Hart quits on challenge to change selection process

DENVER (AP) — Gary Hart says his being forced out of the presidential campaign because of a storm about his personal life reflects serious flaws in the way the nation chooses its leaders.

"We're all going to have to seriously question the system for selecting our national leaders that reduces the press of this nation to hunters and presidential candidates to being hunted," Hart said Friday in announcing his decision to end his quest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The departure of the front-runner left a crowd of candidates who had been distant followers to fight for the 1988 Democratic nomination.

"The front-runner in this race is a guy called undecided, and by a very large margin," said Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, who is among those seeking the nomination.

Hart decried a process "that has reporters in bushes, false and inaccurate stories printed, photographers peeking in our windows, swarms of helicopters hovering over our roof."

The Miami Herald, which published a story Sunday that said Hart spent the night of May 1 with a part-time actress, has insisted its reporters did not peek in windows or hide in bushes. But Hart's anger at the media was fanned Friday when swarms of reporters and photographers besieged his home at Troublesome Gulch in the Rocky Mountain foothills.

"I refuse to submit my family and my friends and innocent people and myself to further rumors and gossip. It's simply an intolerable situation," Hart declared.

He said he wanted the "talented young people" who had supported him "to insist that this system be changed. Too much of it is just a mockery and if it continues to

Officers issue 14 citations, investigate two accidents

Hereford Police Department officers responded to a traffic accident at the intersection of Park Ave. and Ave. B at 5:38 p.m. Friday. Melvina Anderson was treated for neck injuries at Deaf Smith General Hospital as a result of the incident.

Officers issued 14 citations on Friday and responded to one accident in which no injuries were reported.

One assault by threat was reported in the 600 block of Ave. G however no charges were filed.

A 64 year-old male was arrested on charges of DWI, no driver's license and no proof of liability insurance. A 30 year-old male was arrested for public intoxication and a 17 year-old female was arrested in the city hall for theft and failure to pay a fine. Offenses reported included a harassment complaint involving juveniles in the 600 block of Ave. G, suspicious activity in which two bicycles and a case of beer were taken into custody in the alley between Star and Ave. K in the 100 block.

Theft of a rail drill was reported by the Santa Fe Depot, damaged screens and windows were reported in the 600 block of Irving and numerous items were reported missing as the result of a burglary in the 500 block of Ave. H.

Plains Motel reported damages to a room and officers investigated theft of items from a vehicle parked in the 300 block of Ave. K.

New concept offered here with opening of Adult Day Care Center

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

If a woman is now 50 years-old, her life expectancy is estimated to be 30 years; a man's life expectancy averages six to eight years less than a woman's. With increased life expectancy and a growing populace, American's are facing new challenges in family lifestyles.

Joyce Lyons, administrator of King's Manor Methodist Home, Inc., comments: "In the past the wife traditionally stayed in the home to provide care for elderly parents. The economy now requires the wife who has historically taken care of aging parents to work outside of the home."

As a result of these changing values, elderly parents who are not in need of nursing care—and yet who require supervision concerning medication, diet and safety—often have no place to go.

Dr. Mary Birdsong serves as medical advisor to the King's Manor facility. She explains: "With people living longer and in better health it is not a matter of needing nursing care but of supervising meals, making sure medicines are taken properly and still providing the benefits of family life."

Families who are taking care of aging parents are placed under tremendous pressures in scheduling work and family activities around the needs of the elderly and often, even though they love their parents and want to provide a home for them, the strain becomes too much.

It is with these problems in mind that Lyons and Birdsong are introducing a concept which is new for Hereford—an Adult Day Care Center will be opening its doors at the King's Manor-Westgate facility.

"The thought behind adult day care is to have a place grandmother or whoever can go while family members take care of personal errands, take time off or go to work," Birdsong explains.

Lyons says the service has been offered in metropolitan areas primarily and was originally designed for working couples who had adult family members living with them who were unable to take care of themselves but did not need nursing care.

The adult day care center will begin taking applications immediately for 15 openings. Applicants must have a physician's approval for participation in the program.

The center will provide care from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. and a certified nurse's aid will be with the clients at all times. A Licensed Vocational Nurse will administer prescription medicines as needed and a dietician will prepare menu plans for three meals and two snacks each day.

Respite or overnight care will be available on request.

Beds are available for resting but focus of the program is on a well appointed, comfortably furnished room which has been newly decorated for the clients.

"We will also encourage them to participate in the many activities we have scheduled," says Lyons. Parties, bingo games, reality orientation classes, field trips and exercise classes are just a few of the ways adults in the day care center can fill the hours.

Cost for the program is $25 a day with hourly rates available for those who want to leave a parent while they shop or run errands. Reservations must be made two hours in advance. For more information on the Adult Day Care Program call 364-0661.

Contra leader gave money for hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a new wrinkle to the Iran-Contra affair, a lawmaker on the congressional investigating committees says a top Nicaraguan Contra leader contributed money to help ransom U.S. hostages in Lebanon.

Prior to the disclosure Friday by Sen. William S. Cohen, R-Maine, testimony had indicated money moving only in the other direction: from Iran to Swiss bank accounts, to pay for U.S. arms, and from there to the Contras.

U.S. participants in the arms sales hoped they would lead to release of U.S. hostages, and some of the proceeds were diverted to the Contras.

But during Friday's Iran-Contra hearing, panel member Cohen revealed that a request to aid the hostages was made of Adolfo Calero, head of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, the largest Contra fighting group.

The disclosure came as the committees ended four days of questioning of retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord, a key player in the Iran arms sales and Contra funding. Hearings are to resume Monday with former National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane in the witness seat.

Cohen did not say who made the request of Calero, but he told a reporter it was his understanding that money was paid by the Contra leader through fired National Security Council aide Oliver North.

He did not say how much was involved or who made the request, but The New York Times today quoted Calero as saying he gave North $50,000 in traveler's checks in mid-1985 to finance a private effort to free the hostages.

Calero said the money was taken from the Contras' bank accounts after North called him, the Times reported.

"I felt very good to be asked to contribute to something like that," Calero told the Times. "It was a humanitarian effort to liberate people. We felt it was congruent with our effort."

While Cohen was making his disclosure on the fourth day of the hearings, there was a flurry of secret activity involving North at the nearby federal courthouse — where Independent Counsel Lawrence E. Walsh is conducting a grand jury investigation into the scandal.

North was present behind closed doors for some of the proceedings. None of the attorneys involved would comment on the actions that began with a closed hearing before Chief U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. and then moved to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, where both sides filed sealed papers.

Friday night, the appeals court filed two orders in the case, but they too were sealed, their contents undisclosed.

North had been named in court as a fellow conspirator by fund-raiser

Polish jet crash kills 180

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A Polish jetliner crashed shortly after takeoff from Okecie Airport in Warsaw today, killing more than 180 people aboard, officials said.

An air traffic controller, contacted by telephone, said the LOT Polish Airlines plane was bound for New York and crashed about four miles from Warsaw. An officer on duty at Warsaw police headquarters said 182 people were killed in the crash, including the entire crew.

State radio said 183 people died. It was the worst commercial air accident in Poland since World War II.

The controller, who refused to give his name, said the plane, a Soviet-built Ilyushin-62, was full. The aircraft is a four-engine turbojet plane and is the largest in operation in the LOT commercial fleet.

Polish aviation statistics say the IL-62 has a capacity of 180 people.

New Texas speed limit goes into effect

By The Associated Press

Higher, 65 mile-per-hour speed limits went into effect Saturday on interstate highways in Texas, except for roadway inside cities of 50,000 people or more.

Drivers may legally drive over 55 mph for the first time since Texas' maximum speed limit was lowered in 1974 from 70 mph.

State officials are warning drivers that the new speed limit should be considered the exception, not the rule.

The 65 mph speed limit is permitted only on rural interstate highways.

Also, only cars, light trucks, buses and motorcycles will be able to drive 65 mph at all times in the designated areas. Trucks with trailers can travel 60 during the day and 55 at night; and other vehicles, such as recreational vehicles, will be limited to 50 at all times.

"We're going to have problems," Arlington Police Sgt. Jerry Carroll said. "What's going to happen is people are going to go out with the mind set that the speed limit is 65 on all the interstates, and they're going to start flying at 65."

Under legislation signed into law Wednesday by Gov. Bill Clements, the speed limit will increase to 65 on stretches of interstate highway between cities of more than 50,000 residents.

School Board to meet

The Hereford School Board has scheduled two meetings for Tuesday—a special meeting at 5 p.m. to receive input from the public on the school's dress code, and a regular meeting beginning at 6 p.m. which has 26 agenda items for discussion or action.

The hearing on the dress code resulted from a recent incident in which girls were sent home to change clothes because their "jams" were too short. School trustees Kathy Moore, Jo Garcia and Shirley Wilson were appointed by board president John Fuston to study the dress code.

The regular meeting includes consideration of the 1987-88 school calendar, California Achievement Test results, discussion on employing an attorney on retainer, and the usual professional organization reports, personnel reports and ratification of bills.

County to meet Monday

Deaf Smith County Commissioner's Court will convene Monday at 10 a.m. in the county courthouse.

After taking care of routine business matters commissioners will face a short agenda which includes a WDIC report, appropriation of funds for restoring LaPlata Cemetery, purchase of supplies for the county clerk's office, relocation of various offices in the courthouse and salary for the secretary in the Social Services office.

A budget workshop is slated to follow the meeting.

Weather

Sunday's outlook is fair with a low in the lower 50s, a high in the upper 60s with wind south to southwest 5 to 15 mph.

Saturday's high, 77 and low, 44, courtesy KPAN radio station.

Dowell Honored Friday

Bartley Dowell was honored at a retirement reception at Brown, Graham & Co. offices Friday afternoon. He retired after 32 years with the accounting firm. Dowell is shown at the reception table with his wife, Jeane. Dowell served six years as mayor of Hereford and was a city commissioner for four years. He has been active in the Kiwanis Club, a past director of the YMCA, former president of Big Brothers-Big Sisters, and was on the administrative board of First United Methodist Church.

Anti-apartheid groups to continue struggle

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Anti-apartheid forces vowed to continue their struggle after President P.W. Botha said this week's election gave the government a mandate to crack down on non-parliamentary opposition. "Sooner or later whites will have to realize that the oppressed majority and their organizations ... cannot be wished away," said Murphy Morobe, publicity secretary for the United Democratic Front, the nation's biggest anti-apartheid coalition.

ing the anti-apartheid Progressive Federal Party.

By law and custom, apartheid establishes a racially segregated society in which the 24 million blacks have no vote in national affairs. The 5 million whites control the economy and maintain separate districts, schools and health services.

Botha said Thursday night the government received a clear mandate to make security its first priority.

"There is a tendency in South Africa to organize extraparliamentary organizations to bring about change in South Africa," he said. "The country must know I am determined to see that the government takes a very strong stand on extraparliamentary actions of this nature as well as the financing of organizations from outside our country."

Business leaders urged Botha to act quickly on his campaign statements that he wanted a mandate to negotiate reform with black leaders.

In Wednesday's elections for the white chamber of Parliament, Botha's National Party increased its already hefty majority. The Conservative Party, which opposes even modest concessions to blacks, made big gains and became the formal parliamentary opposition, supplanting the anti-apartheid Progressive Federal Party.

Capitol Report

By REP. JOHN SMITHEE

The seventieth legislative Session has entered its final month and the foremost battle is still the budget and higher taxes. First, all the numbers should be put into perspective. The Texas budget experienced vast increases in the 1970's and early 1980's, but since 1985 has levelled off. Our budget is figured on a biennium basis, or two years at a time.

In fiscal 1986-87, our budget was $37.1 billion, which included two recent increases in the sales tax and gas tax as well as increased fees. Due to a drop-off in energy revenue and sales revenue, money available for the 1988-89 budget is substantially less.

Gov. Clements has proposed making the "temporary" sales tax and gas tax permanent, but not adding any other new taxes, and spending approximately $36.9 billion.

The Senate recently adopted a $39.9 billion budget. Such a budget would require not only the extension of the "temporary" 1.25 cents sales tax and 5 cents gas tax, but another $3.0 billion of new revenue. Our options for raising new revenue are limited. One option would be a 2.25 cents increase in the sales tax. But, that would bring the sales tax to between 8 1/2 cents and 9 1/2 cents, depending on where in Texas you live. Other options the Senate has discussed include the so-called "broadening" of the sales tax and a state income tax.

I have consistently favored the Governor's $36.9 billion bottom line. To me, a state income tax is unspeakable, and any significant tax increases would devastate our economy, which is now in the process of trying to recover from its previous devastation.

However, I would appreciate your views and opinions on what should be done on the budget. Should we hold the line on higher spending? If we cut, what areas should be cut? If you favor higher taxes, what taxes should be raised? Call or write Representative John Smithee, P.O. Box 2910, Austin, Texas 78760, (512)-463-0702.

Rivalry has intensity of a 'Longhorn-Aggie feud'

14 places in Texas want super collider

AUSTIN (AP) — A 52-mile underground tunnel that scientists say could help unlock secrets of the universe is this year's instant economic boom, and 14 places in Texas are after it.

The $6 billion "super collider" atom smasher, promising thousands of jobs and national recognition, follows the Navy's Homeport project, Saturn auto plant and MCC computer research firm as the center of fierce competition among several states.

The super collider will be used in high-energy physics research to separate atomic particles to see what they are made of. Scientists say that, for a fraction of a second, the energy produced as two streams of protons smash head-on at near-light speed could be a billion times greater than in the heart of the Sun.

Texas has launched an aggressive effort to become home to the massive project that is expected to create 4,500 construction jobs and up to 3,000 permanent jobs.

But before the competition reaches the national level, a nominee or two must be picked from the Texas areas engaged in a rivalry nearing the intensity of a Longhorn-Aggie feud.

"They all believe they have quality sites, and I believe that is true," said Edward Bingler, executive director of the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission, which is coordinating the Texas effort. "Texas is very fortunate ... that we have a number of sites that are very high-quality."

The competition included arguments in the Legislature over how many places the commission should nominate to the U.S. Department of Energy by Aug. 3.

In eight-part proposals submitted to the commission, each area outlined its advantages for luring the super collider.

"The decline in the oil and gas industry has left an abundance of industrial construction, human and housing resources just waiting for a project of this magnitude," said G. Thane Atkins, project manager of the Garden City Superconducting Super Collider Commission.

The Garden City group includes the oil-dependent Permian Basin cities of Big Spring, Midland, Odessa and San Angelo, as well as Ector, Midland, Howard and Tom Green counties.

The famous King Ranch, which in the past profited from cattle drives and oil wells, is at the center of the South Texas Superconducting Super Collider Task Force proposal.

