Two Texas nuke plants among worst in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) - An anti-nuclear consumer group says Texas' two nuclear power plants are among the 50 worst commercial power plants in the nation.

Public Citizen's Critical Mass Energy Project, in a report issued Thursday, said Comanche Peak near Glen Rose and the South Texas Project nuclear plant near Bay City were among the "lemons of the nuclear industry."

The watchdog group, founded by Ralph Nader, ranked Comanche Peak Unit 1 35th on its list. Unit 2 wasn't rated because it wasn't in operation for the period surveyed.

The South Texas Project's Unit 1 was ranked 39th. Unit 2 didn't make the list, examining the 50 worst of the nation's 111 nuclear reactors.

Spokesmen for the two utilities that operate the Texas reactors accepted some of Public Citizen's findings. But they said the report, which uses data from 1990 to 1992, doesn't take into account improvements made by the two relatively new plants. Unit 1 at Comanche Peak, operated by TU Electric, went on line in 1990. Houston Lighting & Power Co., which operates the South Texas Project, began operations at Unit 1 in 1988 and Unit 2 in 1989.

"It is not unusual that during early operations nuclear plants have more problems," said TU Electric spokesman David Fiorelli. "Probably the largest reason why the overall ranking (for Comanche Peak) came out where it was because of problems that occurred early in operations."

"We have improved significantly and in fact would be above average if data had been for 1992 only," he added.

HL&P spokesman Glen Walker conceded that the South Texas reactors' recent performance should place them on the "Nuclear Lemons" list, but questioned data for earlier years.

"We are experiencing some problems at the units now," he said. "But during the years '90, '91 and '92 our units were performing beautifully, setting records."

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission last month placed the South Texas plant on its watch list for facilities that deserve close scrutiny because of poor safety and operating records. The two South Texas reactors have been idle since February because of repeated equipment failures.

The Texas nuclear plants tied for third worst in the nation in number of times their reactor emergency core cooling systems were activated, Public Citizen said. Comanche Peak

Unit 1 had three safety system actuations in 1990, five in 1991 and none in 1992. STP Unit 1 had two in 1990, six in 1991 and none in 1992.

The Texas reactors also ranked among the worst in the nation in frequency of emergency plant shutdowns - with Comanche Peak ranked fourth, STP Unit 1 eighth and STP Unit 2 rated 10th. Comanche Peak had 12 emergency shutdowns from 1990 to 1992; STP Unit 1 had 10; and Unit 2 had nine.

Comanche Peak ranked 14th worst in the nation in number of violations reported to the NRC, with 25 over the 1990-1992 period. STP ranked 29th. STP's Unit 1 ranked 19th worst in terms of forced outage rates. In the period surveyed, the South Texas reactor was off-line 16.6 percent of the time because of an abnormal condition, the study said. Comanche Peak Unit 1 had a forced outage average of 8.1 percent, well below the industry average of 10.4 percent. STP's Unit 2 was forced off-line 11.2 percent of the time in the three-year period, the survey found.

The Texas plants weren't among the costliest to operate in the nation, Public Citizen said. Of the 111 reactors surveyed, Comanche Peak ranked 82nd in operation and maintenance costs, while STP ranked 93rd.

Economic summit ends with praise for Yeltsin, more money for Russia

TOKYO (AP) - Leaders of the world's major economic powers bestowed warm praise and the promise of another $3 billion on Russian President Boris Yeltsin today as they ended their annual gathering with general promises to chart a more prosperous path for the world economy.

President Clinton pronounced the 19th annual summit of the seven major industrial democracies "extremely successful," citing the Russian aid package and a breakthrough in trade talks as its major accomplishments.

Yeltsin came to the summit - his second time - to stress the need for Western investment and said it was time for Russia to be treated as an equal partner of the West.

He ignored formalities when he met the leaders, striding up to Japanese Prime Minister Kichi Miyazawa, the host, and booming "privyet," the Russian colloquialism for "hi there."

The meeting came after the summit's formal conclusion, a distinction made by organizers that underscored Russia's status as a guest and not a member.

Even after the summit ended today, U.S. and Japanese negotiators kept working in hopes of reaching an elusive market-opening "framework" agreement for future U.S.-Japanese economic relations.

Clinton, who hoped to strike a deal before he leaves on Saturday for South Korea, added a dinner tonight with Miyazawa in a high-level effort to resolve differences. The United States believes an agreement will reduce its nearly $50 billion trade deficit with the Japanese.

"I think that everyone concedes that this summit has exceeded expectations," Clinton said after joining leaders of Japan, Britain, Germany, France, Canada and Italy in issuing an economic communique that expressed determination to spur global growth and trade.

That upbeat assessment aside, the final communique called for modest steps and amounted to an acknowledgment of limited maneuvering room in troubled economic times.

"You cannot expect these summits to resolve the world's problems," said Italian Prime Minister Carlo Ciampi. "It's important, also for the future, that we don't have too high expectations."

British Prime Minister John Major said there was "rather less pomp" this week and he predicted that next year's session in Naples, Italy, would have even less in favor of more time for informal brainstorming.

Clinton cited help for Russia as one of the summit's major achievements. The leaders endorsed a $28.4 billion aid package that had been put together in April and approved a new $3 billion fund to help the transfer of state-owned businesses to the private sector.

That was less, however, than the $4 billion privatization fund Clinton initially proposed.

In their six-page closing economic communique, the summit leaders praised Russia's "courageous reform efforts under the leadership of President Yeltsin" and warned that Western aid would be jeopardized unless the Russian leader continues making progress to get inflation and

Alleged horse thief ends up going to wrong lock-up

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) - When a 36-year-old woman commandeered a police officer's horse, she thought the theft would land her next to a friend serving time in the Galveston City Jail.

She got more than she bargained for. After Roslyn Jean Gillrese was denied a visit to her incarcerated friend Wednesday she figured that getting arrested would be the best way to see the prisoner.

