Hereford's HEROES

By TOMMIE CHERRY

Like most people in Hereford, my parents are my heroes.

Mom and dad were there for me, unlike my children who have only me.

My dad treated me like a tomboy, but I loved every minute of it. He taught me how to fish with real worms and liver. He made me as tough as he could, but when I needed it most he was there with a hug and an "I love you."

Mom was my backbone. She made me emotionally strong. Sometimes she wonders about me, but I'm fine. Someday I do hope to show her. She spoiled me and pampered me completely. Anything I asked for I usually got, including a baby sister. Nowadays most parents won't go through that much trouble: too expensive.

I could never trade my heroes. I'm so very fortunate to have them. To this day they still spoil me, even though I'm 30. I love you so much, mom and dad. Thank you for being there for me and my children. You are both my world and my life. Without you, I would never have been.

USPS to host seminar

The United States Postal Service will be hosting a free mailing seminar on Tuesday from 9-11 a.m. at the Hereford community center.

The seminar will provide customers with mailing insights they may not otherwise have had, said Hereford Postmaster Charles Britten.

"As we change the way mail is processed through automated systems, it is vital that customers understand mail preparation guidelines," he said. "Since a machine is used to 'read' addresses, everybody can understand how important the correct address is to providing good service.

"Even the right address will not allow access to this improved service if our machine cannot read it."

The seminar is designed to teach participants about mail preparation, improving service and ways to save on postage.

Clements optimistic on session

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements said he is optimistic that a resolution will be reached on education reform in the special legislative session, but judicial reform may take longer.

Clements' comments Wednesday on the special session, which begins next week, came after a breakfast meeting with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

"As far as the public school situation is concerned, I think there may be some very reasonable answers that will quickly surface and be acted upon," Clements said.

The Texas Supreme Court has ruled the state's system of financing public schools is unconstitutional because it allows disparities in funding between rich and poor school districts.

School districts with low property tax wealth often assess higher taxes than property rich school districts and still cannot raise as much money for education.

Betty Henson wins Bull Chip

Henson is Bull Chip winner

Betty Henson received the Bull Chip Award from Speedy Nieman at this morning's Chamber Fun Breakfast at the Hereford Community Center. Henson was honored for her work as director of the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Betty Henson received the Bull Chip Award at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Fun Breakfast today at the Hereford Community Center.

She received the award from Hereford Brand Publisher Speedy Nieman for her work as director of the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

"She goes far beyond the call of duty in performing her job," said Nieman. "I got to know Betty a little better this past holiday season when I worked with her in coordinating the Christmas Stocking Fund. She is truly one of the hidden treasures of hospitable, hustlin' Hereford."

Through her efforts, the local Red Cross is busy throughout the year to provide clothing, food and other needs for persons, teaching first aid and swimming, and taking care of other needs in the community and literally around the world.

Mrs. Henson, taken by surprise, thanked Nieman for the award and expressed her thanks for those who have worked with her through Red Cross and other efforts.

The breakfast was also highlighted by a performance by the Walker Sisters of Hereford. They perform the fourth Saturday of each month along with other talent at the Country Opry in Hereford and at other "oprys" across the Panhandle-Plains.

One of the sisters, Karen Fangman, performed "Cowtown USA," a song she wrote about Hereford and Deaf Smith County that points out the assets of the community.

The breakfast was co-sponsored by Dr. David Purdy's family dentistry practice. He introduced his staff. In keeping with the breakfast's fun tradition and Dr. Purdy's sponsorship, the Tooth Fairy made an appearance, wielding a pair of pliers and a magic wand while checking the teeth of many at the breakfast.

There were prizes awarded from several businesses, including Beef 'n' More, Big T Pump Co., Terra, K-Bob's, Wishes, Boos and Saddle Western Wear, Sirloin Stockade, Pants Cage, West Park Drug and Granny's BBQ.

Announcements were also made about several events coming up in the next few weeks, including:

--The Key Club chili supper, Friday from 5-8 p.m. at the HHS cafeteria;

--The American Heart Association's Door-to-Door campaign on Sunday;

--The authentic comida to be served Sunday from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Community Center by San Jose Catholic Church;

--The Boy Scouts door-to-door food drive, beginning this Saturday with distribution of sacks for food collection on March 3;

--The Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper from 5-8:30 p.m. at St. Thomas Episcopal Church;

--The Super Sports Week, March 9-17, featuring boys' and girls' track meets, golf and tennis tournaments, and the baseball home opener;

--The Women's Division membership drive before their quarterly meeting on April 5, and their need for caps from Hereford businesses for decorations for the chamber banquet on March 8;

--And, the Red Cross will hold a cholesterol screening on March 17 at the Community Center.

Several persons, aided by emcees John Stagner and Charlie Bell, tried their hand at "Win, Lose or Draw."

The name of Joe Miller of Horizon Seed was drawn for $150 in Hereford Bucks, but he was not present. The next breakfast will have a drawing for $200.

Wildlife group wants power pole changes

By HOLDEN LEWIS

LUBBOCK - Robert C. Lee, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's agent in charge of the Oklahoma Panhandle and a vast area of West Texas, likes to show visitors a photograph of a deadly power pole.

It looks like any other pole holding up rural power lines, except for a metal bracket - barely visible in the photo - that sticks about six inches from the top.

The pole, he says, has electrocuted three hawks and a golden eagle this winter. The birds die when they perch on the pole's crossmember and one wing touches a power line and another touches the metal bracket.

"We're probably losing easily, easily, 100 eagles in this part of the country every year" to electrocution on power lines, Lee said Wednesday.

Since October, 30 golden and bald eagles have been found dead of apparent electrocution in Lee's territory, which stretches from the top of the Oklahoma Panhandle to the Pecos River in Texas - an area roughly the size of Illinois where hundreds of eagles spend their winters. Lee said experts believe only a small percentage of electrocuted birds are found and reported.

Lee is asking rural electric cooperatives to alter power poles to make them safer. So far, one company - Amarillo-based Southwestern Public Service - plans to fix one pole where several birds have died, he said, adding that he expects other utilities to follow suit.

Companies that don't respond to requests to alter power lines can be prosecuted, Lee said, because birds of prey are protected. Fines for deliberately killing eagles can be as much as $10,000.

Even worse than the fines, Lee said, is negative publicity.

"No one wants to be labeled as a bad guy," he said. "And that's good."

On most older power poles, an uninsulated line is strung at the top of each wooden pole. Bare wires are strung on the ends of crossbars so that the wires are about 45 inches apart.

Birds can perch safely on the wires as long as they don't touch another power line or an electrical ground. Most birds are too small to touch two wires simultaneously and are safe from electrocution.

But bald and golden eagles, owls and hawks can have wingspans in excess of four feet, and when they flap their wings to perch on the crossmembers of power poles, their wingtips can touch two wires at the same time, killing them instantly.

"We used to think bird electrocutions were rare," Lee said. "But we did some research, and we found this happening a lot - as a matter of fact, in some states so many were being killed that it was having a noticeable, detrimental effect on their populations."

It costs up to $200 to lower the crossmembers about four feet, which generally makes the poles safe, Lee said.

On the one pole slated for alteration, Southwestern Public Service plans to erect barriers that will prevent birds from perching.

No 10-4 on 1040 preparers

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ask 50 tax experts to calculate the federal taxes of a make-believe family and you'll get 50 different answers - most of them wrong.

"Money" magazine tried it and discovered:

-The 50 pros figured the $130,000-a-year family owed somewhere between $9,806 and $21,315. The correct answer, "Money" said, was $12,038.

-Although the family had some tax problems that most Americans will never face, some of the experts fumbled such basic items as the credit for child care expenses, the deduction for moving expenses and the Social Security tax owed by a self-employed person.

-The 35 certified public accountants, eight independent enrolled agents, two non-CPAs and five preparers from such chains as H&R

Block charged fees ranging from $271 to $4,000.

-There was no logical connection between fees charged and performance. "Of the two preparers who fared best, one charged about $275 above average; the other around $260 below," the magazine said. Over the past three years, the average preparation fee for an upper-income return has risen by 30 percent, to $1,012 this year.

