Fans observe M-A-S-H ending

By DEAN FOSDICK Associated Press Writer

Hospital nuns in fatigues, Max Klinger look-alikes in cocktail dresses and revelers in surgical scrub suits joined millions of other people who settled down before TV sets in an often cheery, sometimes tearful, farewell to "M-A-S-H

In a 212-hour finale Monday night on CBS, the makebelieve surgeons, nurses and support crew of the 4077 Mobile Army Surgical Hospital folded their tents and shipped out for other roles, ending a string of 251 episodes over 11 seasons.

The series, which depicted a mixture of merriment and morality amid war's mayhem, ran about eight years longer than the actual Korean conflict.

The final episode, entitled "Goodbye, Farewell and Amen," was written by star Alan Alda, executive producer Burt Metcalf and six other writers. The fadeout showed a helicopter carrying surgeon Capt. "Hawkeye" Pierce (Alda) leaving for home - a symbolic reverse since wounded arriving in helicopters were the show's opening trademark.

The real war began on June 25, 1950, when 60,000 North Korean troops invaded South Korea, and it ended officially with an armistice on July 27, 1953. U.S. military forces serving with the United Nations contingent suffered 157,530 casualties in the fighting.

In Los Angeles, the cast gathered for a private screening at 20th Century-Fox studios. No news coverage was allowed. Alda had insisted that the showing be private. The "M-A-S-H" crew later went to a West Los Angeles restaurant in another off-limits farewell party. As Alda walked past two Associated Press photographers, he said, "Please guys, leave me alone tonight." But other gatherings - particularly the "farewell to

'M-A-S-H' bashes" held in bars, living rooms and auditoriums around the country - were anything but

CBS charged advertisers $450,000 for a 30-second spot on the final program to reach what Madison Avenue thought would be close to the largest audience for an entertainment series in television history.

In Indianapolis, about 1,200 people, many of them dressed in surgical scrub suits, meandered through a hotel where six bars and nearly a dozen television sets had been set up for a farewell fest.

More than 300 people crowded inside to watch the final episode at Tony Packo's, the restaurant in Toledo, Ohio, made famous by the show's Cpl. Klinger, played by Jamie Farr of Toledo.

Reagan-Queen reunion foiled

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) - With her yacht bobbing in waves and his ranch awash in mud, Queen Elizabeth II and President Reagan were meeting at an airport today after weather fouled their elaborate reunion plans.

The new schedule, drafted Monday night amid severe weather conditions, called for the queen's party to fly today to Santa Barbara from the royal yacht, which will remain anchored about 150 miles south at Long Beach, Calif.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, were to meet them at the Santa Barbara airport for an arrival ceremony. Initially, the vacht was to sail into the Santa Barbara channel.

Before driving up through the Santa Ynez mountains to the Reagans' secluded 688-acre ranch, the queen and her husband, Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh, were planning to visit the Santa Barbara courthouse.

"The weather sure changed the transportation plans and they had to reconsider everything," said White House spokesman Anson Franklin. "The plans are still

The queen's plans were interrupted by what was described as the season's fiercest storm, with the National Weather Service forecasting waves of 25 feet to 30 feet. Weathermen predicted more heavy rains and strong winds for today.

The foul weather forced the president to cancel a horseback ride with the queen, but the Reagans were preparing lunch for the monarch and her husband during their three-hour stay at the mountaintop retreat. The royal party is returning to the yacht tonight.

Also joining today's party were White House Chief of Staff James Baker III and his wife, and British Foreign Minister Francis Pym and his wife.

After Reagan's plane landed in California Monday, the president and his wife were forced to abandon the helicopter ride to the ranch and drive for 47 minutes through pea soup fog, around steep hairpin turns that swung riders from one side of the vehicles to another.

180 Texas towns get new area code

DALLAS (AP) - Houston and about 30 nearby towns'will keep the "713" area code, but long-distance callers to 180 other towns in East and Southeast Texas will have to use a different number on March 19.

Beaumont and Galveston are among the cities served by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. that will get a new area code, 409, company spokesman Herb Bowen said Monday. The change is necessary because of record growth, Bowen add-

Forecasts showed that without the new area code, all available 713 area code numbers would be in use by early 1984, Bowen said.

All customers in both the 713 and 409 areas will keep their same seven-digit local number. For three months after the conversion to the new code, calls incorrectly placed to the 713 code will be transferred automatically to the 409 code. Bowen said.

After three months, a recorded announcement will tell the caller to dial the 409 number.

Among the cities that will change to the 409 code are Angleton, Bay City, Beaumont, Brenham, Bryan-College Station, Conroe, Crockett, Diboll, El Campo, Freeport, Galveston, Hearne, Kountze, La Marque, Lufkin, Nacogdoches, Nederland, Orange, Port Arthur, Port Neches, Schulenburg, Silsbee and Texas City.

DA staffer will lead investigation

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) -

District Attorney Sam Millsap says he will select one of his staff members to head a special investigation into possible "multiple infant homicides" at a San Antonio hospital.

The investigation, now six weeks old, "is growing so rapidly that it's just not feasible to run something like this by committee," Millsap said Monday.

One of the candidates for the post. chief deputy district attorney Terrance McDonald, on Monday compared the deaths at Medical Center Hospital to the recent Atlanta mass murders.

Millsap said a special grand jury is investigating infant deaths in the public hospital's pediatric intensive care unit from 1978 to early 1982.

The number of suspicious deaths could be as high as 42, but may be closer to 12, according to several published reports.