So she hopped on a police officer's horse outside the jail and rode off.

A few minutes later, mounted patrol officer Carmen Parker walked out from the jail and realized her horse was missing. At first, she thought other officers were kidding around.

But Ms. Parker heard a passerby yell that a woman had trotted off. Moments later, just a few blocks from the City Jail, police rounded up the rustler and Ms. Parker ran to the scene to help rescue her steed.

"She wanted to get arrested," acting patrol commander Kim Onove told the Galveston Daily News.

Ms. Gillrese told police she stole the horse so she would be sent to the City Jail. She said she wanted to be with her friend, who was being held on a misdemeanor charge.

But that's where the alleged horse thief's plan went astray. The City Jail holds only people charged with misdemeanors. Stealing a horse in Texas is a felony.

So the alleged horse thief was sent to the Galveston County Jail. "Maybe she has some friends at the County Jail," Ms. Onove said.

Police department going to new cars, reflecting logo

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

The Hereford Police Department has added some new weapons to its arsenal of crime-fighting tools.

They are vehicles, some designed for high visibility and one designed to get the word out about alcohol and drug abuse.

In April, the department's DARE program received a van from West Texas Rural Telephone.

That van has been repainted and the interior remodeled for use by DARE Officer Terry Brown, who will teach the Drug Abuse Resistance Education curriculum in the junior and senior highs this fall.

He will use the vehicle to carry materials and to make DARE presentations.

Work on the van was done by numerous community contributors and volunteers.

In addition, as part of its regular program of replacing patrol vehicles, the department has added two brand new Ford Crown Victorias, which have been decorated with a new department logo.

The bright blue and red design, said Chief David Wagner, was created to give the cars a fresh look and to increase their visibility at night.

The reflective markings are designed to stand out, Wagner said, and can be spotted from afar.

The department operates six marked patrol vehicles and one DARE car.

The DARE car will be assigned to new DARE officer Robert Holberg, who has been hired from San Angelo to teach the curriculum at the six elementary schools.

To date, Wagner said, two new patrol vehicles and Holberg's DARE car have received the new markings.

The markings on the other patrol cars will be changed as they are replaced.

Wagner said police cars last the department about two years, racking up some 75,000 to 80,000 miles in that time.

They are traded in at that time, he said, because they begin needing extra service and repair work by then.

Besides, the chief continued, when the vehicles are traded, that 80,000 is treated like 150,000 miles by dealers, because the cars are driven solely in town.

"We're putting a little bit more than 3,000 miles a month on them -- and we're talking about city miles," Wagner said.

The oldest patrol cars the department has now are 1992 models which are scheduled for replacement next year.

Roof work

Workers labor in the summer heat on the roof of the Stanton Educational Service Center to install a new roof. The project, which will cost the Hereford Independent School District $287,849, is being done by A-Lert Corp. of Erie, Kan. The main building received a modified bitumen roof, while the remaining buildings are receiving a standing seam steel roof that is shown here being installed. Doing the work this week are, from left, Ken Wiles, Roger Meeks, Stan Rakes and Russell Groves. In the foreground is Tom Nance.

Mineral Wells is fifth stop in trek across Texas in search of home

MINERAL WELLS, Texas (AP) - Freed child killer Raul Meza continued his trek across Texas in search of a home with the latest stop at Mineral Wells.

Meza was moved Thursday to a minimum security detention facility in Mineral Wells, about 50 miles west of Fort Worth.

Protests began almost immediately after state officials moved Meza into the North Texas town. Similar protests were launched earlier after state officials tried to place him in halfway houses in El Paso, Uvalde and Wichita Falls and at a house his mother rented for him in San Antonio.

Meza was moved from San Antonio on Wednesday. State officials initially refused to reveal where he was going next, but before the end of the day, word leaked out he was headed for Mineral Wells.

The Texas Department of Criminal Justice confirmed Thursday that Meza was in Mineral Wells, adding that the move was only a temporary one.

In a prepared statement, the department's Pardons and Paroles Division said that Meza was taken to the Fort Wolters Industrial Complex east of Mineral Wells for a three-week orientation program that includes a job search workshop.

"Concept Inc. is situated outside the metropolitan area and is not near a neighborhood or school, which was a major concern of citizens and public officials in Meza's previous placements," the parole board said.

"The division is still looking at other viable alternatives for residence," the statement added, saying that Meza's placement was "not permanent."

Jane Catrett of Mineral Wells, a leader in the latest protest, said it was inconceivable that officials did not warn residents that Meza would be arriving.

Jim Edgington, the facility director, did not immediately return a telephone call Thursday afternoon from The Associated Press.

Residents in each protest have expressed outrage that Meza could be freed after serving only 11 years of a 30-year sentence.

his government's budget deficit under control.

The summit leaders also pledge to intensify their efforts to jump-start a stalled world economy.

However beyond vague promises for better coordination, the summit leaders committed to no specific actions. The United States had been pressing the world's other two economic superpowers - Japan and Germany - to agree to adopt more stimulative economic policies including more government spending in Japan and faster interest rate cuts in Germany.

But both nations resisted, arguing that they had already gone as far as they could for the time being without running the risk of higher inflation.

Originally, the United States had hoped that the final economic document would call for the summit countries to pursue policies that would get their growth rates up to a combined annual rate of 3 percent, about double the dismal performance of recent years.

However, the final document included no such target because of objections by Japan and Germany. The final communique also glossed over differences on trade.

The summit leaders for the fourth straight year repeated a pledge to wrap up global free trade talks by December. Officials insisted this year's target was realistic because of negotiating progress this week in Tokyo.

But even here, in what was probably the summit's only true breakthrough, there were hints of trouble down the road.

French President Francois Mitterand told reporters he had insisted that the final communique include the language "nothing is agreed until everything is agreed," a reference to France's continued unhappiness at proposed sharp cuts in farm subsidies.

