Heat Records Fall in Texas

DALLAS (AP) — Temperature records fell in every major Texas city Thursday as a deadly heatwave that has settled over the state sent readings even farther above the 100-degree mark.

Electricity usage soared to all-time highs, and residents of two North Texas cities sweltered without power for most of the afternoon.

About 100,000 residents of Garland, a Dallas suburb, and 23,000 in Greenville, about 20 miles to the northeast, were without electricity from 1:30 p.m. until 5 p.m. A Garland city spokesman said the record demand for electricity, coupled with impairment of a transmission line by tree roots, knocked out two substations.

But John Tarpley, Greenville's electric utilities director, said a member of the power cooperative that connects several small cities apparently had reversed the flow of electricity, causing generators to shut themselves off.

Dallas Power & Light Co. reported electricity usage had passed the record set Wednesday.

At Dallas-Fort Worth Airport, midway between the two cities, a reading of 113 at 4:20 p.m. surpassed the all-time high of 112, recorded on Aug. 18, 1909 and Aug. 11, 1936. The temperature finally declined below 100 at 9 p.m.

Medical examiners were expected to rule today on a possible third heat-related death in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Arthur Wygant, 59, of Dallas, died while unloading a truck about 2 p.m. Heatstroke has been ruled the cause of death for another Dallas man and a Fort Worth man this week.

Daily records were set at Wichita Falls, with 112 degrees; Del Rio, 103; San Antonio, 102; Austin, 102, and Houston, 101.

At 5:40 p.m., only nine of the National Weather Service's list of 30 Texas cities had readings below 100.

And at the Dallas intersection of Elm and Field streets, where a television crew was filming an episode of "Dallas" by the glassy First Intercontinental Building, the temperature was measured at 117 degrees at 3:50 p.m.

National Weather Service forecasters say they see no relief in sight until next week, when temperatures could fall into the cool 90s.

While the soaring temperatures kept air conditioner repairs and sales high, Dallas police said 23 air conditioners had been reported stolen during the last six days.

Glass dealers said they had been kept busy by a rash of calls from people with broken rear and side windows in their cars.

"The heat just builds up pressure or something," said Mike Killingsworth of Nelson-Brantley Glass Co.

Highways are littered with overheated cars, strained by increased use of auto air conditioners.

The blazing temperatures have affected the Blacklands of Congress OKs Fuel Package

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is sending to President Carter one of the chief components of his proposed energy package — a bill that would increase production of synthetic fuels to replace the use of imported oil.

Final approval came Thursday on a 317-93 vote in the House. The measure passed the Senate last week by a 78-12 margin.

Carter is expected to sign the bill soon during a public ceremony that may include a trip to a synthetic fuel plant.

The bill provides $20 billion and creates a seven-member government Synthetic Fuels Corporation to oversee a package of loans, grants and price guarantees to companies that manufacture synthetic fuels, including fuel made from coal or oil shale.

The measure would set a goal of synthetic fuel production equal to 500,000 barrels of oil per day by 1987 and 2 million barrels per day by 1992. Each barrel contains 42 gallons.

The fuel would replace imported oil, which now provides almost half the U.S. consumption of 16 million barrels a day.

Synthetic fuels are nothing new, although they have never been extensively produced commercially because of their relatively high cost. Even with petroleum selling on the world market at more than $30 per barrel, it would be cheaper than synthetic fuel.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, called the legislation "the most important bill we'll act on during this decade. It begins an initiative we should have started in the 1950s."

When the bill becomes law, it may result in a slight gas price increase for consumers of less than one cent a gallon.

The measure directs the president to begin refilling the nation's strategic petroleum reserve, buying gasoline from oil companies at less than the market prices. In return for the sale, the companies would be able to pass on to customers the cost of the government discount.

The strategic reserve is intended to provide emergency supplies for the nation should an embargo be placed on exports by other nations.

WASHINGTON (AP) — While holding fast against the tax plan of Ronald Reagan and his fellow Republicans, majority Democrats have put President Carter on just a few weeks' notice to serve up a 1981 cut of his own or risk having one forced upon him by Congress.

That was the message Thursday, when Senate Democrats rejected the 10 per cent tax-cut bid by a virtually united minority and instructed its Finance Committee to write a more acceptable version by Sept. 3. The decision was yet another unofficial concession that there is very little hope left for a balanced 1981 budget, even as that remains a formal target.

Carter may well beat the Senate's timetable for advancing a tax cut. Though the president has consistently opposed any action this year on tax relief, sources within the chief executive's economic circle now say privately they expect a rather broad proposal to emerge in his mid-year budget revision.

due no later than July 15.

Key advisers to the president say they want a multi-year tax cut to help spur investment and productivity through the mid-1980s, but they remain convinced it would do little in the short run to pull the country from the current economic slump. They would prefer enactment by the next session of Congress, with retroactivity to Jan. 1, on ground that moving sooner could set off a new round of inflationary expectations just as wholesale and consumer prices have moderated.

But that preference, they concede, likely will be overwhelmed by the rising pressures of an election year, and Carter could well be out with a comprehensive proposal at about the time the GOP meets in Detroit.

On a 58-38 vote, the Senate refused to attach Reagan's proposed $35.8-billion tax cut to a bill extending the federal debt ceiling. With that exception of Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., who voted with the Democrats to table or kill the proposal, the vote was along party lines.

"The people of this country will not forget" that it was a Democratic-controlled Senate that turned thumbs-down on the tax cut, said Republican Leader Howard Baker.

Reagan, in a statement issued in Los Angeles, said much the same thing, adding that the Senate vote to delay consideration of a tax cut "ripes Jimmy Carter's empty rhetoric for sheer cynicism."

Democratic leaders accused Republicans and Reagan, the GOP nominee in waiting, of gimmickry and of playing Russian roulette with the economy. Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia decried the Reagan approach as a "Simon Simon, Tinkerbell" attempt to write major economic policy without benefit of full hearings.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., the assistant Democratic leader, said Republicans "are counting on the Democrats to save the

TFW Claims 'Great Victory'

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

Striking farmworkers were claiming "a great victory" after reaching a compromise wage agreement with the Howard Gault Co. Thursday, but while negotiations were underway with that packer, work crews for Griffin & Brand of Hereford continued to gather onions Thursday and today, despite picketing by about 30 representatives of the Texas Farm Workers Union.

Cameron Gault, part owner of Howard Gault Co. agreed Thursday to pay workers 60 cents per 53 pound bag of onions gathered in a field west of Hereford.

Gault also agreed to provide portable toilet facilities and drinking water for field crews.

Union negotiators were demanding 80 cents to $1 per bag as negotiations began.

According to Gault, the 60 cent agreement covers only the smaller onions to be harvested.

Only about five to six acres of small white onions remained to be harvested in the Gault field where TFW-backed workers went on strike Tuesday.

"Upon completion of the harvesting of the small onions, workers will go back to the regular rate being paid by shippers in the area," Gault explained.

"You've got to think positively about a settlement. People are working, and that is a point," stated Gault.

While TFW spokesman Jesus Moya was hailing yesterday's agreement with the Gault Co. a "great victory" for TFW forces in the High Plains, there was vivid evidence Thursday that not all farm workers in the local area are taken with the idea of a strike.

In excess of 100 laborers turned out to work a field of onions owned by Griffin & Brand, just outside the city limits on West 15th.

Griffin & Brand workers received a hike in their per bushel piecework rate from 45 to 50 cents Thursday, and made excellent progress in harvesting the onion field under the watchful eye of Deaf Smith County sheriff's officers, on hand to keep trespassers away at the request of Griffin & Brand.

Sporadic picketing of the Griffin & Brand field occurred Thursday, but the large gathering of TFW supporters noted at a Griffin & Brand field on Wednesday when the work of some 200 laborers was disrupted was replaced by only a token group of pickets, sometimes numbering as few as three individuals, waving TFW banners and shouting from the roadside.

The work crew in the field operated at the far end of the acreage, out of earshot of the bullhorns of the sparse gathering of TFW supporters.

Late Thursday Moya and a caravan of TFW backers returned to the field, calling to workers over a loud speaker system, but Griffin & Brand farm foreman John Seiver pulled a portable welding unit in front of the loud speaker equipped van of the protesters, cranked it up, and drowned out the comments of the strikers.

Moya and TFW supporters were back at the field next to the Griffin & Brand field this morning, continuing their commentary to workers in the field.

A Griffin & Brand spokesman claimed that many local farm laborers were remaining at home "under pressure from these South Texas people."

Two crew bosses supervising the work in the Griffin & Brand field Thursday reported onion pickers were making as much as $4.50 per hour for their labor at the 50 cent per bushel rate being paid workers for that vegetable packer and shipper.

TFW supporters and attorneys for the Texas Rural Legal Aid office in Hereford claim workers earn below the minimum wage of $3.10 per bushel at the 45 cent per bushel piecework rate being paid by local packing sheds when strike activities began Tuesday.

Field Work Goes On

A work crew of over 100 continued to gather onions in a field owned by Griffin & Brand here yesterday following picketing which disrupted harvesting by some 200 workers on Wednesday. Griffin & Brand crews received a hike from 45 to 50 cents per bushel in the piecework rate paid for gathering onions and proceeded with their efforts on the far end of this onion field, out of earshot of a roadside group of TFW picketers. Harvesting for Griffin & Brand continued at the 50 cent per bushel rate today, with TFW-led protesters visiting the field again this morning. [Brand photo by Jim Steiert]

Over Afghanistan

France, Carter Disagree

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter rested at Camp David today after an eight-day European journey designed to bolster relations with America's allies. But even as Carter was flying home from Europe, the French took issue with a major initiative of Carter's trip.

