Walcott into Hereford, but where it really comes into play is around Houston where there is so much disparity between districts."

"I think forced consolidation is unlikely, but there could be some incentives that would make a lot of school districts look at it," Greenawalt said.

"There is so much talk about school districts that are sparsely populated but cover vast areas," Bivins said. "They talk about the dollars needed for the expenditures per student to cover bigger needs. That just a superficial argument for consolidation. Every child is entitled to an education, not just an urban child."

ARTHUR FREDERICK BLACKBURN Feb. 17, 1990

Arthur Frederick Blackburn, 91, died early Saturday morning in Golden Plains Care Center. Funeral services will be at 2:30 p.m. Monday in Rix Chapel with burial in Restlawn Cemetery.

Born April 26, 1898 in Memphis, Tenn., Mr. Blackburn had been a resident of Hereford for 40 years after moving here from South Texas. He was a retired farmer and a member of Avenue Baptist Church on Aug. 26, 1933 in Madrid, Okla.

Survivors include his wife, Roberta; one daughter, Linda Maeder, and one son, Jerry Don, both of Amarillo; one brother, Floyd of Denison; three sisters, Thelma Speck of Sherman, Opal Bowen of Madrid, Ok., and Edna McKay of Wichita Falls; and 10 grandchildren. He was preceded in death by a son, Arthur F. Blackburn Jr., in 1959.

NEW YORK (AP) - Former First lady Nancy Reagan has been elected to the board of Revlon Group Inc.

Revlon Chairman Ronald Perleman said in a statement Thursday that Mrs. Reagan had gained insight during her husband's tenure as president and displayed leadership in fighting drug abuse that "will add an important additional perspective to the Revlon board of directors."

Group to give out rewards

The board of directors of Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers voted Friday to pay two rewards in connection with the arrests and indictments of several persons alleged to have committed crimes in recent weeks.

Crimestoppers will pay rewards for information about a burglary in February and a cocaine arrest in January. Those incidents were not featured as "crimes of the week" but information was received over the Clue Line that led to the arrests and indictments of persons charged with crimes.

The board voted to pay a $200 reward to a person who gave the Clue Line information about three men who were arrested and indicted for burglary of a motor vehicle, taking a variety of equipment.

In the cocaine arrest, information led to the arrest and indictment of a man for possession of two grams of cocaine. The informant was paid $100 for that information.

The board is making plans for a fund-raising event in the near future.

Mauro to face GOP challenger in land race

AUSTIN (AP) - Garry Mauro once said he doesn't want to retire as land commissioner - but he's going to fight to keep the job he calls the best in Texas for at least four more years.

Although no Democrat is opposing Mauro's shot at a third term, he's not getting a free ride to re-election. Houston businessman Wes Gilbreath, one of three Republicans vying in the March 13 primary election, has pledged to use his considerable resources against the incumbent.

Gilbreath, best known for spending about $1 million in the 1988 U.S. Senate GOP primary, said he'll spend up to $2 million if that's what it takes to beat Mauro. This time, he said, he hopes most of the money won't come from his own pocket.

The other Republican candidates aren't talking in millions.

Flint teacher Grady Yarbrough of Flint, who ran unsuccessfully for land commissioner in 1986, and semi-retired petroleum geologist and real estate broker William John of Dallas have never held elective office. Both say they're campaigning on shoestring budgets.

Yarbrough, 53, said his background in education and experience in real estate qualify him for the job.

The land commissioner oversees the leasing of the state's 22 million mineral acres, which include oil and gas leases that provide public school funding.

The commissioner also administers programs that loan money to veterans to buy land and houses and has taken on such environmental issues as clean beaches.

Yarbrough said he believes he could streamline the General Land Office and find additional state revenues that could be used for education.

John, 66, is raising no funds. "If they (supporters) want to contribute, I'd rather they would contribute to the needy," he said. John said he'd like to give veterans more information about loan programs and also is interested in the environment and conservation.

Although Gilbreath never has held elective office either, he garnered 37 percent of the GOP primary vote in 1988's four-way Senate race, forcing a runoff. U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen ultimately kept the seat.

Gilbreath, 61, said that with a background in oil and gas investment and real estate, he could well administer the state's land and make money for its schools.

Gilbreath has questioned Mauro's ethics, passed out newspaper articles probing land deals by the General Land Office and noted that the FBI subpoenaed records on thousands of loans made by the Veterans Land Board as part of an investigation into the office.

Mauro, 41, said the questions raised by Gilbreath have been "fairly well put to rest" and added that FBI officials now "know we have the best veterans programs in the country."

"Everyone who has taken a look has said there is no basis for those questions," Mauro said. "They (the questions) were all politically motivated, as far as I can tell."

From his first term, which began in 1982, Mauro has audited oil and gas leases to make sure the state is getting its fair share of royalties. He said allegations against him have been prompted in part by his aggressiveness: "You don't bring the number of large lawsuits I did against large royalty owners and not make some enemies."

Although he has budgeted about $1.5 million for his re-election bid, Mauro said he's concerned about Gilbreath's spending power.

"I'm very concerned about anybody trying to buy an election,"

Mauro said, but he added, "I'm going to outwork him. I'm going to out-travel him."

Gilbreath denied he's trying to buy the election but suggested Mauro should be worried, saying, "We're committed to making a change in the General Land Office."

Mauro in the past has spoken of running for U.S. Senate, governor and attorney general, and said he doesn't want to keep his current job for the rest of his working life. But right now, he said, he can't think of a better post.

IS IT REALLY ARTHRITIS?

If you have an arthritic-like condition and it's not getting any better, maybe you should find out if it really is arthritis.

The word "arthritis" comes from the Greek "arthron", meaning joint, and "itis", which stands for inflammation. In other words, arthritis refers to inflammation of the joint. Maybe you've been taking medication for joint pains and wonder why you're not getting relief. Or maybe you're resigned to the fact that you'll be taking medication for the rest of your life.

But if an examination shows that the affected joints are not inflamed, the problem may be that the joint is not functioning normally. When you receive the treatment you need, the joint may return to its normal function, and the pain may be relieved or eliminated.

No one wants to suffer from the pain of arthritis. On the other hand, if examination shows you don't have arthritis, treatment is available to correct the condition and hopefully end the pain and discomfort.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says when you go back to it, your hometown is where folks wonder how you ever got as far as you did.

A young teacher substituted for a friend who was taking a week's honeymoon. A month later at a party, someone started to introduce the groom to her.

An atheist is a person with no invisible means of support.--Dr. Robert Anthony

A reader sent us a note requesting we run our "snake story" again sometime, since she lost her copy. She also sent us a "cat story" which appeared in The Abilene Reporter. The story was said to be a report of a true incident:

Two teachers in a town near San Antonio decided to spend Saturday shopping at a big mall. As they walked out of the house, they saw a dead cat on the lawn. They didn't want to leave it there all day so, using a stick and a rake, they got the cat wrapped in a newspaper and into a shopping bag.

The girls put the shopping bag in the trunk of the car, deciding they would drop it in a roadside litter barrel. It was a beautiful day and the carefree teachers talked as they drove along the road, forgetting the cat.

At noon they returned with their packages to the parked car, then drove to a favorite eating place. They didn't want to leave the packages in sight to tempt a thief, so they opened the car trunk to stow the things away. Then they remembered the cat.

The girls took the shopping bag which held the cat and put it on the front seat so as not to forget it again. They got their food in the fast-food place and found a table by the front window, where they could see their car.

In a few minutes they noticed a woman wander by their car, eyeing it as she passed. The woman returned shortly thereafter, glanced around, then quickly opened the front door and grabbed the shopping bag.

The teachers broke out in laughter at the happening and congratulated themselves. That took care of the cat and what a surprise awaited the thief!

The teachers resumed lunch and then stopped in amazement when they spied the thief, purse and shopping bag hanging on her arm, walking through the restaurant self-service line. She loaded her tray, looked around for a seat, and found one near the two women.

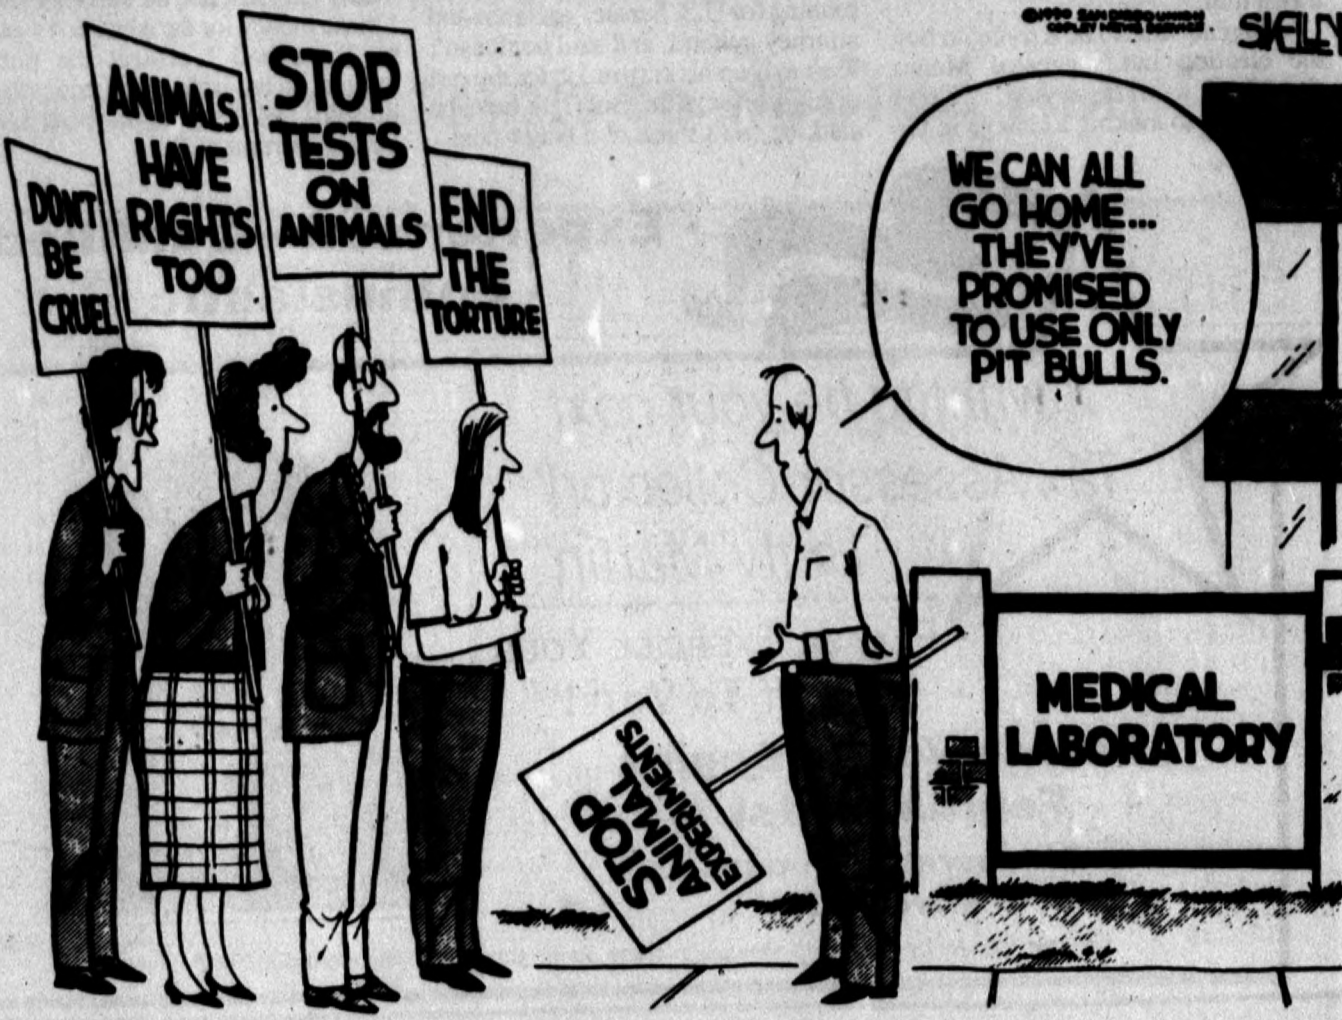

The woman seated herself, set her food off the tray, sugared and stirred her tea. As she did, she kept glancing at the shopping bag by her chair. Finally, curiosity won. She had to know what was in that heavy, newly-acquired sack.

