FOR DEFACING COINS IN SCHOOL WORKSHOP

Boys Get Burr Haircuts, 9 P.M. Curfew; Lose Licenses

A number of pennies, filed down to the size of dimes, cost 12 local youths an indefinite probation in county court Thursday when they were found guilty of defacing government property. The boys were accused of filing down pennies in the high school workshop and using them in different vending machines. The 12 youths, two of whom were juveniles, were required to exercise good and lawful behavior; attend school regularly; leave Deaf Smith County only if accompanied by parents, unless they obtain approval of court; seek and gain employment if possible; and obey their parents. Also, the youths were required to surrender their drivers license to the court during the length of their probation, to be home at 9 p. m. every night, avoid association with criminals or immoral persons, and report to the court every Wednesday morning. The court waived the requirement that all should attend church every Sunday, except for the two juveniles. Parents of the boys were present in court during the session. Had the county court not handed the boys as juveniles, 10 of the boys would have been filed on in federal court for defacing federal and state property and would have faced stiffer penalties. Under federal law, defacing federal property carries a penalty of not less than $100 or more than $1,000 or imprisonment in the county jail, or both, or not more than five years in the penitentiary. "If any of you or your parents do not agree with the handling of this case in juvenile court, then we will file the charge as a federal offense," county attorney Hazen Woods said. "Under law, you will be put in jail where you will have to

The Panhandle beef industry, led in recent years by Deaf Smith County, is slowly moving ahead of the cattle empire of the north in total fed cattle production.

Recent statistics compiled by Southwestern Public Service's agricultural department in Amarillo indicate that while the cattle feeding states of the north continue to expand, their rate of increase is nowhere near that of this area. The figures show that 2,932,354 animals were fed in 1969 in a 40-county area, an increase of almost 800,000 over the previous year.

Deaf Smith County, the leader in fed cattle production, had 250,000 cattle on feed in 1968 and that number almost doubled in one year's time with the 1969 figure reaching 433,400, according to Thomas.

At the present time, Deaf Smith County is holding only about two-thirds of its total head capacity on hand. Figures indicate that the capacity for this county would, if all pens were filled to maximum, accommodate 540,000 head of cattle.

"We are projecting," Thomas said, "an area-wide increase of about 25 per cent in the number of fed cattle during the coming year. This would bring the total somewhere around 4-million head."

Despite the fact that the cattle count in Deaf Smith County has increased considerably over the past year, the number of feed lots remained the same between 1968 and 1969. Both years there were 12 lots in this county. Thomas said the survey, when conducted, did not include lots then under construction or on the drawing board.

Thomas said that although there is expected to be a 25 per cent increase in the number of cattle, there is also expected to be a leveling off in the construction of feed lots.

"The big problems will be tight money and the availability of feeder calves," he said.

"The availability of feeder calves, at a price level that will be profitable, and the availability of dollars in the next year will have a tremendous effect from the standpoint of further lot construction."

He said there will be no drastic increase in the number of feed lots in this area, but that expansion of existing lots is expected to continue through the coming year. When the 1971 crop prospects are visible, he said, in early next year there is expected to be a renewed interest in feedlot construction.

Thomas said area feedlots now are utilizing the feed available and if every feedlot reaches its capacity, which is not impossible, then the coming year's grain market prices will soar. If this happens, there would be little grain left in this area, thus reducing any additional interest in building more feed lots.

In explaining the steady movement in the southwest, Thomas said that in 1946 this area started intensively developing its irrigation potential and in 1957 there was a breakthrough in hybrid sorghum.

"This increased production went unnoticed by the government until 1959 when yields produced a surplus of feed," he said. "At that time, this area had 900 million bushels in storage and even then there was not sufficient storage for milo and other feeds."

He said that under the guidance of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and several involved individuals, the people of this area started "developing tours to take businessmen, farmers; college officials and agriculture leaders into cow-feeding and cattle-feeding areas of the nation."

Groups were taken to Arizona, California and Iowa to get first-hand information on their feeding operations and through these tours this area was hit upon with the idea of riding themselves of surplus feed through the profitable investment of cattle feeding.

Holly V-P Solicits Aid On Sugar Act

The vice president of finance for Holly Sugar Corporation asked business leaders of the High Plains this week to begin using their influence with Congress on federal legislation that could decide whether the company continues to move ahead.

Willard F. Cheley of Colorado Springs, Colo., pointed out figures attesting to a phenomenal growth in the population and economy since the company set up operation near Hereford seven years ago.

But Cheley, speaking before area businessmen and college instructors at West Texas State University Wednesday, said Holly Sugar was able to come into Hereford only because of changes in the 1963 Sugar Act brought about by the efforts of Deaf Smith County civic leaders.

Those changes — providing acreage guarantees for new beet sugar factory areas — are scheduled to expire Dec. 31, 1971, unless the Congress renews the act.

"I don't have to tell you, I'm sure, what failure to extend the provisions of this act would mean to the economy of the Texas-New Mexico area," Cheley said.

He urged the business leaders to promote "at every opportunity," particularly with their congressmen, the growing of sugar beets in this area and the benefits they have brought.

"Remind them of the benefits to your local economy and of the national need to have a reasonable degree of self-sufficiency in this basic, critical and strategic food, and particularly one that is 'reared and refined in Texas.'"

He cited Bureau of the Census figures that show Deaf Smith County as the fastest growing county in Texas and the 13th fastest growing in the nation. Of all the counties which have shown more than 50 per cent population increase over the past decade, Deaf Smith is the only one with a purely agricultural base, Cheley said.

"Recent expansions in sugar beet processing, meat packing and beef feedlot operations have created a boom in the local economy," he said, quoting from a federal publication that referred to the Hereford area.

However, Cheley praised hard work and long hours by Hereford area civic leaders as the underlying factor for most of the surge. But Holly Sugar had something to do with that too, Cheley feels.

"Perhaps Holly's most significant contribution was to give Hereford and Deaf Smith County the impetus, the enthusiasm and the success attitude that they needed to pursue other industry," the Holly executive said.

He saluted Deaf Smith County farmers and businessmen who "worked many long hours and spent their own money to bring the sugar industry to the High Plains. We sugar people know from first hand experience of their hard work and accomplishments," he said.

The growth statistics for the area in the past several years, he said, show "the far-sightedness of your own civic leaders — the Henry Sears, the Jim Witherspoons, the Bill Thompsons, the Bob McLeans among you — who had the gumption, in the face of almost insurmountable obstacles, to go after new industry and refuse to take 'no' for an answer. To them and the late H. L. Benefield and men of vision like them should go the gratitude of all citizens of the Texas Panhandle."

Cheley cited these figures to support his frequent references to the fast-rising economy and population in Hereford:

—In 1965, Hereford had 6,790 automobile registrations; last year it had 7,820.

—Postal receipts jumped from $189,109 in 1964 to $286,187 last year.

—Bank deposits in one of Hereford's banks increased from $14,755,000 to $17,769,000 within one year after Holly's factory began operating. At the end of last year, they were up to $35,342,750.

—Water meters rose from 3,648 in 1966 to 4,051 this past January.

—The number of telephones increased from 6,006 in 1966 to 7,981 as of this past January.

—In the 1964-65 school year, Hereford had 2,336 elementary school pupils and 646 junior high students; in the 1968-69 year, the system had 2,733 elementary students and 1,108 junior high students.

—There were 13 school administration buildings in 1964-65 and 16 during the 1968-69 school year. During the same period, two new elementary schools and two junior high schools were constructed.

Shur-Gro Goes Public With Stock

Public sale of 410,000 shares of stock, at $3.125 per share, has been announced by Shur-Gro Industries, Inc., of Clovis, according to Roland Barton, vice president and director of the company and manager of Shur-Gro Liquid Feed here.

"The offering of stock to the public was done," Barton said, "with the purpose in mind of extending our sales marketing area and expanding our existing operations."

Shur-Gro Liquid Feed is the company's holdings in liquid supplement for cattle. Its other holdings include cow-calf and yearling-stocker operations in Moore and Potter county, custom cattle feeding, a cattle management fund and the sale and distribution of irrigation equipment.

Barton said the company is planning to extend its facilities in Houston, and also go into marketing Valley Sprinklers in Mexico.

"We are planning to expand our trade territory more to the southeast," Barton said, "to include Georgia, South Carolina, Florida and states in that direction. At this time we have an operation territory of New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado and part of Kansas."

The company recently purchased the patents under which they have been manufacturing liquid feed and will now be able to give licensees all over the country in order to expand their trade territory.

The public offering, approved by the Securities and Exchange Commission, and made by the Oklahoma City firm of Park & Bishop and Welsh, Inc., as managing underwriters, is for the company formed from several subsidiaries owned by farmers and ranchers.

Shur-Gro Liquid Feed was opened in Hereford in 1963 as a branch of the company in Clovis. The formation of Shur-Gro Industries, Inc. was completed in 1969.

Revenues for the firm for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1969, were $6,251,000. Jerry Skaggs and Barton, both of Hereford, serve as vice presidents and directors for the company.

City, Clubs Map Plans For Clean-Up Month

By BETTY KOELZER
Staff Writer

The city of Hereford and various organizations have scheduled projects of cooperation in the month-long cleanup campaign set for April 15 through May 15 by the beautification committee of the women's division of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce.

City manager Dudley Bayne says that he would "like to see everyone get into the act to get the job done. Extra trucks and men will be provided throughout the month to pick up the litter as quickly as possible after it is raked up."

Hereford Evening Lions Club, assisted by the Leo Club and Boy Scout Troop 50, will paint trash barrels throughout the city April 25.

Hereford Garden Club will ask local merchants who sell cleaning tools to feature these articles in advertisements during the campaign month. Members of the club will ask their individual neighbors to aid them in cleaning their own alleys.

Campfire groups and other boy scout troops will spend a Saturday cleaning right-of-ways in and adjacent to the city.

La Plata and Stanton Junior High School art classes are creating posters to be displayed about town as reminders of the campaign.