The president landed at Andrews Air Force Base Thursday night and declared that the partial troop withdrawal from Afghanistan the Soviets announced last weekend was "a token withdrawal (that) has relatively little strategic significance unless it is permanent and is rapidly followed by step-by-step withdrawal of all Soviet forces."

He said the allies were agreed that "a major threat to world peace has been perpetuated by the Soviet Union in their unwarranted invasion and present occupation of Afghanistan."

This major threat we all agree must be resolved by the withdrawal of Soviet forces, total withdrawal.

It was a theme Carter had stressed repeatedly during his four-nation tour, but he did not mention again his proposal to help set up a "transitional arrangement" in Afghanistan if the Soviets remove their troops.

Blood Donations Lower than Usual

Totals were low comparatively in this month's monthly blood drive.

A total of 32 pints were given at the blood bank, held Wednesday at the Community Center.

Accounts included: C.W. McBride, 1 pint; David Aguilera, 4 pints; William Walker, 1 pint; Baby girl Andrews, 2 pints; Daisy Hantsinger, 1 pint; Frank Zinser, 2 pints; there was one pint given for personal credit, and three pints given by members of the Hereford Blood Donor Club.

The drive is held on the fourth Wednesday of each month, the next session being July 23, from 3 to 6 p.m.

The drawing of blood is under the supervision of the coffee Memorial Bloodmobile of Amarillo.

Persons giving blood may choose one of three methods. They may give a pint and obtain insurance for themselves and their family for a year, in which case they member of the family needing blood will receive as much as it needs. Persons may also give for personal credit, for which they may receive 1 pt. of blood back for every pint they give in the event they need blood. Lastly, persons having used blood may replace it on a four to one basis.

The Branding Iron San Jose Priest's Homeland Gives Way to Progress

"Ireland is changing. Ireland has come along way, industrially and economically, in the last 20 years, especially," said Father James O'Connor of the San Jose Catholic Church—a man who should know.

Kincora, the palace of the Irish hero Brian Boru, is no longer standing, according to Father O'Connor, who is Irish. "Neither, for that matter, is Tara, the ancient home of the High Kings, Ard Ri in Gaelic. Father O'Connor has been pastor of the San Jose Mission here in Hereford for 2½ years. The church, which in 1921 was located in the area of the San Jose Labor Camp, recently moved to east Hereford, where parishioners of San Jose have built a new church.

Born in County Tipperary in the province of Munster, Father O'Connor has been assigned to the diocese of Amarillo for 10 years. Arriving in Amarillo, straight from Ireland, "I thought to myself, 'My God: I've landed in the middle of a desert,'" said Father O'Connor. "I have grown used to West Texas," he said. "I've discovered that West Texas has a beauty all its own. You do grow to appreciate it. Especially those parts of the day, early morning or late evening...it's hard to beat a West Texas sunset, the expansiveness of the thing."

"I've noticed since I came to the country, you know, that the Americans have stories about Ireland that we at home have never heard of. 'A few years ago, around St. Patrick's day, there was a test in a magazine or something, a quiz you know, that would determine your Irishness. Well, I failed. The Irish Americans I've come across, they have misconceptions,'" said O'Connor. "But there aren't so many of them here in Texas."

When asked about the Irish shanachie, or bard, O'Connor said, "They're still there; they're a dying breed now. The gift of language and of story telling is a gift of the Irish. They're great talkers, for the most part. You do still have some professional shanachie at home in Ireland. You see, they're being adapted to the television age. Whether that will destroy them or not, I don't know."

Right to Life Meeting

Draws 2,500

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - Nearly 2,500 opponents of abortion from across the United States gathered at a National Right To Life convention where political strategies for the election year will be outlined during four days of lectures and workshops.

Opponents of the anti-abortionists planned to demonstrate this weekend outside the Anaheim Convention Center, where by late Thursday the number of convention registrants had more than tripled from the morning sessions.

National Right to Life officials expressed fear that some demonstrators would try to infiltrate the gathering.

Topics for seminars during the convention include voter identification, fund-raising, working for candidates and state legislation strategy.

Dealer: Feds Can't

Stop Silver Swings

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of a major silver dealer says increased government regulation of commodity trading would not prevent future market swings like the drastic drop that hit the silver market in March.

"The tool of raising margins was, if anything, overapplied by the exchanges," Walter Goldschmidt of ContiCommodity Services Inc. testified Thursday before a Senate agriculture subcommittee investigating the sharp rise and fall of silver prices.

"It is not reasonable to assume that had this authority been lodged with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission or any other governmental agency, it would have really been more judiciously exercised," Goldschmidt said.

He said the major commodity exchanges took steps to prevent "excessive speculation" after the silver market started its dramatic rise, turning first to increased margin requirements. "In my opinion, as the exchanges repeatedly raised the margin requirements, they made the markets less liquid by restricting participation to those who either had very substantial means or had made a lot of money in the market," Goldschmidt told the subcommittee.

TOKYO (AP) - A Soviet TU-16 bomber, one of a pair of reconnaissance aircraft dubbed the "Tokyo Express," circled a Japan naval transport and then crashed in the sea and exploded today after its wing-tip brushed the water, the Japanese Defense Agency said.

The bodies of two Soviet crewmen were recovered by the Japanese transport off Niigata, 180 miles northwest of Tokyo, said an agency spokesman adding the Tupolev bomber usually carries a crew of seven. The other bodies were presumed lost in mile-deep waters.

Known by the NATO code name "Badger," the bomber was one of a pair spotted about 70 miles north of Sado Island by Japanese radar and the crew of the transport ship Nemuro, the spokesman said.

The Defense Agency, Japan's military branch, scrambled four U.S.-made F-4 jet fighters to investigate after one of the planes circled the Nemuro. The Japanese fighters approached to within six miles of the Soviet aircraft.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) - Two U.S. photographers and two International Red Cross officials, including one recently decorated by Queen Elizabeth II, were captured by Vietnamese troops along the embattled Thai-Cambodian border, where fighting continued for the fifth day today.

The Vietnamese approached the four as they were inspecting the abandoned refugee camp at Nong Chan and led them away Thursday. Why they were seized was not immediately known, but their capture came one day after Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach warned Vietnamese troops would halt a Thai-U.N. program to repatriate Cambodian refugees on grounds the returnees really are armed guerrillas battling to bring down the Hanoi-backed regime in Phnom Penh.

John Burleson of the Texas Agriculture Extension Service in Stephenville said non-irrigated crop yields have been reduced considerably.

Grain sorghum is the main crop affected, Burleson said, and yields will be cut more if a good rain doesn't come soon. Vegetables also are hurting.

Dr. Albert Hoermann, area livestock specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Uvalde said rangeland in Southwest Texas is being burned.

most of our Irish heroes would have been the men who fought for freedom, the 16 men who started the Insurrection of 1916, the Sean Finn.

"They do (still tell the stories of the old heroes, of Brian Boru, of Cuchullain and the Red Branch Knights). It's part of the tradition we grew up with. Just the last year I found out about a bronze statue of Cuchullain they are making at home...I aim to get one."

"I don't know if you know the story of him. He guarded a ford and they were so scared of him that he was wounded all over, you know—he tied himself to a tree or a rock or something, and it was only when an eagle landed on his shoulder that his enemies knew he was dead and would dare to approach him."

Father O'Connor said the saints have always been heroes of the Irish, too.

"We contend that St. Brendan was the first to seek out and discover the new world."

When asked about the talk among church fathers now that St. Brendan, like St. Christopher, may never have existed, he said, "To Irish men it doesn't matter that much, whether he existed or not, you know. He's a part of us now."

"I am for a united Ireland," said Father O'Connor. "Basically, I agree with the objectives of the Irish Republican Army in the north of Ireland, but I don't agree with the means they're using."

If rain doesn't come soon, Hoermann said, ranchers will have to begin reducing the number of cattle on the range. Though the blistering weather may have made most people lethargic, it has made work easier for the city crews that paint lines on Dallas streets.

"It takes 10 to 15 minutes for the paint to dry during the cooler weather," said Sam L. Wilson, assistant director for traffic operations. "Now you get by with three to five minutes. It means they can actually do more and open up the street to traffic quicker."

"There isn't a hatred there against the English. Most Irishmen are very conscious of our history and the wrongs that were perpetrated against us over 800 years by the English, and the way we were suppressed, kicked around and taken advantage of...there's an inborn prejudice against the English, you might say."

"But I think that now we're running our own country...the wounds are beginning to heal. One aspect of our relationship with England is that since we've gotten our freedom, England has continued to be a kind of safety valve...with immigration to England for jobs and such."

"Most people do want a united Ireland. There's a feeling. It's an island; we never should have been conquered in the first place; we never should have been divided."

"Most Irish people know that there was a conscious effort on the part of higher authorities in Britain to foster division."

"I don't think the Irish will ever give in. It might die down...it'll always be a source of contention whenever our country is divided."

Father O'Connor said that he has never thought of being anything other than a priest since he was 11-years-old.

"I really think it's God fault; he just put it into my head."

"I think it kind of runs in the family," said O'Connor, who has two uncles in the priesthood, one in Ireland and one in Nigeria.

country by voting down their rash proposal — so they can claim that the Democrats are against cutting taxes."

The GOP proposal — which may be considered several more times in the Senate this year — would reduce individual income tax rates by an average of 10 percent and allow businesses a faster tax write-off of buildings, machinery and vehicles.

The Republican plan would provide $35.8 billion in tax relief in calendar year 1981, with 11 percent of it going to business. The cost would be $22.3 billion in fiscal 1981, which begins on Oct. 1, 1980.

A trademark, as defined by Act of Congress, "includes any word, name, symbol, or device, or any combination thereof, adopted and used by a manufacturer or merchant to identify his goods and distinguish them from those manufactured or sold by others." Rights in trademarks are acquired by use, which must continue if those rights are to be preserved. In order to be eligible for registration a mark must be in use in commerce which may be lawfully regulated by Congress.

