CECIL BRALY DECIDED TO BE TELEGRAPHER AT SIX, STILL IS AT SIXTY

He Planned Early-And Stayed Late United States. He even married come legendary. By DUDLEY LYNCH

His eyes bulging with puerile wonderment, Cecil G. Braly used to stand outside the railroad depot window and listen to the magical, mysterious and unintelligible "dot-dash" of the Morse telegraph.

"I was only six years old then," Braly says. "I know that was young, but I remember telling my folks that I wanted to learn to read that."

MASTERY OF THE ingenious system invented by Samuel F. B. Morse for transmitting messages by wire required an agile ear, a nimble, fast-reacting mind and powers of concentration, the stories of which have be-

Braly, now manager for Western Union at 111 W. 3rd St., pursued his childhood dream with undeterred vigor. His first chance to enter the inner sanctums of the telegraph industry came in the verdant, brush-covered bluffs of central Oklahoma in 1921. He donned the blue uniform and black tie of the messenger service and delivered telegrams by bicycle in Braly, a neat, bookish little man wih a brisk, nasal twang and an energetic mien, has supervised the Hereford telegraph office for seven year. He came here from a 16-year stint at Childress, leaving the East-ern Panhandle town when services were curtailed.

Hereford's telegraph office still is at full strength, Braly says. IN MANY COMMUNITIES the size of Hereford and smaller, a call to "Western Union" may connect the telegram sender with a grocery store, a bus station or a pharmacy where wires are send on contract. But Hereford's service has been sustained, mainly — says Braly — "because of the pro-duce business and the number of migrant workers in here during the spring, summer and fall months." So frantic is the telegraph office's workload in summer that Braly brings in an assistant

A city policeman discovered the break-in at 4:20 a.m. Friday.

STORE OFFICIALS said some $3,000 in cash and checks were taken from an upright safe, which police said was ripped op-en with tools thieves obtained in the store.

Also stolen were six pistols, at least 12 diamond ring sets and seven men's watches. Gibson's manager Truett. Thames estimated total theft losses at $5,000.

The store is offering a $300 cash reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the persons involved, Thames said.

CHIEF OF POLICE Marshall Padgett said the Gibson's theft may be related to last Sunday's safecracking burglary at Steph-ens-Hudson Motor Co. Intruders there found only a small amount of cash, however. Six other break-ins occurred be-tween Saturday and Wednesday here, and an attemped burglary occurred at Cooper's Market on May 20. Chief Padgett said the Gibson's theft apparently occurred be-tween midnight and 4:20 a.m. Friday. Residents near the store said they heard dogs barking about 2 a.m.

LAST YEAR AT Fort Worth ent of the Texas coachschool went over 4,000. That should have been the very most. But hold everything folks. This year at Dallas is going to better even that. L. W. McConachie, executive ice-president of the Texas High chool Coaches Association, already finds an increase of about 50 in the advance registration for the big clinic at Dallas Aug. 1-5. And the school is more than two months away.

McConachie predicts that there rill be more than 4,200 at Dallas. He has all kinds of logic behind the forecast since there now are 4.489 members of the Texas High School Coaches Association. That's the all-time high.

Top-Heavy Load Lumbago Cure?

RRETORIA, South Africa () -Studies carried out on heavily loaded African laborers here by a South African professor have shown that perhaps the best way of avoiding lumbago is to carry heavy weights - preferably around 200 pounds - on your head

Though one of the causes of lumbago is the lifting of heavy weights, or a sudden twist of the back, Prof. L. M. Jonck, of Pretoria University's Anatomy Department, has shown that the African custom of carrying heav weights on the head is in fact a protection against lumbago.

MEDICAL AUTHORITIES state that lumbago is brought on most frequently by the rupture and protrusion of one or more of the soft discs between the vertbrae in the lower spine, re-

X-rays of the men were taken both wi and without the loads balanced on their heads.

