HISD to buy out Holder's contract

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

The Herford School Board Saturday morning approved a buy-out of Supt. Harrell Holder's contract and accepted his resignation effective May 29, 1987.

The board approved a settlement agreement with Dr. Holder, agreeing to pay him a sum of $50,000 on May 29. Holder's term contract had one more year to go. The vote on the resolution was 5-1, as was the vote on accepting the resignation, with trustee Jo Garcia voting against the motions.

Bud Patterson made the motion to approve the resolution, which said in part: "Whereas, conflicts and differences have arisen between Holder and District, pertaining to Holder's employment with the District which have adversely affected achievement of the purposes, goals and objectives of District, and, whereas it is the desire of the District to settle and eliminate those differences according to the terms and provisions of the attached settlement agreement; and

Whereas the board of trustees of this district believes and finds as a fact, that it is in the best interest of the District to execute and implement the attached settlement agreement, and that by doing so the purposes, goals and objectives of the District can be achieved and conflicts and possible expensive litigation avoided; now therefore be it resolved . . ."

John Fuston, board president, said trustees would immediately begin the search for a new superintendent.

"We are looking at the possibility, Monday, of getting a consultant service to help with our decision." He said it was possible the board would name an acting superintendent after May 29.

Fuston said negotiations on the settlement agreement had started in previous executive sessions to discuss the superintendent's contract. "This is not something that just happened."

Asked if the problems arising from the installation of a mastery learning system in the schools had anything to do with the action, Fuston replied: "Maybe that's where it started; you, as a reporter, know some of the problems we've had."

Since a citizen's group formed several years ago to complain about the implementation of the mastery learning system, four new school board members have been elected.

Mrs. Garcia made a statement before the vote took place on approving by settlement. "I am totally against the termination of Dr. Holder's contract. I think he has done a good job for all students."

She added that she thought there was a "conspiracy" to terminate Holder's contract, and that it was a "misuse" of taxpayer's money to take the action.

Two Amarillo TV stations covered the meeting, as did the Amarillo Globe-News. A TV reporter asked Fuston if trustees would look at the Hispanic dropout problem when considering a new superintendent.

"I'm sure we will, along with many other factors. We have less dropouts than three of your Amarillo schools, but any dropouts are too many," said Fuston.

The settlement agreement provided that Holder be paid his contracted monthly salary through the month of June, 1987. But the June payment, payable on June 20, will be paid on May 29 in addition to the $50,000. Holder's salary is slightly more than $50,000 and is close to $60,000 when fringe benefits are included.

New board member Dennis Newton was not present for the special meeting Saturday morning. The meeting opened at 10 a.m. and Fuston immediately announced the board would go into executive session to discuss the contract. The board returned at 10:54 a.m.; mo-

They Know The Story

Eager children indicate to Fr. Charles Threewit that they know what the scene depicts during a Stations of the Cross walk at St. Thomas Episcopal Church on Good Friday. Christian churches marked the crucifixion of Jesus Christ on Good Friday and today, Easter Sunday, will celebrate Jesus' resurrection. Fr. Threewit's 14 stations of Jesus' passion are carved from antique redwood salvaged out of an old church altar and are painted by convicted murderers in a California prison.

New farm trade proposal would launch marketing loan program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen is leading a bipartisan group of four senators in advancing a new farm trade proposal aimed at reducing foreign agricultural subsidies and boosting U.S. exports.

The proposal, to be introduced later this month, would require the United States to launch a marketing loan program for wheat, soybeans and food grains unless a new international trade agreement is reached curbing farm subsidies that hurt U.S. producers in the world market.

The plan wouldn't go into effect until 1990, in essence putting other countries on notice that if they don't negotiate an agreement on reducing their farm subsidies, they face the expanded marketing loan system.

Faced with the threat of a glut of underpriced U.S. commodities on the world market in the absence of a farm-subsidy agreement, Bentsen and his Senate colleagues think other countries will be inclined to bargain.

"The beauty of the marketing loan is it is a wonderful trade tool," said Marty Clayton, Bentsen's legislative assistant for farm issues. "It scares everyone else in the world silly because it takes away this price peg they've been piggy-backing."

Marketing loans, which already exist for cotton, rice and honey, provide producers with a payment equal to the difference between a government-set loan rate and the actual market price.

Since implementation of the marketing loan program in 1985, rice exports have risen by 60 percent, while cotton shipments have skyrocketed 300 percent and cut into sales for other countries.

The current U.S. farm policy is tied to a set loan rate for soy beans, wheat and food grains. Farmers who can't sell their produce for more than the loan rate simply keep the loan while the government keeps the commodity and eats the loan loss.

That is often the case, because other countries use the U.S. loan price as a gauge and set their prices just below it. Consequently, stockpiles of farm products being held by the U.S. government continue to grow.

A marketing loan would still offer farmers the same loan rate, but would require only 70 percent repayment. So if a farmer finds a buyer willing to pay from 70 to 99 percent of the loan, he can make the sale and keep the remainder of the loan, which the government will have to digest.

In this way, excess stocks will decrease and the U.S. producers' share in the world market will grow accordingly.

Cost to the government of implementing such a program is estimated to average $1 billion per year for the first four years, then begin declining, according to the Food and Agricultural Policy Research Institute, a non-profit arm of Iowa State and Missouri universities.

Bentsen sees the threat of across-the-board marketing loans as a way to pressure U.S. trading partners into cutting subsidy programs.

"We see great potential in the upcoming round of multilateral trade negotiations for major improvements in the agricultural trading system that will benefit U.S. farmers," according to a letter sent to Senate colleagues by Bentsen, John Danforth, R-Mo., Thad Cochran, R-Miss., and David Pryor, D-Ark.

The Reagan administration also views elimination of farm subsidies as a major goal of the current round of trade negotiations. A substantial increase in European Economic Community wheat and feed grain exports, stimulated by subsidies, has plagued U.S. producers in recent years.

Deposits down at banks

Deposits at Herford's two banks totalled $135.2 million at the close of business March 31, 1987, according to figures released in bank calls from the financial institutions.

The deposits were down about $4.2 million over the same period a year ago.

First National Bank showed deposits of $80,285,000 and loans and discounts of $51,323,000 at the end of the first quarter. Deposits were down $4 million from a year ago, while loans were decreased by $10.9 million.

Herford State Bank had deposits of $54,987,000 as compared to $55,198,000 a year ago—a decrease of $211,000. Loans and discounts at HSB were listed at $32,014,000 as compared to $35,319,000 a year ago, a decrease of $3.3 million.

First National showed total assets of $89.6 million, and HSB had assets of $61.5 million.

An Easter thought:
"Do you have to go to church to meet God? Of course you don't. God is omnipresent. He is everywhere. You cannot escape Him. There is nothing exclusive about Him. There are no special buildings where He makes personal appearances which He does not make in every hovel and hole in the ground and mountain top. A cathedral holds no more of Him than a cottage. No priest or preacher has greater influence with Him than you. All His limitless goodness is yours to use. No one receives special privileges of better offers. His gifts to you are limited only by your own desires and your own thinking."—Thomas Dreier

A lot of folks don't realize it yet, but the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 is going to create more government paperwork for everyone.

The act requires an employer when hiring to reasonably satisfy himself or herself that the new employee is either a U.S. citizen or an alien who is legally eligible to work in this country.

Lester Rape, local Texas Employment Commission office, returned from a seminar last week and pointed out that every individual will be required to provide documents to the employer for the purpose of establishing identity and employment eligibility.

The Simpson-Rodino bill establishes procedures by which employers may legally hire applicants—and that means ALL applicants, according to Rape. The TEC office will soon have forms from the INS which all persons entering employment must complete. The I-9 form provides biographic information and attests to the applicant's U.S. citizenship or status as a legally authorized alien worker.

The act will be enforced beginning in June, but if an employer has hired someone the act was passed, he is supposed to send in forms on those employees.

The agenda for the Wednesday night meeting also includes a director's report, bids and contracts and financial report, and public comments. Niedzielski-Eichner will report on meetings he has held with Texas Tech concerning technical oversight of characterization; and the DOE and Corps of Engineers regarding land acquisition; and jurisdictions in Nevada, Washington and Tennessee.

Two schools burglarized

Herford police have a confession from an 18-year-old male and will question two other subjects in connection with the burglaries of Shirley Intermediate and Herford High School.

After questioning and releasing a juvenile who was acting suspicious near Shirley around 11:45 p.m., officers found that both schools had been broken into. Blood was found at the high school where someone had been cut in an attempt to break glass. Shortly thereafter, the 18-year-old was found at the hospital being treated for a large cut. During questioning at the police station, the subject confessed to the burglary.

The first juvenile and another suspect were to be questioned today. Property damage and loss estimates were not available Saturday morning.

City to discuss atom-smasher

City commissioners will discuss Herford's participation in the Panhandle's endeavor to attract the Department of Energy's supercollider super-conductor (atom smasher) project during a regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

Commissioners also will hear a report on the Amistad Housing Corp. from Charlie Ruiz and will go into executive session to discuss litigation.

Board to seat new directors

New directors elected to the Deaf Smith Hospital District board will take the oath of office and begin terms at a noon meeting Tuesday in the hospital conference room. Following will be election of officers.

Some solutions to budget problems are semi-serious

AUSTIN (AP) — The state budget is a mess. The politicians have been in town since January and have made little headway toward cleaning it up.

Now it's your turn to offer suggestions. And remember, tough times call for creative solutions. The more creative, the better. Today's jokes are tomorrow's solutions.

Case in point: Several years ago, a state senator issued a news release with his prison crowding solution. Put inmates in tents, the senator said. The release elicited some laughs and earned a spot on the Capitol press room bulletin board, which is something of a legislative hall of shame.

It was funny until the idea caught on and turned out to be a relatively palatable solution to a distasteful problem, so don't be discouraged if your idea initially draws guffaws.

Let's prime the pump here with a couple of ideas.

Unpaid minister still preaching after 42 years

RIESEL, Texas (AP) — The preacher raised his arm, accentuating each word with a thrust of his open hand toward the ceiling. His voice thundered at the tiny congregation: "There is no such thing as gospel-rock, did you know it?"

F.H. Barnes, 83, is the 42-year pastor of New Hope Baptist Church, a job for which he has never accepted a salary.