She opened the bag, pulled the paper aside, and looked. She let out one loud scream and fainted dead away onto the floor.

There was great excitement in the restaurant. The cashier called an ambulance. Some customers gathered around the woman; others asked asked folks to stand back and give her air. The teachers sat mute.

The ambulance arrived. Gently the attendants put the woman on a stretcher, carefully placing her purse and shopping bag beside her. As the ambulance bore off to a hospital, everyone was concerned, except two teachers who drew strange looks because they seemed to be choking on laughter.

They could imagine the scene at the emergency room, but they were rid of the cat!

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

An AP News Analysis

Spending the 'peace dividend'

By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent WASHINGTON (AP) - There's one certainty about the peace dividend: everybody wants a piece of it.

And that includes some politicians who aren't enthusiastic about declaring much of a dividend yet.

The government hasn't yet figured out how much it will be, and how or when it will be produced. There will be defense spending cuts, targets and timing yet to be determined.

The peace dividend is a slogan-size name for an urgent new installment in the long debate over defense spending and national priorities, now transformed by the ending Cold War, the transformation of the communist bloc and the apparent easing of the Soviet threat.

With Congress in recess this week, that's one of the issues campaigning members are taking up with their constituents. The peace dividend debate already is unfolding in congressional committees, where the chairman of one House panel showed defense chiefs an ax and said it was symbolic of the mood at the Capitol.

While President Bush is trying to avoid runaway expectations of a sharp, swift cut in defense expenditures because of the revolutionary changes in eastern Europe and Moscow, the administration has its own plans for the potential dividend, seeing the potential savings as a guarantee that he can stand permanently on his promise of no new taxes.

A conservative think tank, skeptical about the whole business, says that if there really is a peace dividend, it should be used to cut taxes. Otherwise, according to the Heritage Foundation, the savings are likely to be used in "a congressional spending spree..."

"Dividends normally are paid to investors, not kept by the corporation," the foundation said.

The Bush defense budget is under attack in Congress, where some Democrats argue that it looks like a Cold War leftover. The budget seeks a $5.3 billion increase in Pentagon spending; adjusted for inflation that means a reduction of about 2 percent in real growth.

Administration critics say the threat is receding a lot faster than that. Bush said this week that his budget makes good sense.

"I think the American people want a cautious approach to this," he said. "I don't think any of us think we can see with clairvoyance as to what's going to happen the day after tomorrow..."

"Some of the Democrats are jumping all over us," he told a news conference. "But that's all right, that just goes with the system."

But there also is skepticism among some members of Congress, in both parties, who tend toward the cautious approach Bush advocates.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, says he's looking for an administration defense blueprint that takes into account the changing world balance and the prospects for arms control. He said he doubts Congress will go ahead with costly weapons systems like the stealth bomber program, the Star Wars space defense system and the mobile MX missile unless the administration presents a blueprint that fits its proposals into arms control prospects in the post Cold War world.

While those are the big ticket weapons, the administration maintains that sharp, immediate cost cuts could come only in conventional force spending, an argument Pentagon critics dispute.

Nor does the current budget anticipate significant savings this year through the withdrawal of U.S. forces from Europe. Bush proposes the withdrawal of 80,000 troops from Europe under an East-West agreement now in negotiation.

The president said those savings, too, will come gradually, over the years. He said he doesn't want soldiers who seek reenlistment to be dumped by the arms services. "I would hope that attrition can take care of the cuts that inevitably will be coming," Bush said.

He also said there is no reason to change the NATO weapons plan that includes short-range nuclear missiles, battlefield weapons that would be targeted on East Germany and other Warsaw Pact states. The West Germans resisted modernizing those U.S. missiles even before the undoing of the old communist regimes.

Bush said that at this point, he sees nothing to change the NATO compromise that left the modernization question open until 1992.

For all of that, and despite the fact that economists say any peace dividend will be far smaller than those after Vietnam and Korea, the search for a dividend is on.

Budget Director Richard G. Darman called it the "spend the peace dividend game" in which the politician-players conjure up vast sums in supposed savings to be appropriated for their pet projects.

"Thus Washington entertains the notion of spending fifty times a dividend that has not yet definitively materialized--a true Wonderland phenomenon," Darman said in his introduction to the budget.

Then again, anyone who had forecast the remodeling of eastern Europe a year ago would have been accused of wonderland dreaming, too.

Hospital engineer cited

Hospital engineers work behind the scenes to contribute to health care safety by maintaining and operating health care institutions in a highly efficient manner, according to Gov. Bill Clements, who has proclaimed the week of Feb. 19-24 as "Hospital Engineering Week" in Texas.

In the proclamation, Gov. Clements points out that "hospital engineers encourage progressive engineering knowledge through continuing education, and take great pride in maintaining and operating health care facilities with the most advanced methods to protect the health, safety and security of patients within these institutions."

The proclamation concludes "it is appropriate that Texans pay tribute to these dedicated individuals for their efforts and significant contributions to our state."

In Hereford, we pay special recognition to J.W. "Jap" Dickerson, longtime engineer at Deaf Smith General Hospital, and his staff.

BY JAMES ROBERTS Andrews County News

On Dec. 16, 1773, the cargo of the East India Company's tea ship was thrown overboard by angry colonists and the ship burned. History calls it the "Boston Tea Party" and the fuss was over taxation by Britain without representation.

The action led to the first continental Congress the next year and eventually led to the inclusion in the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights of the idea that representation is due every taxpayer. Representation means that citizens are represented at all governing bodies by their duly elected representatives. We have representatives and senators in both Austin and Washington, D.C., and we have representation at the local level by city commissioners, school and hospital trustees, and county commissioners.

Judges are different. They represent the law, not people. Or at least they did until federal judges became democracy's equivalent to dictators. Most people in this country used to have strong feelings regarding the rights of states, and the federals should not infringe on the rights of the people in those states.

Now, federal judges have nullified the effect of the Boston Tea Party. Now we have rule without representation, and expenses without representation.

It was a federal judge who told Texans they had to spend billions of dollars to build more prisons. It was a federal judge who told Texans that they had to cough up millions more for a new way of handling the handicapped and mental patients. It was a federal judge who ordered a new way of electing state district judges in nine cities in Texas despite the fact that no city or county had budgeted funds for a separate election.

Federal judges are named to their posts for life--and citizens have no part in the selection process. We admired the intestinal fortitude displayed recently when Harris County commissioners notified the Secretary of State that the county would refuse to fund the controversial May 5th election of state district judges as ordered by U.S. District Judge Lucious Bunton of Midland.

The commissioners said they didn't care what a federal judge had ordered, they didn't have the $1.5 million needed to fund the special election. Federal judges in several other states have ordered the expenditures of vast sums of money to correct alleged social or imagined racial inequities--with no representation by citizen taxpayers.

Now a federal judge has ordered that the Texas appeals court be elected on a district-wide basis. Mercifully, the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals has blocked Judge Bunton's election order for the time being and the U.S. Supreme Court has overruled that federal judge who would have fined a city in Vermont millions for not carrying out his orders.

Federal judges ought to go back to representing the law and not specific groups of constituents or else give the people the chance to vote "His Supreme Being" in or out of office. We thought the matter was settled with Boston Tea Party.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

If the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage would be a tourist attraction for Kerrville, it surely is a tourist attraction for Hereford. We have already received a great deal of publicity from having the museum here.

While we are busy trying to attract new businesses and industry to Hereford, let us not forget the things we have here. We should support the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and let the Board of Directors know that we want the museum to remain in Hereford.

Margaret Schroeter

Dear Editor:

In response to a request of the president of the high school Speech Class, referred to as the Hereford High Orators, I judged their debates on Saturday, Feb. 10.

The Orators, under the direction of director Lana Hall, had previously issued invitations to 22 schools within a radius of approximately 300 miles of Hereford and most of these schools were represented. This brought a great many people to Hereford from as far away as Vernon and Morton, and points north to the Oklahoma line.

The Hereford speech class could not participate as they were the hosts. This was one of the best organized activities that I have seen in a long time. It was well attended and there was great interest in all of the schools represented in the Panhandle area.

The thing that impressed me so much was the caliber of the young people in our high school conducting this well-arranged activity. There were eight to ten members of the speech class present taking care of all the arrangements--location of the rooms and the directing of the activities.

I personally met all of these members of the speech class. The young man who met me was the president of the Senior Class and he, as well as each of the other participants were members of numerous honorary academic societies and organizations of the school. They are all outstanding, capable, qualified and interested in seeing that everything was properly carried out and that all visiting schools were welcomed and taken care of in a proper and orderly manner.

The purpose of this letter is simply to compliment not only Ms. Hall, the speech teacher, but all the students of her department who took part in this activity. They were all courteous, competent, interested, energetic, knowledgeable and accommodating. It could not have been conducted better by any school at any place.

It made me real proud of the speech department of Hereford High School. The school was a very busy place all that day. The halls and the rooms were filled with people from all of the 22 invited schools. The activities moved fast all during the day. The time keepers and judges were all ushered to the proper rooms and all debates were begun and finished on time in accordance with the rules and regulations of the debate society.

I simply think that each and all of them should be recognized and that they should be appreciated by everyone interested in our Hereford High School, its teachers and students. I am glad for this opportunity to give this acclaim to them and to express my appreciation for what they have and are doing.

Yours sincerely, James W. Witherspoon

Dear Editor:

President Reagan led our nation back to flag-waving and pride in our country. Let us do the same with our city of Hereford.

The people have been so great to adopt a highway and work so diligently to keep the section clean which was assigned to them. Now, let us clean up our town. It's going to take all of us working together to do it. Why should someone else have to clean up after us?

We are taught from a small child where the trash in our house goes. Have we forgotten that each one is responsible for his own trash? When we drive our vehicles on the highway and throw trash out of the window, we can be fined $200. Maybe this should be enforced more in the city limits.

We are a throw-away society. Our grandmother had to wash baby diapers but we just throw them away, saving hours of time. Probably takes a minute to dispose of them properly. Grandfather's school only had a water fountain--no thought about where to put the soft drink or styrofoam containers.

Please dispose of your food and drink containers properly in the nearest trash receptacle, and carry a bag in your vehicle.

You may say it's someone else's job to clean up the school yard, parking lots, city parks, church yards, tennis courts, football stadium and city streets. Yes, we pay people to do this and appreciate them, but what about the wind that blows your trash onto your neighbor's yard? After a football game, we saw hundreds of cups scattered along the yards west of the stadium. Some people are getting tired of cleaning up after others.