"A major feature of the South Texas proposal includes an offer by the King Ranch and the Chapman Ranch to work toward an agreement to provide the necessary land to the government at no cost," the task force wrote.

The Department of Energy is asking that 15,830 acres be provided at no cost to the federal government.

That's fine with the Trans Pecos Superconducting Super Collider Commission, which said it can offer "land — land from horizon to horizon and the cooperative spirit to accomplish the goal."

The group adds, "Since the area's economy is based on oil and gas extraction and agriculture, a labor force at competitive wages is available for construction activity."

Super collider seekers in the South Plains say the area's labor force and its proximity to higher education institutions make it a suitable site.

"The work ethic of the area people has grown out of an agricultural history and heritage and has been expanded and strengthened by education and industrial experience," the Texas South Plains consortium said.

The South Plains group would build the super collider in northeast Hockley County. But Panhandle Superconducting Super Collider Inc. says the project should be placed further north in the Palo Duro Basin.

To sweeten its proposal, the Panhandle group promises to triple funding to a foundation formed to induce new industry to move to the area.

"Businesses and new members of the foundation have agreed to ... a pledge of $3 million to the SSC project as an incentive for choosing the Amarillo site."

In a two-volume proposal, the Houston-Beaumont group said the Department of Energy could depend on an adequate work force, because the South Texas Nuclear Project power plant is scheduled to begin operating soon.

"The project's work force will be coming free prior to the planned start of the construction of the SSC facility," the group said. It selected a site between Beaumont and Houston and secured a number of housing and recreational benefits for super collider workers from the Woodlands Corp.

from San Antonio on Interstate 10 can start driving 65 as soon as they leave the city limits and won't have to slow down until they reach El Paso, if they had enough gasoline to make the 571-mile trip in one stretch.

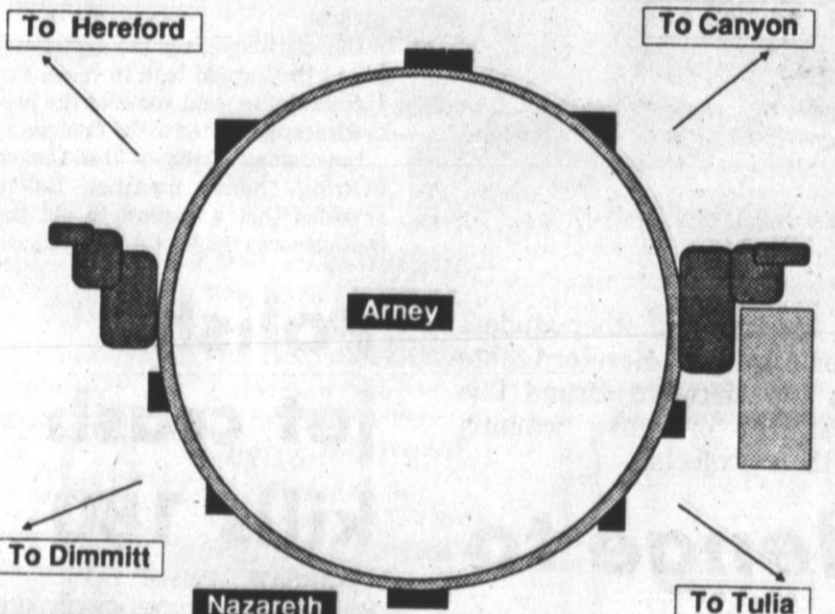

Travelers on Interstate 45 can drive 65 mph from the moment they leave the Dallas city limits until they reach the Houston city limits. Once leaving Fort Worth on Interstate 30, a driver could drive 65 mph all the way to Abilene.

Department of Public Safety Sgt. Wendell Deaton said officers will have little reason on those who claim confusion about the new speed limit.

"People are going to have to keep track of where they are," Deaton said.

"You're going to have some people going 55, others going 65. People are really going to have to be alert and look out for the other driver."

Officials said even though the new speed limit law went into effect at 12:01 a.m. Saturday, drivers would have to wait until the posting of new signs. The Texas Highway Department said workmen would be putting up 65 mph signs beginning about 7 a.m. Saturday.

destroy people's integrity and honor, then that system will eventually destroy itself.

"Politics in this country — take it from me — is on the verge of becoming another form of athletic competition or sporting match," he said.

"If you're going to spend all of your time talking about yourself, and you're not particularly good about that anyway, then you cannot maintain that link with the voters that lets you listen to their concerns and offer your ideas and proposals."

Democratic National Chairman Paul G. Kirk Jr. said in Boston that Hart made the right decision for the party, and that the system of running for president will undergo a reassessment by the public, press and candidates.

Hart's 1988 presidential campaign ended with a small surplus, but still has to pay off a $1.3 million debt remaining from 1984, campaign director Bill Dixon said. Hart also may request federal matching funds, campaign counsel Jack Quinn said, but it is not certain his short-lived effort qualifies.

The campaign, which formally opened April 13, began to fall apart Sunday when the Herald reported he had spent much of last weekend with Donna Rice, a 29-year-old Miami woman, at his Washington townhouse.

Hart, 50, has maintained that his relationship with Rice was innocent and that he had done nothing morally wrong. He insisted that his marriage of 28 years was stronger because he and his wife, Lee, had survived two separations.

But the reports fanned rumors that Hart is a womanizer, rumors that have dogged him throughout the campaign. And in a New Hampshire news conference on Wednesday, Hart refused to categorically deny whether he had ever committed adultery.

The Washington Post reported Friday that Hart made his decision to withdraw after the paper presented his staff with "documented evidence of a recent liaison between Hart and a Washington woman with whom he had had a long-term relationship."

Pioneer Day set for May 23

Activities for the 64th Annual Pioneer Day were discussed during the recent executive meeting held at K-Bob's Steak House with president Inez Witherspoon presiding.

Pioneer Day is scheduled for May 23 at the Bull Barn. Anyone who has lived in the area for at least 30 years is especially invited. Classes of 1937, 1942, and 1947 will hold reunions.

Radio Station KPAN will sponsor the nomination and selection of the Pioneer of the Year. Awards will be presented to the oldest woman, oldest man, and for the pioneer who traveled the greatest distance. Awards will not be given to the same person twice.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. with a fee of $3 and the business sesson will be called to order at 11:30 a.m. Those attending are asked to bring a covered dish. Meat, drinks, and bread will be furnished.

Officers assisting Witherspoon include: Jerry Jackson, vice-president; Sona Schulz, secretary-treasurer; and Doris Bryant, reporter. Ursalee Jacobsen will be in charge of registration and the Camp Fire Girls will help serve the food.

Emerick, Fry to attend Girls State

Members of the Hereford Unit NO. 192 of the American Legion Auxiliary are sponsoring two girls to attend Texas Bluebonnet Girls State slated in June.

Kim Emerick and Carla Fry will leave Amarillo June 16 to attend the 10-day session to be held in the Texas Lutheran College in Seguin, Texas. They will return to Amarillo June 26. Emerick is the daughter of Sylvia Emerick and David Emerick and Fry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Fry.

Girls State is a practical application of Americanism and good citizenship. The entire program is a non-partisan, non-political attempt to teach and inculcate the youth of America, a love of God and country.

Only one junior student is selected from each high school until all schools have had a chance to participate in the program. The girls are chosen from the junior class. Qualifications include leadership, character and honesty, scholarship, co-operativeness and community participation and service.

Unusual fruits, vegetables observed by extension club

The North Hereford Extension Club met recently in the home of Bell Reid.

The opening exercise was read by Naomi Brisendine on "The Ten Commandments of Human Relations."

Roll call was answered by announcing "the most unusual fruit or vegetable I've ever eaten."

Peg Hoff read an article from an Ann Landers column on "going to church."

President Edith Higgins presided. County extension agent Beverly Harder gave the program on unusual fruits and vegetables. Leeks, artichokes, snow peas, Chinese cabbage, plantains and spaghetti squash were among those featured.

She noted that a leek doesn't taste like an onion; it is very low in sodium, high in iron, Vitamin C and potassium. A kiwi fruit is very high in Vitamin C while a tomatilla is a green tomato in a green husk.

The next meeting will be May 12 in the Reddy Room with "Eating Light and Healthy" discussed. Meetings will resume in September following a summer respite.

Members present were Martha Lueb, Higgins, Brisendine, Marcella Hoffman, Hoff, and Reid.

Red Cross Update

The Uniformed Volunteers will meet Thursday, May 21 at the Red Cross office.

The volunteers will be making bed covers for the disaster closet. Anyone interested is invited to attend this all-day work session. Volunteers may work any time during the day that is convenient for the volunteer. Those staying through the lunch hour are asked to bring a sack lunch.

Volunteers are needed for the Water Safety Program. Water Safety Aides and office help are needed. Please call the Red Cross office if you can help this summer.

The Territorial meeting will be held Thursday, May 28 in Amarillo and is open to all volunteers. Topics discussed will be CPR, First Aid and other safety issues. Call the Red Cross office to register for this meeting.

May is National High Blood Pressure month. Health agencies are urging Americans to take an active interest in their own health and learn about Blood Pressure.

The Continental Divide is a watershed created by the mountains and table lands of the Rocky Mountains, from which the drainage is easterly or westerly. The easterly flowing waters reach the Atlantic Ocean through the Gulf of New Mexico, and the westerly flowing waters reach the Pacific Ocean through the Columbia River or the Colorado River.

Judge-tendent

Friend, it's not the Communists, the Arabs, pollution, radiation, or the ozone that's gonna do us under—it's the judges in this country. We've got one judge running the prisons of Texas. We've got another judge forcing the state to provide free education to illegal aliens. We've got another judge calling the shots on mental health services. Now we've got District Judge Harley Clark ruling against public school financing in Texas.

Judge Clark ruled Wednesday that the state's system of financing public schools is unconstitutional and must be set aside.

The Austin judge's ruling climaxes a lengthy suit brought by a group of property-poor school districts that the state's formula of distribution from the permanent school fund discriminates against students in districts with a low level of wealth per student.

The poorer school districts want the state to make like Robin Hood and take from the wealthier school districts and give to the poorer school districts.

The state currently distributes about $5 billion a year to support public schools with another $5 billion coming from local funds.

The poor school districts had proposed in the 2½ month trial in Austin that the state take away $600 million from Andrews and other wealthy school districts and give it to the poor school district.

Wonder whatever happened to the promise that legislators were supposed to pass the laws, the executive branch administrate the laws, and the judges were supposed to judge?

There's no question but what some school districts have more money to spend per pupil than others. But the permanent school fund was set up to benefit all Texas students—and the earnings from that fund are distributed on a formula basis that is based on the number of students in a district. It was not set up to be the great equalizer of the human race.

True education and money do not necessarily go hand in hand. A lot of education occurs outside the classroom.

If Judge Clark believes that education varies from school district to school district, he's absolutely right.

An Andrews student taking Texas history is discriminated against. He is not exposed, as are many of the students in the poorer districts around San Antonio, to almost daily sights of the Alamo, or others in the San Jacinto battleground.

If each school district is to be absolutely equal, then West Texans should file suit to bring a piece of the Alamo out here.

And students in the Austin area are exposed to Barton Springs, the Colorado River—we should demand our share.

And to make sure our school district is equal to that of Corpus Christi, the judge ought to order that the state somehow provide our students with an equal share of beaches, of ocean surf, of marine life.

And our students are discriminated against in other ways. We have no professional football team, basketball team, baseball team or hockey arean that students in larger towns can visit with a short bus ride.

And while the judge is imposing his orders on the state, he might as well provide the Andrews school district with tall pine trees, cypress-lined lakes, running streams, live-oak trees, a four-year university, a zoo, museum, and a few coons and chiggers.

As long as the judge is making like God on a golden throne, he might as well go whole hog.

The judge also believes that the boundaries of school districts are wrong. He thinks that the state ought to have only six school districts in all in order to equalize the tax base.

We can tell the judge what we think, too. We agree that some new boundaries ought to be drawn.

The Permian Basin ought to redraw the state lines to seal off the rest of the state—and in our state, outlaw judges in general and federal judges in particular.

At least sanity and common sense could prevail in the state of the Permian Basin.

-The Andrews County News

Too many school gaps

Texas has no choice but to appeal a state district court decision which found that the method the state uses to fund public schools is unconstitutional.

The problem, in a nutshell, is that children in school districts with little taxable property do not have the same chance at a good basic education as children who live in districts with extensive tax rolls. The state constitution guarantees equal educational opportunities to all.

Judge Harley Clark of Austin, who ruled against the state in a suit brought by the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund, did not recommend how to eliminate the funding differences....

The timing for this particular court decision could not have been worse, but we should have seen it coming a long time ago. Texas has done a lot to improve educational opportunities in recent years, but we have not done enough.

Wild west days not gone

Think the Wild West days are long gone?

Think again, pilgrim: The Texas Legislature is giving serious consideration to a piece of legislation which would allow Texans to carry handguns, concealed or out in plain sight — and Gov. Bill Clements is now backing away from an earlier threat to veto the bill.

It all gets back to a central point: Handguns are good for one thing and one thing only — killing people. Make them more readily accessible, make it possible for yahoos to carry them freely about, and you're going to have a lot more people killed. The Legislature must reject this steaming mess of Rambo-esque fantasizing out of hand.

Corpus Christi Times

Tilting at windmills

Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, has to realize that Congress isn't going to adopt a tax on imported oil. If Congress did pass such a bill, President Reagan would veto it.

But that doesn't mean there aren't some worthwhile ideas in the import tax bill Barton has introduced.

Barton proposes to use the $12 billion brought in by the tax he advocates to reduce the federal deficit.

Two other Texans, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and Rep. Mike Andrews, D-Houston, also have introduced oil import fee bills.

If it takes a few Texas Don Quixotes to tilt at the windmills of congressional and administration disinterest in that situation, so be it.

This time, joke's on Congress

By Richard L. Leshner, President

WASHINGTON — "When Congress makes a law," Will Rogers said, "it's a joke, and when Congress makes a joke, it's a law."

We all have seen Congress impose jokes on the American people from time to time, though the sense of humor displayed by our elected representatives is not always universally appreciated. In any event, this time the joke is on Congress and it is our turn to laugh.

You see, every time Congress passes one of those ground-breaking laws it is so proud of, such as the Equal Pay Act, the Pregnancy Discrimination Act or the Occupational Safety and Health Act, it always excludes itself from coverage. Thus, while business struggles to fill out all the paperwork required to assure compliance with labor laws or spends billions to comply with job safety and health regulations, Congress goes on its merry way doing as it pleases.