A short man with black-rimmed glasses, white hair and gray suspenders, his strong voice fluctuated from loud to soft during the lesson, involving him so that he forgot the time.

"Folks, I got to quit. Why didn't y'all tell me it was that late?" he said, apologetically.

New Hope Church is tucked in among trees aside a small cemetery on a long country road near Riesel. Barnes, described as "an old-fashioned preacher" by a woman in his congregation of about 35, mixes his sermon with snatches of conversation with church members.

During the sermon, he asked a rather shy man in coveralls up to the podium for a short but pointed conversation about welding, and he interrupted himself once to greet latecomers.

"Come in, Brother and Sister Jordan. We're glad to have you," he said, glancing up from the Bible.

New Hope Church may be typical of small, country churches, where everyone knows everyone and a congregation member leads a prayer from his place in the pews, but is Barnes a typical pastor?

Well, consider the fact that he has never taken a salary from the church.

"A salary, no ma'am," he said. "They paid my car expenses, and that's it."

Also consider that although the congregation has planned a celebration in honor of his octogenarian, it is by no means a retirement celebration.

"You know when I'm gonna retire? When God calls me home," said Barnes.

"I don't want to rust out, I want to wear out. I'll tell you how I want to be called, I want to be called standing in the pulpit," he said.

His desire to keep active has spurred him to take another job, which he has held for seven years.

"I took it because I didn't have anything else to do except twiddle my thumbs," said Barnes of his part-time balliff job in McLennan County's 19th District Court.

Born in Ghoslon on Aug. 2, 1902, "in a log house with a dirt floor, so my mama said," Barnes describes himself as sinner heading straight for hell until his life was changed during a church service when he was 16 years old.

"God stopped me one day. The preacher had preached a wonderful sermon, and they had sung that wonderful song 'Almost Persuaded ...' said Barnes, repeating several stanzas from the song.

"They had come to the last words of that song, and I was sitting over in the corner of that old Turner Street Baptist Church, and I said to myself, 'That's what you're going to be.'"

In 1922, the year he was ordained at Spring Street Baptist Church in Waco, he married Nellie D. Mullens at noon in New Hope Baptist Church.

New Hope Church had just formed in 1922 under a group that included Barnes' father.

"I was the first pastor this church had, but I left and went to the Hill Country," Barnes said.

When he came back to the church in 1944, it was housed in its present structure, which was built in 1935.

"I came down here on Mother's Day in 1945. My wife's sister made the arrangements for me to preach," said Barnes.

Barnes said he was invited back two more times before a representative of the church asked him to be pastor. He said he agreed to be temporary pastor of the church, and that he preached until the last Sunday in October, 1945, before asking the church to find a permanent pastor.

He said the church nominated him and took a handvote.

The vote was unanimous in favor of keeping him as pastor, Barnes said, and he "prayed about the matter ... and informed the church that God had led me in an affirmative way."

He said he prepared his sermons during his free time.

"I use what time I have up at the courthouse, and then I study at home. I've sat up all night Saturday night preparing sermons for Sunday morning and evening," he said.

Barnes said he is concerned that in recent years "the world has become very churchy, and the church has become very worldly." He said that means people are pretending to be Christians today, but are actually hypocrites, and that many church members have succumbed to materialism.

"We're not measuring up to our full potential at this church by any means," he said, "because we have given ourselves up to the material things in life."

He lamented that "we have departed from the old way" when referring to revivals. He said that when he first was a preacher, he served in three two-week revivals within a period of three months. Now, he said, revivals take three days over the weekend.

Barnes said he feels like a father to his congregation. Some members of his congregation who were babies when he took over the pulpit are now grandparents, he said.

Brenda Busby, a 32-year-old church member, has attended the church since her youth. "I was 3 weeks old when my mom brought me to this church for the first time," she said.

Nell Bennett is a church member who really can call Barnes her father. She is the oldest daughter of Barnes' nine children, and said she attends the New Hope Church regularly and some of her siblings also attend occasionally.

Georgia Dorris, a five-year church member, said, "Brother Barnes is wonderful man and a wonderful preacher. He preaches direct from the Bible. He's just an old-time religious preacher."

Mrs. Warren Dickey said she likes to attend New Hope Baptist because, "It's a pretty little church that sits in the woods. And we like our pastor because he's really a God-fearing man."

Postmaster warns about unreal offers

Offers that are too good to be true, probably are, warns Hereford Postmaster Charles Britten.

Recently, the post office has received reports of mail order offers for small musical instruments or food processors which aren't exactly as described in the advertisement.

"I would classify it as a play on words," Britten said, because technically, the recipient gets what is advertised but it is not what they expected.

One example he cited was of a "food processor" for an extremely bargain price. What the buyer received was a hand-crank egg beater.

Britten said some residents are receiving unsolicited cards in the mail offering them exclusive options on the orders.

He said that since the offers really do not constitute fraud, his office cannot prosecute. He simply warns residents of the offers and suggests checking the Better Business Bureau in the city where the cards originate.

Flyers on immigration rules available

Flyers on the employment eligibility of the Immigration Reform and Control Act are available at the local Texas Employment Commission, according to Lester Rape, Hereford TEC director.

Included in the flyer is information on acceptable documents to provide evidence of identity and citizenship, now required by law to be provided to an employer.

Broken bones common injuries

Few people go through life without breaking a bone. One would have to lead a very protected life to totally avoid such injuries. The Texas Medical Association says there are several types of fractures—each requiring slightly different treatment.

A simple fracture is one in which the bone is broken, but does not protrude through the skin. In a compound fracture, on the other hand, there is considerable damage done to surrounding soft tissues, and the bone does come through the skin.

A complete fracture is one in which the break is total and the two broken parts separate from one another. In an incomplete fracture, the break is more like a crack and does not extend all the way across the bone.

A fracture usually is caused by severe stresses on the bone from an accident or injury, but this is not always the case. Any bone weakened by old age or by a bone disease may break with little or no provocation.

Membership exceeds 1 million

RIGA, Latvia (AP) — The superintendent of German Lutheran congregations in the Soviet Union says he is in contact with 490 of them, with membership exceeding 1 million.

The Rev. Harald Kalnins said there likely are many more, and new ones continue reporting from "the reaches of the colossal country." He says most Lutheran congregations are in the eastern region of Siberia and Central Asia.

Of the 490 congregations, he said, 220 are state-registered.

Revolving-door prison problem

While Gov. Clements and state lawmakers are trying to fulfill budget requirements, they'd better come up with a solution to our revolving-door prison system. The inadequate prison system is placing more and more hardships and burden on local law authorities, the court system, and the average taxpayer.

The rapid parole of prisoners has come about, in part, because a federal judge in Tyler decided prison standards were not good enough for criminals. Judge Justice (how much do you think his name helped him get where he is?) has threatened to fine the state $800,000 a day if they don't meet his standards.

It appears we would save money and time if we simply slapped the wrist of a criminal convicted of a white-collar crime, put him on probation and turn him loose at the local level. We've got juries and judges handing out stiffer sentences in order to lock criminals up longer, and we've got a system that's turning them loose faster and faster.

District Judge Wesley Gulley, in an article last week, commented that the current problem is affecting how justice works. "There are people who would rather serve what they perceive will be a short sentence in TDC and then be paroled, rather than be placed on probation," said Judge Gulley. "Probation is a much better method for keeping tabs on the people because there is more supervision."

We read where a judge down at Andrews said one of his judiciary friends had come up with a solution to the problem. He proposes a point system for each crime committed. A few points for minor crimes, big points for major crimes like murder and robbery.

When the prison population reached the maximum permitted, you take out the prisoners with the most points and execute them. Eventually the point total would become less and less and the likelihood of being taken out and executed would be greater and greater!

Seriously, it seems useless to send felons to Huntsville under the present circumstances. It makes more economic sense for each community, or a group of communities, to lock them up in an area facility. At least we'd save transportation costs.

Customer loyalty is fragile thing

Where does the average organization turn when they come up with a need for money?

Why, the first place to go is to local merchants, of course.

Over the years the local merchants have been in the front line of fund raising endeavors. They consider supporting local causes as their duty and as a general rule support every fund raising plan that is presented to them.

You would think that this has generated a corps of loyal customers over the years and that whenever members of these fund raising organizations need supplies they turn first to the stores at home.

Unfortunately, this is not always the case. Customers are more apt to buy where they can get it for less money or in a city store where the selection is greater or because it seems the thing to do by purchasing in out of town stores.

Customer loyalty is a fragile thing and may be fractured by the rude treatment by one clerk or the slowness in service or a lack of variety in merchandise.

Stores who do have a core of loyal customers won them by trying very hard to have good merchandise at attractive prices. There is really no other way to win customers and keep them.

Today's retailer, however, faces a tough row to hoe. First of all there is less money being spent in local retail channels and it is hard to keep a share of what is spent. The pressure is great from out of town competitors who advertise heavily and promote their wares.

Such things as a big city "warehouse club" is bad news for the home town retailer with limited assets and buying power. The home town car dealer finds it hard to match the deep discounts sometimes given by the big city dealers.

Some small town residents have been buying in big city stores for so long that they may be on a first name basis with those clerks while unknown to the clerks at home.

Local retailers have to contend with catalog sellers who offer all kinds of wonderful bargains, beautifully illustrated in color.

The lawmakers have not forgotten the home town retailer, however. Last year they raised his franchise tax and his unemployment tax, his workmen compensation insurance and a variety of taxes and fees levied on him for the privilege of doing business.

He is likely to have been visited by the OSHA inspector for possible violations of safety in the workplace and at the end of the year Uncle Sam is always there to take a big bite out of what is left.

Amid all this the small town retailer keeps working and smiling and greeting those who come in with outstretched hands, seeking money for another good cause. After all, the first place to go is the merchant. He is expected to have plenty of money for donations.

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm examines human nature this week, somewhat.

000

Dear editor:
This is not of any great importance but it reminds again that human nature is about the same the world over, whether you're a fisherman or not.

According to an article I read the other day, Japanese salmon in Japan sells for about $1.50 a pound. But some Japanese salmon-eaters will pay $5 a pound if it's imported from America, just as some Americans will pay double for a bottle of perfume if it's imported from France, even if it smells no better.

So some enterprising Japanese bought a million pounds of Japanese salmon, shipped it to the United States, had it re-packaged with "U.S.A." on it, and shipped it back for sale in Japan. He was cleaning up till caught.