Let us each do our part, each lighting our own candle, so to speak, picking up our own trash. We will see a difference. The Golden Rule still applies: Do unto others as you would have them do unto you. Let's get the pride back in our town!

SCANNER

radiologists in Hereford more often also gives doctors a better chance to learn new techniques.

Before the hospital got the CT scanner, patients needing a CT scan had to be sent to Amarillo for diagnosis. Now, doctors can pinpoint the problem without leaving Hereford.

A regular x-ray is one-dimensional, like a photograph. But a CT scan x-ray is like a three-dimensional photograph.

Deaf Smith General Hospital administrator Gary Moore compares it to a sliced onion. "It's like a cross section of an onion where you can see all the layers. Take a five millimeter section where you can also see the depth so if there is a variation in a ring, you can also see that."

Claudia Smith, the radiology technician who operates the CT scanner, compares a CT scan to a slice of bread. The CT scanner takes an x-ray of a small cross-section of the body. This is accomplished by rotating an x-ray tube around the entire body. A computer then interprets the image and projects that image onto a screen, a process taking about three minutes. But it takes even longer for the actual x-ray or CT scan to be transferred onto film. For example, it takes 30 minutes for a CT scan to be made of a section of the head and about an hour for a scan of the pelvis and abdomen. The actual x-ray taken by the CT machine comes out on film but is generated through electrical impulses from the computer.

If this all sounds complicated, that's because it is. The CT scanner is a highly complex piece of equipment. Like most highly complex equipment, it is expensive.

The machine at Deaf Smith General Hospital cost about $210,000. It's relatively inexpensive as CT machines go. Since it is rebuilt, it cost only about half of the $400,000 for a new CT machine. Maintenance costs run $2,275 to $4,500 a month for maintenance contracts. Then there's the cost of the x-ray tube: $12,000 to $14,000 for a tube that should last about a year. The high electrical current that goes through the tubes burns them out quickly.

Can all of this cost be justified? What is the value of having a more accurate diagnosis? Or having faster treatment? These are factors which must be weighed against the cost of the CT scanner.

Take a stroke, for example. In the past, the hospital had to take a patient, by ambulance, to Amarillo to use a CT scanner to diagnose the problem. A hospital would charge DSGH about $900 for CT scan, the ambulance would be tied up and the diagnosis would take longer. Add to this the fact that moving stroke victims can damage them and it's easy to see how the CT scanner has no substitute.

In the few months that the hospital has had the CT scanner, it has been used to diagnose brain tumors and strokes. Since a CT scan can show virtually everything in the body, from skin to internal organs to bone, its uses are numerous.

A procedure called needle localization uses the CT scanner. First, the body is scanned to pinpoint the exact location of a tumor. Next, a needle or thin wire is put in the tumor itself. Then the needle is used to locate the tumor exactly and get a biopsy or find the tumor and remove it without exploratory surgery. Needle localization is quicker and more precise than using a fluoroscope, which can find the tumor but only uses one plane.

"Rosebud" is a word that Claudia Smith dreads. It means that the CT scan machine has decided to erase its memory banks due to some problem. Breakdowns are frequent because the sensitive computer equipment used can be thrown off by something as simple as a fluctuation in electrical current. In order to guard against damage to the computer, the computer will shut itself down.

In spite of its shortcomings, the CT scanner at Deaf Smith General Hospital benefits patients. Its cost and problems with breakdowns are intimidating, until one considers the alternative.

Denmark is said to have used the same national flag—a white cross on a red background—for more than 750 years.

MATTOX

But many say the cloud of that trial hurt Mattox's 1986 re-election campaign when he beat an underfunded Republican newcomer to state politics, San Antonio Judge Roy Barrera Jr., by 51.6 percent to 47.2 percent.

And despite his unrelenting campaign for governor, polls show Mattox running in last place behind Democratic rivals, state Treasurer Ann Richards and former Gov. Mark White.

"The polls are wrong," Mattox says flatly.

He has captured political endorsements from the Combined Law Enforcement Associations of Texas, the Texas Peace Officers Association and Sierra Club.

He points to his office's record on hiring minorities.

He has received majority support from the Mexican American Democrats, and the Texas AFL-CIO, although he fell short of receiving the two-thirds backing needed for an official endorsement from those groups.

Mattox also has more campaign cash-on-hand than any of his Democratic rivals, approximately $3 million, according to his Jan. 16 finance report.

And he is a tireless campaigner. At the Texas AFL-CIO convention, Mattox worked the hall nearly all day. Sitting briefly, Mattox complained about a news article that said he made a baby cry while he tried to lobby for support during an earlier convention.

At that moment a woman carrying a baby walked by, and Mattox jokingly shaded his eyes, saying, "Oh no. Get that baby away from me."

Mattox often complains of mistreatment from the media. "I'm running against editorial boards and columnists," he said. He said other politicians are able to grab headlines because of his controversial reputation.

"Republicans know they can generate publicity by attacking Mattox because they have no identity of their own," he said.

In the governor's race, Mattox has made education and the operation of state government in general his major issues. He said Texas leaders have too often managed government under the "Pearl Harbor theory," meaning nothing gets done until the "bombs stop falling."

He is pushing for creation of a state lottery to help fund public schools. The Texas Supreme Court has declared the current school finance system unconstitutional because it allows disparities in funding between rich and poor schools.

Despite his populist political philosophy, Mattox receives a high negative ratings in polls.

An outspoken pro-choice advocate, Mattox received a chilly reception at a pro-choice rally last November. He blames that on Ms. Richards, accusing her of running a sexist campaign.

"There are a great number of people in this race that want to see a woman governor of Texas regardless of whether that woman is the best qualified candidate," Mattox said.

"And when Ann Richards makes speeches to those audiences, she makes very sexist speeches attempting to appeal to women to vote for her because she is a woman," he said.

"I have had a 20-year record of working on issues important to women," such as the right to an abortion, the Equal Rights Amendment, enforcing child support, and assisting rape crisis and battered women's centers, he said.

But Mattox says his record shows he has been at the forefront of every important issue facing state government. When he campaigns, he asks that voters simply compare his record against his opponents.

Herd ends year with win

The Hereford Whitefaces erased a few bad memories of the 1989-90 basketball season Friday when they wrapped up the schedule with a 65-50 victory over the Borger Bulldogs at Whiteface Gymnasium.

With the win the Herd avenged an earlier 55-54 loss to the Bulldogs and completed a sweep three games. The Herd sophomores opened the evening with a 59-48 victory and the junior varsity followed with a 65-38 romp.

"This was sweet," Herd coach Jimmy Thomas said of the win. "I'm glad we were able to end the season with something like this."

Hereford used an early 10-0 run to go ahead 12-2 before the Bulldogs cut the margin to six points midway through the opening period. The Herd got the lead back to 10 points at 20-10 by the end of the quarter behind six points from Leo Brown.

Darrin Bridges canned a three-pointer for Borger to open the second quarter, but the Herd cut loose with a 16-4 burst over the next five minutes sparked by Russell Backus' six points, taking its largest lead of the game at 36-17.

Hereford went with the four-corner offense for much of the period and used it almost exclusively in the second half. Thomas said the reason for spreading things out was not so much to control the tempo as to utilize his team's strengths.

"They have great post men," he said. "They're big and they jump really well and that's their game."

"But we felt they weren't that good a ball-handling team and our chance to beat them was to use the press on them and do what we do best on offense. And that's Backus to the hole and dishing off."

Borger managed four free throws in the final two minutes to close the gap to 36-21 at the half.

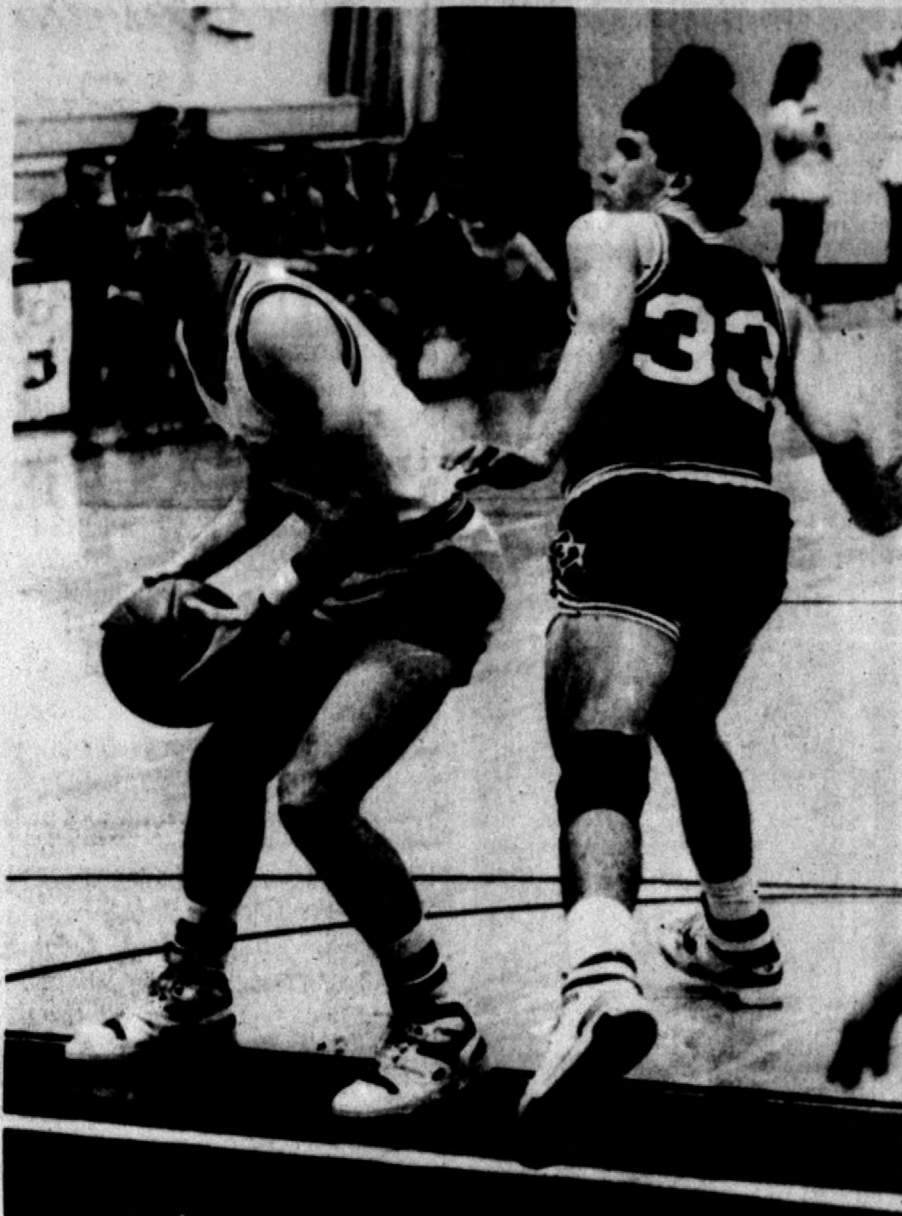

The Whitefaces looked like they were ready to run away and hide, but the Bulldogs sniffed them out in the third period.

Five points by Jeff Isom and four from Bubba Newman brought Borger to within six at 36-30 while the Herd went scoreless for more than four minutes.

Daniel Garcia finally got Hereford on the board in the period before Newman added two more buckets to cut the margin to four.