But not this time. Last year, when Congress enacted the Immigration Reform Act, it made an itchy-bitsy mistake. It forgot to exempt itself. This time, when employers around the country find themselves knee-deep in confusing regulations and paperwork requirements they will have some company.

This could turn out to be a most educational and beneficial experience for our leaders. Let them try to check the credentials of every new employee. Let them try to verify whether a job applicant's credentials are valid and not forged. Let them try to decipher the confusing regulations put out by the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Let them fork over $1,000 every time they forget to fill out a form, dot every "i," or cross every "t." And let them be subject to anti-discrimination charges if they over-comply with this new law.

I would love to be in one of the Capitol dining rooms the day an INS inspector shows up demanding to see everyone's green card. Some of our most illustrious public servants could find themselves trampled by waiters and busboys fleeing to the four winds. And when our senators and representatives discover that they too may be subject to civil and criminal penalties for hiring undocumented aliens, guess who may join the stampede?

Oh, there will be weeping, wailing and gnashing of the teeth on Capitol Hill. But be not dismayed, ladies and gentlemen of the House and Senate. As you have been telling us for years, this is the price of progress. The law is the law and applies to everyone. You know this a good, solid, well thought out piece of legislation. After all, you wrote it. If it causes you a bit of inconvenience, well, that is the price we must all pay for an orderly and just society.

Letters to the editor

Dear editor:

Yesterday I was in the Hereford State Bank, and to my surprise saw some of the most beautiful furniture I have ever seen.

The really excellent work of the Hereford High School woodworking class was simply amazing—frankly I could hardly believe that these works of art were made by students. The instructor must be so proud of all the blue ribbons and medals of excellence these young people have won, and the talent shown. I would venture to say the instructor must be the "best available" himself!

May I suggest to the people of Hereford that they drop by the Bank to see just what these young people have done and take time to view each individual piece, for the longer you look the more you realize the talent and hard work and time these students have spent.

Mysincere congratulations to them all.

The Penultimate Word

FEELING SORT OF ISOLATED

There is a lot of excitement around here about a thing called the Superconducting Supercollider. I don't have any idea what the thing is. It sounds like a nickname for William "The Refrigerator" Perry of the Chicago Bears.

I understand it is some kind of scientific gizmo that runs atoms into each other in a fifty mile tube. I am not all that sure I want to be around when the things hit, but, as yet, no one has said much about what happens when the collision takes place. Folks seem to think it is safe.

One thing is for sure, every area of Texas is wanting the project to be built in their community. Amarillo has spent a bunch of money to present their case for the Panhandle being the site. Folks in my town are interested in having it come here.

Now I do not want to pour cold water on our dreams, but let's be realistic about our chances. If the thing is good, and if it comes to Texas, there are two chances for the Panhandle to get it—slim and none. Those people in Austin don't even know the Panhandle is part of Texas. They think we are just the lap land that serves as a buffer to keep Oklahoma at a safe distance from Texas. We do not have the votes, and so we do not exist.

I have suggested in this column on various occasions that we should secede from the state and start our own country. I get the feeling that if we ever did so no one in Austin would notice, unless we declared war. It would take six months for our own Congressmen and Senator to find out that we were gone.

Recently a city in the Panhandle tried to become the site for a new prison, of all things. You would think they would welcome any city that wanted a prison. Austin said we were too isolated for a prison. Too isolated? My stars, how isolated must one be to be too isolated for a prison? Do prisons need to be in downtown Dallas? The prison we now have isn't exactly on the beaten path.

You have to have a great deal of time and a good ability to read a map to find Huntsville, Texas. Huntsville has one thing in its favor. It is somewhat in the vicinity of Houston, and that is near the votes. If they won't give us a prison, what chance is there that they would give us a thing as big as a Supercollider?

What we should do is withhold all of our tax money for a year or two. If they complain, we could tell them we are so isolated that it just takes a lot of time for the money to get to them. Dog sleds travel slow. Then we could tell them if we had the Supercollider, maybe we could get an airplane to get the money there a little faster.

No Collider, slow money. It won't work, of course, but what we are doing now ain't working either. Well, it's a thought!

Every man can use possum hound

By JOE BROWN
Wichita Falls Times

Depression had somehow taken over my body, my thinking.

Even my dreams weren't as happy or as enjoyable as they once were. Old age, obesity, smoker's cough and bloodshot eyes all took their toll.

But the greatest blow to my manhood came on a recent Saturday. I spent Friday night at the farm with my mixed-breed dog. You've got to understand how much I care for this dog. She doesn't hit a lick of work that could put food on the table or a dollar in my pocket, but she works 24 hours a day wagging her tail, jumping on me, licking my hands and indicating how close we are as friends.

When I sock down at the farm I leave the screen door cracked so she can slip out at will and bark at the hundreds of predators that she thinks she hears coming into the yard.

But in moments she'll crawl back onto the bed and settle down by my feet.

She's half Lab and her days out there are spent chasing all birds, from quail to field larks. Her lungs must be like a bellows in a blacksmith shop. She stops only long enough to choke down water, gasp and pant for a few moments. Then she's gone again like a shot.

But that Saturday was my greatest day. I was laying a water line back to a barn and this great hunting dog began howling and barking frantically at the base of a tree. Realization of this occasion rushed over me... surely she had treed a squirrel.

Dear readers, do you know the value of a good squirrel dog? Owners of squirrel dogs become the envy of all men. Stories are told and retold of the ability of certain dogs to spot and tree squirrels on creek banks or in orchards.

A good squirrel dog is more wonderful than a beautiful wife or a mistress who can cook.

The dog broke off momentarily to run towards me, as if asking for help. The urgency of barking pleas pulled me from the trencher even if it did rent for $100 a day. We ran back to that towering pecan tree together.

Dear God, I felt 16 again as we raced across that plowed ground! The wind whipped through my hair, my bulging chest heaved and panted with the effort, but there were wings on my feet as I responded to my dog's excitement of the hunt.

At the base of the tree I looked upward, searching the bare branches of the tree for the squirrel. But then I realized the dog was barking at the base of the tree, so I looked down. There, backed against the trunk of the tree was a possum with sharp jagged teeth bared as it dared my pup to come another step closer.

No squirrel dog here! All I had was a pot-licking possum hound. Despondent isn't a strong enough description of how I felt.

No wonder my dreams aren't as happy as they once were.

But you know, when I'm sitting there at home and my dog comes by and nuzzles me and that tail slashes the air or bangs into the ashtray stand I realize this is surely my best friend.

Suddenly all is forgiven. Every man needs a good, pot-licking, possum-hunting dog.

Novels are featured this week at the Deaf Smith County Library include SOUL FLAME By Barbara Wood and FIRST LADIES by Catherine Breslin.

Barbara Wood is the best-selling author of DOMINA and VITAL SIGNS. In SOUL FLAME she combines her superb storytelling gifts with medical and historic fact to create her biggest, most engrossing novel to date.

Born into the tumultuous world of ancient Antioch, Selene is orphaned at birth. But before her father dies, he leaves a puzzling clue to her heritage: she has come from the gods and will have a special destiny to fulfill. From Mera, the healer-woman who adopts her, Selene learns the primitive healing arts.

On her sixteenth birthday, Selene falls in love with Andreas, a passionate and troubled surgeon, and when they are cruelly separated, her search for him takes her to the great centers of civilization in the ancient world. Everywhere she goes she learns more and more about healing. SOUL AFLAME is sure to excite Barbara Wood's many loyal fans, and to win her many more.

FIRST LADIES is set behind

Washington's closed doors. Two very different political wives are swept into the cyclone of a stalemated election for president. Overnight, Robin Devlin becomes the reluctant First Lady; she desperately wishes to be somewhere else. Priscilla Sterling thinks the role was stolen from her; she's determined to get it back at any cost.

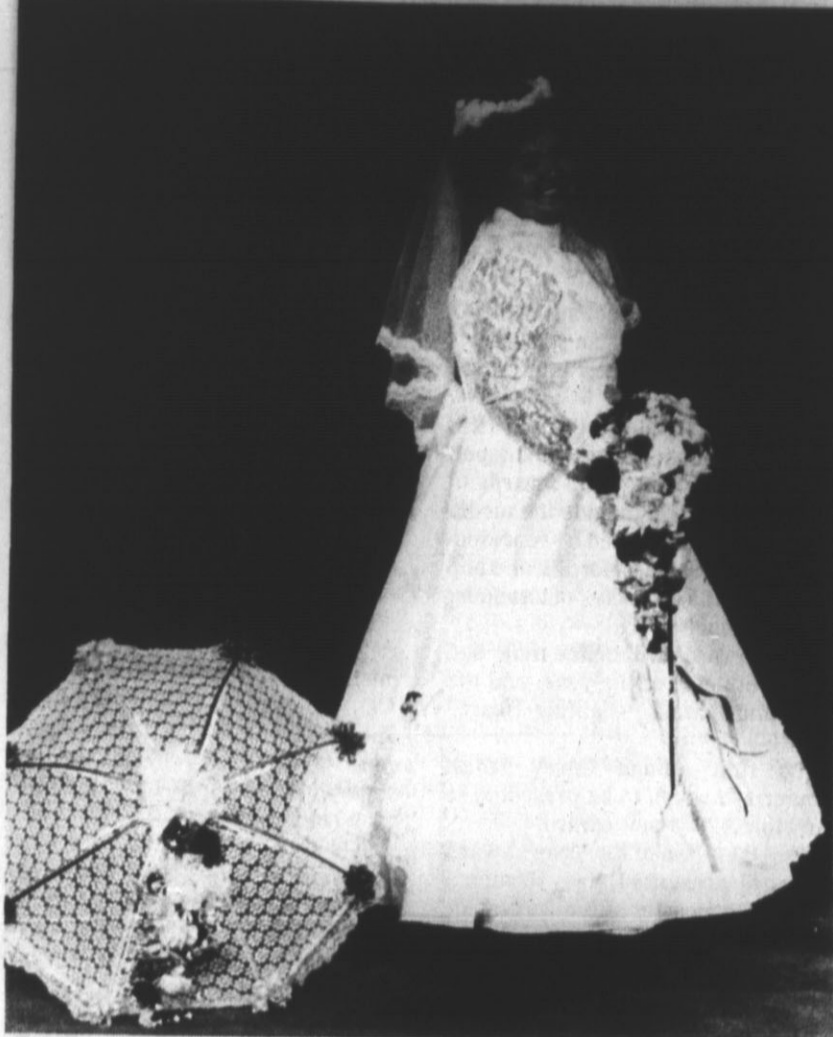

What happens in America when nobody wins the presidential election? This ingenious novel explores the alarming answer, when in 1980, the Republican candidate, Dan Sterling, a former governor with a Hollywood background, gets two million more popular votes than the Democratic incumbent president, Roy Bob Talbott. Neither wins a majority in the Electoral College. The House of Representatives must choose the president in such a deadlock, but can't decide between Sterling or Talbott. Yet the Senate elects a Vice-President, therefore, he will be America's first acting President.

Larry Devlin is selected by the Senate to serve as Acting President. Robin Devlin is recovering from alcoholism, which creates many problems for the Devlins. FIRST LADIES will give you the true sound and feel of Washington's power games. It will be one of the most talked about novels of the year.

Other books available this week are BEAUTY FROM THE INSIDE OUT by Diana Bihova, ONLY WHEN I LAUGH by Lee Deighton, and IN THE SEASON OF THE WILD ROSE by Clara Rising.

LIBRARY EVENTS for the week include the 10 a.m. - pre-school public story hour Thursday morning.

SUSIE HERRERA

Herrera honored at celebration Saturday

A Quinceanera Mass was celebrated by Father David Vuelvas-Arias Saturday at San Jose Church for Susie Herrera's 15th birthday. The honoree is the daughter of Israel and Hope Herrera and is a freshman student at Stanton Junior High School.

Serving as altar boys at the Mass were Israel and Fernando Herrera and lectors were Crystal Garza and Elizabeth Torres.

For the occasion, the honoree was attired in a floor-length gown of white moonlight satin which featured a flounce of white iridescent lace around the circular skirt. The bodice was made of white satin with a sweetheart neckline overlaid with iridescent lace. It had long fitted sleeves which tapered to a point at the wrists.

Her headpiece was made of white silk flowers and clusters of pearl beads with an attached mantilla of white tulle edged with lace and trimmed with pearl beads.

Her attendants wore floor-length gowns in rainbow colors of beauty, teal, red, royal blue, purple, frost pink and frost blue. Each wore a matching bow in her hair.

Attendants included Chelo Herrera, Beatrice Cordova, Melissa Herrera, Marivel Valle, Zarqua Shahnaz, Gloria Herrera, Adelia Diaz, Patsy Martinez, Jessica Lopez, Maria Rodriguez, Brenda Davalos, Yvonne Cantu, Jennie Rodriguez, Roxanne Torres.

Their escorts were, respectively, Steve Pena, Daniel Ruiz, Ricardo Herrera, Robert Hernandez, Martin

Hernandez, Joel Gaytan, Jaime Galan, Ramon Medina, Joe Medrano, Carlos Cordova, Mario Coronado, Patricio Villarreal Jr., Randy Ramos, and Manuel Romero.

Miss Herrera's Baptismal Godparents are Juan and Minnie Guillen and other padrinos were Mr. and Mrs. Gregorio Zepeda, Jose and Paula Rodriguez, Jose and Margarita Rodriguez, Enrique Bodayo, Manuel Gallegos, Bolivar Herrera, Armando Rodriguez, Carlos Pena, Leonel Ridriguez, Manuel Torres, Herminio Arroyos, Jack Gallegos.

Also, Santos Reyes and Sylvia Ruiz, Hope Garza, Mary Brewer and Celia Serrano.

Other members of the party were Mr. and Mrs. Juan Galan, Antonio Rodriguez, Domingo Zepeda, Frank Romo, Oscar Mondragon, Albert Gutierrez, Reginaldo Salazar, Juan Casarez, Antonio Valle, David Diaz, Abel Rodriguez, Gene Anderson, Joe Balderaz, Raymond Carrillo, Charlie Ruiz, Frank De La Paz, Gilbert Holguin, Pedro Dominguez, Pablo Sanchez, Jessie Castillo, Atanacio Mancillas, Saturnino Tamez, Feliberto Vallejo, Pedro Martinez and Juan Fuentes.

After Mass, a reception was held at Miss Herrera's home and was then followed by a dance at the Knights of Columbus Hall. Miss Herrera was escorted by Daniel "Boonie" Villarreal.

Out-of-town guests were from Amarillo, Shamrock, Weslaco, and Las Vegas, N.M.

Contributions needed for heart patient

Contributions for Ricky Madrigal are being collected at both Hereford State and First National banks.

