WASHINGTON (AP) - The most apt symbol for the peace talks between Egypt

No Mideast Treaty Reached Despite Goal

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says all generalizations are false, including this one.

Just about the time the kids are grown and you get the house straightened, the grandchildren arrive to mess it up again.

DURING THE TWO or three days following the election, you probably read the statement a number of times that "Texas elected its first Republican governor in 105 years.'

Not true, says editor Ben Ezzell of Canadian. "Texas has had several Republican governors within our memory," claims Ezzell. "Bill Clements is just the first to be elected on the Republican ticket. John Connally was a GOP governor of Texas for three terms, although he only admitted his true status a few years later."

Ezzell claims Allan Ahivers was also a Republican governor for eight years, as he and Connally both supported the national GOP during their terms. "And, of course, there is Dolph Briscoe, who has never quite made up his mind," concludes the Canadian editor.

MANY THANKS to those who have expressed their enjoyment with the Chamber Follies presented here earlier this week. In working with the project, I feel qualified to report that its success was largely due to the 60-70 people--many of them involved in a C of C activity for the first time--who were in the cast or working backstage. There were many "unsung heroes" who committed almost two solid weeks to the show. There were a number of ladies who paid babysitters so they could participate in this volunteer project. There were others who had husbands doing the babysitting, making it a family project.

One of the great benefits of the follies, as far as I was concerned, was the opportunity to meet new friends and work together with a spirit of enthusiasm and civic pride in a fun project. We think that spirit was reflected in the staging of the revue, and that was a big factor in its

China Continues Buying Wheat

WASHINGTON (AP) - China is continuing to buy U.S. grain in what Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says is a major effort to modernize its agriculture. A few hours after Bergland's remarks Friday about his recent 10-day visit to Peking and other areas, the Agriculture Department announced that China has bought an additional 400,000 metric tons

That raised to 1.9 million metric tons of corn plus 3.7 million metric tons of wheat the amount China has bought since re-entering the U.S. grain market this year after a four-year absence.

"I personally have no doubts there will be a noticeable expansion of agricultural trade between the two countries." Bergland told reporters.

We believe the Chinese are likely to become regular and significant purchasers of U.S. grains and cotton," Bergland Modernization of the livestock sector appears to be one of China's top agricultural priorities, Bergland said. To accomplish that, China will need to import animal feed "from us or others if their modernization plan succeeds." China and the United States have set the groundwork for exchanging scientific experts regarding agricultural matters, Bergland said it is difficult to assess what impact China's program for modernization will have on U.S. trade.

"The Chinese are exploring the world today." he said. "They're shopping for a long list of things. They need to modernize their agriculture, their industry and their sciences."

Bergland was asked why he was so interested in selling more farm products to China at a time when Americans are faced with further food price increases

"We have more than adequate stocks on hand in the United States ... to meet any demand that may develop, whether it be China or in any other place," Bergland running out of these commodities in the next 12 months."

Bergland said the Chinese asked about this country's long-term agreement requiring the Soviet Union to buy a minimum amount of U.S. grain each

The Chinese, he said, were "curious about what is meant" and also about international commodity agreements in general.

Also, Bergland said, Chinese officials inquired about recent legislation thatwould enable China to get U.S credit to buy American farm commodities.

But they only "inquired as to how the program would work" and did not actually ask to get the credit, he said.

The total is $16,600 more than last year's goal. The higher goal this year was set due to United Way directors combining various agency fund-raising drives into the single United Way

Ex-Frito Executive

BY PAUL SIMS Managing Editor

A cross action lawsuit seeking $10 million in damages has been filed by Grain Handling Corporation against a former Frito-Lay executive, a ranching operation and four other persons who allegedly dealt fraudulently and misrepresented themselves in dealings with the Panhandle-based company.

The action follows an $18 million lawsuit filed by Frito-Lay against Grain Handling, GHC president Garland DePrang of Olton and vice-president Wister Clevenger and three other men, and a $45 million countersuit filed by Grain Handling against Frito-Lay.

The Frito-Lay suit alleges that the GHC officials, former Frito-Lay commodity purchasing agent and two other men participated in a kickback conspiracy against the Dallas-based snack food

Grain Handling's countersuit alleges breach of contract. The cross action suit charges James Stafford, who was Frito's commodity purchasing agent, four others with fraud and misappropriation of funds in dealings with Grain Handling.

In reference to the recent court actions, DePrang stated: "Frito-Lay has never been cheated one grain of corn nor been overcharged one cent in its business with Grain Handling, nor have they made such a charge. We have tried to give the best quality corn possible and they will readily admit we have rendered excellent service and quality of our corn has been great.

"I feel that everyone has prospered from our business with Frito-Lay from the farmer to Frito-Lay."

DePrang, concerning the breach-ofcontract allegations of Grain Handling, said that all corn purchasers relating to the Frito-Lay contract are being full performed and business is carrying on normally. He stated that the corn is being delivered by farmers in a timely fashion and payments are still being made by Frito-Lay to Grain Handling to the corn

DePrang's countersuit claims Grain Handling has valid contract with Frito-Lay for purchase, storage and cleaning of a certain amount of corn. That suit charges Frito-Lay with trying to drive Grain Handling out of business, so that Frito-Lay can take sole control of the business for its own use.

Brezhnev: Soviets Never Produced Warhead

MOSCOW (AP) - President Leonid I. Brezhnev, mixing tough talk with appeals for improved ties with the United States. has told visiting U.S. senators his nation once tested a neutron bomb but never started production of it.

Brezhnev's remark on the bomb in a hour-long Kremlin meeting Friday with a dozen U.S. lawnmakers was the first disclosure that Russia had actually tested the neutron bomb - a weapon designed to knock out targets with massive bursts of radiation rather than explosive force.

The 71-year-old Soviet chief has said previously his nation had the technology to build a neutron warhead, but had appealed to Washington for a mutual stand against the weapon, described in a Soviet press campaign as "vicious and monologue in shorthand and the senators later vouched for its accuracy. Brezhnev had warned in an interview last December the Soviet Union would produce its own stockpile of neutron bombs if the United States went ahead with its plans to build the weapon. Last spring. President Carter delayed production but later approved the manufacture and stockpiling of its component parts.

The Pentagon's version of the neutron weapn was designed to counter the threat of a massive Soviet-led armored thrust across Central Western Europe in the event of an East-West war in Europe.

U.S.-tested neutron warheads, designed to be mounted on missiles or fired by cannon, produce twice the deadly radiation of conventional atomic bombs but less than a 10th the explosive power. Thus a salvo of neutron bombs could halt a tank attack by killing the crews without devasting the terrain. "We do not want to unlease a nuclear war because we are not crazy." Brezhnev told the senators. "Carrer and I both have a couple of dozen minutes when satellites will tell us missiles are coming. We will never be the first to let such weapons fly. But I will still have time to respond. There will be no more United States, but we will still get it in the neck." He offered a blueprint for improving U.S.-Soviet ties "on the basis of equality, non-interference in each other's affairs and mutual benefit." Brezhnev also offered to meet Carter at any time and place, but suggested such a summit should be held "when we have a basis, a new strategic arms limitation agreement we could sign." He confirmed U.S. assessments that a new SALT treaty was 95 percent ready and endorsed Carter's statement this week that there has been a lessening of tensions with the Soviet Union. The Russian leader also criticized "those in the United States opposed to good relations with Moscow," and said,

Kissinger Blasts Soviet Plane Sales

LUBBOCK (AP) - The Soviet Union is "encouraging" Cuban agression in Africa by selling MiG-23 jet fighter planes to Cuba, former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Friday night.

Speaking at a chamber of commerce banquet. Kissinger said the recent arms sale is a subterfuge to allow Cuba to use their existing MiG-21 fleet in Africa.

"It cannot be accepted by the United States over an indefinite period that the Soviet Union uses Cuba as a sort of surrogate force. putting its troops into Cuba and freezing the Cuban troops to go around the world," he said, adding "We cannot accept the proposition that Soviet forces replace Cuban forces so Cuban forces can destabilize whole continents and threaten vast regions."

The MiG-23 sale also concerned the former secretary of state, he said. because the planes are capable of carrying nuclear weapons.

"It has not been confirmed that these the Soviet planes in Cuba have this capability, but if they do they would have a range comparable to the missiles in Cuba in 1962 that led to the initial crisis between the U.S. and Cuba," Kissinger

Vars said, however, that supporters of the shah staged demonstrations in favor of the monarch in 11 other cities to coincide with Iran's armed forces day.

The shah remained inside his palace in Tehran Friday, foregoing the traditional review of military might. Informed sources suggested his absence was to avoid provoking further riots and becoming a target for assassins.

At least 1,100 persons have been killed since January in violence spearheaded by activists seeking political reforms in the shah's 37-year rule and Moslem traditionalists who view his Westernizing reforms as contrary to the Koran, the Moslem holy book.

The shah declared martial law in much of the country Sept. 8 and appointed a government headed by a man with close ties to the dominant Shiite Moslem community in an effort to stem the turmoil, but the government collapsed Nov. 5 in the face of renewed rioting.

Two doctors testified Friday the "mask" would have killed Bertha Brown within 10 minutes, had nurses at Johnson County Memorial Hospital not walked into the room, noticed it and pulled it loose.

Dr. Milton Rains, 51, denied he was trying to kill her. He said he moistened some tissue paper to soothe his mother's chapped lips and put tape on it to hold it in place as he kept vigil in her room.

Two pathologists, called by the defense, had testified Thursday that he taped tissue could not have suffocated anyone because it was too small to cover the mouth and nose and had ample space for air to get in.

Prosecutors and defense attorneys will give their final arguments Monday.

senatorial nominee Bob Krueger have asked for a recount of the votes in 39 counties. Hill said he doesn't anticipate any substantial changes in the results of his race.

The attorney general denied that the Texas Democratic Party is in disarray after the re-election of Republican Sen. John Tower over Krueger and the election of the first Republican governor in a century.

"The party is hale and hearty." Hill said, conceding that much work remains to be done by the Democrats in such areas as fund raising, voter registration and getting out the vote.

Hill said he feels his forces, led by new State Chairman Billy Goldberg, will continue to control the party by virtue of Hill's convincing primary victory over Gov. Dolph Briscoe. Hill said that he'll continue to take an active part in the affairs of the party.

Hill was in San Antonio to address a district convention of the Texas State Feachers Association, his largest single pool of support during the election.

Hill was listed in the hundreds of convention programs as the "governorelect." Someone had scratched through that designation in each of the programs before Hill's address.

In analyzing his unexpected loss, Hill said it was caused by the combination of the unprecedented $6.4 million campaign expenditures by Clements, the voters' displeasure with President Carter and Briscoe supporters voting for Clements.

Hill said he hadn't exchanged a word with Briscoe since the May 1 primary, although he tried to contact the governor.

Houston is ranked 12 nationally with $7,617, and second in the state. The Dallas-Fort Worth area is third in the state and 36th in the nation with $7,096. The next five metropolitan areas in Texas, in order of per capita income, are Galveston-Texas City. Amarillo, Wichita Falls, Beaumont-Port Arthur-Orange and Odessa.

The Brownsville-Harlingen-San Benito, Laredo and McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg areas rank last among Texas metropolitan areas and also have the lowest levels of all metropolitan areas in the nation, according to the bureau. The per capita figures for the three were $3,825, $3,575, and $3,338, in that order.