"If each of us dedicated ourselves to becoming involved in this project and encouraged a chain reaction through our civic and social organizations, lodges and churches, the face of our community would change in short order," said Mrs. Pete Caviness, chairman of the beautification committee. This year's motto "Litter — a family affair."

Mrs. Caviness added these suggestions for eliminating litter-cluttered streets, alleys, lots and highways:

—Get a litter bag for your car, use it and empty it into proper trash cans. —If you own a business, provide trash receptacles in front for use of your customers. Give them litter bags or other reminders against littering. —Check your alley, keep trash picked up around your barrels, and try to keep lids on them.

—Urge public officials to require strict enforcement of litter laws of the state and city. Urge them to provide litter receptacles in sufficient quantity for the population. —Report old cars, no longer in use, to the city in order that proper steps might be taken for their removal.

—Help with a continuous program of public education to stimulate pride and responsibility in cleaner, safer and more attractive surroundings, with special emphasis on youth groups of the community. —Trying to beautify an area smudged with litter is like a woman trying to put cosmetics on a dirty face. It just doesn't work," Mrs. Caviness said.

DA Blasts Plans To Ease Marijuana Law

Dist. Atty. Jerry Tucker, who represents Deaf Smith County and five other counties in the Panhandle, protested to Gov. Preston Smith this week about proposals to ease the punishment for possessing marijuana.

He charged the attempts to make marijuana possession a misdemeanor instead of a felony have come chiefly to accommodate "the mass of so-called better citizens who have been caught in the drug wave."

Tucker vented his feelings on the issue in a letter to Smith. The district attorney, whose office is in Dumas, said the towns in the counties he represents—Deaf Smith, Moore, Dallam, Oldham, Sherman and Harkey—are small communities "but our drug traffic, percentage-wise, is comparable to the cities from marijuana to heroin." He said he devoted more time fighting the drug problem See DA, Page 2

U.S. 60 National Convention Ends

A small group of delegates representing cities along U. S. Highway 60 were in Hereford Thursday, Friday and Saturday for the 1970 National U. S. 60 Convention.

Some 75 persons were expected for the convention, but only 27 were present during the three-day event. Despite the small number of representatives, Harald Hillmer, secretary-treasurer of the organization, said the convention probably was one of the most productive of any conducted in the past.

New officers for the coming year were elected at a business session Friday and included Allen Early of Amarillo, president; Buford Richardson of Socorro, N.M., first vice president; Lynton Allred of Hereford, second vice president; and Hillmer, secretary-treasurer.

The convention delegates approved the purchase of 56,000 brochures to be used in cities along the coast-to-coast highway. In these brochures, Texas is given the largest amount of publicity.

The high spots of interest throughout the state are shown and Hereford is mentioned several times throughout the pamphlet.

The purpose of the convention, according to Hillmer, is to promote interest along U. S. 60. Tourist stops, industry, business and other points of interest are all featured on the brochures to draw travelers to the different cities.

"If we can get 10 cars a day to spend 24 hours in a town," Hillmer said, "then we are looking at money that equals that of a new industry with a payroll of $200,000 a year."

He said the main problem is getting local people interested and concerned with the highway association and what it means to each and every city it passes through. Delegates to the convention arrived here Thursday and attended a dinner at the Country Club, Friday morning the group met at the Civic Club Center for a breakfast and registration and periodic meetings throughout Friday saw the election of officers and the naming of Socorro as the host city for the 1971 U. S. 60 convention.

A dinner Friday evening at the Civic Club Center was highlighted by the presentation of Max Comer, comedian, as guest speaker. A business session Saturday, and the distribution of the brochures, ended the convention.

County Population Rises

The population in Deaf Smith County has continued to climb in the past several years, though not as spectacularly as in the first half of the 1960s, a study by a University of Texas research group showed this week.

The Population Research Center of the Department of Sociology at the University of Texas in Austin placed the county's population on April 1, 1969, at 20,900—compared with 13,187 in 1960 and 20,800 in 1966.

From 1960, it was an increase of 53.5 per cent. The 58.0 per cent gain from 1960 to 1966 placed the county first in Texas and in the nation in percentage of population increase.

Over the state, the major metropolitan areas showed big population gains. Many counties, particularly those with economies based on agriculture, showed losses. In contrast, gains in Deaf Smith, Castro, Parmer and Oldham counties were attributed to agriculture and related industries.

In the Panhandle, Randall County showed the highest percentage increase, with a gain of 22,000 since its 1960 census total of 33,913. The new figure about 56,000 is a whopping 65.6 per cent increase.

Castro County, where Dimmitt is the county seat, increased from 8923 to an estimated 11,000 a 23.6 per cent rise; Parmer County, which has the towns of Friona, Farwell and Bovina, increased from 9,583 to an estimated 11,100, a 16.3 per cent rise; and Oldham County, where Vega is county seat, increased from 1,928 to an estimated 2,600, a 33.4 per cent rise.

Hartley County, in which several cattle feedyards have been located and which saw a boom in irrigated farmland, was another gainer in population, showing a big 62.5 per cent increase, although the actual number of additional residents was small. From 2,711 population in 1960, the figure rose to an estimated 3,500 by April of last year.

Of all the increase in population recorded in Texas, about 75 per cent of it was reported in the five largest metropolitan areas—Houston, Galveston, Dallas-Fort Worth and San Antonio.

The Texas Water Development Board, in its population predictions made four years ago for the future, tried to pinpoint probable population in the years 1980, 2000 and 2020 to help in planning for wise water use and planning.

The state agency predicted Deaf Smith would increase from its 1960 figure of 13,187 in 1960 to 23,191 in 1980, to 31,845 in 2000 and to 43,729 in 2020.

The report released by the University of Texas warned in every case the county estimates are subject to several sources of error in the data employed in preparing the estimates, and in the assumptions, implicit or explicit, required by the estimating procedures.

Potter County population was shown in the study to have a decrease of 26,000 persons, from 115,580 on April 1, 1960, to 89,500 a year ago. Amarillo had a 149,493 population in 1960 and that rose to 173,000 estimated for 1966 but dropped back to 145,700 as an estimate for April 1969.

Missouri Business, Farm Leaders Schedule Thursday Visit In Hereford

A group of 29 top Missouri business and agriculture leaders will visit Hereford this week for a study and tour of the area's agricultural operations which could have potential application in their state.

"We have become involved in this idea of reducing punishment because drug abuse has come out of the gutters and reached some of the finest structures of society," Tucker said. "To me, this indicates that we have failed in teaching a way of life, not in designing a law."

The district attorney said he agrees with the theory that involvement in drug traffic as an addict or psychological dependent is based upon some deep-seated problems and that the victims most often need treatment rather than punishment. "But I can apply the same reasoning to a habitual criminal," he added.

"The crucial point at this moment seems to me to be: from what are we trying to protect our youth-drugs or law?" Tucker said.

Tucker suggested other alternatives in attempting to solve the drug problem: "Relax the rules of evidence so officers may use accomplices and accessories to testify against the actual leaders and distributors in drug abuse."

"Make specific provisions in the law against those who allow their homes, businesses or other property to be used for 'pot' parties or drug abuse of any sort."

"Make specific provisions about what constitutes possession instead of leaving the question to the courts to decide."

"Provide some type of old old suspended sentence law after a carefully designed court hearing to determine the violators' involvement, and avoid felony conviction in justifiable situations."

"In short, broaden the laws governing possession cases rather than reduce the punishment," Tucker said.

"In addition to this, we certainly need to move forward in the fields of medical, psychiatric and educational endeavors. It is my feeling that prevention through education is much more effective than prosecution," he said.

sult of a talk by Earnest Langley at the Missouri State Chamber of Commerce Agribusiness Conference last year. Langley, guest speaker at that conference, told the group of the Hereford story and extended an invitation to them to visit this area.

The delegation, comprised of top officials from both business and agriculture, is to review livestock feeding, cow-calf operations and feeder supply problems, sugar beet processing and irrigation.

Also, they will see information on special crops, private and commercial feed lots, packing plant operations, banking and credit policies in the area, changes in area services with respect to zoning, utilities; auction procedures, financing feeder lots and new field crops and methods.

The group will arrive by air and will be greeted at the Hereford airport by a delegation of city officials who will take them to the Red Carpet Inn, where rooms have been reserved for them. During the visitors' stay here, a group of local businessmen will serve as guides, allowing the group to visit whatever segment of the local agribusiness they wish.

The men will tour the Wilson Beef and Lamb plant, Holly Sugar, other major industries of this area, and several farms, feedlots and vegetable sheds.

Thursday evening, the Missouri men will attend a reception and banquet to be held at the Hereford Country Club. At the reception, people from different fields of business and agriculture on the local scene will hold discussion period, with the visitors asking questions.

The Hereford stop will be the only full-day stay scheduled for the visiting officials during a three-day tour. Friday morning, they will leave Hereford and fly to Guyton, Okla. to tour beef plants and feed lots. From Guyton they will travel to Ulysses, Kan., where they will leave 10 persons to study sugar beets, vegetables, cattle feeding, irrigation and other developments in the area.

From Ulysses, the group will leave for Garden City, Kan. where they will leave 10 more persons to study the business and agriculture of that area.

The final leg of their tour will be to Emporia, Kan. where they will study the cow-calf operations at a feedlot there. They will depart Emporia for Columbia, Mo.

Tucker said he and his staff were experimenting with several things in this area, ranging from live discussion with group of young people and adults to series of radio broadcasts and newspaper coverage.

"Young people tell me that smoking marijuana is becoming socially acceptable. It could become socially acceptable to cheat on exams or embezzle a little money from the boss here and there, but this does not justify relaxation of the penalties for such activities," Tucker said.

"We cannot win a battle by letting our society think that if enough get involved, we will relax the laws governing their activities."

"Okay, let's look at that comparison from the standpoint of the law," he said. "When I was an ateen-age and in college, I knew no alcoholics my age and only a few young people who would openly get drunk, but our laws are lax on the drink. So in a community of 10,000 people I can show you eight confirmed alcoholics at the ripe age of 18. Young people have no business becoming heavy drinkers but they do. At school and YMCA dances we have to have police officers on patrol to make sure we don't have drunks disturbing those who came to enjoy the dance-not old drunks, young ones."

he said.

availability of feed, the feed lot development was natural," Thomas said. "The weather conditions here were not as severe as they were in the northern states and this would not handicap the feed lots as it does in Iowa and other states."

