EPA to aid small towns in implementing landfill rules

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Environmental Protection Agency will work with Texas officials to craft federal landfill monitoring regulations that won't put too much strain on small communities in arid regions.

State and local officials met Monday with the director of the EPA's municipal solid waste program to express their concern that as many as 150 Texas communities will be hurt unless relief is provided.

To buy some time to come up with new regulations and give the affected towns time to adjust to them, the EPA is proposing a two-year delay for implementation.

Without relief, the Texans said, many communities in West Texas and the Panhandle will be forced to shut down their landfills and truck their trash to distant dumps. Another fear is that residents trying to skirt rising garbage pickup fees will illegally dump their waste along roadsides or burn it.

The EPA, which is due to implement regulations on most municipal solid waste landfills later this year, was willing to exempt communities in arid regions from the requirement they drill expensive groundwater wells. The exemption would have applied only to towns that generate little trash and have scant rainfall.

But the EPA was ordered in May by a District of Columbia federal judge to impose groundwater monitoring mandates on all municipal solid waste landfills - thereby sparking concern in Texas.

The Texas Water Commission estimates the groundwater monitoring would cost $100 a year per household on average in sparsely-populated areas with an average annual income of $13,911.

"It'll financially break these small towns," said Eric Fox, an aide to Rep. Henry Bonilla, R-San Antonio, whose district spans much of West Texas. "They don't want to be excluded from environmental regulations, they just want some common sense put into it."

A TWC briefing paper prepared for the EPA meeting cautioned that the additional landfill costs "will dramatically increase the potential for illegal dumping and burning."

At a typical drilling cost of $80 a foot, communities with groundwater frequently located at least 500 feet below the surface are looking at hefty bills to sink the three or more wells needed for monitoring.

Among those at the EPA briefing were Texas Water Commissioner Peggy Garner; representatives of Gov. Ann Richards and Attorney General Dan Morales; and state Rep. Bob Turner, D-Crockett.

Bruce Weddle, head of EPA's municipal solid waste program, said the agency sympathizes with the Texans' concerns and is working to tailor a suitable system.

"We are going to be working with the state of Texas and local governments in West Texas to try to find some common ground that meets the statute requirements," he said.

Possible alternatives include allowing communities to monitor groundwater from existing wells nearby; decreasing the number of required wells or the frequency of monitoring; or using sensors under the landfill.

"What we can't do is say 'Don't worry about groundwater monitoring; you don't need to do it,'" Weddle said.

Texas officials are prepared to seek help from Congress if they can't get it elsewhere. Rep. Bill Sarpalis, D-Amarillo, this week will introduce legislation that would allow EPA to exempt arid landfills from the groundwater monitoring requirements. At least 30 lawmakers, most from Southwestern states, will co-sponsor the measure.

Flood victims in Iowa needing water

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) - Residents carrying plastic jugs lined up for their five-gallon rations of drinking water in the flood-stricken Des Moines area, and hundreds of Midwesterners were inoculated against water-borne diseases.

"I feel like we're in a Third World country," said Ed Conlow, a researcher for the Iowa state House.

The rain-swollen Mississippi River and its tributaries continued to swallow up land today in the upper Midwest as residents and National Guardsmen piled sandbags to try to save homes and businesses.

Des Moines and other cities have been brought to a near standstill. About 250,000 people in and around Iowa's capital were without running water after floodwaters knocked out a water treatment plant over the weekend.

Damage across the region will far exceed the $1.2 billion in aid announced by President Clinton last week. Gov. Terry Branstad said. Branstad said he will ask the government to declare all of Iowa a disaster area. The flooding has caused at least 19 deaths, 13 in Missouri. The Red Cross said more than 7,600 homes were damaged or destroyed in Minnesota, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois.

No looting has been reported, but some residents still feared losing their belongings. In West Alton, Mo., Michael Payeur refused to leave his waterlogged home and relied on supplies brought to him by boat by his daughter.

"There's looters out here," he said. "They can get in and out."

Water Patrolman Don Carnahan navigated the West Alton area with care. "You got to watch the road signs," he said. "They'll sure cut a hole in the boat."

Vice President Al Gore visited Lemay, Mo., and Grafton, Ill., on Monday. The water was so high he had to duck when his boat passed under power lines. He also took a helicopter tour and said in wonder, "You can't even tell where the Mississippi begins and the farmland ends."

Gore talked to the president by phone and then assured residents there would be a "forceful, coordinated response."

More rain was forecast for today and Wednesday, but the National Weather Service said it was not expected to raise water levels. Some Mississippi tributaries were slowly falling. The Des Moines River was 7.8 feet above flood stage at Des Moines on Monday but was down nearly a foot from Sunday's record crest.

In Missouri, nurses from Cameron Community Hospital and the Harrison County Health Department gave more than 800 inoculations for diphtheria and tetanus from Friday to Monday, said Mary Tripolino, the hospital's nursing director.

Missouri health officials warned those working around the floodwaters to get shots. The water has been contaminated with raw sewage, fertilizer and other contaminants.

Health officials in Des Moines opened a clinic offering free tetanus shots.

"You don't need it," said Kevin Teale, a spokesman for the Iowa Health Department. "It's merely for peace of mind."

Des Moines city officials set up about 20 water distribution centers for residents and planned 80 more to dispense fresh water sent to the region. The daily water ration was increased from two gallons to five gallons.

Fires posed a greater-than-normal threat because of low water pressure. For Conlow, the House researcher, the lack of running water posed another problem - how to potty-train his 3-year-old with no water in the toilet. "We could go back to diapers, but his training would go backwards," he said.