When per capita income is figured by county, the most prosperous part of Texas includes some of the state's largest counties with the least population, the report said. Loving County with less than 200 residents, came out with an average income of $15,710 for 1976. Kenedy County, home of the King Ranch, ranked second with per capita income of

Monterey Tops Herd in Season Finale

By BOB NIGH Of The Brand Staff

The Monterey Plainsmen took advantage of two crucial Hereford miscues early in the contest Friday night, and went on to hand the Herd a 22-13 District 4-4A football setback in the season-ender for both teams. The defending loop champion Plainsmen put 10 points on the scoreboard following a HHS fumble and a high snap on a punt, which was recovered by Herd kicker Jackie Mercer, but gave the Plainsmen the ball on the Whiteface 30 early in the second period.

After those two errors cost the Herd 10 points, offsetting an electrifying 75-yard touchdown run by Paul Bell in the initial half, Monterey used a reserve running back to the tune of 67 yards and two scores in the second half to secure their third win of the year against six losses and one tie.

Bell's 75 yarder for six as the opening stanza ended put him on the track toward his second straight 1,000-yard plus season. The speedy HHS tailback needed 215 markers in his final high school game to reach the minutes remained.

Bell managed 164 yards totally unofficially, 42 in the second half, but that was far under the 122 he had gained through the first 24 minutes of play. His 164 Friday gave him 959 yards in eight games this season. He actually lost his bid for the 1,000 early in the year, missing the first two HHS games due to a knee injury.

While the Plainsmen were concentrating on stopping Bell in the second half, they unleashed reserve back Jorge Garza in that same span: The 150-pound MHS senior added 12 points to the Monterey total with touchdown runs of five and 18 yards, and kept the Herd defenders off balance with most of his yardage coming on the draw play.

Garza wound up with 46 points on the draw play, with his 18-yard score also on that call. Meanwhile, the 'Faces were unable to get past their own 43 in the second half until just two

RoseOffered $1.2 Million

CINCINNATI (AP) - The Cincinnati Reds, in a last-ditch effort to keep Pete Rose, are prepared to offer the free agent third baseman a counter offer.

Rose, who will meet with Reds President Dick Wagner in Cincinnati on Wednesday, will be offered a reported $1.2 million, according to The Cincinnati Enquirer.

Wagner was flying back from the Reds tour of Japan early to meet with agents for pitcher Tommy John. John went to the veterans re-entry draft following a salary dispute with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The reported offer by Wagner would be the largest contract offered a player by the Cincinnati Reds.

Although comparable, it is less than the reported offer made to Rose by the Philadelphia Phillies. The Phillies were said to have offered Rose $600,000 a year for three years. There also was speculation that the Phils indicated employment for Rose after his career, possibly as manager, The Enquirer said.

Paul Owens, Philadelphia general manager, has gone deer hunting for the weekend. Reuven Katz, Rose's attorney and adviser, is on vacation in

"We don't expect anything to 33.5 happen until Rose gets back," Owens said before departing.

At that point MHS held a 22-7 lead, and were stopped on downs at the Herd 16. A 15-yard draw play to Bell, with a face mask penalty tacked on, moved the ball to the 46, and Mercer picked up an additional eight markers on a bootleg.

Robert Lee Graves got open across the middle on the next play, and Mercer hit him for a 26-yard gain to the MHS 22. A two-yard loss was followed by an apparent interception by Monterey, but an offside penalty gave the ball back to the Whitefaces at the Plainsmen 19.

Bell gained 17 of those last 19 vards on two dives through the line, and then hit Graves for the six points on a halfback pass. The score came with just 15 ticks left on the Whiteface Field clock, and a Bell run for two was smothered by the Plainsmen for the final count.

Bell was by far the game's leading rusher with his 164 yards. The loop's defending 100-yard champ averaged 118.6 yards per contest this year, including just 42 yards against Borger in his first, but the Herd's third, game of the

Housing Bubble

A lot of people have no doubt been wondering if the recent explosion in home prices is a cause for concern. In our view, it is.

It is but one more sign, along with the collapse of the dollar and the rising price of gold, that U.S. money and credit policies have been too liberal. And it faces U.S. economic policy makers with a ticklish task of deflating the credit boom without exposing recent home buyers and their lenders to serious

The home price run-up has far exceeded the rate of inflation. In July this year, the Consumer Price Index for homeownership was 16 percent above the index for all items, whereas five years earlier it was only 11 percent higher. In suburban San Francisco, Los Angeles, New York, Boston and Washington, D.C., a modest home that cost $50,000 five years ago now can exceed $100,000. Nationwide, the average price of a new house has climbed 75 percent in five years, to $61,500 from $35,100.

To many homeowners, the capital gains represented by these increases may look like something of a bonanza. That feeling, however, has contributed to a speculative psychology that could have unpleasant consequences if the bubble should burst. Some home buyers, and their banks, might find themselves with mortgages that exceed the value of their homes - mortgages they are strapped to support even in prosperous times, let alone recession.

Evidences of overextension can be found in a report last week from the United Sates League of Savings Associations, which said that some six million families that bought homes in 1977 stretched their incomes beyond traditional safe standards. The old rule of thumb about committing 25 percent of family income to housing is being exceeded by two out of every five home buyers. Of first-time home buyers, 29 percent made down payments of 10

Many bankers think the risks represented by these figures are justified by circumstances. Many home buyers today are two-earner families with no children and relatively light expenses beyond a house and

Nonetheless, there can be little doubt that the home price takeoff has been fueled by a credit boom. Mortgage credit outstanding has soared 18 percent the last two years, double the rate of the preceding two years. Mortgage debt has been rising sharply as a percentage of disposable income.

Moreover, as Townsend-Greenspan notes, a large proportion of the capital gains generated by rising home prices has been translated into cash through borrowing against the increased equity in homes. Of the record $70 billion (annual rate) increase in the market value of existing homes in the third quarter, virtually the entire amount was monetized as mortgage debt extensions. This means, of course, that the brighter side of the home price explosion, an expansion of homeowner equities, is more evident than real. The credit boom, created by easy-money policies of the Federal Reserve Board, prodded by the Carter administration and Congress, puts the country in a prickly dilemma. If the Fed doesn't tighten money, inflation will continue to rage, and could eventually go out of control. If it does cut back - or at least if it cuts back too sharply - it risks cutting off the flow of funds into housing, perhaps pricking a speculative home price bubble. The difficulty of this dilemma was reflected on these pages recently in our exchange with Robert H. McKinney, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. Our view was, and is, that the Fed must start bringing the money and credit boom under control. Mr. McKinney is concerned about the consequences if it moves too fast. So are we, but the move need not be abrupt. Things may not yet be so serious that a gradual tightening of money and credit would bring a collapse in housing prices. A moderation of prices would have genuine benefits, not the least of them a lessening of property tax revolt pressures and an easing of speculative fervor.

If the Fed continues to feed the credit boom, it will only mean that general inflation will grow worse and the housing bubble will get bigger. The damage when it eventually bursts will be greater. In our view, this leaves little choice. There's cause for concern now but nothing like the cause that will exist if the present trend continues.

Editor's note: The Bootleg

Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm thinks he has gleaned a startling fact from the recent elections.

Dear Editor:

It may not have soaked in yet but one startling result of the recent elections may have been the destruction of a campaign tactic politicians have been using and getting elected with for hundreds of years.

It's the discovery of the revolutionary fact the handas politicians figured.

In the U.S. Senate race in Texas, Sen. John Tower got mad at his opponent, Cong. Bob Kruegar, for what he considered dirty politics and refused to shake hands with him in the middle of the race.

A picture of Kruegar sticking out his hand and Tower refusing to shake it went out all over the suers win, but there are always" nation, newspapers figuring they knew a sensational story when they saw it. If they had a picture of the end of the world they'd punish it, wouldn't they?

Reaction was immediate. A politician avoiding a handshake is un-heard of in the annals of representative government. It is unthinkable. Followed up, it would leave thousands of office-seekers simply platformless, except for the kissing of a baby here and there and showing up at funerals. Leave stones un-turned and issues ignored, but to leave a hand un-shaken is fatal. The situation was so grave Sen. Tower spent thousands of dollars explaining why he had shake may not be as important, left that hand dangling. Big city editors speculated it would be his un-doing. It was as though a blow had been struck at the foundations of democracy. Heads were shaking in the inner councils of political experts.

Well, Sen. Tower was re-elected.

Does this mean that from now on politicians will have to run on something else besides their extended right hands? 🐠 Let's hope so. In fact, let's shake hands on it.

WASHINGTON -- Like Dr. Frankenstein's monster, yet another environmental program created with good intentions threatens to get out of control and cause a lot of harm.

The program is the identification and designation of certain public lands as "wilderness areas," which will thereafter remain closed to virtually all human activities. It is known as RARE II, for Roadless Area Review and Evaluation, phase

The Wilderness Act of 1964 was passed to direct federal land managing agencies to set aside certain lands as areas "where the earth and its community of life are untrammeled by man, where man himself is a visitor who does not remain." As of April 1, 1978, there were 175 areas classified as "wilderness," totaling more than 16.6 million acres. Another nine million acres are awaiting congressional designation as wilderness.

If this "wildernessification" stopped there, the economic impact would be limited. But in the last Congress, the House passed and the Senate was considering legislation adding 6 considering legislation adding 66 millionacres of Alaska to the National Wilderness Preservation System. The Forest Service has identified 62 million acres for possible inclusion in the system and the Bureau of Land Management -- which was not even covered by the original Wilderness Act -- is studying its areas. An estimated 120 million acres of BLM land meet basic wilderness area requirements.

By way of background, it's important to know that the Federal Government owns about one-third of America's land, and that from this land comes much of our timber, natural gas, petroleum, and other minerals. The land is also used for recreational purposes, grazing and as a source of water for irrigation. If too much of this land is withdrawn from its traditional "multiple use" designation, thenthere will be shortages of many valuable commodities. And shortages mean higher prices.

Here's a rundown on what's at stake if the monster breaks out of the laboratory:

of productive timberland in the country. The Frest Service manages 18 percent. The nation harvests 66.2 billion board feet of timber per year. In 1977, almost 10.5 billion board feet came from the National Forests.

RARE II areas contain 26.5 million acres of commercial land with the ability to produce an annual programmed harvest of 3.075 billion board feet (nearly ,25 percent of the National Forest System total) and a long-term potential yield of 5.956 billion board feet of sawtimber and wood products. Under the worst case assumption (if all 62 million acres were designated as wilderness), there would be a loss in programmed output of nearly three billion board feet annually.

-The National Forests and National Grasslands supply 103 million acres, or almost 4 percent of the country's publicly owned rangeland. The inventoried roadless areas contribute over 20 percent of the total grazing use of National Forest System lands. Grazing is allowed in wilderness areas. But fewer range-management improvements are permitted in roadless areas recommended for wilderness designation, resulting in a reduction of the intensity of the grazing that may continue. Worst case: A 30 percent decrease in grazing.

--Of the inventoried 2,686 roadless areas, 137 have proven or producing mines for critical minerals, and 81 have proven or producing energy fields of oil. natural gas, coal or uranium. There are also 461 roadless areas with a high potential for critical minerals and 398 acres with a high potential for oil, natural gas, coal or uranium.

--Recommendation of roadless areas for wilderness status virtually precludes the chance (short of Presidential order) for intensive development of domestic water supplies, irrigation water sources, and hydroelectric energy sources.

-- A wilderness area may be designated as a Class I area under the Clean Air Act. Such action could mean that large land areas around a wilderness area would be precluded from development to protect the wilderness area from air pollution.

DALLAS (AP) - Cotton Bowl officials announced Saturday 10th-ranked Notre Dame has accepted an invitation to play the Southwest Conference football champion in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day. The host spot has been all but clinched by No. 6 Houston, which needs to win only one of its two remaining games aginst Texas Christian and Texas Tech to win the bowl berth and atleast a share of the SWC crown.

"Notre Dame was offered the invitation and they accepted," said John Thompson, president of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association.

