The announcement by Swift Independent Packing that it was reverting to an "increased single shift" was not good news, since the move put about 150 people out of work. A company official used the word "indefinite" in talking about the single shift operation.

The company announcement said the second shift was eliminated because an increased single shift would provide the most efficient operation at this time. An employee at the plant tells us the move was also made in order to provide time for maintenance of equipment. He thinks the one-shift operation will last about six months, but only time will tell.

Many liberals in this country have long pointed to Sweden as the ideal kind of government - one where the government foots most of the bills and citizens don't have to work very hard while enjoying a good standard of liv-

The government of Sweden is able to shell out this money because workers pay marginal tax rates of 65 percent even on the lowest incomes. This rate goes up to 83 percent that the government takes from paychecks in Texas. Several weeks ago, the Swedes shocked their government by voting down a proposal that would nationalize the country's most profitable companies.

The scheme was that the government would levy a tax on practically all corporate profits, boost the payroll tax, and take the money from private companies to pay for an expanding pension system. Less than 20 percent of the Swedes voted for the plan, apparently having more faith in private enterprise.

Socialism sounds good to some. In Sweden the government pays all the medical bills, funds all the welfare programs, and the unions control the working conditions. How a person likes this system depends on whether he is on the paying or receiving end of the proposition.

It is reported that productivity is way down in Sweden in almost all jobs because there is no incentive to work harder when the government takes the first 65 percent of the paycheck. If you work harder and earn more on your paycheck, the government takes 83 percent. The situation is not that bad in the United States, but many of the liberals are pushing us in that direction.

The sad fact about the situation in Sweden, and in the United States, is that it is very difficult to ever reverse the trend of the government taking care of us from cradle to grave. Nothing is as permanent as a government spending program; it is very difficult for taxpayers to get their government to cut back. Most of these socialist programs grow because of the demand that the government somehow ease the plight of the poor. That sounds good, but the solution is to take from the "haves" and gives to the "have-nots" grows larger and larger, and the "haves" keep paying more and more they may be pretty accurate," he said.

The ballot lists eleven proposed state constitutional amendments, and three items pertaining to the formation of a Buffalo Lake Water District.

The wording on the proposed amendments is brief, and Ruland wonders if voters will be able to make the right choices having read only what's on the ballot. "I have the complete proposed law for each amendment," he said, "and I encourage all voters to come by my office and look them over." Ruland especially feels that amendments No. 1,2, 7 and 8 need to be studied by the voter. Ruland's advice to voters who have not given the amendments a closer look: "If you don't know anything about a proposition, you can skip it and go on to the next one." He said he would much rather see someone vote on only a few than not vote at all. Texas law, which may someday be changed by federal guidelines, allows a ballot to be counted if only one item has been marked.

Ruland hopes that those who have no desire to vote on the constitutional amendments will at least make their choices concerning the water district issue. The creation of the district is being decided on by only three counties, and heavy voting in Randall and Potter counties could overrule the wishes of Deaf Smith

Investors keeping eye on PUC

AUSTIN (AP) - Southwestern Bell brought in a financial analyst from New York today to help persuade the Public Utility Commission that the company needs a rate of return high enough to entice investors.

Dennis Dolan, a vice president with Salomon Brothers of New York, said in prefiled testimony that investors uncertain about the future of telephone stocks are keeping a close eye on the PUC's handling of Southwestern Bell's $1.36 billion rate hike request.

"It is imperative that this commission be cognizant of the fact that its decision in this case will form a significant portion of the basis upon which investors and rating agencies will be building their future cash flow, earnings and dividend growth expectations for Southwestern Bell subsequent to divestiture," said Dolan.

Salomon Brothers has been hired as Southwestern Bell's financial adviser.

The telephone company is counting on Dolan to help persuade PUC Administrative Law Judge Jacqueline Holmes that the company needs the 17.1 percent return on common equity it is seeking.

Lawyers criticize jury selection

DALLAS (AP) - The selection of an all-white jury drew sharp criticism from defense lawyers for Anthony Williams, a black engineer who says he is being tried on armed robbery charges because of racism and shoddy police work.

A random, computer-generated list of 72 prospective jurors contained only six blacks, defense attorney George Hairston complained Wednesday night after the final juror was empaneled.

"We are disappointed," said Hairston, a lawyer sent to join the defense team by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "Mr. Williams is black, and this (jury) is not a cross-section of the community," Hairston said. Williams, 25, is accused in connection with the $31 robbery in August 1982 of a convenience store in Garland, a

Jackson faces seven other Democrats who already are competing for a chance to unseat President Reagan, the probable Republican nominee.

Jackson, the South Carolina-born civil rights leader who founded the black self-help organization Operation PUSH in Chicago, says that although he wants to see Reagan replaced, he does not expect to win the nomination.

Instead, Jackson says his goal is to awaken blacks, Hispanics, other minorities, the poor and women, to their latent power. His campaign will be aimed at persuading them to register and vote and also to run for state, local and national office. He estimates that 2 million more blacks can be registered in time for the 1984 election.

"When the leaders run, the masses vote," he says. Jackson is not the first black to seek the Democratic nomination. Former Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., was a candidate in 1972 but dropped out of the race. She is expected to endorse Jackson's candidacy.