L.D. McMullen, general manager for the Des Moines water plant, said the water should be running again by the end of the week. But he guessed it would be a month before pipes can be disinfected and the water is safe to drink.

Cutting the cake

County to erect some traffic control signs

Traffic control signs on some Deaf Smith County roads will be installed after legal requirements are met, Commissioners' Court decided Monday.

Commissioners voted, also, to approve tax abatement for a business, to delay action on a discount pharmacy proposal for county employees and to award a contract for engineering services to Hibbs, Oller and Todd, Inc.

Roads needing traffic signs were reported by commissioners. A public hearing will be required to inform residents of proposed signs. A date for the hearing will be set after legal requirements are researched.

James Self presented information on a discount prescription service but commissioners decided to take no action until additional information is available.

To conform with legal requirements on a Community Block Grant made to Deaf Smith County, commissioners performed an evaluation of engineering firms.

Six firms submitted proposals for engineering for the Campbell Street area water and sewer project being funded by a $250,000 grant. Commissioners awarded the job to Hibbs, Oller and Todd several weeks ago but the evaluation forms were not completed.

After the evaluations were made Monday morning, representatives of Panhandle Regional Planning Commission confirmed that Hibbs, Oller and Todd topped the list.

Tax abatement of 100 percent for two years and 50 percent for three years was approved for Newton Trucking Company. A new $350,000 facility will be constructed by the company.

Unusual Texas fare gets nod from Perry

DALLAS (AP) - Longhorn beef, ostrich, antelope and quail may not be the usual bill of fare at Texas restaurants, but the products - all supplied by state ranchers - have won the support of Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry.

Perry on Monday helped tout the new "Totally Texas Menu" being dished out by Huntington's restaurant at The Westin Hotel, Galleria Dallas.

"We have it highlighted so that people know and understand that these are local Texas favorites, things that are not necessarily known out there but they are from Texas and they are the up and coming things," said Chris LaLonde, the hotel's executive chef.

While Huntington's has offered ostrich before, the restaurant just has begun serving its "Totally Texas Menu" - four entrees in a separate section, priced up to $28 - within the past few weeks, LaLonde said.

The dishes include seared scaloppine of antelope, grilled Longhorn beef medallions, pan-seared ostrich with blueberry vinaigrette and chicken-fried quail with cream gravy. The menu was developed with help from the state agriculture department, which started the menu program nearly two years ago to market Texas products to home cooks as well as restaurants and institutions, Perry said.

The program is "one that I think is going to change the face of restaurants all across the state of Texas," he said.

"We used to just think that ostriches were for boots. We're going to change that concept. And we talk about the Longhorn beef as an industry that's been around for a long time ... It's the new meat for an old breed of cattle," Perry said.

Noah Kline, Dallas-based marketing specialist for the Texas Department of Agriculture, said the meats appeal to consumers looking for less cholesterol and fat.

"I'll be contacting other restaurants, trying to get them to have a program such as this, to identify and serve Texas products," Kline said.

Westin officials said publicity from cooking the rare bird has paid off: nearly 20 percent of Huntington's revenues are ostrich-generated, and around 20-25 percent of the meals Huntington's now sells are ostrich.

Services for Jimmie Gillentine, former publisher and editor of The Hereford Brand, were held here Monday. He is remembered not only for his almost 35 years association with the newspaper, but for the role he performed in business and community life.

Gillentine leaves his mark in the newspaper industry and he was an innovator in the commercial printing business. I was not closely associated with Jimmie, but he had my respect and admiration even before we purchased the newspaper and printing plant from him in December, 1971. He continued to reside in Hereford, which gave him a chance to second guess the operation of the newspaper under a new publisher. But Jimmie was not that kind of man. He was highly supportive and lavish in his praise of our work.

Gillentine had been widely recognized as having one of the best semi-weekly newspapers in the country in the 1950s. On the local scene, he boosted the agricultural and industrial growth of the city at every opportunity.

His writings reflected his beliefs in the free enterprise system and in Christian virtues. He once wrote:

"Nobody has yet asserted that an individual, attempting to live a Christian life, will amass the biggest fortune in his community. Nobody has suggested that it is easy to stand aside while others adopt questionable methods to win economic success. Nevertheless, men of character, attempting to apply Christian principles to life, have to face this question repeatedly. It is to their credit that many of them answer the problem by willingly supporting their principles rather than yielding them for pecuniary profits."

Gillentine, along with several other publishers, established Southwest Offset - a central newspaper printing facility - here in 1961. This venture was highly successful, but it posed a decision for Gillentine - whether to stay with the day-to-day operation of the newspaper, or to devote his time to new offset printing field.

He chose the latter and turned over the management of the newspaper to Melvin Young in December, 1962. Gillentine later added a printing plant in Amarillo in 1965, then started a plant in Dallas several years later. In December, 1971, he announced the sale of The Brand and Southwest Offset in Hereford (which became North Plains Printing) to concentrate on his other two rapidly expanding firms.

Gillentine and his wife, Clara, continued to live in Hereford, although he spent much time in Amarillo and Dallas during the week. She preceded him in death in 1987.

Jimmie played a major role in the growth and development of Hereford. We'll miss him, and even those who never knew Gillentine will benefit from the footprints he left in Deaf Smith County.

Mrs. Clinton hails Hawaii health care

HONOLULU (AP) - Hinting at the shape of President Clinton's health care plan, Hillary Rodham Clinton says Hawaii's ground-breaking program is a good example of how to provide near universal coverage at lower costs.

She said President Clinton's proposal - delayed now until September - won't require major tax increases although "there may be some taxes ... on cigarettes or something" to pay for federal oversight of the program. A tax as high as $2 a pack has been discussed.