Notre Dame, 8-2, has been on a winning streak since losing its first two games to Missouri, 3-0, and Michigan, 28-14.

Lions Sugar-Bound

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Top-ranked Penn State ended the suspense Saturday, accepting a bid to the Sugar Bowl to face the Southeastern Conference champion.

The Nittany Lions, idle Saturday, announced their decision shortly after Orange Bowl-bound Nebraska, the nation's No. 2 team, was upset by Missouri 35-31.

Eight-ranked Georgia, meanwhile, threw the SEC race in a tangle by tying Auburn 22-22. The deadlock was accomplished on a 1-yard touchdown plunge by Willie McClendon with 5:18 left to play and an extra point placement by Rex Robinson as Bulldog Coach Vince Dooley disdained a 2-point conversion attempt which might have meant victory.

"I felt it was the right decision because I thought we had time to hold them and then get in position for Robinson to kick a field goal," said Dooley. The tie leaves the SEC title undecided until Dec. 2 when

Raiders Nudge Ponies

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) . Texas Tech turned two interceptions and a fumble recovery into an early 16-0 lead and then held off two furious scoring hids by Southern Methodist in the closing minutes to take a 19-16 Southwest Conference victory Saturday.

The Raiders' Bill Adams kicked field goals of 31, 53, 31 and 29 yards as Texas Tech took its fifth straight victory and raised its record to 6-3 for the year and 4-2 in SWC play. SMU fell to 4-5-1 and 3-4.

Phil Weatherall scored Tech's only touchdown with a one-yard plunge in the fourth quarter, but fullback James Hadnot again powered the Tech offense, gathing 160 yards in 31 carries. to set a Tech record for a Mustang quarterback Mike Ford, who was intercepted five times, directed SMU to two touchdowns in the second quarter to cut the lead to 16-14 at the half.

He hit Gary Smith on a 12-yard scoring pass and Emanuel Tolbert on a four-yard touchdown toss. Tolbert's catch set a conference record of 11 TD receptions in one season.

Another interception set up Adams final field goal on the first play of the fourth quarter to put Tech ahead 19-14.

SMU recovered a fumble by Hadnot at the Tech seven with 5:52 to play, but SMU's Charles Lewis fumbled it right back to the Raiders on the very next play.

since 1929, let the conference Auburn, which got 250 yards and two touchdowns from Joe Cribbs, plays No. 3 Alabama, which was idle Saturday. If Alabama wins that game, the Crimson Tide draws the Sugar Bowl bid. If Auburn wins, Georgia gets the conference title and the Sugar Bowl invitation. Nebraska, hoping for a national championship showdown against Penn State, lost that chance when Missouri's James Wilder scored four touchdowns, the last one from 4 yards out with 3:42 remaining in the game.

The Cornhuskers loss came despite a school record 255 yards and two TDs by Rick Berns, who became the school's all-time rushing leader.

Unranked Missouri's playoff for that upset will be a trip to the Liberty Bowl to face No. 17 Louisiana State, which lost to Mississippi State 16-14.

Meanwhile, Oklahoma, which lost to Nebraska 17-14 last week and dropped to No. 4, walloped Oklahoma State 62-7 as Billy Sims exploded for 209 yards and four touchdowns. Then the Sooners accepted an invitation to the Orange Bowl for a rematch with Nebraska.

Southern California will be the host team in the Rose Bowl after defeating UCLA 17-10 Saturday to clinch the Pacific-10 championship.

The No. 5 Trojans won't know who they play in the Pasadena game until next Saturday when Michigan and Ohio State meet for the Big Ten championship. Purdue, ranked 15th and lead slip away Saturday, dropping a 24-6 decision to No. 7 Michigan as Rick Leach hurled two touchdown passes and Russell Davis rushed for 127 That left the Big Ten race in a three-way tie and, with Michigan State eliminated by its probation status, the trip to Pasadena will be decided in next week's game between the Wolverines and OSU. The Buckeyes beat Indiana 21-18 Saturday.

The loss to Michigan left Purdue at 7-2-1 and its consolation will be a trip to the Peach Bowl.

The Ohio State-Michigan loser will go to the Gator Bowl against No. 12 Clemson, which clinched its first Atlantic Coast Conference championship since 1967 with a 28-24 victory over No. 11 Maryland.

The Gator bid was made in the Clemson dressing room and Fuller was called on to accept. He did, saying, "I think we'll show up." Maryland heads for the Sun

Bowl against No. 9 Texas, which walloped Texas Christian 41-0. Notre Dame, ranked No. 10. will return to the Cotton Bowl, where the Irish won the national championship a year ago. The bid came after Notre Dame's 38-21 victory over No. 20 Georgia Tech as Vegas rushing for 255 yards. The Irish will play Houston, provided the Cougars, idle Saturday, win one of their last two games.

Ferguson set a school record by

Arkansas, ranked No. 13, got three touchdowns from quarterback Ron Calgani in a 26-7 victory over Texas A&M and then accepted an invitation to the Fiesta Bowl, where it will play UCLA. The Aggies. who scored the game's first TD, will go to the Hall of Fame Bowl against Iowa State, which held off a fourth-quarter Colorado rally for a 20-16 victory. Pittsburgh, ranked No. 18, clinched a Tangerine Bowl bid by downing Army 35-17. Safety Jeff Delaney touched off the victory, returning a recovered fumble 99 yards for a first quarter TD.

The Panthers will go against North Carolina State, which defeated Duke 24-10.

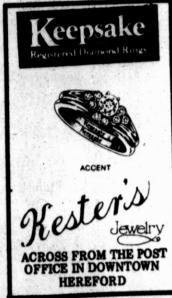

Rutgers won its ninth straight game, beating Holy Cross 31-21, and then accepted a bid as the host team in the Garden State Bowl.

Navy, beaten 38-6 by Florida State, accepted a bid to the Holiday Bowl where the Midshipmen will meet Brigham Young. BYU lost to Utah 23-22 Saturday.

BOVINA - Vega jumped out to a quick 14-0 lead then rolled over Bovina. 36-0, to capture the District 3-A football title Friday night here.

Vega. 8-2, finished 5-0 in district play. Bovina wound up 5-4-1 and 4-1.

Randall Galbreath scored for Vega on runs of six, five and one vards to lead the Mustangs, who gained 279 total yards holding Bovina to 75.

DALLAS (AP) - As if the New Orleans Saints needed any more adversity, they have to play the suddenly rejuvenated Dallas Cowboys at home Sunday--a team they've just beaten once in eight tries.

lt's a National Football League homecoming game of sorts for Saint Coach Dick Nolan, a former player-coach under Tom Landry before Nolan left for the top jobs at San Francisco and now New Orleans.

Nolan uses the Landry flex defense and the two coaches are good friends.

"I try to confuse him when I talk to him." jokes Landry. "I try to give him a lot of false keys."

Nolan couldn't have been any more confused than he was after Sunday's 20-17 loss to Atlanta in which the Falcons scored a last second touchdown on a batted

"That's the hardest way in the world to lose one," said Landry. Nolan said "It was one shot in

Hot Baltimore Meets Browns

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Remember the start of the National Football League season when the Baltimore Colts lost their first two games by whopping scores of 38-0 to Dallas and 42-0 to Miami? Well, forget it, because Baltimore certainly has.

Everybody was getting ready to throw a benefit for the sad sack Colts after those two early debacles and a 1-4 start. But the club has turned things around, winning three of its last four games including decisions over a couple of first place teams, Denver and Washington.

Ironically, Baltimore's opponents today, the Cleveland Browns started the season in the opposite direction from the Colts. The Browns won three straight before going into a tailspin that has left them staggering under the burden of six losses in the last eight games.

So the two clubs go into today's game with identical 5-6 records but Baltimore feels pretty good about its mark while Cleveland is kind of depressed about the same numbers.

Elsewhere today, Cincinnati plays at Pittsburgh, New England visits the New York Jets. Seattle goes to Kansas City, Atlanta is at Chicago, San Francisco hosts Los Angeles, Dallas is at home to New Orleans, Philadelphia visits the New York Giants, St. Louis is at Washington, Buffalo plays at Tampa Bay, Oakland is at home for Detroit, Green Bay plays at Denver and San Diego travels to Minnesota.

In the Monday night game, Miami plays at Houston.

The Colts got well in a hurry last week, beating Washington in the Monday night game and then coming back with short preparation to knock off Seattle, as well.

Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones, still favoring a bad shoulder, completed 12 of 17 passes for 128 yards. Ten of the completions were to running back Doug McCauley, accounting for 88 yards of Jones' air

Missouri Upsets Huskers

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) -Running back James Wilder scored four touchdowns to set a Missouri record and lead the Tigers to a 35-31 upset victory over second-ranked and Orange Bowl-bound Nebraska Saturday.

Wilder sealed the Huskers' fate, and dimed NU's hopes for a national championship, when he barged 4 yards to score with 3:42 remaining in the game to cap a 74-yard Tiger drive. The march was highlighted by a 33-yard pass from Phil Bradley to Kellen Winslow.

The Tiger triumph also took the lustre off the performance of Nebraska I-back Rick Berns. who scored two touchdowns and rushed for 255 yards, to become the University of Nebraska's all-time leading ground gainer. The 255 yards surpassed by 1 yard the single game rushing record set by I.M. Hipp against Indiana in 1977.

Back Scores 8 Touchdowns

By The Associated Press

Alice running back Arnold Serrata sailed for eight touchdowns and a two-point conversion Friday to tally 50 points in a game that likely left winless Robstown thankful he didn't kick field goals.

Serrata's performance paced Alice to a 66-0 thrashing of Robstown and shattered a 25-year-old modern Texas Schoolboy Record.

Kenneth Hall of Sugarland set the old record when he galloped for 49 points in 1953, a record later matched by Chris Weems of Idalou in 1964.

Serrata galloped 87 yards with the opening kickoff for his first score and added touchdowns on pass plays of 34, 36, 25 and 75 yards and on runs of 2. 4 and 4 yards. Four teams and confusion reign in district 30-2A in South Texas. And for Taft, Odem, Mathis and Refugio a season of hard work came down to a coin flip Saturday in Aransas Pass.

Odem had a one game lead going into Friday's action, but Taft upset the Owls 17-7.

Playoff pictures around the rest of the state clarified as only three teams ranked in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll lost Friday.

In other class 4A action. Houston Stratford, No. 3. out-scored Westchester, 41-22; San Antonio Churchill, No. 4, blanked San Antonio Lee, 27-0; and sixth-ranked Odessa Permian's remained undefeated in two years of regular season

John Tyler, No. 7, fought off an impassioned Tyler Lee squad, 14-6; Plano, No. 8, blanked Richardson Pearce. 16-0; Conroe, No. 9, pasted McCullough, 26-0; and Plainview secured its first playoff berth ever, clobbering Lubbock Coronado, 40-14.

In class 3A, Brownwood, No. 1. downed Marlin 28-14 in a zone playoff; Bay City, No. 3. thumped Wharton, 22-7; sixthranked Carthage shelled Jacksonville, 31-0; Belton, No. 8, crushed Leander, 64-0; Gainesville, No. 9, routed DeSoto, 31-7; and Gregory-Portland bombed west Oso, 51-12.

One-Day Surgery System Established

By KERRIE STEIERT Women's Editor

One-day surgery, a cost-conscious concept involving a brief hospital stay following certain types of surgery, has been implemented by Deaf Smith General Hospital.

According to hospital administrator Jim Bullard, one-day surgery is an organized service being newly offered to the community for individual convenience and thrift. "Many Hereford people have driven to Amarillo for one-day surgery in an effort to save time and money." Bullard related. "We are establishing one-day surgery here so that residents will have local access to such a organized system which has applies to patients undergoing evolved is just becoming a minor surgical procedures. The types of surgery which will permit a patient to return home on the same day are at the discretion of the attending physician. This encompasses dental surgery, also.

