District Court Is Convened By Judge Jones; Buchanan Named Foreman Grand Jury

A general charge to the grand jury to investigate without prejudice all violations of the criminal law within the county and to return a bill of indictment when the alleged deed has been identified, without sitting in judgment as to whether the person was indicted, was Monday morning issued by Judge Joseph Jones, veteran arbiter of the law, who is exchanging benches with Judge Reese Tatum for the first two weeks of the August term of district court. "It is best for the individual best for the state that a speedy trial be held in all instances where violations have occurred," admonished the judge in explaining his statement that grand jurors do not have to believe beyond a reasonable doubt that accused is guilty before billing. If party is innocent, should have the privilege of clearing his name as soon as possible, and refusal to indict might have the matter in doubt. Reference was also made to the fact taken, Judge Jones saying it is the product of ages, simple and clear, covering the ground so fully that further charge was unnecessary.

Grand Jury Empaneled.
J. D. Buchanan was named foreman by the judge. The remaining members of the investigating body are John H. Biggs, Wesley Brady, E. Cockrell, R. P. Conaway, Arden, N. W. Ewton, A. T. Frye, L. Rutherford, G. C. Hartman, and Hershey, J. R. Lipscomb.

Thousands of tourists from the southwest will be given an opportunity to witness one of the outstanding rodeo celebrations in the United States when Ruidoso, Mexico, stages its first West Day celebration, beginning August 9 and extending through August 19. Dancing, racing, bull riding, a carnival midway two miles long, and 100 Indians who add western color to the rodeo with native dances and expert riding are the high lights of the occasion.

Ruidoso is situated in the White Mountains 70 miles west of Roswell and is located on federal highway 366 which passes through the mountains. Roads into Ruidoso are in best of condition, making travel through these speedy mountains pleasant. The scenic drives are the most beautiful in this section of the West.

The ornamental gate is being assembled this week in Amarillo and will be installed some time next week. The Lions club sponsored the gift of the gate for Whiteface field, and the business and professional men of the city contributed the necessary funds.

FRIONA BANK IS BOUGHT BY BANKERS OF DIMMITT

Friona, July 30.—Effective last week, Bruce McLean and other officials of the First State Bank at Dimmitt purchased and took over the operation of the First State Bank here. Mr. McLean is the new president, and Ester Noble, another Dimmitt man, is vice-president. Former employees of the bank will be retained for the present, it was announced.

"Row Crop" of Wheat Makes Good

A sixty-acre wheat field of G. E. Kellar, planted in 40-inch rows, with two-row lister. Photo was made shortly before it was harvested, showing damage by hail. The yield, however, was 11.34 bushels per acre.

The planting of wheat with the ordinary drill is not the only way to make a wheat crop, according to G. E. Kellar, who lives 35 miles south of Hereford. His farm is in Castro county.

Last year he put his wheat in the ground with a lister and made an estimated average of from 30 to 40 bushels to the acre, while his neighbors were harvesting around 25 bushels. This year he put in 60 acres in the same manner excepting he spread his rows wider to 40 inches, using three pecks to the acre. A two-row lister was used in seeding the ground on September 15. It was later cultivated slightly by running a harrow twice. Mr. Kellar said he grazed the field rather late.

The neighbors had an almost total failure this year, making from 2 1/2 to 6 bushels to the acre. He sustained two heavy hail damages, one that shattered the heads and another that beat down many of the stalks. Yet, according to returns received from the Denton experiment station where E. O. Dunkle, Deaf Smith county agent, had sent bundles of 16-foot cuttings made from three scattered points in the field, the average yield was 11.34 bushels.

Before the weather losses, his neighbors were estimating the average yield at 25 bushels.

Mr. Kellar owns one and one-half sections of land in the southwest part of Castro county, and has lived there for the past 14 years. He is engaged in stock and grain farming.

He intends to carry his lister-planting of wheat experiment still further next year by keeping accurate data on the various steps and by cultivating the rows more intensely. He admitted the 40-inch rows were too wide and will run them closer for the next crop.

The county agent was doubtful if any value could lie in attempting to produce wheat economically until the figures were obtained from the state experiment station showing close to 12 bushels to the acre under the adverse conditions of that section. Mr. Dunkle now confesses there may be something in the method and says if experiments are conducted over a period of several years importance of the innovation may be quite enlightening.

IVEY SHIPS ANOTHER FINE HEIFER BY EXPRESS

An important outgoing express shipment recently was Miss Springdale 9th, sold by T. O. Ivey to W. D. Corley, Colorado Springs, Colorado, according to Sank Ramey, local express agent, who makes a specialty of handling such valuable cargo by the fast and safe express method. The shipment weighed 1040 pounds crated.

Mr. Ivey makes a specialty of selling fine registered Herefords. He has the Anxiety line. His breeding farm is ideally located on the Tierra Blanca creek, eight miles east of Hereford.

BAILIFFS APPOINTED TO HELP GRAND JURY

C. P. Cockrell, E. F. Connell, J. C. Alfred, Doyle Rose and J. C. Wombie have been sworn in as bailiffs for service of the grand jury which is now in session. Mr. Wombie is the door officer for the jury room.

Friona Coming Sunday; Golfers Go to Amarillo

A ball game between Hereford and Friona is announced for next Sunday afternoon on the grounds here, beginning at 3:30 o'clock.

The local Steers defeated the Canyon team last Sunday in a close game, 4 to 3. They lost the previous Sunday to Vega, their old rivals, 8 to 5.

Four Hereford golfers, J. M. Posey, A. A. Foster, H. L. Rice and J. J. Clark, have qualified for the Panhandle tournament in Amarillo Saturday and Sunday. A long string of prizes have been hung up for leading players, and the capital one is a Chrysler sedan motor car.

Everybody Gets Ready for Fair, Committees Say

Steps were taken at the Monday luncheon in the basement of the First Baptist church to see that the chamber of commerce is as properly officered in the future as in the past, since the annual election of officials and governing board is near at hand. John H. Olson presided over the session.

C. W. Humble, member of the present board of directors, stated that a nominating committee would be named to select ten candidates to be voted upon, seven to be elected.

Eight fair chairmen from the rural districts were present and were introduced by J. E. Hill, president of the county fair association. Mrs. C. E. Tice, community director at Friona, said dry weather was retarding crops but that community was working on a booth. Mrs. J. M. Chapman, Sims, reported crops looking good and that all would do their best to have a winning exhibit.

E. B. Black delivered a message for the people of Black, where crops are doing well and a booth will be entered. A. J. Ellwatt of the Scherer community ably represented his section, and was given a vote of thanks for two poetical readings of original composition. His people are expecting to have a townsite on the new Rock Island railroad which is building across the county from Vega.

Mr. Hill reviewed the progress of the fair in general, claiming that prospects indicated the best fair in local history, basing his predictions on crop conditions.

R. O. Dunkle, who conducted the winning club members to the Short Course at College Station, gave a resume of the trip, how the boys were divided into groups and allowed to visit whatever interested them most and how the course was balanced into both educational and recreational features.

John Schulz, one of the outstanding 4-H club boys who was awarded the trip, was unfortunately detained at home on account of the illness of his father. The six who enjoyed the annual trip, including a side trip to Galveston where they went swimming in the Gulf and took boat rides, were Kermit Wilson, James Lusk, Bud Barnett, Carl Frye, Ray Chapman and C. C. Laquay.

Mr. Dunkle, for himself and the boys, thanked the seven business men for the fund that enabled the Deaf Smith county young men to get this larger vision in the trip across the state. From what was learned in contact with delegates from other parts of Texas, farm conditions here are far in the lead, he said.

OLD SETTLERS PICNIC TO BE HELD AT DIMMITT

The annual Castro county picnic is scheduled to take place in Dimmitt on the court house lawn next Thursday, August 14. The program consists of band music in the morning, free dinner at the noon hour, kiddies' races, games and public speaking in the afternoon.

All old settlers of Castro county, whether living there at this time or not are urged to be present and to be guests of Dimmitt citizens. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

TRANSFER TIME MOVED UP TO SCHOOL OPENING

Earl W. Wilson, county superintendent, announces that he will extend the time to September 1 or to the opening of the schools in the county for making transfers of school children from one district to another. August 1 is usually the last date for filing the papers in the superintendent's office, but Judge Wilson has authorized the extension of time which may be conveniently utilized by some patrons.

BLACK HAS PURCHASED NEW BUICK AMBULANCE

The E. B. Black Undertaking company added a new big six Buick ambulance to their equipment this week. The new ambulance is the very latest in funeral directors' service and presents a handsome appearance. The old ambulance will be retained for emergency purposes.

