Reagan 'cleaning EPA house' with firings

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, moving to clean house at the troubled Environmental Protection Agency, has fired two more of its administrators and, according to one congressman, more may be on the way out. As many as a half dozen agency officials might be targeted for removal, says Rep. James H. Scheuer, D-N.Y., who heads one of the congressional investigations into alleged mismanagement and wrongdoing at EPA. White House officials, however, refused to confirm such plans.

Reagan demanded and got the resignations Wednesday from EPA Inspector General Matthew Novick and Assistant Administrator John P. Horton — both of whom were allegedly assigning EPA secretaries personal work to do for them on government time.

On Feb. 7, Reagan fired another assistant EPA administrator, Rita M. Lavelle, who headed the $1.6 billion "superfund" program to clean up the nation's worst toxic waste dumps. The formal announcement of the Horton and Novick firings and their replacements were expected today.

A White House official, speaking on condition he be granted anonymity, characterized Novick's and Horton's departures Wednesday night as "part of an effort to strengthen middle-level management at EPA, particularly in the superfund area."

He said EPA Administrator Anne Burford, traveling in Arizona and California, "was fully consulted throughout ... and is totally on board." The EPA's "superfund" program has been the center of growing allegations that the administration granted the chemical industry "sweetheart deals" on costs and manipulated the fund's cleanup schedule for political purposes.

However, Ms. Lavelle denied suggestions Wednesday that she had made "sweetheart deals" with industrial polluters. Ms. Lavelle told Congress that her firing resulted from Mrs. Burford's mismanagement and suspicions.

Questioned by reporters in Tempe, Ariz., Mrs. Burford declined to respond to Ms. Lavelle's testimony, but continued to deny that EPA's decisions were "driven by politics."

"Every decision we make is in a political atmosphere," said Mrs. Burford, who was Anne Gorsuch before her marriage Sunday. "No decision we make can be driven by politics. But we are sensitive to those we serve."

She refused to discuss the dismissals, calling questions about them "extremely rude."

53 pints of blood donated

Local citizens responded by giving 53 pints of blood Wednesday as the Coffee Memorial Blood Mobile made its regular monthly stop at the Community Center. A total of 30 pints were given in the name of Hereford persons who have a blood debt.

Twelve people donated a pint for Kristen Huffaker, while six pints were donated for Jewell May, and five for Raymond Martinez. Two pints' credit was received by Ann Combs and A.L. Jordan, while one pint was donated for William Clark, Allen Shire, and Diane Perkins.

Orders for durable goods increase

By The Associated Press
U.S. manufacturers are enjoying a surge in factory orders for "big-ticket" durable goods, the government says, but recent new car sales by U.S. automakers slumped to their lowest level for the period in 22 years.

Wednesday by oil ministers from five major Persian Gulf states to cut their $34 per barrel base price for crude oil. The ministers declined to specify the amount of the price cut. Amid the mixed economic signals, the stock market rallied and the price of gold fell sharply in New York. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks finished Wednesday at 1,096.94, up 16.54 points. The price of gold closed down $12.60 on the New York Commodity Exchange at $467.90. The Commerce Department reported factory orders for durable goods rose in January by 4.5 percent. It was the second consecutive monthly increase, and followed recent reports that industrial production and retail sales had risen in January. "It's all very upbeat," said private analyst Robert Gough. But he said the durable-goods increases "have got to continue if we're going to have a robust or sustained recovery." The report covers goods expected to last three years or longer — often relatively big and expensive items bought on credit. New car sales by the major domestic automakers declined 12.7 percent in mid-February compared with the same period a year ago. The daily sales rate of 16,212 cars was the worst for mid-February since 14,618 cars were sold each day in 1961. It was the second consecutive selling period for which there was a drop in year-to-year comparisons. "We haven't really escaped the recession yet," said John Hammond, auto industry analyst at Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass. He said it's open to speculation how the automakers would be doing if they were not running sales campaigns. Auto companies have been offering 11.9 percent financing, with Chrysler throwing in an optional rebate instead of the financing.

The economy is expected to get a strong boost if world oil prices collapse.

Oil ministers from Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Qatar and Iraq concluded their two-day meeting in Saudi Arabia by agreeing on a price cut, according to Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani. He said Indonesia and the Persian Gulf sheikdoms of Oman and Bahrain had also agreed.

The ministers were reported considering a reduction of up to $7 per 42-gallon barrel. Such a reduction could lower American retail gasoline prices by about 10 percent, economists say.

OPEC President Yahaya Dikko of Nigeria, which slashed its oil price $5.50 a barrel Sunday, consulted with other oil ministers to determine the time and place of an emergency meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, the group said.

Mrs. Simmons wins Bull Chip

Carrell Ann Simmons, recently honored by the Womens' Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce as its Woman of the Year, was presented with the Bull Chip Award to highlight activities at the chamber's fun breakfast this morning.

Past chamber president Speedy Nieman made the presentation.

The breakfast was sponsored by Hereford Grain Corp., and that firm's manager, Joe Artho, was the surprised and happy winner of $25 in Deaf Smith County Bucks in one of three drawings held.

Vera Threewit picked up $75 worth of county bucks, while Eileen Alley missed out on the biggest payoff, $100, by not being present for the drawing involving chamber members only.

Co-emcees Doug Manning and Lynton Allred directed the antics at the breakfast as usual. Several announcements of upcoming events were also made, including:

- The Lions Club Pancake Supper and Auction, set to begin at 5 p.m. Friday at the Bull Barn.
- The Chamber banquet, set for Thursday, March 3.
- The HHS Key Club Chili Supper, set for Tuesday, March 8.
- A high school basketball playoff contest between the state's top-ranked 3A team, Dimmitt, and Boys Ranch at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the La Plata gym.
- The Super Sports Weekend, slated for the first two weekends of March, featuring baseball, track, golf, and tennis.
- An appearance by Meadowlark Lemon's Bucketees, sponsored by the Hereford & Vicinity YMCA on Tuesday, March 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the La Plata gym.
- The appearance of Keith & Rusty McNeil as part of the Community Concert series on March 8.
- The city-wide fashion show featuring fashions from most of the retail outlets in town, set for 7:30 p.m. in the banquet room of the community center on March 7.

Schoolgirl friends are really sisters

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — Winna Miller and Sandra Campbell knew they looked enough alike to be sisters, but they were shocked to discover their resemblance was more than skin deep.

And Mrs. Miller, 24, was even more surprised to learn that Mrs. Campbell, 22, also had a twin brother.

The three siblings were reunited recently after Steven Akin, the brother, sought aid from a local child welfare agency in the search for his unknown sister.

The three think that their two sets of adoptive parents went to Amarillo about the same time in 1961. Steven and Sandra were adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Akin, and Winna was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. B.M. Dugat.

Apparently the two newly-formed families went back to Victoria County, where they lived for 22 years without knowing about the family ties.

But when Steven and Sandra were 16 their parents told them they had a sister but did not know where she lived.

"When we adopted Steven and Sandra we were told about the sister," Mrs. Akin said. "We would have adopted her too, but she was already taken."

In 1977, Winna and Sandra attended summer school together at Victoria Stroman High School and became close friends.

Winna did not know she had any sisters or brothers but recalled classmates always mistaking them for sisters.

"We were together all the time at school," Mrs. Miller said of her relationship with Sandra. "You know, we were just like any teen-age girls are. We joked around during recess, flirted with the boys, stuff like that."

Recently Akin, 22, sought help from Children's Services of Victoria, which determined his other sister was alive.

"They wouldn't tell me who she was until she was contacted first," Akin said. "If she would have said no then Sandra and I would have never been able to contact her."

After Winna agreed through the agency to meet her brother, Akin stopped by her home.

Akin had not seen Winna in 1977 because he did not attend the summer school session. But he said Winna wasn't hard to recognize when they met for the first time Jan. 12 when he went to her home to visit his newly discovered sister.

"The first time I saw her I knew she was really my sister," Akin said. "She looked so much like Sandra."

Texas schools seek more money

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas public school officials say they need more money than present proposed state budgets, even if it takes new or increased taxes.

The testimony came Wednesday before a combined meeting of the Senate Finance and Education Committees to prepare them for any school financing recommendations they make.

"We want to get an overview of the issues that are related to education and we want to know your priority items," said Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, education committee chairman.

"We discharged 600 school employees last year and still had a $12 million deficit," said Robby Collins, speaking for the Dallas Independent School District.

Collins recommended that special "density" exceptions be allowed for the big city school districts in Dallas, Houston, Fort Worth and Austin because all have been hit hard by booming school populations, desegregation costs, and a change in property tax procedures.

Tahoka School Superintendent Jim Coulston said his district suffered a 20 percent loss of its tax base, part from the property tax changes and part from weather-related crop failures.

"Our school population has dropped 37 percent and we have lost 19 teachers the last two years," he said.

Coulston suggested an increase in the state sales tax might be set aside for school improvements.

Gerald Brashears, head of Abilene schools and president of the Texas School Administrators Council, offered a $2.3 billion program recommended by the council. Basically it called for higher teachers salaries, more money for operating costs, more money for bilingual education and more state money to make up for decreased local property tax collections.

Regular selling for less than 90 cents

HOUSTON (AP) — For the first time since 1979, motorists can buy regular gasoline for less than 90 cents a gallon.