Four of the soldiers were taken directly to the base's Beach Pavilion, an annex of Brooke that specializes in orthopedics.

"We have no idea of the extent of the injuries, but they're primarily gunshot wounds and orthopedic said Brooke cases," spokesman Ray Dery. "As you can see, one of them was well enough to walk in on his own."

Seven of the men were wounded in action, but Spec. 4 Richard Thompson, 22, "suffered non-combat injuries," Dery said.

He said he did not know how the injury occurred, or Thompson's nometown.

Medics' device planned

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Researchers have started developing a wristwatch-type monitoring device that would help medics locate wounded soldiers and assess the extent of their injuries - all by remote control, a scientist

The device, called a Personal Monitor and Communicator, would establish whether a soldier was conscious and relay vital information about his condition to medical workers, said Dr. Willis Tacker, research scientist at Purdue University's Biomedical Engineering Center.

Tacker, the director of the project, announced the development plans here Wednesday during a meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons.

"The device will act as a two-way transmitter, capable of receiving signals and relaying information back to a receiver," Tacker said. "The transmission will tell medics where a wounded person is located and how badly he is injured."

The monitoring device also could be used to locate soldiers buried under rubble, such as in the recent Beirut blast, which claimed the lives of more than 230 servicemen, Tacker said.

"The personal monitors could tell rescue workers how many persons were involved, how badly they were injured and where wounded individuals may be located to speed up rescue attempts,"

Upon command, two electrodes placed on the back of the device would send a mild stimulus to the wearer, and those who were not injured could push a button to report on their conditions, Tacker said. If the button was not pushed, sensors in the device automatically would start monitoring the soldier's heart rate, body temperature and movement, he said.

The medics also could use a video display that would incondition, Tacker said.

A prototype system could be available in three years after technical bugs are ironed out of the $1.8 million project, which has been funded by the Department of Defense, he said. The research team at Purdue in West Lafayette, Ind., includes physicians, engineers and physiologists.

At the United Nations, the General Assembly vote was 108-9, with 27 abstentions, on the resolution urging withdrawal of foreign troops from Grenada. The United States voted against the nonbinding resolution, along with Israel, El Salvador and six Caribbean nations.

After the invasion by nearly 2,000 U.S. Marines and Army rangers, the number of American troops on the island swelled to about 6,000 by the end of last week.

But 1,000 Marines who had been sailing for Lebanon when they were diverted here were taken off the island last weekend and resumed their journey. Farmer, the State Department spokesman on Grenada, said about 2,000 more troops would leave the island by Friday.

Reagan said the invasion was ordered to protect the lives of Americans in Grenada and to restore order and democratic rule after a bloody coup by hardline Marxists had toppled the existing leftist government. In the U.S.-led campaign to take over the island, 18 U.S. servicemen were killed and 91

Against time, decay

Restorers winning a battle

LONDON (AP) — Pollution, rising damp and woodeating beetle grubs are ravaging Britain's legacy of historic buildings and monuments, but determined restorers say they're winning the slow and costly battle against time and decay.

"Our buildings are probably the best maintained in the world," said Warren Davis, spokesman for Britain's National Trust.

The charity, Britain's third biggest property owner after the government and the crown, spends $13.5 million a year on restoration and maintenance.

"Britain is endowed with a national instinct for conservation," said Davis.

"Aristocrats did it for centuries. In our democratic age people donate money and land for conservation.

Britons believe in saving history."

In London, where the government looks after more than 500 buildings that include bits of ancient Roman walls, restoration goes on continuously, said project supervisor Charmian Lacey of the Department of the Environment's historic buildings division.

Most visibly undergoing a facelift in the heart of the capital is the Palace of Westminster, embracing the Houses of Parliament and the famous Big Ben clock tower.

Tourists may be disappointed that Big Ben's clock faces peer out through scaffolding and green plastic sheeting. Parts of the palace will be obscured by scaffolding through 1988 while workers replace weatherworn stone and scrub 123 years worth of oily soot from the walls, said Miss Lacey.

"We may be working on five or six projects at once including ventilation and lighting modernization, and planning 10 or 20," she said.

Elsewhere in London, she said the government is supervising major projects including:

—Restoring Kew Garden's Victorian Palm House, a great bubble of glass and wrought-iron housing a palm tree jungle, expected to cost $2.25 million over two years.

The historic buildings division spent about $9 million last year on restoration, said Miss Lacey.

"The work is extremely expensive because the standard is quite high — to repair or alter a building centuries old it's essential to spend time researching ancient design and building techniques and then duplicating them as nearly as possible," she said.

nearly as possible," she said.
But "it's nearly always cheaper to update and maintain an old building than build a completely new one," Miss Lacey maintained.

Most Britons agree that money should be spent on restoration. But criticism comes from scholars upset about the aims of restoration work or the quality, said David Pearce, secretary of the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings.

"Government architects trained in the glass curtain, neoprene gasket and steel-reinforced concrete school just couldn't cope with the 16th-century brickwork at Hampton Court," he said.

Completed around 1515 just west of London on the River Thames, the dark red-brick palace where King Henry VIII threw 12-course banquets has complicated brick carving and interwoven patterns on its chimneys and exterior walls. It was refurbished last year.

"They may have been wellintentioned, but the work was shoddy: it won't last and it doesn't fit in," Pearce said.