White Spot Is Still Clinging To Local Belt

A certain salesman for a paper house was in town Monday and claimed that a man with a $20 bill was unable to spend it in most of the places east of the Panhandle because the filling stations and merchants did not have change for the large denomination. The exaggeration is admitted, but the July map of the nation's business which continues to show a "white spot" for this district and the Rio Grande valley only for the entire state has the undeniable meaning that conditions are still good here.

The happy state of local circumstances is further accentuated by the information from the map that there are only five other white spots in the United States.

City Expansion Noted In Utility Customer Growth; Water Used Climbs Higher

Hereford has just cause these days to be proud of its abundant supply of fresh, pure water. From June 20 to July 20 patrons of the city water department used 18,475,000 gallons of water, 15,475,000 of which were paid for and the other 3,000,000 were given free to the various churches, parks and the cemetery.

When asked if the supply was being affected by the enormous consumption, City Marshall C. R. Boyd said, "Oh, no, we have plenty of water. There is not the least danger of running short."

Mr. Boyd has under advisement a plan to bring delight to the hearts of the children of Hereford but it is not fully matured and cannot as yet be announced.

The average for each customer of the water department for July is over 30,000 gallons, or about 6,000 for every individual in the city.

Building permits taken out in Hereford during July totaled $17,500 for new residences, according to figures obtainable this week. More permits have been taken out since the first of the month.

Statistics released by the Texas Utilities and the city water department show that much expansion has been made by the city this year. When the Utilities company bought the light plant five years ago they were serving 443 customers. They now furnish electric current to 856 patrons, 69 of whom have been added since January 1.

There are 610 customers using city water, and 100 of them joined on during the last year. New water mains have been laid in North Hereford recently which included 1150 feet of 6-inch pipe up 25-mile avenue, running north of Tenth Street and one block of the same size pipe on B street between Eleventh and Twelfth. Two new fire plugs were put in the longer stretch of pipe and one new plug in the B street extension.

Champs Compete For Prizes In Miniature Golf

An inter-city miniature golf tournament is in progress between Friona and Hereford, sponsored by the Hereford Amusement Park on East Third street and the course at Friona under W. C. Pitman.

A team of seven players from each city is competing for championship honors. The first round was played Wednesday night at Friona, and the final match will take place here Friday night at the Hereford Amusement Park. The low-stroke man from each town will receive a cash prize of $7.50; second low of Friona gets $5.00 cash, and second low of Hereford is given a week's free playing.

The local team is composed of Mack Pitman, J. L. Sherman, O. R. Billings, Cris Renfro, John Cunningham, J. H. Brooks and A. B. London.

LOCAL NATIONAL GUARD BOYS LEAVE FOR CAMP

Local members of Troop F, 142nd Infantry, Texas National Guard, left last Friday from Canyon for the annual training camp at Palacios. Capt. William Lockhart of Canyon is in command of the unit. The company will return August 13.

Veteran Jurist, Who Knew Deaf Smith, Texas Hero, Is Now In Hereford As Presiding Judge

Local residents are living in "Deaf" Smith county, and the authority is no less than that of Judge Joseph Jones of Del Rio, who is now holding district court here. Judge Jones personally knew the county's namesake, the original Deaf Smith, hero of the Texas-Mexican war and the prefixed descriptive name was pronounced "Deaf," he says.

Judge Jones is a Texan of the old school. He is still of the West and his background is wholly of the West. He is district judge from the Del Rio territory, and is in Hereford for two weeks through an exchange of benches with Judge Reese Tatum.

Not only was Judge Jones acquainted with Deaf Smith, whose first name was Erasmus or "Rastus," but he was one of the commissioners who helped settle the estate of the hero following his death in the seventies. In those early days Joseph Jones was a district surveyor and was familiar with the land grant of 3100 acres patented to Smith at the junction of the San Felipe with the Rio Grande river. His expert testi-

Annual Assembly Of Baptists At Ceta Canyon Now

The annual summer encampment of the Panhandle Baptists opened Monday at Ceta canyon and will continue through the week. Rev. V. M. Cloyd, local pastor, is president of the assembly this year.

Special courses in the various lines of church work are being conducted. The supervised recreational activities include swimming, hiking, camping and athletic contests.

Dr. W. P. Meroney of Baylor University is the encampment pastor and inspirational speaker, preaching daily.

Between 20 and 30 Panhandle counties are represented at the meeting.

At the opening service about 300 were present to hear Dr. Meroney preach his opening sermon, his subject being "Thy Kingdom Come." The subject for Sunday morning will be "Science and Religion," and the afternoon program will be in charge of students and others of Wayland college.

Officers for the ensuing year will be elected the latter part of the week and will be announced in the Brand next week.

Those attending from here this week are Mr. and Mrs. Artis Daniel and son, R. A., and daughter, Nora Alice; Miss Emma Roberson, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Carl, Rev. and Mrs. V. M. Cloyd and children, Virgil and James. Quite a large delegation will attend from here next Sunday.

SLEMONS HOME UNDER- GOING IMPROVEMENT

M. Slemmons is making some extensive improvements to his ranch home in Castro county southeast of town about 14 miles, to be completed this week. He is rebuilding and remodeling the tenant house, adding two rooms and several coats of stucco. A double garage is under construction and the main residence is being stuccoed and a Spanish style porch added to the front. With the completion of the work now under way the Slemmons' will have one of the best improved farms in that community.

Cactus Challenges With Midnight Bloom

At least 150 friends of Mrs. J. M. Pitman were given a different kind of thrill than the present age usually has to offer when they were called to the home on East Third street one night recently to view the Night-Blooming Cereus perform its intermittent or suspended feat by opening four gorgeous blooms at midnight and then closing the long, leafy envelopes under the morning's sun for another periodic sleep of unknown duration.

Mrs. Pitman has had the cereus for five years, getting the cutting from a friend at Coleman. The greatest of care has been given during the winter, and on July 22 last showed the first evidence of fulfilling its name.

The gradual and visible extension of the opening blooms was viewed with wonder and awe as the dazzling beauty of the interior became revealed, as the lengthy white perianth expanded and left exposed a greenish-tinged corolla.

The Night-Blooming Cereus is a species of the well-known cactus family that grows in the southwestern part of the United States. This particular species has cylindrical stems and is a trailer or climber, branching and budding sparingly. At the junctures with the few branches there is a marked reduction in diameter, giving the appearance of artificially attached members.

All orders of the cactus are hardy plants, made so by evolutionary processes that have enabled it to survive under environments in which all other plant life passed into oblivion when changing climatic conditions wrought havoc upon both fauna and flora in the Southwest at some time in the long ago.

Stark and austere, with all trimmings of the usual beauty and accustomed delicacy discarded to combat an unfriendly nature, the cactus may be deemed to have suppressed into its fluid vitality the inherent desire and inclination, characteristic of all nature's children, toward the beautiful and magnificent.

And the Night-Blooming Cereus has undoubtedly concentrated all this beauty and delicacy, this tendency for self-aesthetic self-expression of grace and elegance, into its midnight blooms—even tho they may cast their charms as unreckoned intervals only under the moon's soft glow and endure in embellishment, ornamentation and glory for just a few hours.

Encyclopedic information relates that the Cereus gets its name from the fact that one species in its columnar shape resembles a wax candle (cera is Latin for wax). A distinguishing feature is that it has flowers with long, bracted perianth tubes. The only leaves the plant has are on the envelopes of the blooms.

Mark Hanna made a flashlight picture of the Cereus at the Pitman home, showing the recent phenomenon in full attractiveness.

New duties, which the faint-hearted refuse to grapple with, demand attention at every crossroads on the highway of progress, on the route of building towns and trade territories, and more especially in the complex field of providing educational training for the children. W. E. Dunlap, Ralph Barnett and Vern Witherspoon should have the sympathy of every taxpayer instead of the unflattering remarks that are usually thrown their way for they have made a sincere effort to set valuations that will equalize taxes.

There is a service to the school district, and any failure to assist the board that tries to fix fair levies is a disservice to the best interest of civic welfare. When taxes go up there is a loud outcry, but when valuations are raised by the board the act is hailed as arbitrary and unjust. We should cease to look upon these men as "tax gatherers" of old, representing an unconstituted rulership, but as our duly appointed servants out in the hot sun doing an unpleasant task which we have wished upon them.