Although a doctor and patient may have previously agreed on one-day hospitalization for surgery, complications which arise during or after the procedure could cancel those plans. For the health and safety of the patient, one-day surgery agreements are tentative.

One-day surgery is a feasible option for minor operations, but another factor to consider is the employed. "After surgery, the patient must first recover from the anesthetic, rather than the actual procedure," according to Frank Bethune, local CRNA (Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetist).

After an individual is told by his physician that one-day surgery is possible and the date of surgery set, the patient is pre-admitted at the local hospital. Laboratory tests are conducted and the pre-surgery patient is interviewed by the CRNA who will administer anesthesia during surgery.

After spending the night before surgery at home, the patient reports to the hospital at approximately 6 a.m. and is prepared for surgery in a 'holding room." The patient is tended by a registered nurse who cares for one-day surgical patients exclusively.

Following surgery, the patient spends the necessary amount of time in a recovery room before being returned to the holding room. If no complications have arisen, the patient can, in all probability be released by his attending physician at some time that afternoon.

The First Lady of Candidness has done it again. Betty Ford has done for facelifts what the YWCA did for belly-dancing. She has giving it respectability.

But, as I was telling my friend, Mayva, the other day, 'What's so bad about wrinkles? My goodness, they're beautiful! They give you character and depth."

"I couldn't agree more," said Mayva. "Wrinkles are the jewels awarded survivors." 'That's beautiful, Mayva," I said, "but be fair! We're lucky. We haven't aged like our friends. I mean some of them look like an unpaved road." "Don't I know it," said Mayva. "Florence uses that cream to erase bags under her eyes. The other day she erased her entire face.'

"Oh Mayva," I laughed, wiping tears from my eyes, "I vouldn't believe we'd spend so many years together, you look so young. Sometimes, I forget about your neck." "What about my neck?" asked Mayva, sobering up.

"You've said yourself every time you look into a mirror it reminds you to defrost the chicken.

"I never said that! At least I don't have laugh lines that I can plant winter wheat in."

"I'm not laughing," I said evenly.
"I can never tell," she said cooly.

"Mayva, at least my whole body isn't suffering from erosion."

"EROSION! I never thought I'd hear that from a woman who wore ponytails until she was 35 just to pull back the extra skin around her face."

"I never did that!" I said defensively. "You tied your hair back so tight that every time you opened your mouth, your eyes blinked." "You always told me my face was interesting," I said.

"I said the same thing about the Pyramids." We sat in silence. Finally, I said, "Face it, Mayva, we've got a lot of fat that doesn't fit anymore." "I know," she said. "It seems like one morning I got up and during the night everything had fallen. I looked like someone slammed a door while I was baking.

"I'd consider taking a tuck here and there," I said. "I know, I'd like to look like anyone's sister just once before I go. Incidentally, what happened to 'wrinkles are beautiful and create character and depth? The jewels that are awarded survivors'?" "That's before we got them. Incidentally, I wonder what Betty Ford did with what she didn't want?"

Ann Landers Bible Reader Disagrees

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I disagree with "Bible Reader." He said Paul did not respect the teachings of Christ because He vetoed tithing and Paul reinstated it.

Christ did NOT veto tithing. When He said, "Take nothing for your journey . . ." (Luke 9:3, King James Version), He meant for the disciples to take ALONG WITH THEM when they went, but to expect the hospitality of those they preached to. Matthew 10:9-10 (Today's English Version), "Do not carry any gold, silver, or copper money in your pockets; do not carry a beggar's bag for the trip, Baptist Church, weigh-in at 6 or an extra shirt, or shoes, or a walking stick. A worker should Singles Night in Fellowship be given what he needs."

> Christ was in favor of tithing. but He knew that while it is important, it is not THE most important thing a Christian can do. He said to the Pharisees (religious leaders who were extremely concerned with how much money they could pile up and how pious they could be outwardly) in Matthew 28:23 (Living Bible) "... For you tithe down to the last mint leaf in your garden, but ignore the more important things -- justice, mercy and faith. Yes, tithe, but don't leave the more important things undone." -- Another

The Brand reminds the public that we CANNOT accept color pictures. This is particularly noteworthy to future brides. Engagement and wedding pictures MUST be black and white, only. This measure has been taken to insure good reproduction quality.

I think turkeys must have some strong lobbylsts in the Unwritten Law Department because it seems that whosoeyer shall slay a turkey in the name of Thanksgiving shall forever after (or at least until New Year's) be forced to gobble leftovers.

It's not that we don't like this venerable bird. Perish the thought. But a good thing can go only so far. One year, we began on a turkey when the NFL started their play-offs and we ate the last turkey sandwich that the ill-fated bird begot during the World Series. It was that same year that I developed a peculiar urge to peck a pilgrim to death with my beak.

But, with grocery bills equalling your monthly mortgage payment, one doesn't dare waste any of that gold-plated butterball, which must have been handfed caviar by a French chef to be so valuable. This year, after every scrap of meat has been devoured, I'm pondering the idea of putting a coat of paint on the bones and passing them off as Tinker Toys for the kids. "Waste not, want not" is what I keep reminding the little beggars, who are demanding Darth Vader dolls for Christmas. "The Force was not with your poor, impoverished aunt this year" can be my only excuse.

But, let's talk turkey. It's not that I envy those doomed avians, wo somehow reminded me of what Alfred Hitchcock would look like tarred and feathered. I hear that turkeys are so deprived of brain power that they can drown themselves in a rainstorm. Not exactly the actions of a mental giant.

Can you imagine growing up (and out) with full knowledge that you're going to be the main course for a bunch of people who are celebrating thankfulness? No one could blame a turkey forbeing a colossal ingrate.

Of course, it is possible that turkeys are not aware that they're going to be sitting on Mom's silver platter, stuffed with herbs and cornbread, come November. They may be under the impression that they are being pinched frequently, not for plumpness, but because their caretaker is just another lonely turkey farmer who wants a few cheap thrills out of life.

Having never known a turkey on a one-to-one basis (except after he was smothered in dressing) one must assume that they're an undaring, modest little bunch. After all, you never see them being chased by Marlin Parkins on Wild Kingdom or having a regal role in advertising a sleek sportscar. Alas, the life of a turkey is somewhat short of glamor.

The final insult is when it recently became popular to take their name in vain. These days, anyone who doesn't have proper affection for a Dolly Parton joke, or who scoffs at Proposition 13, or whose only hobby is defying grvity-these could all be classified as "jive turkeys.' Not a very kind reflection on the bird who will give his all for the sake of our palates come Thursday.

JUST FOR TODAY I will do something with my ideas. I will refuse to allow my ideas to stagnate or be unused. I shall put them into action at once. While they may not all be good I'll reap a joy in seeing some of them

Ocean Environment Discussed by Club

The Hereford Brand-Sunday, November 19, 1978--Page 5B

Mrs. H.E. Miller, Mrs. J.V. Pickens and Bess Werner were hostesses to Pioneer Study Club members Tuesday during a luncheon at K-Bob's Steak House. Tables were decorated with fall arrangements of chrysanthemums.

Mrs. William W. Wimberley. club president, conducted the routine business meeting. Mrs. C.L. Craig delivered the invocation.

For the program portion of the meeting, Mrs. Ted Panciera presented excerts from the book, "The Ocean Environment," edited by Jonathan Bartlett. Quoting from the chapter entitled "Farming the Ocean," Mrs. Panciera stated that the food resources found in the ocean are enormous. including animals and vegetation. Anything which man can do on the surface of land can now be done on the ocean floor. she added.

Mrs. Panciera pointed out that kelp, which is harvested from the ocean, is a valuable component in fertilizer, cattle feed, paint, beer and other products. The ocean is also a source of energy, providing thermo power (electricity and hydrogen) which can be stored for future use. Plus, the ocean's motion energy (tides and waves) is being harnessed.

GRANTS GIVEN NEW YORK (AP) - Peter Lawson-Johnston, president of the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation, says the National Endowment for the Arts has awarded the Guggenheim Museum a $1-million Challenge

Grant. The Guggenheim says it was awarded the money to "augment its endowment funds and to help meet increasing operating expenses, thus insuring the maintenance of its public programs."

To qualify for the NEA funds, the Guggenheim must raise at least three new dollars for each federal dollar over a three-year period ending Dec. 31, 1980.

The Guggenheim says it was also awarded a $150,000 grant by the Kresge Foundation to be used toward the renovation of its climate-control and security systems. It says the National Endowment for the Arts also has given it $100,000 toward this project.

Local Agriculturalists Blast Administration

Dump Carter: Rallying Cry for Farmers?

By JIM STEIERT

Brand Farm Editor The honeymoon is over, the stars have been jarred from a lot of eyes, and Jimmy Carter is in trouble out in the farmlands. Hailed as the "new hope for agriculture" just two years ago while he was still a Georgia peanut farmer aspiring to the Presidency, his actions since he ial election in Texas," he added. has attained that office have proven one of the greatest disappointments since the "Spruce Goose" and the $2 bill, to the men of the land in many portions of the nation's grain belt.

Last weekend, Carter added even more, momentum to his backslide in popularity in America's rural areas when he vetoed a crucial countercyclical beef import bill that would have given a boost to domestic livestock producers.

To add insult to injury, he refused to increase acreage set-asides on feedgrains, although crushing surpluses of corn and other grains are severely depressing the prices farmers receive for their crops.

Spokesmen for local commodity organizations and farmrelated groups minced no words this week in blasting the President's latest farm vetoes, and some served notice that Carter will get no help from them if he makes a bid for a second term as President.

Many even went so far as to blame the upset of Democratic gubernatorial can-didate John Hill by Republican Bill Clements on the President's lackluster farm and economic policies. "The man certainly isn't doing agriculture any favors," commented Carl King, president of the Texas Corn Growers Association, headquartered in Dimmitt. King is a prominent leader in the Democratic party in neighboring Castro County.

"Carter is misadvised on agriculture, and he is gonna' cost the consumers more money for their beef in the long run because cattlemen won't rebuild their herds when he's giving them no incentive to. And what costs the cattleman is in turn going to cost our corn producers, because less corn will be consumed," he claimed.

"What really worries me is Carter refused to raise the loan rate on our basic commodities. Carter is determined to keep the farmer on his knees financially. .. To keep him in hock to the government through FHA and SBA loans, and whatever other methods are available. The shame of it all is that even when prices are kept low at the farm level, food prices certainly aren't going to decrease;" said King.

Commenting on the possibility of an anti-Carter backlash, King added, "There is no

Republican gains are the backlash of reaction against the administration and its farm and energy programs. Carter has already served notice that he will not let the price of agriculture commodities rise more than five percent over the next four years. No doubt, it cost Democrats the gubernator-

Carter met a major rural foe in the American Agricultural Movement last year, and the state office of the AAM here in Hereford issued its own statement concerning the Carter actions of last weekend.

'The President has again demonstrated his ignorance of the cause of inflation by leaving the door open to more beef imports. He will further damage the balance of trade by allowing U.S. dollars to leave the country to buy imported beef. At the same time, his failure to increase set-aside acreages will cause prices of wheat and feedgrains to remain at a disastrously low level, when increased prices to foreign buyers of grain would help our balance of trade deficit. "The veto of the beef import bill will not encourage the rebuilding of cow. herds, and will further increase our dependence on foreign beef. Selling grain at a price below the cost of production either domestically or for export robs every farmer, and for that matter, every American, because this grain is one of our most vital natural resources," claimed the AAM statement. Jerome Friemel, a local farmer and active AAM supporter offered his own comments on Carter farm policies: "The President is confirming once again that he just isn't good for the nation, particularly its agriculture. I think his action on the beef import issue will get cattlemen more inclined to try to do something to correct the problem now."

