'82 Pheasant season opens Saturday

BY BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR
Old Man Winter and Jack Frost have combined to give hunters the cold shoulder as the state's pheasant season approaches Saturday. Cold and icy conditions are expected to greet the thousands of hunters who brave the elements in search of the popular game bird.

The season lasts until Sunday, Dec. 26, spanning three weekends. The bag limit remains the same as in the past; two cocks per day with four in possession. Hen birds are still illegal game. Shooting hours are from one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset each day. The head and feet of the birds must be left attached to the body until the game reaches its final destination.

And, according to the Texas Hunting Guide, "a reasonable effort must be made to retrieve all wounded birds, and these birds shall become a part of the legal bag limit. Birds taken into possession must be kept in edible condition."

As usual, a large influx of out-of-town hunters is expected to be in the area for the opening weekend.

Reports from wildlife authorities and landowners indicate that the pheasant crop is good this year following good hatching conditions for the birds last spring.

The local Kiwanis Club, in conjunction with the chamber of commerce, is sponsoring hunts the first two weekends of the season. Chamber exec Mike Carr said that the full compliment of 100 hunters has already been received for the first weekend, and that a few spots for the second weekend remain.

Carr reported that the organized hunts will be held on some 4,000 acres leased from local owners.

This year trespassing laws have been stiffened with HB 717 upping criminal trespassing from a Class C to a Class B misdemeanor. In addition, if the offender carries a deadly weapon, he can be charged with a Class A misdemeanor.

According to the law, notice must be present before a person can be guilty of criminal trespassing. Notice may be given in any of three ways: (1) Oral or written communication by owner of property; (2) Presence of fence ing to exclude intruders or contain livestock; or (3) Sign posted on property indicating entry is forbidden.

Under the Texas penal code, a Class C misdemeanor carries a maximum $200 fine. However, trespassers convicted under the new law (class B misdemeanor) face a possible $1,000 fine and/or 180 days in jail.

Those guilty of a Class A misdemeanor face up to $2,000 in fines and a year in jail.

Something else new this year is "Operation Game Thief," authorized by HB 1421. Under the new program, concerned citizens may report flagrant violations of Texas' wildlife and fish laws by calling a toll free number, 1-800-792-GAME.

The program is similar to the one used in New Mexico, where officials have collected over $79,000 in fines and paid almost $40,000 in rewards since 1976.

The Texas program offers rewards from $50-$200 for information resulting in conviction of a violator.

Object Of Attention

Thousands of hunters will be in the area Saturday in pursuit of the elusive pheasant population. Hunters will be aiming to bag the cocks (below), but are well-advised to avoid the hen of the species (left). The season concludes on Dec. 26 (Brand Photos by Bob Nigh).

Nuke protester's bluff ends in death

Monument siege ended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumed by a conviction that mankind is drifting toward nuclear extinction, a White House protester — a loner no one much noticed — died in a final gesture for "a national dialogue on the nuclear weapons question."

Norman D. Mayer held the Washington Monument hostage with an reckless bluff on a sunny December Wednesday.

He claimed to have dynamite in his white van, and he demanded that the newspapers and broadcasters devote 51 percent of their space and time to discussing the fear that obsessed him.

After night fell, the siege ended and Mayer was dead.

The 66-year-old Miami Beach handyman, still dressed in a blue jumpsuit, was shot in the head in a barrage of police gunfire after he started driving his van from the monument. He got only a few yards.

"If the truck had become mobile, we would have had a moving time bomb in the city of Washington," said Chief Lynn Herring of the U.S. Park Police, explaining the decision to open fire. The White House was six blocks away.

Mayer, wounded, took down a flagpole. The van flipped onto its side. When police got to him, Mayer was still alive, still warning that the vehicle was loaded with TNT. Police handcuffed him to his steering wheel; minutes later he was dead.

"I said to him that it took a lot of guts to do what he was doing," recalled the Associated Press reporter who acted as a day-long middleman between Mayer and police. "And he said: 'If you know you're going to die tomorrow it doesn't take guts.'"

As it turned out, Mayer's threat had been empty — the van was loaded with nothing but routine personal effects and detonators with nothing to detonate.

Police thought Mayer might have had an accomplice, and they hurled tear gas into the 555-foot monument, then made a cautious, fruitless search that ended after midnight. Mayer had acted alone, officials said.

Aubrey Mayer said his brother wasn't a leftist. "He's more for 'hey, give the little guy a break and get off my back."

Mayer had given Washington a scare; forced the city to take notice of his message, emblazoned on his truck: "No. 1 Priority, BAN Nuclear Weapons."

President Reagan shifted a luncheon to avoid the side of the White House that would be most likely to receive shrapnel if the truck had exploded. First Lady Nancy Reagan stayed away from that side of the executive mansion, too.

Seven tourists and two Park Service workers, trapped in the monument until mid-afternoon, were allowed to leave.

Thousands of government workers at the Department of Agriculture and Commerce and the Bureau of Printing and Engraving were sent home.

Two Smithsonian museums closed. Subway trains pulled through the Smithsonian station without stopping. Air traffic veered away from the monument area. Constitution and Independence Avenues, wide Washington thoroughfares, were shut, immobilizing traffic.

Heart attack claims Robbins

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Marty Robbins, a two-time Grammy winner whose ballads about gun-fighters helped shape the western style of country music in a 30-year career, died six days after surgery for a massive heart attack.

St. Thomas Hospital spokesman Lamar Jackson said the 57-year-old entertainer died of cardiac arrest late Wednesday as his wife, Marizona, and son and daughter waited in a nearby room.

Robbins, who had a triple-bypass operation in 1970 and a heart attack last year, underwent an 8½-hour quadruple-bypass operation a week ago after being hospitalized with chest pains.

The singer, who won the first of his two Grammy awards in 1960 for "El Paso," had been listed in extremely critical condition with a heart pump and respirator aiding his circulation and breathing.

Dr. Larry Thomas, a cardiac surgeon at St. Thomas, had said it was "a miracle" that Robbins survived last week's operation because he was having a major heart attack in the middle of it.

Robbins, the 1982 inductee into the Country Music Association Hall of Fame, was a guitarist, pianist and songwriter. He was a frequent performer on the Grand Ole Opry since 1963.

Many of Robbins' songs and albums were about gun-fighters. Cowboy ballads like "El Paso," his biggest hit, influenced the western style of country music.

Robbins was born in Glendale, Ariz., and got involved in music in the early 1950s.

Besides "El Paso," his other hits included "White Sport Coat," "Devil Woman," "Don't Worry," "El Paso City," and "My Woman, My Woman, My Wife," for which he received his second Grammy in 1970.

Robbins was a devoted stock car fan and began racing the cars part-time in 1965.

Nation's economic recovery won't be 'robust'

By The Associated Press

More economists are predicting the long recession is nearly over and growth will resume next year, but few foresee a strong rebound.

"We're on the threshold of improved economic times," Gary H. Stern, a vice president at the Federal Reserve Bank in Minneapolis, told a North Dakota wheat growers' conference in Bismarck on Wednesday.

"1983, while it will not be a great year or anything approximating that, could be the best year economically that this country has seen since 1978," Stern said.

And William Fackler, an economics professor at the University of Chicago Graduate School of Business, emphasized, "1983 will not bring good times, only better times."

Fackler, Stern and several other prominent economists added their names to the growing list of experts predicting a recovery next year.

Earlier this week Henry Kaufman, the chief economist at Salomon Brothers Inc., attracted wide notice by saying he expected a mild improvement in the economy in 1983, to be accompanied by further declines in interest rates.

But Kaufman and some other economists also foresee the possibility of the economy slipping back into a slump late next year.

And a new survey by the National Association of Purchasing Management suggests that businesses are not preparing to increase capital spending next year.

The proportion of purchasing managers surveyed who said they expected to increase spending in 1983 was the smallest in the 21 years that the association has asked that survey question.

While 59 percent of the executives questioned said they expected the 1983 economy to be better than this year's, only 19 percent said they planned to increase spending. Forty-nine percent said they would spend less next year on plant improvement and equipment.

Charles T. Haffey, chairman of the association's 250-member business survey committee, called the results "very unusual."

"Optimism is building up, but it doesn't carry over in their thinking or plans for capital spending," said Haffey, who also is vice president for corporate purchasing at Pfizer Inc.

Despite vote on MX

NATO firm on missiles

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz is finding "no backing down" by NATO's European members on a decision to deploy U.S. nuclear missiles in Europe next year, a State Department spokesman says.

Speculation persisted that Tuesday's House of Representatives vote against MX missile production might encourage opponents of deployment of U.S. missiles in Europe. The MX is now under Senate consideration.

Opponents had been expected to argue that since the Americans seemed to be rejecting the the $988 million MX system for deployment in their country, it would be unfair to ask the Europeans to accept 572 cruise and Persfx; es, set for deployment starting late in 1983.

"There seems to be a good strong will to move ahead," State Department spokesman John Hughes told reporters Wednesday. He was briefing them on preliminary talks before today's opening of a two-day meeting of North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign ministers.

Shultz, who arrived here Wednesday to attend the session, quickly sought to reassure the European allies that the House vote against the MX would be reversed once Americans "understand fully the implications and the importance of the deployment of the MX missile."

The 16 NATO foreign ministers, including Shultz, are expected to reaffirm the 1979 decision to deploy American missiles in Europe to counter what Western military strategists call a threat from Soviet SS-20 missiles aimed at Europe.

Tired flood fighters watching and hoping

WEST ALTON, Mo. (AP) — The haggard men wore expressions as dull as the drizzling December sky as they huddled around a fire sipping coffee and orange juice and eating ham sandwiches.

"Don't even mention rain," said Don Steinhoff as he warmed his mud-caked hands Wednesday. "If it rains we've had it."

As Steinhoff spoke, floodwaters of the Missouri River were lapping at the top of a three-foot-high wall of sandbags which lay on the saturated levee — the only thing protecting this farming community about 20 miles northwest of St. Louis.

Flooding in Missouri already has forced an estimated 25,000 people to flee their homes since late last week. But West Alton has special problems — it is located on a peninsula between the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, just below the confluence of the Missouri and the Illinois rivers.

Residents have stacked nearly three miles of sand-filled plastic and burlap bags in four-high layers on the Missouri levee hoping to stay the flooding.

The Missouri National Guard has been helping local officials to the south, in Her-culaneum, reinforce an earth dam needed to protect a trailer park.

Even further south, in Ste. Genevieve, levees protecting the old section of town were holding, although about 300 homes on the outskirts are partially underwater and

'Sticky fingers'

Since her husband loves divinity candy, Lavon Nieman says it has been a 31-year tradition at her house to make this candy at Christmas time.

What's so unique or unusual about that, we asked? "Have you ever eaten divinity with a spoon?" reponds Mrs. Nieman, wife of publisher Speedy Nieman. "Out of the 31 years I have made divinity, only one batch could be picked up by fingers!"

She's tried a number of "can't-miss" recipes for this particular type of candy. "Speedy always looked forward to the making of the Christmas candy in earlier years, hoping it would be to his liking. He would even say that it tasted good, even if he had to eat it with a spoon."

And, now? "Well, I think he still looks forward to the occasion, but I think he's motivated more by the surprise element than by his tasting bus."