Mississippi flood taking heavy toll

Evacuation continues along banks of river

By The Associated Press
The march toward higher ground continued in cities along the bloated Mississippi River and its tributaries as more rain forced the muddy waters higher, and weakened levees either broke or were topped.

About 7,000 people were under evacuation orders today in Missouri as water spread between the Mississippi and Missouri rivers in St. Charles County.

Officials ordered 4,000 people to evacuate Thursday after two more levees broke north of St. Peters and St. Charles, said Bob Armour, spokesman for the county's emergency operations.

Across the Mississippi in west-central Illinois, National Guard units and the Army Corps of Engineers ran bulldozers around the clock to shore up a 52-mile levee at risk of bursting its entire length.

About 2,000 people in several threatened communities were evacuated.

Thousands of others have been forced from their homes in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Minnesota since heavy rains began engorging the Mississippi and its tributaries in June.

The flooding has left 15 people dead and federal officials estimate it has caused more than $1 billion in damage so far to property and crops.

President Clinton said he will ask Congress next week to approve emergency aid for flooding victims. Parts of Wisconsin and Minnesota have already been declared federal disaster areas.

Governors from several flood-stricken states were to speak with Vice President Al Gore this morning in a telephone conference call.

At Davenport, Iowa, the Missis-pi hit a record high of 22 1/2 feet Thursday. But no major levee breaks were reported, despite morning thunderstorms that dumped as much as 3 inches of rain across parts of Iowa and Nebraska.

"They do feel they're holding their own at this particular time," said Mary Gieselman, emergency management coordinator in Louisa County, Iowa. Sandbagging was continuing, she said, adding, "We're not out of the woods."

Flooding in Missouri worsened Thursday. Levees broke or were overtopped from Alexandria in extreme northeast Missouri to St. Louis.

Though downtown St. Louis is protected by floodgates to levels up to 52 feet, high water spilled into low-lying areas south of downtown. The river swelled to 40.1 feet on Thursday and was expected to crest next week at 45 feet, which is 15 feet above flood stage.

Alexandria was covered by 8 to 10 feet of water and the town's 500 residents were evacuated Wednesday. More levees failed, but there was nothing to be done but let the water go where it wants to, said Hans Huenink, a Missouri Water Patrol spokesman.

"There's no preventative measures anyone can take up there," he said.

Farther north, flood waters were receding. But Jim Franklin, Minnesota's director of state emergency services, said thunderstorms continue to prompt requests for sandbagging and pumps.

"We are starting in the recovery phase, and then a moment later we find ourselves back in the response phase," he said.

Arkansas resident is big winner in lottery

AUSTIN (AP) - Rick Wilson is lucky in more ways than one.

On Thursday he collected the first installment of his $16.3 million winnings in the record $48.9 million Lotto Texas.

The Loneoke, Ark., resident was lucky enough to be working in Texas when he bought his ticket, since possession of a lottery ticket in Arkansas is a crime.

He's also lucky because his jackpot more than makes up for the $7,000 winning lottery ticket he lost seven months ago playing the Illinois lottery.

Now Wilson, 37, said he plans on taking a long fishing trip.

"I'm going fishing around the world. The Bahamas, Alaska. Anywhere where there is a fish in the water. That's what retired people do," he said.

Lynette Nichols of Dallas, also claimed a share of the jackpot.

A third winning ticketholder from Corpus Christi had not been confirmed Thursday, lottery officials said.

Mrs. Nichols, a 44-year-old bookkeeper and secretary at her brother's roofing company, said she plans to buy fishing boats for her husband, Jimmy, and parents, William and Ruth.

Mrs. Nichols, who has six children, said she also plans to go back to work.

She said she was playing bingo when she found out she had won lotto.

"I looked at my tickets, and looked across at my mom and said, 'I got all six numbers on the Lotto.' Then I jumped up and screamed, 'I got it.' It was better than yelling 'Bingo,'" she said.

Wilson, a bachelor, said when he found out he matched all six numbers, he immediately decided to quit his job installing aircraft interiors at Chrysler Technologies in Waco.

After picking up his lottery check, he said he was going to Dallas to buy a Corvette and then drive home to Arkansas.

The winners received checks of $816,396, an amount they will receive annually for the next 19 years.

Mrs. Nichols used the "quick-pick" option which allows the lottery computer to randomly produce six numbers, while Wilson rolled dice to get his picks.

Quilts for auction

Sandy Shirley, executive secretary of King's Methodist Home, and the Rev. Lanny Wheeler, director of pastoral care, show off one of the many quilts that will be auctioned this weekend at the home's annual Founder's Barbecue. The quilt auction and dinner will be held beginning at 5 p.m. Saturday at the home, 400 Ranger. Tickets for the dinner are $10 each or $30 for a family of four. The auction will be held at 6 p.m. For information, call the home at 364-0661.

Pro-life group targets doctors in anti-abortion picket campaign

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) - Letters sent to San Francisco Bay-area doctors on the eve of Operation Rescue's anti-abortion protests begin ominously: "You have been identified as an abortionist."

The missives - part of a national "Cities of Rescue" campaign - go on to demand that the 15 doctors quit performing abortions or risk waking up to protesters outside their homes.

"If they don't stop, we will be publicly picketing them in their neighborhoods," Operation Rescue spokeswoman Sue Finn said.

San Jose is but one of several cities targeted for 10 days of revival-like rallies and street demonstrations, beginning tonight. The others are Philadelphia, Cleveland, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Dallas-Ft. Worth, Jackson, Miss. and Orlando-Melbourne, Fla.

The protest sites will be announced at the previous night's rally in each city, leaders said. Meanwhile, abortion rights groups readied plans to ensure the clinics stay open, and police prepared to handle the possibility of confrontations.

Clergy members appealed to both sides to avoid violence.

Operation Rescue leaders have said their demonstrations are prayerful and nonviolent, although they have been characterized by mass arrests. Two summers ago, police arrested more than 2,700 demonstrators during a 46-day clinic blockade in Wichita, Kan.