But while motorists lined up at the pumps to take advantage of the lower prices, one industry expert said the competition could force small stations out of business.

Glenn Nilsson, executive director of the Lone Star Service Station Association, said many stations already are selling below wholesale. He said as many as 250 stations closed down after prices started to drop last fall.

"The driving public certainly has the advantage, but it has to realize that small business is in peril," Nilsson said. "There's just no way to sell below cost and stay around."

Dennis Moustakis, owner of a Texaco station on the city's northwest side, sold out of regular gasoline after he dropped his prices to 89.9 cents per gallon Tuesday.

Two other stations also were offering regular gasoline for the same price along with $1 or less for unleaded gasoline.

"I really wasn't expecting this," Moustakis said after emptying his tanks. "I really had plenty of gas this time, but everybody just started coming in."

Moustakis conceded he and other owners were selling below wholesale prices of 94 cents for regular. But he said he was attracting enough new customers for his full service pump and his repair shop to make the sacrifice worthwhile.

House approves capitol fire money

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas House members have approved $7 million for repairs of the Senate side of the Capitol, damaged in a Feb. 6 fire.

The repair fund survived Rep. Pete Patterson's effort to cut it in half. Patterson, D-Brookston, said the bill, approved by the Senate, included more money than needed.

Representatives voted 87-51 against Patterson's plan.

The bill gives the Senate $6 million for repair and redecorating of the area damaged by the fire and gives $1 million to the state General Purchasing Commission for clean-up and moving expenses for senators displaced by the fire damage.

The House added an amendment allowing the state to use part of the money to buy land adjacent to the Capitol. Any money left from the $1 million clean-up fund could be used to buy the land and the old funeral home on it.

Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, said about $500,000 of the $1 million would be left for the land purchase.

He said the state had been trying to buy the building for use as office space and but might need the more money to complete the deal.

Weather

West Texas — Mostly fair with increasing cloudiness tonight. Scattered showers across the area Friday. Highs 58 Panhandle to 75 Big Bend valleys. Lows near 30 Panhandle and mountains to 45 southeast and extreme south. Highs 52 north to 68 Big Bend valleys.

Jobs bill heading for approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $4.5 billion recession relief bill, sponsored by Democrats and containing more money for the poor and elderly than proposed by President Reagan, is heading for almost certain House approval.

Democratic leaders of the House Appropriations Committee agreed Wednesday on the quick-fix legislation providing jobs and emergency help for victims of hard economic times.

The committee is expected to formally approve the proposal Friday and send it to the House floor by next Thursday.

"We've tried to get jobs that are necessary and things we can do," said Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., the committee chairman.

Four thefts reported

Four thefts were reported in the city Wednesday and a second carwash has been hit by vandals this week.

The Hereford Carwash at 107 Avenue A received about $10 in window damage on the northside where someone had evidently tried to enter the building. The Rainbow Carwash on 25-Mile Avenue was vandalized earlier this week.

An attempt to remove a CB radio from a pickup parked at Great American Food and Beverage was reported after the truck owner got home.

Reported missing from a pickup parked at 607 Star was a spare tire.

A $300 air conditioner was stolen from a house at 703 S. 25-Mile Avenue.

A tool box and tools valued at $400 was taken from a pickup parked at a club on U.S. 60 East.

Police issued seven citations and made 11 calls.

Land market seminar set

"The Changing Land Market of the 1980's" is the theme of a one-day seminar to be presented Friday by the Farm and Land Institute, Texas Chapter No. 22 at the Hereford Community Center.

The seminar will last from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., with registration limited to 75 people.

The seminar, which is intended mainly for real estate personnel, will feature Richard Johnson, SOARS Instructor, and William Douglas Moore, TRERC Education Division, who will be reviewing the changing land market for the 1980's.

It will focus on identifying the $20 billion farm and ranch brokerage market, plus techniques which can be used to penetrate that market.

Lunch is included with the registration fee of $65, which is payable at the door Friday morning.

There is less money for construction of highways and military housing than Reagan wanted. The president had suggested $600 million for highways; the appropriations committee chairman set the amount at $33 million.

The Democrats are also agreed on greater spending for programs to feed poor mothers and their children, to insulate low-income housing, to provide jobs for the elderly and for a Job Corps program for young people.

O'Neill said House Democrats have no hesitation in revising Reagan's legislative proposal because of mounting criticism of Reagan's handling of the economy. While Democrats were in a weak bargaining position two years ago, "The ball is back in the other court," O'Neill said.

The Democratic plan also included $500,000 to help unemployed people threatened with foreclosures on the mortgages on their houses.

On top of the $4.5 billion, there will also be an additional $5 billion from which states can borrow as they run out of funds to pay unemployment benefits.

While there may be "a change here or there," according to O'Neill, the $4.5 billion package was expected to clear the House relatively intact.

Among the remaining Democratic jobs and emergency relief measures:

—$1 billion, the same amount proposed by Reagan, for Community Development Block Grants, through which federal aid goes directly to 700 local governments.

—$404 million for flood control projects.

—$207 million for job training, including funds for the Job Corps, summer youth and displaced workers.

—$120 million for grants for Amtrak construction projects, mainly in the Northeast.

—$200 million for low-income weatherization.

—$100 million for food programs for women and small children.

—$50 million for emergency food distribution and emergency shelters.

—$200 million for sewer grants.

Judge to decide fate of 11-year-old boy

LA MARQUE, Texas (AP) — A judge will decide the fate of an 11-year-old boy who, trying to clear his conscience, confessed to his school principal that he shot a liquor store clerk during a robbery attempt.

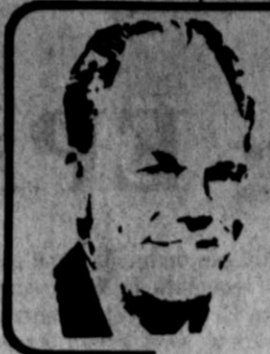

The youngster has been transferred to the Galveston County Juvenile Detention Center in Galveston. Family Court Judge Andrew Baker will decide whether to commit the boy to a state juvenile facility.

Police said the boy walked into the liquor store Monday night and demanded money from Charles Biaggne, 68, of La Marque, and then shot the clerk before he could open the cash register.

Biaggne was shot once in the stomach and remained in critical condition Wednesday at Memorial Hospital of Galveston County in Texas City, said a hospital spokesman who asked not to be identified.

"It was like it was cold-blooded," La Marque Police Department Investigator Jack Wilkins said. "Biaggne didn't offer any resistance. He (the boy) didn't give him a chance."

The price of living longer

We are living longer. That's good, but it's not all good.

In 1900 only 4 percent of our population lived past 65. Not it's 11 percent and headed higher.

Americans 75 and older are in the hospital more than any other age group. So while our Congress is contemplating Social Security and Medicare, it must consider the graying of America.

The American Hospital Association is seeking to prepare now for an increasing influx of older patients and to anticipate their special health care needs.

They are special people, must be treated differently. Eighty-five percent have some chronic condition that cannot be cured. They have less resistance to infection. They tend to have multiple illnesses, complicating diagnosis and treatment. Sometimes the therapy good for one ailment is bad for the other. Their mental limitations are similarly multifaceted.

Hospitals must prepare for more impatient geriatric care and a greater range of outpatient and support services.

Our nation has not been neglectful. We spend three times more per-capita dollars for the care of older people. But new limits are being placed on public funds for Medicaid and Medicare. Federal, state and local governments are being forced to curtail health-related social services. And even for the older people who have insurance, almost no insurance provides long-term care.

Historically in our nation, the family has been the greatest provider of prolonged care for the elderly, but that is changing.

Smaller families, more women working, more people divorced, more couples with fewer children — plus geographic mobility — all conspire to dissolve the historic filiality which obligated each family to provide for its own.

Valiantly hospitals are trying to fill the void — with a host of associations and multi-institutional systems and committees and task forces assessing and planning for an otherwise frightening future.

On the sunshine side of this audit are the many advances in biomedical technology which enhance our ability to prolong life, ameliorate pain and improve the quality of life.

It is possible that these encouraging technological developments might eventually result in a decreased demand for hospital services. But not yet.

Toto tops list of Grammy winners

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Members of Toto, who rose from a high school band to soft-rock stardom, led the pack with seven awards — including album of the year — in a glittering 25th anniversary Grammy show filled with nostalgic glimpses of past ceremonies.

Another big winner Wednesday night was composer John Williams, who won three Grammys for his music to the box-office smash movie "E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial."

Willie Nelson's wistful "Always on My Mind" also garnered three awards, and Marvin Gaye picked up two gramophone-shaped trophies for his comeback hit, "Sexual Healing."

Also taking home awards from the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences extravaganza at the Shrine Auditorium were the Australian new wave group Men at Work, Melissa Manchester, Lionel Richie, Joe Cocker and Jennifer Warnes, Pat Benatar, John Cougar, Jennifer Holliday and Alabama.

Toto's Grammy haul included album of the year for "Toto IV" and record of the year for their mellow hit, "Rosanna," which also won two arranging awards.

The band was also named producer of the year. "Toto IV" earned best engineered recording honors and Toto guitarist Steve Lukather shared the best rhythm & blues song award with Jay Graydon and Bill Champlin for writing the George Benson hit, "Turn Your Love Around."

