Amistad will begin building

Groundbreaking was scheduled for 5 p.m. today for a new 30-unit housing project in Hereford designed for agricultural workers and their families.

The project will be managed by Amistad Housing Development Corporation of Hereford. Construction is set to begin Monday at the site at the corner of South Texas and Higgins streets in Hereford.

The project is designed for the possible addition of 20 more units, if funding is approved.

The facility will include 12 two-bedroom units, 12 three-bedroom units and six four-bedroom units, as well as a day care center, laundry facilities, offices for a manager, and large playground and parking areas.

The project will take about nine months to complete. Hallmark Builders of Amarillo is the lead contractor for the project, but several local firms are expected to be subcontractors for the project.

If construction begins on Monday as scheduled, it will culminate about four years of work by several local residents to provide better housing for farm workers. Amistad was able to get loans and grants of $1.275 million for the Farmers Home Administration for the 30 units.

Seniors to celebrate

The Hereford Senior Citizens Association will celebrate its 15th birthday with groundbreaking for its new expansion project at 5 p.m. Saturday at the Senior Center, 426 Ranger, in Hereford.

The association, which boasts over 1,200 members and has one of the finest facilities in the area, will greatly expand the center through two ambitious projects to better serve its growing membership.

Events will include speakers and entertainment, a supper, and recognition of past board members and charter members of the organization.

Firefighters faced with hot stack

GOP hopefuls attack others

HOUSTON (AP) - The lottery may be occupying the interests of the Democratic gubernatorial contenders, but Republican hopefuls for the state's top job were more inclined to take shots at their party's front runner in the GOP's portion of a debate doubleheader.

While opponents denied they ganged up on West Texas oil man Clayton Williams, the political newcomer was the target of repeated barbs as being more a candidate of the Wild West and not the Texas of the future.

"This is not 1890 and slogans won't get it done," said Dallas attorney Tom Luce. "I don't think we can ride horseback into the space age."

Williams has been featured in several television commercials that show him riding a horse and advocating an anti-crime program that includes boot camps for young drug offenders to "bust rocks."

In Wednesday's debate, Democrats sparred over many issues, but spent a lot of time arguing about the lottery. Attorney General Jim Mattox, State Treasurer Ann Richards and former Gov. Mark White said they supported a lottery, but Mattox accused the others of jumping on the bandwagon after it was deemed politically safe.

In the second gubernatorial debate at the George R. Brown Convention Center Thursday, contenders Luce, Williams, Texas Railroad Commission Chairman Ken Hance and former Secretary of State Jack Rains argued about abortion rights, AIDS, additional education reforms, judicial elections and prison programs.

Yet Rains said the Republican Party had to consider its appeal to the voters and "our qualifications and our electability."

Hance challenged Williams about his claims to have created 100,000 jobs in Texas during his business career, his campaign expenditures, his "fist-fighting" attitude, his economic plans and his prison reforms.

"Claytie, why are you going to pay prisoners to bust rocks?" Hance asked, questioning Williams' plans for a prison boot camp. "They may be breaking into prisons under your plan."

Williams laughed off much of the ribbing about his commercials and said he was sincere about getting control of the state's prison overcrowding and school dropout problems.

"I didn't know I had so many faults until I was a front runner," a jovial Williams told reporters later. "I think they picked on me more than anyone else."

Recent polls show Williams with nearly 40 percent of the Republican vote, or nearly a 2-1 edge over Hance, while Luce and Rains trail with single-digit percentages.

Williams defended his prison proposals.

"I want these recovering addicts and recovering criminals to build roads all around the outer edges of the Big Bend ranch," he said. He suggested the inmates could build campsites and handicapped access areas.

The debate began with Hance's attack on the initial followup question regarding abortion when he was asked if his position opposing abortion would change if his wife or those of the other candidates were raped.

"It's an outrageous question and highly offensive," said Hance, who was backed immediately by a loud ovation. "For you to come in here and pick on wives of the candidates, that's a cheap shot and I resent it."

"If any of our families were assaulted, I like the others, would give blood and compassion. The next thing is to grab the person who committed the assault by the throat and take him by the courthouse."

LBJ's fraud may have been huge

DALLAS (AP) - When Lyndon Johnson introduced himself to his new Senate colleagues in 1949 as "Landslide Lyndon," he wasn't telling the truth, says a new book which questions whether Johnson should have been there.

In a soon-to-be-published biography of Johnson, author Robert A. Caro claims that thousands of bogus votes were stuffed in ballot boxes across South Texas during the 1948 primary election.

Johnson for years was unable to shake rumors that his 87-vote primary victory over former Gov. Coke Stevenson with 200 votes added to ballot Box 13 in Jim Wells County.

But Caro also says some votes for Stevenson were improperly credited to Johnson.

"Not 87 votes 'changed history' and not 200, but thousands -many thousands in fact," Caro wrote.

Caro's allegations of massive vote fraud were published in the Feb. 5 issue of The New Yorker, which concluded a four-part series based on Caro's book, "The Years of Lyndon Johnson: Means of Ascent."

The book, due to be published in March, is the second of Caro's planned four volumes of the late president. "Means of Ascent" covers the years from 1941 through 1948.

The biographer interviewed scores of people involved in the campaigns and scoured court transcripts and available election records.

In 1948, Johnson sacrificed a congressional seat he held for more than a decade to run against Stevenson and vowed his political career would be over if he did not win the Democratic nomination.

Stevenson beat Johnson by more than 20,000 votes in the first primary and Johnson knew the runoff would be closely decided, Caro writes.

Caro contends that Duval County Commissioner George B. Parr engineered Johnson's comeback in the runoff, by rigging votes for Johnson in several Rio Grande Valley counties, including Dimmitt, Cameron and Zapata.

Caro says the election fraud continued for six days after the election, as Valley officials kept amending their returns to the Texas Election Bureau with the leading swinging back and forth.