Tooth Fairy at breakfast

The Tooth Fairy, sporting a pair of pliers and a baton, put in a special appearance at this morning's Chamber Fun Breakfast. The breakfast was sponsored by Hereford dentist Dr. David Purdy. The tooth fairy explained myths, examined teeth and pointed out other "facts." This tooth fairy, however, looked better suited for extracting pumps than extracting teeth.

Ortega says Sandanistas are rooted in Christianity

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) - President Daniel Ortega rejected communism and capitalism and asked God for "wisdom to govern" in a rousing speech before 300,000 people that closed the Sandinista party's election campaign.

He told the crowd that he expects a Sandinista victory over the U.S.-backed opposition coalition in Sunday's elections to finally bring "respectful" relations with the United States after a decade of contempt.

Members of the wildly cheering crowd waved black-and-red Sandinista flags and chanting "Daniel! Daniel!"

Behind Ortega on a terraced reviewing stand on the shores of Lake Managua were other leaders of the leftist Sandinistas, international election observers, journalists and Bianca Jagger, ex-wife of rock star Mick Jagger.

Wednesday's rally was the second largest in Nicaraguan history, surpassed only by one during Pope John Paul II's 1983 visit. Streams of people flowed through town, dancing to rock, reggae and brass bands along the streets.

In his speech, Ortega equated his Davis was honored for best jazz solo instrumental performance and big band jazz instrumental performance for his "Aura" LP.

Composer-arranger David Grusin also came out a big winner, with three awards for his theatrical movie music.

Grusin's Grammys were for the background score of the movie "The Fabulous Baker Boys," arrangement on an instrumental for the suite from "The Milagro Beanfield War," and instrumental arrangement with vocals for the "My Funny Valentine" track from "Baker Boys."

The movie "Batman" had seven nominations for the soundtrack, including four for rock star Prince. However, the only trophy went to composer Danny Elfman, for best instrumental composition for "The Batman Theme."

Michael Bolton's plaintive single "How Am I Supposed To Live Without You," won male pop vocal, and the tender love ballad "Don't Know Much," by Linda Ronstadt and Aaron Neville, won duo pop performance.

Don Henley, who started the evening with four nominations, won the male rock vocal performance for his lyrical, melancholy "The End of the Innocence" album.

Michael and Janet Jackson won back-to-back music video trophies, Michael the short form Grammy for his "Leave Me Alone" and Janet in the long form category for "Rhythm Nation 1814."

Sexy Bobby Brown won the best rhythm and blues male vocal performance for his "Every Little Step" single.

"Traveling Wilburys Volume One," the effort of the late Roy Orbison, Jeff Lynne, Tom Petty, Bob Dylan and George Harrison, won the rock group vocal performance Grammy.

Living Colour's single "Cult of Personality" won hard rock performance and Metallica's single "One" earned best metal performance.

"Bust A Move" by Young M.C. won best rap performance. Anita Baker won her sixth career Grammy, best female rhythm and blues performance, for the "Giving You The Best That I Got" LP.

The gospel-singing Winans family had a near lock on their category. CeCe Winans won female vocal performance for "Don't Cry"; BeBe Winans was male vocal winner for "Meantime," and Daniel Winans and his choir took the group vocal performance trophy for "Let Brotherly Love Continue."

The country vocal collaboration Grammy went to Hank Williams Jr. and his late father for the time-defying duet on "There's A Tear in My Beer," in which the younger Williams' voice was dubbed on an old recording of his dad's.

Canadian country singer k.d. lang won best female country vocal performance for her LP "Absolute Torch and Twang."

"After All This Time" was best country song, earning a Grammy for singer-songwriter Rodney Crowell.

Former Beatle Paul McCartney was given a lengthy tribute before being presented a lifetime achievement award.

"I've got to take this opportunity now that I've got this award here to thank John, George and Ringo for being beautiful people," said McCartney, a five-time Grammy award winner.

TSTA health insurance bill to be filed

AUSTIN (AP) - A state senator said he will file a bill today that will prevent some of the state's 400,000 public school employees from having to choose between buying food and paying for health insurance.

Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, said his bill establishing a uniform statewide group health insurance program will help school workers in districts that cannot afford to offer health plans.

"We entrust our children to these people," the senator said Wednesday. "The very least we can do is to make sure that every public school employee in Texas has access to adequate and cost-effective group health insurance."

The bill was authored by the 95,000-member Texas State Teachers Association after it conducted a two-year research project on health insurance in public schools.

TSTA president Olivia Besteiro said the legislation, which would offer health coverage through the Teacher Retirement System, could help equalize benefits offered by rich and poor school districts and lower the cost of school workers' premiums for taxpayers.

The Legislature will convene in special session Tuesday with the task of creating a more impartial method of financing public education. The Texas Supreme Court last year ruled the state's school funding system unconstitutional because of disparities between land-rich and poor districts.

Rossanna Salazar, press secretary for Gov. Bill Clements, said she thought he would consider allowing lawmakers to take up Uribe's bill during the upcoming 30-day session. The governor controls the agenda of all special sessions.

Ms. Besteiro said the lack of affordable health insurance is a widespread problem among school employees, as more than one-fourth of the state's nearly 1,000 school districts pay $50 or less per month toward employees' health premiums.

Of these 274 districts, which employ 60,000 people, 109 districts with 11,000 employees offer an optional plan but pay none of the premium, while 85 districts offer no health insurance at all.

Now You're Cooking

BY KAY CRISMON
Staff Writer

Go team go!

If you have ever been to a sports event for any Hereford team you have probably seen this woman. She is a sports enthusiast from the word go and a member of the Whiteface Booster Club.

"I try to attend all the baseball, football, tennis, volleyball, and basketball games I can. I enjoy them as much as my children do," says Teresa Munoz.

Munoz is the single parent of two children: Trisha, a junior at Hereford High School where she has been active in tennis, and a 12-year son, Tom, who is a student at St. Anthony's School.

"I really do not classify myself as a single parent because my mother and father have always been here for me whenever I have needed them," Munoz explained. "They raised eight children and have helped me in so many ways in raising mine. It is hard rearing children today because they are so active in so many things. I try to involve my children in as many activities as possible. I feel it helps them to grow."

Because Munoz is a concerned parent, she is participating in STEP classes at St. Anthony's. "I have learned so much as a parent on effective ways of parenting. I am learning now where my kids are in some of these steps."

"Homework is a basic problem for a child who is in school," Munoz added. "I was constantly on my kids about doing their homework. I use to feel guilty when homework wasn't done (one of my self-defeating patterns). I felt as if I was responsible for the homework not being turned in. Now I have turned that responsibility over to my children. They know the benefits they will receive and now I don't have to turn off the T.V. and sound like a nag. It sure makes life pleasant for all of us."

"My family has always been a close family. I have three brothers, Ralph and Pete Vargas, who are twins, and Ruben Vargas, who coaches tennis in Vernon; four sisters, Yolanda, Virginia Campos, Grace Gamez, all of Hereford, and Alice Garcia of Amarillo.

"We are always doing things for one another," Munoz said of her siblings. "For instance, when my brother, Ruben was elected State 4-A coach of the year we sent him a boutonniere and his wife a corsage for the event. They were really surprised."

"It's the little things that count. On Valentine's Day, Mom and all the girls were sent a rose from Ruben. Mother and dad always taught us to be thoughtful of each other. We have always tried to be there for one another regardless," she said.

Munoz is a member of San Jose Catholic Church and is involved in the youth group at the church. "I really love working with the youth group. When I first started, I was puzzled as to why they wanted me to help. Now I am just glad they asked me. It is the most rewarding thing I have ever done."

She has been involved with Kids Inc. and says this is different. "The program, called 'Total Youth Ministry,' is activities for youth by youth. The youths plan and organize the activities and I'm just there if they need me," she explained.

"Watching these youths grow into beautiful adults is heartwarming. Most people don't want to work with teenagers because they think they are at that terrible age. I love it."

"When given the opportunity, they can be very effective in their reasoning and understanding of situations," Munoz continued. "Sometimes I am astonished at the adult attitude they take in matters. If they can accomplish the small things in life today then the bigger things can be accomplished in the future. Sometimes all they need is encouragement and someone who shows they care."