Democrats would be set by the Finance Committee.

Earlier this week, Alfred E. Kahn, the president's chief anti-inflation adviser, said for the first time that a tax cut in 1981 would be necessary and inevitable. And he suggested a figure of perhaps $25 billion.

Pressure on Carter to recommend tax reduction heightened on Wednesday when Reagan, in a coordinated effort with his supporters in Congress, called for an immediate tax cut for individuals and business to take effect next Jan. 1.

Senate Democrats hurried into a closed caucus Thursday and agreed that taxes should be cut starting next January. But in order to hear from the Carter administration, the public business and labor, the Democrats agreed to give the Senate Finance Committee until Sept. 3 to produce a bill.

In addition to endorsing a tax reduction, the Senate Democratic Caucus named a 21-man task force, headed by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, to develop a long-range economic plan that would promote vigorous growth without inflation.

House Democratic leaders, who are still to be heard from in the tax-cut debate, discussed tax policy for an hour Thursday with Treasury Secretary G. William Miller.

Rep. John Brademas of Indiana, the assistant Democratic leader, said much of the time was spent drawal. "At the moment, it seems to me that we should not seek a transitory solution," Giscard said at a news conference. "What should be sought is a definitive solution."

The French president said an interim phase would require some Soviet troops to remain in Afghanistan and that would provoke continued guerrilla resistance and heighten tension.

Giscard, who has tried to carve a role as an intermediary between the United States and the Soviet Union, praised the partial troop withdrawal as a step in the right direction.

While ignoring Giscard's criticisms and again stressing the solidarity of the allies, Carter said he recognized that "there are bound to be some differences" among democratic nations.

"But the common understanding which we have, and the agreements which we have reached, show a remarkable degree of unity as we face present problems and prepare for the future," the president said.

He described his trip as "successful and productive," and declared that the best thing about it was "coming back home."

The journey that began June 19 took Carter to the Vatican for a meeting with Pope John Paul II, to Rome for a state visit, to Venice for a seven-nation economic summit and to Yugoslavia, Spain and Portugal.

At the economic summit, the seven leaders agreed to try to double coal production by 1990 and drastically reduce dependence on imported oil. But no specific targets were set, and the agreements themselves had been hammered out in advance. There was little, if any, controversy.

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Delegates to the Mexican Baptist Convention of Texas have passed a slate of resolutions, including a plank that urges Texas school districts to educate the children of illegal aliens.

The resolution by state's largest evangelical Spanish speaking church group said Texas is the only state denied special funds for the education of children of undocumented aliens.

Convention delegates voted to send a copy of the resolution to each school district in the state. The convention also called for an end to the exploitation of aliens and more compassion toward refugees, citing "disorientation" problems in the Immigration and Naturalization relocation process.

More than 550 churches belong to the convention, which is affiliated with the Baptist General Convention.

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas city council has nixed a proposed civilian review board to investigate complaints against police officers.

In place of the controversial proposal, council members approved a "police advisory committee" without powers to investigate, issue subpoenas or interview witnesses.

Spectators packed the council chambers for the Wednesday night vote, and many shouted "let's go, let's go" after review board was voted down 8-3.

Marvin Crenshaw, head of a coalition that supports a review board said petitions calling for a referendum on the issue may be circulated to voters.

"We will take this issue to the people of Dallas and let them decide if we need a citizen's review board," Crenshaw said.

Councilman Fred Blair proposed an ordinance establishing a board after minority groups complained that Dallas police were excessively harsh with minorities.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements announced the appointment Thursday of Barbara Slover of Fort Worth to the Texas Board of Health for a term expiring Feb. 1. Mrs. Slover, 48, a pharmacist, will fill the unexpired term of William Edwards of Galveston, who resigned.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Youth Council Board adopted a $144.7 million budget request Thursday to pay for a proposed juvenile probation program, meet child-care licensing standards and cut class sizes in half.

The proposed budget for 1982-83 is nearly $79 million more than the current two-year Youth Council budget.

A total of $32 million would be for the probation program proposed by a special legislative committee, which has yet to adopt final recommendations.

Funds also would be used to bring the six juvenile institutions operated by the Youth Council into compliance with state child-care licensing standards and to reduce the pupil-teacher ratio from 20-1 to 10-1.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-altitude balloon scheduled for launching Friday from Palestine, Texas, will be used for research with an orbiting spacecraft for the first time, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has announced.

NASA said the balloon will stretch to a height of 500 feet when filled with almost 30 million cubic feet of helium.

The instrument-carrying balloon will be used to measure X-ray and gamma-ray emissions from the sun.

Researchers will use the readings in collaboration with findings from the Solar Maximum Mission spacecraft that NASA launched last February from Florida.

The balloon will be launched from the National Scientific Balloon Facility in Palestine.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The undergraduate business program of the University of Texas ranks among the top 10 in the nation, according to a survey of business deans and personnel executives.

The university announced Thursday 92 deans had ranked the UT College of Business Administration in a tie for fifth with the University of Illinois.

In a survey of 142 personnel executives from America's 250 largest firms and financial institutions, the UT business school was rated ninth.

The No. 1 criterion named by both the deans and executives was faculty reputation.

UT's College of Business Administration, with 9,300 students, is the largest on campus and is thought to have the largest enrollment of full-time business students of any college in the nation.

Two professors of the McIntire School of Commerce at the University of Virginia — J. David Hunger and Thomas Wheelen — did the survey.

The deans and executives agreed the best two business schools were at the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Michigan.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Austin City Council has decided the Armadillo World Headquarters music hall is not a historical landmark.

The Thursday decision cleared the way for construction of a $37 million hotel-office complex on the site, southwest of downtown. The council approved a zoning change to allow the Radisson Hotel chain to build the 18-story complex.

"The Armadillo is the birthplace of the Austin progressive music scene," argued Bill Rallis, a University of Texas senior. "It is part of the cultural characteristic of Austin, an aspect of community sentiment."

Burglaries Reported To Police

Police had a quiet night Thursday with only two burglaries and one case of vandalism reported.

A burglar entered the Good Ole Days, 220 N. 25 Mile Ave., but took nothing. Police said. The sheet rock at the rear of the building had been kicked in.

Vandals shot BB holes in a plate glass window at Edwards Laundry, 213 13th St.

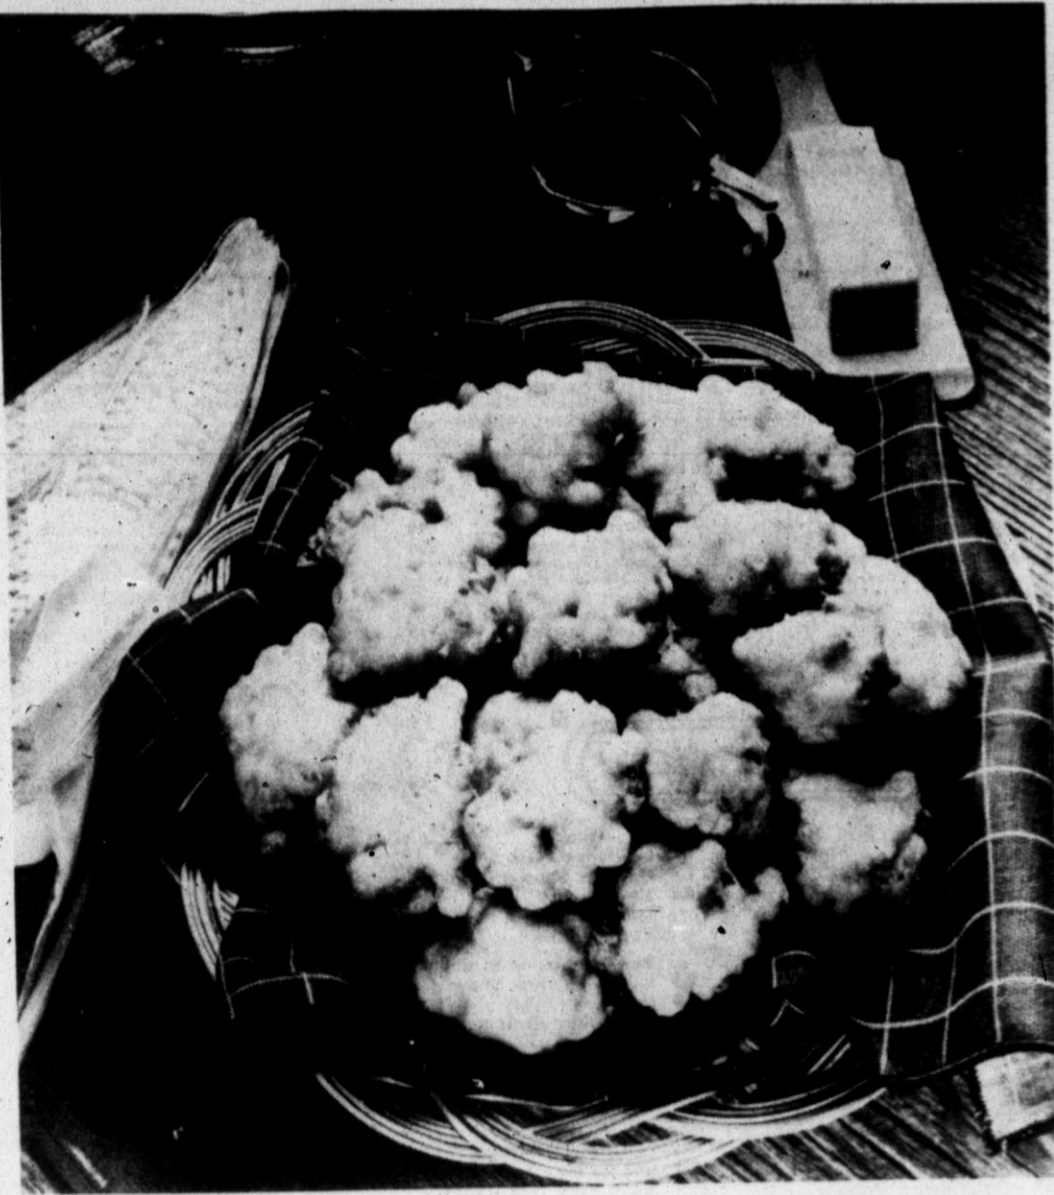

Police said they arrested one drunk, and issued 15 traffic citations.