It is evident that the church people of Hereford have made some long strides in the direction of better denominational understanding since three congregations have been assembling as one homogeneous audience every Sunday evening. An arresting point observed is that of a minister of the Christian church, from a Methodist pulpit before pews filled with Presbyterians, Methodists and Christians, defining religious conversion in all its possible phases, without tying it into controverted matters of faith or clouding it with even

19 Years Ago In Hereford

The Hereford territory had ten large irrigation plants. Among those operating pumps were McDonald & Co., Alex O. Thompson, H. G. Stanley, J. F. Collup and E. E. Ramsey.

Tierra Blanca creek went on a rise from a heavy rain to the west. On the Witherspoon alfalfa field new hay was washed away, but the owner gathered a load of bass instead, one weighing six pounds. The fish had been left stranded on the overflowed field.

Truck and fruit growers of the section organized and elected L. P. Landrum temporary chairman and J. E. Gyles secretary. C. N. Hill of the express company made a talk.

Announcement was made of the invention of a wind engine by a newspaper man for pumping water on a multiple system. Under a sail arrangement it was claimed 500 horse power could be utilized. It was predicted that the world's motive power would be revolutionized.

The 8-months-old baby of Rev. and Mrs. G. T. Bailey had been burned with lye, which the child had picked up while crawling on the floor and inserted into its mouth.

At the Confederate reunion in Amarillo were Capt. J. R. Wright, E. T. Woodburn, T. B. Rector, W. P. McMinn, C. G. Witherspoon and C. R. Moreman.

A number of friends of E. E. Ramsey had surprised him on his birthday, when they stormed his house and, in the name of his Sunday school class presented him with a fine Oxford Bible.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Black celebrated the 20th anniversary of their marriage when 20 couples gathered at their home on West Third street. G. A. F. Parker was more controvertible questions of baptism. That big thing of conversion, usually called regeneration, was lifted out of its sectarian setting, creeds and dogmas were brushed aside or ignored, and the jewel was revealed to be only a step in character building, a simple adjustment of relationship of each individual with his God. And some times not even a small realignment to secure the harmony is necessary, just a recognition of the need for conforming the human will to the higher and divine.

Sermons like these are not lost even though church audiences today are virtually one hundred per cent affiliated members. It may be said that those who could profit most are absent, and such thoughts and intentions are destined to "blush unseen" and waste their strength on deserted pews.

But the influence of the church is not confined to its material walls or membership rolls. Were it so, the churches would long since have become a hopeless minority. Like the overflowing waters of the Nile that washes the adjacent lands and brings nourishment to the soil, the good influence and sound principles, those not fraught with controversy, move out into the mass of people, and leave their souls in saving ideals that unconsciously lead them to plant their feet on higher ground.

It is claimed locally that there have been only three instances of the night blooming plant blooming in the United States and that national recognition was given the rare occasions. If true, the Cereus of Mrs. J. H. Pitman is something to draw all the more attention.

Liking Hereford better than California, two prominent families who had moved to the Pacific coast returned to live here. They were Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Williams, her mother, Mrs. Nicholson, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wilkinson.

Farm Agent for Santa Fe Speaks Well for Brand

A few more comments from the outside world are contained in the subjoined paragraphs concerning the special pictorial edition of the Brand. The section has not only been read closely by the parties receiving it, but they have passed it on to others for their information.

J. D. Tinsley, general agricultural agent for the Santa Fe railway system, speaks of the high standard of the Brand in general and says:

"The special edition is attractively gotten up, both the pictures and stories. It gives a comprehensive idea of Hereford, its business institutions and social facilities. Also a fine idea of what is being accomplished in farming and livestock raising in the county, as well as the advantages of Deaf Smith county has to offer those seeking a location. It should appeal to prospective settlers and also give some of the home folks information that they probably did not have about their county.

"I am sending the extra copy to J. F. Jarrrell, Topeka, Kansas, editor of our paper, the Earth, and manager of our agricultural development department."

R. R. Moser, sales manager of the Kansas City Paper House, comments on a different angle, complimenting the men of the mechanical department, who shouldered the burden of giving a good appearance to the edition:

"We take it for granted that the pictorial section was printed in your own shop. If this is the case, you are to be congratulated on the wonderful job you have turned out on this publication, as it is, without question, equal to anything turned out by the larger shops who make a specialty of book and pamphlet printing."

John B. Davis, manager of the Summerfield elevator states that the special edition was one of the best publication features ever put out for the Hereford territory. He had 12 copies sent out to parties possibly interested in this section, and received enthusiastic replies from every one of them.

"Spanish Nights" at Tri-State Fair

A scene from Ernie Young's "Spanish Nights," which will appear in front of the grandstand each night at the Tri-State fair, September 22 to 27, at Amarillo. Ernie Young carries his own orchestra as well as his own stage and lighting effects. There are 45 people in this revue.

Tiery cemetery every American grave but one had a cross; that one had more of a star monument. The guide explained that that was a Jewish boy's grave, and, of course, he would not want his grave marked by a cross. The fact that such minute details are observed is very commendable, I think.

At the Chateau-Thierry memorial a large chapel-like edifice is under construction just at the rear of the cemetery. It will make a beautiful background, and I can't say enough as to how beautifully the grounds are cared for.

We had lunch at Rheims (pronounced Rains). It is here that the beautiful Gothic structure, the Rheims cathedral, is found. The Germans occupied Rheims for about four years, and when they left they bombed the entire city. Practically everything was a complete ruin. The cathedral was torn down. It had such marvelously colored windows that had been there since the 14th century. All of these were shattered except one at the front, which is called the rose window. They are rebuilding the cathedral.

A temporary inn: wall is constructed about the center so that services are now held in the front part. Something of interest is the saints who are carved in stone on the outside wall of the church. Many of these are headless, because during the French Revolution when the revolutionists were rebelling against papal as well as civil authority they were not content with beheading the living but chopped out the heads of the saints which were carved in the stone.

At Rheims we were to see the famous champagne and wine cellars, but today being the first Monday after the 24th of June—it is a holiday—all the wine cellars were closed. We drove by each, however. One of the largest, the Cliquet wine cellars, has nine million bottles of champagne.

Coming back toward Paris from Rheims we saw real battlefields and trenches which even twelve years of peace have not covered up. We saw this along the famous Hindenburg line. We went inside the dugout that had been occupied by the crown prince of Germany. It was of cement supported by heavy iron rafters, and is in a perfect state of preservation, though absolutely uncared for there in the woods.

There is a hill that we passed that is torn up with deep gulches over it. It was occupied by the Germans who were forced to retreat, but they made the retreat count even, because mines were planted and as the French soldiers rushed forward as they retreated, the mines were exploded. At Belleau wood is a monument to "Fifty American liddle boys whose unfound bodies are yet resting in this wood." It is believed that there still remain 3950 unfound dead in the fields and forests of France. In 1926 six bodies were found in Belleau wood and thirteen in 1926. They look for them all the time.

Tomorrow we leave for Amsterdam and will be kept on the run until we sail August 9.

You would have adored this trip today. It helps somehow when you see the graves through bowers of flowers.

Battlefields In France Visited by Misses Hicks; Letter Sent to Parents Draws Vivid Pictures

By MISS LUCILLE HICKS.

Bob Lafayette, 30. That a day we've had! We left 7:30 this morning for the battlefields. It is a marvelous trip. I went in a huge bus and had a guide explain everything. He wore a little black derby hat, and really spoke very good English for a Frenchman.

The French certainly believe in commemorating their dead and heroes with monuments. Every village has a monument to the "Enfants"—their sons.

They are surely a thrifty people. As you are here and see how neatly they till their wheat lands, you wonder at your imaginations of the "frivolous French"—it isn't true at all.

It is marvelous how they have built that which was absolutely out and in ruins ten years ago. Such flower gardens they had the most humble home has doorways and windows covered with roses. The yards are all paved and kept like a palace garden. The houses are mostly of stone. They look so fun because they are built to take a little space as possible on any tract of land. Therefore, there are two of three stories high, only three or four tiny rooms width. A high wind as we have would surely make them feel the breeze up on top.

Our first real stop of greatest concern to Americans was at Belleau Wood. It was here that the Second Division of American troops was ordered by General Foch on May 30, 1918. It took up its position on June 1, covering a five-mile front from east to west. After continuous fighting for 21 days and a final bombardment by French and American artillery from the west and south, when 33,000 shells of every calibre were thrown into Belleau Wood, the enemy was driven out by the Fourth marine brigade reinforcements on the 25th of June.

There are 2268 American graves at Belleau. The cemeteries are beautiful. I am sure it was a satisfaction to these American mothers who came over to the graves. The crosses are of white marble, with the name, the rank, division and state from which the boy came, all cut in the stone.