Officials seized 250,000 pounds of the fish and are now holding it as evidence. I believe they'd better hurry up and bring the case to trial. By the way, this has nothing to do with fish, but you've seen the Marine Corps ads on TV: "We're looking for a few good men." You reckon, in light of the Moscow spy scandals, they ought to look a little harder?

In the realm of human nature, it's good to remember that labels, on fish or people, are not always accurate. There's nothing more temporary than a permanent wave or more permanent than a temporary tax.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

OUTCAST

I smoke a pipe. I am not especially proud of that fact. I justify my smoking by telling myself that I only smoke twice a day and I am very careful to not smoke in other people's space.

I do not smoke in a car unless others are doing so. I do not smoke in my own car unless I can get proper ventilation. I bought a car with a sun roof just for this purpose. I do not smoke in people's houses. I rarely smoke in my own house. So, I may be killing myself, but I try not to take anyone else with me.

They will not let me smoke my pipe on airplanes. Somehow they think cigarettes are less offensive. I could argue, but I go along with the rule. I still often sit in the smoking section, because I meet a nicer class of people back there. I rarely meet any jockers there, or anyone who just quit smoking and want to tell me about it. I also meet very few graduates of Baylor there.

I know smoking can be offensive to nonsmokers, but every once in a while I wonder if we smokers are not becoming the new victims of segregation. I went through the Denver airport the other day. I only had about half an hour and was to catch a long flight, so I thought I had better get my smoking done quickly. As soon as I lit up an announcement came over the intercom that there was to be no smoking in the concourses, and none anywhere else, except a few designated areas in the airport. I put out my pipe and started looking for one of the precious areas. I found one at the far end of the concourse.

A little group of us gathered there to sit, while the rest of the world walked by and glared at us. I felt like I was a little kid sneaking out behind the barn with a stolen sack of Bull Durham. I noticed grown men hiding their smokes behind their hand, like teenagers trying to keep Mommy from seeing them.

Now, I know we are offensive, but where will it end? Will we have separate drinking fountains next? How about separate restrooms? Maybe we will all have to go outside. Maybe next they will smell our breath before they let us on the plane.

It may not stop there. What about other kinds of offensive people? Loud people should go to a designated area to be loud. Drunks should not be allowed in the airport. How about folks who have not yet discovered the value of Right Guard? If they smell bad should the rest of us be exposed?

As long as we are in the segregation business I have some folks to add. Let's put all of the yard freaks in one end of town. Let them go to the designated area and pull weeds to their heart's content, while the rest of us let the dandelions grow, like God intended.

Well, it's a thought.

Minimum wage doesn't impact poverty

By MARTIN LEFKOWITZ
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Much of the debate on the minimum wage has centered around its relation to the poverty line. This is essentially a welfare argument and compares the minimum wage to a minimum standard of living.

More than 80 percent of the workers earning the minimum wage of $3.35 per hour or less (there are a few limited exemptions) are not classified as "poor" by the Census Bureau. Thus raising the minimum wage will not have an appreciable impact on poverty. More than 89 percent of the households below the poverty level would not have their poverty status changed as a result of increasing the minimum wage.

The major problem faced by those with incomes below the poverty level is not inadequate income for time worked, but the lack of a year-around job. Only 16 percent of household heads in families below the poverty level work at a full-time job on a year-around basis. It is significant that only ten years ago, 28.6 percent of the families below the poverty level had year-around, full-time jobs. Nearly half—46.4 percent—of families below the poverty level did not have any member either working or looking for a job. Just 1 percent of all workers are both "poor" and earn the minimum wage, the Congressional Budget Office reports.

Based on the limited participation of poverty families in the workforce, raising the minimum wage would not be the way to lift large numbers of those families above the poverty level. If all families working at year-around, full-time jobs could be removed from the poverty roles, the poverty level would be only about 1.8 percentage points below what it is now. This does not take into account the additional unemployment that is created as a result of the increase in the minimum wage.

Between 1978 and 1981, the minimum wage was increased by 45.6 percent. This was significantly above the 29.6 percent increase in inflation during that period. In 1978, the poverty rate in the nation was 11.4 percent. By 1982, one year after the minimum wage increases were fully enacted, the poverty rate climbed to 15 percent and the number of persons below the poverty level increased by 40.4 percent.

But the poverty rate declined one percentage point by 1985 while the minimum wage remained unchanged, and the number of people below the poverty level declined by more than 1.3 million.

The overwhelming characteristic of those working at and below the minimum wage is youth and the accompanying inexperience. While only 27 percent of all workers being paid on an hourly basis are under the age of 25, they comprise nearly 60 percent of all workers earning the minimum wage or less. The minimum wage is thus a stepping-stone, allowing those that lack job training to enter the labor force and acquire marketable skills and thereby higher pay. Thus we see the job market as being an extension of schooling and training.

Another characteristic that minimum wage workers have is that they are generally part-time workers. While about one-fourth of all workers paid on an hourly basis are part-time workers, nearly two-thirds making at or below the minimum wage are part-timers. Part-time employees are more than five times as likely to be earning the minimum wage or below than full-time workers.

Among hourly paid workers, pay peaks around the age of 40 when there is an optimal combination of training and physical stamina. Pay then trends downward until normal retirement age of 65. After age 65, hourly pay for those that remain in the labor force drops significantly.

Those below the age of 25 and above 65 are the only groups with a substantial portion of their members earning at or below the minimum wage. In most cases, the young group is learning the ropes to advance to higher pay and the older group is earning money to supplement pensions and Social Security.

It is clear that raising the minimum wage is not the way to reduce poverty. If anything, past experience teaches that increases in the minimum wage have increased poverty. They raise the level of poverty because low-skill workers lose jobs and employers shift from full-time to part-time employees.

We need to make sure that we do not deprive persons of the opportunity to get a job, improve their skills and move on to higher paying jobs. It is the ability to build on skills that allows workers to move out of poverty, not laws that prevent them from getting jobs.

Fudge, Treadway united in marriage

MRS. RICKY ALLEN TREADWAY
...nee Tammy Lynn Fudge

Tammy Lynn Fudge of Hamlin became the bride of Ricky Allen Treadway, also of Hamlin, during an evening wedding ceremony Friday in the First Baptist Church Chapel of Hamlin. Pastor of the church, Rev. Charles Bridges, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Alan Fudge of Hamlin and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Treadway of Hereford.

Decorating the front of the chapel was a centered brass arch trimmed with ivy and a floral cascade of mauve and pink roses. Candelabra holding nine tapers flanked the arch, as did brass stands filled with heather complimented by emerald and pink roses. The chapel windows were filled with greenery and votive candles.

Sharon Woolf was maid of honor and best man was Robert Treadway, father of the groom.

Teresa Fudge, sister of the bride, served as bridesmaid. Junior bridesmaid was Tonya Fudge, also a sister of the bride.

Cary Jones and Dwayne Jones were groomsmen.

Retha Treadway, sister of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Ring bearer was Rodney Treadway, brother of the groom.

Candlelighters were Lacy Jones and Danna Wright.

Thomas Butler provided a musical arrangement of "Friends and Lovers," "Endless Love," and "Greensleeves."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ecru princess-style original gown featuring a silk organza skirt flowing from a lace bodice. The sleeves were of silk organza and were adorned with lace appliques from shoulder to wrist. Nine pearl buttons further enhanced the sleeves' wrists.

To complete her ensemble, the bride wore a Juliet cap with a chapel-length veil attached. It was outlined in floral appliques.

She carried a colonial-style bouquet of pink and white roses and pink daisies. Backed with ecru lace, the streamer were of ecru satin.

Bridal attendants were attired in mauve taffeta floorlength gowns designed with a gathered skirt and rounded neckline. Puffed sleeves, a ruffle adorning either side of the bodice and a pleated cummerbund completed the gowns.

The flower girl wore a soft pink taffeta gown gopped with a pink organza overlay finished with puffed sleeves.

Samantha Price registered guests at the reception which followed in the fellowship hall of the church.

Serving cake was Cindy Cox while Vanessa Hazzard poured punch. Others assisting were Karla Paske and Vickie Crowley.

A three-tiered cake with pink roses on top was served to guests. A replica of the bride and groom bedecked the second tier and were surrounded by pillars and roses.

For her traveling costume, the bride selected a blue cotton skirt and yellow blouse topped by a sleeveless ecru sweater accented with pink, blue, and yellow stripes.

Following a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple will be at home in Hamlin.

The bride, a 1986 graduate of Hamlin High School, was a member of the National Honor Society, appeared on the Who's Who List, and was a twirler her senior year. She was also in the Hamlin stage band. She is presently employed by Pied Piper Grocery.

The bridegroom is a 1984 graduate of Hereford High School.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding included residents of Hereford, Snyder, Rotan, Abilene, Potosi, and Stamford.

Fortunate rubble

Some of the finest carvings of antiquity survive today because the Persian capital of Persepolis was sacked in 331 B.C. A thousand years later, when Moslems occupied the ruins, they destroyed all sculpture they found because their faith forbade images — but they missed those buried in the rubble. The carvings were dug up by archaeologists in the 20th century.

Thank You

We would like to express our sincere appreciation to all of those who showed so much love and concern in our time of loss. Thank You to everyone who so thoughtfully sent flowers, brought food, sent cards, called and supported us.

May God Bless All of You.

Four HHS netters to regionals

Four Hereford High School tennis players have qualified for the regional tournament after winning semifinal matches in the District 1-4A tournament Friday night in Hereford.

The district title matches were scheduled for Saturday at the HHS tennis courts. The first and second place singles players and doubles teams go to regionals.

Going to regionals from Hereford are Kevin Hansen, boys' singles; Lana Kosub, girls' singles; and Brad Allred and Jason Bodner, boys' doubles.

Hereford's girls' doubles team of Misty Stokes and Bridget Baker suffered a narrow 6-4, 6-4 loss in the semifinals.

No opponent of Hansen's won more than two games in a set. Only one of Kosub's opponents won more than two games in a set, in one of the semifinal sets.

Allred and Bodner staged comebacks in their quarterfinal and semifinal matches. They lost the first set of the quarterfinals, 6-0, against the Pampa team of Avendano and Thompson, but rallied back to win the second set, 7-6, and then took the deciding set, 6-0.