Corn Festival Fritters

Corn is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, crops known to Texas simply because it was grown by the many Indian tribes living here long before the first settlers arrived. And when their harvests were in they celebrated with festivals just like we do today. For good times and good eating you won't want to miss the corn festivals in Holland, Hondo or Helotes. And when they're over you can use this recipe for "Corn Festival Fritters" to keep you going 'till next year. The fritter recipe, one of a series from "Texas Recipes from Texas Places," Volume III cookbook just published by Imperial Sugar, and is available by sending name, address, zip code and pure cane block cut from an empty Imperial package to Imperial Sugar Company, Post Office Box 530, Sugar Land, Texas 77478. The cookbooks are sent with all handling and postage charges prepaid by Imperial.

Be a Friend, Have a Friend

3 Aspects Determine Self Image

By JOAN DWYER
Self-image is traditionally thought to be made of 3 aspects: what others think of you, what you think of you and how you perceive others to think of you. Some people control well their impression on other people. They keenly perceive what is appropriate behavior in certain social situations and act accordingly. Therefore, they are determining 2 of the 3 factors making up their self-image. If, in fact, they see themselves only in relationship to others, their self-image is based solely on the "right now" in any situation. In other words, "I am who

I am because I am relating to you in this fashion."

This "impression management" theory, as it is called, blows the--out of the traditional theory of self-image.

Some people used to believe that carrying chestnuts in their pockets would prevent rheumatism.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me how to "disengage" from my stepchildren without losing my husband. "Nick" and I have been married eight months. His sons have asked him to co-sign for cars and a home, and he did it without asking me. (I'm sure "Dad" will end up paying off. These sons are 26 and 28 and have no credit.)

My stepdaughter asked if she could borrow my food pulverizer last week. She said she needed it "just for a day." This morning I called and asked her to return it. She said, "I dropped it and it broke. It's not worth fixing. Gee, I'm sorry."

This is the third weekend in a row we have had to baby-sit for our grandchildren. "Nick" says it's part of being good grandparents, but he plays golf Saturday and Sunday and comes home at 4 p.m. I'm the one who is stuck.

Please give me some advice. I feel -- Used In

Fullerton

DEAR USED: His or her children are the principal cause for the failure of second marriages. You need a lot more help than I can give you.

Go see the clergyman who married you and Nick. Ask if you can bring your husband in for a visit. Get this problem thrashed out and establish some new guidelines, once and for all. If you don't do it now you are doomed to a life of servitude.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is my first letter to you. But I've read your column daily for years and quoted you often.

I did not agree with your answer to the letter about the sponging neighbor. You rated her "two notches lower than a gnat's ankle" because she refused to give the freeloader a Bandaid.

The lady was fed up with her neighbor's constant borrowing, and I can understand why. I had similar neighbors. They were professionals at that. And two grown children.

I got fed up with the constant "borrowing" -- one cup sugar, two cups milk, a can of soup, etc. They never returned anything. Finally I got wise and said I was out of whatever she needed. We didn't live in the country. There was a variety store three minutes away--on foot.

My biggest gripe was each June when our roses were out. She'd call to ask if she could have some for a party at the office. I couldn't say no, because she could see them from her kitchen window. Then, thank heavens, we moved.

A few years later I met someone who worked with this gal. She told her I was the world's most wonderful neighbor. I sure was--while it lasted.--The "Patsy"

DEAR PATSY: You've got a lot of company, honey, and I can understand your feelings. But a Bandaid?! C'mon. Have a heart, lady!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We invited a couple for dinner Friday. There was to be just the four of us, and I went to a great deal of trouble to prepare a gourmet meal.

One hour before they were to arrive we received a phone call: "Sorry, we can't come." It seems two couples, old friends, had dropped in unexpectedly. They had driven 100 miles. I had enough food to feed two extra, but not four. I suggested they come just for dinner, then return to their company. They said, "No."

Am I out of line to feel they behaved improperly?--Axed

In Ortonville

DEAR AXED: That couple should have told their drop-in company, "Sorry, we have plans," and kept their commitment to you.

What are the do's and don'ts of teaching your child about the birds and the bees? Let Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex," give you the ground rules. For your copy send 50 cents along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Miss Texas Pageant Production Crew Gets "Ready For The 80's"

While the Miss Texas Pageant production crew readies for the arrival of all 69 contestants in this year's pageant, crew members are also getting "Ready for the 80's," which is the theme of this year's show.

Contestants will arrive in Fort Worth on July 6, in preparation for the pageant to be held July 9-12, at the Tarrant County Convention Center theatre.

Featured in this year's show will be the cast of the Six Flags Over Texas Southern Palace Musical. In addition to these 15 young performers, the pageant will showcase vocalist Danny Fordyce, a winner of the Dinah Shore Stairway to the Stars competition and a veteran Six Flags entertainer.

Also included will be Lori Smith Madsen, who as Miss Texas 1977 went on to become a Top Ten Finalist in the Miss America Pageant and a member of two USO tours.

Mistress of Ceremonies in this year's show will be Mae Beth Cormany Rengel, Miss Texas 1972 and third runner-up to Miss America. Since then, she has traveled with a Miss America USO Troupe and has sung and danced professionally with the New Christy Minstrels. She currently resides in Tulsa, Okla., where she co-anchors a television news program.

The 1980 Miss Texas Pageant also brings a new producer to the event, Nick Maston, an executive with the Miss West Virginia Pageant for 10 years and a former director of the National Association of Miss America State Pageants, heads the production crew this year.

"This show is dedicated to the 1980s and to the great state of Texas. It is very upbeat with a little something for everyone," he said.

"We have been planning these production numbers for several months. But the majority of the show—that involving the contestants—is put together in only the few days after the entrants arrive in Fort Worth," he explained.

"The Texas pageant continues to be one of the most highly respected and entertaining pageants in the Miss America program," said Maston.

Musical numbers in the 1980 show include "Ready for the 80's," performed by Ms. Madsen and the Six Flags cast. A "Songs for You" medley, sung by Fordyce, precedes evening gown competition. The Six Flags cast then performs a George M. Cohan medley preceding talent competition and a "We Like Country" medley before swimsuit competition. All contestants will join in a "Great Texas" medley for the finale.

Members of the 1980 Miss Texas Pageant production staff, in addition to Maston, are Dub Fisher, associate producer; Marvin Blum, administrative assistant; Lew Gillis, musical director; and Rick Stitzel, musical coordinator.

Others include Phil Crow, television producer; Ken Vincent, television director; Cheryl Roberts, technical director; Jim McClelland, production assistant; Robert

Choreography for this year's show was done by Joan Powers, with Curtis Epperson coordinating costumes for the performers.

The Miss Texas Pageant is sponsored each year by the Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant Corporation.

Winner of the 1980 title will receive a full year's scholarship to North Texas State University, a Texas-size wardrobe, a $1,000 Gillette-Kellogg-Nestle Miss America Fashion Award and the use of a car for the year from Vandergriff Buick-Chevrolet in Arlington.

Tickets for all four nights of competition are now available at the Tarrant County Convention Center theatre box office, 817/332-9222, Ext. 270. For tickets by mail, send your order along with a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Miss Texas

Pageant, P.O. Box 938, Fort Worth, Texas 76101.

Season tickets are $20 each. Tickets for individual nights of competition are $4.50 each for Wednesday and Thursday preliminaries, July 9 and 10; $5.00 and $5.50 for the Friday night preliminary, July 11; and $6.50 and $7.50 for final competition on Saturday, July 12.

Small Talk

By SUE COLEMAN

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Newell, with Mr. and Mrs. J.E. Guinn of Roswell, are at home after a two-week trip to the West Coast. Mrs. Newell and Mrs. Guinn are sisters.

The two couples considered leasing a camper for the vacation jaunt, but decided to go by car in spite of all they'd heard about sky-high prices of gasoline and food for travelers. The women are glad they didn't have to make beds and wash dishes while they traveled, and the men agreed that it was nice to escape the hassles of parking and setting up a camper at each stop.

And the prices weren't as bad as they expected, Mrs. Newell says. Of course the costs are high but they were prepared for worse, and so actual charges seemed very reasonable.

They went to San Francisco, up to Astoria, Ore. where they were introduced to fallout from Mt. St. Helens, then across to visit relatives in Wyoming and Colorado so their entire route made a big circle through western states.

On this week's sunburn list, Stella Hershey who says she can get a sunburn just by stepping out in her yard, so she wasn't surprised that her skin reacted sharply to the time she spent fishing during a trip the H.E. Hersheys made to New Mexico last week. They were up around Cimarron Canyon.

Judy Brown and daughter Julie of Dalhart are here this week visiting Judy's parents, June and Sam Patterson. They came partly to give moral support while Sam recovers from surgery he underwent Tuesday at Deaf Smith General.

Members of the Leisure family here—Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Leisure Jr., the Ray Leasures and Sadie Leisure, joined other branches of the family for a reunion at Palo Duro Canyon on the weekend. Relatives came from Dallas, Odessa, Amarillo and Pampa for the gathering.