Flowers and blue grass are on all American graves, whose tombstones are finer than the French, English, Italian or German. It is heart-rending at the profusion of crosses in the French cemeteries—they have so many dead. Their crosses are smaller and of wood. The German cemeteries have black crosses. The English have the maltese cross. At the Chateau

HANNAH A Godly Mother

1 Sam. 1:9-18, 24-28, 2:19

Golden Text: My son, hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother. Prov. 1:8.

Introduction.

Samuel stands next to Moses in the early history of Israel. He has been well called the second founder of the Jewish nation. He was the last and greatest of the judges and the first of the great Hebrew prophets after Moses. The subject of our lesson, Hannah, is the mother of this majestic historical character.

Samuel was born, lived, died and was buried in the town of Ramah, which means "height". In a hilly region, such as was Palestine, this was a common name, and this Ramah is distinguished from others by adding "in the land of Saph". but we do not know the boundaries of that district. The father of Samuel was Elkanah, a member of the tribe of Levites who had charge of the tabernacle and assisted in the sacrifices. Polygamy was common in that day, the custom having come down from the great leaders of the Jewish race. It was an evil custom, resulting in many sorrows, and especially in family dissensions such as were illustrated in the household of Elkanah, for he had two wives, one of whom, Hannah, was his favorite, but she had no children, while the other, Peninnah, who had children, that greatest of all blessings in the eyes of Hebrew women, took every opportunity to taunt Hannah with her childlessness, the more as Elkanah was unwise enough to show his preference in unmistakable fashion. When Peninnah was especially bitter in these attacks Elkanah strove to comfort the weeping Hannah asking her, "Why is thy heart grieved? Am I not better to thee than ten sons?" But the hurt still rankled in Hannah's heart.

Elkanah and Family at Shiloh.

The matter came to a climax on one of the annual visits to the sanctuary at Shiloh, where the ark and the tabernacle were at this time. Elkanah went thither to sacrifice, taking his wives and his children with him. "According to early Hebrew custom, after Jehovah's portion of the sacrifice had been burned on the altar, and the priests had received their share, the worshippers, if of one family, used the flesh of the victim to provide a family meal within the sanctuary precincts." At this meal Elkanah honored Hannah by giving her twice as large a portion as he gave to any one else, which provoked Peninnah to such a furious tirade that Hannah wept bitterly and could not eat. It was a thanksgiving feast, but she felt in her heart nothing but sorrow.

The Prayer in God's House.

"So Hannah rose up after they had eaten in Shiloh, and after they had drunk." She had no heart for the festivity and left the feast as soon as she could, that she might go by herself into the sanctuary and lay her burden before God. "Now Eli the priest." He was the high priest, though descended from the younger son of Aaron and not the elder, probably his great ability and profound piety made his selection for the post inevitable. "Was sitting upon his seat by the doorpost of the temple of Jehovah." Eli was judge as well as high priest and sat on his throne of office in the porch or entrance of the tabernacle court, to judge the cases brought before him by the people.

"And she was in bitterness of soul, and prayed unto Jehovah and wept sore." Her prayer was earnest, it came from the depth of her soul. Many of our prayers come only from the surface of our lives, and their shallowness deserves no reply from God. We are not heard for our "much speaking" but we are heard for our fervent speaking.

Hannah's Vow.

"And she vowed a vow." The vow was very common in Hebrew religion. It was always voluntarily made by one who desired particular assistance from God. "And said, Jehovah of hosts." "She addressed God as the 'Lord of hosts' (Jehovah-Sabbaoth)— the first time this afterwards familiar name is found on the page of the Scripture. She calls on him, that is to say, the Lord who rules in heaven and earth; leads out the hosts of heaven, the stars, by number; who sends the hosts who dwell in heaven, the angels upon his errands; who, as the Lord of Sabbath among men too, can do his will, as in heaven, so also among the inhabitants of the earth. If such a God as this will but speak the word, Hannah knows that all things are possible with him." "If thou wilt indeed give unto thy handmaid a man-child, then I will give him unto Jehovah all the days of his life." The son she prayed for should be dedicated to God's service, not as a mere Levite, whose duties commenced from the 25th year and ceased at the fiftieth, but all his days, from boyhood to the close of life.

The Birth of Samuel.

When the baby came to Hannah he was a double joy, because he came after long waiting and sorrow, and because he was a direct answer to prayer and assurance of God's favor. So Hannah named the boy Samuel, which means "Name of God." "Eli" the terminations, signifies God, and because the first syllable sounds like the Hebrew word "ask," she found in the name the meaning, "Asked of the Lord," and whenever she spoke of the boy it was a reminder of her answered prayer. Hannah, after the birth of the boy, did not join Elkanah in his annual visits to Shiloh—visits which men alone were obliged to make—wishing to remain away from the sanctuary until her son could be weaned and take up his abode permanently in the house of God as assistant to Eli.

The Consecration of Samuel.

"And when she had weaned him." Weaning in modern Palestine is sometimes postponed to the age of five or six years, and this may have been the case with Samuel, as he seems (1 Sam. 2:11) to have helped Eli as soon as he went to Shiloh. "She took him with her." It must have been a sad journey for the loving mother, knowing that it was to be her last journey with her boy; but she did not falter in keeping her vow. "And brought the child to Eli, and she said, Oh, my lord, as thy soul liveth, my lord, I am the woman that stood by thee here, praying unto Jehovah."

"For this child I prayed; and Jehovah hath given me my petition which I asked of him." Like Hannah, let us keep a reckoning of our prayers. Let us note, how many are answered. "Therefore also I have granted him to Jehovah." We shall rise to Hannah's height if we dedicate to God's service all that God gives us; thus we most effectively put it to our own use. "As long as he liveth he is granted to Jehovah." Often men are willing to give the Lord some transient use of what he gives them; but they must have it back again, and soon. Such giving to the Lord returns no blessings to us, but only the giving that is complete and forever. "And he worshipped Jehovah there."

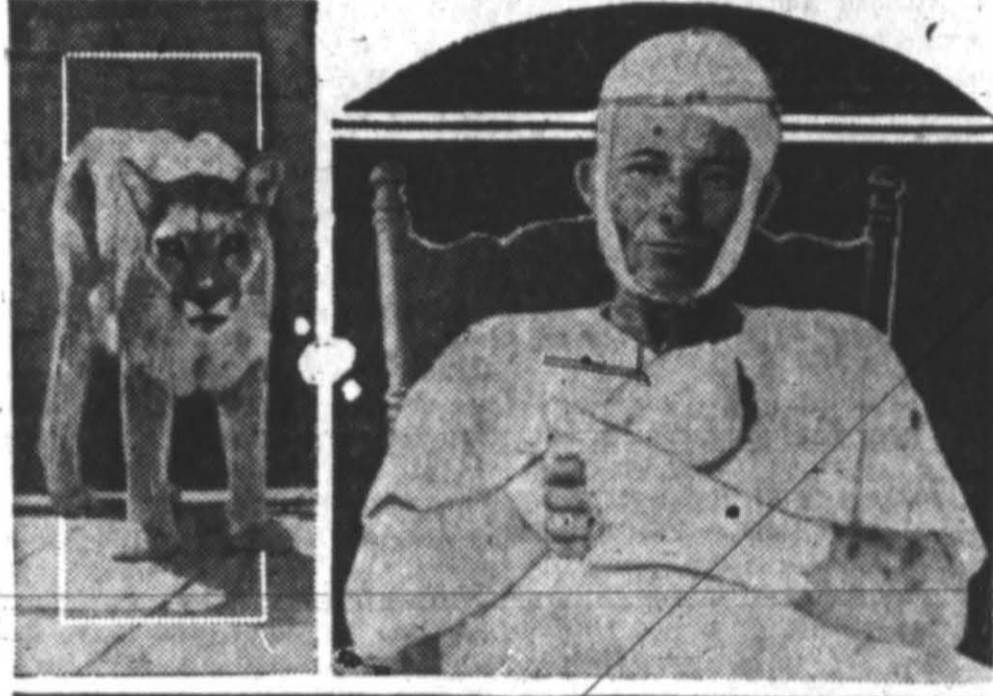

"Speak for Thy Servant Heareth" There is no lovelier scene in the entire Bible than the call of God to the child Samuel. We see the darkened tabernacle, and the young boy lying near the half-blind old priest ready to answer Eli's faintest call, taking the place which Hophni and Phinhas should have taken. We hear the thrice-repeated call of Jehovah and Samuel's quick response. We honor Eli for his willing perception of the fact that Samuel now has the close touch with God that once was his own. And we rejoice in the lad's prompt response to God. "Speak for thy servant heareth."