We asked Speedy about the Christmas tradition. "She makes great chocolate fudge!" reported Speedy.

Damage estimates from tower collapse

MISSOURI CITY, Texas (AP) — Authorities estimate damage will range from $5 million to $7 million as the result of an 1,800-foot television tower that collapsed, hurling five men to their deaths.

Insurance investigators and representatives of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration were rummaging through twisted metal and tangled wires in an effort to learn why the tower tumbled to the ground Tuesday.

After reviewing a videotape of the accident, project coordinator William Cordell said Wednesday that a steel cable was hoisting a second radio antenna atop the tower when a gin pole apparently failed, causing the antenna to fall and severing a guy wire.

The gin pole is a bar to which a pulley mechanism is attached.

"The tower can take a straight-out breeze — even a hurricane — but it can't take the twisting," said Cordell. "The broken guy wire probably caused the twisting motion in the tower and brought it down."

The tower was operated by the Senior Road Tower Project, a consortium of UHF television station KTXH and nine radio stations scheduled to use the tower.

The videotape was made by Andy Huack, an engineer with radio station KIKK, who was making a tape to mark the end of the 9-month project.

Son of official charged with selling marijuana

PEARSALL, Texas (AP) — The 22-year-old son of White House Chief of Staff James Baker III is free on $10,000 bond today on a charge of selling marijuana to an undercover officer, authorities said.

John C. Baker, who lives on his father's ranch near here, was arrested Tuesday after an undercover narcotics investigation in this Central Texas town, according to Justice of the Peace Frank Rebledo, who signed the arrest warrant.

Baker is accused of selling more than one-fourth ounce of marijuana to an undercover agent on July 23, Rebledo said.

A White House spokesman, contacted by The San Antonio Express-News, said there would be no comment on the arrest from the White House or the chief of staff.

"It's a private matter," said David Gergen, White House director of communications.

An attempt to reach Baker's attorney, Roy Barrera, at his San Antonio home was unsuccessful. Barrera's wife said he was not at home and the lawyer did not return the call.

If convicted of the second-degree felony, Baker could face from two to 20 years in prison, a fine of up to $10,000, or both, said Justice of the Peace Conrad Carrasco.

The senior Baker maintains a permanent residence in Houston and his son lives at the family ranch near here, said Frio County Sheriff Benny Sanders.

President Reagan visited the 8,000-acre Baker ranch for a hunting trip in November 1981. The ranch is between Pearsall and Sabinal about 60 miles southwest of San Antonio.

The case will be presented to a Frio County grand jury on Monday, Frio County Attorney James Warren Smith Jr. said.

State still unsure on third prosecution

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A prosecutor who has seen a state inmate tried twice in the capital murder of a prison warden says he is not sure Texas will again try to convict Eroy Edward Brown, even though a change of venue ruling favored the state.

"We're going to take it one step at a time," said Frank Blazek, Walker County assistant district attorney.

State District Judge Darrell Hester agreed Wednesday to the prosecutors' request to move the trial to another county.

Brown, acquitted Nov. 9 in the April 4, 1981, drowning of warden Wallace Pack, also is charged with capital murder in the shooting death of prison farm manager Billy Max Moore.

The first Galveston County jury to hear the case failed to reach a verdict March 4, voting 10-2 to acquit Brown.

Brown contended in both trials that he acted in self defense in slaying the two prison officials.

Blazek and special prosecutor Mack Arnold contended extensive news coverage from the earlier trials would make it difficult to seat an impartial jury in asking Hester, a visiting judge from Brownsville, to move the trial.

Blazek said one obstacle to trying Brown again is that Walker County spent more than $500,000 for the first two trials and lacks finances for another one.

Monsanto to layoff hourly employees

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — A slowdown in agriculture and technological improvements in manufacturing has forced Monsanto Inc. to close one herbicide manufacturing unit and lay off 50 to 60 hourly workers at its chemical plant here, a company official said.

The shutdown, announced Tuesday night, also will mean the loss of 30 jobs held by employees of an outside contractor, said Don Kaldenberg, plant personnel director.

Employees will be laid off early next year, when the plant will be shut down indefinitely, he said.

Weather

West Texas — Travelers advisory for much of the area through tonight. Freezing rain north and central and rain south through tonight. Ice accumulation on roads will continue to cause hazardous driving conditions today and across north and central portions tonight. Occasional rain and a little warmer Friday. Highs 32 to 48. Lows 25 to 36. Highs Friday 38 to 55.

about the arms reduction talks and how they move, but in the event they do not move, there seems to be no backing down by the various countries," Hughes told reporters.

Talks are underway in Geneva between the United States and the Soviet Union aimed at banning all nuclear missiles from Europe. U.S. officials say they are concerned that congressional action against the MX could undercut the U.S. negotiating position.

The NATO foreign ministers will discuss the deployment plan for U.S. missiles in Europe, as well as the negotiating strategy in the arms control talks in Geneva.

In a separate news conference, NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns said the new Soviet government headed by Yuri V. Andropov will be "a likely centerpiece" of the talks.

He also placed responsibility for improved East-West relations on Moscow. "Assertions from Moscow of willingness in the abstract to improve relations with the West have little meaning without positive steps to translate those protestations into action," he said.

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas police have identified a body found in the Trinity River as that of a defendant in the June 1981 gangland-style slaying of three men in a Laredo saloon.

Investigators said the decomposed body of Pedro Martinez of Laredo was stabbed 15 times and the skull was crushed. The body was found in March, but not positively identified until Wednesday, the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office said.

Police said they made the identification after sending a hand from the corpse to the FBI crime lab in Washington to obtain fingerprints.

Martinez, 25, was a defendant in the June 30, 1981, slayings at Jeannie's Bar in Laredo. He had agreed to testify for the state, but disappeared after being arraigned and freed on bond. His brother, Florentino Martinez, was acquitted in April on a charge that he supplied the weapons used in the slayings. The four remaining defendants, three Martinez brothers and a cousin, still are at large.

The victims were identified as Olvido Ortiz of Corpus Christi, his brother, Ramiro, of Laredo, and Daniel Si-fuentes Martinez of Corpus Christi.

Investigators said they were drinking together when six men burst into the bar, argued with them, and then opened fire with shotguns, pistols and automatic weapons.

The attack was related to a drug-smuggling ring believed responsible for moving contraband from Mexico, through Laredo, to the Dallas area, investigators said.

Levees also were holding on Kaskaskia Island, a farming community in the river near Ste. Genevieve that was devastated by a flood in 1973.

"My kids asked me yesterday if Santa Claus is coming by boat," joked Jim Grunwaldt, one of the volunteer sandbaggers.

"If we hold," responded Steinhoff, "it'll be Santa Claus coming early."

Damage estimates in Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois have already topped the half-billion dollar mark. Twenty people have died and four are missing in floods that began with last week's torrential rains.

Winter returned to other parts of the country and fierce winds cut a wide swath through Southern California on Wednesday, uprooting trees and disrupting power for up to 170,000 households.

In Arkansas, Gov. Frank White sought federal disaster aid for the whole state, calling the flooding the state's worst-ever catastrophe.

Federal aid also has been sought for 22 Missouri counties and six in Illinois. The Meramac and Missouri rivers began falling in eastern Missouri, but the mighty Mississippi, the nation's largest river, was still rising to an expected crest today 8.5 feet above flood stage at St. Louis.

The Illinois, which joins the Mississippi just north of St. Louis, was not expected to crest at 28.5 feet at Peoria until Saturday.

In California, high winds continued early today, but power had been restored to all but 7,000 Los Angeles Water & Power customers and 15,000 Southern California Edison customers.

Lions' party not cancelled

Hereford Lions Club president Charles Watson has announced that the club's annual Christmas party will be held as scheduled tonight despite the severe weather. The annual ladies' night event will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

Barbecue site announced

The location of the Easter Lions barbecue this Saturday in conjunction with the opening day of pheasant season is at the Easter Community Building, not at the Hereford Community Center as it appeared in The Brand Tuesday.

The meal will be catered by Savages' Hickory Pit, and will be served from 11:30-2 p.m. Saturday.

Authorities tried to get a dialogue going. But Mayer ordered negotiators from the FBI and the Park Police off the grounds.

However, he received William Thomas, a bearded fellow anti-nuclear protester who had befriended him during their vigils on the sidewalk in front of the White House.

"He figures he's lived his life pretty fully and wants to make a statement," Thomas told a reporter later. "He doesn't care about death."

And during five nerve-wracking visits Mayer talked to Steve Komarow, an Associated Press reporter who volunteered when Mayer said he wouldn't negotiate with police but asked to see a reporter, someone single and with no dependents. Komarow climbed the monument hill with a white handkerchief in his hand.

Nothing concrete resulted. The talks weren't negotiations, just an attempt to open communications. "It's up to the press, it's up to the media," Mayer told Komarow. "They have been pretending that we are not threatened every day of our lives with annihilation."

He said cheerfully: "Well, you've got the gist of it. See you tomorrow."

In a printed leaflet that was distributed by the authorities, Mayer spelled out his grievance against the arms race.

"The world is threatened every day of our lives with man-made annihilation," it said. "It's a disgrace to decency, civilization and reason."

And his solution? "A national dialogue on the nuclear weapons question as the first order of business on an agenda of every organization in the U.S.A. Churches, businesses, fraternal, unions, sports, etc., no associations excepted. "Local state and national elected bodies and bureaucracies must comply. National and local media must carry these discussions daily, 51 percent of their time and space. The book, 'Fate of the World,' to be the guide."

He apparently meant "Fate of the Earth," the best-selling book by writer Jonathan Schell, describing how all human life ultimately would vanish in the aftermath of a nuclear war.

Police learned Mayer had a long record of arrests — for prowling in 1949, assault and battery in 1957, drug trafficking in 1976, passing out literature on campuses in violation of college regulations in 1979.

Thomas, 35, the fellow protester, said Mayer came to consider sidewalk protest futile.

As early as August, he said, Mayer talked of plans to "take out one of their sacred icons." But, in one last effort, Mayer demonstrated for 35 days — until Tuesday.

Pipeline so what?

I may be the world's greatest expert on the subject of pipelines in Siberia, but I can't make the subject interesting my expertise is blowing in the wind.

Let's see if there's any way around that.

As Americans built a pipeline north to south across Alaska to supply oil to Western states...

The Soviets want a pipeline 3,000 miles north to south across Siberia to supply gas to sell to European nations.

The 56-inch pipeline and its pumping equipment will cost perhaps $12 billion which the Soviet Union does not have.

But Moscow has sold most of Western Europe on the idea that if they will put up the money now they will be paid back in cheaper gas later.

They will no longer be dependent on Mideast supplies.

And meanwhile the Soviets will be "buying" much pipe and steel and many bulldozers from the West.

So far that sounds like a good deal but...

Where Europe — for oil and gas — has been subject to Arab blackmail there is no guarantee it won't eventually be subject to Soviet blackmail.

Further, if the West puts up the money for the pipeline this will allow the Soviets to use their money further to build up their military might.

Whether the pipeline will make Western Europe more energy independent is still a question. That it will make the Soviet Union stronger is a certainty.