Some peculiar wording in classified ads, usually caused by efforts to condense the message because the advertiser pays by the word, crops up pretty often. In fact it attracts some people to read the classified page first in any newspaper, seeking bloopers.

Often the funny wording is some variation of "Lost, dark green man's billfold" or maybe a misspelled word. Or the use of a word that is not quite the one needed, as I noticed when living in an oilfield area where there was a brisk trade in winches and trucks equipped with winches.

There also seemed to be numerous classified ad writers who didn't know the difference between winches and wenchies, and some of the results were quite amusing.

But what I'm wondering about now is an ad I saw lately in a Help Wanted column, that said, "Need part-time ladies to work..." It was a temptation to send in an application, to find out their definition of a part-time lady.

The Newspaper Bible

NOW DO YOU BELIEVE?

That evening the disciples were meeting behind locked doors, in fear of the Jewish leaders, when suddenly Jesus was standing there among them! After greeting them,

He showed them His hands and side. And how wonderful was their joy as they saw their Lord!

He spoke to them again and said, "As the Father, has sent Me, even so I am sending you."

Then He breathed on them and told them, "Receive the Holy Spirit.

If you forgive anyone's sins, they are forgiven. If you refuse to forgive them, they are unforgiven."

One of the disciples, Thomas, "The Twin," was not there at the time with the others.

When they kept telling him, "We have seen the Lord," he replied, "I won't believe it unless I see the nail wounds in His hands — and put my fingers into them — and place my hand into His side."

Eight days later the disciples were together again, and this time Thomas was with them. The doors were locked; but suddenly, as before, Jesus was standing among them and greeting them.

Then He said to Thomas, "Put your finger into My hands. Put your hand into My side. Don't be faithless any longer. Believe!"

"My Lord and my God!" Thomas said. Then Jesus told him, "You believe because you have seen Me. But blessed are those who haven't seen Me and believe anyway."

Jesus' disciples saw Him do many other miracles besides the ones told about in this book, but these are recorded so that you will believe that He is the Messiah, the Son of God, and that believing in Him you will have Life.

Connors, King, Goolagong Win Matches

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Three former Wimbledon champions have given notice that they intend to be around a while longer.

Jimmy Connors, 1974 men's singles champion, trounced Sherwood Stewart 6-0, 6-2, 6-1 Thursday and announced: "My career is far from finished."

Billie Jean King, six-time winner of the women's singles, and Evonne Goolagong, 1971 champion, both moved into the third round of the women's singles and made similar pronouncements.

That trio was among a handful of players to complete matches Thursday, when the program was once again wrecked by the notorious English weather, which brought hailstorms this time.

Four days into Wimbledon, former women's champion Chris Evert Lloyd has yet to hit a ball. Lloyd is one of a number of players forced into prolonged inactivity by the wet English weather. She was hoping to finally get on court Friday to play her second round match against Christiane Jolissaint of Switzerland.

Lloyd, winner here in 1974 and 1976, had a bye in the first round and has spent four unhappy days waiting for the clouds to lift. They seldom have.

Bjorn Borg, four-time winner of the men's singles title, has played only one match in defense of the championship. His second-round match against former Israeli army sergeant Shlomo Glickstein Thursday was another victim of the rain.

That match is also scheduled to be played Friday, as is No. 2 John McEnroe's encounter with Australian Terry Rocavert. They were 2-2 in the first set when the rains came Thursday.

Women's champion Martina Navratilova meets American Rayni Fox in her second round match — also postponed from Thursday.

Connors' performance Thursday was the most impressive. He took just one hour and 12 minutes to destroy doubles expert Stewart with a display of controlled aggression that he has seldom matched.

"Right now I am hitting the ball as well as I ever have," said the third seed, mellowed by his marriage and the arrival almost 11 months ago of son Brett.

Last year Connors scowled his way to the semifinals, refusing interviews. Twelve months later he is calm and confident, giving freely of his time to both fans and media.

"Last year was difficult for me," he admitted. "This graceful as ever. At 29, she gives herself only a couple more years on the circuit before settling down with husband Roger Cawley and child Kelly at their home on Hilton Head Island, S.C.

"I am trying to play as much as possible while I'm still enjoying it," she said. "But I do want more children and maybe we will have a second child next year."

As if to prove she has retained her competitive edge, Goolagong had no trouble in brushing aside fellow Australian Jenny Walker 6-2, 6-2 Thursday and then announced: "I could do with a tougher match."

"After playing at Wimbledon for 10 years," she added, "I'm still very happy to be here. I wouldn't be here if I didn't think I had a good chance of winning."

Of the 13 men's seeds scheduled to play, only Connors and 10th-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia managed to complete their matches.

Lendl retrieved superbly to beat big-serving American John Sadri 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

Among the non-seeds, Italian Davis Cuppers Adriano Panatta and Corrado Barazzutti staged a marvelous battle, with Panatta victorious 6-1, 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1.

The women completed just as few second-round matchups, but two young players produced impressive performances. Ros Fairbank, the 20-year-old South African, trounced Andrea Buchanan of the United States 6-1, 6-2, while Bettina Bunge ousted Beth Norton 6-4, 6-0.

Bunge, 17, is a former national champion of Peru, but now lives in Coral Gables, Fla.

Plainview Softball Tourney Scheduled

The Plainview Annual Family Fest Fourth of July Slow Pitch Softball Tournament will be held July 4-6 for both men and women in the softball complex at Running Water Draw Park in Plainview.

The tournament will be determined by double elimination.

Entry fee for the affair is $60 per group with deadlines set for no later than June 30, and the tourney is limited to the first 32 men's teams and first 24 women's teams to sign up.

In Baltimore's Victory Over Toronto

Steve Stone Notches 8th Win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles' pitching staff includes a gourmet, a wine connoisseur, a restaurant owner and a poet.

The gourmet, wine connoisseur, restaurant owner and poet are all named Steve Stone, who also is the current ace of a staff that also includes two Cy Young Award winners.

The 32-year-old right-hander notched his eighth consecutive victory with a six-hitter as the Orioles defeated the Toronto Blue Jays Thursday night. Stone, 10-3, struck out nine while tying New York's Tommy John for the American League lead in victories. It also was Stone's fourth straight complete game, the first time he has accomplished that feat since 1972.

In the only other American League games, the Chicago White Sox downed the California Angels 5-2 and the Seattle Mariners whipped the Texas Rangers 8-4.

"I told Earl last year, during one of our famous run-ins, that I was not quite as bad as I was then," said Stone, who finished with an 11-7 record and 3.77 earned run average as the AL champs' No. 5 starter. "I needed regular work, and I never got regular work with a good ballclub."

He's getting it now with Dennis Martinez sidelined. Since last July 22, Stone has posted a 14-3 record and his current ERA of 3.25 is the lowest among the starters, including Cy Young winners Jim Palmer and Mike Flanagan.

Concerning Stone's extracurricular activities, he is part owner of a group called "Lettuce Entertain You," which owns and operates eight restaurants, including the "Pump Room" at Chicago's Ambassador East Hotel.

He also writes poetry and has been published in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Chicago papers, as well as the National Jewish Monthly.

White Sox 5, Angels 2

Chet Lemon doubled to drive in two runs and also scored twice for Chicago. Don Baylor, on the disabled list since May 11 because of a broken bone in his left wrist, was in California's starting lineup for the first time since May 9. Last year's AL Most Valuable Player drove in a run with a sacrifice fly but was unable to prevent the Angels from losing for the 19th time in 22 games.

A throwing error by California third baseman Carney Lansford led to a pair of unearned Chicago runs in the second inning. The White Sox added three more in the third, two on Lemon's double.

Mariners 8, Rangers 4

Mario Mendoza and Larry Cox drove in three runs apiece as Seattle defeated Texas in steamy 108-degree weather, the hottest ever in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Winner Floyd Bannister had a three-hitter through six innings before the Rangers reached him for four runs in the seventh.

"I don't know how you'd ever get used to this heat unless you got in a sauna," said Seattle Manager Darrell Johnson. "Six strong innings is as much as you can ask from a pitcher in this heat, and Bannister gave it."

Ex Trackster Views Life In Olympics

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Twenty years ago, she was the toast of most of the world. One of 22 children, Wilma Rudolph overcame polio and impoverishment to become an Olympic champion.

Approaching the 20th anniversary of her Olympic triumph — and her 40th birthday — she takes pride in her pioneering role in women's sports.

"I was the beginning. I opened it up," said Rudolph, the first and only American woman to win three gold medals in track and field events at a single Olympics.

In July 1960 at Rome, as a 20-year-old mother of twin daughters, she swept the 100- and 200-meter events and gained another gold medal as a member of the 400-meter relay team.

Overnight, she was an international heroine, the Eric Heiden of her time.

"Prior to that, there had never been a time in history when girls were invited to major meets," she said, reminiscing in an interview with The Associated Press.

Her inspirational achievement and immense popularity brought change.

"They'd put in a special women's race for me in all the men's meets," said Rudolph, who currently lives in New York.

A year later, she retired as a world record holder. But unlike other Olympic greats who fade into obscurity, her feats were not forgotten.

A major television network aired her life story, "Wilma," in the late 1970s and black history books retell her triumphs.

Today, she is one of the nation's most popular after-dinner speakers on the lecturing tour and her life story is under consideration as a musical Broadway play.

How did she cope with the instant fame?

"More than anything, what really saved me was my children," said the mother of four. A year ago, she was named "National Mother of the Year."

While her gold medals remain a source of supreme achievement, she recently gave one away — to her mother, on "Mother's Day."

Her early years were marked by sickness and sacrifice. "All I can remember is being ill and bed-ridden. I wore braces and couldn't walk until I was nine."

"When I turned 10, I was challenging every boy on the block to a race," she recalled with a smile.