On the sixth day, Sept. 3, Johnson was pronounced the winner by an 87-vote margin. Stevenson launched a court battle that was settled in the Supreme Court.

After Johnson was accused of electoral fraud, he countered with the claim that Stevenson rigged votes throughout the state.

Austin attorney and Johnson advisor Edward A. Clark told Caro that Johnson's contention that Stevenson aides stole votes in the Valley was incorrect. Clark was one of only three members of Johnson's high command still alive when Caro conducted his interviews in the 1980s.

"They didn't know how and Gov. Stevenson didn't know how," Clark said.

Jim Wells election Judge Luis Salas, who for years staunchly denied any election fraud occurred during the 1948 runoff, told Caro that 200 names were added days after the election. Salas made a similar claim to The Associated Press in 1977.

Salas said Johnson was in the room when Parr told Salas to add 200 names to the poll sheets.

Former Johnson aides have denied that Johnson was in the room and Caro writes that Salas may have mistaken Johnson for an aide or pilot who closely resembled him.

Caro says he interviewed Salas in 1986 in Houston. The 84-year-old gave Caro a manuscript he had written detailing the Box 13 fraud.

In the manuscript, Salas confessed to being party to the ballot-box stuffing.

Salas wrote of a 1948 courtroom encounter with Stevenson. "At that moment I had pity and compassion for the man, we stole his well-deserved candidacy..."

Johnson recorded 43,409 votes in the Valley to 19,367 for Stevenson.

Republicans want end to mandates

AUSTIN (AP) - Most state mandates for public education would be eliminated under a plan proposed by the House Republican caucus, but the group hasn't addressed the school finance system, which was ruled unconstitutional by the Texas Supreme Court.

"Our purpose is to decide what it is we want out of an educational system before we start talking about money," Rep. Alan Schoolcraft of San Antonio said Thursday.

Caucus members said they would propose a school funding plan later, but they first wanted to push for return control of public education to local school districts.

"We feel that the upcoming session is a real opportunity for the people of Texas, as well as the Texas Legislature, to come up and be forthright and make some major changes in education ... not just throw good money after bad, which a lot of the proposals that are being made are doing," said Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland.

All 60 caucus members in the 150-member House back the plan, he said, and bills that would implement it will be introduced for the special legislative session that begins Feb. 27.

In touting more local control, Rep. Kent Grusendorf of Arlington said, "We've tied the districts' hands, we've tied the teachers' hands, by passing rules ... which discourage individual creativity and initiative in the classroom."

The Republicans' plan would eliminate most Texas Education Agency rules and state statutes, after an examination to decide which they believe are necessary.

Among programs that could be dropped is the teacher career ladder, said Rep. Fred Hill of Richardson. He said the ladder, which links teacher bonuses to experience and evaluations, is "tying up a lot of creative time."

New Soviet party system only 'half-step forward,' Yeltsin says

MOSCOW (AP) - Populist Boris N. Yeltsin said a new party should be formed unless the ruling Communists remove conservatives from the leadership, and reformers agreed the party must do more than renounce its legal claim to power.

Yeltsin, an unorthodox Communist who has emerged as the leading advocate of far-reaching change, on Thursday called the party's new program only a "half-step forward."

"You talk about approving this program, how can I do it?" he asked. A second party should be formed unless the congress removes conservatives from the party hierarchy, said Yeltsin, who cast the only vote against the changes Wednesday in the policy-making Central Committee.

Reformers said the party must end its seven-decade stranglehold on the nation's institutions to fulfill its promise Wednesday for a multiparty political system.

"It is necessary to eliminate party organizations in the army, the police, the KGB, the courts, in all the state institutions," said Yuri Mityunov, a spokesman for the independent Democratic Union.

At the Central Committee meeting, the party approved President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's platform of renouncing the party's constitutional monopoly on power and accepting the prospect of multiparty democracy. It also called for a Western-style elected president.

The movement for reform is building popular strength, with a growing number of angry crowds across the Soviet Union demanding the ouster of hard-line Communist leaders, Mityunov said.

Party secretaries in Volgograd, Tyumen, Chernigov and Sverdlovsk were removed in recent weeks. The TV program "Vremya" showed a rally in Donetsk on Thursday where people demanded the resignation of Politburo member Yegor K. Ligachev, a leading conservative.

In London, party ideology chief

Vadim A. Medvedev said the country had avoided a "cataclysmic explosion" in putting into effect Gorbachev's program of reforms, known as perestroika. "We have channeled this process into an area of controlled reaction," he told a news conference.

However, many Moscow residents, while hailing the party's pronouncements, voiced doubt Thursday over whether it was ready to allow true democracy.

"The party started out as the initiator of perestroika but has become a braking force," one man said.

Yeltsin, who also belongs to the Soviet Parliament, called the platform "a half-step forward ... that lessens the tension before the (party) congress" late in June.

The party Congress will vote on the party platform and has the power to change the Central Committee.

Yeltsin said the party must reform itself, but the current strength of conservatives complicates the task.

However, he said, "The transition to a multiparty system is just a question of time. It is inevitable and necessary."

Yeltsin said the party platform, which has yet to be made available in its details to the public, contained outdated language and failed to endorse radical measures needed to undo the economic chaos created by central planning.

He said the draft still endorses "democratic centralism," the principle used to justify central planning.

Yeltsin said he favored creating competing factions within the party, but the Central Committee opposed allowing formal factions.

In an interview with CBS-TV, Yeltsin said, "If we cannot feed the people right now, if we cannot produce good clothing and if we cannot develop our people spiritually, it doesn't matter what slogans we shout. The people will never respond."

AIDS spread slows

ATLANTA (AP) - AIDS spread at its slowest rate in the United States last year as fewer homosexual and bisexual men developed the disease and drugs delayed symptoms in people already infected, federal officials said.