And a stronger Soviet inevitably increases the military vulnerability of Western Europe.

So the pipeline could become a lifeline — or a noose.

For perspective: Western Europe is now the foremost economic power on our planet. Its gross output is three times Japan's, twice Russia's and at least 20 percent larger than ours.

Since the founding of the Common Market 25 years ago, Europe has consolidated its economic influence and repeatedly asserted its "independence."

Some of us find it difficult to justify the degree to which the "smaller" United States continues to subsidize their military security.

Of all our expenditures lumped under "defense" maintaining troops overseas is the most extravagant.

We can build bombers and tanks and missiles and the money for those continues to recirculate through the pockets of American workers in Seattle and Fort Worth and Pascagoula and Los Angeles.

But the money we spend to maintain American troops overseas is gone forever.

While Europe is preoccupied with its own self-interest and the Soviet Union is preoccupied with its own self-interest, are we neglecting ours?

"We're all in it together. We work hard, play hard and keep close family ties."

A divorcee of several years, Kay Morrison carries a lot on her shoulders with the rearing of three teenagers and the responsibilities of two jobs—working part-time at Helen's and keeping a ranch running smoothly and efficiently.

But even strong shoulders need a rest. That's when Kay retreats to her father's ranch 50 miles northwest of Hereford. "Sometimes when the pressure gets to be too much, that's when I head out to the ranch house away from the telephone and people. I prop my feet up and look out on the canyon. It's good therapy and after a brief stay I'm once again ready to tackle the world," explains Kay.

"The ranch has been in our family for four generations. Although I wasn't reared there, I did grow up on a ranch 15 miles west of Hereford so ranch life was nothing new for me," says Kay.

Hard work is just a fact of life for the homemaker. She helps her father feed the cattle in the winter, milk wild cows, pull calves, work on windmills and mend fences.

"I've become really proud of myself. It's taken me a long time to learn to put steeple in the fence without beating the post to death."

Kay isn't the only one who helps with chores at the ranch. Her three children, sisters and their families all pitch in whenever it's needed.

"My family is very important to me and we are a tight group. Ranching is a family affair. As the family grows, so does the ranch house," says Kay.

"We all got together and added a den to the house to accommodate the growing family population. We did everything from pouring the cement to adding the finishing touches. We worked on that particular project every weekend for three months."

Variety, moderation characterize good diet

COLLEGE STATION -- Planning a good diet should mean a variety of foods in moderation, rather than a few foods in abundance, since no single food has all the nutrients needed for good health.

"The challenge is to select combinations of foods which will provide a nutritionally adequate diet," says Dr. Dymple C. Cooksey, food and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

A good diet should include selections from the four major food groups. Diets require meat, eggs and beans to provide protein, as well as iron, zinc, and B-complex vitamins. Also needed are fruit and vegetables for their

Besides serving as a haven, the ranch is the sight for family gatherings at Thanksgiving and Christmas. "It's been years since anyone has actually lived in the house, but we keep it well stocked and retreat to it often, especially on the holidays. It's a family tradition that has remained," states Kay.

The brunette admits that the transformation from full-time housewife and mother to being self-employed has definitely been a growing experience. "I've learned a great deal about farming and ranching. For instance, I know now how many pounds to plant to an acre and, of course, I had to learn the financial aspects of running a farm ranch."

Her children assist also. "If it's been one of those days when I've had to get on old clothes and go to the ranch, come home and change to go to work or attend to business matters, the children start dinner and help with all the household chores," explains Kay.

Her son, Scott, 19, is planning to attend West Texas State University this spring. Her daughter, Kathy, 17, is a senior at Hereford High School and is employed with the Distributive Education program at Helen's. Wendy, 14, is a ninth grader at La Plata Junior High where she is a twirler.

"I hope I have instilled the importance of working and playing together to my own children. As a Christmas present for my parents, my children and my sisters and their families all got together one weekend and painted their home. We just do whatever needs to be done."

Kay's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Scott, reared four daughters and Kay says that as a child, she preferred to stay in the house and help with the canning and household chores.

Banana Split Cake

Layer I
1 stick oleo
2 cups graham cracker crumbs
Cream oleo and crumbs and press in 9x13 inch pan.

Layer II
2 egg whites
2 cups powdered sugar
2 sticks oleo
Bake together at least 10 minutes; spread over first layer.

Layer III
5 bananas
Slice evenly over second layer.

Layer IV
1-1/2 lbs. can crushed pineapple (drained)
Spread over third layer.

Layer V
1 large bowl cool whip
Spread over fourth layer.

Layer VI
1 cup chopped pecans
1 med. jar Marachino cherries (chopped)
Spread evenly over top. Chill at least four hours before serving.

Mixed Nut Fruitcake
2-6 oz. containers candied red cherries
1-12 oz. package pitted prunes
1-10 oz. container pitted dates
1-3 1/2-4 oz. candied green cherries
1/2 cup cream sherry
2-12 oz. cans salted mixed nuts
1-6 oz. pkg. pecans halves
1/2 cup all purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1 tsp. baking powder
6 eggs slightly beaten

Mix first five ingredients in large bowl. Let stand 15 minutes. Meanwhile line 10 inch tube pan with foil.

Stir mixed nuts and pecans into fruit mixture in bowl. Remove 1/2 cups fruit mixture; set aside.

Add flour, sugar, baking powder into fruit mixture bowl until well coated.

Stir in eggs until well mixed.

Cover pan loosely with foil. Bake at 300 degrees for two hours. Remove foil and bake 1/2 hour longer or until knife inserted into center of cake comes out clean.

Cool cake on wire rack for 30 minutes. Remove from pan and carefully peel off foil. Wrap cake tightly with foil and refrigerate.

Makes one 4 1/2 lb. fruitcake.

Pecan Pie

3 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
2 T. butter (melted)
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 tsp. salt
1 T. vinegar
1-1 1/2 cups pecans

Beat eggs slightly; beat in sugar. Blend in corn syrup, butter, vanilla, salt, vinegar and pecans.

Pour in 9 inch pie shell. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 35-40 minutes.

Flaky Pastry
3 cups flour
1 1/2 cups shortening
1 tsp. salt
5 T. cold water
1 T. vinegar
1 egg (beaten)

Blend flour, shortening and salt with pastry blender.

Mix in cup water, vinegar and egg. Sprinkle water mixture over flour, tossing with fork. Press into ball.

Roll on floured board. Makes several crusts and extras freeze well.

Regulation change to benefit veterans

The Veterans Administration is changing its home-loan guarantee regulations to make it easier for veterans to participate in local housing programs where there are income restrictions.

Over the past several years, various state and local governments have developed housing programs designed to benefit persons of low and moderate income.

Restrictions, such as rights of first refusal or agreements to forfeit excess sale proceeds in the event of sale, are imposed to assure that the program benefits accrue only to the targeted beneficiaries. Amending VA regulations now allows veterans to participate in those programs.

The decision to guarantee loans on homes where there are restrictions on the ages of residents or owners will allow VA loans in housing developments where the program has been limited value up to now and will open up new possibilities to veterans nearing retirement age.

The amended regulations apply for both conventional homes and manufactured homes. Details about those changes are available by contacting the nearest VA Regional Office toll-free telephone number listed in

Majority of headaches not related to disease

COLLEGE STATION -- About 20 million Americans—two-thirds of them women—seek medical help for headaches on a regular basis. This is one of the most common problems brought to physicians.

"Despite being so common, headaches are often difficult to sort out in terms of a specific diagnosis and treatment program. The majority of headaches are not related to a serious underlying disease," reports Dr. Mary Ann Shiner, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

It is helpful to consider headaches in terms of five major types, she says.

MIGRAINES

This type of headache is most often confined to one side of the head. Classic migraine consists of early symptoms -- such as flashing lights or flickering vision -- followed by initial throbbing headache which later becomes steady or dull.

Most migraines do not occur in the classic form, however.

Instead, they often take the form of "cluster headaches" -- so called because they tend to occur in clusters over a period of days, weeks, or months. Associated symptoms may include nausea and vomiting. There is solid evidence that the migraine headache occurs when blood vessels in the neck and head expand.

TENSION HEADACHES

This type of headache is caused primarily by contractions of the muscles of the scalp and neck. Treatment includes heat and massage for the involved muscles and simple muscle relaxants.

In persistent cases, underlying emotional factors may require attention, however.

POST-INJURY HEADACHES

Headaches of this type are common following head and/or neck injuries. Sometimes these headaches do not begin until weeks -- or even months -- after an injury. They generally clear up with time.

SINUS HEADACHES

Sinus headaches should, as a rule, be accompanied by signs of infection, such as local tenderness, fever, or mucus discharge, to distinguish them from migraines.

Treatment usually involved an over-the-counter pain reliever or a prescribed decongestant to relieve sinus pressure.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE HEADACHES

This type of headache is uncommon and more often associated with the treatment for high blood pressure than untreated high blood pressure. When they do occur, they typically are located in the back of the head, are worse upon arising, and generally improve as the day progresses.

PREVENTION AND TREATMENT

Regardless of the exact cause of headaches, two areas of prevention and treatment -- identifying and minimizing "trigger" factors and careful drug therapy -- are effective for many patients.

The list of factors that can "trigger" a headache is virtually as long as the list of headache sufferers. Most common, however, seem to be:

Dietary factors -- including changes in patterns, such as fasting or missing meals; specific foods; alcohol or excessive caffeine; or sudden withdrawal from caffeine; food preservatives and flavorings, including salt.

Hormonal and drug factors -- hormones, such as birth control pills, and reserpine, used in treating high blood pressure, sometimes produce headaches.

Emotional factors -- when perfectionists are subjected to stress, they are more likely to have headache problems.

Environmental factors -- including temperatures extremes, cigarette smoking, perfume, glaring light, and sudden changes in barometric pressure can lead to headaches.

Careful drug therapy emphasizes the need for attention to both proper use -- timing and dosage -- and potential side effects.

Besides the usual over-the-counter pain relievers, these drugs are commonly prescribed for treatment of various types of headaches.

-Ergot alkaloids, which prevent blood vessels from expanding.

-Anti-depressants.

-Propranolol, a new drug with minimal side-effects.

-Diuretics, to reduce body fluids.

If you have frequent headaches, check with your physician. He should be able to pinpoint the cause of your headaches and establish an individual treatment program," Shiner says.

Ann Landers

Qualifies as child abuse

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me if my mother can have our children taken away from my husband and me.

Our six-year-old son was giving us a hard time a few days ago. He kept nagging and whining and talking back. Finally my husband had had enough. He got up and slapped the child across the face. I am sure he didn't mean to hit him as hard as he did. I could see he felt real bad about it the minute it happened. He would rather cut off his right arm than hurt any of our kids.

The next day my mother came over and saw marks on the boy's face. She asked him what happened. When he said, "Daddy hit me," mom went through the ceiling. She told me if I didn't file a child abuse charge against my husband she would speak to the teacher and ask her to do it. According to my mother, teachers are supposed to report that sort of thing.

There were no broken bones or anything like that -- just a black and blue hand print on the boy's face.