"There's a lot to be learned from the Hawaiian system," the first lady said as she focused a national spotlight on this tiny state's innovative program. She planned to take part in a forum today on the strengths and weaknesses of Hawaii's system.

Hawaii's plan is built around a requirement that all employers provide health insurance for employees who work at least 20 hours a week. People not covered by employer plans or Medicare or Medicaid are protected by a state health insurance plan.

Compared with other Americans, Hawaii's 1.1 million residents rank at or near the top in health status.

Ortiz sentenced to 31 years in 222nd District Court here

Prison sentences totaling 31 years were assessed a defendant in 222nd District Court Monday.

Antonio Ortiz Jr., 18, entered a plea of guilty to unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, receiving an 18-year sentence, and to failure to stop and render aid, four years.

In addition to the pleas, probation given Ortiz on a previous conviction for burglary was revoked and he was sentenced to nine years in prison.

The three sentences will be served concurrently in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division.

Another defendant, Marcos Castro, 29, was sentenced to five years probation and fined $1,500, on his plea of guilty to felony driving while in intoxicated.

Road to Davidian compound closed

McLennan commission action serves dual purpose

WACO, Texas (AP) - McLennan County commissioners have decided to block off what some might call the road to ruin.

Officially, county authorities say that the road leading to the Branch Davidian sect's burned out home needs repair. But presumably the shutdown will also deter gawkers drawn from across the continent to the site made famous by David Koresh's standoff with federal authorities.

Curious onlookers have gazed at the cult's 77 acres since Feb. 28, when federal agents raided the compound while trying to serve search warrants and arrest Koresh. A gunbattle erupted, killing six Davidians and four agents.

Last week county commissioners voted to put up locked gates at the north and south ends of Double E Ranch Road. Starting today, it will remain barred through Aug. 23, with only a few people holding keys.

"I think it's a good idea to keep people off the place," said Koresh's mother, Bonnie Haldeman.

Mrs. Haldeman, who used to live at the compound and visited the wasteland as recently as last weekend, is among those who believe commissioners are trying to fix more problems than just a bumpy road.

"That road's in the same shape it's always been in," she said. "I couldn't tell that anything has made it worse."

People have flocked to this out-of-the-way prairie 10 miles east of Waco since the compound burned down April 19, ending a 51-day standoff with federal authorities. Koresh and as many as 85 followers died in or just before the blaze.

Though a tragedy, entrepreneurs zeroed in on a chance to make a quick buck. Within a week, "T-Shirt Hill" was set up more than five miles from the compound with everything from T-shirts and hats to cassette recordings of Koresh's music on sale there.

Business thrived throughout the deadlock and sales have continued to soar despite the ordeal's ending being even more disastrous than its beginning.

"It ain't gonna die down," said vendor Randy Lechler, adding that he knew Koresh for several years. "This is going to be a historical marker. It's sad, but that's the way people are."

Lechler said about 300 people visit the site on weekdays and about 750 come on Saturdays and Sundays. The July Fourth weekend drew 2,500 over three days, he said.

One daily visitor is Bryce Rawlinson of nearby Bell Mead. The 66-year-old retiree said he hangs out at Mount Carmel just to show people around and to share his memories from the days when Lois Roden led the cult.

"They come from all walks of life," he said. "You wouldn't believe where they all come from. Some people last week were here from British Columbia. They came all the way here just to see this place."

Some, however, are disappointed by what they see. The three-story building that became instantly recognizable through television and newspaper pictures is just a memory bound by a fence. Clinging to the barbed wire are wreaths laid by mourners, surrounded by warning signs reminding that the area is quarantined.

Dusty pathways have been carved into the dried-out ground along the wire walls. Following Rawlinson around the trail provides unique insight into the past.

He pointed out an abandoned house that was one of many that lined the horseshoe-shaped road before Koresh scraped the shacks and replaced them with the three-story wooden building that so quickly incinerated.

All that's left inside the little house now are rusty nails, broken equipment, old soda cans and other junk. A friend recently put up some plywood to try keeping out souvenir hunters, but it's not doing the job.

The next stop is a bigger house, just as worn down, nestled in a far corner of the 77 acres.

Rawlinson says he has fond memories of this area. He points out the barn and pen where he bought goats from the cult, adding that the house also served as a garage for car repairs and as a shooting range.

Several piles of junk litter sides of the road back toward the main entrance: a cluster of broken refrigerators, a pile of tires, decade-old letters and a box of clothes with the name "Michele J" written on it, likely having belonged to Michele Jones, Koresh's sister-in-law.

Back toward the front and between two lakes, there's an abandoned bus. Most of the windows have been shot out and all the seats removed so the children could play in it. All around, there are trash bags filled with insulation, toys, boxes of military-style cooking and eating utensils, and clothes, some belonging to Koresh's wife, Rachel.

Rawlinson and others will soon be forced to end their tours, or at least move them to Elk Road.

Scholarship fundraiser

Diane Beavers, president of the Hereford Board of Realtors, and Jigger Rowland, chairman of the board's scholarship fundraising committee, show off the playhouse that is being raffled by the board to raise money for two scholarships. The scholarships will be given to two 1994 Hereford High School graduates next spring. Tickets for the playhouse are $1 each and are available from local Realtors. They will also be sold at the board's Town and Country Jubilee booth. The drawing will be held during the Jubilee. The playhouse will be displayed at various real estate offices until the Jubilee.

Senator believes story told by former captive was not investigated

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) - Reports by former captive Robert Garwood did not get due consideration in official investigations into the fate of American servicemen in Vietnam, a U.S. senator said.