"What I've read in Operation Rescue's fund-raising mailings is that they plan to make the 'Cities of Refuge' protests bigger than Wichita," said Diana Harvey, a spokeswoman for Planned Parenthood in St. Paul, Minn.

She said her clinic has increased its security force, installed video cameras on the roof and sent staff members to self-defense courses.

Minnesota abortion rights activists also have trained 2,000 volunteers in nonviolent clinic defense and to act as escorts.

Cleveland Mayor Michael R. White said his administration would remain neutral but would enforce the law. He declined to discuss specific police plans, but said the city is prepared to ask for court intervention "if it gets to a point where it becomes unstable."

Mississippi's Operation Rescue leaders are planning for about 500 people to show up at nightly rallies at Jackson churches, spokeswoman Michelle Johns said.

Dr. Thomas Tucker, who owns one of Jackson's two abortion clinics, said he has 20 abortions scheduled during the protests.

"We're not going to close," he said. "That would be giving in."

The doctor at the city's other clinic will be gone during most of the protests, but the clinic will remain open for other services, said Gail Chadwick, a spokeswoman for Pro-Choice Mississippi.

In San Jose, Operation Rescue plans to have 500 protesters in the streets on weekdays and 1,000 or more at weekend rallies.

"We prefer not to be arrested," Finn said. "But we're willing to be arrested if sitting in front of a door will save some children's lives."

A Planned Parenthood spokeswoman, Michelle McDevitt, said sending the letters to doctors constituted "a new level of harassment." She said anyone whose home is picketed should press charges under California's anti-stalking laws.

Wendy Right, a national spokeswoman for Operation Rescue, said the San Jose chapter was the only one to send letters to doctors in this campaign, although others have done so in the past.

Serbs using edge on battlefield to press peace plan in Bosnia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) - Serbs are winning on the Bosnian battlefield, and seem prepared to use that advantage to force through a peace plan that Muslims fear would leave them landlocked and surrounded by enemies.

"I think we are on the threshold of the final solution," Serb President Slobodan Milosevic, a staunch supporter of his ethnic brethren in Bosnia-Herzegovina, told reporters Thursday. "The main remaining question is the question of maps."

Milosevic and Croatian President Franjo Tudjman have proposed dividing Bosnia - home to Serbs, Croats and Muslims - into autonomous ethnic cantons. No details have been made public.

Milosevic met Thursday with mediator Lord Owen, who urged Serbia and Croatia to "produce proposals which the world will think are fair to the Muslim population."

The Bosnian government - which has fought for 16 months to preserve a multiethnic, secular state - has refused to accept the plan, which it believes will leave what is left of Bosnia landlocked between hostile neighbors.

Bosnian Serbs have reportedly set a July 20 deadline for Muslims to accept partition.

According to the Belgrade daily Borba, Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic said recently his forces, which already hold 70 percent of Bosnia, will seek to crush all Muslim-led forces unless their leaders accept partition.

Instead of the stick, Karadzic tried the carrot on Thursday.

"We are doing our best to take into consideration Muslim interests," he said after the talks.

Bosnian Serbs hold the upper hand, both on the battlefield and at the negotiating table. Bolstered by their victories, they and Bosnian Croats have buried past hatreds to dictate terms to the Bosnian government.

Owen and his fellow mediator, Thorvald Stoltenberg, who met with Tudjman in Zagreb on Wednesday, are trying to keep some life in the peace negotiations while the Bosnian government ponders whether to join the talks.

The Bosnian war has left at least 138,000 people dead or missing.

About Social Security

If benefits are cut, you have the right to appeal your case

Have you ever received a letter from Social Security telling you that you are not going to receive benefits—or that you will receive less money than you think you are due?

Did you know that you have the right to ask Social Security to look at your case again? Jim Talbot, Social Security manager in Amarillo, explains how the process works.

When you get a letter in the mail from Social Security telling you that a decision has been made on your claim, the letter will also contain information about your appeal rights. If you don't agree with the S.S. decision, you must write or call within 60 days to tell us that you want to appeal it.

There are four levels in the appeal process. They are reconsideration, hearing, review by the Appeals Council, and Federal Court Review.

A reconsideration is a complete review of your claim by someone who didn't take part in the first decision. Some reconsiderations involve a review of your files without the need for you to be present.

But other times, you have a choice of a file review or meeting a representative to discuss your case. Whichever applies to you, you have the right to present new evidence to support your claim. In many cases, you can also ask S.S. to continue paying your benefits while your appeal is being processed. You have 10 days from the date you receive your decision letter to contact S.S. and ask them to continue paying benefits. But if your claim is denied again, you may have to pay back the money.

If you do not agree with the reconsideration decision, you can ask for a hearing. The hearing is conducted by an administrative law judge. You will be notified of the time and place of the hearing. You may bring a representative and

Those players were Roman Gabriel Alaniz, Jason Walker, Arnulfo Casarez and Saul Villareal.

The Cardinals (13-1) won the league by beating the Braves 5-3 in a one-game playoff.

Alamodome to host '98 Final Four

DALLAS (AP) - The San Antonio Alamodome was built with the idea of hosting big athletic events. In 1998, it may get one of the biggest.

An NCAA committee recommended Thursday that the Alamo City's state-of-the-art facility play host to college basketball's spectacle, the Final Four.

"We are not just going to stage it, but put on a memorable one," said Southwest Conference commissioner Steve Hatchell. "We're proud and honored to be a part of that team."

The 65,000-seat dome, where the torch for the U.S. Olympic Festival will arrive July 23 for opening ceremonies, also will become the new home for the San Antonio Spurs beginning next season.