My husband is furious. He has told me that if my mother doesn't built out of our business, he is going to tell her she can't come over here anymore. He is a good husband and father, Ann and I am afraid of what might happen. Please advise us. -- O CITY HEARTACHE

DEAR O CITY: Just a black-and-blue handprint across the boy's face, eh? That must have been some wallop. The bully is lucky he didn't break the child's jaw.

I strongly recommend that your husband get some counseling at once. He needs to learn how to control his temper and find substitute outlets for his rage. What he did does indeed qualify as child abuse.

There may be some organizations in your area that help parents who take out their anxieties and frustrations on their children. Call the public library and inquire about social service listings of this kind. Or write to Parents Anonymous, 2230 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 208, Torrance, Calif. 90505. They will send some excellent literature and put you in touch with the chapter nearest your home.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was pleased that you reminded your faithful readers to donate blood to the American Red Cross, but please, Ann, be aware that million of them do not live near the 60 blood centers operated by that fine organization.

Over 2,000 community and hospital-based blood banks affiliated with the American Assn. of Blood Banks or Council of Community Blood Centers could use your help.

Please ask your readers to call the nearest hospital and ask if they operate a blood bank or if they can refer them to the nearest facility. Millions of anonymous patients would be eternally grateful. -- Alan Hoffstadter (Loyola University Medical Center in Chicago).

DEAR A.H.: Thanks for reminding me of the community and hospital-based blood banks. I heard from nearly all 2,000 of 'em. BUT -- according to the Summer Report of the National Blood Data Center Survey of U.S. blood services, the 57 Red Cross services collected 50 percent of the nation's blood -- a most impressive performance record.

Carelessness can mar holiday season

DALLAS -- The stockings are filled with treats, the presents are beautifully wrapped, brightly colored ornaments glisten on the Christmas tree and a fire glows softly in the fireplace. As the holiday season approaches, this cozy scene will be reflected in windows across the country, but the Insurance Information Institute warns families that carelessness with tree decorations or fireplaces can have tragic results.

Each year deadly fires mar the holiday season for many Americans. If you plan to put up a Christmas tree, or use a wood burning stove or fireplace, take a few minutes to read these holiday safety tips:

-Don't purchase a natural Christmas tree that is too dry. Shake the tree, if needles fall, DO NOT buy it.

-Don't place the tree near a fireplace, radiator or heater. Keep "live" trees in a water stand and water daily.

-Don't use flammable decorations.

-Check sockets and wiring of all tree lights BEFORE using.

-Never leave tree lights burning overnight or while you are away from home.

-Never use electric lights on a metal tree or operate electric trains or electric toys near a tree.

-Keep holiday candles away from draperies or other flammable materials.

-Check flues and chimneys BEFORE using a wood burning stove or fireplace.

-Never leave a wood burning fire unattended.

-Never burn garbage or trash in a fireplace or wood stove.

-Equip fireplaces with a sturdy metal screen which fits securely into place.

Also, consider installing smoke detectors. Smoke and poisonous gases can overcome and kill sleeping family members before they become aware of a fire. Smoke detectors can provide you and your family with the precious extra minutes you need to escape.

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I wondered when someone would get around to blaming video games for inciting violence in children.

So far the electronic screen has been blamed for loss of appetite, tennis wrist, sexual transference, and seduction of a minor.

Adults are like that. Every time a kid is having a good time, eating something that tastes good, or wearing something that's comfortable, there has to be something wrong with it.

Frankly, I don't see video games as being any more mind-controlling than their fathers sitting spellbound before 86 football games a week or their mothers mesmerized by four hours of soaps a day.

You want talk violence? I can tell you stories about games past that will make your hair stand on end. In 1943, my mother grabbed a Chinese checkers board with both hands, threw the marbles all over the kitchen and crashed it over my father's head, claiming, "I will not play with thieves!"

In 1954, my husband and I were playing Monopoly with a few friends. Knowing full well that I was down to my last $50, he demanded $3,060 when I landed on one of his utilities. When I tried to reason with him he snickered and said, "You're out! Why don't you just go out and get the chip, dip and snacks?"

Had we not had children to consider, I don't like to think what would have happened.

There are so many things in our lives that have an effect on children, I wouldn't know what to take away. If you don't want them to see violence, you better hide Hansel and Gretel. If you don't want them to see sex, don't let them see a pregnant woman. If you don't want them to know terror, protect them from Halloween; or hypocrisy, tell them Santa Claus doesn't exist.

If you don't want them to be frightened by monsters and things that go bump in the night, cut down the large tree in front of the house that makes weird shadows on their walls when the lights are out and brushes against the spouting. If you don't want them to see war and suffering throw your body in front of the TV set for the six o'clock news.

The other day I saw two brothers fighting for control. One boy yelled, "It's my turn!" The other one said, "Would you flake off?" The first one said, "I'm telling Mom!" and gave him an elbow in the ribs. The second one said, "Get out of my face," and ground his foot into his. A video game? Nope. A fight over a hymnal in church!

Chamber Singers musical presentation set Sunday

Man acquitted in April murder

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A 22-year-old man acquitted of murder says he wants to start his education over again and build a new, more religious, life because he "got more in contact with God" while awaiting trial.

After almost two hours of deliberations Wednesday, jurors acquitted Edward Charles Cox of the April murder of a night watchman at a "brown bag" bar in Abilene.

The bar was closed after the killing when officials decided it was a "public nuisance."

Cox was charged with the murder after a fellow cellmate collected a $1,000 reward from the Crime Stoppers program for information about the slaying. The informant will be allowed to keep the money under terms of the program.

"I've prayed a lot and a lot of people have been praying for me," Cox said. "I knew He would answer my prayers because I was telling the truth."

"All this has definitely changed my life. Since I've been over there in jail, I've got more in contact with God," he said.

Cox said he would like to continue his education "and start living all over again. I'm really a totally different person now."

He said he's studied some bookkeeping and accounting at a commercial college.

Cox testified he and a girlfriend were "in a motel getting high" the night of April 3, when night watchman Ross Graves, 51, was beaten to death at the bar, the Soul-A-Delic.

"I told the jury the truth and they believed me," Cox said after being hugged by relatives.

"I feel no bitterness or animosity toward him," Cox said of the cellmate. "But I feel sorry for him because he lied."

Cox was being held on an arson charge when he met the informant. He later pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of criminal mischief and was sentenced to six months in jail as part of a plea-bargain agreement with prosecutors.

Since he served eight months while awaiting his murder trial, he was released after the acquittal.

Planning Performance

Bert Bostic, music director at First United Methodist Church, discusses the upcoming "Christmas Oratorio" performance with soloists, from left, Oveta White, Bera Boyd, Bobby Boyd, and Courtney Brooke, and Ray Jenkins (with violin) who will serve as concertmaster for the orchestra. The oratorio will be performed at 8 p.m. Sunday in the sanctuary of the church and the public is invited. Not pictured is the fifth soloist, Virginia Holmes.

Methodist choir to perform Sunday

On Sunday at 8 p.m. in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church, the sanctuary choir will perform Camille Saint Saens' "Christmas Oratorio." The choir will be accompanied by a chamber orchestra with Ray Jenkins serving as concert master.

Soloists for the program are Oveta White, soprano; Bera Boyd, mezzo-soprano; Virginia Holmes, Alto; Bobby Boyd, tenor; Courtney Brooke, Baritone.

The performance will be conducted by Bert W. Bostic, the director of Music for First United Methodist.

Charles Camille Saint Saens was born in Paris, France on Oct. 9, 1835. His father died when he was three months old and he was raised by a great aunt.

He began music study at the age of seven as a piano student of Camille-Marie Stamaty and studied theory with Pierre Malden. His first public debut was in Paris at the age of 10, playing among other works, a Mozart concerto and a movement from Beethoven's Piano Concerto in C Minor.

From 1848 to 1853 he attended the Paris Conservatory. He won many honors for both performance and composition in his musical career.

A man of great energy, Saint Saens was engaged in many musical activities. He toured as a concert pianist, served as organist-choirmaster in several Cathedrals of Paris, taught piano, and wrote many theoretical treatises on French compositions. His influence affected other eminent French musicians such as Faure and Messager.

The "Christmas Oratorio" was his first major choral work written in 1863. Perhaps however, in musical circles, he would have best been known for the opera "Samson and Delilah." He also wrote chamber and orchestral music, as well as music for the piano, organ, and voice.

Saint Saens died while on vacation in Algiers at the age of 86, on Dec. 16, 1921.

First United Methodist welcomes the public to attend this performance as they share Christmas through this beautiful musical work. Dr. J. Weldon Butler is pastor of the church.

Death row inmates reflect on Brooks

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — When Charlie Brooks Jr. died under the executioners' needle early Tuesday morning, fear stalked the corridors of death row.

For the first time in 18 years, the death penalty suddenly seemed very real to Texas' company of condemned.

Brooks was the first Texas inmate executed since 1964, although the state currently has 171 prisoners under the sentence of death. The execution of Brooks, say inmates, makes them more aware that it can happen.

"There are a lot of frightened men here now," said inmate John Thompson, 27. "They hide it because people on death row are afraid to show their emotions. But they're scared."

The men on death row don't speak of their own emotions. But when they look at other condemned men, they say they see fear for the first time.

"When we found out Charlie Brooks was dead, we were scared and disgusted," said Jeffery Lee Griffin, 27, a convicted murderer from Houston.

Jim Vanderbilt of Amarillo said he thought Brooks' execution would open the gate for others.

"I believe that a couple will be executed soon," said Vanderbilt, a former policeman convicted of killing the daughter of a former state representative.

Some of the inmates most concerned — such as James Autry, who is scheduled to die next week — refused to talk to reporters.

Autry, 28, has been ordered to die Dec. 17 for his capital murder conviction in the April 1980 death of a Port Arthur convenience store clerk.

Autry's attorney, Charles Carver, said he will ask a federal court in the Eastern District of Texas, possibly on Friday, to stay the execution on grounds that a potential defense witness was not offered immunity for his testimony.

Autry's conviction was upheld in January by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. In October, the U.S. Supreme Court refused to review the case.

Brooks was remembered with fondness on Death Row. Thompson called him "a good man."

And for Griffin, who once had a cell next door to Brooks, the loss was a major blow.

"I don't have anybody else to talk to," he said. "I can't find anyone like Charlie Brooks on Death Row. Most of them don't care about anybody, but he did."

Then Griffin adds: "He was a beautiful guy. I don't know how they could kill him."

The condemned men honored Brooks, as well as they could on the narrow cells along Death Row. At 8 p.m. they asked that the televisions that normally blare in the corridors until late be turned off.

They listened quietly on the radio. When word came, about 12:30 a.m. Tuesday, that Brooks was dead, a few hollered in anger and some rattled their bars. But mostly, said Thompson, there was grief.

"I imagine there were a few who wept for Charlie Brooks. But they would never admit it," said Thompson. "He was like a big brother to a lot of the guys. He was a man who people went to talk with. If you had a problem, he would help."

Vanderbilt said some men wore black armbands fashioned from socks.

Thompson said he and Brooks used to "recreate" together and that Brooks was a "very good chess player."

The U.S. Army adopted olive-drab for winter service uniforms in 1902.

Playoff picture muddled

NFL finds parity

BY LES GILES
Sports Editor

Parity is what Pete Rozelle wanted for the National Football League, and parity is what he's got in this strike—abbreviated season.