Keeping stride with the increasing number of feed lots in this area is the number of packing plants. According to Thomas, there are 13 meat processing plants in a small tri-state area.

"Even with large a number of packing plants," said Thomas, "it is still impossible for them to keep pace with the feed lot industry."

"There are always more fat cattle produced than there is a kill capacity in this area. Were it not for the movement of animals in and out of feedyards, this might not be true, but there is always a buyer from somewhere like California and Iowa coming in here and buying up large numbers of the animals," he said.

District Play Set Tuesday For Herd

Hereford will ignite its 1970 district baseball campaign Tuesday in Dumas with new-found life given them in recent victories.

A three-run victory over Fort Stockton Friday kept Hereford in the Andrews tournament following a 6-1 loss to Andrews Thursday.

The Whitefaces played their third game of the tournament Saturday for the consolation championship in a 3 p. m. contest.

Doubles by Jeff Loerwald and Keith Duncan and a single by Rudy Gonzales accounted for five Hereford runs in the fourth inning Friday and led a 6-3 win over Fort Stockton.

Shortstop Frank Bezner and pitcher Alan Wagner led off the inning with back-to-back singles. Right fielder Tommy Stoy was then hit by a pitch by Mike Shultz to load the bases and set the stage for Loerwald's double which scored Bezner and Wagner.

Duncan followed with his double which scored Stoy and Loerwald. Second baseman Rick Lee reached first on an error but on the next play Duncan was out at home on a fielder's choice. Lee reached third on another fielder's choice and scored on Gonzales' single.

One-run second and third innings boosted Fort Stockton to an early 2-1 lead in the game.

Hereford's first score came when Duncan and Lee led with walks and advanced a base on an error. Gonzales advanced Duncan to home with a ground-er to shortstop for a fielder's choice.

Fort Stockton managed its last run in the sixth inning when the leadoff batter slammed a homer off Wagner.

"This was the first error-less game we've played since I've been coaching the team," Hereford coach Fred Upshaw said. "Our hitting was great also. Loerwald, Duncan, Lemons, and Wagner got two hits each."

Andrews slammed seven hits amidst several Hereford errors Thursday to take an easy 6-1 victory. The big inning for Andrews was the sixth.

The first man singled. Hereford got the next man out but the third hit a grounder to third baseman Donny McDermitt who threw to second but missed on a double play attempt.

Lee then scooped a grounder but threw wide to first and the second base runner tallied. A bad throw to home plate enabled the second man to score from third. The first base runner advanced to second.

The next batter singled in the runner from second and advanced to third on two errors. He then scored on a single.

Hereford trailed 2-0 through the fourth inning but closed the gap in the fifth with one run. Loerwald led with a single and advanced to second on a sacrifice by Stoy. Wagner reached first base on a throwing error and Loerwald reached third.

Loerwald tried to score on a passed ball but was thrown out while Wagner moved to second. Bezner then stepped to the plate and slammed a single which scored Wagner, Hereford's only run.

Andrews took its first run in the third frame and never gave up the lead. A single off-Gonzales was followed by a sacrifice bunt. Another Andrews man hit the second single of Gonzales to score the man from second. This was followed by a double and another run.

Hereford scattered its six hits in the game off winner Danny Willy.

"We fielded real good we thought. A few mistakes just killed us, like in the fifth inning when we should have had two runs," assistant coach David Borstein said. "Then they got four runs in the sixth and we couldn't catch them."

The shoot will also consist of five pair of doubles at 10 rounds.

looking at him at that spot," said Kerbel. "Rocky is coming into his own as a running back."

Both Rocky and Olan can turn 100 yards in less than 10-flat. Rocky has a 9.5 to his credit this spring and Olan has run a 9.7. Rocky has been dividing his time between track and football this spring.

Kerbel is pleased with the improved "play of tight" and Willie Walker this spring. He also feels the defensive unit will be improved from last fall when the Buffs won six of 10 games.

Admission to the Varsity-Alumni game will be $2 for adults and 50 cents for students, including WTSU students.

Big Field Expected For Pro-Am Tourney

Some 100 golfers are expected to compete Monday in the annual Hereford Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

Little League Try-Outs Set For Monday

Little League try-outs, for boys ages 8 to 11 who have yet to be placed on a team, are scheduled for 5:30 p. m. Monday at the Little League park.

Starting at 7 p. m., an auction of major leaguers will be held at the Pioneer Natural Gas Building near Big Daddy's Restaurant. All major league managers and directors are urged to attend.

An auction of minor leaguers will take place Saturday evening at the same time and place. Minor league managers and directors are urged to attend this meeting.

Little League practice will not begin until April 23 because of the Kiwanis Elementary Track meet April 21.

New York -- Henry Armstrong was the only fighter to hold three world titles simultaneously -- holding the featherweight, welterweight and lightweight crowns in 1938.

An amateur with an established handicap card will be allowed in competition club, pro Cal Garrett said. It will be an 18-hole tournament with three amateurs paired with one professional.

There is no prior registration. Foursomes will be put together by club officials on the basis of handicaps as they register. Players will be allowed half their handicap.

Garrett said entries from high school or college athletes interested in playing college sports will not be accepted because of the new National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) rule put into effect last year.

"High school boys and college boys cannot play in this tournament without losing their eligibility," he said.

The professional of the winning team will receive prize money and the three amateurs gift certificates in the same amount for golf merchandise. Winnings will depend upon the number of contestants.

Those on the winning team last year got $53; second place $24; and third place $13 each.

Any local amateurs wishing to play in the tournament but do not have handicap cards should see Garrett as soon as possible and get a card, which is free.

Booster Club To Meet Monday

Ted Higgins, president of the Whiteface Booster Club, has called a meeting of that organization for Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the Community Center.

Plans for the 3rd Annual All-Sports Banquet will be discussed, as well as spring sports now underway at Hereford High School.

All members and interested persons are invited to attend the meeting.

Kansas City -- Jan Stenerud, kicking star for the Kansas City Chiefs, enrolled Montana State University on a skiing scholarship before being induced to try out for football.

But people continue to walk in and ask to see a Shook tire, thinking it's a brand name.

But you won't find a Shook tire.

Instead, you'll find what we know to be one of the best lines of tires ever made. Lee tires. Made by Lee of Conshohocken, a respected name in the tire business for more than 59 years.

Tragedy In Her Life Led Her To Help Others

By SUE COLEMAN
When she lately relinquished duties as coordinator of volunteers for the Satellite Center here, Mrs. Raymond Higginbotham was putting into practice her belief that no such community service job should be monopolized by one person.

The Hereford housewife had held the responsibility for enlisting volunteer workers at the center since it opened in 1968.

She was succeeded as coordinator by Mrs. Jack Wilcox, but expects to continue to aid the center in other ways.

"THIS JOB and others in community service should be passed around", she says, "so that more people are actively involved and have the chance to become familiar with the program." She feels that this spreads interest in the work and brings in new helpers with fresh enthusiasm.

As its name implies, the Satellite Center is an offshoot of the State Center for Human Development at Amarillo, offering a program for the mentally retarded who do not qualify for special classes in public schools.

Mrs. Maxine Thompson, the only professional worker here, is assisted by volunteers in conducting classes in the First Christian Church, building, and in getting pupils to and from classes.

There are classes for pre-schoolers; which aim to prepare them for further training at school; also for teen-agers and adults who have never had help where the hope is to prepare them to lead as full a life as possible.

FINDING enough volunteers for the center's needs has not been a difficult task, Mrs. Higginbotham says with words of praise for the willing response of Hereford residents.

Particularly happy at the number of teen-agers who volunteered for service last summer, she expects to see as many at work during the coming school vacation, when Mrs. Bill Thompson will act as coordinator of teen volunteers.

Behind Nedra Higginbotham's desire to give her efforts to the center was a tragedy in her own life. Her only daughter was a "retardate," due to a severe babyhood illness resulting in brain damage.

Mrs. Higginbotham's quiet remark that both her children "have left this life for one greater" reveals a major facet of her personality, her deeply religious outlook.

Both Nedra and Raymond Higginbotham are active in their church, First United Methodist, but their interest widens to such non-denominational activities as a local prayer group and retreats including Camps Farthest Out, a new movement in interdenominational retreats being conducted in various parts of the nation. Initials of the campaign are the same as those of its slogan, Christ For Others, she points out.

"We find a door of service in spiritual retreats and in lay witness missions, a form of evangelism by lay members of the church," Mrs. Higginbotham says. "In this work we are learning to let other people know us and see us as we really are with all our faults and needs. It is my desire to share with others the love that has been shared with us."

Although the church had always been a part of her life, and at the age of 12 she began seeking answers to vaguely-felt spiritual needs, she "was unable to drop anchor and for years just drifted," she says. She adds that "for me life began at 40" with a spiritual experience that "gave me a whole new reason for being."

"Before, I believed that if the storms of life would stop I'd be all right. I learned that storms don't stop but I could be safe in the eye of the storm, that in times of despondency I could be thankful anyway."

Those last three words, on a motto placard on her desk, sum up her philosophy.

Much of her church work is concerned with music, which she studied as a child, dropped for years and then resumed. She is pianist for a children's choir, has assisted smaller churches with music in regular services or revivals, and presents at retreats a song program which she calls Devotion in Motion.

Some recent voice lessons have helped her sing solos and lead group songs. In addition to the piano, she is now learning to play the autoharp, an instrument small enough to be carried about. She writes poetry, usually with a religious theme, "not working at it, but just as it comes to me"; friends think her verses would adapt to being set to hymn tunes.

Among the things she likes to do: listen to classical recordings

With the same riveting directness that made witchcraft-in-Manhattan a terrifying reality for the millions of readers of Rosemary's Baby, Ira Levin has now evoked an entire world—its customs and costumes, its forbidden words, its pastimes, its songs, its startling secrets. This Perfect Day is an extraordinary reading experience, a work of superb imagination and irresistible storytelling skill.