"We're not doing the job right and it's my obligation to say that," Sen. Bob Smith told a Bangkok news conference after a four-day visit to Vietnam.

Smith and his delegation left Hanoi on Sunday after visiting several sites in northern Vietnam where Garwood, a former U.S. Marine and convicted collaborator, claims to have seen live Americans after the war ended.

Citing several examples of what he called "sloppy" investigative work by the Pentagon, Smith said he has called for a probe by the Justice Department.

Garwood's memory of the live sightings proved accurate, the New Hampshire Republican said, and he complained that U.S. investigators should have made use of Garwood previously.

The trip convinced him that some servicemen missing from the Vietnam war remain alive, Smith said.

But Vietnamese officials challenged Garwood's credibility and denied Vietnam still holds American prisoners.

Garwood, now a 47-year-old electrician, was captured in 1965 by Viet Cong guerrillas in southern Vietnam and returned to the United States in 1979. He was court-martialed for collaborating with the enemy.

Vietnamese reports about Garwood's 14 years in the country clash with the American's own account of life here as a miserable prisoner who wanted only to flee to the United States.

Garwood lived in Vietnam as a virtual free man, the Vietnamese said. Col. Nguyen Thai, a wartime propaganda chief, said Garwood's stories of suffering years of imprisonment and torture are "completely fabricated."

He said Garwood refused when the Vietnamese in 1967 offered to let him return to the United States.

Another war veteran, Col. Nguyen Van Phuong, who was in charge of Garwood in 1971 and 1972, said Garwood lived then with a North Vietnamese family and planned to marry a local woman.

He said the marriage never took place.

Sciumbato wins contest

Lexi Sciumbato, at left, was named the winner of the Miss Deaf Smith/Oldham County Farm Bureau Queen, Talent Find Contest held Thursday evening in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library. Lexi, who is the daughter of Albert and Betty Sciumbato, performed a skit as her talent and received a $300 scholarship. She will be entered in the district competition to be held Aug. 12 in Amarillo. Shelia Dee Teel, daughter of Jerry and Denise Teel, was named runner-up in the contest where she played the piano as her talent. She was awarded a $200 scholarship.

Sun is source of all life

The sun is the source of all life. Its energy is immeasurable and legendary. It brightens and warms our environment and offers us many benefits. Sunlight is used in the treatment of certain skin disorders and is needed to form vitamin D3, which is vital for healthy bones.

From the beginning of time, people have enjoyed the relaxed feeling, heightened sense of well-being and enhanced sense of physical beauty achieved from basking in sunlight. There is intrinsic value in tanning when done responsibly and in moderation. However, one should never be overexposed to sunlight.

Excessive amounts of sun can cause the skin to redden, a reaction commonly known as sunburn. Prolonged, abusive overexposure may also contribute to premature aging of the skin, skin degeneration and certain types of skin cancer. People who tan outdoors should take precautions to protect their skin from overexposure.

Many people choose to develop a base tan indoors in a tanning bed, where the exact exposure time can be controlled. People also choose to tan indoors because it relaxes them, reduces stress and makes them feel good about themselves. Consider these following guidelines when identifying the salon that is right for you:

- Discuss your skin type and appropriate exposure times - Professional salons have visible charts that describe skin types from I to VI and the exposure times for each.
- Check for photosensitizing agents - Make sure you are not orally taking or topically wearing substances that will cause your skin to be unusually sensitive to the ultraviolet rays.

- Use only FDA-compliant eyewear - Tanning units are regulated by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) which requires you to wear protective goggles during a tanning session.

- Make sure the tanning unit has a timer - All tanning units (after 1986) are required by the FDA to have a timer that will turn off the unit automatically when the predetermined exposure time expires.

- Look for Wolff System tanning lamps - Wolff System, led by Friedrich Wolff, founder of the indoor tanning industry, is still considered the leading manufacturer of lamps for indoor tanning units. Wolff lamps are a sign of a salon that is concerned about quality and professionalism.

As long as the sun appears in the sky, people will continue to enjoy basking in its light, and because people value its effect, many also find pleasure in tanning indoors. For an educational brochure on tanning responsibly, call 1-800-959-6533.

When cutting a pile of wood, make sure the chain saw tip does not come in contact with any logs behind the one you are cutting. Such contact may cause the saw to "kick back." Put larger logs on a sawhorse first, never stand on a log pile.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm writing to you about a disease for which there is no cure. It is a baffling and powerful sickness called alcoholism. I am now 35 years old, and I've had it since I picked up my first drink when I was 12.

This disease caused me to lie, cheat, steal and drive when I was drunk. I was arrested so many times I can't count them. My life was miserable. But today I am sober and happy, only because I found Alcoholics Anonymous.

AA's simple 12-step program works one day at a time. It has given me back my life. I now own a home, have a good job and am married to a fine woman, and we have a beautiful son. I never could have had any of the wonderful things in my life had I not found AA. Ann, please tell your readers that if their lives are falling apart because they drink too much to seek the help of their local AA group. It's in the phone book. It costs nothing to join. The only requirement is that you must want to stop drinking. AA helped me when nothing else worked. I'm sure it saved my life.--Grateful in the United States

DEAR GRATEFUL: I started to sing the praises of AA back in 1955 when I began writing this column. I'm happy to say that thousands of people joined AA after reading about it in this space. It's one of the things I'm most proud of.

I have said it before, and I will say it again. Alcohol has ruined more marriages, wrecked more careers, damaged more children and caused more misery than any single thing I know. AA has worked when everything else failed.