Following Monday's game, virtually every team in the league (with the possible exception of the Baltimore Colts, who are simply awful) still has a shot at reaching the postseason "Super Bowl Tournament."

This season, 16 of the NFL's 28 teams will advance into the playoffs. The top eight teams from each conference will make it.

If the playoffs were to start this weekend, the AFC representatives would be Cincinnati, the Los Angeles Raiders, Miami, the New York Jets, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, San Diego and either Cleveland, New England or Seattle. The latter three are tied with 2-3 records, so a tie-breaker format would have to be used to weed two teams out.

The NFC picture is somewhat more muddled at this point. Dallas, Green Bay, Washington, Atlanta, New Orleans and St. Louis would be in for sure.

But, the other two spots would have to be determined by various tie-breakers. The teams involved are Chicago, Detroit, Minnesota, the N.Y. Giants, San Francisco and Tampa Bay—all 2-3.

With four games remaining, it appears a 5-4 record will easily qualify for the playoffs. .45 might make it in some instances.

So, in essence, teams like Houston, Kansas City, the L.A. Rams and Philadelphia (all currently 1-4) still have a shot. All they have to do is win their remaining games.

The Lions probably would have liked to see the strike continue. Before the 57-day walkout, they were 2-0 and looking good. They haven't won since.

Teams on the threshold of being eliminated can take heart though.

With fewer games, it might be more difficult to overcome a poor start, but by the same token a fast start could be easily nullified by a bad finish.

A rundown of some of the recent good starts - poor finishes and poor starts - good finishes.

In 1978, the Redskins reeled off six straight wins, and were 8-3, before the bottom fell out. They lost five in a row to finish third in the NFC East.

Cleveland, in 1979, won its first four games, lost the next three, and then came back to win three in a row, before finally losing three of the last four to miss the playoffs. What a rollercoaster.

The 1980 Detroit Lions started 5-1, but missed the playoffs - finally ending 9-7.

Atlanta, in 1978, was 2-4 before catching a hot streak which carried it into the playoffs.

Last season, the Jets were 1-3-1 and fans were hollering for Walt Michaels' job. But things turned around as they went 9-2 to make the playoffs.

Washington began last season 1-6 under new coach Joe Gibbs, but finally turned it around and won seven of the last nine to barely miss the playoffs.

No-shows around the NFL dropped considerably last week.

The first week following the strike saw 115,586 no-shows. The next week there were 117,417.

But, this past week, there were 82,374 no-shows, a reduction of over 30,000.

Seems as though the fan interest has started picking back up.

While the high school basketball season is less than a month old, some things appear almost eminent.

Take for instance the 3-5A races.

With two teams qualifying for the playoffs in both boys and girls races they figure to be pretty wide-open affairs.

Amarillo High's girls, currently 9-0 overall and 2-0 in loop play, appear to be the team to beat.

But, the real race should be for the runner-up slot.

Based on early season results, it appears Monterey, Palo Duro, Plainview and Hereford should fight it out for that No. 2 berth.

I'll be somewhat surprised if Amarillo High goes through the district season unbeaten.

However, I'd look for the Sandie girls not to lose more than a couple of games, at the most.

So, the team that finishes second might get there with a 12-4 mark.

The district races are not divided into halves this year, as has been the case in recent seasons. The teams will play a double round (16 games) and those with the two best records earn playoff tickets.

The boys' race appears wide open at this early stage.

Plainview was the pre-season favorite, but already the Bulldogs have lost to Dimmitt (Class 3A) and Borger (4A).

Through Tuesday's games only Lubbock High (at 5-2) had a winning record. But, I wouldn't count on the Westerners to be among the top two when the season ends.

A boys' team may reach the playoffs with as many as four, or perhaps five district losses. I wouldn't be at all surprised if that happens.

Probably the two best boys' teams in the area are Dimmitt and Pampa. Both reached the state tournament last year, and I'll be very surprised if they don't get there again this year.

Cougars win 5th straight

By The Associated Press

The ninth-ranked Houston Cougars posted their fifth straight victory of the year with a win over Auburn, but two other Southwest Conference basketball teams came out on the short end of the score during the latest round of non-conference play.

Houston used a strong second-half performance by Michael Young to roll past Auburn 77-65 in Houston on Wednesday night, while Texas A&M took an 88-70 drubbing at the hands of Louisiana State.

Southern Methodist fell to the University of Pennsylvania 73-61.

Young, a 6-6 junior guard, scored 16 of his game-high 22 points in the final 20 minutes of play as the Cougars improved their record to 5-0.

Auburn held the Cougars in check throughout most of the first half with a tenacious middle zone defense.

But Young found his range with three minutes to play in the first half, scoring a quick six points to put Houston ahead to stay.

Clyde Drexler added 19 points for the Cougars. Odell Mosteller led Auburn, now 4-2, with 19 points.

It was a rough night for the Aggies in New Orleans' Superdome.

Swingman Howard Carter poured in 27 points to lead LSU, 5-2, to an 88-70 win over A&M. The Tigers also got 16 points from Howard Black.

Ratified by 3-1 margin

NFL strike issues resolved at last

WASHINGTON (AP) — National Football League players have overwhelmingly approved a new $1.6-billion collective bargaining agreement with only the initialing of a separate document by management standing in the way of apparent labor peace in professional football for the next five years.

With 26 of 28 teams reporting, union officials reported Wednesday night that the league's 1,500 players had approved the new agreement by a 3-1 margin.

"We are delighted by the ratification," said Ed Garvey, executive director of the National Football League Players Association.

Union officials refused to disclose the exact vote Wednesday or give a team-by-team breakdown.

Among the teams responding to an Associated Press survey, the Minnesota Vikings, San Francisco 49ers, Washington Redskins, New York Giants, Dallas Cowboys, Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Houston Oilers, Atlanta Falcons and Baltimore Colts all voted to approve the new contract. The Detroit Lions and Chicago Bears both voted to reject it. Two other teams, the Philadelphia Eagles and Miami Dolphins had not voted by Wednesday night. Results of other clubs were not immediately available.

The ratification vote comes three weeks after negotiators reached a tentative settlement and the players returned to work ending a 57-day strike that interrupted the NFL's regular season for the first time in history.

"We're happy that the players have ratified, but we have to make sure that the agreement the owners ratified (on Nov. 17) is the same agreement that the players ratified," said management's chief negotiator, Jack Donlan.

"As far as we are concerned it is over," Garvey said.

Union and league attorneys failed again on Wednesday to agree to the language of a separate "memo of understanding" calling for a withdrawal of unfair labor practice charges pending before the National Labor Relations Board and at the same time prohibit both sides from engaging in similar activities in the future. The owners also are pressing the union to drop an action before the National Labor Relations Board in which they have charged the league with unfair labor practices.

Without the separate agreement the overall contract will not be signed, Donlan insisted late Wednesday.

The immediate aftershocks of the new contract not going into effect would be the failure of the players to receive $60 million in cash bonuses, the possible cancellation of one weekend of games originally wiped out by the strike and later rescheduled for the weekend of Jan. 2-3, and a return to the 10-team playoff format as opposed to the 16-team tournament now scheduled for the strike-shortened season.

Garvey, who along with the player reps, who voted 19-9 to recommend ratification on Monday, said the union had gone as far as it could in pressing its demands.

Smith hoping to win Lombardi Award

HOUSTON (AP) — Arkansas defensive end Billy Ray Smith would like to win the Lombardi Award tonight, then return to the city New Year's Eve to help the Razorbacks win the Bluebonnet Bowl against Florida.

But the first-team Associated Press All-American has an even higher goal.

Smith says he'd like to have as much heart as a group of kids he's visited here the past two years as a finalist for the Lombardi Award.

The award names the nation's outstanding collegiate lineman and benefits cancer research of the American Cancer Society.

"I'd like to win the award, but that's not the real reason we are here," said Smith. "Most people never get to see what these kids have to go through with chemotherapy and dialysis. They show more heart than anyone I've ever come across."

"It is amazing to me their attitude and the way they face facts," he said.

Nebraska center Dave Rimington, a two-time Outland Trophy winner, Arizona State linebacker Vernon Maxwell and Southern California nose guard George Achica are the other finalists for the award.

The trophy is named in honor of Vince Lombardi, former coach of the Green Bay Packers and Washington Redskins. Proceeds from the dinner go to the American Cancer Society for research. Lombardi died of cancer in 1970.

Rimington, 6-3, 290, who will lead Nebraska in the Orange Bowl, repeated this season as a first-team Associated Press All-American and is an unprecedented two-time winner of the Outland, given to the nation's outstanding interior lineman.

Smith, 6-3, 228, also was a repeater on the AP All-America first team and was a finalist last year.

Achica is a three-year starter at USC and was named to the AP first-team defensive unit after leading the Trojans in tackles last season with 73.

Maxwell, 6-2, 225, a Carson, Calif., native, spearheaded the Sun Devils' defensive unit last season. He contributed 99 tackles and had 12 quarterback sacks. He was named the team's most valuable player for the 1982 team.

With Saturday telecast

TBS goes bigtime!

An AP Sports Analysis
By DAVE GOLDBERG, AP Sports Writer

With its telecast of the Georgetown-Virginia basketball game Saturday night, Ted Turner's baby officially goes bigtime. But not the way he originally envisioned it.

When the Turner Broadcasting System outmaneuvered CBS and outbid Katz Sports last summer for the rights to the Capital Centre matchup between Ralph Sampson and Patrick Ewing, it was supposed to be carried only via cable on Turner's Atlanta "Superstation" and on closed circuit into theaters.

Instead, Turner and Russ Potts, a television middleman, decided they would be better served by syndicating the game to network affiliates and independent stations around the country. It will be carried on more than 100 stations, covering about 80 percent of the television homes in the country and 46 of the top 50 markets.

Why did they change? The oldest reason in the world — more money from exposure in perhaps ten times as many homes as cable would have brought them. For while Turner's payments to Virginia and Georgetown increased from $575,000 to $700,000 with the new format, the profits figure to be better there.

TBS officials say they have sold all 15 minutes of commercial time at $85,000 per 30-second spot and expect to make $1 million profit from the game. Turner himself says he expects the game to make up the estimated $800,000 loss sustained by TBS in its telecasts of the two National Football League Players Union "all-star" games during the NFL strike.

Turner, who has talked about starting a fourth major network, also benefits by getting over-the-air exposure for his network in something between 30 million and 50 million homes. That's something his virtually all-cable operation doesn't give him and certainly something he didn't get with his NFL strike games.

TBS' biggest coup, of course, was just getting the rights to Saturday's game, scheduled late last spring after it became clear that Sampson and Ewing could provide a dramatic, attention-grabbing confrontation that hasn't been seen since the 1968 matchup of the then-Lew Alcindor and Elvin Hayes. That was striking enough, in fact, to be the first regular-season college basketball game televised nationwide in primetime.

There were three finalists for Sampson-Ewing after NBC declined to get involved in the heavy bidding. One of them, Katz Sports, which syndicates Big East games, dropped out at $435,000. But CBS actually outbid Turner, $635,000 to $575,000.