The semifinal match saw Foster and Brewer of Canyon win the first set, 6-3, over Allred and Bodner. Allred and Bodner then won the second set, 6-4, and the third set, 6-2. Stokes & Baker fell to the Levelland team of Serratoz & Parker in two sets, both by margins of 6-4.

In "B" divisions of the tournament, Rick Alley won the boys' singles championship, Justin Flood and Matt Coplen won the boys' doubles competition. Tiffany LeGate advanced to the championship in girls' singles, with the title match played on Saturday.

Brent Warner

New assistant pro at golf course

An assistant professional has been hired at Pitman Municipal Golf Course, announces Mike Horton, golf pro at the course.

Brent Warner, 20, who was a state fourth place medalist for Sanford-Fritch High School in his junior year, is the new assistant under Horton. He was honored on the all-state golf team that year.

Warner played golf on a scholarship at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene in 1985, and later attended The Golf Academy of the South in Mobile, Alabama for one semester. He studied business and golf management, communication and golf skills, and golf instruction.

"We are lucky to have Brent,"

Horton said. "He has a personality that fits right in here and Brent is very serious about becoming a class 'A' professional."

Warner said, "I feel lucky to have this job, especially with Mike. He's a great person to work with, and he's been very helpful to my wife and me."

Warner and his high school sweetheart, Deborah, were married on Aug. 15, 1987 and are expecting their first child in November. Deborah is a licensed cosmetologist and will be working in the Pro Shop at the golf course this summer.

Warner, who will apply for membership into the PGA apprentice program in August, discussed his goals, saying, "One day I hope to be a master PGA professional. I'd like to have my own golf shop and even play in some professional tournaments, if I can become good enough."

He won several Junior PGA tournaments, and also won 10 high school tournaments during his years at Sanford-Fritch High School. He qualified for the Junior PGA championship in 1984.

Warner said he got his start in golf with his grandfather: "My grandfather took me out to play. I probably started playing when I was nine years old. I started playing seriously when I was 14."

In addition to playing golf during his freshman year of high school, Warner also participated in basketball and football. But after that, he devoted his time to golf.

"I just liked golf more, so I figured since I was having some success in it, I may as well play in it only," he said.

"I wanted to play a game where I didn't have to rely on a bunch of other people, like in football and basketball. I like the one-on-one in golf," he adds.

Warner's hobbies include hunting, fishing, water skiing, and snow skiing. Among his responsibilities at Pitman Municipal Golf Course are teaching golf lessons.

Anyone wanting private or group lessons may contact Warner at the Pro Shop at 364-2782.

McCracken's homer lifts Herd JV over Plainview

Roger McCracken hit a home run over the centerfield fence in the bottom of the seventh inning to boost the Hereford High School junior varsity baseball team to a 12-11 victory over Plainview in a game played Friday in Hereford.

The two teams attempted to play a second game on Friday, but it was called because of darkness after five innings with the score tied 3-3.

Hereford, which was scheduled to play the Dumas junior varsity on Saturday afternoon, after the Herd varsity game, had a 10-1 record going into Saturday's contest.

In game one against Plainview, the score was tied 1-1 at the end of one inning. Keith Brown singled, stole second base, and scored on Brad Pittman's single for the first inning Hereford run.

Hereford built up a 6-1 lead in the second inning. The sequence of that inning was a single by Todd Collier, two HHS batters walking, a double by Brown, a single by Jason Scott, and a triple by Pittman.

Plainview then scored four runs in the top of the third inning to slice the Hereford lead to 6-5. In the top of the fifth, Plainview gained a 7-6 lead.

Hereford came back for five runs in the bottom of the fifth inning for an 11-7 lead. Kyle Andrews doubled and J.T. Heaton hit an RBI double.

The bases were loaded when Roger McCracken was hit by pitch, followed by Glenn Parker hitting a single. Jeff Farr cleared the bases ahead of him with a double, and later Brown hit an RBI groundout.

Plainview tied up the game, 11-11, in the sixth inning. McCracken then won the game for Hereford with hit home run over the wall in centerfield in the seventh inning.

Hereford had 12 hits in the game. Raymond Romo pitched the first five innings for Hereford, recording five strikeouts, allowing seven hits, and walking three batters. Hereford committed two errors in those innings.

Clint Cotten pitched the last two innings, had three strikeouts, gave up three hits, and walked two batters.

Cotten pitched all five innings of game two that ended tied 3-3 when darkness set in. Cotten had five strikeouts, walked just one batter, and allowed six hits. Hereford committed two errors in the game.

Hereford scored two runs in the first inning. Farr doubled, Scott hit an RBI double and stole third base, and Cotten hit a sacrifice fly.

Hereford's other run came in the third inning when Scott doubled and scored on McCracken's double.

Texas Crops Report

Wheat damage being assessed

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas farmers are still assessing spring freeze damage to wheat, fruit and nut crops over much of the state, and to corn, sorghum and cotton in South Texas, says Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The condition of the wheat crop varies from county to county, but field tours and plant damage clinics over the past two weeks indicate that damages will be severe, said Carpenter in his weekly report on the state's agriculture.

The degree of freeze damage to wheat depends on planting date and crop maturity, amount of grazing, fertilization rate, length of sub-freezing exposure, field elevations and other factors, Carpenter said. Mowers and balers are busy in many wheat fields that suffered severe damage, he said.

Extension scientists and county Extension agents are assisting producers to determine overall crop damage, but it will be some time before assessments can be fully calculated, Carpenter said.

Peach, plum and blueberry crops were severely damaged and it appears that pecan losses also will be extensive, based on early estimates, Carpenter said. In Northeast and East Texas, the peach and plum crop damage ranges from 80 to 100 percent, and most blueberries were killed. Many garden and commercial vegetables also were killed in those areas, and some replanting is now under way. The spring freezes also killed or severely damaged many ornamentals, oak trees and hardwoods and set back growth of range and pasture grasses by three or four weeks in many areas, Carpenter said.

Some replanting is under way in South Texas of killed-out corn, sorghum and cotton crops, and other growers are looking at replanting options.

Strong winds also have depleted soil moisture in many areas, and rain would be welcomed to boost newly-planted crops and recovery of others.

In the Texas rice belt, planting is still active with an estimated 60-65 percent completed. The crop is behind its normal planting schedule because of the recent cold weather, Carpenter said.

Most livestock are in good condition, although many herds suffered weight loss during the recent cold, and pasture grass was severely set back in many areas. Parasites are a problem in some areas.

District Extension directors reported these conditions:

PANHANDLE: Freeze damage to wheat is still being assessed, with losses substantial in some fields. Graze-out wheat is providing good forage, but native range grass has been slowed by the cold. Onion planting and replanting is about 40 percent completed in Deaf Smith County. Sugar beet planting has started. Most blooms in peach and apricot trees were destroyed by the cold. Cattle are beginning to mend after recent blizzard conditions, but losses were significant. Markets continue strong.

Crackdown on alcoholism one reason for big Soviet harvest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although Moscow likes to cite improved use of technology as the main reason for last year's bumper Soviet grain harvest, an Agriculture Department report says higher prices and sobriety also had something to do with the big yields.

The Soviet Union's 1986 grain harvest was 210.1 million metric tons, the fourth largest on record and the biggest since the peak of 237.4 million tons in 1978. As a result, the Soviet Union has been able to trim back on imports this year.

While it is still too early to assess the 1987 Soviet grain crop, above-average winterkill likely occurred on winter grains, following a severe cold spell in January, the department's Economic Research Service said. "However, any actual 1987 harvest losses due to winterkill could be somewhat offset by reseeding with spring grains."

According to the report, which was written by the agency's Carolyn E. Duff and Christian J. Foster, Soviet leaders attribute most of last year's increase in grain production to the Kremlin's intensive technology program, which calls for more efficient use of fertilizers, improved seeds and other production items.

But other factors cannot be ignored, the report said. Those included increased incentives due to higher procurement prices, expanded collective contracts and "broad-ranging crackdowns on mismanagement and alcoholism."

Other factors that played a role in the bumper 1986 harvest included increased grassroots understanding of new farming techniques, and "particularly favorable weather" during the harvest season, the report added.

Soviet statisticians reported that overall agricultural output last year increased 5.1 percent from 1985, said the USDA report. Significant increases for animal products and grain, potatoes, vegetables and fruit more than compensated for declines in cotton and sugarbeet production.

Livestock production "was another bright spot in 1986" and was indicative of the success of Kremlin leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's program to increase productivity and efficiency, the report said.

"Cattle, hog and poultry inventories reached all-time highs, and meat and egg production was a record. Most of the increase was due to increased output per head," the report said.

The Soviet Union's grain imports during the year that runs through June 30 are expected to total about 28 million metric tons, short of last season's imports of 29.9 million tons and the smallest import total in eight years.

CRP may save 25 tons per acre

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's soil experts say farmers should be reducing erosion losses by 93 percent on cropland signed up last year in the long-term Conservation Reserve Program.

Put another way, the savings realized by planting the land with a protective cover could amount to 25.4 tons per acre each year that otherwise would be lost to wind and water runoff.

Wilson Scaling, chief of the department's Soil Conservation Service, said Friday the erosion reduction was computed for the initial 8.2 million acres of highly erodible land enrolled in the program in 1986.

An additional 10.6 million acres were enrolled this year, and a further signup is scheduled for July. The goal set by Congress is to take 40 million to 45 million acres of highly erodible land out of crop production by 1990 by planting it to protective cover, including grass and trees.

The soil saved on the 8.2 million acres totals an estimated 209 million tons a year. If the 1990 goal is met, agency officials said the annual soil savings could be about 825 million tons annually.

Scaling said the average annual erosion rate on the 8.2 million acres contracted last year will drop from 27.3 tons per acre to 1.9 tons per acre after it is protected by permanent cover.

Texas and Colorado, each with more than a million acres enrolled in 1986, were the largest participants in last year's signup.

Farmers who participate receive government payments for up to half of the cost of establishing trees or grass. Those are one-time payments that average $37.51 per acre, officials said. Annual rental payments, based on bids accepted from farmers, average $45.53 per acre for land enrolled last year.

Barbed wire was patented in 1874 by Joseph F. Glidden of Illinois.

Accent on Agriculture

Local freeze damage varies

By DENNIS NEWTON
Extension Agent

The extremely low temperatures experienced in late March and early April have taken a heavy toll on many wheat fields in Deaf Smith County. Surveys conducted last week indicate that damage is present in all fields. The extent of the damage varies greatly between fields. Damage ranging from less than 10 to over 90 percent was discovered during the surveys with the average being in the 65 to 70 percent range.