She is also a member of the Youth Ministerial Alliance (church groups working together for the youths of Hereford).

She will be helping with the annual Hereford Fiesta Patrias Queen Contest. "I am really excited about it, almost as much as the girls," she added.

The contest, she explained, is sponsored by San Jose Catholic Church. A tea was held last Saturday and approximately 10 girls applied. All contracts are to be signed and turned in by Feb. 24. Each girl will raise $1,500 as her fundraiser. The money raised will go toward scholarships and expenses for the contest. All participants have until Aug. 1 to raise the money.

Each girl will write a presentation that will be mailed to the judges and will give a public presentation in August. A variety of events will take place on Sept. 16. This date was chosen because it is Mexican Independence Day.

Munoz is also a member of St. Anthony's Catholic Church and will be working with other mothers on the events for the April carnival. She is a member of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division and serves on the Camp Fire board of directors.

With all these activities she still finds time to hold down a fulltime job. She is employed by the Hereford Country Club. Her main job is in the office but you may find her helping out wherever she is needed. She has been employed by the club for 11 years.

Her culinary skills have been performed at home and at work. She volunteers her children to help her with this special chocolate cake recipe and her mother taught her how to make the family recipe for bunt cake.

Elderly prey to common ailment

After age 55, men are just as likely as women to get urinary tract infections (UTI), a common ailment that can result in kidney damage, and sometimes death if left untreated.

"Older Americans, especially men, should know the basic symptoms of a urinary tract infection and seek a doctor's advice early on," said George Daniels, M.D., assistant professor, Stanford University School of Medicine. "In most cases, the infection can be eliminated and complications prevented with powerful new antibiotics, such as ciprofloxacin (Miles)."

The elderly are more at risk than younger people because they are more often hospitalized and exposed to infection. Also prevalent among the elderly are diabetes and other underlying diseases that compromise the immune system and may increase susceptibility to infection.

UTI symptoms include: strong, frequent urge to urinate and a burning sensation upon urination.

In the elderly, however, symptoms are sometimes vague, mild or absent.

Graduate students with leadership potential can tap into a $50-million fund. The Japan Shipbuilding Industry Foundation (JSIF) is granting individual endowments of a million dollars each to 50 graduate institutions worldwide. The grants are for students enrolled in master's and doctoral programs in the humanities and social sciences.

JSIF was founded in 1962 by renowned Japanese philanthropist Ryoichi Saskawa. It's a non-profit organization dedicated to its founder's belief: "The world is one family and all mankind are brothers and sisters." Its goal is promoting world peace for the well-being of all humankind, irrespective of ideology, politics, race or creed.

Both foundation and founder believe the key to achieving this goal lies with the younger generation and that no effort should be spared in encouraging their enthusiasm to create a better and brighter world for tomorrow.

The scholarships will cover costs for tuition, textbooks and other school fees, while fellowships will cover research costs and in some cases living expenses. They'll be provided for up to three years. Any college or university is eligible to apply.

Applications for the 1990 fiscal year can be made before May 31, to Ryoichi Saskawa, Chairman, The Japan Shipbuilding Industry Foundation, 1-15-16 Toranomon, Minato-ku, Tokyo 105, Japan.

Herd golfers tee up for 1990 season

The Hereford Whiteface boys and girls golf teams will tee off the 1990 season Friday at the Blue Ribbon Classic in Fort Stockton.

Both boys and girls A squads will depend on youth this year as a total of three seniors return.

Defending District 1-4A Medalist Naomi Grijalva will be looking for her third trip to the regional tournament. Grijalva had an average score of 89.6 per round in 1989, including a low round of 74 in the third round of district play.

Grijalva finished fourth at the Region I-4A tournament last year, just two strokes out of second place, after earning a trip to the state tourney as a sophomore.

Krystal Sims (107.2 per round average) also returns for the girls while Keith Kelso (90.6) is the lone holdover for the boys.

After that, sophomores and freshmen dominate the lineup. The girls will have sophomore Paula Britten (117 average in 1989) and seven freshmen to fill out the A and B teams while the boys have 10 underclassmen out of 13 team members.

The 1989 boys B team of Robert Jones, Kevin Kelso, Anthony Gale, Mikel Walsler and David McCarter (all of whom averaged in the low 90s) will vie for spots on the A team as will freshman Jayson Mines.

Coach Stacey Bixler said the youthful makeup of this year's teams will make it tough to keep up with perennial powers Pampa and Borger in the district race.

"Over half the kids we have in the boys and girls golf program are freshmen," he said. "But we should be in good shape for the next couple of years."

Bixler added that the fact most of the linksters play year-round will be beneficial.

"Golf is the kind of sport where you can't play for a month or two and then lay it down for four or five months," he said. "You have to play year-round even if you play other sports whether you just play on the weekends or practice chipping and putting. You have to keep the feel."

Bixler said the district team titles should again come down to Pampa and Borger, who finished first and second in both boys and girls play last year.

"Golf is a little different from other sports in that you can play A and B teams in district," he said. "Estacado and Dunbar don't play golf, but everybody else will have two teams. So we're really competing in a 14-team field."

PRO LINGO

NEW YORK (AP) - The language of pro football can be both colorful and puzzling.

For instance: The Houston Oilers refer to their 4-wideout offense as Red Gun. The Cincinnati Bengals call their defensive formation Spinner. The Indianapolis Colts have named their wideout offensive set the Rocket. The Seattle Seahawk defense is called Eagle because it is based in part on the Philadelphia Eagle defense.

LIBERTY WAITS

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) - Liberty University wants to join the Southern Conference but may have to wait a couple of years before a yes or no is forthcoming.

The conference is studying the athletic program at the school here. Liberty just completed its first season playing basketball in NCAA Division I.

"Hopefully we can get as much experience (before district rounds begin) as possible," he added. "That's why we scheduled so many tournaments early where we can take both boys and girls B teams."

Girls coach Donnie O'Rand said her team's chances for 1990 were good.

"We've got a chance to win some tournaments," she said, "but we're going to have to play really well in our district rounds to challenge Pampa and Borger."

O'Rand added that Grijalva should be the favorite to repeat as the girls medalist.

"She's hitting the ball real good right now. I look for her to be in the 80s most of the time. It could be the low 80s or the high 80s, but that would put her up there."

The Herd will host the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Invitational on March 9-10 at Pitman Municipal Golf Course. The two-day event will feature both boys and girls fields.

Pitman GC will also be the sight of the fourth round of boys and girls district play on April 13.

B'ball union sets deadline

NEW YORK (AP) - Baseball players and owners are pushing brinkmanship to the limit and today it might go over the line.

The sport was on the verge of all-out war Wednesday when owners made a proposal that caused players to respond with such outrage that the regular season was put in jeopardy.

The plan attacked the heart of salary arbitration - the process that allows players to latch onto free-agent contracts. The players association responded with incredulity.

"If this group of owners is surprised by our reaction, they've been asleep for 15 years," union chief Donald Fehr said. "If they didn't know it would provoke outrage, they should have. It's the kind of approach that causes the players to ask, 'Why are we even here?'"

The union has set today as the deadline for recessing talks. If no progress is made, Fehr will tour the country for the next 10 days to update his players. And that jeopardizes the start of the regular season on April 2.

"This puts it more at risk," management negotiator Chuck O'Connor said of opening day. "I'd be less than candid if I didn't say that."

After 26 negotiating sessions over three months, the sides are no closer to an agreement than when they started. And Wednesday's proposal, players said, made things worse.

"We seemed to be moving forward," Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Orel Hershiser said. "All of a sudden, we go backward."

O'Connor, however, defended the proposal, the third major plan presented by owners since talks began Nov. 28.

"We put a proposal out there that deserved a principled response, not just an emotional 'No, I don't want any part of it,'" O'Connor said. "I'm not going to go on an emotional binge and say this is the end of the baseball world as we know it."

The owners' plan would not allow players involved in arbitration to compare their salaries to free-agent contracts or most multi-year contracts. It would instead force players to compare themselves only to those at the same position and with the same number of service years.