The 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Madrigal of Hereford, Ricky is scheduled to have his second heart bypass surgery June 9 in Children's Hospital in Dallas. The seventh grader attends Stanton Junior High School.

Contributors may also take advantage of money jars that have been placed in several local businesses.

Five dollar tickets for a blue velvet chair from Short's Furniture may be purchased at 120 Ave. D and 713 Irving. The winner will be announced by KPAN Radio Station June 1.

HHS all-sports banquet is Monday

Hereford High School athletes will be honored at the school's all-sports banquet on Monday at 7 p.m. at the Bull Barn.

Outstanding athletes in each HHS sport will be honored at the banquet, plus several other special awards.

The awards will include the media awards, to be presented by representatives from the Hereford Brand and KPAN Radio to the outstanding athlete in each sport.

Other awards will be the male and female athletes of the year, and the male and female "Fighting Heart" awards.

The first annual Casey Smith Memorial Award, to be presented to one athlete, is a new award.

Also, the "Fan of the Year" award will be presented by Hereford Whiteface Booster Club president Joe Hacker.

Deaf Smith County Judge Tom

Simons will serve as emcee.

Hereford schools athletic director Don Cumpton notes that parents of boy athletes are to bring salads to the banquet, and that parents of girl athletes are to bring desserts. The Booster Club will take care of the rest of the banquet foods, he said.

Dickerson speaks out about recruiting

BOYS TOWN, Neb. (AP) — Eric Dickerson, the Los Angeles Rams' star running back, says he once turned down $50,000 in cash from a college that tried to recruit him.

"When I got recruited, I got offered a lot of stuff from a lot of schools," Dickerson said last week. "The things they offered, you're just amazed they could offer."

Dickerson, the National Football League record-holder for yards rushing in a season, spoke last week at the Boys Town Boosters' athletic banquet in Omaha.

Dickerson, a college star at Southern Methodist University, said the school offering $50,000 brought it to his home in a briefcase.

Dickerson said he didn't accept the offer because he didn't like the school.

Although the offer violated NCAA rules, Dickerson said he didn't report it.

"I've got to play against those guys," he said. "They're going to hate me. What's the sense?"

Dickerson said he received benefits in violation of NCAA rules when he played at SMU.

"Just like anyone else, I got it," he said. "If I asked for $50, if I needed some spending money, they would give it to me. I never got thousands of dollars or condominiums and all that kind of stuff."

Dickerson said it bothered him when the SMU football program received the "death penalty" from the NCAA earlier this year. SMU was penalized for rules violations that occurred while the program was already on three years' probation. SMU will not field a football team again until 1989.

"The things that have happened there since I left are unfortunate," Dickerson said. "But let's face the facts. Schools can sit there and say, 'We don't do it.' All of them can say, 'We don't do it.' But they're not telling the truth."

"Nebraska can say it. Oklahoma can say it. SMU can say it. All of them can say it. But I'm sure someone has. If it's only $5, if it's only $2, they're giving a guy something. Even if it's a pair of shorts, that's illegal to the NCAA."

"I guess you could say my school got caught, and they really came down hard on us."

Dickerson said it's difficult to turn down illegal payments.

"It's real hard for any athlete to live on the little money they give us," he said. "I'm not from a rich family. A lot of us guys were real poor. How are we supposed to make it? Go out and rob and steal at night?"

Dickerson said proposals to pay college athletes would help cut down on cheating, but not eliminate the problem.

Dickerson, from Sealy, Texas, said he initially wanted to attend Oklahoma, not SMU.

"I really didn't want to go to SMU at first," he said. "I wanted to go to Oklahoma. My mother talked me out of that."

Dickerson said his mother didn't like Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer's recruiting pitch, which emphasized his opportunity to follow Billy Sims, the 1978 Heisman Trophy winner.

Dickerson also spoke at Flanagan High School in Thursday morning and at Boys Town in the afternoon. He also filmed an anti-drug commercial with Boys Town students.

Dickerson is the NFL's spokesman for first lady Nancy Reagan's "Just Say No to Drugs" program. Dickerson also leads an anti-drug effort in Los Angeles, called Dickerson's Rangers.

He said the anti-drug message is important.

"A lot of people look at athletes and think we're drug addicts," he said.

Dickerson said he's had people try to give him drugs for playing a good game.

"I said I don't get high," he said. "I think they just expect us to get high. When you don't, it's a shock."

He set an NFL rookie record with 1,808 yards rushing in 1983. He followed with a 2,105 mark in 1984 to break O.J. Simpson's single-season record of 2,003 yards. Last season, he finished with 1,821 yards.

For years, A.M. Best Co. has been recognized as the life insurance industry's performance rating authority. Recently, in review of the 20-year net cost for a $10,000 policy issued to a 35-year-old male, they substantiated what we've always known: no other insurance company's dividend performance measures up to ours.

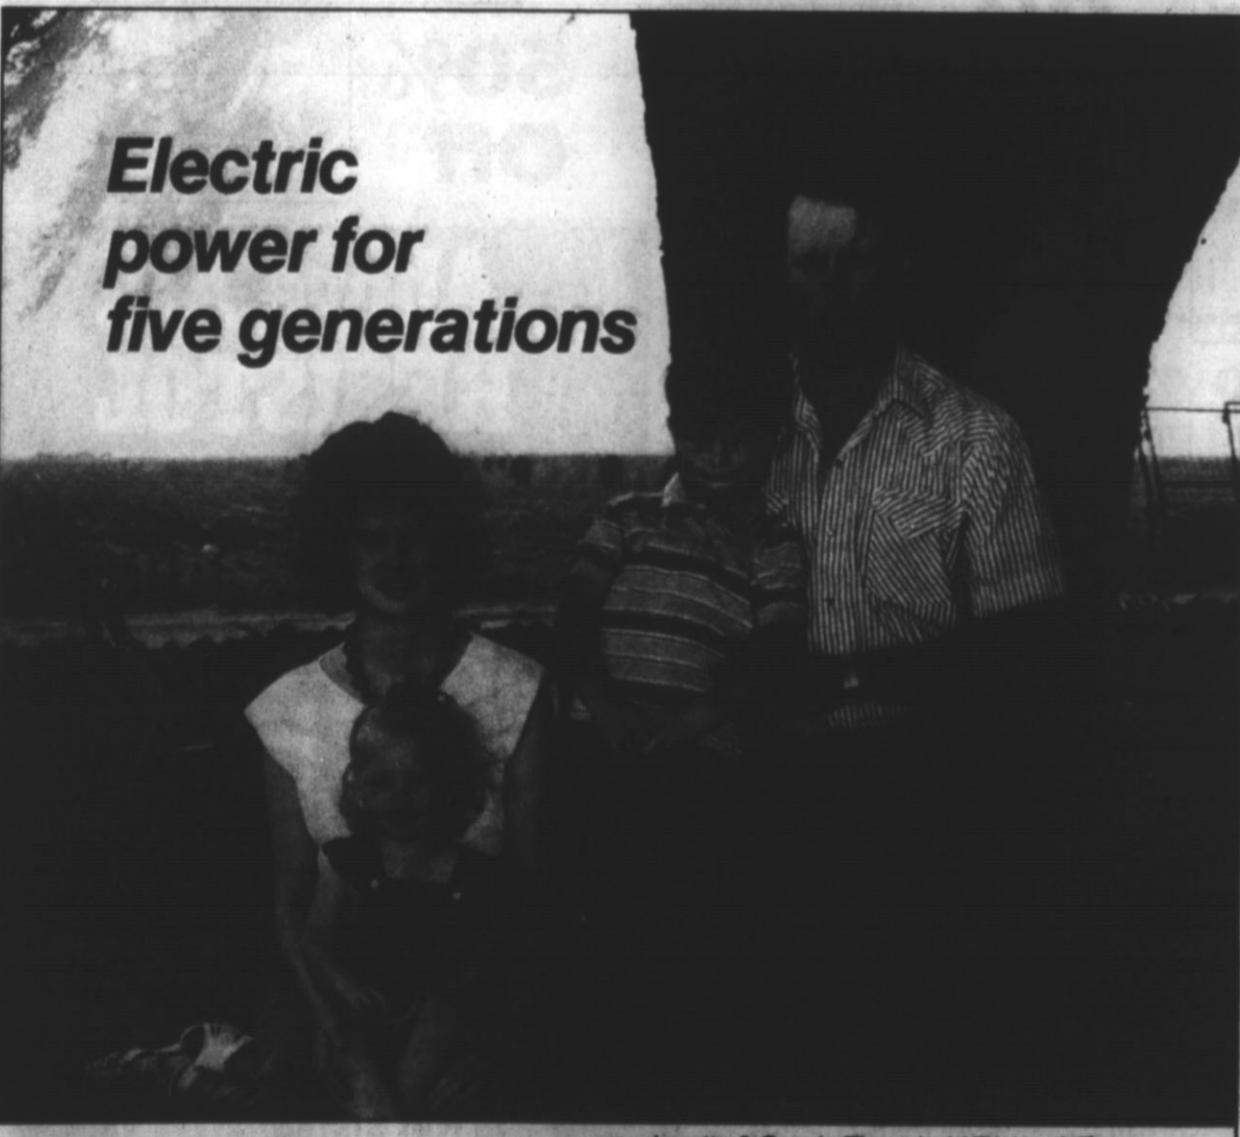

It's that kind of performance that's given our policyowners the best overall protection and value per premium dollar in the industry.

Give up college eligibility for chance in draft

3 undergrads opt for NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — Danny Manning of Kansas, considered the top player among the nation's undergraduates, will use his final year of eligibility with the Jayhawks and forgo a chance to enter the NBA draft.

Manning's decision Friday left only three non-seniors who have publicly declared their intention to leave college before their eligibility expires. The NBA next week will issue a complete list of players declaring for the June 22 draft before the May 8 deadline.

"It's what's best for me and what my family wants me to do," Manning said. "My family wants me to stay and get my degree, and that's important."

Manning made his announcement in Lawrence, Kan., after Larry Brown confirmed he would return as Kansas coach next season. There had been speculation that Manning would skip his senior season and turn professional if Brown accepted an NBA coaching job.

Alabama star Derrick McKey became the third college player to apply for the NBA draft Friday after he was barred from playing in his senior year for allegedly signing with an agent.

The junior center joined sophomore Norris Coleman of Kansas State and junior Vincent Askew of Memphis State. Coleman is 25 years old after serving in the Army before attending college.

McKey, last season's player of the year in the Southeastern Conference, intended to play his senior season.

Steve Sloan, athletic director at Alabama, would not disclose the agent's name. But radio station WKRG in Mobile, Ala., reported that McKey had signed with New York sports agent Norby Walters.

Walters is suing several former college football players for alleged breach of contract. Walters says he gave money to the players while they were still in college, but says they later broke their contracts with him and signed with other agents.

Alabama basketball Coach Wimp

Sanderson said he was "heartbroken" by what happened to McKey.

"One of these days we are going to come up with an answer in college athletics to eliminate the problem of unscrupulous agents," Sanderson said.

Neither McKey nor Walters could be reached for comment. McKey averaged 18.6 points and 7.5 rebounds per game last season while leading Alabama to the SEC regular-season and tournament championships.

Manning, a 6-11 forward, said there was no compelling reason for him to leave college early.

"The NBA will always be there, hopefully," Manning said. "I'm looking forward to having a good senior season."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 1986-87 Los Angeles Lakers played with four players, all of whom were No. 1 draft picks but none of whom originally belonged to Los Angeles.
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar came to L.A. from Milwaukee. Magic Johnson was taken with a pick that was first the property of the New Orleans Jazz. James Worthy came from Cleveland, which had the original rights to that selection. And Mychal Thompson, acquired in a mid-season trade with San Antonio, was an original choice by Portland.

Accent on Agriculture

By DENNIS W. NEWTON
County Extension Agent

New immigration laws pose new problems for area farmers, especially those who make extensive use of hand labor. To help area producers comply with provisions of the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, The Texas Agricultural Extension Service will conduct a program Monday night (May 11 in Dimmitt at 7 p.m. in City Hall). This federal act will have a major impact on many area farmers. The meeting will provide information on the new law and answers to questions on this and other farm labor matters. Information will be presented by Dr. Richard Edwards, Extension economist from College Station, and Raul Osuna of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Farmers' share of food spending dropping again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The farmer's share of what consumers spend for food is declining again this year, according to a new forecast by the Agriculture Department.

Consumers are expected to spend an estimated $377.3 billion on food produced on U.S. farms this year, an increase of about 4.5 percent from $361.1 billion spent in 1986.

Expenditures cover food eaten out as well as groceries bought for home use, but the figures do not include imported products or seafood.

The "farm value" of the 1987 consumer food bill — that portion returned to farmers — may rise slightly to $89.6 billion, the department's Economic Research Service said. That would be 23.7 percent of this year's $377.3 billion total food spending, down from 24.6 percent in 1986 when the farm share was $89 billion out of the $361.1 billion.

According to agency economist Howard Elitzak, the 4.5 percent rise in consumer food expenditures this year is about in line with annual increases since 1982.

Natural resources focus of stewardship week

COLLEGE STATION — Taking care of nature's resources is the focus of Soil and Water Stewardship Week, May 24-31.

This year's theme is "Help, Hope, Healing."

"The theme reminds all Americans that our vital soil, water and related natural resources must be of deep concern to all of us as well as a concern for the survival and well-being of the primary custodians—farmers and ranchers," notes Dr. B.L. Harris, soils specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Help, hope and healing are needed to bind the economic and resource wounds on America's farms and ranches," adds Harris. "The survival and welfare of farmers and the land they till must be a matter of deep concern to all of us who eat food, wear clothes and build homes. Caring for soil and water resources is a responsibility none of us can ignore."

The Extension Service is joining with the Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts in the nationwide observance of Soil and Water Stewardship Week, which annually focuses on the importance of caring for this nation's precious soil and water resources so as to provide for future generations. The observance was begun in 1955.

"The basic motivation for the conservation and orderly development of natural resources is man's recognition of his responsibilities under God to protect and use wisely His precious gifts of soil and water," Harris points out.

"Human survival depends on other living things—and those living things are dependent on soil and water," says Harris. "So conservation of soil and water is essential for meeting the food needs of future generations."

"Clean water and fertile land are the basic source of abundant food and fiber," adds the soils specialist. "We have an obligation to leave our descendants an inheritance whose capacity for producing food has not been depleted."

"In today's 'high tech' society, there often is a tendency to overlook the basic things on which our lives depend," emphasizes Harris.