Court upholds desegregation order

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Acting with extraordinary speed, a federal appeals court today upheld a judge's desegregation order for a Beaumont school district.

The three-judge panel of 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals heard arguments Monday and issued its ruling in less than 24 hours.

It began curtly: "This is our third. and we hope final, round with this case...'

Lawyers for the South Park Independent School District contended that the desegregation order of U.S. District Judge Robert M. Parker of

Beaumont went beyond the legal requirements

The appeals court disagreed. It called Parker's order "clearly constitutionally permissable."

The school district, one of two in Beaumont and containing 10,000 students in 17 schools, was originally desegregated after the U.S. Justice Department sued for integration in

The Justice Department came back in 1976, saying integration was not fully accomplished and needed a more extensive court order.

Twice a district judge said there were no legal grounds for a new desegregation order. And twice the appeals court overruled, saying that there were. Then Parker finally devised the new plan in 1981.

After arguments Monday, school district lawyer Tanner Hunt Jr. said: "It was a very hostile panel. They are very pro-busing.

Justice lawyer Marie Khimesz of Washington said the judges grilled Hunt so thoroughly they made her job

"I almost didn't get up," she said. "It was great."

On the panel were judges Irving L Goldberg of Dallas, Carolyn D. Randall of Houston and Alvin B. Rubin of Baton Rouge.

Maxwell said jurors later this week would be shown the $10 million, 1978 film, which he labeled "a miserable box office failure.'

He told the jury that before Warner Brothers began touting the film to theater operators in August 1977, it had research showing the film would fail, despite an allstar cast including Henry Fonda and Richard Chamberlain. Maxwell said Warner Brothers sent out a series of brochures saying the Irwin Allen-produced film about an invasion of African killer bees would be "bigger than exciting than 'Towering In- emplary damages.

ferno." Those two films, also produced by Allen, grossed $40 million and $50 million respectively, Maxwell said. Therefore, he contended, Warners' advertising suggested "The Swarm" would do even better.

Warners attorney Chris Harvey said the flyers were "typical advertising."

You have to use superlatives to get the attention of exhibitors in the motion picture industry," Harvey said, adding that the theater operators had chosen to work in a "high risk" field.

Maxwell quoted to the jury from marketing studies that said movie-goers indicated 'below average" interest in seeing the film because of they failed "to recognize that the killer bee problem is real.'

Despite these indications that the film would do poorly, said Maxwell. "Warner Brothers simply sat back and let my client suffer the damages. Harvey said the studies were not designed to predict the success of the film, but to help the studio map its advertising strategy.

estimated 597,800 out-ofwedlock babies born in America: Illegitimacy has increased 50 percent in the last decade, recently released government figures show. One out of every six American infants is born illegitimate.

A factor of this problem is the marked trend among today's teen-agers to keep their babies - partly, perhaps, because, of the accessibility to welfare. Some 60 percent of illegitimate children born to teen-agers receive welfare. Ironically, a recent study of pregnant teen-agers who planned to keep their babies disclosed that many of the girls viewed welfare as a means of escape from an unsatisfactory home life and toward independence from their parents. Yet they overlook the fact that they may wind up in a dead-end dependence on public support. That's independence? It is a cycle of dependency that

- Letter To The Editor grows with each generation. Giving money for doing nothing is disastrous.

To correct this problem we should initiate a critical examination of a welfare system that, by its nature, lures thoughtless women into personal tragedy. Welfare, including food stamps and Medicaid (not to mention housing rental assistance and utility allowances) pays for limitless children, whereas the maximum that Social Security will pay is for a family of three - two children and their mother.

It's time to revamp the welfare system to erase the financial incentive to irresponsibly bring more children into the world. If they do have more children let them place these children for adoption. Why can't these people confine the number of children to the size of income like the working American?

Even now an Amendment to the National Welfare Law, Aid for Dependent Children is in the Senate Finance Committee. It states:

"NO ADDITIONAL AID OF ANY KIND WILL BE AL-LOCATED FOR FUTURE CHILDREN OF A WOMAN OR FAMILY ALREADY RE-CEIVING OR HAVING AL-READY RECEIVED AID FOR FAMILIES WITH DE-PENDENT CHILDREN." Thinking, working Americans everywhere should support this Amendment by writing to their Congressmen, Senators, and members of the Senate Finance Committee. This is not an effort to dispense with human rights' rather, it is a call for the human responsibility that must accompany those rights.

We are seeking representatives for our organization in every state. If you are interested please contact me.

THERE IS A BETTER WAY

A good reputation is more valuable than the most expensive perfume. The day one dies is better than the day he is born! It is better to spend your time at funerals than at festivals. For you are going to die and it is a good thing to think about it while there is still time. Sorrow is better than laughter, for sadness has a refining influence on us. Yes, a wise man thinks much of death, while the fool thinks only of having a good time now.

It is better to be criticized by a wise man than to be praised by a fool. For a fool's compliment is as quickly gone as paper in fire. and it is silly to be impressed by it. The wise man is turned into a fool by a bribe; it destroys his understanding.

US may expand role in El Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) --The Reagan administration may expand both the number and the role of American military trainers in El Salvador to meet what one congressman calls a rapidly deteriorating military situa-

An escalation of U.S. manpower in El Salvador would be in addition to the administration's request for a $60 million increase in military assistance this year.

A senior American official traveling aboard President Reagan's plane to California on Monday told reporters the administration has been reviewing policy toward El Salvador for the past four weeks under orders from the president.