But AIDS is spreading faster among heterosexuals, newborn babies, women and Southerners, the federal Centers for Disease Control reported Thursday.

The CDC reported 35,238 new cases of AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, in 1989, compared with 32,196 in 1988.

That 9 percent increase is easily the slowest since the AIDS spread began in early 1981. For example, AIDS was up 34 percent in 1988 and 60 percent in 1987.

"This is somewhat of a continuing trend," said Dr. Ruth Berkelman, chief of AIDS surveillance for the Atlanta-based CDC.

Of the new AIDS cases reported last year, 56 percent were among homosexual and bisexual males. But the cases among gay and bisexual men were up just 8 percent over 1988 levels, while heterosexual-contact cases - just 4 percent of the total - were up 27 percent over the year before.

"I think the leveling off reflects both a reduction in the number of new infections among homosexual and bisexual men, and also the introduction of some effective therapies (such as the drug AZT) in 1987, delaying the onset of AIDS itself among infected persons," Ms. Berkelman said.

In 1989, 547 cases of AIDS transmission from mothers to newborns were reported, up 17 percent from 1988. And while females made up just 3,931 of the 35,238 cases last year, that was an increase of 11 percent over 1988; the number of AIDS cases among males last year was up 9 percent from the preceding year.

Other larger proportional increases occurred in the South, up 22 percent over 1988; in population areas of less than 100,000, up 35 percent; and in areas of 100,000 to 500,000 people, up 32 percent.

Among the regions, the South, with 31 percent, accounted for the largest proportion of AIDS cases reported, compared with 30 percent in the Northeast, 24 percent in the West and 10 percent in the Midwest.

The number of new AIDS cases in the Northeast dropped 7 percent last year, to 10,718.

The majority of 1989 cases - 70 percent - occurred in cities of 1 million people or more.

The number of new AIDS cases among hemophilia patients dropped 5 percent in 1989, from 339 in 1988 to 321. And new cases associated with blood transfusions dropped 14 percent, from 935 to 808.

But among intravenous drug users, the second-largest group of AIDS patients, 7,970 new cases were reported in 1989, a 5 percent increase over 1988.

Nationwide, the CDC has reported 117,781 cases since AIDS reporting began in 1981. More than 70,000 of the victims, or 60 percent, have died.

Sixty percent of AIDS cases have occurred in homosexual or bisexual men, and 21 percent have occurred among IV drug abusers, with 7 percent among patients in both categories.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - For Olympic swimmers Tracy Caulkins and Mark Stockwell, the 1984 Games wasn't all competition. It also was the start of a romance.

The two announced their engagement at Wednesday's opening of a pool named after Caulkins.

"At the Olympics, I actually had my eye on Tracy's roommate," confessed Stockwell, 26. "It wasn't until a recruiting trip to the University of Florida that I realized she was a pretty neat lady." Caulkins went to school at Florida.

They plan to wed in April 1991. Caulkins, 27, won three gold medals at the 1984 Games. Stockwell, who swam for the Australian team, won two silver medals and one bronze. Caulkins has retired as a competitive swimmer and is now an aide to Mayor Bill Boner. Stockwell said he hopes to compete in the 1992 Olympics.

FRIJO BAPTIST CHURCH

VICTOR MCMANUS

LARRY RUSSELL

The public is invited to a special revival Feb. 18-22 at the church, seven miles south of Hereford on Farm Road 1055.

Victor McManus is considered one of the most widely known evangelists and Bible teachers in the world. Possessed with a vivid imagination and the legacy of the old Scottish and Irish preachers, McManus of McKinney is known as "the man from Ireland". He has mastered the art of pictorial preaching. In his ministry, the Bible seems to come alive as do the men and women of the Bible through the pictorial presentation and exposition of the Word.

Old scenes are re-enacted and the prophets live again and Bible events seem to have happened only yesterday. Dr. Billy Graham says, "Mr. McManus has a unique gift in the art of illustration, making his message come alive."

Larry Russell of Greenville will be leading in the congregational singing as well as doing the special music.

During the revival dates, the Sunday services are planned at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday services will be at noon to 1 p.m. with lunch being served at the church at noon. The evening services are planned at 7:30 p.m.

On Sunday, Feb. 18, teen night will be observed with the teens going for pizza after church; Monday is children's night with hot dogs being served at 6:45 p.m.; Tuesday is family night, nachos will be served at 6:45 p.m.; Wednesday is couples night, salad will be served at 6:45 p.m.; and Thursday night is visitors' night, baked potatoes served at 6:45 p.m.

IMMANUEL LUTHERAN CHURCH

The public is invited to Sunday school for all ages at 10 a.m. This Sunday, each class will view the presentation of "The First Valentine." A special invitation is extended to all of the children in the community. A fellowship for adults and children will follow.

"The First Valentine" was produced under the leadership of the Lutheran Laymen's League.

During the Sunday morning worship service at 11, "Righteousness and Reconciliation" will be the sermon. It will be taken from Matthew 5:20-37.

A copy of the sermon is available upon request by calling the church office at 364-1668.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

"The Father's Kingdom and the Father's Will" will be the second in a series of four sermons based on the Lord's Prayer to be given by Dr. Steve McElroy Sunday at 10:55 a.m. "The Day of the Lord" is the anthem that will be sung by the sanctuary choir.

The Seekers Sunday School Class, led by Mrs. Don Davidson, will celebrate a reunion of present and former members Feb. 10-11. The reunion will begin with a reception in the Lamar Room of King's Manor Methodist Home at 3 p.m. Saturday. At 4 p.m., there will be a program highlighting the history of the class and a special tribute to Henry Ford refused to hire anyone who smoked cigarettes.

Mrs. Davidson will be presented. She has taught the class for 25 years. A dinner will be served at 6 p.m. at the Manor.