Two day oil, gas conference scheduled in Albuquerque

The Bureau of Land Management (BLM) is sponsoring an Oil and Gas Conference for Industry and Government May 12 and 13, 1987, in Albuquerque, New Mexico. The 2-day meeting will open with talks by several key Department of the Interior officials including Assistant Secretary of Bureau of Indian Affairs, Ross O. Swimmer, U.S. Forest Service Regional Director Sotero Muniz and Deputy Assistant for Lands and Minerals, Department of the Interior, James E. Cason.

The opening talks will be followed by a luncheon with New Mexico Governor Garrey Carruthers as the keynote speaker. The Governor will discuss his view of industry and government from his position as Governor and his experience as the former Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Lands and Minerals. There will be two panel discussions in the afternoon and a social hour immediately following the last panel. Wednesday morning there will be a panel on "Protection of Surface Resources," followed by "A Public Perspective," moderated by New Mexico State Land Commissioner Bill Humphries.

The conference is expected to close about noon on Wednesday. All sessions and the luncheon will be held at the Holiday Inn Pyramid at the Journal Center in Albuquerque. There is a special rate for conference participants.

Reservations for the luncheon must be pre-paid before May 4, 1987. For information on the luncheon or details on the conference, contact Murray Hernandez at BLM, Santa Fe, (505)988-6316. Registration for the conference will begin at 8:30 a.m. on Tuesday, May 12, 1987. There is no registration fee for the conference but there is a charge for the luncheon. Please make your reservations early.

1986 Texas farm receipt estimates take a tumble

COLLEGE STATION — Texas' estimated 1986 farm receipts from marketings tumbled slightly to a projected $9.3 billion. That includes the agriculturally related activities of hunting and fishing leases, horses for recreation, and land-based outdoor recreation. This figure compares with about $9.9 billion in 1985.

But lower production costs and large government payments helped support the cash income situation, according to Dr. Carl Anderson, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Anderson said declines in crop sales resulted from low prices, fewer acres and a small cotton crop. The declines more than offset a slight rise in livestock receipts. Poultry, dairy and nursery sales made strong gains, but income from hunting leases and horses declined.

Texas is expected to rank third among states in 1986 cash receipts, behind California and Iowa. With a diversified livestock and crop agriculture, farming and ranching in Texas continues favorable compared to most other states, Anderson noted.

"Texas ranks first in sales of cattle and calves, sheep and wool, goats and mohair, cotton, cabbage, spinach, value of farm real estate, number of farms and ranches, and farm and ranch land," Anderson said.

The economist noted that farm assets in Texas, including land, buildings, livestock, machinery, crops and livestock on hand, and farm financial assets, have dropped from $98 billion two years ago to about $74 billion. The state has 160,000 farms averaging 838 acres with a value of land and buildings averaging $52 per acre, he added. There were 187,000 farms in 1984.

Estimated 1986 cash receipts from livestock include: beef cattle, $4.1 billion; poultry, $652 million; dairy, $465 million; sheep, $88 million; hogs, $80 million; wool and mohair, $51 million; goats, $23 million.

Estimated cash receipts from crops include: cotton $772 million; wholesale nursery industry, $416 million; feed grains, including corn, oats, barley, hay and ensilage, $416 million; all vegetables, $355 million; grain sorghum, $331 million; wheat, $267 million; timber production, $250 million; rice, $160 million; outdoor recreation income, $147 million; hunting lease receipts, $146 million; peanuts, $106 million; horses, $102 million; fruit and nut crops, $59 million; soybeans, $24 million; sunflowers and other oil seed plants, $3 million.

"Texas agriculture remains strong," said Anderson. Major research and educational program efforts conducted by The Texas A&M University System support development of the state's agricultural industry to its greatest potential.

Also, the state's agriculture benefits from a relatively warm climate, productive soils, and excellent export and transportation facilities, Anderson noted. Cash receipts and income in 1987 are projected to increase moderately, mainly because of higher beef and cotton prices and large government payments. The drop in land prices already appears to have slowed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers are not expected to switch much corn acreage into soybeans this spring, according to an Agriculture Department report.

A planting survey report earlier this week indicated 1987 soybean plantings at 56.9 million acres.

Notice of Election

The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) is accepting nominations for County Committee elections for Deaf Smith and Oldham Counties. This notice is issued to inform eligible voters of the right to nominate candidates by petition. Copies of the petition and instructions on its completion can be obtained from your local FmHA Office.

Persons nominated should be currently engaged in the operation of a farm, have their principal farming operation within the Counties in which activities of the County Committee are carried out, derive the principal part of their income from farming (that is more than 50 percent of their gross income must come from agricultural production), be a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence, not have an FmHA insured or guaranteed loan, and be well qualified for committee work. Nominations must be received in the FmHA office no later than June 10, 1987. FmHA committee elections are open to all eligible voters without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, age, political affiliation, marital status, sex, and/or handicap.

Mechanics maintenance protects not only against injury, but also against extremely expensive damage to farm machinery. Jerry Lush, South Dakota State University agricultural engineer says, equipment manufacturers supply many excellent manuals. "A few (of the precautions) may seem insulting to some farmers even to be reminded of them," he said, "but if these reminders can prevent even on slight accident...it is worth the effort." And, we think it is well worthwhile to list a few: 1) Always carry a first-aid kit and a fire extinguisher. 2) Always keep machinery clean and free of trash. 3) Never leave the operator platform with the engine running. 4) Disconnect all drives before greasing or lubricating. 5) Always stop machinery before opening the hood doors. 6) Keep all shields in place. 7) Wear seatbelts and ear plugs. Don't wear loose clothing that can become entangled in machinery. 8) Stay clear of moving parts of all times. 9) Keep sparks and open flames, including cigarettes, away from batteries. 10) Allow systems to cool before removing radiator caps. And, stay clear of exhaust systems until cool.

According to National Association of Realtors

Homes sales edged upward in March

WASHINGTON - The national sales pace of existing homes edged upward in March, getting the traditional spring-through summer "selling season" off to a healthy start, according to analysts for the National Association of Realtors.

A home price dip, combined with low mortgage interest rates, mixed nicely with warmer weather to bring the seasonally adjusted annual rate of sales of previously-owned single family homes to 3.71 million units in March. The pace jumped 14.5 percent from that of March 1986, and moved marginally ahead of the 3.69-million-unit pace of February.

"During March, interest rates reached a low point before starting the recent increase. Last month's resales were spurred by this, along with a modest overall price decline from February and a continued run of good weather," explained Dr. John A. Tuccillo, NAR's chief economist.

The month's average effective mortgage interest rate, including loan discount points paid at closing, for loans closed on existing single family homes was 9.13 percent. This is the lowest point since December 1977, when the interest rate was 9.12 percent. The national median price for existing single-family homes was $84,300 in March, dipping $700 from February's $85,000 median.

The March national median home price was 5.6 percent higher than the March 1986 median price of $79,800. Tuccillo said the lower price from February to March was not a national trend toward declining value. "It isn't unusual to see those kind of fluctuations on a month-to-month basis," Tuccillo said.

March's resale pace correlates with NAR's projected actual total of 3.65 million single-family units for 1987, which is a 2.2 percent increase over the actual sales total of 3.57 million sold in 1986. "I don't think we'll have any problems achieving our total. Despite the change in interest rates that has occurred since March, we don't see any reason to change our predictions," Tuccillo said. The expected total would boost the year to one of the top five sales years on record. The 3.99 million existing single-family home sales of 1978 is the highest total recorded by the NAR.

Compared with one year ago, overall buyer demand shows no signs of waning in the wake of last year's strong market, said 1987 NAR President-Elect Nestor R. Weigand, Jr. "Many buyers are stretching themselves—people at the top end of the market as well as entry-level—to buy the most expensive house they can afford," Weigand said. "Low interest rates are the big factor driving the sales momentum."

The South, with a resale pace of 1.31 million units for March, recorded the highest year-to-year percentage increase, with a 20.2 percent hike from March 1986. That region's activity was up 3.1 percent from the 1.27-million-unit pace for February.

In the Midwest, the March pace of 1.11 million units was 15.6 percent higher than March 1986. The month-to-month pace was stagnant, dipping less than 1 percent from February's resale rate of 1.12 million units.

Northeast activity was 14.1 percent higher than that of one year ago, with a March pace of 730,000 units. The rate was 2.8 percent above February's existing home sales pace of 710,000 units.

The West, with a 560,000-unit resale pace for March, recorded a 3.7 percent increase over March 1986. The 3.4 percent resale pace drop from February's pace of 580,000 units was the largest activity decrease recorded.

A year-to-year comparison of home prices showed the Northeast retaining its leading position. In that region, the March median price of $128,200 was 25.2 percent higher than the median of one year ago, and 2.2 percent higher than February's median of $125,400. Tuccillo attributed the increases to the "continued tightness" of the market.

In the Midwest, a 5.7 percent price increase was recorded from March 1986. The median price of $68,100 was 1.5 percent higher than February's $67,100 median.

Lower year-to-year price increases were recorded in the South and the Midwest. These were also the regions that led the month-to-month national decline in the March median home price. In the South, the national median of $80,800 rose 1.6 percent from March 1986, but fell by the same percentage from February's $82,100 median. The $100,600 median price in the West was 3.6 percent higher than one year ago; but 3.3 percent lower than the $104,000 median for February.

At the end of March, 2.61 million existing single-family homes were on the market, which is an 8.4-month-supply measured by the month's pace of resales.

"It seems that many buyers are swinging toward the existing-homes market, particularly in areas where the housing market is less active," Weigand said. "There is a perception among a lot of those buyers that the market for previously-owned homes is a bit more competitive. They feel they might have a higher degree of negotiating ability with sellers."

The NAR expects the 2.2 percent rise in sales of existing single-family homes this year to offset a drop in sales of new homes for 1987. The association is predicting 671,000 new-home sales for this year, a 9.9 percent drop from 1986.

The National Association of Realtors is the nation's largest trade association, representing more than 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Roof repairs don't require fancy tools

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

There's Trouble, with a capital T, when rain doesn't drain off a roof quickly and efficiently. That rain will penetrate the smallest hole created by a separation of flashing around a chimney, vent or skylight.

Roof leaks or poorly drained rain water can result in stained interior walls, ruined paint or wallpaper and eventual dry rot of structural lumber.

You really don't need fancy equipment for making rooftop repairs and for cleaning gutters and downspouts. It takes a ladder tall enough to get you to the roof, a reliable sealer material, a bucket, garden hose, and a flexible cable known to plumbers as a "snake."

It also takes the common sense not to climb a ladder or do any roofing chores you might not be able to handle.

The first step is in examination of the flashing around the chimney, vent or other rooftop accessory. Check carefully for a total seal along the seam between the flashing and the chimney, as well as the flashing around vents and adjoining shingles.

These seams open because of structural expansion and contraction, caused by cold and warm cycles of various seasons. These structural movements also are the cause of loose shingles.

There are a number of sealers available for closing these seams. Most, however, need to be mixed and are heavy when hoisting up a ladder to the problem area.

One new caulking material is merely pressed in place. Available in a ribbon-like roll seven-sixteenths of an inch wide and 15 feet long, the caulk is applied by unrolling it to the required length over a flashing seam and cutting it with a sharp knife. The caulk is then pressed into place with the fingertips.

Its manufacturer, 3M, says this will form a tight, water-and-weather-resistant seal that will protect cracks and seams for 20 years.

Loose shingles can be secured by installing a strip of the caulk under the shingle edge and pressing down. The caulk will compress and serve as an adhesive.

Once all flashing and shingles are sealed, gutters and downspouts are next. Start by removing protective screening, if there is one, where the gutter meets the downspout. Clean this screen and remove all the debris collected at the gutter outlet.

Next, check the clearance of the downspout by working the "snake" down the outlet from the gutter.

When this is done, stick the garden hose down the outlet and turn on the water. This will flush all debris down and into the drain.

Doors can create "sticky" problem for homeowners

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

A door to which you rarely give a second thought can become very vexatious when it isn't working properly. The annoyance can be in the form of sticking, rattling or squeaking. Most common of these is sticking, caused when the door is not in proper alignment with its frame. When that occurs, fight off any temptation to sand, scrape or plane the part of the door that is binding. Consider it a possible solution to the problem, but only as a there-is-no-other-way-to-fix-it last resort. An indiscriminate removal of even a small amount of wood from the door may provide temporary relief for the symptoms, but cause a later permanent headache. Should the occasion demand this type of remedy, you will have to remove the door unless the trouble is at the top and, even then, that may be necessary. Here is a good tip. If the sticking calls for taking wood from the side of the door, do so from the hinge side rather than the lock side, since it is much easier to reset hinges than reset a lock.

Fortunately, most of the time a sticking door can be fixed by doing something with the hinges. The "doing something" may involve nothing more than tightening the screws that hold the hinges in place. Take a screwdriver and try every screw, turning it clockwise. If it turns even a fraction of an inch, it was loose. Turn it a little more, which should tighten it. As you do this, there should be some resistance. If there isn't or if the screw loosens again when you open and shut the door a few times, it means the screw hole has become enlarged and no longer grips the fastener tightly. You can try a slightly larger screw if that is practical or you can fill the hole with wood putty, plastic wood, some toothpicks or a little steel wool. When it becomes a little difficult to tighten the screw, you know it is likely to hold.

"Mortgage Loans"

30-year mortgage loan or 15-year loan—which is best?
 Like 30-year mortgages, 15-year mortgages involve monthly payments of principal and interest, in which more interest is paid in the early years of the loan. The loans differ in the amount that must be paid each month and in the way payments are divided into principal and interest.
 For example, if you were to obtain a 30-year mortgage loan for $70,000 at a fixed rate of 9%, your monthly payment would total $63.24. A 15-year mortgage with the same terms would have total monthly payments of $709.99. That's $146.75 a month more. Although your monthly payments would be higher with a 15-year mortgage, because of the shorter loan period, you'd pay less interest over the entire term of the loan. For the 30-year loan, the total payback of principal plus interest would total $202,766.40. For the 15-year loan, total payback would be $127,798.20—about $74,968.20 less.
 Of course, 15-year mortgages do have disadvantages. Even though the shorter term mortgage involves paying less over the life of the loan, the increased monthly payment can be a burden on a monthly budget. Most loans today have no prepayment penalty, so why not pay extra on the principal only as your budget allows. You would benefit from the interest savings but would not be "strapped" with the required higher payment each month.