By age 14, she was a member of Tennessee State's track club. At age 15, she was a member of the Melbourne-bound U.S. Olympic team.

"It was the most frightening experience of my life. My whole world was black, and no one could understand me. But I was determined."

She returned home as one of the youngest medal winners in history, earning a bronze as a member of the 400-meter relay team.

Four years later at Rome, running in raggedy tennis shoes, she won the affection of the world, capping a stirring storybook career.

Of the 1980 U.S. Olympic boycott, she said, "It hurts me in the heart. It's just now beginning to sink in. The Olympics created me."

Hereford Legion Loses Contest

The Hereford American Legion Redbirds slipped to an overall 3-10 mark for season play Thursday night after the squad was overwhelmed by Amarillo Tascosa 15-4.

Tascosa hurler David Guerrero raked the Redbirds for only five extra base hits while the Hereford defense gave up 15 and amassed nine errors over the length of the contest.

And those errors became a very valuable asset to Tascosa's game plan as the team drove in nine runs after two innings of play to the Redbirds count of two.

Hereford's Ronald Plummer singled to left field and then was batted in by a Dan Delozier single to center for the first Redbird score of the day in the second stanza, but those Hereford runs came far a few between as compared to Amarillo's spree.

Tascosa added three more runs in the fourth and fifth frames to its early nine point tally while the Redbird squad could only manage two more in the fifth.

The victory brought Amarillo's mark to 6-8 on the year as one of the district's leaders in Legion competition and extended its current winning streak to a six game margin.

The Redbirds will continue play in Amarillo Tuesday as the team pairs off against Amarillo Palo Duro at Bones Hooks Field, and then are slated to play host to Amarillo High School here Sunday at 2 p.m.

Montreal Expos Down Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Montreal Expos' pitcher Scott Sanderson is a cool "cat" for a young man just two years in the major leagues.

The 23-year-old Sanderson proved it again Thursday night in pitching a two-hit shutout to beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 1-0.

The triumph extended the Expos' lead in the National League East to 2½ games over the Phillies.

In the only other NL games played Thursday, New York beat Chicago 4-3 and San Francisco beat San Diego 2-1.

Sanderson, who boosted his record to 7-4, explained that he's always had poise, developed playing before large crowds in tense international competition.

"I pitched for the U.S. team in the intercontinental series in 1975, and at the Pan Am games in 1975. The noise of major league baseball doesn't bother me."

In the Montreal fifth, Chris Speier opened with a single, was sacrificed to second, and with two out raced toward the plate on Andre Dawson's single to right.

Phillies' right fielder Bake McBride threw the ball home on two bounces, and Speier appeared to be out.

Catcher Bob Boone said Speier kicked the ball out of his glove. Speier said he thought he kicked Boone's shin guard.

Whatever, Speier was safe with the only run of the game-off Randy Lerch, 2-10, who pitched a five-hitter.

The Phillies not only lost a ball game, but also shortstop Larry Bowa for at least a week. Bowa pulled a hamstring in his right leg trying to field a ball in the first inning.

Ron LeFlore stole two bases to boost his total to 40 for the season. The steals also extended his stolen base string to 17 straight.

Mets 4, Cubs 3
Run-scoring singles by Joel Youngblood and John

Stearns in the seventh inning lifted the Mets over the Cubs. Lee Mazzilli, who scored all the way from second base on a long sacrifice fly by Youngblood in the first inning, beat out a bunt to open the seventh, then stole second.

Claudell Washington drew a walk off reliever Dick Tidrow before Youngblood singled to tie the score. Stearns then singled home the winning run. Bill Buckner's two-run homer helped Chicago to a 3-1 lead in the bottom of the first and Elliott Maddox homered for New York in the fourth.

Giants 2, Padres 1

Jack Clark tripled home a run and scored on a single by Darrell Evans in the fourth inning and Ed Whitson earned his fourth straight victory, with clutch relief from Greg Minton in the ninth. Whitson allowed a run on Von Joshua's pinch homer in the eighth. One-out singles by Jerry Mumphy and Tim Flannery put San Diego runners at first and third in the ninth but Minton got Gene Tenace to ground to third baseman Evans, who nailed Mumphy at the plate. Pinch-hitter Kurt Bevacqua then grounded into a game-ending forceout.

Rain, Lawsuits, Boycott Hamper Competitive Attitudes

Troubles Shadow Olympic Trials

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Rainstorms, lawsuits and the Olympic boycott combined to take the glitter off the first five days of competition at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials.

But officials here hope sunshine and perhaps a world record or two over the final three days will make people forget all the problems that have plagued American amateur track this year.

The athletes took Thursday off and return today to Hayward Field, where the National Weather Service says there will be fair weather through the weekend.

"I have never seen it rain this hard in Eugene," Oregon pole vaulter Tom Hintnaus said after waiting through six hours of rain-delayed qualifying on Wednesday. "Now everybody thinks it's like this here all the time."

The rain has not held back the crowds noticeably. For the first five days, 69,610 people attended the competition in the 19,000-seat arena.

Several Trials' records were broken in the first five days of competition but no American or world marks have fallen.

That could change with the appearance of world record holder Mary Decker in the 1,500 meters, Brian Oldfield in the shot put, Franklin Jacobs and Dwight Stones in the high jump, and Mike Tully in the pole vault.

Oldfield and pole vaulter Steve Smith — both former professionals — made the meet's biggest news by going to court in a successful attempt to win the right to compete in the Trials. They had been denied entry because they are ineligible for the Olympic Games, even though they have regained their amateur status.

Former Tennis Great Analyzes Tourney Field

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Fred Perry is a tall, dignified, pipe-puffing Englishman with a roof of snow and an overview of tennis that spans half a century.

"There is one champion for every era. It is impossible to cross age boundaries and make comparisons," he insists, refusing to say whether Bjorn Borg could have beaten Big Bill Tilden in the latter's prime.

No one is better qualified to make such an assessment.

Perry, greatest of the British players, matched shots with the great Tilden on the professional tour, later battled it out with Ellsworth Vines and Don Budge, and finally retired to the life of a tennis marketer and part-time broadcaster.

Although now a resident of Florida, he has been the voice of the British Broadcasting Corporation at Wimbledon for years.

Over a saucer of strawberries and cream, a square of cheese and a spot of tea, he surveyed the changing face of the game during a rain delay in the Wimbledon action.

"Tilden had remarkable longevity (seven United States and three Wimbledon crowns and numerous pro titles over three decades)," he said. "Borg already has four Wimbledon and five French titles and he's only 24."

"Comparisons are ludicrous. Since 1930 — when Big Bill won his last Wimbledon — and now, there have been significant changes not only in equipment but in rules and conditions. You have to rate a man in the era in which he exists."

Borg, like Tilden, possesses that intangible something that sets athletes apart in any sport — tennis, golf, baseball, football or soccer — Perry added.

"Nobody has found out what it is," he said. "Guts, fitness, concentration, determination. Apparently it's a gift. Tilden had it. Vines had it. So did Budge and Rod Laver. Jimmy Connors had it for one fleeting year — 1974 — then mysteriously lost it."

Modesty prevented Perry from saying it. But Fred Perry had it, too, in great abundance.

He was untouchable in the mid-1930s. He won three straight Wimbledon, the U.S. in 1933-34 and led Britain to four Davis Cup victories, breaking the domination of France's "Four Musketeers" in 1933.

"Back in my time, you had to play three out of five sets without benefit of a tie-break," Perry said. "You had to go non-stop. You couldn't sit down."

"Now players get a 90-second rest every two games. In serving, we had to have two feet behind the line and one on the ground when we struck the ball. Now players can jump at the ball. They have an 18-inch edge getting to the net. That's the difference of volleying at the hips rather than the shootups."

The athletes competing in the first five days of the meet said the cold, wet weather and a loss of incentive resulting from the U.S. boycott of the Moscow Olympics kept performances from being what they might have been.

"Really, I feel this is a waste of time," said long jumper Arnie Robinson. "There really is no benefit to being here except to compete against Larry Myricks. The boycott really hurts. I think it is foolish."

There have been four major injuries to athletes at the Trials.

American record holder Deby LaPlante suffered a separation of her right shoulder when she fell during the 100-meter hurdle finals Wednesday night. High jumper Louise Ritter broke her right ankle when she stepped on a rock while camping near Eugene during the Trials.

Steeplechaser Bill Lundberg ruptured his left achilles' tendon in the semifinal competition Wednesday night and pole vaulter Doug Searle cracked two ribs and broke his shoulder blade in a fall during qualifying, also on Wednesday.

MISHA HAS DEFECTED! The stuffed bear that symbolized the Moscow Olympics now sports a red, white and blue T-shirt emblazoned with "USA" and a hockey player (to commemorate the U.S. hockey team's Winter Olympic triumph). Ex-Trooper an Inspiration

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
CHATHAM, Va. (AP) — According to those who know him, including his wife and three children, Henry Harmon has not voiced a serious complaint in the past 20 years.

"What you can't change, accept," he says. "It only makes it worse if you fret over it. That was the attitude of the people in the mountains where I was raised, and it is my own."

He sits in his wheelchair without fretting, accepting that paralysis from the neck down cannot be changed, and continues as best he is able his life of husband, father, adviser, citizen and sturdy anchor for an active family.

When his friends in southern Virginia — and they are legion — discuss Henry Harmon, the word they most use is "inspirational."

He is a man who lives a motionless life of constant pain, none of which dampens his wit or distracts his conversation or stays his laughter. His outlook is as bright as his eyes.

He accepts pain as an unchangeable fact. He does not discuss it, unless asked, and then with no more emotion than when he explains the workings of his motorized wheelchair.

"It is on my left side. It is bad in the mornings and when I wake up in the night, when it sort of takes me by surprise. In the daytime, I can get used to it and blank it out."