The time of the novel is a century and a half after the unification of the nations, and its hero—a young man called Chip, who fights a desperate battle for freedom in a world benumbed by chemistry and computerization. Chip's grandfather, Papa Jan, first wakens him to a sense of dormant individuality, and later other people crucially affect Chip's life: a gifted young artist named Karl; an unusual girl called Lilae; King, the leader of a group of renegades; Julia, a woman whose one urge toward freedom is inextinguishable. The action of the novel spans years and continents. In its course the reader shares Chip's triumphs and failures, and stands beside him as he faces a final electrifying revelation.

This Perfect Day is a story of suspense and love and adventure, but it is more than that too, for it is shaped and underlain by thought-provoking social inquiry. The terrors of Rosemary's Baby were "the terrors out of mankind's past; the terrors of This Perfect Day are the terrors that all too possibly may wait in mankind's future."

MARRY IN HASTE

By Jane Aiken Hodge

By mutual agreement, theirs was to be a marriage in name only, but Camilla Forest could not help falling in love with her husband, the handsome and enigmatic Lord Leominster. Their life together is further complicated by the turmoil of high intrigue as England joins forces with Spain in a plot to save Portugal from the onslaught of Napoleon's armies.

Set in the beginning of the nineteenth century against the colorful background of Regency England, this romantic novel of adventure is the absorbing story of a desperate man and woman caught by the shifting forces of danger as Napoleon pursues his grand scheme of Empire.

Newcomers In Profile

Wish To Be Active Part Of This Community

By JANIE REINART
Staff Writer

Rev. and Mrs. Tony Vigil came to Hereford in February from Decatur, Indiana. He was pastor of Templo La Hermosa Asamblea De Dios. Before living in Decatur the Vigils resided in El Paso and prior to their move to Hereford they stayed for two months in Amarillo.

Rev. Vigil, new pastor of Templo Calvario Asamblea De Dios at 13th and Avenue H says "The church is a challenge to me, it being without a pastor for the past four months. We want to be active in this community and serve it as well as possible." His lovely wife, Judy Ann, accompanies him on many of his visits throughout his mission and enjoys every minute of it.

Judy Ann also enjoys cooking and baking and is a professional seamstress. She sews for herself and church members.

Mrs. Vigil is a 1965 graduate of Caprock High School in Amarillo and attended the Latin American Bible Institute at El Paso where she majored in Christian Education and graduated in 1968. She was named salutatorian of her college graduating class and was recently electd president of the Women's Missionary Council here. Rev. Vigil, a member of the Ministerial Alliance, is president of the Young People's Group of Amarillo and was enrolled in the Minister's Intern program in India. He also attended college at El Paso where he majored in Theology and graduated with honors in 1969.

Rev. Vigil sends some of his time singing at weddings as he likes classical music. He has been singing at weddings since his high school and college years and enjoys it.

Rev. and Ps. Vigil said "We like Hereford. It's real comfortable and unlike any other place we've been. We would like to stay here for a long time."

The Vigils reside at 122 South Avenue K with their only child, a six-month-old Sean Anthony.

Five of the 11 playoffs for victory of the 1969 PGA golf tour were registered on the first extrahole.

FHA Issues Conditional Commitments On Homes

The Farmers Home Administration, aiming for an overwhelming increase in new houses in rural areas, is issuing conditional commitments on single-family dwellings in the open country and rural communities in the Hereford area up to 5,500 population.

Look Who's New

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ennis are the parents of a daughter, Kerry Janene, born April 7. She weighed 7 lbs. 4 oz.

Mr. and Mrs. James Coil are the parents of a daughter, Jana Beth, born April 6. She weighed 8 lbs. 12 oz.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Wayne Haney are the parents of a daughter, Tressia Michelle, born April 5. She weighed 9 lbs. 7 oz.

Mr. and Mrs. Jose Torres are the parents of a son, Ricky Gene, born April 1. He weighed 9 lbs. 12 oz.

Because of its size, Hereford itself is not eligible for FHA help in the program, but surrounding communities are, FHA county supervisor James Gouddy says.

"This administration has a national objective of building some three million rural homes with public assistance within the next decade," FHA administrator James V. Smith said recently.

"To achieve this we need new concepts in rural home building and new administrative procedures so we can commit more of our agency's resources to the private builders for housing development projects and other types of industrialized rural home building."

Smith said the FHA hopes "to triple last year's record this coming year."

The authorization to FHA to issue conditional commitments on single-family dwellings in rural areas is designed to encourage the construction and rehabilitation of such dwellings for sale to low and moderate income families.

Information and applications may be obtained from the Deal Smith-Oldham County Farmers Home Administration office, at 313 W. 3rd St., Hereford, or call the office at 364-1884.

Cong. Bob Price of Texas recently strongly advocated rural housing provisions in the 1969 housing bill.

"Through its rural housing program, the Farmers Home Administration has been making substantial inroads on this problem, and it is vital that this activity not only be continued but accelerated," Price said.

Auto Mechanic Students To Compete In Lubbock

OPEN WIDE, PLEASE...

Two Hereford students will race against time in trying to find out what's wrong with a specially-rigged car next month in an area contest at Lubbock designed to recognize and honor outstanding auto mechanic students.

The two will come from the 33 students enrolled in the auto shop program in Hereford and will compete with teenagers from other schools in the area. The contest, scheduled for May 5, consists of two competitions: a written exam for each participating student which will count as 30 per cent of a team's final score, and a mechanical challenge worth 70 per cent.

In the mechanical competition, students work on new cars supplied by local Plymouth dealers who sponsor the event. The boys race the clock and each other to find and fix several identical malfunctions purposely placed under the hoods of the cars by Plymouth engineers.

The winning team and its instructor earn an expense-paid trip to the National Trouble Shooting Finals June 15-16-17 in Indianapolis at the famed Indianapolis 500 Speedway.

Contestants are competing for more than $125,000 in scholarships and awards. The Lubbock contest is one of about 100 regional events being held across the country.

The purpose of the program is to recognize outstanding auto mechanic students and encourage them to seek a career in the field.

Bill McDowell, Hereford auto shop instructor, said he will give students in his class a written test and have them work on sample trouble shooting.

"The ones who work out the best will go," McDowell said. The elimination to the two who will go to Lubbock will be made about May 1, he said.

NEW YORK — The East holds a commanding 13-4 edge in the National Basketball Association's East-West All-star game series.

OPERATION TROUBLE SHOOTING—The nation's top auto mechanic students—more than 150,000 from all 50 states—are competing in the annual Plymouth Trouble Shooting Contest. These young mechanics must find and fix several identical malfunctions deliberately placed under the hoods of new Plymouth cars. Winners in local contests are sent to Indianapolis for the National Finals at the "500" Speedway June 15-17. These talented Trouble Shooters are out to prove they have earned the title of "service technician" and that the old "greasemonkey" label no longer applies to their skilled trade.

MUSIC ABOUT NEUROSES

NEW YORK — "Adlerian," a string quartet with six movements, each one about a neurosis, will be given its American premiere Feb. 10 at Town Hall. Composer Richard Steker, 32, an Englishman, was inspired to write it by reading Viennese psychologist Alfred Adler's book, "Superiority and Social Interest." The centennial of Adler's birth is Feb. 7. He died in 1937.

The music's movements are titled "Predestination Complex," "Spectator-Proof Complex," "As If Complex," "No-Exclusion Complex," "Redeemer Complex" and "Leader Complex."

AEC Grant Gets Plasma Graduate Course Going

LUBBOCK (Special) — A recent $6,000 matching grant from the Atomic Energy Commission to Texas Tech's Department of Electrical Engineering has set in motion final plans for a new graduate course in plasma dynamics.

Plasma is particularly important to the study of thermonuclear energy which could transform water into a new source of power for man.

Plasma is similar to a gas, but the gas molecules have been separated into electrons and ions (ionized gas). Its ions and electrons move about freely and have mutual collisions, which — at great speeds and extremely high temperatures — cause fusion of the ions, releasing energy of the type generated by the sun and the H-bomb.

It has been estimated that fusion's fuel could cost only a tenth of the cost of fuel with fission reactors, developed from the atomic bomb concept. Fusion also could greatly reduce the explosion and radiation hazard.

Cockerham On Dean's List

Perry W. Cockerham, junior at Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, has been named to the Dean's list for the fall semester.

Cockerham was one of 26 students enrolled at the University to achieve perfect records in all subjects. He is a chemical engineer major.

plasma diagnostics course that will be offered."

In addition to the graduate course which probably will be offered every third semester, he said, the equipment will be used by better senior students, giving them an opportunity to perform plasma experiments which are fusion oriented.

"It is hoped that these experiments will interest the better students in pursuing graduate work in fusion research," he said.

Chairman Russell H. Seacat of the Department of Electrical Engineering said the courses will be open to students from other departments, including physics, mechanical engineering and others which offer a foundation for understanding the course material.

by MELVIN YOUNG

Larry Fuller, Hereford District Manager of Southwestern Public Service Company, will be leaving us in a couple of weeks to take over the Borger district. The move comes rather suddenly but was necessitated by the move of the Borger man into the Amarillo office for some special work. Fuller has been in Hereford for the past 17 months, coming here to replace Melvin Jayroe who resigned from the company to go into private business. His successor has not been named but we assume the announcement will be forthcoming within a few days.

We're sorry to see Larry leave Hereford. He has been an outstanding citizen in the short time that he has been with us and we've enjoyed working with him. No doubt the new man will be of the same caliber. Southwestern Public Service has been one of the best when it comes to assigning competent, likable managers to this district, and frankly we appreciate it very much. We need their kind of corporate leadership in the community.

There's another reason we hate to see Larry leave. He's part of a foursome that plays golf on the local course once each week. We're wondering where Dr. Duffy McBrayer is going to get a new partner, and where the opponents are going to get another pigeon. Besides that, there's not another foursome on the course that has more fun or plays poorer golf. If you don't believe it, ask "Hap" Cavness. He joined the group one day and his golf game hasn't recovered since.