Garden Beautiful Club installs new officers

Monetary donations will be made to Hereford Day Care, Hereford Satellite Work Training Center and Big Brothers/Big Sisters by the Garden Beautiful Club. Members decided to contribute during a recent closing meeting and luncheon held at Something Special.
 New officers were installed by Jerri Jackson using the theme of "The Hands of Leadership." Marguerite Newell will serve as president; Jean Dowell, first vice president; Ina Mae Gilbreath, second vice president; Phung Emmons, third vice president; Inez Witherspoon, recording-corresponding secretary; Bessie Story, treasurer; and R. Gilbreath, reporter.
 The business meeting was conducted by Inez Witherspoon, current president. Minutes were read and approved and roll call was answered with gardening tips.
 Members present were Janie

Sides, Dottie Darden, Winnie Wiseman, Margaret Young, Camelia Jones, Emmons, Story, Ina Mae Gilbreath, Hilda Haven, Dowell, Marie Cline, Dorothy Noland, Louise Axe, R. Gilbreath, Witherspoon and guest Jerri Jackson.

Thank You Jim Sears

Dear Jim,

We, the undersigned, know and appreciate the long hours and long years of careful devotion you have given to the bank and our community. Guiding the bank through the rough time of the past few years has not been easy. We hear daily of new bank failures yet the "1st" is still strong and our money is secure.

Each of us has his own reason to be thankful to you for your honesty and personal attention to our banking business or our community projects. Some of us would not be here except for you. We all have been blessed one way or another by your concern and thoughtful advice, and we all want to say "Thank You, Jim".

Sincerely,

Lifestyles

Westgate open house scheduled

"Discover Life's Treasures—Visit a Nursing Home Resident" is the theme for Nursing Home Week, May 10-16. In conjunction with the special observance, the public is invited to an open house at Westgate Nursing Home from 2:30-4 p.m. Saturday, May 16.

The local celebration will honor the nursing home residents and will also give the public an opportunity to visit them as well as tour the child care and adult daycare facilities on the campus.

The Westgate residents will be honored during the week with a special buffet, musical selections during Bible studies, a May birthday party, and a tour of Arrowhead Mills.

People who work in nursing homes say nothing is more meaningful to their residents than visitors, conversation and the human touch. Those are simple things we can all give, but there is also a lot to be gained.

Most nursing home residents are in their 70s and 80s and have memories and stories to tell that we will not find in history books or classroom lectures. They were the farmers, housewives, mothers, businessmen, teachers, clergy and soldiers of another time. Many of these older Texans grew up in this community and helped make the changes we take for granted. They are part of the richness of this community today.

If you know someone in a nursing home, this is a good time to renew a friendship. If you do not know someone in a nursing home, then it is a good time to make a new friend.

Ceremony at WT set Friday

The department of military science commissioning ceremony for reserve officers training corps at West Texas State University will be at 10 a.m. Friday in Hill Chapel.

Three reserve officers will be commissioned.

Cookbook Donated

Deaf Smith County Library Director Dianne Pierson, standing, accepts a copy of the recipe book entitled "Well Done—An Explicit Texas Cookbook." Authors of the book are La Reese Miller, seated left, and her mother, Mary Helen Askew. Askew, a Hereford resident for the past 25 years, and Miller, a Hereford High School graduate, will also present one of the books to the Deaf Smith County Museum. The twosome were featured at Wishes in the Mall recently for an autograph party.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you bear to print one more letter for "Indy," whose pencil-thin sister wants her to lose 100 pounds or she can't be in the wedding?

My weight, too, has been discussed over the years by relatives, especially a cousin and her husband who were downright skinny and used to annoy the hell out of me by eating all the rich things I loved and didn't dare touch. Naturally, I didn't like this couple very much and saw them less and less.

We were brought together at a family affair a few weeks ago and, lo! and behold, they are skinnier than ever, but their teenage daughter is enormous. I would not hesitate to bet that she weighs more than both of them put together.

All sorts of thoughts raced through my mind, none of them very generous. I'm happy to say my better self triumphed and I prayed that one day science will come up with a pill to prevent morbid obesity. And, at the same time, another pill that will paralyze malicious tongues.—Last Laugh in Wash.

DEAR WASH: When you stop laughing I hope that your better self will triumph once more and that you will give some thought to the unfortunate girl. This shouldn't be too difficult since you know what it's like to be heavy. Even though you despise her parents, please dredge up some compassion for her. She must be miserable.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for the college instructor who complained about the way teenagers talk. ("And I says like whatya mean? And he said like ya' gotta be kiddin'.") I must say the professor didn't exaggerate one bit.

What I don't understand is why he singled out teenagers. Everybody in New York talks that way. I'm referring to Brooklyn, the Bronx, Queens and like that. Upstate folks sound altogether different.

A New Yorker can move to any state in the union and the minute he opens his mouth, people know where he's from. I'm glad I moved. I hated being tagged like that.—Formerly from Brooklyn

DEAR FORMERLY: If you're glad, then I'm glad, but what did you do about your Brooklyn accent? Speech habits are awfully hard to break, like I mean it's darned near impossible, ya know. Lotsa luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been instructed by my boss to open all the mail, even letters addressed to other employees.

After the manager is through reading everybody's mail he makes me do his dirty work. I must deliver it and get screamed at. I keep explaining that it is company policy but nobody buys that baloney and I don't blame them.

Does my boss have the right to open other people's mail? Many of the envelopes have PERSONAL marked all over the place. Please let me know what to do.—On the Spot In Canada

DEAR SPOT: Your boss has no business reading personal letters. Moreover, making you deliver them makes him a wimp as well as a sneak.

Who is over that bird? Go to his boss and explain what's going on. No decent company would condone such a despicable practice.

What's the story on pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, downers, speed? Can you handle them if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Right This Way Folks!

Amid cries of "right this way folks!" and calliope music, Bay View Study Club members were greeted at Deaf Smith County Museum Thursday for their closing luncheon of the year which featured a circus theme. Members of the social committee served as hostesses.

Having a little snack before the luncheon began were (from left) Nancy Hays, Ouida Halbert, Nancy Josserand, Meredith Wilcox and Ruth McBride. Entertainment was provided by John Gilliland, magician.

Circus theme used at closing luncheon

Abe Martin's Circus was the backdrop for a closing luncheon Thursday at Deaf Smith County Museum for members of Bay View Study Club.

Amid gaily decorated tables, which were covered with striped cloths and appointed with circus theme decorations and helium filled balloons, members of the social committee served foot-long hot dogs, popcorn, Cracker Jacks, brownies and homemade strawberry ice cream cones. The event was planned by Meredith Wilcox, Ruth McBride, Nancy Josserand, Ouida Halbert and Nancy Hays.

The featured entertainment was Magician John Gilliland.

During the business session of the meeting, President Wilcox installed new officers for the next club year. Mrs. Charlie Hays will serve as president; Mrs. Kenneth Halbert, vice president; Mrs. James Burran, recording secretary; Mrs. R.W. Eades, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. A.D. Morrow, treasurer.

Members also voted to purchase an elementary school child a ticket for the 1987-88 Community Concert Association's series.

Those present included Mmes. J.R. Allison, Dudley Bayne, Burran, Eades, Ralph Futrell, D.N. Garner, John Gilliland, W.K. Golden, Halbert, Hays, Josserand, Earnest Langley, McBride, Morrow, Austin Rose, McBride, Wilcox, James Witherspoon, H.L. Benefield, Howard Gault, W.J. Gilliland, Milton Rudder, Wes Fisher, Charlie Holt and Abel Ruga.

Extension Homemaker News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent
What is an Extension Homemaker

May marks the beginning of National Extension Homemakers Month. Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers are part of a 23,000 member Texas Organization which is advised and supported by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the local county Extension Agents. There are currently nine clubs in Deaf Smith County which have members dedicated to learning educational information which improve their personal lives and the home life of their families.

Extension Homemakers believe that the home is the place where love, faith, trust and devotion must be lived each and every day and believe that the home is the place where obedience and reverence are developed and practiced. Believing that sharing responsibilities is vital and that from the fireside will come the citizens who will strive to uphold the best ways of life, Extension Homemakers learn new ways of practicing and sharing knowledge with their families.

Aware that both males and females are homemakers the organization is open to both. Members have an opportunity to further their education in the areas of citizenship and legislative development, cultural arts appreciation, family life and family resource development, safety and increasing better health practices for the person and their family. They also increase their knowledge in food and nutrition, clothing, housing and money management for the family.

An invitation is extended to Deaf Smith County residents to attend the Recruitment Tea to be held on Monday at the Community Center from 3:00 to 5:30. All are invited to attend and gather information on the organization and have an opportunity to meet the members of the clubs. A salute to the Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers as they make life better for their clubs, community, state and nation.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Martinez to graduate from Cal Farley's Boys Ranch

Ruben Martinez, a former Hereford youth who has made his home at Cal Farley's Boys Ranch the past three and one-half years, is a member of the 1987 graduating class. Commencement ceremonies for the graduates will be held on Monday, May 25 at 10:30 a.m. in the Boys Ranch Chapel. Twenty-four seniors will be awarded diplomas and vocational certificates.

Cal Farley's Boys Ranch, located northwest of Amarillo, is a home for more than 400 boys from all over the nation. Their ages are between four and 18. The Ranch was founded in 1939 by Cal Farley and, since that year, 4,000 boys have been given a home and education without cost to any governmental, civic or religious organization. It is supported by voluntary contributions.

While at the Ranch, Ruben has been a member of the Future Farmers of America. He had a project pig which placed in the Dallas Stock Show and he was a member of the Land Judging Team.

Boys Ranch President, Roy E. Turner, said, "Ruben's accomplishments were achieved through his hard work and determination, and with the help of our many friends who have been faithful in their support." Ruben has three brothers making their home at Cal Farley's Boys Ranch.

P.E.O. offers scholarship

P.E.O., an international association of women desiring to further the education of other women, is taking applications for a scholarship to be awarded to some deserving graduating Hereford High School senior girl.

Anniversary Observed

The 25th anniversary of the Guadalupe Society was observed Saturday with a special dinner followed by Mass celebrated by Bishop Leroy Matthiesen. A dance climaxed the day's activities. The Society benefits the LaIglesia de San Jose on Brevard Street in Hereford. Pictured,

Local church society hosts 25th anniversary

The Guadalupe Society, created in 1962 by two local women, held a 25th anniversary party Saturday beginning with a special dinner followed by Mass, celebrated by Bishop Leroy Matthiesen, and a dance.

Founding mothers of the society were Arcelia Pacheco and Leonor La Fuente, who were honored at the event. They started the Society at the San Jose Mission in the labor camp as a means to support the church through funds and service. "We started with nothing; we brought in our own donations, pots, pans, and other things to help the church," said LaFuente. "Finally, our dream came true and we were an organized society."

Pastor at that time was Fr. Raymond Gillilan. The Society composed a constitution and sent it to the diocese in Amarillo along with rules and spiritual guidelines.

The group now works every Sunday to raise funds for the church and prepares food for funerals, helps with rosaries, etc.

"We work hard as a united, society, devoted to our church," said Pacheco.

Vasek installs organization officers

St. Anthony's Women's Organization officers for the 1987-88 year were elected Tuesday at a meeting held in the Antonian Room.

Karla Vasek installed Francie Farr, president; Shelly Schilling, first vice-president; Ann Meyer, second vice-president; Linda Briones, secretary; Teresa Paetzold, treasurer; Adeline Loerwald, reporter; and Pat Sinnacher, parliamentarian.

Vasek used various titles of the Blessed Virgin Mary as attributes and guides for each officer in an impressive candle lighting ceremony. Each officer was presented with a crocheted butterfly, signifying new life, and a bookmark.

Members convened for Mass with Father Cletus McGorry as the celebrant. Bernice Orel and Anita Wilhelm served as ministers of the word and ministers of music were Ann Lueb and Cathy Revell.

During the business meeting with Pat Sinnacher presiding, Annette Albracht reported for the church unit; Janie Banner for the community unit; Linda Briones for the organization unit and Mary Schlabs for the social unit.

Irene Reinart resigned from the care of the chalices and candle holders concluding 17 years of service in this position. Janie Banner urged everyone to attend the program on drugs to be presented this week with Father Dan Egan and Lonise Bias as the speakers. The organization voted a donation to this program.

Briones said that the membership drive for the year is in progress and invited new memberships.

The Hereford Deanery "Town and Country" mass to be held on Thursday, at the Frankie Bezner farm was announced by Mary Schlabs.

Father McGorry in his remarks thanked the ladies for their support and work at all times and said that the work of the organization was very vital to the Christian community and the growth of the church.

Connie Backus was recipient of the door prizes.

Hostesses included Martha Paetzold, Nora Perez, Vickie Baros, and Roberta Artho. The next meeting will be a luncheon meeting on June 2.

County agent gives program

President Laverne Worley conducted the business meeting when members of Wyche Extension Homemakers Club met recently at the Hereford Community Center.

Hostess Argen Draper read a poem from "Leaves of Life" by Helen Farries.

Roll call of "the most unusual fruit or vegetables I've ever used" was answered by those present. Carol Odom gave the council report.

Odom was also elected as a nominee for state delegate and then introduced Beverly Harder, county extension agent, who gave a program on unusual fruits and vegetables. She exhibited 11 varieties of vegetables and explained how to use them.

Those present honored Clara Trowbridge who observed a birthday and also signed get-well cards for Esther Thuett and Wynema Wheeler. The next meeting was planned for 2:30 p.m. May 21 at home of Coreen Odom.

Members in attendance were Louise Axe, Draper, Virgie Duncan, Marcie Ginn, Camelia Jones, Carol Odom, Coreen Odom, Pet Ott, Audrey Rusher, Trowbridge and Worley.

Heart transplant sustains Hereford man

By GAYE B. REILY
Staff Writer

Adon Burns knows how exasperating it can be to wait—especially for something lifesaving like a new heart.

The 52-year-old Hereford resident received a heart transplant May 20, 1986 in Houston's Methodist Hospital. He was the 33rd patient to receive such a transplant at that hospital, and looks forward to having his first exam soon.

"I've had very few problems with my new heart and I'm still in really good health," said the soft-spoken owner of a local trucking company. "Once I decided to go ahead with the transplant, I was glad to get rid of the old diseased heart."

The active father of four had been on heart medication one year prior to the transplantation and declined doctors' recommendations that an artificial heart—or transplant—was needed.

"That first artificial heart recipient was in the news at that time. He seemed so sick and confined to bed. I knew I didn't want to live like that," said Burns.

Yet Burns soon opted for a heart transplant when he suffered a heart attack between 2 and 3 a.m. February 6, 1986. "I was so scared but the local paramedics performed miracles," remembered Mrs. Burns. "In fact, we lost Adon three times, but the paramedics brought him back to life each time. Hereford can be grateful that it has such skilled medical experts."

"I don't remember anything about the attack or dying," said Burns. "All I know is what others told me."

Burns was then rushed to an Amarillo hospital where doctors said he would probably live only two-to-six months with the bad heart and would require weekly exams. With this news, Burns learned more about the organ donor program and decided to look into a heart transplant.