That was as close as the 'Dogs would get, however, as Garcia hit for five points to put the Herd up 45-38 entering the final quarter.

Both teams scored 10 points from the field in the last eight minutes, but the Herd took over at the free-throw line, hitting 10 of 17 attempts while Borger was two-of-four. Backus canned seven of nine from the line in the period and added six more points from the field, including the final basket of the season on a breakaway that fell through at the buzzer.

Backus finished with 21 points to top the Herd with Garcia garnering 15 and Brown 10. Jason Walterscheid added eight, Chuck Lemons five, Matt Bromlow four and Chad Schroeder two.

Newman finished with 21 to lead Borger while Isom added 11.

The win raised the Herd's record to 8-18 on the season and 4-12 in District 1-4A.

Herd JV 65, Borger 38

Borger actually had the game tied early at 7-7, but Hereford scored the next 10 points to take command. Tim Burse converted a three-point play with 17 seconds left in the first quarter to make the score 17-10.

The Herd ended the suspense by scoring the first eight points in the second quarter for a 25-10 lead. Anthony Tijerina started the run with three baskets in 18 seconds.

The Bulldogs got a bucket from Troy Thomas and a three-pointer from Jeff McNellis to close to 25-15, but that was their entire offense in the period.

Hereford finished with an 8-0 run to lead 33-15 at the intermission.

The Herd scored six straight points to start the third period. Borger could produce only that many in the entire period and Hereford sandwiched runs of 7-0 and 9-0 around Bulldog scores for a 55-21 advantage.

Borger managed to outscore the Herd bench 10-0 over the first four minutes of the final period, but 24 points was as close as they could get.

Hereford finished with three players in double figures, led by Tijerina with 15 while Blake Buckley had 13 and Brady Wilson 10. Miguel Casas added nine, Richard Sanderson eight, Ben Weatherly six and Jerry Hardisty and Chris Blair two each.

Burse had 12 to pace Borger. Herd sophs 59, Borger 48

Hereford overcame an early 6-2 deficit to take a 9-8 behind five points from Mark Kreighshauer. John McBride then scored six to spark a 10-2 run to close out the first quarter with a 19-10 lead.

The Herd upped the spread to 25-12 in the first two minutes of the second period before Borger scored six straight to pull within seven.

Tempie Abney converted a one-and-one opportunity to start the Herd on a 9-4 run to finish the half with a 34-22 edge.

Hereford held at least an 11-point bulge throughout the third quarter and led by as much as 16 at 48-32.

Borger was finally able to crack the 10-point barrier in the last three minutes of the game and were as close as 52-46 before the Herd ended the game with a 7-2 run.

Sean Smith led the Herd with 16 points and was joined in double figures by Kreighshauer with 13 and Abney with 10. McBride finished with six while Clay Wallace and Kevin Kelso had four each and Derek Mason, Keith Simmacher and Michael Kubacak added two apiece.

Borger placed three scorers in double figures, led by Mark Chauveaux with 14 while Lee Kistler had 13 and Barry Thrutchley 10.

Herd spikers earn all-state mention

Libby Kosub and Cande Robbins of the Hereford Lady Whiteface volleyball team have been named to the Texas Girls Coaches Association Class 4A All-State team, Coach Brenda Reeh announced.

The two seniors were the only players from District 1-4A selected to the 12-member team.

Robbins was also extended an invitation to play for the West team in the TGCA Volleyball All-Star Game to be held in July in Arlington.

"We are so proud to be represented throughout the state by these kids," Reeh said. "It's such an honor to be chosen by a vote of the Texas coaches who have observed these young ladies during the season."

Reeh added that having multiple selections is significant.

"It's rare to have one all-state player during a season," she said, "much less two and an all-star. This honor is certainly a tribute to the hard work and dedication these girls have put into volleyball as well as the entire athletic program in Hereford."

The pair combined to set 12 single-season school records during their careers.

Robbins posted the fewest missed serves (9) and the fewest missed attacks (18) as well as setting marks for serving percentage (.951), successful attacks (168) and total attacks (313) in 1989. She also scored the highest attack percentage (.913) as a junior.

Kosub set marks for kills (128), digs (131) and had three records related to service receptions: total (183), percentage (.831) and fewest misplays (13). All were produced during the 1989 season.

Kosub and Robbins were also named to the TGCA Academic All-State team, where they were joined by teammates Poppy Richardson, Nikki Self and Jill West.

Reeh said selections to the academic squad were made from senior starters who maintained and overall grade average of 90 or more.

West led the Herd spikers in the classroom with an overall average of 103 to rank fifth in her class. Richardson holds a 102 average to rank seventh followed by Self (96.5

average to rank 26th), Kosub (95.25, 31st) and Robbins (94.2, 37th).

"We've been fortunate to have a number of kids excel in the classroom the past couple of seasons," Reeh said. "The discipline these young ladies practice in the classroom certainly carries over to the court. Their success in volleyball is attributed as much to their mental ability as their physical ability."

Spikers honored

Five members of the Hereford Lady Whiteface volleyball team received all-state honors this week. Libby Kosub, front left, and Cande Robbins, back right, were named to the Texas Girls Coaches Association Class 4A All-State team. The pair was also selected to the Academic All-State squads as were teammates Nikki Self, front center, Jill West, back left, and Poppy Richardson, back center. Also shown is Shantel Cornelius.

HBC returns to local scene

Amateur boxing returns to Hereford for the first time in nearly seven years when the Hereford Boxing Club hosts West Texas Golden Gloves for 12 bouts at 3 p.m. today (Sunday) at the Little Bull Barn.

Deaf Smith County Juvenile Probation Officer Lou Serrano, who helped organize the club, said the group's goal was to provide an activity for area youths as well as to reestablish the sport locally.

"They used to have a boxing club back in '82 and '83 and they did real good," he said. "And it's a good program to get the kids off the street, so I helped them get organized."

"We're working real close with the Lubbock Boxing Club. The juvenile officer down there is doing that one because it's been such a success. Even Lubbock is a community where you hear 'There's nothing for the kids to do.'"

"You hear that a lot here in Hereford too," he added. "A lot of these kids, if they weren't in here working out, would be home watching TV or out on the streets messing around."

Serrano said the event will serve as a qualifier for the Texas Golden Gloves state tournament. Fighters qualifying here will advance to the regional tournament scheduled for next weekend at Wichita Falls, where they will compete for trips to the state tournament to be held in June in Fort Worth.

Weigh-in for the fighters will be at noon with coaches and tournament officials assigning matches in each of the 12 weight classes shortly thereafter.

Serrano said the pairings will be based on each boxer's experience as well as weight.

"We're not going to put a kid with no experience into the ring with a kid that's had 12 fights," he said. "We're going to make sure each fight is competitive."

He added that fighters will be divided into three age groups to help provide balanced matches.

"There will be the Open Class for the experienced fighters," he said. "Then we'll have the Novice Class for 16-year-olds to 21-year-olds. Those are fighters that have no experience."

"And then we have the Junior Olympic division for fighters 15 and under. We have about 20 kids that will be competing for the Junior Olympic positions to go to Fort Worth."

"A lot of people don't know about it, but really there are a lot of good fighters here in Hereford," Serrano added.

Among the local fighters expected to have bouts in the Open Class are Javier Buentello at 112 pounds, Jaime Ruiz at 119, Juan Ruiz at 132, Fernando Valdez at 147, Frank Celaya at 165 and Gomer Garcia at 178.

In the Novice Class, Junior Orosco at 106 and Joey DeLeon at 112 are expected to fight while 80-pounders Benny Rocha and Thomas Suarez will enter the ring in the Junior Olympics Class.

Admission to the bouts is $3 with tickets available at the door.

Farm and Ranch

Ag income on upswing

WASHINGTON (AP) - A rise in farm income is helping financially pressed rural banks and other lenders recover from the tough 1980s, according to Agriculture Department analysts who forecast further gains this year.

"Barring major weather problems, farm sector adjustments in the last half of the 1980s indicate a more stable farm sector and agricultural credit situation in the early 1990s," the department's Economic Research Service said Wednesday.

But the agency also cautioned that loan delinquency rates will remain high by historical standards "because farm financial stress is still present, especially in certain areas adversely affected by weather."

Farmers appear ready to take on new debt for expansion after years of belt-tightening and paying off heavy debt loads that persisted through much of the 1980s.

"The large paydown in farm debt held by major farm lenders appears to be over, and debt is expected to grow $1 billion to $2 billion in 1990, or approximately 1 percent," the report said. "Borrowing for both real and non-real estate loans should expand in 1990, and creditworthy farmers should have ample access to operating credit."

As a result banks and other commercial lenders are once again focusing on competitive efforts to attract low-risk borrowers.

The economic recovery in agriculture was also reflected in a drop in agricultural bank failures last year to 24, the fewest since 1983, the report said.

U.S., Soviet crops under similar strain, says USDA

WASHINGTON (AP) - Global crop watchers say there are some disturbing similarities in some of the major breadbasket areas of the United States and Soviet Union.

The government's Joint Agricultural Weather Facility said Tuesday that dry soil conditions and lack of snow cover in parts of the Great Plains continue to threaten the winter wheat crop.

The same goes for parts of the Soviet winter wheat area.

"Portions of the southern Great Plains received some moisture but more was needed," the report said. "Most of the central and northern Great Plains remained dry, but above normal temperatures helped to maintain crop condition."

In its international section, the report said January brought above normal precipitation in the Baltic states, Belorussia, Central Region, Volga Vyatsk, western Black Soils Region, the eastern Ukraine and parts of the North Caucasus.

"In contrast, there was below normal precipitation in the western and southern Ukraine, the eastern Black Soils region and the Volga," the report said. "Unusually mild weather covered the entire region during most of January."

Although the warm weather "provided generally favorable conditions for winter grain," it left crop areas over a wide expanse of the Soviet Union "without a protective snow cover and caused winter grains to lose hardiness, making them more susceptible to potential winterkill."

In assessing the U.S. situation, the report noted "lack of snow cover has left the (winter wheat) crop vulnerable to freeze damage."

The facility is operated by the departments of agriculture and commerce. The weekly reports cover soil and crop conditions but do not project yields.

Looking at some other crops, the report said the sugarcane harvest continued in Florida, but "unseasonably hot, dry weather forced citrus producers to continue irrigating."

The warm weather also continued over the major Florida vegetable areas where spring plantings were under way.

In Georgia, tobacco plant beds were reported in "good to excellent" condition and that North Carolina farmers continued to seed their beds.

"Rain and wet field conditions again limited field work in the Delta," the report said. "Land preparation for the 1990 cotton crop continued in Arizona and California."

Livestock pastures were helped by rain and mild temperatures in the Delta and Southeast, the report said.

"In the Great Plains and Corn Belt, mild temperatures and the lack of snow cover reduced the amount of supplemental feeding necessary (for livestock)," the report said. "Mild weather provided ideal conditions for calving, which was under way in many areas."

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Farmers Union says drought aid was the major agricultural accomplishment of Congress in 1989.

Michael V. Dunn, the NFU's chief lobbyist on Capitol Hill, said the $900 million disaster aid bill for farm losses due to last year's drought was hindered by a dispute about whether the bill should be limited to winter wheat losses or expanded to include general crop losses.

"At the end, the comprehensive approach favored by NFU prevailed," Dunn said in a review of 1989 legislation.

But there were a number of setbacks, including the failure of Congress to pass rural development legislation.

"It was the Senate which passed a good rural development bill, but the House which failed to get the measure out of committee," he said.