The official, who insisted on anonymity, said Reagan has not yet made up his mind on what course to take, partly because he has been receiving conflicting advice from his subordinates.

Since March 1981, the administration has set a ceiling of 55 military trainers in El Salvador and limited their role to non-combat situations. The current number of trainers is 37.

The administration's reassessment of the situation appears to reflect dissatisfaction with the performance of the Salvadoran military in recent weeks.

Contrary to American advice, the Salvadorans have been mounting massive sweeps of the countryside rather than frequent smallscale patrols.

One theory for the Salvadoran tactics was offered Monday by Robert S. Leiken of the Georgetown Center for Strategic and International Studies.

"Large-scale brigade size operations are more lucrative for the commanders," he told the House Foreign Affairs Committee. "They are able to skim off the top expenses for food (and) fuel. Small patrols mean that the pie is sliced in smaller portions."

Leiken said that "cronyism and corruption is rampant" in the Salvadoran army, which "is not under present circumstances capable of winning the war or of containing the guerrillas."

Presumably, the lifting of restrictions on the U.S. trainers would permit them to be present at the brigade and provincial command levels, thus giving them the opportunity to have more direct influence over counterinsurgency operations.

A month ago, three American trainers were sent home after they had been involved in tactical operations against the guerrillas.

For the past several weeks, the administration has said publicly that the military situation in El Salvador has remained essentially unchanged despite an increase in guerrilla activity.

However, Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on inter-American affairs, said Monday, "The situation is deteriorating very rapidly.

Most Texas motorists ride without seat belts

AUSTIN (AP) - Most Texas motorists who responded to a state health department poll don't wear seat belts, and more than a fifth of young adults in the survey confessed to driving while intoxicated.

Texas Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein, who released the results of the poll Monday, said it was "an effort to learn precisely what health risks people are taking in their daily lives."

He said six out of 10 respondents don't use seat belts in cars, and he said wearing them ought to be required by law.

"Fifty-five thousand deaths year on the highway nationally is just a disgrace, and nobody is parading up 57 percent engage in some and down the street about that." Bernstein said.

The poll, a random survey of 1,840 adult Texans, said one out of 10 respondents confessed to driving after having had too much to drink. In the 18-to-34 age bracket, 22 percent admitted to driving while intoxicated.

The health report showed form of exercise at least once week, 37 percent are overweight, 31 percent smoke, and 29 percent of Texans surveyed are moderate to heavy drinkers. The survey was done last summer by telephone. It suggested 9 percent of Houston's motorists use seat belts, and only 4 percent use them in Dallas. Bernstein said national studies have shown seat belts could reduce traffic fatalities by at least 50 per-

"I think it ought to be against the law not to use them, and then I think you'd see lots of people using them," he said.

Bernstein said he did not intend to try to get such a law passed by the Legislature this session because he said it would have virtually no chance of passing.

Health researchers who conducted the poll said it was 95 percent accurate - meaning there is a 95 percent chance that the percentages of the sample would hold true for all Texans.

Plainview, the loop champion, had a pair of first-team selections (senior Angela Young and junior Cynthia Hemphill), while Monterey (the district runner-up) had one - senior Angela Phea.

Amarillo High's Carmen Wynn, the district's leading scorer and this season's player of the year, and Vanessa Wells of Palo Duro rounded out the first-team selections.

Second-team selections included Hereford's leading scorer, senior Stephanie Foster; Jackie Ross of Plainview; Jill Marshall of Monterey; Coronado's high-scoring post Vonda Williams and Amarillo High's Lori Bolk.

Senior Sherri Ellis and junior Cathy Bartels of Hereford gained honorable mention listing.

While Wynn garnered player of the year laurles, Monterey's Tim Tasker was selected coach of the year. He guided the Plainsmen gals to a 19-7 regular season mark, and a 14-2 district standing - losing only to Plainview and AHS in loop play.

Monterey won its bi-district game, before bowing out of the state playoffs in the area round of competition.

"The last thing I can afford at my age is to get out of shape and try to get back into it," said the 38-year-old Sutton, who has won 258 games in 17 major league seasons.

Sutton is aiming at winning 300, though he has set no goals for this season.

Clark, the slugging right fielder with the powerful arm, might be moving from the outfield to first base. San Francisco Giants Manager Frank Robinson hasn't made up his mind on that switch, however.

Horner could be moving from third base to left field, where he will play during intrasquad games today and Wednesday. Horner has played third base exclusively since joining the Braves in

Nazareth staying home

Revolting development

By LES GILES Sports Editor

What a revolting development. For the first time in years, if maybe not ever, there won't be a Panhandle-area team in the girls' state basket ball tournament which gets underway Thursday in Austin.

Nazareth, the state champion in its class the last six years, will not make it seven in a row. The Swiftettes' reign is over. Sudan, runner-up to Nazareth in district play, made the third time a charm last Saturday in Levelland, winning by 13 points, and earning the trip to

But, while the Panhandle is without a team in the state tournament, the South Plains finds four teams in the hunt for state championships-Levelland (in 4A); Slaton (in 3A); Hale Center (in 2A) and Sudan (in 1A).

The boys will compete in area playoff games tonight, and regional tourneys are set for this weekend.

Dimmitt, with a 33-0 record and a 41-game win streak (dating back to last season), is the best bet to make it back to Austin. The Bobcats will be seeking their second straight 3A banner. Abernathy, runner-up in the district race, might provide Dimmitt its stiffest opposition this Borger and Pampa appear to be headed for a showdown in Class 4A, with the winner heading to Austin. But, both must win tonight (Borger faces Wichita Falls Hirschi, while Pampa meets Mansfield).