Toto's Grammys were the first for the 4-year-old Los Angeles band, marking a triumph over sometimes uncomplimentary reviews. "If it were up to the critics, we wouldn't have won," Lukather said.

The nationally televised awards show ran more than three hours. Although the record industry has fallen on hard times lately, the academy pulled out all the stops for its 25th ceremony.

There were a few unexpected touches to the evening: chanteuse Grace Jones presented an award in new wave garb that featured a hat resembling a stripped umbrella, and comedian Eddie Murphy made a mad dash from the wings to snatch away Lionel Richie's best male pop vocal Grammy for "Truly."

"Who was that masked man?" Richie joked before Murphy came back with the trophy. Gaye performed "Sexual Healing" before winning the best r&b male vocal Grammy. Earlier he had collected the best r&b instrumental award for the instrumental version of the same song.

Cocker and Miss Warnes performed and then won the best group pop vocal Grammy for "Up Where We Belong," the Oscar-nominated theme to the movie "An Officer and a Gentleman."

Nelson, who performed via satellite from Texas, won best country male vocal honors for "Always on My Mind," which won song of the year and best country song awards.

Men at Work walked off with the best new artist LP after singing their reggae-tinted hit "Down Under." Alabama, a country quartet that has amassed numerous awards from country groups, picked up its first Grammy for "Mountain Music." Miles Davis picked up his third career Grammy in the best jazz solo instrumental category for the LP "We Want Miles."

Melissa Manchester was a first-time winner as best female pop vocalist for her up-tempo hit, "You Should Hear How She Talks About You."

Jennifer Holliday, whose first solo album will be released shortly, won the r&b female vocal award for "And I Am Telling You I'm Not Going," a song from the Broadway musical, "Dreamgirls."

Pat Benatar took her third female rock vocal award in as many years for "Shadows of the Night."

Ernie Watts' performance of the "Chariots of Fire" theme was named best pop instrumental.

John Cougar won the male rock vocal Grammy for "Hurt So Good," his No. 1 hit from the album "American Fool." Survivor's "Eye of the Tiger," the theme to "Rocky III," picked up the rock group vocal award, and "D.N.A." by A Flock of Seagulls got the nod for best rock instrumental.

In a rare Grammy tie, the Dazz Band's "Let It Whip" and Earth, Wind & Fire's "Wanna Be With You" split the r&b group vocal award.

Juice Newton won the country female vocal Grammy for "Break It To Me Gently," while Roy Clark took the country instrumental prize for "Alabama Jubilee."

The late pianist Glenn Gould's recording of Johann Sebastian Bach's "The Goldberg Variations" won best classical album and instrumental soloist Grammys. Gould's 1966 recording of the same works also won a Hall of Fame award given by the academy to honor records made before the Grammys were first awarded in 1959.

Grammy award winners were determined by secret ballot among the record academy's more than 5,000 members in seven cities. The eligibility year ran from Oct. 1, 1981, to Sept. 30, 1982.

TV heart surgery draws mixed reviews

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A retired insurance salesman opened his eyes and wiggled his toes less than 90 minutes after a nationally televised heart operation that inspired some viewers but was labeled a "publicity stunt" by another surgeon.

Bernard Schuler, 62, from Elmwood, Wis., underwent the two-hour operation Wednesday night and was in stable condition today in the cardiovascular intensive care unit at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Dr. Edward B. Diethrich, head of the five-member surgical team, said he expected Schuler's "total rehabilitation" with no post-operative complications. He termed the operation "pretty much a straightforward triple coronary bypass."

Two hours after the surgery, Diethrich said a chest X-ray of Schuler looked "very satisfactory." He said the patient probably would be taken off a respirator today.

Scores of public television stations across the country broadcast the operation live — competing with the Grammy awards — while others planned to air the program on a delayed basis.

"The response was overwhelmingly positive," said Bill Hanley, producer of a local phone-in show aired on KTCA-TV in St. Paul, Minn., immediately after the surgery.

Now You're Cookin'

By LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor

Collecting recipes is an age-old hobby, but many people just haphazardly gather clippings, cards, and pamphlets, stuffing them into an old cookbook and hoping to get them organized someday. Kitty Gault, on the other hand, collects whole books of recipes which she attractively displays on shelves in her kitchen and dining area. The rows of colorful cookbooks contain recipes for just about anything one would want to make.

"It's something I really enjoy," smiles Kitty. "Whenever I go in a store that sells cookbooks, I have to stop and look." Friends have also contributed to her collection.

Kitty subscribes to several magazines such as Bon Appetit, Cuisine, and Gourmet. And when she clips recipes from magazines and newspapers, she pastes them onto index cards which she has filed in three separate boxes.

But although Kitty has many more recipes in her home than the average person, she says that she really just uses recipes as a guideline when she cooks. "I do a lot of substituting and adding extra ingredients when I cook," she comments. "It's hard for me to duplicate even my own recipes, because I seldom make a dish exactly like I did the last time."

Kitty also notes that she adapts many of her recipes so that they will be lower in fat and cholesterol, and therefore, more healthy.

Kitty and her husband, Cameron, have lived in Hereford about 24 years. They have one son, Drue, who is 13 years old and attends La Plata Junior High. Kitty was raised in North Carolina, living there until she came to Hereford. Cameron was born in Idaho, and moved here with his family in the 1940s.

The Gaults lived on their farm outside of town until nine years ago, when they moved into their home on 113 Liveoak. They own a farm seven miles west of town and a ranch a few miles east of Hereford.

Cameron is in the produce business—growing, processing, and shipping vegetables. Kitty works with the family business part-time, especially during the busy fall season.

Kitty is a member of L'Allegria Study Club, something she has enjoyed for a number of years. "I think I've held every office," she comments, "and right now I'm serving as recording secretary."

She has served on the board of Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Hereford and works with the American Heart Association. Kitty has also worked with the Cowgirl Hall of Fame Rhinestone Roundup for about three years, serving on several different committees, including decorations and invitations.

Kitty started taking a needlepoint class last year and enjoys working on that. She is also interested in antiques.

"L'Allegria used to have an antique show for our club project and I was chairman of that for the five years or so that we did it," says Kitty. "It was something I really enjoyed and I had a chance to get acquainted with many of the dealers."

"They send me information about shows on the Lubbock and Amarillo circuit and we attend many of them. We have several antiques in our home."

Kitty says that in the summer, she and her family like to go to a favorite spot near Guthrie, where they enjoy fishing and also do some hunting.

Kitty enjoys growing a garden in the summer also. Fresh vegetables are always a welcome sight, whether for cooking or eating fresh from the garden.

One of the recipes which Kitty has submitted is for a popular cold salad using broccoli, cauliflower and green onions. She also shares a special way to prepare French bread and a recipe for

Ann Landers Flowers to the living

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is my response to the letter written by parents complaining about ungrateful children.

I am 25. I've never been a parent, so there are some things I don't understand. I do know, however, that I am not a perfect daughter. I have a string of selfish acts and forgotten birthdays to remind me. I also know how difficult it is to tell the two people for whom I feel the most, "I love you." And it is even harder to say, "I appreciate your loving concern and the time and effort that helped mold my character from the day I was born."

My parents have never asked for proof that I love them. I always hoped it came shining through in a smile, a hug, the phone calls in good times and bad.

Have I been mistaken? — Tar Heel Daughter

DEAR T.H.D.: Very often children, parents, lovers and friends write to me and say, "I never expressed my feelings. I thought they knew." Well, maybe they knew — and maybe they didn't. I believe in demonstrating affection and expressing thanks to those who have made an emotional investment in our lives. How sad that so many people are unable to give flowers to the living. You, Tar Heel Daughter, are one of the lucky ones. For you it is not too late.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I will soon be 45 years old and have always lacked self-confidence. I stand 5-foot-8 inches and weigh 140 pounds. I've been think seriously about breast augmentation surgery. A few of my close friends say I am crazy.

What are the pros and cons? Is it dangerous? I must admit to feeling somewhat silly worrying about a matter that is trivial compared with the serious problems you read about every day. Please guide me. — Dolly Parton Jr.

DEAR JR.: I don't know how to respond since your signature leads me to believe that you don't know what the word "augmentation" means. Did you mean "reduction"? Surely you don't think Dolly needs MORE!

Neither operation is dangerous, although there are inherent risks in any surgical procedure. I suggest you discuss this matter with your physician.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your column is often used to enlighten the public about proper protocol and insensitivity to other people's feelings.

I refer to members of the clergy who give the invocation and/or benediction at public functions. Some take the opportunity to use their own religious dogma as a basis for their prayer. Since most public ceremonies include people of all faiths, I submit this is wrong.

I have attended several functions these last few weeks and have been offended by members of the clergy who assume everyone is a Christian. — New Brunswick, N.J.

DEAR N.B.: I know the feelings. Enlightened and thoughtful clergy give invocations and benedictions with an ecumenical flavor that members of all faiths can relate to. Compliment them when they demonstrate such sensitivity. I always do.

DEAR ANN: Do you have a snappy line for a waiter who gives you a menu and returns 30 minutes later to take your order? — Fuming In Philly

DEAR PHIL: Show no sign of exasperation. Smile and say, "Somehow I was expecting a much older man."

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

When you move to a new house you try to anticipate everything. I had it all together until I picked up the phone to call Mother. An operator intercepted and said, "That is a long distance call from your exchange." A mile and a half was destined to change my entire life.