Brumley wins top farm award

Mike Brumley of Hereford was named the 1989 Texas State Soil Moisture Manager Award Winner in a contest sponsored by DuPont and the National Association of Conservation Districts.

Brumley was one of eight dryland cereal growers from across the nation honored at the NACD's annual convention in San Diego, Calif.

Brumley farms 2,300 acres of dryland and irrigated crops and raises cattle in Deaf Smith County.

His principal crops include dryland wheat, milo and hay, and irrigated milo and corn.

His soil moisture management practices include no-till and minimum-till planting, crop residue management, chemical weed control, contour farming and windbreaks.

Brumley has planted a no-till milo demonstration plot for the Extension Service and cooperates with the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District.

"Moisture is the greatest limiting factor in crop production," Brumley said. "Variables such as seed quality and variety, fertilizer and insect control are all important but the ability to retain and conserve moisture in the soil is what will make a crop. An absolute necessity in dryland production, soil moisture management also increases the cost-effectiveness of irrigated crops."

Brumley and the others were selected from nominations submitted by conservation districts in their states. Judging was based on the effective use of crop residue and moisture conserving tillage methods; crop rotation management; and weed control. Their use of soil moisture measurements to guide crop production practices and involvement in conservation activities were also considered.

A key part in the selections was whether the practices could be easily used by other farmers in other areas of the state and nation.

County Farm Bureau members recognized by proclamation

The week of Feb. 11-17 was proclaimed "Farm Bureau Week" in Deaf Smith County by Judge Tom Simons. The proclamation recognized the independent organization of farm and ranch families for uniting to analyze their problems and acting together to solve those problems.

Bud Thomas is president of the Farm Bureau in Deaf Smith County, with Tom Betzen serving as secretary-treasurer and Ernest Flood as membership chairman. Farm Bureau is totally controlled by its members through majority decision and is financed by voluntary dues.

The Texas Farm Bureau has approximately 326,000 member families in 216 organized counties. It is affiliated with the American Farm Bureau Federation which has a membership of about 30 million member families in more than 2,800 counties.

Policies that guide Farm Bureau originate at the grassroots level with each producer member given an opportunity to participate. They are adopted after discussion and exchange of ideas at county, state and national conventions each year.

The structure assures membership control. Members originate policies, and through their delegates, control state and national policy formulation, and election of officers and directors. Members get action on policy by expressing their desires to their elected political representatives. Legislative staffs in Austin and Washington, D.C. keep lawmakers informed on Farm Bureau's policy and call for membership action when necessary.

According to Texas FB officials, here are some of the organization's major accomplishments:

- Exemption for livestock, poultry and farm machinery from ad valorem taxation.
- Limitation on ad valorem taxes on agricultural land.
- A farm-to-market road system in Texas that is best in the nation.
- Exemptions from state sales tax for machinery, feed seed and fertilizer.
- Refunds of both state and federal taxes on farm-used gasoline.
- Reform of inheritance and gift tax laws.
- Better animal health program to help reduce losses from brucellosis, hog cholera, and screwworms.

- Improved feed, seed, fertilizer and insecticide laws.
- Price support program designed to assist in orderly marketing of crops.

- State and federal funds for agricultural research and education.
- Alleviation of some burdensome regulations

Salute to Farm Bureau

"Farm Bureau Week" was observed in Deaf Smith County this week by proclamation of County Judge Tom Simons. Observing the proclamation signing were Bud Thomas, local Farm Bureau president; Tom Betzen, secretary-treasurer, and Ernest Flood, membership chairman.

Ag officials report good, bad news on price of fertilizers

WASHINGTON (AP) - Fertilizer costs are rising but probably won't be as high as they were a year ago when farmers take to the fields this spring, according to an Agriculture Department report.

A preliminary report released Thursday by the department's Economic Research Service said fertilizer prices may be up 4 percent from last fall. But despite the increase, spring prices may be down about 4 percent from year-earlier levels.

"Planted areas of corn and wheat, the major fertilizer-using crops, will probably increase by 1 percent to 5 percent," the report said. "Decreases in planted acreage are anticipated for soybeans."

Analysts said supplies of nitrogen, phosphate and potash should be enough to meet 1990 requirements, although greater nitrogen imports will more than make up for lower domestic production.

"Nitrogen prices will likely show the greatest increase since last fall as domestic supplies tighten," the report said. "Phosphate supplies should be sufficient to meet demand at moderately higher prices than last fall, even with a slight reduction in domestic production."

Potash inventories are expected to be available at "stable to slightly lower" prices than last fall if price cuts initiated by Canadian producers continue, the report said.

On a global basis, the use of plant nutrients rose about 3 percent last year, and growth in fertilizer production, use and trade will probably continue in the 1990s, the report said.

Energy prices at the farm will probably "remain at or perhaps slightly above 1989 levels due to the anticipated steady price of imported crude oil," the report said. However, total expenditures by farmers may rise 4.6 percent this year to $9.09 billion because of increases in crop plantings and a "modest rise" in irrigation.

Farm machinery sales rose an estimated $570 million in 1989 to $6.6 billion, the report said. Lower farm debt and higher farmland values helped strengthen sales last year.

Sales of four-wheel-drive tractors were up 52 percent in 1989 and are forecast to rise another 45 percent this year.

Yeutter creates new post

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter has created a new senior-level job to coordinate the Agriculture Department's rural development efforts.

Yeutter said Wednesday that Walter E. Hill, a former Oklahoma state legislator will be assistant undersecretary for small community and rural development. Since last July, Hill has been special assistant to Roland Vautour, the undersecretary. The new job pays $83,600 a year.

Before coming to USDA, Hill served more than 10 years in the Oklahoma House of Representatives. Hill, 47, was born in Liberal, Kan. The Bush administration has been under pressure from many rural advocates, including many in Congress, to push harder on rural development.

Fairweather, Berend wed Saturday

Sandra Fairweather of Hereford became the bride of Michael Roddy Berend of Friona during a mid-afternoon wedding ceremony Saturday at St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

The marriage was officiated by Monsignor Orville Blum of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fairweather of Hereford and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Berend of Friona.

The altar was decorated with multiple candelabra, white votives, smilax and magnolia. The aisles were draped with illusions of tulle veil and greenery.

Gay Duggan served as matron of honor and the groom's cousin, Ricky Yosten, was best man.

Bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Dana Berend of Friona, Beth Frye of Canyon, Julie Jorde Lawson and Jana Green.

Groomsmen were the groom's uncle, Le Roy Hess of Southlake; the groom's cousin, Curtis Henscheid of Grapevine; the bride's brother, Stephen Fairweather; and the groom's cousin, Mike Broman of Conway, Ark.

Guests were escorted by the bride's brother, Alan Fairweather; the groom's cousins, Tony Yosten and Darrell Swirczynski of Grapevine; and Ryan Lawson.

Kerris Montgomery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mauri Montgomery, was flower girl and ring bearer was Eric Hess, son of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Hess of Southlake.

Wedding selections included "Trumpet Voluntary", "Trumpet Tune and Ayre", "Precious Love", "Here We Are Together", "How Great Thou Art" and "The Lord's Prayer." Featured vocalists, Rudy and Deana Ramirez, were accompanied on the organ by Carolyn Evers. Also, performing were a brass quintet consisting of Ismael Espino, Arturo Perez, Bonnie Israel, Nathan Brockman, and Elaine White, all of Friona, led by Jim Parker.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white formal-length bridal satin designer's gown. It was fashioned with a Sabrina neckline of beaded Venise lace and a molded satin bodice with an overlay of beaded lace appliques. The open deep V-shape back neckline was accented with four strands of pearls that draped across the back. The basque waistline came to points at the front and back and the long slender sleeves of satin and sheer English net were poufed at the shoulders.

The sleeves were enhanced by beaded appliques and came to bridal points at the cuffs.

The full satin skirt, adorned by diamond shape Venise lace appliques at the front, was fashioned with a large box bow with a bustle at the back of the waistline. The skirt swept into a flowing cathedral-length train.

In her hair, the bride wore a floral halo of white silk flowers accented with delicate pearl sprays. A wired ruffle pouf, decorated with attached hanging pearl loops, marked the back of the headpiece. The two tiered veil of bridal illusion was enhanced with beaded Venise appliques.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and lily-of-the-valley with alencon lace encircling it. Floating pearls were scattered throughout the arrangement.

The bride also placed in her shoe pennies depicting the bridal couple's birthdates.

During the ceremony, the bride presented her mother and the groom's mother with long stemmed roses.

Bridal attendants wore emerald iridescent taffeta tea-length gowns featuring full gathered skirts, basques waistlines, side bow trims, molded bodices with Sabrina necklines, deep V-shape back necklines, elbow length sleeves with point cuffs and poufs at the shoulders. They carried bouquets of nerine lilies, roses and Queen Anne's lace.

The flower girl wore a dress designed like the bridesmaids' ensembles and carried a matching miniature bouquet of flowers. She also wore an encircling headpiece of matching flowers.

Vicki Paetzold invited guests to register at the dinner dance held at the Hereford Country Club.

Serving cake were the bride's sister-in-law, Brenda Fairweather, and the bride's cousin, Jackie Hyland.

The four-tier wedding cake was decorated and topped by calla lilies and blossoms, all made of icing.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Ocho Rios, Jamaica. The bride's traveling costume included a hand-knit multi-colored sweater, a red skirt and black boots.

The couple will make their home in Friona.

The bride, a 1982 graduate of Hereford High School, is a 1985 graduate of West Texas State University. She is employed by Friona Independent School District.

The bridegroom, a 1983 graduate of Friona High School, is engaged in farming and is a partner with his father in a grain hauling business.

Out of town wedding guests included Alan Fairweather and Jackie Hyland of Liverpool, England and Jimmy and Ada Kavanagh of Warrington, England. Guests also represented Mitchell, S.D., Dallas, Conway, Ark. and Muenster, Texas.

COOKIE CUT-OUT

Dear Heloise: Saturday is usually cookie-baking day at my house. This is a time when my daughter and I spend time together while having fun baking.

After preparing the dough and cutting the cookies out, we like to sprinkle on some colored sparkles or sugar crystals. This usually made a mess, so to make it easier, I placed the cookie cutter around the cut-out cookies and then sprinkled on the decorations. This corralled the sprinkles and kept them from scattering all over the counter top. It made decorating and clean-up a snap. — Kelly G., Houston, Texas

Accent on Health

According to Dr. Robert Bernstein, Texas Commissioner of Health, it is little wonder that the public is confused about how to prevent heart disease and cancer through proper nutrition.

"The fact that more people than ever before seem to be trying to avoid heart disease and cancer by eating the right foods is very good news," he said. "But given the volume of claims that are being made about different foods, it has become increasingly harder for people to make intelligent choices."

He added, for example, that recent controversies about the benefits of oat bran compared to other sources of dietary fiber may have stretched a concerned public's patience almost to the breaking point. "The last thing we want to have happen is for the public to become disinterested in the whole subject of sound nutrition, just because they can't separate scientific evidence from advertising hype," he said.

The commissioner stressed that proper nutrition for most people does not have to be complicated. "Most people who know their own health conditions, take care to read nutrition information on products, and understand some basic rules can avoid the pitfalls of believing all TV commercials, and other half-truths meant to sell products."