He also opined that Carter policies cost Democrats the election in Texas.

"The country is really hungry for a strong leader....Not an Adolph Hitler, but someone capable of taking charge and getting us somewhere. We haven't had good leadership under this administration. Carter has repeatedly turned his back on the farmer," said

The local farmer pointed out he is already taking measures in preparation for the next Presidential election.

"I'm designing some political buttons for '80...They say Dump Carter," he quipped.

Bill Cleavinger, president of the Hereford-based Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers Association, is already Well versed in clashes with the administration over agriculture

Cleavinger and other sugar producer and refining industry representatives fought for a sugar bill in Washington for several months, only to see Carter level "dirty tricks" accusations at them and lobby for the defeat of a bill they felt was essential.

"We've already had enough experience to know that the President killed any workable form of the sugar bill this year. He has promised to write a sugar bill that is equitable to the industry during the next legislative session, and we hope to wonder where he's been the he will be as good as his. word...But that remains to be seen," said Cleavinger.

"I don't feel the President really understands the magnitude of the agriculture industry. Agriculture is the basic industry of the U.S. If we can't maintain it at an equitable level it will effect the economy, but the President can't or won't understand this. Somebody has to realize that agriculture is entitled to its fair share, just like everybody else in the economy, particularly when agriculture must carry the burden in attempting to balance our trade deficit," he continued.

Cleavinger is another local agriculturalist who sees no roses in the Carter political future.

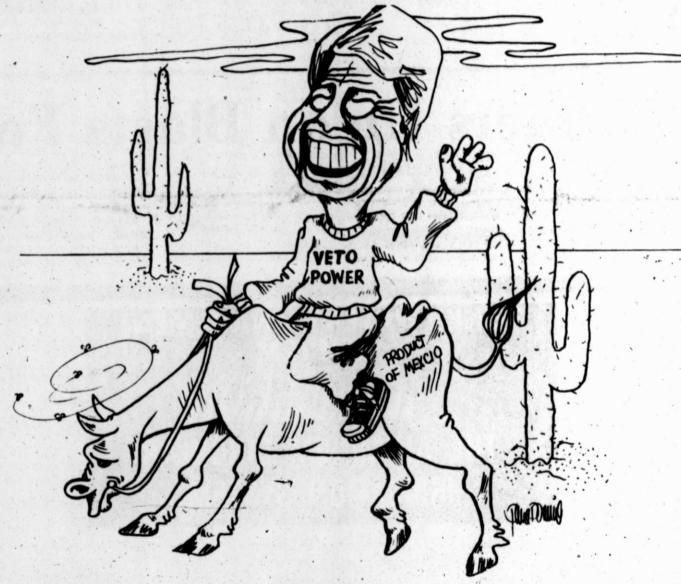

"The Texas gubernatorial race very definitely showed that people voted Republican protest Carter policies, particularly on agriculture. Right now, I would say that it would be awfully hard for agriculture to support a President for re-election with Carter's track record," Cleavinger stated.

It isn't just men levelling new criticism at the President for his agricultural policies.

Wilma Allred: Proving That Good WIFE is Equal To the Constant Challenges of Modern Agriculture

Brand Farm Editor

For a woman who didn't start out on the farm, Wilma Allred of the Wildorado community has done a lot of catching ud over the past 37 years. A vocal advocate of rural life, she has become recognized as a knowledgeable individual on issues concerning agriculture among much of the local farm

And her strong belief in the rural way of life, coupled with her gift of gab concerning farm issues made her a natural for election recently as the new president of the Deaf Smith County chapter of Women Involved in Farm Economics (WIFE).

Mrs. Allred came to the area, -- and to the farm, when she married Glenn Allred in 1941, and the couple set up housekeeping on the present family farm near Wildorado. The land was originally homesteaded by members of the Allred

"I hadn't lived on the farm before we got married, but I had always wanted to. and I always had a feeling that one day I would marry a farmer. I guess my love for horses and riding made me want to move to a farm as a kid, and I visited the farms of uncles and grandfathers a lot of times down in Hall County. I guess that's where I first got my love for the farm," she

If she had any misgivings about the rural way of life, they were put to the test early on in her relationship with farm

"I cooked for 16 harvest hands in a little line shack the first year I was married. There was a kerosene stove in one end of the shack and a bed in the other, and we had to feed the men in shifts. But I fell into the routine of farm life easily. It was worth the hard work for

Her love for horses turned into a rather serious hobby, and today, Mrs. Allred handles the paperwork and sale details on a herd of 36 quarterhorses.

She doesn't mention the horses much when you strike up a conversation with her, though. Hobbies are secondary to what she feels is the most pressing issue of today, -- the serious decline in conditions on America's farmlands, and the urgent need to correct what is wrong before it becomes more serious.

Mrs. Allred first became involved with the WIFE organization when the American Agriculture Movement surfaced in the area, slightly over a year ago.

"I discovered that WIFE had a lot of the same interests and goals of improving conditions in agriculture that the AAM had, but WIFE allowed women an opportunity to take a more active part in explaining the problems of agriculture today, and working toward their solution." she related.

She worked on various WIFE committees here during the past year, and was one of a horde of women who joined their farmer husbands in trips to Washington in January to protest farm conditions and lobby for an improved farm bill.

Now, with a survey of local restaurants serving domestic beef and a public service program on the controversial Trilateral Commission already under the local WIFE organization's belt, she hopes to steer the county WIFE chapter toward an even more active role of informing the public and working on behalf of favorable agriculture legislation

"The most important thing WIFE can_ do at this time is to impress upon people the fact that we are close to being sold down the river, and that we need to wake up and do what we can before we have another disaster like we had in 1929, and in the 30's. Even though we live in a democracy, we are close to becoming something else, and there are forces out to destroy the family farm and agriculture," she emphasized.

What is there about the family farm that makes her such a staunch defender of the way of life?

"The family farm is freedom of life. It's the fact that your kids grow up close to nature, learning about life just by living it, without having to be told. It's the closeness to the soil, and working with God. -- That's the rewarding thing to me. The kids grow up closer to God and to the work of His hands than I think they ever could in town," Mrs. Allred related.

She added that farm work also had its own rewards for her three adult children, Roddy, who farms with his father, Donita Newton, a school teacher here in Hereford, and Peggy Currie, a.registered nurse in Amarillo.

"We were fortunate in that we were never faced with the drug problems there are today while our kids were growing up. In fact, we didn't have many problems, and I think part of that is due to the fact that they were on the farm working," she continued.

The local WIFE president also opined, "Farm kids grow up with a little more of an attitude of independence and self-reliance."

Although farm women have aways played a major role in the success of the family farm, Mrs. Allred feels that the role of women in agriculture is even more

"Most farm wives drive a truck during harvest and chase parts. They'll get on a tractor and run it when they have to, because you can hardly find good help. That's all tradition. Tradition that I think will continue as long as husbands and wives are on the farm together. But now, it is so very crucial that the farm wife watch the finances and become an advocate for agriculture. I think farm women are beginning to fully realize now that we can do almost anything we're called on to do, and if that includes lobbying politicians, we should go at it whole-heartedly," Mrs. Allred stated.

The WIFE organization earned the respect of Congressional representatives last year when delegations of women visited Washington on behalf of favorable wheat legislation. The denim and checked garb of WIFE members is now widely recognized around the Capitol.

"Women have become more educated on agriculture, and they're taking a more active interest in politics now. The fact that we are accepted when we give testimony for agriculture is in our favor," she continued.

What's in the immediate future for the local WIFE chapter and its new president?

"I plan to go to Washington along with a lot of protesting farmers, come Janaury. I'll be functioning as a WIFE representative during part of my time there. We'll be playing it by ear a lot when we get to Washington. We'll stay there as long as we feel we're doing any good toward getting something accomplished for agriculture. When we get that taken care of, we'll have some executive meetings within the local WIFE chapter to plan some projects for later in 1979. We're going to work hard on educating the public," she added.

And with a country orator from Wildorado representing the Deaf Smith County WIFE chapter on their trail, a lot of Washington representatives will likely be getting a homespun education on agriculture, come January.

Under the feed grain program which was announced by the President, farmers are asked to voluntarily set-aside 20 percent of their feed grain acreage in order to be eligible for disaster and price support programs.

"The set-aside first of all is too small, and the dime increase in the target price is not enough to get the producer-participation in the program that we need."

"Farmers are not confident at the future of the cattle business and are not expanding their herds at a time when they could safely do so. As a result, consumers are looking at beef shortages and higher prices. President Carter's decision to veto the beef import bill will make the price roller coaster more erratic and punish both cattlemen and consumers.'

Naman said. "At a time when feed grain supplies are at historic highs and feed grain producer income is less than the cost of production, it is a national disgrace that the administration won't take the action necessary! in assisting farmers in balancing supply with demand. The state farm organization leader explained that President Carter had the opportunity to help both the wool and cotton growers by signing the bill that would give American textile manufacturers badly needed concessions, he chose to punish both U.S. producers of fiber and the textile industry with his

We've been hearing a nasty rumor for several years now that "Big Brother" is out to get the family farm, and to eventually make agriculture a corporate venture like most other factions in our

It might have been easy to brush off at first, but trying to live with the Carter administration for the past months has been pure hell if you're a farmer. ... And those big brother stories are sounding more realistic all the time.

Farm economists are now predicting that over the next few years, agriculture income will climb 50 percent, but that wealth is going to be shared by a lot fewer farmers as the trend toward emptying the farmlands continues.

Now, officials within the USDA are staunchly predicting that the heavy culling of cow herds that was brought on by the Carter administration is going to be stopped cold in 1979. The Carter administration, with its great liking for imported beef, has given no encouragement to cattlemen to build their herds up once again, and most of them I've talked to hereabouts aren't in any hurry to drop into Jimmy's bargain basement. And if they're going to keep culling cows, I don't know how USDA can say they're going to bring the cattle herd decline to a stop, even if Jimmy doesn't like what the cattlemen are doing.

For that very reason, you have to wonder if there isn't still another dirty trick, a betrayal or a sellout awaiting agriculture in the early months of 1979.

Our old smiling "friend" may be thinking of eating even more Mexican beef next year. TURN

Last weekend we observed Veteran's Day, and though we weren't writing about it at the time, it didn't go unthought of.

A raging worldwide war went on a few years before I was ever born, and yet, I am still in awe of it, -- and of the men who served their country in the face of what must have seemed hopeless odds.

There were no questions asked when hundreds of thousands of farm boys were called to take up a rifle and fight to save the land they loved.

My Dad, my uncles, and many of those I have worked with have spoken often of the cold fear that a man had to measure up to in a time when there was no alternative but fighting with all you had for what was right, and for what a nation held dearest.

Farm boys and city boys, from all walks of life, were thrown together in far-flung conflicts in the steaming jungles of the South Pacific, across the vast continent of Europe, and on all the seas in between, pitted against forces bent on taking over

They fought in places they had never heard of before, and would never forget when it was over. Places like Leyte and Truk, Tacloban and Mindinao, the bloody island chains that burned the names Eniwetok, Saipan, Tarawa, Kwajalein Okinawa and untold others into history.

They were men who met the task at Casablanca and Kasserine Pass, on the storm-washed beaches of Normandy, and the shell-pocked landing zones at Anzio, who took the treacherous hedgerows of France and endured the bitter cold and the German steel at Bastogne.

They flew five miles up, cold and scared, taking the war to the warmakers in great waves of Fortresses and Liberators. They flew through the horrors of Schweinfurt and Ploesti, and left a trail of their own burning planes and the aircrews that . were their comrades all the way to Berlin, -- and on the other side of the world, to Tokyo. These men endured the cold of the North Atlantic convoys, the long watches for slinking wolf packs of U-boats, the watchful hiding of the submariners along the Japanese coast, and the cold terror of fighting for their lives and their ships against a kamikaze foe determined to lose his.