The network, however, wanted to change the date of the game, carrying it Jan. 8 in conjunction with an NFL playoff game. It asked Georgetown to switch its Jan. 8 game with St. John's at Madison Square Garden with the Virginia game and said it would televise both of them nationally.

Georgetown said no, ostensibly because it didn't want to play a tough Big East opponent that early in the season, and took the TBS money, which turned out to be more than CBS was offering anyway.

TBS' coverage will begin at 8 p.m. EST with a pre-game show featuring Red Auerbach. Skip Caray will do the play-by-play and former University of Texas Coach Abe Lemons will be the color man.

About defending title

Daniel, Kite feel good

LARGO, Fla. (AP) — Beth Daniel and Tom Kite had a good feeling before teeing off in the $500,000 mixed teams golf tournament, the second richest golf event in the country.

"I feel like we're very capable of winning the tournament again," says Daniel, who teamed with Kite for a two-stroke victory last year at Bardmoor Country Club. They posted an 18-under-par 270 to beat second-place finishers Vance Heafner and Cathy Morse.

However, the defending champions face some stiff competition with a field of 96 gathered for the start today even though his only victory was at the Bay Hill Classic in a playoff with Jack Nicklaus and Denis Watson.

Daniel has won five times on the LPGA circuit this year and pocketed more than $200,000 each of the last three years. She had five victories and won $223,635 this year.

Before coming to Bardmoor, neither Kite nor Daniel played much, but it didn't seem to bother them. "I'm rusty, but not too bad," Kite said. And Daniel added: "I haven't played, but I'm getting into it."

This year, Carner has chosen former PGA champ John Mahaffey to be her partner.

Jets' Blinka suspended

NEW YORK (AP) — Stan Blinka says his one-game suspension for a flagrant personal foul would not have been assessed if television cameras had not focused on the New York Jets linebacker on that particular play.

Blinka said he thought the punishment was severe because "it was so well displayed on television. People make shots like that all the time and nothing is made of it. I'm not embarrassed by all this because I wasn't trying to hurt anyone."

National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle suspended Blinka without pay and fined Leonard Thompson of the Detroit Lions $1,000 Wednesday for committing flagrant fouls.

Rozelle said Blinka's hit "ranks with the worst infractions I have witnessed in an NFL game." The suspension will keep Blinka out of the Jets' game Sunday against visiting Tampa Bay and will cost him about $4,500 in pay.

Orioles, Yanks want Kemp

Winter meetings confusing

HONOLULU (AP) — If you want to know what the New York Yankees are doing, ask General Manager Hank Peters of the Baltimore Orioles.

If you want to know what the Baltimore Orioles are up to, ask Yankees' owner George Steinbrenner.

That's how confusing baseball's 81st annual meeting has become.

Their maneuvering involves free agent Steve Kemp. The former Chicago White Sox outfielder and his agent, Dick Moss, have been leaning toward signing with the Orioles.

Peters walked out of an American League meeting Wednesday and said, "Dick Moss has informed Edward Bennett Williams (Baltimore owner) that Steve Kemp is going to accept the Yankees offer."

Steinbrenner, informed of Peters' statement, said, "I don't know what you're talking about. As far as I know the Orioles are not out of it."

According to one source, Kemp will sign a $5.5 million, 5-year contract with the Yankees.

Adding to this comedy of statements, Clyde King, who is the manager of record of the Yankees, said he knew nothing about the Kemp situation.

He said, "wait a minute, boys, I've got to go find out what's happening," and he headed for the hotel escalator.

Of course, King is supposed to be on his way out as soon as Steinbrenner gets through restructuring his team.

Other than the Peters-Steinbrenner-King act, it was another day of inaction at the week-long meetings. In three days, just one trade has been completed.

While the trading was non-existent, major league owners met jointly and in league sessions. For the most

Bulls' Dailey takes leave

CHICAGO (AP) — Rookie guard Quintin Dailey, convicted earlier this year of assaulting a student nurse, wants a temporary leave-of-absence to get psychiatric help, according to officials of the Chicago Bulls.

Dailey didn't appear Tuesday night for a National Basketball Association game against the New York Knicks, and Bulls officials learned after contacting police that the 21-year-old former All-American had fallen asleep in his suburban Northbrook apartment.

The Bull said Wednesday that Dailey was under "extreme emotional stress" and had asked for a temporary leave-of-absence to seek psychiatric help.

part it was talk.

There was still another unusual situation.

It was reported that the Chicago Cubs were going to hold a news conference in Chicago and announce they had signed free agent Steve Garvey.

That was news to Dallas Green, the Cubs' executive vice president, who was here trying to make some trades.

"I didn't order any conference in Chicago," said Green. "I don't know anything about it. I don't know where that came from."

"But that doesn't mean we've given up on Garvey."

The Cubs reportedly have offered $7.5 million to Garvey, the former Los Angeles Dodger first baseman.

The San Diego Padres supposedly offered Garvey, $6 million, but may hold an edge because Garvey wants to remain in California.

Ballard Smith, Padres president, said he talked with Garvey's agent, Jerry Kapstein, and might revise his offer.

Polish economy not improved under law

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Despite official reports of improved industrial production, Poland's economy has shown few signs of recovery one year after the imposition of martial law.

Economic stagnation, except for increased coal production, is in fact seen by some Western observers as a major factor in the political decision to lift or suspend martial law, possibly by the end of this month.

"Poland's economy is very much Western-oriented," a Polish journalist who specializes in economic matters said. "It needs new Western credits and spare parts. That is one reason for lifting martial law."

Communist Party leaders and government officials have said repeatedly that Western economic credit sanctions imposed after the crackdown began Dec. 13, 1981, will be overcome through greater assistance from the Soviet Union.

Their claim that Poland will solve its economic crisis, with or without Western help, is based on new projections that the country will suffer only a 1 percent to 2 percent decline in production this year. A 14 percent drop had been predicted last December.

"But the situation really wasn't much better this year than last," one Western economic observer said. "The industries still aren't producing enough consumer goods, supplies in the stores are shrinking, there is too much money in circulation and the post-December 1981 reforms haven't begun to work."

Officials battling to institute self-financing and self-management, a means of decentralizing the economy, note that martial law has already had positive results in production figures for most industries.

Coal mining, the lifeblood of the economy and a major generator of the hard currency income needed to help other industries, has climbed from a disastrous 163 million tons in 1981 to an estimated 190 million tons this year.

Both Polish and Western analysts say this increase, attributed to the reinstitution of the Saturday workday, has raised sagging figures in other industries and allowed Poland to project a minimum decline in overall production this year.

Western diplomats discount the increase, noting that despite the rise in coal production, improvement per man-hour has lagged.

"There's been no real change over last year," one Western diplomat commented. "This is an astounding fact when you take such a key industry as coal production and listen to the authorities blame strikes last year for the 1981 figures."

"In fact, when you look at man-hours, production could probably be lower," the diplomat said. "Surely, there is no sector in the economy that shows a real improvement... in production per man-hour."

The question of production efficiency is central to the debate over martial law's impact on the economy.

State officials say that "militarization" or enforcing strict work discipline in mines, ports and many factories was responsible for "peaceful work" and improved production.

Some Western diplomats, however, argued that martial law had a negative effect on the economy because, as one said, "It clearly can bring no improvement, or solutions to any of the problems that were the root of last year's unrest."

Although there have been improvements in food availability, prices are now 300 percent to 400 percent higher than a year ago, and many of the conditions that sparked labor unrest and led to the creation of Solidarity still exist.

Meat is still in short supply, rationed at 5.5 pounds per month for every man, woman and child. Other items, such as gasoline and shoes, have recently been added to the ration list.

Food stores, though brimming with macaroni, canned goods and other products that were unavailable last year, have a limited selection.

"It is better now, if having something to buy is better than nothing," one Polish housewife grumbled. "Last year we had shelves loaded with jars of pickles. This year, we have ten kinds of compote, cake mix and — pickles."

Consumer goods are still difficult to obtain, and people tell of waiting in line for 24 hours to buy a refrigerator, or finding that the automobile they ordered won't be delivered because of a shortage of tires made from materials imported from the West.

Prices soared on everything from food to consumer goods, forcing many people to dip into savings. Said one Warsaw couple with two children, "Without the help of our in-laws, we wouldn't make it to the end of the month."

Colombia provided super-security

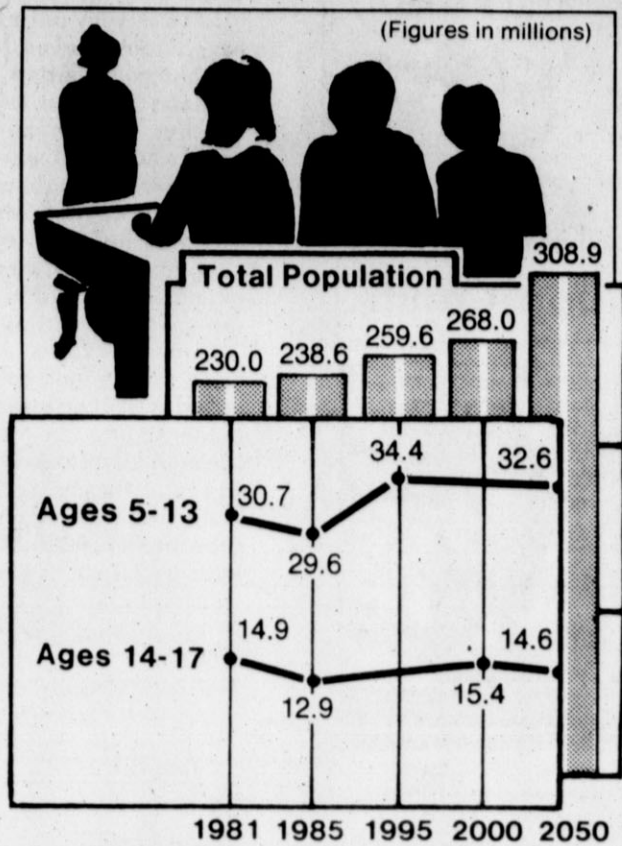

WASHINGTON (AP) — In Bogota, Colombia, where rocket attacks launched by guerrilla groups are not unheard of, security for President Reagan during a 5-hour, 25-minute visit was extraordinary.

In fact, as run by the Colombians, it was so taut that it caused Reagan's own security detail some problems.

On any foreign visit, the U.S. Secret Service, responsible for protecting the president, must share its work with the host's security

MORE PEOPLE, FEWER CHILDREN

The School Age Population in the 21st Century

SOURCE: Census Bureau NEA/Moffitt Cecil

The American population will climb steadily through the rest of this century and into the next to a peak of 309 million, but the school-age population won't be keeping pace. As a consequence of a declining birthrate, the 5-13 age cohort will level off after 1995 and there will actually be fewer 14-17 year olds in 2050 than at present.

forces. This often involves a diplomatic waltz that would do the State Department proud.

But Robert DeProspero, the chief of the White House Secret Service detail, had to do more than a waltz to stay at Reagan's side as the president strode into the Casa de Narino, the presidential palace in Bogota.

A Colombian security agent tried to block DeProspero from accompanying Reagan and the Secret Service man had to spin quickly and do an

Viewers flee networks, want better shows

NEW YORK (AP) — Another November has come and gone, and an additional 1.5 million viewers have fled the networks.