On Sunday, the class will meet and worship together at their usual time and join together for a catered meal in the church fellowship hall at noon.

An Inner Healing Study Group, led by Nedra Higginbotham, will meet for the first time on Sunday from 4-6 p.m. in the prayer room of the church. Anyone who is interested is welcome to attend.

In Youth News, all members of UMYF or other interested youth will meet for a "Tailgate Party" at 6 p.m. Saturday at the Stark House parking lot. Final plans will be made for the youth ski weekend in New Mexico Feb. 16-18. All forms and money must be in to Jo Linker by Feb. 11.

Other regular Sunday activities include Youth Handbells at 5 p.m. and UMYF at 6 p.m. Sunday School begins at 9:45 a.m. with worship starting at 10:55 a.m.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The 1990 Home Mission Study is planned from 10 a.m. until noon Feb. 14 in the church fellowship hall. A covered dish luncheon is scheduled. Guests are welcomed.

Anyone interested in a weight loss is invited to attend an organizational meeting at 6 p.m. Sunday in the church library.

TEMPLE BAPTIST CHURCH

"The Difference Christ Makes" is the sermon planned for the Sunday morning worship service at 11. The scripture to study is Luke 5:1-39.

"The Book That Blesses", taken from Revelation 1:1-3, will be the sermon at the 7 p.m. Sunday worship service. The public is invited to attend.

Exchange student from Spain gives program

Alejandro Munoz, a Hereford High School exchange student, presented a synopsis of his family life in Spain to L'Allegria Study Club members when they met in the home of Margaret Carnahan.

He spoke of life in Spain in general and several particulars about his country. A native of the city of Gandia, a neighboring city to Valencia on the Mediterranean Coast, he explained that the economy of the region relies heavily on citrus fruit production exporting most of the crop to other countries. Answering several questions presented to him, Munoz went onto compare the United States to Spain in areas ranging from climate to the school systems.

Munoz is currently hosted by the Comos family and will be hosted by the Ralph Detten family at the beginning of March.

The business meeting was conducted by Ella Marie Veigel in the absence of club president. Correspondence was read and standing committee reports given. The treasurer reported that funds generated by Project Christmas Card (a club annual fund raiser) amounting to $4,894.36 were donated to Deaf Smith General Hospital as voted on and allotted in the following manner: the purchase of an automatic blood pressure machine for $2,000 and the balance of $2,894.36 was donated to the Deaf Smith General Hospital Memorial and Endowment Fund.

A community project that L'Allegria Study Club will be sponsoring and underwriting will be two performances of the play "Hansel and Gretel" by Penguin productions as a gift to area school children (K5-2nd grade). The performances are scheduled for March 9 at 10 a.m. and 1 a.m. at the Hereford High School auditorium.

Members present were Carnahan, Janice Conkright, Judy Detten, Carmen Flood, Kitty Gault, Barbara Kerr, Sylvia Khuri, Joyce Lomas, Hilda Perales, Dec Anne Trotter, Ella Marie Veigel, Judy Wall, and Diane Hoelscher.

Sophs fall to PD, 59-51

GO HERD

The Hereford Whiteface sophomores played in Whiteface Gymnasium Thursday for only the second time this season, dropping a 59-51 decision to Palo Duro.

The Herd kept pace with the Dons through the first quarter, tying the score four times before PD got the last basket of the period for a 12-10 lead.

Hereford drew even with the Dons again at 14-14 early in the second period before Quincy McDaniel sparked a 10-0 run that put Palo Duro up 24-14.

The Herd cut the margin back to seven points to trail 28-21 at halftime. McDaniel posted 10 of the Dons' 16 points in the period.