The damage to wheat caused by extreme low temperature can occur in basically three forms. First the leaves in the upper part of the plant will be burned turning white and eventually brown. This symptom is easily observed and can be seen for great distances in a field. This damage will hurt the plant but only very minimally. Wheat can recover from this damage very rapidly.

The second damage occurs to the stem of the plant. The principle point of damage in most cases has been the lower internode on the plant just at ground level. This internode is the main conductor of water and nutrients to the rest of the plant. In a normal wheat plant the internode is extremely rigid and hard. In freeze damaged plants the internode will be soft, often discolored or deformed in some way. To check the damage simply cut a cross section of the stem and look for discoloration of the stem. The best way to check for stem damage is to cut just below and just above a node on the stem. The two should be the same color. If the lower internode is lighter in color than the upper internode, then the stem is damaged. The extent of stem damage is the hardest determination to make. Even internodes that show know apparent visual damage can have some of their water conducting capacity lessened.

The damage to the internode can also have a great impact at maturity. Wheat plants that have damaged internodes will probably lodge at maturity causing problems at harvest time.

The third and most severe damage caused by freezing temperatures is the damage to the developing wheat head. This head was in a very critical stage of its development when the severe temperature occurred. Research at Kansas State University has shown that wheat in the tillering stage will receive slight to moderate damage when the temperature is at 12 degrees for two hours. Wheat in the jointing stage will receive moderate to severe damage if the temperature gets to 24 degrees for only two hours. Here in Deaf Smith County the temperature was at 12 degrees for over 14 hours and below 24 degrees for almost 36 hours. These temperatures were accompanied by very high winds that made the temperature even more damaging.

The extent of the damage done to individual fields must be assessed on an individual basis. This assessment is easily done. To assist farmers in checking for damage the Texas Agricultural Extension Service staff will hold a clinic and turnrow meeting on Monday, April 20 at 10:30 a.m. on the Raymond Schlabs farm located seven miles north of Hereford on Highway 385 and then 1/2 mile east on the county road. At this location 23 wheat varieties and hybrids are being evaluated. At this clinic farmers will be shown the correct method of surveying damage, the correct method of evaluating the degree of damage, and the do's and don'ts of damage assessment.

Available in the County Extension Office is a publication entitled "Spring Freeze Injury to Kansas Wheat" that was developed by the Agricultural Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service of Kansas State University. Producers that would like a copy of this publication can call or come by the County Extension Office on the third floor of the County Courthouse in Hereford.

Aeration is the name of the game for top quality grain. Aeration is forcing small amounts of air through stored grain. The amount of aeration that is necessary depends on the applicable use of natural air. Cool, dry areas allow more time for natural aeration than warm, humid areas. Benefits of adequate aeration include holding undried grain, removing harvest and dryer heat, disposal of small amounts of moisture and storage maintenance of dry grain. In removing harvest and dryer heat, fans should be run continuously until the grain is close to the temperature in the elevator. When undried grain is stored prior to drying, fans should run continuously until the grain is processed through the dryer. Reducing of grain heat can control or retard mold development and insects. Elevators must plan what is necessary for effective aeration by judging the airflow rate, the amount of foreign material in the grain and the extent of cooling caused by evaporation of moisture.

Young Kevin Bolen, 5-year-old son of Charles and Leanne Bolen, entered the recent 1987 Panhandle Area Baby Show and came out a winner in various categories of competition. He was awarded second place in the Beauty division, received a rating of 100 percent in the Health division, won the 3rd place trophy in his age division, and received the Personality Kiddie trophy. The annual baby show benefits the pedi/neonatal intensive care unit of Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

Club learns about plants

Wyche Extension Club met in the home of Audrey Rusher recently.

Pet Ott was elected to preside and gave the opening exercise on "attitudes that count."

Rusher then introduced Wilma Bryan who gave the program on houseplants.

Following the program, an auction was held of items donated.

A show and tell time will provide the recreation for the next meeting which is set for May 7 at the Community Center with Argen Draper serving as hostess.

Members present included Rusher, Draper, Virgie Duncan, Ott, Esther Thuett, and Clara Trowbridge.

Walking safe, simple

Are you looking for exercise that is easy to do, safe, and inexpensive? Try walking. The Texas Medical Association says that a regular regimen of walking combined with other good habits such as avoiding cigarettes, controlling blood pressure, and following a prudent diet, can significantly improve your health.

Research has shown that walking at speeds of three and one-half to four and one-half miles an hour—that's brisk walking, not strolling—produces cardiovascular benefits. Slower walking (two miles an hour) can be advantageous for older people, cardiac patients, or people recuperating from an illness.

Here are some pointers for starting a regular program of walking:

—If you're inactive but healthy, start with mile-long walks at a pace of three miles per hour, five times a week. Over the course of a month, boost your distance to three miles at a pace of four miles per hour, five times a week. If you can't walk that fast, walk a little further.

—You can increase the aerobic benefits of brisk walking in two ways. Swing your arms: your upper body needs a workout, too. And as you get used to walking, carry a six-pound backpack, or hand weights.

—Put variety into your walking program. Take a companion along. Try a different route, particularly leading to hilly territory, which will boost the aerobic benefits. If you get tired, alternate fast walking with strolling.

—You don't need special footwear, but don't walk long distances in soft, shapeless shoes. Walking shoes should have a shank (a rigid arch), as well as some cushioning for the heel and the ball of your foot. Cotton socks will add to your comfort and absorb perspiration as well.

—If it's too hot or cold outdoors, walk in your local mall, or in any other climate-controlled environment. Many malls now have walking programs sponsored by the American Heart Association or your local hospital.

Ann Landers See sex counselor

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband (age 37) has become impotent and refuses to admit anything is wrong. He says, "I just don't feel like it."

What can a woman do when her husband won't acknowledge that he has the problem? How do other women deal with this? It has made me desperately unhappy because "Harry" and I used to get along so well. Our sex life was wonderful. Now he has become distant and sullen. He has seen a urologist and was assured that there is no organic disease present.

DEAR DENVER: An avalanche of new information on impotence has appeared in the last eight years. The experts once thought this problem was 90 percent stress-related. Today they are saying that only about 40 percent is caused by anxiety and other kinds of emotional problems. They now believe the major culprits are alcoholism, diabetes, vascular or neurological irregularities, prostate and urological problems and medication for high blood pressure and heart trouble.

Impotence need not be viewed as a disaster. A great deal of pleasure and satisfaction can be experienced by being close and loving and innovative. Moreover, when the pressure to perform is removed, a man just might return to active duty.

According to Dr. William Simpson, director of the Center for Sexual Health at Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kan., your husband is probably suffering from inhibited sexual desire. His distancing may be a defense against humiliation. Dr. Simpson suggests that he see a certified sex counselor or sex therapist.

Anyone who wishes to check on the qualifications of a sex counselor or a sex therapist, or would like to contact one in his area, should write to the American Association of Sex Educators, Counselors and Therapists at 11 Dupont Circle, N.W., Suite 220, Washington, D.C. 20036.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was amused by your remark that the only thing worse than finding a bug in your hot dog is to find half a bug.

That statement reminded me of my military service in Egypt in World War II.

Council found strong

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) A special committee of United Methodist bishops says a three-year examination of the National Council of Churches finds it healthy, strong and making "a vital contribution to our total Christian witness."

The inquiry was authorized by the denomination's bishops in early 1984 after charges were made in the Reader's Digest and on a CBS "60 Minutes" that the National and World Councils of Churches supported left-wing revolutions in Africa.

The Methodist committee concluded that the denomination's contributions to the World Council "are handled according to our desires and commitments" and contributions to the National Council are used responsibly and effectively.

Noting that designated contributions to the World Council's Fund to Combat Racism are made by some European governments, individuals and denominations, the committee said the council has procedures to ensure that the funds go for humane purposes, and not to purchase arms or for violence.

The bishops said they are confident that the council has been "conscientious about this matter and believe that structural changes relating to procedure have effectively overcome some earlier criticisms and concerns."

Salesmen wanting to be better are good for industry

WASHINGTON — Encouraging industrious sales associates to pursue full-time, long term real estate careers is the focal point of an internal study by the National Association of Realtors that emphasizes member productivity.

Brokers and sales associates who "never want to stop learning" are essential to the industry, according to 1987 NAR President William Moore. "People who are always striving to be better are who we need in this profession," Moore said.

"Our brokers need to try to recruit the best possible people who are cut out to sell real estate. We need to strive toward improving our productivity, toward motivating our members to work harder," Moore said.

The ratio of transactions per year compared to the number of NAR members shows an annual average of seven per member, he noted. "Some associates make a lot of sales. But it appears that there are a lot out there who need to be doing more," Moore said.

The NAR president appointed a task force of Realtors to evaluate member productivity. The group concluded in a recent report that office brokers and sales managers could improve their business through keener supervision and scrutiny of prospective sales associates.

"To get people to be more productive, brokers must educate their people, help them set career goals, let them know it's important to the company. Once you do this, people will grab on to that," Moore said.

He pointed out that a "step in the right direction" was made when the productivity study was addressed during a forum for brokers and sales managers at recent NAR mid-winter meetings in Denver. "Whatever is done has got to start with the brokers and sales managers," Moore said.

According to Ted Bryant, chairman of the Task Force on Realtor Productivity, the study recommends that brokers and sales managers concentrate more on their selection of whom might prove to be the most successful and efficient sales representatives.

"We feel some of them need to work more on whether someone will be good in sales," Bryant explained. "Motivation, perseverance, the ability to withstand rejection-getting people with those characteristics is important."

He noted that some brokers may not realize how deeply their own success relies on their sales associates. "People who do good work will make more money for the broker and keep sellers and buyers coming to the company. Non-satisfactory associates cost time, training and floor calls, and they can lose business. It is important to select those right for the job," Bryant said.

He added that people just entering the real estate sales profession may find the work to be more demanding than they anticipated. "They jump into the swimming pool and find the water's colder than they thought."

The NAR estimates that there are approximately 1 million actively practicing real estate agents in the nation, compared with an estimated 2.4 million who have real estate licenses. According to a 1986 NAR survey of real estate firms, about 37 percent of the sales force joined the industry over a recent 12-month period. About 19 percent left during that time, resulting in a 17 percent increase in the overall number of agents.