On any given day, workers on the cathedral's roof can be seen hosing water down its 273-year-old white Portland stone walls to wash away city grime. "It's simple but effective," Shears said.

Wounded Cubans leave Grenada

EDITOR'S NOTE — Doug Jennings, an Associated Press photographer based in Miami, rode in a U.S. military plane Wednesday carrying 57 wounded Cubans from Grenada to Barbados. This is his account.

--- By DOUG JENNINGS Associated Press Writer

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — The man next to me on the plane asked me not to speak because the sound hurt his head too much. His face was covered with a yellow towel.

He looked gaunt, his eyes filled with pain. I could tell by his expression that his wounds were severe. The plane ride itself was an ordeal.

I was the only journalist aboard a U.S. military plane that flew 57 wounded Cuban prisoners and 10 Cuban medics from Grenada to Barbados, where they boarded a Swiss plane chartered by the International Red Cross.

The plane sat in the blistering sun, its ramp lowered, its engines roaring at half speed, when four jeep-type ambulances pulled up. Helping load the wounded onto stretchers were about 12 Cuban prisoners who were being held in barracks near the airport with about 600 others captured after the U.S.-led invasion Oct. 25.

About a dozen American soldiers from the 82nd Airborne stood around the tarmac with rifles across their chests as the Cubans on stretchers were put side by side in stacks at the rear of the plane.

Next, came buses carrying the walking wounded. They helped one another board the craft.

The ambulatory prisoners strapped themselves into seats, and the plane readied for takeoff.

We sat there about five minutes.

They were quiet, very quiet.

There were no outbursts.

No emotion. They simply sat and gazed forlornly around the four-engine turbo prop Military Airlift Command

C-130.

The nearest Cuban prisoner asked me in sign language if we had taken off yet. There are windows, but when you're sitting down, they're above your head. No one made any attempt to look out of a win-

Though I speak Spanish, I told the prisoner in sign language that we were still on the ground.

The jet prop was practically burning everyone alive inside. The heat was very intense. It was practically impossible to breathe in the back of the airplane.

back of the airplane.

The aircraft is painted a dark color. You have 70 or 80 people aboard — it all makes for heat. People were passing around water and gum, and loaning each other towels to get sweat out of eyes.

It cooled off as the plane gained altitude for the 45-minute flight to Barbados.

Occasionally, shafts of sunlight spilled through the tiny portholes. There was no light inside. Military personnel onboard then turned spotlights on all the prisoners.

I heard one of them say, 'We have to keep our eye on them' (the Cubans).

I then walked to the top of a slanted ramp and began taking pictures.

They just looked at me as I took pictures, like they were saying, 'Why are you bothering me? I've had enough of this.' No one avoided me. They were resigned.

The prisoners were well treated by the military personnel and looked to be well cared for.

Most had been working on expansion of Grenada's main airport when the invasion began. President Reagan said he ordered the attack to protect the lives of Americans in Grenada and restore democratic rule after a coup by hardline Marxists who felt the pro-Cuban government was too moderate.

After we landed in Bridgetown, the stretcher patients were taken off first and loaded onto the Swiss DC-8 by way of a catering truck with a lift that could raise them to the plane. The others walked up the stairs to board.

The plane left for Havana. I went to develop pictures.

Drive right

The rule of driving on the right in the United States originated with pioneers of the West. As Conestoga wagons traveled along the National Road, the teamster sat astride the left wheel horse. On meeting another wagon, he passed along to the right in order to watch the space between the wheel hubs.

Herd aims for 8th victory, chance at 5A playoff berth

By SPEEDY NIEMAN

The Hereford Whitefaces have plenty of reasons to end the regular season on a victory Friday night, not the least of which is a chance to enter the playoffs.

Coach Jerry Taylor would like to finish with a victory to build on in the off season, the team would like to match last year's 8-2 record, and 31 seniors would like to close out their HHS careers on a winn-

Chris Moore, Coronado tailback, has gained 692 yards and has an average of 5 yards per rushing attempt. He sparks the Mustang offense, and Coach Taylor compares him to Scotty Reasonover of Amarillo, who the Whitefaces had trouble stopping last week.

Hereford's Mickey Stengel is second in total yards on pass receiving with 379 and is fourth in number of receptions with 20. He is also third in scoring with 59 points, seven behind Reasonover of Amarillo.

In the series between Hereford and Coronado since Denver City, Lubbock Cooper, Lubbock Roosevelt, 1970, the Herd has a commanding 10-3 edge. show from Borg

HOUSTON (AP) - Bjorn Borg almost picked the wrong tournament for his return to competitive tennis after a seven-month retire-

It wasn't Jimmy Connors or John McEnroe that tried to upset his return but a pert Chinese defector named Hu Na, who almost stole the show before Borg and his partner Bettina Bunge rallied to beat Hu and Marty Riessen 6-4, 6-7, 7-6 Wednesday night in a first round match of the $400,000 World Mixed Doubles Championships

Borg showed flashes of the old form that won five consecutive Wimbledon titles and six French champion-

But by the third set, it was Hu who was drawing the applause of the crowd as she matched Borg volley for volley on several points. "The first set I was really Hu defected to the United States July 20, 1982, and was granted sanctuary in the U.S. on April 4. She had seen one tape of Borg in action prior to their match, but she still had a surprise. "I didn't realize he had such a big serve," Hu said.