Around them, they saw their comrades fall in a hundred different places, giving their lives on a foreign soil, that the place they knew as home would remain free.

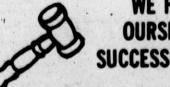

And at long last, when the years of God-awful fear and killing were at an end, the lucky ones came back home with a love for live far greater than men had probably ever known before, and a loyalty to their country that is still unsurpassed.

I sit now and listen to Dad talk of another time in his life that long went unspoken of, of the things a man did when his country and his life were both on the line, and his being was more expendable than his country....And I wonder, would I have been equal to the test, were it me?

I guess last Saturday was a reminder that we owe these men a great debt of gratitude, in that they saved future generations the ultimate trial of world-wide war.

Perhaps our nation has stumbled somewhat since these men won their great victory, and the bitter taste of defeat in the Vietnam era seemed to sour a lot of us on veterans and "war heroes," and our country in general.

No, things aren't all roses today in this nation...But where would we be now, were it not for the sacrifices of all our veterans.

Brown to Receive National Doane Award for Ag Service

AUSTIN-A career of dedication and service to Texas agriculture has earned Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown the D. Howard Doane Award for 1978, it has been announced.

The award is presented each year by the American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers to an individual who is judged to have made exceptional contributions in the field of agriculture. Brown will officially receive the honor during ceremonies Dec. 4 in New Orleans, La.

Past recipients of the Doane Award include many of the nation's leading agricultural educators. writers and government officials.

Among the many factors considered in selecting Brown for this year's award was his sustained interest not only in Texas agriculture, but in upgrading the quality of life in rural communities,

As the leader of the Texas

Community Improvement Program, Brown helped over 750 rural Texas communities install water systems, worked to upgrade 1,000 small towns and was a major factor in revitalizing more than 800 rural churches. The Chamber of Commerce Managers of Texas recently adopted a resolution noting the fact that Commissioner Brown has addressed over 5,000 community building meetings during his career.

Sub-Par Moisture Opens Great Plains to Blowing

WASHINGTON (AP) - Drought areas persist in parts of the country but the Corn Belt has enough soil moisture to warrant predictions that crops there can get off to a fast start next spring, according to two government weather analysts.

Dry weather has stunted winter wheat growth in the Plains and raises the possibility of widespread dust storms and wind erosion damage to land, they said.

The analysts, R.E. Felch and J.L. Lambert, made their report at the Agriculture Department's annual outlook conference.

They said the Soviet Union, which harvested a record grain crop this year, has a favorable soil moisture reserve and could produce another good harvest in

TSCRA Says Veto Means Costlier Beef

FORT WORTH - President Carter's "pocket veto" of the Meat Import Act of 1978 last weekend virtually assures higher beef prices for American consumers for several years, says John B. Armstrong, president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, representing 14, 000 cow/calf producers in Texas and surrounding states.

"Retail beef prices will remain high for years to come," Armstrong said, "because farmers and ranchers have very little incentive to rebuild their herds and their confidence in the government has been taken severely by the President's action.'

Current domestic cattle numbers are down because producers have been forced to sell off their herds in recent years as the cattle industry went through a financial bloodbath.

"This legislation would have given cattlemen and consumers much-needed market stability. It was, in fact, anti-inflationary," Armstrong said.

"I am personally shocked that the President can ask us, as American citizens, to voluntarily comply with his new anti-inflation program when he exempts himself. The President's handl-

They said that, "with normal rainfall patterns," soil moisture in the Corn Belt "will be near capacity at the beginning of the growing season" next year.

In the Soviet Union, farmers for the second year in a row planted winter wheat this fall under favorable soil-moisture conditions, the report said.

As usual in the Soviet Union. the wheat will be subject to winterkill from cold weather in the coming months.

Cattle Still Arriving; Sorghum Harvest Almost Over

COLLEGE STATION. Texas (AP) - Harvest operations have slowed down considerably across the state due torecent rains the past week. But the rains also brought needed moisture, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The sorghum harvest is about complete in the High and Rolling Plains and Far West Texas, and cotton harvesting is just getting into full swing, said Pfannstiel. Some harvesting has also begun in the Rolling Plains and West Central Texas, he said, but most farmers there are awaiting a killing frost before gathering their crop.

Harvesting is about complete over the remainder of the state except for a few peanuts. soybeans and pecans. Peanut harvesting continues in parts of the Rolling Plains and Central and East Texas while soybeans are still being harvested in Northeast and Southeast Texas and the Coastal Bend. Yields and quality of both crops are varying widely, but generally production is down, Pfannstiel

Small grain, ranges and pastures continue to suffer from lack of moisture over a big portion of the state, resulting in poor grazing conditions for livestock, noted Pfannstiel. This has brought on an increase in supplemental feeding and has kept cattle moving to market at a steady pace.

Ranchers over the state are ready for the invasion of deer hunters with the season at hand. Reports from district Extension agents showed the following conditions.

PANHANDLE: Sorghum is almost in, but cotton farmers are awaiting frost before harvesting. Wheat looks good but needs moisture. Cattle continue to move into the area to graze wheat and crop stubble.

SOUTH PLAINS: The grain harvest is complete, but most of the cotton crop is still in the field and harvesting has been halted by rain. Sugar beets are about half in. Wheat is doing well and ranges are in good condition.

fed due to poor grazing. NORTHEAST: Rains will help small grains and fall grazing, but more is needed. Some wheat and oats are dying due to dryness. Harvests are complete except for a few soybeans and pecans with poor yields. Some cattle feeding is under way.

FAR WEST: Open weather is needed for the cotton harvest. Good moisture has allowed small grains to make excellent growth and boosted range forages. Livestock are in good to excellent shape, with calves showing good weights. A buildup in the coyote population is causing increased predator control efforts. The report was made to the annual outlook conference at the department by Larry A. Walker of the Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service.

"For example," he said, "the Swiss, who with the same number of francs that would have allowed him to pay $1,000 per acre last year, could offer $1,488 per acre a year later."

Even a British investor would have gained $117-per-acre bidding advantage for U.S. farmland during the year, Walker said.

"In conlusion, the devaluation of the dollar has provided many of the potential foreign buyers a significant bidding advantage," he said.

Water Supplies Figure Big in Future

Water supplies in the future will increasingly determine industry, population growth and types of agriculture in Texas.

In the past, Texas citizens were usually able to live wherever they chose without undue concern for the availability of water. Where other resources were available, a water supply was also generally available close at hand.

But in recent years, ground water aquifers have supplied over two-thirds of the water used in Texas. Rural inhabitants, irrigators, municipalities, and industry have generally turned to this source because of its widespread availability and the relatively low costs of developing and pumping.

By contrast, in many areas surface water supplies are either not available or the costs are prohibitively high for constructing facilities to store, treat, and distribute surface water.

The result is that more water is being removed in many areas of the state than is being replaced by natural recharge. In effect, the resource is being mined.

This is especially critical in areas where ground water constitutes the only source of suitable water supply. The continuing ground water overdraft is lowering the water tables, increasing pumping costs and affecting the physical characteristics of individual aquifers.

The situation for the High Plains is one of inevitable adjustment due to exhaustion of ground water. Recent increases in energy prices to pump water and low agricultural prices can be expected to accelerate adjustment in irrigated agriculture. Economic exhaustion of the water supply for attigation occurs before physical exhaustion and is sensitive to crop prices and costs of pumping.

The competition for ground water is certain to increase, according to Dr. Ron D. Lacewell and Dr. John McNeely, agricultural economists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Texas A&M University.

The value per acre-foot of water is more than $116 for urban residential uses, $603 in secondary oil recovery and $40 or less in irrigated agriculture.

The price agriculture can pay for water is relatively low. Cities, industries, and other water users can outbid agriculture for water as well as pay the increasing costs of pumping due to greater pump lift and higher energy

Under the law of the State of Texas, a landowner has the right to drill wells and appropriate , water, without regard to the effect upon other landowners. This right is an interest in real estate and may be exercised by the landowner or sold to others for use off the land.

The general opposition to control of individual water rights at any level, be it federal, state or local, effectively prevents the initiation of comprehensive management programs: The effects of water depletion are slow to manifest themselves, do not touch alk users equally. or simultaneously, and may delay concerted action until it is too late to provide an effective remedy. Lacewell

As municipalities, industries and environmental requirements continue to expand, water use will conflict with limited supplies. Texas has already reached the point where effective and efficient use of water is of vital importance. Continued population and industrial growth will accentuate these tendencies.

The necessity for implementing more efficient techniques and processes for water conservation was demonstrated by the dought in the West in 1976 and 1977. Substantial areas in Texas are subjected to limited supplies of ground water every year.

Lacewell reports that a research project to estimate adjustments due to a declining ground water supply on the Texas High Plains indicates total agricultural output will continue to increase to 1990 and then decline.

.Erom 1990 to 2010, net returns to agricultural producers in portions of the High Plains were estimated to decrease about 10 percent. Output of cotton, corn and wheat are fairly stable from 1990 to 2010 while grain sorghum output declines 17 percent.

Regional employment necessary to support the agricultural output was estimated to decrease 6 percent from 1990 to 2010. These figures do not include employment unrelated to agriculture, which will decrease 8

The sectors most affected include agricultural services, milling and feeds. chemicals, petroleum products and finance.

Population growth continues in Texas with greater urbanization and industrialization and increased demand for water. Significant adjustments in water use with emphasis on conservation can be expected.

Sheep Numbers Up in Feedlots

Texas drylot sheep feeders reported 89,000 head of sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter as of Oct. 1, an increase of 25 per cent over last year, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has noted.

"The 89,000 head represented an 11-per-cent rise over September, with placements during that month totaling 46,000 head," he stated.

Sheep and lambs marketed for slaughter during September numbered 37,000, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Genetic Engineering Could Improve Livestock

Bold new basic research in cattle could lead to genetic manipulations that would result in cattle with improved characteristics. One possibility would be to increase the amount of lean meat a beef animal produces.

Scientists at Texas A&M University have succeeded in causing two genetically different embryos to be carsame cow. The experiment was designed to test the idea advanced by an Experiment Station geneticist, Dr. Nat Kieffer, that doubled muscling in cattle, an undesirable characteristic, could be caused by gene-controlled biochemical products.

To further improve cattle characteristics, so we can better concentrate the desirable and eliminate or modify the undesirable.

The biological basis for the experiment is the fact that in cattle, fusion of the blood vessels of the fetal membrane between twin calves is almost a certainty. Blood twin calves.

PAL S 159 BRAZIL NUTS

The Freemartin condition is a classical example of one of the effects of blood mixing and demonstrated that biochemicals produced under gene control in the tissues of one twin can be carried in the shared blood to the tissues of the co-twin, where it can cause untypical growth born twin to a male, will be sterile. The testosterone (male hormone) of the developing male influences the female and she doesn't develop normal sexual organs.

Kieffer speculated that if two calves - one genetically double-muscled and the other normal-muscled - one calf might be affected by the product(s) of genes for muscle size of the co-twin.

If the muscle development of either calf, whether normal muscled or double muscled, is affected by blood mixing, this would indicate that muscle development is under control of a bloodproduct(s).

To test this idea, pairs of embryos were planted in recipient cows. One embryo of each pair was from homozygous (identical genes) double-muscled parents and the other embryo was from homozygous normal-muscled parents.

For the embryo transplant, Kieffer secured the mer, a nationally recognized expert, with the College of Veterinary Medicine and the Department of Animal Science at Texas A&M. Kraemer has successfully transplanted embryos (fertilized eggs) between baboons, horses, cattle, and other animals.