"The proposal was designed not to be accepted," union lawyer Eugene Orza said. "It was designed to put the season on the brink and it has. It is an invitation to cancel regular-season games."

The owners' Player Relations Committee - Bud Selig of Milwaukee, Jerry Reinsdorf of the Chicago White Sox, John McMullen of Houston, Fred Wilpon of the New York Mets, Carl Pohlad of Minnesota and Fred Kuhlmann of St. Louis - was to meet in New York today. Commissioner Fay Vincent and O'Connor said earlier this week that a struggle between hardliners and conciliatory owners was occurring.

"Let's wait until the process is over to sort it all out," Vincent said. "I will say (the PRC meeting) is an important one."

A management source and two player agents said a battle was taking place within the PRC over how to handle the situation. Wednesday's proposal, according to one player agent, was an indication that the hardliners were vying for control.

The sources, all of whom spoke on the condition they not be identified, all said they believed that Reinsdorf, Selig and McMullen were the hardliners on the PRC.

Sulaiman staying put

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Like Buster Douglas, Jose Sulaiman has gotten off the floor to win a big fight and will continue as president of the World Boxing Council.

Despite reports that he would resign or be ousted during an emergency meeting of the WBC executive committee, Sulaiman told The Associated Press earlier this week that he had no intention of leaving the post he has held for 14 years.

And on Wednesday, he won support from a majority of the nine member federations that comprise the WBC. A WBC official said Sulaiman received support from seven federations and was then given "absolute support" by the rest of the group.

Eduardo Lamazon, the WBC's executive secretary, said Sulaiman's status was never an issue. He said the meeting had been called in order to review the controversy surrounding the delay in recognizing Douglas as the heavyweight champion after his 10th-round knockout of Mike Tyson in Tokyo on Feb. 11.

"There was no need to ratify him because his position was not made an issue at this meeting, only situations like the Tyson-Douglas fight," Lamazon said.

After that fight, promoter Don King protested to Sulaiman and Gilberto

Mendoza, head of the World Boxing Association, over a long count by the referee when Douglas was knocked down by Tyson in the eighth round.

Several hours later, Sulaiman said he was holding up WBC recognition of the result until the executive committee looked into the matter. Charges were made that King influenced Sulaiman to hold back recognition of Douglas' victory.

"I am not a man avowed to anybody, and I was called a dictator, and on the other side, I'm called a puppet of Don King," Sulaiman said. "How can a dictator be a puppet?"

Steve Crosson resigned as WBC treasurer last week in protest of Sulaiman's action in Tokyo.

The WBC also said Wednesday that it would sanction a heavyweight title defense by Douglas against top-ranked challenger Evander Holyfield, with the winner to meet Tyson. Nevada athletic commissioner Duane Ford was one who did not support Sulaiman, especially when the WBC approved that Tyson would fight the winner of a Douglas-Holyfield match.

"The WBC has disgraced itself long enough," Ford said. "I think this shows preferential treatment for Tyson. I'm repulsed by the Sulaiman style of democracy."

Hogs clinch share of SWC crown

By The Associated Press

The Arkansas Razorbacks have clinched at least a share of the Southwest Conference championship and the top-seed spot in the conference's post-season tournament, but they still have one goal and a game with Rice remaining.

Lenzie Howell, who missed several games earlier this month to be at the bedside of his ailing father in Dallas, scored 32 points Wednesday night to lead the No. 13 Razorbacks to a 114-108 victory over Texas A&M that clinched a share of the SWC title for Hogs.

In other SWC action Wednesday night, Houston whipped Texas Christian, 82-62, Southern Methodist edged Rice, 65-64, and Baylor defeated Texas Tech, 60-48.

Howell and the other Razorbacks, 22-4 overall and 13-2 in conference play, have at least one more goal in sight.

"I want the Southwest Conference championship," Howell said. "I'm dedicating this season to my dad. This was sort of a release game for me. I've kinda felt some pressure all through the season because I am a senior. After my teammates knew I was hot, they made a conscious effort to get me the ball."

The loss was the first ever for A&M, 12-15 overall and 5-8 in SWC play, in a game in which they scored 100 points or more.

"I would have taken 100 points to the house before the game," Aggie coach John Thornton said. "But unfortunately we gave up a few points, too."

Howell's coach appreciated Howell's efforts.

"He's had his problems. Tonight he showed how important he is to our basketball team," Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson said. "We hope he can finish strong like he did last year."

The Aggies played hard, too, Richardson said.

"They shot well, something like 56 percent. That's about as well as anyone has shot against us all year," he said. "When you allow someone to shoot that well, you aren't playing very good defense. We played 'outscore-them' basketball."

The Razorback defense got 18 points off A&M turnovers in the first half to give Arkansas a 56-43 lead at the intermission. The lead went as high as 23 points - 97-74 with 7:47 remaining, after Todd Day hit an eight-foot jumper - before the Razorbacks coasted to the finish.

The Aggies' big man, David Harris scored only six points and blocked just one shot after he got into early foul trouble.

A&M's scoring was led by Darren Rhea, who hit 11 of 14 from the field - including both of his attempts from 3-point range - to get 26 points. Tony Milton got 23 points for the Aggies, while Freddie Ricks, Brooks Thompson and Lynn Suber added 13 each.

Arkansas finishes its regular season March 3 at Fayetteville against Rice. With a 10-day layoff, Richardson said his team will take Friday and Saturday off from practice, then resume workouts on Sunday.

Houston's Byron Smith had 12 of his game-high 18 points in the second half to lead the Cougars to an 82-62 victory over Texas Christian.

Derrick Daniels added 17 and Craig Upchurch 15 as Houston, 20-6 and 10-3 in conference play, continued its eight-game winning streak - its longest since 1983-84.

TCU is now 14-11 overall and 7-7 in conference play.

Daniels led Houston's fast break offense with 13 points and four assists in the first half, including a trio of 3-point shots, as the Cougars built a 46-31 lead at intermission.

Reggie Smith led TCU with 17 points and Craig Sibley had 14.

Reginald Muhammad, a fifth-year senior, had a career-high 16 points including the game-winning free throws as Southern Methodist snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 65-64 victory over Rice.

SMU clinched a berth in the SWC Post-Season Basketball Classic with its third league victory against 10 losses. The Mustangs are 8-16 for the season.

Rice dropped to 5-8 in the SWC and 11-13 overall.

Muhammad, whose previous high was 13 points against Kansas this year, came off the bench to hit seven of eight field goal attempts. His two free throws with 1:15 left were the winning points.

Rice missed a free throw and two field goal attempts in the final 33 seconds of the game.

The Owls were led by Brent Scott who had 20 points and Dana Hardy, who scored 12 of his 16 points in the second half, including back-to-back 3-pointers to give Rice a 64-61 lead.

Forwards Julius Denton and Ivan Jones each scored 12 points to lead the Baylor Bears to a 60-48 victory over the Texas Tech Red Raiders.

The victory lifts Baylor's conference record to 7-7 and gives them a 15-10 overall record. The loss drops the Red Raiders to 0-13 in the conference and 5-19 overall and extends their losing streak to 15 games.

It was Baylor Coach Gene Ita's 200th career victory. He coached eight years at Houston Baptist University and is in his fifth year at Baylor.

The Red Raiders were led by freshman forward Will Flemons, who scored 10 points and pulled down 12 rebounds.

Nets break 14-game slide against 'Wolves'

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

The New Jersey Nets, after blowing an 18-point lead, finally played like winners in the final 17 seconds.

The Nets, with the longest losing streak in the NBA this season alive at 14, seemed to be in control with a 75-57 lead late in the third quarter against Minnesota Wednesday night.

But the Timberwolves, whose four-game winning streak was the longest by a first-year expansion team since New Orleans won four straight in 1974, shocked the Nets with two 10-0 spurts and an 8-0 run and led 92-89 with 28 seconds left.

Chris Morris' 3-pointer, on which he stepped behind the circle after taking a pass, and Lester Conner's basket at the buzzer and subsequent free throw gave the Nets a 95-93 victory.

"Both individuals had to make big plays that required them to do some thinking as well as execution," Nets coach Bill Fitch said. "The key was Chris stepping back and making that 3-point shot."