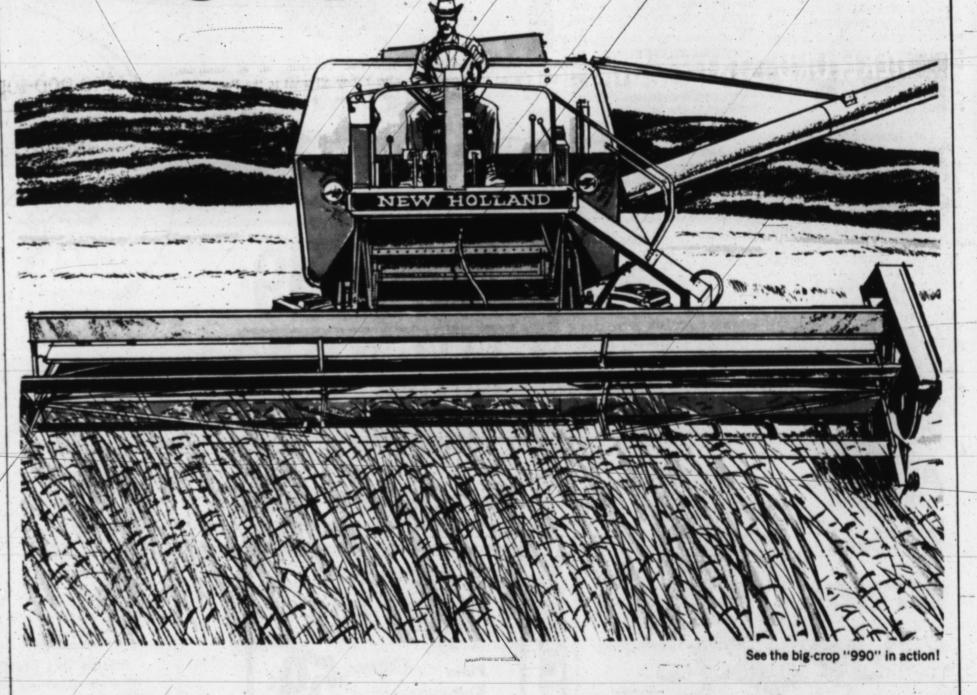

JONCK SAYS THE X-rays showd amazing stability of the laborers' lumbar (lower) spine while carrying the weights, with no damage to the soft, ruptureprone discs between the vertebrae. He attributes the greater stability of the spines of the Africans over those of normal whites to thei considerably higher degree of muscular development.

The Africans' freedom from backache, he says, may be due to the widening of the spaces behind and between the vertebrae, causing an increase in the spaces through which delicate nerves leave the spinal cord. A South African news/magazine, commenting on Jonck's findings, suggests that a graded course of exercises for lumbago sufferers, carrying weights on

More Than Girls JOHANNESBURG, South Africa I - Boys are more prone to psychological disturbances than girls, according to statistics compiled by Johannesburg's Child Guidance Clinic, Last year almost twice as many boys as girls were referred to the clinic for treatment and advice.

A psychiatrist says the reason for more upsets among boys than girls in obscure. He believes it may be partly due to girls being "more placid and conforming" than boys, who are often more active and aggressive.

Are our eyes any less precious today? We still depend on them, as no other senses, every waking moment of our lives.

Once we used our eyes to sight game. At a distance. Now we spend hours in reading, watching T.V., sewing, operating machin-ery. All close up viewing and most of it under artifi-cial light.

Once we drove horses and buggies and this called for normal distance viewing Now we drive cars at high speeds. Speeds demanding lightning fast adjustments in eye-focusing. Imposing enor-mous tension, strain and energy output.

All this, mind you, we require of our one pair of eyes. What's really incredi-ble is that our eyes per-

Lenses that are impact resistant, Bifocals, trifocals, double bifocals and lenses custom designed for the special ways we now work, study and play.