You have to understand. I call my mother every day of my life. I don't know why I just know if I don't something terrible will happen to me. She told me that.

Since that day we've been talking in strange language, limited before only to want ads and commercials. We use no verbs or adjectives, abbreviate whenever possible and never ask a question we know the other doesn't have a quick answer for.

A typical conversation sounds something like this:

Mother: How's?

Me: Fever's down, cold gone. Instant relief. You?

Mother: One bdrn, I.R. to go. Dinner tonight?

Me: Yes.

Mother: Pls. bring dessert. See files, pastry, apple.

Me: Receive and acknowledge. Dad?

Mother: One birdie, one bogey, two beers. Serviceman arrive? *

Me: Negative.

Mother: Heard from B.R. Tues.

Me: Who's B.R.?

Mother: Letter to follow.

Me: Love you and out.

Mother: Ditto.

I miss knowing what she had for breakfast every Monday on the first day of her diet.

I miss trying to imagine what she is doing when she used to put me on top of the "bread box" for ten minutes to answer the door.

The other day I had enough. I dialed her number. She grabbed it on the first ring and said breathlessly, "Hello."

"Mother," I said, "you don't have to rush to answer the phone. They don't charge you until you start talking. Besides, I can't stand the pressure anymore. We're going to take our time and carry on a leisurely conversation!"

We talked for 26 minutes! It cost $2.08, but what the heck. She's worth it.

Season opener Tuesday at Canyon

Inexperience characterizes Herd baseball

BY LES GILES
Sports Editor

One word best describes the 1983 edition of the Herford High's baseball team... and, that word, simply is INEXPERIENCED, and you can spell it with capital letters.

Only three starters are back from last season's club, which was 10-20 overall and 2-14 in district play, plus a trio of other lettermen.

And, it hasn't helped matters much by the fact that as of Wednesday (yesterday) the team had been able to work outside only eight times, since Feb. 1 (the date the UIL says baseball teams may begin full scale workouts).

Herford's first game is Tuesday against Canyon, a team which returns seven starters from 1982.

With districts 3 and 4 combined this year, loop play begins much earlier than usual. In fact, Herford will play only nine games (barring any cancellations or postponements due to weather) before hosting perennial power Lubbock Monterey March 22.

The district format has changed somewhat. For the first time, as in football, basketball and various other team sports, the first and second place teams will advance into the playoffs.

And, there won't be any district doubleheaders. Games will be played Tuesday, Friday and Saturday during the league season (again barring weather-related postponements).

"We only have four seniors on the ball club," coach David Ashby, beginning his sixth year at the helm, said.

"So, right there, you can see how inexperienced we'll be. We don't have any senior pitchers. Of the six I'm looking at, two are juniors and four are sophomores."

Ashby lists Raymond Martinez, Ronnie Collier and Mickey Stengel as his returning regulars.

Martinez, who played in the outfield last year, will catch this season. Collier, who started at shortstop at the tail end of last year, will again man that spot. Stengel, the club's regular center fielder a year ago, also will pitch. The righthander, 3-3 last season, is expected to get the starting nod Tuesday at Canyon.

The lettermen include pitcher-second baseman Robert Martinez, first baseman Brian Taylor and outfielder Jeff Streun, who will back Raymond Martinez up behind the plate.

"Stengel and Robert Martinez are our top two pitching prospects," Ashby noted. "They both started some last year, and relieved us well."

The sophomores battling for spots in the rotation include Mike Scott, Sammy Suarez, Chet Bunch and Chad Stephan.

"We will not have a great deal of speed, and we don't have any great arms on the ball club," Ashby added.

"Basically, if we are to have any success, we'll have to play good, solid defense and get some very good pitching. Our pitchers are going to have to throw strikes.

"To win with any degree of consistency, we'll have to keep the games low scoring.

"Mickey (Stengel) hit around .340 for the year as a sophomore, and Raymond (Martinez) hit six home runs, but didn't hit for much average."

As for the district race, Ashby again looks for Lubbock schools to fight it out for the two playoff spots.

Monterey and Coronado (the defending 4-5A champion) have to be picked at the top of the list," he noted.

"Then, I think you can look for Amarillo High to make a good run at the playoffs, too."

After opening the season Tuesday in Canyon, the Herd will travel to Levelland for a doubleheader March 5. They'll compete in the Deaf Smith County Tournament here March 10-12, then go to Pampa for a tourney March 17-19. Then, it's district time.

Signs richest pact in pro grid history

Walker got too close to the flame

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Coach Vince Dooley says Herschel Walker "got too close to the fire and got burned," leaving his star tailback little choice other than to sign the richest contract in professional football history.

Walker, foregoing a senior season at the University of Georgia that probably would have made him college football's all-time rushing king, signed Wednesday with the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League only hours after the university declared him ineligible.

The three-year contract was estimated to be worth $5 million.

"He's a millionaire right now," said Jack Manton, the Heisman Trophy winner's attorney. "He received a check today that contained seven figures, endorsed it, then gave it to his mother and told her to put it in the bank."

"It's the highest contract ever in pro football, highest by far," Manton said.

Manton said the check included a bonus and his entire first-year salary, and added that the contract was guaranteed personally by J. Walter Duncan, the Oklahoma oil tycoon who owns the Generals.

Manton broke the news of the signing to a handful of reporters gathered in a hallway outside Walker's off-campus apartment. Walker was whisked away from the apartment about 45 minutes later when Manton conducted a news conference with about 75 media members on the lawn in front of the apartment building.

The attorney said Walker did not wish to speak to the media, but that he had a prepared statement from the three-time All-American tailback.

The Atlanta Constitution reported in its late editions that Walker spent Wednesday evening in his apartment with a few friends and, when asked if he regretted the way things turned out, replied, "Yes, but that's behind me now, and I just look to the future."

The newspaper said Walker would return to his home in Wrightsville, Ga., today and depart for the Generals training camp in Orlando, Fla., the first of next week.

In the prepared statement, Walker said: "I wish to clarify my signing of a contract with the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League. In denying I signed a contract, I made a mistake. No one realizes more than I that I am a human being."

"I wish to apologize to Coach Dooley, the University of Georgia and all the people that have been my loyal friends. I ask for your forgiveness and ask God for his forgiveness."

The signing ended five days of controversy in which Walker denied reports that he had signed a contract with the Generals last Thursday night, but exercised an oral agreement with Duncan two hours later to get out of the deal.

Walker had declared repeatedly that he had signed nothing and Dooley said he was convinced his star remained eligible because "Herschel's never lied to me."

Dooley, who invited an NCAA investigation into the matter, was in Colorado Tuesday when he was told by assistant coach Mike Cavan that Walker had actually signed a contract in violation of NCAA rules.

Dooley, who also is athletic director at Georgia, issued a statement Wednesday morning saying the university was declaring Walker ineligible based on two points — the negotiation of an agreement and the involvement of Walker's attorney in the matter.

"It's a sad day for college football and it's a sad day for professional football," Dooley said Wednesday night after arriving at the Atlanta airport on a flight from Denver.

Dooley said he would not place the blame on any one person because "there's enough blame to be shared by many."

"I can't say he did the wrong thing," Dooley said. "I believe in Herschel's case he didn't do what he wanted to do. He wanted to set some records that might stand for several decades. He wanted to run in the SEC track meet this weekend and later in the NCAA (meet)."

A world class sprinter, Walker has often said he prefers track to football and has expressed a desire to compete in the Olympic Games in Los Angeles next year.

"Once a pro, always a pro," said U.S. Olympic Committee spokesman Bob Paul. "Walker is not eligible for the Olympics."

Manton said the Generals gave Walker permission to participate in the Olympics if he is able to make the U.S. team.

The attorney said the contract should not ban Walker from Olympic competition, saying the International Olympic Committee was using a double standard because European basketball players and skiers were some of the highest paid athletes in the world and still participated in the Games.

Walker completed his three-year career at Georgia with 5,259 yards, only 823 shy of the NCAA-career standard held by Tony Dorsett. He led the Bulldogs to a 33-3 record, including the school's only national championship in 1980.

Reaction to the signing of an underclassman ranged from disgust among many college coaches to giving the USFL, which opens its first season on March 6, instant credibility.

Dooley said he believed the American Football Coaches Association might have something to say about the

In Doral-Eastern Open

Jack's presence hard to ignore

MIAMI (AP) — He has won only once in the past 2½ years. But, as always, the presence of Jack Nicklaus in the tournament field cannot be ignored.

"After all," said David Graham, a former U.S. Open and PGA champion, "he's only the greatest player who ever lived."

And, despite recent frustrations, he remains the man to beat in any tournament he enters. That's particularly so in the $300,000 Doral-Eastern Open which gets underway today on the 7,065-yard, par-72 Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club.

For one thing, it has been a highly productive course for Nicklaus. He has played it 20 times in his pro career, recording 12 finishes of 10th or better. That includes two victories and four seconds.

For another, it marks the start of his intense preparations for the Masters — annually his first major goal of the year. Nicklaus, at 43, now plays a relatively restricted schedule. But he'll compete in four of the next five events, all the Florida tournaments.

"I've only played four times since August," Nicklaus said. "I've been working on the game and I'm reasonably pleased with what I've managed to do. I'm well ahead of where I usually am at this stage of the season."

"Now I need some competition. I'm looking forward to it. I'm eager to play."