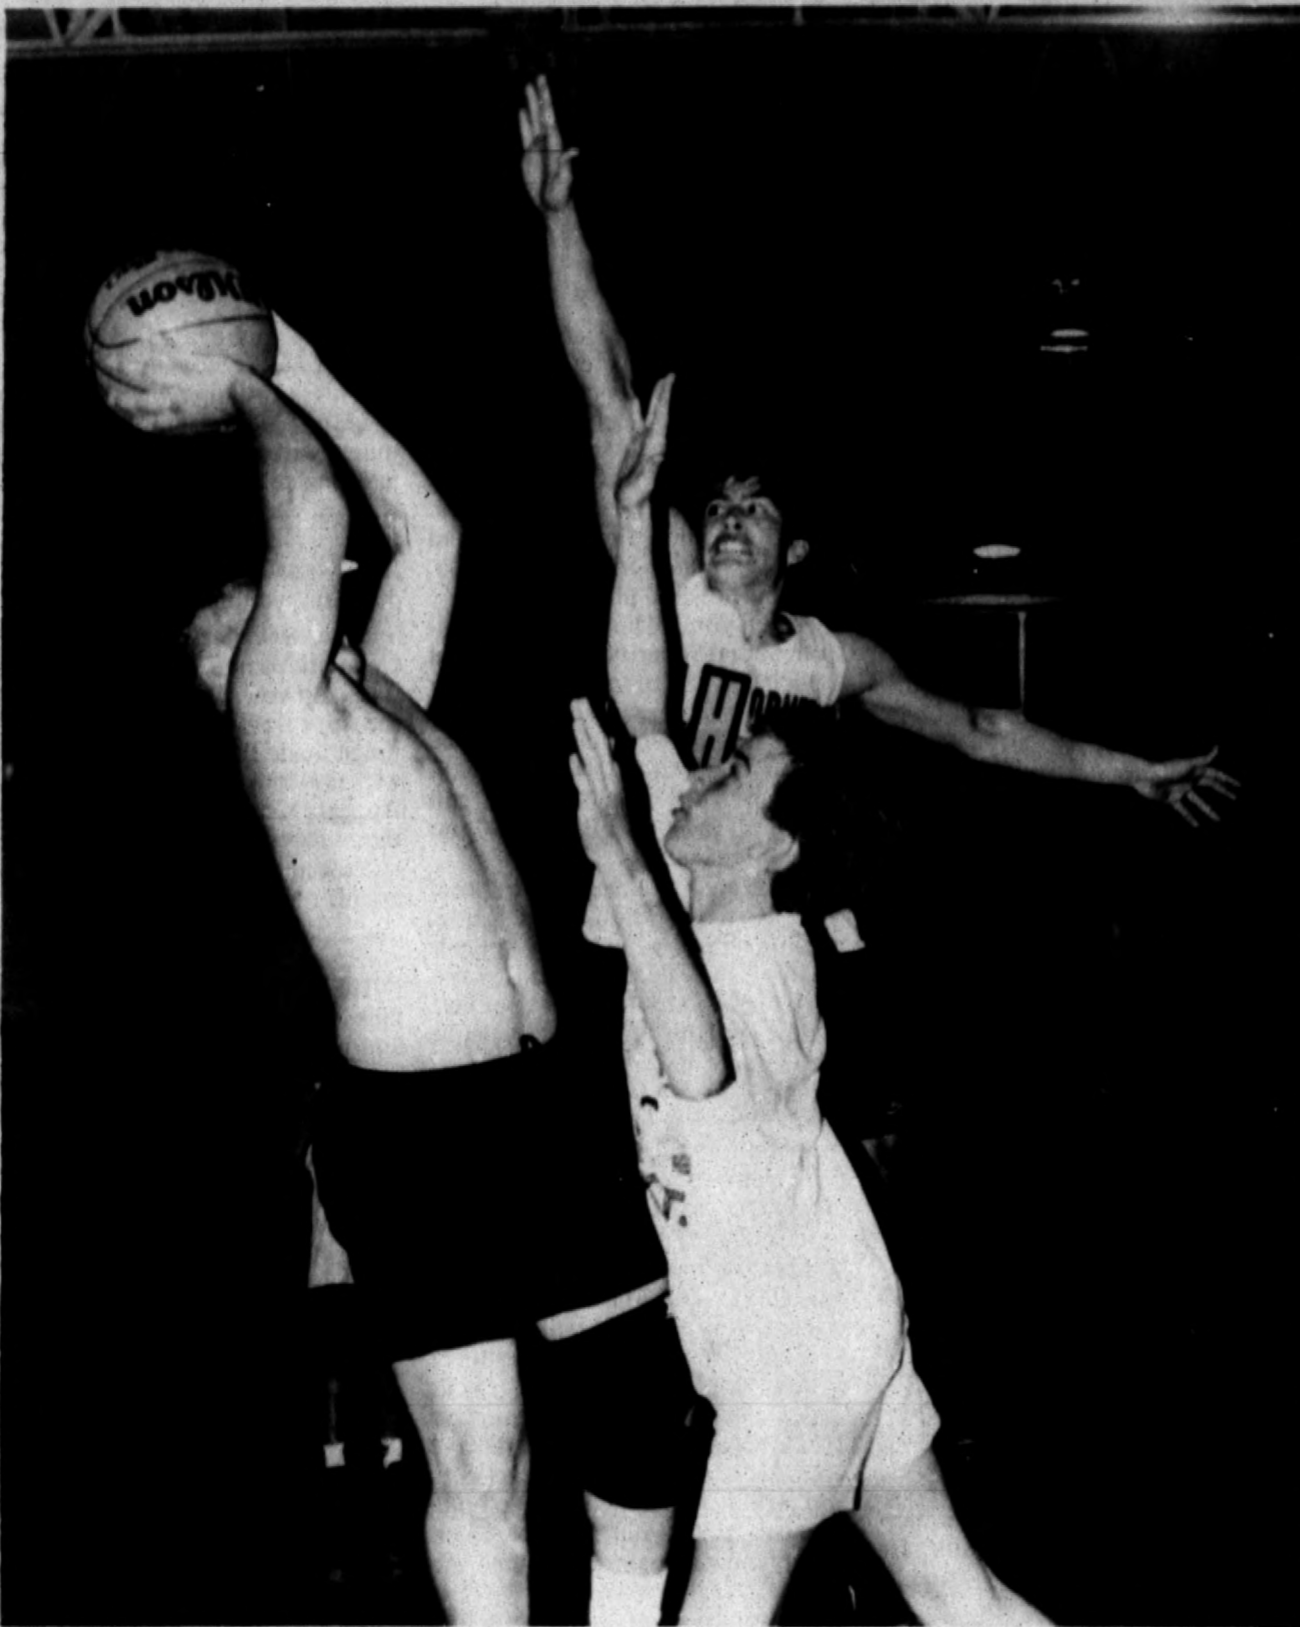

Chi Chi leads Senior Open

DENVER (AP) - It was 30 years ago, after all, so Chi Chi Rodriguez could be excused if his memory is failing a bit.