If you think you see yourself in my column today, look in the phone book, give Alcoholics Anonymous a call and ask about the next meeting nearest your home. Then go. It will be the best phone call you have ever made. Trust me.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Race, scramble highlight Bar-B-Q

King's Manor Methodist Home held a golf scramble and a 5K Run/5K Walk/Senior Mile Saturday in conjunction with the Founder's Bar-B-Q.

Grant Hanna, Vada Axe and Marguerite Cole were the first to cross the finish line among all racers, tying for first in the Senior Mile in 17:20. They were just seconds ahead of Richard Martinez who won the 5K run in 17:43. Rhonda Nicklaus beat the rest of the women's field in the 5K, finishing in 26:51.

In the 5K walk, Dorothy Fee's 44:40 was the best time overall, and Don Halford edged David Ankeney by a hundredth of a second, winning the men's division in 46:19.

Saturday afternoon's golf scramble was won by the foursome of Ted Nicklaus, David Sledge, Rick Barron and Bruce Ballard. The beat out the second-place foursome of Carol Nicklaus, Charlie Kerr, George "Bear" Denton and John Johnson. The scramble included five other teams.

Following are all finishers in the races. All participants are listed as being from Hereford unless otherwise noted. Runners in the 5K are separated by age group.

13-year-old All-Stars to play for title tonight

The All-Stars of Hereford's 13-year-old Babe Ruth League could play for the championship tonight in the regional tournament at Canyon.

The Hereford team, winners of two out of three over the weekend in the double elimination tournament, need to beat Plainview 2 twice tonight to win the tournament. Plainview 2 doesn't have a loss, so if it wins the first game, starting at 6 p.m., it wins the tournament. If Hereford wins the first game, the two teams will play a second game tonight to determine the tournament champion.

Hereford's 14-15 All-Stars were to start their tournament Monday in Plainview but were rained out.

The 13-year-olds started their tournament with a 6-5 extra-inning loss to Plainview 1 on Saturday. Plainview scored the tying run on a balk in the bottom of the seventh, then scored the winning run in the ninth.

Hereford's team followed that disappointment with two straight blowout wins: 15-5 over Canyon on Sunday, and 12-2 over Plainview 1 on Monday. Both games were called after the fifth inning because of the 10-run rule.

"We scored six in the first inning," coach Johnny Wall said of Monday's win. "It was our game all the way, it seemed like. We played a good defensive game."

Daniel Tijerina started and pitched four innings, and Lucas Mendoza pitched the fifth inning.

Jack Nicklaus was the first professional golfer to reach the $4 million mark in earnings. In 1952, pro golfer Jack Burke, Jr., won four straight tournaments on the PGA Tour.

Race driver Davey Allison dies after helicopter crash

By JAY REEVES
Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) - NASCAR driver Davey Allison died today of head injuries suffered when the helicopter he was piloting crashed at Talladega Superspeedway, hospital officials said.

Carraway Methodist Medical Center spokesman David Smitherman said Allison, 32, died at the hospital at 7 a.m. CDT. He said Allison's head injuries were massive and that the race car driver never regained consciousness.

Allison and veteran racer Red Farmer were critically injured Monday afternoon when the helicopter crashed in the speedway infield.

Smitherman said Farmer remained in the intensive care unit at the hospital today but had "rested comfortably" during the night. His injuries are not life-threatening, Smitherman said.

Smitherman said the Allison family asked that his organs be donated "so others may live."

Relatives, including Allison's father, retired racer Bobby Allison, gathered for a somber vigil at the hospital. Davey Allison's wife, Liz, was also there, but their two children - ages 3 and 1 - were with friends.

An investigator from the National Transportation Safety Board was in Talladega to sort out conflicting accounts of what happened in the 3 p.m. crash in the track infield.

This was not the first time tragedy struck Alabama's first family of racing.

Bobby Allison was critically injured in a 1988 crash at Pocono and had to retire as a driver after 84 career victories - leaving him tied for third on the Winston Cup list. Last year, Davey's younger brother Clifford was killed in a wreck at Michigan International Speedway.

Last July 19, Davey Allison was involved in a spectacular wreck at Pocono International Raceway in Long Pond, Pa. His car flipped 12 times, leaving him with a broken right arm, broken ribs and a concussion.

After spending five nights in a hospital, he qualified his car for the race the following weekend at Talladega.

Allison finished third in the Slick 50 300 on Sunday at Loudon, N.H., to move up to fifth in the Winston Cup standings. Allison finished third overall the last two years.

Allison was scheduled to race in the Die-Hard 500, to be held at the speedway July 25.

On Monday, Speedway president Mike Helton said Allison went down while attempting to land in an area not normally used by helicopters. The chopper came to rest on its side near a chain-link fence just yards away from a garage and a media center.

"They crashed on landing. It just went out of control," Helton said. "It didn't really hit anything."

But V.H. Steed, an official with the Federal Aviation Administration in Atlanta, said the agency was told the helicopter was taking off when it went down.

"The report we had was that he was departing and hit a fence," Steed said.

A cousin, Donnie Johnson, said Allison purchased the helicopter only three weeks ago. He and Farmer had flown from Birmingham to the track to watch racer Neil Bonnett's son David, who was testing a Busch Grand National car on the 2.66-mile tri-oval about 50 miles east of Birmingham.

Farmer won his first race in 1949 and has more than 700 victories on various circuits. He is crew chief for Allison's Grand National team.

Mr. October sees some of self in Barry Bonds

BALTIMORE (AP) - Reggie Jackson sees a lot of himself in Barry Bonds.

"He's good looking, well-spoken and the best player in the game," Jackson said. "He does everything well and everyone knows about him."

Those are some of the attributes "Mr. October" prided himself on as a player.