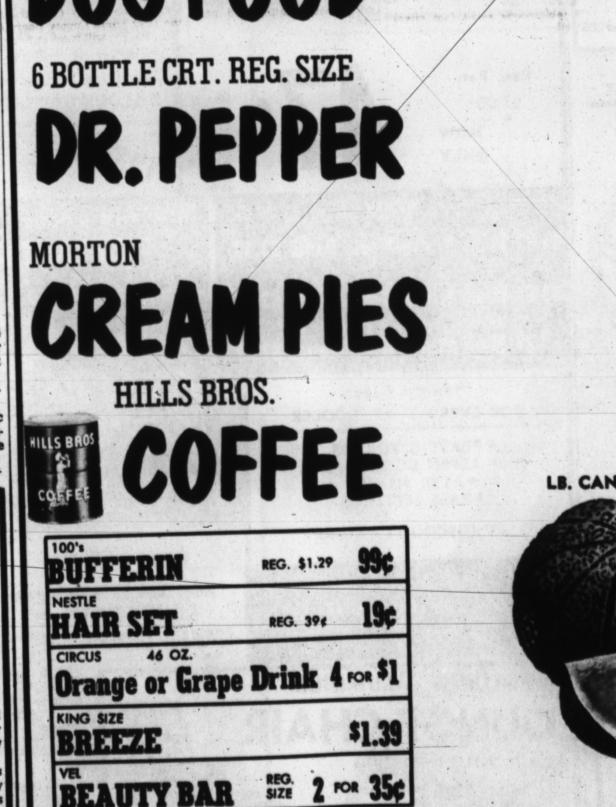

Whether you wear glasses or not, don't forget a very important thing. Your eyes are changing. Gradually, perhaps imperceptibly. So that you can actually be unaware of the fact that you're not seeing as well as you did, or as you might.

How do you find out what the change, if any, is? Sim-ply by having a professional eye examination regularly, once every year, or

Summer Life Bluebird Day Camp this year was held Friday and Saturday under the trees at the Camp Fire Hut at Main St. and Park Ave. Here Horizon girls helped the younger Bluebirds in day-long activities, in-cluding lunch and rest periods. Also on hand to keep things going smoothly was Mrs. Bill Cargo, Tan Da sponsor. The club was joined on this occasion by Charlotte Babione, a former member who now lives in Altus, Okla.

More than 50 Bluebirds were on hand both days to keep Kathryn Gripp, Nita Lee, Mary Gooch, Kay Kirkland, Laverne Short and Beverly Allen busy chaperoning their activities. Friday saw girls engaged in activities such as "matchbox" gardens and necklace making, but Saturday the girls left their Camp Fire grounds and hiked to the JayCee park for a bonfire dinner.

A Council Fire ended the annual day-camp's activities.

Proposed Crime Censorship Would Aggravate Problem

It is to be hoped that the good sense of members of the Texas Legislature will prevail and that the attempt to write into the state's Criminal Code a system of official censorship on information relating to criminal cases will be delayed or abandoned.

Any provision that might be drafted would itself be of questionable constitutionality. This certainly is true of the one written into pending legislation by the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee, which says: "No officer of this state shall make public information which may have the effect of prejudicing a defendant's right to trial by an impartial jury.

Use of the word "may" in this sentence is especially disturbing.

The fact is that it has never been proved — and, indeed, it cannot be proved - that the publication of truthful and factual information ever prejudiced the constitutional right of any defendent to a fair trial. The assumption that it might rests on the totally unacceptable premise that truth is the enemy of justice.

The practical effect of the proposed law would be to make each law enforcement officer the judge or censor of what information should be made public and what should not. Since penalties are provided for violation of the ban, the net effect would be to blackout all information about criminal cases in advance of the trial, when all of the facts may or may not be presented to the jury.

Denied access to official information, the news media, no matter how concientious they may be and no matter how dedicated they may be to search for the truth, would be compelled to publish information of uncertain accuracy in the more spectacular cases meriting public attention.