Gail Lyons, chairman of the NAR Education and Resources Committee, explained that one of the task force's concerns is the membership turnover. People who only intend to enter the profession briefly—who move in and out as sales periods boom and taper off—inflate the turnover ratio, she said. "Some people get into it on the side, for extra money. But selling real estate takes a lot of time and knowledge."

She referred to the industry adage that 20 percent of the members do 80 percent of the business, leaving 20 percent of the business to be shared by 80 percent of the members. "Eighty percent can't live on that (20 percent of the real estate business)."

The task force study suggests that more brokers should conduct clearly-focused interviews of prospective sales associates to determine their specific goals, such as the pursuit of a long-term real estate career.

"In real estate, both the individual and management impact productivity," said Jerome E. Jaros, senior vice president of NAR's Member Services Group. "The individual does it with more personal drive, more motivation and more training. Management provides the proper work environment for success."

"People who are making the most important investment of their lives should be able to entrust that purchase to a qualified, trained real estate professional," Jaros said.

Career goals and guidelines for the selection of sales associates are part of a basic management assistance program the task force feels would benefit brokers and office managers. It would cover the essentials on how to keep an ambitious staff motivated and make them willing to learn more about the industry. Plans call for it to be available through NAR affiliated state and local boards of Realtors. Tips on business growth, managing financial resources and effectively handling office personnel would be part of the blueprint.

"This is simply an effort to help those who want to do better. We feel there is a need for brokers and sales managers to have access to better management techniques. If we can raise their consciousness that they can do better, it could enhance their business tremendously," Bryant said.

The National Association of Realtors is the largest trade association in the nation, representing more than 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

MEASURING PASTA

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Without a kitchen scale, it's helpful to know some cup measurements for dry and cooked pasta.

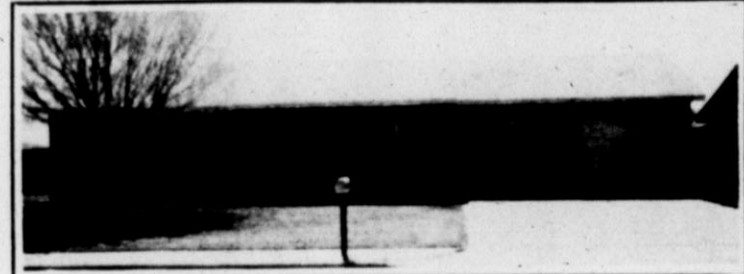

Better Homes and Gardens Pasta Cook Book says four ounces of uncooked elbow macaroni or conchiglie measures about one cup. When cooked, it will yield about 2½ cups of pasta.

Four ounces of uncooked medium noodles measures about three cups and when cooked, you'll have about three cups of pasta. Four ounces of uncooked 10-inch-long spaghetti held together in a bunch has about a one-inch diameter. When cooked, it will equal about two cups of pasta.

"Home Improvement"

Now that spring is finally here, our thoughts tend to drift toward home repairs and improvement. If you are planning to do major improvements and need financing, there are several things of which you need to be aware.

Do not begin the work until a Mechanic's and Materialman's lien is filed of record. If you get half way through the project and then decide you need to finance part of it, you won't be able to use your house as collateral and financing would be more difficult to obtain. I suggest the following procedures. Make an itemized list of the improvements you intend to make. Get bids from one or more contractors, and then visit your lender. Upon loan approval, your lender will see that the proper legal papers are prepared so that a valid lien is created on your property. At this point construction may begin.

Most repairs or improvements made will also equally increase the appraised value of your property. However, there are some improvements of a specialized nature, improvements that perhaps wouldn't appeal to the average buyer in that the cost will not be offset by an increased appraised value.

As with any mortgage loan, be aware of all the improvements. Good luck on your improvements!

WHOLE FLAT

SPRING FRESH!

Fragrant, plump strawberries are a sure sign of spring, and the Berry Good, Inc. harvest is now underway! Fresh from the fields, these juicy, ripe strawberries are as beautiful as they are delicious. Celebrate Easter and Spring with a hearty helping of sweet, fresh strawberries!

LEGENDS AND LORE!

In the Middle Ages, strawberries were thought to be a cure-all for many ailments! Although the patient was usually eager for his "medicine," the results were often less than satisfactory! It was also during medieval times that a lotion made from strawberry roots was used to fasten loose teeth. The lotion was believed to strengthen the gums. Although wild strawberries were common throughout Europe, it wasn't until the thirteenth century that the fruit became a garden crop. The hearty plant responded well to cultivation and it is now grown and enjoyed the world over.

GOOD FOR YOU, TOO!

Strawberries, rich in Vitamin C, are a delicious way to give your body this important vitamin. Sprinkle a few plump berries on your cereal in the morning or pack a handful in your briefcase to nibble on throughout the day. Strawberries are also a great complement for duck or chicken and may be enjoyed in fruit salads or with endive and other greens.

STRAWBERRIES WITH CHOCOLATE CREAM

1 cup whipping cream
3 tbs. cocoa
¼ cup plus 1 tbs. powdered sugar
2 quarts medium-size fresh strawberries

Beat whipping cream until foamy. Sift cocoa and powdered sugar together; add to cream, beating until soft peaks form. Serve with strawberries.

Wedding vows recited Saturday

Wedding vows were spoken Saturday afternoon in Temple Baptist Church by Georgia Cay Zetsche and Trace Doyle Taylor. The marriage was officiated by the Rev. H.W. Bartlett, pastor.

Parents of the bride are George and Frances Zetsche of Hereford and the groom's parents are Veri and Sandra Taylor of Rossville, Ga.

The church was decorated by two seven-branch candelabra trimmed with greenery and royal blue bows flanked by green plants of phycus, scheffleria, ferns and white miniature roses. The sanctuary was also accented with a blue and white ribbon unity candle which was lit at the conclusion of the wedding ceremony.

Ann Zetsche of Austin served as her sister's maid of honor and Trent Taylor of Satanta, Ks. was his brother's best man.

Bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Tania Taylor of Rossville, and Kathy Tinklenberg of Albuquerque, N.M. and Cindy Lowry of Houston.

Serving as groomsmen were the groom's cousin, Gip Aldrich of Laverne, Okla., Danny Jones of Hereford and John Bankson of Dallas.

Ushers were the bride's brothers, Jim and Joe Don Zetsche, both of Hereford, and the bride's cousins, Lynn Andrews of Carthage, Mo. and Harlan Bruns of Amarillo.

The bride's cousins, Kendy and Tierney Zetsche, daughters of Bobby and Kenna Zetsche of Lubbock, were flower girls, and ring bearer was Brice Banne, son of Phil and Rhonda Banner of Hereford.

Principal wedding selections included, "God, A Woman and a Man", "Wedding Song" and "Can't Help Falling In Love" vocalized by Ann and Joe Don Zetsche. Kenny Shore of Dumas provided accompaniment.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sequin and pearl beaded white satin gown fashioned with a Sabrina neckline. The sleeves were puffed to the elbow and then extended to the bride's wrists. The long waisted bodice formed a V-shape at the skirt's center front and back and the full skirt, which was edged with cutout lace, swept into a chapel-length train.

The floor-length tulle veil with finger-tip blusher of bridal illusion was attached to a pearl beaded and sequined cap.

She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses accented with blue flowers. It was also designed with an orchid corsage that was lifted out and worn on her traveling costume.

The bride wore an heirloom gold bracelet which belongs to her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Owen Andrews. The bracelet was originally given by Mrs. Andrews' father, the late T.L. Sparkman, Sr., to his wife at their wedding.

Bridal attendants were attired in tea-length royal blue taffeta dresses and wore royal blue bows in their hair. Each carried a bouquet of light blue and apricot flowers. Flower girls wore medium blue print tea-length dresses designed with cascading ruffles at the backs. They also wore halos of white baby's breath in their hair.

The groom's sister-in-law, Nancy Taylor, invited guest to register at the reception held in the church reception hall.

The bride's cousins, Roxie Thiessen of Atascadero, Calif. and Robin Crumpton of Lubbock, served cake. Punch and coffee were poured by Jan Briones of Amarillo and Elizabeth Baca of Hereford. Others in the houseparty included Stacy Jones, Murlene Streun, Carolyn Waters, Mary Lou Shore, Veradelle Bruns and Karen Shore.

A royal blue cloth with a white lace overlay covered the bride's table which was centered by a blue and white ribbon candle, and the bride's and bridesmaids' bouquets which encircled the cake. The three-tiered wedding cake, with blue roses over a blue cascading water fountain, was connected to four heart-shaped cakes by blue ribbons. It was topped by a ceramic bride couple. Also, adorning the table was a crystal punch bowl.

The groom's table was covered with a royal blue floor-length cloth and appointed with a silver coffee service. The chocolate cake was frosted with grape decorations. Both cakes were made by the bride's mother.

Leaving on a wedding trip to Albuquerque, N.M., the bride wore a royal blue suit and an orchid corsage.

The couple will make their home in Hereford.

The bride is a graduate of Hereford High School and Texas Tech University. She is currently teaching at Aikman Elementary School.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Christian Heritage School in El Paso, is presently employed with Stevens Chevrolet.

Among out-of-town guests were Blanche Taylor of Laverne, Okla., the groom's grandmother; Ava Nette Zetsche of Atascadero, Calif., the bride's aunt; and Glen and Juanelle Andrews of Carthage, Mo., the bride's aunt and uncle.

Discussing Forum

The American Cancer Society's Reach to Recovery volunteers will host an educational forum on breast cancer from 8:30-11:30 a.m. Saturday, April 25, at the Texas Tech School of Medicine Building in Amarillo. The forum is open to the public and is free of charge. Discussing the event with the president of the Deaf Smith County Unit of the ACS, Carolyn Andrews, at right, is ACS field representative, Kristi Froehlich of Amarillo.

Breast cancer forum scheduled

Kristi Froehlich of Amarillo, field representative with the American Cancer Society, spoke to Deaf Smith County Unit ACS board members at their regular meeting Wednesday at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Froehlich informed the board of the Reach to Recovery forum on breast cancer to be held from 8:30-11:30 a.m. Saturday, April 25, at the Texas Tech School of Medicine Building in Amarillo, 1400 Wallace Blvd. The event is free-of-charge and is open to the public.