Rodriguez, who won the 1963 Denver Open for his first PGA Tour victory, returned to the vicinity of that triumph and grabbed the early first-round lead Thursday in the weather-delayed U.S. Senior Open at Cherry Hills Country Club.

His 4-under-par 67 gave him a one-stroke lead over Jack Nicklaus. At 69 on the big-name leaderboard were Lee Trevino, Bob Murphy, Jim Colbert and Larry Ziegler.

In a group at 70 were Ray Floyd, Gary Player, Miller Barber, Isao Aoki, Dale Douglass, Tommy Aaron and Kermit Zarley.

ML All-Star game to have Blue hue

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - This year's All-Star game may look a lot like last year's World Series.

Pitchers Pat Hentgen and Duane Ward, outfielder Devon White and designated hitter Paul Molitor were added to the American League roster Thursday by All-Star manager Cito Gaston of Toronto, giving the World Series champion Blue Jays seven players on the team.

Fans already had elected starters John Olerud at first base, Roberto Alomar at second base and Joe Carter in the outfield. No other AL team has more than two players this year.

"I don't think anybody can question Cito's integrity. We all know there are people left out who deserve to be there. But you can make a strong case for everyone Cito's bringing," Molitor said.

Hentgen, 11-3 with a 3.10 ERA in his first full year, was not expecting to be an All-Star when the season started. In fact, he was the only one of the Toronto All-Stars who did not have a bonus clause for making the team.

"I'm happy, surprised and thrilled," Hentgen said.

The Atlanta Braves, who lost to Toronto last October, have five players on the National League team, including pitchers Tom Glavine, Steve Avery and John Smoltz. Outfielder David Justice will start and shortstop Jeff Blauser was picked as a reserve.

Detroit's Cecil Fielder, snubbed for last year's All-Star game, was added to the AL team and will back up Olerud. Fielder was leading the majors with 76 RBIs and tied for the AL lead with 23 home runs when he was picked.

Colorado's Andres Galarraga was leading the NL with a .397 average when he was added as a reserve. He will back up Philadelphia first baseman John Kruk.

The AL will try to extend its five-game winning streak, its longest in the series, in Tuesday night's All-Star game at Camden Yards in Baltimore.

Detroit catcher Mickey Tettleton, who had 23 homers and 69 RBIs, was omitted. Texas catcher Ivan Rodriguez was voted to start and Oakland's Terry Steinbach was selected as his backup.

"Mick is a Silver Slugger, but not an All-Star," Fielder complained. "The fan vote just destroys the whole meaning of the All-Star game. Put it truthful: Best ain't best when you've got the fan vote."

Cincinnati outfielder Kevin Mitchell, batting .356 with 15 home runs and 50 RBIs despite limited playing time, was not chosen. Nor was injured San Francisco third baseman Matt Williams, who has 21 homers and 64 RBIs.

Also missing will be a few big-name players. There was some thought that Nolan Ryan, George Brett, Robin Yount and recently released Carlton Fisk might be special additions to the roster, but they were not included.

Making their first All-Star appearances for the NL are pitchers Terry Mulholland of Philadelphia, Andy Benes of San Diego, John Burkett and Rod Beck of San Francisco, Darryl Kile of Houston, Los Angeles catcher Mike Piazza, Pittsburgh shortstop Jay Bell, Cubs first baseman Mark Grace, Philadelphia third baseman Dave Hollins and Montreal outfielder Marquis Grissom.

The NL's other reserves and pitchers are Cincinnati outfielder Bobby Kelly, Florida reliever Bryan

Bonds shines as Giants bomb Phils

By The Associated Press

The MVP in the National League this season? So far, the answer is simple.

Barry Bonds hit two homers and drove in six runs as the San Francisco Giants routed the Philadelphia Phillies 13-2 in a matchup of division leaders Thursday night at Veterans Stadium.

Bonds has 24 home runs and 68 RBIs in his first season with the Giants after signing a record financial deal. He's been worth every penny.

The victory gave the Giants a 57-29 record, one game better than the Phillies for the best mark in the major leagues. San Francisco had 20 hits, three each by Bonds and Darren Lewis.

Bonds indicated he wasn't happy with the way he's been swinging lately. 275 over his last 25 games.

"I disagree with that," Giants manager Dusty Baker said. "He's been hitting well, just not finding any holes."

In this game, the Phillies had all the holes.

Danny Jackson (7-6) was reached for 11 runs on 15 hits over 4 2-3 innings in losing for the fourth time in his last five starts.

"Not much you can say about that one," manager Jim Fregosi said. "We just didn't pitch very well."

Bill Swift (11-5) gave up five hits and one run as the Giants won for the 22nd time in their last 30 games. Three relievers finished.

Astros 10, Pirates 4

Darryl Kile extended his winning streak to eight games and improved to 10-1 as Houston beat Pittsburgh at the Astrodome. Kile had his scoreless-innings streak stopped at 28 2-3 when he gave up three seventh-inning runs.

He allowed four runs and eight hits in 7 1-3 innings.

Zane Smith (0-3) allowed four runs and seven hits in five innings.