Bonds would like nothing more than to finally provide some drama of his own in the All-Star game at 7:35 p.m. at cozy Camden Yards. Mark Langston starts for the American League and Terry Mulholland for the National League.

"This can be Barry's showcase," said Jackson, who enters the Hall of Fame on Aug. 1. "The All-Star game, the playoffs, the World Series... this can be his time like it was my time. He has as much ability as anyone who has ever played the game."

Jackson knows about this subject like Sinatra knows how to change a note. Reggie grabbed the summer and fall by the throat more than just about anyone, hitting an All-Star home run off the power transformer on the right-field roof at Tiger Stadium in 1971 and three home runs in one magical World Series game at Yankee Stadium against the Dodgers.

"I still watch the replay of those games and still get the same feelings. "Baseball needs Barry Bonds to do things like that," Jackson said. "He's ripe to take the next step. The game always needs a player like that."

It's not that Bonds hasn't had his chances, either. In the last three playoff series with Pittsburgh, Bonds combined to hit .191 with one homer and three RBIs in 20 games. Some say Bonds can't join the elite until he has a really big show of his own.

"I don't mind if people expect a lot from me," Bonds said. "I expect a lot from myself."

Bonds is working on his third straight NL MVP award, and a lot of people think it should be four in a row. Bonds, signed to a six-deal for a record $43.75 million as a free agent, is hitting .348 with 24 homers and 71 RBIs for first-place San Francisco.

"Barry can follow in the footsteps of Babe Ruth, Joe DiMaggio and Mickey Mantle like I did," Reggie said. "He's already on the cover of all the magazines... on ESPN and CNN every night. That's what I always looked for, a little exposure no matter what they said."

Bonds was mobbed by about a hundred kids when he arrived at Camden Yards at 9:30 a.m., but that was nothing compared to the crowd - young and old - Michael Jordan attracted when his entourage made it to the press gate. Jordan participated in the celebrity home run derby.

"Barry can do for baseball what Michael has done for the NBA," Jackson said. "But to do that he needs some big moments that everyone will remember. He needs to know more about drama."

At the All-Star festivities, Reggie helped Michael with some batting tips before the celebrity derby. Jackson also gave some Hall of Fame advice to Tom Selleck and Bill Murray.

Jordan also took some infield practice and looked good, particularly going back on high popups in the hot Baltimore sun.

"He handles the ball good," Jackson said. "Watch him handle the ball, the way he moves. He is a natural."

Despite all its problems off the field, Monday was a good day for baseball. In the heroes game, Brooks Robinson made a neat play moving to his right, while in the home run derby Juan Gonzalez beat Ken Griffey Jr. in double overtime.

Griffey hit the brick warehouse beyond the right-field wall and Gonzalez hit a ball ball 473 feet into the second deck in left. Bonds did OK, but he didn't steal the show.

Aikman starts throwing

By JAIME ARON

Associated Press Writer IRVING, Texas (AP) - Dallas Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman has been saying he'll return from back surgery in time for the season opener, much faster than doctors would believe.

Believe it, his peers say. "Let me tell y'all something," wide receiver Michael Irvin said Monday after Aikman threw a football for the first time since the operation.

"You can put a measurement on what's the present answer (for when) most people come back in this amount of time or that amount of time, but you can never put a timetable on the strength of a man's mind and heart. That's what my boy got."

"He'll be there. Don't worry about it."

Aikman's series of short passes along the sidelines Monday was the first time the Super Bowl MVP has tested his arm since the June 19 surgery to repair a herniated disc.

While some - especially the doctors who prescribed a three-month rehabilitation - may consider the throws an important part of his progress, Aikman shrugged it off as no big deal.

"Just standing there throwing, I didn't expect to feel any pain or any discomfort... It really doesn't test the back all that much, at least in my opinion," Aikman said.

"I could've thrown a week after surgery if I'd wanted to. It won't be until I actually start getting into some drops and trying to twist and make some throws that I'll have a better idea of where it's come."

Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson was slightly more upbeat about Aikman's progress.

"I'm very pleased with Troy," he said. "He's much further along than what anybody ever anticipated. I really feel optimistic and somewhat realistic that he'll be there for the opening ballgame."

But first, he's got to practice. Johnson has strict orders that players must practice to play in games and Aikman is intent on playing the Sept. 6 against Washington.

Aikman is aiming to begin working out with the team the second week of August, after the Cowboys return from an exhibition game in London against the Detroit Lions.

"Obviously, I would like to get out there as soon as I can," Aikman said. "Realistically, it won't be until after London, but optimistically I'd like to get a few days in before they take off."

Aikman plans to spend that week in Los Angeles rehabilitating under doctor supervision, then return to Austin to begin taking snaps. Dallas plays three exhibition games after facing the Lions, but he's not sure if he'll play in any of them.

Aikman said he expects to increase his work load in about a week, including making some of the more difficult-type throws he mentioned. He also expects to begin jogging soon after training camp opens Thursday in Austin.

SWC to start Hall of Fame

DALLAS (AP) - All-time Southwest Conference football greats will be recognized by the league Friday when it unveils the first class of inductees into its Football Hall of Honor.

The SWC announced the creation of the hall Monday, with plans to induct honorees July 30 at the league's kickoff luncheon.

Likely honorees include the conference's five Heisman Trophy winners: Andre Ware of Houston, Earl Campbell of Texas, John David Crow of Texas A&M, Doak Walker of Southern Methodist and Davey O'Brien of Texas Christian.

Cavs hire Aduabato, Rothstein

CLEVELAND (AP) - Former Dallas Mavericks coach Richie Aduabato and Ron Rothstein are the new assistant coaches of the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Wayne Embry, executive vice president and general manager, and head coach Mike Fratello made the announcement Monday.