"Our Mothers' Lot." An anonymous writer thus pictures "Our Mothers' Lot." "She has stood by father from the day she married him, helping to fight the wolf from the door

HOW DO TH THE BUSY LITTLE BEE IMPROVE EACH SHINING HOUR?

Moral: Never Trust a Panther

Gladys, pet panther of the Abilene, Tex., zoo, doesn't take much stock in that old saying, "Don't bite the hand that's feeding you." G. W. Baggett, keeper, who had fed Gladys daily for four years, entered her den with rations for the panther and her three cubs the other day and instead of greeting the keeper with her customary purr, the animal attacked him with teeth and claws. A visitor who fought the panther off with a knife saved Baggett's life. Gladys and her wounded keeper are shown above.

with her naked hands, as a mother must fight. "She worked not the eight or ten-hour day of the union, but the 24-hour of the poor wife and mother."

"She cooked and cleaned and scrubbed and patched and nursed from dawn until bedtime, and in the night was up and down getting drinks for thirsty lips, covering restless little sleepers and listening for croupy cough."

"She did without the dress she needed, that you might not be ashamed of your clothes before your fellows."

"Remember this now while there is time, while she is living, to pay back the debt you owe her. You can never pay it all, but pay down something on account. Pay today. If your mother lives and is near enough, visit her. If she lives but far away, write her a love letter. If she does not live, think of her, and her desires and sacrifices for you. Stop and think, whether mother is living or dead, is your life the one that would comfort and delight her? Honor thy mother and father, that thy days may be long in the land of the living."

Hereford Man Tells of Trip Into Country that Is Old, Yet Young, Still Changing Shape

Editor's Note. How a cloud was followed up by the Kilauea volcano crater in Hawaii and other interesting things on the little island in mid-Pacific are told by Fred W. Baird, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Baird of Hereford. Fred is in military service at Fort Rucker, Honolulu.

By FRED W. BAIRD

On the island of Hawaii, which is the largest and southernmost of the Hawaiian group, is located the Hawaii National Park, covering an area of 219 square miles. Within this park and standing on the very rim of Kilauea, one of the few remaining active volcanoes in the world, is the Kilauea military camp, a recreation post for service men in this department. Each soldier during his three year tour of service in the Hawaiian department is entitled to a two weeks' furlough at the camp. The camp opens the year round and each year hundreds of service men spend their vacations there. I have just returned from such a trip.

It would tax the pen of one truly great to describe adequately the wonders of nature in this region. I can only briefly sketch parts of it and trust that your imagination may catch some of the more minute details to round out for you a more complete picture of some of the magnificent things I have been privileged to see during the past two weeks. Here we have the earth still in the making. A work that was begun a hundred—maybe a thousand—million years ago is still unfinished. Here mountains are still being made, valleys are being opened up—earth contours are changing.

One June 2, after having made the necessary arrangements for a leave of absence, I left Honolulu at noon and arrived after a turbulent voyage at 11 next morning at Hilo, island of Hawaii, a distance of 192 miles. From Hilo went to the camp 31 miles and 4000 feet up. This is certainly a magnificent drive, over a fine strip of concrete highway bordered on either side by dense tropical jungle, with an occasional clearing planted to sugar cane. There had been some rain earlier in the morning and the air was fresh and bracing. As we sped toward the camp, with the increased altitude, it became noticeably colder and the nice warm dinner that awaited us upon our arrival at the camp was certainly appreciated. Some of us had not eaten for over 24 hours, for with a small boat in a rough sea food has no appeal.

Kilauea Military Camp is rather unique in that it was built and finished and is maintained to a large extent at no cost to the government, but by voluntary subscriptions from soldiers and by a small charge to those who enjoy the privileges. There is in addition to several cottages for officers and enlisted men with families, one large barracks, providing sleeping accommodations for about 100 men and another building of equal size housing the kitchen, mess hall and recreation room. In the latter there are three large open fireplaces. And even in June, roaring log fires are kept going to dispell the sharp chill in the evening.

The day after our arrival in camp it rained all day which of course kept everyone indoors. Card games and reading was the order of the day, with a review in the evening. Rain is very necessary however to the existence of the camp, for the only water supply is that caught in the cisterns from the roof of the camp buildings.

By next morning the rain had stopped with the exception of an occasional flurry of snow-like mist. What a wonderful day and such a world! Low-lying white clouds drifted across the waistline of Mauna Loa, at whose base is Kilauea. The sun's rays reaching through rifts in the higher clouds, like a giant searchlight, revealed by an unseen hand pointed out the beauties that are Nature's, rested for a while on the snow-capped peaks which rise to a height of 15,075 feet. A world of wonder and beauty. Volcanoes, steam cracks, rifts in the ground through which escape part of the earth's surplus heat, tropical jungles, barren lava beds, sunshine, rain, snow, mountain and sea in part of the world not yet finished. Weird beautiful, fantastic!

Perhaps the greatest attraction of the park, especially from the average tourist's point of view, is Kilauea volcano. The crater is about two miles across and on the north side is 900 feet deep with but few trails leading down to the lava bed. Toward the southern edge of Kilauea is the smaller but more recently active crater of Halemauama. It was last active a little over a year ago at which time the lava bed forming the floor of the crater rose in a molten mass of boiling rock nearly 300 feet above the former floor level. Halemauama is now 1000 feet deep and a little more than 3000 feet in diameter. There are no trails leading down to the floor, the walls are almost perpendicular. Avalanches continually enlarge the crater.

There are now huge cracks in the ground a few feet back from the edge and running parallel with it and in some places the ground has already slipped a little leaving that section a foot or so lower than the ground just back of it. These cracks become larger and larger with each quake until a section of the rim tumbles to the bottom. If a slide should occur at the particular section of the rim upon which one is standing it would be just too bad. All that could be done would be to say a prayer and drop a wreath in after him.

Halemauama, which in the Hawaiian language means "The house of everlasting fire," was for a hundred years prior to 1924 a seething cauldron of molten lava. An explosive eruption occurred in May of that year, the first of its kind since 1700. Since then the fire in the pit has been intermittent, returning for short periods about once a year. It is believed by some scientists and especially the Hawaiians that Madam Pele, the Hawaiian goddess of volcanoes, will again some day return to her fiery palace and Halemauama will again take on some of its former splendor.

The crater may be reached from the south by auto and most one-day tourists take this route. However, for those who have the time the best way is to walk over from the north rim of Kilauea across the lava flow. This is called the "world's hardest walk." It leads across two miles of hard black lava. The thousands that trod this path yearly have made but slight imprint upon it. The trail is marked by small mounds of broken lava. The latest flow across this trail was in 1921.

These volcanoes are not the only things of interest in this the farthest flung of our national parks. There are many other volcano craters in this region, most of which have been inactive for a century or more and are now grown up in tropical jungle. And this same tropical jungle is a wonder world in itself. Trees, shrubs, vines in countless varieties and colors. Trees that blossom and trees with leaves that are even prettier and more brilliantly colored than are the blossoms. Tree ferns, 20, 30 and even 40 feet tall. A fern jungle that is impossible to walk through except where trails have been cleared. Lava tubes, most noticeable of which is the Thurston tube. It is a round tunnel 8 or 10 feet in diameter. It opens into the bottom of a small extinct crater and runs almost horizontal for a distance of 1800 feet through hard lava rock. There is no outlet at the far end. Then there is Mauna-aki, a low lava mound two or three miles across which was formed by a lava flow through an underground tube from Halemau-ma six miles away. This was in 1922. Blasts of dry heat rising from the deep cracks in the lava still greet the visitor to Mauna-aki. Food can be cooked on the rocks here in Nature's own ovens. And the rainbows! Hawaii is noted for its beautiful rainbows, both by day and by night. But I must tell of one I saw at Kilauea for it was most unusual. The sun was high, the morning near gone—a time of day when a rainbow on the Plains would not be possible. A few companions and myself were standing on the Pali Aloha, a high ledge overlooking Kilauea crater with its ocean of black lava 500 feet almost directly beneath us. It's an awe-inspiring sight without frills or embellishments. But as we watched a few low-flying, thin clouds drifted into the crater. Steam from a hundred steam cracks floated across. The sun overhead shown down with true tropical intensity and a brilliant rainbow, anchored its two ends to the face of the cliff directly below and spread its varicolored arc in almost a closed circle across the blackness of the lava bed. The proverbial pot of gold, if found, might sift through our fingers and become scattered and lost but such wondrous beauty cannot be lost to us while memory lasts.