Doubled muscling is an undesirable but very distinctive genetic trait in cattle. It was chosen for the test because it is so easy to identify. In addition, in animal breeding, it only appears in offspring when both parents carry the gene.

Twin calves were born to cow 07 on 4-8-78. At birth, the calf with heredity for doubled muscling showed some symptoms of doubled muscling such as thick tongue, inability to nurse, and general dullness.

However, the classical symptoms of doubled muscling, enlarged muscles. were not obvious at birth. Now, at three months of age, the characteristic enlargement of the muscles of the rear quarters is apparent but less than usual.

The normal-muscled twin calf appears to have greater muscle thickness than is expected of a Hereford-Angus cross.

Since there are no objective tests for absolutely identifying an animal as being heterozygous (mixed) for doubled muscling, Kieffer says they cannot be sure of the phenotype (visual signs from environment plus heredity) of the "normal" calf, at this time. This still leaves in doubt the question of whether cellular excretion (biochemical gene products) can induce doubled muscling. Or whether cellular excretion from the normal calf in the womb, can modify the doubled-muscling tendency.

However, Kieffer says they are sure that blood mixing did take place between chromosome test for bloodvessel fusion was positive.

The genetically normal muscled calf is a female and not only shows symptoms of Freemartinism but has XY lymphocytes (male white blood cells) in her blood which could have gotten there only from blood mixing with her male co-twin.

Ninety-six percent of the blood lymphocytes of the male co-twin were XX, which again is not only proof of blood mixing but is an unusually high percentage of lymphocyte exchange.

It is believed this is the first time that principles of genetic engineering have been applied to domestic animal breeding.

Kieffer and Kraemer emphasize this is only a start but the fact that they succeeded in causing two genetically different embryos to be carried to term in the same uterus is significant.

This is an exciting experimental technique that opens up a whole new dimension for defining the biochemical products of genes that control heredity. It can possibly lead to genetic manipulation that would permit more rapid improvement in cat-

For example, if it is proved that double muscling is produced by a biochemical and that chemical can be reproduced synthetically, then it might be possible to induce a degree of heavier muscling in normal cattle. This, in turn, would increase the yield of lean meat.

FmHA Loans Soar Above 1977 Level

WASHINGTON - The Farmers Home Administration (Fm-HA), the rural credit agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, reported that its loans and grants for rural development during fiscal year (FY) 1978 reached a record high of $11.1 billion -- 55 percent above the FY 1977 level. according to Alex Mercure, assistant secretary for rural development. Of the $11.1 billion, 93 percent of which are loans repayable with interest, nearly $5 billion are farm loans. Housing loans accounted for $3.7 billion, $1.3 went for community facilities improvements and more than $1 billion were used for business-industrial financing.

Mercure cited these highlights:

-- Farm credit. FmHA made 153,800 farm loans, including more than 90,000 emergency loans to farmers and ranchers hit by natural disasters or economic emergency. Emergency loans totaled $3.6 billion. Other services included $1.3 billion to individual family farmers for ownership, operation and improvement of their farmers. A new economic emergency farm loan program, enacted in August, began with $108 million of loan approvals in September. Under this program, FmHA is authorized to carry up to $4 billion in loans through May 15, 1980. -- Housing. FmHA made 116,896 loans totaling $2.6 billion to families of low and moderate income for home ownership or improvement, and $673.1 million in loans for 1,451 multi-family apartment projects in rural towns throughout the country. YmHA housing programs are available in rural areas, towns of up to 10,000 population, and in non-metropolitan areas of up to 20,000 population where other credit is not available.

-- Community facilities. Fm-HA provided more than $1 billion in FY 1978 to build or improve water and sewer systems in approximately 2,000 towns and rural areas. Loans for other types of community facilities, such as medical and community centers and fire departments, added $250 million to the agency's community facility programs. Facility projects may serve countryside and towns of up to 10,000 population.

Grants for comprehensive planning in rural areas were issued to 145 state, local and area planning bodies during FY -- Business and Industry. FmHA's guarantees of commercial lenders' loans to businesses and industries employing rural people rose from $350 million in FY 1977 to $1 billion in FY '78.

A loan level of $1.1 billion is budgeted for the current fiscal year. Grants totaling $10 million were made last year to local public bodies for improvement of rural industrial sites. During that time, the program provided an estimated 38,000 new jobs in rural areas and saved an estimated 53,000 existing jobs.

Gordon Cavanaugh, FmHA administrator, said, "a state reorganization will be compleed this year. Under the plan, new district offices will service

China Purchases More Grain

WASHINGTON (AP) -China has bought an additional 510,401 metric tons of wheat, thus continuing this year's buying surge in the U.S. grain market. The new purchases, reported Thursday by the Agriculture Department, raise to 3.7 million metric tons of wheat and 1.5 million metric tons of corn the total that China has bought from the United States this year.

Officials said the grain had been listed in previous reports as being sold by exporters to "unknown" destinations.

Of the total wheat in the new purchase, 200,401 metric tons is to be delivered to China in the current marketing year that will end next May 31, and 310,000 metric tons the following year, the department said. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat. Thus, the latest sale involves about 18.7 million bushels.

Wheeler encouraged cattlemen not to give up hope at eventual passage. He said the fact that both Houses of Congress passed the legislation (the House vote was 289-66) is a victory in itself. Pheasant Numbers Remain Stable; Season 'Good as Last Year' Foreseen

By JIM STEIERT Outdoors Editor

Although heavy rains and flooding during the beginning of the pheasant nesting season in late May were cause for some concern, it appears that Deaf Smith County hunters will enjoy another outstanding year after ringnecks, and sportsmen in the neighboring Magic Triangle counties of Castro and Parmermay fare even better.

That's the projection state game warden Chuck Cosper of Hereford is offering for The Brand's fourth annual Magic Triangle pheasant forecast, with less than a month remaining prior to the Dec. 9-24 season.

"This is going to be as good a season as last year. Deaf Smith County is at its peak for carrying pheasant, but the. pheasant population in Castro and Parmer counties continues to expand. From my observations while making rounds in the three counties for the past few leisurely arising pheasants.

months, I feel there are more birds in Castro and Parmer counties," stated Cosper.

"The hunters are scattering out over the area now, rather than congregating in the Hereford vicinity, and I feel this is another good indication that the birds are spreading out more," he added.

Upland game biologists for the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department failed to count a single pheasant while running a population survey along established boundaries here earlier this year, but biologist Dave Dvorak of the TP&WD office in Canyon reports there is only a two percent decline in the population this year, which should have no significant effect on overall hunter success.

According to Cosper, census takers in the local area may have simply launched their work too early on the day of the count, thus failing to see the more however. We have indifference among some farmers as to the critical need for pheasant cover, but we have some farmers who leave cover too, and generally, the growth around playa lakes is in good condition, providing holding areas for the birds, Cosper related.

He pointed out that later stocking of pheasant in Castro and Parmer counties and the fact that ringnecks have only began to grow firmly established in those areas in recent years accounts for the fact that Castro and Parmer are now the up-and-coming pheasant counties of the Magic Triangle.

Although in most seasons, some hunting locales prove more ideal than others for those bent on putting a brace of ringnecks in the bag, Cosper admitted that he's hard pressed to single out "hotspots" for the coming season.

"The pheasant are coming on so fast in some of these other counties that it's hard to pick an outstanding area. Farmland northwest of Hereford has always been popular, but hunting there probably won't be any better than in any of the other areas this year. There are some good bird concentrations north of Dawn, in the eastern portion of Deaf Smith County, and in neighboring Randall County, to the east, there's getting to be a pretty good population of pheasant north of Umbarger. Hunting in the vicinity of Friona and Bovina should be good, and although there are a few isolated areas of Parmer County that don't have as many birds, the overall hunting outlook there is excellent. All of Castro County, with the exception of the dryland areas, looks good to me. Hunters will probably be concentrated to the west and south of Dimmitt, and in the vicinity of the Hart community." Cosper indicated.

I hope it is the result of having more enforcement people here to-help, and catching the violators. But we don't catch a lot of local people violating the hen law, and the majority of hunters are real sportsmen. Some don't intend to violate the law, but the excitement of the hunt just gets the best of them

Sportsmen planning to participate in the upcoming pheasant season are reminded to obtain the proper hunting license.

Sportsmen should have little trouble matching last year's first day success rate of slightly over one cockbird per hunter, a figure arrived at by Cosper during checks of sportsmen returning from the day's

Despite the stiff fines, however, Cosper reported that hen shooting was widespread last year, and even when he disregards an incident near Hart in which several hunters were arrested for killing a total of 16 hens, more hen shooting cases were filed during the 1977 season than in any other since pheasants became fair game in

Winter Boating Poses Hazards

AUSTIN - Duck hunters, wintertime fishermen and other sportsmen who take to the state's waters should be aware that cold weather brings an added element of danger to

Capt. J.L. Williford, supervisor of the Water Safety Law Enforcement Section, said that although Texas doesn't suffer as harsh winters as some other boating, according to the Texas parts of the nation, the weather gets cold enough to shorten survival time in case of a fall overboard.

Dry weather last spring hampered reproduction of game species in some areas, but summer rains were widespread enough to avoid any major die-off, according to the department's big game program director Charles Winkler.

Here are the last-minute prospects, summed up by ecological region: SOUTH TEXAS

Generally deer populations are lower in the western portions of South Texas. Most of the decrease was caused by lower fawn production as a result of the drough last spring and early summer.

In the eastern part of South Texas deer populations are similar to last year's.

Poorer antler development than last year is anticipated, again due to the drouth, but the hunter may not notice any difference. Good bucks were seen on surveys in mid-October. Buck/doe ratios are generally good, perhaps better than last

Range conditions are excellent at present. However, vegetation probably will not affect hunting due to the practice of hunting from elevated stands and hunting late in the season after the first

Quail populations are fair, although the Chaparral Wildlife Management Area reported good hunting the first week of the season. A late hatch resulting from late summer rains greatly improved the hunting outlook.

The turkey hatch was only fair, but hunting will probably

Range conditions currently are excellent. The acorn crop is sporty but better than average. Vegetation may hamper visibi-'lity early in the season and deer may not move much. However, deer are already using feeders

The turkey hatch was below average last spring, but good hunting still is expected due to a high carryover from 1977.

POSSUM KINCDOM Deer populations are generally increasing in this area, after declining in the early 1970's. Good populations have been observed in Brown, Bosque, Palo Pinto and Stephens Range conditions are excel-lent in most of this area and moisture conditions are good for winter weed production. Dry: conditions prevail in the area from Golddownite to Waco.

There are good quail populations in the whole Possum Kingdom area, especially in Bosque and McLennan

PINETWOODS

Deer populations are expand-ing and hunting prospects are good. Although range condititions are dry there is a good acorn crop and deer are is excellent physical condition.

POST OAK BELT

Deer populations are down considerably in this area. The primary problem is habitat destruction as woodland is converted to improved passures.

Heavy hunting pressure on bucks has caused unbalanced sex ratios (six does per buck). Antier development is generally poor due to a low nutrient level.

Proper Deer Tagging Vital

AUSTIN - Texas deer nunters should be aware that Texas Parks and Wildlife Department game wardens issue numerous tickets each bunting season for improperly tagged deer.

Tagging should be the first step taken upon possession of the deer -- even before field dressing. Tags must be completely filled out, and department officials recommend attaching them, along with permits when required, to the animal's antler or foreleg with string, wire or clear cellophane taxidermist and attach this receipt to the remainder of the deer. A deer given to a person other than the one who killed it must have the properly completed and signed tags and permits attached. A document signed by the hunter stating his name, address, date of kill, hunting license number and county and ranch where kill was made must accompany any portion of the deer given to another person.