He recommended seven, basic principles, all of which are agreed upon by the National Institutes of Health. Those guidelines are:

- Eat a variety of foods.
- Maintain a desirable weight.
- Avoid too much fat, saturated fat and cholesterol.
- Eat foods with adequate starch and fiber.
- Avoid too much sugar.
- Avoid too much sodium.
- If you drink alcoholic beverages, do so in moderation.

"Of course each of these rules needs more detail," Dr. Bernstein said. "But local health departments, county extension agents, hospitals, even school systems, either have nutritionists on their staffs or have free literature meant to clarify these nutrition basis."

He added that some people, such as diabetics, people with hypertension, alcoholics and others with special health needs should adhere to modified diets prescribed by their physicians.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Paul McCartney, on his first world tour since 1976, says he plans to keep performing live, though probably not with other surviving Beatles.

"I have no thoughts of ending touring at all," he said Thursday before the second of two shows with his band in Indianapolis.

Hamby, Carlson united in marriage

Michelle Lee Hamby and Shenon Carlson, both of Hereford, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon in the First Church of the Nazarene. Dr. Steve McElroy, pastor of First United Methodist Church, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of James M. Hamby of Route 3, Hereford, and Mary R. Hamby of 328 Ave. E. The bridegroom is the son of Les Carlson and Valerie Johnson, both of Hereford.

Placed at the altar was a brass arch decorated with peach, ivory and blue flowers, greenery and bows. Flanking the arch were brass spiral candelabra accented with the same colored flowers and bows.

Becky Haschke served as the bride's maid of honor and best man was Juan Perez.

Serving as bridesmaids were the bride's sister, Judy Hamby, Raina Kelly and Brandi Hutson.

Groomsmen were Billy Edds, Ken Hutson and Ray Rangel.

Flowers girls were Krisha Deann Blevins, daughter of Gary and Irene Blevins, and Michelle McIntosh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Crim Jr.

Frances Parker played principal wedding selections including "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" and "Wedding March."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a French styled antique satin designer's gown. A Renaissance of the 17th century Queen Anne period, the gown was enhanced with a Queen Anne neckline outlined with satin ruffles which stood high on her neck. The sleeves were French puffed and decorated with pearls and imported European hand-embroidered lace. The sleeves were tightened to a point and were highlighted with a runner of pearls.

The sweetheart bodice was encrusted with pearls and embroidered motifs and the fitted waist was crystal pleated and cinched to a point and gathered with pearls and starburst motifs. Behind the gown flowed a seven foot cathedral-length train scattered with satin scallops which were edged in re-embroidered European lace. Embroidered satin roses were delicately arranged on the train which was edged with European lace crocheted on the under side.

The Juliet cap headpiece was adorned with pearls, sequins and jewels as well as sprays of pearls and ivory in candlelight colors. The three-dimensional candlelight bridal illusion veil featured scalloped edges of aleon lace of flowers and rose petals and trailed down the back of the gown.

She carried a cascading bouquet of silk peach roses adorned by lace, seed pearls and blue and peach ribbon streamers.

Her jewelry consisted of a strand of pearls and matching pearl earrings.

Attendants were attired in flowing tea-length ivory and peach satin dresses fashioned with lace collars and hemlines. They carried bouquets of ivory, peach and blue roses accented with antique lace and ivory, peach and blue ribbon strands.

Jennifer Borman invited guests to register at the reception held in the church fellowship hall.

Tabitha Sanders served cake, and punch and coffee were poured by Susie Herrera.

The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and peach underlay. The cake, designed with three-heart-shaped tiers, was decorated with fresh peach and blue carnations and baby's breath and featured a flowing water fountain. The groom's cake, decorated with chocolate roses with the couple's initials monogrammed in an oval center, was placed on a table covered with a crochet cloth made by his grandmother.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Colorado, the bride wore an ivory tea-length dress accented with a lace collar and pearl buttons on the sleeves.

The couple will make their home in Hereford.

The bride, a student at Hereford High School, is a member of the National Honor Society. She is employed by McDonald's.

The groom, a graduate of HHS, is employed at Panhandle Milling.

Facts about your health given

You wake up in the middle of the night feeling your hand is numb. At work, there is tingling and burning in your fingers. It becomes increasingly difficult to grip the objects and tools needed to perform your job. The pain is unbearable.

These are some of the symptoms of carpal tunnel syndrome (CTS), a work-related disorder that the 1.3 million-member United Food and Commercial Workers Union (UFCW) is actively working to prevent.

Caused by repetitive, stressful hand and wrist motions, this potentially crippling disease is occurring at alarming rates. Some of the workers most affected are UFCW members employed as poultry workers, meatpackers, cashiers, and shoe workers.

An estimated 60 percent of supermarket cashiers who use laser scanners and 67 percent of workers on the boning lines of the meat packing industry suffer from some form of CTS.

Available evidence indicates that minor changes in work practices may help reduce the threat of CTS. Indeed, the UFCW's health and safety experts have discovered that simple corrective measures—such as new knife blade handles, sharper scissors, adjustable stools, padding on floors, and more frequent work breaks—can be important in preventing the disease.

UFCW is in the forefront in fighting this disorder. Working with several companies in developing new solutions to the problem, the union is helping reduce the incidence of CTS. In this case, an ounce of prevention truly could be worth a ton of cure.

Elect Margaret Perez Tax Assessor Collector

Deaf Smith County like any business needs to have the best qualified experienced people running its various departments.

I have worked in the Tax Assessor Collector's office of this county for almost 14 years. In 1988, I was appointed Tax Assessor Collector for Deaf Smith County. Because of my experience, the transition did not create chaos and a loss of time and money. It was effectively accomplished.

The citizens of this county continue to receive the best service possible. That is very important to me. I'd like to keep it that way.

I ask for your vote and support to keep the Deaf Smith County Tax Assessor Collector's office one of the best in the Panhandle.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a recently married 24-year-old woman working on my PH.D. at Georgetown University. As a longtime reader, I am certain that the best way to reach the greatest number of teen-agers is through your column. If you will print these facts and figures, you will do more good than all the clergypersons, doctors, nurses and teachers combined.

According to a report from the University of California at San Francisco entitled "Adolescent Pregnancy and Parenting in California," sexual activity among adolescents is on the rise. There is no indication that this trend is slowing down or reversing itself.

National statistics show the average age of first intercourse is 17.2 for females and 16.5 for males. By age 20, three out of four girls and five out of six boys will have had sexual intercourse at least once, as will one in six 15-year-old boys and one in 20 15-year-old girls.

A recent national survey revealed that three out of five adult women don't know when they are most likely to become pregnant. The figure is four out of five for teen-age girls. They don't know that ovulation occurs in the middle of a woman's menstrual cycle and that pregnancy is most likely to occur when intercourse takes place 14 days after the first day of menstruation.

Another reason for the high rate of pregnancy among teens is that they are reluctant to use any method of birth control...even condoms. They place themselves at risk not only for pregnancy but a wide range of sexually transmitted diseases, including AIDS.

Many teens believe it is not possible to get pregnant the first time they have sex. Many believe they are "safe" if they have sex standing up or under water. They do not know how to use contraceptive devices properly, which means they are not protected. Another common misconception is that if the male does not have an orgasm there can be no pregnancy.

Ann, there is so much ignorance out there, it is frightening. When I was 15 years old (I lived in Fort Wayne), I sent for your booklet on teen-age sex. It was the basis of my sex education. The paper I read you in now does not mention your booklets.

If you are still offering those booklets, I wish you would let people know. Teen-agers today may be street-smart, but they are terribly ignorant about sex and reproduction. The more surveys I read, the worse it gets. I worry about these kids. Please help them. Sign me—Concerned in D.C.

DEAR C.J.N D.C.: You have written an excellent letter, and I thank you. The booklet you referred to, "Sex and the Teen-ager," has been revised several times since you read it. For those who are interested, send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada send $4.45.)

DEAR READERS: The following quote by Christopher Morley deserves to be clipped and taped to your bathroom mirror: "If everyone was given five minutes warning before sudden death, every telephone booth would be occupied by people trying to call up other people to say, 'I love you.'"

So why wait for a catastrophe?

Ways to foil a car thief

Did you know that two vehicles are stolen every minute in the United States? Here are ten ways you can help prevent that happening to you.

1. Take your keys and lock your car.
2. Park in well-lighted areas.
3. Install a burglar alarm.
4. Close car windows when parking.
5. Don't hide a second set of keys in the car.
6. Never leave your car running.
7. If you have a garage, use it.
8. Lock your garage door.

9. Lock your car when it's in the garage.
10. Install a fuel shut off device.

Gee, Smith married in Amarillo

Wedding vows were exchanged by Heather Elizabeth Gee of Hereford and Shane Landon Smith of Amarillo Jan. 6 in Trinity Fellowship Chapel of Amarillo. The Rev. Charles Hahn of Amarillo officiated at the Saturday afternoon ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Warren and Billie Jo Gee of Route 4, Hereford, and the bridegroom is the son of Jerry and Donna Smith of Clovis, N.M.

Melanie Davis was maid of honor and best man was David Snuggs.

Bridesmaids included Misty George and Beth Hahn and groomsmen were the groom's brothers, Shawn and Blane Smith.

Serving as ushers were the bride's brothers, Andrew and Timothy Gee.

Melissa Slagle, daughter of James and Becky Slagle, was flower girl and ring bearers were the bride's cousins, Uriah and Adrienne Brockett, children of Ken and Sylvia Brockett.

Jocelyn Lozano, accompanied by pianist, Elizabeth Patterson, sang "Somewhere In the World" and "The Wedding."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding dress which was made by the bride's grandmother in 1964. The white formal-length gown of satin and lace was designed with a fitted bodice of chantilly lace, a scalloped neckline, long pointed sleeves and a basque waistline. The sparkle satin skirt, which was altered for the bride by her grandmother, was fashioned with a bow and flounce at the back and flowed into a cathedral-length train.

The hip-length bridal illusion veil, made by the bride's grandmother, was attached to a headpiece of miniature silk flowers, pearls and sequins.

She carried a cascading bouquet of red roses, white carnations and baby's breath accented with Christmas plaid ribbons and streamers.

Completing her bridal ensemble, was a strand of pearls belonging to the bride's grandmother.

Tazia Smith invited guests to register at the reception held in the upper room of Trinity Fellowship.

Regina Peck and Shelly Slagle served the bride's cake and the groom's cake was served by Tazia Smith and Shantel Hicks. Punch and coffee were poured by Becky Hahn and Wendy Sanders. Other members of the houseparty included Adrienne Riipi and Linda Davis.

Leaving on wedding trip to British Virgin Islands, the bride wore a red and black checkered skirt and top featuring a ruffle encircling the waistline.

The couple is making their home in Amarillo.

The bride is a junior nursing student at West Texas State University and is employed by Dr. Canon in Canyon.

The groom graduated from West Texas State University where he received a B.B.A. degree in marketing. He is currently employed with M.L. Evans Appliance in Amarillo.

Wedding guests represented Cheyenne, Wyo., Sycamore, Ill., Waterman, Ill., Albuquerque, N.M., Clovis, N.M., Muleshoe, Lazbuddie, Dallas, Lubbock and Canyon.

Using your food money wisely means more than cutting your food bill. It also means making sure you get good nutrition and eating pleasure for the money you spend on food. Wise use of food dollars is a challenge, requiring planning and the use of basic tools to make sound cost comparisons. Here are some tips to help you sharpen your money management skills:

- * Plan meals first, then make a shopping list. Use your list to save trips to the supermarket and help you avoid buying items you don't really need.