A mismatch appeared in the making in the first set when Borg-Bunge broke Hu in the third game and ran off a 6-4 victory. But Riessen and Hu battled their more celebrated opponents on even terms in the second set and won the tie breaker 7-2.

"She (Hu) got better and better during the match," Riessen said. "I'm glad we hung in there the way we did. As it turned out, you'd have to say she played great. We were unlucky to lose the match."

Bunge-Borg appeared to have the match sewed up when they broke Hu in the eighth game of the third set and Borg went to the line to serve for the match.

Rooney said as he and other sports luminaries from across the nation gathered Wednesday night to pay their respects to the man known as "Papa Bear."

Crowds began collecting at 4 p.m. CST for five hours of visitation. By the time it was over, hundreds of friends and fans passed by his open coffin, which was draped with an American flag.

Funeral services were set for today at St. Ita's Church on the North Side. NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and virtually all club ow expected to attend.

"I knew him for 55 years," Rooney said of the man who owned, coached and played for the Chicago Bears over the past 62 years. "I thought he was a very compassionate man and a very loyal friend."

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell, in accordance with rules and orders of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of its intent to re-file evidence and appropriate tariff(s) in support of a request to establish rates for the use of certain complex inside telephone wiring in the amount of $54.5 million annually. This request was previously a part of the considerations in Docket 5141 and now has been re-docketed as Docket 5420.

Customers who do not own the Complex Inside Wire associated with their Customer Premises Systems (such as PBX and Key Systems), and who utilize Southwestern Bell's wiring after January 1, 1984, could be affected by this request. On January 1, 1984, all of the Customer Premises Systems presently provided by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company will be transferred to a subsidiary of AT&T and that subsidiary of AT&T will be almost exclusively responsible for the charges pursuant to the proposed tariff on January 1, 1984. After January 1, 1984, customers who purchase their Complex Customer Premises Equipment and do not purchase, but continue to use, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's inside wire will be subject to the charges proposed in the tariff.

The proposed effective date for these new rates is January 1, 1984. Persons interested in intervening in this matter should file a written motion expeditiously with the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Austin, Texas 78757, as the Hearing on the Merits in Docket 5420 is set for Novem-

LaRussa named AL manager of the year

LaRussa, who guided the Chicago White Sox to the American League West Division title, was named AL Manager of the Year today by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

LaRussa, 39, managed the White Sox to more victories than any other major league team this year. With a 99-63 record, Chicago won the West by a record 20 games over the Kansas City Royals.

LaRussa received 17 votes from the 28-man BBWAA panel comprised of two baseball writers from each American League city. Joe Altobelli, manager of the

NEW YORK (AP) - Tony World Series champion Baltimore Orioles, was second with seven votes, and Bobby Cox of the Toronto Blue Jays received the remaining four votes.

This was the first year the BBWAA had named a manager of the year.

LaRussa, a former major league infielder, took over as manager of the White Sox in the middle of the 1979 season.

Incumbent Whitmire faces Wright cleanup following Hurricane Alicia, which slammed into the city in August, leaving a million people without electric and telephone service for days and a 2 million cubicyard pile of debris.

Despite the turmoil, the Whitmire-Wright confrontation has been anything but heated.

The Houston Chronicle politely referred to the race recently as "low key." The Houston Post, meanwhile, has called it a "real snoozer," saying that the sound of the Houston electorate as it turns attention to the election is: "Zzzzzzzzzzz."

A University of Houston political scientist, Richard Murray, says the reason for the lackluster campaign is that the two major candidates may be too much alike.

"Both are young professional types with Democratic Party backgrounds, and there's not a tremendous difference on the issues," Murray said.

Whitmire's leadership and the city's finances have emerged as the key issues in the race.

"We heard a lot about businesslike management and open government back in 1981. It just hasn't happened that way," Wright said, accusing the mayor of overspending by $42 million. . "The lady has a real difficulty in looking ahead so that we can avoid the difficulties that we are getting into right

"He doesn't know what he's talking about," Mrs. Whitmire responded. "The city lives within its budget at all times."

She acknowledged that Houston, which entered the 1980s as America's boomtown, is in distress, but blames the problems on declining sales tax revenues and a general decline in the economy caused by the oil industry recession.

As for the open-door government she promised in 1981, Mrs. Whitmire says she "never promised to meet with everybody who worked on the campaign.

"The city is so big that there is no way that you can maintain that type of contact.

"I don't think too much of the politician role. If you do a good job of managing the city, I think that's ultimately what the people want to see,' she said.

Mrs. Whitmire built her reputation in the four years preceding her 1981 victory. when as city controller, she engaged in a series of battles with then-Mayor Jim McConn over city money issues.

When she opposed him for mayor, groups from outside the traditional power structure - gays, blacks, hispanics and young professionals - swept her into of-

Prawn project underway at Navarro College

CORSICANA, Texas (AP) - Shrimp - freshwater prawns, technically - are being raised at Navarro College as part of a Department of Energy-funded aquaculture research project that makes use of geothermal resources.

About 18,000 nearly transparent, post-larval prawns were released recently into two one-eighth-acre grow-out ponds housed in a long, Quonset-type building in the northwest corner of the campus.