If the hunter plans to have the obtain a receipt from the possessing the animal.

Finally, the antlers from a buck or the antlerless permit attached to an anterless deer must remain attached to the carcass until it is processed at a commercial facility or at the deer's head mounted, he must residence of the person

GULF COAST PRAIRIES

Deer populations are spotty in this area because much of it offers no cover. Moderately high deer populations are found where habitat exists. Generaly deer populations are lower than last year but probably not to such a degree that the hunter will notice it.

TRANS-PECOS

Generally deer populations are about the same as last year. Brewster County showed a dramatic increase from last year. Populations are about the same in Pecos' and Terrell Counties but there was a decline in the Davis Mountains area.

Range conditions are excellent and deer are in good physical condition. PANHANDLE

Deer populations are restricted in Palo Duro Canyon and the Canadian, Pecos and Wichita river breaks. Deer populations are high and in good condtion. SPIKE BUCKS PROTECTED the same time that interest in trap and skeet shooting is increasing, the number of places for shooters to practice and compete is decreasing.

The big reason for this dichotomy is money.

Example: An investor buys a piece of property near enough to a population center to draw shooters, both old and new. Then he plows cash into it by building the facilities.

By the time the facility starts making a profit, the property has increased in value for the same reason the operator opened up on the site. It is a good spot for just about any business, from a shopping center to an automobile dealership.

Shooting is not nearly as profitable as shopping centering so what happens next is predictable: The property is sold and another recreational facility

With an admittedly selfish interest, Winchester-Western Division of Olin Corp. got into the picture back in 1962 with a franchise division aimed at getting more places for people to shoot trap and skeet. The first franchise was the Winchester Gun Club at Ringwood, N.J. There are now 21 Winchester

Now, the operation is shifting toward gun clubs on public land, with the public agency providing the property and Winchester the capital and the operator.

The publicly owned, privately run shooting facility could be one of the answers to the dilemma posed by taxpayer revolts across the nation. At least that is one view from California where passage last summer of Proposition 13 - the AUSTIN - Consumers of Texas ovsters may find that delicacy in short supply during the coming winter months.

October sampling in Galveson Bay, where 75 percent of the state's oyster crop is harvested. shows a scarcity of marketable oysters, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department marine biologist Bob Hofstetter in Seabrook.

The situation reflects spats spawns) in 1975, 1976 and 1977 when there was little reproducion, Hofstetter said.

In one major market area west of the Houston Ship Channel in Galveston Bay, the numbers of market-size oysters is down 85 percent from last year. In another major harvest area around Redfish Reef, market systers were down 70 percent.

For much of the oyster harvest in the past three years, oystermen have relied on the abundant crop produced in 1974, but present indications are that the remainder of these four-years-old oysters from the 1974 crop took a beating this summer, Hofstetter explained.

"This year oyster drills, stone crabs and disease organisms which prey on oysters flourished due to high bay salinities, and their predation on the mature oysters was severe," he said.

Since high salinities prevailed all along the Texas coast this summer, oyster predation was probably significant in middle and lower coast bays as well.

With the predicted scarcity of oysters this winter, consumers can assume prices may be higher in the markets.

TEXAS FUR TRADE

LUBBOCK - Increased demands for Texas furs have boosted the furbearer harvest and the 1978-79 season should show a continued increase in the number of pelts harvested across the state.

Included in this rich variety designated by law as furbearers are badgers, beavers, foxes (gray, red, kit and swift), minks, muskrats, opossums, river otters, raccoons, ringtails and skunks (striped, spotted, hognosed and hooded). Although not presently clasified as furbearers, covotes, bobcats, weasels and nutria also are marketed for their furs. The new bobcat season is Nov. 15-Feb. 15.

fur-bearing animals of the state. A $200 non-resident trapping license entitles non-residents to take for the purpose of barter or sale the pelts of any fur-bearing animal in Texas.

A $50 Beaver-Otter license is required of any resident of Texas to trap or take beaver or otter outside the county of his residence.

Total furbearing animal populations is unknown, but based on recent harvest estimates, it could number several million. This, coupled with a reproductive capacity averaging four young per litter, reveals the tremendous economic and recreational potential

Preparation for hunting should include sighting-in of rifles and practice with shotguns, physical conditioning to be able to cope with the

"We still feel we are a movement, not just a union." said the UFW leader. "But we're reevaluating ... changing our priorities. We can't live in the late '70s with concepts from the mid-'60s."

In the 912 months since ending a worldwide boycott of and wines, the union has grown to an estimated 100,000 headquarters, founded a school to train its staff and made major gains in establishing centralized health and pension plans - a breakthrough for migrants who seldom have the same employer for more than a few months.

Amazon Jungle Latest Location for Gold Rush

Peru (AP) - Miners are shifting the sand and gravel of this meandering, brown river in the Amazon jungle in what government officials liken to a 20th century version of the California and Alaska golf

The government bank, Banco Minero, which buys the gold, reports the region's production has increased from 64 troy ounces in 1972 to a projected 38.581 this year - worth $7.8 million at current prices.

"This is gold fever. It's Alaska and California, but here and now," a bank spokesman who asked anonymity said in Lima. "A young man only needs a sleeping bag and courage to enter the jungle for a month to learn the ropes and then stake out his own claim."

Though the gold is being found far from the international exchanges, the rush to the Amazon is one result of the sky-high prices which gold commands these days - $202 in London on Thursday, for example.

Meanwhile, the Peruvian currency, the sol, has been taking a beating far worse than even the shaky dollar. For example, one dollar bought 45 soles in 1975 - and 187 today. Such instability enhances the lure of the jungle, where a miner is paid his own country's currency at a rate pegged to the dollar price of gold on the international market.

Small operators have panned gold on river beaches for years. barely eking out a living. But a boom began two years ago when a woodcutter saw the glitter of tiny gold flakes exposed by a fallen tree's roots.

It revealed that ancient riverbeds abandoned by the jungle rivers were rich in gold-bearing gravel, a source never before tapped.

Today, the bank estimates Peru's southwestern jungle deposits at 2 billion cubic meters of gravel containing an average of .4 grams of gold per at Thursday's prices.

The Madre de Dios, wider than the Hudson or the Columbia and as crooked as the Mississippi, and other rivers wash the gold into the jungle from the Andean mountains to the west. The government Minero Peru mining company estimates there is a potential 2 billion grams of gold there worth $13 billion, more than Peru's foreign debt.

In hopes of increasing gold reserves to help pay the $8.27 billion foreign debt, the government has exonerated miners from all taxes if at least 75 percent of their production is from the jungles, and the military regime lets miners import scarce mining equipment duty free.

Even with the simple equipment available the mining ministry says nearly 1,000 claims of from 2.5 to 2,500 acres have been staked out since May. About 15,000 men have come to an area near the Brazilian and . Bolivian borders 540 air miles and 1,044 road miles east of

The population has doubled in two years to one person a square

Banco Minero engineers estimate a man can work 1.5 to 3 cubic meters a day, with registered mines yielding between 1 to 1.5 grams a cubic meter - from $6.50 to nearly $30 worth of gold a day. That compares with a legal minimum wage in the region of less than $38 a month.

Teri Tamayo, head of the bank branch in Puerto Maldonado, said a medium-sized operator with eight men, each producing three grams of gold a day, could make nearly $700 a month profit.

"But we're looking for bigger investors." Tamavo said. "The law is an invitation to all to come to Peru and look for gold." He said bank studies show a $113,000 investment in an operation with a small dredge and five or six men could of gold a day. Larger dredges, telephone and television sercosting between $3 million and $5 million, could produce about

But the dream is not reality. The miners don't have dredges and rely on muscles and primitive sluice boxes to wash the flakes from gravel.

Their operations line the Madre de Dios and tributaries such as the Inambari and the Tambopata. In the jungle, men dig to old river beds - hot, dirty work amid a gravel beach about an hour's canoe trip up-river from Puerto Maldonado. He's taken gold from the river for 19

"I make a living," he said, wiping sweat from his eyes. "But I haven't saved anything

He grabbed a shovelful of gravel and walked to the river. Working the shovel blade, he soon produced tiny flakes glittering in the dark sand. It takes 3,000 to 4,000 flakes to make a gram of gold.

Upriver, where the Inambari joins the Madre de Dios, the Amarakaire Indian tribe works an old riverbed a half-hour walk into the jungle.

Miners say Chief Lucio Tarzan, who is shirtless and barefoot, recently used tribesmen with bows and arrows to convince intruders to leave. Members of the tribe also say some 60 men produce 4 to 6 grams each day - one of the richest deposits in the area.

The miners sell the gold at Puerto Laberinto or Puerto Maldonado, two riverside towns with branch offices of the Banco

Puerto Laberinto is a dirt street from a primitive sawmill to the canoe dock - a brawling Saturday night watering hole until the government outlawed sales of alcoholic beverages in the mining zone.

Puerto Maldonado, a twohour drive downstream, is a boom town. The population has doubled in two years to 15,000, 90 percent in mining, and there vice, electricity and a water tank for 48,000 people. There are small hotels, a taxi, thousands of small Japanese motorcycles.

Juan Neuenschwander, a 40-year resident of Swiss-German descent, says there are riches for a few, but the rest barely make a living.

But like everyone else he thinks foreign investment will make the difference. "There is gold everywhere," he says. 'It's a matter of big investment, something Peru hasn't got."

Worm Rumor Termed

Ridiculous

ATLANTA (AP) - A competing fast-food firm says the rumor that McDonald's hamburgers contain ground worms is nonsense - they cost too

"If the public knew the cost of red worms, they would understand that you couldn't possibly be filling the meat with worms. They're too expensive," Donna Fleishman of the Krystal chain said Wednesday.

"The public can understand the dollar cost. They cost about $7.50 a pound and that's way above the cost of 100 percent ground beef Grade A. The whole thing is ridiculous."

Duo of Texas Oilmen Opposed To United Front by Petroleum Industry

HOUSTON (AP) - D. Truitt Davis and I. Frank Pitts are a couple of Texas independent oil operators who say the petroleum industry has no need for presenting a united front on all its many controversial issues and problems.

They say competition among its various segments is the key to the industry's strength and survival.

Pitts has just succeeded Davis as chairman of a group formed a year ago to advise the American Petroleum Institute, oil's largest trade group.

The Independent Advisory Forum resulted from some criticism API had become too pre-occupied with major company problems. Formation of the advisory group was dedsigned to strengthen input by independents.

"It's not our purpose to reach accord on all issues, but rather to improve understanding and broaden our concern so as to avoid actions which unnecessar-

"If leaders in all segments become more attuned to the legitimate needs of others, we will have made a giant step toward minimizing government interference in our affairs." Pitts said. Davis said all oilmen have a fundamental unity of purpose in to function efficiently and profitably in providing national energy needs. "But I've never fully subscribed to all the pleas for industry unity issued periodically by one industry voice or

Pitts said the different segments of the industry are fiercely competitive even though they do not have many fundamental differences.

"Each segment has its unique role to play and our sometimes competitiveness leads to screaming at each other." he said. "But it's because we are competitive in a constructive sense that we succeed in getting energy products to American consumers at prices far cheaper than they would otherwise be available, and in quantities far exceeding those on which we could count under any other structure." Davis said it is even important one big industry united in purpose and objective. "The real impression we need to leave with the general public is we are truly competitive, able and willing to provide consumers with energy resources at cost far less than would be provided under any alternative economic system," Davis said.

He said the purpose of the advisory group was never to stifle that dissent within the industry based on genuine difference of objectives.

"This is a part of the competitive fabric of our industry and motivates each segment to compete in providing ample products at reasonable prices," he said.