- * Shop at a store that gives you the best price and quality for products you typically buy. Make sure the cost savings from shopping at several stores justifies the extra time and transportation cost.

- * Try to avoid shopping when you're tired, hungry, or rushed.

- * Use unit pricing to find best buys. Large packages, store brands, and sale items are often, but not always, cheaper than other brands or container sizes.

- * Use itemized receipts from computer-assisted checkout systems to help track food costs. This is especially helpful when prices aren't marked on products.

- * Make substitutions for items on your shopping list if you can save money or get a higher quality product, and if the item will fit into your meal plans.

- * Use coupons for products you usually buy. Stock up on store specials in reasonable amounts.

- * Buy store brands and generic items when their taste and quality suit your needs.

- * Salad bars can be costly--buy only those items you need in small quantities. Pick up basic ingredients--lettuce, cabbage, celery, carrots, cucumbers, onions--elsewhere in the store.

- * Buy bulk foods (when available) for high quality, a lower price, and the exact amount you want.

- * Make sure convenience foods are worthwhile buys. Some (packaged mixes, canned vegetables, frozen juice concentrates) are good buys, while others (frozen dinners) costs much more than home-prepared versions.

- * Avoid overbuying (particularly perishables) to minimize food waste.
- * To protect food quality while you shop:

- Pick up perishables (salad bar ingredients, frozen vegetables, meats, dairy products) last.

- Pack frozen foods and meats in insulated bags. Keep cold items together.

- Minimize time foods are in the car. Keep perishables out of direct sunlight.

- Put foods away promptly.

Spotlight turns to prevention

Medical experts report that 80 percent of all cancers are related to lifestyle. By knowing what factors to change and how to change them, many people may avoid the disease. Following these simple suggestions can help reduce risk:

1. Steam rather than boil or fry food.
2. Trim away excess fats from meats and remove chicken skin.
3. Use skim milk.
4. Use fresh fruits and vegetables, especially cauliflower, onions, broccoli, endive, mushrooms, spinach, potatoes, eggplant, carrots, pumpkins, beans, parsley, sweet potatoes, celery, tomatoes, peppers, squash and lettuce.

"Lickity-split"

Employees at the Dairy Queen, bottom photo, surprised third graders from Northwest Primary School recently when they made 126 banana splits in less than 20 minutes. The students were rewarded with the treats for their preparation on the recent TEAMS test. The business sold the splits at a reduced rate. Also, that day, students watched a movie and ate popcorn provided by Allsup's. Enjoying their banana splits are, from left, Ruben Coronado, Rachel Coronado and Gloria Martínez.

Lee best program speaker

"Man's Best Friend" was the topic that gave Rocky Lee best program speaker at the Thursday morning meeting of the Hereford Toastmasters. Lee presided over the business meeting with Joe Don Cummings being accepted as the administrative vice-president. Bruce Hernandez, wordmaster, introduced "modicum" as the word. Margaret Perez served as grammarian while Jigger Rowland served as table topic master. Cummings was general evaluator; Joe Weaver, toastmaster; and Lynn Cook, timer. Dr. Milton Adams spoke on "Fuller Commitment in the Drug Wars" with Joe Walters as evaluator. Bob Lohr was selected as best evaluator and Perez served as club secretary. Others present for the meeting were Larry Leon and Jay Reeve.

BRANDED Women

By Sandy Stagner

Many years ago I vowed I would never let myself get emotionally attached to another pet. I reneged.

Although it's been several months, I'm still very upset about my dear cat, Morris, who met with his untimely demise last Thanksgiving. He didn't just die peacefully in his sleep or from an overdose of his favorite brand of catnip. He was murdered, cut down in the prime of his nine lives.

Morris was the victim of a hit-and-run driver. Of course, I place some of the blame upon myself. Maybe I should have told my feline more often to look both ways before crossing the street. I had warned him that if he wanted to hang out with his unruly companions that he should stay close to home, not cut around. But my advice was unheeded. Consequently, his lives were shortened by many years.

On the night of his death, I was in the kitchen blissfully enjoying a cup of tea. John and the children were at his parents' house preparing for Thanksgiving the next day. My quiet time was shattered by a phone call from a neighbor informing me that Morris was laying flat as a pancake out in the street. Because I simply didn't have the courage to go get him, I called John and told him to come home immediately, that there was a death in the family. Without further explanation, I hung up the phone.

Within minutes John and our son, Tim, came bursting through the door to find me sitting on the floor crying uncontrollably. After asking me repeatedly who had died, I finally blurted out, "It was Morris."

Tim looked disgustingly at John before he turned to me and asked, "That's the bad news, the cat? Good grief, Mom, you had us scared to death. John nearly wiped out two joggers and a bike rider trying to get home."

"Give me a trash bag," he instructed me, "and I'll go throw Morris in the dumpster."

"You will not," I shouted. "This cat gets a proper burial, the works. Now go get Morris and start digging."

"But it's 11 p.m. and the wind is blowing 50 m.p.h.," Tim huffed.

"The chill factor is 30 below. Since it's so cold, the cat will keep nicely until morning." I just shoved him out the door.

Seeing how distraught I was, John decided to humor me. He put on his coat and grabbed a shovel. After several minutes, he informed me that they were ready for burial.

I was appalled to find that Morris had indeed been carelessly thrown into a plastic bag. I ran into the house, retrieved a shoe box and tried to stuff his carcass into it. His 26 lb. body wouldn't fit. How many times had I told Morris to cut back on the fried chicken and hot fudge sundaes!

I finally decided to wrap him up in a new blanket before ceremoniously handing him over to John. As we were carrying the cat to his final resting place, I told John to say a few words. Giving Tim that "let's just do as she says and get this over with" look, John stammered out, "Okay, Morris, this is the end of the line for you. You lived a good life, better than me, in fact. You were always well fed even when I was served leftovers; you slept 20 hours a day in a nice, cozy bed when I was sometimes forced to sleep on the couch; you were petted and pampered when I never got even so much as a pat on the head. Maybe with you out of the picture, I'll get the attention that I deserve. So, ashes to ashes, dust to dust, etc., etc., etc. Now let's have a few moments of silence to reflect on our beloved pet."

Tim couldn't believe his eyes or his ears. Here were two people who were suppose to be his well adjusted parents standing the middle of the back yard at midnight giving a stupid old cat his last rites. He stifled his laughter as long as he could but finally broke down when John took off his hat and placed it over his head.

"I'm sorry, Mom," Tim heehawed. "But if someone happened to look over the fence right now, they would have us all carted away to the funny farm."

I wonder if that's why our neighbors always look the other way when they see us coming out of the house.

Most automobile trips in the United States are under five miles. A very big camel can drink 60 or 70 quarts of water.

Planning a wedding?

Engagements should be announced at least SIX WEEKS BEFORE the wedding date to ensure publication. Couples submitting engagement announcements after the deadline must choose to have either the engagement or the wedding photo published. The engagement announcement must include the date of the wedding.

Wedding and anniversary information should be submitted to The Brand the Monday before the next Sunday publication date. Wedding information submitted eight days or later after the wedding date will be shortened.

Black and white photos are preferred for engagements, weddings, and anniversaries but color photos may be used if suitable for reproduction. Lifestyles reporters do not take photos for engagements, weddings, anniversaries, or showers.

Shower forms are available at The Brand, as are engagement and wedding forms. This information will not be taken by phone.

Prepare an extra supply of ice cubes by using plastic egg trays. Store the cubes in plastic bags in your freezer. The hyrax, a small mammal that looks much like a guinea pig, is actually most closely related to elephants.

YOUR EYES

PERIPHERAL VISION

Everything we see is not necessarily in front of us. The importance of "side vision" cannot be underestimated. We sometimes refer to this as "seeing out of the corner of your eye." That's how you maintain an awareness of what's going on around you, while focusing on a particular spot or destination. This kind of seeing is done without turning your head from side to side and, therefore, keeps our response time at its peak. Without good side vision, crossing streets presents a danger, biking can be hazardous, and sports participation finds you at a disadvantage. Driving a car becomes a stressful, potentially dangerous activity. Not using the vision in one eye limits your side vision on that particular side. Other causes of poor side vision include retinal damage and the onset and progression of glaucoma. You can protect your own side vision. Select an object in an unfamiliar setting. While looking straight ahead at that object, try to name as many objects to the left and right of you without turning your head or eyes. If you can't recognize a reasonable number off to the sides, call your optometrist for an appointment.

Book reviewed recently

Under the leadership of Leatrus Clark, the Women's Missionary Union of First Baptist Church met recently to review the book, Because of His Love.

Assisting with the study were Ella Oglesby, Marie Stringer, Loleta Vinson, Sara Cook, Frances Crume, Eunice Boyer and Helen Eades.

The book tells of the work being done for missions across the United States and the faithful missionaries called to this work.

A luncheon followed the meeting. Other attending included Annie DeLozier, Betty Mercer, Louise Streun, Ella Caudle, Jennie Terrell, Grace Covington, Ruth Allison, Louise Kinsey, Margaret Young, Bonnie Sublett and Mildred Drake.

Recognized as special guests were Natha Carroll of Westway Church and Wilma Bryan of Avenue Baptist Church.

Before the close of the luncheon, a collection was taken for the Seamen's Fund in Texas.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

The American Red Cross lost a great volunteer when Betty Moody of Childress died this week. Betty was very active in disaster work and helped our chapter in many ways. We are accepting memorial donations in Betty's name at our office. We will all miss her and her tireless work for the Red Cross.

Board of directors are reminded that the board meeting for this month will be held Tuesday, Feb. 20. The board orientation will be held Thursday, Feb. 22, at the Red Cross office.

A first aid class for volunteers will start Thursday at 9:30 a.m. at the Red Cross office. The class will meet each Thursday in March.

Our chapter is pleased to work with the Boy Scouts in their project to collect canned foods for use in Deaf Smith County. The Scouts will be distributing the sacks Saturday, Feb. 24, and picking them up Saturday, March 2. We hope everyone will help them with this project.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Agency.

Original compositions performed

As one of the highlight meetings of the year for the Music Study Club, Dr. Duffy McBryer sang original compositions by Carlie Burdett of Amarillo, a former Hereford resident. He was accompanied by Linda Gilbert.

The club, a member of Texas

Federation of Music Clubs, met recently in the parlor of First Baptist Church with Margaret Schroeter and Pat Fisher serving as hostesses.

Burdett wrote music for five poems by Robert Frost. Dr. McBryer, tenor, performed "The Road Not Taken", "My November Guest", "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening", "Tree at My Window" and "The Pasture."

The composer also set to music six poems by Robert Louis Stevenson entitled "Singing", "The Swing", "Where Go the Boats", "Pirate Story", "The Land of Counterpane" and "Autumn Fires". They were sung by Lesley Woodard, Susan Shaw and Linda Gilbert with piano accompaniment provided by Dee Anne Trotter.

Burdett performed on the piano Music for Bird Lovers: "First Flight" and "Partridge March."

During the business session with President Shaw presiding, Cheryl Betzen gave a report on the March 5 Junior Music Festival which will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the First Baptist Church.

Also, Shaw appointed Mrs. Joe Hacker, Ann Meyer and Fisher to serve on the Jane Dameron Scholarship committee.

It was announced that Lincoln Mayorga, pianist, will be performing at 3 p.m. March 4 for members of the Hereford Community Concert Association.

The next meeting was planned at 2 p.m. April 8 on Student Musicians Day in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library.