Morton, with a 23-8 record, is the odds-on favorite to win the 2A regional, while Valley, sporting a 25-4 mark, appears the best bet in 1A.

Caprock, the 3-5A runner-up, will meet El Paso Bel Air tonight in Midland in the area playoffs. The Longhorns, who've already set school basketball history, are still three victories away from Austin.

..... Barring unforseen bad weather, the spring sports schedules get into full swing this week.

Hereford's baseball team, which finds only four seniors on the club, opens regular season play today at 4 p.m. in Canyon, against a team which returns seven starters. Saturday, the Herd travels to Levelland for a twin bill, beginning at 1 p.m. The girls' track team will travel to Plainview Saturday for the Bulldog Relays, while the boys open their season in Lubbock the same day.

The boys' golf team, which placed 10th last weekend in its first outing at Roswell, will host the Deaf Smith County Invitational this week. The girls, meanwhile, will begin district play with the first 18-hole round set Friday in Lubbock.

The tennis teams also will compete in the Deaf Smith County Invitational Friday and Saturday.

Arbitration cases in baseball can leave a sweet, or sour taste in ones mouth, depending on how the judge rules. Take for example the case of LA Dodger star Fernando

In all, 30 cases went to arbitration this year. And, the major league clubs won 17 cases.

Big winners were Valenzuela, Mario Soto on the Reds (who wanted $625,000 instead of the $450,000 offered), Tim Lollar of San Diego and Rudy Law of the White Sox. Lollar was paid $50,000 in 1982. He was offered $200,000 this year, but instead will be paid $300,000—the figure he Law earned $37,500 last year...was offered $130,000 by the White Sox, but was awarded $220,000.

Among the losers, and how can you be a loser when you make that kind of money, were Pedro Guerrero, Len

Barker, Lonnie Smith, Kirk Gibson and Steve Howe. Guerrero asked for $750,000, but had to settle for $600,000 (what a tough break). He was paid $275,000 last year. Barker asked for $805,000, but had to settle for the $475,000 offered by Cleveland-still a good jump from the $365,000 he earned last season. Smith was paid $240,000 in 1982, asked for $580,000 this year, but was awarded a meager half million. Howe wanted $450,000, up from the $100,000 he earned in 1982, but was forced to settle for $325,000.

New family surprised by abundance of snow in area

BY LINDA CAUDLE Family News Editor

When David and Joanne Bone and their family moved here from Wisconsin in August they probably thought they would escape much of the snow which normally blankets the ground during the winter months in the northern states. But, so far anyway, they've seen more snow here than their friends and family back in Wisconsin have seen.

One nice thing, however, is the way warm, spring-like days such as we've had the past week are interspersed with the cold, snowy days.

Joanne says she's been able to get out and work in the yard -- something she wouldn't have been able to do in February back home.

The Bones moved from a suburb of Milwaukee. They really lived out in the country, in a subdivision of approximately 30 residences. "One of the things that we will miss is ice skating," says Joanne. "In Wisconsin we had our own ice skating rink in the backyard. The ice stayed frozen all winter long.

Davis is a plant engineer for Amstar Corporation in Dimmitt. The couple has two children - David, who is 8 years old and in the third grade at Northwest School, and Katie, who is 4 years old.

And a fifth "member of the family" is a large collie named Guy. "We've had him five or six years," smiles Joanne, "and brought him along in the station wagon when we moved down here. The idea of leaving him never even crossed our minds."

Joanne was born and raised in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. "I grew up in a town smaller than Hereford," she says, "so it really hasn't been too hard adjusting to life. here, although we lived in the city more recently."

David was raised in Wisconsin. They met at the University of Wisconsin where Joanne went to school because it was closer to home than in the southern part of Michigan. She earned a degree in social work and David received a degree in mechanical engineering. Joanne was a case worker for the Milwaukee County Department of Public Welfare before her first child was born. "I really enjoyed it." she comments, "but when our son was born, I

Since coming to Hereford, the Bones have joined the First Presbyterian Church, and Joanne recently assumed the office of treasurer in Hereford Newcomers Club, which she has been involved in since the fall.

"I like Newcomers," says Joanne. "I think it's a real bonus to the community. I never had an opportunity to get involved in something like this before and I've enjoyed every meeting." Joanne and her family have been redecorating their house on 307 Elm since moving in, adding an addition in the back as well as carpeting and wallpapering the front room. "We're trying to make the house our home - more than and relatives.

She has also been working on finishing several pieces of furniture which she brought along. Joanne enjoys collecting all kinds of antiques and likes to refinish old furniture.

"I've been collecting them since I was a little girl," she comments. "My mother always had anqitues and she gave me my first piece when I was about 10.

"We like to go to antique shows, farm auctions, and wherever else we can find quality pieces, but the majority of what we have are family pieces. When I refinish furniture, I like to try and restore it as close to how it was originally as possible."

Joanne likes to sew and also enjoys baking. She has

There was an ad in the paper the other day for a Mac-Donald's which now accepts Visa or Mastercharge with a $3 minimum purchase.

That says something about our economy, doesn't it? It also says something about how far plastic money has come. I wouldn't dream of taking my kids anywhere to eat without the security of a gold American Express card giving me unlimited funds.