Took a tour with Mayor Jim Sears of the portion of Veterans Park that the American Legion gave to the City and was real pleased with the progress being made down there. Certainly, this is just a beginning, but the city has used available equipment and manpower to clean up the place, getting the weeds mowed and all the trash carried off. It's looking real good. There's still much work that will have to be done before the park can be used but the city has been making plans. They hope to get some type of grass started down there this year and perhaps by next summer there will be a few picnic tables available in the shaded area, etc.

Portions of the ground acquired from the Legion will be used to expand the present Municipal golf course to an 18-hole course. However, as we said before, there's a lot of work that must go into the project before anyone will be playing golf or picnicking on that side of Main Street bridge.

The annual Oasis Shrine Club Crippled Childrens Clinic will be coming up soon. You'll be seeing more information about it in subsequent issues of THE BRAND.

This is one of the finest projects that any service or civic club could ever undertake. A lot of children have been helped to lead normal, useful lives, thanks to a lot of interested Shriners. It's a great organization. If you don't believe it, ask Joe Tijerina. He's one of the youngsters the Shriners have helped.

You may remember the story about Joe. He's the little boy who used to hang out down at the pro shop. A likeable little guy in spite of the fact that he has had a defective right foot since birth. Something akin to a club foot. Anyhow, a bunch of Shriners took an interest in Joe and in the past few months he has undergone surgery in Dallas to correct the defect.

We saw Joe the other day. He was still limping, but the right foot was almost back to normal. He could put the heel on the floor like anyone else, and that's something Joe has never before been able to do. So Joe Tijerina knows about the Shriners. And he's beginning to learn what it's like to lead a normal life.

Had a bunch of Aussies in town Friday for a luncheon stop at the Hereford Country Club. They didn't have long to stay but we sincerely believe that the few local people on hand made them believe that Hereford, Texas was the best place on earth — next to home, that is. We enjoyed visiting with them very much and believe that tours of this type will do more to cement relations between the U. S. and her friends overseas than all the diplomatic maneuvers that Washington can conceive.

There is no such thing as an "idle" rumor, we're told. Rumors are always busy.

Summer Programs Become Available For More Kids

AUSTIN (Special — Disadvantaged youngsters in Texas will be able to take part in summer work programs.

Action by the State Board of Education a week ago modified the State Plan for Vocational Education so local school districts can get federal support for work programs. Applications for programs will be forwarded to districts with students willing to participate in the next ten days, according to John Guemple, Texas Education Agency associate commissioner for occupational education and technology.

Without the Board action, money made available in March by the U. S. Office of Education would have been cut off June 30, the end of the federal fiscal year. The change in the State Plan makes it possible to charge programs to the budget year in which they are approved.

A total of $665,944 in federal and local funds are involved. Neither of the two federal programs was financed until last month. The federal share of the total is $635,716, including $240,910 for "work-study" and $394,806 for "cooperative" programs. Disadvantaged students in summer work programs may earn money to help stay in school. "Work-study" jobs are in public agencies. Young people in the "cooperative" program will work for local business and industry. Both groups must meet qualifications based on family income.

Local schools can strengthen both programs by combining the two, said Guemple. The combination would make it possible to supplement job experience with classroom instruction for all students involved.

Although celebrities regularly visit the Greek island, Mykonos, the most colorful character there is Peter the Pelican. With his wings clipped the bird waddles freely around town, posing for pictures and mooching food from visitors.

H.D. CHATTER Clothing Fiber Hints

By Mrs. Argen Draper Home Demonstration Agent

Are you conscious of what fibers make up the clothes you buy? A garment which needs special care may not be worth it. Some garments consist of fibers which change drastically under normal cleaning processes. One such fiber is vinylon, a heat sensitive fiber which will stiffen and shrink when exposed to even moderate heat.

Garments containing vinylon must be cleaned in a special "cold" process. Before you buy, decide if the excess trouble caused by the special cleaning process is worth the garment. Remember, to find a real bargain, examine the clothing care and content label. If the garment isn't labeled or tagged for fiber content or care, you are taking a chance in buying it.

A professional drycleaner can remove almost any stain in the book — but he is not a mind reader. Many stains, such as those made by ginger ale and other sweetened soft drinks, become completely invisible when dry. When heat is applied to them, the stains become dark brown and permanent. Point out and identify these stains to your drycleaner. Then he can take special measures to prevent permanent damage to your garments.

To combat searing clothing prices, plan your clothing purchases carefully and they can take you anywhere. Make the most of your clothing dollar and buy multi-purpose clothes.

Suits or dresses with simple lines and little trimming lend themselves to accessory changes for different types of activities. Separates which are in fashion now can be switched around for variety.

Buying clothing just because it has a low price tag may be expensive in the long run unless you really like it and it fits into your wardrobe plan. A few good items that you wear frequently and that always make you feel well dressed are better buys than a number of cheaper clothes.

Styles change so quickly that it hardly pays to have a large wardrobe. A few dresses in the current style can be worn often enough for you to get your money's worth. Next year they become second best as you add one or two new items to the wardrobe.

Be fussy about a good fit. Your clothes will not only look better, but wear better, too. Save some of your clothing money for a good fitting foundation garment so that all your clothes will look better on you.

The work the next four days will be with the District THDA meeting. Thursday you'll see about 300 women in town and that will be the occasion. The local club women are excited over having company.

Everyone has been so cooperative. Our thanks to all persons who have helped make the convention a success.

With the Agricultural census, population census, and income tax forms being filled in, we should have a clearer insight to our business. Also, the Estate Management shortcourse made those enrolled to consider assets a little more carefully.

Methodists Revise Conference Alignment

In a special called meeting recently in Lubbock, Methodists of the Northwest Texas Conference, including five Hereford members, voted to eliminate one district from the conference's present number "because of improvements in communication and travel."

Attending from Hereford were the Rev. and Mrs. Clifford Trotter; Virgil Walker, official lay delegate from the First United Methodist Church; S. L. Garrison, lay leader for the local church and Earnest Langley, lay leader for the Amarillo District of the Northwest Texas Conference.

The special meeting was called primarily for the purpose of eliminating one or more of the conference's existing districts and to schedule the annual session.

Following considerable discussion by a number of delegates, a vote was taken to eliminate only one district in the conference. Some delegates had indicated they wanted to reduce the existing eight district conference to as few as five, but the final vote was asked on either a seven or five district conference. The seven district vote carried by a 243-137 margin.

Eliminated was the Brownfield district which will be assigned to either the Lubbock, Plainview or Big Spring Districts. The only effect this will have on the Amarillo District, of which Hereford is a member, is a few of the outlying churches will be taken in by one of the other districts.

The elimination of the one district came about as a result of an intensive two-year study by a 25 member committee.

The committee reported to the delegates that because of improved highways and other means of travel, communications, population changes in the conference area and the value of the district superintendents to the ministers and laymen of their district it was possible to eliminate one district.

The more than 1,000 delegates who attended the special meeting voted to have the annual conference in Abilene, May 28-31, in St. Paul United Methodist Church.

State Seeks Better Methods To Give Vocational Training

AUSTIN (Special) More than 60 pilot projects designed to determine the best methods for giving vocational training to handicapped students in Texas will be extended through the 1970-71 school year.

Some 7,000 students in all areas of the state are now a part of this test pattern in the public schools, junior colleges, and state schools and hospitals.

A total of $1.9 million in federal funds is earmarked for the program in the 1970 fiscal year ending June 30.

Extension of the program, approved one week ago by the State Board of Education meeting in Austin, will enable the Texas Education Agency to make a "more realistic" appraisal of the new programs, according to John R. Guemple, associate commissioner for occupational education and technology.

Some of the projects got underway last September, others in January, and a few are just now beginning to operate, Guemple said. This brief time span does not give the answers needed for future decisions. Questions which must be answered include: (1) Which occupations are most appropriate for each category of handicapped students? (2) How many students can one teacher instruct properly? (3) How much time is needed to train the mentally retarded for a specific job? (4) Will Texas employers accept well trained physically handicapped employees?

Pilot projects are located in Abilene, Amarillo, Austin, Baytown, Big Spring, Bonham, Brownsville, Bryan, Columbia, Corsicana, Corpus Christi, Del Valle, Denton, Eagle Mountain, Saginaw, El Paso, Fort Worth, Galena Park, Harlandale, Houston, Hurst-Euless-Bradford, Kilgore, Laredo, Lexington, Lockhart, Longview, Lubbock, Lufkin, Luling, Mexia, Midland, Mineral Wells, Paris, Pasadena, Petersburg, Plainview, Pleasanton, Richardson, Richmond, Rio Grande City, San Antonio, San Marcos, Waco and Weatherford.

Realtors Get Warning On Marijuana Danger

Everyone has the desire to escape at some time. And under the right circumstances, attitude, and atmosphere, anyone could be talked into taking a marijuana cigarette, a TV news-caster told members of the Hereford Board of Realtors last week.

"Knowing you have a problem is the first step in handling it," said Pattie Patane, who has been conducting an intense attack on narcotics problem since coming to KGNC-TV, Amarillo, from Palm Springs, Calif. six months ago.

"Kids have the attitude that drugs can't hurt them, but proof is that they can. 'Hurt' is a part of growing up, but drugs are taken as an instant solution to the problem," she continued.

Marijuana, with no immediate physical deterrent, is psychologically addictive, according to Miss Patane's research. "LSD is the most active ingredient known, completely unpredictable. However, someday LSD will be used to an advantage medically. Its usage are on the down, as kids are realizing the results, but they are turning to heroin," she said.

She feels that education on the part of the adults will have an effect on the kids when they realize that adults care enough to be concerned about youth.

Lack of communication and respect between the generations, and too much apathy on the part of the adults are some of the problems Miss Patane sees.

"The finest thing you can give your child is to tell him 'No'. Parents want to give kids what they didn't have, but working made you what you are," she admonished.

Roberson-Brashear Wed In Ceremony At Home

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Roberson Jr., 127 Greenwood, was the setting for the wedding of their daughter, Beverly Jean, to Gerald Gene Brashear, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brashear, 311 S. 25 Mile Ave. The Rev. Eugene Brink, pastor of the First Christian Church, officiated for the intimate ceremony.