Guests for the special musical program included Burdett, Dr. McBryer, Lauren Walton, Mrs. Buddy McBryer, Marilyn Culpepper, Marjorie Mims, Leona Kimball, Nedra Higginbotham, Jeanne Gulley, Della Hutchins, Shirley Wilson, Amy Gililand and Jayne Euler.

Members present were Betzen, Marcella Bradly, Helen Caraway, Fisher, Gilbert, Evelyn Hacker, Barbara Manning, Claudia McBryer, Meyer, Frances Parker, Violet Reinauer, Schroeter, Donna Ruland, Jody Skiles, Shaw, Trotter, Woodard, Ruby Carmichael, Ruth Allison, Mary Carter, Charlotte Close and Mozelle Neill.

Here's some baby facts

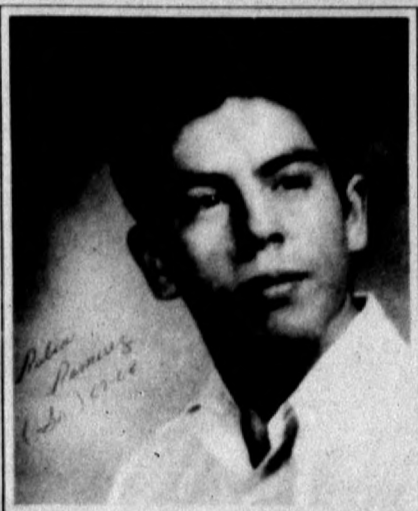

Choosing the right clothes, toys and accessories for baby can be more like child's play if you buy with an eye on the future, says the experts.

For instance, the outfit that looks "way too big" at first glance will probably fit in just a few months: most babies gain about one ounce a day for the first three months, then about half an ounce a day for some time thereafter. The average six-and-a-half pound newborn, measuring about 20 inches, can expect to be nearly 26 pounds and nearly 33 inches tall by 18 months of age.

Keeping baby's rapid growth in mind, many of today's cost-conscious parents buy clothes that are just a bit loose, toys that are labeled suitable for ages infant through toddler and cribs and strollers that are adjustable to meet a growing baby's needs.

One space-saving, money-saving item that's popular with many parents these days is a fully adjustable, portable baby chair that some say does just about everything. It is a unique portable chair that turns any chair into a highchair.

European Plan Embellished With Ornate Exterior Trim

DRAMATIC ROOF DESIGN AFFORDS A BREATHTAKING FACADE

FEATURE HOMES

BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

A recessed entrance foyer affords a full vista to the great room or the open rail stair. The great room extends a whopping twenty-four feet and beyond that a full sized dining room is shown. The kitchen is an informal style with a breakfast area adjacent to sliding doors to a terrace. The laundry room and a first floor half bath are centrally located on the first floor.

There are three bedrooms upstairs, the master being favored with the most floor space and a private bath with two lavatories. An additional full bath is shown central. Although the plan is designed for a narrow lot with a single garage, a double garage may be included if your lot permits.

Front wall changes necessary to accomplish the front shown are included on the actual working drawings.

The plan is Number 884 C. It includes only 1,884 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write to W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

National Breakfast Week set

March 4-10 is National School Breakfast Week. This year 38,000 schools nationwide are providing nutritious breakfasts for students. Whether you children are among the 4,000,000 students who enjoy breakfast at school each day or they eat their breakfast at home—the importance of that first meal of the day cannot be disputed.

Canned pears are a natural for nutritious breakfast fare. School foodservice operators choose canned pears for a variety of breakfast and lunch time dishes.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Comedian Sam Kinison's ex-wife is still waiting for the minister-turned-screaming comic to make a $50,000 alimony payment, celebrity attorney Marvin Mitchelson said.

Mitchelson, who represents Terry Kinison, said Wednesday the comedian was scheduled to pay his ex-wife $50,000, covering his alimony obligation for 1990, by Jan. 5.

"He's been stalling her," Mitchelson said.

Mitchelson said he planned to ask a Superior Court judge at a hearing March 9 to require Kinison to pay $10,000 in fines. Mitchelson filed a contempt-of-court claim against Kinison last week.

The couple was divorced in May and reached a property settlement in September, he said.

Fangman, Jones named chairmen

Karen Fangman and Mary Jones are the 1990 Neighbor-to-Neighbor chairmen of the American Heart Association, of Deaf Smith County.

Fangman and Jones will direct Deaf Smith County volunteers' efforts to educate residents about cholesterol and its role in heart disease. Volunteers will also request contributions from individuals at their homes in support of the AHA's research, education and community service programs. The Neighbor-to-Neighbor Heart Walk will be held on Sunday, Feb. 25.

"Without research supported by the American Heart Association, we might not have available modern medical miracles such as pacemakers and surgery to help children with heart defects," Fangman and Jones said.

"New research will help us continue to benefit from medical discoveries and reduce the rate of death from cardiovascular disease, Texas' and America's number one killer."

The American Heart Association is the nation's largest voluntary health organization dedicated to the reduction of disability and death from cardiovascular diseases and stroke, which kills over 50,000 Texans annually. Last year the AHA spent more than $150 million to support research, community programs and public education.

For more information about the AHA or how to become involved with the Neighbor-to-Neighbor Campaign, contact Karen Flood, President of the local American Heart Association at 364-0480.

Between the Covers

BY REBECCA WALLS

Coming Feb. 27, the Friends of the Deaf Smith County Library have a real treat planned for you. All of you, even if you are not a Friends member, are invited to attend the Friends annual meeting to hear guest speaker and author Jodi Thomas-Koumalats. Jodi is a current resident of Amarillo who grew up hearing the exciting tales of her grandparent's experiences as early settlers. Holding a masters degree in family studies from Texas Tech University and teaching family relations at Amarillo High School for the past 14 years has increased Jodi's love for the study of people. This love of people, along with her extensive touring and researching of Texas history, adds greatly to Jodi's ability to build characters readers care about. Jodi says, "Sometimes my characters become so alive to me I feel like I know them like family. When one of them dies, I cry at the computer so hard, I'll probably electrocute myself someday."

Jodi began writing six years ago. Her publications include Look and Listen, Chickadee, Byline Magazine, and the Daily Oklahoman. She has won over 40 awards for her short stories and children stories including being named finalist in the Hemmingway Short Story Competition.

In May Jodi was 1988's first place winner in Southwest Novels at the Oklahoma Writers Federation, Inc. She is also the only person in the history of the Johnson County Creative Writing Contest to win first in short story, children's story and novel all in the same year.

Jodi's first novel Beneath the Texas Sky, available for checking out, is a historical novel covering 20 years in the life of Bethanie Weston. When fate takes the man that Bethanie loved from her, she was forced to choose between her cherished memories of the past and her steely determination to give her unborn child a future. The bittersweet novel was semifinalist in the 1987 Golden Heart Award for Romance Writers of America Professional Writers Novel Contest; sold the first time it was sent to a publisher; named best fiction of 1988 by the National Federation of Press Women; awarded fiction book of the year by a Texas author; and is now in its second printing. (But don't take their word for it, read it for yourself.)

Make plans now to come hear this wonderful new author at 7 p.m. Feb. 27 at the Deaf Smith County Library. There will be an autograph session following her talk.

Other titles to look for in the future by Jodi Thomas are Northern Star to be released in September and The Tender Texas scheduled for release in the summer of 1991.

Some of the other new titles coming out this week are:

Hollywood: A Novel of America in the 1920's by Gore Vidal is a historical novel in which Caroline Sanford's rise to stardom is paralleled by the birth of Hollywood.

Babylon South by Jon Cleary begins after the mysterious disappearance of Sir Walter Springfellow, head of Australian Intelligence. Inspector Scobie Malone finds himself involved with the Springfellow family and another death in which one of the Springfellows is to be charged with murder.

Web of Dreams by V.C. Andrews is the conclusion of the saga of the Casteel family.

Getting the Love You Want: A Guide for Couples by Harville Hendrix, Ph.D. "offers the best program I've seen for using the love/hate inertia in marriage to help a couple heal one another and to become whole together," says T. George Harris, editor-in-chief of American Health magazine. This 10 week course in marital therapy, that you take in the privacy of your own home, gives step by step instructions that enable one to communicate with greater accuracy and sensitivity; how to let go of self-defeating behavior; and how to focus your energy on meeting your partner's needs.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - The man that actor Don Johnson caught allegedly rummaging through his hotel room pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to a felony burglary count and trial was set for next month.

Henry Kenneth Rosenbaum, 35, entered the plea Thursday in Municipal Court and a March 22 trial date was set, said defense attorney William Grayson. Rosenbaum remained free on $50,000 bail.

The complaint charges that the "Miami Vice" television star and his actress-wife, Melanie Griffith, returned to their Bel-Air Hotel room on Jan. 29, 1989, and found Rosenbaum going through Miss Griffith's purse.

Johnson testified at a preliminary hearing that he confronted Rosenbaum in the suite's bedroom, ordering him to lie down on the floor and put his hands behind his head until police arrived.

Reception planned Feb. 23

The public is invited to attend a reception honoring Loy Gene Smith from 2-4 p.m. Friday, Feb. 23, in the old commissioners courtroom at Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

Smith is moving to Lubbock to accept a job with the Lubbock County District Attorney's Office as an investigator.

Born and reared in Hereford, Smith was employed with the Hereford Police Department for six years attaining the rank of sergeant. He has been with the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department for over 11 years where he served as chief deputy for the past six years.

Betty Crocker's Cooking Tips

Q. I have a non-stick bundt cake pan that sticks even when greased and floured. What's wrong? S.S., Levelland, Tx

A. A non-stick pan gets scratched over time if it is used often. Even complete covering with shortening and light flour won't compensate for the scratches.

Q. Are the chocolate and white portions of marble cake likely to separate? R.H., Bridgeport, WV

A. No, both chocolate and white portions of marble cake are formulated to have similar texture and not to separate.

Tip Of The Week: Flavors that distinguish German cuisine are allspice, caraway seeds, cinnamon, dill, ginger, juniper berries, mustard, nutmeg and white pepper.

Q. Why does gravy sometimes turn watery? Mrs. J.E.T., Orrville, AL

A. Gravy made with cornstarch will thin if overbeaten. Flour-based gravy is likely to thin upon reheating, especially if reheated directly from the refrigerator.

BUSINESS PRODUCTS

CLEVELAND (AP) - The business products industry earns $135 billion annually.

It includes five segments: business forms, commercial printing, office and computer supplies, office furniture and personal computers, says Gregory Muzzillo, president of ProForma Inc.

TRIUMPHAL ARCH

PARIS (AP) - L'Arc de Triomphe, or Arch of Triumph, located on the Champs Elysees where 12 avenues meet, was begun by Napoleon in 1806 as a monument to his troops.

It was completed by Louis Philippe in 1836. Its designer was Jean Francois Chalgrin.

The structure stands about 164 feet high and 147 feet wide. It has a central archway 48 feet wide. An eternal flame burns there to honor France's Unknown Soldier.

Q. My banana bread loaf doesn't bake completely on top, what causes this? S.A., Enid, OK

A. The pan may be too large. Place bread pan centered on middle position rack in oven to allow even heat distribution.

Q. When frozen zucchini is thawed to use for a recipe, should liquid be drained or used? When I drained the liquid, my zucchini bars were very dry. S.V., Duluth, MN

A. The liquid should be drained. To avoid dryness, measure flour carefully and do not overbake.

Q. What amount of potato flakes equals a pound of fresh potatoes? G.M.B., New Castle, PA