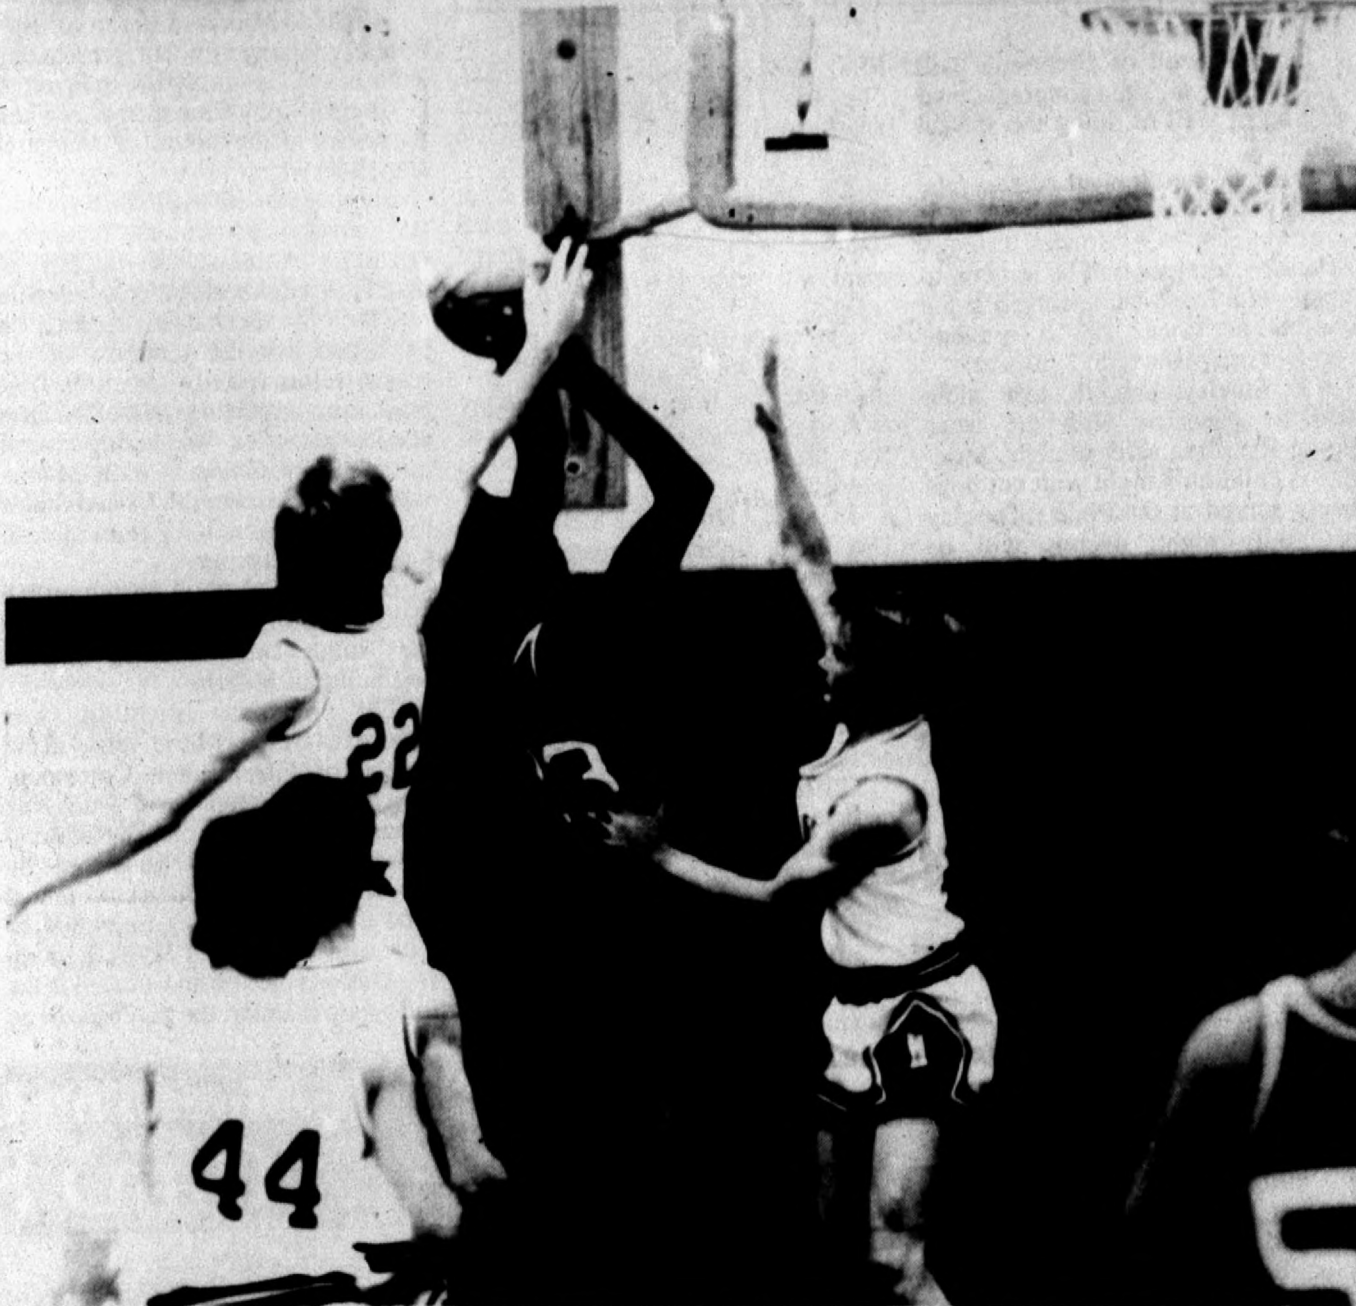

Hereford pulled to within five points at the start of the second half, but PD built its lead to 12 at 40-28. The Herd closed the gap again with a 7-3 run to finish the third quarter trailing 43-35.

Palo Duro almost blew the game open with a 10-2 run that gave the Dons a 16-point lead -- their largest of the game -- at 53-37 with 4:36 remaining in the contest. Another comeback pulled the Herd to within five points again, but PD managed to hold the Maroon at bay over the final two minutes.

Sean Smith paced the Herd with 17 points while Mark Kreigshausser added nine and Kevin Kelso seven. John McBride scored five with Tempie Abney getting four, Mathew Reiter three and Derek Mason, Michael Kubacak and Clay Wallace two each.

McDaniel finished with 19 for the Dons and was joined in double figures by Scott Kerwin with 15.

The Herd sophs will take the floor again at 4:30 p.m. today when they visit Amarillo High.

Jordan held to 15 as Bulls lose

By The Associated Press

Finally, it all caught up with Michael Jordan: the travel, the mile-high altitude and the Denver Nuggets.

"I was very tired. I didn't have the energy," Jordan admitted after being held to a season-low 15 points Thursday night as the Nuggets beat the Chicago Bulls 123-98.

Jordan, leading the NBA with a 33-point average, did not reach double figures until only seven minutes were left in the game. He got only one basket in the second half and missed 13 of 18 shots.

"I told Phil (Coach Phil Jackson) in the second quarter that I was leg weary. He tried to play me in spurts, but I just didn't have the leg strength to play like I wanted," said Jordan.

In other games, it was Orlando 101, Philadelphia 99; Indiana 105, San Antonio 100; Detroit 104, Milwaukee 101; New York 122, Golden State 118; Atlanta 110, Houston 108; the Los Angeles Clippers 105, Washington 103; Utah 94, Charlotte 74; Cleveland 106, Miami 82 and Dallas 90, Minnesota 77.

Denver's defense also had something to do with Jordan's subpar showing.

"Every time Jordan tried to score in the second half, he had nowhere to go," Nuggets coach Doug Moe said. "Every time he made a move, Bill Hanzlik was with him. When you play defense like that, you're going to get a lot of easy shots."

Chicago never led by more than two points.

Alex English scored 24 points, Fat Lever had 18 and Walker Davis 17 for Denver. Horace Grant scored 16 and Craig Hodges had 15 for the Bulls.