The forum is designed to educate men and women on breast cancer treatment, surgery and alternatives, and the emotional aspects affecting not only the woman, but the man in her life.

Guest speakers include Dr. Daniel Epley, radiation oncologist at the Harrington Cancer Center who will speak on lumpectomy and radiotherapy as an alternative to a mastectomy; Dian Cuellar, coordinator of the social services department of Harrington Cancer Center who will speak on the psychosocial aspects of breast cancer; and Dr. John C. Kelleher of Panhandle Plastic Surgery who will discuss breast reconstruction.

To emphasize that women who have had mastectomies are still normal and attractive, a style show featuring fashions from Colberts will be modeled by mastectomees.

Reach to Recovery is a patient visitation program geared toward helping women deal with and recover from the experience of having a mastectomy. The program involves trained volunteers who themselves have had mastectomies.

The major impact of the program is to provide support for women who have undergone this operation, upon recommendation from their doctor.

One woman in 10 will develop breast cancer. The best weapon against breast cancer is early detection through a regular doctor's examination, self-breast examination and mammography.

In Hereford, women may go through a free self-examining breast clinic at the hospital. It is held from 1-6:30 p.m. the last Wednesday of each month. For an appointment, call 364-2141, extension 291.

Hacker recently initiated

Stefan Hacker, son of Joe and Evelyn Hacker of 119 E. 15th St., was recently initiated into the Texas Tech University Chapter of Phi Eta Sigma Fraternity, Freshman Honor Society.

The special ceremony was held in the sanctuary of St. John's United Methodist Church. Members are selected on the basis of scholarship, character and leadership.

Guest speaker at the initiation and banquet was Dean James G. Allen of Texas Tech.

Between the Covers

By DIANNE PIERSON
Director

Novels of adventure and excitement will be featured this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. Novels available are The White House Pantry Murder by Elliott Roosevelt and Destiny by Sally Beauman.

In The White House Pantry Murder, the indomitable First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt steps in to thwart a sinister wartime assassination plot aimed at destabilizing the Axis powers. Its Christmas 1941, but the ever-present Nazi threat makes this holiday season one of the bleakest in our nation's history. In the White House, President Roosevelt and the First Lady Eleanor prepare, not so much for the holiday, but for the arrival of England's Prime Minister Winston Churchill and his entourage, including Lord Beaverbrook, Lord Halifax, and Sir Alan Burton of Scotland Yard.

In anticipation of Churchill's visit, security measures have been dramatically increased. With anti-aircraft guns mounted on the White House roof and soldiers on alert twenty-four hours a day, the December air fairly crackles with tension. Despite all these efforts, an intruder somehow gains access to a most unlikely place—the walk-in-refrigerator located in the pantry. To Eleanor's shock, her maid discovers a man's well-chilled body during routine morning inspection of the kitchen. He is unidentified but Eleanor shrewdly suspects that his plans included not only a midnight raid on the fridge but the double murder of the President and Churchill.

In The White House Pantry Murder, Elliott Roosevelt features his mother as a redoubtable detective. He creates a highly charged atmosphere of international and domestic intrigue.

Also available this week is Destiny by Sally Beauman, which is a novel of hypnotic power. In Destiny you have two main characters who should never have met: Edouard and Helene. Edouard was born to privilege and power, but he has also know life's harshest lessons—loss, disillusionment, and betrayal. Now he is ruler of a financial empire, loved by his friends and feared by his rivals. He is also famous for his ease in attracting women and his ease in leaving them.

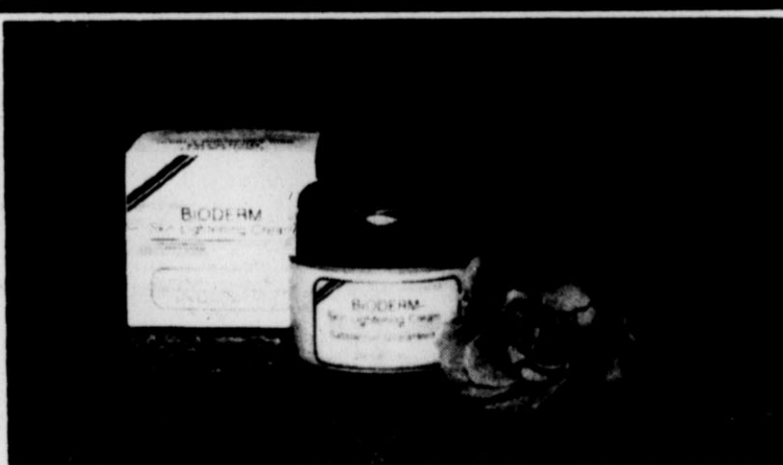

Helen Craig has grown up in rural Alabama, raised by a British war bride. Helene's illusions die in the violence of a hot July afternoon in 1959, and she forges a new dream: to be rich and free and in vulnerable, and some day to exact her revenge.

Helene and Edouard meet on a Paris street, and their love seems to them inevitable and their destiny. But what they cannot know is that the paths that brought them together started not in Paris, not in Alabama, but in London on a night ablaze with Nazi bombs...and that before them lie years of public glamour and private pain. Their story spans three decades. It is the extraordinary talent of Sally Beauman. She enfold readers in her spell and holds them there long after the last page is turned.

Other new books available this week are Hold On, Mr. President, by Sam Donaldson, Communion by Streiber and Rising Of The Moon by William Martin.

LIBRARY EVENTS: 10 a.m. - Thursday morning - pre-school public story hour. Come and join us for a delightful time of stories and films.

Music club elects officers

The Dawn Music Study Club met recently in the home of Mrs. H.H. Miller, hostess.

President Jeanie Galley presided during the business session.

New officers elected for the upcoming year include: Mrs. Alfred Smith, president; Mrs. Carl Wimberly, vice-president; Galley, secretary; Mrs. L.W. Tooley, treasurer; and Mrs. R.E. Curtis, reporter.

It was noted that the club had just completed their 40th year as a federated music club.

Miller reported on her journey to Norway via Frankfurt, Germany. She was met by a cousin at Copenhagen, toured that city, and then traveled through Sweden to Oslo, Norway. There she visited Frogner Park and its famous statues. Miller also enjoyed garden parties and family gatherings while there.

Highlight of Miller's trip was touring Kristiansand, where several textile mills are located. On the southern tip of Norway, she visited the old family home at Hoven, the home of seven generations of the family.

To close the meeting, members sang the hymn of the month accompanied by Mrs. Wimberly.

Others present included Mmes. H.V. McCabe, R.A. Frye, R.E. Curtis, Alfred Smith and W.T. Beavers.

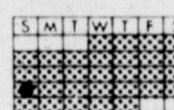

In Finland it was once considered a sign of piety to shoot arrows at trees.

Opening the day will be Jo Anne Arasim of the Panhandle Plains Museum at Canyon. She is the curator of textiles at the museum where she is active in research and designing exhibits for textiles there.

Her "Nothing New Under the Sun" presentation will overview fashions from 1850 to 1960 and how those fashions are re-introduced in the design of modern day styles.

At 10 a.m. Michele Harder will show "From Fields of Corn." Corn fields behind her country home sparked the idea for an artist medium to use corn husks and silks to create dolls and sculptures. Her exclusive designs are carried in shops in Dallas, Houston and Kansas. She studied art at Southwest Texas State University and taught school in Dallas before marriage brought her to West Texas.

Refreshments will be provided for a short break at 10:30 a.m.

Then at 10:45 will be "The Vegetable Platter." Mary Blinderman, Marketing Representative, Southwestern Public Service Company, will show how unusual fruits and vegetables can be prepared using electrical appliances. Diet and health conscious will enjoy learning the nutrition and serving suggestions. Mary has served as a marketing representative for 5 years with the Southwestern Public Service Company.

Participants will break for lunch on their own.

At 1:15 p.m. Regina Kester, of the Hereford YMCA, will show fitness tips in "Spring Warmup". Sports related hobbies of snow and water-skiing, biking, and exercise fitness have led the German-born woman to the speakers position with the YMCA as a 6-year YMCA board membership. She teaches classes at the Y and keeps current on fitness by attending workshops.

"From Rags to Wicker" is set for 1:45 p.m. with Karen Flood who will show who to make and use baskets. Her hobby developed into a freelance business for the mother of four. She sells her work at craft shows, area stores and by special order.

Fashion rage of "Creative Collars" will be presented by Sherry Harder, Oldham County Extension Agent. New pattern ideas, sewing hints and financial savings will be presented in the program. A home economist in teaching, private industry and extension work have influenced Mrs. Harder to design a program on fashion accessories on a budget.

Agents Deana Sagesur, Castro County Extension Agent and Beverly Harder, Deaf Smith County Extension Agent will be moderators for the program.

Deaf Smith County residents may make reservations by calling 364-3573. Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

MRS. VERNON LEE CARROLL
...nee Jan Leslie Pickens

Couple united in marriage in late afternoon ceremony

Jan Leslie Pickens became the bride of Vernon Lee Carroll during a candlelight wedding ceremony Saturday afternoon in First Baptist Church. Officiating for the couple was Dr. Ron Cook, church pastor.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Loyd Mannon of 2019 Plains and Buddy Pickens of Route 3. Parents of the bridegroom are Darleen Carroll of 130 Ave. E. and Steve Carroll of Amarillo.

The church altar was decorated by two matching brass candelabra, holding royal blue candles ringed with blue and mauve silk flowers, and one 15-branch candelabrum with royal blue tapers and silk flowers. Pews were marked by white bows accented with blue and mauve silk flowers and baby's breath.

Holly Middleton served a matron of honor and the groom's brother, Garry Parman, was best man.

Guests were escorted by Robert Pickens, the bride's brother, and Brad Sanders and Frank Lyons.

The bride's niece, Paige Pickens, daughter of Roger Pickens and Geni Pickens, was flower girl, and ring bearer was Andrew Carr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Carr.

Candles were lit by the bride's nephew, Tanner Murphey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earnie Murphey, and Johnna Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson.

"There Is Love" was vocalized by Holly Middleton accompanied by Mrs. Ken Walser, organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length designer's gown of chiffon and French alencon lace. It featured a keyhole neckline with pearls and sequins and the fitted lace bodice was accented at the waistline with a band of scalloped lace. The lace capped sleeves were overlaid with a chiffon capelet which gathered onto a lace yoke in the back. The flowing chiffon skirt drifted into a chapel-length train.