Henry Harmon was born in 1929. He was raised in the remote, thinly populated Blue Ridge Mountains. School was in a one-room schoolhouse and fun was where you found it. Henry found it in the mountain wilds, hiking and camping out.

He came to Chatham as a freshly graduated trooper of the Virginia State Police.

He was tall, broad-shouldered, 24, handsome in his uniform and an immediate hit with his constituents, especially the younger ones.

He worked with the Boy Scouts, teaching code and the outdoor skills he learned in the Blue Ridge. He worked with ham radio clubs. He was a pilot and worked with civil air patrol students.

Evenings, he scouted the town, rounding up boys from the local military school to get them back by curfew so they wouldn't get in trouble. Rather than run in a young offender, he often ran him home to his parents with a stern warning.

One winter night 20 years ago — Jan. 10, 1960 — he was helping local officers investigate a burglary when they spotted a drunk driver.

Henry arrested him and put him in the back seat of his patrol car with the officers. On the way to the jail, the man took out a small pistol and shot Harmon in the back of the neck. The bullet severed his spinal cord.

Has he ever, since, wished that the bullet had...

"Killed me? I thought it had," Harmon says. "I told them at the hospital not to send for my wife. She was pregnant, and I thought it would be better if she were told of my death at home."

"But, no, I've never wished I were dead, not for my sake.

"I've had my family to lean on; God knows I could not do it without her. My life has been watching my children grow, trying to grow with them, trying to teach them.

"I believe my life is of value."

McKinney Woman Jailed Over Brutal Ax Murder

MCKINNEY, Texas (AP) — A woman wanted for questioning in connection with the ax murder of Betty Gore surrendered to police late Thursday.

Candace W. Montgomery, 30, of McKinney, was named in an arrest warrant issued Thursday afternoon by Collin County Justice of the Peace Glenn Swanner. She and her attorney, Robert Udashen, arrived at the Collin County sheriff's office at 11:15 p.m.

Swanner set Ms. Montgomery's bond at $100,000. She was scheduled to appear before District Judge Tom Ryan at 10 a.m. today.

Mrs. Gore, 30, was hacked to death June 13 in her Wylie home by an attacker who struck her repeatedly with the Gore's three-foot ax — then apparently washed off her blood in the Gores' shower.

Neighbors discovered the mutilated body in the blood-spattered utility room. The Gores' 1-year-old daughter Bethany was found crying but unharmed in her crib.

Allan Gore, who had flown to St. Paul, Minn., earlier in the day on a business trip, had asked the neighbors to go to his house and check on his wife after he was unable to reach her by phone.

Dallas County medical examiners said Mrs. Gore's skull was crushed in front and back, one of her arms was nearly severed and there were several deep lacerations on her face, indicating she was struck repeatedly after she fell to the floor.

Wylie Police Chief Royce Abbott said there were several holes in the floor that indicated some of the killer's blows missed.

Small, bloody footprints were found on the floor of the utility room and traces of blood were discovered on the faucets, soap dish, shower curtain and tub.

Abbott said earlier that the killer, who was not deterred by two cars in the garage, may have known the Gores and that Gore had left in the third car.

University Personnel Leave Shrimp Farm

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Armed Mexican Naval cadets prompted the withdrawal of University of Arizona personnel from an experimental shrimp farm on the Gulf of California on Thursday.

The farm was being operated jointly by the UoA and the University of Sonora, in the Mexican state across the border from Arizona.

The incident occurred as the governors of Arizona and Sonora, Bruce Babbitt and Dr. Samuel Ocana Garcia, were meeting at a conference of Mexican and American elected officials in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico.

the farm and flew back to Tucson, according to Carl Hodges, head of the group.

He said the cadets were armed with automatic rifles.

"The cadets were extremely courteous," said Hodges. "None of us at any point in time felt any personal threat."

University of Arizona spokesman Tom Duddleston said the incident stemmed from a dispute over ownership of the farm's shrimp.

He said the university has operated the farm for a few years in conjunction with the University of Sonora and the governments of the United States and Mexico.

Dr. A. Richard Kassander Jr., vice president for research at the University of Arizona, said the university shipments to the Hawaiian farm did not violate any agreement.

He said, "The plans to do this have been understood by both parties for some considerable time," and that the University of Sonora has a similar research station in Kino Bay, Mexico, which has received shrimp from the Puerto Penasco farm without protest from the University of Arizona.

The farm is at Puerto Penasco (Rocky Point).

"I've been briefed on the situation and been told the presidents of both universities will meet to discuss it," Babbitt said in a telephone interview. "It's a matter that can be very properly handled by the two university presidents."

Ocana Garcia could not be reached for comment.

No one was injured and no property was damaged as of 2:15 p.m., when nine Arizona researchers voluntarily left Recently, the UoA decided to start a similar farm in Hawaii and on Monday, the school sent a shipload of shrimp larvae to Hawaii to start the farm, Duddleston said.

Hodges said the naval cadets arrived at the farm Wednesday morning, at the request of an unidentified University of Sonora staff member, to prevent any future shipments.

The UoA people said the cadets stayed out of the labs, but searched the briefcases of the Arizona researchers and said they could leave only with personal belongings, not equipment.

The Arizona team left instructions with Mexican staffers for continuing the shrimp experiments. "Hopefully the experiments won't be terminated and the shrimp won't die," Hodges said.

Ford To Modify Cars After Seats Burn

LEAGUE CITY, Texas (AP) — Ford Motor Co. officials say they can modify four League City police cars to prevent the overheating that melted and burned foam rubber rear seats and generated noxious fumes.

But company engineers say there is nothing they can do immediately to correct similar problems in three other squad cars.

Curtis Norman, administrative assistant to the League City police chief, said Thursday that company officials had ordered parts needed to install heat shields around mufflers and add two inches of insulation in the floorboards of four 1979 Ford Fairmonts.

investigators found burned or scorched foam rubber in the back seats and attributed the damage to mufflers that overheated because of prolonged idling of the vehicles.

Fort Worth officials ordered all 55 of the department's Fairmonts, about a third of the entire police fleet grounded.

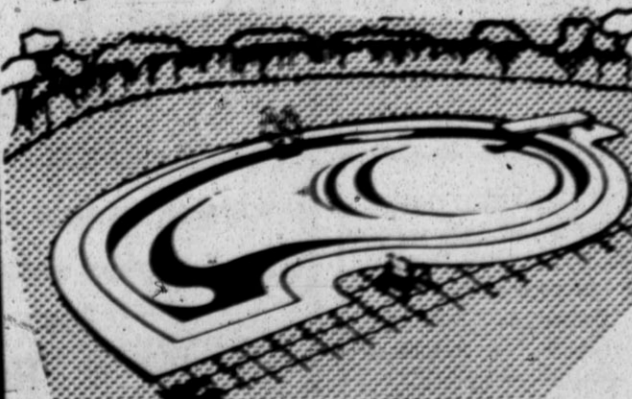

Ford inspectors told Fort Worth officials they were going to put heat shields around the mufflers and extend the mufflers past the bottom of the back seats.

Ford engineers and New Orleans police blamed overflowing transmission fluid and faulty brake shields for fires that destroyed five of 110 new LTD's delivered to that city last month.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Exercise consistently

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm curious as to how many calories are used up during exercises. I'm particularly interested in how many calories are burned up per minute during jogging or running as I'm considering taking up jogging to help control my weight problems.

DEAR READER - Rather than thinking of it in minutes, try to think of it in distance. Slow running or jogging uses about the same number of calories per mile as ordinary walking. An average-sized person of 150 pounds will use approximately 60 calories more while walking a mile than he would if he were sitting still for the same period of time. You'll use fewer calories if you weigh less than 150 pounds and more if you weigh over that. It's the body weight through distance that has the biggest influence on how many calories you will use.

Now that doesn't sound like very much when you realize that there are 4,500 calories in a pound of body fat. But if you walk three miles a day, 365 days of the year you will use the amount of calories found in 18 pounds of body fat. Of course, if you only walk one mile a day in a year's time, it will only be equivalent to the calories in six pounds of body fat. The key to using exercise to control body weight is to exercise sensibly and consistently every day.

Jogging is also one way to exercise your heart and lungs. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 14-10, Exercising Your Heart. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I had an aortic valve put in my chest eight years ago. It's the plastic type. The operation put 20 years on my life and I feel that much younger as a result. Before the operation I felt like a snail when I walked and I thought I would never reach age 56.

How long will these valves last before they need to be replaced? Are there any symptoms of problems that may arise before the valve needs replacement? Although I feel no trouble coming, I would like to know if it is so I can be prepared to act accordingly to save myself.

DEAR READER - Your story points out the influence of good circulation on a person's level of energy and feeling of well-being. We require an adequate amount of oxygen to the tissues to release energy from our food. Whenever a person's circulation is compromised for whatever reason, he will lose energy and frequently suffer from chronic fatigue. In your case since the mechanical problem related to poor circulation has been corrected, you have had a resurgence of energy and that's great.

That valve may outlast you. Such valves have been very carefully tested in laboratories to determine their wear and tear.

Your valve is simply a mechanical device and if the valve is disturbed mechanically it can cause leaks. These leaks can cause abnormal heart sounds just as your own leaky valve did before surgery. Your doctor can hear these abnormal sounds if they should occur. Your doctor will detect these and other changes on his regular examination before you will have any symptoms that you would notice. It is important, though, for you to have regular check-ups to see how you are doing.