Hiking is the only means of travel in the Kilauea region if one wishes to really enjoy what is there to see, and each morning at the recreation camp parties of two, four and even greater numbers may be seen taking off in every direction, with camera, lunch and a canteen of water. Late afternoon finds them strolling in again, tired but happy. Then for a good steam bath in natural volcanic steam, supplemented by a cold shower—and then—everybody joins in the chorus, "When Do We Eat?" Best of good wishes to all my friends and home folks in Hereford and vicinity.

Hereford Man Tells of Trip Into Country that Is Old, Yet Young, Still Changing Shape

Editor's Note. How a cloud was swallowed up by the Kilauea volcanic crater in Hawaii and other interesting things on the little island in mid-Pacific are told by Fred W. Baird, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Baird of Hereford. Fred is in military service at Fort Rucker, Honolulu.

By FRED W. BAIRD

The long table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with a low silver bowl of garden flowers. The bounteous repast was served in true pioneer style, as the Witherspoons were among the first settlers in this county. Numbered among the honored guests were Baker Womble and bride, the former a son of Troy Womble of another pioneer family of Deaf Smith county.

Both these couples were married Sunday, July 27, and they enjoyed a pleasant trip into New Mexico together. Seated with the newlyweds were about 40 relatives and close friends which included

MRS. EASLEY'S CLASS LEAVES ON BIG TRIP

Nine members of the Sunday school class of Mrs. S. L. Easley of the Methodist church, after many months of preparation and activities to raise a trip fund, left Wednesday for Yellowstone Park to spend about two weeks of sight-seeing on the road and a tour of the national reservation.

The boys were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Easley and Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Fuller. They chartered a big truck for the journey. They will return not later than August 23.

The class members in the party are Morris Easley, Cawthon Bryant, T. E. Seigler, Jr., Homer Brumley, Bill Hawkins, Spaulding Bartley, Wright Ireland, J. F. Blythe and Arnold Hershey.

Rev. Charlton Will Preach In City On Sunday

The next Sunday evening service for the united congregations will be held at the Presbyterian church with a visiting speaker in the pulpit, the Rev. Charlton, Presbyterian minister of Canyon.

The attendance contest for the summer is still a close affair between the Presbyterians and Christians, the former holding a slight lead.

Rev. Harold Hicks, young minister of the city, will preach Sunday morning at the Methodist church at 11 o'clock, announced Rev. J. M. Fuller upon leaving for Yellowstone Park. The pastor will be gone for about two weeks and he stated there would be no preaching services for either hour at the Methodist church Sunday week, August 27.

ARTHUR THOMPSON, JR., IS HONORED IN KANSAS

Arthur Thompson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thompson of this city, has been accorded quite an honor while he and his mother are visiting Mrs. Thompson's mother for the summer in Hamilton, Kansas.

During the week of July 26, Arthur was invited to take part in the Home Talent Chautauqua at Hamilton. On Saturday he played a trumpet solo, on Sunday afternoon he played in the band, and in the evening he took part in a double piano rendition.

O. L. CULWELL GROWS SOME HUGE CUCUMBERS

O. L. Culwell of West Hereford should have plenty of pickles for the fall and winter if he has a half dozen cucumbers the size he was displaying Monday. The cucumber weighed three pounds and was 16 3-8 inches long. Another ten-inch one, half the weight, was grown on the same branch.

Conversion Experience Liberally Interpreted by Christian Pastor In United Service of Last Sunday

The much-mooted question of what conversion is in a spiritual sense, of what the event of "getting religion" means, was gone into thoroughly by Rev. J. W. Boultinghouse Sunday night in the Methodist pulpit for the regular united weekly service.

The most complete, profound, and at the same time most liberal interpretation ever uttered from a Hereford church rostrum was forcibly expounded by the speaker in the attempt to clarify that epochal decision which confronts every civilized individual at various stages in his or her life. "God's remedy for sin" was the subject of the evening, and the plan formulated by God to counteract sin was outlined through a discussion of conversion. The textual reading was from the 15th chapter of Matthew.

"You and I are living in a sin-cursed world; our paths lead constantly across the trail of the serpent; the marks of sin are on our faces," said the minister, who continued in part:

"Our most serious thought is that we are transgressors. The human physical suffering, mental debility, or moral depravity are the results of some one's sin, either wilfully or ignorantly perpetrated, and these dire effects are widespread.

"Sin is powerful and we may wonder why God does not destroy the evil force. He cannot without destroying our most precious attribute; freedom of will. Sin has its origin in the human capability of making decisions. If we surrender our freedom of choice, we become pieces of machinery, mere 'dumb-driven cattle'.

"But God cares, is grieved because of our wrong choices and rather than make automatons of us he has provided a way of escape. Conversion is his plan to overcome sin.

"Some definitions of conversion are the going from division to unity, response to religious awakening, turning from the selfishness of childhood to unselfishness of adolescence, moving from sin to God, or surrender of our personal wills to the will of God.

"The latter meets all conditions more perfectly. Ninety per cent of the present day converts come by this method. No change of program is implied. The child is reared under religious training and Christian nurture. The principles of Christianity are instilled in the young mind and at the age of intellectual responsibility, he decides to live as he has been taught. That is conversion. There is no great change, no great sorrow, for none are necessary.

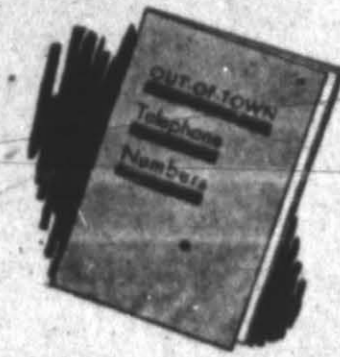

"Every conversion is an individual matter. The decision is different for it is made up of each one's predilections. Our impressions are dissimilar. Previous experience and emotional mechanism enter to vary the religious inducement. The parables of the heaven, lost

Conversion comes about, Rev. Boultinghouse said, through getting an insight into the nature of God, through an understanding of our better natures, of our importance in the scheme of creation and through recognition of its true values.

treasure and pearl of great price were used to illustrate the differences of approach in the desire to give up sin and seek a highly plane.

this Free book helps make Long Distance like a local call

A vest-pocket will hold it.

How would you like to pick up your telephone and, almost as quickly as on a local call, get in touch with friends, relatives, business associates, a hundred...two hundred...miles away?

It's easy. All you have to do is give the number of the out-of-town telephone you are calling.

Knowing the number saves the operator the time of looking it up in the directory, and enables her in most cases to ring the telephone almost as quickly as if it were in your own town.

To make it easy for you to use this speedy method, we will supply you, if you wish, with an "out-of-town number book," listing the names and addresses of your out-of-town friends, relatives, business associates, and telling you how much it will cost to talk for three minutes to each.

THIS BOOKLET IS FREE

To obtain one, simply write on the coupon the names and addresses of three or more persons in other cities whose telephone numbers you would like to keep handy. Then mail or bring the list to the office of the telephone company.

Serving Homebuilders

If operating a lumber yard were just selling boards, nails, wire and cement, no special claim for distinction could be made beyond just having something to sell.

But when a yard has been conducted over a long period of years it learns the type of buildings suited to the conditions of its community, and the advice the lumber yard can give the homebuilder, while freely given, is sometimes worth more to the buyer than the material purchased.

Closing Week Has Been Gay Bridal Season for Hereford Girls

Miss Brumley Bride of E. Joiner

Miss Virgil Brumley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Brumley, E. E. Joiner, son of Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Joiner of Muleshoe, was married at high noon Sunday following the morning church service at the First Baptist church. C. A. Joiner, father of the groom, officiated with Rev. V. M. Cloyd leading the prayer. The church was beautifully decorated with baskets filled with white daisies, gladioli and ferns. The pre-nuptial solo, "McDowell's 'To a Wild Rose,'" was played by Miss Eileen Wilson of Clovis who accompanied Mrs. I. F. Land of Lubbock, who sang "Because."

Announcing the bridal party, Miss Wilson played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." The bridesmaids, Miss Norma Powelson of Hereford, Miss Lara Sue Bass of Canyon, entered. Miss Powelson wore a green tulle dress with accessories to match, and carried a bouquet of white daisies tied with green tulle that hung to the floor. Miss Bass wore a pink tulle dress with accessories to match and also carried a bouquet of white daisies tied with pink tulle that hung to the floor.

The flower girls, Little Miss Eileen Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Olson, niece of the bride, and little Miss Nadine Newell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Newell, dressed in pink and green crepe dresses, carried baskets of mixed flower petals.

Mrs. John O. Baker of Dallas, sister of the bride, attended as matron of honor. Mrs. Baker chose for her dress a flowered net over satin, featuring a high waistline and floor length skirts with green and pink as predominating colors. She wore slippers and hat of cream color. Her corsage was of pink gladioli.