Andujar Cedeno hit a homer for the Astros.

Cardinals 7, Braves 1

Bernard Gilkey hit a three-run homer as St. Louis hit Steve Avery hard to complete a three-game sweep of Atlanta at Busch Stadium.

Avery (9-3) lasted only 1 2-3 innings in the shortest start of his career as his eight-game winning streak - tied for the longest in the majors - came to an end. He gave up eight hits and six runs.

Allen Watson (1-0), called up on Tuesday from Class AAA Louisville to replace the injured Mike Perez, pitched four-hit ball over six innings.

Rockies 3, Marlins 2

Rookie Curt Leskanic (1-1) pitched 6 2-3 innings of one-hit ball for his first major-league victory as Colorado beat Florida at Mile High Stadium.

Hot-hitting Dante Bichette drove in all three runs for Colorado.

Pat Rapp (0-1) did not allow a hit until the fourth inning when Chris Jones tripled to right. Bichette followed with a sacrifice fly to put Colorado ahead 1-0.

Reds 7, Cubs 3

Kevin Mitchell's two-run double keyed a three-run fourth inning, and Jacob Brumfield homered to lead rookie Larry Luebbers and Cincinnati past Chicago at Wrigley Field. It was the sixth victory in the last seven games for the Reds and second major league win for Luebbers (2-0) in as many starts. Jeff Reardon pitched the final 1 2-3 innings for his seventh save.

Frank Castillo (2-6) was the loser.

Expos 5, Padres 4

Dennis Martinez won his eighth straight decision and All-Star Marquis Grissom hit a two-run homer as Montreal held on to beat San Diego at Olympic Stadium.

Martinez (10-5) pitched three-hit ball over six innings before leaving with the bases loaded and two outs in the seventh. He gave up three runs on six hits and John Wetteland pitched two innings for his 20th save.

Greg Harris fell to 8-9.

Dodgers 11, Mets 8

All-Star Bobby Bonilla hit a three-run homer in the 10th inning off Rod Nichols to give New York a doubleheader split against Los Angeles at Shea Stadium. In the first game, rookie Mike Piazza hit his 17th homer for the Dodgers. Piazza is also going to the All-Star game as a reserve.

The Dodgers played a 20-inning game in Philadelphia on Wednesday night and didn't arrive at their New York hotel until 4 a.m. They played 39 innings - logging more than 13 hours of playing time - in a little more than 28 hours on the clock.

A's Van Poppel gets smacked around by Vaughn, Red Sox

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Someday, Todd Van Poppel may be an All-Star. For now, he's just another promising 21-year-old learning how to pitch.

"His future's still in front of him," Oakland manager Tony La Russa said after the Boston Red Sox routed Van Poppel in an 11-9 victory Thursday.

Van Poppel walked the first three batters of the game, and Mo Vaughn hit a grand slam with one out. Vaughn finished with five RBIs and Billy Hatcher homered and drove in four runs.

Van Poppel left before retiring a batter in the fourth inning. He gave up eight runs on five hits and five walks.

Troy Neel tried to rally the A's, hitting two homers and driving in seven runs. He came to bat in the bottom of the ninth with two outs and a runner on base, but struck out.

In other games, California rallied past New York 4-3, Kansas City downed Detroit 6-5 in 11 innings, Milwaukee trounced Minnesota 15-3 and Texas topped Toronto 6-1.

Van Poppel was highly regarded even before he was Oakland's first-round pick in the 1990 draft. He made one start for the A's in September 1991, and had been in the minors since.

Van Poppel was 4-8 for Triple-A Tacoma this season. He was called up this week to fill a spot in the rotation, although he is not expected to stay long with the Athletics.

"I had no nerves," he said. "I don't think there was anything I was doing differently, I just wasn't getting it across the plate."

"The positive points for me are I know what I need to do now. Throw strikes and not walk people - it's as simple as that."

Neel had four hits, three of them off John Dopson (7-5). Dopson won his fourth straight decision despite allowing five runs on nine hits in five innings.

Rangers 6, Blue Jays 1

Kenny Rogers struck out a career-high 10 batters.

The game at the SkyDome was scoreless after five innings. But in the sixth, Jack Morris (5-9) walked four batters, including Ivan Rodriguez and Doug Strange with the bases loaded.

Mario Diaz hit a two-run double that finished Morris and Jon Shave hit a two-run double off Woody Williams.

Rogers (6-6) gave up five hits and walked two in his second complete game. Paul Molitor hit his 10th home run for the Blue Jays.

Southwest Outdoors

with Mel Phillips

Circle Aug. 28 and 29 on your calendar because the last weekend of August will be the dates of a new and exciting event: Hunt '93. Patterned after Outdoor World, the very successful fishing show, Hunt '93 is a two-day extravaganza that kicks off the 1993 hunting season with hourly hunting and camping seminars by world-class experts.

If you want to learn some new techniques and proven methods of calling up wild turkeys, don't miss the game calling seminars by Tommy Humphrey, executive director of the Dallas Safari Club and former state director of the Wildlife Turkey Federation. Listening to one seminar by Tommy will unlock the puzzle that plagues many beginning turkey callers: when not to call.

Also on the program of Hunt '93 will be "the old Field and Stream" Marty Malin from Austin, Texas. Since 1984, Marty has produced and edited "The Wildlife Report," an award-winning monthly outdoor news magazine on audio-cassette tape. Marty has devoted his life to having fun in the great outdoors. His outrageous stories about hunting big bucks, catching big bass and chasing "semi-good-looking women" are exceptional. I know of no one with whom I would rather spend a night around the campfire than Marty, a certified good old boy and president of the Texas Outdoor Writers' Association.

Learn how to rattle up big bucks, teach old birds new tricks, pick the best pup in the litter, and master the secrets of hunting with a bow and arrow at the Budweiser seminar center.