Before they could say "toi toi" or "poo poo" they knew words like Chateaubriand and escargot. I used to see other couples in restaurants with their children and they'd toss the baby a crust of bread or a cracker and they'd sit there and slobber happily for the next two hours. Our kids scarfed away everything but the check. I was 35 years old before I knew what a doggy bag was.

While visiting with my kids in L.A. last month, I invited two of them out to eat. It was a perfectly safe move. My daughter was on a diet. She told me so. She had written us how her stomach had shrunk so she could barely force down a little consomme with a few greens at lunch and for dinner it was just something broiled and spartan. Besides, she was a vegetarian now and that ruled out steaks.

My son worked nights and always had a late breakfast so I knew he wouldn't want anything heavy. He said he

Mother-daughter dinner held Thursday at Lodge

The Yima Wa Siko Adventure group held their motherdaughter dinner Thursday evening at the Camp Fire

The girls each brought a covered dish and told the history of their dish, which was the first step to earn an emblem in "Many Cultures."

The group sang several songs and did skits, including Coke and Malt-O-Meal commercials. Door prizes were drawn and information on the annual baffquet was presented. The dinner closed with a friendship circle and singing of the Camp Fire Law.

Those present were Colleen Billingsley and Leslie, Mary Lou Madrigal and Veronica, Sherrie Davis and Melissa, Brenda Fox and Stephanie. Peggy Stubblefield and Melissa, Trine Longoria and Sally.

Also, Carolina Luna and Monica, Janice Brownlow and Cynamin, Susan Malone and Shana, Vickie Kuykendall and Michelle, Antonia Madrigal, Tonie Vaughn, and Johnnie Messer and Brandy and Nikki.

Doak is hostess for Friday club meeting

Mrs. Carrie Mae Doak was hostess to members of the Cultural Homemakers Club on Friday. After roll call was answered with "My Favorite Herbs and Spices," Mrs. Doak read a story of spice trees.

Mrs. Art Lewis gave the origin and uses of several different herbs and spices, including several from Bible times. One of these was hysop, which was used for tea and was given to Jesus on the cross mixed with vinegar.

Bertha Dettmann led a quiz, "The Spice of Life." Refreshments consisted of herb butters and crackers and poppy seed cake.

Mmes. George Pope, John Hunter, M.H. Goettsch and Doak were selected to attend the Sew Fair March 8 from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Community Center.

Others in attendance were Mmes. Ira Scott, Jim Gandy, Johnie Townsend, M.H. Wiseman, Tom Hargrave, Burl Rogers, Vernis Parsons, Marie Thames, Charles Conway and Ella Stehr.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Ira Scott on March LABO originated in Japan in 1966 as an English teaching program and developed into a language laboratory, hence the name LABO. Japanese children enroll in the program to learn English. And so, in 1972, LABO and 4-H began the exchange program for young people between 12 and 17 years old. 4-H and LABO to take the young Japanese into their homes not as guest but as family, that they should join in the daily routine of home life, observe the "ground rules" of the household and be treated like a brother or sister to the family's own kids. It works. In the month of sharing they form something stronger that just friendship. It's like a family tie.

There is, however, one sadness - parting. One host mother wrote to LABO and said, "You didn't tell us our hearts would break to see them go back to Japan."

But it's sadness with a reward. When people from cultures so different learn-not only to understand each other but to care in a way that is so strong and so lasting, the world gets a little better.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Serice serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

But the goal of LABO goes understanding among Japanese children, so they

While these children were learning our ways and our customs, they were sharing their own. They all brought gifts that were typical of Japan - handmade dolls and embroidery, and lovely host families. They brought playthings for the young 4-H'ers and taught them to play Japanese games and the ancient art of paper-folding. In turn they learned to play dominos, to ride a horse, and

Warn children early

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In the last few years several things have been coming out of the closet, and the most forbidden subject has made the least progress. It is child-

I was seven when my grandfather started to fool around with me. He made me promise I would never tell my parents because it was a special secret between just

My mother never told me anything about my body or sex. She let me know, however, that only low-class, trashy people thought about such things. So, when I was seven, I decided I must be a low-class, trashy person because of what my grandfather was doing with me.

This letter is a plea to every parent who can read: Don't use shyness as an excuse to keep from discussing this subject with your very young children. (Four years of age isn't too soon.) Let them know that sooner or later they will have sexual feelings and they are not dirty or bad. But DO warn them against letting anyone use them sexually in any way. Tell them if anyone tries they must come and tell you at once. Several times when I attempted to get on the subject with my mother, she would suddenly remember that the soup had to be stirred.

If any mother who reads this sees herself, I hope she will wake up. - Getting It Together At 30

DEAR 30: Thank you, "30," for sharing your bitter experience. Although I have dealt with this subject many times in the past I will continue to remind my readers that they must be alert to every possibility. To ignore it may leave a child emotionally scarred forever.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: New kind of problem: Friends or enemies .. don't know which. Help us decide.

We've known this couple for several years. We have entertained them in our home once or twice. They have reciprocated. Our lives have moved along, we've made new friends, and, frankly, we have outgrown them. Yet they persist in inviting us over regularly even though we have declined at least 10 invitations in a row.

I am beginning to wonder if they really want to see us, or are they keeping some sort of scorecard on our refusals? The men work together, so we don't want a knock-down drag-out. Any suggestions? - Fishhooks And Chicken Wire In New England.