The quarter-inch-long prawns will grow to an edible size - when their tails are 3 to 4 inches long — in about seven months, said Kenan Smith, coordinator of the Navarro College aquaculture project.

Harvesting of the prawns will be done after seven months to a year, as the prawns grow at various rates. Nets with specially sized mesh that allows the undersized prawns to slip through, but retains those of an edible size, are used to seine the prawns out of the ponds.

Since the shrimp-growing project is mainly for research purposes, the harvested

Ann Landers Friendship marred by kisses

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a middle-ages woman who recently joined a club and struck up a lovely friendship with Miss X. She's an intelligent person and very amusing. We go to lunch together twice a week.

After the second lunch she started to kiss me "hello" and "goodbye." I don't like it. I have a strange feeling that she might be one of those fun-

If this kissing continues, our friendship must come to an end. But how does one find out for certain if she is - uh different? I can't come right out and ask her. I would feel terrible if I ended our friendship on a hunch and later learned I was wrong. Please tell me what to do. - Is She Or Isn't She In Indy

DEAR INDY: The "evidence" you have cited is far from conclusive. Many straight women kiss hello and goodbye. Time is your best ally. Until you have something more specific to go on, don't jump to any hasty conclu-

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have made frequent references in your column to the deterioration of education in the U.S. public schools. Granted, not all teachers are well-trained and caring, but the big problem is not the teachers-it's the children.

I have taught school for 27 years. We spend at least 40

You would not believe how many come to school regularly stoned, drunk, high on pot and pills. We must deal daily with sullen, foul-mouthed, disrespectful children as early as the first grade. Some of them come from upper middle-class families. Their language is terrible. One wonders where they hear such talk.

When I first started to teach, I was assigned to a very tough neighborhood. I know that at least seven of my former students are now in prison. But I never had any trouble with those kids in the classroom because they respected teachers.

Do tell those parents if their children aren't learning anything in school, it's because they were not taught at home to be respectful, nor were they brought up with the concept that to be educated is to be civilized. - Brockton,

Now You're Cooking

By LINDA CAUDLE Staff Writer

Adopting another country and culture requires many adjustments.

Since coming to America in the late 1960s from her native Greece, Yiota Malouf has begun to feel more and more at home in Texas. "Through my exposure to two cultures I've come to love them the same," she explained. "I've adjusted well, but I can't deny either. Wherever I am, I always miss the other. In some ways I'll always feel split between the two.'

Yiota is still very close to her family in Greece, but expresses the feeling that "good health and happiness are more important than living next door to one another."

A native of Klitoria, Greece, Yiota followed in her father's footsteps, coming to Texas Tech University in Lubbock after finishing high school in Greece. Her father was the first foreign student to graduate from Texas Tech in 1932. He returned to Greece, married, and raised his family there, but Yiota has lived in this country since coming here to college.

She majored in architecture and minored in interior design, and then in 1971 she married George Malouf, a native of Lebanon who came to Texas with his family in 1959. The couple met through their involvement in international activites at Tech, where George earned his A retired fire department degree in foreign languages and international relations.

He speaks six languages, including English, Arabic, French, Italian, Spanish and Greek, and is acquainted with several others. Yiota, who spoke hardly any English when she first came to this country, is now fluent in both English and Greek.

The couple are parents of three children, John, age 11, a sixth grader; Constantine (Tino), 9, a fourth grader; and Katerina, 5, who is in kindergarten. All three attend St. Anthony's School.

George has owned and operated The Range Western Store in Hereford for 12 years. His family lives in Friona, where his father is also engaged in the retail business.

Also a writer, George will soon publish his second book of poetry, "Ethereal Moments of Truth." His first book, "The Lovely Blue," was dedicated to Yiota. His works have also been published in several other books of poetry, including "The Great American Poets" and "Today's Greatest Poems."

Yiota worked for an architect while living in Lubbock, and after moving here was employed with a building contractor for a short time. She currently enjoys staying home with her children, and helps off and on at her husband's business.

Her training in interior design has been used in furnishing and decorating her own home. She does her own wallpapering and likes to refinish parts of her house one room at a time at her own pace. She uses throw rugs which are handmade and also has many kitchen utensils and dishes from her native country. "I feel very comfortable with these things," she commented. "They are part of my heritage and I feel like your home should reflect heritage." Yiota expresses herself through art, and she has tried many different art forms, from watercolor to oils and pencil. Her favorite medium is ink sketching. She also enjoys needlework and has done pottery and painting on ceramic. "Everytime I see a new medium I want to try it," said Yiota. "Life is not long enough to do all the things I'd like to do." She added that when her children are grown and she has more time, she would like to get into sculpture and photography.

Yiota and George are very supportive of their children and their activites. George coached the boys' soccer team this summer through the YMCA. The whole family enjoys this sport, which Yiota said is called football in countries outside of the United States. "We hope it will get more and more popular here," she commented.

Last year they took the boys to the national karate tournament in Oklahoma City, where John took first place national for his age division and Tino won third place national and first place state in his age division. "We are going to try and make the tournament again this year. I think they do better when they know we are behind them," stated Yiota.

She takes their daughter, Katerina, to dance and gymnastic lessons The Maloufs enjoy traveling, and they try to visit Greece about every other year. "I love going back," commented Yiota. "To me it's like a huge park, with the mountains and the ocean. We like the countryside better than the cities.