Aduabato joined the Dallas Mavericks as an assistant coach under Dick Motta in 1986-87, and was named head coach April 22, 1990.

Rothstein's first NBA coaching position came in 1983 when Fratello, then head coach for the Atlanta Hawks, hired him as his assistant.

Hints from Heloise

BASEBALL CAP
Dear Heloise: My husband wears a baseball cap when he works at his outdoor job. Naturally, it gets filthy and smelly after a while. Someone told him to put it on the top rack of the dishwasher and let it wash along with the dishes. We tried it and it worked! The cap he was about to discard is now as good as new. — Mrs. C. Holly, Tyler, Texas

SOUND OFF
Dear Heloise: My gripe is people who lick their fingers between serving each slice of cake. They should use a fork or they might as well be licking each piece. — L.A., South Jersey, N.J.

In 1509, Pope Julius II excommunicated the Italian state of Venice.

Past presidents honored

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division on Sunday celebrated its 25th anniversary with a reception in the E.B. Black House. During the affair, past presidents of the group shared their memories and were presented a single rose. Shown here are, from left, Irene McKinster, 1970 president; Kathryn Kester, 1972, Lavon Nieman, 1974 and 1975; Georgia

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have a low white blood cell count. I had a test for bone cancer which proved to be negative. I am often diagnosed with this condition, and it makes me susceptible to colds and infections. Is there any way to activate the bone marrow to produce more white blood cells?

DEAR READER: First it must be established that your bone marrow is not producing enough leukocytes (white blood cells). White blood cell counts from a blood sample are often misleading. It is not an accurate measure of bone-marrow production.

The normal range is stated to be between 4,500 and 10,000 per milliliter, but the risk of bacterial infections really is not significantly increased unless the count is below 1,000 per milliliter.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Garth Brooks and Vince Gill will be dusting off their golf clubs to help raise money for the Minnie Pearl Cancer Foundation.

The country stars - along with Doug Stone, Aaron Tippin, Joe Diffie, Rudy Gatlin, Pat Boone, Jimmy Dean and Mike Reid - have signed up for the third annual Opryland Invitational Golf Tournament on Sept. 27-28.

The foundation, named after the 80-year-old Grand Ole Opry humorist, helps support a cancer center at Centennial Medical Center in Nashville.

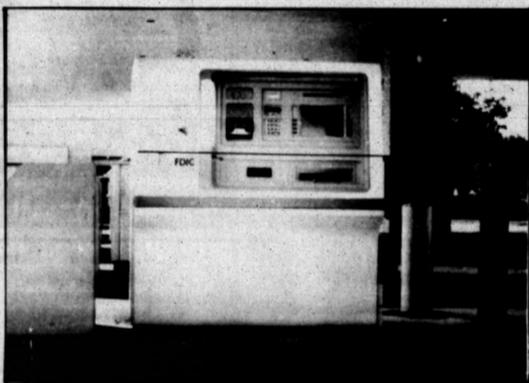

NEW YORK (AP) - Rosie O'Donnell covered some unusual topics in her latest magazine interview. After all, her pal Madonna was asking the questions.

The pair met on the set of the movie "A League of Their Own" and remain close friends - so close that Madonna inquires whether O'Donnell would prefer to have a baby with Denzel Washington, Damon Wayans or Charles Barkley.

"Hmmm ... I'd say Damon - he's the funniest and the cutest, I think," O'Donnell replies in the August issue of Madmoiselle.

CLASSIFIED ADS
 Classified advertising rates are based on 15 cents a word for first insertion ($3.00 minimum), and 11 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy change, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN
1 day per word	15	3.00
2 days per word	26	5.20
3 days per word	37	7.40
4 days per word	48	9.60
5 days per word	59	11.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
 Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid word lines—those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing; all capital letters. Rates are $4.15 per column inch; $3.45 an inch for consecutive additional insertions.

LEGALS
 Ad rates for legal notices are same as for classified display.

ERRORS
 Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

Agents given TLRT honor

Two Hereford life insurance agents have qualified for 1993 membership in the Texas Leaders Round Table (TLRT), an honor organization affiliated with the Texas Association of Life Underwriters.

Charles Bell and B.J. Gilliland, both members of the Amarillo Area
Association of Life Underwriters, have qualified for TLRT, which represents only the top seven percent of life insurance professionals in the state.

Bell, a qualifying life member, has been a TLRT member for 30 years.
Gilliland has qualified for membership for 14 years, six at the advanced Lone Star Leader level.

Members must qualify each year by meeting strict professional and ethical requirements, as well as achieving successful sales production records and rendering continuous service to clients and their beneficiaries.

The first U.S. earth satellite to go into orbit, Explorer 1, was launched by the Army on Jan. 31, 1958, at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Conkwright resigns as water district VP, moves to Lubbock

James C. Conkwright, vice president of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 board of directors, recently resigned that position, reports Wayne Wyatt, water district manager.

Conkwright and his family moved to Lubbock to run their new business, the Gourmet Factory, which sells gourmet coffees, fudge and candy at South Plains Mall. The Hereford native had been a longtime rancher, businessman, and community leader.
He is a past president of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and was named "Citizen of the Year" for 1979.

Conkwright said the decision to resign was difficult, but that the cost of commuting to Lubbock from Hereford was too great. Directors must reside within the precinct they represent.

Conkwright had served on the water district board since January, 1979. He represented Precinct Four, which includes Armstrong, Deaf

Smith, Potter and Randall counties.

"His 14 years experience on the board will be greatly missed," said Wyatt. He noted that each board member had special expertise in certain fields, and Conkwright had served the role as financial advisor.