Where have they gone? "The assumption, until we know better, is that they're going to non-network sources," said Bill Behanna, director of press relations for the A.C. Nielsen Co. "That would mean pay cable, basic cable, independent stations, public stations and cassette recorders."

In November, Nielsen figures showed that the same percentage of TV households — 63.1 percent — watched an average minute of television during the prime evening hours as did last year. But only 81 percent of those homes, or 42.6 million, were watching ABC, CBS and NBC, compared to 85 percent, or 43.6 million, of the homes in November 1981. Nielsen computes 1.5 prime-time viewers per household.

November is a significant measuring month. It is one of the so-called sweeps periods, when the networks load up on glitter programs to attract viewers because ratings in November establish advertising rates at the local stations for the next three months.

"I don't know where they went, either," said Gerald Jaffe, NBC's vice president for special projects. "But when we find out, we won't find a smoking gun. We're losing it in dribs and drabs." "Clearly cable is drawing audiences," said Jay Campbell, president of Cable Ad Ventures, a cable consulting company.

Funeral, burial for executed inmate set

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A wake is planned here tonight for Charlie Brooks Jr., a convicted killer who said he found peace in the Islamic faith before he became the first U.S. inmate to die by injection.

Brooks, 40, will be eulogized in a brief Muslim service Friday and then laid to rest in a suburban cemetery.

He was executed shortly after midnight Tuesday for the December 1976 shooting death of a Fort Worth auto mechanic. He was first prisoner executed in Texas since 1964.

Brooks' body was taken to the Harris County Medical Examiners office in Houston for an autopsy. However, a final report may not be completed for "several days," said spokesman Cecil Wingo.

The body then was claimed by his Brooks' two sons, his former wife and his girlfriend and moved to William Funeral Chapel here.

A funeral home spokeswoman, who did not want to be identified, said

In the past year, new cable services have focused on health, women, news and entertainment. That's in addition to movie channels, all-sports services and the distant signals of stations like WTBS in Atlanta. Individually, they may not account for a lot of viewers, but collectively they explain some of the network erosion.

Public broadcasting also seems to have profited from network losses and, ironically, from cable TV's growing popularity. In many areas, the clarity of the public TV station's signal has improved significantly by a cable hook-up.

PBS' prime-time programs are attracting 30 percent more viewers this fall than last year, according to ratings measured in five major markets by Nielsen.

The biggest beneficiary, however, appears to be independent stations, those not affiliated with a network. These independents survive on an assortment of sports, movies and successful network reruns, like "M-A-S-H," "The Odd Couple" and "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

"Maybe the success of the independents prove that viewers want quality programs," said Grant Tinker, president of NBC. "Viewers are saying the shows you did five or eight years ago were better."

November 1982 showed a 4 percent decline in TV-viewing households, to 81 percent. Some industry analysts predict a decline to 59 percent by 1990.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

ALLEY OOP by Dave Graue

The Newspaper BIBLE

WHAT IS LOVE REALLY LIKE?

Love is very patient and kind, never jealous or envious, never boastful or proud, never haughty or selfish or rude. Love does not demand its own way. It is not irritable or touchy. It does not hold grudges and will hardly even notice when others do it wrong. It is never glad about injustice, but rejoices whenever truth wins out. If you love someone you will be loyal to him no matter what the cost. You will always believe in him, always expect the best of him and always stand your ground in defending him.

Now we know so little, even with our special gifts, and the preaching of those most gifted is still so poor. But when we have been made perfect and complete, then the need for these inadequate special gifts will come to an end, and they will disappear.

It's like this: when I was a child I spoke and reasoned as a child does. But when I became a man my thoughts grew far beyond those of my childhood, and now I have put away the childish things. In the same way, we can see and understand only a little about God now, as if we were peering at His reflection in a poor mirror; but someday we are going to see Him in His completeness, face to face. Now all that I know is hazy and blurred but then I will see everything clearly, just as clearly as God sees into my heart right now.

There are three things that remain - faith, hope, and love - and the greatest of these is love. (1 Corinthians 13:4-7, 9-13)

Braniff, PSA announce new deal, grounded airline could be airborne

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP)—Some Braniff International planes and former workers may be airborne next spring under an agreement Braniff officials say could be a blueprint for restructuring the grounded airline.

Pacific Southwest Airlines announced plans Wednesday to form a Texas-based divi-

Ronco empire hot in December

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—The Veg-A-Matic machine that sliced, diced and shredded its way into the memory of late-night television viewers is gone, a victim of the motorized food processor.

But those insistent post-prime-time commercials with their breathless salesman ("Isn't that amazing?") are still pounding ear-

Ronco spent more than $6 million on TV advertising during the first two weeks of December 1981, and prepared an even more expensive blitz this month.

Today In History

Today is Thursday, Dec. 9, the 343rd day of 1982. There are 22 days left in the year. Today's Highlight in History:

On Dec. 9, 1940, the British Eighth Army opened its North African offensive during World War II.

In 1793, Noah Webster established New York City's first newspaper.

In 1934, Ethiopian and Italian troops clashed on the border between Italian Somaliland and Ethiopia.

In 1941, Japanese troops landed on Luzon Island in the Philippines during World War II.

In 1965, Nikolai Podgorny replaced Anastas Mikoyan as president of the Soviet Union.

Ten years ago: North Vietnam and the Soviet Union concluded an agreement for military and economic aid to Hanoi.

Five years ago: Secretary of State Cyrus Vance met with officials in Cairo prior to Israeli-Egyptian peace talks.

One year ago: President Reagan rescinded his ban on federal employment for striking air-traffic controllers, but said they still could not be hired for their old jobs.

Today's birthdays: Actor Broderick Crawford, 71 years old. Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill, 70. Actor Kirk Douglas, 66.

Thought for today: "The common cause for mankind: folly and ignorance." — William Shakespeare, English playwright (1564-1616).

two other airlines interested in using the jetliners, equipment and workers PSA will not need, Putnam said.

Putnam declined to name the airlines. But Braniff financial officer M. Philip Guthrie said Braniff could restructure the airline with similar agreements, in which Braniff would lease off most of its equipment.

PSA plans to lease 30 of Braniff's Boeing 727s, 16 spare engines and certain spare parts for a quarterly payment of $6.3 million, he said.

Braniff also has agreed to make to PSA a five-year loan of $30 million in cash, fuel and other operating supplies, Guthrie said.

Braniff will split the first $40 million in pretax profit from the operation, Guthrie said. Braniff will get 35 percent of the earnings above $40 million, he said.

PSA spokesman Bill Hastings said the division would be based at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport and would use an undisclosed number of Braniff's gates and landing slots there.

"We believe this is an excellent business opportunity for PSA, Braniff and its creditors" while providing jobs for more than 1,500 people, PSA chairman and chief executive officer William R. Shimp said in a prepared statement.

Braniff's former pilots were not surprised at PSA's latest proposal, union spokesman Charles Bohannon said.

"The chance to expand to Texas was too good an opportunity for the San Diego-based carrier to pass up, he said.

"It's a super business deal," Bohannon said. "It's one of those deals you can't turn down."

Braniff and PSA announced on Oct. 18 they were working on a joint venture, but PSA withdrew the offer two weeks ago about an hour after pilot's union negotiators walked out on new contract talks because of a PSA stipulation that all Braniff pilots would be lower in seniority to PSA pilots in any future merger.

Braniff suspended operations on May 12 filed for protection from its creditors the next day under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy laws.

"You probably thought you had seen the last of us, but here we are one more time," Putnam told reporters Wednesday, during the announcement of the PSA plans.

PSA contacted Braniff officials about the proposal Dec. 2, the same day officials with two other airlines asked to discuss possible joint ventures, Putnam said.

"I wouldn't call this an end run," Putnam said of the PSA proposal. "We are taking a very different approach because we weren't getting anywhere the way we were going before."

Bohannon said PSA should have little trouble hiring the 350 pilots it needs for the new division, even though the former Braniff pilots would lose their seniority and job security.

"The guys will take what they can get," he said.

The PSA proposal still requires approval of regulatory agencies, the bankruptcy court and Braniff's secured creditors.

Braniff officials would begin meeting with the creditors next week, Guthrie said, predicting they would prefer the PSA deal to liquidating Braniff.

Guthrie said the PSA agreement would forbid Braniff from making deals with other airlines on routes that would compete with those PSA establishes.

Putnam said he had not talked to the other two airlines about similar agreements.

"Ten days ago, this approach had not even been thought of," he said.

Christmas present, you wonder what you can get that the person doesn't have," Popeil said. "You know they'll have a toaster and color TV, but what are the odds they'll have a Mr. Microphone or a Miracle Broom?"

Popeil got his business started and cut his first commercial in 1964, with first-year sales of $200,000. By the time he went public and started selling Ronco stock in 1968, his annual sales were $8.8 million. Now, at age 47, Popeil presides over a Ronco empire that he said accounts for $35 million in annual retail sales with its current line of 17 products.

"And I started with zero," Popeil said during a recent interview at his Beverly Hills home — where all his commercials now are filmed at a cost of up to $20,000 each.

Kidney functions

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm only 25 years old, a male, but I have kidney disease. I had some terrific pains in my back, in my groin and scrotum. The doctor took a specimen and sent me to a urologist.

The urologist found blood and lots of protein in my urine. He said he may need to send me to a nephrologist. What is the difference? He didn't give me any medicine as he is waiting to see how I do before sending me to the nephrologist. I am feeling much better but I get tired.

What does the protein and blood cells in my urine mean? I've had blood cells before.

DEAR READER — Your kidneys are really filters. They filter the blood to remove excess amounts of various chemicals and unwanted substances.

In the process your blood passes through a funnel-shaped area and the fluid leaves your blood and is collected in the tube part of the funnel. Water and needed substances are reabsorbed into your circulation. What is left is urine.

Protein in your bloodstream may escape into the funnel structure. We all have a little, but the mechanism is such we usually lose only a very small amount. If the funnel and tube mechanism is damaged you may lose too much protein, usually albumin.

Some young people lose excess albumin from changes in the kidneys upon standing, but they don't lose it while lying down. The significance of protein in your urine depends on what is causing it. It can be from any number of diseases that damage the kidneys, or from heart disease. It can even be caused by heart failure.

The combination of bleeding and protein probably means an infection or injury to the tubular structure. These are called nephrons and a specialist in their function is a nephrologist.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is the function of the lymph nodes? Is it a gland everyone has? Does it form under the arms when females have tumors of the breast?

DEAR READER — Our bodies have lymph nodes everywhere. They are under the arms as you mentioned, in the neck, in the groin, behind the knee, inside your abdominal cavity — literally everywhere.

They are connected together with lymph vessels to carry lymph, a clear to milky fluid. And eventually the lymph is emptied into your circulation near the heart.

The lymph glands form lymph cells, part of your infection-fighting immune system. And when you have a foreign substance, such as bacteria, they act like a sieve. The bacteria may be entrapped in the lymph node. This reaction to infection may cause the lymph nodes to swell and become tender.

And they also catch cancer cells. If a woman has cancer of the breast, the cancer cells that are picked up from the tumor may be stopped in the lymph nodes. Here they may collect and start an additional cancer. But remember that all enlarged lymph glands are not cancer at all. Many are from a response to an inflammation from whatever cause.