"There is so much history there, and so far we've spent most of our time in Greece. When the kids get a little older, we would like to travel through Europe in a car, so that we can see more of the sites."

Yiota likes to cook and enjoys entertaining. She said mealtime is quite different in America than in Greece and the ingredients used in preparing dishes also differ to some extent. Dinner in Greece is generally more formal and is served in courses.

By using recipes from her native country, Yiota shares with her family and friends the cuisine with which she has been familiar since her youth.

Baklava is a rich, heavy, pecan dessert made with phyllo, very thin streudel or dough leaves found in specialty shops. Koulourakis (cookies) and Kourabiedes (butter cookies) are good with coffee or tea.

BAKLAVA 10-15 sheets phyllo

2 c. pecans 1 c. butter

To make the syrup:

1 c. honey 2 c. sugar

2 c. water

A few lemon or orange rings and a few cinnamon sticks Buy ready-made phyllo.

Line a rectangular or square buttered baking pan with a sheet of phyllo. Sprinkle with melted butter and spread with 2-3 tablespoons chopped pecans. Place 1-2 more sheets procedure sprinkling on more melted butter and pecans. Use three sheets of phyllo on top with a filling. The last sheet of phyllo should be whole. Baste with melted butphyllo on top and repeat the ter and score the top sheets with a pointed knife to form square or diamond shapes. Begin baking in moderate oven and then increase heat until pastry becomes golden brown-about one hour. Let cool. In the meantime, boil syrup and ingredients together, removing rinds after boiling a few minutes. Pour hot syrup over the Baklava.

Let it cool and cut pieces all the way through where it is scored. Let it absorb the syrup before serving. KOULOURAKIS

One-third c. butter One-third c. milk 2 tsp. baking powder 2 eggs ½ c. sugar 4 c. sifted flour

1 tsp. vanilla Cream sugar, butter and vanilla thoroughly. Add 1 egg at a time, beating well after each addition. Add milk and flour alternately, beating vigorously until well blended. Work with hands until a smooth dough is obtained. Sprinkle flour on board before rolling.

Break off a small portion at a time and roll out into sixinch rolls with hands. Form the roll into circles, twists or figure eights and press ends together. If preferred, sprinkle sesame seeds on the board and roll them into the

2 lb. flour 2 c. sweet butter

½ c. sugar 2 egg yolks

1 tsp. baking powder 1 small glass brandy

1 tsp. vanilla 1 tsp. cloves

1 lb. confectioners sugar

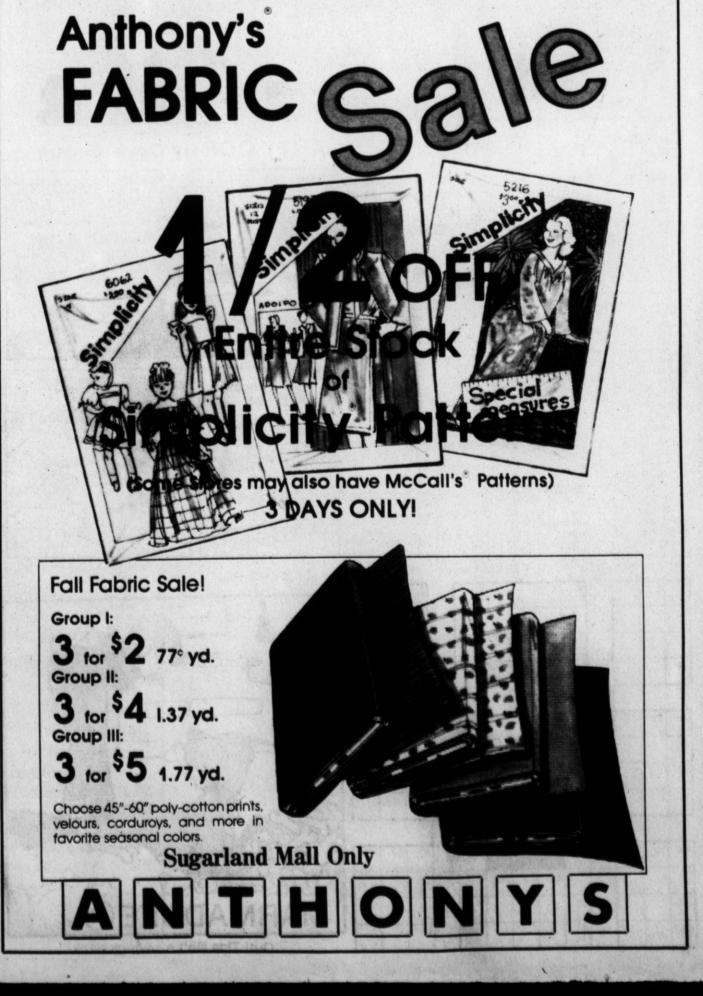

Cream butter with sugar in a large bowl by working with a wooden spoon for 10-15 minutes. Add the egg yolks, brandy, sifted flour and baking powder, and vanilla. Knead well by hand to form a stiff dough. If the dough requires more liquid, add a few drops of brandy; if it is too soft, add a little flour.

Mix well and shape into small balls, or cut to any desired shape with a cookie cutter, to a 4 inch thickness. Insert a clove in the center of each cookie.