While serving on the board, Conkwright was instrumental in developing a policy to deposit district funds to assure that no funds would be lost due to bank failure. Wyatt said Conkwright also played a significant role in developing the guidelines for the loan program.

Conkwright commended the district on its efforts to stop the installation of a nuclear dump site in Deaf Smith County. He also expressed pride in the district's annexation of new territories and the representation the district provided its constituents in the legislative arena to help maintain private property rights.

"I have enjoyed the association with the other board members, Wayne

JIM CONKWRIGHT

Wyatt, the county committees, the entire staff, the producers, and the people we have met who are associated with similar districts," Conkwright said.

Beauty pageants are boost to education, says new Miss Texas

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) -
Some people snicker when the parade of beauties known as the Miss America contest is referred to as a "scholarship pageant."

But to BaShara "Bo" Chandler, the recently crowned Miss Texas, beauty pageants have long been a financial boon to her education.

"Girls just don't get the athletic scholarships. I just graduated from the University of Texas at Austin, where all my tuition and books were paid for through pageants," she said at a news conference Sunday. She earned a history degree and a secondary education certificate.

The 21-year-old Miss Texas 1993 put herself through the University of Texas on various pageant scholarships and says she intends to use her Miss Texas winnings to finance her dream of becoming a lawyer.

"My sister is starting college the same year I enter law school, so this scholarship will help. I've always wanted to be a lawyer, and this is the way I can do it."

Representing Garland, Miss
Chandler was crowned the new Miss Texas on Saturday night in Fort Worth, emerging from a field of 68.
In addition to representing the state in the Miss America contest in September at Atlantic City, N.J., she also gets a $10,000 scholarship.

She went to high school at Lakeview Centennial High School in Garland.

The new Miss Texas, who has had nine years of piano training, performed her rendition of "Fourth Movement of Ginastera Sonata in C," in the talent competition.

She won the preliminary talent competition earlier in the week.
Miss Chandler was one of three finalists with previous Miss Texas

Scholarship Pageant experience. She was last year's second runner up in talent and won the interview and musician awards.

Preliminary competition from Wednesday through Friday narrowed the field of 68 to the 10 finalists for Saturday night's climax to the pageant.

First runnerup was LaDonna
DePriest, 24, of Conroe, Miss Hurst-Euless-Bedford; second runnerup was Angie Mabry, 22, of Pleasanton, Miss Woodlands; third runnerup was Anna Villalobos, 21, of New Waverly, Miss Lufkin; and fourth runnerup was Darcey Rushing, 21, of Odessa, Miss Dallas.

As first runnerup, Miss DePriest won a $6,000 scholarship and will become Miss Texas if for some reason Miss Chandler is unable to fulfill her duties.

Scholarships of $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000 respectively went to the next three runnersup.

The other finalists were Andria
Miller, 19, of Kingwood, Miss Humble-Kingwood; Chelsea
Carpenter, 23, of Seguin, Miss Bowie County; Amy Cox, 23, of Fort Worth, Miss Fort Worth; Laurel Pitman, 23, of Mesquite, Miss Duncanville-De Soto; and Jennifer Bishop, 21, of Gilmer, Miss Lake O' The Pines.

Perryton publisher named TPA president

James R. "Jim" Hudson, publisher of The Perryton Herald, was elected president of the Texas Press Association during the group's 114th annual summer convention in San Antonio, June 24-26.

Hudson succeeds Larry L.
Crabtree, publisher of the Vernon Daily Record. Crabtree will become the chairman of the newspaper association's board of directors.

Founded in 1880, the Texas Press Association includes 518 weekly, semi-weekly and daily newspapers in Texas.

Hudson has served on the board of TPA since 1987. He is chairman of the insurance committee, a member of the legislative committee and has served on convention and by-laws committees. He is also a past president of the Panhandle Press Association.

Jim Hudson, 42, is the son of Harold and Jane Hudson. He assumed the position of publisher of The Perryton Herald after the death of his father in 1991.

Harold Hudson was a past president of the Panhandle Press Association, president of TPA in 1968 and served as president of the National Newspaper Association in 1978. In 1983 he was honored by NNA with the Amos Award, given to the outstanding community newspaperman in the United States.

Jim Hudson began his career at The Ochiltree County Herald when the Hudson family purchased control

James R. "Jim" Hudson

of the newspaper from the Van Stewart family in 1959. At the age of nine, Hudson worked in the mail-room, then, when the Herald became a semi-weekly and changed its name to The Perryton Herald in 1962, he became one of the first newspaper carriers. At the age of 13 was promoted to "printer's devil."

While in Perryton High School, Hudson worked in the backshop of the newspaper, wrote news stories and sold advertising. He enrolled in the University of Texas at Austin in 1969 and earned a BBA degree in 1973. During his time at UT, Hudson worked as an assistant sergeant-at-arms in the Texas Senate.

Following graduation, Hudson moved to Houston and worked for Mustang Tractor and Equipment Co., the largest Caterpillar dealer in the South. He held the positions of assistant advertising manager, director of marketing and territory manager before resigning from the company in 1985. He then returned to Perryton to be the general manager of The Perryton Herald.

Hudson is a past president of the Perryton-Ochiltree Chamber of Commerce and a member of the board of directors. He serves as the chairman of both the legislative and highways committees of the Chamber.

He is also a board member of the Panhandle Regional Development Corporation, the Texas Panhandle
Heritage Foundation and the Wolf Creek Park Advisory Board. He is a past president of the Perry Memorial Library Board of Trustees, has served on various committees in the First United Methodist Church and is a member of the Perryton Lions Club.