The bride walked with the matron of honor. Her dress was of white satin, distinguished by long waist line, tiny puff sleeves and floor length skirts. She wore long white gloves. Her long veil was made of white silk tulle edged with lily of the valley lace. She carried a shower bouquet of cream rosebuds and fern.

The bride met the groom at the altar where Mr. Joiner, attended by his best man, Mr. Homer Brumley, brother of the bride, waited to receive her.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to the guests and family at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Brumley. The dining room was decorated with cut flowers of white daisies and gladioli. In the center of the dining table was the wedding cake of three tiers with a miniature bride and groom on top of the cake.

Mrs. Joiner is a graduate of the Hereford high school. She has attended school at W. T. S. T. C. at Canyon and Simmons University

Kathleen Hawkins and Don Baker Wedded Tuesday

Before an improvised altar of ferns and cut flowers reflecting the soft light from two tall candelabras that held burning white wax tapers, Miss Kathleen Hawkins was pronounced the bride of Mr. Don Baker with the beautiful ring ceremony, spoken shortly after seven o'clock Tuesday evening by Rev. J. M. Fuller at the First Methodist church.

An enveloped aisle formed a path down which the bride and groom trod. They entered together and were unattended, and as they made their way slowly to the altar, Mrs. Jesse Stanford played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. During the ceremony she played the Venetian Love Song of Nerval; Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played for the recessional.

Proceeding the marriage vows, Mrs. R. P. Conaway sang "I Know a Lovely Garden" by Handel and "At Dawning" by Cadman. The organist played Johnson's "Evening Song" as the church filled with relatives and friends.

The bride was attired in a gown of Nile green chiffon with green lace bouffant in princess style. She wore a string of pink pearls and pink slippers to match. She carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Baker is the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hawkins of Hereford, and the groom is a young business man of Borger. Immediately after the wedding they left for their home in Borger.

Mrs. J. P. Slaton was in charge of the church decorations which cast such an appropriate atmosphere and environment for the holy rites. Misses Eva Skelton and Eloyse Pitman lighted the tapers on the stately candelabras.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Baker and nephew, G. W. Miller, Tulsa; Mr. and Mrs. Ita Merchant, Clearendon; Mr. and Mrs. Mark Galloway, Plainview; and from Amarillo, Annabelle Sparger, Geo. Bates, Mrs. H. H. Hall, Mrs. C. W. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. W. As a prelude, Miss Polly Steele sang "Because," followed immediately by "The Flower Song," played by Miss Dessie Mae Steele at the piano, during which the bride and groom entered unattended to take and seal the vows that united their hearts and lives.

After the ceremony the guests were led by Mr. and Mrs. Fraser into the dining room where a delightful three-course breakfast was served.

LOVELY GARDEN PARTY GIVEN AT HOME OF MRS. J. H. PITMAN

One of the most outstanding social events of the entire summer season was the garden party Friday afternoon, August 1, at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pitman.

The party was another courtesy extended to Miss Kathleen Hawkins as a prenuptial event to her marriage on August 5 to Mr. Don Baker of Borger.

Hostesses included Mrs. R. P. Conaway, Mrs. W. J. Stanford, Mrs. Oscar Easley, Misses Eloyse Pitman and Eva Skelton.

The spacious lawn was transformed into an outdoor living room. Huge baskets of garden flowers completed the effect.

After the arrival of the guests Miss Vivian Olson gave two readings, "A Little Home" by Carolyn Davis, and "The Secret". Little Misses Lela Jane Lewis and Rena Rhea Renfro gave a demonstration in acrobatic work which delighted the guests.

Just at this time strange people began to arrive, who were soon recognized by the manner of their dress as pirates of the high seas. One of the number announced, "Long ago a treasure chest was hidden at this place for a bride to open the lid. Captain Kidd will soon be here with a chart to direct to the hidden treasure, if the guests will permit the search."

Excitement grew more intense as Captain Kidd arrived with the chart, unfolded it and gave directions for the hunt. Ten paces north, ten paces south went the orders; at last the place was located and Capt. Kidd's band dugged away until the coveted chest was found, carried and set at the feet of a muchly excited bride-to-be.

The chest was indeed full of treasures which proved to be gifts for the honoree.

Diphtheria's Heaviest Toll Is Children Under Five Years of Age; Easy to Protect Against

By MISS NELL HALL
County Health Nurse

Do you know that your children can be protected from diphtheria? Diphtheria is a severe contagious disease of childhood. It is caused by a small germ which enters through the mouth or nose and attacks the warm moist linings of the nose, throat and windpipe. This germ produces a toxin or poison which spreads readily thru the system, and if not checked may cause lasting injury or death. A dangerous operation on the throat is sometimes necessary to help the child breathe. Diphtheria causes the death of many children, especially those under five years of age. Year after year diphtheria exacts its toll of over 10,000 lives, one quarter as many as we lost in one year in the world war. Even more compelling is the picture of the suffering of the children, the anxiety of the parents and the darkened homes. In 1926 there were 100,000 deaths in the United States. The communicable diseases of childhood, of which diphtheria is one, are directly responsible for some of the abnormal heart and kidney conditions which appear in later life. Such a waste of human life and injury to health is needless, since all children can be easily protected against diphtheria. Children who are too young to go to school need protection against diphtheria even more than school children. Diphtheria is particularly fatal to children from three to five years of age, and ranks third among the fatal diseases from one to three years. So great is the toll in these years that more than half of all deaths from diphtheria occur among children between the ages of six months and five years. These little ones can easily be protected by immunization. If every child between the ages of six months and five years were immunized, diphtheria would soon be practically wiped out. Do not let your child get diphtheria. Toxin-anti-toxin or toxoid prevents it. Medical science has found in toxin-anti-toxin a wonderful protection for the child, a safe guard for his future health and happiness. Toxin-anti-toxin will not harm your child. His arm may be slightly sore from the prick, and he may feel out of sorts for a day, but there will be no serious after effects. Most children do not have even these symptoms. Toxin-anti-toxin is given once each week for three weeks. After a short time, from three to six months, your child will be safe from diphtheria. A few children require further doses to make the protection complete, but your doctor can be absolutely certain of this by giving the Schick test several months after treatment. You can never tell when diphtheria may break out in your town. The child who sits next to yours in school may suddenly develop a sore throat which means that your child may be exposed to this dangerous disease. Toxin-anti-toxin or toxoid will protect your child against any exposure to diphtheria. This is an appeal to you, as parents, to help give your child his right to health and happiness. Add to your peace of mind as a parent by having your child protected against diphtheria. Toxin-anti-toxin or toxoid prevent diphtheria. They are simple, safe and sure.

A Silk Suit and Lace Frock Meet Every Demand for Week-End Parties

BY HARRIET

WEEK-END parties always present problems this time of the summer. What to wear? What to take?

We all want to look our best. But remember that usually it is much better to be dressed a bit less formally than over-dressed. Nothing makes one feel more awkward than to wear an elaborate dress when everybody else wears an informal one.

A silk suit is about the best bet for making any kind of a week-end trip, whether by train, boat or automobile—can always throw a topcoat over it if you're chilly.

In selecting such a suit, however, you should be a little conservative. Not too dressy. Not too tailored.

One of the continued favorites is the polka-dotted silk. I show today a little blue and white polka-dotted silk, a crepe de chine, that would admirably fit the demands of a trip.