"I played reasonably well at Pebble Beach (in the Bing Crosby, his last start, where he became the first man to go past the $4 million mark in career earnings), but I wasn't as tournament-sharp as I'd like to be."

Nicklaus, winner of a record 17 major professional titles, said his overall goal is to extend that list of victories in the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA.

"Of course, you want to win, try to win, any tournament you play," he said. "But in the long run, I'm trying to win more majors. Someday my record will be broken. That's what records are for. But I want to make it as difficult to break as I can."

"So the Masters is my first big goal. But that's a little time off. Right now my interest is in trying to win the Doral."

Among his chief opponents in the 144-man field are defending title-holder Andy Bean and PGA champion Ray Floyd, who has won this title two of the last three years, once in a playoff against Nicklaus.

Other major contenders include Masters champion Craig Stadler, Tom Kite, Calvin Peete, Lanny Wadkins, Lee Trevino and Rex Caldwell, a runner-up in his last three starts.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS.

Arkansas rips Texas, 84-67

Cavs nip Clemson, 85-83 in OT

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Clemson, winner of just one of 12 games in the Atlantic Coast Conference this season, almost took the long-shot route to victory over third-ranked Virginia. In the end, however, they were too short to stop 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson.

The Tigers, 9-18 overall, led for much of Wednesday night's game by hitting 12 of 18 three-point shots, including seven in a row by Mark Campbell, who finished with 26 points and now has connected on 14 straight three-pointers.

But Virginia finally prevailed 85-83 in overtime as Sampson, who was guarded for much of the game by 6-6 Clemson center Murray Jarman, scored 29 points for the Cavaliers.

"It was tough playing against a team shorter than we were because they can get underneath you a little and throw your balance off so you can't control the ball," Sampson said. "We came out flat. I don't know why, but it's a fact. We didn't get over it the whole game, but we just played well enough to win."

"We knew that the three-point goals were an important part of Clemson's offense because they can either shoot or if they have an opening, they can pass inside," Virginia Coach Terry Holland said.

In other games involving Top Twenty teams, No. 6 Arkansas beat Texas 84-67, No. 9 St. John's bested 13th-ranked Syracuse 85-69, 15th-ranked Missouri bombed Colorado 88-53 and No. 18 Georgetown ripped Providence 86-62.

Othell Wilson, who cost Virginia the victory in regulation, hit a 12-footer for the game-winning basket with two seconds left in overtime after the Cavaliers held the ball for more than three minutes. Wilson's basket, the only points in the five-minute overtime, gave him 27 for the game.

"I saw the clock was down to eight seconds and the ball was still out at half court," Sampson said. "When I saw that, I signaled to Othell and he drove the ball on in."

Darrell Walker scored 22 points and Alvin Robertson 20 as Arkansas beat Texas for its 23rd victory in 24 games this season. Although the Longhorns hit 82 percent of its shots in the first half, the Arkansas still led 38-32 at halftime by forcing 16 turnovers.

St. John's set up its Saturday showdown against No. 7 Villanova by easily handling Syracuse. Billy Goodwin scored 24 points, David Russell 21 and Chris Mullin 19 for the Redmen. Syracuse trailed only 45-43 midway through the second half, but a 13-2 spurt by St. John's put the Redmen comfortably ahead.

Missouri gave its starters a rest for much of the game against Colorado, giving reserve guard Michael Walker a chance to shine with 19 points. The Tigers jumped ahead 35-11 in the opening minutes, led 49-17 at halftime and didn't have less than a 27-point advantage in the second half.

76ers win 7th in row

Sick Bird superb in Celtics' win over Lakers

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Larry Bird felt miserable and made the Los Angeles Lakers feel even worse.

The Boston Celtics' superstar, playing 46 of 48 minutes despite a severe upset stomach, had 32 points, 17 rebounds, nine assists and four steals to lead the Celtics to a 113-104 victory over the defending National Basketball Association champions Wednesday night.

"Usually you play your best basketball when you're not feeling well," Bird said. "I'm paid to play 48 minutes and that's what I try to do. It's an honor to be out there. If I burn out, I burn out, but I haven't yet."

"Larry's play is so great that you only notice him when he's in a slump because of his consistency," Boston Coach Bill Fitch said. "Even then, his statistics surprise you."

Elsewhere in the NBA, New Jersey crushed Chicago 119-86, Philadelphia bombed Dallas 133-101, Cleveland edged Golden State 99-98, New York trimmed Detroit 120-107, San Antonio beat Portland 124-114 and Kansas City tripped Washington 113-107.

The two minutes Bird missed nearly cost the Celtics the game. He left with 6:24 to play and the Celtics leading 76ers 133, Mavericks 101

Julius Erving scored 24 points, Moses Malone hit 10 of 11 shots for 23 points and Andrew Toney added 21 as Philadelphia beat Dallas for its 17th straight home triumph.

The 76ers, who have won seven games in a row and 27 of their last 29, are 47-7 for the season. Their last four victories have been by 21, 29, 15 and 32-point margins.

Dallas, which got 30 points from Mark Aguirre, trailed 73-44 at halftime and 106-77 after three quarters.

Spurs 124, Blazers 114

Mike Mitchell scored 32 points despite sitting out the entire fourth quarter as San Antonio stopped Portland's five-game winning streak.

Kings 113, Bullets 107

Larry Drew scored 28 points and Mike Woodson 21 to pace Kansas City over Washington.

Jeff Ruland, who has scored 99 points in his last three games, had a career-high 37 points and added 14 rebounds for the Bullets. He gave Washington its last lead at 106-105 on a slam dunk with 1:41 left, but the Kings outscored the Bullets 8-1 the rest of the way.

Nets 119, Bulls 86

Darwin Cook scored 17 points and Otis Birdsong, Buck Williams and Mike Gminski added 16 each to lead New Jersey in its rout of Chicago.

Knicks 120, Pistons 107

brilliant scoring ary.

King, who now has 140 points in four games against the Pistons this season, combined with Sly Williams to lead a 16-3 surge by the Knicks in the fourth quarter that wrapped up their 12th triumph in their last-15 games.

Williams had eight points and King six during the rally that turned a 94-92 deficit into a 108-96 Knicks advantage.

Detroit got 32 points from Kelly Tripucka.

Cavaliers 99, Warriors 98

Cliff Robinson tipped in the game-winning basket at the buzzer to boost Cleveland past Golden State.

The Warriors led 98-95 before Sam Lacey hit two foul shots to cut the deficit to one with 36 seconds remaining. After a steal by the Cavaliers' Phil Hubbard, Cleveland's Geoff Huston missed a layup, but Robinson was there to tip in the rebound.

World B. Free led the Cavaliers with 30 points.

DID YOU RECEIVE THE HOLY SPIRIT?

John saw Jesus coming toward him and said, "Look! There is the Lamb of God who takes away the world's sin! He is the one I was talking about when I said, 'Soon a man far greater than I am is coming, who existed long before me! I didn't know he was the one, but I am here baptizing with water in order to point him out to the nation of Israel!'" Then John told about seeing the Holy Spirit in the form of a dove descending from heaven and resting upon Jesus. (John 1:29-32)

While Apollos was in Corinth, Paul traveled through Turkey and arrived in Ephesus, where he found several disciples. "Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you believed?" he asked them.

"No," they replied. "we don't know what you mean. What is the Holy Spirit?" "Then what beliefs did you acknowledge at your baptism?" he asked.

And they replied, "What John the Baptist taught."

Then Paul pointed out to them that John's baptism was to demonstrate a desire to turn from sin to God and that those receiving his baptism must then go on to believe in Jesus, the one John said would come later. As soon as they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Then, when Paul laid his hands upon their heads, the Holy Spirit came on them, and they spoke in other languages and prophesied. The men involved were about twelve in number. (Acts 19:1-7)