Line the Kourabiedes in a greased baking pan and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. When cool, remove carefully to a large platter in layers. Dust each layer generously with confectioners sugar and pile the layers to form a mound. Kourabiedes stay fresh for 2-3

But a budget is simply a financial plan that enables families to achieve financial security and reach their goals, says home economist Nancy Granovsky. "Actually, a budget is more like a road map for charting where you want to go than a spending diet," she adds.

According to Granovsky, a specialist in family resource management for the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, families can develop a livable, nonconstricting budget by following these steps:

First, examine past spending patterns for at least two to six months. Use old receipts, check-stubs or other records to show where the money has gone and how much has come in during the same period. Or, keep close records for two to three mon-

A person inhales about 500 cubic feet of air daily, equivalent to a large walk-in closet. In that air are a variety of disease-causing creatures, including viruses. The respiratory tractconsisting of the nose, throat, windpipe, bronchial tubes, and lungs--has defenses against viruses and other invaders like mites, bacteria, dust, and pollen. But they sometimes take hold anyhow.

This is particularly true in the winter, the main season for influenza and colds. Both are caused by viruses. Any of 200 viruses can produce a cold, and numerous others can cause the flu, says the Texas Medical Association.

Although the two illnesses can have similar symptoms, experiments with volunteers differences: -Fever: Colds rarely include fever, except in children. Flu usually begins with fever.

-How they hit: Flu is swift and severe. Colds tend to build more slowly.

-- Location: Colds show localized symptoms such as sneezing and a runny nose. Flu has general symptoms such as weakness, muscular pain, chills, and headache.

-Other symptoms: Ninety percent of flu victims have a dry, hacking cough; 60 perent have sore eyes; 50 perbut stresses community involvement. The youth leadership portion of the class, Vocational Office Careers Clubs of Texas (V.O.C.C.T.), strives to emphasize the importance of civic awareness and responsibility, according to Mrs. Julia Helms, class instructor and club advisor.

Space heater use requires caution

With the arrival of cold weather, people with portable heaters perform the annual ritual of removing them from storage and setting them up.

Special care is needed in setting up and checking gas heaters because of the open flame and possibility of fire, says the Texas Medical Association.

Southern Union Gas Company provided these safety tips for using gas space heaters:

-Check the air valve on the burner to make sure no lint or animal hair has accumulated

-Make sure the burner is not clogged. A clogged burner may produce carbon monoxide, a poisonous, odorless

-When lighting the heater, follow the manufacturer's instructions to the letter. And strike the match before turning on the gas.

-keep flammable items like drapes and furniture away from the heater. Additionally, for unvented

-Replace any radiants (the glowing parts) that are broken, chipped, or missing.

-Make sure there is adequate ventilation by leaving windows open slightly to prevent possible carbon monoxide buildup.

-Have the heater checked by a licensed heating contractor, plumber, or the local gas company if you are not sure of its safety.

For vented heaters, make sure the vent is not obstructed by a bird nest or other object.

The Texas Medical Association also encourages parents to keep children away from a gas space heater and to instruct them not to touch the controls. A barrier around the heater helps keep children and pets from bumping into it.

Black groups challenge ordinance

AUSTIN (AP) - The Ku Klux Klan and the Black Citizens Task Force. organizations that lobbed vicious insults at each other at a state Capitol rally in February, have gone to court in a joint effort to stage competing marches.

HEALTH

Would you believe I have degenerative arthritis and I'm only 44 years old? I. went to my doctor for an annual checkup, not because I had any problems. I always do this because I don't want to find out too late that I have cancer of the prostate.

Everything checked out fine except my X-rays showed that I have arthritis of my spine. I was shocked as I have always thought of that as a disease of old people. I'm too young for arthritis. And I don't have any back pain. What does this mean for the future? Is there anything I should be doing now to prevent further changes? DEAR READER - One of the characteristics of osteoarthritis, also called degenerative arthritis, is that X-ray changes may occur 10 to 20 years before there are any symptoms at all. And it does occur in young people. In a study of skeletons from an ancient Indian culture of Mondsville, Ala., the men with an average age of 33 and women with an average age of 23 had esteoarthritis. So it has been around a long time. It affects the weight bearing joints. Some people probably inherit a greater susceptibility to wear and tear changes. But we know that exercise on hard surfaces can cause arthritis in

There are limits to what you can do. You can decrease the wear and tear by keeping your weight down. Also wear sponge insoles and shoes that cushion your feet to minimize the impact of walking. Avoid hard surfaces, such as concrete, when you can.

I approve of exercise but you would be smart to concentrate on swimming, cycling and exercises that don't involve your body weight pounding on your joints. Also work on your flexibility by using stretching exercises. I am sending you The Health Letter 20-2, Osteoarthritis: Degenerative Joint Disease, to brief you on the problem. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, selfaddressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY

DEAR DR. LAMB - I read your column on cold allergy. I developed an allergy to cold when I was 12. It causes hives, body swelling and too many throat problems. The cold that gives me the most problem is air conditioning.

My son, now 13, developed an allergy to cold when he was 12. His allergist cautioned us about our son drinking cold drinks as air could be cut off because of the swelling that might occur in his throat.

My son breaks out in large hives when swimming in stripmine lakes. We were advised that he should only swim in heated pools and to make sure he never swims in the ocean. We never realized the dangers and wonder if others having cold urticaria are aware of them.