DEAR POLLY - Do tell B.W. that when I open a new sack of flour I unfold one flap and cut it off evenly. I pinch the other side into a V and this allows the flour to pour into the canister slowly and evenly. I do this in the sink just in case but have been very lucky about not spilling any so far. - JOSEPHINE

DEAR POLLY - A tablespoon of ammonia added to a large pail of water will help eliminate the paint odor from a room. - CLARA

DEAR POLLY - A letter from a reader who had a rug that was spotted from a spill prompted me to write and tell you something my mother taught me years ago. When something is spilled on carpeting run for the paper towels, fold a couple and place them over the wet spot. Step on the towel, bearing all your weight on one foot. Continue doing this, replacing the towels as needed, until no more wetness shows on the towels. They act as a blotter and pull about 90 percent of the liquid out of the rug.

I have used this method for years and even removed puppy accidents. I have seen people try to remove spills by rubbing but that only seems to push the spot deeper into the fibers. - JAMES

DEAR POLLY - You will never have any trouble emptying a candle holder if you first put one-half teaspoon of water in the holder and then place candle in the center and light. Always remove metal clip and wax residue before inserting a new candle. - LUCILLE

Border-Crossing Discussed

By JAMES R. KING
Associated Press Writers
CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico

(AP) — Governors from states bordering Mexico and Mexico are calling for a permanent commission to carry out plans made at their historic two-day meeting here.

The plans include suggestions by Texas Gov. Bill Clements for both nations to relax border-crossing requirements for Mexican tourists and to beef up U.S. immigration staffs as one way to reduce delays and traffic jams on international bridges.

Gov. Manuel Bernardo Aguirre of the Mexican state of Chihuahua, said he would ask for formal action before the meeting ends today. "We must not let the things discussed here languish on the shelf," he said.

Without a permanent international border commission, Aguirre said "the excitement of ideas generated here may just fade into oblivion."

The meeting in this teeming metropolis, the largest Mexican city on the Rio Grande, marked the first time that the governors of states along the international border have met. All six Mexican governors were present during Thursday's opening session, and among American governors, only Edmund G. Brown of California was absent.

Brown's chief of staff, Gray Davis, said the California governor was delayed by state business and was "making every effort possible to join his fellow governors before the convention ends."

The meeting, across the border from El Paso, Texas, attracted more than 100 reporters from across Mexico, and several dozen American newsmen who braved record heat waves to cover the event. The temperature has risen above 100 degrees for 17 straight days.

Clements said the 10 states sharing the international border should do more to promote tourism between the two nations.

"As many as 40 percent of those who apply (to U.S. immigration offices) in Mexico for visas to the United States are turned away," Clements said. "The United States also requires that Mexican visitors must apply in person — in person — for visas, instead of by mail or by proxy, which is standard procedure for European visitors."

He also criticized the Mexican government for requiring passports to travel into the United States, and charging more than $25 each for them.

"Then there is the difficulty of border crossing," Clements said. He cited long lines at international bridges caused by too few border guards and said, "Such delays are discouraging to potential visitors and frequently tend to discourage travel in the border area because of this inconvenience."

Clements call for more INS guards to handle the heavy traffic jams at international crossing points drew applause from the audience of about 300 persons in the Juarez Convention Center.

Gov. Bruce Babbitt delivered most of his address calling for better mutual understanding of the Anglo and Hispanic cultures in Spanish, while the other governors spoke in their native languages. Babbitt received a standing ovation.

"We can't change history," Babbitt said. "But we must understand history so it is seen on both sides of the border."

He drew enthusiastic applause when he said, "We need an education system in which it is assumed no one is educated until they are bilingual."

France Tests Warhead For Future Decision

By JEFFREY ULBRICH
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — France built and tested a neutron warhead and will decide within two or three years whether to include it in its nuclear arsenal, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing announced. The disclosure apparently was aimed at blunting domestic and foreign critics of his coziness with the Kremlin.

Giscard d'Estaing made his announcement at a rare news conference at the presidential palace Thursday, that was carried by radio and television nationwide. He did not give details on where or when the tests were conducted, or explain why a decision to produce the warhead would be delayed two or three years.

The State Department said the French tested a nuclear device on a South Pacific island earlier this week, and that Giscard d'Estaing's announcement came as "no surprise" because development of the warhead has been the subject of "extensive public discussion in France over the last several months."

Political observers here interpreted the sudden revelation as Giscard d'Estaing's way of quieting domestic criticism that he has been "soft" on the Soviet Union.

Giscard d'Estaing's refusal to support an Olympic boycott, his meeting with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in Warsaw last month and his insistence that the partial Soviet troop withdrawal from Afghanistan is significant angered French conservatives and several Western allies.

Political observers in France also said Giscard d'Estaing's decision to retain the neutron bomb option was a way of telling West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, whose relations with President Carter have been strained, that France's military commitment is more dependable than America's.

Carter shelved the neutron warhead in 1978 before it reached the testing stage but after winning West German support for the weapon. The shelving of the weapon was seen as inaugurating Carter's frayed ties with Schmidt, who goes to Moscow Sunday for meetings with President Leonid I. Brezhnev on the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, disarmament and other topics of world concern.

Brezhnev protested the development of the neutron warhead at the time Carter was talking to the Germans about developing it, noting that the Soviets had tested such a device years before. Carter abandoned the plan for a neutron warhead apparently to make progress in the strategic arms-limitation talks with Moscow.

There was no immediate reaction to the French announcement from Soviet or West German spokesmen, but an official in Bonn said the issue would likely be a topic of conversation when Schmidt and Giscard d'Estaing meet in West Germany July 7-11.

Because the neutron warhead produces twice the radiation of older tactical nuclear warheads but less than one-tenth as much explosive power, heat and fallout, it kills people while sparing property. The device was developed primarily as an anti-tank weapon and is considered a battlefield rather than a long-range weapon.

Women Sell Art, Themselves

By HENRIETTA LEITH
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — All the paintings and photographs in a new exhibit of works by women are for sale. Most of the artists are, too.

The art works can be bought at the Hilton Fine Arts Gallery in Manhattan's Soho district. The artists can be bought in one of the townhouses on the Upper East Side where sex is sold at $65 an hour and more amid the most refined of surroundings.

According to "Mistress Rose," one of the exhibitors, much of the art work is done on those premises when the women come with paints and sketch pads to alleviate the boredom between "tricks" on a rainy night.

The exhibition of more than 200 oils, prints, pastels, drawings, "collages and photographs is billed variously as "The Hilton Whorehouse Art Exhibition" and "The Erotic Art of the Prostitute." But much of it is not erotic.

Gallery owner Rodney Hilton Brown says Playboy magazine plans to photograph the exhibit as a "major sexual event," and the works will be sold for from $135 to $800 each when the exhibit ends July 17.

Some of the women, he said, are long-time artists who tried to sell the works in Greenwich Village sidewalk shows "but gave it up because they were not getting much for their work."

In their regular jobs, however, the artists are doing much better. Mistress Rose says she makes about $700 for a four-night week and expects prices to go up because "on the street it will soon be $40 or $50 so rates in the houses will probably go up."

The house, she says, is "a much better deal — a beautiful place, clean, with cable TV," and a guard to protect the women from the kind of sadistic customers a streetwalker can encounter.

Rose is 33, and says she started working at the house last fall when she realized her straight job would never produce enough money to "support my camera habit."

She says "pretty things," particularly flowers, are her specialty in photography, although for the exhibit she displays a series of photographs of prostitutes painting or drawing in various stages of undress.

The idea for the exhibit came to Brown after he purchased from another dealer a collection of paintings and etchings that a madam of the 1920s did with her women as models. "Madame X," he said, must remain nameless because although still alive at 95, she is married to her second, socially prominent husband.

Those works, found in a sealed, baker's oven in the basement of a Greenwich Village townhouse that was being renovated, led Brown to look for more art by madams and prostitutes. The current exhibit is the result.

During his search, he said, he spent a lot of time in the back rooms of the East Side townhouses and came to this conclusion:

"They are the sweetest bunch of ladies in the world."

Stars and Stripes

The first change in the flag of 13 stars and stripes adopted by the Second Continental Congress in 1777 came in 1795 with the addition of Vermont and Kentucky to the Union. Congress passed and President Washington signed an act specifying a flag of 15 alternate red and white stripes and 15 white stars on a blue field. In 1818 Congress established the present basic design — 13 alternate stripes representing the original states and a star for each state.

Killer Earns Death

By JEFFREY ULBRICH

EL RENO, Okla. (AP) — Glen Burton Ake now faces two death sentences and 1,000 years in prison in connection with the deaths of the Rev. and Mrs. Richard Douglas and the wounding of their children.

The same jury that took two hours to find Ake, 24, guilty of the charges Thursday recommended the sentences.

A judge will formally assess the sentences July 25.

"He didn't show any reaction," said defense lawyer J. Malotte Brewer. "He made the statement he was glad he didn't get the death penalty."

Appeals are automatic on the two death sentences.

Brewer had maintained Ake is insane and should be afforded mental treatment. He complained his client had to be controlled by doses of a major tranquilizer three times a day even during the trial.

The defense attorney said he knew the crime and the attention it attracted in the news media obligated the jury to avenge the deaths in the harshest possible manner.

Assistant District Attorney Bill James described Ake as a "ruthless, wanton, calculated killer" in his closing argument.

"There is no doubt that Glen Burton Ake, in accompaniment with Steven Keith Hatch, took the lives of two innocent people," James told the jury.

Brewer said his client "is a zombie" and didn't know what he was doing during the Oct. 15 attack.

Hatch, 26, also has been sentenced to death in the case. He got two 45-year terms in the wounding of the Douglas' teen-age children.

Officers testified that Ake admitted shooting each of the victims. They also said Ake described their escape and travels to Arkansas, Tennessee, Louisiana, Texas and eventually Craig, Colo., where they were captured.

Due to ignorance of the English language, the German-born Hanoverian kings allowed much of their power to fall under the control of subordinates and ministers, thus spawning the concept of government by political party.