When extra ice cubes are needed for punches, or ice buckets at parties, use muffin tins instead of buying new ice cube trays. The big ice cubes will last longer.

Cleaning teddy safely

DEAR POLLY — About a year ago, you had an article about cleaning teddy bears. Although I thought I kept it, I can't find it any longer. Could you repeat that article? I have three bears to do, one is over 50 years old. — CECILE

DEAR CECILE — If you're reluctant to dampen the fabric of these teddy bears, you might first try dusting them thoroughly with a mixture of cornmeal and cornstarch, then gently shaking and brushing the powder out. This is safe on almost any fabric, even real fur. A safe way to clean washable bears (or any other stuffed animal) is with spray-on upholstery shampoo or carpet cleaner. Spray on, let dry according to instructions, then brush or (if the animal is sturdy) vacuum off. Since your bears are quite old, and possibly valuable, be sure to test any cleaning solution on a tiny hidden place, first — and work gently, please. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I pop the deodorizing centers out of those cute room fresheners that look like stained glass, then wash the empty framework. My children love to trace them and color the designs. These frames can also be used for imprinting clay. — DEBORAH

DEAR POLLY — To remove cooking and food odors from your hands, wash them with toothpaste. Removes odor from onions, garlic, etc. — MARCY

DEAR POLLY — For a special treat, make ice cubes out of water flavored with lemon juice. Great for a fruit punch, almost any cola drink, or even plain water. — S.D.

DEAR POLLY — A pint-size plastic perforated (or mesh) basket used as packaging for berries and other produce makes a good soap rest. Turn it upside down on your sink and place the bar of soap on top. The air circulates freely, keeping the soap from melting. — EVA

DEAR POLLY — For a quick frosting for cupcakes, I use a milk chocolate candy bar, broken into squares. Top each cupcake with one square of chocolate. Put in a warm oven for a few minutes. When the chocolate is soft, take them out and spread over the top of the cupcakes with a knife. A marshmallow also works. Just let the marshmallow melt.

To make instant candleholders for your birthday cakes, use miniature marshmallows, maraschino cherries or gumdrops. — JUDY

DEAR POLLY — After I wash my hair, I find it's great to wrap it up turban-style in one of my baby's stretch towels. It never comes undone and they're cheaper than ordinary bath towels. — CHRIS

DEAR POLLY — To ripen a cantaloupe, place it in a brown paper bag on the kitchen countertop (not in the refrigerator). You will be able to smell the sweetness when the melon is ripe. — MURPH

DEAR POLLY — Wash ceiling light fixtures and lamp shades frequently. Also, wipe the light bulbs. The amount of dust that collects in these areas greatly decreases the efficiency of your lighting. — MRS. L.S.

Final argument set today in trial

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Final arguments were planned today in the trial of a convicted hitman and two other people charged with taking part in a 1979 plot to assassinate U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Presiding U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions scheduled final arguments to begin at 1:30 p.m. and told the jurors "come with your bags packed" because he intends to sequester them until a verdict is rendered.

The prosecution and three defense attorneys closed their cases at 3:38 p.m. Wednesday on the 40th day of testimony.

The remaining 14 jury panel members heard a total of 131 witnesses — 105 of them called by the government — and viewed about 400 exhibits collected in an investigation the FBI has termed the largest since President John F. Kennedy's assassination in 1963.

Sessions rejected Wednesday several motions — including those for directed verdicts of acquittal and mistrial urged on behalf of convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson, 44, his wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, 41, and Elizabeth Chagra, 28.

Sessions also refused an attempt by Harrelson's attorney, Tom Sharpe Jr., to oust Harrelson — who spent 33 hours testifying over a seven-day period — back on the stand to refute 22 government rebuttal witnesses.

Prosecutors contend Harrelson shot the judge on May 29, 1979, for a $250,000 fee from convicted narcotics trafficker Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, Elizabeth Chagra's husband.

Wood, 63, known as "Maximum John" because of the stiff penalties he assessed drug peddlers, was scheduled to preside at Chagra's 1979 narcotics trial when he was shot in the back here with a high-powered rifle.

Chagra later was convicted of criminal enterprise and sentenced by Sessions to 30 years in prison without parole. He will be tried for murder separately later.

Both Chagra and Harrelson were indicted April 15 on charges of conspiracy and murder of a federal judge, punishable by mandatory life sentences.

Mrs. Chagra, who earlier this week tearfully denied any part in the judge's murder, could receive a maximum life sentence if convicted of charges of murder conspiracy and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Mrs. Harrelson was convicted last December of using a fictitious name to purchase the alleged murder weapon 12 days before Wood was shot. She was sentenced to three years in prison and could be subjected to up to five more years in prison if convicted of conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Harrelson engaged in several angry exchanges with prosecutor Ray Jahn during his testimony, insisting he was in Dallas the day Wood was shot outside the Chateau DiJon Townhomes.

Although Harrelson admitted writing an purported "last will" in August 1980 in which he admitted Wood's killing, he told jurors it was all part of a "scam" to bilk the Chagras out of some money.

Harrelson has been sentenced to 40 years in prison on various state convictions since Wood's death and told the jury he would be "an old, old man" before he got out of jail, regardless of the outcome of the current trial.

Joseph Chagra, 36, an El Paso attorney, pleaded guilty to murder conspiracy in a plea bargain with the government and appeared as the star witness in exchange for a 10-year prison term.

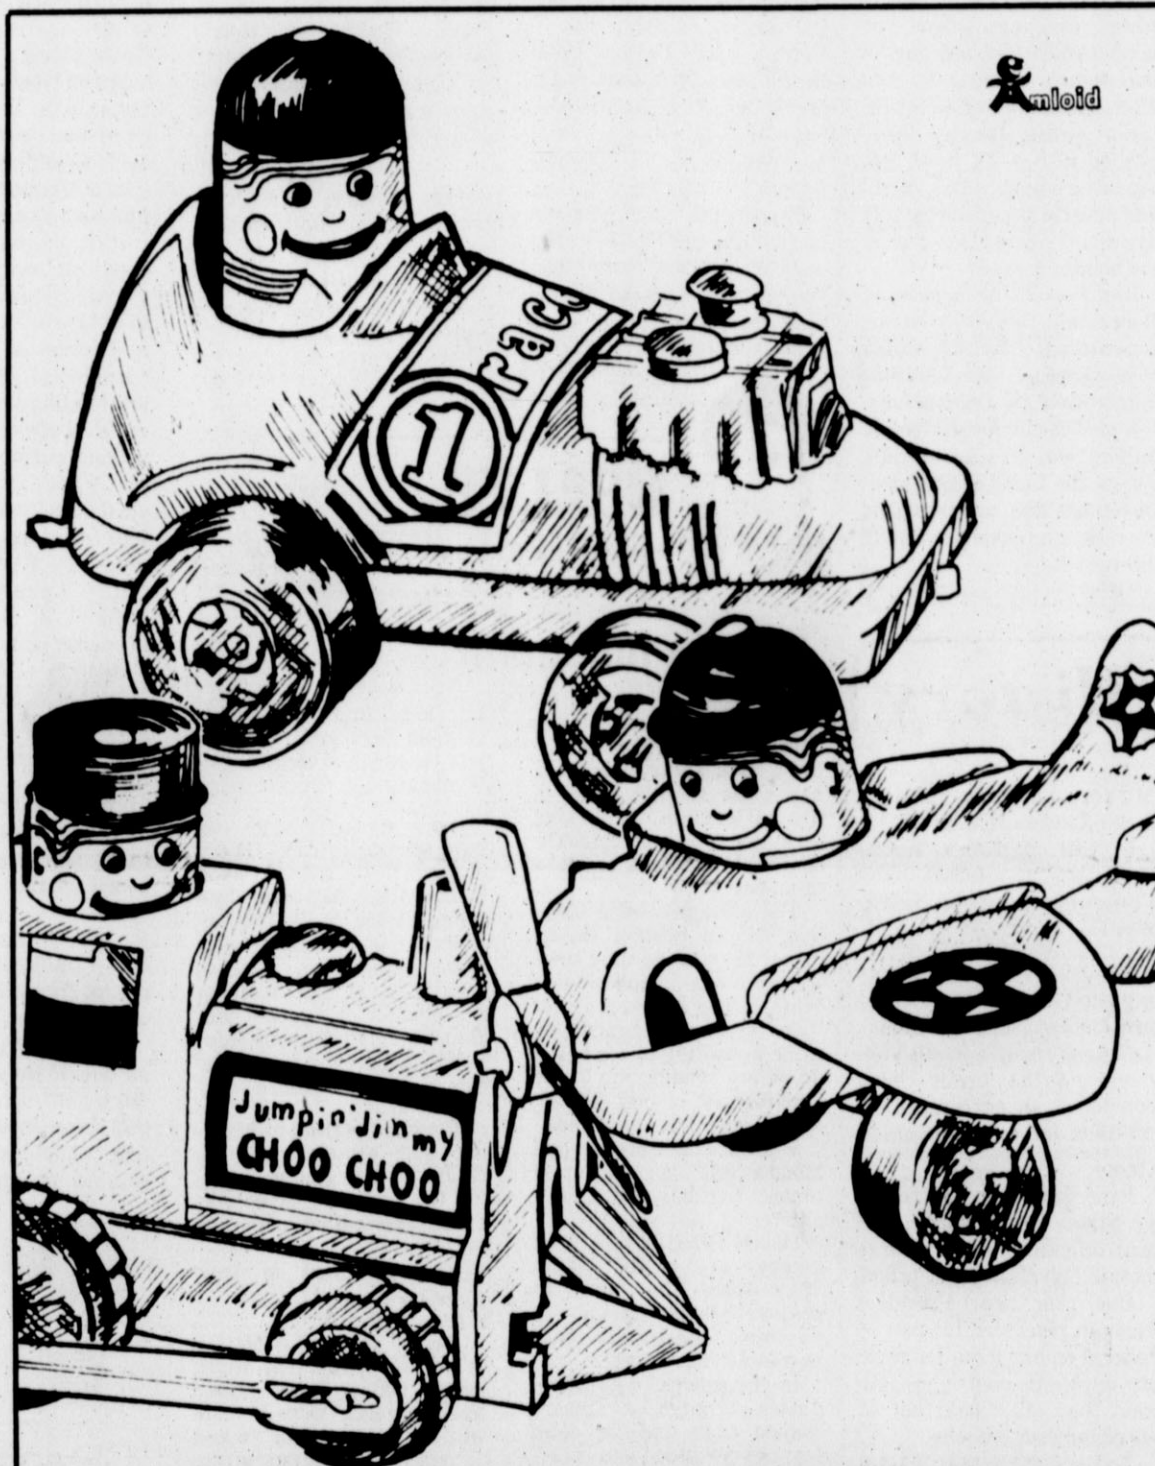

He testified he advised his brother, Jimmy, to have Wood killed and that both Jimmy Chagra and Harrelson later admitted to their complicity in the slaying.

Joseph Chagra returned to the stand as a rebuttal witness for two hours Wednesday and denied Harrelson's contention that he offered the defendant $300,000 to take the blame for Wood's killing and exonerate the Chagras.