Burns was transported from Amarillo to Houston's Methodist Hospital via air taxi at a cost of between $6200-to-$6400. "I almost didn't need a new heart when I heard that price—I nearly had another heart attack!" laughed Burns.

Upon his arrival in Houston February 11, a routine evaluation began to determine whether he was a good candidate for such surgery. Burns was well within the upper age limit of 60 set for potential heart transplant patients along with being in good general health. He remained in the hospital for 21 days and was required to offer written proof that insurance would pay up to $125,000 for the surgery which averages $75,000.

"The insurance verification came within two weeks, so the hospital then allowed my name to be put on the worldwide computer as a hopeful heart recipient," said Burns. "They have a strict rule that no transplants will be done without such insurance information, and your name will not appear on the computer until that time."

Once stabilized, the couple rented an apartment near the hospital and met other transplant hopefuls there. They became close friends with patients who came from places as diverse as Abilene, Texas, and Arkansas.

"I was given a beeper and told to remain within a 50-mile radius of the hospital," said Burns. "The doctors wanted me to stay nearby so the beeper would alert me if a heart was available."

Unfortunately, the beeper went off a few times, sounding a false alarm. "Once the beeper went off while we were in a restaurant," said Mrs. Burns. "That really created a lot of excitement!"

"We would have had a great time since we got to go sightseeing, but with the upcoming operation hanging over our heads, it wasn't much fun," said Mrs. Burns. "The people of Hereford were so generous in their donations toward Adon's medical expenses that they practically paid for our apartment rental."

Thus, Mr. and Mrs. Burns waited, waited, and waited. They knew that a heart would have to be found that matched Burns' blood and tissue type, and the donor would have to be the approximate height and weight as Burns, and be 35 years of age or less.

"It was frustrating being there for so long, waiting for a suitable heart. The sickest patients had first priority, so some patients waited less time for their transplants. It was a hard wait; sometimes we wondered if I'd ever get a new heart," said Burns.

Finally, in mid-May, the call came. A heart was available from a 26-year-old male who weighed within two pounds of Burns.

"I weighed 232 lbs. and the boy weighed 230," said Burns. "My doctor flew to San Antonio to get the heart, knowing that it would have to be transplanted within four-to-six hours. Meanwhile, I checked into the hospital and they began getting me ready for surgery."

Once the heart arrived, chilled in ice water, the surgery began. According to an interview with transplant surgeon George Noon, interviewed in "The Journal," published quarterly by the Methodist Hospital in Houston, sewing in the heart is one of the quickest parts of the operation. "The time from clamping the aorta, removing the diseased heart, and sewing in the new one takes from 35-60 minutes. But the postoperative procedure in the operating room may take longer, from one to three hours, if the team must support the heart and control bleeding," said Young. "A cardiologist is present at this time to monitor the functioning of the heart and to assist the anesthesiologists in administering heart medications."

Burns' heart transplant took four-and-one-half hours after which he remained in Houston's Methodist Hospital 16 days.

"The doctors regularly ran heart biopsies on me to watch for signs of rejection or infection," said Burns. According to the Journal, heart patients are biopsied 48 hours after surgery and then weekly until they are stable. Later, the routine is stretched to every two months, and, eventually, to six to twelve months.

Cyclosporine, an anti-rejection drug, was administered to Burns when signs of rejection appeared. "I was pretty sick for awhile," said Burns. "Then the doctors realized they were treating me in the reverse; usually the body is in worse shape than the new heart, so the heart rejects the body. But in my case, my body was in excellent physical condition so my body rejected the new heart. When the dosage of cyclosporine was changed accordingly, I was fine. The only pain I experienced was soreness in the chest area."

Burns will have to take medication daily for the rest of his life, which includes the $164 per bottle cyclosporine. He is glad, however, to have the $160,000 worth of medical care behind him.

"The doctor cost $5,000 while the surgical team cost $24,000," said Burns. "Now I can look forward to my upcoming May 20 appointment and only a few exams thereafter."

Mr. and Mrs. Burns returned to their home in Hereford the first of July, 1986. "Thank goodness our kids were around to take care of the house and the business while we were gone," said Mrs. Burns. They are the parents of Aubrey Don, Laprell, Jimmy Jack, and Kayla.

"We missed Kayla's high school graduation while we were in Houston," said Burns. "That was hard, but we got to see the videotaped version later."

Burns has returned to fulltime work in his trucking company and feels great. "The only problem I have is that I am short-winded. The doctors cut a nerve from my heart to my brain, so my body works off adrenaline. This accounts for a 2-3 minute timelag before the brain tells my heart to speed up. I used to walk a mile a day after the surgery, but I don't as much anymore."

"We were so grateful to the donor," said Mrs. Burns. "We wrote a thankyou note and procurement letter along with our address which the doctors delivered to the family to protect their anonymity. Then the donor's family had a choice of whether to get in touch with us or not."

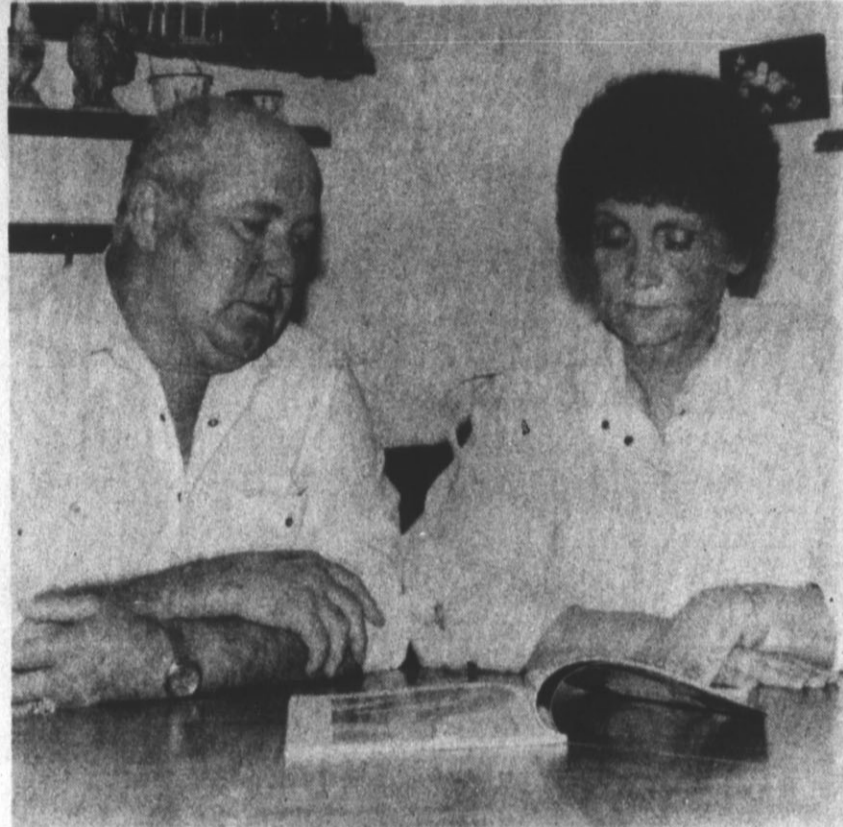

Dr. Noon believes that transplant surgery can extend and improve the quality of life for patients who otherwise would not survive. The problem is the lack of donor organs to transplant. "There will never be enough donor organs for all the candidate who need them," says Noon. "Even now, the supply does not meet the demand."

Adon Burns and his family are big believers in the donor program. "Hopefully, people learned more about the program in last week's National Donor Awareness Week. Maybe my story will reach someone—after all, I'm living proof that an organ donor can save a person's life."

Money To Be Distributed

Lupe Chavez, president of the Chemical People Task Force, gives cash to Marylin Leasure, chairman of the recent Drug Awareness Week poster contest held for fourth through sixth graders in local schools. The prize money will be distributed to the 14 poster winners. Poster boards were donated by Winn's, LoMart, and M.E. Moses.

"Where Good Friends Gather"

A Flair for Design

Matching fabrics in your rooms to the wallpaper is an easy way to achieve an interesting finished look, but consider mixing patterns for even more excitement. There is no limit to the number of patterns you can use as long as you follow a few simple rules when making your selections. Each of the patterns should have compatible colors, though they needn't be limited to only those same colors. For example, your floral may have red, blue, and green, and with that you may use a plaid in red, blue, green, yellow and peach. The most important thing to remember is that the scale or size of the patterns need to be similar. An extremely large check may not blend well with a mini-print floral.

Experiment until you find a pleasing mix that you are comfortable with, but do be adventurous and your rooms will do you credit.

PHILLIP BIRKENFELD, MARY ANN HUND

Couple to wed

Mary Ann Hund of Canyon will become the bride of Phillip Henry Birkenfeld of Amarillo on July 18 in St. Anthony's Catholic Church of Hereford.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hund of Rt. 4, Hereford, and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carol Birkenfeld of Nazareth. A 1985 graduate of Hereford High School, Miss Hund attended West Texas State University in Canyon for one year and is currently working in WTSU's registrar's office.

Birkenfeld, a 1984 graduate of Nazareth High School, attended Amarillo College for two years and is currently attending WTSU while working for Corporate Systems of Amarillo.

On August 18, 1975, an inn keeper in England, received a telephone bill for the equivalent of $4,386,800,000. It was later found that this bill contained "an arithmetical error."

Wertenberger holds design traveling fashion exhibit

Erin Wertenberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Wertenberger of Rt. 1, Hereford, is one of two fashion history teachers responsible for the traveling museum exhibit presented by Encyclopedia Britannica USA. (EBUSA)

The exhibit of 23 mannequins will be displaying fashions spanning the century from 1865 to 1965 throughout shopping malls across the country this year.

Wertenberger, along with Don Stowell, Jr., has worked for years studying, teaching, and designing theatrical costumes while teaching at the University of South Carolina and Florida State University, respectively.

The duo was commissioned by EBUSA to create the exhibit which features 12 showcases of sculptured life-size mannequins which model fashions recreated in intricate historic detail from the Civil War period to the mid-1960s. Costumes and fabric collections at the Smithsonian Institution, Los Angeles County Museum of Art, Brooklyn Museum, Fashion Institute of Technology, Metropolitan Museum of Art and Chicago Historical Society, were among many studied for authenticity and inspiration.

Developments in fashion spotlighted in the exhibit include: Easter, 1865; Christmas, 1875; Fourth of July, 1887; World's Fair, 1893; Thanksgiving, 1903; Valentine's Day, 1910; Armistice Day, 1918; New Year's Eve, 1926; Wedding Day, 1935; V.J. Day, 1945; Prom Night, 1955; and Mother's Day, 1965.

The exhibit, which focuses heavily on women's clothes, also includes men's and children's styles as well. The traveling museum exhibit opened April 1 in New York City and will travel throughout the country for the next five years.

Wertenberger is a 1960 graduate of Hereford High School and has Creative Consulting and Design in Atlanta. He helped design the original sets and costumes of the Palo Duro Canyon production, "Texas."

Yard Sale items needed

Donations are still being accepted by the local Panhandle Community Services Office for their May 16-17 "yard sale."

Deadline for donations has been set for Monday.

Interested persons can take items to the PCS office at 603 E. Park Ave., or they can call 364-5631 for someone to pick up items.

The yard sale will be held to raise money for a community service project sponsored by Panhandle Community Services. The slogan of the PCS is "Helping People Help Themselves", and proceeds from the sale will be used to help people who are not eligible for food stamps or other programs.

Mosquitos

Each female mosquito might bite up to four times during her life span, and in a year that could mean 82,000 bites for every man, woman and child in America. Humans aren't the ladies' only targets, however, since they also bite animals, reptiles and birds. Fortunately, the male mosquito is a vegetarian.

ADOLFO GARCIA JR.

Garcia receives degree

Adolfo Garcia Jr., son of Adolfo and Amelia Garcia of 507 Grand Ave., graduated from St. Mary's University May 3 with a bachelor of arts degree with honors.

The 1981 graduate of Hereford High School was elected as president of Pi Sigma Alpha in January. The organization is a national political science honor society.

He is also a member of the Hall Council and the Rattler Tennis Team. He plans to attend St. Mary's University Law School in the fall.

People once believed hibernating bears could be found by following the humming sound they made in their sleep.

It Ain't Home Cookin'

But Neither Is Mom

Every now and then someone should cook for mom. So, let us do the honors. Nothing can replace the TLC mom puts into everything she cooks, but we can come close.

Treat mom to a Sirloin Stockade® meal this Mother's Day and see if she doesn't agree. And just to make sure she enjoys her day off, we'll give her a free orchid corsage, while supplies last.

This Sunday only, we'll be open from 10:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. just to say, Happy Mother's Day!

Toujours Amis Club installs officers

Patti Brown, president of Toujours Amis Study Club, installed officers for the 1987-88 club year using the theme of colors when the group met recently.

Marylyn Leasure will serve as president; Rhonda Nieman, vice president; Shannon Hagar, secretary; Cindy Cole, treasurer; Camille Williamson, reporter; and Karen Keeling, historian.

Also, during the business session, Brown read correspondence from the Hereford Independent School District asking for input on the search for a new school superintendent. Debbie Donaldson volunteered to represent the club at the meeting.

A letter was read for the Women's Forum for the Amarillo area and a thank you was extended from Keeling.

Members were invited to attend graduation ceremonies at West Texas State University for club member, Kim Bigham. The event will begin at 4 p.m. May 16 in the Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum.

Also, St. Thomas Episcopal Church Women invited the members to participate in their annual Tour of Tables competition planned from 2-5 p.m. June 7 at the Hereford Community Church.

It was decided that the yearbook committee will meet at 6 p.m. May 19 at First Christian Church. It was also announced that the club's scholarship committee will meet soon to review student applications.

Rhonda Nieman called the roll which was answered by Cole, Ange Lauderbach, Donaldson, Keeling, Lori Hall, Donna Tidmore, Cindy Black, Terri Laing, Bigham, Williamson, Hagar, Leasure, Brown, Liessa Lewis, Becky Reinart, Kathy Carthel, Nannette Asnby, Elaine McNutt and Marsha Winget.

Home security discussed

The Ladies Auxiliary to VFW Post 4818 met in regular session recently with Marie Goheen presiding.

The meeting was preceded by a supper for VFW and Auxiliary members. Special guests were Butch and Brenda Glenn and their two children, Jennifer and Ryan. Because Officer Glenn had helped with Lite-A-Bike, safety chairman Betty Boggs presented him with a certificate of appreciation citation. After the supper, he presented a program on home security.

During the business session, correspondence was read. Plans were made for the District 13 convention to be held in Littlefield on May 23-24. Plans were finalized for the installation of officers to be held at our next meeting, May 18.