"I was trying to set a screen but my man drifted down into the lane so I spotted up and Lester got me the ball," Morris said. "I could have passed the shot up but at that point in the game, I felt we needed it."

Morris' shot tied the score 92-92 before Tony Campbell, who scored 26 points, hit one of two free throws to give Minnesota a one-point lead.

Conner took an inbounds pass with six seconds left, drove the length of the court and hit an off-balance 10-footer as the buzzer sounded. He was fouled on the play by Pooh Richardson and sank the free throw as New Jersey won for the first time since Jan. 17.

In other NBA games, it was Seattle 92, Miami 85; Cleveland 121, Portland 109; Detroit 140, Orlando 109; Indiana 123, Atlanta 96; the Los Angeles Lakers 113, Denver 111; Utah 116, Boston 103 and Philadelphia 96, Golden State 95.

Conner scored 13 of his 17 points in the second half, and Purvis Short led the Nets with 25 points. Sam Mitchell scored 23 for the Timberwolves.

Pistons 140, Magic 109

Detroit won its 13th straight, most in the NBA this season, behind Joe Dumars' 22 points and Mark Aguirre's 21.

Reserve forward John Salley had a career-high eight blocked shots for the Pistons.

Reserve guard Morlon Wiley scored 20 points for the Magic.

76ers 96, Warriors 95

Charles Barkley had 24 points and 11 rebounds, and Hersey Hawkins hit a key 3-pointer with 1:30 left for the 76ers.

The game was tied at 93-93 when Hawkins' 3-point jumper put Philadelphia ahead to stay.

Tim Hardaway led the Warriors with 21 points.

Lakers 113, Nuggets 111

Los Angeles blew a 14-point lead in the fourth quarter before A.C. Green's layup with 33 seconds put the Lakers back in front.

Byron Scott, who led the Lakers with 24 points, made one of two free throws with 10 seconds left, and the Nuggets missed a layup and two tip-in attempts before the buzzer sounded.

Fat Lever had 25 points for the Nuggets.

Jazz 116, Celtics 103

Karl Malone scored 27 points before being ejected midway through the third quarter.

Thurl Bailey also scored 27 points for the Jazz.

The Celtics were led by Kevin McHale with 34 points.

Cavaliers 121, Trail Blazers 109

Portland never threatened a 16-point halftime lead, and Chucky Brown and Mark Price scored 24 points each for Cleveland.

The Trail Blazers got 20 points each from Jerome Kersey and Kevin Duckworth.

Pacers 123, Hawks 96

Indiana took control early against Atlanta, outshooting the Hawks 79 percent to 28 percent in the first quarter.

The Pacers were led by Chuck Person with 22 points. Moses Malone was high for Atlanta with 18 points. SuperSonics 92, Heat 85

Trailing 75-62 after three quarters, Miami scored the first nine points of the fourth period and closed to 87-85 with 2:50 left. Nate McMillan's 3-pointer made it 90-85 with 1:25 remaining.

Dana Barros scored 18 points for the Sonics. The Heat were paced by Glen Rice and Tellis Frank with 17 each.

St. John's tops Hoyas

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

Late heroics are becoming a habit for Boo Harvey and making St. John's coach Lou Carnesecca rethink his strategy.

Carnesecca considered calling a timeout in the final seconds of Wednesday night's game against Georgetown. He decided not to, and it paid off. Harvey drilled a 3-point shot with eight seconds left to give the Redmen a 63-62 Big East victory over the fifth-ranked Hoyas.

"I figured I'd call timeout and get something set up, but he had it all the way," Carnesecca said. "I'm not going to mess with him. ... That's the third time he's done it."

Harvey buzzer-beaters had won a game and sent another into overtime.

Harvey's basket provided the only St. John's lead of the game. The Redmen shut out the Hoyas over the last 3:11.

Two other ranked teams were beaten Wednesday night. North Carolina State slipped by No. 3 Duke 76-71 and No. 9 Purdue was battered 90-79 by No. 19 Illinois.

Elsewhere, it was No. 1 Missouri 89, Iowa State 85; No. 2 Kansas 103, Colorado 71; No. 10 Oklahoma 88, Nebraska 66; No. 12 LSU 75, Alabama 69; No. 13 Arkansas 114, Texas A&M 100; No. 21 Arizona 93, California 68, and No. 23 Clemson 89, Wake Forest 75.

Harvey tossed an off-balance shot over Dwayne Bryant from the right side of the 3-point arc to cap a 7-0 run at Landover, Md.

"I threw it behind my back to my left hand. It freed me up for that second to get the shot off," Harvey said.

The Hoyas (20-4, 9-4) fell a game behind Connecticut in the Big East race. Malik Sealy led St. John's (21-7, 9-5), with 21 points and Harvey added 17.

Mark Tillmon, who missed a 3-pointer at the buzzer, scored 18 points for Georgetown.

No. 1 Missouri 89, Iowa St. 85

Doug Smith scored 34 points and Nathan Buntin and Travis Ford hit free throws in the final seconds as the Tigers celebrated their return to No. 1 by handing the Cyclones their seventh straight Big Eight loss.

No. 2 Kansas 103, Colorado 71

Kevin Pritchard scored 18 points and the second-ranked Jayhawks shot 66 percent.

The score was tied at 20 and the Buffs had a chance to take the lead when Pritchard stole the ball from Colorado's Reggie Morton at mid-court. Pritchard drove in for a dunk to give Kansas the lead and start an 8-0 run.

N. Carolina St. 76, No. 3 Duke 71

Rodney Monroe scored 19 of his 22 points in the second half and the Wolfpack rallied to overcome a career-high 32-point performance by Aaa Abdelnaby.

Monroe hit just six of 21 shots, but it was his free-throw shooting that offset Abdelnaby's inside play. Monroe hit nine of 10 from the line in the second half, including four of four in the last 15 seconds.

No. 19 Illinois 90, No. 9 Purdue 78

Kendall Gill scored 21 points as the Illini used free throws to hold off late rallies by the Boilermakers.

The Illini hit 19 straight free throws in the second half and 31 of 38 for the game.

No. 10 Oklahoma 88, Nebraska 66

Skeeter Henry scored 13 straight points as the Sooners made it nine straight 20-victory seasons.

Henry, who had 22 points, started a run that extended into the second half and made it 46-36. Damon Patterson led Oklahoma with 23 points.

No. 12 LSU 75, Alabama 69

Chris Jackson's scoring binge ended, but Shaquille O'Neal had 18 points, 14 rebounds and five blocked shots for the Tigers.

Jackson, who scored 146 points in the previous three games and was averaging 29 points for the season, had 16 points, only four in the second half.

No. 21 Arizona 93, California 68

Matu Muehlebach scored a career-high 20 points, 17 in the first half, as the Wildcats took control. The Wildcats shot a school-record 80 percent in the first half, hitting 20 of 25 shots, and finished at 67 percent.