Marking the place of ceremony in the living room were several rows of candles, including cathedral lamps and a cross.

The bride wore a street-length dress of white bonded crepe and silk organza styled with fitted bodice and full skirt. She wore a mantilla of white tulle and carried a nosegay of white roses and stock with white streamers.

She also carried out the tradition of "something old, new, borrowed and blue."

Miss Talbert wore a dress of white crepe with Bishop sleeves and blue crepe sash. She carried a nosegay similar to the bride's of purple stock with blue streamers.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony with guests registered by Mrs. Thomas Brashear.

The bride's and bridesmaid's bouquets centered the serving table which held the wedding cake decorated with blue roses and gold berries. Cake was served by Miss Becca Eshelman of Hereford and punch was ladled by Miss Judith Wiersma of Amarillo.

The couple is now at home in Dallas.

A man must look at three things to make irrigation pay.

Look for a reliable pump. One so well constructed that you know it's going to last.

Look for an efficient pump. One that runs so economically you'll find extra dollars in your pocket.

Look for a qualified distributor. One that has the experience, man power, and equipment to handle any pump installation.

As a Worthington distributor we give you all three. Reliability and efficiency in a well pump designed by the world's largest pump manufacturer. And we're a distributor who intends to make his service the best.

Nineteen Australian farmers and grazers, interested in gaining first-hand knowledge of American agricultural methods, spent several hours in Hereford Friday, as part of a tour that began March 31, and will continue through early next month. All of the group have cattle in Australia, and some also grow substantial acreages of fodder and other crops.

They flew from Australia to Honolulu, then to Los Angeles, Denver and Amarillo before coming by chartered bus to Hereford on the way to Clovis. They will continue traveling by bus to Lubbock, Abilene, Bryan, Houston, Kingsville and San Antonio, before flying to Monterrey and Mexico City and finally to Australia again.

County Groups Discuss Water At Workshops

The program of work for county units of Water, Inc., will be unveiled at three regional workshops scheduled this week.

Each of the workshops at Pampa, Plainview and Lamesa, will feature a briefing by Harry Burleigh of Austin, chief of investigations in Texas, Bureau of Reclamation, Burleigh will detail work being done by his office in Texas Water Plan reconnaissance.

The workshops are designed especially for officers, directors and committee chairmen of county units. However, K.B. "Tex" Watson of Amarillo, president of Water, Inc., has issued an invitation to all persons interested in the future of water in West Texas to attend.

Following the briefing by Burleigh, those attending will be divided into three areas of interest: membership, education and publicity for detailed workshops. The sessions will be directed by Tom Williams, Gerald Ivey and Duncan Ellison, associate directors of Water, Inc. The overall program will be supervised by Bill Clayton, executive director.

George Bush Offers Summer Intern Program

George Bush, candidate for the United States Senate, has announced sponsorship of a summer intern program designed to involve college students in a major political campaign.

"Young people sometimes feel they are on the outside," Bush said, "but I am determined this year, of offer a first hand, on-the-job look at a campaign."

Thirty Texas university and college students will be awarded a six-week internship beginning July 6. A small stipend will be provided, plus free housing.

Participants will be selected competitively and applications judged on the basis of activities, leadership, and scholarship.

"This project is one I very much favor," Bush said, "and to my knowledge there has never been a similar undertaking anywhere in the nation, certainly not in Texas. People working together to bring about constructive change is an exciting experience, and I want those students on the scene to share with me how this happens in a political campaign."

The Bush for Senator Campaign Headquarters in Houston will be the main classroom. Some travel with the candidate is anticipated. Each intern will receive comprehensive training in campaign research and statistics, candidate and surrogate scheduling, media coverage, and organization from the precinct

Letters of commendation, from the directors of Deaf Smith County Museum, were recently sent to Harry Lomas, Bill Hacker and John Turner.

These local residents, all early settlers in this area, have contributed in many ways to the growth of the museum, with donations of articles and labor.

Lomas, who has been here since 1914, retired from the business world five years ago, becoming his own boss, and has since spent many hours restoring and cleaning contents of the museum.

Lomas could be considered a collector. He has a great many artifacts displayed, beginning with his collections as a boy in Missouri. A gun case, farm tools implements and household items are among his prized possessions.

A sit-down length metal bathtub is of particular interest. Most early families used the round wash tub, presenting a problem to the bather as he folded himself to fit the shape, so the elongated tub was a real treasure in its day. Lomas' son, Dennis found this tub in a trash heap near the New Mexico line.

On Wednesdays, Saturdays, Sundays, when the museum is open to the public, Lomas plays informative host, in cooperation with the organizations assigned to host the day.

Keeping the building and fenced in yard clean are also jobs that Lomas carries out at the museum.

Bill Hacker, retired since 1967, shares the restoration, and clean-up duties with Hacker, as well as hosting visitors to the museum.

Hacker's hobby is doing pen and ink drawings, and has two exhibited at the museum. Western in theme, his art reminds one of the style of the well known Bugbee. Although he has done art work since a boy, he had placed it for sale only during the past few years. A number of his pictures are displayed at Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union.

A framed motto of "Home Sweet Home", which once hung in the old Hacker home, is now hanging in the museum. The Hackers came to Hereford in 1910.

Hacker claims the chuck wagon, buggy and the kitchen set-up as his favorite displays at the museum.

Hacker sees the enlargement of the present building or the acquisition of a larger building as future needs of the museum.

John Turner, semi-retired, does most of his work at home after the on-the-job day is done, and on weekends. He creates unusual earrings from barbed wire.

These charming little gilded curios of various patterns make wearable souvenirs, and are the only on-sale items at the museum.

Turner is also seeking timbers to elevate the windmill in the yard to a proper height.

The chuckwagon in the museum reminds Turner of the days when he traveled with his grandfather on trips in a similar wagon, moving to this area in 1911, when he was 11 years old. The windmill is his second choice of favorites.

Turner would like to have, for a display in the museum, a stuffed lobo wolf, which once roamed this area, but feels it will be difficult to find.

These men know the museum and its displays as well as anyone and they love to tell about them.

The conclusion of the business session was the election of officers to serve for the next two years. Morris Hacker, Meinard Koelzer, and Roger Albracht, appointed nominating committee submitted their selections.

Ed Schilling was re-elected as president; Leander Reinart was re-elected as first vice-president, with Lester Wagner elected to serve as second vice-president and Dick Reinart as secretary-treasurer.

Bill Kahlich is immediate past second vice-president and Bob Schumacher immediate past secretary-treasurer.

Rev. Simeon Heine, spiritual advisor, was presented a gift from the union. Mrs. C. J. Albracht and Charles Berend received the attendance prizes.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Enesimo Garza, 412 Barrett and M. and Mrs. Trinidad Gomez Sr. of 330 Ave. A.

A white satin kneeling bench flanked by candelabra formed a background for the nuptial setting. White satin bows marked the family pews on the bridal aisle.

Gilbert Garza of Lubbock escorted his sister to the altar. Miss Melida Garza was her sister's maid of honor and best man was Rudy Castillo. Bridesmaids and groomsmen were Messrs. and Mmes. Raul Saldana, Carmen Hernandez, Charlie Galen, Joe Flores, Mercedes Perez, Edmundo Ramirez and Fells Mangia.

Also Miss Delma Gomez, Susie Moreno, Silvia Perez and Robert Gomez, John Sanchez and Roy Fuentez.

White lace over bridal satin made the formal gown of the bride. The fitted bodice was styled with Sabrina neckline and long sleeves. Gathered lace tiers formed the full skirt which extended to a chapel length train. Her veil of illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls and iridescent crystals and she carried a bridal bouquet from Old Mexico made of pearl flowers tied with white satin bows.

The maid of honor wore an empire styled formal gown of white bonded crepe with chiffon panels extending from the shoulders.

Pink candle mist crepe made the formal A-line gowns of the bridesmaids, accented at the neckline with silver sequins.

The reception and dance which followed the wedding was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall where guests were registered by Herman Benavidez and Isabel Gonzales.

White lace draped the bride's table which held a crystal candelabra and a silver punch bowl. The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with pink flowers and silver bells. Mrs. Isabel Gonzales served the cake and Mrs. Larry Ulibarri ladled punch. Other members of the house party were Mrs. Ernest Tijerina Jr., Mrs. Joe Perez, Mrs. Jeff Gomez Sr. and Mrs. Trinidad Gomez Jr.

The Rev. Carl McDaniel of Dallas officiated for the 7:30 p. m. double ring ceremony on Friday.

Baskets of white roses, centered by an arch of greenery, formed a background for exchange of vows, with flanking seven-branched candelabra holding cathedral tapers. In the center, behind the prayer candles, was a white satin kneeling bench. White satin bows marked the family pews on the bridal aisle.

Mrs. Arron Crawford, organist and Mrs. Jack Noblett, soloist, both of Shallowater, furnished the wedding music. Mrs. Noblett's selections included "More," "April Love" and "Twelfth of Never."

Miss Debra Kay Hasley was maid of honor and Billy Pierson of Hereford was best man.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was a lovely picture in her formal gown of bridal satin and Alencon lace, styled with chapel train. The lace bodice of the princess styled gown was complimented by a seed pearl-traced Sabrina neckline and long sleeves. Alencon lace made the scalloped mantilla and she carried a nosegay of white and yellow carnations tied with matching streamers.

The feminine attendants wore formal princess styled gowns of yellow bonded crepe. A matching sash, which extended to the hemline of the formal gown, was caught at the waistline with yellow carnations. Yellow bridal net and flowers made the headpieces and they carried nosegays of yellow carnations.

A reception honoring the couple was held in the church Fellowship Hall. The service table was laid with yellow net and held the bride's bouquet and a three-tiered wedding cake topped with the traditional bride and groom.

Following a honeymoon trip to Dallas and other southern points, the couple will make their home in Lubbock.