Inaccurate and incomplete information

tical effect of any sort of censorship on the disclosure of official information would be to magnify rather than solve any real problem that now exists because of the conflict, built into the Constitution, between the right to a free press and the right to a fair trial.

is the true enemy of justice, and the prac-

Actually, only a very small percentage of the criminal cases in any metropolitan area are brought to public attention by the news media, but the blackout on official information would apply to all criminal cases. If a case is spectacular enough to rate attention in the news media, the chances are that it would be transferred to another jurisdiction for trial in any event.

The fact is that any conflict between the two constitutional rights - a free press and a fair trial — is more theoretical than real. The notion of "trial by newspaper" is largely a myth.

But if a problem does exist, official censorship and a backward step toward star-chamber procedures of the past are not the answer.

Sandy Hook

The little town of Sandy Hook, in Northeast Kentucky, was not exactly thriving before the federal government stepped/ in to boost its economy. But at least it was surviving. Now, after much "help" from Washington, it is reported that Sandy Hook is sadder but wiser - and poorer,

The story goes that area-redevelopment and poverty experts in Washington decided Sandy Hook needed assistance. They classified the town as a "depressed area," and began laying elaborate plans to build up the major local industry, a small cabinetmaking factory with 86 em-ployes and $40,000 cash in the bank.

The government moved in with $628,-000 to build up the plant into a big-time 'Some Things Never Come Down'

Panhandle Paragraphs

Early this spring a group of 250 businessmen and formers in Lamesa made a deal with rainmaker Don Bruton of Amarillo, agreeing to pay him $13,000 if his rainmaking efforts doubled the county's average rainfall of approximately nine inches for the April-September period. The deal was that Bruton would get the $13,000 if as much as 18 inches fell in this period, and if it didn't, he wouldn't get anything. This sounded like a good deal, a proposition where nobody could lose. But now that the rains have come, some farming areas around Lamesa have received more than 10 inches of rain since April 1. The Amarillo man has been operating an ion generator in the north part of Lamesa and thus far about three inches has fallen there. Some folks say they will be reluctant to pay the "rainmaker" in view of the fact that other areas have also had heavy rains. Meanwhile, Bruton says he is confident he will continue to make it rain and collect his money.

This homey little community of some 230 families was once the home of upwards of 10,000 individuals. But since the productive war years, the population has been steadily dwindling. Then, in October, 1964, Phillips Petroleum Co., In the middle of plant reorganization, moved families out of the Cactus area at an increasing rate. In 1948, Phillips had subleased the Cactus site from the federal government. Phillips finally turned the Cactus township back to the government and - on May 25 - the government placed the entire 300.2 acres of land and improvements thereon up for auction. As of 1:30 p.m., May 25, apparent owner of Cactus, Tex., was Cactus 287 Corp. on a bid of $212,287.87. The Dalhart City Council is asking the help and cooperation of everyone concerned in Dalhart's Cemetery, to make it more beautiful.

Final approval was granted this week for a Neighborhood Youth Corps at Olton School, according to Superintendent Johnny Clark Jr. Four local youths started to work Tuesday. Approximately 12 are expected to enter the program this summer. Yard work is being done now and plans call for building maintenance work to be included in the summer during June. Starting July 1, each student is expected to work an average of 30 hours per week. The Neighborhood Youth Corps is a work program for students with their salaries being paid by federal tax money.

Your Chains

The debate in Congress has been joined. President Johnson, paying off a political debt, called upon Congress this past week to repeal Section 148 of the Taft Hartley Act which allows the several states to pass "right-to-work" laws.

The debate centers around whether or not an American working man can be compelled by law to join a union, pay union dues, take union orders, in order to get and hold a job.

This is slavery, call it by any other name

If this repeal is made, every state will be in the same shape, with union contracts legally enforceable. Under such an agreement the employer forces every old and new employee to be a member, pay dues, and submit to the discipline of one particular union, or else lose his job.

We know that we are way out in the sticks, and haven't had much experience in labor matters, but it appears to us that one of the fundamental rights of any American is to be able to be free to join or not join a labor union

Apparently this right is going to be taken away from us, by Congressional decree, thus handing over millions of workers to union bosses who right now are no doubt licking their chops at the prospect of millions of dollars in captive union dues that will be theirs when the law is repealed.