Stanton reports nine pairs of twins currently enrolled

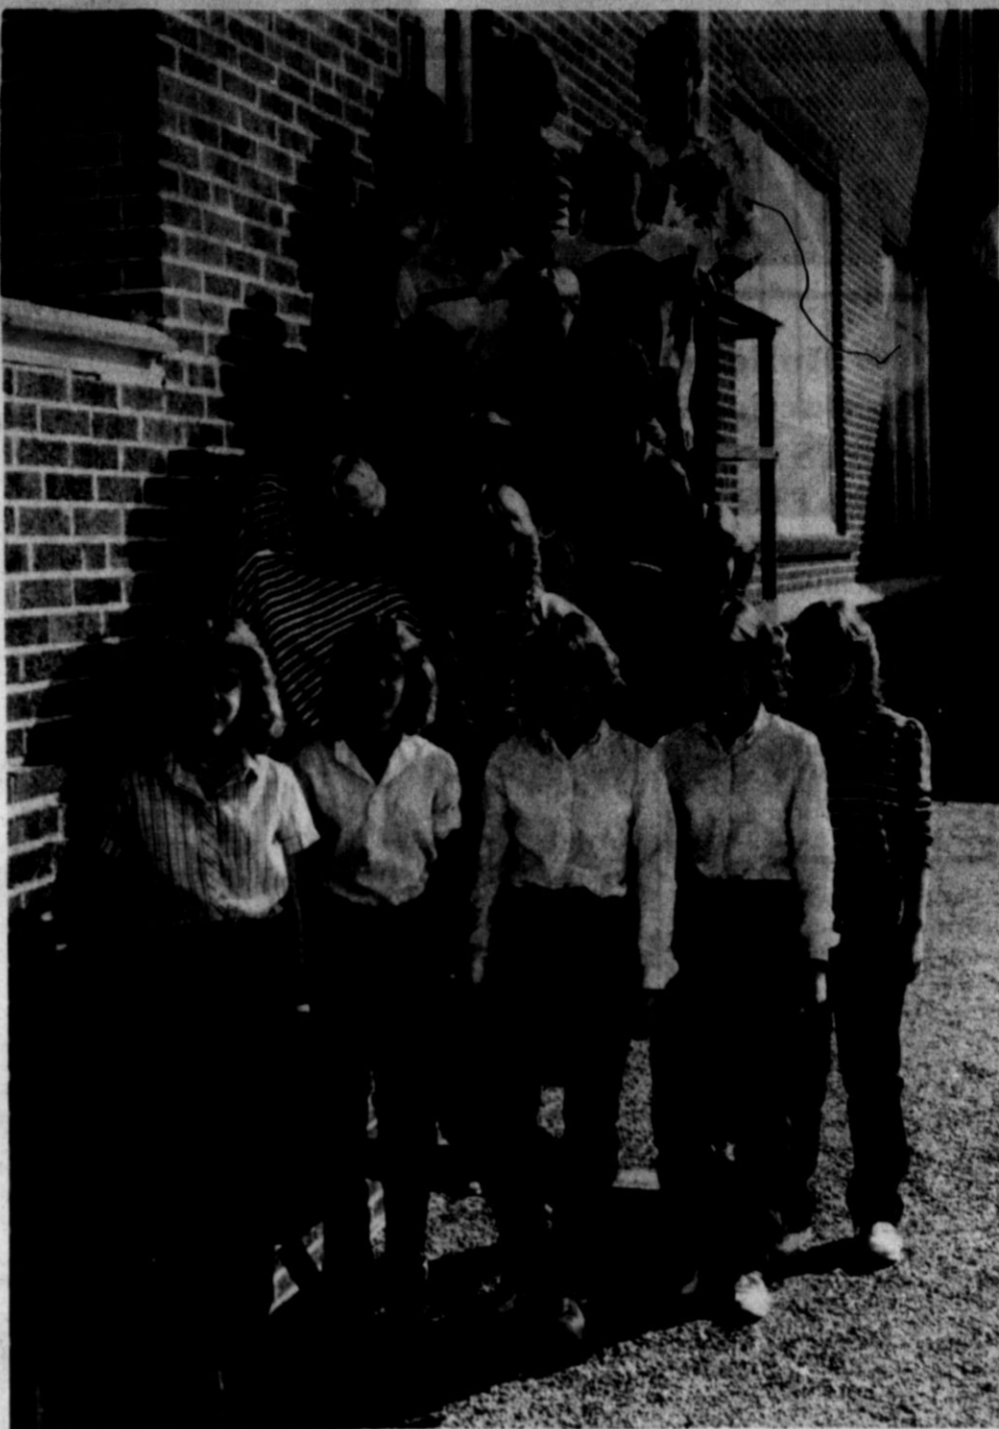

Some news can and should be "shouted from the rooftop" and that's exactly what was done at Stanton Junior High recently. Nine sets of twins who are students at Stanton went out on the roof to have a picture made for the 1983 yearbook, the Stanton Dogle.

Twins enrolled at Stanton this year include Raymundo and Jose Tabares, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Raymundo Tabares; Johnny and Jose Vargas, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Claudio; Marcus and Michael Loyd, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Loyd; George and Ricky Chavez, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Arturo Chavez.

Also, Jeannine and Cynthia Thomas, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Thomas; Sharon and Karen Wright, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Vernice Wright; Clarissa and Christina Simon, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Simon; Lori and Cori Patton, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Patton; and Kim and Kelley Smith, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Smith.

It is easy to see how teachers and students can and do become confused with this many sets of twins on hand, and the fact that several of these students have a brother or sister that favors them as much or more than their twin doesn't make the situation any easier. All in all, though, it is fun, notes a spokesman from the school.

Confusing Situation

Visitors to Stanton Junior High School might be a bit surprised at the number of twins attending the school, but students and teachers have become accustomed to the phenomenon. Eighteen students, making nine sets of twins, are currently enrolled at Stanton. They include (starting from the top, in rows left to right) Raymundo

Xi Epsilon Alpha members assemble

Members of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met Tuesday evening at Energas Flame Room with Rose Marie Robinson and Opal Glenn serving as hostesses.

Margie Waddell gave the program entitled, "Woman's Best Friend - the Telephone". A group discussion followed.

Linda Brown called the meeting to order and thank you's were extended from Jimmie Middleton, Brenda Thomas and Roger and Eugenia Brown.

The social committee scheduled a wine and cheese party at 7:30 p.m. April 2 in the home of Mrs. Thomas. Also, plans for the volleyball tournament slated for Saturday were finalized.

For the March 1 chapter meeting, the group was asked if they would like to attend the Hereford High School one-act play with a business meeting to be held afterwards.

The March 15 meeting was changed to March 20 due to spring break. Other business on the agenda included an invitation being extended to chapter members to help with the cancer drive.

Ronna Howell and Ilajea Brinkman will serve as hostesses at the next meeting.

Others present included Oleta Tisdale, Suzanne Rose, Jody Blackwell and Phyllis Neill.

Resident's son to speak at First World Congress

Gerald E. "Jerry" Ford of Little Rock, Ark., the son of Mrs. Herman Ford of Hereford, is one of 15 speakers from the United States to Europe selected to discuss issues relevant to financial planners at the First World Congress in Holland, Monaco and Italy. The event began yesterday and will continue through March 10.

Ford, who resided in Hereford with his family when he was a child, is now a division vice-president of marketing with The First Pyramid Life Insurance Co. of America in Little Rock. He and his wife, Rue, are the parents of three children.

The First World Congress is sponsored by the International Association of Financial Planners, and according to an organization statement,

"is designed to meet the needs of the more sophisticated, advanced financial planning professional."

"This learning opportunity will bring together financial planners and practitioners from all over the world, selected for their background and knowledge, to present a forum of investment strategies, ideas, and experiences."

Ford's topic, "Meeting the Challenge of the '80s," will examine ways that the life insurance company and the financial planner can be partners for the benefit of the client as well as each other.

The statement said Ford's achievements during his 25-year career in the insurance industry were a major factor in his selection as a speaker.

Rebekah Lodge to hold chili supper

Final plans for the chili supper were made when members of Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 met Tuesday evening at the Odd Fellow Temple. Tickets for the supper, scheduled March 5 at the 100F Temple, are available from Lodge members.

Chili, pie, and coffee will be sold for $2.75 from 5 p.m. until everyone has been served.

Noble Grand Lavita Fitzgerald presided at the business meeting. Twenty-eight members and four visitors were present.

Lodge Deputy Ursalee Jacobsen installed Karrol Rettman, financial secretary; Billie Sims, conductor; and Bessie Lawrence, left support of the chaplain, into their respective offices. Verna Sowell served as deputy marshal.

Stanton cheerleaders give Blue Bird program

The Happy Blue Birds from Aikman and Northwest Schools met recently at the Camp Fire Lodge.

Donann Cummings and Michelle Guerrero, cheerleaders from Stanton Junior High, told the group about cheerleading and how to become a cheerleader. They did several cheers and then invited the girls to cheer with them.

Guests attending the meeting were Velma Guzman, Brandy Moore, Jo Ann Arosca, Dori Burdett, and Veronica Leal.

Blue Birds present included Christie Leal, Julie Arellano, Melinda Leal, Terrie Walters, Carrie Walters, Christine Corona, Brenda Tijerina, Nikki Reed, Lupe Leadario, and the group leader, Sandy Arellano.

Garden Center picked as dealer

McLain Garden Center of Hereford has been selected as an authorized dealer for Stark Brothers' Nurseries and Orchards Co., which produces an extensive line of fruit trees, plants, ornamental trees and roses for the home grower.

The announcement was made jointly by Ken McLain of the local garden center and Jim Wilson, one of Stark Bros. managers from Louisiana, Mo.

Billed as "America's oldest family-owned fruit tree nurseries, Stark Bros. is headquartered in Louisiana, Mo. The company was founded in 1816, and today is active in all states and in many foreign markets.

The nursery is probably best known for introducing both the Starkrimson Red delicious apple and the Starkspur Golden delicious apple.

Today In History

Today is Thursday, Feb. 24, the 55th day of 1983. There are 310 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 24, 1868, Congress began impeachment proceedings against President Andrew Johnson.

On this date:

In 1771, James Otis coined the phrase "A man's home is his castle" as he protested the English system of search and seizure.

In 1920, the Nazi Party was organized in Germany.

In 1945, U.S. troops liberated the Philippine capital of Manila during World War II.

And in 1946, Juan Peron was elected president of Argentina.

Ten years ago: President Richard Nixon pledged that his second term in office would support full funding of social programs.

Five years ago: Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said the Carter administration would not sell Israel 90 advanced warplanes if Congress blocked the sale of American fighter planes to Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

One year ago: President Reagan announced a package of trade and investment incentives designed to aid the Caribbean region.

Today's birthday: Social activist and former Sen. James Abourezk is 52 years old.