DEAR READER person often has to learn from experience just what exposure to different forms of cold may do. Cold in any form from air conditioning to cold drinks or swimming can be a problem.

I would add that he should take care with cold food, such as ice cream or other frozen desserts. It is very important to not swim in cold water. That could be fatal. And of course taking a cold shower should be out.

The familial form, which you and your son must have, is often milder than the acquired form.

The earliest known antecedent of football is a sport called harpaston which was played in Sparta around 500 B.C.

PARTING...SORROWFUL BUT

"Let me say plainly," said Paul, "that no man's blood can be laid at my door, for I didn't shrink from declaring all God's message to you. And now beware! Be sure that you feed and sheperd God's flock -- his church, purchased with His blood -- for the Holy Spirit is holding you responsible as overseers. I know full well that after I leave you, false teachers, like vicious wolves, will appear among you, not sparing the flock. Some of you yourselves will distort the truth in order to draw a following.

"Watch out! Remember the three years I was with you -- my constant watchcare over you night and day and my tears for you. And now I entrust you to God and His care and to His wonderful words which are able to build your faith and give you all the inheritance of those who are set apart for Himself.

"I have never been hungry for money or fine clothing -- you know that these hands of mine worked to pay my own way and even to supply the needs of those who were with me. And I was a constant example to you in helping the poor; for I remembered the words of the Lord Jesus, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive."

When he had finished speaking, he knelt and prayed with them, and they wept aloud as they embraced him in farewell, sorrowing most of all because he said that he would never see them again. Then they accompanied him down to the ship. Acts 20:26-38

The lawsuits filed Wednesday in federal court challenge the constitutionality of an Austin ordinance that bars the groups from marching again before next February.

"Yes, it probably is ironic," attorney Jim Piper, representing the black group, said of the similar lawsuits.

Ed Sherman, an American Civil Liberties Union lawyer representing the Klan, said, "At least on the legal issues, we're in agreement."

Attorneys for the Klan and the Black Citizens Task Force held a joint news conference after filing the suits. The city ordinance was approved in July. The Feb. 19 Klan march attracted thousands of opponents who threw rocks and debris at the Klansmen. Twelve people were hurt and 11 arrested in the rally at the state Capitol.

City councilman voted in July to limiting groups to one parade permit per year, restrict marches to certain hours, require groups to have at least 200 people for a parade and mandate a 20-day advance application for a

"If the University of Texas

(football) team became national champions, you couldn't hold a parade for 20 days," Sherman said of the 20-day rule.

The 20-day rule is an inappropriate delay because "news doesn't hold." he said. adding, "free speech cannot be bottled and chilled" while officials decide if a parade permit should be issued.

The Klan had planned a Saturday rally here. Paul Hofmann, spokesman for the Austin city manager's office, said two previous Klan parade applications were denied because the KKK did not have 200 people. The city also cited the one-permit per year rule.

"People who have a parade of less than 200 people still have legitimate free speech interests."

The Black Citizens Task Force filed its suit because its officials are convinced the Klan will win its legal battle.

"The Klan will almost surely be allowed to march," Piper said. "If the Klan is going to march, it is also the desire of the Black Citizens Task Force to march."

Piper is with a local legal services organization.

City officials cannot ban a parade because of their fear of violence, according to ACLU lawyer Sanford Levinson. He said the Klan "is not the party threatening violence," and a parade ban sparked by anti-Klan threats amounts to "a hecklers".

"The Klan didn't want to violate any laws," he said of the Feburary march at which no KKK members were arrested. "Other people were threatening to beat them up." The ACLU lawyer said his organization has a "long and distinguished history of representing people all over

Workers strike over Sherman complained that, proposed wage cuts

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) -Picket lines went up at bus terminals across the nation and passengers scrambled to find alternate transportation today as 12,700 workers struck Greyhound Lines Inc. after balking at a company demand for wage cuts.

The walkout by members of the Amalgamated Transit Union, which began at midnight, knocked out 60 percent of the nation's intercity bus

No new talks were scheduled, and Greyhound officials said they did not know when service might resume.

Rival companies added extra routes and buses and honored Greyhound tickets to make up for the lost service, and Amtrak also accepted Greyhound tickets, but long passenger lines were still reported in some places.

Greyhound officials began shutting down operations Tuesday afternoon to avoid stranding passengers. As several strikers picketed the Greyhound depot in Portland, Ore., today, dozens of passengers complained that the walkout had left them without transportation.

Scott Moore said he had planned to take a Greyhound bus from Portland to his home in Lincoln City on Wednesday night, but the strike left him stranded.

"No other bus goes there." Moore said. "I sure don't know what's going on."

In San Francisco, about 25 workers began picketing the Greyhound station when the strike began. One passenger. told he could go to other bus companies to get to his destination, responded angrily, "Why should I have to pay for cab fare when I bought this ticket?"

The company is seeking 9.5 percent salary cuts for drivers and terminal, maintenance and office workers, saying the cuts are necessary for the bus division to remain competitive, according to John W. Teets, chairman of the board of Phoenixbased Greyhound Corp.

"Greyhound's higher labor costs prohibit us from effectively competing against discount airlines and other bus companies," he said.

He said operations would resume as soon as possible, using new employees if