Her chiffon waltz-length veil of Bianchi was attached to a wreath headpiece of chiffon petals. She carried a cascading bouquet of white lilies, colonial open roses and royal blue rosebuds adorned with pearl garlands, stephanotis, baby's breath and rosebuds tied into ribbon streamers.

Her jewelry consisted of a heart-shaped gold and opal necklace given to her by the bridegroom.

The bride attendant wore a royal blue satin full-length gown fashioned with a low back and capped sleeves with bows. She carried a Victorian nosegay of mauve and royal blue rosebuds accented with baby's breath and narrow ribbon streamers.

Guests were invited to register by Shelly McCracken and Whitney Drake at the reception held in the church fellowship hall.

The bride's cake was served by Carla and Darla Alford and the groom's cake was served by Treiva Carroll. Kristi Parman ladled punch and Wendy Morrison poured coffee. The bride's aunt, Mrs. Carroll Newsom, assisted at the wedding and reception.

The three-tiered white wedding cake, made by Carol Odum, was decorated with royal blue and mauve flowers and topped by miniature bride and groom figurines.

The bride is a 1986 graduate of Hereford High School and is employed by Keeling Cattle Feeders.

The groom, a 1984 HHS graduate, is currently employed at Mooreman Manufacturing Co.

The groom was escorted to the altar by his parents.

Given in marriage by her brother, Joe H. Hernandez, the bride wore a designer gown of shimmering white organza. The gown featured an exquisite Queen Ann neckline bordered with designs of tiny seed pearls. The entire bodice was covered with lace floral appliques and seed pearls and flowed into a flattering natural waistline. Pearl buttons enhanced the back of the bodice while the sleeves were Elizabethan, adorned with lovely floral lace appliques. The full skirt gracefully flowed into a semi-cathedral-length train, and had matching floral lace appliques bordering the skirt. Delicate appliques of floral lace were scattered and covered the entire skirt.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white roses and rosebuds enhanced by pearl berry clusters, pearl leaves, and Daphne rose buds with love knots, pearl strands, and ivy leaves. It was fashioned for the bride by her sister-in-law, Grace Gamez.

To complete her ensemble, she wore a Chantilly picture hat with Venice lace covering the crown which was further enhanced with pearls and sequins. The attached veil was fingertip length.

The matron of honor wore a royal blue gown and bridesmaids wore Daphne rose gowns enhanced with a short ruffled train with a satin belt in Fant Anza trims. The bridesmaids each carried a rose colored iris set off with rose ribbons.

Presenting the bride and groom with a lasso were Teresa Munoz and SSgt. Gayle Gustafson; Bible, Grace Gamez and SSgt. Andy Bollinger; Arras, Valerie Miller and Sgt. Mike Holmes; and rosary, Virginia Cam-pos and Sgt. Timothy Pullen.

A reception followed at the N.C.O. Club at Sheppard AFB.

Ivy and palm trees surrounded the reception tables. White and blue table lace adorning the tables was pulled back with rose ties.

The Angelica white brocade four-tiered cake had two heart-shaped cakes adjacent to it. All three cakes were joined via staircases featuring replicas of the attendants.

For her traveling costume, the bride chose a yellow taffeta blouse with matching skirt, shoes, and handbag.

Out of town guests included residents of Austin, Hereford, San Antonio, Lubbock, Amarillo, Colorado Springs, Colo., Los Angeles, Calif., Dallas, Arlington, and Fort Worth.

The couple will make their home in Wichita Falls following a wedding trip to South Texas.

A graduate of Hirschi High School, the bride is self-employed at Kings and Queens.

Best in Best's!

For years, A.M. Best Co. has been recognized as the insurance industry's performance rating authority.

Recently, in review of the 25-year net cost for a $100,000 policy issued to a 35-year-old male, they substantiated what we've always known: no other insurance company's dividend performance measures up to ours.

It's that kind of performance that's given our policyowners the best overall protection and value per premium dollar in the

MONEY'S NO LONGER PATIENT

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — The investment climate in the United States will continue to be short-term oriented, according to C.J. Silas, the chief executive officer of Phillips Petroleum.

It is a climate which discourages investment in long-term domestic oil and gas projects, because our industry depends on "patient capital," says Silas. "Patient capital" is money investors are willing to leave in place long enough for long-term investments to pay off, he says.

Silas says this money is getting harder to find because this is a time in which the stock market values short-term performance.

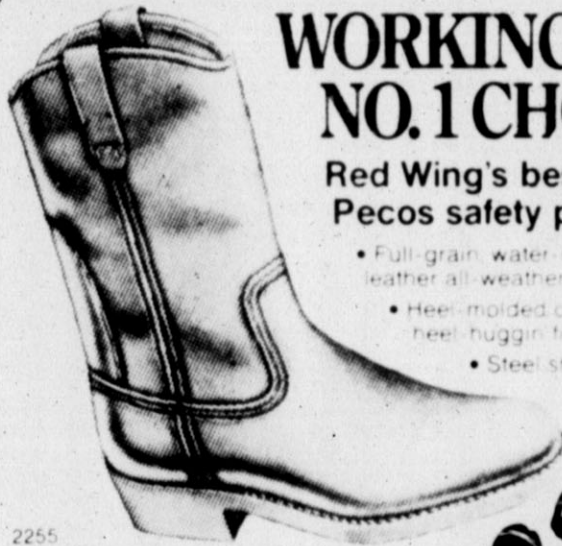

"The managers of institutional funds are under a lot of pressure to come up with immediate appreciation — measured quarter by quarter," he says.

DR. GOTT

Peter
Gott, M.D.

Thumb-sucking is a minor problem

DEAR DR. GOTT — My grand-daughter, 12, still sucks her thumb all the time. She does very well in school and participates in social activities. Does she have a psychological disorder? What can we do to stop this behavior?

DEAR READER — A 12-year-old who sucks her thumb is exhibiting a type of learned behavior related to stress, in short, a habit. Habits are difficult to break unless a person is motivated to do so. Your granddaughter will stop her thumb-sucking when she perceives that this activity is inappropriate. At that time, she will need guidance in learning more adaptive behavior; also, she will need support from you and her parents in coping with stress and anxiety.

In the meantime, mention your concerns to her, however, avoid harping on the subject — otherwise, you will simply alienate her and increase her level of tension. Your granddaughter's doctor may be able to help ease her through this difficult adjustment. Family members must make the effort not to come down too hard on her. Excessive criticism about this type of "minor" problem leads some young people to adopt more damaging ways to relieve anxiety, such as drinking and smoking.

A wise and experienced pediatrician once told me that he never knew a youngster who continued thumb-sucking after admission to Yale. However, a high-school classmate of mine, who was a varsity football hero, continued to suck his thumb until graduation. I lost track of him after that, but the mental picture of him sucking his thumb in his cap and gown stayed with me. I think he did all right.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Our daughter-in-law has tried wearing every type of watch there is battery, digital, wind-up, plastic and metal. She burns them out. Her grandfather can wear his on his right wrist, but burns out the ones on his left. What causes this?

DEAR READER — I haven't the faintest idea.

Easter Egg Hunt Perils

Health and clothing stains hardly seem to go together but goodies left by the Easter Bunny can produce some real perils.

Easter eggs safe to eat — Are hard-cooked eggs used for an Easter egg hunt safe to eat? According to Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutrition specialists, the answer is yes, if they are properly handled. First, cool hardcooked eggs in cold water immediately after cooking, and then refrigerate them so they cool all the way through. If any eggs crack while cooking, do not use them for the hunt since bacteria can easily get through the openings and contaminate the eggs. When you plan the hiding and hunting of Easter eggs, remember that they should not be out of the refrigerator for more than two hours.

The stains of chocolate goodies can be best treated by soaking the garment in cold water for 30 minutes. Then work detergent into the stain. Rinse and air dry. If stain remains sponge with a grease solvent and dry. Chocolate can be difficult to remove from some fibers so repeated measures may be necessary.

Grass stains may be removed by working a paste of detergent into the stain, rinsing and drying. If stain still remains use rubbing alcohol on spot. Care must be taken to test spot the alcohol on an inconspicuous area of the garment as it may cause color to fade.

Skinny knees may produce blood stains which can be treated by soaking the spot for 30 minutes in cool water; rub detergent into spot; rinse and dry. If stain remains apply a few drops of ammonia and repeat detergent treatment. Again test spot first.

If strong stains occur a washable garment may be soaked in the below solution. Be aware that this works a bleach solution and only white or light pastels should be soaked. This formula should be used as a last resort but really does a good job.

STAIN REMOVER RECIPE FOR CLOTHES STAINS

(Particularly good for removing food or stains from baby clothes and linens. Caution: (Be sure to check on an inconspicuous spot before using on entire garment.)

1/4 cup liquid bleach
1 Cup dishwasher detergent
2 gallon of water (preferable hot)

Soak garment in solution for 30 minutes or longer for stubborn stain.

Additional information is available at the County Extension Office by asking for booklet L-1202 Stain Removal Chart.

Problems with milk digestion may be lactose intolerance

Milk often is considered the perfect food, providing calcium, protein, and vitamins D and B12 for strong bodies and good health. But according to the Texas Medical Association, most blacks, Orientals, and American Indians and some whites of Mediterranean ancestry have difficulty digesting cow's milk.

When lactase deficient people drink milk or eat milk products, undigested lactose travels to the large intestine where bacteria transform it into products that can cause cramps, gas, and diarrhea. These symptoms usually occur 30 to 90 minutes after consuming milk or products containing milk.

Lactose intolerance should not be confused with milk allergy. People who are allergic to milk usually cannot tolerate milk proteins and develop symptoms such as hay fever, hives, or asthma after drinking milk.

Although most infants are born with large quantities of lactase, many inherit or develop lactose intolerance later in life. For those who inherit the intolerance, the problem may develop at any age, but most commonly appears between the ages of three and six. Some people, however, do not develop lactose intolerance until much later in life because the body's production of lactase tends to slow down with age and in some cases stops altogether.

If you are our child experiences intestinal discomfort associated with drinking milk, consult your physician. He or she can check for lactase deficiency and can recommend milk substitutes if needed.

Though the symptoms of lactose intolerance can be distressing, they usually are not life-threatening. As long as care is taken to obtain the nutrients found in milk from another source, most lactose intolerant people can lead normal, healthy lives.