In addition to the superb hunting seminars, Hunt '93 will feature guides and outfitters from Colorado, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and Mexico. There will be a special section of booths devoted to pheasant hunting in our region. The popularity of this oriental game bird is the source of an economic boon that brings extra money and hundreds of hunters to our region every December.

See a vast array of hunting clothing, the latest in hunting boots, hunting blinds, gamefeeders, game callers, campers and trailers at Hunt '93. It will be in the Baxter Building at the Tri-State Fairgrounds in Amarillo. For more information or booth space availability, give me at 353-3654.

Mel Phillips, winner of numerous awards for journalism and broadcasting, is an active member of the Texas Outdoor Writers Association. He is an avid hunter, tournament fisherman and host of a Wednesday evening outdoors show on KONG Talk Radio 71.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back, I read a letter in your column signed, "A Happier Home in Tulsa." Their son had been taken in and given bed and board for eight days by a kindhearted woman after he ran away from home. (He had been grounded for "breaking house rules.") The writer was critical of the woman who gave this young man a safe refuge.

While this boy ran away from home, what about those kids who are thrown out of the house by parents practicing tough love? I am in a 12-step program and am vehemently opposed to throwing kids out of the house no matter how severe the infraction. It is just not safe for kids to be out on the streets. "Happier" claims that this stranger, who also took a big risk, delayed their son's recovery. She doesn't seem to realize what could have happened to that boy.

Nine years ago, my cousin disappeared after attending a party with friends. The family has been through hell for almost a decade because they never found out what happened to the girl. Well-meaning friends told them, "Pretend she went out for cigarettes" or "Pretend that she has created a wonderful life for herself." Did you ever hear of such nonsense?

There is a big difference between runaways and throwaways. When a teen-ager violates house rules, I'm in favor of severe punishment, but to put a kid out on the streets today could mean forcing him or her into prostitution, drug pushing or even death.

That mother is very lucky she didn't get a call from the police to come to the morgue and identify "John Doe." It has happened to a lot of people... Living in the Real World, Seattle

DEAR SEATTLE: You have written a letter that could save some young lives. Whenever possible, it's better to throw the book at 'em or send them to friends and family members rather than toss them out. It could mean death, and no child deserves that.

However, some children are abusive, violent and dangerous. A parent can only do so much, and then it's time to say, "Shape up or get out."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I need your advice regarding a problem I'm having with my husband's mother. "Nonny" has shown extreme favoritism toward my eldest son since the day he was born. I have put up with it to keep peace in the family, but things have gone too far.

"Jason" is 6 now, and my mother-in-law insists on sleeping with him whenever we visit them or they visit us. My father-in-law gets kicked out of his bed, and the other children feel left out.

My husband does not feel that this is a problem and says I'm making a big deal over nothing. What are your views on this subject? We need a referee. --North Texas Battle

DEAR N.T.B.: Your husband is dead wrong. It is totally inappropriate for a 6-year-old child to be sleeping with a member of the opposite sex.

You should enlist the help of your pediatrician if necessary, but this practice has got to stop at once.

Confidential to Nameless in North Carolina: Sorry you didn't send your address. I hope you see this. Dreams can indeed give some meaningful clues to unfulfilled wishes. More important, however, is how you conduct yourself when you are awake. Cool it with the man next door.

Forget to save some of your favorite Ann Landers columns? "Nuggets and Doozies" is the answer. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5 (this includes postage and handling) to: Nuggets, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

What everyone should know about recycling

Winning ways with waste: Studies show we're recycling about 21 percent of all our trash-double the amount we were recycling just four to five years ago. However, we're still somewhat short of EPA's national goal of recycling 25 percent of our municipal solid waste by the end of 1992.

There are now about 4,000 curbside recycling programs in the U.S., and at least 2,200 composting facilities, dealing mostly with yard wastes. While dozens of trash components are recycled in some fashion, four items account for about two-thirds of all recycled materials: yard wastes, corrugated cardboard boxes, newspapers and glass containers.

With an estimated 200 million tons of municipal solid waste produced in the U.S. each year, it makes sense for recycling to be part of an integrated waste management strategy that also includes source reduction, composting, landfilling and waste-to-energy incineration. That's the conclusion of a report from the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. In addition to costs, which run from about $100-$200 per ton in some locations to several hundred dollars per ton in cities such as Chicago and New York, recycling also usually requires additional trucking to collect materials and transport them back to manufacturing plants, adding to energy consumption and air pollution.

Although recycling should be encouraged, it's impractical for many areas to recycle too much of their trash, according to J. Winston Porter, the principal author of the chemical engineers' report. A practical ceiling for a national recycling rate is about 33 percent, Dr. Porter concludes, although some states have mandated targets in the 40 to 60 percent range.

The outlook for recycling could be improved through research on separation technologies, recycled production development and chemical recycling of plastics, where plastics are rebuilt as new plastics, fuels or chemicals.

More than 75 percent of the world's active volcanoes lie within the "Ring of Fire," a zone running along the west coast of the Americas from Chile to Alaska and down the east coast of Asia from Siberia to New Zealand.

Parkinson's disease's 1.5 million victims in the U.S. include a wide variety of people, but the condition occurs most frequently among older males.

The Newspaper BIBLE

DON'T SAY IT ISN'T RIGHT WHEN GOD SAYS IT IS!

Soon the news reached the apostles and other brothers in Judea that Gentiles also were being converted!

But when Peter arrived back in Jerusalem, the Jewish believers argued with him. "You fellowshipped with Gentiles and even ate with them," they accused.

Then Peter told them the whole story. "One day in Joppa," he said, "while I was praying, I saw a vision-a huge sheet, let down by its four corners from the sky. Inside the sheet were all sorts of animals, reptiles and birds (which we are not to eat).

And I heard a voice say, 'Kill and eat whatever you wish.' 'Never, Lord,' I replied. 'For I have never yet eaten anything forbidden by our Jewish laws!'

"But the voice came again, 'Don't say it isn't right when God declares it is!' This happened three times before the sheet and all it contained disappeared into heaven."