DEAR HOOKS AND CHICKEN WIRE: Ten refusals and they are still calling? It's an endurance contest. Since you obviously don't wish to accept their hospitality, keep saying no .. give no excuse. Simply say, "So sorry, we aren't able to make it.'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife (who is in her late 70s) has a nephew-with no common sense. He threatens to come visit us, although we have told him he is not welcome.

Last year this fellow showed up (uninvited) when we were out for the evening. He picked the lock, made himself comfortable in the guest bedroom and stayed for several days.

My wife is not well. Her worry over him doing the same thing this year is causing sleepless nights for us both. How can we protect ourselves against this nervy pest? - Uncle Charles In Louisiana

DEAR UNCLE: Write to the nervy pest and tell him if he repeats last year's performance he will be arrested for breaking and entering.

Though named for the Equator it straddles, Ecuador has extremes of climate ranging from tropical heat to polar cold.

Prosecutors no longer intersted in fugitive

(AP) - A fugitive apprehended in West Texas was one of several people once wanted for questioning in connection with the attempted assassination of a federal prosecutor, but authorities here say they no longer think the man was involved.

Danny O. Armstrong, 34, of Austin was sought four years ago for an appearance before a grand jury investigating the 1978 assassination attempt, U.S. Attorney Edward Prado confirmed Monday.

The investigation into the attempt on the life of former assistant U.S. attorney District Judge John H. Wood James Kerr is continuing, but Armstrong is not believed to have been involved, Prado

"We don't think he had anything to do with it now," Prado said. "We absolutely

SAN ANTONIO, Texas have no desire to talk to the man."

Kerr narrowly missed death here on Nov. 21, 1978, when his car was riddled with 19 bullets from an automatic

The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, in a copyright story Sunday, quoted an unidentified federal source as saying Armstrong was a "prime" figure in the assassination investigation.

The attempt on Kerr's life was followed here seven months later with the May 29, 1979, assassination of U.S.

two-way system to protect judges as much as the their shortcomings. On Tuesday, Robert Flowers, 59, former head of the Criminal Justice Division of the governor's office, replaces Maurice S. Pipkin, 74, who has been executive director of the Commission on Judicial Conduct since it was created in 1967. Then, on March 11, the 11-member commission meets to consider pending legislation designed to open to the public and the press some of its proceedings concerning wayward judges.

In the past, there has been considerable criticism of the secrecy surrounding activities of the little-known state agency that can discipline state judges for anything from senility to stealing. Some critics have said it was like a Star Chamber, an ancient English court known for secret sessions, torture and harsh punishment. At present, only after the commission has proven a judge guilty of a misdeed and levied punishment is there a public announcement, and in some cases not even then often there is simply a private reprimand, as provided by the state constitution. But indications are the private nature of the panel may become a thing of the past. "I have had a change of opinion about when to open up the proceeding," said San Angelo attorney W. Truett Smith, commission chairman.

"I think it is silly when you have a hearing at the cour-*thouse with a guard at the door of the courtroom, and only an idiot would not know what judge is inside. I have come to feel that when we recommend a formal hearing it should be a public trial.

"That is just my feeling; I don't know how others feel,". Smith said.

Smith said he believed the commission has plenty of power to start any investigation now. He indicated there would be no change in the commission's past policy of aggressively pursuing judges suspected of misconduct. "Under the statute we can act on any affidavit before us," he said. "We can act on any matter from anyone. We can proceed and we have done that."

Flowers said he felt the commission would take some action next week on the proposed legislation pending in the House. "I feel like our investigations should be as quiet as possible until there is assurance there is a case," Flowers said. "If the complaints are aired too early, it could negate the influence of a judge who may be totally innocent.

"We want to prevent any instance where the complaint

Commission keeps track of judges is filed just to harass a judge," Flowers said. "It is a

AUSTIN (AP) - Senate Austin," he said. consideration of widely different plans to reorganize the Public Utility Commission, a hot subject of last summer's politics, shifted to a subcommittee today. Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, chairman of the Senate State Affairs Committee, said at Monday's lengthy public hearing that a subcommittee would give the 10 bills about two more weeks of hearings and consideration before reporting back to the full committee. "We hope to come out with one vehicle that will move through the Senate quickly,' he said.

The proposals, explained by nine different authors, concerned mostly appointed or elected commission members and the addition of a public counsel to represent utility consumers in rate

"We believe the PUC should be abolished, but that may not be practical," said-James R. Matz of Harlingen, who said he represented a group seeking local control of utility rates.

Matz recommended a nine-member elected commission, instead of the three currently appointed by the governor, who "would be subject to recall every two years." He' also urged an independent public counsel appointed by the governor.

"We have never had anyone from our part of the state represented and we can't drive up here for every hearing," she said. Ray Clymer of Wichita Falls, vice chairman of the Texas Industrial Commission, warned that drastic changes affecting utility companies could affect the future economy of the state.

"We must leave utility companies with room to plan for the future," he said.

George Grenaias, a Houston City Council member, said he was concerned because none of the bills offered help to cities that want to keep local control of utility rates and service. He suggested that cities get together and decide rate cases; then the utility companies could appeal the decisions to PUC, instead of starting with PUC at the beginn-

"We cannot act as consumer advocates for our people without some help from Highlights of some of the general overhaul bills includ-

- A measure by Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, which he said came from the Senate subcomittee on consumer affairs, that calls for an expanded elected commission of six members, and a public counsel in the attorney general's office.

- A measure by Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, who said it incorporated recommendations of the Sunset Commission, for three commissioners elected statewide. A separate bill by Caperton would set up a public counsel supported by a levy on gross receipts of public utilities.