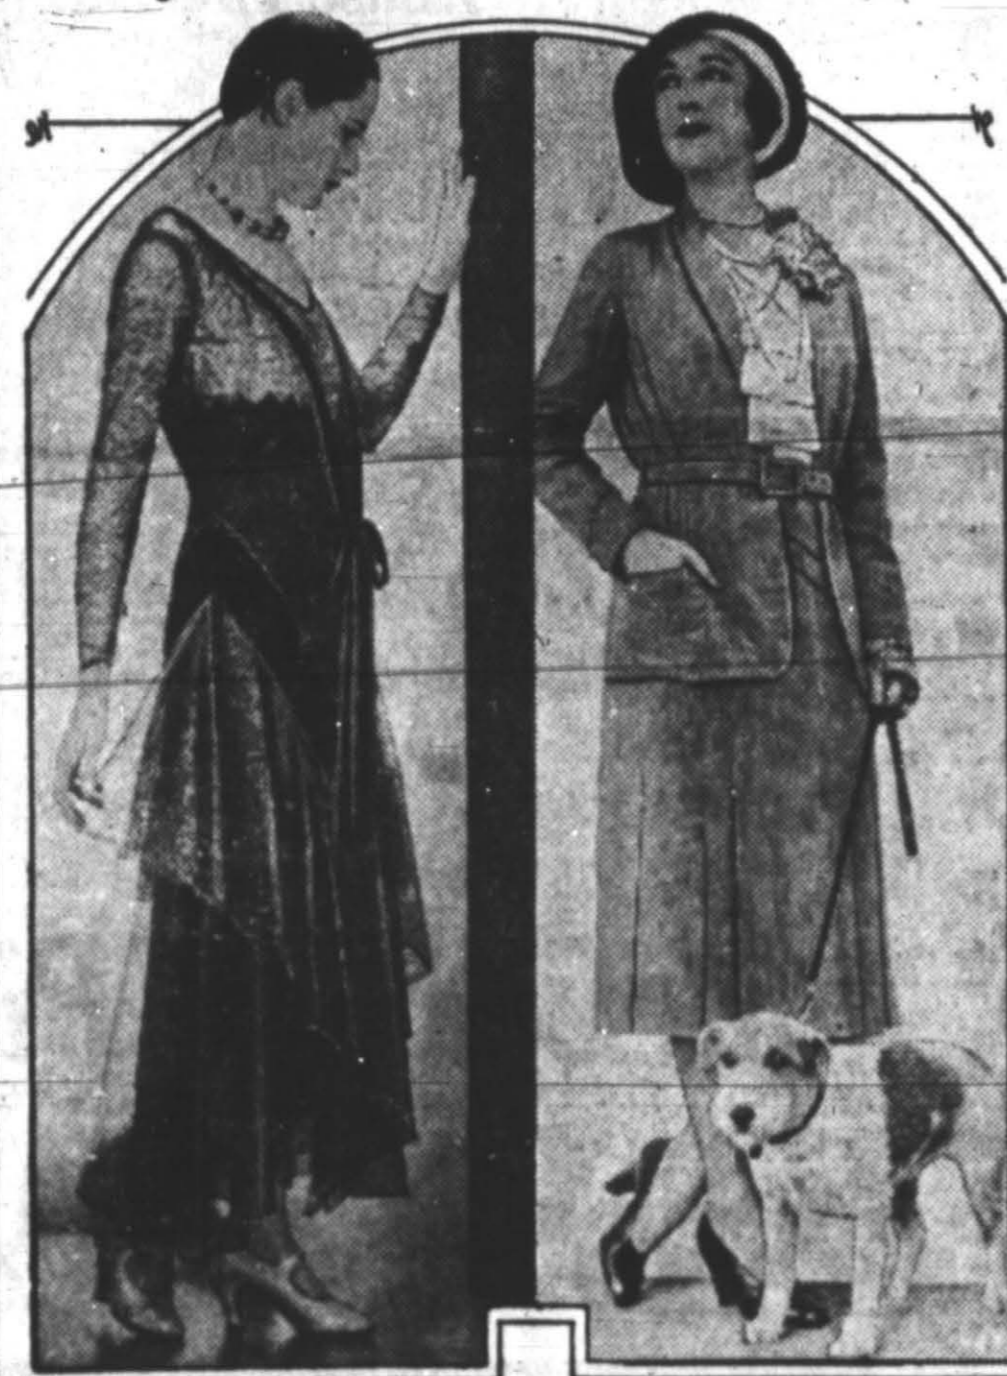

It has one of the new pleated skirts, with the pleats stitched well below the hip line. The coat fits in tailored manner and is belted, with a stitched belt of the polka dots.

The blouse gives it its finest touch. It is a fine crepe georgette, made with an accordion pleated bodice that is edged with the finest of real val lace. There are short little sleeves that have double ruffles of the pleated georgette all edged with the lace. Worn with a corsage, this little blouse becomes quite dressy and when the coat is shed, the suit looks decorative.

An excellent choice of traveling outfit is one, from Florence Walton. It is a blue panamalac with white kid trimming. It forms one half of the under brim and banding the other half blue.

FOR dinner and informal dances, or for evenings of bridge when you may sit on the veranda, nothing is lovelier than a sheer black lace frock.

One that fills the bill is made of fine black lace and chiffon combined. Bands of the chiffon fashion the pointed panel effect under which faring bouffants of the lace suit are posed. There is a belt of the chiffon and a ribbon bow made of the chiffon that swings from the shoulders. The black slip under this frock is made with a flesh colored top, one of the very newest touches in lace costumes. It also ends higher than the skirt, making the whole frock look lazier and cooler.

Of course you will want some sports things in your week-end kit, too. I suggest a lounging pajama suit of some gay cotton material, and a cotton beret to match. The soft wheel hats are so hard to pack that unless you are carrying a lot of luggage, they are a mistake. The new sweater suits which are smart for golf, tramping and all kinds of spectator sports, such as polo, water sports, tennis, are made with fitted jackets. The newest of all is a slip-on sweater that fastens just like a polo shirt, with buttons and a little shirt collar. It comes in long sleeves and the skirt with it may be pleated silk, gored flannel or even a yoked linen one.

15,000 Daily Demand Sargon

Vast Growing Army of Sargon Users, Marching Single File, Would Encircle Globe In Only Few Years' Time.

(By Richard L. Simms) ATLANTA, Ga.—More like a tale from the Arabian Nights of old than a record of modern business achievement reads the story of the marvelous growth and development of Sargon, the New Scientific Compound which has become the sensation of the drug trade throughout the United States, Canada and other countries.

The old illustration of the pebble dropped into the pool best describes the phenomenal and unprecedented demand and its fame is rapidly spreading over the entire American Continent like a great tidal wave.

Recently compiled figures reveal that approximately 15,000 men and women are marching into the drug stores daily for Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills, the marvelous new treatment that is restoring health to countless thousands by new and remarkable methods undreamed of only a few years ago.

Already more than 5,000,000 suffering men and women have put it to the test and have told other millions what it has done for them. Marching in regulation U. S. Army fashion—single file—this vast army of Sargon users would reach from New York to San Francisco and at the present rate of sale, would in a few years time encircle the entire globe.

The only explanation of Sargon's triumph in the Medical World is Sargon's true worth. Back of its triumph in the homes and in the grateful endorsements of its millions of users that has made it the most widely talked medicine in the world today.

Sargon is extensively advertised, it is true, but no preparation, no matter how extensively advertised, could possibly meet with such phenomenal success unless it possessed absolute merit and extraordinary powers as a medicine.

There can be but one possible explanation for Sargon's amazing success and it can be told in one word—MERIT! Rice Drug Store, Agents.

Carload Polled Hereford Go to Pecos Ranch

Among the recent important deals in Hereford cattle among West Texas ranchmen was the purchase of a carload of registered Polled Hereford yearlings by S. M. Prewitt of Pecos from the Gill ranch at Whon, Texas.

Mr. Prewitt is one of the leading business men of Pecos as well as a large ranch owner. He is planning to stock his ranch exclusively with Polled Herefords, and this is a second carload that he has bought from the Gill ranch. In making up the last shipment, Prewitt selected 10 bulls and 19 heifers. Most of these cattle were bred by the Gills. This gives the Pecos man a variety of bloodlines. However, in making his selection Prewitt favored the blood of Beau Disturber 981304, picking more of his get than that of any other bull. Beau-Disturber is the senior herd bull of the Gill ranch, having been secured at the Fort Worth stock show in 1924. In this deal the Pecos breeder also obtained the young herd sire, Debit-ola 9th.

Thomas Single Disc Drill

Here's a Drill Secret

Many farmers haven't been able to understand why their neighbors with a Thomas drill get 3 to 5 more bushels an acre on land that is no better.

The secret lies in the wide, flat seed furrow made by the special disc and tube boot of the Thomas. The seed are scattered far enough apart so every plant has room to spread out and make a heavy stand. This means more stalks, more heads and more grain at threshing time. That's the secret of this Drill and the reason why we would like to show you its special features.

Auction Sale of Dairy Cows Set for August 20th

A big auction sale of the dairy herd of G. W. Brumley is announced for August 20 by Ray Barber, local auctioneer. The herd consists of 70 head of exceptionally high class dairy cattle, which is conceded to be one of the best in this section. All are Jerseys and are of good age for milk production.

The sale will be held at the home place of Mr. Brumley just east of the stockyards. A fine flock of chickens of the heavy breed will also be included in the auction.

Never has there been a time, it is claimed, when dairy cows are more profitable, and will continue to be so, on the farm. Cream prices are up and will either maintain the present level or go higher. The shortage of the wheat crop and low price have cut the farm income, and a few dairy cows will go a long way toward overcoming the loss. The sale should afford an opportunity for farmers to provide for a good cash income by selecting one or more excellent butterfat producers.