Pacers 105, Spurs 100

Chuck Person scored 32 points and Indiana stopped San Antonio's 20-game home winning streak.

Indiana led throughout the second half and the Spurs got no closer than three points.

David Robinson scored 21 points for the Spurs.

Pistons 104, Bucks 101

Detroit, behind Isiah Thomas, won at Milwaukee for its ninth straight victory.

Thomas scored 23 points, including 10 in the fourth quarter. His two foul shots with nine seconds left established the final margin.

Brad Lohaus led Milwaukee with a season-high 21 points.

Magic 101, 76ers 99

Reggie Theus scored Orlando's last eight points and his 18-foot jump shot with one second left lifted the Magic over visiting Philadelphia. Theus missed 10 of his first 12 shots, then scored 13 of his 17 points in the fourth quarter.

Terry Catledge led Orlando with 22 points. Charles Barkley scored 22 for Philadelphia.

Hawks 110, Rockets 108

Moses Malone sank a 16-foot jump shot with two seconds left.

Malone finished with 21 points, including five in the final two minutes, and had 14 rebounds. Dominique Wilkins led the Hawks with 29 points.

Otis Thorpe scored 31 points for Houston.

Clippers 105, Bullets 103

David Rivers made a three-point play with two seconds left.

Los Angeles led 100-90 with 2:35 left before the Bullets scored 11 straight points.

Benoit Benjamin scored 24 points for the Clippers. Bernard King scored 37 for the Bullets.

Knicks 122, Warriors 118

Patrick Ewing scored 22 points, blocked five shots and helped New York hold off visiting Golden State.

The Knicks led by 20 points in the third quarter, but needed Ewing's two dunks and two foul shots in the final two minutes to win.

Charles Oakley had 17 points for New York. Mitch Richmond led the Warriors with 27.

Jazz 94, Hornets 74

Utah held Charlotte to just one field goal in the third quarter.

Thurl Bailey scored 22 points for the Jazz. Karl Malone, who got 52 points in his last visit to Charlotte, finished with just 15, half his average. After the game, Malone said he would not play in Sunday's All-Star Game because of sprained ankle. (please see NBA, Page 5)

KSU beats No. 1 Missouri

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Defense was the key. The Kansas State defense made Missouri coach Norm Stewart almost cry as the Wildcats handed the No. 1-ranked Tigers a 65-58 defeat.

And defense carried Virginia over No. 4 Duke 72-69, ending a nearly seven-year streak of frustration for the Cavaliers against the Blue Devils.

"It's a hard thing not to cry," Stewart said. "We didn't play well, but, good golly, Kansas State played their hearts out. Give them credit."

Kansas State held Missouri 32 points below its season average and snapped the Tigers' 12-game winning streak, the longest in the nation. It was Missouri's lowest point total since January 1986.

Duke saw its six-game winning streak end.

"Virginia played a terrific basketball game. Their defense was outstanding," said Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski, whose Blue Devils shot 34.8 percent from the floor. "They took away our inside game and put a lot of pressure on our outside shooting. For a while, that's all we did - shoot from the outside."

Two other ranked teams lost Thursday night, but both were beaten by higher ranked teams, No. 17 Minnesota falling to No. 12 Illinois 99-72 and No. 25 Indiana tumbling to No. 7 Michigan 79-71.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 9 UNLV 116, Pacific 76; No. 14 La Salle 78, Fairfield 51;

No. 15 Louisville 95, South Carolina 77; No. 19 UCLA 80, Arizona State 72; No. 21 Xavier of Ohio 83, Marquette 78; No. 22 Arizona 95, Southern California 70, and No. 23 Michigan State 60, Wisconsin 57. Kansas St. 65, No. 1 Missouri 58.

Missouri led by eight points in the second half when Jean Derouillere and Steve Henson triggered a Kansas State 18-2 run.

Henson, 0-for-6 from the floor in the first half, scored six points in the winning spurt, including a 3-pointer that put the Wildcats on top 50-49 with 5:35 remaining. Derouillere had eight points in the run.

Derouillere led K-State with 24 points, while Henson scored all his 18 points in the second half.

Anthony Peeler led Missouri with 18 points.

Virginia 72, No. 4 Duke 69
Bryant Stith had 23 points and 15 rebounds.

Duke trailed 33-27 after a first half in which it shot 30 percent from the floor, had nine turnovers, 14 fouls and repeatedly allowed Virginia to shoot layups.

Alaa Abdelnaby led Duke with 16 points.

No. 7 Michigan 79,
No. 25 Indiana 71

Loy Vaught led a balanced attack with 19 points.

The Wolverines took the lead for good with a 12-4 run in the second half, then had to hold off a comeback bid.

Eric Anderson and Chris Lawson led Indiana with 20 points each.

No. 9 UNLV 116, Pacific U. 76

UNLV got a season-high 20 points from reserve Barry Young, blew the game open early and routed Pacific.

Dell Demps led Pacific with 15 points.

No. 12 Illinois 99,
No. 17 Minnesota 72

Marcus Liberty scored a career-high 33 points and Kendall Gill had 26 to lead Illinois. The Illini blew the game open with a 12-2 run to go ahead 56-40 to start the second half.

No. 14 La Salle 78, Fairfield 51

Lionel Simmons had 22 points, 13 rebounds, six blocked shots and three assists and visiting La Salle began the second half with a 23-1 run.

NBA ROUNDUP

Cavaliers 106, Heat 82

Mark Price scored 18 points and Craig Ehlo had 17 as Cleveland pulled away in the second half.

Leading 57-53, the Cavaliers used a 12-2 run to take command.

Kevin Edwards scored 20 points for Miami.

Mavericks 90, Timberwolves 77

Rolando Blackman scored 21 points and Dallas overtook Minnesota in the third quarter.