Members present were: Betty Boggs, Martha Bridges, Essie Martin, Erma Loving, Ruth Morris, Erma Murphey, Doris Wilson, Mabel & Vicki Yocum and Marie Goheen.

This Is How To Bathe A Dog

Pre-schoolers from Ruth Warner Memorial Day Care Center look on with interest as Dr. Arron Hutton of Hutto Veterinary Clinic explains how to bathe a dog properly. During the field trip, Dr. Hutto also gave the children tips on how to care for their pets. The event was held in conjunction with Be Kind To Animals Week which concluded Saturday. Helping with the demonstration were the doctor's assistant, Carolyn Hays, and one of the center's teachers, Julie Jorde at right.

Senior citizens to be honored in May

Special events are in the planning stage for Hereford Senior Citizens to commemorate May as Older Texan Month, according to Marge Daniels, executive director of the Hereford Senior Citizen Center.

Senior Citizen Roundup Day is scheduled for Saturday, June 13, in Hereford and will offer barbecue and trimmings, programs, and a band. The event will climax May's activities.

Texans over the age of 60 and the senior centers that sponsor many programs and activities in their behalf have been honored by Governor Clements in proclamations designating May as Older Texans

Blinderman to present program

Low sodium, low fat, and low calorie cookery will be presented Tuesday by Mary Blinderman of Southwestern Public Service Company. The program is open to the public free of charge and will begin at 2 p.m. at the Reddy Room at the local Southwestern Public Service Company office.

Mrs. Blinderman is a marketing representative for the company and will use electrical appliances in presenting the special interest program. Free recipe brochures will be distributed to program participants.

Please call the County Extension Office 364-3573 by 5 p.m. Monday to assure a reservation and to help us plan for adequate materials.

Month and May 10-16 as Senior Center-Week.

Clements, in his Older Texans Month Proclamation, called today's seniors "our mentors, the standards by which we judge our own endeavors" and noted that "without their guidance, the state of Texas could never have achieved its present stature."

In lauding the state's more than 500 senior centers, Clements observed that these centers are the focal points for provision of social services funded by the Older Americans Act of 1965 and administered by the Texas Department on Aging. These services include meals, transportation, health screening, exercise and educational activities.

"Senior center are unique, valuable assets that deserve our support at the state, local and individual levels," Clements said. "We who have benefitted so richly from the wisdom, love and hard work of older Texans can find no better way to express our appreciation than continued support of the Texas senior center network."

Many communities, area agencies on aging and senior centers have planned special activities to commemorate Older Texans Month and Senior Center Week. Group and individual visits to senior centers are also being suggested as a way to celebrate Senior Center Week.

For the address of your local area agency on aging or nearest senior center, contact the Texas Department on Aging at 1-800-252-9240.

Competition Winners

McBride, 1st place for model house; Daniel Carrizales, 1st place for bread box; Andrew Tijerina, 2nd place for mini pool table; Domingo Zepeda, 1st place for curio cabinet; Bubba Long, 1st place for model house; Brian Wilson, 2nd place for bread box; Zane Watts, 2nd place for curio cabinet and 1st place for model house; and Freddie Martinez, 1st place and Best in State for wall watch-clock.

Musical Display

Fifth grade students at Bluebonnet Intermediate recently participated in making homemade musical instruments which will be displayed at Deaf Smith County Library for the month of May. Mrs. Martinez is the music teacher who lead the students in studies of the instruments of symphony.

Bowlers may test skills, benefit epileptics

Area bowlers may test their skills during the June 13 Bowi-a-thon which will benefit High Plains Epilepsy Association.

The third annual event will be held from 2:30-5:30 p.m. at The Grand Bowl located at 2109 Grand in Amarillo.

Proceeds will benefit epileptic patients and their families by paying for medical services, treatment, supplies, etc. The High Plains Epilepsy Association served 21 clients and 54 family members in Deaf Smith County in 1986.

Teams of five persons per team will bowl three games during the event, with each team representing their county. If no team is available, individuals may bowl.

Each team or individual may get pledges per pin, per game, or a flat amount to benefit the Epilepsy Association. A minimum of $50 per bowler will serve as the entry fee.

Deadline for entry in the bowl-a-thon is June 5. For more information or sign-up sheets, call volunteer Janet Moody at 364-0717 after 5 p.m. or Teresa Soliz at 372-3891.

Xi Epsilon Alpha plans events

Members of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met Tuesday in the home of Peggy Hyer.

Communications included a letter from the resigning administrators of Girlstown asking for the chapter's continuing support under the new association with Cal Farley's Boys Ranch.

It was decided that for the chapter's "graduation shower" for the residents of Girlstown, members would box up stylish clothes that they are discarding and bring them to the next meeting.

An invitation was read from the St. Thomas Episcopal Church Women asking for participation in their annual Tour of Tables competition set from 2-5 p.m. June 7 at Community Center. Also, a letter was read from Big Brothers Big Sisters asking for support.

A letter requesting member-at-large status from Debe Graves was read by President Charla Edwards and a thank you was extended by the rosebud chairman for those who helped furnish meals during the year. Also, appreciation was extended by Hyer for the honor of being chosen as the chapter's Girl of The Year and for the gift.

The next meeting will be the chapter's annual birthday party May 19 which will have a Hawaiian theme.

A successful ways and means project was discussed which was a luncheon for the wives of Lions Club members May 2. It was catered by chapter members at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center. Susan Shaw was commended for her organization of the event.

Due to the change of status of Graves, a new treasurer, Teresa Peiffer was elected by acclamation. Also, three city council representatives were elected. They included Sharon Bodner, Ruby Sanders and Kay Williams.

The next council meeting will be Monday at the Hereford Community Center. It was also announced that the city council auction will be held May 18 at the Community Center.

For the program, members exchanged favorite recipes.

Those attending included Edwards, Connie Matthews, Hyer, Shaw, Jody Blackwell and Mary Brinkman.

Scholarship to be offered

Applications are being distributed for the $600 scholarship offered to a graduating Hereford High School senior by the American Legion.

Interested students may obtain applications from the HHS school counselor or may apply directly to the American Legion, P.O. Box 1363, Hereford, Texas 79045. They may also contact the members of the scholarship committee including Bob Lohr, Marvin Kearns, Garth Thomas, Bill Shelly, and Miles Caudle.

Four to graduate

Four Hereford residents will be in the graduating class of Amarillo College May 15 at 8 p.m. at the Civic Center Coliseum.

Included are Susan Jane Edwards, 224 Elm, an associate degree in nursing major; Daun Michelle Murray, 44 Long and Jesus Suarez, Rt. 1. Box 314-C, both vocational nursing majors; and Suzy Wall, 817 Country Club, a commercial art major.

There will be 521 students graduating in Amarillo College's 58th commencement program. Dean Max Sherman of the LBJ School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas, Austin will be the keynote speaker.

Summer I registration will be June 4 with classes starting June 5 at Amarillo College. Registration will be in the College Union Building on the Washington Street Campus. For additional information contact the registrar's office.

Annual Funfest slated in Amarillo May 23-25

Amarillo's annual Funfest will be held at Thompson Park on May 23-25. The Memorial Day festival is co-sponsored by the Junior League of Amarillo and the Amarillo City Parks and Recreation Department.

This year Funfest celebrates its 10th birthday with ceremonies opening the park Saturday at 12 noon. Complimentary cake will be served to the public and free balloons will be handed out to the children. There will be candles, balloons, and music galore to salute Funfest's birthday. Funfest, a three-day event, will be open daily from noon until 8 p.m. Admission to the park is $3 with children 12 and under admitted free. Senior Citizens will be honored this year by Funfest with a $2 admission and lapel buttons to designate them as special guests.

Several special events are planned for Funfest according to Funfest co-chairmen for this year's event, Linda Williams and Helen Shelton. The second annual Amarillo Funfest Fiddler's Contest will be held Saturday, May 23, at the Funfest Stage. The event will begin at 1 p.m. and cash prizes totaling $1,000 will be awarded. Sunday will be packed with special events such as the Bellamy Brothers making two appearances on the Funbowl Stage at 5 and 6 p.m. The Bellamy Brothers are known for their songs "Let Your Love Flow", "Redneck Girl", "When I'm Away From You", and many more. Mason's Bicycle Shop is sponsoring the GT Freestyling Bicycle Team for Funfest this year on Sunday at 1:00 and 4:00 p.m. Funfest participants can have their picture made with Dallas Cowboy, Bill Bates, a CBS Soap Star, a Harlem Globetrotter, a NBC prime time star and others. The Funfest will again find teams trying to overpower one another. Pool Races will be held between the Amarillo High Schools. These races will be a rubber raft race and some type of relay.

The Tenth Annual Funfest Marathon and Half Marathon will be sponsored by Budco, Inc., and the Junior League of Amarillo. The starting time is 7 a.m., Saturday May 23. First place winners will receive a silver tray. All finishers will be eligible for drawings for trips to New Orleans, San Francisco, and the Caribbean.

Other activities at Funfest include Fantasyland, the children's area with free creative activities for children up to the age of 12 and non-profit community groups offering food and games. These groups use funds raised at Funfest for community oriented services or projects. A total of 23 community groups will participate in games, including face painting, pie throw, dart balloon throw, pillow fight, aerial run-away and pony rides. Funfest will have a variety of food sponsored by approximately 34 non-profit community groups including steak-on-a-stick, pocket sandwiches, corn dogs, steak fingers, baked potatoes and more.

Deadline to enter teen pageant May 18

The state headquarters for the Miss Texas Teenager Scholarship Pageant has announced the Date of June 27 for the annual pageant. This year's extravaganza will take place at the Dallas Hilton Inn, located at 5600 North Central Expressway in Dallas.

Interested participants between the ages of 13-17 years of age are now being accepted for the state competition. Contestants will be selected by a group of major agencies working with young ladies in the print/commercial advertising field. Photos are now being accepted for qualification. A fee of $10 must accompany your photo for processing. Photos are to be submitted to Miss Texas Teenager Scholarship Pageant, P.O. Box 140339 Dallas, Texas 75214.

Each young lady submitting a photo will be notified by mail regarding acceptance. An official tropical pool party has been scheduled for Friday evening, June 26. This will serve as the official get-acquainted party and press event. Saturday's competition will begin with a private interview with the official judges, casual wear competition consisting of an official Miss Texas Teenager T-shirt and white shorts and completing the competition will be the evening gown competition to be held on Saturday evening.

For more information call the state office at (214)328-5437. Deadline for photos to be submitted is Monday, May 18.

Bride-Elect Honored

A bridal shower honoring Kimberly Dondlinger, bride-elect of Art Reinauer, was held in the E.B. Black House recently. Honored guests included, from left, Mrs. Rick Miller, mother of the bride; Mrs. Joe Reinauer, Sr., mother of the prospective bridegroom; Mrs. Kelli Weaver, bridal attendant; Mrs. Austin Rose, a hostess; and bride-elect Kimberly Dondlinger.

Spring Recruitment Tea set Monday

The public is invited to attend a come-and-go Recruitment Tea to be held on Monday, at the Community Center Ballroom from 3 to 5:30 p.m. The Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Council will be sponsoring the special get-acquainted time for those who would like more information on the Extension Homemakers Organization in Deaf Smith County.

Representative from each of the nine Extension Clubs and their members will be present for the informal event and will provide information on their clubs and extend invitations to all who wish to join their clubs. If there are those interested in the organizations but can not be present for the tea, please call the County Extension Office for information.

The members extend an invitation to any resident of Deaf Smith County to attend and become aware of the opportunities extended through the Extension Homemakers Organization.

Films, programs offered

Some 80 films are offered to local civic clubs and other organizations by the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Safety programs may accompany some films and are designed to increase public awareness on a variety of subjects.

Some of the film subjects include drinking and driving, safety belts, drugs, bicycle safety, motorcycle safety, defensive driving, school bus safety, pedestrian safety, defense for women, first aid, theft and shoplifting, gun safety and police recruiting and training.

Dondlinger feted with shower

Kimberly Dondlinger, bride-elect of Art Reinauer, was feted with a bridal shower in the E.B. Black House last Sunday afternoon.

Greeting guests with the honoree were: Mrs. Rick Miller of Amarillo, mother of the bride-elect; Mrs. Mary Dondlinger of Guymon, Ok., grandmother of the bride-elect; Mrs. Kelli Weaver of Amarillo, bridal attendant; Mrs. Joe Reinauer, Sr., of Hereford, mother of the prospective bridegroom; Mrs. Lara Reinauer of Albuquerque, N.M., niece of the prospective bridegroom; and various hostesses.

Hostesses served refreshments which included nuts, mints, a fruit arrangement, assorted cookies, and punch.

The serving table was laid with an undercloth of yellow polished cotton, covered with a white organza cloth embroidered with twining flowers and leaves. Punch, served from a silver punch bowl, was poured into crystal cups and was located at one end of the table. The nuts, mints, and cookies were served in crystal and silver bowls and trays.

Placed on the other end of the table was a three-tiered fruit arrangement consisting of canteloupe balls, strawberries, and pineapple chunks set in canteloupe bowls. Whole pineapples were attached to the tiers and bunches of white and purple grapes cascaded down the sides of the tiers to the table. Centering the table was a spring bouquet of lilies, Gerber daisies, Shasta daisies, Dutch iris, Figi mums, and fern arranged in a grapevine basket.

The bride's book, a feather pen, and a bouquet of Snowball bush branches in a cut-glass pitcher sat atop the registry table.

The bride-elect was presented a five-piece set of LeCreuset cookware by the hostesses.

Hostesses included: Sharon Cramer, Jane Dameron, Betty Drake, Helen Eades, Margaret Formby, Randy Griffin, Kathy Guseman, Nancy Josseland, Helen Kleuskens, Lois Lomenick, Shirley McCulloch, Ann Meyer, Helen Rose, June Rudd, Meredith Wilcox, and Marian Yosten.

The wedding date for Miss Dondlinger and Mr. Reinauer is set for June 6.

Date set for annual event

The June 7 Tour of Tables approaches with local residents reminded to sign up for exhibition of their crafts, etc.

The annual event, set from 2-5 p.m., is sponsored by the St. Thomas Episcopal Church Women and will be held in the Hereford Community Center.

For further information contact Tour of Tables chairpersons, Mary Waldrep at 364-2274 or Meredith Wilcox at 364-0195.

Competition is open to everyone and will provide participants the opportunity to set a table depicting their own individuality. Prizes will be awarded for different categories.

Magenta

Magenta, the brilliant red aniline dye derived from coal tar, was discovered in 1859. It was named for that year's bloody battle of Magenta, when the Austrians were defeated by the French and the Sardinians.