Thought for today: "Nothing in life is to be feared. It is only to be understood." — Marie Curie, Polish-born scientist (1867-1934)

Evelyn Tallant returns from ministry in Haiti

The Rev. Evelyn Tallant, pastor of Grace Gospel Church, recently returned from eight days in Haiti, where she ministered daily in the church with a group of other pastors from various parts of the United States. She visited the island with Larry Meaux and the Good News Fellowship group of Winnie, Texas.

The population of Haiti is approximately 10 million and the people speak French. The government is a dictatorship and the people are very poor, she said.

While in Haiti, Tallant and the others in her group stayed at the Caribbean Christian Center, a large hotel which was formerly owned by a Haitian army officer.

They saw the Mardi Gras celebration, which Tallant described as a form of demon worship where the people dance in the streets, pay many different instruments and wear colorful clothing.

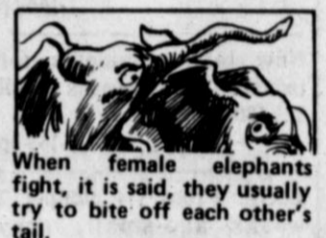

Lamartine Liberus, a minister from Haiti who was involved in the recent ministry will be in Hereford Sunday to preach "The Upcoming Word of God" during the 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. services. Tallant will be showing her slides of Haiti on Sunday night. She and the congregation of Grace Gospel Church invite all interested persons to attend the services.

The tropical island of Haiti produces rice, bananas, sugar cane, coffee, lentils, and potatoes, according to Tallant. There are also marble quarries and a large Florsheim shoe factory which employs about 1500 Haitians. Tallant also noted that most of the baseballs in America were hand sewn by natives in Haiti.

Let's talk.

Information about your changing telephone service from Gary Stevens, Community Relations Manager

Divestiture, FCC actions to affect cost of local service

Concern is being expressed today in many places that changes taking place in the telecommunications industry are going to create a rapid increase in rates for local flat-rate service.

Unfortunately, that's probably true. We've been saying for years that Long Distance revenues were subsidizing local rates. Because others were saying just the opposite, the public's confusion was understandable.

Now that the Bell System is being broken up, the handwriting is on the wall. Revenues from Long Distance will no longer be available to Southwestern Bell as they have been in the past to help keep local rates low.

Beginning this year, the company lost another important revenue contribution from the FCC's order that a separate subsidiary (American Bell) be set up to exclusively market telephone terminal equipment. Southwestern Bell may continue to sell the Bell System terminal equipment it had on hand at the beginning of the year. When it's gone, however, the company won't be able to sell Bell System-manufactured phones, PBXs, etc.

Services will need to be repriced

Therefore, virtually every service Southwestern Bell offers will be repriced to make each contribute sufficient revenue to stand on its own, profit-wise.

Local flat-rate service probably is the most under-priced service we offer, because of the generally accepted public policy that local rates should be kept as low as possible to encourage the development of "universal" service.

Virtually everyone who has wanted telephone service in recent years could afford a basic local service. Public policy has now shifted to de-regulation, with competition expected to provide the impetus to take advantage of the fruits of the ever faster technological race.

Long Distance bargains come in minutes, too

Long Distance service may be the first to realize the benefits of true competition in the industry, with rates almost sure to go down once subsidies for local service are withdrawn.

But Bell Long Distance rates within Texas are already a bargain. Surprisingly, our research indicates most people overestimate the cost of an in-state call. Do you? Test yourself. What is the rate for the first minute of a Day-rate call dialed direct (1+) from a non-coin phone, without tax, say from Amarillo to Brownsville? A. 42¢ B. 59¢ C. 73¢. Hint: It's the same from El Paso to Texarkana, Texas.

You don't have to turn the page for the answer. Or even turn the page upside down. It's A. Just 42¢. You can talk as long as you like at 42¢ for each additional minute.

That's one of the nice things about Long Distance. You can virtually tailor-make each call. You can pick the time, type and length of call which suits you and your pocketbook best.

Remember, if you have something to talk about, don't hesitate to drop me a line.

Government ends inquiries

DALLAS (AP) — The government has ended its grand jury inquiry of American Airlines with a civil suit charging the carrier tried to fix prices with Braniff Airways three months before the foundering rival grounded its fleet.

The Justice Department filed the antitrust suit here Wednesday, asking the court to remove American President Robert Crandall from his post for two years.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Getting rid of gas

DEAR DR LAMB — I am a senior lady of 70 and have always had a lot of gas in my stomach. This time I went to my doctor and he sent me for barium X-rays which came out OK, no ulcers, but the doctor gave me Tagamet which I took for four weeks. There was some relief but not enough.

I watch my diet very closely. The gas forms in my stomach and goes to my left side along the lower ribs. I am sore, then it goes away. I've had this trouble for two months. I ate a lot of sweets before this happened. Do you think my spleen or something has been affected?

It is not steady but comes when I eat something sweet. I only take a milk of magnesia tablet when needed which does help me. Could you suggest what I can eat for this condition?

DEAR READER — Those frequent gas problems that so many people have are from two main sources, the air you swallow and, perhaps more importantly, the fermentation of undigested foods in your large bowel.

You may be surprised to know that antacids and Tagamet have no beneficial effects on gas regardless of the many commercials that imply the contrary. These have no effect on fermentation in your colon and no effect on swallowing air. I'm not surprised that Tagamet was not successful in your case. Any benefits would have been psychological. I do not recommend laxatives but if a person has a bowel movement they may also relieve colon spasm and relieve gas trapped in the colon and causing pain. That is why a simple enema sometimes helps.

Probably the most frequent sources of undigested foods causing gas are carbohydrates. Milk is high on the list because of people

The suit quoted from a telephone conversation between Crandall and Braniff President Howard Putnam, in which Crandall allegedly said if Braniff raised its fares 20 percent, American would follow "the next morning."

A Justice Department spokesman acknowledged that the suit was unusual.

And American Airlines Chairman Albert V. Casey, called the complaint "entirely unjustified" and predicted the government's case would be "soundly repudiated" in court.

The 10-month grand jury investigation into allegations that Fort Worth-based American tried to drive Braniff out of business end Wednesday, said Elliott Seiden, chief of the transportation section of the department's antitrust division.

A separate inquiry into allegations American had unfairly used its computerized reservation system was "continuing in a civil context," Seiden said. Braniff has charged — and American has denied — that American used its computers to play "dirty tricks" against its foundering competitor.

The lawsuit did not say how the Justice Department obtained the alleged text of a Feb. 1, 1982, conversation between Putnam and Crandall. But American spokesman Al Becker said Putnam had "secretly taped" the conversation.

According to the complaint, Crandall said it was dumb for the two airlines to pound each other for passengers over the same routes "and neither one of us making a ... dime."

Putnam replied, according to the suit, that it was American that was putting the heat on Braniff over certain routes.

"You better believe it, Howard," Crandall said. " ... There's no reason that I can see, all right, to put both companies out of business."

Putnam: "But if you're going to overlay every route of American's on top of every route that Braniff has — I can't just sit here and allow you to bury us without giving our best effort."

Crandall: "Oh sure, but Eastern and Delta do the same thing in Atlanta and have for years."

Putnam: "Do you have a suggestion for me?"

Crandall: "Yes. I have a suggestion for you. Raise your ... fares 20 percent. I'll raise mine the next morning."

Putnam: "Robert, we ..."

Crandall: "You'll make more money and I will, too."

Putnam: "We can't talk about pricing."

Crandall: " ... We can talk about any ... thing we want to talk about."

Assistant Attorney General William F. Baxter, chief of the antitrust division, said he decided not to bring criminal charges against American because of difficulties with the Sherman Antitrust Act section which prohibits monopolization.

He said another section prohibits price-fixing, "but there was never an agreement to fix prices in the case."

To win a civil case the government has only to prove its argument by a preponderance of the evidence. The standards in a criminal case are much tougher.

Braniff, which was not charged, declined comment. Braniff President Howard Putnam was out of town and Philip Guthrie, vice president, would say only that Braniff had been told the lawsuit would be filed.

Braniff ceased operations last May and filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws.

Braniff has been trying to put together a deal with Pacific Southwest Airlines of San Diego that would involve leasing 30 Braniff planes to PSA and rehiring about 2,000 Braniff employees so that PSA could fly some of the Braniff routes.

American spokesman Becker said the Justice Department suit was based solely on "one off-hand remark."

"Absolutely no anti-competitive action was taken by either American or Braniff as a result of the comment. Indeed, nothing at all occurred. ... There was no harm to the public, to any competitor or to competition in general," he added.

Becker said the government's theory is that, even though no price-fixing agreement occurred during the phone call, "Mr. Crandall's alleged single comment amounted to an attempt to monopolize. The theory is both factually and legally unsupportable."

The suit also asks the court to prohibit American from employing Crandall in a responsible position for two years and from discussing with any other airline any matter relating to the pricing of service for 10 years.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Banana bread too brown

DEAR POLLY — Please tell me how I can keep banana nut bread from getting too brown on the sides and bottom. I bake at 350 degrees on the middle shelf of the oven for 50 minutes. I've used Pyrex loaf pans and Teflon pans. Please help. — MRS. R.D.

