LENDING AND GIVING

It will be well for our people to get a correct line on the various calls that are being, and will be, made on their purses before this titanic struggle is fought to a finish. We must get the distinction between giving and lending.

In the first place, we might state that our government has not asked, and will not ask, for one cent of gift money. The extent of its call is for loans and for loans on which it purposes to pay fair rates of interest. The man or woman who buys govern- form some plausible guess as to the outcome of the matter. But be ment bonds does NOT sacrifice for the cause, in the sense in which we usually employ the word. At the most, his action entails but a temporary inconvenience, in diverting his means to different channels from those in which he is accustomed to employ them. In the end he has the full worth of his money in the soundest securities on earth—the promises of the U. S. Government to pay.

But there are calls being made that entail direct giving. The activities of the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., the Knights of Columbus. etc., are for money from which there will be no financial return. THE GIANT IS AWAKE

The giant is awake at last. It has taken a year of sustained effort, and the mobilizing of an army of close to two million men, before we awoke from our slumber, but we are wide awake at last, and doing things-with a big D.

Government departments are running smoothly, and the great ship in such quantities to get the machinery of war is at last forging ahead. Huge stores of supplies largest money returns. So do your of every conceivable description are being rushed across the Atlantie; bit. Army after army is being trained and dispatched, until the American forces and equipment on the other side are fast attracting the attention of the world and sending cold shivers up and down the German spine.

The Kaiser's boast to Mr. Gerard, that he had 500,000 German reservists in this country, and ready to take up arms at his word of command, has the ring of a huge joke, If they are here, they at least know how to preserve whole skins.

We have hit our stride at last, and now let's keep it up till complete victory is ours. Kaiserdom, with its attendant train of evils, must perish from the earth.

And let us not for one moment forget that American is the deciding factor in the war.

his rifle to the aim. His challenge was answered in German. A captain in the next traverse climbed upon the sandbagged parapet to investigate—a brave but foolhardy deed-"Crack" went a bullet and he tumbled back into the

It is amusing to notice the different characteristics of the Irish, Scotch and nglish soldiers. The Irish and Scotch are very impetuous, especially when it omes to bayonet fighting, while the Englishman, though a trifle slower, thoroughly does his bit; he is more methodical and has the grip of a bulldog on a captured position. He is ower to think; that is the reason why be never knows when he is licked.

Twenty minutes before going over the top the English Tommy will sit on the fire step and thoroughly examine the mechanism of his rifle to see that it is in working order and will fire properly. After this examination he is satisfied and ready to meet the Boches.

But the Irishman or Scotchman sits on the fire step, his rifle with bayonet fixed between his knees, the butt of

It is not necessary to mention the ionials (the Canadians, Australians New Zealanders), the whole world knows what they have done for Eng-

The Australian and New Zeglander is termed the "Anzac," taking the name from the first letters of their ofncial designation, Asstralian and New Zealand army corps.

Tommy divides the German army into three classes according to their fighting abilities. They rank as fol-lows: Prussians, Bavarians and Sax-

When up against a Rrussian regiment it is a case of keep your napper low the parapet and duck. A bangbang all the time and a war is on. The Bavarians are little better, but the Saxons are fairly good sports and are willing occasionally to behave as kentlemen and take it easy, but you cannot trust any of them overlong.

At one point of the line the trenches were about thirty-two yards apart. This sounds horrible, but in fact it was easy, because neither side could shell the enemy's front-line trench for fear shells would drop into their own. This eliminated artillery fire.

In these trenches when up against the Prussians and Bavarians, Tommy had a hot time of it, but when the Saxons "took over" it was a picnic; they would yell across that they were Saxons and would not fire. Both sides would sit on the parapet and carry on a conversation. This generally consist ed of Tommy telling them how much he loved the kaiser, while the Saxons informed Tommy that King George was a particular friend of theirs and hoped that he was doing nicely.

When the Saxons were to be relieved by Prussians or Bayarians, they would yell this information across No Man's Land and Tommy would immediately tumble into his trench and keep his head down. Is no English lieved by the wild Irish, Tommy would tell the Saxons, and immediately a volley of "Donner und Blitzens" could be heard and it was Fritz's turn to get a crick in his back from stooping, and the people in Berlin would close their Usually when an Irishman takes over a trench, just before "stand down" in the morning, he sticks his rifle over the top, aimed in the direction of Berlin, and engages in what is known as the "mad minute." The Saxons, though better than the Prussians and Bavarlans, have a nasty trait of treachery in their makeup.

At one point of the line where the trenches - ore very close, a stake was driven into the ground midway between the hostile lines. At night when was his turn, Tommy would crawl to this take and attach some London papers to it, while at the foot he would place tins of bully beet fags, sweets, and other delicacies that he had revelved from Blighty in the ever lookedfor parcel. Later on Fritz would come out and get these luxurles.

The next night Tommy would go out to see what Fritz put into his stocking. The donation generally consisted of a paper from Berlin, telling who was winning the war, some tinned sausages, rights, and occasionally a little beer, but a funny thing. Tommy never returned with the beer unless it was inter than I did), had been to Coney side of him. His platoon got a whiff of his breath one night and the offending island and many of our ball games. He Tommy lost his job.

One night a young English sergeant crawled to the stake and as he tried to detach the German paper a bomb exbloded and mangled him horribly, Fritz ad set a trap and gained another vicim which was only one more black mark against him in the book of this war. From that time on diplomatic reations were severed.

Returning to Tommy, I think his, spirit is best shown in the questions be but always "how long will it take?"

After about two hours of vain attempts the unteroffizier had at last succeeded in waking the captain, reminded him of his bet, and warned him that he would be the laughing stock of the officers' mess if he did not accomplish his object, but the captain was trembling all over and insisted on returning to the German lines. INCHES OF RAIN

SO FAR IN JUN The first eight days of Jun brought us an even 1.91-2 inche of rainfall-say two inches for convenient conservation. This tal was split up into four showe a few days apart, and does soun like a whale of a lot of moisture

But the beautiful thing abou this June rainfall was the fa that cloudy weather prevaile through it all, no wind to spea of, and every little bit of it w saved and stored.

Some sections of this countr have had plenty for the time b ing, while others did not ge enough. Nearly everybody h accumulated some lake water an a broad smile. Cake feeding ha been discontinued. Grass is lo ing fine. Cowmen are busy traing and buying. Farmers are busy and it is even reported the a lot of them are working doub shifts and planting at night

More rain is needed in so sections, notably northwest demanded by everybody. outlook is splendid, however, optimism is rife. -Pledge the President