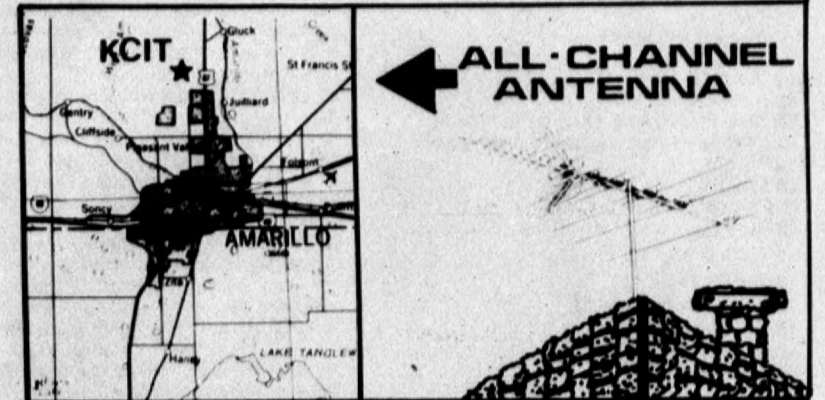

The Mavericks, trailing 50-43, used a 19-2 burst to go ahead.

Tony Campbell and Tod Murphy each scored 17 points for Minnesota.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

It seems that everything I pick up now has oat bran in it. Are these new items really that much better for us or is this just a fad spurred on by advertising gimmicks? — Ellen Bunt, Kansas City, Kan.

The answer to both of your questions is yes — yes, oat bran is good for us, and yes, some of the hoopla is just a current fad. Let me explain both.

Oat bran, the inner husk of the oat grain, is made up of soluble fiber. This type of fiber is believed to be very helpful in lowering cholesterol levels for some people. Due to this fact, it has become widely popular as part of low-fat, low-cholesterol, high-fiber diets.

And this is where the advertising comes in. Because many people have been misled into thinking anything with oat bran in it has to be good for them, it is now being added to everything. The trouble is that in many cases there is so little oat bran in the product that it has very little value as a source of fiber. In addition, many products that have included oat bran are still very high in fats, sugar and calories.

If you're not sure about a product, read the label and check the list of ingredients. For the food to have enough oat bran to be a significant source of fiber, oat bran or oats must be the first or second item listed, indicating that oat bran is one of the major ingredients.

Of course, you shouldn't rely on just one source for any nutritional need, and the same is true with fiber. The best use of oat bran is in a well-balanced diet that includes many types of fiber from sources such as fruits, vegetables, dried beans and peas and other whole grains.

So go ahead and enjoy those new oat bran cookies, crackers, cereals and muffins. Just remember to read the label first and be sure of what you're getting. — Heloise

Price-conscious consumers should be aware of choices

For many consumers, the American shopping experience is most accurately defined by the word "choices".

Do I buy product A or product B, pay full price or buy at discount, select a leading brand or a newcomer? One of the most important choices is also one of the least understood: The choice between national brands and private label products, also known as store brands.

Although private label has emerged as the choice that combines quality and value, many consumers remain confused. What are the major myths that cloud the perception of these products?

One of the most enduring myths is that private label products are generic or "no-frill" products. Introduced as a value-priced option in the 1970s, generics have encouraged the association of low price with poor quality.

The fact is that private label products are of a much higher quality than generics and carry the name of the store in which they are sold. Indeed, these products can more than hold their own against even the most popular national brands.

One reason is that private label items are more likely to be stringently tested than are many national brands. "The reason for this lengthy testing process is the tremendous competition that exists among private label manufacturers to be the supplier of a store's brand," says Andrew Simon of Confab Corporation, the leading manufacturer of private label feminine hygiene and incontinent products.

"Because a chain store will choose only one company to manufacture its private label products in any category, every manufacturer is eager to demonstrate that its offerings are state-of-the-art."

What's more, private label products are carefully scrutinized for retailers by independent testing laboratories which act as unbiased judges of product efficacy. "Private label manufacturers bring us their products to be tested not only for performance, but also for their adherence to government standards of content and packaging," says June Malcnek of Acts Testing Laboratories. "This testing applies to new products as well as to those already on the market."

But how can private label products offer comparable quality to national brands, at a lower cost? The answer is the enormous amount of money saved on advertising and promotion. The manufacturer passes these savings on to the retailer, who in turn passed them on to the consumer.

For many consumers, the most convincing proof of private label product quality-before actually trying the product-is to compare labels. Every manufacturer is required by law to label all ingredients in descending order of volume. The surprise is that many private labels contain exactly the same ingredients as their national counterparts. In fact, in many cases, private label products are manufactured by the same company as the national brand, with the packaging as the only real difference.

Of course, the extent to which private label products resemble national brands differs by product category. Private label vitamins, for example, are often virtually identical to national brands, although the price difference may be substantial.

In fact, the Food and Drug Administration reviews private label under the same criteria as national brands. With other drugstore items, from witch hazel to cotton balls, and foodstuffs such as sugar and flour, consumers will find even less difference between private label and national brands.

The result of consumers "getting smart" is a dramatic increase in private label product sales. According to Private Label Product News, sales in 84 percent of private label product categories will skyrocket in the 1990s. This year, industry experts estimate that sales of private label products will reach $16.3 billion in supermarkets alone.

Moreover, research indicates that, contrary to popular belief, private label purchasers are among the most highly educated and affluent of all consumers.

Private label sales have been particularly strong in two categories: Over-the-counter drugs and incontinent products. "Consumers have been impressed with private label's track record in incontinent product innovations, which exceeds even the national brands," says Andrew Simon of Confab, whose private label incontinent products rank second in sales behind Kimberly-Clark's Depend.

Last year consumers clipped over $4 billion worth of coupons in search of savings, yet the value offered every day with private label far surpasses that available with the national brands. What can consumers look for in the future? More private label brands in all categories, setting new standards for product testing and innovation and offering tremendous savings. In a quality-and-price-conscious era, private label is a concept whose time has come.