DEAR MRS. R.D. — When you want a nice brown crust on a loaf of bread, there's nothing like an ovenproof glass pan or a dark-colored pan, including those with dark nonstick coatings, to give it to you. Therefore, why not just try the reverse? A shiny metal pan might keep your banana bread from getting overly brown. It's also possible that the temperature gauge of your oven is incorrect. What you think is 350 degrees could be as much as 100 degrees hotter. A fairly inexpensive oven thermometer can tell you just how accurate your oven is. Also, do you test your quick breads when they look just brown enough by inserting a cake tester, toothpick, or wooden skewer into the center? Your bread may be getting done somewhat before the end of the 50 minute baking time — and before it gets too brown. Finally, if all else fails, don't forget that some folks like a nice brown crust on their quick breads. What you think is too brown may be just right for the rest of your family. Have you been getting many complaints? — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — After years of enjoying your column and using many Pointers, I'd like to share a few of my favorites.

To make specially shaped cookies without the appropriate cookie cutters, remove the metal cutting strip from boxes of waxed paper or plastic wrap and bend them into the desired shape. The designs of your cookies will be limited only by your imagination.

To make colorful cookies safely and easily, sprinkle fruit-flavored gelatin powder onto the cut-out cookies before baking. Then bake as usual.

I save my cooking oil to reuse by pouring it into a container and storing it in the freezer. When I need to reuse it, I let it partially thaw to the consistency of shortening and spoon out the clean oil on top. Any sediment, which has settled to the bottom, can be easily discarded. — ALICE

Collapse of crude oil prices threatens Texas businesses

HOUSTON (AP) — As each day goes by, and crude oil prices continue to decline, thousands of Texas businessmen are scrambling to reassess how their companies will survive the most dramatic downturn the oil industry has ever seen.

For some firms, an average price for oil of $26 to $28 per barrel currently forecast will cost them their livelihoods. For the majority of oil and natural gas producers and service companies, lower oil prices will mean further personnel cutbacks and a consolidation of plant operations to pare costs to the bone.

"Some people were predicting an upturn for our business about three to nine months out. Not any more. Any optimism has vanished completely," said Philip Burguières, president of Cameron Iron Works Inc., a manufacturer of oil country tools based in Houston.

The January unemployment rate for Houston, unadjusted for seasonal variations, was 9.1 percent.

As the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries tries to come to grips with the excess supply and weak demand for crude oil worldwide, analysts say new series of chain reactions are bound to sap the oil industry of its ability to replace annual production with newly discovered reserves.

"We're looking at a series of steps. We'll combine operations and make reductions in our work force as the situation dictates," Burguières said. During the past nine months, Cameron has reduced domestic employment by 35 percent, or almost 3,000 workers.

On Tuesday, Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil producer and the leading member of OPEC, had yet to announce a price cut for its premium crude oil which sells officially for $34 per barrel.

Saudi Arabia has never reduced its oil price. But now, that is practically a foregone conclusion after the government-owned oil companies in Great Britain and Norway reduced their price for oil produced in the North Sea last Friday. In response, Nigeria, an OPEC member desperate for oil revenues, reduced its oil price $5.50 per barrel to $30.50.

World oil analysts believe the Saudis will drop their price at least $4 per barrel and possibly as much as $7.

To some oil men, there's a silver lining to the current wave of oil price reductions.

For large oil companies engaged in the exploration and production of oil, as well as the refining and marketing of oil byproducts, costs continue to decline.

Oil field inflation, which raced ahead at an annual rate as high as 35 percent in some industry segments during 1980 and 1981, has leveled off. In isolated cases, the cost of leasing a drilling rig has actually fallen because too many companies built rigs during the boom years based on projections for $80-per-barrel oil, resulting in an oversupply.

"I'm very bullish on the long-term prospects for this industry. Drilling rigs will operate at a greater efficiency (produce more oil for every rig employed) and fewer people will be working on the best exploration prospects," said Dale W. Steffes, founder of his own economic forecasting firm in Houston.

It's also good news to some oil men that while the shakeout has yet to run its course, the bottom of the downturn is closer and now may be only 12 months away.

History, however, suggests that line of reasoning may be too sanguine. The last time the industry experienced an about-face, in 1966, drilling for oil and gas did not turn back up until 1971. Analysts note that during most of the 1960s, oil was selling for about $1 per barrel, so the forces of supply and demand worked slower than they do today.

The two previous downturns, from 1926 to 1933 and from 1937 to 1943, were shorter in length but were influenced by the Great Depression and World War II.

The consensus among oil forecasters is that oil prices will stabilize later this year but that producers won't be convinced of that until 1984. Exploration and production budgets won't reflect any renewed optimism until 1985. In the meantime, this segment of the Houston economy, which accounts for at least one-third of all local business activity, will continue to stagger. Survival is and will continue to be the buzzword.

For real estate developers, that means slashing the asking price for leased office space by about 20 percent or more. The vacancy rate for office buildings in the downtown business district was 5 percent in December. By next December, the vacancy rate is expected to reach 8 percent to 10 percent, according to Edward H. Cappel, a sales manager of Coldwell Banker Commercial Real Estate Services, Inc. here.

The developers behind two new downtown skyscrapers scheduled to open later this year, Republic Bank Tower and Allied Bank Plaza, have preleased only 40 percent of a combined total of almost 3 million square feet of office space, according to Cappel.

Some forecasters are leaving room for oil prices to fall to $20 or lower. If a few producing countries make such a move, analysts say oil prices probably will bounce back up to $26 per barrel or so within 90 days because that is perceived to be the market equilibrium price.

"Prices are falling the way they went up, not in any orderly fashion," said Nat Eisenberg, a private economist in Houston.

"The drilling industry, I think, is returning to its historical level," Eisenberg said. "The pie for drilling companies is not shrinking, but the number of companies trying to get a piece of the action is. That's why it's so painful. It's going to be rough."

The most often-quoted measure of drilling activity, the Hughes Tool Co. count of working rotary rigs, declined 3 percent to 2,147 Monday, the company said. One year ago, the active rig fleet totaled 4,072. The all-time high is 4,530, reached in December 1981.

Michael Breard, senior vice president of Schneider Bernet & Hickman Inc., a Dallas-based investment firm, believes the rig count may drop to as low as 1,800.

"The easy cuts (in manpower and operations) have been made already. The next reductions will be a lot tougher," Breard said.

According to Breard, many banks declined to review loan procedures and gambled that oil prices would not fall below last year's already-lower levels. Today, they may be faced with clients who are not only unable to pay back on the loan principal and interest but also to reach a negotiated loan settlement.

"The banks loaned too much money out based on predictions of higher oil prices. They're going to find out how much," said Steffes, the Houston forecaster.

"Some banks will be forced to go out and just shut down some companies. Others they will help out, if they can be helped," said John Spears, a Tulsa oil consultant.

One party that will undoubtedly feel the brunt of this second decline in prices since late 1981 is the U.S. government.

In 1982, the federal government collected approximately $16 billion in revenue tied to the windfall profits tax on crude oil. That was down from $25 billion collected in 1981. If U.S. oil prices drop to an average of $26 per barrel, the windfall tax revenue would fall to $9 billion, Spears estimated.

Similarly, the city of Houston may lose its AAA credit rating, the highest rating attainable, primarily because the state of the local economy has deteriorated so much. Budget cuts on the order of $30 million to $36 million may be needed to avoid a deficit, which is prohibited by the city charter.

Municipal credit analysts in New York say they've been besieged with bad news about the Houston economy and they're concerned about the city's ability to expand public services in the face of reduced tax revenues.

Uncertainty, perhaps, is the most grueling aspect of all the speculation which accompanies declining oil prices. Despite analysts' predictions, company executives and employees can't be assured, even after last year's layoffs and plant shutdowns, that the shakeout is nearing an end.

As long as producing companies believe they might be able to drill for oil and natural gas at a cheaper cost tomorrow than what their suppliers charge today, they will postpone portions of their exploration program, explained Breard.

"No one knows quite where prices will settle out. It's a wait-and-see attitude, that's all the industry can do," Spears said.

The number of prisoners in the United States reached an all-time high in the Justice Department's count for the third quarter of 1982. The total was up almost 10 percent over the end of the previous year. While women account for only 4 percent of prison inmates, their numbers increased at a greater rate than did men during the surveyed period. State institutions hold more than 10 times the population of federal prisons, and their increase for the period was more than double the federal rate.

Racetrack revenue not big factor

AUSTIN (AP) — The money the state would earn if it legalized gambling at horse racing tracks would amount to only a fraction of 1 percent of the state's budget, Rep. Carlyle Smith says.

"Proponents of pari-mutuel betting herald the sport as a great revenue producer, (but) statistics do not show this to be the case," Smith said.

He and two other House members spoke at a news conference Wednesday to announce a new group formed to oppose legalized racetrack gambling in the state, Texans Against Gambling.

Smith, D-Grand Prairie, compared Texas to three other large states where it is legal to bet at the track. He said revenue generated from tracks amounted to 0.4 percent of California's budget, 0.1 percent of New York's, and 0.7 percent of Florida's.

The statistics were compiled by the anti-gambling group, and Executive Director Allan L. Maley Jr. of Dallas said states adjacent to Texas that allow pari-mutuel betting also have received no more than 0.7 percent of their budgets from tracks.

Racetrack gambling is allowed in New Mexico, Arkansas and Louisiana, and was legalized recently on a local option basis in Oklahoma.