- A measure by Sens. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, and John Traeger, D-Seguin, for three members appointed by the governor, with authority to remove them. The governor also would appoint a public counsel, subject to Senate confirmation. Authority of the PUC would be extended to water and sewage utilities.

- A measure by Sen. Hugh Parmer, D-Fort Worth, for appointment of three commissioners by the governor but each would have to be approved by a voters' referendum every two years.

says it can remove from office or censure any judge, from a justice on the Texas Supreme Court to a local justice of the peace, for deliberate conduct that is "inconsistent with the proper preformance of his duties or casts public discredit upon the judiciary or administration of justice." A "private reprimand" may be issued if the commission does not think it necessary to take the judge into an official court of inquiry. The commission also can involuntarily retire a judge or remove him from office for any disability that it feels seriously interferes with his duties. A proposed constitutional change, and a state law change, by Rep. Bob Bush, D-Sherman, would open up the court of inquiry like any other public trial. The session would be conducted by a panel of appeals judges. It also would allow judges to be disciplined for incompetence, in addition to misconduct or disabilities.

"I just think we should open up the proceedings for the court of inquiry," said Bush. 'I took part in one once and I got the feeling that some witnesses felt like they were on trial instead of the judges. They get some old retired judge to hold these things and it can get pretty rough."

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, who once was refused entry to a commist sion hearing as a representative of an accused judge, sponsored an open hearings bill in the 1981 Legislature. It passed the Senate but died in the House after opposition from Pipkin and others. "I have not decided if I will gett said, "but I think something should be to open up the proceedings." Smith said the commission had no active part in preparahave a bill this year," Dog-tion of the bill before the House. 'We have been accused of being a Star Chamber and at other times accused of being a whitewash (for accused judges)," he said. "I guess that means we are doing a good job."

Storing cream liqueur

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Virginia didn't think of Walt much, over those 23 years of marriage and children and tangled divorce proceedings. Except when she danced. The boyfriend of her youth had loved to dance. Her husband did not. Walt did not think of Virginia terribly often, during his 23 years of marriage and children and divorce. Except when he skimmed through his high school yearbook and saw her picture. "Now there," he would say, "is one of the nicest girls I ever knew."

Theirs is a story of two young sweethearts who reached across the country and 26 years of silence to find each other again, beginning a trek that would lead them to

It was Walt's former wife who suggested he call their high school friend. Virginia was living in Dallas, working

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY - I have a recipe for making a cream liqueur, using vodka, cream, egg yolks, sugar and some other flavorings. This recipe does not seem to indicate how the liqueur should be stored. Shouldn't it be refrigerated to prevent the cream from spoiling? Should the bottles be sterlized before I fill them? — M.T.

DEAR M.T. — The alcohol in the liqueur preserves the other ingredients, preventing them from spoiling. This includes the cream and eggs. No refrigeration is necessary, although the bottles should be stored in a fairly cool, dark place to preserve the delicate flavors and allow the mixture to age properly. Before bottling your creations, be sure to wash the bottles or jars thoroughly in very hot water and detergent, then rinse in hot water. No sterilizing is neces-

DEAR POLLY - For many years while we raised three children, cold summer soups were one of my specialties.

Cream of cucumber, green onion, even cauliflower or strawberry, there was no limit to my imagination. On hot, humid days, I would put the soup bowls into the freezer to chill. Then, the cold soup along with cheese, crackers and sliced tomatoes would make our entire meal. When all my children married and left the nest, each complained that any cold soup in even the fanciest restaurant could not compare with mine. The secret? I also used, as the base of my soups, buttermilk, but I always carefully crushed the carton into the bottom of the garbage so no one knew the secret ingredient, knowing they would never enjoy my soups if they had any inkling of the content. — STRATFORD'S ALONA DEAR ALONA — I do hope that, now that your children are grown, you've shared your secret with them as you have small Kansas town. In 1948, the 20-year-olds talked about marriage. But Virginia, the runner-up for Miss Kansas, was going to pursue a modeling career, while he was going into the Air Force. And they both agreed to wait three years.

"If we still feel the same and things are still the same," they told each other, "then we'll talk about getting married."

When those three years were finished, they were both married: Walt to a neighborhood girl, Virginia to the man who designed the clothes, she modeled. He raised four children and worked alternately as a coach, sporting goods representative and

All this information was exchanged during the two months before Virginia flew to Wyoming for a 10-day reunion. "We talked over the phone about how difficult it was going to be to greet each other after 26 years. We agreed that what we would do was to touch hands," Walt

He had no problem recognizing his former sweetheart.

"She was still a fashion model," Walt said. "We don't get many of those in Cody, Wyoming. I reached out my hands as we had planned. She came right through my hands and threw her arms around me. I thought, 'Wow, this poor woman is in love already.' Actually, she wasn't in love. Just airsick."

After that bumpy beginning, the reunion was more natural than either could have hoped.

'It just seemed like there wasn't any gap after 26 years," he said. "We seemed to be able to pick up exactly where it was before." Their feet hadn't forgotten each other either - they led the Martinis and red cheeks Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My husband has been drinking martinis before dinner for years. Recently, his face (especially his cheeks) become red after he drinks the martinis. He has high blood pressure and is taking medication for it. I am very worried about his health. What could the red cheeks indicate in relation to his health? Also, what could happen if he keeps drinking martinis before dinner?