GOOD FOOD IS MY LINE

By Red Hagan

If you're anything like I am, there's nothing you enjoy so much as that most heart and flavorful of food-stuffs — sausage. There are more than five hundred types of sausage made throughout the world, and over one hundred are made right here in the United States. According to its definition, sausage is mixture of meat, usually ground, and other food-stuffs usually in a natural or artificial casing or tubing, and it ranges from the lowly hot-dog to the Scotch haggis. The Germans are the master sausage makers of the world and practice their craft in a great deal of secrecy. If you think this is untrue, just try to get his specialty recipe from a master sausage maker. You'll find it will cost you a lot of money to succeed.

Voter Turnout Encouraging

Maybe, at long last, citizens are becoming concerned about the affairs of their nation. Perhaps, hopefully, the old adage "let George do it" has been shelved and the people who pay the bills are going to be heard at the polls.

According to information received in this office, a record total of 4,150,645 Texans are qualified to vote during the primary and general elections this year. Secretary of State Martin Dies Jr. reported that count as the State Chief Election officer. The statewide total is almost 80,000 more than in the 1969 presidential year.

Metropolitan area county registrations rose dramatically from 1969, according to Dies. Harris County (Houston) alone accounted for 650,612 of the votes, Dallas 466,925 and Bexar (San Antonio) 260,225.

More encouraging however, is the fine turnout at the polls that we have experienced locally this past week. A record number 400 turned out Saturday to soundly defeat a controversial junior college district election, and a near record went back to the polls Tuesday to approve a city sales tax by more than 3 to 1. There was little doubt how the voters felt in either case.

The fact that a record number have registered in any year means little if the voters stay home on election day. Apparently, if this past week is any indication, the trend is changing. We hope it continues. We often wonder how many issues in past years, or how many candidates for important posts, have been defeated by voter apathy. Or for that matter, how many bad proposals have been approved for the same reason.

We still believe in the democratic process. But it will work only when a majority of the people take the trouble to inform themselves about the issues, and then go to the polls to express their wishes. We've had a good beginning this year. Let's keep up the batting average.

Why Penalize Work?

UNDER PRESENT law, our Social Security system has succeeded in providing certain of our citizens what amounts to the ultimate in taxation — a tax of more than 100 per cent. The more dollars these old people earn past a certain amount, the less their net income is.

You don't believe it? Here's how it was explained in a letter to the National Federation of Independent Business from Robert Ball, Social Security commissioner, as quoted by the federation: "Under present law, $1 in (Social Security) benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings between $1,680 (the annual exempt amount) and $2,880, but above $2,880, $1 in benefits is withheld for each $1 of earnings. Since benefits are tax free while earnings are taxable, a person may have less in net income by increasing his earnings."

This strange situation grows out of the workings of the "retirement test" provision of Social Security. If a man wants to keep working after age 65, that's fine with the system — provided he doesn't earn more than $1,680 a year.

AT THAT MOST level of earnings, though, he starts paying through the nose for the privilege of working — he loses $1 of his earned Social Security benefits for every additional $2 he earns. In effect, he starts paying a tax of more than 50 per cent — not only does he lose benefits but he also has to pay taxes on the earnings.

Then, when his earnings reach the $2,880 level, he actually loses more than a dollar of income for every dollar he earns, up to the amount of benefits he would have received had he remained idle.

To make this inequity even more outlandish, the retirement test no longer applies once the workingman reaches 72.

If a 72-year-old wants to begin a new career or resume his old one at that age, the system doesn't care if he earns a million dollars a year — it will pay him his full Social Security benefits no matter how much he is making.

To say that this setup is unfair to those elders who want to work or have to work past 65 is putting it mildly.

To its credit, the administration has recognized the injustice and has a bill in the mill to change the provision. Under the bill, according to Commissioner Ball, $1 benefits would be withheld for each $2 of earnings above the annual exempt amount regardless of how much the earnings might be; there would be no point at which $1 in benefits would be withheld for each $1 of earnings. The bill would also increase the annual exempt amount of earnings from $1,680 to $1,800 and would provide for automatic increases in the annual exempt amount as earnings levels rise.

THAT'S AN improvement: certainly, in the sense that a tax of 50 per cent plus is an improvement over a tax of more than 100 per cent. But why enforce the retirement test at all, particularly in view of the fact that it ceases to apply at age 72?

If, from the system's point of view, it is undesirable for a 66-year-old to earn $5,000 a year, why remove the work-discouraging restraints when he reaches 72?

On the other hand, if the system pays the 72-year-old full benefits, regardless of his earnings, why deny them during the seven previous years?

The federation reports it has turned up few people over 72 "who have launched lucrative new employment careers."

"But federation researchers do receive many reports from members who are still operating their businesses at an advanced age because their Social Security benefits would not permit them to exist, if they closed their business and retired."

At a time when the economy is short of skilled and experienced workers, it seems ludicrous for the government to penalize people who want to work. Particularly when the same government is paying billions in welfare to younger people who won't work. — The Dallas Morning News

Bad First Guess

The words were those of an Alaskan bank chairman, quoted in a June 30 story about the Small Business Administration (SBA).

"When disaster strikes, the big problem is to get things going again," said the banker. "The SBA did that. It's easy enough to sit back later and second-guess." Well, the ease of second-guessing does not make it any less valuable, and as that news story reported, the SBA was quite more than liberal in the dispensing of loans in Alaska following flood and earthquake damage. And that agency continues to leave itself wide open to a lot more second-guessing, as it did with its guarantee of a loan, revealed recently, to a prosperous St. Louis baseball star.

Until the quality of first-guessing improves at the SBA, second-guessing remains an essential recourse for the taxpayer.

Inflation Still Here

The most obvious thing about the government's efforts to stop inflation at the source — meaning by fiscal and monetary measures is that they are not working as well or as fast as they were supposed to. Despite the tightest money in generations and the prospects of a balanced budget, wages and prices keep going up. — Chicago Tribune

Consumers Want Right To Sue For Deception

By FERT MILLS

Washington, D. C. — Consumer activists are seeking to persuade Congress to pass a law to allow private citizens to band together and bring suit in Federal court to recover damages from a business concern adjudged guilty of fraud or deception.

The clamor for so-called "class action" legislation is so strong that the Nixon Administration has proposed its own less drastic version. In the words of President Nixon, his bill "will prevent harassment of legitimate businessmen by unlimited nuisance suits."

There are a dozen class action bills pending in Congress and hearings have been held on them by Senate and House subcommittees. Business interests which oppose all such bills are very worried at the prospect that Congress will enact a class action law this year.

The two principal bills are those submitted by the Administration and a much broader proposal co-authored by Sen. Joseph Tydings (D., Md.) and

Rep. Bob Eckhardt (D., Tex.). Leading consumer groups have endorsed the Tydings-Eckhardt bill and denounced the alternative from the White House.

The general public has yet to render an opinion. Probably the average voter does not understand this issue. However, this is an election year and political candidates will be taking a stand on class action suits. So there could be a sudden mobilization of public opinion.

A principal difference between the Tydings-Eckhardt bill and the Administration version is the Nixon bill spells out a "Laundry list" of 11 practices. Consumers could file a class action suit only after the Department of Justice or Federal Trade Commission had won a case against a business concern found guilty of a "Laundry list" violation.

The Tydings bill contains no such limitation and would permit consumers to go to court regardless of Federal action or inaction. All that would be necessary would be to allege an "unfair or deceptive act or practice" which caused damage to members of the group seeking recovery.

If the Administration bill passed, the number of suits would probably be reduced but the probability of court victory enhanced. If Justice or FTC had already won a case against a company, that verdict would be evidence in any private suit that followed and all that would be necessary would be to prove damages and the amount.

Critics of the Nixon bill point out that the 11th of the prescribed practices is so broadly phrased as to be a virtual catch-all. It outlaws "knowing" misrepresentation that "goods or services have sponsorship, approval, origin, characteristics of safety or performance, ingredients, uses, benefits or quantities" which they do not possess.

Bonanza For Lawyers Seen
Laws are drafted by lawyers and passed by legislative bodies dominated by lawyers. Later they are interpreted by courts run by other lawyers. Sometimes it seems that laws supposedly designed to aid the public are really aimed at benefiting the legal profession.

Surely passage of any class action law would be a bonanza for lawyers. It would be an invitation to go to court in an effort to earn huge legal fees. The Tydings bill allows attorneys winning class action cases to collect 10 percent of the judgment. Since awards could run into many millions of dollars, some lawyers stand to get rich.

Even under present law, with class action suits limited to state and local courts, there has been a rash of litigation. In Philadelphia, seven bakers were convicted of a price-fixing conspiracy. A treble damage suit has been filed in behalf of 6 million consumers. It has been estimated that the maximum any individual could receive if this suit succeeds is $200, but attorney fees are estimated as high as $60,000.

The Philadelphia case is strictly local. A national suit against a major corporation could involve far greater sums. Suppose a successful case were brought against General Motors on behalf of all owners of a 1970 Chevrolet? The implications are obvious. No wonder businesses are up in arms at the prospect of Federal legislation to encourage damage suits against corporations.

Many consumers are also stockholders in American business. They should be concerned about unlocking the doors to corporate treasuries, lest equities fall and dividends decline. And Congress should take a long, hard look before rushing to pass a class action law that might have devastating consequences.

Talk of Texas

By JACK MAGUIRE

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY — "Ben Hur," General LeW Wallace's classic novel on the life of Christ, was finished while its author sat out a tour of duty in Texas.

Wallace, a native of Indiana and son of a Hoosier State governor, was a lawyer by profession and a soldier by avocation. As a young officer, he was stationed at Fort Ingalls just outside the city of Uvalde. He wrote to while away the time, and finished his epic "Ben Hur" at the Southwest Texas Army post.

During the Civil War, he was a major general in the Union Army and distinguished himself at Shiloh. Later he was governor of the New Mexico Territory and U. S. Minister to Turkey.

TEXAS TRADEMARKS — Alley Oop, the leading character in a comic strip about cave men, is honored with a statue in the Pecos County town of Iraan. In fact, Iraan may be said to be the home of Alley Oop and the stone age world he inhabits.