No. 23 Clemson 89, Wake Forest 75

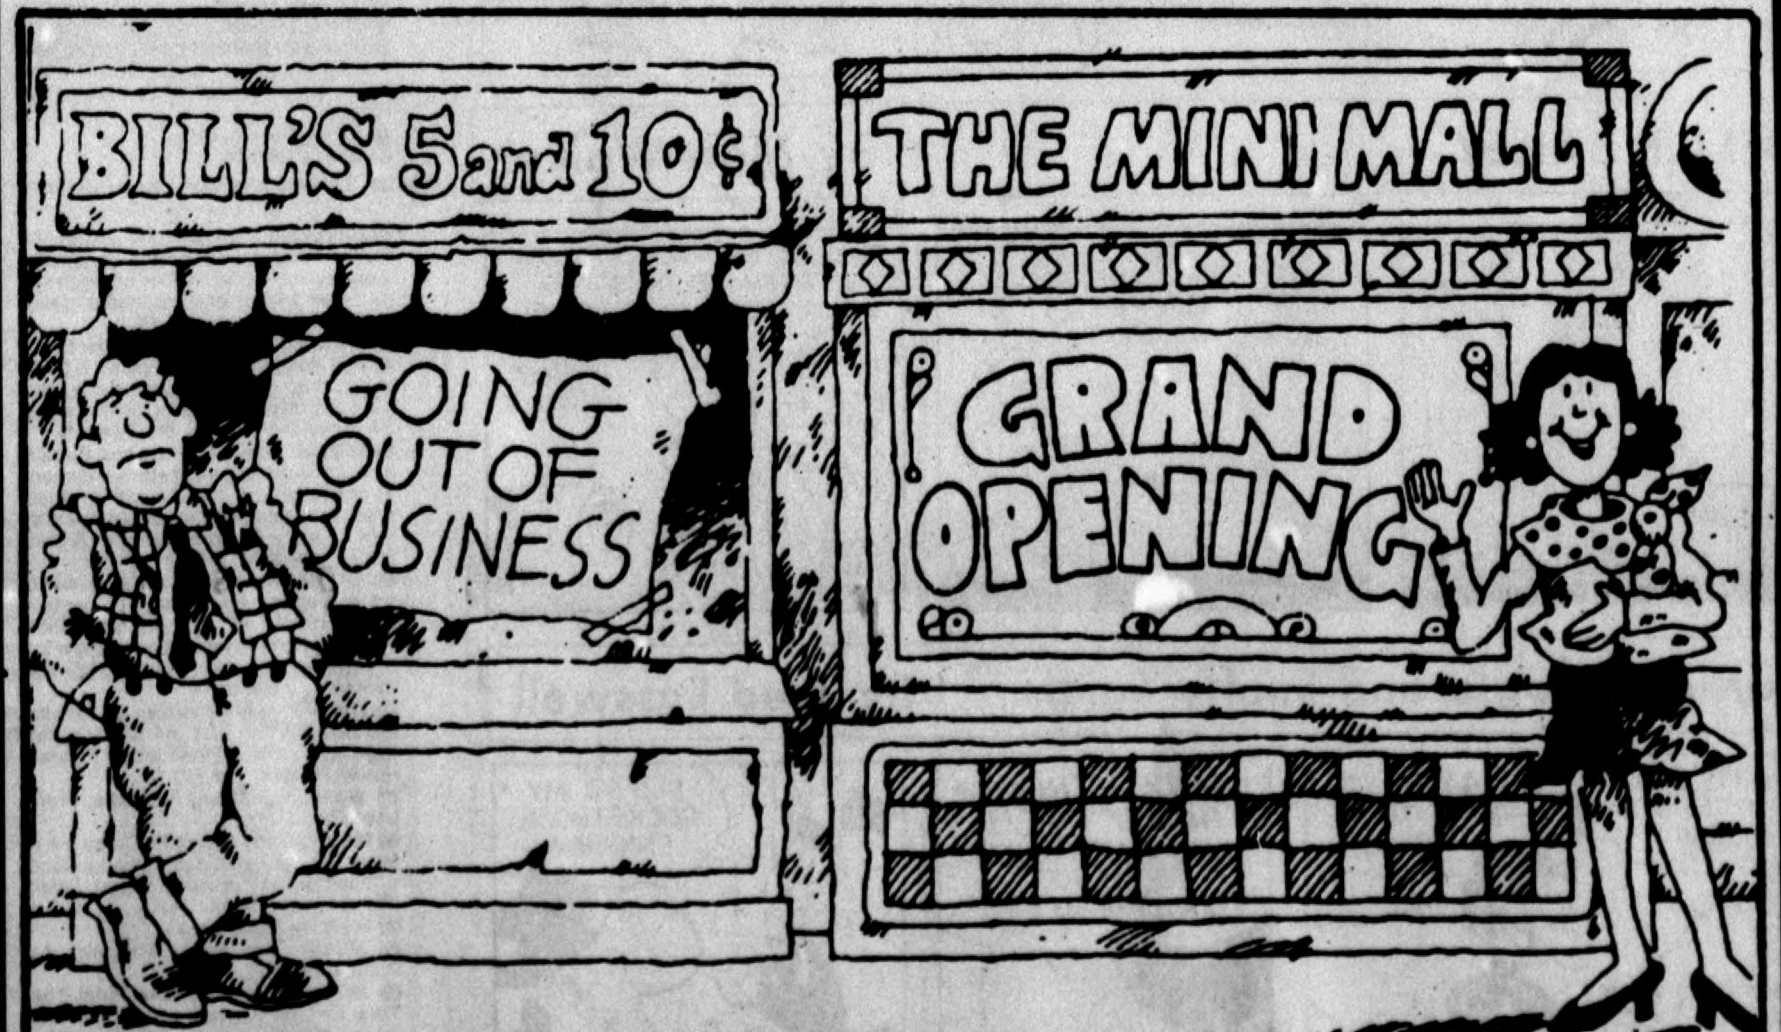

Elden Campbell scored 24 points to tie for the lead on Clemson's career scoring list as the Tigers made a successful Top 25 debut. Campbell, a 6-foot-11 senior center, has 1,761 points, tying Butch Zatezalo (1968-1970).

Here's tips for parents

The number of children left to care for themselves while parents work has been steadily increasing for more than a generation. Today, more and more working parents face unavailable or unaffordable child care.

Latchkey children have increased responsibilities, safety risks and temptations. Both the physical and emotional welfare of latchkey children is becoming a growing concern in every community because they are a group more vulnerable to juvenile delinquency, acts of violence and sex crimes, alcohol and drug abuse.

phone calls, take messages, deal with strangers and peer pressure. Show them how to safely use appliances and prepare simple snacks and meals.

4. Set up emergency plans. Make sure your children know what to do if they lose their housekey, miss the bus, are approached by a stranger, find a window broken or door open when they come home, or injure themselves in any way. By having them imagine what they will do beforehand, you help them become better decision makers when situations arise.

5. Clear communication is reassuring to both parents and children. Always let children know why and how long you will be away. Return on time or call if you can't avoid being late.

The decision to leave children unattended or in charge of each other is not always an easy one to make. Here are some useful guidelines for working parents:

1. Establish house rules. Write rules down, post them, and periodically review them with your children. You may want to cover homework and chores, using the phone, allowing friends in the house, using the stove and other appliances.

2. Be certain they have memorized their own addresses, phone number and your place of employment. Post important phone numbers, including parents' work places, police department, fire department, doctor, trusted neighbors or relatives. Some communities sponsor "warmline" volunteers for children who just need someone to talk to or turn to when their parents aren't available.

3. Equip children with practical skills. Rehearse how to answer isolation at home can be emotionally unhealthy for children. In order to develop self-esteem, manners and other social skills, children need positive contact, attention and practice.

7. If you must leave your children in charge of themselves, make sure that they know wherever you are you are still their primary protector, advisor and loving parent. It is harmful to saddle children with the worries of parenting decisions for their brothers and sisters and other situations they are not old enough to shoulder.

Children need lots of encouragement. They will come to you more freely with their questions or problems, if you treat their mistakes not as failures but as learning experiences. Show them appreciation for their helpfulness and self-reliance while you are away.

As a public service, the Independent Order of Foresters disseminates useful pointers for parents like these suggestions for dealing with latchkey children. Known as the Family Fraternal, the IOF also distributes educational booklets and films to help strengthen families and prevent child abuse. To learn more about these, call the IOF's toll free number: 1-800-82-1540.

Douglas steps into new role in ring

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

Holy Hulk!
Sufferin' Savage!
The blue-collar boxer, James "Buster" Douglas, is going prime time as - are you ready for this? - a referee.

That's what Douglas will be Friday night in Detroit, the celebrity referee in a nationally televised rasslin' match between Hulk Hogan and Randy "Macho Man" Savage for the championship of at least six solar systems.

It wasn't planned that way. The referee was supposed to the self-proclaimed "baddest man on the planet" - Iron Mike Tyson.

Oh, it was perfect.
The Hulk would throw a punch at Iron Mike, who would throw a shot back. Somebody would go down. Who knows, maybe both men would go down. The public would demand a match. Rasslin' fans would be screamin' about what Hulk would do to a shrimp like Tyson. Boxin' fans would be quick to note that Hulk wouldn't have a chance without a script.