DEAR READER - You didn't mention how many drinks he has before dinner It makes a difference. And you didn't mention your husband's age or weight, which could be important in view of his high blood pres-sure. If he has any excess body fat he should eliminate it, and alcohol is high in calories, seven calories per gram of alcohol. Also, a drink before dinner may encourage a person who needs to lose weight to eat more than he should.

In general, I seldom see anyone who needs to lose weight and persists in drinking alcohol who is successful in slimming down.

Those red cheeks are an indication of alcohol's action on the peripheral circula-tion. Alcohol is a vasodilator and will cause the small vessels in the skin to open. That is how alcohol induces the body to lose heat. That function is why alcohol should never be used if you are exposed to cold. It decreases the body's ability to conserve needed body heat. The person will feel warmer because of the increased blood flow through the skin but he will lose heat much more rapidly than if he did If a person is susceptible alcohol can make matters worse. Incidentally, you can have this condition even if you are a teetotaler. The list of things alcohol can do to your health is rather long, including liver disease and bad reactions to acne roseca (rummy nose)

terone drugs too rapidly.

DEAR READER — Corticosterone is almost a miracle hormone in some cases, such as in some forms of shock or in control of the crises that may occur in illness, ses that may occur in tiness, such as in a severe incapacitating attack of asthma. But it is a two-edged sword. Its chronic use can cause a number of complications, including loss of bone tissue. Its prolonged use may also suppress the normal mechanism from the brain to the pituitary to the adrenal gland that results in the normal release of corticosteroid hormones.

This suppression means that a person may not be able to release the normal amounts of hormone when the corticosteroid is stopped. So stopping it causes symptoms of adrenal cortex insufficiency. This includes fatigue and, in severe cases, major weakness. Fever, muscle pains and joint pains may occur. And the illness it is being used to treat may suddenly re-manifest itself, giving rise to symptoms that have been controlled by corticosterone. That is why withdrawal, and indeed management even a year after stopping corticosteroid hormones, is often so diffi-

Poker game shootout going to grand jury

ODESSA, Texas (AP) - A weekend shootout at a poker game that killed three people will be referred to a grand jury, even though a police investigator says "the guilty ones are already dead."

The card players began shooting at each other about 3 a.m. Sunday at the La Cosita Apartments on the west side of this West Texas city, said Odessa Police Sgt. Jerry Smith.

Investigators found $5,000, three pistols, scattered playing cards and pools of blood in the apartment.

"Right now it doesn't make much sense except that we got three people dead over a poker game," said Odessa Police Lt. Rusty Baker. "It's all still very confusing. Sometimes it doesn't take much to cause a shooting."

Baker said that at least seven people - six men and a woman - were in the apartment when the shooting started. A man and the woman escaped injury.

Baker said the case would be presented to a grand jury, but police did not expect charges to be filed.

"From what it sounds like, the guilty ones are already dead. They more or less shot each other," he said.

Baker said witnesses told investigators that earlier in the evening, there had been an argument among the players. He did not say what the dispute was about.

But the argument ceased, and it seemed like things were going along pretty good. Then, I understand that when the first pistol was drawn they all jumped up and pulled their guns. One person didn't do all the shooting." Police said they found three pistols - a .380-caliber, a .38-caliber, and a .44-caliber - in the apartment, and more than $5,000 cash they said could have been part of the game stakes. Playing cards were scattered on the ground near the back door of the first-floor apartment.

Baker said a .45-caliber pistol also was fired during the melee, but police had not been able to find the gun. Police said Douglas Blevins, 43, was found dead in a pool of blood on the kitchen floor. He had been shot four times. Outside the apartment, 10 to 15 feet from the door, was the body of a man identified as Robert Notley, 42, of Odessa, said Baker. Notley had been shot five

The third dead men, who has not been identified, was shot once at the game with a .45-caliber pistol. He ran from the apartment, apparently pursuing someone, Baker said.

Witnesses told police that none of them knew the man,

Workers play games to learn management

HOUSTON (AP) - Going to work at the amusement park Astroworld can be, at least at first, all play and little work as company officials are using a board game resembling Monopoly to train their new employees.

When trainees start work, their first tasks are to roll dice and play with phony money and a computer.

Six Flags Corp., a Los Angeles-based company that owns Astroworld, asked Personnel Management Systems Inc. of Princeton, N.J., to design the game after looking at other training methods.

"We've looked around at training films, books, supervisory manuals and that sort of thing, but we've never found anything that relates to a theme park," said Mike Glennan, director of administration at Astroworld.

Astroworld employs about 2,000 people - most on a seasonal basis. About 70 new supervisors must be trained each year and the Supervisor Training Game is an effective, painless and fun way to learn, Glennan said.

He said the game has been a highly successful training

"The game is much like a Monopoly board," rolling dice and moving along the path on the board, he said.

If a player lands on a numbered square, he must answer a question. The questions are in four management areas - motivation, communication, delegation and human relations. The answers are scored on a sheet and by computer.

Some squares have problems, such as "Employee walks off job" or "Employee violates grooming code," which cost the player $20 in phony money.

Other squares pose problems like those a supervisor might encounter.

For instance, Glennan said, if a supervisor hears an employee respond rudely to a customer, what should be done. The game gives a choice of solutions and the player makes a selection. A computer grades the answer.

A correct answer is rewarded with a modest beep of "yes," Glennan said, while an incorrect answer gives a conspicuous and embarrassing"wrong."

"The whole game addresses problems and situations that would take them (trainees) four or five years to encounter in actual experience," Glennan said.