District convention planned

Members of the Ladies Auxiliary to V.F.W. Post 4818 made plans for the upcoming 13th District Convention during a recent meeting. The convention is scheduled for Feb. 24-25 at the post home.

Plans were also made for a dance on Feb. 24, from 9 p.m.-1 a.m. All members and families are invited to attend.

On Feb. 25, a joint meeting is planned for 9:30 a.m. of all district members. Department Commander James E. Nier and Department President Barbara Gulick will attend. All members are urged to attend the meeting.

The regular meeting was preceded by a chili supper with Bob Morris, Jim Loving, Mr. Irlbeck and Robin Williams as guests.

President Marta Williams called the regular business meeting to order with 14 members present. The minutes and the treasurer's report were read and approved. Official communications were read and acted upon.

Members present were Williams, Darlene Carroll, Terry Rhyne, Winnie Tyler, Jo Irlbeck, Anna Conklin, Ruth Morris, Betty Boggs, Dora Lee Howell, Essie Martin, Sadie Shaw, Greta Short, Erma Loving, and Leone Buckley.

The meeting was closed according to the ritual and will be reopened on March 5 at 6:30 p.m.

ATLANTA (AP) - Maynard H. Jackson III, the mayor's son, was arrested on traffic charges for the second time in a month.

Jackson, 19, was stopped in Atlanta on Wednesday and charged with driving without a license and improper lane changes. Police spokeswoman Sandra Blount said Jackson was charged and released. A Feb. 21 court date was set.

On Jan. 9, he was charged with possession of less than an ounce of marijuana and following a vehicle too closely after an accident in which his car struck the rear of another vehicle. He was fined $150 after pleading no contest to the drug charge; a judge found him guilty of the traffic charge and fined him $60.

Mayor Maynard Jackson, in a statement issued then, said he had ordered that his son be shown no special treatment.

Abuse of ocean discussed

Alberta Higgins presented a program on "Ocean Circuitization" to members of La Aflatus Estudio Study Club recently.

She discussed the abuse of the oceans and some efforts that are done to assist in the clean up process. She said, "75 tons of trash is cleaned from the Los Angeles beaches each summer week. Some fish are not eatable because of the foods they eat from the junk dumped into the oceans."

In 1960, Rachel Carsons wrote the book, Silent Spring. She wrote man can not control or change the ocean. Now we find that we are plundering and changing the waters.

The club will meet on Feb. 20 with Louise Kinsey and Pet Ott as hostesses.

Members attending in the home of Pet Ott were Lola Jewell, Della Stagner, Emily Suggs, Aileen Montgomery, Opal Elliston, Lydia Hopson, Virginia Beasley, Higgins, and Ott.

Until 1752, the British and their American colonies celebrated New Years on March 24th. That is, March 24, 1750 was followed by March 24, 1751.

Homecoming held by Pep's ex-students

Pep's Ex Students Association held their 30th Annual Homecoming Jan. 27 in the Pep Parish Hall. The theme was "Renew Old Friendships In The New Decade".

Opening prayer was led by Mike Albus, Pep graduate of the class of 1968. The Hall was decorated with blue and white streamers and blue and white numbers on the walls starting with 1930 through 1989. One hundred and forty-nine people registered for the barbeque meal.

The Business meeting was conducted by President Gery Franklin of Levelland. Minutes of the previous meeting and the treasurer's report were given by Cynthia Green of Alpine. Reports were given by other committees.

The $300 scholarships were awarded to Erika Green of Pep, daughter of Wayne and Rita Green, and Gregg Walker of Levelland, son of Robert and Barbara Walker.

The president extended appreciation to all committees. Dale Demel invited those present to the dance. The Alma Mater was led by Martha Schlotzman and benediction was given by Albus.

The next homecoming will be Jan. 26, 1991.

Abundant Life

THE INFLUENCE OF MEMORIES

By Bob Wear

One of the returning prisoners of war said, "I have learned the value of good memories, and I am going to live so that the rest of my memories will be pleasant." The resolution that he made is the resolution that all of us should make. We cannot go back and correct the memories of the past, but we do have the privilege of making sure that the memories that we are fashioning now will be pleasant and helpful memories.

Memories are important to all of us today, but, if we live a normal life span, the time is coming when our memories will be about our only companion. This can be a pleasant, happy time; or it can be a miserable time. We are making this decision today, and every day, as time moves on. Memories are our daily companions; but there are special times in one's life when the memories are more dominant. If we have unpleasant memories, we must not dwell on these but put them out of the mind as quickly as possible; and make sure that our behavior forms no unpleasant memories for our future.

"They teach us to remember; why do they not teach us to forget? There is not a man living who has not, some time in his life, admitted that memory was as much a curse as a blessing." --F.A. Driagne. Most of us forget to the extent that we do not hold grudges, and do not engage in self-condemnation. The incident from which the memory arises will come to mind, but we do have the choice about how we feel and whether we let it linger. We can dismiss it, and re-direct our thoughts. There are times when this must be done.

Living is more than memories, and we must never permit memories, good or bad, to dominate our thoughts. Nevertheless, there is a sense in which our present moves along with us into our future; and the memories being made today will be part of our future.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Philadelphia Orchestra conductor Riccardo Muti told a lawyers' group he was happy to use his podium to speak out against nuclear arms.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Rock star Billy Idol won't be feeling too lonely in his recovery from a motorcycle crash. His fans have seen to that.

"The tidal wave of mail has started," said Ron Wise, spokesman for Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. "His room is starting to look like a flower shop."

Idol's condition was upgraded from serious to fair Thursday after seven hours of surgery for compound fractures to his right leg and a broken right forearm. He allegedly ran a stop sign Tuesday and sideswiped a car, police said.