Fans lucky enough to buy, steal, scalp or counterfeit a ticket would be screamin' at promoter Don King's hair: "Down in front."

The King, before Tyson's heavyweight title defense against Douglas at Tokyo, was saying that Tyson would not fight a rassler because such outstanding organizations as the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Organization would not sanction it.

In the next breath, the King said, however, that it had been mentioned in some quarters that Tyson-Hogan could be worth $200 million. "We might have to consider that," cackled the King.

"No two men can beat me," Tyson said, playing his role as the King's main man.

One man was enough, thank you, on Feb. 11 at Tokyo. The man was James "Buster" Douglas, who took the heavyweight championship from Iron Mike and dropped him down on the list of Baddest Men on the Planet. Buster knocked out Tyson in the 10th round and, in the process, closed his left eye.

Even rasslin' referees need two eyes. Especially when the participants are Hulk and Macho Man.

So while the King and his men are trying to put Iron Mike back together again, Douglas is cashing in.

Not only did he turn Iron Mike into a tin man, Douglas has told Tyson he must wait for a rematch while he fights someone else, probably Evander Holyfield. And now he is replacing the "invincible man" in the show biz world of professional rasslin'.

It could be, however, a gut-wrenching experience for the wrestling fan, not many of whom are in Forbes 400.

If the Hulk or Macho Man tosses Buster Blue Collar out of the ring at the Joe Louis Arena in the "Main Event" televised at 10 p.m. by NBC, they could be booted.

Talk about upsets.

Rockets swing Spurs obtain Strickland

pair of trades before deadline

HOUSTON (AP) - In an effort to bolster their bench support, the Houston Rockets traded forward-guard Derrick Chievous for three future second-round draft picks and an undisclosed amount of cash from the Cleveland Cavaliers.

The underachieving 6-foot-7, 220-pound Chievous, the Rockets' first-round draft pick in 1988 out of Holy Cross, has been a disappointment for the team, averaging only 5.9 points and 1.8 rebounds in 41 games this season.

The Rockets on Wednesday also acquired guard Vernon Maxwell from San Antonio from an undisclosed sum, Rockets general manager Steve Patterson said.

The Rockets will get the Cavaliers' 1992 or 1994 second-round draft pick, plus Boston's 1991 and 1993 second-round picks, which Cleveland had acquired from New Jersey. The Nets received the two picks from Boston for John Bagley.

Maxwell, a 1988 second-round draft pick by Denver who was immediately traded to the Spurs, averaged 6.9 points, 3.0 assists and rebounds in 49 games for San Antonio this season. He averaged 11.7 points in 79 games in his first year.

Maxwell is one of only three Spurs who were on the team's 1988-89 roster.

On Feb. 10, a man who described himself as a fan of Maxwell's filed an assault complaint with police, claiming Maxwell pushed him into a car, breaking two of his teeth. The man said the assault occurred early Feb. 9, shortly after the Spurs lost to the Indiana Pacers.

Maxwell claimed he was just trying to break up the fight and did not instigate it. No charges have been filed in connection with the incident.

On Feb. 14, Maxwell's wife filed for divorce, claiming brutality.

Since those incidents, Maxwell's playing time has decreased.

The sputtering Rockets are on a road trip and face New Jersey Friday after losing to Minnesota 97-92 Tuesday. The loss was the third in a row and drops Houston to 23-29.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - The San Antonio Spurs made one of the biggest turnarounds in NBA history when David Robinson came out of the Navy and they traded for veterans Terry Cummings and Maurice Cheeks.

Now, they are looking to the future by acquiring second-year point guard Rod Strickland from the New York Knicks.

The Knicks granted Strickland his wish to be traded when they sent him to the Spurs in exchange for Cheeks on Wednesday. The deal came one day before tonight's NBA trade deadline.

"It is great for us that we were able to get a young player who has a terrific chance to be a great point guard," Spurs coach Larry Brown said. "But we hate giving up Maurice because we owe a lot to him for our success this year. It was just something we felt we had to do."

Strickland expressed unhappiness with his role as a backup to Mark Jackson this season and asked to be traded after a blowup with Coach Stu Jackson on Feb. 1. He also showed up an hour late to practice on Monday.

"They didn't tell me what role they wanted me to play," Strickland said after talking to Spurs general manager Bob Bass. "but it's a chance for me to be the man."

"I can understand why I was backing up Mark. He was the man and I accepted the role. But I couldn't play up to my capabilities in that kind of role."

"Maurice Cheeks is a proven winner. He has a (championship) ring which is what we are trying bring here," Knicks general manager Al Bianchi said. "This team needs leadership, maturity and stability and that's what Maurice brings. He's an old head who knows how to play the game."

Cheeks, 33, was traded from Philadelphia to San Antonio last summer after spending 11 years with the 76ers. He averaged 10.9 points and six assists in 35 minutes per game with the Spurs.

In 11 seasons with the 76ers, Cheeks was a four-time All-Star, averaging 12.2 points and 7.3 assists in 853 games. He is the NBA's career steals leader with 2,024.

Strickland, who left DePaul after his junior season and was the Knicks' top pick in the 1988 draft, averaged 8.2 points and 4.3 assists while playing 20 minutes per game.

Cheeks is expected to back up Jackson while Strickland likely will assume the starting point guard role with the second-place Spurs, who cleared the decks by trading Cheeks' backup, Vernon Maxwell, to Houston for cash.

Victoria sharpshooter a sure thing with free throws

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) - At the end of every Victoria High School basketball practice, a designated player has to sink two straight free throws or the entire team runs. Miss and they run again, and so on.

If you're a freshman and have seven seniors waiting to go home, the pressure can be intimidating. So at game time, whenever Jimmy Smith stepped to the line to extend his consecutive free throw string it seemed easy - relatively speaking.

"It puts you in a game situation," Smith said of the theory behind the practice technique. "You're not always fresh when you go to the line, especially at the end of the game, and that's when it counts. The pressure comes from having the whole team run again."

Although he has made those seniors run a few times, Smith is not a bad choice to have shooting free throws either at the end of practice or the game. The 6-foot point guard recently had a string of 44 consecutive free throws before missing and had hit 78 percent (148 of 188) for the season.

"I tried not to think about the streak. I just tried to shoot each free throw as if I didn't have a streak going," said Smith, who watched the run end on his third attempt in Victoria's District 26-5A title clinching win over Corpus Christi Ray.

"I knew as soon as I shot it that it didn't have much of a chance. I just tried to block it out of my mind and not think about it until after the game was over because the game was more important. I regret not taking a couple of extra seconds. I probably could have made it if I would have."

Smith fell well short of the national record of 126 straight free throws set by Daryl Moreau of New Orleans in 1979 and was 22 shy of the Texas mark set by Tim Hobby of Alvin in 1985, but unofficially shattered the Stingarees' record.

"Rusty McDowell (who graduated in 1981) hit 19 in a row and that's the only streak of any kind that I'm aware of," said Victoria coach Mike Smith, Jimmy's father, who has been at Victoria since 1972.

Of Smith's 40 misses, 19 came in the month of November. Since that time it has been almost automatic when Smith, who made 13 of 13 in a game at Alice, is put on the line.

"I have more confidence than at the beginning," Smith said. "Now I think it's a gift to go to the line. Now it's just as good as a layup."

Besides being a freshman and the coach's son, Smith is second on the team in scoring at 12.4 points a game and as the point guard is an integral part of the 21-10 Stingarees.

The younger Smith has a couple of goals while at Victoria. "Win four district championships is one goal that would be nice, but going to state would be great."

Of course, putting together another run of free throws is something that he wouldn't mind going through again.

"If I get on a roll like this year and get in a groove I think I could come close again," Smith said.

Meet the Herd slated for Monday

The Whiteface Booster Club's spring Meet the Herd Night has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday at Whiteface Gymnasium, according to Athletic Director Don Cumpston.

Cumpston said athletes participating in baseball, golf, tennis and track and field along with their parents and coaches will be introduced to the public.

The Herd tennis season has been underway for nearly a month while the golf and track teams will begin competition this weekend.