How can compulsory unionism be lawful under a free government?

We would like for somebody to enlighten us on this point.

operation. For a while, the federal subsidy produced spectacular results. Cabinet production jumped from 200 a day to 1,000 and new employes were hired by the dozens/ But along with federal aid came some federal controls. Since Washington was putting up most of the money, it decided how most of it would be spent and even wrote most of the checks. The little old Kentucky cabinetmaker, federal experts decided, should begin acting like the giant corporation they dreamed it could become - borrowing on a big scale, adopting perpetual cost-control procedures, following a government-ordered employerecruitment program.

This is when the company's financial problems began. Expenditures and debts started to accumulate faster than cabinet orders. Having learned that Washington could be so generous, the company turned to the Small Businss Administration for a working capital loan of $125,000. The SBA sat on the application for nine months, then turned it down. By that time, it was too late anyway.

The Area Redevelopment Administration turned the operation over to a credit association to try to salvage something and to seek new accounts. The original owner of the company put $78,000 more of his own money into the business to keep things going. He lost it.

Two months ago the plant was down to 40 employes - less than half the number it had before Washington stepped in to help out. And by the end of March those 40 were gone. The plant went bankrupt, the doors were locked, the windows boarded up and Sandy Hook began to look like a genuinely depressed area with some real poverty.

The full story of how Washington "helped" Sandy Hook was reported a few weeks ago, by the Louisville Courier-Journal under the headline, "Factory Boom Ends With Bump." It is a classic, if tragic, story of what can happen when somebody decides that the answer to all our problems is to turn to the government. In this case, the answer seems to have been too much government.

Opening Frontiers

Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr recently praised four prominent Negro Texans "for opening the frontiers of understanding." Such good work deserves the recognition of the community, which was symbolized in the "Trail Blazer" awards of the South Dallas Business and Professional Women's Club.

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Bindweed farm this week discusses college students or foreign affairs, we aren't sure which.

Dear editar:

I noticed in a copy of a newspaper I was reading last night in between gun fights on a western that a bunch of college students have been picketing the White House, protesting the U.S. policy in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic, on the grounds it's wrong.

I kept on reading but never did find out what they thought would be the right policy.

What they don't know, but what me and Secretary of State Rusk and the other foreign policy experts have known for years, is that the right policy generally con't be determined till years later.

Handling foreign policy is like raising a child. You try to do what you figure is right at any given moment, but whether you were right or wrong doesn't come out till the kid is grown, and half the time, whatever it was you did, you can't remember what it was.

In fact, lots of times, the kid will turn out all right, regardless of what you do. Lots of kids grow up in spite of their parents, and I have a notion, foreign policy operates along the same lines. Of course to be fair, it ought to be brought out too that lots of parents turn out all right despite their kids.

Also, I have a notion that college students protesting foreign policy is about like high school students picketing a university on the grounds the college students aren't studying hard enough, and grammar school pupils picketing high schools, and kindergarten kids picketing grammar schools, Since there's nobody left; this leaves the kindergarten kids free to act on their own, but you never hear much out of them on foreign policy.

When a crisis turns up in foreign affairs, if you're go ing to wait till you're absolutely sure you're right, you won't get much work done, which is why I wouldn't be interested in the job.

Foreign affairs is like a doctor-patient relationship. When a man's sick, he wants a doctor, whether the doctor knows what's wrong with him or not. The least the doctor can do is prescribe something.

By the way, if those college students find out about how I run this Bindweed farm, they'll find so many things I do wrong they could picket this place from now on, which wouldn't be a bad idea, if they'd stand where the fence is weak, to turn my cows. Mine isn't as good as the White House's.

Yours faithfully,

James M. Gillentine, Editor and Publisher Melvin Young, General Manager Dudley Lynch, News Editor Robert J. Awtrey, Mech. Supt.