V. T. Hamlin, the artist who created the unique comic strip, lived in Iraan for many years and used to prow the Pecos River to uncover relics of the cave people who once populated the area. He used these experiences as the basis for the story of Alley Oop.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS? — German settlers in the Texas Hill Country had no building materials except those furnished by the land and constructing a shelter was a major project.

Stone was plentiful, but converting the white limestone into a home required mortar to hold the rock together. The settlers made it themselves by burning the white rock into lime.

This was done by digging a pit eight feet deep and four feet in diameter on a sloping hillside. A furnace then was dug through the side of the cliff and connected to the pit. An iron grill then was installed about two feet from the bottom of the pit and rocks stacked on it until the pit was filled. These were covered with a foot of dirt, except for a center vent to serve as a chimney.

For 72 hours, a hot fire was kept burning in the furnace. Then the rock, now reduced to small particles by the heat, was removed, placed in a wooden barrel and made into a paste. The lime made in this way formed an effective mortar which has enabled many of these homes to stand or more than a century.

WEDDING DAZE — Judge Roy Bean, the unorthodox and self-styled "law west of the Pecos," had an unvarying ceremony for the many marriages he performed. "Join hands," he would thunder at the couple. "Give me $5. You're married. And may God have mercy on your souls."

TEXAS BRAG — San Marcos boasts that a black Nubian billygoat which performs for tourists at the Aquarena is the largest goat in the world. He may be. He stands three feet tall and is five feet long.

65 YEARS AGO — 1905

Among the new enterprises of which Hereford will have just cause to feel proud, is the new photograph gallery of which Miss Johnson is proprietor. "Loss of appetite always results from faulty digestion. All that is needed is a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will invigorate the liver, strengthen the digestion and give you an appetite like a wolf. These tablets also act as a gentle laxative." For sale by T. M. Coulson and Co.

50 YEARS AGO — 1920

The first annual sale of the registered Hereford Breeders Association of Deaf Smith County has come and gone. And the net result was an unqualified success from every standpoint and the assurance that the industry is on a permanent and established basis for the future. Keith Stegall happened to a painful and rather serious injury Monday while working in the Manual Training Department at the high school. He caught the fingers of his left hand in the machinery and the ends of the middle fingers were slice off.

35 YEARS AGO — 1935

War on wind erosion in Deaf Smith County and throughout the Panhandle started today as the area's emergency program got underway. Briefly, the plan is to furnish fuel and oil or stock feed to all farmers on the basis of 10 cents per acre. The farmer is to work every day but Sunday in cultivating the land until the job is completed. Two hundred seventy-nine Deaf Smith county farmers were made wealthier and considerably happier this past week with the delivery of $17,537.85 in corn-hog allotments.

20 YEARS AGO — 1950

Mayor W. E. Dameron was presented the Lions Club Man of the Year award Thursday night at the annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet. W. M. Stewart was elected chairman of the Tierra Blanca Soil Conservation District. Hereford steps up another notch tonight when the $51,000 Tower Drive-In Theater opens. The new 340-car capacity theater is said to be the most convenient in the Southwest. Ramps are equivalent to two miles of caliche country and 1,000 road of neon tubing has been put in.

5 YEARS AGO — 1965

Three Hereford men died, Friday morning in a high-speed collision between a truck and pickup northwest of here at a county intersection. Killed in the crash were Francisco Landin, Rosendo Landin and Ramon Gonzales. A 25-year old Hereford man died in a one-vehicle accident near the Summerfield community early Thursday morning. Killed was Leonard Eugene Lewis, a resident here for the past 18 months. J. W. Robinson Jr., owner of Robinson Insurance Agency, was named to the post of District Governor, Lions District 2-T-1 recently and Hereford was named the host city for the conference to be held in early April of next year.

Former Prisoner Visits Hereford

Alberto Burri, an Italian prisoner of war at the Hereford camp from 1944 to 1946, returned to Hereford last week for a visit.
 Burri was a medical doctor at the time of his imprisonment, but studied art under the direction of two famous Italian artists also confined in Texas.
 After returning to Italy, Burri resigned from his medical career, taking up art. Since that time, his works have been exhibited in Houston, Chicago, Milwaukee and other cities throughout the United States.
 Mr. and Mrs. Burris stayed overnight in Hereford on their return to Rome, via New York from Los Angeles, where Mrs. Burri's brother resides.
 While here, the Burris visited the prison camp site, and St. Mary's Catholic Church in Umbarger, where some of the prisoners' art work remains.

Glady's Garden

By Gladys Howton Manjeot

Every garden is much more attractive, if they have some exotic flowers. They add beautiful colors, unusual formations, interest and that certain something that women admire... appealing and exotic.

One of the flowers in this category would be the Lycoris. I saw my first Lycoris in a friend's garden in Wichita Falls, and was enchanted by its beauty, and lavish color.

Later a friend, Mrs. May gave me some bulbs. I planted them and awaited most anxiously their coming through the soil. This last year another friend brought me some of the bulbs. When Mrs. Stan Knox came to my door early one morning and gave me a number of the bulbs (she was so sweet to divide with me, as her mother had sent them to her from Louisiana) I was so thrilled and grateful.

They are as mysteriously beautiful and oriental as a scarlet tinkling bell-hung pagoda in Japan, where they originated. At first they grew wild in China and Japan. They belong to the Amaryllis family, the botanical name being Amaryllidaceae.

Tradition ties the Lycoris with the romantic life of Marc Anthony. Lycoris was an actress, a very lovely lady, and tradition reveals that she was the mistress of Marc Anthony; of course his first love was Cleopatra.

The Lycoris (Lycor'is) is grown from a tender bulb. It is a very hardy plant, and in our area it is advisable to plant the bulbs in the fall, at least 8 inches below freezing point, and 10 inches apart.

The foliage comes up in the spring, a deep pretty dark green with a white stripe in the center of the leaf. The foliage, very nice material for flower arrangements, may be hardened, by placing in a cool water bath; after being left in the water, lifted and wrapped in newspaper, before using in the arrangement. They are especially adaptable for oriental arrangements, and effective when arranged with white blossoms. I enjoy using them with the small iris and narcissus.

As the summer time approaches, when the days lengthen, and the temperature becomes warmer, the foliage dies down. Later as fall approaches and the heat of the summer is past the scape appears, and it is on this that the flower is born.

The blossoms are 3 to 4 inches in diameter, in clusters, and in various colors. One of my favorites is the coral, and of course the red are very exotic. Perched on a lovely bird on their stout scape (flower stalk), which sometimes grows to a height of 1-3 feet in length, another characteristic of the exotic flower is the white filaments (anther stalks) and yellow anthers. One's eye is almost immediately drawn to this lacy, interesting feature.

The Lycoris is grown from a loose scaly bulb, 1 to 2 inches in diameter, a bit more meaty than most bulbs which we plant, and the formation is most interesting. After the bulbs become dormant, they can be used for potted plants, but they must go through the process of forcing, like that which is used for tulips, daffodils, etc.

The dormant bulbs are potted in January, buried to two thirds of their depth in a compost of two parts decayed manure or other recommended leaf mold. The bulbs are set in a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees, not water until the soil becomes dry, after which it is kept moist until the foliage appears, grows and died down. The potted material is then kept dry until the foliage has completely dried. Bulbs are allowed to dry thoroughly, and reotted; to be grown as an Amaryllis. I can assure you that you will enjoy the beautiful flowers.

When I plant the Lycoris in the garden I select a place where they will draw the eye, if the brighter colors are used. Again and again their exotic beauty will appeal to you and you will be GLAD that you have grown this beautiful, colorful, flower. One even enjoys the foliage, as it too is different. Mine is very attractive now; I have used the Lycoris as an island planting around the golden rain tree, using some broken marble with it, giving it a more attractive background to show off its beauty.

GARDEN THOUGHTS: If you have a martin house and really want the martins to live in it, be sure to check its cleanliness; if there are webs blocking the windows and doors, they will not enter. Don't give up if they don't come this year; just keep believing and hoping. I note that there has been some publicity relative to their arrival in neighboring towns. The Audubon Society of Amarillo, made a tour to Pampa to check on the arrival of the martins.

Speaking of birds, Art (my husband) and I thought we saw a mocking bird flash past our watering station, today, while we were eating lunch. It is a bit early for them, as they like the trees to be leafed out before they come.

Am still having other birds sharing the watering and feeding stations. So far Art is ahead of me, in naming the varieties; he has had a number of field (meadow) larks. Yesterday they came in numbers to enjoy bathing and splashing in the water sprays, as Art watered the lawns, also noticed birds drinking and flashing around at the Camp Fire Lodge grounds Monday. Mrs. Bess Jennings called to announce that she has some extra day lilies (hemerocallis) which she would be glad to share with anyone who would call or come by for them. Telephone number 364-4223. They are a perennial, and do well here.

So good to have a long newsy letter from Miss Oliver, whom many of you will remember. She told of her flowers and other interests, also sent me some botanical names of plants and flowers of which I had been in doubt. THANKS!

A real pretty beauty spot is the home of Mrs. I. E. Woolery, 132 Avenue A. She has a lovely, floral bed of purple grape hyacinths, and yellow daffodils. VERY LOVELY, and she is a gardener of many years, which is a challenge to the younger gardeners.

To Wed Local Man

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman R. Hale of Harrah, Okla. announce the engagement and plans for the June wedding of their daughter, Susan Marie, to Larry Eugene Guinn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Guinn, 105 Ave. B.

The First Baptist Church of Harrah will be the setting for the June 6 wedding. Miss Hale attended Choctaw High School and is a business major at East Central State College, Ada, Okla.

Mr. Guinn is a 1969 graduate of Hereford High School and is attending East Central State where he is a history major and a member of the college football team.

CONGRATULATIONS! To Mrs. Sue James, and Mr. Bean, at the County Courthouse, for being selected as the Beauty Spots of the month of March. Am sure competition was sharp, with so many beautiful flowering spring flowers, and weather "odds" to compete with. At least we can agree with the poet of old, in a measure, "Snow storm bring beautiful March flowers" GLAD