Both golf teams will participate the Blue Ribbon Classic on Friday and Saturday at Fort Stockton. The Lady Whiteface track team will join the linksters in Fort Stockton over the weekend, competing in the Comanche Relays while the Herd track team opens Saturday at the Tiger Relays at Wolfforth Freshship.

The Herd baseball teams begin their seasons next week with the junior varsity scheduled to host the Plainview JV at 5:30 p.m. Monday while the varsity opens Thursday against Estacado at the Abilene invitational tournament.

Cumpston said refreshments will be served at Meet the Herd Night and encouraged all Herd fans to attend.

Here's An Idea That Can Strengthen Your Family

Tonight at the dinner table, read something out loud to your family. Tomorrow night, let another member read something. A news story. A Bible verse. A Robert Frost poem. A cereal box panel. History. Humor. Anything. Each night a different family member can read a selection. Imagine the wide range of subjects your family will read in 365 days. What a stimulating way to have your children develop good reading habits. We have 23 million illiterate adults in America. We wouldn't have one, if each of them had been served reading as part of their nightly diet. It's non-fattening, but enriching. And it doesn't cost a dime.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have been working on my health for some time and have seen a significant change in my complexion, my energy and overall feeling. I have been using enemas almost every other day. I wonder if this will harm me to take enemas every day.
My problem was auto-intoxication, poison of one's own system that is the start of all diseases such as cancer and sugar. Could you tell me if I'm doing the right thing and give me a method to stay young and young-looking? My family seems to age fast, get diseases quickly and die quickly. Am I on the right track to preserving myself?

DEAR READER: No. In fact you may be endangering your health. There really isn't such a thing as "auto-intoxication" caused by constipation. The auto-intoxication theory originated in the early 1900s, when Elie Metchnikoff, a Russian scientist, proposed that diseases were caused by toxins from the colon. Keep in mind germs were just being discovered then and medicine was far more primitive than it is today. Auto-intoxication was advanced as a cause for aging and some people even had their colons removed because of this mistaken idea. I must say that some of the advertisements I see today for laxatives seem to reinforce this disproved concept. Evidently the manufacturers have not learned anything in about 100 years, or perhaps they have learned how to take advantage of people to market products.

How dangerous an enema may depend on what you use for an enema and how you take an enema. They can be quite dangerous. As many as 30 percent of individuals who have a soapsuds enema have abnormal bowel function for three months or longer. Tap-water enemas may cause water intoxication with a dangerous fall in potassium levels. Coffee enemas have the same effect.
I have discussed enemas in Special Report 77, Do You Need a Laxative?, which I'm sending you. Others who want this report can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/77, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Tap water enemas may be used occasionally while training the bowel to regain normal function. I have explained the proper way to take them in the report.
To stay youthful and feel well you need to avoid bad habits — enemas and laxatives included — eat properly and maintain a proper exercise program.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have a question about fat in corn oil. My husband says corn has no fat — so where does the oil content come from? We are trying to cut down on fat and would appreciate some information on that.
DEAR READER: Corn oil is fat and it comes from corn. About 12 percent of the calories in raw sweet corn are from fat. That is really a low-fat food. Corn, like many vegetables and fruit, appears to be even lower in fat, because so few grams are from fat and so many from water, but there are nine calories per gram of fat. When expressed as a percent of total calories, the real fat content is apparent.

Corn oil is relatively low in saturated fat, as only 13 percent of the calories of fat are from saturated fat. Like all vegetables it contains no cholesterol.

Most vegetables and fruits are low-calorie, low-fat foods, low in saturated fat. The problem is what we add to them such as butter, margarine and salad dressings. Otherwise, fruits and vegetables as a major source of calories in the diet help greatly to reduce the total fat and saturated fat in our diet.

Social Security

Between now and the end of March, eligible people can sign up for Medicare medical insurance, Jim Talbot, Social Security manager in Amarillo, said today. The open enrollment period is set aside each year to allow people to change their minds if they did not previously choose to have the medical insurance portion of Medicare, or once had it and dropped it.

The medical insurance part of Medicare helps pay the costs of physicians' services, outpatient hospital services, durable medical equipment, and certain other medical items and services not covered by Medicare hospital insurance.

For people who enroll now, medical insurance protection starts July 1, Talbot said. The basic premium rate this year is $28.60 a month, and it increases by 10 percent for each year an eligible person chooses not to enroll.

Questions about Medicare can be answered by calling the Medicare toll-free phone number 1-800-888-1770. To sign up for medical insurance or get other Social Security information, people should contact Social Security, Talbot said. The Amarillo Social Security office is located at 3501 W. 45th, Suite E. The phone number is 1-800-234-5772.

The real name for the Statue of Liberty is "Liberty Enlightens the World."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The issue here is stepchildren. Both my husband and I have them, and we are trying to be fair. My children are tots, and his are college-age. "Hank" has to adjust to having little ones around again, and I must adjust to having kids old enough to do as they please.

This is where we have trouble: The big guys have never been asked to take out the trash, clean a bathroom or hang up their clothes. When Hank asks them to stick around and help out, they always have plans and leave. He says, "Oh well, they're grown." I say, "If they're so grown, how come they are still living with us and paying nothing?"

Hank says his kids have a right to live here just like mine. I agree, but his aren't youngsters anymore. I'm only eight years older than his oldest son.

Why doesn't Hank see that his sons aren't learning how to function in the real world when they enjoy all the privileges of adults and accept none of the responsibilities? Their dad has tried to get them to pay $10 a week to help with groceries.

The 20-year-old has never given us a dime, and his dad hasn't pushed it. One day last week, Hank lost his temper and threatened to put the kid's belongings on the porch if he didn't start helping out. Ten minutes later, he went running after him and apologized because he didn't want him to be mad. What can I do besides be patient and hope they leave before I'm on Social Security? -- Stepped on in Florida

DEAR FLORIDA: If ever I saw a situation that cries out for counseling, it's yours. As things stand, everybody is sure to lose. Since the majority of second-and-third-marriage failures are caused by problems with the stepchildren, I suggest that you make an appointment with a family therapist as soon as possible.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please say a word or behalf of all the lonely and rejected children who never get invited to birthday parties. Children tend to ask attractive and popular classmates, because they want to get on the good side of these "stars." In a way, it's a social bribe.

Parents, please encourage your children to invite two or three classmates who may not be at the top of their friendship list. It would mean so much to the youngsters who aren't outstanding or accomplished. I know, because my 11-year-old son is one of them. -- Caring Colorado Mom

DEAR MOM: You have made a splendid suggestion, one that I hope will be taken seriously by all parents who read this column.

Children need to be taught kindness at an early age. I can think of no better way than by pointing out that they must include classmates and acquaintances who aren't especially good-looking or popular. This can make a big difference in the way a child thinks about relationships throughout his or her life.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A man

I work with has a lovely wife who is about 35. He keeps saying if anything happens to "Erma," he's going to marry a woman over 40, because, "They don't yell. They don't tell. They don't swell. And they're grateful as hell." What do you think about this creep's reasoning? -- South Bend

DEAR S.B.: The creep is mistaken. These days women over 40 yell, they tell and they also swell. And often their gratitude is expressed with a paternity suit.

An alcohol problem? How can you help yourself or someone you love? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. (In Canada, send $4.45.)

Chronic snorers cope

NEW YORK (AP) - Whether you sound like a train rumbling past the window or a sail flapping in the breeze, you're among 45 percent of the adult population that snores occasionally or 25 percent known as habitual snorers.

Dr. Frank E. Lucente, chairman of the Department of Otolaryngology, Head and Neck Surgery at the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary, says there are several things you can do to try to reduce the frequency of snoring before resorting to more drastic measures such as surgery or divorce.

- Keep fit. Overweight people are often problem snorers.
- Avoid tranquilizers and sleeping pills.
- Avoid alcoholic beverages for three hours before bedtime.
- Eat meals at least three hours before retiring.
- Establish regular sleep patterns.

- Sleep on your side instead of your back. Consider sewing a pocket on the back of your pajamas to hold a tennis ball. This will prevent you from sleeping on your back.

- Try tilting your bed upward by placing a brick under each bedpost at the head of the bed.

- Allow the non-snorer to go to sleep first.
